Boy Scout Activity Outlined for Summer

With the period of Council camps nearly over scouts and leaders over the south plains are looking forward to the next big council activities the district and council swimming meets.

In addition to the district and council supervised meets, a number of troops are planning intertroop swimming meets to be held at several different places over the council.

The first of the meets will be a tri-district meet to be held at Lamesa July 29 with scouts from the southern, southwestern and southeastern districts. Eastern district meet will be held at Spur on August 8 with atador from the Northeast district taking part.

Lubbock will be the scene of the central district meet on August 5. Plainview will be the center for a tri-district meet on August 5 with scouts from the northern, northeastern, and North central districts taking part.

The date for the council swimming meet has been set for Plainview on August 12. The winners in each district will compete for council honors in this meet.

Celebration Held At Providence Sunday

An all day celebration in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the home owned fire insurance company was held at the Lutheran Church in the Providence community Sunday, June 19.

On June 20, twenty-five years had gone by since the German settlement organized its own fire insurance company. Thrifty members of the community have kept up the organization until the present time.

Many were given special invitations to attend the church service, which was conducted in English. (They often conduct their services in their own language.) Following the worship dinner was served. In the afternoon many candidates, who were special guests of the community, spoke in behalf of their campaigns. Ice cream and lemonade were served as refreshments after the speaking.

Many from Floydada and nearby communities attended the services during the day.

plished. At the close of the meeting, Paul Haines was invited to return to Floyd County and help both the county agricultural agent and home demonstration agent set up an organization which would be effective in all branches of agriculture.

Mr. Haines will be in Floyd County the week of July 18th to the 23rd. Miss Helen H. Swift will spend one week in the county August 13th assisting community organizations in setting up a definite plan of work.

Clyde Spence Badly Injured as Hand Catches in Machine

Clyde Spence, employee of Westers' Quality Bakery, was severely injured early Thursday morning, when his left hand caught in a machine at the bakery. Nineteen stitches were taken in the hand which was badly torn and mangled. The bone of the middle finger was broken.

Clyde was cleaning the machine when the accident occurred. Being used to the process, he did not cut off the machinery. This time he was not quick enough, and his hand became hung. Before the machine was stopped, his hand had gone through up to the wrist. It is hoped that the injury will not be lasting; however, it will require a long time for it to heal sufficient for use.

Russells and Miss Faulk Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Russell and Miss Nella Frances Faulk of Fort Worth left Monday after having visited in Floydada with relatives for several days. They were accompanied by Mrs. Roy Snodgrass and son, Tom Roy, who will go with them to Paragould, Arkansas, to visit relatives. Mrs. Snodgrass and Tom Roy are expected to return here in about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin English and son, Bobby, spent Sunday and Monday visiting relatives in Abilene.

PAUL CONNER FEELING FAIR; ENJOYS PLAINSMAN

A card from Paul Conner, who is in the Veteran's Hospital at Albuquerque, New Mexico, stated that he was feeling better but that he was confined to his bed the entire time. "I sure enjoy your good paper. Read every word of it. Will be here quite a while yet I guess. Get lonely for all the fine Floyd County people," Mr. Conner said in his card.

Closing the present season of the Floydada Softball League, the Hagoods team, doubtless the league winners, will meet Bishop Motors club tonight at Wester Field. Final results show Bishop's second place winners and White's Drug in third. The Lions and Oden's Chevrolet are tied for fourth.

Hagoods team marched through the season undefeated thus far. Bishop's club was defeated by Hagoods and the Lions. White's team came up from fourth to third as result of a win over the Lions, who previously dropped two games.

LEAGUE STANDINGS table with columns TEAM, Played, WON, L, PCT. Lists Hagoods, Bishop's, White's, Lions, Oden's, and Rotary.

Several players from both Hagoods and Bishop's were placed on the all-star team from the Floydada League by popular voting of fans. These players will meet the Floyd County League all-stars in a two game series July Fourth and fifth.

A large amount of interest has been shown in the softball games this year with good crowds at almost every game. The League has been sponsored by the Floydada Lions and Rotary clubs with assistance from other organizations.

"We, of the Floydada League, appreciate the attitude of co-operation and response given the softball in Floydada this season," T. W. Quirk, president of the organization, said.

Plans for organization and selection of teams for another season's play will be made in a meeting of the officials of the league next week, it was announced.

What Shanghai Is Like

Shanghai's Skyline From the Race Track.

Huge, Picturesque Shanghai and Its Famous International Settlement

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

WHILE the major battles between Japanese and Chinese forces have raged of late in the northeast province of Shantung, Shanghai still has reminders of the conflict which swept through the city last year.

In accordance with arrangements of long standing between the Chinese and foreign governments, the latter maintain units of their troops at several points in China, one of the most important of these being the International Settlement in Shanghai.

Excepting occasional stately junks with eyes painted on either side of the high bow to enable them to "see their way," there is little to suggest the Orient on the way up the Whang-poo river in Shanghai. Before the dock is reached, however, China obtrudes itself upon the sight and its odors penetrate the nostrils.

From a downstream wharf it is a half hour's ride in a tender to the customs jetty in the city. Wharves, warehouses, and factories line the shores.

Immediately beyond the Japanese docks in Hongkew appears the curve of water front upon which three consulates now stand.

Beyond lies the mouth of Soochow creek, the crowded stream which meanders tortuously through the city. It bristles with the floating homes of innumerable Chinese—Chinese who are born, live their entire lives, and die on the sampans which huddle together in its murky water. Babies, toddling too near the gunwales, sometimes topple in, and, having been fished out, are set casually to dry. Water dipped up over the side is used by the women for cooking rice and vegetables; clothes are washed in it; and it imparts that certain flavor to tea.

A sampan gaily pavilioned and festooned in red indicates that a wedding will soon take place.

English Had First Foothold There. Great Britain was the first of all the nations which now have such valuable commercial interests in the city "above the sea" to recognize the vast potentialities of the little fishing hamlet on the muddy shores of the Whangpoo.

In 1842, emerging victorious from the so-called "Opium war," she concluded with China the Treaty of Nanking by which Shanghai and four other coastal cities were established as treaty ports.

Within two years the United States and France, realizing that Shanghai's geographical position made it the natural outlet for products of the rich Yangtze river valley, followed suit and signed trade pacts with China. Ninety-six years ago, when the foreigners first obtained areas for settlement, land on the water front brought only $200 (Mex.) an acre. By 1935 an acre of Bundside property was valued at more than four millions.

An amazing variety of traffic throngs the Bund, that splendid waterfront boulevard which is the center of Shanghai's bustling activity.

Fine Buildings on the Bund.

Imposing buildings, reminiscent of London, line the Bund; banks, business houses, newspaper offices, clubs. The conveyances of the East, rickshas, handcarts, and wheelbarrows, bearing an unbelievable variety of loads, make way for lumbering double-decked buses, trams, and sleek foreign cars.

The Chinese have proved remarkably adaptable in adjusting themselves to contact with English-speaking nations. They have adopted automobiles, foreign clothes, jazz, and golf. The natives of the treaty ports have evolved a bizarre speech based on English with which they can communicate satisfactorily with the stranger.

Since the average occidental resident of Shanghai will not take the trouble to learn the local dialect, the natives used pidgin, or "business English." In fact, two Chinese from different provinces often resort to this jargon, for each is almost sure to have difficulty in understanding the dialect of the other. In pidgin English one word often does duty for three or four. Thus "my" signifies also "I, me, mine" and their plural forms. "My no savvy," of course, means "I do not understand." "What thing have got?" is to say "What have you?" When the supply of butter is exhausted your cook will come to you with the complaint, "Butter have finish, missie."

There is the tradition of "face" which governs the duties of each employee within ironbound limits. Your cook will not mix cocktails. He leaves this to the number one boy, who, in turn will not clean shoes or run errands. These tasks are the coolie's "pidgin." The wise foreigner does not attempt to change customs which have existed for centuries.

Chinese servants are justly famous. As a class they are unsurpassed in loyalty, industry, patience and cheerfulness. They sometimes wonder at the strange customs of the foreigner, but they bear with him.

Night Life in the City. Even during "trouble" the famous night life of this cosmopolitan city of Asia continues with vigor. At such times private entertaining is somewhat curtailed. Pity the poor hostess whose guests have been caught by the curfew and who has them on her hands until dawn!

Hotels and night clubs offer the usual diversions, profiting by the increased trade which results from the enforced stay of those who are caught by the curfew. At such times, as well as under normal conditions, the conservative old Palace hotel on the Bund and the Cathay, its up-to-date counterpart across the street, present pictures of gaiety at cocktail time.

The bar at the Cercle Sportif Francais, the popular sports' club in the French Concession, is noisy with sprightly conversation in a half dozen languages. Chinese boys in long white gowns, their black pantaloons bound tightly about the ankles, move silently through the crowd with chits and laden trays.

The 20-story Cathay hotel offers diverse amusement. The glittering shops in its arcade are stocked with Peking rugs, jewel jade, silks, and curios. For swank one dines in its grill under the lofty black pyramid which surmounts its roof. The orchestra which plays in its air-conditioned ballroom pleases even blasé American tourists, and imported singers and dancers entertain the guests.

Chinese dance halls have opened in large numbers in the last two or three years. The native musician has not yet become a master of American syncopation, and the orchestras are usually Russian.

A modern young Chinese in foreign clothes, complete with horn-rimmed glasses and brilliant hair, executes elaborate steps with his slender, narrow-eyed companion. She is gowned in high-necked brocade, dainty, exquisite. Sometimes as she sips her drink, she renews her make-up with the contents of a compact.

Until well into the Twentieth century Chinese women of the better class were not seen in public. When they did leave their homes, it was only in sedan chairs, concealed from the eyes of the world. With the influx of Western ideas of women's freedom the Chinese woman emerged from her isolation. Foot-binding, possibly an expedient for keeping women at home, not only went out of fashion but became illegal.

Women Go Part Way Modern.

The transition period had its amusing aspects. Today the emancipated Chinese woman has her hair permanently waved, smokes, works in offices, frequents night clubs, and drives a car if she has a mind to. But with all her modern ideas she still is reluctant to adopt foreign dress. She wears silk stockings, discards her flat, embroidered satin slippers for uncomfortable spike-heeled shoes, but she resolutely clings to her long gown with its stiff, high collar and straight lines.

The gown may be split to the knee as are modish gowns in the Western world when the designers so decide, but her modesty still forbids her to expose her throat. The majority of Chinese shops flaunt gay red banners bearing in gold characters the description of goods carried within or announcements of bargains. These banners have almost entirely disappeared from Nanking road, but they hang in profusion the full length of the congested cross streets in the heart of the city.

soil depleting areas such as maize or hogari will count as part of the general allotment. Only the fallow strip will be considered as soil conserving and this may be accomplished by planting this way:

Plant 2 and skip 3 forty inch rows; plant 2 and skip 4; plant 4 and skip 4, etc. If this is not absolutely clear, suggest that you contact the county agent or assistant if you plan to use this method.

The class I cotton payment for this farm would be 30 acres times the normal yield times 2.4c per pound and figuring at 100 pounds per acre normal yield, his payment would be $72.00.

The class I general payment would be 43 acres times the index, an average of which is $1.00 per acre and would equal approximately $43.00. Wheat and grain sorghum are in the general allotment for allotment for compliance this year. There will be a wheat allotment this year for the purpose of computing the payment, within the general allotment, wheat payment would be the average number of bushels per acre times 12c times whatever wheat allotment is given within this 43 acres.

The class II payment will be the 27 acres times 50 cents, making a total of $13.50, which is a Class II allowance. Two thirds of this amount equals approximately nine units. When these units are made, the payment is earned. To make those units, any of the following methods may be employed: On part or all of the soil conserving acreage:

- (1) One acre of green cover crop such as sudan, cane, or millet turned under after reaching a good growth.
- (2) 200 feet of standard terrace built in 1938.
- (3) 4 acres of contoured strip cropping.
- (4) 8 acres of contoured listing or furrowing of cropland in preparing for crop.
- (5) 8 acres of contoured row crop.

Additional practices, such as ridging of pasture land or contouring of pasture land may be used and specifications may be secured at the county agent's office.

Answers to questions being asked daily at the county agent's office are as follows:

- (1) Payment may be made if a producer has a cotton allotment and there is no cotton planted.
- (2) Land planted to cotton will be considered as devoted to cotton when bolls are first formed.
- (3) Land planted to cotton within the allotment and destroyed by flood or drought may be planted to grain sorghum and the producer still receive his cotton payment, provided he originally planted between 80 per cent and 100 per cent of his cotton allotment.

(4) In cases in which small grains are harvested and followed by cotton and cotton reaches maturity, the small grain, if other than wheat, will not be reported. If the small grain is wheat, the acreage will be counted twice and reported as both wheat and cotton. Seeded wheat is classified as wheat unless designated by April 15 and plowed up by May 15 where it was designated.

(5) Alfalfa seeded prior to 1938 is not a soil depleting crop but on the other hand this land can not be used to make units in earning the class II payment.

(6) The planting of forest trees is not a soil depleting crop and if the producer furnishes more than one-half of the total cost of carrying out the program in cooperation with the forestry service, he will receive one unit for each 2 1/2 acres towards his soil building units. If the forestry service furnishes as much as one-half of the total cost of carrying out the program, no credit can be given towards the producers soil building units.

(7) Producers should measure their farms and be certain of their acreage as adjustment of Allotments will be made after compliance is checked.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—It is perhaps just as well that Crosby Gaige is a bachelor. He drags home 200,000 patent models, including a corpse preserver, hog-catcher, burglar alarm, an early Hoe printing press, a dentist's chair, a machine gun, an egg-beater, an engine, a steamboat, a pretzel-bending machine—and so on, and so on.

Mr. Gaige was born the son of the postmaster at Skunk Hollow, N. Y., and became a Broadway theatrical producer, with a 300-acre estate at Peekskill on the Hudson, where he indulges his taste for knickknacks such as the above, but with more discrimination than this ensemble suggests.

He is a gourmet, with 300 cook books in his kitchen, has a de luxe machine shop where he makes art objects, is a master of viticulture and a maker and connoisseur of beautiful wines.

He has cattle folds and breeds blooded cattle, a printing plant where he prints topographical knock-outs in limited editions, a huge library with 5,000 reference books, and is distinguished both as a bibliophile and a cook—one of the best cooks in the world, his friends say.

All these concerns are merely extra-curricular. In his 29 years on Broadway, he has hit off his full share of successes, built three theaters and kept steadily out of the red.

In Columbia university, he wrote the 1903 varsity show, "Tilapia." He got a job with the late Elizabeth Marbury, famous play broker, reading plays at ten cents an act. He saved his money and headed into the show business with a fast running start.

His life is the fulfillment of every commuter's dream. He is clerical, almost monkish in manner, with an austere countenance, with octagonal pince-nez and, like all epicures, abstemious in all things—saving such things as patent models.

He wears red, white and blue suspenders and is very fussy about his handkerchief pocket. He always has the tailor sew a button on it.

AN ATTACK of laryngitis gave Margaret Sullivan her big start. Lee Shubert saw her in "Three Artists and a Lady" at Princeton, and rushed back-stage with a contract.

"You have a voice just like Ethel Barrymore," he said. She explained that it was merely laryngitis, but the excited Mr. Shubert wouldn't listen. There was nothing to be done about it, so the helpless girl was signed for five years.

That was a bit of luck which, in Miss Sullivan's career, offsets embarrassing entanglements in some of the most elaborate flops in current stage history. Today, she is at the peak of her career as critics turn cartwheels and back flips over the new film, "Three Comrades," and Miss Sullivan's performance therein.

Her story has none of the up-from-poverty success routine. She is the daughter of a prideful family of Norfolk, Va., a descendant of Robert E. Lee. Her journey to Boston to study dancing was indulged as a passing whim, but there was considerable family eye-rolling when she switched to the theater and began adventuring in summer stock, on Cape Cod and way points.

Her father got her home once, but only for a short time. It is to be hoped that her story won't be widely circulated around Hollywood. It would start all the extra girls sleeping in a draft.

Squeaky Doors Why not get out that little oil can one of these mornings and go around the house and tend to all those squeaky doors, windows, etc., not forgetting the sweeper and vacuum cleaner. It won't take 15 minutes and you will wonder why you did not tend to these things long ago.

Nazis Win in Elections

HENLEIN'S Nazi Sudeten party won an overwhelming endorsement from voters in Czechoslovakia's German districts in a landslide decision which featured the country's final municipal elections.

In the Czech districts President Benes' party gained substantially, while the Socialists and Agrarians held their own. Communists also showed a gain in the Czech areas.

Few incidents of violence marked the day and no Czech troops were in evidence. Great Britain, acting to avert a fresh war crisis, received permission from the Czech government to station observers throughout the larger election districts.

Our Slump Worst

ACCORDING to the monthly bulletin of the federal reserve board, the present business depression is more severe in the United States than in any other industrial country in the world.

The manufacture of war materials in other countries was pointed out, however, as one of the principal supports to business activity, many other industries showing almost as poor results as in the United States.

The social security board reported that during March two out of every thirteen persons in the United States received some form of public aid, federal, state or local. The total number was estimated at 19,709,000. The statistics did not embrace farm subsidy payments, the federal housing program and other planned economy measures.

Speaking of "It Happened One Night," it was revived recently in New York, and a lot of people who'd heard about how funny it was but had missed it the first time round had a chance to see it. The addicts who went to it over and over when it was first released found it just as funny as ever.

The Sheik Is Funny
Restless Holiday

By Virginia Vale

IT LOOKS more and more as if goofy comedies were on the wane. First Carole Lombard said she'd have no more of them. Now Claudette Colbert, who helped to start the cycle with "It Happened One Night," has balked.

It was planned that she would do "Are Husbands Necessary?" when she returned from that European jaunt, but instead she'll go to work in "Midnight," which is romantic and dramatic and everything but goofy.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

There are plenty of reasons for the present difficulty of the railroads, but most of them are not susceptible to much change. The only improvement, apparently, can come from increased traffic, and this can come only with better times.

Speaking of "It Happened One Night," it was revived recently in New York, and a lot of people who'd heard about how funny it was but had missed it the first time round had a chance to see it. The addicts who went to it over and over when it was first released found it just as funny as ever.

The revival of Valentino's "The Sheik" seems to have been ill-advised. Any picture that old is bound to look funny nowadays. And the generation of movie-goers that has grown up since the days of Valentino just couldn't understand why he had been such a world-beater.

Some of them roared with laughter. They thought Agnes Ayres, the heroine, a bit too fat—though in her day she was considered streamlined; however, no matter what the young folks thought of that picture and the other Valentino revival, "The Son of the Sheik," they brought mobs to the theaters and money to the box offices.

It looks as if George Arliss had been tempted into returning to Hollywood, thanks to Samuel Goldwyn. Goldwyn has a picture called "The Exiles" on the fire, based on the stories of the many famous men who have had to leave their homes in Europe because of political troubles.

Warner Brothers will, at last, screen "The Miracle," with Bette Davis in the coveted role of the Nun. Ever since it was so successful as a dramatic spectacle—in London in 1911 and in New York in 1924—there has been talk of doing it for the screen. Now, with Max Reinhardt, its original producer, available, they are ready to start.

When Bob Burns ducked away from Hollywood for a rest, preparatory to taking over the Bing Crosby radio program, he didn't do so well in choosing a spot to rest in. He and his wife went to New York, but were so besieged by people that they left and went to Buffalo—he wanted to show her Niagara falls. And the public caught up with them again. He might try wearing a mask, if he really wants to rest!

Margaret Tallichet, a comparative newcomer to the screen, will be in "As You Are." When and if "Gone With the Wind" reaches the screen she will be seen as Kareen O'Hara, younger sister of Scarlett. Miss Tallichet tried the summer theaters in the East last year.

ODDS AND ENDS—Nancy Carroll will be seen on the screen again in "There Goes My Heart" . . . Judy Garland has a wrenching accident, the result of an automobile accident. . . . Bobby Breen won't have the kind of financial trouble that Jackie Coogan is having when he grows up; his parents have arranged to put his earnings into a trust fund, keeping $200 a month for themselves. . . . Sybil Curie says her husband threatened to humiliate her by getting a job in a gas station. . . . Lots of wives wouldn't see anything humiliating about that. . . . Harold Lloyd's new picture, "Professor Beware," will be released simultaneously at special showings in New York, London and Paris.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL

By Carter Field

FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—A considerable bloc of railroad officials do not want any more government help in the form of loans. They think more borrowing merely increases the interest they are already groaning under, and making the future blacker instead of brighter.

They are strongly in favor of permitting such railroads as cannot now pay their bond interest to go through the wringer. Of course this does not include borrowing from the government to retire existing bond issues.

For example, if a bond issue of $10,000,000 should fall due next month for railroad A, and this bond issue bears interest at 6 per cent, while the government is willing to lend railroad A the ten million at 4 per cent, then the road will save $200,000 in interest charges every year from now on by taking advantage of the RFC offer.

That is quite a different thing from borrowing money for no other reason than to pay bond interest, and thus keep out of the hands of receivers. In this latter case, which is typical of most of them, the railroad would be in a worse fix next year than this, so far as interest charges are concerned. Next year it would have to pay as much interest on outstanding bonds as this year, and in addition would have to pay interest on the money it borrowed from RFC to pay the interest this year.

There are plenty of reasons for the present difficulty of the railroads, but most of them are not susceptible to much change. The only improvement, apparently, can come from increased traffic, and this can come only with better times.

Speaking of "It Happened One Night," it was revived recently in New York, and a lot of people who'd heard about how funny it was but had missed it the first time round had a chance to see it. The addicts who went to it over and over when it was first released found it just as funny as ever.

But, much worse, he was deprived of the money expected, but he was making public hearing by the TVA national investigating committee had expected A. E. Morgan to take him. In fact he probably that some admirers of Berry hoped the "Berry matter" would prove very effective in public opinion against the TVA.

But the senator was beyond measure when I actually joined A. E. Morgan, tacking Berry, thus taking unless A. E. Morgan something now unanticipated of this particular point against Berry, virtually out of the sky.

Since this "reputation" Berry has stopped being an administration rubber stamp. He voted to curb federal grants for the construction of electric plants—relief money—to completely owned electric plants voted for several other amendments to the relief bill which House and Harry L. Rogers.

So now he's on the list, administration hopes very that he will be missed after overbearing election. Tennessee arrangements to have him when the senate convenes in its next session. He is to be aimed at the primary is rather amusing when called that President Roosevelt a few weeks back was earned letter to Representative Samuel D. McReynolds to a veteran in Tennessee politics opposing Berry.

Also the Berry case may create an existing very wide in Tennessee politics, armed clashes threaten. Ed Crump's police department with special state appointed by Governor Brown Crump backed Browning ago for the nomination for but he has turned on him, the gubernatorial battle as overshadowed the senate.

Prospects for the St. Lawrence Seaway, despite the beauty of what could be done, are in the note to Canada Secretary of State Cordell Hull. He continues to be very dark in revealed by conversations with senators as to the probability of a treaty involving the idea.

It might not be difficult to get senate approval for a St. Lawrence river development, including the features of the valley development, if only phase of navigation should open. The privately owned of course would fight it, but have not shown themselves successful in blocking it, and there is not much chance that they would be successful.

St. Lawrence is in fact, more important than some other proposals, for they may think about other projects, the general improvement of Capitol Hill is that Niagara is a good idea. The sense the power possibilities and harnessing the falling seems to even the least of them a practical matter.

The sticking point is navigation nothing else. Incidentally there has been the driving force behind the whole movement since its inception. Originally in two parts. The cities of Great Lakes, with the Buffalo, were intrigued by the idea of becoming world ports for ships from all over the globe into their harbors. It is the chamber of commerce of the booster spirit to the St. Lawrence had a different situation. Its citizens feel early days, and still feel ocean-going ships could right into the Great Lakes, would lose its present trans-shipment business.

Even more important, was the desire of the Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, and other nearby states to obtain lower freight rates on wheat shipped to Liverpool many years the price of wheat where in the world has been determined by the price in the city. The price anywhere and is the Liverpool price freight rate from the port to Liverpool. Various as to how much the price northwestern points to could be cut by the St. Lawrence have been made, every figure was used, especially strongly to farmers shipping quantities of wheat.

However, since the early movement, the expressed by the United States have declined. Manufactured much larger now in the state of this country.

Are Requested to Take Advantage Of Program

Farmers are requested to take advantage of the grasshopper program at the earliest possible date that it might be a likelihood if the poison is not used by the latter part of the month that it will be transferred to other infested areas of the state. The county agricultural agent is of the opinion that many farmers should be using this material but this work has been neglected due to the depressing time of wheat harvest. At this time there is still an abundant supply of bran and poison stored at Floydada, South Plains and Lone Star mixing stations. It is also thought that grasshoppers will be much more noticeable after wheat harvest as the 'hoppers are migrating to the portions of the fields where tender growth exist. From now on the 'hopper can do an untold amount of damage to row crops. At this time it is suggested that producers scatter the poison bait at the rate of 20 pounds per acre for 150 feet surrounding his row crop. If badly infested, it may be advisable to cross check the field with 100 feet wide poison bait strips.

Are Requested to Take Advantage Of Program

(Compiled by County Agent)

Farmers are requested to take advantage of the grasshopper program at the earliest possible date that it might be a likelihood if the poison is not used by the latter part of the month that it will be transferred to other infested areas of the state. The county agricultural agent is of the opinion that many farmers should be using this material but this work has been neglected due to the depressing time of wheat harvest. At this time there is still an abundant supply of bran and poison stored at Floydada, South Plains and Lone Star mixing stations. It is also thought that grasshoppers will be much more noticeable after wheat harvest as the 'hoppers are migrating to the portions of the fields where tender growth exist. From now on the 'hopper can do an untold amount of damage to row crops. At this time it is suggested that producers scatter the poison bait at the rate of 20 pounds per acre for 150 feet surrounding his row crop. If badly infested, it may be advisable to cross check the field with 100 feet wide poison bait strips.

Anyone needing information can receive same by calling at the county agent's office or at the Floydada mixing station which is located in the basement of the court house.

Mrs. Miles Frost of Pampa, and mother, Mrs. J. F. Ruddick, left Monday for Stoval, W. Va., near Graham, where they plan to spend three weeks. Mrs. Ruddick will take the health baths during their stay.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hollingsworth went to Lubbock Tuesday evening, and Mr. Hollingsworth attended a meeting of Railway Express Agents. They returned to their home here following the meeting.

Jno. Haney Injured In Car Accident

Jno. Haney, who is a resident of near Petersburg but is well known in Floydada, was injured last week when his car was struck by another automobile near here.

Mr. Haney underwent treatment in Floydada, and examination showed that no serious injuries were received; however, he suffered a deep gash on the arm and severe bruises.

EDITORIAL

THIS NATIONAL WEEK

June 20-25 is National "Send A Child to Camp" week. In this section where children enjoy plenty of freedom and have open country in which to go hiking and camping, there is no acute need for camps. The week was inaugurated to help children in the large cities to go places where they can receive enough fresh air and sunshine.

In this plains country the children can walk two blocks and find a spot for a ball game or play ground of any type. Boys and girls in the cities must play in the alleys and streets or, in some cases, the parks. Many times the city children play baseball in a spot between tenement houses no larger than thirty feet square.

Civic organizations in the larger towns each year raise funds to send children to approved camps in well located spots. Several thousand Boy Scouts participate in hundreds of Scout camps over the country. All of these children's camps are beneficial and should receive the support of everyone.

A great Fort Worth daily discusses Bill McCraw in the following editorial. Texas may be sure that McCraw will make all Texas a great Governor.

—WEST TEXAS McCRAW CLUB.

WE SUGGEST McCRAW:

TEXAS must have a Governor who not only has good ideas, but who can carry them out.

This State hasn't suffered so much from lack of good intentions, but from inability to accomplish them.

A great State leader must know government, and have a progressive, liberal program, but a program is worth nothing unless he can put it into effect.

BELIEVING this, we recommend Attorney General William McCraw for Governor.

His ideas are good, but he has something extra that makes him stand above the other men with thoughtful plans for Texas who want the same job.

McCraw has the brains to conceive and the experience to guide, and most important of all, the courage to fight, the warmth of personality to persuade and the ability to get things done that will put his ideas into effect.

McCRAW'S program for economy is practical and is the kind that can be accomplished. Texas needs the merit system for efficient State employees that he advocates. It must have the effective regulation of all State utilities which he suggests. Texas must not have the sales tax. He opposes it.

His determination to correct insurance laws which permit racketeering is fine.

His plan for a State labor relations act is good. We agree with him that ad valorem taxes be increased. His pension plan is sensible and practical. He believes the old people have suffered more from politics in pensions and from never knowing where they stand than they have from longevity of the pensions. So do we.

ALL these are good ideas, and none of them are new. Many have been tried in other States and proven sound. Some are in the platforms of other candidates. McCraw does not deserve nearly as much credit for originality in State planning as he does for the fact that he has approached State problems with an eye for getting something done about them. His platform is planned so that it can be carried out. He is the kind of man who can and will carry it out.

WE are tired of Governors who plan well, promise much but who can not or will not carry out their plans and promises. We want a man who knows what to do, and who can and will do it. We believe McCraw is that man.—Fort Worth Press, Saturday, June 11th, 1938.

killed in automobile accidents during '37 and the thousands of others who were injured, many of them for life. National Safety organizations tell us that the greater portion of automobile accidents could have been averted had the drivers observed safety rules. Available in every state, from Highway Department offices and travel bureaus, are rules and regulations concerning driving in those states. These rules give speed, signals, and laws concerning automobile traffic.

If we remember to think safety and drive safely the number of accidents would be decreasing instead of increasing.

COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION

Citizens of Floydada and Floyd County will be given an opportunity to demonstrate a spirit of co-operation when the July fourth and fifth celebration is held here. The success of this project depends on the kindred spirit to be exhibited.

No celebration can be staged successfully without the help of the people of the town and surrounding country. A bill of good entertainment including softball, candidate speaking, street carnival and other features has been arranged for this affair.

We should have a large attendance from the people in Floyd County and make this celebration one to be remembered.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL — The Sage from Bear Creek says: "Let someone else inflate your toy balloon, you always burst it." That statement is too true of the most of us.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL — With the approach of vacation time and auto-trailer days here's another from the pen of the Bear Creek sage: "When your financial car seems to be going good, others seek to hitch their trailer on." It appears that the sage might possess something there! You and I have known the type of person who is very friendly with us when the going is smooth and who doesn't know us when we need assistance.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL — Most of us have seen double-header softball games—but few have been to a greater number of triple-headers. A triple-header bill was followed at the games Thursday night—Bishop's vs. Lions, Hagood's vs. Spur and White vs. Sterley—plenty of baseball for one evening—I assure you.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL — These people who are constantly reminding of going fishing for mountain trout and that sort of thing—when they very well know that I'll not be going vacationing for a while yet—sure would be nice to be fishing in the cool mountains—I was talking to a fellow the other day—he had just been on a fishing trip at Monument Lake—of course, if the official season is not yet open—I didn't tell this—said the luck was good—how I did envy him.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL — There is a great amount of difference between conceit and self-confidence—a person engulfed in himself seldom accomplishes any thing while a person possessing the latter says he will and does—conceit is exterior while self-confidence is an internal condition of spirit and mind—when you see it all up you find—the conceited person has an inferiority complex.

STRICKLY CONFIDENTIAL — I have often wondered what type of government we would have when office-holders and office-seekers ceased being politicians and started being statesmen—probably would disrupt our entire social structure—should some orator rise and shout: "give me liberty or—"

Grasshopper Belt Prepares For Hopper Attack

Offensive Awaits Insects as Federal, State Leaders Seek Means of Protecting This Year's Bumper Crop

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

Enjoy devilish pranks. Remember how we used to pull off their legs and watch them "spit" out their guts. Perhaps, but today the lowly grasshopper is no worse than the year-after-year grasshopper that has damaged America's most verdant crops since the early 1930s. Preventative measures with minor success; this year the United States Department of Agriculture warns of an even worse invasion. A swarm like a horde of angry bees from one direction, ripping their way through ripening grain and vegetables, and finally splatter their gorged bodies against the windshield of a passing car. Sometimes they fall from the air and make men fear the millennium has arrived.

GRASSHOPPERS—A menace to American agriculture that equals dust storms and drought.

It occurred in the great plains region 50 to 60 years ago when game birds were far more plentiful than now. For years it has been believed that when grasshoppers come they remain seven years, destroying crops annually. After this period has elapsed they allegedly return to normalcy and are only a minor crop hazard until the next outbreak occurs. No definite proof of this theory has ever been offered. It has been established, however, that dry, warm weather is favorable for grasshoppers and that the most severe outbreaks occur either during or following periods of drought. Perhaps most drought cycles are about seven years long, which would explain the "hopper tradition."

Rains Haven't Helped.

But wet weather is unfavorable and great numbers of grasshoppers often die during wet springs from disease. Such is not the case this year, however, when the department of agriculture is planning the most active anti-grasshopper campaign in its history. The current spring has been wet in the Middle West and great plains area have much delayed the hatching of grasshoppers and have held those which have hatched in the edges of fields. But the reported mortality because of weather has been low. Not enough have been killed to permit any letting down in the control campaign. The delayed development of the grasshoppers and growth of vegetation have kept grasshoppers out of the crops, but it is too early to indicate that control will not be needed over this wide area.

"The delayed hatch may make it necessary to make several applications of poison bait, rather than one or two, which would be sufficient if all the 'hoppers hatched at about the same time."

Widespread outbreaks are expected this year in South Dakota, Montana, Oregon, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. The greatest trouble is expected in North and South Dakota, which together will require 65,000 tons of hopper bait. Total requirements this year for the entire nation are expected to be 178,000 tons; two states will need one-third of it!

Extra Generations.

The situation is made more acute by an unprecedented happening last fall. Whereas grasshoppers are known to hatch only once a year, last fall an extra generation appeared which ruined considerable fall sown grain and added greatly to the number of eggs which passed the winter in the soil.

Recognizing that successful control measures depend on co-operation, well-organized campaigns are already under way in many states headed by a trained entomologist who generally works with county agents. In turn come township and community leaders, mixing stations and bait-spreading crews. County financing has supported a large part of the campaign.

Last year 79,291 tons of poison bait were supplied at an approximate cost to the federal government of $1,104,000. This made possible a harvest, in many sections where without control the crops would have been a complete loss. State co-operators estimated that crops worth more than $100,000,000 were saved in the north central and great plains area. But despite these savings, the losses to crops where hoppers were not controlled reached nearly $66,000,000.

Such is the picture of America's current agricultural pain-in-the-neck, a perennial nuisance that has driven more than one farmer to near insanity. Adding to the discomfort is the fact that these plagues have descended with great wrath upon those states which have suffered most harshly from drought and dust storms during the past eight years.

Disaster's Bedfellow.

Perhaps it is logical that grasshoppers, dust and drought should go hand in hand and that one of these pestilences should lead to another. Lack of moisture encourages grasshoppers. The 'hoppers, in turn, destroy foliage and lessen the earth to be swept about at the mercy of a strong wind.

More than one visitor from the industrial East has looked upon this desolation and turned his eyes away, swearing that drought, dust and 'hoppers will never be conquered. But there's always another year and each spring the 'hopper belt farmer faces life confidently, imbued with an undying faith that his luck must eventually change.

So it follows that again this year he thinks it will change. Probably it will, because never since 1929 has the great plains area been so plentifully showered with spring rains. Maybe the rain will kill these grasshoppers; maybe the weather will become freakish and keep them from doing great damage; maybe the poison bait will work better than before.

Maybe. At least we'll hope so!

Lesson for June 26

SHARING SERVICE WITH THE LIVING CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 16:1-8, 14-16, 19, 20. GOLDEN TEXT—And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them. Mark 16:20. PHIMARY TOPIC—At Work With Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Living Lord. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making a New World With Christ.

Easter again? No, the calendar does not say so, nor have we forgotten that we observed Easter ten weeks ago, but quite properly we study the resurrection story again today. Not only does it come in the sequence of our lessons as our final study in the Gospel of Mark, but the fact is that every Sunday is a reminder of Easter. The reason why we worship on the first day of the week is that it is the resurrection day. What life it would put into our Sunday worship if the glory of the risen Lord would shine forth (as it should) each Lord's Day in all of our service and worship.

It is difficult to think or write about the living Christ without using superlatives. Our lesson for today brings before us the most important truth that the world has ever heard—"He is risen"; it speaks of the worst thing in the world—"unbelief"; and it presents the world's greatest commission—"Go... and preach."

I. The Transcendent Truth (vv. 1-8)

"Ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified; He is risen, He is not here" (v. 6). The world anxiously awaits news, and, hoping almost against hope, it longs for good news. This is the good news—the Gospel—the all-important tidings that the Son of God who had taken upon Himself not only the form of man, but the sins of mankind as well, who had tasted the bitter death of Calvary's cross, could not be holden of death, but breaking its bands asunder had risen from the dead.

This truth becomes the chief burden of the messages of the disciples as they soon went everywhere proclaiming the Gospel. See the sermons recorded in the Book of Acts (2:24, 32; 3:14, 15; 4:10, 23; 10:40; 13:30). It was such preaching that was at the foundation of the Christian church. It may be that we should emphasize it more.

II. The Impassable Barrier (v. 14)

"He upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not." Many are the sins that men commit, but at the root of them all we find the heart of all sin—unbelief. If a man steals he does not believe God's Word about the sanctity of property, nor does he believe that God is able to care for him. If he kills, he does not believe God's Word concerning the sanctity of human life, nor does he recognize that man is made in the likeness and image of God. And so we might go on and show that back of sins there is the sin of unbelief.

The tragic consequence of unbelief is that it shuts the door, throws up a barrier to God's blessing that is virtually impassable until God himself gives grace to believe. The astonishing thing is that the hardness of heart and lack of faith here were on the part of those who had been the disciples of Jesus, to whom He had made known the fact that He was to die and to arise on the third day, and to whom there had now come the word of eye-witnesses that they had seen the Lord.

While we marvel at their shortsighted unbelief, shall we not ask ourselves what hindrances we have placed in God's way in our own lives?

III. The Supreme Commission (vv. 15, 16, 19, 20)

"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation" (v. 15). "And they went... and preached, the Lord working with them and confirming the word" (v. 20). The great commission of Christ is still the "marching orders of the church," but how slowly we have marched. The writer of these notes was recently startled by statistics revealing anew the fact that "Christian" America is rapidly returning to the status of a mission field. It is said that last year 60,000 churches in America had no converts, and 9,000 churches were closed during the year. There are 10,000 villages reported to be without church services, and 30,000 communities without a resident pastor.

The command of Christ is that we should go to these pagan communities in our own land with the gospel, and surely it is our double shame that there are still lands where Christ has never been preached, yes, tribes that do not even have a word in their language for the blessed name—Jesus!

If we will go He will indeed work with us (v. 20) and accompany the message and ministry with divine authority and power. Who will go?

Baron Munchausen

Karl Friedrich Hieronymus, Baron von Munchausen (1720-97) was a German cavalry officer. His tales of his impossible adventures while on service in Russia are classics of their kind. Since their publication in English in 1785 by the baron's friend, Rudolph Erich Raspe, the tales, with later additions, have been many times reprinted and translated into many languages.

HELP KIDNEYS
To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Class of '34 Has Reunion at Roaring Springs

The graduating class of 1934 of the Floydada High School met in an annual reunion here Thursday of last week. According to Hugh Jeff Ayres, president of the class, some eighteen were present, most of whom were students. Others were husbands and wives of the class members. Also present for the celebration was the former sponsor, Mrs. Len V. Smith, W. A. King, who also was sponsor for the class, was unable to attend. The group met at the high school building at seven o'clock Thursday evening, with Hugh Jeff Ayres, president and Mrs. W. R. Daniels (formerly Folia Randerson), secretary-treasurer, in charge. From the school the group went to Roaring Springs, where they enjoyed the usual picnic routine of swimming, hiking, and eating. The class returned after having enjoyed the "get-together" after having enjoyed the former times. It is thought likely this custom will be carried out by several classes through the coming years.

Pat Sullivan of Coahoma, Texas, spent Sunday in Floydada visiting with his mother, Mrs. A. C. Sullivan, and sister, Mrs. C. M. Thacker and family.

Harley Sadler to Bring Show Here

The Harley Sadler new stage show, which appears here for two nights, brings many new features, and is considered one of the biggest and best companies that Mr. Sadler has ever carried. In addition to the regular line of vaudeville, orchestra and special line of players, the company has contracted for Lew Childre, nationally known radio, stage and recording star, with his River Revelers Band, which includes Miley Walker and his fiddle. Among other vaudeville features are: Mary Layne, acrobatic dancer; the Glendale Quartet; Munde and June, jugglers; Bob Siler, vocal soloist; Jean Oxford, singer and dancer; Jackie Phillips, singer and dancer. The musical Troubadors offer an entertaining presentation. Special scenery is carried for each play. The opening play will be "Tamed and How". Second night will be the feature play, "Trail of Lonesome Pine."

BILLIE SADLER
The above is a likeness of Mrs. Harley Sadler, known to her many friends as "Billie". In the many years gone by you have seen her as the leading lady and ingenue with the Harley Sadler Company, but this season she appears as the Character woman with the company which appears here under the auspices of the volunteer fire department Monday and Tuesday, July 4 and 5.

NEW KIND OF TIRE SAFETY?

Safety WHILE RIDING
Safety WHEN STOPPING

THE NEW GOODRICH SILVERTOWN TIRE PROTECTS YOU AGAINST BOTH SKIDS AND BLOW-OUTS... AT NO EXTRA COST!

Motorists, here's an amazing new kind of tire that protects you against both skids and blow-outs! It's the sensational new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread and the famous Golden Ply.

This new Life-Saver Tread is actually a road dryer. Its never-ending spiral bars, acting like a battery of windshield wipers, sweep the water right and left, force it out through special deep drainage grooves. Thus it provides a dryer, safer road surface for the rubber to grip—stops you seconds quicker than you've ever stopped before!

What's more, the Goodrich Silvertown is the only tire in the world that gives you the famous Golden Ply—the greatest protection against high-speed blow-outs American motorists have ever known.

And remember, many tires cost more; but no other tire—at any price—can give you this two-way protection against both skids and blow-outs. So for safety's sake get a set of these life-saving, long-mileage Goodrich Silvertowns. Come in today for a thrilling demonstration ride.

Sarah Lynn leaned back in a great chair which made her seem small, and the aviator himself flat again, his head behind his yellow head. She was the one I liked," Jor-his fingers halting.

He had gone down from this airy seat, this swift white peace, this stinging exultation; he will close about me, and lead me to the rhythm of daily round. I shall feel time ravel about me. I shall feel the windy presence of eter-

way. And you'll know you can't have 'em. Well, I'm obliged to you for the wish."
"I'm sorry," Sarah Lynn said. "Oh, Great-granny, I wish there was something I could do!"
"Well, there is," the nonagenarian said briskly. "That's what I'm getting at. That's why I sent for you. I know you're getting married and putting out, quick's ever you can, Sairy Lynn, and that's right. I want you should. But there's a favor you could do me first."
"Anything!" she said gladly.
"Anything I can—"
"I should admire to have a ride in your flying-machine, Sairy Lynn."
"Of course, Great-granny! I'd adore it."
"Well, there's plenty that won't," she said grimly. "When the folks hear of it there'll be the devil to pay and no pitch hot, but I don't care. I've got a hankering to see what it's like. I want to ride up in the sky and look down at birds flapping their wings that I always envied, and I want to look down at Danavale and all the foolish we had to make the loads light, and he was young and stout. I'd admire to have him here, today, evermore! If that's all Mt. Hamilton amounts to, and the way I've been looking up at it for eighty-odd years! My, but the air's nice up here, Sairy Lynn! Awful light and thin. . . . Makes a body drowsy. . . ."

The flier looked back and saw her nodding. It was too bad to let her lose an instant of this thrill. She executed a mild side slip and the old woman sat up with a jerk and grinned at her.
"Hey, Sairy Lynn! What you up to? Trying to spill me out?" She looked down with renewed animation but very soon she was sleepy again.
Sarah Lynn waited until she had her full attention and then she inquired, both by words which she knew could not be heard and by unmistakable gestures whether she was ready to descend.

she set her ship down gently her head was high.
Gunnar opened the door, looking closely at her, and the rest came hurrying up. She got out slowly, without speaking, and they stared at her. She wasn't crying, but they could see traces of tears on her face.
"Mother!" some of the elderly daughters called, and "Oh, Grand-ma!" a middle-aged granddaughter cried out shrilly.
Then there was a wild clamor of talking and weeping, of questions and reproaches. Sarah Lynn stood quietly in the midst of them, trying to keep remembering how the sunset had looked. "Great-granny," she steadied her voice, "Great-granny—didn't—come down."
Gunnar comforted Sarah Lynn in the difficult days which followed. "Do not listen to the wailing," he admonished her.
"But they say I killed her, Gunnar."
"And I say you gave to her life again. Not choking in blankets but boldly in the sky, as she would wish, that small grandmother. Age closed her in like a trap, you opened the door."
"Oh, I know! But, I keep dreaming of her, huddled down in her seat, swinging over the belt—"
"That is folly. Think of her looking down with pleasure."
"Yes. Only I did so want her at my wedding. It isn't going to be a very nice wedding, Gunnar."
He shrugged. "What matter? It is a wedding. That is enough. Then we go!"
They were walking back to her house from an evening with Lynn Dana.
"Gunnar, I promise, I'll stop grieving about Great-granny."
"That is well. Death in age, in sickness, in helplessness is good. All such should be put away."
She came out of her mood of exaltation with a cry of protest. "Oh, Gunnar—no! That's horrible!"
"Man," he persisted, "must learn from Nature. To let survive—how do you say it?"
"The survival of the fittest, but who can say, who can judge and decide who is the fittest? Don't you see what a frightful danger it would be? How wicked people could bribe and corrupt—And some of the finest minds and spirits are in frail bodies. Do you want a world full of prize-fighters? Think"—she said hotly—"think of my Uncle Lynn!"
He shrugged. "You speak now of the exception. That would be bad. But in the end, after five hundred years, would not the race be greatly improved?"
Sarah Lynn wasn't interested in the state of the race five hundred years ahead. She was disturbed. Gunnar had aired those ideas before, but never so vehemently.
She had to put herself to sleep that night resolutely, remembering the thrilling beauty of the plane against the moon.
But she kept her promise to stop mourning over the death of the ancestress. All her loyal cohorts helped, and a long, understanding cable from Sally Ann, and most of all, the man in the wheeled-chair.
"Let's put a period to it, Sarah Lynn," he said. "You were privileged to pay back in an hour what you had owed her all your life. She gave you your freedom; you gave her hers."
So peace came back to Sarah Lynn for her last days in Danavale. She said to her father, "Dad, I'm to be married in Great-granny's parlour Monday morning at nine, and then we're flying east. I wanted you to know. I'm telling Bill, too."

"Enough of folly. We finish!"

houses the folks built and the road your Gre-granper and I come over in the covered wagons, dirty and dog-tired and snaling along with the half-dead critters hauling us. I want to do that once before I die."
"And you shall, Great-granny, dear," she told her. "I promise—cross my heart!" Gunnar would loan her the Hermod for this ritual.

CHAPTER XI

It was a pretty day. Gunnar approved the weather, and he warmly approved the project. It was exactly what he wished he might have done for Grandmother Gudrun.
Lynn Dana was deeply pleased. "She gave you your wings; right to share them with her," he nodded.
The colony came, the protestants, at least, anxious, indignant, annoyed, and the harried Emma Waters kept saying, "Now, Miss Dana, where's your handkerchief? Miss Dana, you went and took your knitted jacket off!"

I don't want to have it over. I want to keep on going up and up!"
"All right," her great-granddaughter said, and set the Hermod to climbing. After a while they encountered a soft sea of pink clouds and rose over it. It was an exquisitely lovely thing to see, but the passenger's sharp chin was resting on her breast and she appeared to be sleeping soundly. Sarah Lynn thought it a pity; there would be time enough and to spare for napping down in the little old Dana house when she and Gunnar were far across the sea, so she did another sharp slip to rouse her, but the small figure in the thick wrappings did not stir.
Sarah Lynn looked at her for a long time. Then she pulled off a glove and tossed it back. It struck the shawled shoulder smartly, but the head did not lift. Then the pilot headed for the coast, over the Santa Cruz mountains to the Pacific and flew low along the shore. After a while she shook the tears out of her eyes and looked into the sunset; she thought she had never seen one so lavish, so jubilant.
She rose and climbed and set out for home and when she circled the field at San Jose she could see the diminished descendants of Sarah Ann Kittredge Dana, pioneer, in an anxious huddle, gazing up. When Wrapped like a little old royal mummy, she was finally lifted into the cabin of the Hermod in Gunnar's long arms.

"I'm obliged to you, young feller," she thanked him. "And I'm real pleased about you and my child. I've set store by Sairy Lynn from the first minute I laid eyes on her in the cradle. I believe you're going to make her a good husband."
"I will make her a good husband," he told her gravely, fastening the seat belt about her, getting out again, passing through the group of disapproving faces.
The matriarch rapped on the window with her lean knuckles and waved at her elderly daughters, her middle-aged granddaughters, and gave her shrill, cackling laugh.
"Now, go on home and don't fret," she admonished them, "you poor old things!"
Then Sarah Lynn Dana took her ship away from the pleasant landscape into the calm skies, carrying the ninety-seven-year-old pioneer who had crossed the plains in a covered wagon to found the dynasty of Danavale.

Those unfamiliar with the many problems besetting the forester in his efforts to reforest denuded lands often wonder why there should be a high mortality on many hand-planted plantations. In some instances this has run 100 per cent, and the entire area must be replanted. Usually foresters expect from 20 to 30 per cent mortality and are happy with a survival of 70 to 80 per cent. In fact, writes Albert Stoll, Jr., in the Detroit News, they plan on this when the first trees are set by over-planting the land at least 30 per cent. If fortune should smile on the efforts and all the trees lived, eventually the stands would have to be thinned out.
In recent years drought and extreme heat have raised havoc with the many pine tree plantations. The seedlings didn't have much chance to survive, and those that did were stunted.
Frequently the choice of the planting site brings failure, particularly if it happens to be in a frost pocket or on extremely sterile soil. Poor planting perhaps runs second to drought and heat. If the seedling roots are not properly placed in the ground and completely covered with soil the chances are the tree will die.

Freezing also contributes, as well as snow damage. Insects, rust and fungus grow often wipe out plantations, and this is a problem for which no satisfactory means of control has been uncovered. During the winter when snows cover all but the tops of the small trees rabbits and mice often girdle the terminal branches, dwarfing the growth, and if completely girdled farther down the tree will die. In some instances the young trees are destroyed by persons wandering aimlessly over the plantations and stepping on the seedlings.
Unlike planting around the home where water, shade and protection abound, the forest-planted seedling must shift for itself, and if the elements are unkind its life is short.
"Alright," Not Good Word
There is no such word as "alright" recognized in modern English usage. For a period during the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries before the invention of printing, the form "alright" was used to some extent by English writers, but the phrase "alright" had been previously preferred and it has been regarded as the correct form ever since.

C. Houston Goudiss Offers More Advice About Reducing

Describes the Perils of Unscientific Methods for Losing Weight

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York City.

MY RECENT discussion of reducing in these columns brought many letters, indicating that the modern woman is, fortunately, weight conscious. This is an encouraging sign. For it shows that you are alert to the dangers of overweight, which not only destroys beauty but may indirectly contribute to heart disease, kidney disorders and diabetes, which take their greatest toll from among the heavyweights.

Guard Against Unscientific Reducing Methods

Some of these letters caused me great concern, however, because they indicate that in spite of my warning against unscientific methods of weight reduction, many women still cling to the idea that there is some magic in the various pills, powders, capsules, saps, salts and mechanical devices that are sold at fancy prices and hold out alluring promises of speedy reducing without dieting or exercise.
It is bad enough that most of these fail to reduce. For they may delay the day when the victim of overweight will undertake a sound and scientific program of weight reduction that will effectively take off weight—thus improving appearance, benefiting health and increasing the chances of longevity. But what is far more serious is that some of these preparations may endanger health or cause lifelong physical impairment.

Dangerous Drugs

Drugging is particularly to be condemned, and no one should attempt to reduce by this method except under the advice and watchful eye of a physician. There are many invalids today who would be happy and healthy if they had not attempted to take some "reducing medicine" without consulting a physician.
One preparation that is still bought by foolish women—in spite of repeated warnings against its use—may even result in permanent blindness.
Almost equally objectionable are excessive purging—which may leave you a wobbly wreck—and fasting, which is even more dangerous to women than men.

Don't Diet Without Direction

A carefully regulated diet will not only maintain normal weight, but will banish overweight by forcing the body to burn its own excess fat as fuel. Having heard of this scientific principle, many women frantically and foolishly attempt to prescribe their own reducing diets—often with disastrous results.
There is always the possibility that one may omit calcium-bearing foods and thus impair the

Do you want to know where to find the different vitamins?
Just write to C. Houston Goudiss at 6 East 39th Street, New York City, for his new "VITAMIN PRIMER." It tells the facts that every homemaker needs to know about vitamins. In simple chart form, the functions of each vitamin are explained, and there is a list of foods to guide you in supplying your family with adequate amounts of each of these necessary substances.

teeth, or leave out foods rich in iron and copper and interfere with the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood.
One of the most common and most serious errors is to omit all bread, potatoes and cereals, in the belief that carbohydrates are "fattening foods." Carbohydrates are required by the body in order to utilize the fats in the diet, and when reducing, they are also necessary to burn up excess fatty tissue.
Just as fire cannot burn without air, fat cannot be utilized in the body without the presence of starch or sugar. When the diet contains insufficient carbohydrates, fat burns incompletely, resulting in the dangerous acetone type of acidosis.

Counting Calories the Easy Way to Reduce

The one safe, sure and scientific method of getting rid of surplus weight and at the same time maintaining top health—is to consume a diet that is balanced in every respect, but to count your calories at every meal, making certain that you consume fewer calories each day than your body requires for its normal energy expenditure.
I will gladly send to every reader of this newspaper, a copy of my reducing bulletin. This includes a chart showing the caloric value of all the commonly used foods—plus a week's sample reducing menus. By following this scientific plan for weight reduction, you can easily lose from one to two pounds weekly. A more rapid reduction is not advisable. At that rate, you can lose from six to eight pounds in the course of a month—twenty-four pounds at the end of three months. That is a lot of weight to lose and will make a vast difference in your appearance and in the enthusiasm with which you greet your daily tasks.

The Film Stars' Method

This simple and scientific method of controlling the weight is the one used by film stars in Hollywood. It is essential that they keep slim and practically every important film player has a clause in her contract calling for a cancellation if she permits her weight to increase beyond a certain point. But at the same time, film stars must safeguard their health, for their work is the most strenuous of occupations!

Counting Calories Is Fun

In Hollywood they make a game of counting calories. You, too, will find it amusing, as well as beneficial to health and looks. And you will be rewarded by noting a drop in weight every time you step on the scales.

If Your Weight Is Normal Keep It That Way

It has been determined that the ideal weight—that is the weight that best promotes health and longevity—after thirty, is the normal weight for one's height at the age of thirty.
If you are approximately thirty and your weight is normal, you should send for my Calorie Chart and Reducing Bulletin and use it to help maintain your present weight!
If you are over thirty and overweight, you should not lose another day before sending for the bulletin so that you can begin at once to regain your normal weight by the safe, simple, scientific and

Questions Answered

Miss L. T. B.—Though it lacks fat and vitamin A, skim milk is a rich source of calcium and phosphorus, and also furnishes high grade protein. A quart of skim milk, plus one and one-half ounces of butter is the equivalent of a quart of whole milk.
Mrs. J. M. T.—It is impossible to generalize regarding the diet in asthma. This condition is due to allergy, and the symptoms are produced by different foods in different individuals. Almost all protein substances are capable of causing distress.
Mrs. G. B., Jr.—There is absolutely no truth in the false notion that aluminum cooking utensils may adversely affect health. Numerous experiments have demonstrated that they are perfectly safe.
Miss A. G.—One tablespoon of cod-liver oil provides about 100 calories, which is equal in fuel value to one slice of bread, one medium potato, or three-fourths of a cup of cooked macaroni.

WHAT! YOUR CHICKENS DON'T HAVE WORMS?

I WOULDN'T be too sure about that. Three flocks out of four have worms. And you can't always tell by looking at birds whether they are wormy or not. So it pays to make sure. And the way to find out is with Dr. Hess Poultry Worm Powder—the modern treatment for worms in poultry. It's the modern treatment because it is a flock treatment—some of this individual dosing business. And it's a sure-fire round worm getter. Don't throw your flocks off feed or off production. A single dose does the job. You just feed it to your chickens with a little wet mash in the morning—and then watch for worms!

Speaking of Ice . . .

... you will get more ice—and quicker too—with a Westinghouse Super capacity Froster. However, the Super Froster provides more conveniences than just fast freezing. . . . It allows one-third more space ideal for frozen storage. . . . The Multi-Service Tray freezes 5 pounds of ice or two quarts of frozen desserts. . . . The Eject-O-Cube trays flip one or all zero-cold ice cubes without any fuss or muss. Let us tell of other Westinghouse features that are "Kitchen-Proved" for your convenience.
