A. M. (BERT) BATTY, OF LAKEVIEW MARKETED INITIAL LOAD AT FARMERS GRAIN COMPANY

Floyd County's Wheat Yield Is Set At 2,000,000 Bushels For 1938 By Local Estimators on Crop

Floyd County's wheat harvest for 1938 was opened Monday afternoon when A. M. (Bert) Batty, Lakeview farmer, marketed the first load at the Farmers Grain Company elevator in Floydada.

The first wheat, which tested 56, was sold for 52 cents per bushel with a $15.00 premium added for the initial load. Yield from the field in which the first load was cut was set at ten bushels to the acre. Mr. Batty stated that his entire crop would average 15 bushels per acre.

Floydada and Floyd County grain dealers have estimated the yield for Floyd County at approximately 2,000,000 bushels for this year. Last year, when the county yielded the largest crop in history, 4,900,000 bushels were harvested.

A first load of wheat in 1937 was harvested by Martin & Zimmerman from their farm east of Floydada Tuesday, June 8. This load brought 89c on the market with a premium added which brought the price to $1.25 per bushel. Authorities say that price for wheat in 1938 will be lower throughout the season than in 1937.

OTHER WHEAT CUT

A few other farmers had started harvesting, or were completing preparations to begin, when the rain Tuesday night halted operations. B. P. Crawford, on the Charles Neil place east of Floydada, had started harvesting Tuesday morning. Harvesting will be resumed the latter part of this week, weather permitting.

DEALERS EXPLAIN STORAGE

Floyd County grain dealers, in a meeting Wednesday morning, decided on the plans and charges to be made on storage of wheat. Storage charges will be 2 cents per bushel for the first month and 1 1/2 cents for each month thereafter.

These storage charges cover costs of insurance, shrinkage, unloading, interest on freight, and handling charges. Storage charges to be made by Floyd County Elevators are the same as the terminal elevators make in Fort Worth, Amarillo and other points.

Five days free storage will be given to farmers who wish to use this service.

ADVERSE CONDITIONS

Floyd County's wheat yield for 1938 was reduced by freeze, hail and greenbugs. Probably the greatest damage was done by the freeze and the greenbugs, although a disastrous hail swept across a portion of the east side of the county recently.

WHEAT SECTION GETS HEAVY RAIN—ONE INCH AT FLOYDADA WITH MUNCY PORTING TWO INCHES

Farmers Report No Damage to the Wheat—Moisture Benefits Row Crops of Area

The wheat section in general reports heavy rains Tuesday night. Reports gathered here this morning, with the rainfall for Floyd County approximately two inches, were slightly more than one inch in the eastern part of the county.

Bus drivers reported that the roads were dry from the canyon south to Ralls, while Lubbock had a big rain, and heavy falls were received east of Ralls extending far below the plains. Plainview also received a great amount of moisture. Farmers were happy this week over the fact that the moisture was received with scarcely no wind and no hail. Row crops were suffering for lack of rain. It is thought likely now that the bulk of the harvest will be delayed for several days. No damage was reported to the wheat.

WEDNESDAY RAIN

A portion of the east side of the county received a good rain Wednesday afternoon and evening. Rainfall was estimated from one-fourth to one-half inch in a territory from Center south to Baker and west to Dougherty.

Kinder Farris Home After Graduation

Kinder Farris returned home Tuesday of this week from Austin, where he has just completed his course and received his degree at the state university. His mother, Mrs. Jno. N. Farris, his brother, Jno., and a sister, Mrs. Lucian Marchand of Plainview, were all present for the graduation exercises.

Mrs. Clara Rodd is spending this week sight-seeing in San Antonio. She accompanied her husband, who makes regular trips there.

Three Floydada Scouts Members P.O.X. Club

Three Floydada Scouts were selected as members of the P.O.X. Club at the Boy Scout encampment at Camp Post last week. Four scouts are selected from the entire group in the camp for the honorary organization for boys showing unusual ability in scouting.

Gordon Voight, who went as scoutmaster of the troop from Floydada, was selected as scoutmaster for the P.O.X. club. Boys rating P.O.X. club from Floydada were: Joe Arwine, Edward Wester and Carl Arnold. Floydada scouts came within three points being the honor troop at the encampment.

Mrs. Hollums Purchases Old Time Spinning Wheel

Mrs. Maud Hollums last week purchased an old time spinning wheel, which shows by its style that it is really an antique. Mrs. Hollums stated that she considered herself "lucky" indeed to obtain such a specimen of the quaint old times.

The wheel was bought from Mrs. S. D. Bunch of Lakeview. Mrs. Bunch's mother purchased the wheel in 1876, and it was thought to be some forty or fifty years old at the time of her purchase. Mrs. Hollums hopes to learn more definitely of the date of the origin of the wheel by comparing it with types built during the various periods.

The antique wheel is being kept in the office of the Duncan Abstract Company.

Captain Legge Speaks to F.F.A. Club Here

Captain Legge, of Lubbock, who is in the State Department of Public Safety spoke at a meeting of the F. F. A. Club at Floydada High School Tuesday night. Captain Legge spoke on the services of the Highway Patrol, trucks, farm trucks, driving and other branches of the Public Safety Department. Music for the Tuesday night meeting was furnished by the F. F. A. orchestra.

Eugene Blackmon, recently elected to serve as president in 1938-39, was in charge of the gathering. About forty-five members, together with the instructor W. A. King, were in attendance. Summer Camp Plans Plans for the district summer encampment, which will be held the first part of August, were discussed.

B. A. Daniels Passed Away in Canon City, Colo.

Word was received here during the week end of the death of B. A. Daniels, local resident, in Canon City, Colorado.

Mr. Daniels, who had been in ill health for some time, underwent treatment at a Lubbock sanitarium some time ago. He had gone to Canon City, hoping to improve in health. His family, who was in Floydada at the time of his death, left immediately on receiving the word.

Particulars were not learned here by friends, however it was understood that funeral services were to be held Monday, June 6, in Canon City.

Don T. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shaw, is in Floydada this week visiting with his parents, and other relatives and friends. Don is in the service of the navy, but is enjoying a few weeks furlough. He came here direct from New York City and will return there when his leave expires.

Club Reporters In Meeting Here Saturday

Members of the reporters association of Floyd County Home Demonstration and 4-H clubs met Saturday in the county court room for discussion of their work. Mrs. P. F. Bertrand, chairman of the Reporters Association, presided.

Information and discussion concerning club reports was given by Herwin Strickland, editor of the Floyd County Plainsman and Homer Steen, editor of the Floyd County Hesperian. Mrs. Ed Holmes, council chairman, was present and introduced Mrs. Bertrand, who in turn introduced the newspapermen.

Regular meetings of the Floyd County reporters association will be held; the next one to be in August. Clubs represented were: Campbell, Center, Center 4-H, Dougherty, Home Builders, Liberty, Sandhill 4-H, Sandhill, Starkey, Sterley, South Plains, 4-H, South Plains, Fairview, Lockney, Muncy, Starkey, McCoy, and Pleasant Hill.

Miss Erin Gamble of Amarillo and Miss Arline Ison, also of that city, spent the week end in the home of Miss Gamble's sister, Mrs. Virgie Shaw.

Miss Wilmina Sallsbury, who has been teaching in Waskom, Texas, in the extreme eastern section of Texas, arrived here last week to spend the summer months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Sallsbury.

Mrs. G. H. Gattis Breaks Collar Bone

Word received here Tuesday by Rev. G. H. Gattis was that Mrs. Gattis had suffered a fall in which she received a broken collar bone.

Mrs. Gattis has been in Denton, Texas, with her sons for the past several months. The boys are in school there. It was their plans to return to Floydada Thursday of this week, but they will be delayed until Mrs. Gattis is able to stand the trip. Word stated that she was doing very nicely.

Funeral Services Held Monday for Jno. Wesley Roberts

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist Church at 3:30 Monday afternoon for Jno. Wesley Roberts, who passed away at the home of his nephew, Claude Downs, near Plainview June 5. Rev. Vernon Shaw conducted the services, assisted by Rev. N. E. Tyler.

The deceased was born January 4, 1880. He had remained single until his death. He is survived by two brothers and one sister.

Flower bearers were: Ruth Wardlow, Vera Nell Marshall, Modelle Haney, Mary Emma Collins, La Nell Shirey, and Alene Warren.

Interment was made in the Floydada Cemetery with Harmon Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

SUMMER SCHOOL PROGRESSING

According to O. K. Davis, principal of the high school, summer school has started off in a nice way, and students are taking interest in their work. Some ten students have enrolled for the summer's work. Mr. Davis, who is in charge of the session, is being assisted by his wife, a former teacher in the local schools.

Judge A. J. Polley of Amarillo was in Floydada Saturday of last week visiting friends and attending to business.

Summer time is play time, also reading time for boys and girls. There is always an abundance of leisure time for every boy and girl during the summer months. It is during this period that good, wholesome reading material should be provided in order that idle hands and idle minds will have something to do and something to think about other than just play.

TAX BILL NOT SIGNED

President Lets It Become Law, Calling Attention to "Unwise" Modification of Profits and Gains Levies

Adolfo Echagaray Somohano, commander of the Mexican federal troops engaged in suppressing the revolt in San Luis Potosi state led by Saturnino Cedillo, is here seen, right, giving orders to two of his officers.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

Tax Bill Unsigned But Law

FOR the first time since he entered the White House, President Roosevelt permitted an act of congress to become law without his signature.

President Roosevelt

He took this course with the tax revision bill in order to emphasize his objection to "those unwise parts of the bill" which removed all but the skeleton of the undistributed profits tax and drastically modified the levies upon capital gains.

The President announced his action in a speech delivered to 148 mountain families of the New Deal-sponsored rehabilitation community of Arthurdale, W. Va., at the graduation exercises of 13 high school students. His words, however, were carried to the nation by radio networks.

"I call the definite attention of the American people," said Mr. Roosevelt, "to those unwise parts of the bill I have talked to you about today—one of them which may restore in the future certain forms of tax avoidance, and of concentrated investment power, which we had begun to end, and the other a definite abandonment of a principle of tax policy long ago accepted as part of our American system."

The President declared that he had no objection to removing any obstacles to little business which might be contained in the revenue laws but he reiterated the administration's determination not to allow the use of corporate forms to avoid what it considers legitimate tax burdens.

Mr. Roosevelt made plain that he hoped for a future revision of the revenue laws in line with the objectives he seeks. Such revisions, he said, should be designed to encourage new investment and the entry of private capital into new fields.

Immediately after the address, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt left for Hyde Park, where they spent the Memorial day week-end.

Strike Back at Morgan

TESTIFYING before the joint congressional committee of investigation, David E. Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan, directors of the Tennessee Valley authority, accused Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, their ousted colleague, with trying to sabotage the TVA's legal defense in a court case involving the constitutionality of the authority. They said, too, that he had engaged in a campaign of dissent and obstruction.

These charges, together with a general denial of Arthur Morgan's accusations against themselves, constituted in the main their defense statements. Referring to the trial last winter of the suit of 18 private utility concerns against the TVA, Lilienthal said: "It is a record which suggests that he was seeking to find a way to obtain a judicial decision against his own agency. It is a record of tampering with prospective witnesses for the government and of obstructing and harassing counsel and witnesses in the very heat of the trial of a crucial constitutional case."

Former Chairman Morgan told his side of the long, bitter controversy on the first day of the inquiry, charging his fellow directors with dishonest management. He explained he did not mean David Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan took bribes or stole money, but that they deceived the President, congress, and the public; that they covered up important facts tending to throw doubt on the advisability of the government's huge social experiment; reported a false electric power yardstick, and were subservient to political and other special interests.

Concerning the Berry marble claims, Lilienthal said: "Any assertion that we (Harcourt Morgan and himself) by word or attitude encouraged any one to pull punches on Berry's claims is an outright falsehood. There was absolutely no evidence upon which any charge of fraud could have been based; there were only rumors and suspicions."

Chairman Donahay recessed the hearings until after the adjournment of congress.

Oil Group to Pay Fines

IT WAS announced by the Department of Justice in Washington that 14 oil companies and 11 executives awaiting trial at Madison, Wis., on anti-trust charges, plan to enter nolo contendere pleas and pay maximum fines and costs totaling $400,000.

The department said that the pleas, "amounting virtually to pleas of guilty," had been accepted by the department and recommended to the Madison court.

The defendants comprise the second group to be brought before the Madison court, where 46 defendants were convicted on similar charges last winter. These cases have been appealed.

The present indictments charge the oil companies and their executives on three counts with violation of the Sherman anti-trust act by a series of unlawful agreements between 1931 and December, 1936.

War Pensions Boosted

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT signed a bill to increase the pensions of certain soldiers, sailors and nurses who served in the Spanish war, Philippine insurrection or China relief expedition.

The act provides a $60 monthly pension for veterans sixty-five years old who served at least 90 days and to those who served less than 90 days and were discharged for disability incurred in service.

Alicante Is Bombed

FRANCO'S war planes attacked the city of Alicante in what was described as the most disastrous single air raid of the Spanish war. At least 250 persons were killed and 1,000 injured when six huge insurgent bombing planes circled suddenly in the sky and dropped their missiles squarely in the market place where hundreds of women waited in queues to buy food.

Air raids also were made on Sagunto and other cities. Government troops started an ambitious offensive on the Catalan front but were checked by hastily reinforced insurgent forces.

Nazi Inquiry Voted

THE house voted for an investigation of un-American propaganda activities in the United States following a charge by Representative Martin Dies of Texas that a member of the German-American bund had advocated the assassination of President Roosevelt.

Dies, who presented the resolution for an inquiry, said he based his statement on affidavits which he had seen. The suggestion that the President be slain was made, he said, in a speech at a Nazi camp.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Fingers of Flame"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: Arthur A. Guinan of Brooklyn, N. Y., is today's Distinguished Adventurer. Art says that although he is a veteran of the World war and saw plenty of service in France, he had to come back home to get in a mess of trouble.

And that, boys and girls, is the way a lot of these adventure yarns start out. They start with a peaceful family scene like the one Art describes in his own home on an evening early in November, 1923. It was a cold, rainy Friday night outside, but indoors, in the Guinan dining room, it was cheerful and bright.

It was a little early to be lighting the furnace. That's why the Guinans were all gathered in the dining room. They had a kerosene oil stove burning in there to—well—to sort of take the edge off the dampness.

Art's mother and dad and brother were there. His dad, who had recently been discharged from the hospital where he'd spent ten months with a badly broken leg, was sitting in an easy chair with his bum leg stretched out stiffly in front of him. He couldn't walk on that leg yet, and was practically an invalid.

Their Oil Stove Exploded.

Mother was peeling potatoes. Art's brother had stirred up a mess of plaster and was patching a crack in the ceiling. Art had gone out to the kitchen to grab a bite to eat. He was just finishing up when his dad said he didn't like the way the oil stove smelled. Mother said she'd noticed it too. It was warm enough in the room by that time, anyway. She looked up and saw Art, who had just finished eating and returned to the dining room, and asked him to put the stove out.

Art says he had a special way of putting out that stove. "We used to turn it down as low as it would go," he says, "and then pick it up by the handle and give it a jerk to put out the last flicker of flame." But nowadays, Art realizes that that's no way to put out an oil stove.

On this particular night, though, he didn't realize it. He turned the wick down to the bottom, picked the stove up and gave it a jerk. It didn't go out, so Art gave it another jerk—harder, this time, than the first. The next thing he knew, he was holding onto something that looked and sounded like Vesuvius on a rampage.

That stove gave out a roar that could be heard a block away. A burst of flame six feet long shot across the room. Art's mother was sitting right in the path of it. In a split second she was flaming like a HUMAN TORCH!

Saved Mother but Forgot About Dad.

Art dropped the stove and ran to her. Her clothes were blazing in a dozen places. With his bare hands, he started tearing at her dress. "I was pulling that flame apart," he says. "Lord only knows how, but I kept pulling handfuls of burning cloth from her body. My brother started coming down from the ladder he was standing on. In the meantime my mother and I had worked our way into the kitchen and my brother joined me there."

Art and his brother were both pulling at those flames now, and they were making headway. At length they had torn away the last bit of burning cloth—beaten out the last spark. Then, suddenly, they thought of their dad!

Art says that right there he got the worst fright of his life. He had forgotten about dad in the rush to take care of mother, but now they realized that he was the one who really needed their assistance most. Dad was helpless—practically an invalid. He couldn't move out of his chair, and back there in the dining room, the whole place was blazing.

Art turned to run into the dining room. The door leading to it was a raging furnace. A curtain of flame covered its whole length and breadth. Art hesitated just a fraction of a second. Then he plunged right through the door, flames and all.

Flames Couldn't Stop Art.

There was a smoke-filled space in the center of the room where the flames had not yet spread. His dad was over at the other side of it. Art plunged across that space in nothing flat and gathered his father in his arms.

"His right shoe," Art says, "was almost burned from his foot. I started to carry him toward the back door, but about half way across the room I stumbled. Dad fell on top of me and knocked the wind out of me. I thought I'd never get it back again. Before I did, the flames had crept up on us."

It was about that time that Art felt a terrible pain in his right leg. When he looked at it he saw that the legs of his trousers were afire. But there was no time to lose. They had to get out of that room right away. Art picked his dad up again and dragged him toward the door with one arm while he was beating out the flames in his pants legs with the other.

It was a hectic five minutes. At last he was through the door. He set his dad down in a chair in the yard back of the house and ran to turn in the fire alarm. "It wasn't until I reached for the alarm box," he says, "that I realized how badly I was burnt. My hands looked like a couple of beefsteaks, and my legs were worse. That peaceful little home of ours looked like a hospital for the next six months." Copyright—WNU Service.

Tracing the White Indians

Definite indications that the mysterious "White Indians" of Panama are descendants of white men who came to America before Columbus are reported by an archeologist. Many scientists have held these people were albinos. But albinos usually are childless, and when they do have children they also are always albinos. But there were instances where the "White Indians" gave birth to brown-skinned children.

Birds Plague City

Bird of good luck to many native tribes, the hammerkop, has become an ill omen to people of Johannesburg, South Africa, who have goldfish ponds. Many ponds have been denuded of fish by the feathered fishermen. Haunting small creeks, they feed on frogs. Recently a Johannesburg resident put a frog pond near his pools of goldfish. Both frogs and goldfish began disappearing and soon all were gone.

Two fifths of the upper peninsula of Michigan is devoted to state and national forests. The area of the peninsula is 10,500 square miles, of which at least two-thirds is covered with hardwood and other timber.

The Shaker style of furniture has a classic simplicity inspired by the sect's abhorrence of ornamentation. The Shakers, disdainful of paint, applied only light stains and varnishes for protection of the wood.

Strange Facts

Tiny Sailfish Puzzles Beebe

DR. WILLIAM BEEBE returned recently from a tropical expedition. He had collected 20,000 different specimens of marine life. He brought back a fish not as long as his little finger. This was his most valuable specimen, a sailfish 1 1/2 inches long.

The familiar sailfish caught by anglers in California or Florida weighs from 30 to more than 100 pounds. Their length measures the height of a man or a giant. Some are even ten feet long. The "baby" sailfish measuring 1 1/2 inches may not be a "baby" at all. The tiny fish exactly like the ten foot sailfish puzzles Doctor Beebe. In an interview on landing, the well known scientist says the tiny sailfish might be the first young sailfish ever captured, or may be a new miniature species. There is much doubt of the 1 1/2 inch sailfish being the young of the ordinary sailfish because the little fish seems fully formed.

The sailfish derives its name from the huge dorsal fin that extends a foot or two above the body and resembles a sail. These fish feed on the surface of the water and they are caught by trolling in the daytime. The miniature sailfish secured by Doctor Beebe was caught at night under search lights, on a voyage that took Doctor Beebe and his companions 2,000 miles down the west coast from Cape Lucas to Panama.

Early Trial

In Panama, a man indicted for a crime, even though he may be a fugitive from justice, undergoes trial at once, while the witnesses for the state are alive, present and of sound memory. Recently a safebreaker was captured and began his six-year sentence a few hours later, his trial having taken place in 1935.—Collier's Weekly.

THIS YEAR'S WHEAT CROP

Floyd County will produce this year, providing no force intervenes, about one-third as much wheat as last year. Money received from the 1938 crop will provide a greater stimulus to general business conditions in Floyd County than was caused by the 1937 crop. The reason for this fact being that a large percent of farmers are in debt when harvest started on the 1937 crop. Payment of debts that the Floyd County farmers made to banks and individuals in 1937 brought those farmers up to almost normal. This year's wheat crop will give more active cash in Floyd County than any year in several years.

Example of this statement: One Floyd County farmer stated that if he made one-half as much wheat as he did in 1937, he would have more clear profit than last year. He was $100 in debt last year and only $200.00 in the red this year.

Year by year Floyd County does not produce 25 bushels per acre wheat, the general average being 18 bushels. Consistent production of ten or 15 bushels would prove more beneficial than a crop every three or four years.

ENVIRONMENT AND ABILITY

The degree of success or fame which one attains is not, the greater part of the time, be attributed to individual ability. Environment is an important factor in the molding of a career, being perhaps more significant than ability.

Observation has taught us that the morals, religious beliefs, political ideas, in fact the general life of a people are governed by the environment in which these people live. Were we in Germany, Italy or Japan, and the conditions of those countries, our political beliefs would be different from those with those people.

This year there is the largest group of college graduates in the history of the United States. What these young people accomplish will be determined largely by the environment in which they place themselves. They seek out and find a field thus far only slightly explored, and apply those natural talents with application of the knowledge they have gleaned from the past. Their success should be theirs.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL

By Strick

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—here 'tis your harvest edition. Sparkling with complete streamlining like a rubber-tired tractor—cutting a swath into the interest of Floyd County readers—a bumper edition of value.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—from one harvest to another—wheat, wheat, wheat is the talk—in the winter we wonder if we have had enough snow and rain—along toward spring we start hoping it doesn't freeze (which it did this year) a little later we start shrinking every time a cloud appears—and we were not shrinking from nothing this year—and all that with a few million green bugs tossed in for good measure makes wheat raising a tough vocation.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—here's the 1938 hard luck story from a Floyd County farmer that takes the streamlined pastry without a struggle. He has a half section—and its under irrigation—started with a good crop of wheat—watered it over twice and the crop was looking fine when the green bugs came along—the whole business with exception of 50 acres was stripped clean—and it will make 5 bushels to the acre (maybe). On this farm several acres are cut out due to the government programs. There are 40 acres in feed and 37 acres in cotton. And now, the grasshoppers are on it—boy how I would like to farm—quick, easy money.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—Beats all I ever saw—there are to be exact 1,312,834 ways of keeping cool (If you don't believe this see Strickly Confidential for February 29, 1936)—and every one has his own idea. Some say put 'em on (we mean clothes) and some say take 'em off. Personally, I say take 'em off, seek a cool pool of water and dunk the physical handiwork in the deep. But—I saw a fellow the other day—said he still maintained the 'long handles'—and at the time it was a hundred and something in the shadow—said he perspired and then the wind biting him caused air-conditioning—boy—sure will hurt the air conditioners business.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—The best one yet—for keeping cool—remove all the exterior, superficial garb from your person—adorn yourself with a damp towel—turn on the fan toward you—get a copy of last week's (or this week's) Plainsman and enjoy life (Sheeks—there I go again—)

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—Noticed in an exchange Saturday—a fellow quits a perfectly good job as a dispenser of knowledge in a rural school at eighty per—to go into the newspaper game—boy—he had better be teaching than learning—you can't spoof your little Strick—Sometimes one acquires for one's self a valuable education in no time flat indulging in the journalistic art.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL—"Just as the twig is bent—the tree is inclined"—thus serves public opinion to mold the lives of a generation. Public opinion is developed and formed by several mediums—news-papers—radios—rumor—etc—one of the greatest of these is the newspaper which serves its purpose more consistently probably than all others—it is through your newspaper that you are influenced—whether you think so or not—you either believe with it or against it—at any rate you have a medium through which your opinions are created—We, of the newspaper business, are faced with a problem—one so great that it cannot be solved in a single day or a lone year—we must, if we serve our community as behooves us, discriminate to a certain degree between the good and the bad in certain issues—yet we do so only as a means to better service to the community—we want to do our part toward the development of the community—

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL

Yours Strick recommends that you read in a recent publication "Underhand, Underground Japan"—if you want to awaken to facts—now there is the most outspoken article I have ever read—and it is printed for the truth.

Farmers Grain Co.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington. — Most congressmen and government officials who have studied the situation, and practically all bankers, will tell you privately that government ownership of the railroads is inevitable. The financial situation of the railroads grows worse by the month. More and more government money, via the RFC, is being poured into the doomed financial structures. Which merely means that they are tied over the immediate emergency, whatever it may be in each individual case, and therefore will have a harder row than ever to hoe from now on. For there will be interest, not to mention sinking fund, for the additional debt so kindly advanced by the government.

Politics being what it is, no one can think of any solution, not even President Roosevelt, who is more willing to be helpful to the railroads than to any other industry. Yet the apparent fate of the railroad companies is actually bad news for nearly everybody.

It is very bad for the stock and bondholders, of course. And in turn it is bad for the people with whom these investors have been spending their money, for obviously they will spend less when the "day" comes.

It is very bad for the treasuries, and therefore for the politicians and taxpayers of every state in the Union. For at present the railroads are paying staggering amounts of taxes to state, county and city governments.

It is very bad for the federal Treasury, for not only do the railroads pay a huge load of federal taxes direct to the Treasury, but their officers, high-ranking employees and security holders sweeten their own individual income taxes no little because of the fact that the railroads are privately owned.

Bad All Around

It is bad for the federal Treasury, and therefore every living person (for everyone contributes heavily to the federal Treasury, directly or indirectly, to an extent which very few realize) for another reason. Scarcely a single government official or member of congress believes that federal operation of the railroads will be as economical as private management. Hence the prospect is that when the day comes the railroads will quickly become a burden on the government.

Politics being what it is, no really drastic plan to avoid this approaching catastrophe seems likely of adoption. As a matter of fact, none is being proposed.

No man running for office, for example, would be likely to propose that the railroads be liberated from all regulation, to follow their own judgment or that of their individual officers, with a view to seeing if they could not work out their own salvation. On the contrary, there has been very little criticism of the interstate commerce commission for refusing recently to permit the railroads to increase certain rates, despite the fact that the I. C. C. made its decision not because it did not think the roads entitled to the additional money, but because it did not believe the proposed increases would result in additional earnings! Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman disassembled violently from the right of the commission to substitute its own judgment for that of railroad managers, though personally he admitted he did not think the increases would provide more revenue.

Every traffic man, and most farmers, know that if roads were permitted to juggle rates as they pleased, they could often turn a pretty penny by cutting rates on perishable crops, providing they did not have to maintain the cut rates afterwards. But the feeling that this would be against public interest has prevented this ever being tried, though every store in the land can have a bargain Tuesday if it likes.

Problem for Farley

The problem confronting James A. Farley in Pennsylvania this summer and fall is plainly shown in the figures of the Democratic and Republican primaries. New Dealers, of course, are hoping that many of the voters in the Republican primary who cast their ballots for Gifford Pinchot will swing over to Charles Alvin Jones in the election.

There was no such bitterness against Jones at any stage of the campaign as was manifested against his running mate, Gov. George H. Earle, who is now the Democratic nominee for senator. In fact if John L. Lewis had not been so dictatorial, if he and Sen. Joseph P. Guffey had been willing to take a beating with a smile and accept half a loaf—they had their candidate for senator all selected—the whole story might now be very different.

Lewis, at least, could then have concentrated on Gifford Pinchot in the Republican primary. No one can tell what would have happened in that case, of course. With hindsight it would seem doubtful that the Lewis strength would have been enough to save Pinchot. But there are a good many shrewd Pennsylvania politicians who believe that the reason Pinchot was beaten so badly was that Lewis moved heaven and earth to get his Republican miners to change their affiliations so as to vote for Tom Kennedy in the Democratic primary, and obviously almost every vote so changed was a loss for Pinchot. Not only because of Lewis' friendship for Pinchot, but because Pinchot as governor made warm friends of the miners.

This may or may not be true, but it would not explain why Lewis made such a poor showing in the mining regions. The vote in these ran just as strongly against Kennedy as it did elsewhere.

Want to Beat Davis

The chief problem of the New Dealers, however, is to beat Puddler Jim Davis, and this looks like an uphill job indeed. For instance nearly 171,000 votes were piled up for former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti. Margiotti had denounced Governor Earle during the primary campaign, accusing him of taking money from the brewers.

It must be remembered that the total Republican vote for senator was about 8,000 in excess of the total Democratic vote for senator. This would be insignificant, normally, but it must be considered that most of the votes cast against Senator Davis were organization votes, which normally can be expected to swing to the winner on election day.

Out of the total Democratic votes in the senatorial race, however, S. Davis Wilson, mayor of Philadelphia, piled up about 328,000. During the campaign Wilson attacked Earle bitterly, although he had been a former ally, charging that Earle had borrowed money from a state contractor.

Conceivably something might be done which would bring Wilson into the Democratic camp. Conceivably Wilson may even be making speeches for Earle before election day. But the fight was so bitter that it is very difficult to imagine all of Wilson's supporters voting for Earle in November. Some of them may have believed the plain intimation of the man they were supporting that Earle's actions in borrowing this money were not ethical, to put it mildly.

Zero in Marching

There has been a tremendous lot of marching up the hill and down again since last month, when the opinion was ventured that "Follow the Leader" was no longer a political necessity for senators and representatives in voting on measures affecting business.

But the net result of all the marching is pretty nearly zero. Pennsylvania, where the New Deal lost not only its shirt, but its reputation for infallible political prediction, just about offsets Florida, where a strongly pro-New Deal senator triumphed in his primary over a New Deal critic seeking his toga.

A good many more cards will be played, in various states, before the picture is complete, and it would be dangerous now to predict that New Deal ideals will not be slavishly followed by a chastened congress after the primaries and the November election have recorded their mandates. But—present conviction in Washington is that the results will be mixed, with administration victories and defeats so counterbalancing that the net result will be, next session, that individual senators and representatives who want to be independent will be.

Regardless of what may happen to the Roosevelt prestige, however, it would seem next to impossible for John L. Lewis again to inspire the political fear in congressional hearts which has dwelt there for the last few years. By the same token William Green, and the American Federation of Labor, have regained the prestige and political power which they enjoyed until Lewis and his C. I. O. moved in on Roosevelt.

Political Loser

Important now, however, is the fact that the labor outfit which has been dominating the New Deal policies and appointments turns up as a political loser. Since the Pennsylvania primaries congress is paying more attention to William Green's attack on the national labor relations board.

Shrinking of the Lewis political menace in the minds of our national legislators has also resulted in many members of the house and senate paying more attention to the flood of protests from manufacturers and other employers of labor as to the high-handed, arbitrary and discouraging methods of the NLRB.

Now congress is being told very emphatically that the labor policy of the government is also a wet blanket on enterprise, and particularly on any contemplated expansion. In short that it is one of the big contributing causes of unemployment. Up to now it has not been a question of disbelieving this contention. But individual congressmen, with their eyes on the primaries and election this year, were timid about making any move which might bring a strongly organized group out against them in their districts or states.

Trade-In Puts Auto Dealer In Horse Business

Kermit Max Wilson, a farmer living near Paradise, Ore., the trade-in was, believe it or not, six horses. In the matter of horsepower received, Mr.
Wilson got all the better of it, as his new car gives him 83.

The Chandler Tractor and Equip-

bad at horse trading either, as within a few days purchasers for all six horses

MRS. C. SNODGRASS ANNOUNCES APPROACHING MARRIAGE OF DAUGHTER WITH PARTY

The approaching marriage of Miss Kathleen Snodgrass to Ben Hill of Dimmitt was announced Friday evening by Mrs. C. Snodgrass at the home of Mrs. Frank L. Moore. Mrs. Snodgrass was assisted by Mrs. Moore,
Mrs. Glad Snodgrass, and Mrs. Roy Snodgrass.

Guests were greeted at the door
by Mrs. C. Snodgrass and the honoree, and registered as they entered.
A very appropriate program was rendered for the occasion. Joe Dick Moore, small son of Mr. and Mrs.
Frank Moore, sang a solo, after which Miss Sappho Ward rendered

several piano selections. Mrs. Alpha Boothe completed the program with two fitting readings.

Following the entertainment, refreshments were served to the guests
by Mrs. Glad and Mrs. Roy Snodgrass. Refreshments consisted of angel food cakes and a shurbot drink.
Place cards with the words, Kathleen and Ben, June 12, were used. In the upper corner of each card, a small slit which had been cut held a dainty wedding band.

Some twenty-five or thirty immediate friends were present at the announcement party.

Thelma Jo Hamilton and Rev. Clifford Potts Wed in Simple Ceremony

Rev. Vernon Shaw read a simple ring ceremony at his home at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning for Miss Thelma Jo Hamilton of Floydada and
Rev. Clifford Potts of Loveland.
Mrs. Vernon Shaw and Miss Oneca Hamilton, sister of the bride, were the only ones present for the marriage rites.

The bride wore navy blue with pink and navy accessories. For her going-away costume she chose olive green with British tan accessories.

Mrs. Potts is the daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. T. T. Hamilton of Floydada.
She was graduated from Floydada High School with the class of '34 and graduated from Wayland College with the class of '37. For the past year she has been employed as a teacher at the Muncy school.

Rev. Potts is at present with the Baptist Church at Watson, near Loveland. The couple left Wednesday afternoon for Loveland, where they will make their home for some time. It is Rev. Potts' plans to re-enter Wayland College this fall and complete his course there during the coming year.

Irene Probasco and Raymond Rhodes Announce Marriage

The marriage has been announced
this week of Miss Irene Probasco and Raymond Rhodes, which took place in Clovis, New Mexico, May 25. Mrs. Rhodes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tad Probasco of this city, and Mr. Rhodes is of Lockney.

The bride attended Floydada High School, where she was a junior the past school term. The groom attended high school in Lockney. He is at present employed with the Rhodes Grocery Company in Lockney. They plan to make their home there.

Reunion of 1934 Class to be Held Thursday

A reunion and picnic of the 1934
graduating class from Floydada High School will be held Thursday, June 16, according to plans announced by Hugh J. Ayres, president.

Former students of this class are requested to meet at the high school at seven o'clock next Thursday evening. Those attending are expected to bring their own lunches. Liquid refreshments of soda water, punch or something of that nature will be provided.

Members of the class, who expect to attend, are urged to make contact with Mrs. W. R. Daniel, secretary treasurer or Hugh J. Ayres, president. Husbands and wives are invited to the picnic, which, if present plans are followed, will be held at Roaring Springs.

Sponsors of the 1934 class were Mrs. Len V. Smith and W. A. King.

Group Enjoys Picnic Sponsored By Eastern Star

A group of some twenty or twenty five local persons enjoyed an outing
at Roaring Springs Tuesday evening of this week. The picnic was sponsored by the Eastern Star; however many who attended were not members of the organization.

A picnic supper, which included
bacon, eggs, wafers, marshmallows, cookies, fruit, and everything amounting to a bounteous meal, was spread.
After the supper, many enjoyed a delightful swim.

at the home of the sponsor, Mrs.
Geo. A. Lيدر. The regular program was not carried out, due to the fact that a large number of the members were not present at the gathering.

Those present were: Miss Ina Sims,
Mrs. Trenton T. Davis, Miss Bernice
Patton, Mrs. W. A. Amburn, Miss
Fannie Mae Rees, Miss Peggy Mc-Kinney, Miss Katie Coker, and the hostess, Mrs. Lيدر.

Rex Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown of this city, left Monday of this week for Amarillo. After spending some time in Amarillo, he planned to go to Denver, Colorado, where he will attend the national golf tournament which will be held there soon. Rex is an excellent golfer, and was looking forward to a great time at the tournament. Following the tournament, he will return to Amarillo for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scott and daughter, Elizabeth, of Lovington, New Mexico, spent the week end with Mr. Scott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Croft and sons of Atlanta, Georgia, arrived here Monday to visit with Mr. Croft's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Croft. They were accompanied by Mrs. Croft's sister, Miss Olean Driver, also of Atlanta. The group, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Croft, left Floydada Wednesday for Utah, where they are to visit Mrs. Jno. Trusty, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Croft, until the latter part of this week. They plan to return to their home in Atlanta the first of next week.

Verner Norman spent Thursday and Friday of last week in Childress, where he attended to business.

17 Students Enrolled in Summer Band Course

According to M. T. Camp, band director, seventeen advanced students have enrolled for the summer band course. Classification according to instruments is as follows: three saxophones, four clarinets, one horn, two drums, three trombones, and four trumpets. The classes are held from 9 until 10:30 each morning. A beginners' class is now being organized, and it is thought likely that ten or twelve will enroll for this course. The beginners' class will be taught from 10:30 until 12:00 each morning. Mr. Camp states that he is hoping to be prepared for some public concerts in the near future.

NO WHEAT MARKETING QUOTAS

College Station—The wheat crop will not be subject to the marketing quota plan in 1938, according to Geo. Slaughter, Wharton, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee.

The new farm act set May 15 as the latest date for establishing a national wheat marketing quota, subject to a referendum by wheat growers, and also provides that no wheat quotas can be in effect during the marketing year beginning July 1, 1938, unless provisions for parity payments have been made.

The Texas committee received word at its headquarters at Texas A. and M. College from AAA officials at Washington that the wheat marketing quota would have been proclaimed if parity payments had been provided for within the required time, Slaughter said.

The farm act provides that the wheat quota shall be proclaimed when the total supply of wheat will exceed the normal year's domestic consumption and exports by more than 35 percent.

The Division of Crop Estimates has indicated that the probable production of winter wheat will be 754 million bushels and spring wheat around 200 million bushels, and there is a carryover of about 200 million bushels.

The total supply of wheat is expected to be approximately 1,154,000,000 bushels. This amount would be 400 to 450 million bushels in excess of the normal year's domestic consumption and exports and about 200 million bushels in excess of the marketing quota level.

Wheat is the only crop for which marketing quotas this year depended upon provisions of parity payments, Slaughter pointed out. Marketing quotas are already in effect for cotton and for flue-cured, burley, and the dark tobaccos. The act provides that there shall be no marketing quota for rice this year.

Preparations are being made for the annual coaching school of the Texas High School Football Coaches Association to be held in Lubbock, August 1 to 7, according to W. B. Chapman, vice-president of the organization and coach of the Lubbock High School.

To date more than 250 coaches from every section of the state have made reservations for the week's school this summer.

Such outstanding football coaches of the nation as Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern University; Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin University; and John "Ox" DaGrosa, former coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, professional team, will be the instructors.

Climaxing the week's school will be the All-Star Football game between the Senior All-Stars of the North and the Senior All-Stars of the South.

Be Careful With Grasshopper Poison

Farmers are cautioned to be careful in putting out grasshopper poison bait, since in some instances hazardous results have been encountered to livestock. In some cases a shovel has been employed in the distribution of the poison, thus leaving the poison in too great amounts. If the poison is distributed by hand and care is taken that it is broadcast at the rate of 20 pounds per acre, practically no danger from poison of livestock will be encountered.

Sarah Lynn drew Gunnar aside while the Hermod was being wheeled to the line. "It's a gorgeous thing to do—and I adore it! Look at him—almost expiring with bliss! But, Gunnar, he looks so sick and see how he breathes. I mean—suppose he has a weak heart?" She put an anxious hand on his arm.

He looked down at her, his gaze at once stern and gay, reckless and reasonable. "Thinking still with fear of death? You have not listened, then, while I told you? Life is one adventure; death is another! To be alive—that is nothing, unless life is good. Is he living in that foul hole? Better death in clean air! We go!"

CHAPTER IX

The Gate was richly golden, bathed and burnished in a strong metallic radiance, and the sun was sinking into the western sea in a molten blaze of unbelievable glory. Pop perched on the edge of his seat, looking off, looking down. His unpleasant pallor was enhanced and there was a pinched look about his nose and mouth. He was breathing badly, but his eyes were enraptured. He caught her scrutiny upon him and smiled at her, drawing a long, quivering breath, tipping his head back, relaxing like a swimmer about to float on a gentle sea.

The Hermod swooped and swirled like a gull, dipped and rose again. Sarah Lynn pulled herself to attention. This proud dominion over the fowl of the air and the fish of the sea was not a bird-like inconsequence but a business of infinite important detail, of levers and gears and hair-trigger precision. The seagulls, white dots against green-blue, far below them now, flew because they couldn't help it, but men flew because they had conquered.

The taxi-driver was waiting for them. "Hi, Pop," he said, "you better beat it! Lena, she's fit to be tied!"

The little man tried to thank Gunnar but he made only a series of embarrassed gurgles.

The flier gave him a comradely clap on the shoulder. "It is good! Now you remember always!"

Sarah Lynn escorted him back to the restaurant. Driving back to Danavale she said again, "I want to come down in a parachute, Gunnar."

"Yes. After you have soloed for a month. Then I will take you."

"Take me?"

"You shall do it from the Hermod. I will remove the door, for your Department of Commerce, Conrad Jordan has told me, makes you wear two chutes when it is the jump of intention."

"Oh? In case one doesn't work? And it would be too bulky to get out through the door? But after I'm once out, it's perfectly simple, isn't it, Gunnar? Just to wait long enough to be clear of the ship before I pull the string?"

"That is all," he agreed. His mouth looked rather grim.

"Gunnar, did you mind when you did it?"

"On the ground, before, I had fear like a great sickness. In the air it left me."

Le Roy suggested her first flight alone in secret but she decided against it. It was due Great-granny and Uncle Lynn and old Penny if they wanted to come, and at the last instant she whispered to her young brother Bill. Bill's freckles, standing out like brown polka-dots on his pale face were in finance the most things she thought about as she walked over to the plane.

She slipped round to the further side, unobserved, and laid her face against the Chinese lacquer red. "Don't be jittery, darling!" she whispered. "I won't even kick your nail-polish. I promise! I'll take you up like a swallow and bring you down like a leaf."

She got into the cockpit and went through the routine she had rehearsed again and again. It had become an integral part of her mental process.

The assistant sprang aside from the propeller.

"Clear!"

"Clear, oh, clear! Forever and forever, life for the queer dark Dana girl, shining and clear."

Sarah Lynn pushed her throttle to the stop and Ladybug went forward with a roar, left the ground and began to climb into the wind. Sarah Lynn reached the altitude she wanted, readjusted her stabilizer to take the load off the joy stick, leveled off, banked to the left, building her own road as she flew. She exulted. "No matter what comes to me, if I live to be a hundred, I can never be as happy as this instant!"

"I'll take care of you!" Sarah Lynn pledged her plane. Ladybug, Ladybug, fly away home!

Mary Dana Webster went to drink tea with Lynn Dana, an anxious pucker between her eyes.

"Ardine is perfectly poisonous about Sarah Lynn."

He shrugged. "Is it important?"

"Probably not, but it disturbs me. She's such an exceptionally good hater."

"Doubtless. What's the basis of it?"

"Partly disgust at having the ugly duckling turn into a skylark, and at yielding first place as Danavale's center of shocked interest, but chiefly on account of Jim Allison. She has worked it out in her nasty little mind that Sarah Lynn, by being the victim of her joke on Gunnar Thorwald, is responsible for his complete and final defection."

"And that goes deep?"

"Apparently. In her predatory fashion," his young kinswoman said, "she cares enormously. Did you know he'd been grounded? Yes. Drinking. Nice lad, to begin with, and what a mess she's made of his life!"

Lynn Dana nodded. "Of every life she really touches. Poor old Keaton!"

"I don't think he's ever come fully out from the ether," his cousin scorned him.

"But as to Sarah Lynn, I don't see. Mary—After all, the only two things in the world which matter to her are flying and Gunnar Thorwald. Ardine could go more and ensnare him than she could take an ax to the plane, much as she would enjoy both activities. I really don't see what she can do."

"Well, I don't either, Uncle Lynn." Her plain and pleasant face lifted a little. "But just the same, she sort of worries me."

The parachute jump now held the limelight in Sarah Lynn's thoughts. She read and studied and asked questions and listened eagerly to Conrad Jordan and the ace, and Lynn Dana sat in his wheeled-chair and approved.

"Won't it be pretty bulky with two chutes, one in front and one behind?" she wanted to know.

"I have said that I will remove the door," Gunnar reminded her.

"Then you can dive out, forward, and that's much handier than backing out," Conrad Jordan said, lighting a cigarette. "Then you'd have to push your way, with your back against the door, against the air-pressure."

Lynn Dana's amused gaze, slightly grim, went from one calm speaker to the other. "If you don't mind, Sarah Lynn, I'd rather like you to take whatever precautions suggest themselves."

"Of course, Uncle Lynn! I want to be sensible."

Sensible: the small, slight thing with her clear olive-and-ivory face and its crowding eyes, her fine, thin hands relaxed in her lap, planning this dazzling danger as casually as her cousins made dates to go dancing.

"The mental reactions are very different," her uncle's flying friend said, "in a premeditated jump and baling out in an emergency, to save your life. All the breaks are with you now. You're going at the thing scientifically, you have no fear and no nerves, and I prophesy it's going to be a tremendous satisfaction to you, at the moment and in your memories. But I want to tell you frankly that you'll have some bad minutes before you go up."

He leaned forward to knock off an ash. "Never knew it to fail. The most hardened jumpers experience it, though I dare say in most cases it's purely physical and subconscious. I know a young chap at an airport who does exhibition jumps, but always before he goes up he turns deathly pale and his face and hands twitch. And the minute he climbs into the ship he's fine."

"Like a soldier in the trenches waiting the command to go over the top," Lynn Dana contributed.

"Or, I remember before a big game, the agony of waiting, of wishing you had elected to play tidley-winks instead of football, and the departure of all doldrums when the whistle blew."

"Exactly. Tremendous relief in definite action: setting the body into directional motion toward a determined objective. Physical action replaces mental; fear evaporates. My conviction is that with a normal mind danger brings a calm and alertness and a cleverness far beyond ordinary experience."

"That I also believe," the Norwegian ace said.

Jordan went on. "There's the case of an English army officer, years ago. His chute caught in the ship and tore, leaving only the harness on him. He didn't know it, and the motion-pictures showed him calmly feeling round the harness and ripcord, trying to figure why his umbrellas didn't open, almost the whole way to the earth."

"Cheery anecdote," Lynn Dana said a trifle tartly.

"That was an old-fashioned affair, Lynn. Sarah Lynn'll have two modern, absolutely reliable chutes."

"Fool-proof," she grinned at him. "Fool-proof, which is superfluous in your case," he grinned back, approving her warmly. Lynn Dana's study pulsed with approval, with affection for her. Her uncle's lifelong devotion, the cordial friendship of his friend, the cool comradeship of the flying boy from Norway. What more, besides a Gipsy Moth, did a girl need for complete happiness?

Fliers did not marry.

"I have wondered if I'd really remember to pull the string," she said, "but I was reading Lieutenant Cramer's account of his first experience. An old-timer told him he couldn't keep his finger away from that ring if he tried!"

Jordan nodded. "Your only difficulty will be to wait until you are entirely clear of the ship." He faced Lynn Dana. "She'll have two chutes fastened to the webbed harness about her body. The main one has a 23-foot spread and the second a 24. That's on her chest."

"Made of silk?"

"Light, but entirely substantial. Both have pull-rings and rip-cords to unlance and throw up the parachutes, and the rings are handily placed. You'll have everything clear in your mind a hundred times over, Sarah Lynn. The thing you must be prepared for is the scream and the flapping of the silk and the report, like a gun, and the violent jerk when your parasol opens. After that"—he ground out his cigarette—"it's really delightful."

"But—I was reading yesterday—when I'm almost down, within a hundred feet of the ground—"

"Then you must reach up and hang onto the big rings above the sling in which you're sitting, and lift yourself, and take some of the bump out of your earth contact."

Sarah Lynn nodded gravely. "Uncle Lynn, what about Great-granny? Shall we tell her, and let her come out to the meadow and watch?"

He shook his head. "I'm against it, Sarah Lynn. She hasn't been up to the mark, lately, and it would be bound to be a strain—not understanding, as we do, the simplicity and safety of the thing. I believe you'd better tell her about it afterward."

"I expect you're right. But she'll be furious at us. I must go home, now, Uncle Lynn." She stood up, and Jordan and Gunnar rose.

"We must be on our way, too," the older man said.

"Yes. But I walk first with Sarah Lynn to her house," Gunnar answered.

They stepped briskly in the summer dusk, Lightning bounding ahead and racing back to touch her mistress' hand with her sharp cool muzzle.

"So, now you fly, and you make the great jump," the youth said soberly. "That is good. The courage you have; the skill you swiftly learn. I think my grandmother, living today, would be also like that."

Sarah Lynn fought back crazy laughter. Of all the round-about, detached and diluted compliments! His grandmother, a girl in her period, would be like her.

"I return, next month, to Norway. I have there the fine offers, one from the government, one from a great flying firm. It is wise that I go."

She heard herself making a faint sound.

"But I like well America, California. I will come again one day. And you, also, should visit my country."

"Oh, yes, indeed! Cousin Sally Ann has told me how glorious it is,"

she said clearly and cheerily, and told him good-by and ran in the house.

Well, what of it? Why not? Was there any reason why he should linger forever in an alien land? Fliers did not marry.

But fliers occasionally, it appeared, fell in love, achingly, absorbingly, terribly in love. She faced it then. "Idiot! You've known it for weeks—months—always! What's the use of lying to yourself. You may as well admit it; he'll never know."

The nonagenarian was beside Lynn Dana when he was driving out to the field for the parachute jump. She had guessed or divined what was to happen. "Can't fool your Gre'grammer!" She sat on the edge of the seat, the dabs of color which excitement always brought on her cheek-bones, her sunken eyes gleaming.

"I never saw the beat of that one," Great-granny said complacently. "You keep that ambulance out of sight, Lynn Dana, or I'll box your ears till you see stars, old as you are. Plumb foolishness, anyway. Sairy Lynn'll come down just as if she was playing on a feather-bed."

"Am I running true to form?" Sarah Lynn asked Conrad Jordan as they fastened her harness about her.

"No; a bit too calm, and not pale enough, I should say," he told her cheerfully. Then he looked at Gunnar and away again, grinning, without comment. It was the hardy Norseman who was showing the regulation jumper's symptoms.

His ice-blue eyes blazed in a face of sudden snow; his young mouth was set in a taut line. "Come!" he called harshly.

All Sarah Lynn's slimmness was overlaid with her equipment. "I feel like Tweedledum and Tweedledee both!" she laughed. She was comfortably casual in her brief good-bys, making no ceremony of farewell.

The Hermod, looking oddly crippled with its missing door, took off into a brisk wind. The flier did not look at his passenger nor speak.

"I wonder what makes him so deathly white?" she asked herself. "Just a detached interest in all branches of aerial conquest?" She felt suddenly gay. All her instructions were etched on her memory; she was past the traditionally bad moment of leaving the ground; she knew exactly what to do to get clear of the ship, and after that, she had been assured, the adventure would take on elements of distinct pleasure.

They climbed to a thousand feet, two thousand. The meadow fell away beneath them; human beings took on the value of playthings—puppet people with toy automobiles. There was likewise a toy ambulance.

At three thousand feet Gunnar nodded. "Ready? Now you go!" he shouted hoarsely.

Sarah Lynn stood up and made her bulky way toward the opening. She thought he was the palest living person she had ever seen.

"Fling yourself far from the ship. Make sure you are clear. Count a slow ten before you pull the cord!" His words came jerkily. "Wait! You are sure? You wish to go? There is no need, if you—"

Suddenly Sarah Lynn laughed aloud, filled with a wild mirth which was heady and sweet. "Still the fear of death?" she mocked him. "Life is one adventure; death is another!" She was confident, shining-eyed, radiant, but as she made a forward movement his arm shot out and caught her, pulling her against him.

Candid Camera Pictures Interior of the Stomach and Other Cavities of the Body

"Tiny cameras which can be swallowed by the patient and which carry their own illuminating system have been used for photographing the interior of the stomach," Walter E. Burton discloses in his article, "X-Rays: A Way to Better Health Through Photography," in Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Similar methods may be employed for making interior views of other body cavities. Furthermore, other methods have been worked out so that movies can be made of the vocal cords, the interior of the bladder, of the ear drum and other portions of the body.

Other startling innovations have been recently introduced in the field of photography that will greatly advance medical research. Among further medical research, among them are actual color photographs of the interior of the eye, showing the optic nerve ending, blood vessels and other details. The pictures were taken through the crystalline lens and pupil of the eye, the pupil being dilated by drugs in order to provide a greater working area.

Infra-red photography has the ability to penetrate the skin and show details ordinarily invisible. While an ordinary photograph shows only surface details, the infra-red picture makes the subcutaneous veins stand out almost as clearly as if they were on the surface.

Infra-red waves penetrate the deepest pigment. A negro, photographed with them, appears white, and although he may seem smooth shaven, he is seen to have a distinct beard, because the roots of the hairs in his face show.

Motion pictures have been made that show the course of blood flowing through an artery into a capillary, cancer cells that move and drink, and blood cells that devour bacteria and other harmful matter. Time-lapse photography was employed in filming the actions of these cells; that is, the exposures were made at such intervals that, when the film is projected at normal speed, movements of the cells are stepped up 40 times or more.

SOCIETY CLUBS PERSONALS

MISS IRENE MATHEWS AND WILLIAM G. GRAFF WED IN DENVER, COLORADO

An impressive ring ceremony at the Methodist Episcopal church parsonage in Denver, Colorado, June 1 united in marriage Miss Irene Mathews and William G. Graff. Rev. O. C. Domer, pastor, read the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. L. G. Mathews, of Floydada, and had received her diploma from Colorado Women's College just a short time before the ceremony. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Gaff of Fromberg, Montana, and is a graduate of Montana State University at Bozeman, Montana.

Miss LaVerne Davis, of Inspiration, Arizona, was bride's maid and Paul Sandstead, of Sterling, Colorado, was best man. Mrs. L. G. Mathews, of Floydada, and Wilbur Sandstead, of Denver, were other attendants at the wedding which was held at 556 East Iowa Avenue in Denver.

Mrs. O. C. Domer played the bridal chorus from the Opera Lohengrin by Wagner, and continued with appropriate music throughout the ceremony. The bride wore a black and white line and chiffon ensemble with white accessories.

The rooms in the parsonage, where the wedding was held were decorated with beautiful flowers and greenery.

To Live in Fromberg
Mr. and Mrs. Graff will make their home in Fromberg.

will go into the Formberg Bank with his father. Mrs. Graff and her mother, Mrs. Mathews returned to Floydada Friday evening and Mrs. Graff will visit here for several days.

Mrs. Graff graduated from Floydada High School in 1936. At C. W. C. she was copy editor of The Skyline, yearbook, and editor of the Western Graphic. She is a member of Beta Phi Gamma, honorary journalistic fraternity, and was secretary of the Texas Club and a member of Southwestern Club.

Mr. Graff is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. He was editor of the Montana Exponent, Montana State College newspaper, during his senior year at that institution.

Pla-Mor Bridge Club Meeting Is Postponed

The regular meeting of the Pla-Mor Bridge Club, which was to have been held Thursday evening of last week was postponed on account of the illness of Mrs. Luther Fry, who was to have been hostess to the club.

The Floyd County Plainsman 50c a year in Floyd County.

Pre-Nuptial Shower Honors Miss Thelma Jo Hamilton

A pre-nuptial shower given at the home of Mrs. I. W. Hicks Monday evening at 7:30 honored Miss Thelma Jo Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Hamilton, who became the bride of Rev. Clifford Potts the following Wednesday. Assisting Mrs. Hicks as hostess were: her daughter, Miss Evelyn Hicks, Mrs. Beatha Gilbert, Mrs. Walter Travis, Miss Florrie Conway, Mrs. J. D. McBrien, Mrs. R. C. Henry, Mrs. E. L. Norman, Misses Evelyn and Imogene Roy, Mrs. Sam Bishop, Mrs. S. T. Harris, and Mrs. Edgar Duncan.

Mrs. Edgar Duncan presided over the bride's book and directed guests in registering. Guests then entered the dining room, where punch and cookies were served by Mrs. E. L. Norman and Mrs. J. D. McBrien. Following the serving of refreshments, the group assembled on the lawn, and a toast to the bride was given by Miss Imogene Roy. A great number of gifts were then brought in by the hostesses and placed at the feet of the nonoree.

Many relatives and friends were present for the nice affair.

L. T. Barksdale Weds Canyon Girl

L. T. Barksdale, former coach of the Floydada High School, and Miss Gladys McClanahan of Canyon were wed in a simple ceremony Thursday of last week at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira A. McClanahan of Weatherford, Oklahoma. Rev. C. P. Mitchell, Methodist minister, officiated in the wedding rites.

The bride, who wore oyster white linen with blue accessories, completed her costume with a corsage of tallies and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Jess Folks of Weatherford. Jess Folks was best man.

The bridal procession entered to the lovely strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, with Miss Constance Brake of Weatherford at the piano. A vocal solo "Because", was given by Miss Leone Ratcliffe.

Mrs. Barksdale received her education at Texas Tech and has taught for the past few years in the Canyon schools. Mr. Barksdale, a graduate from Baylor University, is at present a teacher in the West Texas Demonstration School.

The couple will make their home in Canyon following a wedding tour to Dallas and other points in Texas.

R. F. Jacksons Had Family Reunion Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Jackson enjoyed a family reunion Sunday when their five daughters and their families all gathered at their home for an old time family "get-together."

Present for the reunion dinner Sunday were: Mrs. G. V. McCaskell of Monroe, Louisiana; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McPhaul and son, Jackie, of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar D. Tarpley and daughters of Clovis, New Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. Gean Pittman and children of Lamesa; and Mr. and Mrs. Byron Clark and daughters of this city. One son, Lewis Jackson, of Lubbock was unable to attend the gathering.

Mrs. McCaskell arrived here early last week and plans to remain until the latter part of this week, at which time Mr. and Mrs. Pittman will accompany her to her home in Monroe. Others of the group arrived here Sunday morning and returned to their homes in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gean Pittman and children and Mrs. Byron Clark and daughters spent Tuesday of this week visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar D. Tarpley and family in Clovis, New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Pittman have been visiting in Floydada with Mrs. Pittman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Jackson. Their home is in Lamesa.

Jeraldine Hale and F. C. Harmon Jr., Married Friday

Wedding rites were said Friday, June 3, for Miss Jeraldine Hale of Plainview and F. C. Harmon, Jr., of Floydada. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's grandparents, E. E. Wian of Plainview. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hale of Plainview, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Harmon of this city.

Officiating with the ring ceremony was Rev. J. Pat Horton. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her only attendant was Miss Gerry Gambelin of Floydada, who served as maid of honor. Pat Stansell of Floydada was best man.

Before the ceremony Miss Jimmie Lee Stephens rendered "Because" as a vocal solo. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played for the professional and also the recessional by Miss Mattie Bell Noel.

Mrs. Harmon is a graduate of Floydada High School and was at the time of her marriage attending business school in Plainview. Mr. Harmon, who received his B. S. degree from McMurry College this year, is also a graduate of Floydada High School.

Those present for the wedding ceremony from Floydada were: Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Harmon, parents of the groom; Mrs. J. U. Borum, Mrs. Lowell Gambelin, Miss La Nell Harmon, Mrs. D. W. Pyffe, Mrs. J. M. Gambelin, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Pyffe, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Stewart, Miss Ailee Pyffe, Miss Bonnie Pyffe, Miss Arlene Pyffe, Miss Inis Dee Pyffe, and Pat Stansell.

A lovely reception was held immediately following the nuptial rites. The couple left Friday night for Abilene, where they were to visit for a short time before going to Dallas, where Mr. Harmon is to enter Baylor Medical College.

Song, Benediction.

Locals Participate In Program At Lockney

Several local people participated in a program given at the Ward school auditorium at Lockney Monday night. J. Frank Copeland, vocal music teacher, was in charge of the entertainment, which consisted of vocal and piano numbers.

Those who assisted on the program from Floydada were: Mrs. Dorris W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ohmer W. Kirk, and Miss Marjory Kirk. Miss Bernice Holeyfield of Dublin, who is visiting in the home of Miss Kirk, also took part on the program.

Hollis Bond spent several days of last week in Abilene visiting relatives and attending to business.

Miss Louise Hyatt spent the week end visiting relatives in Crosbyton.

Former Floydada Girl Married In Amarillo Sunday

Miss Virginia Grigsby, formerly of Floydada, and William Plemons, of Lubbock, were married Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. C. Grigsby of Amarillo.

The nuptial rites were read by Dr. R. Thomson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of Amarillo. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Miss Pauline Turlington of Lubbock, and George Edwin McWhirter of Amarillo rendered a vocal solo, "At Dawning". The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William B. Grigsby.

The bride wore a corsage of gardenias, blending delicately with her navy blue sheer tailored dress set off with mother-of-pearl studs. Her accessories were of blue and white.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. S. G. McSharg of Plainview, with G. A. Vest of Lubbock as best man.

Mrs. Plemons, who graduated from Floydada High School, later attended Texas Technological College at Lubbock and is at present employed with the Works Progress Administration in Lubbock. Mr. Plemons, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Plemons of Lubbock, a graduate of Texas Tech, is employed with the Stanolind Oil and Gas Company at Lubbock.

The couple will be at home in Lubbock after a short tour through New Mexico.

Miss Geraldine Gambelin, who is a student at Texas Tech, is now at home. She will spend the summer months here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gambelin.

Trenton T. Davis made a business trip to Lubbock Thursday of last week.

Home Economics Club Has Picnic at Roaring Springs

The home economics club, which was organized during the past school year, enjoyed an outing Thursday of last week, when the members picniced at Roaring Springs. Eighteen girls, accompanied by their sponsors, Miss Fannie Mae Rees and Miss Lois Fouts, went on the outing.

The girls reported a very nice time, having enjoyed swimming, kooking, and a delicious picnic supper.

Thursday Contract Bridge Club Met With Mrs. Ernest Carter

The Thursday Contract Bridge Club met last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Ernest Carter. Miss Ruth Jenkins won high score for the evening.

Members present were: Mrs. Clinton Pyffe, Mrs. Buddy Lloyd, Mrs. L. D. Britton, Mrs. Winfred Cooper, Mrs. Fred Nabors, Mrs. Lewis Norman, Mrs. J. B. Claiborne, Miss Ruth Jenkins, Mrs. Bill Fowler, Mrs. Bill Cauley, Mrs. N. B. Stansell, the hostess, Mrs. Ernest Carter, and Mrs. Jim Hardgroves, who is to take Mrs. Arthur Stewart's place for the summer months.

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Bill Cauley. The time for gathering has been changed from 7 until 7:30.

Verner Norman spent Thursday and Friday of last week in Childress, where he attended to business.

THREE LITTLE MAIDS

JOSEPH W. LABINE
The leaves were turn-

three little maids in silken gowns marched down stairs of a weather-worn Victorian building in Georgia, and breathlessly confronted the registration desk of Wesleyan college, old-
fashioned woman's college of the world.

As a student at Wesleyan, little Ching-Ling exclaimed over the success of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, China's "George Washington." Later she married him, helping infuse the democratic American spirit into China's 400,000,000 people.

first news came of Sun Yat-sen's success, Ching-Ling climbed onto a chair to pull down the old Imperial Dragon from her wall and put in its place the flag of the new Republic of China. Throwing the old banner
to the floor, she exclaimed:
"Sun Yat-sen has achieved one of the most glorious deeds in the history of the world."

Her enthusiasm was almost prophetic, for just four years later little Ching-Ling became the bride of Sun Yat-sen and, as his wife, was able to aid him in his mission of infusing the democratic American spirit into China's 400,000,000 people.

China's New Life.
Her first step was to found the New Life movement, one of the most sensational reforms ever conceived
in China. Into this new organization Madame Chiang and her two sisters gathered all the leading scholars and savants of China.

With breath-taking rapidity the New Life movement broke ground for vast housing projects for the long-neglected Chinese working classes. Outside Shanghai's International Settlement on Chinese-owned land sprang up a great civic center with museums, libraries,
housing projects, theaters and parks, a living symbol of the greatness planned for all of China.

By 1937, the progress of Madam Chiang's New Life movement had assumed the speed of a race—a grim race in which the generalissimo and May-Ling strove to complete their modernization before their envious neighbor struck.

Then came war—a war which students of the Orient believe was begun purely to retard the progress of the awakened China. Much that May-Ling and Generalissimo Chiang and the Soong sisters had done was destroyed. Hospitals, universities, churches, housing projects, all were ruthlessly destroyed. But enough survives to form a new foundation.

When it is over the three little maids who registered at an American college 30 years ago may have a new chance to rebuild China on a sound and enduring plan—an American plan.

Chiang Kai-shek fell in love with May-Ling. Their courtship was an impetuous and a strange one. For interspersed with love-making were interminable discussions of economics, of China's history, her future,
of great reforms and great plans.
During the courtship, May-Ling converted Chiang Kai-shek to Christi-

circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in
His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray
even though they could not share
His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him. We try to do as much
for one another in hours of bereavement and disappointment, but how much greater was the opportunity
of these three, and how ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took
the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father, when He
prayed that if it were possible the
hour might pass from Him, but in
truth and beautiful submission said,
"not what I will, but what thou wilt."

The follower of Jesus will know
this experience, too. While he will ever find it to be true that there is nothing more precious than the
friends God gives him, he should
prepare himself to expect the arm
of flesh to fail him. There is no
more bitter experience in human relationships than to count on those
who should stand by, come what
may, and to find that they have
slept through our hour of soul-struggle. Here again let us remember that Jesus knows all about it, and
let us, like Him, say to our heavenly Father, "Thy will be done, even
in this trying time, and no matter
what may be the outcome."

To betray the one who had done
nothing but good, who had loved
him and served him even in the
washing of his feet, this would have
been far more than one could have
expected of even the sin-blacked
heart of a Judas. But he fills the measure of his iniquity by overflowing by betraying his Lord with
the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know full well that we may
not stand on the same ground as
our Lord even here, for, whereas
He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended,
who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in
the hour when he thinks to gain
himself some advantage or avenge
some fancied wrong strikes us in
the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like
for like? God forbid! Let us rather
say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend,
wherefore art thou come?" (Matt 26:50.)

Lesson for June 12
FACING THE SUPREME TEST
OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not what I will, but what thou wilt. Mark 14:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the garden.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In Gethsemane.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—Courage in the Face of Danger.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT
TOPIC—The Challenge of God's Will.

No man has ever faced such a crisis as Jesus met in the Garden of Gethsemane, for He was the Son of God incarnate in order to bear the sins of the world. No one can ever fully understand the agony of soul involved when God "made him
to be sin for us, who knew no sin;
that we might be made the righteousness of God in him" (II Cor.
5:21). It is, therefore, true that we may never say that we have gone "through Gethsemane." But there is a very real sense in which our Lord's experience is shared by His disciples, in a lesser degree and as ordinary human beings.

Our lesson brings before us the closing scene of Thursday before the crucifixion. The day has been crowded with important events,
among them the eating of the Passover, the revelation that there was a traitor among the twelve, the institution of the Lord's supper, the precious words of the upper room,
the intercessory prayer in the garden. Midnight is at hand, and as the night dips to its deepest darkness, the Son of Man tastes the depth of a sorrow unto death as He alone with His Father in prayer is prepared for the betrayal and death
to come.

I. Exceeding Sorrowful (vv. 32-36).
The text uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony,
as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. His soul was about to have upon it spots
sinnishness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins. Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It breaks our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters.

II. Alone with God (vv. 37-41).
Jesus took with Him into the secluded place in the Garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on
their fellowship and sympathy in
His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that
they were there to watch and pray
even though they could not share
His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him. We try to do as much
for one another in hours of bereavement and disappointment, but how
much greater was the opportunity
of these three, and how ignomin-
iously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took
the upper hand, and they slept! He
was alone with His Father, when He
prayed that if it were possible the
hour might pass from Him, but in
truth and beautiful submission said,
"not what I will, but what thou
wilt."

The follower of Jesus will know
this experience, too. While he will
ever find it to be true that there is
nothing more precious than the
friends God gives him, he should
prepare himself to expect the arm
of flesh to fail him. There is no
more bitter experience in human
relationships than to count on those
who should stand by, come what
may, and to find that they have
slept through our hour of soul-struggle. Here again let us remember
that Jesus knows all about it, and
let us, like Him, say to our heavenly Father, "Thy will be done, even
in this trying time, and no matter
what may be the outcome."

III. Betrayed by a Kiss (vv. 42-46).
To betray the one who had done
nothing but good, who had loved
him and served him even in the
washing of his feet, this would have
been far more than one could have
expected of even the sin-blacked
heart of a Judas. But he fills the
measure of his iniquity by over-
flowing by betraying his Lord with
the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know full well that we may
not stand on the same ground as
our Lord even here, for, whereas
He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able
to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we
face the betrayals of life. It may
be one whom we have befriended,
who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in
the hour when he thinks to gain
himself some advantage or avenge
some fancied wrong strikes us in
the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like
for like? God forbid! Let us rather
say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend,
wherefore art thou come?" (Matt
26:50.)

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Warns Against Food Fads and Fallacies

Nationally Known Food Authority Explains How They May Endanger Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York City.

AS SCIENCE and civilization have progressed, painstaking investigators have sought to replace ignorance with knowledge, to substitute truth for superstition. But in spite of their efforts, our eating habits are still influenced by a multitude of food fads and fancies, which should have no place in this enlightened age.

Some of these are harmless; others may endanger health. And the homemaker must learn to distinguish between fact and fancy.

Fish Is Not a Brain Food

One of the most persistent fallacies is the notion that certain kinds of food are especially beneficial for certain parts of the body. Many people believe that fish is a brain food and celery a nerve tonic. Lettuce is thought to be a soporific. None of these things is true.

The idea regarding fish probably arose because fish contains phosphorus and the brain also contains phosphorus. How simple it would be if one could increase brain power merely by eating fish. Unfortunately, there is nothing to it! The brain, like other parts of the body, requires a balanced diet. No case has ever been reported of a man soothing the irritated nerves of his wife by feeding her celery.

And as for lettuce, it is a fine source of minerals, vitamins and gentle roughage, but it does not contain any narcotic drug that induces sleep.

Other Fallacies Disproved

Science has exploded many common notions about vegetables which may change your ideas of what is best to buy and eat. Many homemakers prefer lettuce that is light green in color and they believe that string beans which snap are superior in quality. But it has been demonstrated that deep green lettuce is much richer in vitamins and that a snap in string beans merely indicates that the beans have been kept in a cold, moist place.

False Notions About Fruit

A score of superstitions cling to the eating of fruits. There is a false notion that acid-tasting fruits cause or aggravate rheumatism, because they produce "acidity." The truth is that most fruits, regardless of their acid taste, leave an alkaline ash following digestion.

One often hears that fruit should not be taken at the same time as milk because the fruit acids will cause the milk to curdle. But the fact is that milk is always curdled in the stomach by the hydrochloric acid.

Not Necessary to Sip Milk

Another false idea is the widespread notion that milk must be sipped slowly or it will be difficult to digest. This has been refuted by a widely known investigator who made many tests. One day he fed a man a pint of milk in 10 seconds. The next day the same man was fed the same amount of milk in 10 minutes. On both occasions the contents of the stomach were examined a half hour later.

It was discovered that the milk which was drunk in 10 seconds had formed smaller curds than the milk which was sipped in 10 minutes. And in both cases, the curds were of practically the same consistency.

Water With Meals?

It is widely held that water should not be taken with meals, the argument being that it dilutes the gastric juice and thus interferes with digestion. This sounds logical and many people have been fooled. But the truth of the matter is that water stimulates the flow of the digestive juices and careful research has established that normally, water taken with meals in reasonable quantities aids digestion.

Danger of Half Truths

The most insidious food fallacies are those which contain some portion of truth—for example, the belief that cooked fruit is more wholesome than raw fruit. It is true that cooking increases the digestibility of some fruits and also has a sterilizing effect. On the other hand, most fruits are easily digested in the raw state, are more palatable and richer in vitamins.

A widespread belief which has a small portion of truth, is that whole wheat bread is vastly superior to white bread. Whole wheat bread contains more minerals, vitamins and roughage than white bread. But the minerals and vitamins lacking in white bread can easily be supplied by other common foods, and there is no justification for going to the extreme of omitting white bread entirely from the diet.

Fad Diets Lack Balance

Far more harmful than the fallacies regarding individual foods are the fad diets constantly put forth by those who seek to exploit the homemaker's desire for dietetic knowledge.

Foods Not Incompatible

A fad diet which has gained a large number of adherents in recent years is based on the notion that certain foods—notably starches and proteins—are incompatible and should not be consumed at the same meal because they cannot be digested at the same time. It is interesting to note that this fad has been condemned by the medical profession and that a physician of the highest standing has proved clinically that starches and proteins do not interfere with one another in the stomach.

The fallacy of this theory is further appreciated when one realizes that there are few pure proteins or pure carbohydrates, most foods containing varying proportions of protein, carbohydrate and fat. Such foods as dried peas and beans and whole grain cereals contain a substantial percentage of both starch and protein.

Dangers of Fasting
Fasting is urged by some faddists as a means of "detoxifying" the body. Advocates of this practice claim that it is nature's method of housecleaning. As a matter of fact, fasting for any length of time may be dangerous to health, because it may result in the accumulation of incomplete oxidation products of fat, and the development of acidosis.

Homemakers must put aside superstitions, half-truths and food fallacies if they are to nourish their families properly.
Put your faith only in established food facts. Remember that upon your knowledge and breadth of vision depend, to a great degree, not only the health but the happiness of your family.

Questions Answered

Mrs. A. F. R., Jr.—Light corn syrup yields nothing but energy values, but dark corn syrup is a good source of iron. Pure molasses is rich in calcium and iron.

Miss M. F.—Nut protein is similar to the protein of meat and fish and nuts may be used in place of these foods when desired. They should not replace milk and eggs, however, as with few exceptions, they are low in minerals and cannot compare with eggs or milk as a source of vitamins.

MISS KATHLEEN SNODGRASS, BRIDE-ELECT HONORED WITH SHOWER AT WELCH HOME

A lovely miscellaneous shower last evening at the home of Mrs. A. J. Welch, 202 South White Street, honored Miss Kathleen Snodgrass bride-elect of Ben Hill, of Dimmitt, Texas. The wedding will take place on June the 12th.

Hostesses were: Mesdames J. W. Fowler, L. D. Britton, E. C. Carter, Earl Holt, Claud Hammond, A. B. Keim, J. M. Gamblin, E. L. Angus, Billy Rushing Jones, Leroy McDonald, of Plainview, Bill Cauley, and A. J. Welch.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and well-arranged pot plants, and the motif was carried out in the placements and table arrangement. Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. L. D. Britton, Mrs. E. C. Carter, Mrs. A. B. Keim, and Mrs. Bill Cauley presided over the punch bowl which was set on a table laid with lace and with a centerpiece of roses and snapdragon. Corsages of sweet-peas were presented the guests.

Mrs. G. E. Bond gave the toast to the bride and Wilmina Salisbury read two selections from "The Sonnets of the Portuguese". Music, including two numbers on the program, was given by the Denison brothers orchestra. Mrs. Welch greeted the guests at the door. The bride's book was in charge of Mrs. E. L. Angus. Mrs. Gamblin, Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Hammond, Mrs. McDonald, and Mrs. Jones seated the guests.

Tom Roy Snodgrass and Jo Dick Moore, dressed in grocery aprons and jackets, carried the gifts to the bride-elect in grocery baskets. A grocery store idea was carried out as the groom is owner of this type of business in Dimmitt.

45 guests registered in the bride's book.

BUT no noise means no wear

* Where you hear noise you can be sure there's wear. So when you set out to buy a refrigerator... listen closely to them all. You'll discover one type that makes no noise at all... THE GAS REFRIGERATOR. And that still, cold silence testifies to the long, trouble-free, low-cost life which THE GAS REFRIGERATOR will give you. It has no moving parts inside to wear out and fail.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
