SOME SPOTS WHERE IT'S REALLY COLD

Regard Northeastern Siberia, for Instance.

Washington.—Many a shivering American, watching his thermometer hover far below normal this winter, has thought that his frosty bedroom must be about the coldest spot on earth, or has thanked his lucky stars that he wasn't in the Antarctic with Lincoln Ellsworth. Actually, however, many Americans might have found it considerably warmer in the Antarctic (where it was summer) than at home this winter. Ellsworth reported a temperature of only five below zero Fahrenheit one day during his flight across the South Polar continent, while in the United States some places have had temperatures down to 50 below zero.

"Even 50 below, however, is warm compared to some cold weather that has been recorded in the really frigid parts of the earth," says the National Geographic society.

Only 90 Below Zero.

"Though the winter of 1935-36 will go down in history as one of America's coldest ones, it cannot compare with the winters that visit a region of northeastern Siberia, generally recognized as the 'cold pole' of the earth. "There, at the town of Verkhoyansk, thermometers have dropped to 90 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Devils Lake, N. D., had an average temperature of 20 degrees below zero for five weeks this winter, but Verkhoyansk has averaged as much as 58 below for the month of January in past years.

"On really cold days in Verkhoyansk, the exhaled vapor of a man's breath crystallizes into cracking needles of ice, and breathing becomes painful. Ice forms in the nostrils of horses and threatens to suffocate them.

"But though Lincoln Ellsworth found it as warm as five below zero during the last Antarctic summer, the winter in the South Polar regions is a different story. Admiral Byrd, on his lone vigil at the advanced weather observation base, during the Antarctic winter, recorded a minimum temperature of 80 below.

North and South Poles.

"Summer temperatures both at the North and South poles are much warmer than the colder days experienced in some parts of the United States this winter. When Roald Amundsen discovered the South pole in December, 1911, he reported that it was only 22 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Peary at the North pole, in April, 1909, found the temperature ranging from 11 to 30 below. Doubtless both poles are far colder in winter, but no one has visited them at that time of year.

"Any polar explorer, however, would have found it cold enough to suit him at Riverside ranger station in Yellowstone park, on February 9, 1933. On that date the official thermometer there dropped to 68 below zero Fahrenheit, the record low temperature for the United States.

"When it comes to producing real cold, Mother Nature is a 'piker' when compared to modern scientists. Recently, at the University of Leyden, the Netherlands, experimenters have come within a fraction of a degree of attaining 'absolute zero,' the 'coldest cold' which is set theoretically at 459.6 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

"This extreme cold is achieved by cooling a substance with the aid of liquid air, liquid hydrogen and liquid helium. Then the substance is magnetized, which heats it, and liquid helium is used to remove this heat. The substance then is demagnetized, and as a result it becomes colder still. By subjecting substances to such great cold, scientists hope to learn more about the properties and structure of matter.

"But if all this talk of great cold chills you, end the story with a few thoughts about Death Valley, California, where at times it grows so hot that thermometers have registered over 134 degrees above zero!"

To Move French River to Make Way for Airdrome

Nice, France.—The task of moving a river to make way for an airdrome is facing French engineers. The mouth of the Var, a large river near Nice, is to be diverted. For some years the mouth has been gradually silting up, and a delta has been forming under the surface of the water.

It is proposed to move the river bed 200 yards to the west, so that the delta becomes dry land. On this will be built the airdrome. The moving of the river also will obviate the danger of flooding, which threatens villages on its upper reaches.

2,600 Flyers in California
San Francisco.—California ranks as the most air conscious state in the Union. Out of 14,805 persons in the United States holding pilot's licenses California leads the list with 2,600.

GUADALUPE ISLAND VICTIM OF GREED

Guarded Now to Save Seal From Extinction.

Washington.—On lonely Guadalupe island, 140 miles off the coast of Lower California, Mexican soldiers guard the once plentiful elephant seal from extinction at the hands of hunters and collectors. About 150 six-month-old baby seals have found refuge on this desert island, which has been a government reservation since 1922.

"Once lords of the precipitous, volcanic shores of Guadalupe were the fur seals, whose myriad herds wore smooth the rough rocks of their rookeries," says the National Geographic society. "Hunters came, saw, and conquered. Score: 200,000 pelts, value about $6,000,000. Result: extinction of the Guadalupe fur seal, one of the world's most valuable fur bearers.

What Might Have Been

"Scientists have estimated that if only the annual increase of the original herd had been killed, the Guadalupe rookery would today yield an income of $750,000 a year. "In an attempt to restore some economic value to the island, goat raising was begun many decades ago. The herds multiplied rapidly, an estimate of 1922 placing the goat population at around 50,000. But the venture was a financial failure. Now these omnivorous aliens are gradually eating themselves into oblivion.

"Barren, boulder-strewn Guadalupe has a desert climate. After times of drought, thousands of goat skeletons whiten on the narrow beaches and in the infernal canyons. Although Guadalupe's goats have learned to quench their thirst with sea water, they cannot yet convert stones into fodder.

"In 1875 a visiting naturalist called Guadalupe a botanical paradise; but members of a recent expedition had to shoot specimens of some plants from inaccessible cliff ledges beyond the reach of the nimble-footed goats. Seedlings have no chance. Unless carefully fenced reservations are set aside, the Guadalupe stands of oak, pine, palm, cypress and cedar are doomed to extinction. Seeds of some trees have been collected and planted in California, where they flourish.

Cats and Mice Abound

"Either soldiers stationed on Guadalupe, or goat herders, brought cats which, after failure of the goat project, became part of the local wild life. The cats preyed on petrels, wrens, flickers, and other birds. As a result, some varieties of birds are already extinct.

"Mice came to the island in ships or baggage. Insects, seeds and snails provide food for them. While for the moment the cats prefer a bird diet, it is only a matter of time until the lack of feathered food will turn the hungry cats mouseward.

"The high, northern end of Guadalupe sometimes penetrates the clouds. It is here that the island's limited forests cling to the stony soil. Cypress groves on the west-facing ridges comb moisture out of the fogs to refresh their foliage and trickle down among their roots. Elsewhere, the island is a desert of the most arid type. The high levels of the north are often chilled with raw winds. One visitor found spring two months later in this area than in the sun-baked lowlands ten miles to the south.

"About four times the size of Manhattan island, Guadalupe has no towns or permanent settlement. A few houses clustered about the principal harbor, on the northeast coast, are left-overs from goat-raising days. At intervals, small detachments of Mexican soldiers are stationed there. Ensenada, on the Mexican coast, is the nearest mainland port of any importance."

Successful Hay Fever Remedy Found by British

London.—After an extended trial lasting more than five years authorities in the physiotherapy department of St. George's hospital, London, are satisfied they have developed a treatment for hay fever. During the trial period the treatment has been successful in 89 per cent of the cases.

The treatment involves application by electricity of a coating of ionized zinc to the inside of the nostrils. Three or four applications are given, after which the majority of the patients are free from attacks of ordinary hay fever for a year. Precautionary applications are given at the end of the year and again a year later. Thereafter there is no recurrence of the trouble.

Many cases were recorded in which patients previously were unable to visit rural districts on account of severe attacks of hay fever. They are now able to do so without any ill effects after the treatment.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Floydada Lodge No. 712, A. F. & A. M. Floydada, Texas:

WHEREAS, the Supreme Grand Master of "Our Celestial Lodge" in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst the spirit of our beloved brother J. D. Starks, whose death occurred on September 14th, 1936.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED:

That in his passing Floydada Lodge has lost one of its most charitable members—one who at all times was ready to aid the distressed member—the widow and orphan in their distresses and afflictions, ever having in mind their helplessness—a just and upright mason.

THAT this community has lost a useful and patriotic citizen; one who interested himself in all matters of civic, social and religious affairs, and the general welfare of his town and county; his activities in this connection, and his genial smile will be missed by his fellow citizens.

THAT we deeply sympathize with his family, now in its broken condition. Nothing we can say or do will heal the wound; this slight expression of our fellowship with our brother and friend is not expected or intended to recompense them in their loss and bereavement. We can only breathe the prayer: "That when strength and wisdom of man fails, there is an inexhaustible source above yielded to us through prayer."

THAT a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this lodge, a copy furnished the family of our deceased brother, and a copy be furnished the local press for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
S. B. McCLESKEY,
R. C. SCOTT,
S. E. DUNCAN,
Committee.

Mrs. Bill Grundy spent last Wednesday in Amarillo visiting with friends.

Vanity Table Is a "Beauty Table" When Right Light Is Used

By Jean Prentice

When the light is as long as the mirror, every curve of the face is reflected softly, without false lines or shadows. The new lumiline lamp units have this desirable quality.

ALL the fine cosmetics that a woman buys haven't half a chance . . . when applied under the wrong kind of light.

You might really call this vanity table a "beauty table," because it is just that. Whenever I see an otherwise attractive girl or woman with one cheek rouged differently from the other, or the powder unevenly distributed, I shake my head and think, "No 'beauty lighting' at home."

There's no use denying that smooth soft modern lighting helps you to a better complexion and grooming. And makes you like your own reflection better, too. . . . Which in turn brings additional poise.

It's the old type of lighting from pink and blue shaded dressing table lamps, with a shadow here and a colored high spot there, that makes you play poor tricks upon your complexion.

No Shadows Wanted

The vanity table is made exquisite and yet extremely serviceable when one of the new lumiline lamps is placed at each side. Note how these elongated electric bulbs stand on a base, with a wire and plug to attach to a socket. They're portable, but have a smart air of being a part of the furniture.

And their lighting does plenty for a person. Imagine, for example, that we have a small light on either side that can be stretched like a rubber band. As we extend it, you'll note how more and more of your face is lighted. Finally when the light is as long as the mirror every curve of your face is reflected softly to you, minus false lines or shadows beneath the eyes caused by uneven light.

White Light Essential

Another thing. Trying to match dressing table lamps to the color scheme of a bedroom often presents a problem which is eliminated by the lumiline lamp. A pink or blue shade casts a light which distorts the color of rouge. As a result too much or too little is applied.

But in the true white light of the lumiline lamp (which blends nicely with any color of draperies) you can really see your complexion as others will see it later. And that's a big help to an attractive appearance.

MIRACLES IN BIBLE TRUE, SAYS SAVANT

Sir Marston Points to Archaeological Evidence.

London.—"The reality of the unseen is now recognized by scientists. Indeed, the radio has familiarized us all with the fact that space is not empty.

"Even miracles are ceasing to be a stumbling block to those who keep pace with modern thought."

Sir Charles Marston, veteran English archaeologist, speaking, writes Newell Rogers in the Chicago Herald-Examiner.

In the unending battle between science and religion for dominion over man's mind, Sir Charles has forced science into religion's service to prove that the Bible is true.

That science is his own—archeology.

Sir Charles thinks she is succeeding.

Having accumulated a manufacturing fortune, he has poured out his wealth in financing excavations among the shambles of Eastern civilizations.

He claims that evidence dug up in Bible lands has confounded the critics of the Bible and has shown their conclusions to be wrong and often downright silly.

Making public a summary of ten years' work entitled "Fresh Evidence About the Old Testament," Sir Charles quoting a modern scientist who said that "miracles are only phenomena which we do not as yet understand," the archeologist contrasts this with the scientific attitude of only 25 years ago "which thought it understood everything." He says:

"Those who study the science of physical research can go a stage further (than the fact that space is not empty).

"They are satisfied that intelligences exist in space and at times communicate, and even manifest themselves on earth.

"It is only the materialistic speculations of the last generation which had led us to doubt them."

This pious scientist, who is also a lay leader in the Church of England, has married twice—both times to American women.

American Holds 25-Year Record as Huntmaster

Pau, France.—Frederick H. Prince of Boston has completed his twenty-fifth year as master of foxhounds at Pau. He is considered one of the best in France.

He was named master in 1910, and his term of service has lasted longer than that of any of the 27 huntmen who preceded him as master at the Pau hunt, which was founded in 1842. Only two Frenchmen have been presidents since that time; the others were either English or Americans.

Many well known personalities have attended these hunts, including Edward VII, king of England, who then was prince of Wales. The duke of Wellington was the first to hunt the fox there.

Red coats, green collars, pale yellow waistcoats, and white breeches with turned-up hunting boots make up the regulation costume for hunters.

Most of the hunting takes place over a tract of country 30 miles long in the valley of the Gave de Pau, a fast flowing river in southern France. This region is rich in natural obstacles, and the Pau hunting entails much jumping. It is said locally that one-quarter of every hour of hunting is spent in the air.

Last Horse "Coachman" in Paris Gets a Medal

Paris.—The coachman of the last horse cab in Paris has been decorated with the Medal of the City of Paris.

Monsieur Chevallereau (the first two syllables of his name mean "horse" in French) wrote a letter to Jean Chiappe, president of the Municipal council, saying that he had been a cab driver since 1891 and that for the last two years he had been the one and only man left in that profession in the entire French capital. The president of the council took speedy action and now Chevallereau, dean of his profession, is the possessor of a medal.

The open horse cabs, picturesque survivals of the gay nineties in Paris, were retained chiefly as a tourist attraction.
