Travel When the Southwest Was Young

This is a scene typical of Dallas and its Main Street of early days. The photograph was taken on one of the nine famous roads and highways which have been reproduced by the Ford Motor Company at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. In 1881 the street was paved with round bois d'arc blocks and later on the round block was replaced with rectangular blocks. Both types are pictured here.

Main Street, Dallas, which is believed to have been one of three old Indian trails leading to the cabin of John Neely Bryan, pioneer settler of Dallas, is reproduced in part in the "Roads of the Southwest" which encircle the lagoon opposite the Ford building at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. This road is one of nine reconstructed historic trails and highways which have played important roles in the development of the Southwest.

The history of Main Street goes back to the beginning of the settlement which has grown to be the second largest city in Texas. In 1841, John Neely Bryan, starting from Preston Bend on the Red River, came down an Indian trail to the three forks of the Trinity River. The trail was later known as Preston Road and was the second most important early road in North Texas. It is now a part of Texas State Highway 116.

John Neely Bryan pitched camp on the banks of the Trinity River where the Indian trail forded the river at the three forks. He staked his claim to 640 acres of land which included the ground upon which much of the present business district of Dallas stands. Immediately a log cabin was erected and he started a trading post. Since he had settled at the only logical crossing of the river for miles around, the military road, or stage highway, which had been authorized, naturally crossed in front of his cabin.

In 1881 bois d'arc block pavement was laid downtown. This was round blocks laid on a base of five or six inches of gravel. Later on this round block pavement was replaced with the rectangular bois d'arc blocks on sand and concrete base. This has been replaced from time to time with asphalt and brick.

BANK GROUPS MAKE NATIONWIDE SURVEY

American and State Banking Associations Collaborate in Investigation

LOAN SERVICES STUDIED

Activities of the Government in the Banking Field Are Reviewed and Position of Banks Analyzed

NEW YORK—Detailed bank researches, covering all phases of practical operating and economic facts and conditions related to banking, are being made by the American Bankers Association. The resulting material is being placed at the disposal of all state banking associations, which in many instances are extending the researches of the national association in their own states. These activities are said to be a part of the general program of banking development which is being carried on by the organized banking business.

Among the most extensive researches being conducted by the American Bankers Association is that of its Committee on Banking Studies, which is making a detailed survey of Federal Government lending agencies and policies. The basic material, which is kept up to date by continuing studies, shows where the Government agencies get the money they lend, what liability the Government assumes, what subsidy it extends, what return it gets, for what and to whom the money goes and on what terms it is loaned.

The Government in Banking

"It is not the intention of the committee to express its viewpoint about any agency," says the foreword to this material. "Its intention is only to determine the facts. These facts properly assembled and presented should help banks to meet Government competition if and where it exists. The committee believes the Government entered the lending field at a critical period in order to aid banks and financial institutions. If the time has come for the Government to withdraw, it is the duty of bankers to demonstrate their readiness to take care of all sound credit needs."

It adds that the banks must be equipped with full factual material as to the Government's emergency lending activities and practices, and that full cooperation has been given the committee by Government agencies in obtaining facts. Binders of the material gathered have been placed by the committee in the hands of state association officers and committees of three members appointed to cooperate with it in carrying on banking research.

The Committee on Banking Studies has also made a survey of the Postal Savings System throughout the United States to ascertain to what extent it is competing with chartered banks. Questionnaires were sent to banks in all places where Postal Savings depositories are operated and over 93 per cent returned answers which will be analyzed as a basis for the committee's findings.

The Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a nation-wide survey covering the movement among banks to increase their earning abilities "through fair and legitimate rates for services they render their depositors." The commission has developed a uniform plan of account analysis as a basis of sound charges.

Personal Income Loans

The Bank Management Commission has also formulated methods for installing and operating personal income loan departments in banks. "This plan contemplates making loans primarily to individuals and small business concerns, based upon the character and assured incomes of the borrowers, as distinguished from the usual basis for commercial loans," the commission says.

It points out that a large part of the population is not now making use of available bank credit and that "to these people the personal loan department extends a valuable service which at the same time is profitable to the bank." It adds that it is "the duty of the banks to educate the public to come to the bank for all financial services. Small borrowers should be informed that the local bank is ready and willing to take care of their demands."

Other Researches

Other researches are being made by the Economic Policy Commission of the association dealing with shrinkages in liquid commercial loans caused by the economic changes in the nation's business methods, while the National Bank Division has made studies of the lending and investment powers of this class of bank, the present status of the real estate investment field and of detailed data by states on earnings and expenses.

The Savings Division has gathered the facts showing savings in banks of all types, the number of savings depositors, the per capita savings for the country as a whole and the effects of current economic and social changes upon the savings habits of the American people.

The association's State Bank Division has issued the most recent figures available as to the detailed conditions of state banks, showing steady improvement in the position of the state banks, with marked expansion in their aggregate resources, while the Trust Division has compiled a guide to fees with a recommended cost accounting system.

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all upset.

BANKERS WILL MEET IN ANNUAL COUNCIL

Business Men Also Invited to Present Their Views on Services of Banks to the Public

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Robert V. Fleming, President American Bankers Association, has announced that the organization's annual convention will be held at San Francisco, September 21-24, and its program will call in not only bankers but speakers from various lines of business to present their viewpoints and advice.

The plans for the convention discussions take into consideration the fact, he said, that one of the major problems of banking today is to develop its operations along lines that will create greater public understanding of its methods and services.

"It is my earnest conviction that such public understanding of banking is not only an essential defense against attacks from whatever source, but is also requisite to re-establishing it upon a firm and satisfactory basis of profitable operations," Mr. Fleming said.

General Improvement Cited

"The improvement in general conditions which is now taking place should be of material aid to bankers in carrying forward a constructive program for increasingly useful relationships between banking and business, as well as one of more helpful personal business services to all our people. Sound banking conducted in ways the public need and understand must be the aim of successful bank management.

"How can the banker make his operations and policies more understandable to the people of his community? How can better and broader financial services be soundly provided? How can banking improve its operating methods and income? These and many similar questions demand the earnest attention of all bankers. They call for a fresh counselling together and a new interchange of experience and advice among the members of our profession.

"With these thoughts in mind, we have built the convention program with the view of also calling into our councils speakers from various lines of business to give us their viewpoints and advice. I can say without reservation that this is to my mind one of the most crucial years in the evolution of American banking and that we are passing through a period demanding, as never before, cooperation and mutual exchange of viewpoint among our members and others."

Radio Commencement Exercises

More than 200 widely separated chapters of the American Institute of Banking, the educational section of the American Bankers Association, hold annually in September a simultaneous commencement exercise at which they listen to the speaker of the evening by radio. This is said to be the most extensive graduation ceremony held by any educational institution. The aggregate membership of the chapters, which are located in cities and towns throughout the United States, totals about 35,000 bank employees and officers. The graduates number each year more than 2,500 and total graduates are now over 25,000.

The Business Outlook

NEW YORK.—The natural forces of recovery have demonstrated their strength and have a momentum which may reasonably be expected to carry the country into new high ground, says "Banking," the publication of the American Bankers Association, in its August issue. The momentary stimulation following the distribution of bonus funds to the veterans has practically died away and is no longer an important business factor. A certain degree of uncertainty arising from the national political campaign is unavoidable, the magazine says.

Foreign Trade

The Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a report which shows that the foreign trade of the world for the year 1935 on the basis of its estimated physical volume was 78.9 per cent of the 1929 level. This was 2.1 per cent above the volume of 1934 and is the highest since 1929. The gold values of world trade were much lower due to the lower commodity prices in January, 1936. The combined index of 75 countries showed 35.7 per cent of the 1929 average.

National Bank Growth

Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor announced recently that total deposits of the 5,374 national banks in the United States on June 30, 1936, the date of the last call made for statements of condition, aggregated $26,300,453,000. The figure is a new high record for national banks exceeding by $1,340,998,000, or 5.39%, the amount reported as of March 4, 1936, the previous high record. The current figures show also that deposits increased $3,682,207,000, or 16.35%, over the amount reported as of June 30, 1935, the date of the corresponding call a year ago.

Blinking and Squinting

Common Among Albinos

The whiteness of skin and hair of an albino is due entirely to lack of pigmentation. Pigmentation depends on color bases and enzymes or ferments, which cause the color bases to produce colored products says Pathfinder Magazine.

A person, animal or plant lacking either or both essentials, or the power to cause the ferments to act on the bases, will be an albino; although a mere lack of sunlight will cause albinism, for the ultra-violet rays are necessary to stimulate the enzymes.

In true albinism the skin seems almost transparent, the hair on all parts is white, and the eyes are pink; the latter conditions being due to the lack of pigment in the transparent retina, which permits the blood circulating in the retinal vessels to be seen. Blinking and squinting are usually obvious in albinos, for the lack of pigment makes the eyes extremely sensitive to light.

The frequency of albinism is not known, but it is much more common in some races than in others, being most frequent in Indians of Mexico and South America. The so-called "White Indians" of South America are a race of albinos. The phenomenon occurs quite rarely in the negro race.

Six Ohio Soldiers Rose to President of the U. S.

Six Ohio soldiers became President of the United States. They were: William Henry Harrison, the ninth President; Ulysses S. Grant, the eighteenth President; Rutherford B. Hayes, the nineteenth; James A. Garfield, the twentieth; Benjamin Harrison, the twenty-third, and William McKinley, the twenty-fifth.

While William Henry Harrison was not born in Ohio, he made his home in this state, and resided there when elected to the Presidency. Harrison fought in the Indian wars, gaining the victory of Tippecanoe in 1811, and that of the Thames in 1813. Grant served through the Mexican and Civil wars, finally being raised to the rank of general. Hayes was brevetted a major general of volunteers in the Civil war. Garfield joined the Union army as lieutenant colonel of volunteers and rose in the ranks to major general. Benjamin Harrison served in the Civil war as commander of a regiment and was brevetted brigadier general. McKinley served in the Civil war, attaining the rank of major.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Electing the President

Three main plans of electing the President of the United States were considered by the Constitutional convention. One was for direct election by the people, one was for election by congress, and the third was for the electoral college. The second plan was tentatively adopted twice, on one occasion unanimously, but opinion gradually shifted in the favor of a balance of power between congress and the President and this could scarcely exist if the latter were chosen by the former. The electoral college plan was suggested by Hamilton and seems to have been borrowed from Maryland. It was assumed that the electors would be chosen from the most capable and trustworthy men and that these in turn would weigh the qualifications of persons available for the presidency and cast their ballots as free agents.

Good Intentions

If only all the nice letters we intended to write were written; if all the good deeds we intended to do were done, what a different world this would be. Many a lonely life would have been brightened, many a discouraged heart would have been strengthened, and heaven would have come nearer to earth; yet we failed. Perhaps we were tired, perhaps we were too busy with something of much less importance; and the day slipped by and there was nothing but the good intention to show what we really intended to be. And the intention never compensates for the lack of the fulfillment.

"Grass Widow," Old Term

The term "grass widow" is one which dates in origin to the Middle Ages and it cannot be said just when it was coined, nor where or by whom. It is a corruption of "grace widow"—that is, widow by grace or courtesy. Originally it was applied to an unmarried woman who had a child. Later it came to designate a woman separated from her husband, and now most commonly a divorcee. The expression is familiar in all the English-speaking countries, and has a parallel in French.

Crossing the Equator

Crossing the equator has nothing to do with a change of time. It is when crossing the International date line, which lies in the middle of the Pacific ocean and roughly corresponds to the one hundred and eightieth meridian, that the traveler loses or gains a day, depending on which way his vessel is moving. It is a purely arbitrary arrangement, made necessary by our method of reckoning time. Sailing west across the date line, a day is lost; crossing it eastward adds a day.
