Preparation For Needy Texas Students Being Worked On By NYA

Austin, September 8.—The National Youth Administration last week began approving schools of Texas for participation in the 1937-38 Student Aid program, under which part-time employment will be provided this year for about 10,000 needy Texas students. The first approval letters were sent out on September 3, ten days ahead of the date of the first approval letters last year.

J. C. Kellam, Texas Youth Director, announced last Saturday that more than 60 secondary schools and 20 colleges had already been approved for participation in the Student Aid program.

"We are acting upon the applications as rapidly as they are received in our office," Mr. Kellam said. "In a great many cases the program will be ready for operation on the opening day of school. Youths may be employed on and after that day, but not before, provided the application of the school for participation has been formally approved by the National Youth Administration."

Officials of schools approved by the NYA for participation in the program select the students to be employed, Mr. Kellam said. Selections are made on a basis of need, and the students employed on the Student Aid program will be those who otherwise would not be able to attend school.

A supply of NYA application forms for the secondary schools have been sent to each county superintendent, who has been requested to organize a local committee to make recommendations regarding the distribution of school aid jobs to the various schools within the county. College application forms have been distributed directly to the colleges.

Former Secretary Of State Passes Away At Home In Plainview Saturday

Death Saturday morning ended the career of the first woman to organize a Texas Legislature, Mrs. Emma Meharg, 60, known over Texas as its first woman secretary of state, and beloved here for her more than thirty years of devotion to Plainview's progress and welfare.

Coming to Plainview August 8, 1902, on her honeymoon, Mrs. Meharg and her husband chose this place as their abode and the object of their lifetime interest in civic and religious activities. The couple was married in Italy, Texas, in June, 1902. Mrs. Meharg was born in Tennessee.

True Pioneer
A great granddaughter of Patrick Henry of Revolutionary fame, Mrs. Meharg was a Plainview pioneer in many respects. She was the first president of the Pioneer Club, first Hale County women's club, organized in 1905, was a charter member of the Presbyterian church and an honorary member of the Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club.

At the time of her death Mrs. Meharg was a member of the board of regents of the Texas Technological College at Lubbock.

In 1925, during the first term of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as governor of Texas, Mrs. Meharg was named secretary of state, serving in that office until 1927. In her capacity of state secretary she had the honor of being the first woman in the state to organize a Texas Legislature.

Helped Organize Church
Ever active in church interest Mrs. Meharg was instrumental in organizing the present Presbyterian church here, which was formed by the union of a Presbyterian church and a Cumberland Presbyterian church, the organizing program being arranged on Mrs. Meharg's birthday, August 14, 1907. The Emma Meharg Circle of the Presbyterian church was established in her honor.

Survivors are her husband, S. W. Meharg, a son, Grigsby Meharg, both of Plainview, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Nan Gamble, Washington, D. C. A niece, Mildred Houston of Dallas, was reared in the Meharg home. Two grandchildren survive.

Mrs. Meharg had been in poor health for the past three years and had not taken an active part in public affairs during that time. Her home was at 710 Fresno Street where she died at 7:35 Saturday morning.

Interment was made in Plainview cemetery.—Plainview Herald.

Dora Alexander Talley Elected President Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle

Mrs. Dora Alexander Talley of Omaha, Nebraska, president of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, was elected to the presidency of the National Fraternal Congress of America at a meeting of that organization in Columbus, Ohio, September 1. She was formerly vice president of the organization which is composed of more than 90 fraternal benefit societies.

Her unanimous election as president of the congress was a fitting tribute to her long career in fraternalism, according to Mrs. Jeanie Willard of Denison, Texas, who nominated her for the office.

In 1911 Mrs. Talley was elected national secretary of the Woodmen Circle and moved to Omaha where the headquarters of the society is located. She continued in this office until three years ago when the office of National President became vacant on account of the death of the then national president, the late Mrs. Mary E. LaRocca, at which time she was unanimously chosen president.

In her three years at the head of the society, Mrs. Talley has gained national recognition for her fraternal activities and for the growth of the assets and membership of the Woodmen Circle. She was the dominant motivating factor in the establishment of the Woodmen Circle home for aged members and orphan children in Sherman, Texas, and is at the head of the society's field work and finance committees.

For twenty five years she has been an active member of the national fraternal congress of America, having served in various offices in the secretaries section, including that of president. She has also served on various standing committees of the congress. In 1935 she became president of the presidents section and also a member of the executive committee of the congress. In 1936 she was elected vice president of the congress and she now becomes president.

Following the close of the congress, Mrs. Talley will preside over an executive committee meeting of the congress after which she will return to the headquarters of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle to complete plans for the society's first national institute which is to be held in Omaha September 27 to 30 and at which meeting nearly two thousand women are expected. It will feature a pageant in which one hundred drill teams, representing every state, will participate.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN
NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much you back ache and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.
For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeal of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."
Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Be Sure They Properly
Cleanse the Blood
YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, dizziness, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, puffiness under the eyes, feel nervous, miserable—all worst.
Don't delay? Use Doan's Pills.
Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by grateful users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

Our Trip To New Mexico and Colorado

(Written by Mrs. W. R. Allmon)

We left home August 19th, went to the home of our son, Henry, nine miles south of Hereford, arriving at noon. Henry and his wife and their two children, Jack and Wanda Marie, and Billy and I left their place next morning. We drove that day a few miles west of Grant, New Mexico, and camped out between a double track railroad and the highway. Five trains passed that night and several cars passed each hour. Some honked and some hollered at us, so we did not sleep much. It surely was cold there. We covered with two army blankets and two comforts and a ducking cover. We enjoyed cooking our supper and breakfast on a camp fire, and "say, it surely was good too".

We saw lots of beautiful places of "God's Handiwork" and some pretty farms in the valleys. Between Albuquerque and Grant we saw many Indians. Several of the Indian women had little arbors just a few feet square set up by the road, and each car that passed they would hold up some of their hand work, crochery vases, beadwork, and rugs, trying to get people to stop and buy from them. They looked pitiful to me. We went on to Gallup, then through some awful looking country where the Indians lived in their little shacks, some built of plank, some adobies, some of rock, some built round of logs and covered with dirt, too low to stand up in, some built just of brush. We passed right by the smaller ship rock. It was a large rock itself and looked as if it might be several hundred feet to the top, but there was no way of getting up there. The large ship rock was quite a distance away, several miles from the road.

We drove into Farmington at 1 o'clock on the 21st, where Edith's parents live, and camped in their yard. That evening we drove to the highest mountain south and drove up a winding, dangerous looking road to the top and could see the whole town of Farmington and a long way up and down the valley, and the blue mountains 30 to 40 miles away north of there. Our camp at Mr. Williams was under cottonwood trees over 50 years old, 15 feet around them and looked 100 feet high. I didn't climb up to measure them. Many trees lap over the highway. The next day we went to Astex and saw all the beautiful places in that "Old, Old" town. Then we went to the Astex ruins. It's a sight to see. But it makes one feel sad, or at least it did me. The guide took us through six rooms and told us all about everything in every room. We went down a flight of stairs into the rooms and climbed a flight of stairs 15 feet high to get out. Just outside there was a Kiva walled up with rock, deep in the ground like a silo but large around. The top had fallen in, and it had been cleaned out. Then we went in a larger Kiva, walked on top of it to the middle, then went down through a hole on stair steps 15 or 20 feet. It was all walled up with rock just high enough for a seat all the way around, then walled up several feet and another seat all around. The top was covered with logs in a very peculiar way. There was a rock pit in the middle where they kept fire. It was a place of worship for men (so the guide told us). Then we went into a large Kiva built like a house where they all worshiped. We had to go down several steps to get in it. It surely was odd looking inside too, with little pole steps going up the wall in several places to small holes in the wall where the priests crawled through into small rooms. There was a pit for fire in the middle and a pit where they burned animals for sacrifice, so he said. They found animal bones in it. We then went through the museum where they kept many things. There were two whole Indian skeletons. They had been doubled up and put in a sack of woven grass or willow bark when they were buried with a bowl of food put close to their head. There were 500 rooms in the ruins, but only 50 have been cleaned out. It all is a queer sight to see.

The next evening we went two miles south of Bayfield, Colorado, and spent the night and until afternoon next day with Edith's brother and family, Buck Williams. Buck robbed a bee hive and I cut the honey comb out of six supers and filled three buckets with honey. They had ice for tea that he had put up in sawdust last winter. Buck has a place seventeen miles north west of Bayfield in the valley by the Florida river, so that evening we drove up the valley to his place. The altitude was 8,200 feet. The valley is very narrow with nice farms all along where they raise potatoes, wheat, oats, barley, timothy and other crops and vegetables. The mountains on each side and all along the river have large pine, silver spruce, quaking aspen and some cottonwood, so thick you can hardly see the mountain side. Many of them look to be 300 or more feet high.

We camped on Buck's place three days at the foot of a mountain almost a mile high, east and west of us a big spring came out of the mountain side and flowed on each side of our camp which runs a stream of water almost half as large as our irrigating wells off into the river. Its so soft and as cold as ice water. The men and children went fishing in the river, which has a beautiful clear stream running over a boulder rocky bottom. It certainly is a beautiful picture of "God's Handiwork." They caught all the trout fish we wanted to eat, seven to fourteen inches long. There is much fishing done all along the river.

Buck went up and camped with us. He was dragging up logs to build them a house. The men folks undertook to climb the east mountain and it took them two hours to get there and one hour to come down and Billy said he would not climb it again for ten dollars. It surely is cold there in the mornings before the sun peeps over the mountain at eight o'clock, then it warms up and is pleasant until 6 o'clock, when the sun goes down behind the mountain. Then we would build a camp fire to sit by until we were ready to crawl under all those blankets and quilts. We had to wear our coats while around the fire too. It surely is a fine, cool and beautiful place to spend the summer. The ground is all covered with grass, red clover, white yard clover, so many kinds of pretty ferns and flowers. We counted eighteen kinds of flowers, and wild straw berries too.

We stopped at a sawmill just north of Bayfield and watched them saw a large log up into some 1x12 and 2x4, also seen them sharpening the large saws. The men and children cut down a large cottonwood tree three feet through and seventy five feet tall, near where Buck was going to build. It was the first tree that Henry and his family had ever seen fall.

We came home the same route that we went. On this side of Gallup we stopped at one of the Indians' trading arbors to look at some rugs and pottery. A roughly built log shack was only a few feet away. I saw some women in the shack at work and I asked the girl what they were doing, she replied that they were spinning yarn to make rugs, so we went and watched them awhile. Five Indian women were sitting flat on the ground. Four of them had a real large ball of wool laying on the ground at their left sides, and they had a small stick a foot or more long sharpened at both ends, with a round rafter-shaped piece of wood placed three inches from the bottom end of the stick, which rested on the ground. They held the other end of the stick in their right hand on their leg. They would unwind the wool off the soft ball and stretch it out real small. It was fastened to the stick at the round piece of wood, then they would roll this stick down their leg and jerk it back very fast until the thread was twisted as tight as they wanted it, then they would stand the stick straight up and give it a twirl and roll that upon it, so they just made about 18 inches of thread at a time, but never broke the thread. It was quite interesting to watch them.

We drove around through the valley at Fort Sumner. They surely have nice looking places there and lots of fruit, hay, corn, sweet potatoes and large apple trees full of apples with limbs bent to the ground. We surely did like the valley farms.

We arrived home September 1st, after being away 13 days. We surely did enjoy our trip, but there is something about these plains of Texas just like a magnet that draws a fellow back.

Richard Tubbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Tubbs, went to Lubbock Monday where he enrolled in Tech College.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Jones left Tuesday for Jonesboro to attend to business. They will return home the latter part of the week.
