Windsor, who has had charge of the barbecuing for the past several years, again served in this capacity, and the meat was reported to be the very best they had ever had.

Some club members enjoyed games of golf before the meal, while many refreshed themselves in the cool waters of the swimming pool.

All seemed to enjoy the affair most heartily, and some are even wishing that it might be held twice each year instead of once.

Four Men Killed As Plane Crashes Near Littlefield Sunday

Ship, Piloted by Railroad Conductor, Noses Down in Lamb County Cotton Field Party Had Just Taken Off From Airport.

Littlefield, August 1.—Four persons were killed in a plane crash two miles northwest of here today.

They were: O. V. Sims, railroad conductor of Slaton, Texas, who was piloting the plane; Verne C. C. Baxter, OOC camp member, and Orvel Tabor and Henry Johnson, employees of a local packing plant.

The party had taken off from the Littlefield airport shortly before. Two highway patrolmen from Lubbock were investigating the accident, which happened about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The plane struck nose down in a cotton field but did not burn.

The pilot apparently had cut off the ignition before the red and silver Stinson plane fell from 200 feet.

Accounts of the tragedy varied.

The plane fell on the farm of R. W. Curry, who said the motor appeared to stop before the plane nosedived. C. E. Phillips, who was 200 yards from the crash, was the first to reach the plane. Herman Kelm, who was a half mile away, said the motor sputtered until it struck the ground.

Bodies of the victims were literally buried with the wreckage. A farm tractor and a garage service car were used to pull the wreckage apart to extract the bodies.

W. B. Alder and Jack Reeves of Lubbock were the highway patrolmen investigating the wreck.

To Reinvestigate Old Age Assistance Commission Rolls

Reinvestigation of the rolls is the normal process by which a social welfare program is adjusted to the changing economic conditions, State Pension Director W. A. Little explained this week.

"It is logical that an assistance grant made six months ago is probably either too small or too large for the present needs of an applicant. 'Reinvestigation' means that the Old Age Assistance Commission is going back and studying cases to see if each grant meets the needs of the individual," he added.

Little said the old age assistance program under both the Texas and federal laws was based upon the grants of aid being in the exact amounts of the needs of the applicants. He pointed out that continuous reinvestigations were an important part of any welfare program.

"When a grant is changed, either by being raised or lowered, such action must come only after the studied and serious consideration of the conditions surrounding the particular individual, of his needs, of his resources. To change a person's grant without a complete study of this would be thoroughly unfair," the director declared.

Friday Must Be A Bad Day For Wilson Milton

If Wilson Milton is the least superstitious, he probably believes that Friday is his bad day. He received a broken arm Friday, July 30, while at work at the Oden Chevrolet Company garage where he is employed. Friday night his car burned. The car was in the garage when it started hoiking. It burned before anyone was able to extinguish the flames. The fire was believed to be due to a shortage in the wiring.

Old English Cathedrals Magnificent Structures

The medieval cathedrals of England are among the most magnificent in Europe, and among the best preserved and most important architecturally. Many of them, says a writer in the New York Herald Tribune, while adhering to general Gothic principles, are distinctive in style and preserve some of the best examples of early English architecture.

One need not be a student of architecture or a devout churchman to appreciate the beauty of these ancient monuments to man's faith and art and skill. In their majesty they dominate many of the cities of England.

One of the cathedrals is Canterbury, the Metropolitan Church of England. Canterbury itself is an interesting old city in the County of Kent.

The cathedral is on the site of the church built there by St. Augustine in 603. The present building was in process of construction from the eleventh to the fifteenth century. The northwest transept was the scene of the murder of Thomas a Becket in 1170.

Second only to Canterbury in ecclesiastical importance is York Minster in the City of York, in northern England, the see of the Archbishop of York. The great York Minster is the largest medieval cathedral in England and one of the oldest. The imposing edifice was built in the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth centuries.

Durham Cathedral is one of the most ancient and most important in the country, and also one of the most perfectly situated, on an eminence above the old city of Winchester cathedral, in the south of England, also is one of the earliest. It is the longest Gothic church in Europe.

Many authorities consider Salisbury Cathedral the most perfect of the great English churches. It is an example of pure early English architecture, and is remarkable for its uniformity and harmony of design and its perfect proportions. It has the loftiest spire in England. It is unusual among medieval cathedrals in that it was completed within forty years, from 1220 to 1260.

Crocus Is From Kashmir; Traveler Purloined Bulb

The dainty little crocus has been aptly called the "first gem of the earth in spring," observes a writer in the Montreal Star.

It is said that the crocus was taken to England in the reign of Edward III from Kashmir. In that country it was the monopoly of the rajah, but an English traveler, who penetrated the country as a pilgrim, stole a bulb at the risk of his life. He concealed it in his hollow staff, and managed to carry it all the way back to his home at Walden, in Essex.

Such a harvest of saffron yellow flowers came from that single bulb that the place came to be known as Saffron Walden, the name which it bears today.

The plant was used as a dye in India, and for the same purpose in England and Ireland. Henry VIII forbade the use of the crocus as a dye for linen by the Irish. The linen had been dyed because it was thought that it would not be necessary to wash it so often as white linen, as the dirt would not show.

According to legend, the crocus came from some drops of the elixir of life that Medea was preparing for the aged Aeson.

Monterey, California's Capital

Monterey was formerly the most enterprising city of California and the principal military, commercial and financial center. It played an important part in the jealousies that divided the northern and the southern settlements. Except for a short time (1845-1847) it was the capital of California until the constitution of the new state was adopted in 1849. It was the county seat until 1872. The first American newspaper on the Coast was published there and in Colton hall met the convention which framed the first constitution of the state. The first theater in California, the first brick house and the first house of planed lumber were built in Monterey. After the discovery of gold its importance declined and San Francisco took the leading place.

Ten Plagues of Egypt

The Bible mentions ten plagues of Egypt, although it is common to speak of the "seven plagues of Egypt." The plagues were as follows: The turning of the Nile into blood, covering the land with frogs, turning the dust into lice, sending swarms of flies, killing the cattle by a murrain, afflicting the Egyptians with boils, raining fire and hail, covering the land with locusts, covering the land with a thick darkness for three days, and the destruction of the first born of man and beast.

Ear Held Imperfect Organ

From the scientist's point of view the human ear is an imperfect microphone which adds harmonics to the notes it hears. Actually, physiologists say, it is difficult to prevent any sound - detecting device from adding overtones which were not present in the original sound. The ear does not pass sound vibrations on to the brain exactly as they were received, but adds other higher tones. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"Blackbeard's Tower" Is Home of Pirate's Ghost

If it is true that ghosts walk then surely the shade of one of the handsomest, swaggering scoundrels the world has ever seen must peer out from his ancient stronghold on a hill behind the City of Nassau in the Bahamas as visiting steamers enter the harbor, writes a correspondent in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The tall tower on the hill back of the city, known as "Blackbeard's Tower," is pointed out to visitors, and the ghost of the pirate, John Teach, known as Blackbeard, must chuckle when it thinks of all the buried treasure it knows about.

Legend has it that a vast amount of treasure is buried in the islands, for they lay directly on the track of the richly laden Spanish ships which made their way back to Spain in the Seventeenth century. Many of these ships were captured and looted by buccaneers who infested those waters. Others were wrecked on the coast of the islands, and men from Bermuda engaged in the profitable business of "wrecking," coming to the Bahamas to recover the treasure from these ships.

One of the most famous of all the buccaneers was Teach. He liked Nassau, it is said, and spent much of his time there between raids on Spanish galleons. Whether the people of Nassau liked him is a question, but he is supposed to have held court in the city under a gigantic wild fig tree, wielding the powers of a magistrate.

He used Blackbeard's Tower at Nassau, the story goes, as a lookout for sighting the Spanish treasure ships.

There are many treasure maps in the possession of Bahamians, but, unfortunately, there is little incentive to seek the buried gold. Under the law, all treasure, except jewels and bank notes, goes to the Crown of England if it is found buried.

Cathedral of Antwerp Is Tribute to the Faithful

The Cathedral of Antwerp, dedicated to Our Lady and known as Notre Dame, is one of the finest Gothic buildings in Europe and one of the most magnificent and famous churches of Christendom. About the year 1352, writes an Antwerp correspondent in the New York Herald Tribune, the population of Antwerp undertook the construction of the Church of Notre Dame, known later as the Cathedral of Antwerp, and laid the foundations of the choir. Without knowing if ever the building would be completed, worshippers went out to work, guided by their profound faith that their descendants might finish the structure.

The choir was not even terminated in 1406 and the tower was completed 200 years later. The construction of the tower was begun in 1432 and completed in 1525. The central nave with its small chapels, the chapter house and the sacristy from 1352 to 1420. The interior is divided in seven naves and 230 arches supported by 125 columns.

The cathedral contains many art treasures, including three masterpieces of Rubens, "The Descent From the Cross," "The Raising of the Cross" and "The Assumption of the Virgin."

Fish That Builds a Raft

In every part of the seven seas jellyfish are torn to pieces by an under-sea creature more vicious than the fiercest fish. It is a shellfish of the Ianthina family, with sharp, razor-edged teeth, and a long, rasping tongue, and jellyfish are powerless against it, according to a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Unlike other molluscs which crawl along the sea bed or anchor themselves to rocks (mussels are an example of the latter) the Ianthina floats on a tiny "raft" which is formed from a substance exuded by the mollusc's shell. It is supported by air bubbles which the mollusc blows, and this tiny "raft" can stand up to the wildest weather. The mollusc itself is blind, so the pirate craft also carries a passenger, a minute shrimp-like creature which guides the "ship" alongside the jellyfish victim, leaving the wicked teeth and tongue of the "pirate" to do the rest.

Reindeer in Alaska

Unlike the American caribou, which they resemble, reindeer are not native to Alaska. They were imported some years ago because of the slaughter of whales and seals, the Eskimos' food. Reindeer were chosen to be the natives' "cattle" for they have long made possible the existence of the Laplanders in northern Europe and Siberia. These hardy people drink reindeer milk, eat the flesh, clothe themselves with the skins, use the beasts as pack animals. Laplanders accompanied the first herds to Alaska to teach Eskimos how to care for them, but after a while the reindeer were left to shift for themselves.

Helpers for All

There is something very heartening in the knowledge that we can all help each other, and that the worst suffering of all—that loneliness or bereavement—need never be an actual desolation; for salve the deepest wound with the balm of sympathy, and the warm clasp of some comforting hand, the tears in some kind eyes are the surest proofs that the heart under its human aspect has the power to call the hidden soul to life.

Edna Beth Wilson And Billie Mae Tye
Wed Sunday

VERMONT TO MARK 150 YEARS IN UNION

Prepare Now for Celebration in Year 1941.

Montpelier, Vt.—"Fourteen years as an Independent Republic—One Hundred and Fifty Years as a State of the Union." Such is the unique story which will be reviewed in 1941 when Vermont dedicates the entire year to a statewide recognition and celebration of the 150th anniversary of her admission to the Union.

Plans are to be outlined by a state commission provided for in a joint resolution just signed by Governor Aiken. The commission is to report its suggested plans and program to the Vermont legislature of 1939.

This recognition by Vermont may tend to make all states of the Union admission-conscious, since Vermont was the first state to be admitted to the Union after the original thirteen. This was the starting of a "Long Trail," over which thirty-four other states have followed Vermont into the United States, a procession of states beginning with Kentucky in 1792 and culminating with New Mexico in 1912.

Build Up Program.
Governor Aiken's signing of the joint resolution passed by the legislature is not merely an official commitment to the idea of the recognition of the 150th anniversary in 1941 but also a signal for the mobilization of the people of the state in support of a 1939-1941 program of so-called "Sesquicentennial Objectives."

The attainment of these objectives during 1937-41 is regarded by Vermont as the building of an appropriate and necessary preliminary stage setting to prepare the state for the formal recognition and celebration in 1941.

A five-point program has been built up out of suggestions sent to the state chamber of commerce by individuals, organizations and newspapers. The program affords the following picture of some phases of the Green Mountain state in 1941, resulting from the proposed pioneering and perfecting activities during the last four years of the first 150 years of the life of the state:

During 1937-41 the attractiveness of Vermont shall be greatly enhanced through the wholesale removal of roadside and other blemishes which here and there disturb the exquisite beauty of Vermont scenery. Special attention by the towns to the erection of road direction signs along town rural roads will enable citizens and guests easily to find their routes.

Expect to Be Busy.
Vermont's welcoming hospitality both in winter and in summer shall become familiar to many more people through the speeding up of various activities and developments.

Vermont shall become busier through playing to the movement for the decentralization of industry, thus restoring and building up industrial activity in the valley and mountain villages.

Vermont shall become more widely known through the expansion into other fields of originality and initiative recently displayed in the official handling and reporting of town and state finances and affairs. Vermont town and state reports have become "news" in other states, because they have demonstrated "modernization" in the handling and reporting of local and state finances and affairs. Four other states have adopted the Vermont plan of a "town report competition."

During 1937-41 Vermont shall witness the utter extinction of the old-fashioned town report. "Modernization" in these documents shall seep into every nook and corner of the state. Thus the mass production of modernized public reports shall be achieved in Vermont, which is serving as an experimental demonstration plot in this regard.

Free Classes Plant Art Where None Had Grown

Chicago. — Butcher, baker and candlestick maker are getting art lessons free—and eating them up.
The Chicago Art Institute installed a twelve-week course as an experiment in fostering art among persons too timid or poor to enroll. The success was a surprise.

A draughtsman took his daughter, fifteen years old to watch him; she picked up a brush and now excels her father. A machinery manufacturer seeking diversion, has turned into a painter of pa-torials. Mothers leave children at home with dads to wield a brush.
And a structural steel painter who joined the course is now depicting flowers.

Farmer's Lost Cow Found Underground

Berne, Ind. — When Reuben Romney went to bring his cows in from pasture he discovered one missing. He walked around the field, found no break in the fence and no trace of the cow.
Yet when he called he heard an answering "moo" beneath his feet. Peering down, he saw the head of the cow—she had slid into the small opening of a jug-shaped sinkhole.

U. S. ENLARGES WAR ON FARM INSECTS

Air and Ground Forces Used in Great Battle.

Washington, D. C.—The Department of Agriculture is marshaling a fleet of airplanes and a large field force for a $10,000,000 battle this year on insect pests.

While many insects are beneficial to farmers, the pests do annual damage estimated at more than a billion dollars. Damage has increased in recent years.

Pests which the department seeks to eradicate include boll-weevils, grasshoppers, gipsy and brown-tail moths, European corn borers, Japanese beetles, pink boll-worms and fruit flies.

Drive to Be Intensive.
The campaign will be even more intensive than that which last year gave insect pests and plant diseases a setback of several years, according to Lee A. Strong, chief of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine.

Using grants from federal emergency relief appropriations, the department took recruits from the unemployed, trained them and sent them out against forest and crop pests. At the peak of the season 25,574 men were scouting for and eradicating insects and plant diseases.

Aerial scouting for diseased trees proved so effective last year that an additional autogiro has been provided for the air fleet this year, Strong said. Flying observers, he said, can readily spot diseased trees or the host plants of destructive insect pests.

Planes have been used effectively by plant quarantine scouts in the southern citrus belt and in fighting bollworms and bollweevils in cotton fields. In the north airplanes are used in scouting for the Dutch elm disease.

Grasshoppers Are Scourge.
One of the most serious problems of entomologists is the battle against grasshoppers. Although 26,997 tons of poison bait was used, this pest caused damage estimated at more than $80,000,000 last year.

The battle this year will be on an even larger scale. Strong estimated 81,252 tons of poison bait would be scattered over infested fields. Present indications, he said, point to serious outbreaks in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, and Colorado.

Entomologists scouted through Africa, Asia and South America for the parasites and predatory enemies that prey on fruit flies abounding in tropical countries. These natural enemies of pests were shipped to Hawaii and Puerto Rico, where fruit flies have been especially destructive.

Candy Delays Recovery From Cold, Survey Shows

Minneapolis. — Children's desire for candies and sweets may have something to do with prolonged colds in winter, Charles Gilmor Kerley, New York pediatrician, reports in Modern Medicine, published in Minneapolis.

Kerley said:
"Two salient points in the general management of repeated colds in children are: reducing the sugar intake in the diet and de-hydrating the water-logged nasal mucous membrane with instillations of glycerin, ichthyol, and sodium bicarbonate.

Kerley's methods and conclusions are based on study of 504 child patients from different parts of the United States.

Kerley observed four significant factors:
The presence in the family of an adult carrier of the common cold.

A marked lack of resistance.
Improper dietetic habits. "su-persaturation with sugar."
Definite vasomotor allergy.

Coolidge's Home Town
May Bar Water Troughs

Northampton, Mass. — Labeled a menace to automobilists and children, one of the last two watering troughs that recall horse and buggy days in Northampton, home of the late President Calvin Coolidge, soon may be removed. Alderman Robert P. Emrick has requested the public works board to order removal of the trough from his district because children playing near the trough often are narrowly missed by automobiles.

This "Ghost Trolley" Is Always on Time

Sacramento, Calif. — A street car service that is always on time is unique, but Chico, California's, is doubly so—it doesn't even carry passengers.
The Chico "ghost run," maintained by the Sacramento Northern railway to carry out terms of a franchise, serves one purpose despite its refusal to carry passengers:
Residents along its route continuously request Motorman William Manuel to ring his bell before their homes on his 6 o'clock trip. It saves cost of an alarm clock.

J. H. Shurbet's Children castle.

Famous Shipmast Locust Was Named by a Mariner

It was Capt. John Sands, settler of Sand's Point, L. I., who first recognized the virtues of shipmast locust, according to a Long Island tradition. Shipmast locust is a favored farm tree used for fencing. Demasted off Virginia by a storm in 1700, the story goes, he sent his sailors ashore to find suitable trees for an emergency rigging until port could be reached. They brought back tall, straight-grained boles of what seemed to be black locust, but which differed in that the trees produced no seed and grew taller with fewer low branches and a darker heartwood. Strangely, search in Virginia failed to discover any native plantations of shipmast locust, and the tradition cannot be confirmed. In fact, none has been observed south of Philadelphia.

Its seedless characteristic is the reason why shipmast locust has been so limited in its spread. Common black locust, a prolific producer of seed, spreads rapidly without the help of man. But only by laborious grubbing can the necessary root cuttings be gathered to propagate the shipmast locust vegetatively. Such was the method traditionally used by Captain Sands in trans-planting the species to his native Long Island. There and up the Hudson valley and in North Jersey, usually on old estates, the main stands of shipmast locust are found. Ship-mast root cuttings were carried by the Quakers to their settlements around Moorestown, Mercerville and Shrewsbury, N. J., Pawling, N.
Y., and Sagamore and Sandwich, Mass., thus accounting for other old groves there.

How Fort Ponchartrain Changed to Fort Detroit

According to Farmer's "History of Detroit," the forerunner of Fort Detroit was called Fort Ponchartrain, which was built in 1701 on the first rise of ground above the river, between what is Jefferson avenue, Woodbridge street, Griswold and Shelby streets. The space was inclosed by wooden pickets driven into the ground as closely as possible to form a fence ten feet high. On a later date the stockade was made about 25 feet high and at the four corners were bastions.

In 1703 the fort was partially burned by the Indians and remained defensively weak until 1718, when it was rebuilt and became one of the strongest forts in the country. A number of immigrants arrived from France in 1749 and the stockade was enlarged and when additional troops arrived in 1751, it was known as Fort Detroit. Its size was increased in 1754, 1755, 1758, as well as in 1760, after the surrender to the English.
Military incidents connected with

Miss Mary Frances Jones was confined to her home the first of the week while she was ill.

FINGER PRINTS TO PROTECT CIVILIANS

Increasing Number Being Recorded in Washington.

Washington, D. C.—"Realizing that finger prints may be an effective means of identification in case of death or amnesia, increasing numbers of civilians are having their prints recorded at the federal bureau of investigation, a division of the United States Department of Justice that is perhaps better known as 'the G-Men.'" says the National Geographic society.

"Visitors are conducted on tours through the identification division at the rate of several hundred a day. Many remain to have their fingerprints taken. In long chattering lines, business men and their wives, giggling girls, and solemn small boys pass before the recorder with his yellow stamp pad and small white cards marked off into spaces for each finger's print.

"A young girl approaches, holding out red-nailed white hands. The recorder presses her right thumb firmly on the stamp pad and then down on the card, rolling it from right to left. 'Just relax, don't try to help me,' he instructs her, for if she presses with her thumb, it overinks and smudges the pattern.

Offer Telltale Evidence. "He takes the marks of her right hand's fingers, one after another, and then those of her left hand, individually.

"Next, he records, at a single impression, all the fingertips of her right hand, and, with another impression, all those of the left, as a check upon the sequence of the preceding prints. She starts amazed at the dark whorls on the card made by her unstained white fingertips. The colorless chemical solution on the stamp pad acts on the chemically-treated card, but remains invisible on the hand.

"The federal bureau of investigation, with 267,000 sets of fingerprints in its civilian files, is increasing them at the rate of almost 800 a day. The bureau does not search for fingerprints of criminals among the prints in these files, but it may search for them among the prints of civil service employees, which are filed to keep men with prison records from holding positions of public trust.

"Exhibited on the wall of the federal bureau of investigation is a device like a large automobile-mileage-meter. Each time the last number on the right changes, it marks, not another mile, but a new set of criminal fingerprints received at the bureau. The number changes about 175 times an hour. The bureau, on duty twenty-four hours a day, receives during that time about 4,200 new records of people under arrest. These are sent in from more than 10,000 law enforcement agencies all over the United States and from eighty foreign countries.

It Works This Way.

"Imagine that a suspect, Bill Smith, is arrested in Los Angeles. His fingerprints are taken with printer's black ink, which, with his photograph, are rushed to Washington to the federal bureau of investigation. There they will be checked against fingerprints in the criminal files to see if he has a previous criminal record. If the check reveals that Bill Smith is really ex-convict 'Butcherknife Joe,' wanted in New Orleans for murder, two telegrams are sent, one to inform the Los Angeles authorities, another to tell New Orleans officials the Los Angeles police have their man.

"Fingerprints found on weapons, woodwork, glass, and articles near a scene of a crime are also checked against prints in the bureau's criminal files and aid in capturing law violators.

"Since no two fingers have ever been discovered whose patterns were identical, fingerprints offer such tell-tale evidence that criminals have tried to change theirs. But they cannot be entirely changed, even by the painful process of removing the skin.

"The federal bureau of investigation has nearly seven million criminal fingerprint records on file, in more than 1,000 great green cases stretching for two city blocks within the building. Only 300,000 of these are records of women, the rest are of men. Workers search through these prints by hand, to check an incoming set of criminal prints against them. If the incoming fingerprints fall into a certain common classification, chiefly the ulnar loop type of pattern, the search is speeded up by a machine which automatically sorts the cards at the rate of 475 a minute."

Children Borrow Rats From Museum for Pets

Springfield, Mass.—Lending rats to boys and girls who like them for pets has become quite an extensive practice with Trailside museum, a bureau of the Springfield Museum of natural history.

The museum breeds the rats for study purposes.

When a child borrows one he can keep it as long as he likes. Some boys try their luck in training several rats at different intervals, and this is all right with the museum.

Some of the rats have been borrowed and returned three or four times.
