Guard Child's Eyes During "Eyestrain" Season

By Jean Prentice

Three-fourths of all a young child learns, say scientists, comes through the eyes. Prevention of eyestrain is particularly important during these early years.

STUDENTS, six or sixty years of age, need good lighting for better sight, better grades . . . and for less of that "tired feeling."

And just as children need the proper size of chair and table for the comfort of their bodies when they study, so they need proper lighting for the comfort and protection of their eyes.

These facts are pointed out at this "eyestrain" season of the year by lighting scientists who have carefully studied light in its relation to sight.

No longer does the alert mother or father take it for granted that any kind of light is safe for home work. Research in the country's lighting laboratories has shown us differently.

Poor Light Causes Eye Defects

Impaired eyesight is found in one out of five school children, two out of five college students and three out of five persons over forty. And we know that poor lighting has been a contributing cause to this regrettable condition.

By actual test it has been proved that home work is easier for children when studied under improved lighting, and that better grades result.

"All right," says mother, "I'll improve the lighting. But how?"

First, have your lighting measured. It's being done these days as matter of fact as you call upon the thermometer for your child when she gets sick. Light is measured with a little instrument called a light meter. The meter may be carried about in your hand. A moving needle points on the dial to the amount of light you have (in a measurement called "footcandles"). Your lighting company can easily do the measuring for you.

In many homes only five foot-candles of light are found at the child's study table. Yet nature gives us at least 500 in the shade of a tree. Your child should have a minimum of ten for most textbooks.

Quality of Light Important

But quantity of light has little value without quality. This means an even amount of general illumination throughout the room in addition to light from a study lamp. The eyes are thus not constantly forced to "change gears" as they look from light to dark.

Quality of light also means a good lamp. Ideal ones for your child are those approved by the Illuminating Engineering Society, a nationally known group of lighting men and eyesight specialists. The lamps are made in a variety of designs by a number of manufacturers. Their proper height, white shade and inner translucent bowl generously distribute the light both up and down and over a wide area. The light is smooth and soft, and harmful glare is avoided.

And then watch your boy or girl study under one of these lamps! Or try it yourself.

Governor Welcomes 3,000,000th Ford Truck

After a battle with rains and high water, the 3,000,000th Ford truck ended its goodwill tour across the nation from Dearborn, Mich., and was officially welcomed to Dallas, Texas, and the Texas Centennial Exposition. At the Exposition the famous truck was placed on display in the court of the Ford exhibit building.

At the city limits a police escort and a number of cars and commercial vehicles met the 3,000,000th truck, which has traversed 29 states en route to the Centennial. H. B. Reynolds, in charge of the 3,000,000th Ford truck, related a story of bad roads and interrupted programs due to rainy weather, especially the last two weeks in Texas.

The motorcade moved to the exposition and at this point Ray Foley, Assistant Director General of the Exposition, met Reynolds and gave him a scroll. This "Ambassador of Goodwill" award is made only to those individuals who have contributed greatly to the publicizing of the Exposition.

When Reynolds and the 3,000,000th truck were in Austin, en route to Dallas, Gov. James Allred greeted the Ford representative and in turn was presented messages of good will from the chief executives of several states through which the truck had passed. Among the souvenirs was a gallon of Atlantic ocean water and a jar of sand, a present from Atlantic City to Texas. There were numerous messages and letters of a congratulatory nature.

The first Ford truck was built by the company in 1917. It was a one-ton model, powered with the famous Model T engine. Since then 3,000,000 Ford trucks and commercial cars have rolled off the assembly lines, the Model T and Model TT until 1926, the Model A until 1932 and the Ford V-8 since that time.

The 3,000,000th Ford truck is pictured in the upper photograph in front of the Ford exhibit building at the Texas Centennial in Dallas. The truck arrived at the Centennial after making stops in 29 states. In the lower photograph, the truck is shown being welcomed to Texas by Governor James V. Allred, when the vehicle arrived at Austin, Texas, the capital. This photograph was taken in front of the Texas state capitol. Governor Allred is shown in the light suit in the center of the picture, and from left to right, the group is composed of Chief Thorp, of the Austin Police Department; L. G. Russell, commercial manager, Ford Motor Company, Houston; H. B. Reynolds, Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Michigan, in charge of the 3,000,000th truck; Governor Allred, a state highway patrol officer, Sam Rogers, deputy sheriff, and John T. Parker, county commissioner.

Some idea of the position Ford has attained in the commercial vehicle field since 1917 is gained from a breakdown of the registrations of all trucks and commercial cars in service in the United States on January 1, 1936. On that date there were 8,535,661 commercial units in operation. Of these, 1,424,769 units, or 40.3 per cent, were of Ford manufacture. The Ford proportion of the whole was more than one-half larger than that of any other manufacturer.

TRIPLETS ARE BORN ONLY ONCE IN 7,103 BIRTHS, VIRGIL WILLIAMS SAYS

Immediately after the Shaw triplets were born September 30, in the little secluded community of Knott, 20 miles north of Big Spring, visitors by the hundreds were having to be turned away from the two room farm home of the father, W. S. Shaw a tenant farmer. But Homer Williams who with his twin brother, Virgil Williams of Floydada, who have made a scientific study of multiple births, realized that triplets are born only once in 7,103 births and the big question immediately arose in their minds as to whether or not the triplets were identical or opposite. Homer Williams who lives in Sweetwater went to the Shaw home at Knott last Saturday, as a special correspondent for the Sweetwater Reporter and with credentials from Dr. True, who delivered the triplets and is 70 years of age, and who says he has delivered 4,500 babies and these are his first triplets. Mr. Williams interviewed the nurse, Mrs. Bussey, who is donating her services, the father who is 40, born in Mississippi and who has a twin sister a brother and sister who are twins; he also interviewed the mother Mrs. Annie Angeline Shaw who was born in Nebraska 32 years ago and is the mother of 11 children all living except one.

When Mr. Williams told the proud mother that triplets are born only once in 7,103 births she smiled and said "then I have done something." When it was suggested to the mother that a fund may be raised in order to move her and the three new sons into Big Spring that the triplets may be given a better chance to live, she said she was willing, provided her other children would be sent to school and cared for during her absence.

The boy triplets were named Franklin, Delano and Roosevelt. Their bed was an improvised one made from the top of a trunk, each child is carefully placed in the bed so as not to allow them to become mixed.

Dr. True says that he is going to send President Roosevelt a picture of them. Mr. Roman, a merchant of Big Spring said he had started a fund in order to assist the parents to give the babies the care necessary. A fund of $51 has been raised by friends and neighbors of the Knott community and who Mrs. Bussey says have been very willing to assist in any way they can. Dr. True, who is perhaps the proudest doctor since Dr. DaFoes' find, said Franklin was born kicking and crying, Delano was slow to breathe and Roosevelt came perfectly normal, 45 minutes after Franklin. Franklin weighed 5 pounds while his other two triplets weighed 5 1/2 pounds each. That they have a good chance to live and be normal babies.

Mr. Virgil Williams says that the entire developments pertaining to the birth of these triplets was unusual, as told by both Dr. True and the mother. He and Homer Williams searched their data on multiple births and found incomplete records describing the three membranes and the one placenta as was the case. Competent doctors are being consulted in their effort to determine the question of identical or opposite triplets of the Knott community farmer.

Virgil Williams was in Sweetwater last Sunday.

Baby Bunting Stuff: A lot of Broadwayites go up into Connecticut over the week-end with the intention of hunting rabbits. Whether or not they bring back any game, they certainly bring back yarns about desperate encounters with bunnies in the hills and dales of the Nutmeg State...

Just a Slight Drop: Up in Stamford, N. Y., which is in the heart of the summer resort section, the hotel men got together to ascertain the highest point in the town. It was discovered that 2,500 feet, which, though somewhat lower than nearby hills, is as high up as the village goes...

Music and the Law: Our old hand organ man, the one with the handlebar mustache and a fondness for "The Marsellaise," is back on the job again. Questioned as to how he got around the mayor's order barring hurdy-gurdys, he replied that, after he had laid off until his money was all gone, he visited the mayor and begged him for a license. The mayor, so the organ-grinder said, replied that he couldn't give him a license but he could take his organ out provided he moved along whenever any one ordered him to do so.

This and That Dep't: The McAlpin is said to be the only New York hotel with a woman house detective on its staff. Joan Marsh, motion picture actress, may be added to the list of those with hobbies. She collects autographs of other motion picture actresses...

Search for an Original: A report that a member of the original cast of "Aida," first produced in Cairo in 1871, is somewhere in New York is causing a lot of activity on the part of members of the Del'Orefice Opera Co. Despite the years that must have come on the singer, he is wanted to take part in the millionth performance which is to be given August 1 with the Welfare Council of New York's fund for crippled children as the beneficiary.

Just as Woman to Woman: Esther Velas, who wields a baton over an all-male orchestra in the Hotel Roosevelt, doesn't think the average woman musician is in the same class with the average male musician. "She is too sentimental a creature to become a really good performer," declared Miss Velas.

"Old Faithful" Isn't Faithful Any More: Yellowstone Park, Wyo.—The longest and shortest intervals between eruptions of Old Faithful geyser were recorded here recently. The usually reliable geyser spouted once at 11:56 a. m. and then burst into action again at 12:26 p. m., a wait of only thirty minutes.

Pig Latin and Dog Latin Are Entirely Different

Pig Latin, which is perhaps a modern version of back slang, does not depend solely on the reversing of spelling or position of syllables to cause the desired change in pronunciation, advises a writer in the Kansas City Star. The modern use usually centers around one syllable words beginning with one or more consonants.

Dog Latin does not retain its original implication of a corrupt Latin, but is the name given to another system of distorting English words for the sake of secrecy. In dog Latin "olle" is to be disguised, and "g" placed before the remainder of the word. Following this system, "let me go" becomes "to-leget mollege gollego."

Many Irish People Died When Potato Crop Failed

Year after year, beginning about 1840, the potato crops of Europe and North America suffered terrible losses. So discouraged did the growers of New York state become that each five-year census showed a drop in production till only 6,447,394 bushels were grown in 1860.

Worst of all was the terrible Irish famine of 1845, 1846 and 1847. Before potatoes became generally used for food in Ireland the population was estimated at about 850,000 in 1850. By 1845 it had increased to 8,295,061. More than 4 per cent of the land of Ireland was planted to potatoes. So complete and disastrous was the loss of the potato crop by blight and rot, and so great was the dependence of the Irish people upon their staff of life that between 200,000 and 300,000 persons perished of starvation or of diseases brought on by insufficient food.

Wicked Fruit: If there is one really wicked fruit, it is the durian, which weighs more than 10 pounds and is covered with sharp, steel-like spikes, says Tri-Bits Magazine. It grows on trees well over 80 feet high, and often falls on those who gather it, inflicting terrible wounds and sometimes causing death.

Derivation of Term "OK": One writer says that the term "OK" dates back to Martin Van Buren's race for the Presidency, in 1840. A coin of that time, they say, was found that bore the inscription, "The sober thought of the people is OK." Another theory traces "OK" to the days when Andrew Jackson found that the Choctaw Indians, in their bartering with other tribes, used the word "Okeh" to designate a piece of merchandise or livestock as fit and good.

Opportunity and Grit: Many great merchants have found their opportunity in sweeping the floors of the very stores they owned later. Push, determination and grit are great opportunity makers. A robust physique, a good education, integrity, are the best of opportunity makers.

No Cow's Death: According to a Viking belief, no one could enter the halls of Odin, the Viking heaven, unless he had died in battle or in quest of noble adventure.

Versatile Ti Plant: The ti plant of Hawaii has always played an important part in island life, even before the islands became a section of the United States.

Discovered Porcelain in the Eighteenth Century

Meissen, Germany, owes its great porcelain works, the home of Dresden China, to a young man, Johann Bottger, who started out early in the eighteenth century to convert base metals to gold and discovered instead the secret of making porcelain.

Imprisoned by August the Strong, king of Saxony, and told to produce gold by alchemy, Bottger went out over the countryside digging mysterious holes in the ground and keeping samples of the earth he dug up. Then after experiments with these he succeeded in making a red earthenware, and later a white porcelain, wares that had hitherto been obtainable only in China.

Travelers are allowed to go through the porcelain works in Meissen and view at leisure the various processes, but in Bottger's time the secret was so valuable that August the Strong kept him and his workmen virtually prisoners, states a writer in the Chicago Daily News. A century after the discovery, for instance, when Napoleon wanted to know the process, the director of the works had to ask the Saxon elector before he could reveal it.

One of the finest collections of Dresden china is in Dresden, 17 miles from Meissen. It contains an example of nearly every piece ever turned out by the factory, and in addition has thousands of specimens of Chinese, Japanese and European porcelains.

Jewels Become Ill; Must Be Sent to a Gem Doctor

Jewels can become ill like people, but, states a writer in Pearson's Weekly, jewels that have lost their luster or are otherwise "sick" are seldom discarded. They are sent to a gem doctor.

Emeralds, onyx, diamonds and mineral stones in general suffer chiefly from slight surface wounds due to carelessness on the part of their owners. A repolishing is necessary. The doctor fixes the patient in a metal holder called a "dop." He then applies it gently to a rapidly rotating iron wheel or "lap," chared with diamond dust and the stone returns to its former radiance.

No jewels come oftener to the surgeries than pearls. Lock a pearl away in a safe or deprive it of legitimate exercise, and it becomes sickly looking in no time. But the severest pearl casualties are, curiously enough, caused by diamonds. The Arabs have a legend that the diamond is an angry stone, not to be trusted with other stones, lest it scratch them.

Mother Shipton

Mother Shipton, say the ancient annals, was the child of peasant parents named Sowthiel or Southill, who lived in the latter part of the Fifteenth century near the Dropping well in Yorkshire. Her mother, Agatha, was reputed to be a witch. Agatha named her daughter Ursula, but the neighbors called the girl "the devil's child." Despite the fact that Ursula was phenomenally ugly, says the Chinese Daily News, Tobias Shipton, a builder of York, wed her when she was twenty-four years old.

Mushrooms and Toadstools

There is an ancient fallacy that a toadstool is a poisonous mushroom. All mushrooms that have an umbrella-like cap are roughly classed as toadstools. Another old rule was to eat the mushroom; if it caused death it was poisonous. Outdoor Indiana warns that it never is safe to collect mushrooms in the button stage because until they have opened it is not always possible to classify them.

Complaint in Form of Poem

When the residents of Lower Sandusky, Ohio, wanted to change the name of the town to Fremont in the latter 1840s they engaged Ruth-erford B. Hayes as their legal representative. Strangely enough, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, Hayes, later to become governor and then President, was the only person to present the only formal petition asking for the change and the only person to present the only formal complaint made against the proposed change.
