Food Processing Centers to be set Up in Texas

Many Texas communities served by REA lines are eligible to benefit from a new governmental program designed to fortify the health of rural families.

The plan will be a cooperative one with REA, the Extension Service, Farm Security Administration and other agencies of the Department of Agriculture participating, according to Mildred Horton, vice director of the Extension Service and chairman of the Texas State Nutrition Committee.

Electrically equipped food processing centers will be set up in rural schools or other public buildings on REA lines within the state. The responsibility of the county home demonstration agents and other rural educators will be to teach adult groups better nutritional practices.

Miss Horton explains that these food centers may be equipped with small mills for grinding whole wheat flour and other whole grain cereals or with electrical cooking, refrigeration, and dehydration equipment. It is possible that food processed in the centers may be used in community school lunch programs during the year.

The equipment may also be used by low income families in the community who cannot afford their own equipment for processing grains, fruits, vegetables, and cereals for home use. Purchase of the equipment will be financed through REA loans at low interest rates. Of the 800 eligible electrical systems in the county, approximately 70 are in Texas.

Woods urges that every school in Texas make a collection for United China Relief without delay and forward the money to Nathan Adams, president of the First National Bank in Dallas. More Wheat Farmers Insuring Crops For Coming Year

More Texas wheat farmers than ever before have insured their crops for the coming year, E. R. Duke, state crop insurance supervisor, has reported to state AAA headquarters has announced.

With approximately 200 applications still pending, Duke said that 9,113 policies, insuring the wheat production on 11,297 farms, had been issued. No figures are available at present as to the total production covered by the insurance.

At the same time, Duke announced that 5,092 indemnity claims, representing a total of 1,963,469 bushels of wheat paid to producers, had been paid under the 1941 crop insurance program.

Ever since the crop insurance program began the number of growers insuring their crops has increased steadily, the supervisor pointed out. The increased sales indicate general approval of the program by the producers.

"Cotton growers who study the operations of the wheat insurance program will appreciate the benefits they can gain by taking out insurance on their cotton crops in 1942," Duke said. "The success of the wheat insurance program has led to adoption of a cotton insurance program which will get its first trial on next year's crop."

Congressman Geo. Mahon Returns To Washington

George Mahon, Congressman from this district, was back in his Washington office this week after having spent three weeks visiting in various portions of his district.

Early last week while enroute to Washington, he visited Army maneuvers in Louisiana where a half million soldiers are engaged in mock warfare for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of our armed forces. Mahon reported that he saw a few of the enlisted men from the 10th Texas district.

In commenting on the maneuvers, Mahon said that the West Texas boys were measuring up to their full responsibility. "It is not a pleasant task for the boys to face the service hardships occasioned by the maneuvers," he said, "but I can testify from observation that the boys can really take it. The thing that impressed me most was the physical toughness and the high moral quality of the men. The modern youth does not lack the physical stamina and the hardihood of his predecessors."

"The soldiers are the ones, and about the only ones, who are making real sacrifices for national defense. They deserve 100 percent cooperation from labor and capital and from the people generally."

Mahon is a member of the War Department Committee, and he visited the maneuvers in company with army officials and other committee members.

Farm Equipment Repairs Shortage Indicated

Texas farmers are having difficulty in obtaining repair parts for their farm equipment in more than half of the counties in the state, B. F. Vance, chairman of the Texas USDA Defense Board, has announced.

Reports from county USDA defense boards indicate that dealers are unable to obtain adequate supplies of repair parts with the result that unused equipment is going to waste on the farms, he announced. The board is conducting a survey on the request of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard on the farm equipment needs for the coming year.

"The shortage of parts has been acute in some areas for more than a year, according to the reports," Vance said. "In these days, when priorities accorded war materials are apt to cut down on the production of new equipment, a continued and adequate supply of repair parts becomes all the more important. If farmers are to produce the vast amount of food needed in this country and in the nations resisting aggression, then they must have the equipment to carry out their farming operations."

Vance said reports received from the counties on the shortages are being forwarded to Washington for the consideration of Secretary Wickard who will use all such information in obtaining priorities for the needed equipment.

Scarcity of labor in some sections makes the problem of keeping farm machinery in shape even more important, Vance pointed out.

More Defense Foods Needed

"More milk, more eggs, more pork" is the food-for-defense appeal being made to American farmers by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Farmers are responding untriedly, the Department says, and are turning huge quantities of feed from the AAA Ever-Normal Granary into energy-giving foods. Milk production is highest on record; egg production is higher than in any year except 1930; extra numbers of brood sows are being held over for fall farrowing. Nevertheless, the Department declares, even additional increases in these products must be made to supply the growing home demand and the emergency needs of Great Britain.

More Winter Peas for the Farmer's Sake

For the farmer's sake and for increased profit, plant winter legumes. E. A. Miller, agronomist at the A. and M. College Experiment Station, Lubbock, Texas, has demonstrated that the acre yields in the eastern part of Texas can be greatly increased by plowing under winter legumes which have been properly inoculated and fertilized. Hairy vetch is the outstanding winter legume for most types of soil, although clover and Australian winter vetch are promising on the better soils, Miller says. Vetch contains an average of three and one-half percent of nitrogen, or 150 pounds a ton of dry matter. It should be planted from October to November 15, when there is sufficient moisture for good germination and to get the young plants established. From 15 to 20 pounds of seed an acre should be planted. On account of the large amount of hairy vetch seed being planted and the smaller imports, there may be a shortage this fall. But according to reports there is a good supply of seed of Austrian winter peas. This may be substituted for hairy vetch on the loam soils although it has not made as good a record as has vetch and is not as winter hardy. A mixture of hairy vetch and common vetch also may be planted. As the seed of Austrian winter peas are larger than vetch, 20 to 30 pounds per acre need to be planted.

With both crops, Miller says, it is important to use at least 100 to 200 pounds an acre of 20 percent superphosphate or its equivalent. On old fields and deep sandy soils it usually pays to also apply about 30 pounds an acre of muriate of potash. The fertilizer will make the vetch and peas grow better and most of it will be available for the next crop if the legumes are turned under. Vetch usually grows slowly until late February or early March, but in a few weeks thereafter forms a mass of vegetation.

It is essential to inoculate the vetch and pea seed unless it is certain that the land contains the necessary bacteria which produce nodules on the roots and utilize the nitrogen from the air. Most failure can be attributed to the lack of inoculation or lack of phosphate in the soil, or both. The bacterial culture may be obtained from seed dealers.

THE RECORD... Facts That Concern You

No. 31 of a Series

SOME PEOPLE NEVER LEARN... but most of them do!

There are always a few "smart alecks" who want to stand up and rock the boat. But most people try to keep out of trouble.

The same sort of thing happens in the retailing of beer. The great majority of beer retail establishments are clean, law-abiding and wholesome. But occasionally you may find a "smart aleck" retailer who violates the law or permits anti-social conditions.

We of the brewing industry want these anti-social retailers wiped out! Because they imperil your right to drink good beer...and our right to make it.

We want to protect the benefits that beer has brought to Texas—employment for 31,165 persons since relegalization, an annual payroll of $22,076,182 and taxes of $2,273,968.64 paid to the state last year.

This state, too, has an important stake in Beer's purchases from over 100 industries supplying the brewing industry with materials, equipment and services.

You can help us in our public-spirited program by (1) patronizing only reputable and legal beer establishments and (2) by reporting any irregularities you may see to the proper authorities.

Major Gen Clayton B. Vogel Has Had Varied Duties

Few Marine Corps officers have had as wide a variety of duties in so many different lands as Major Gen. Clayton B. Vogel, of the Keystone State, who commands the 2nd Division of U. S. Marines at San Diego, California.

Scores of assignments from China to Panama and from Cuba to Haiti, including service aboard ships of the Navy, have given General Vogel a wide range of experience in military and naval affairs. At one time he served as a special aide at the White House.

Born in Philadelphia in 1882, he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Corps in 1904, and for the first few years was stationed at a number of east coast naval posts.

Then came tours of duty in China, Panama, Cuba and Haiti, followed by service on the U. S. S. Wyoming, where he served on the staff of the commander of the scouting squadron.

General Vogel has been highly successful in organizing and directing native troops in countries which have been occupied by the Marines. In 1917 and 1918 he was an inspector of the constabulary in Haiti, and ten years later was Chief of Staff of the Guardia Nacional, the native force of Nicaragua.

He was selected for promotion to his present rank last December, and when the 2nd Division of Marines was established at San Diego a few months ago he was given command of the organization, which forms the western unit of the Fleet Marine Force.

During his more than thirty-six years as a Marine scores of honors have been won by this Keystone officer, and those from the Haitian government alone include the Haitian Distinguished Service Medal, Medaille Militaire and Brevet of Merit. He has also been awarded Mexican, Nicaraguan, expeditionary and other medals.

"Eye Appeal" and Profits Should be Combined

Commercial salesmen estimate that 70 percent of all food products are sold because of their appeal to the eye. So Myrtle Murray, specialist in home industries for the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, is urging farm women to make the home raised or home made products they sell "look good as well as good to taste."

Rural homemakers who increase the family income by selling high quality products from the farm are now being urged to prepare for increasing their sales during the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons. In most instances this is done by taking advanced orders for delicacies and by prepping extra supplies of non-perishable products.

Miss Murray points out that many busy people appreciate the opportunity of buying gifts wrapped and ready to address.

Here are some of the "gifts from the soil" rural women of Texas sell during the holidays: good country butter wrapped in gold celophane; home grown, home cured ham; good country sausage; packages of jellies, pickles, and preserves; home raised pecans in colorful cotton sacks; gallon buckets of sorghum syrup or honey; pot plants; cuttings and roots from choice shrubs; native shrubs, balled and burlapped, ready to "set out"; beads made from acorns, colored corn kernels, or cantaloupe seed; home made Christmas decorations and toys.

Cover Crop Are on Increase Says B. F. Vance

Steps are being taken to increase the planting of leguminous winter cover crops in Texas this fall and winter, B. F. Vance, administrative officer of the AAA in Texas, has announced.

This practice, which supplies soils with nitrogen and supplements nitrates used in commercial fertilizers, will not only apply on soil building requirements established under the 1942 farm program, but will be a contributing factor in stepping up production of foods and feed essential to defense needs as advocated by the USDA Defense Boards, the AAA official pointed out.

To make complete use of the available 1941 legume seed supply and to discourage speculative carry-over, plans have also been announced to restrict next year's purchase program to 1942 seed only, if a program of this kind is in operation.

As part of the expansion program, seed producers have pledged to increase their plantings for 1942 to at least 415,000 acres, 50 percent greater than the 1941 acreage, Vance said in pointing out that the increase will provide ample supply of seeds for planting in the fall of 1942 without any carryover from 1941, and will make possible maximum use of present supplies.

To encourage production of the necessary seed, announcement has been made by the Department that the Commodity Credit Corporation will support prices for 1942 production equivalent to a wheat price of more than a dollar a bushel, the AAA official said. Varieties of seeds and basic prices to be offered for top grades include Austrian winter peas at 5 cents a pound; hairy vetch, 10 cents; Willamette vetch 6.5 cents; common vetch 5 cents, with crimson clover and ryegrass at 10 cents and 5 cents a pound respectively.

Conservation phases of the AAA farm program have resulted in greatly increased use of winter cover crops and indications are that the use will continue to increase, Vance said.

Probable increase of winter legume seed is attributed to war conditions which have shut off from American buyers the European seed producing areas, which during recent years, have furnished United States farmers with as much as 50 percent of their crimson clover and 40 percent of their hairy vetch seed, he continued.

Growing popularity of planting winter legumes is reflected in production figures which show 5,750,000 pounds of hairy vetch and 10,350,000 pounds of peas in 1935 while 1940 figures increased to 24,950,000 pounds of vetch and 53,685,000 pounds of peas.

As a means of encouraging farmers in Texas to increase planting of leguminous cover crops this fall, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration resumed the purchase order plan September 8. In counties adopting this plan, farmers who are partici-parting in the AA Conservation program may use purchase orders executed by their county AAA committees to obtain Austrian winter peas and vetch from local dealers for carrying out approved soil building practices under the agricultural conservation program. The AAA pays the cost from payments which the farmers earn by participating in the conservation program.

The purchase order plan, Vance explained, will not effect the CCC-AAA plan being used extensively throughout Texas. Under this arrangement, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration furnishes seeds purchased from the Commodity Credit Corporation with costs being deducted from future AAA payments made to producers.
