Highway Planning Survey Calls For Help Of Local Car Owners

The car owners of Floyd County are being asked to aid tremendously in furnishing vital information to the State Highway Planning Survey in working out a logical plan which future road and street construction will be based. Frank L. Cummings, assessor and collector of the county, has been given a number of cards which ask for fundamental information that is needed in planning, thus affording the car owner an opportunity to participate in his future road program. The cards, to be distributed to car owners as they pay their 1937 registration fees, require no postage and should be self-addressed. The number of cards which have been furnished Mr. Cummings is 2,750 for passenger automobiles, 750 for trucks, 50 for trailers and motorcycles, and 50 for owners of five or more vehicles.

The business of constructing and maintaining highways, streets, and roads has become a tremendous task in recent years, and it now affects the well-being of every citizen. Consequently, every effort should be made to plan our public road system that will serve all car owners in an equitable manner and so that the tax burden for roads will be distributed justly. The information on these cards is vital to the establishment of an equitable, well-planned program. In order to work such a program, the Texas Highway Department and the United States Bureau of Public Roads are conducting a State-wide Highway Planning Survey, and it is to the advantage of each county to participate to the greatest extent possible.

State Health Officer Stresses Need For Better Cooperation in State

Outline of a new Texas health program to cope with the changing social goal of "equal opportunity for old and young, adequate health protection for all" was made by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, at the fourth Texas Conference on Child Health and Protection. "Present plans of the State Department of Health are designed toward an expansion of activities in line with the current aspects of this new social order. Since health is a purchasable commodity, it behooves us to spend our money in a way that will buy the most health for the greatest number. In a nutshell, our job is to provide preventives with our tax money rather than palliatives, such as job insurance and pensions for the unemployed."

Recently the State Health Officer has been in conference with the Board of Health and other leaders, and together they have mapped out a plan with the general objective of reducing infant and material mortality, malnutrition, tuberculosis, malaria, pneumonia, hookworm disease, dysentery and pellagra. To do this the state health department hopes to maintain (1) a well organized and well equipped central office with trained specialists. (2) To establish health districts to cover these counties and towns which do not now have any health service (3) To continue to cooperate with existing health departments in various counties and cities.

Through the creation and maintenance of these new health districts the health department hopes to standardize health procedures throughout the state so that the following objectives may be approximated; better supervision and enforcement of our health laws; adequate teachings of health in our public schools; providing at least some health service for the vast area now without protection; development of local health services; facilities to meet emergencies and epidemics; and development of a well balanced program on material and child health protection.

TYPICAL EFFECTS OF A STRIKE IN ANY MAJOR INDUSTRY

The chart above shows how the chief effects of a strike begin immediately to spread in all directions. Back at the supply sources, cancelled orders for raw and semi-finished materials and lost employment and lost business in ever-widening circles. In distribution channels, sales, employment, and income fall off more or less sharply. Transportation revenues shrink. Curtailed business and thin pocketbooks at the strike center, in the supply sources, and distribution and transportation channels result in generally reduced retail trade, smaller tax collections, increased relief burdens. This picture of the long trail of losses, even much simplified as it is, indicates why economists cannot estimate in advance the total cost of a strike. Studies of the losses from previous strikes show that their total cost mounts to anywhere from 6 to 700 times the value of wages lost by men thrown out of work at the strike center itself.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of

Nature's Writing Found on Lake Erie Limestone

One of the most notable examples of nature's handwriting is to be found at Kelley Island, in Lake Erie, not far from the Ohio city of Sandusky. Here every crag tells of the initiated in nature's handwriting what took place in the Ice age, says a writer in the New York Times.

A number of years ago, while blasting the limestone of which the island is composed, workmen noticed that the surface of the rock uncovered was oddly carved. Over the limestone there is a twenty-foot layer of unstratified rock, sand and gravel. Geologists examined the grooves and carvings on the limestone taken from beneath this covering and reported them to be remarkable imprints left by glaciers.

The grooves are from four to six feet deep. The limestone contains shells of marine creatures, and the shells have been polished until they resemble inlay work.

The ancient Egyptians wrote on the leaf of the papyrus plant; the American Indians on birch bark; but nature in leaving her written message to man compressed millions of animal organisms into a tablet of limestone, and inscribed it with a stylus of granite and fingers of ice perhaps miles in thickness.

Strewn over the northern part of Ohio are granite boulders of all sizes. Their place of origin was in Canada, north of the Great Lakes.

It is concluded that they were transported by moving ice, and the grooves on Kelley Island limestone shows some of the work they did on their passage south.

British Constitution Is for Most Part Unwritten

Although the British Constitution is for the most part unwritten and a result of custom, its development is marked by certain fundamental written laws, says a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

It was Magna Charta, signed in 1215, that secured for the nation the system of annual parliaments, and the free and unfettered administration of justice. The habeas corpus act of 1679 secured to the people the liberty of the person—no longer could a man be imprisoned at the whim of a feudal lord or sovereign; a magistrate's warrant was required.

In 1701 the act of settlement provided for the Protestant succession to the throne, which later became hereditary in the British house of Windsor. The sons of the sovereign and their descendants have precedence over daughters; the daughters and their descendants having preference over all lateral lines.

Other notable landmarks in the development of the British constitution are the act of union with Scotland (1707); the government of Ireland act (1801); and the statute of Westminster, passed in 1931.

When Indian, White Said Adieu

Not infrequently an Ohio Indian tribe would permit an adopted white man or woman to say adieu to the tribe if the person, upon reaching adulthood, found life with the redskins unbearable. The departures differed, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, but they were generally something like the one which is recorded about William Wells. Kidnaped when a boy of twelve, he lived with the tribe until manhood. Then walking with Chief Little Turtle to a clearing on the Maumee, Wells said: "I now leave your nation for my own people. We have long been friends. We are friends yet—until the sun reaches a certain height"—which he indicated by pointing to the sky—"From that time on, we are enemies. Then, if you want to kill me, you may, and if I want to kill you, I may." Wells became the chief of Gen. "Mad" Anthony Wayne's scouts.

Fen Eagles

Fen eagles were famous in the Eighteenth century for the quantities of fish they devoured off the Norfolk coast. One of them, shot down in Suffolk in 1810, measured nine feet across the wings. The high rewards given for their extermination. One hundred years ago, says the Montreal Herald, anybody who destroyed an eagle in the Orkneys was entitled to the gift of a hen from every household in the nearest village.

Sleighing at Zakopane

Carved and gaily painted, the native sleighs are the first thing that strike the eyes of winter visitors to Zakopane, Poland. The drivers are Gorals, or mountaineers, in white trouses, elaborately embroidered, and sheepskin waistcoats, with a little hat perched jauntily on their heads, and their sleighs are the favorite kind of winter transportation.

Flower Capital

Ghent, Belgium, where the world's first hothouse was built over 300 years ago, is called by its residents the flower capital of the world. Its suburbs have miles of hothouses, in which orchids, begonias, lilies and carnations are grown for all Europe, and in summer acres of other flowers are grown in the country surrounding it.

Old Age Simply Mass of Bad Habits, So Cheer Up

They used to say that a woman is as old as she looks and a man is as old as he feels. I believe they are both as old as they think. You are old if you don't realize that your subconscious Old Nick is tempting you all the time. You are youthful if you are aware of the danger, writes Gelett Burgess in Cosmopolitan.

The world is cruel; it ridicules you and rejoices in your slightest imperfection. And all the time, remember, wherever you go, someone is looking at you.

So what? Old age is simply a mass of bad habits. You may not be able to keep your teeth from decaying or your hair from getting thin, but if you keep your zest for today and pull up your weeds and plant the roses of youth, if you know just what you are doing all the time, there's no reason why you shouldn't make yourself every day a little more youthful than yesterday.

The most significant characteristic of youth is growth. When you stop growing you begin to grow old. Of course you can't expect to keep on growing forever physically, but you can keep on growing mentally. And that means youthfulness. It is only by continual mental development and discipline that Age can ever hope to compete with Youth.

Camels Imported to U. S. for Cross-Country Work

This country imported two shiploads of camels—75 in all—from Egypt and Asia Minor, for cross-country communication. It was during Pierce's administration. The experiment was in charge of the War department and Jefferson Davis, secretary of war, was one of the most ardent advocates of the scheme, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The camels were landed at Indianola on the coast of Texas. Greek and Turkish camel drivers were also brought along to drive them.

The camels seemed well fitted for work in that region, and on one expedition they crossed Texas, New Mexico and Arizona to the Colorado, and their behavior was highly commended by the army officer in charge. But the experiment failed because of adverse public opinion and the outbreak of the Civil war.

The camels were sold to circuses and individuals, and many of them were turned loose.

Barnacles

Young barnacles are odd looking, very different in youth from the adult barnacle familiar to the sailor. And for a long time no one realized that this curious little creature was a young barnacle. It was named a "nauplius." It is only after the nauplius attaches itself to a rock or some board with its long feelers, that it develops a double shell for its protection. From time to time, the new shell sections are added to its "roof" until it generally has five compartments. Below the shell hang several pairs of long arm-like appendages which wave currents of water into the barnacle's mouth—and in the water hundreds of tiny creatures which are the barnacles' regular menu. Barnacles are commonest in warm seas, but there are countless numbers of them on sticks and stones in northern waters as well.

One of China's Capitals

Sian was one of the first of the eighteen capitals of China, the one which first united the whole country. Ambassadors from Persia and distant Turkey knelt before the Dragon Throne in Sian. Christian missionaries established a cathedral here twelve centuries ago. In Sian was developed the culture which influenced the rest of China to adopt tea for the national beverage. Sian's civilizing effect spread to Japan, with the result that the Japanese adopted and use Chinese characters in writing and drink tea. Many Japanese wear the kimono, a variation of an ancient Chinese style which has been abandoned in the country of its origin.

The "Wailing Place"

The "wailing place," also termed occasionally the "wailing wall," specifically the Jews' Wailing Place, says Literary Digest, is the usual designation of part of the Solomonic wall in Jerusalem where the Jews assemble to lament the destruction of the Temple. The Quarterly Review (London) contained: "To the Jews the principal Holy Place is the Wailing Wall, the fragment of the Wall of the Temple at which the Jews perpetually mourn for their lost glories, and pray for the restoration of them."

The Name "Hiawatha"

Hiawatha is a name and a title of a chieftainship hereditary in the Toroise clan of the Mohawk tribe; it is the second on the roll of federal chieftainships of the Iroquois confederation. The first known noted to bear the name was a poet-reformer, statesman, legislator and magician, justly celebrated as one of the founders of the League of the Iroquois, the Confederation of Five Nations. Tradition makes him a prophet also.

SAFETY---OR THIS

DEATH, in the guise of heavily loaded motor trucks, rides the highways of Texas every day and every night. The toll of human death and injury of these vehicles is appalling.

In the five-year period, 1932 to 1936, inclusive, trucks in Texas have participated in 8,416 highway accidents in which 2,195 persons were killed and 11,962 injured. In 1936 alone, their record stood 2,208 accidents with 3,323 persons injured and 576 killed. These actual records of people killed, as shown by Texas newspapers, compared with the number of deaths resulting from all motor vehicle accidents, as given by the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Austin, show that the average Texas truck participates in twice as many fatal accidents as the average passenger car.

Likewise, as might be reasonably expected from their greater weight and size, and as shown by the records of the Texas Railroad Commission, the Carrier-for-Hire truck accidents, during 1936, have resulted, vehicle for vehicle, in three times the number of fatalities as for the average passenger car.

Increased liability to highway accident forms an inseparable result of truck operation. But even now, the threat of greater highway hazards hangs over the people of Texas. Newspapers report that operators of Big trucks have organized for the purpose of securing an increase in weight and speed limits, already too large. These are the elements, weight and speed which, in highway accidents, spell "D-E-A-T-H."

The right to grant, condition or deny the use of the highways for profit, belongs to you, the people of Texas, notwithstanding the attempts of the operators of Big trucks to take it away and give it to the federal government instead. Your present laws, limiting the size, weight and speed of trucks, were enacted by reason of your insistence, and by your insistence they have remained on the statute books. Their amendment would serve the sole purpose of increasing the profits of operators of the Big trucks, with the certain results of also increasing the mounting injuries, deaths and property losses now taking place on your highways.

Public welfare and public safety demand that existing highway regulations shall be retained and enforced.
