County Circulating Library Will Begin Here About November 1

County School Superintendent Walter Travis has organized a circulating library for Floyd county to be located in his office at the court house. The purpose of the organization is to give the public schools of the county access to more reading materials and an opportunity for more outside work, without going to the expense of purchasing the books for each school. The library will begin about November 1 according to present plans of Mr. Travis.

Many advantages will be made possible by the circulating library if each teacher and trustee will cooperate and pool a part of the books on hand in each school, it was indicated.

The library will be operated in the following manner, with changes being made if and when it is deemed necessary for the success of the plan: The county superintendent will call on each school desiring to become a member of the library and choose from the local library such books as are acceptable for the circulating library.

The books from each school will be listed as the property of that school, and will remain the property of the school. Any school desiring to withdraw from the library, may do so at any time, and the books belonging to that school will be returned to it.

The management and control of the library shall be the county superintendent and any school failing to abide by the regulations of the library may be dropped from membership at the discretion of the county superintendent.

Operation of the library will begin about November 1, 1936, and the following, or a similar plan will be used in checking out books:

Books may be checked out by any teacher of a school, or by any individual authorized by the principal of the school, provided such order is in writing and signed by the principal.

All books will be due on Saturday, four weeks from date issued, and an overtime charge will be made of 5c per book, per week, or fractional part of a week. Books may be checked out or returned on any day, but will be due only on Saturday so that special week-day trips will not be necessary in order to avoid an overtime charge. Money received will be used in repairing old books and purchasing new ones, and a strict record will be kept of all money received and expended.

A list of all books belonging to the circulating library will be sent to each school, with additional lists from time to time as new books are added.

A card catalogue will be kept, and will be at the disposal of teachers at all times so there will be less confusion in the selection of books.

Mr. Travis makes the following suggestions:

Any suggestions for improving the library will be welcomed and appreciated. After all, the library is yours, and will be what you make it. Let us all work together and give our pupils more library advantages.

ANCIENT SKELETONS FOUND BY 2 GIRLS

Students Aid in Excavating Arizona Ruin.

Kansas City.—High on an Arizona mesa in the foothills of the mountains, near a worn Apache trail, the only two girls in Kansas City to study the prehistoric culture of the New World, Mary Jane Haden and Virginia Narr, spent ten weeks doing field work under the direction of Dr. Byron Cummings, says the Kansas City Star. It was while assisting in the excavation of the great Kinisbba ruin near Fort Apache that they unearthed an entire room, finding three skeletons and many important relics.

"The ruin which we were uncovering," says Miss Hayden in telling of their experiences, "was called Kinisbba (brown house), the name handed down by legend, as these early inhabitants of the Southwest had no written language. Kinisbba is a tremendous ruin, one of the largest ever discovered in the United States, and is divided into eight separate groups of which one was being excavated. In this group 87 rooms and a patio had been uncovered when we commenced our work.

Rooms Doorless, Windowless.

"It is believed that Kinisbba was built between the dates 1200 and 1320 and was originally a two-story house. The first floor rooms have no windows, no doors and were apparently used for storage. Doctor Cummings is of the opinion that the whole upper story burned and fell into the lower because of the large amount of charcoal and debris as well as doorway slabs found in the excavated rooms.

"In the hope of uncovering another room we were assigned a plot just back of a line of excavated rooms, so we were reasonably certain that we would find some relics before we dug very deep.

"Using picks, shovels and trowels, we turned up the earth near the back wall, as our most important job was to locate the walls of our room and from them to designate the position of every relic which we found.

"We were required to level off the ground at every foot, lifting off layers of dirt instead of digging holes. About nine inches down we unearthed the first evidence of prehistoric life—a mano or stone implement for grinding corn. In quick succession we turned up rubbing stones, stones for smoothing arrow shafts, polishing stones for making pottery, prayer stones and fragments of pottery.

Paints Mixed for Use.

"There were bone relics, too—deer bones, coyote, rodent, bone flints and scrapers for cleaning skins, bone daggers and awls, needles, horn chippers. There were paint dishes made of hollowed-out stone, and nearby small quantities of paint, ground and mixed for use.

"We found spindle whorls made of clay and used in winding yucca yarn, ornaments of shell and bone, pendants, arrowheads and spear points and bracelets. One of the most interesting of these ornaments was a turquoise bead, then a rare and difficult stone to obtain, as few are found in ruins.

"We were down more than five feet before we found our first skeleton.

"Thus far only the bones of babies have been found in the ruins, the bodies of the adults having been placed in a burial ground across the arroyo. Twelve babies, however, were found buried in one room of the ruin, and we found three in ours. The skull of one had been cracked, leading us to believe that the child had been killed in a fall from the second story."

Readers of Esperanto Estimated at 1,000,000

Madison, Wis.—Two small printing presses, sandwiched between a desk and shelves bearing hundreds of books and pamphlets in Esperanto here, are the source of a bi-monthly magazine, Scienca Gazeto, published in this universal language.

The same room also is home of Karl Froding, the magazine's editor and publisher. A card on his door reads "The American Esperanto Institute."

One million persons in the world are adept readers of Esperanto, Froding estimates, and 10,000,000 more have some understanding of it. Recognizing that it still is "too early to expect anything," Froding is working toward the day when he believes Esperanto will remove the barriers of national languages.

AGE-ILLS OF PAPER
CURED AT CLINIC

Old Document Seals Also Made Good as New.

London.—Some years ago the registrar of the public record office, London, was ordered to produce in haste a document desired by a member of the government; all he could do was to submit a handful of illegible scraps of paper and dust.

Thus inspired the laboratory of the office was inaugurated, and the other day, before the British Record association, it gave a demonstration of repairing old documents, bringing new life to seals and parchments, and rejuvenating ancient records generally.

Royal charters, early treaties and the innumerable legal records in the care of the office are all liable, as the result of past mishap and neglect, to require "treatment." In the case of their seals, particularly, many years' patient research has been necessary to discover the best "prescriptions."

Such is the reputation of the office for this type of work that a visitor from an important American library is working as a member of the repairing staff to "learn the job."

Illa of Seals Diagnosed.
Members of the association learned, among other things, that old seals "need less air" than papers or parchments; how to mend "fractures" with heated steel pins; and that cotton-wool draws the "greasy nature" of a seal, so that wrapping a seal in cotton-wool is one of the surest means of ensuring that it will in due course crumble. Bags made of linen and cloth have also a weakening effect.

For this reason the public record office has invented a special type of "quilt," made of wool wrapped in waxed tissue paper, for the protection of their more important seals.

Lead seals have their special "disease." The vapor given off by oak attacks them, reducing them in time to a white powder. Any lead seals at the record office are encased in air-tight glass boxes.

In repairing "fractures" in wax seals heated steel pins are pushed into the side of the seal to join up the two halves, much as a cook uses a skewer to hold a joint of meat together. Any cavity is at the same time filled up with wax made according to the traditional medieval recipe, but of a different color to the original.

There is no faking at the public record office, and the "restorative mixture" used for painting weak seals consists of beeswax and turpentine—the two chief ingredients of all early wax seals.

Tonic-Bath Treatment.
So also with the "tonic-bath" given to debilitated papers and parchments. They are subjected to a soaking in warm "size," made by simmering down warm parchment. The effect is to make good that part of the original material which has been lost in the course of decay.

Parchment consists of animal fibers, with the interstices filled with "size," and in all papers of Western manufacture, although their fibers are vegetable, animal "size" was until recent years used. The "size" made in the office by simmering down parchment is therefore a natural tonic for old papers as well.

The warm "size" bath is normally, however, only the final stage of treatment. Old papers which need strengthening are mounted on handmade "linen rag" paper and any holes filled on the front side with patches of new paper, torn neatly to shape; or a new sheet of paper may be used to frame the front of the document, its center being carefully torn away so that there is no roughness at the joint of paper and document.

Ocean Will Yield Vast Supplies of Magnesium

New York.—Scarcity of magnesium deposits in the United States has caused scientists to turn to the ocean for this mineral, valuable to man's health and industry.

"Limitless supplies of magnesium recovered from the ocean," the American Chemical society said, "will strengthen human resistance to cancer and other diseases."

Commercial recovery of minerals from the sea, for centuries the goal of science, is proceeding on the east and west coasts of the United States. Bromine for anti-knock gasoline is being extracted off the coast of North Carolina, the society reports. Production of magnesium from sea water is progressing at South San Francisco.

The production of magnesium salts inexpensively, it is believed, will open new fields for their use medicinally.

Cafe Owners Are Worried Over Requests for Crow

Toledo, Ohio.—Dr. Blaine I. Talbot, president of the Ohio Crow Hunters' association, seems to have Ohio restaurateurs worried. Shortly after introducing crow as a culinary delicacy at a banquet in a Columbus hotel he received this appeal from the maitre d'hotel: "Since your meeting we have had several requests for crows in our dining room. We shall appreciate it if you can let us know where we can buy crows and about what the price will be."

Even, Glareless Light Essential For Reading Without Strain

Glareless, abundant light for reading is provided by the new scientifically-approved lamps having a translucent bowl beneath the shade, and placed just beyond the elbow.

By Jean Prentice

AN easy chair and comfortable lighting are always an invitation to open some of the books you've been wanting to read.

Those new books, for example, that everyone's discussing. And some of the old ones that you once read "because you had to" . . . and that you'd like to read again because you'd really appreciate their richness now.

Scientists who have carefully studied our lighting needs for reading, make the following suggestions: Before you settle down to those hours of pleasure, see that the lighting is good for your eyes. Lighting that is adequate, even and glareless, conserves normal eyesight. It provides added benefits for defective eyesight.

Alertness (which we need for some of the heavier tomes!) is stimulated by good lighting.

Light Magnifies
Many persons do not know that light is a magnifier of small details. A dot must be twice as large to be seen with the same ease under one footcandle (or measure) of light as it would need to be under one hundred footcandles of light.

That's one of the reasons why abundant light makes it easier for us to read.

Be sure that your reading lamp is properly placed. Just beyond the elbow is the correct location for a floor lamp beside an easy chair. If you read at a desk, the lamp should be placed in front at the left, if you are right-handed. Or at the right if you are left-handed.

Don't forget to sit up straight when you read. Some adults carry over from childhood bad posture habits which were probably acquired because the light they used then was weak or glaring.

Safeguard Your Eyesight
Also, before you lose yourself in the trials and tribulations of some beautiful-eyed heroine of the latest novel, there's one more point to consider for the sake of your own eyes—

And that's quality of light. You can have lots of light . . . and still not be protecting your eyesight, if it glares. Good light for reading is abundant light, without glare and without sharp contrasts.

Glare is avoided with the new type of scientifically-approved lamps which are made by many manufacturers. A translucent bowl beneath the shade is an aid to eye comfort since it softly and evenly distributes light both up and down.

Always remember, too, that for really comfortable reading there should be some general lighting throughout the room as well as localized lighting at your chair.

"SHOOTING FISH" OF SIAM REAL EXPERTS

Piscatorial Freaks Could Teach Naval Gunners.

New York.—In the waters somewhere east of Suez, lives a "shooting fish" that can give naval gunners a lesson or two when it comes to marksmanship. This strange creature, known as the "archer fish," lives largely on insects which it shoots from overhanging branches with bullets of water.

Even cigarettes have been extinguished by these marine sharpshooters, according to Hugh M. Smith, former fisheries advisor to the Kingdom of Siam. During his stay in the East, Mr. Smith studied these fish in the Philippines, French Indo-China, Siam, Malaya, Burma and India.

"Wild fish planted in a large pond in the compound of my residence in Bangkok were under close observation for a number of years," writes Mr. Smith in "Natural History" published by the American museum.

Most Efficient.

"Of the oriental fresh-water fishes with which I am acquainted in the wild state, none gives such an impression of intelligence and efficiency as does Toxotes (the archer fish). This impression grows on an observer as he notes the purposeful way in which a fish moves about in a stream, canal, or pond; the zeal and thoroughness with which it explores aquatic and overhanging land plants for insects; the high development of its sense of sight in both air and water; the skill displayed in dislodging insects and seizing them as they fall into the water; the alertness in avoiding danger; and the readiness in adapting itself to life in small ponds and responding to the attentions of persons who provide food.

"A friend of mine, a distinguished acion of the royal family of Siam, and an ardent student of fishes, had a residence on the broad Menam Chao Phya above Bangkok and used to entertain American and European guests with shooting-fish performances. A veranda on which he took many of his meals was directly over the water, and under it Toxotes could be found almost daily, attracted by scraps of fish, meat, chicken, and prawn which were regularly thrown from the table. By means of a spider or cricket dangled on a black thread from the end of a short bamboo pole, the shooting fish could readily be induced to display their marksmanship. I sometimes saw spent water pellets splash on the ceiling of the veranda 10 to 12 feet above the river, and witnessed many other exhibitions which confirmed my respect for the intelligence and skill of Toxotes.

Extinguish Cigarettes.

"On two occasions to my personal knowledge, when my friend sat on the veranda eating his breakfast, reading a newspaper, smoking a cigarette, and apparently neglectful of his fish wards, his attention was attracted by well-directed shots which extinguished his cigarette.

"The force with which the watery pellets may strike an object is sometimes most astonishing to a human observer. An insect may be knocked high in the air or may fall on the bank beyond a fish's reach. At short range the drops may strike a person's face with a distinctly stinging sensation. On many occasions, during exhibitions in Siam, a spider at the end of a thread hanging from the end of a pole was knocked far up on the thread or even over the pole. Spent shots could be heard to splash against the roof of a veranda over the water."

Honolulu Prison Uses Flogging on 2 Inmates

Honolulu.—Flogging has been reintroduced at Oahu prison recently, reopening a controversy concerning corporal punishment.

With the prison board's approval, Acting Warden Joseph Ordenstein ordered thirty lashes each be laid across the backs of Charles Cooper and Julian Eugster, incorrigible inmates.

The punishment is being spread over an extended period. The convicts first received six lashes each with a cat-o-nine tails made of knotted rope. If their behavior does not improve, they will be flogged periodically until the thirty lashes are administered.

The flogging recalled the celebrated Lucas Candido case of 1929. After twice escaping from prison, Candido was ordered flogged. The case went into the Territorial Circuit court on habeas corpus proceedings to enjoin prison authorities.

Quebec.—United States motorists in Quebec this year will find a merry Ha! Ha! awaiting them, but it won't be from traffic police. The roads department expects soon to open a new highway into Little Ha! Ha! and Big Ha! Ha! Lakes district, at the head of the Ha! Ha! river.

Tradition has it that the name Ha! Ha! was given the bay by early explorers of the Saguenay river who mistook the bay for a continuation of the river and named it as a joke on them-

Long distance rates reduced 7 TIMES in 10 years

1926 OCTOBER 1— Rates reduced on calls over 150 miles.	1927 DECEMBER 1— Rates reduced on all calls over 37 1/2 miles.	1929 FEBRUARY 1— Rates reduced on calls between 130 and 1490 miles.
1930 JANUARY 1— Rates reduced on calls between 56 and 316 miles.	1935 JUNE 1— Reduced night rates moved forward from 8:30 p. m. to 7 p. m.	1936 JANUARY 15— Reductions on Sunday calls, and person-to-person calls after 7 p. m.

And now...

SEPTEMBER 1, 1936: Reduced rates on calls over 234 miles and reduced person-to-person overtime rates after 3 minutes of overtime.

In 1926, a person-to-person long distance telephone call between New York and San Francisco cost $20.60 at any hour. Six minutes were required to make the connection.

Today—1936—the same call may be made for only $6.75 at night, or any time on Sunday. You are connected in less than a minute and a half, on the average.

This wide difference between the long distance rates of yesterday and today is the result of seven voluntary reductions made in the past ten years.

It illustrates a Bell System policy in action—the policy of voluntarily reducing rates when it can be done.
