HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETT SPEARS

Italian Hemstitching for a Chair Set

THE chair set shown here is made of an even meshed cream linen, marked off in squares of Italian hemstitching. Tiny scrolls in outline stitch with two diamonds in satin stitch are embroidered in all the outside corners. The scroll motif is shown at lower left. The tassels are made by raveling strips of the material and then rolling them.

The chair back piece measures 15 by 10 inches finished, and the chair arm pieces 7½ by 7½ inches. Allow ¼-inch at all edges for the rolled hems. The hemstitched squares measure 2½ inches. Mark them in pencil. The method of hemstitching the rolled edges is shown here at A and B. Remember that a moist thumb always helps in rolling an edge evenly.

Readers who have read their copy of Mrs. Spears' on Sewing, for the Home Doctor, will be pleased to know Book No. 2 is now ready. It contains embroidery stitches; fabric pairing; also table settings, and many things to make yourself and the children. Like hand work you will be pleased with this unique book of directions for every article treated. Postpaid upon receipt 25 cents (coin preferred). Ask for Book No. 2 and at Mrs. Spears, 210 South Des Plaines St., Chicago, Ill.

UNSCIENTIOUS DEVELOPMENT

As any business firm develops and enlarges it does not lose sight of the fact that small accounts and part of so-called "small" business formed the foundation of that institution. When and if a business gradually increases until it is considered a major enterprise, minor accounts are thrown aside and search for the larger accounts is underway.

We believe that if the pathway to success is to be paved with broken friendships then the goal is not worth the price. Let us keep in mind that we must offer the same type of service to small supporters as we do our large ones.

RETAIN THE SPIRIT

The prime purpose in getting the well-known "outlook on life" is, we believe, to lift up our fallen spirits, not so much to inflate and make a condition that is dull and foreboding. The fact that Floyd County has suffered a slight blow with the drop in the wheat crop should not cause so many face expressions.

We have always recovered from such reverses and continue to do so if we retain a spirit of hope and management.

CLINE'S AUTOMOTIVE REPAIR SERVICE

W. CLINE, OWNER PHONE 35

CLINE'S AUTOMOTIVE REPAIR SERVICE IS WELL EQUIPPED FOR ALL TYPES OF WORK

Cline's Automotive Repair Service, which is owned by E. F. Cline, is equipped to do any type of automobile repair work. The business has shown a steady growth since being founded by Mr. Cline ten years ago. Included in the equipment, which is valued at a considerable sum, is the following: Englehard Gas Analyzer, Allen Synchrograph, Mitchell Motor Analyzer, Weidenhoff Coil and Condenser Tester, Van-Norman Boring Bar, Hobart Portable Welding Machine, Sioux Valve machine and cabinet and valve tools, brake machine, and complete sheet metal equipment.

EMPLOYS FOUR MEN

Other than Mr. Cline, four men are employed in the Automotive Repair Service. They are: Hal Drace, motor tune-up and general mechanics; A. L. Sparks, general repair work; Roy Sanders, employed in the sheet metal works and Vernon King, general repairs. All are experienced and trained men and understand the automotive repair business.

Radiator repair, in which branch Mr. Cline initially started, is another specialty. From a business housed in a 15 by 12 foot building in 1928, with little equipment, the business has increased to the present size.

Control

CONTROL BOARD AT COSDEN REFINERY
The picture at left shows panel of control room which contains all necessary instruments for controlling heat, pressure, etc., of the Dubbs Cracking Unit.

Most Modern Throughout
In keeping with the Cosden policy of maintaining the highest possible standard in the quality and uniformity of its products, no item has been overlooked by the Cosden engineers in installing the most modern equipment known in the oil refining industry.

For the past 6 years a constant and consistent program of improvement and enlargement has been followed. Only recently the refinery completed the installation of newest type hot oil charging pumps, which are driven with improved gas engines. This improvement has proven very satisfactory; increasing the capacity of the cracking unit, and improving the quality of the products.

Another new installation which has proven very satisfactory is the new continuous treating system, which has recently been installed.

And now, Cosden is spending another $680,000 in addition to its improvements on its great refinery at Big Spring to still further increase the volume and quality of production of COSDEN HIGHER OCTANE GASOLINE.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL

BY "STRICK"

Strickly confidential... really let myself in for something when I offered a year's subscription on errors in last week's brainstorm... I knew there were some errors... but I really didn't expect so many... anyway I learned that people DO read this sheet.

Strickly confidential... scored a hit with last week's automobile section... it was well received and appreciated. The section, which contained a general facts story about each of the business firms, was compiled on the suggestion of one of our readers... I repeat... we wish to give you what you want in a newspaper and we appreciate your suggestions.

Strickly confidential... heard at the Lakeview-Hagood game the other night... "These community-town baseball games will do more toward stimulating country-town interest than most any movement"... take it for what it's worth, I believe you have something there Mr. W. There has been much interest in the community baseball games.

Strickly confidential... the following was handed to me by a member of Hull & McBrien's firm Monday:
I Am Your Friend

I am the rule of retail success. Before I came, bags and barrels of stale foods cluttered up the dingy store, profits leaked away and the community health was endangered.

I am the reason for that upward surge of sales volume and profits.

I am the cause of the merry tinkle of the busy cash register bell.

I am the origin of satisfied customers and increased trade.

I am the haven of certainty in the midst of doubtful profits.

I am the positive element that turns a losing gamble into a winning business.

I am the fountain head whence springs dealer progress upward and creates consumer confidence.

I am the why and the wherefore, the direct and proximate cause, the germ and genesis of successful merchandising.

I am the moving, fast turning business builder, the child of American genius and progress.

I am the ADVERTISED BRAND!
N. E. G. M.

With the observation above, I remain, Confidentially Yours...
Strick.

Isn't this the real problem of Beer -- and almost its only problem?

THERE ARE people, of course, who steadfastly and sincerely believe beer to be intoxicating, or its use sinful, harmful, or a first step toward use of "hard liquor."

Just as sincerely we hold that the weight of the evidence is overwhelmingly against them... that beer is a mild, wholesome food beverage... and that "there is nothing more promising to combat the evil of too much alcohol than the opportunity of drinking good beer."

No... it is not in beer itself, we believe, that its gravest problem lies, but in those conditions, undesirable to us all, which sometimes surround its sale.

How should that problem be handled... by brewers, by retailers, by consumers, and by the public authorities? On its handling, we believe, depends the ultimate success or failure of the art and science of brewing, with all its manifold contributions to human pleasure and happiness and to the farm and industrial welfare of this country.

In that belief, a short time ago the Brewers Foundation was organized... to align the brewing industry with forces working for the public good in this country.

Our underlying motive... to perpetuate and promote our industry... is of course obvious. But equally obvious, we hope, is the fact that our interests coincide with the public interest.

Important progress has been made. Brewer-members of the Foundation already represent nearly half the production of beer and ale in the United States; and these members are pledged, individually and collectively, to the Brewers Code, one significant clause of which is as follows:

"We pledge our support to the duly constituted authorities for the elimination of anti-social conditions wherever they may surround the sale of beer to the consumer."

Being practical men, we promise no miracles. We cannot immediately or effectively "police" the quarter-million points where beer is sold (nor, to be fair, have we legal authority in many cases to do so). Nor can we, immediately, bring about full compliance with the law among all retailers, nor honest enforcement by all authorities.

But a beginning has been made... and we do promise that you will see results from it.

How far we can go, and how soon, depends very much on ourselves... but partly also on you.

Public opinion, once aroused, can operate to bring about honest enforcement of existing laws. Restriction of your patronage only to legal, respectable retail outlets can and will operate to raise retailing standards. Public preference for the products of Foundation members* will bear witness of your approval both to members and to cooperating retailers, and will encourage them to renewed efforts.

This is, therefore, at once a statement of our objectives and an appeal for your support, without which we must fall short of our high hopes. We urgently invite your full and sympathetic cooperation.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Gen. Saturnio Cedillo, the feudal chieftain of the province of San Luis Potosi, is moving out of the ruck as the No. 1 menace to the Cardenas administration, according to all one can glean at this crossroads.

A friend of this writer, an oil operator who has reasons for remaining anonymous, brings news from Mexico that the big, swarthy Mestizo, the most conspicuous hold-out on the state agrarian program, is gaining a following in a long sweep of Mexican provinces, and, in this view, dissident factions will swarm in behind him, if there is a further drift toward civil war.

He has the friendship and backing of various foreign interests, according to my informant, and around his huge, stolid, grim person there is gathering powerful opposition to the government.

He is a self-made fighting man who served his apprenticeship in various minor work-outs, before the big upheaval of 1910, when old Porfirio Diaz was overthrown. He joined this revolt, but called himself a "conservative revolutionist."

He never liquidated his personal army, now numbering about 10,000, and his autocratic state is firmly encysted in the constitutional commonwealth.

He resigned as secretary of agriculture on August 16, of last year. It was reported that he had made a truce with President Cardenas, but that talk seems to have been premature.

He was a member of the National Revolutionary party committee of 1934, which drafted Mexico's six-year agrarian and economic plan, but has been a determined and effective opponent of such fixings, particularly the Cardenas agrarian plan.

My friend picks Senors Cardenas and Cedillo as the two strong men of Mexico, one being driven left and the other right by the present social tension.

THE Swiss bell-ringers, the one-armed trap-drummer, the circus ring-master and all such supposedly busy and preoccupied people are just snoozing along compared to Dr. Morris Fishbein, goal-keeper against medical quacks, heresies, panaceas, innovations, utopias and unsanctioned experiments.

When Dr. James H. Means, retiring president of the American College of Physicians, drops a few provocative words about self-imposed medical reform, they scarcely hit a press wire before Dr. Fishbein swings a devastating counter-assertion.

Dr. Fishbein is elaborately equipped and organized for timely blasts against any encroachment of subsidized or socialized medicine. As editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, with headquarters in Chicago, he commands a large staff of secretaries and assistant secretaries, trained like a fast ball club to field any challenge or dissent.

He is undoubtedly the most highly publicized medical man in America. Through the journal, he reaches the nation's 125,000 doctors; through Hygeia, the more popularized medical publication, he carries his message to many more thousands and is a prolific writer for national magazines.

He wofls hundreds of exchanges and eight or ten medical books every week, lectures, speaks on the radio, reviews books, writes books and, always enjoying a fight, keeps up a fast running fight against the quacks.

When he finished Rush Medical school, at the age of twenty-three, he had the choice of becoming a pathologist for the state of Indiana, or an assistant editor of the Journal of Medicine.

He chose the latter. Mrs. Fishbein, who was Anna Mantel, serves through the war with him, traveling with him and assisting him in the biggest and busiest job of medical journalism ever attempted. They have three children.

Dr. Fishbein, plump, affable, bald, and forty-eight years old, also is deep in art, music, literature, the drama, bridge, golf and public affairs, exercising a sharp critical judgment in all these fields. He is a magnificent demonstration of how a knowing doctor can build up his basal metalibollisms.

Treaty for Friendship in Which France May Join . . . Roosevelt's Spending Plan Starts Big Battle

Emergency rationing of troops by airplane and parachute was successfully accomplished in Texas by the army air corps during maneuvers. Move Toward Peace

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN'S dream of security for peace in Europe through amicable arrangements of the democratic governments with the dictators may yet be realized. Anyhow, consummation of the ideal was brought nearer when Lord Perth, British ambassador to Rome, and Italian Foreign Minister Ciano signed the treaty of friendship which had been under negotiation for weeks. The pact is designed to end the long feud between the two nations, and it is probable France will join in after negotiations with Mussolini already suggested by Foreign Minister Bonnet. The British prime minister, of course, hopes that later Hitler can be brought into the group and that there will be formed a London-Paris-Rome-Berlin quadrangle in place of the Berlin-Rome axis.

Temporarily, the treaty provides for friendly relations between Britain and Italy in the Mediterranean and the Near East, but it does not go into full effect until "such date as the two governments together shall determine." In other words, Italy must first have withdrawn its troops from Spain and Britain must have recognized Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. The former may be delayed until France has won final victory. The latter depends upon permission from the League of Nations council, which has been asked by Chamberlain.

In essence, the treaty is a promise by each side not to attempt to change the status quo in the Mediterranean or Red sea areas nor to injure each other's interests there in any way.

Italy is to reduce her forces in Libya to peace time strength, and will adhere to the London naval treaty limiting the size of warships. The Suez canal is to be open to all nations equally in war or peace. Italy will abide by the international nonintervention committee's ruling on volunteers in the Spanish war and in case to withdraw from Spain entirely when the war is ended. Italy declares it has no territorial or political aims and seeks no privileged economic position in Spain, the Balearic islands, Spanish Morocco or Spanish possessions overseas.

Political leaders in Berlin did not minimize the importance of the Anglo-Italian pact, but insisted that the Berlin-Rome axis was not weakened. They were awaiting somewhat anxiously the visit of Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet to London, scheduled for late in April. There were no indications in London or Paris that Britain and France were ready yet to deal with Hitler. But it was rumored that Poland might join them and Italy in a four-power pact.

Ready for Battle BIG spenders and little spenders lined up rapidly for the congressional fight over President Roosevelt's program for pump-priming and relief, for which he asked congress to provide nearly seven billion dollars. Of the total sum, 4 1/2 billions would be used for spending and lending to speed recovery from the present business depression. The house appropriations committee began hearings on the President's proposals, and administration leaders in both branches of congress laid plans to expedite the passage of the necessary legislation, still hoping for adjournment by May 14. Sam Rayburn said all were agreed on handling the legislation as an omnibus bill. He was confident it would go through the house quickly, and also confident of the defeat of attempts to earmark the recovery funds to assure congressional control over them. Opponents of the pump-priming led off with vigorous radio addresses by Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican national committee and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. Hamilton came to the conclusion that "the President and the New Deal are far more interested in priming the pumps than in priming the pumps of industry." Vandenberg said the plan, whatever its temporary benefit, would work a "long run disaster."

The priming plan, Vandenberg said, means trying to spend the country into better times on borrowed money, trying to buy prosperity.

In his message to congress and in a radio talk to the nation, the President proposed three groups of measures. The first involves mainly additional appropriations for the coming fiscal year, as follows:

One billion two hundred and fifty million dollars for the Works Progress administration; $175,000,000 for the Farm Security administration; $75,000,000 for the National Youth administration; $50,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation corps, and the $1,500,000,000 already made available to the Reconstruction Corporation for lending to business enterprises.

In a second group of measures Mr. Roosevelt asked: Three hundred million dollars for immediate expansion of the housing and slum-clearance work of the United States Housing authority; $1,450,000,000 for public works loans and grants; an additional $100,000,000 for public roads; an additional $37,000,000 for flood control and reclamation projects already authorized and an additional $25,000,000 for federal buildings.

A third group listed by the Chief Executive referred to private credit. It involved destititization of $1,400,000,000 of gold and a reduction by the Federal Reserve board of member bank reserve requirements which would add another $750,000,000 to the credit resources of the nation's banks. With these actions Mr. Roosevelt coupled a simplification of Security commission regulations.

Barcelona in Peril SPANISH insurgents, having reached the Mediterranean at the port of Vinaroz, spread north and south along the coast and effectively cut off Catalonia from the rest of loyalist Spain. Veteran Spanish and Italian troops, led by Gen. Garcia Valino and Gen. Miguel Aranda, blasted their way into Vinaroz in a single day of severe combat, and Valino then started a northward drive on Tortosa, where important coastal highways converge.

Francisco's next great objective was Barcelona. His forces were beginning a new movement against that city from the west, and his naval and air fleets left their bases to cooperate. After Barcelona falls, as it seems likely to do, Valencia will be attacked; and then Franco plans a final effort to take Madrid.

Dr. Townsend Pardoned DR. FRANCIS E. TOWNSEND, carrying a pair of socks and a typewriter, arrived at the jail in Washington, ready to serve his thirty-day term for contempt of congress and become a martyr. But the old age pension planner was informed that President Roosevelt had pardoned him. The pardon was issued upon the urgent request of Representative C. Jasper Bell, chairman of the investigating committee before which Dr. Townsend refused to testify.

Washington.—A breakdown of the state delegations in congress on the vote on the government reorganization bill is of unusual interest if considered in connection with the much-talked-about "purge"—the proposal to defeat in Democratic primaries such members of the house and senate as have opposed the President on important issues.

Almost of paramount importance politically is New York. No "purge" has been proposed there, but one of the most loyal of the 77 Democratic senators, Robert F. Wagner, bucked the President on this issue, to everyone's surprise. Of course Sen. Royal S. Copeland also voted against the President on this bill, but it is Wagner, who is up for re-election this year, not Copeland, whom the President would very much like to see retired to private life.

In the house, Rep. John J. O'Connor, chairman of the powerful rules committee, has been troublesome to the New Deal for some time. As chairman of that committee he has had much to do with blocking the wages and hours regulation bill. He issued a blast against the reorganization bill as soon as it had passed the senate, and then voted against it.

Washington.—A breakdown of the state delegations in congress on the vote on the government reorganization bill is of unusual interest if considered in connection with the much-talked-about "purge"—the proposal to defeat in Democratic primaries such members of the house and senate as have opposed the President on important issues.

Almost of paramount importance politically is New York. No "purge" has been proposed there, but one of the most loyal of the 77 Democratic senators, Robert F. Wagner, bucked the President on this issue, to everyone's surprise. Of course Sen. Royal S. Copeland also voted against the President on this bill, but it is Wagner, who is up for re-election this year, not Copeland, whom the President would very much like to see retired to private life.

In the house, Rep. John J. O'Connor, chairman of the powerful rules committee, has been troublesome to the New Deal for some time. As chairman of that committee he has had much to do with blocking the wages and hours regulation bill. He issued a blast against the reorganization bill as soon as it had passed the senate, and then voted against it.

But—so did nine other New York Democrats, of whom all but one, Alfred F. Beiter, come from the Greater City. And an additional New York city Democrat, Martin J. Kennedy, was paired against the bill! So it is rather difficult to figure the organization leaders helping to organize a move to eliminate the insurgents when primary day comes. Especially when it is remembered that several important functionaries in this group of leaders, particularly Ed Flynn of the Bronx, bucked the President's wishes rather forcefully when he attempted to get approval for Robert H. Jackson's gubernatorial ambitions.

Irritating Thorns In Maryland, where the President would love to see Sen. Millard E. Tydings replaced by a New Dealer, Tydings having sided against the President on every controversial issue of any importance, four of the six Democrats voted against the President.

In Ohio, where there are all sorts of anti-New Deal rumblings, and whose senator Vic Donahey, was the first named of the TVA investigating senators, 12 of the 21 Democrats voted against the President.

In Texas, where Sen. Tom Connally was among the first to insure on the Supreme court enlargement proposal, eight Democrats refused to follow their own Sam Rayburn, majority leader.

Virginia, whose senators, Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd, have been the most irritating thorns on Capitol Hill so far as the White House is concerned, was even worse. Seven of her nine Democratic representatives voted against the President.

Even in South Carolina, whose Senator James F. Byrnes, led the fight for the reorganization bill in the senate, did not do so well. Three of her six Democrats voted wrong from the White House standpoint. Which may not be so displeasing to Sen. Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith, whom the White House would like to see beaten this fall.

The one senator who comes up this year that the President is most anxious to save is "Dear Alben" Barkley of Kentucky, who defeated Pat Harrison for senate leader by one vote due entirely to White House pressure. He is now seriously threatened in the primary. But four of the eight Kentucky Democratic representatives voted against the President on the reorganization bill.

And so it goes through most of the delegations.

A Chuckle Here Just a few days before the house so surprisingly scuttled the President's pet government reorganization bill, Mr. Roosevelt was talking with a group of visitors. As they told the story afterward they had the impression that the President was not greatly concerned about what congress might do about anything, but he grew rather forceful when decrying any real danger of dictatorship in this country.

Toward the conclusion of the interview, the visitors reported, the President asked them dramatically if they could name any power he possessed that the two preceding Presidents, Coolidge and Hoover, had not had.

The visitors were not politically minded. As a matter of fact, they were chuckling as they came out of the White House about the retort of one of their number had made. This gentleman had said to the President, when asked what powers he had that his two predecessors had lacked: "The power of expression."

But it did not occur to them until several hours later that after all the power to allocate a couple of billion dollars a year to projects all over the country, with the power to say to Senator Blank that he would either vote for administration measures or get no spending for his state, was power of patronage, which of course both Coolidge and Hoover had, had been enormously increased through the tremendous multiplication of the number of good jobs on the federal pay roll.

All of which is very significant now because of the new insurrection on Capitol Hill—that against voting the President huge sums for relief, which he can then allocate as he pleases.

May Turn on Heat It must be admitted that there seems very little prospect of this latest revolt succeeding. But then it seemed rather unlikely, after the White House turned on the heat for the reorganization bill and was able to get it through the senate, that it would be upset in the house.

At least three times every one watching the situation has been sure, within the last 18 months, that the wages and hours regulation bill would be enacted, only to see it sidetracked. So that predictions at the moment seem rather daring. This new revolt just might get somewhere, unlikely as it seems now.

The great importance of it is that if it should, it would clip the President's power so effectively that it is scarcely likely he would be able to force any measure through congress for the remainder of his present term. It would mean that from now on congress would come mighty close to determining its decisions on its own political and economic judgment. It would mean the end of White House domination of Capitol Hill.

Just one reservation has to be made to this. The President still has that "power of expression." It is not impossible that his strength with the people in certain states and districts would be such that he could bring about the defeat in the Democratic primaries this year of a dozen or more outstanding figures among the insurgents. That, should it occur, would be apt to bring congress back to heel very decidedly.

Probe to Be Unique The TVA investigation will be unique among the outstanding congressional inquiries of the last quarter of a century in one particular—it will not have a prosecutor!

Some senator or member of the house among the ten who compose the committee may decide, after the thing gets started, to take a real interest and try to get somewhere with it. There is no such promise to those who know the men from looking over their names, but surprises do happen.

But in the past it has been the custom, when a committee was appointed to delve into something, to pick out the particular man who had been doing most of the crusading on that subject, and put him on the investigating body, if not as chairman, then at least as a member.

For example, after Sen. Burton K. Wheeler had been attacking Harry M. Daugherty, then attorney general under President Harding, bitterly for weeks, and virtually forced the appointment of an investigating committee, he was appointed on it. He was not made chairman, for the simple reason that he was a Democratic senator, and the Republicans were in control of the senate, so that all chairmanships were given to Republicans.

But—everybody knew when Wheeler was appointed that he would really run the committee, and he did.

Walsh Made History When Sen. Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, father of the present senator of the same name, finally got his resolution for investigation of the lease of Teapot Dome passed, Sen. Thomas J. Walsh, who agreed with La Follette about it and was known as a relentless prosecutor, was named chairman.

Walsh made history, digging in for the carefully hidden trails long after nearly everyone but Walsh and La Follette was persuaded that actually the whole thing was all right.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Ice Age in the Bronx" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: For a long time I've been telling the cockeyed that you don't have to go places to find adventure member once saying that you could get more thrills by sticking around your own home town than you could signing up with Admiral Byrd for one of his explorations to the South pole.

And now, here comes John Standmann of the Bronx to tell right about that South pole business. Admiral Byrd went down to Antarctica to study the ice age, but Jack Standmann stayed in the Bronx and studied another ice age—in the Bronx.

The Admiral loaded up a boat, signed on a crew, and away toward the South pole, but Jack just put on his coat, a pair of gloves and, in ten minutes, found a spot that was as cold as anything the Byrd expedition was able to dig up in a stay way down there at the bottom of the world.

It was in June, 1932, which is a doggone strange time for go Arctic adventuring in the Bronx. Jack was working in a factory and that more or less explains everything. The plant was new one, and a lot of new-fangled machinery had been installed. One of the machines was the big steel conveyor that carried ice-cream into the freezing chamber. That machine was the life of Jack's existence. The freezing chamber was a long tunnel, the temperature ran around 40 below zero. Moisture used to get there and turn into ice. During a week's time, enough of it used to get so that there was danger of it stopping the machinery. Then, Jack himself facing a job he didn't like very well.

Working in Forty Below Zero. The job was to crawl inside the freezing tunnel and hack and all the ice. It was a chore that took every bit of two hours, but it was done a little at a time, for no man could stand that 40 below temperature for more than 20 minutes at a stretch. It couldn't while the plant was operating. It had to be done after closing result was that Jack had to work overtime, and spend most of the result at it.

On this particular day, the plant had been working overtime to minute the machinery stopped running Jack put on a lot of heavy slipped his hands into a pair of thick warm gloves, and crawled 30 feet along the belt conveyor into that freezing tunnel. He was fast as he could, but he had been in there only about a quarter hour when his clothes were frozen so stiff that he could hardly move and his gloves were so hard and brittle that he could scarcely handle them.

He had just about decided to crawl back and thaw out suddenly he heard the door of the tunnel open, saw the light out, and then heard the door slam shut again.

Locked in the Tunnel to Die. It was cold enough in that tunnel, but Jack suddenly went to know all too well the meaning of that slamming door. The light was just inside it. The watchman, not realizing that anybody was there, had turned out the lights and locked the tunnel door. The door open, Jack couldn't have groped his way out of the tunnel, the perplexing maze of conveyor belts. He had been abandoned in a freezing hole—to die.

Jack started to yell—he yelled until he was hoarse. But it was yelling in a vacuum. The walls of the tunnel were insulated against steel at every foot of the way. His gloves were as stiff as bone cold was penetrating to the very marrow of his bones. Pretty soon he would begin to get sleepy—and then—

Nearly Crazed With Horror. It wasn't a pleasant subject, but Jack couldn't help thinking it. Would they find him dead in the morning? Another idea struck—a grisly, ghastly thought. When morning came, they would find the conveyor, and his stiff, dead body would be ground to pieces by the great steel belt. Out of that machine, built to deliver the parties and the makings for kids' ice-cream cones, would come a long mass of frozen and lacerated flesh—flesh that had once belonged to Standmann.

A prey to thoughts like that, Jack almost went crazy. He had to explain the horror of freezing to death in a pitch tunnel," he says. "In my frenzy I imagined I had been in there hours. I knew I'd be as stiff as my own gloves long before morning. But suddenly it occurred to me that I might try to crawl out on the wall."

Jack didn't have much hope that that would work. The wall was too thick. But at one point—a place where a cold storage compartment adjoined the tunnel, the wall was not insulated at all. And at that point he started hammering with all his strength. Would anyone get out of that compartment? Would anyone hear his frantic signals?

Jack pounded for a long time. His body and face were covered in his flailing arms were the only parts of him that had any feeling to them, when suddenly, the lights went on. Someone yelled to Jack doesn't remember whether he answered or not. But he felt himself being lifted out of the tunnel and carried out into the June air.

Well sir, if anybody in the Byrd expedition had any adventures thrilling or as nearly fatal as that, I haven't heard of it. Copyright.—WNU Service.

Streamlined and speedy, the sailfin is easy to catch as a China Clipper or a runaway horse, but thousands of sportsmen visit the Gulf Stream each year to do battle with these fish. Above: Captain Bill De Waal of the cruiser Netop shows Chloe Travis of West Palm Beach, Fla., how a ballyhoo (small member of the swordfish family) is rigged on a catlin feather lure to attract the victim.

Above, he's caught the lure and "sailed" into the air, dancing on his tail and trying to lose the lure. Perhaps he'll jump a dozen times, skip on his tail for 50 feet, then sound to the bottom or run a few hundred yards against the tightest braking that can be put on a reel. He's a flying streak of streamlined indigo and silver . . . and what a battle he wages! The fisherman is ready for a rest when it's all over.

With the catlin lure still in its mouth, the exhausted fish is hauled over the rail while Miss Travis admires her catch. The memory of this fight will live in her mind for many moons, since the fish is seven and one-half feet long and has amazing strength. Miss Travis caught a good specimen which will be mounted by a taxidermist. Most sailfish are rewarded with their freedom for their gameness. Sailfish have little food value except when smoked, so they are valueless except for sport. Fish shorter than seven and one-half feet are not eligible in the West Palm Beach fishing contest and are turned loose if not too badly injured.

FOLLOWING VISION WITH SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:14-29. GOLDEN TEXT—All things are possible to him that believeth.—Mark 9:23. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Only Jesus Could Help. JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Foot of the Mountain. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Up to Our Knowledge of Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Following Vision with Service.

One of the lessons that seems hard to learn and to keep constantly effective in the life of a Christian is that mountain-top experiences of spiritual uplift are not an end in themselves but a preparation for service. All too often we come to regard such times of peculiar blessing, whether in the privacy of our own room, or in the great conference of Christian workers, as something which should glow warmly in our own hearts, making us glad in the Lord, and not as a background and preparation for ministry to others. One might just as well hope to feed the physical body constantly without any work or exercise and keep in good health, as to feed the soul on good things, do nothing for God or fellow-man, and still avoid what someone has called "spiritual dyspepsia."

The writer has just attended a most unusual and blessed Bible conference, the leaders of which rightly apprehended this truth. Evangelism was the matter chiefly in mind, but instead of announcing the theme of the week's meetings as "Evangelism" the program presented it as "Preparation for Evangelism." That is sound spiritual sense. We came not to discuss evangelism itself so much as to prepare ourselves to go out and evangelize. God help us to do it!

Jesus rightly characterized the time in which he lived as

I. A Faithless Generation (vv. 14-19).

"Jesus found in the valley disputing scribes, a distracted father, a demon-possessed boy, and defeated disciples." The unbelief which called forth the rebuke of Jesus "is revealed in different phases. There were the scribes, willful and persistent unbelief; there was the father, unwilling unbelief; there was the boy, irresponsible unbelief; and there were the disciples, unconscious unbelief. The whole atmosphere was an unbelieving atmosphere" (Morgan).

As we look at that depressing picture of long ago, let us consider ourselves lest we also be tempted to "limit God" by our faithlessness. The most casual reader of Scripture cannot help but see that God seeks out and honors faith, and as we begin to study God's Word with care we realize that the fundamental of all fundamentals is really to believe God. Some Christian men and women are living out a tremendous testimony for God by fully believing Him and His Word, but many of those who profess to follow Him actually make Him appear ridiculous before the world because their unbelief makes Him out to be a "small" God instead of the infinite, eternal, omnipotent God.

II. The All-Powerful Saviour (vv. 23-27).

The keynote of our first division might well have been the sad words "they could not" in verse 18. But now the Son of God has come and the new keynote is the inspiring words of verse 23, "all things are possible to him that believeth." There is no problem too difficult for our Lord; there is no sorrow too deep for His comfort; there is no challenging opportunity too great for His enabling power.

A distressing fact that emerges as one becomes acquainted with Christian work and workers is that the work of God is being hindered by men and women who deny their testimony by their destructive works. One wonders if much of it might not be stopped "dead in its tracks" if the ones against whom the attacks are directed were first to see that their own life is blameless before God and then trust Him to meet the issue. He is able. Read Isaiah 54:17, and if you are a true "servant of the Lord" claim your "heritage."

III. Prayer the Connecting Link (vv. 28, 29).

The disciples in chagrin at their inability to deal with the difficulty of the demon-possessed boy, having witnessed the power of Christ in delivering him, begin now to realize that evidently even though unconscious of it they had come into the powerless position of unbelief. What a solemn warning there is for us in the experience of these followers of the Lord. Like the termites who destroy the very life and strength of wood—and yet leave it apparently whole, only to crumble in dust when it is put under the pressure of daily use—there are spiritually destructive influences which all but unconsciously destroy the virile strength of the Christian. Prayerlessness is the most effective weapon of Satan at this point. Without prayer there is no power. Real problems are not successfully met nor are opportunities grasped "but by prayer."

A Mother's Fidelity

Mute eloquence of a mother's fidelity is her carved effigy, dressed in her own clothes, which stands in an open window of a house in Bruges, Belgium. When her son went to war in 1914, she promised to watch for his return at this window. Refusing to believe reports that he had been killed, she continued her vigil until bedridden, when she had the effigy put in her place.

For many years, she and her son have been dead, but the silent figure still watches the road leading to Liege.—Collier's Weekly.

SYNOPSIS

Dana, youngest of the Danavale, Calif., chafes at the life approved by her father, who is trying to marry her to a rich man. Her friends, Miss Dana, Detroit, and Cousin Adelaide, covet her, and she is the restlessness of the girl's restlessness. She is the restlessness of the girl's restlessness. She is the restlessness of the girl's restlessness.

Dana was a solid young man with a heavily placid face. Ardine La Mont Dana made her leisurely way toward the guest of honor in a shimmering gleam. Hers was a vehement, insistent beauty, a ripe loveliness; over-ripe, Sally Ann thought acidly, instant in dislike.

Just down the Atlantic. I've seen him on the other side, the Norwegian Lindy, they call him. Europe's most beaming boy of the air."

CHAPTER IV

"Wonderful to meet you at last," Ardine drawled negligently, appraising her from under the heavy white lids of her long eyes. "Imagine—two Big Shots at Danavale in one night! You—and Gunnar Thorwald."

"Gunnar—not the young Norwegian flier?"

"In person. Jim Allison's bringing him. You must meet him. But he won't take you for a ride. He never flies women."

"I can, perhaps, succeed in bearing it. I've had rather more than my share of the air."

"You must come and see my house."

"I passed it today. Do you get in and out with a can-opener?"

"I have a zipper down the front." She nodded, indulgent, patronizing. "I'll be seeing you." She made a slow progress through the crowded room and Adelaide Dana took her place beside the traveler.

The eyes of both women were on Sarah Lynn and her suitor, and they saw Duncan Van Doren take the thin young elbow into a proprietary grasp, and the girl jerk it away. After an instant the youth came to them, smiling.

"Mind if we go dancing?" he addressed himself confidently to Adelaide.

"Of course not, dear boy," she beamed approval on him.

"May be a bit late, you know, if we look in at the silly Stewed Prune," he told her conscientiously.

"I shan't worry, Duncan. I know Sarah Lynn is safe with you wherever—and whenever—you take her. Tell her Mother says to run along and have a happy time."

"Thanks a lot." He made his way through the long room, full to overflowing now with family and friends and Chinese servants with trays of coffee and ices and little frosted cakes.

Sudden rage rose and throve within Sally Ann. She was motivated not so much by the desire to rescue the thin dark girl who was a flash-back to her own youth as the urge to defeat the beautiful blonde mother.

"I've taken rather a fancy to your child, Cousin Adelaide," she heard herself saying. "I think I'll take her back to Europe with me if you don't mind."

"But I mind—I should mind very much indeed," Mrs. Edwin Lynn Dana said quickly. "It's very sweet of you, dear Cousin Sally Ann, but I happen to have other plans for my girlie."

"I have an idea," the traveler said casually, "that you'll not have much luck in imposing your plans on that dark daughter of yours."

Sally Ann looked across the room. Duncan Van Doren had turned away to speak to someone else and Sarah Lynn stood alone. She was staring at a newcomer, utterly absorbed and free from self-consciousness, eyes wide, lips parted, startled color in her cool cheeks.

The stranger was a tall, fair youth in the clothing of a flier. He pulled off his cap and his hair was yellow above a lean and spare young face, and something in his costume, perhaps, contrasted with conventional raiment as he was framed in the open door, in the level aloofness of his scrutiny, gave him an effect of alienism.

"Who is that?" Mrs. Edwin Lynn Dana demanded, displeased. "To come here in those clothes—"

"He's merely alighting on earth for an hour, I dare say," Sally Ann supplied. "Gunnar Thorwald, who's dent it, so there'll be reprisals. She claims he's coming here tonight. Can you feature that?"

"He's in Jim Allison's hands," her young cousin defended him.

"Duncan Van Doren and Ardine danced past their table, swung about, and stopped beside them.

"Hello, darling!" the hostess greeted Mary Webster. "Nice to see you here! But—why aren't you drinking?"

"Why aren't you eating?" the connection by marriage countered.

"Let's dance!" Duncan pulled Sarah Lynn to her feet. They danced slowly with the other slow-moving couples and in silence. As they passed a side door they saw Ardine greeting Doc Reedley, a convivial young man with a side-line of medical studies.

"Well?" she demanded quickly. "You know me," he boasted.

"Darling! In ten minutes—in the office."

Sarah Lynn wanted to return to Mary Webster but her suitor steered her to a large and noisy group and sulked when she wouldn't drink.

Ardine championed her. "Let her alone! She's going to have her ginger-ale or malted milk or cambric tea or anything else she wants. But she doesn't cramp your style."

She poured him a lavish highball. "All right, but wait—I want a sandwich first. I have my sys—"

The chataleine of the Stewed Prune laid a glowing cheek against his. "Cousin Adelaide's been asleep for hours. Just break down and be yourself, darling. The Girl Reserves can always drive you home."

She nodded to Sarah Lynn. "I'll get your lil' ol' drink myself, baby!"

She went away and returned with a cold-beaded bottle of ginger-ale and a tall glass of deep amber, and opened and poured it out herself for Sarah Lynn. A noisy youth leaned over with a flask, but she fended him off. "Behave, Benji!" She put a protective arm about the girl's thin shoulders. "Drink it down, baby, before some comedian pollutes it."

Sarah Lynn obeyed, grateful for the long, cool, stinging drink which seemed for an instant to freshen the stale air.

Sarah Lynn watched Duncan with apprehension. If he gave over his usual caution he would insist on staying late, and she was so tired and so bored. She tried to march her mind away from the immediate scene and think of her traveling Cousin Sally Ann, of the tall young Norseman who had stood framed in Aunt Helena's doorway. Why—if he was what he looked to be—did he run about with Jim Allison? But Jim was a brilliant flier who had met him abroad; Gunnar Thorwald could not know that Ardine and the Stewed Prune went with him. She hoped he wouldn't come here tonight. She didn't want them making game of him, and if Mary Webster was right and they were planning to make him the object of one of their high-keyed, hectic, ribald jokes—she would warn him.

Mary Webster took Sarah Lynn back to her table. "It'll soon be the last round-up for old Nedly. Shan't we drive you home?"

"Oh, thanks, I'd love it, but Duncan—Mother'd be annoyed if—" she was interrupted by a ringing yawn.

"Oh, excuse me, please!" "Poor lamb; dead for sleep, aren't you?"

She sat down. "Perhaps another ginger-ale would wake me up," she said dully.

"I'll, darling! I'll get it," Ardine had followed them.

Ned Webster, a large and very solid citizen, came up wearily, mopping a heated brow. "Gosh, Mary! He says he isn't leaving till sun-up!"

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses LAXATIVE FOODS ★

Nationally Known Authority on Food Shows How Right Diet Can Help You to Avoid Health Hazards of Faulty Elimination

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York.

THOUSANDS of men, women and children are alive today because we have learned how to prevent many types of infections and how to cure diseases which once caused untimely deaths.

We have reason to be proud of the achievements of science in fighting disease and lengthening the span of life. But we should be ashamed of the fact that hundreds of thousands of individuals are not getting the most out of life—indeed they are not realizing half their potentialities—because improper eating and faulty habits of hygiene cause them to suffer from that great evil of civilization—constipation.

EVILS OF CONSTIPATION
Someone has called constipation the most deadly disease, and while this may seem like an extreme statement, it becomes justifiable when one realizes the untold misery and wretchedness that may result when food residues remain to stagnate and putrefy in the body.

Constipation muddies the complexion, dulls the eye and befores the brain. It causes a general feeling of discomfort and fullness in the abdomen, lack of appetite, bad breath, coated tongue, a feeling of lassitude and a tendency to become easily fatigued.

By weakening resistance, it opens the way to numberless diseases. Serious complications, such as irritation of the appendix, may occur as a result of the friction of hard masses of waste against the delicate walls of the intestine. Piles have frequently been laid at the door of faulty elimination.

Do you wonder that I consider prompt, regular elimination the keystone of good health. Its importance is readily understood when you consider the processes by which food is digested and absorbed.

FATE OF FOOD IN THE BODY
From the mouth, food passes down the esophagus into the stomach, where it is penetrated by the gastric juice. It then passes into the small intestine where it is mixed with the secretions of the liver and the pancreas. Here the nutritive elements are absorbed by minute, hair-like tubes which line the intestinal walls. These tubes converge into the blood vessels and lymphatics which transport nourishment to all parts of the body.

Undigested residues pass into the large intestine or colon, where they are normally moved along by a series of muscular contractions known as peristalsis, and finally evacuated.

The amount of the evacuation varies in bulk with the amount of indigestible roughage contained in the food. When there is insufficient bulk to promote normal peristalsis, waste accumulates and we have the condition known as constipation with all its resulting evils. Bacteria prey upon the stagnating material, producing poisons which may be absorbed by the body.

There is not the slightest excuse for allowing this condition to develop. For the misery and wretchedness of constipation may easily be avoided by including in the daily diet sufficient laxative foods, that is, those rich in fiber or cellulose.

BULK OR FIBER ESSENTIAL
Because of their fibrous framework, plant foods are our chief source of cellulose or bulk, and therefore, our greatest aid in promoting normal elimination. Vegetables and fruits are sworn foes of constipation, and unrefined cereals are also extremely valuable.

SOME LAXATIVE FOODS
Foods with an exceptionally high residue include raw fruits, especially those with skins and seeds; dried fruits, as apricots, prunes, figs and raisins; raw vegetables; such cooked vegetables as onions and leafy greens; the legumes, that is, dried peas and beans; whole grain cereals and bran.

Among the vegetables, don't overlook cabbage, lettuce, celery, spinach, brussels sprouts, string beans and green peas.

Foods which tend to form a little gas in the intestines, including spinach, onions and cauliflower, are also useful stimulants to intestinal movement.

In addition to providing cellulose, the acid fruits, such as oranges, lemons and grapefruit, act as a mild stimulant to increased peristaltic motions.

Questions Answered

Mrs. B. T. M.—Do not worry if your child prefers the egg yolk to the white. The white is chiefly protein, and he can easily obtain protein from other foods, especially milk. But the yolk contains an abundance of minerals and vitamins in addition to protein and fat. Nutritionists have determined that the inclusion of one egg yolk daily in an otherwise adequate diet is an effective method of balancing the intake and output of iron in a child's diet.

Miss S. B.—No, the generous use of cream cannot be considered as a substitute for taking milk as a beverage or in cooked dishes. Cream is much higher in fat and contains less protein, minerals and vitamins, with the exception of vitamin A. Cream deserves to be included in the dietary for its vitamin A content, but it should not replace milk.

Mrs. A. McK.—Strawberries contain vitamins A, B and C. Recent experiments indicate that they rank with citrus fruits and tomatoes as a source of vitamin C. © WNU—C. Houston Goudiss—1938.

Hidden Benefits

Few housewives realize the underlying advantage of the use of a good light-oil furniture polish! Most polish is used only for the luster it bestows on the chairs, tables, piano, woodwork in the home. Rubbing the polish on cleans the furniture—works up a glow—and the outward effect is fresh and sparkling! But that is only part of the housewife's reward. For out of this domestic routine comes definite benefit to the furniture! A reputable polish, with a light oil base, does what is known as "feeding" the finish. The "massage" causes the oil to penetrate, seep into the pores of the wood—just enough to lubricate—and keep it healthy! Here, it is important to note that cheap polishes are made with a heavy oil base—and are "greasy" and unpleasant to use. The best polish—made with a fine light-oil base—is never greasy. Applied on a damp cloth (according to directions), it is neat to use and proves a boon to the furniture! Lack of polishing—or the use of a poor polish—will cause the finest wood to dry out, crack, split—for wood is a product of Nature and needs a certain amount of oily moisture. So polish the furniture regularly! Use a quality oil polish—it pays! For not only does the furniture look better—it is better! Its life is preserved!

AROUND THE HOUSE

Rinse Silks Well.—Silk underthings should be washed in water that is barely warm, and should be rinsed in at least three fresh rinsing waters.

Preparing Baked Potatoes.—Baked potatoes look much nicer if scooped from the shell, mashed with butter, pepper and salt, a well-beaten yolk of an egg, then placed back in the half shell and browned in the oven. They not only look nicer, but taste better.

When Painting Molding.—A piece of heavy cardboard is handy for the amateur painter to hold under the molding to protect the wall paper.

To Retain Juices in Meats.—To keep flavor and juices in meat when baking or frying, expose it to extreme heat first, then reduce the temperature and cook more slowly.

When Someone Is Ill.—Always wrap a rubber hotwater bottle in soft cloth before placing in a patient's bed. Place the bottle near but not against the patient's flesh. If placed too close the patient may be burned before realizing it.

World's Troubles Attributed to Diet; Holds Deficiencies Cause Irrationality

Faulty diets are responsible for the world's current troubles, while America's modern, balanced diets are making girls of today more beautiful than young women of former generations, according to Miss Myrtle L. Johnson, director of the school of home economics at Russell Sage college, reports a Troy, N. Y., United Press correspondent. Miss Johnson also reported that "better and more varied foods" were responsible for modern boys and girls in America being stronger and taller than were their parents at similar ages.

"The average daily menu today contains such a fine quality of nourishment that it is generally recognized that more American girls are prettier than young women of former generations," she said. "Diet generally was never so good in the world's history as it is in America today."

She declared that the children of the next generation may be taller and stronger than their parents, adding: "For a 'race of giants' we should have to rebuild a large part of our facilities in this country."

In contrast, she pointed out, there can be no doubt that a part of the world's current troubles can be blamed on faulty diets.

"The food technologists can say with certainty," she declared, "that deficient diet makes people act irrationally."

Experiments with white rats in the food laboratory at Russell Sage, she explained, have proved that deficiency in certain vital elements of diet can make the rodents irritable and quarrelsome.

Led by Ray Chapman and Blondie Finley, who each scored five runs, the Bishop Motors crew took the Oden Chevrolet team by a score of 28 to 3 in the first game of a double-header Friday night.

S. L. West, with an exhibition of pitching which left the Hurricanes breathless, led the Lakeview community team to victory over the Hagood Hurricanes in the second game of the evening. The Lakeview team was the strongest, best organized team seen on the diamond here this year.

The Lakeview-Hagood match was the first between community and city teams. West allowed four hits while Lidler, pitching for Hagood's allowed 13.
