Nasser Would Take 'Advice,' Says Legate

LONDON (AP)—Pakistan's foreign minister said today President Nasser of Egypt told him he would agree to maritime nations advising in Suez Canal operations but insisted "it is the sovereign right of Egypt to run the canal."
Foreign Minister Hamidul Haq Chowdry, arriving for the Suez Canal conference from talks with Nasser, said the Egyptian president is ready to enter into a covenant with all nations who signed the 1888 conventions guaranteeing freedom of navigation in the canal.
Chowdry told reporters at the airport: "The Egyptian president wants a peaceful and happy solution to the problem."
"He is not adverse to the setting up of a body representing the users of the canal to advise the organization which he has set up to manage and administrate it. He still believes it is the sovereign right of Egypt to run the canal."

A few hours earlier, Secretary of State Dulles arrived for the conference opening tomorrow. He expressed hope for a solution "so vital to the preservation and well being of the entire world."
Britain, France and the United States are insisting on internationalizing the vital 103-mile waterway under guarantees more binding than the system envisaged by Nasser.
On the eve of the conference, tempers obviously were cooling, differences, although still great, were not so threatening as a week ago.
A British crowd of about 200 cheered Dulles as he entered Eden's residence, smiling and relaxed.
Before leaving Washington, Dulles expressed hope of "achieving positive results" in the talks the United States, Britain and France arranged in the hope of bringing the strategic waterway under international control.

The latest problem confronting the Western Big Three was a reported Soviet scheme to junk the London talks before they get off the ground. Reports from Moscow said Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov planned to move for adjournment when the conference opens tomorrow and urge that the party be expanded and held at a different site.
Twenty-four nations were invited to attend the London conference after the July 26 nationalization of the Suez by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Greece and Egypt rejected the bids. Egypt declared all countries that regularly use the waterway, about 45 nations, should be invited to any talks on the canal's future.
Although Russia decided — with reservations — to attend the London meeting, it supported Egypt's nationalization of the canal and said the list of nations invited to Suez talks should be broadened to include the Communist European countries and all Arab nations.
Shepilov was reported ready to announce that the Soviet Union would not abide by any conference decisions on the ground it is not competent to act without Egypt.
Dulles conferred with President Eisenhower before taking off from Washington.
"We went over together a great many formulas which could be devised to assure a dependable international operation of the canal, consistent with the rights and dignity of Egypt," Dulles said. "We believe that such a formula can be found and that it will be found because any nation that rejects such a formula will have a heavy responsibility before the world."

Texas Republicans Choose Candidates

By The Associated Press
A handful of Republicans Wednesday faced the job of trying to beat Democrats in traditionally Democratic Texas in the November general elections.
The GOP held scattered district conventions Tuesday to nominate candidates.
Bruce Alger of Dallas, the state's only GOP congressman, was renominated in 10 minutes.
Five GOP delegates met at Tyler and nominated Kilgore oilman R. E. Kennedy to oppose Democrat Lindley Beckwith in the 3rd Congressional District.
At Odessa, Charles Gibson, El Paso insurance executive, was nominated to oppose the Democratic congressional incumbent, J. T. Rutherford of Odessa.
Harris County Republicans asked Thad Hutchison Jr., Houston attorney, to run for the U.S. Senate "if that office should become vacant." They also approved a resolution urging that Hutchison be nominated as the GOP candidate for governor if he should choose to run for that office.

Travis County Republicans also approved Hutchison as a candidate for the Senate if Pricc Daniel is elected governor.
Hutchison said he will have to see what the next two weeks bring and what the party's Aug. 28 convention in Corpus Christi does before he decides about running for office.
Robert O. Fagg was nominated by the Travis County group for state representative, Place 1, Austin. He will oppose either Mrs. Omar Barker or Wilson Foreman, Democrats in the Aug. 25 runoff primary.
Former Mayor C. W. Davis of McAllen was nominated to oppose Democrat Hubert Hudson of Brownsville in the 27th State Senatorial District.

Demolished

Pictured are the remains of the Larlat Cafe at Monticello, Utah, a uranium mining town. An explosion ripped the brick and cinder block building apart during the busy dinner hour, killing 14 persons and injuring 26 others. In the foreground is the pole that held the cafe sign — all that is left standing. The blast is believed to have been caused from leaking natural gas.

Butler, CBS In Row Over Video Film

CHICAGO (AP)—Neither CBS nor Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler was budging today in a dispute over a CBS decision not to televise a film shown to Democratic convention delegates Monday night.
And last night, CBS omitted a second film from its television coverage of the Democratic convention session.
NBC, which carried the Monday film depicting Democratic party history, did not carry the movie last night — a short clip from the picture "The Best Years of Our Lives." ABC carried both the Monday night film and the one last night, which was used to introduce Harold Russell, a veterans' leader. Russell starred in the original picture.
The dispute started Monday night when Butler told the convention "a major network" — which he later identified as CBS — had gone back on a months-old commitment to carry the film on party history. He contended the film was part of the keynote speech by Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee. CBS and the other networks televised Clement's address.

VENUS RADIO SIGNALS NOT ARTIFICIAL

HOUSTON (AP)—Dr. John Kraus of Ohio State University, who says he has picked up radio signals from the planet Venus, said yesterday they probably came from an atmospheric disturbance similar to thunderstorms.
Kraus, an electronic engineer and astronomer, grinned aside queries as to whether the signals were sent by intelligent beings.
They "may be related to some type of lightning discharge but the origin is not known," Kraus said. However, he added, "it is probably some atmospheric disturbance similar to thunderstorms on earth."

Arizonans Shine At Demo Meet

CHICAGO (AP)—Cowboy hats at the Democratic national convention this year are being worn by Arizonans, not Texans, and the women wear theirs everywhere.
"We're having a peek of fun," Mrs. Frances Weedon of Phoenix said today.
The Arizonans added something Texans can't boast about: they coated their hats with Arizona copper and nothing gleams brighter in a convention mob.
A dozen women in the Arizona delegation, including gray-haired grandmothers, walk around with the bright sombreros atop their curls.
Mrs. Weedon, who said she's been "a good Democrat for 45 years," nominated Innes Edwards for vice president at the 1952 convention.
There's another woman here who likes to be called "the Old Gray Mare of Pennsylvania Democrats." She is 82-year-old Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller. At the 1924 convention she became the first woman to receive a vote for the presidential nomination. She made seconding speeches for Al Smith in 1924 and 1928, and for Franklin Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936.

Daniel 'Ordered' To Run, Says Foe

By WHITEY SAWYER
Associated Press Staff Writer
Ralph Yarborough charged Tuesday night that his gubernatorial runoff opponent, Sen. Pricc Daniel, was ordered to run for governor.
Meanwhile, Daniel told a drought meeting at San Antonio, "I hate to see our government treat people of foreign countries in disaster situations better than they do our own people who are facing this disaster—drought."
Earlier, Yarborough said 22 Texas newspaper editors had joined in a demand that Daniel appear with him in a public debate.
Yarborough charged that Daniel "received his orders in Houston" several months ago.
"My opponent should tell the voters of Texas who gave him orders to come back to Texas and run who caused him to back-track on his promise to resign from the U.S. Senate if he ran for governor," Yarborough asserted in a television speech.
"Who ordered him not to resign? What pledge did he have to take? Who told him who would take his place in the Senate?" Yarborough asked.
After the television speech, Yarborough spoke to his Harris County campaign workers. He pointed out that Daniel had accused him of being supported by such outside interests as Walter Reuther and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

"I've never had a penny from outside interests in my campaigns," he said. "I don't know Walter Reuther, wouldn't recognize him if he should walk in right now. I never heard of the NAACP contributing to any political campaign in Texas. I know it hasn't contributed to mine," Yarborough said.
He asserted that "the insiders in the veterans land scandal and the fly-by-night insurance promoters, every single one, is supporting my opponent."
Daniel spoke at the drought meeting at the invitation of W.S. Pickett of Karnes City, who presided over the gathering of farmers, ranchers and businessmen.
Daniel charged that officials of the U.S. Agriculture Department have not properly interpreted authority given them by Congress in the matter of dispensing credit and other forms of drought relief.
"I have before me 11 provisions for drought assistance by the federal government that can be applied if they will use the authority already given them," the senator said.
The addition of the production was in line with a policy outlined by R. L. Tollett, president, in the annual financial statement. He said that special emphasis was being placed upon increasing Cosden's crude oil reserves both by acquisition and exploration.

4th Streeters Protest Values

The city hall this morning was thronged with citizens complaining of recent increases in city and school tax evaluations.
At 11:30 a.m. today, 34 had registered to speak to the board of equalization, and at that time, only nine had finished their consultations.
The board consists of J. W. Pursler, George O'Brien, and M. R. Koger. Working with the board today in hearing the cases are the school and city tax collectors, J. O. Haygood and Perry Johnson, respectively.
The sessions are slated for today and Thursday, but officials said if the crowds continued, an extra session Friday might have to be scheduled.
Most of the citizens were present to air their complaints against the sharp increases of evaluation on Fourth Street. The board felt that since the street had been made a part of highway 80 that values there should be comparable to Third, Fourth Street was not a part of U. S. 80 on Jan. 1, 1955 but was at that time this year.
The board made adjustments on the property alone unless improvements were made. Hike in property rates were as much as 300 per cent in some instances, but leaving the building evaluation bases the same cut the percentage of total increase.
Parts of the street were not paved Jan. 1, 1955, and paving of the street was considered in raising evaluations, too.
A few business establishments affected but not by the Fourth Street changes were present to check of their evaluations in proportion with others, but the main part of the crowd was Fourth Street officials.
City officials said that the people started arriving at the commission room — where the board is hearing the cases — shortly after the offices opened at 8 a.m.

CROSS IS BURNED ON LAWN OF IKE'S TEXAS BIRTHPLACE

DENISON (AP)—A burning cross, traditionally the symbol of the Ku Klux Klan, was found on the edge of the lawn of the President Eisenhower birthplace here last night.
Police Chief Paul Borum dismissed the incident as the work of a crank.
The cross members were held together by automobile tire inner tubes and the cross was supported by stones at its base.
A nearby resident, Mrs. Monte Jones, reported the incident to police.
The Eisenhower birthplace recently was re-built and restored at a cost of about $15,000. The President lived here only a short time before his parents moved to Kansas.
Isolated cross burnings have occurred in Texas since the Supreme Court ruling on school integration. Police generally have called them the work of pranksters or cranks.

Victory Possible On First Ballot

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Adlai Stevenson bandwagon rolled to within 34 votes of a first ballot nomination today on the basis of Associated Press tabulations of delegate caucuses and unofficial preferences.
Arkansas was the latest to climb aboard, following the lead of Michigan and New Jersey — although Arkansas qualified its stand by saying the civil rights platform plank must be acceptable to the South.
Counting in Arkansas, the AP tabulation at 12:55 p.m. EST today gave:
Stevenson ..... 652 1/2
Harriman ..... 240
Others ..... 259 1/2
Uncommitted ..... 220
Needed to nominate: 686 1/2.
Michigan jumped shortly after midnight, agreeing to drop a commitment to Gov. Mennen Williams and split its 44 votes 31 1/2 to Stevenson, 11 to Averell Harriman, 1/2 to Sen. Stuart Symington and 1 uncommitted.
Officially, for the time being, that shift was for the second ballot but Williams himself was trying for a first ballot release with indications he would get it.
New Jersey was next, voting in caucus to throw its whole 38 votes to Stevenson. That was a net gain of 29 1/2 for Stevenson who already had 6 1/2 there. The New Jersey shift is effective at once with no first ballot qualification.
Then came Arkansas's qualified move.
Stevenson's net increase there was 18. The delegation of 26 is bound by the unit rule and until the decision was made the tabulation had divided the group according to its stated preference. Eight had come out in favor of Stevenson.
The only rough spot in evidence was a possible convention battle tonight over a proposed civil rights plank speaking of the vasty important consequences flowing from the Supreme Court's racial desegregation decisions.
Barring an important shift of delegate strength should the civil rights battle erupt, Stevenson seemed to be in.
Stevenson scored his gains despite a bitter 11th hour battle that former President Harry S. Truman was waging for Averell Harriman. Truman called a news conference and characterized Stevenson as a candidate who "lacks the kind of fighting spirit we need to win." He said he would stick with Harriman "until the last dog dies."
But even as Truman was punching away, the New Jersey delegation caucused and voted to give all its 36 votes to Stevenson on the first ballot tomorrow night.
When word of New Jersey's move reached them, some members of the Truman team agreed that the fight was all over.
The whole drive had been concentrated on keeping enough "in-vorte seats" in the field to prevent Stevenson's nomination on an early ballot.
"It's all over now," two men, in constant contact with Truman's drive, told a reporter. "What the boss will do next is start drafting a speech supporting Stevenson."

Although Truman said yesterday that Stevenson couldn't win if nominated, he backtracked on that today. He said Stevenson could win with help from "The Old Man from Missouri"—meaning himself.
Stevenson's own reaction to the news as to New Jersey and Michigan was a smile and the comment: "Things are breaking very well."
With Stevenson's campaign again rolling, it appeared probable there would be only one roll call when the convention gets down to picking its nominee tomorrow night.
Tonight, the delegates will look over and pass on the platform proposed by a committee which has been sweating over it for two weeks.
If the platform as finally adopted is acceptable to the South, a big block of uncommitted delegates from that section is ready to go for Stevenson, making a landslide first ballot nomination highly probable.
One of the Southern delegations is Tennessee's with 32 votes pledged for Gov. Frank G. Clement, convention keynoter who is angling for second place on the ticket.
While they had no commitments, the Stevenson forces had the public word of Gov. Frank J. Lausche, the favorite son of Ohio's 58-vote delegation, that he is not supporting Harriman for the nomination.
Undecided Wisconsin gave Stevenson a 4-2 edge over Harriman in a poll of its 26-vote delegation.
George Rock, head of the Colorado delegation, indicated he may announce all of the state's 20 votes for Stevenson and let Harriman supporters in the group challenge him on the convention floor.

Thinking

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas was in a contemplative mood at a meeting of the Texas Democrats in Chicago who are boosting his status as a prospect for the party's presidential nomination.

Lyndon Will Reveal Plans Of Texans

CHICAGO (AP)—The Texas delegation's attitude toward the platform including the civil rights plank will be expressed on the floor of the Democratic Convention, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson said today.
He made the statement just before the drafting subcommittee's proposals on civil rights were made public. A few minutes later, his headquarters announced he would have no comment on the proposals until he has had a chance to study them carefully.
Other members of the Texas delegation, Vann M. Kennedy of Corpus Christi—a close political associate of Johnson—was a member of the drafting committee.
Johnson's headquarters said he might reserve comment until the entire platform committee acts.
Johnson had just come from a meeting with members of the Platform Committee and said that while he knew of no compromise, he had seen some drafts of the proposed plank.
"It is not going to be something that everybody in the North feels will solve all the problems, nor something everyone in the South would urge on their children, but it will do no violence to their feelings," Johnson said.
The Senate Democratic leader again brushed off questions on particular candidates, saying that adoption of a platform on which a Democrat could win was the "first thing" to dispose of.

Texas Hit By Thunderstorms

By The Associated Press
Severe thunderstorms hit parts of Texas Tuesday while most of the state baked under record high temperatures.
Forecasts for Wednesday also called for hot weather with isolated thundershowers. Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from 83 at Abilene to 87 at Dalhart.
Rain was reported early Wednesday at El Paso.
A thunderstorm with high winds hit two miles southwest of Arlington Tuesday. The storm, between Dallas and Fort Worth, brought up to 2.1 inches of rain, caved in a roof, blew down power lines and uprooted trees.
Winds lifted a hay barn at the John Grafa farm in southwest Tarrant County, hurled it 100 yards and demolished it. No injuries were reported.
A thunderstorm dropped 1.55 inches of rain on Santa Rosa in the Rio Grande Valley near Weslaco.
High winds hit Rusk in East Texas, snapping trees and knocking down telephone poles.

Cosden Adds To Production

Cosden Petroleum Corporation today announced the purchase of Newman Bros Drilling Company's one-third working interest in Blanco Oil, et al properties in the Jor-Mill field of Borden County.
Acquisition of the interest in 17 wells on seven different leases provides a net monthly production to Cosden in excess of 10,000 barrels under present production allowances.
Marvin M. Miller, senior vice president of Cosden, said that the transfer of the Newman Bros properties was effective as of July 1, 1956. No purchase price was listed.
The addition of the production was in line with a policy outlined by R. L. Tollett, president, in the annual financial statement. He said that special emphasis was being placed upon increasing Cosden's crude oil reserves both by acquisition and exploration.

Hodge Sentenced To 10-Year Term

CHICAGO (AP)—Orville Hodge, ousted Illinois state auditor, was sentenced today to 10 years in a federal prison for misapplying more than $800,000 in federal insured bank funds.
Hodge was sentenced to 10 years in the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, West Virginia, for misapplying more than $800,000 in federal insured bank funds.

Georgia Unit Balks At 'Rights' Plank

CHICAGO (AP)—The Georgia delegation to the Democratic National Convention agreed today to vote against the platform drafted by the convention platform committee.
The Georgia group adopted a resolution saying:
"Resolved that the chairman of the Georgia delegation be directed to vote against the platform as it is now written and that he be directed to vote against any amendment that would further challenge the Southern way of life and the principles of the Democratic party of Georgia."
CHICAGO (AP)—The Democratic party's proposed civil rights platform plank said today the Supreme Court's desegregation decisions "have brought consequences of vast importance." But the draft said "we reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."
The Democratic party emphatically reaffirms its support of the historic principle that ours is a government of laws and not of men; it recognizes the Supreme Court of the United States as one of the three constitutional and coordinated branches of the federal government, superior to and separate from any political party, and the decisions of which are part of the law of the land. We condemn the efforts of the Republican party to make it appear that this tribunal is a part of the Republican party.
While the five Dixie members cast their votes against the wording, most members of the drafting group said they regarded the section as moderate enough to avoid a serious party fight.

OWEN C. TAYLOR
He'll keep singing

Choir Director Ends 30 Years At Lamesa Church

LAMESA—Nearly 30 years of tradition ended this week at the First Baptist Church, when the resignation of Owen C. Taylor, director of music for the church since the third Sunday in May, 1927, was accepted. Taylor, who has resigned numerous times orally, and three times in writing during the years only to find his resignations unaccepted, directed the sanctuary choir for the last time in an official capacity Sunday.

This week, James R. Robertson, who assumed the duties of director of education and music August 15, will also take over the responsibilities which for almost three decades have rested on Taylor's shoulders.

When he took over the choir at the age of 25, there were 20 members in the group and church membership was near the 700 mark. Today, 1,300 church members can worship with a 43-member choir, robed and well trained, at the regular services of the church. In addition there are four other choirs at the church composed of young people, intermediates, juniors and beginners, who receive weekly training in the church music program.

Back in 1927, the congregation met in an old frame building, and Taylor stood behind the upright piano to direct his choir. On Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day, the church moved into its first brick building, demolished by fire Nov. 4, 1951. For many months, services were held in the school auditorium.

PLATFORM READIED

Vice Presidency Is GOP Talk Topic

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—While 10 Republican groups tackled the 1956 party platform today, lobby conversations waxed hotter over the topic of the vice presidency. The governors of California and Maryland said again they are "available" although assuring they are making no campaign for the post of Vice President Nixon. Leonard W. Hall, GOP National Committee chairman, told a press conference yesterday he still feels the ticket will be Eisenhower and Nixon. He was quick to defend Nixon against charges of the Democrats in Chicago that the vice president is the GOP "hatchet man." At another press conference, Maryland's Gov. Theodore McKel-din said he was not seeking the nomination and had so informed Harold Stassen, the presidential aide who is waging a "dump Nixon" campaign. "But if I was asked by the proper officials if I would accept I would accept, of course," McKel-din said. He identified "proper officials" as "the White House." In Sacramento, California's Gov. Goodwin Knight repeated that he would feel honored to be nominated. Harry Finks, a vice president of the California State Federation of Labor, said in Vero Beach he would place Knight's name in nomination for the vice presidency. Finks is a Knight-controlled delegate to the GOP convention opening here Monday. Chairman Hall, in the midst of parrying press conference questions about Nixon, teed off on former President Harry Truman. He said the keynote speech at Tennessee's Gov. Frank Clement contained "half truths, distortions and some outright falsehoods." Hall suggested Truman was back of all this and already has set the tone for a rough campaign. "We'll meet it," Hall said. "Ten subcommittees called open hearings today on such a variety of subjects as civil rights, agriculture, foreign policy, national defense, taxation and fiscal policy."

Wilson Tells VFW Of U. S. Strength

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said today he was confident the United States has "the weapons and the military power to inflict a disastrous defeat on any enemy." Wilson said, however, in a speech prepared for delivery that military men have differences of opinion on how to keep U. S. defenses secure. He spoke before the 57th Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Last night he stood in the reviewing stand as the VFW parade glittered and blared its way through Dallas. Police estimated that 100,000 persons watched the spectacle. Some 10,000 persons took part. Bands, drill teams and high stepping majorettes strutted down the streets while a four-plane flight of F80 Shooting Star jets streaked overhead. Close behind came a flight of giant B47 and B36 bombers. Wilson said he felt that a sound defense required a proper balance. "You can't depend on any one weapon or any one service alone," he told the veterans. "Our planning must be designed to meet our requirements. New weapons, new equipment, new situations have required a complete review of our military posture. This in essence has been called the 'new look' in military affairs."

he said. Wilson said in an interview last night he favored Vice President Nixon for president in the event President Eisenhower should not run for re-election. "I have always thought very well of Vice President Nixon and in recent years I have found him a very capable man," Wilson said. Wilson denied saying the Suez Canal situation was minor. "I never really said it was minor," he said. "I said it had a minor effect on our defense budget and planning. It is a difficult problem." Earlier, Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Randolph McC. Pate asserted American boys can "whip the pants off anything the Kremlin can put on the field of battle."

Truck Wheel Pays Visit To Kitchen OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Ralph K. Steeds was thankful he ate his lunch quickly. Fifteen minutes after finishing the meal, the right front wheel of a large truck flew into his kitchen and bounced around the room. Highway patrol trooper Leo Maxwell said that anyone in the kitchen at the time would have been killed or seriously injured. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Betsy Slows, Ends Threat To U. S. Mainland

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Betsy slowed to a snail's pace today, greatly reducing a threat to the U. S. mainland with a swing to the north and indications of a still more northeasterly turn. Gordon Dunn, chief storm fore-caster at the Miami Weather Bureau, said last night "new England has nothing to worry about from this storm."

Meanwhile, a new area of strong winds and rain squalls far out in the tropical Atlantic indicated a new storm may be brewing in the section where Betsy was born last Friday. At 5 a. m., EST, Hurricane Betsy was centered about 210 miles east of Melbourne, Fla. It was moving toward the north at only 7 m.p.h. and is expected to continue moving toward the north or north-northeast during the next 12 hours with a more northeasterly swing after that. This would take it away from the mainland and out into the open Atlantic. Betsy had winds of 120 m.p.h. over a small area near the center and hurricane winds extended out 70 miles to the northeast, with gales 150 miles to the northeast of the center and 100 miles in other directions. The San Juan Weather Bureau said a new storm may be forming in the area where Betsy was born last Friday. A ship reported last night that it encountered winds estimated at 40 to 50 miles an hour about 700 miles east of Puerto Rico. An observation plane was sent to the spot to investigate. Weather-men explained it could be only a band of unsettled weather. Betsy was still getting most of the attention. The Weather Bureau, in a bulletin at 2 a. m., said: "A hurricane watch is still in effect from Vero Beach, Fla., to Brunswick, Ga., but indications are that the threat is lessening to that area and that the hurricane watch can probably be discontinued later this morning."

The storm battered the Bahamas Island of San Salvador Monday night, leaving many islanders homeless and knocking out the U. S. Air Force's installation for tracking guided missiles fired from Patrick Air Force Base at Cocoa, Fla. Providence, R. I. (AP)—Motorist Philip L. Billings, 23, of East Hartford, Conn., got lost yesterday. He asked Kenneth R. Pelkey 34, of Enfield, Conn., a motorist who was halted at a traffic light, for the road to East Hartford. "Follow me," said Pelkey, Billings did. Both got arrested for speeding, and were fined $15.

Camera Shy? Demo Meeting As Dramatic As A Catalogue

By SAUL PETT CHICAGO (AP)—If by some trick of electronics the Democratic National Convention appeared exciting to you on television last night, you'd better trade in your set. Considered strictly as a show, the party's performance in Chicago's cavernous livestock amphitheater had all the drama of a mail order catalogue. There was little of the fire-eating whoop and holler exploded on opening night by Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, the keynote.

2,000 Stage Anti-Negro Riot

CHICAGO (AP)—A throng of 2,000 engaged in an anti-Negro demonstration last night less than two miles from the Democratic National Convention. Robert Ryan, deputy chief of the uniformed police, said the crowd assembled on the basis of a groundless rumor that a Negro family planned to move into a white neighborhood on the Southwest Side. The demonstrators were dispersed by a detail of 60 policemen. Before things quieted down, three windows in the home of Santo J. Loverde, white, at 2800 W. 38th St., were smashed by stones, and the automobile of a policeman who lives in the neighborhood was damaged. Ryan said the disturbance apparently was touched off by a friendly visit paid to Loverde by seven members of a Negro family he had met while he was on military duty in Seattle, Wash., in 1946. Loverde said the visitors, en route from Seattle to West Virginia, were Mrs. Viola Barnes, her five stepchildren, and her son-in-law. After the demonstration began, Loverde, a city employe, took his guests to the Illinois Central Railroad station, escorted by a squad of police. The damaged automobile belonged to policeman Ronald Railson, a son-in-law of Mrs. Loverde, who was on duty at the Democratic convention hall, the International Amphitheatre, when the trouble began.

Chicago's cavernous livestock amphitheater had all the drama of a mail order catalogue. There was little of the fire-eating whoop and holler exploded on opening night by Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, the keynote. A warm ovation greeted bald, dour Sam Rayburn, speaker of the House, when he took over the gavel as permanent chairman. "Mr. Sam" accused the Republicans of mishandling foreign affairs and said President Eisenhower must bear that responsibility. In passing, Rayburn noted, "We're not going to make the health of the President an issue." This, apparently, is becoming one of the most frequently mentioned non-issues of the convention. The next featured speaker, might have been expected to provide some dramatic irony. Just four years ago, in the same hall, he was working furiously for the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower. Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon returned as a Democrat and excoriated the Eisenhower administration as "government by big business regency." But neither Rayburn nor Morse could ever be accused of inciting a mob to riot. While their appearances drew a noisy hand and waving of state banners, their rhetoric was interrupted only spasmodically by scattered applause. Many of the blue delegate seats stared back empty at the speakers. Most of those who remained on the premises were busy not listening. They read newspapers, milled in the aisles or clotted around ubiquitous TV interviewers, the fellows with the fantastic mobile equipment that looks like it came from outer space. Before the convention, there was considerable talk about the need for streamlining and dramatizing the big political clambakes for the sake of the television audience. Thus far, the Democrats have re-

It Is Wise To Look Far Ahead

Filing of a presentation with the State Board of Water Engineers by the Colorado River Municipal Water District for a study on the upper Colorado River may well prove a significant step toward conservation of potable water for the area.

Feasibility of a possible lake somewhere in the southern extremity of Mitchell County is something that will have to be proven from several angles such as supply, quality, cost, and market. The state board will not ultimately grant permits unless need is justified; investors will not take the considerable amount of bonds required to finance such a project unless it can be shown that sales of water will be sufficient to pay out the project.

So, it is quite evident that there is more to such a proposal for another area reservoir than an enthusiastic desire to construct dams and pipelines. Yet, despite the formidable proportions of the new study, it should be undertaken in view of the trends of consumption during the first five operative years of the CRMWD. The three member cities have been using substantially more water than anticipated and their rate of growth has been 25 per cent faster than plotted on demand curves. Even if rate of growth were to level out comparable to original estimates, that would still leave us a step higher in consumption than expected. Right now we have an abundance of water, but that does not necessarily mean that this would be true 20-25 years hence, assuming our region continues its development.

A point well taken is that five years were required from the time that the CRMWD idea was first tackled until the vision became a reality with letting of first contracts. The new study could—and probably will—take several years, thus it is wise to be about it.

Optimism Depends Upon Unity

Balloting will get under way at the National Democratic Convention in Chicago today, and the picture may crystallize quickly. By the second or third ballot at the latest, it should become apparent whether Adlai Stevenson can tip the balance and start the avalanche in his direction, or whether opposing and neutral forces have succeeded in holding him off without breaking ranks. Best appraisals are that despite Harry Truman's endorsement of Harriman, the nomination will go to Stevenson.

Although Sen. Lyndon Johnson has been rocketed into a position of extreme influence, it is not likely that he will do more than serve as a regional depository of delegate votes. In an extreme case of deadlock, he would of necessity be one of the key figures in producing the stalemate and thus weaken his position as a darkhorse. However, the senator is in a position to effect best compromises and to force extremists to yield here and there. If the convention cannot preserve some acceptable cover of unity, the new optimism generated by the keynoter, Gov. Clement, and others will not be possessed of much substance.

But if the party emerges with a platform and candidate under which most elements will unite, the campaign could be both interesting and close. There will be a great deal more slam-bang politicking than four years ago.

Truman Might Learn From Churchill

CHICAGO—In the months immediately after he fell heir to the Presidency, following the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman complained bitterly of the loneliness and the isolation of the lofty office in which he found himself. He told his callers that he knew at least a hundred—sometimes he said a thousand—men who were better qualified than he was to be President.

But nearly eight years in the White House and a victory in an election campaign in which everyone counted him out gave Truman a different view of himself and the world. Power is a heady wine and so is the constant adulation that comes from the associates of a man in the most powerful of all offices.

The former President said he had reached his decision to support Gov. Averell Harriman for the Democratic nomination after he had talked with many people in many walks of life. But the fact is that in his four years out of power he has been surrounded by many of the men who were close to him when he was in the White House. These have been for the most part the lesser luminaries who if they could not shine in his reflected glory would not shine at all.

Thus Truman has in a sense been isolated in the same sense that he was isolated in the Presidency. The men around him, the ex-officio holders, have told him day in and day out what a great man he is and how potent is his voice in the Democratic party and the country. No man is immune to that kind of flattery. Harriman has himself played this game. He has never missed an opportunity to flatter the former President and to declare that only a Trumanesque, give-or-take type of campaign could possibly win for the Democratic nominee. This is, of course, equating 1956 with 1948 when Truman campaigned with the full power of the Presidency at his back.

Whether Truman has succeeded in stopping Stevenson will be determined in the next few days. The Stevenson strategists believe their man will still be nominated, although they frankly admit that any hope of a first ballot nomination is now ruled out.

Except among the ardent partisans of Harriman, there are few here among delegates or observers who believe that the New York Governor can himself get the nomination except after a quarrel between the North and South wings of the party so fierce as to make it an empty honor.

But what Truman has done is to further the warfare among the quarreling factions in his party; the factions of the frustrated and the embittered might-have-beens that come to the surface when a political party is out of power. This is bound to have a damaging effect in the fall even though the delegates finally unite behind Stevenson.

Truman was so obviously pleased with himself as he walked into the jam-packed Blackstone ballroom where, by the shrewd suspense he had carefully create, he was bound to get the widest possible coverage of all the mass media. This was his show, this was his party. This was power.

He had had a great deal to do with nominating Stevenson in 1952 and now he was tapping another candidate. One of Stevenson's problems four years ago was standing clear of the Truman embrace so that he could speak to the American people on his own. He respected and admired Truman, but he knew he could never conduct a Truman-type campaign and he understood, too, the serious handicap of many things in the Truman record as that record had been magnified by an overwhelmingly critical press. It takes little imagination to see how Harriman as a candidate would be subordinated to Truman.

During his recent European tour, where he enjoyed so hugely the homage of a Europe grateful for the Marshall Plan and the other bold and courageous moves of the Truman Administration, the former President called on former Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Here was a striking contrast, for Churchill has in fact turned control and direction of his party over to others. He gives no public statements, no interviews. His role in the British election of 1955 was to speak briefly in his own constituency and to campaign for his son-in-law, Christopher Soames. He carefully shunned the spotlight.

Truman might take a lesson in retirement from his old friend Churchill. But at 72, four years removed from office, he has chosen the role of king-maker. It is a role that has often in the past broken those who undertook it and left them only with the sour sense of defeat and recrimination.

Keep 'Em Busy

BLACKBURG, Va. (AP) — Be a friend to your hen — and get more eggs.

Agricultural officials here say there's such a thing as hurt feelings in the poultry world. So speak softly, act gently and feed regularly. You can't expect as many eggs, they say, if you frighten the hens, handle them roughly or feed at irregular hours.

Demos Holding A Dull Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — This is a dull Democratic convention. No great visible enthusiasm here for the candidates for nomination, any of them. There is just cold horse-trading in hotel rooms for delegate votes.

Things may pick up. They'd better, if the Democrats hope to win the election.

President Eisenhower looks like an odds-on winner next November. He'll look even more so unless the Democrats can pump more life into their campaign than they have shown in their convention.

One wit, thinking of the reaction of people at home and what they've been seeing on their TV screens — old-fashioned speeches, hackneyed phrases, the same old cliches, synthetic floor demonstrations — said:

"This convention has set television back 15 years."

And the Republican convention in San Francisco next week will be even duller unless there's a fight over renominating Vice President Nixon.

The whole dragged-out nature of this convention—using Monday and Tuesday for speeches that could have been cut in half or left unsaid altogether—caused some wonder.

Isn't it about time the politicians got wise to themselves and began thinking in modern terms by either shortening their conventions or putting new ideas into them?

And somewhere there must be a prize waiting for the first person who can prove that a brass band — there are brass bands for the candidates here — ever won a single vote for anyone.

Hay Fever Season Begins

NEW YORK (AP) — This is "S" Day—the "S" stands for sneeze—for five million Americans.

It is the opening of the annual hay fever season, when man's best friend is no longer his dog but his pocket handkerchief — or the nearest air conditioning machine.

For the next month the land will resound with the wheezing and sneezing of more than five million U. S. victims of this peculiar allergy, which seems to be as old as and as mysterious of origin as man himself.

Beware the watery eyed sufferer the next 31 days. Avoid the mischievous temptation to tell him that hay fever, like seasickness, is all in the mind, or that "it's no worse than an ordinary cold."

Hay fever is no joke to the man who has it. Nor is it any joke to industry. The U. S. Public Service estimates hay fever costs 24,750,000 lost work days each summer.

Dr. Rudolph L. Mayer, discoverer of Pyribenzime, an antihistamine used in its treatment, lists allergies — hay fever is a leading form — among the first three chronic diseases in America, exceeded in number of cases only by heart ailments and mental illness.

Hay fever is peculiarly prevalent in America, oddly enough, because of our prosperity. It is caused by airborne giant ragweed pollen. In Europe and Asia, where almost every scrap of land is carefully tilled, there is no place for ragweed to spread, and the incidence of hay fever is low. But here ragweed has bourgeoned on acres spared from the plow, and all attempts to stamp it out have failed.

Antihistamines, which at first seemed to offer a satisfactory way of alleviating the discomforts of hay fever, turned out to have a drawback. They made some people sleepy, thus were potentially dangerous to truckdriver, salesman, and others who spend long hours on the highways.

Now a new drug called pimizine, a combination of antihistamines and ritalin, a stimulant against fatigue and mental depression, has been introduced. Dr. Jerome J. Sievers, chief of the allergy service at Los Angeles Children's Hospital, tested the drug and found it gave relief in many cases and had few side effects.

Plant Shift

MORGANFIELD, Ky. (AP) — Neat, little rows of burley tobacco were growing right in Mrs. Sam McElroy's flower bed.

Mrs. McElroy planted them herself, and, until the other day, she thought they were petunias.

She had planted the petunia seed in a tobacco bed and then transplanted some young plants herself. Her husband said the petunias were doing fine — in his tobacco patch.

Around The Rim
The Great News Saga Of Old Rip

Circumstance plays a bigger role in the arena of human affairs than many of us admit. Even the big news story today might be a dud tomorrow. Yet, ingenuity and enterprise sometime can be the factors which tip the scale between mere trivia and international circulation.

Sush is the case of Old Rip, the famous sleeping horned toad from Eastland. Boyce House, who parlayed Rip into a White House visit and established quite a reputation for himself, recalled some of the sequence of the events.

Eastland was preparing to build a new courthouse back in the early 20's, and this entailed demolishing the old temple of justice. Boyce was a country newspaperman revelling in the heady drama being unfolded in the Ranger area. He made due note of plans to retrieve the contents of the old cornerstone, which included a horned toad.

No one expected to find more than the leathery mummy of this creature, if that much, but Boyce, with a promoter's instinct for a news angle, duly chronicled the prospect. He took pains to inject the question of whether old horned toads really died, or just faded away into suspended animation. And then he almost forgot it.

On the Saturday at the hour the cornerstone was exhumed, he stood on the outer fringe of a small crowd. Proceedings were slow so he stepped across the street and went upstairs to call on an attorney when he heard a yell go up from the street. He hurried down the stairs and someone said: "They've found the frog!"

Boyce pushed in close but he couldn't get up to where he could actually see the cornerstone. Then up popped the head of a rawboned gentleman, an incredulous look on his face.

"The damned thing is alive," he blurted.

Boyce didn't actually see the toad but he had seen enough. He rattled off stories to his clients, including one to the Associated Press.

His advance story had laid the seed bed, but now he bumped into skepticism. And here again circumstance played a big part. The Associated Press called on Max Bentley at Abilene as the editor of the largest newspaper in the immediate area to see what was his reaction to the story.

"I'm plastering it on the front page, that's what I think of it," advised Max. That was enough for the AP.

The third phase of circumstance was now at work. There was a dearth of exciting news on the wire — anywhere. Editors found this tale of old Rip, awakening after years of sleep in the cornerstone, a fascinating tonic for their needs. The thing began to snowball. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, which cautiously had pigeonholed the yarn on Sunday, went overnight.

Overnight Old Rip became a household word. On a Chicago street car on a strap-hanger said "they say he was flat as a dollar," and his companion replied: "You would be too, if you had a courthouse on your chest."

Old Rip got so famous that he went on tour — and to Washington. Silent Cal Coolidge had his Yankee curiosity stirred. There was a hitch in the plans somewhere, and Rip was a trifle late in arriving.

"Keep the President waiting 10 minutes," twinkled Boyce. I don't know whether there was circumstance to that, or the fine hand of a shrewd publicist who could see the news value of a West Texas horned toad keeping the chief executive of the land cooling his heels.

The Gallup Poll

Most GOP's Favor Nixon Over Herter

PRINCETON, N. J. — Although Vice President Richard M. Nixon is still the favorite of an overwhelming majority of rank-and-file Republican voters for the Number Two spot on the party's ticket, his lead over Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Herter has been trimmed slightly since an institute check in May.

Nixon today commands the support of 74 per cent of all Republican voters for the GOP vice-presidential nomination. Three months ago, in May, Nixon was the choice of 83 per cent of Republicans.

Interviewing in the latest survey was conducted during the week of Aug. 2 to 9. A representative sample of Republican voters in all sections of the country was asked this question:

"If, in the Republican convention, the choice for Vice President narrows down to Richard Nixon and Gov. Christian Herter, which would you prefer to have win?"

The vote of all Republicans questioned in the survey:

NIXON or HERTER?	Per cent
(Republican Voters Only)
Nixon	74
Herter	14
No preference, no opinion	12
The May survey was based on a similar question, as follows:
"Suppose the choice for Vice President were narrowed down to Nixon and Governor Herter of Massachusetts. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"
The vote of all Republicans, as reported on May 18:
NIXON or HERTER?	Per cent
(Republican Voters Only)
Nixon	83
Herter	10
No preference, no opinion	7
Up to now, Governor Herter has given no indication that he is interested in the nomination.

In addition, the one great problem facing his backers is the fact that, while more than three times as many voters know Mr. Herter is today than was the case four months ago, he is still not widely known to the voters of the country.

In today's survey, a total of 35 per cent of all voters questioned were able to give a reasonably correct identification of Mr. Herter.

An analysis of the vote of Independents in today's survey shows a majority favoring Nixon, although Governor Herter runs considerably stronger among this group of voters than he does among regular Republicans.

Here is the vote of all Independents questioned in the survey:

NIXON or HERTER?	Per cent
(Independent Voters Only)
Nixon	54
Herter	22
No preference, no opinion	24
When the vote of those Republicans and Independents who could correctly pass the identification test is compared with the figures reported above, the results are virtually the same.
The fact that a vice-presidential possibility is now well known has never been a controlling factor in U. S. politics in the past.
Two weeks after the 1952 nominating conventions, the Institute found that at that time only 45 per cent of voters were able to identify Richard Nixon as the GOP vice-presidential nominee and only 32 per cent could correctly name Sen. John J. Sparkman as the Democratic vice-presidential nominee.
One in every four voters could name both.

Pogo For President?

Okefenokee Delegates Are Switching

CHICAGO, Aug. 15—Pogo the Possum candidate, today instructed his delegates to grab any winning side that was open. Speaking for the possum, Walt Kelly, boy cartoonist, said that Pogo had "learned a lot. He is saving it all up for San Francisco."

POGO CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS, Chicago—(By transatlantic phone) — In a surprise move 456 Pogo delegates today tried to switch to another candidate. "We'll take anybody who will give us a place to sit," said the leader of the revolt. The Pogo delegation is unseated and has so far failed in its efforts to be recognized. Several were recognized by the police on the outskirts of Cicero, Ill., at a late hour last night and were sent back to the Convention Hall where once again they acquired their steadfast patina of anonymity.

"We thought we had a deal cooking with one of the other groups," said spokesman Walt Kelly, "but when they started counting noses they ran headlong into our elephant delegate, who as you know, has quite a nose. By the time they were through counting HIS nose, it was dark and nobody could see the vote. Besides they claimed that the presence of the elephant in our group did nothing to inspire confidence. We admit that seating him, under present prejudiced conditions, would constitute a problem.

"Despite the fact that we are willing to vote with regularity and precision, there does not seem to be too much demand for our votes," Kelly went on. "There is now some doubt that Pogo will try to capture the nomination here and in fact we have offered to join any other large group and sweep the next President of the United States into the nomination here in Chicago. We had a long and bitter fight last night with a number of groups. In spite of any arguments we could bring up, nobody wanted us to join them. This, to me, smacks of a D-E-A-L.

"I will say this: we had a visit from one very important state head last night, at quite a late hour. I don't think he would have walked in boldly and fallen flat in the middle of the suite if it had not been a significant move. The fact that his wife dragged him back to his own room later, muttering apologies and poking him a little with a large umbrella, was, in my opinion, a complete cover-up. This man smelled a little as if he might represent a large bear interest. As Mr. Brophy, our press secretary, has told us many times, 'something definitely was brewing.'"

"Dear Mayor Boyd:

"My mother says if you would move up your clocks, I wouldn't wake up until 5:30, and she would be in a better humor all day.

"Thank you, Bobby Sutor."

Bobby's letter no doubt wasn't the only reason, but afterward Mayfield went on Daylight Saving Time for the first time since World War II.

Better Homes Often Delinquency Source

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Aug. 15 (AP)—The cops picked up Johnny, 16, late one night as he was busily removing the wheels from an automobile in a used car lot. His jolly needed better tires, he explained.

Jane's parents summoned their minister after their 15-year-old daughter's actions with three older boys at a party had been whispered all over town and finally reached their ears.

Bobby, Ellen and Paul, aged 9, 10 and 11, broke into a house and, in two hours, inflicted several thousand dollars in damage: slashing paintings, ripping clothing, gouging antiques with kitchen knives.

Dead end kids? Not in the usual sense, certainly. They were not from leering city slums, not brought up under the laws of the asphalt jungle, not from broken homes. Technically, they're not even juvenile delinquents, because their names never appeared on police or children's court records.

But they are typical of a problem that is giving church, school, police and judicial authorities growing concern — what someone has called the overprivileged lawbreaker.

For these children came from well-to-do families. The fathers of two are professional men. Four of the mothers are active in local organizations. One was president of a P-TA.

Each lives in the suburbs, in this case Westchester and Nassau counties, on the commuting fringe of New York, in one of the many higher-income, go-getter communities which are typical of suburban growth around big cities all over the country. This is the land of the station wagon, the extra-dry martini, and intelligent talk about problem children — other people's children.

Statistics gathered by the federal children's bureau show that some 500,000 boys and girls under 16 went through the nation's children's courts last year. This is only a third of the cases in which children are caught. Other thousands of young people, over 16, are handled by youth courts and adult criminal courts.

And then there are these other thousands of children whose names are never written on a police blotter, who never land in court.

"... In many instances delinquents from better neighborhoods are less likely to come to the attention of the police and courts," said Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) at a Senate subcommittee hearing recently. "School authorities may be more inclined to permit parents of means to work out the problems of their children, for example, than parents with no financial ability and standing."

Recently a quiet survey was made in a wealthy suburban area. Psychiatrists and psychologists, in cooperation with school personnel, examined more than 12,000 students. More than three per cent of the children between 5 and 19 were found to be so disturbed emotionally that they required special treatment and handling which the schools were not equipped to provide.

One educator interested in the survey estimated that the actual number was closer to 1,000 seriously disturbed children, because most of the 300 turned up in schools where teachers were trained to watch for symptoms of distress.

Repeated studies and surveys have shown fairly conclusively that there is no close relationship between family income and behavior, good or bad, in spite of the fact that members of low-income groups are more likely to land in court for misdeeds.

Authorities are convinced that in almost every case of delinquency, on the blotter or not, a study of the situation will turn up one or two parents who are inadequate in one or more ways. And they are coming more and more to believe that community influences play an important part in the bending of the twig.

Litterbug With Different Attitude

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A litterbug with a slightly different attitude was taken to Georgia Street Receiving Hospital for observation after he was seen tossing pieces of green paper from his car.

Police said William Clark, 39, had torn up about $200 to $300 in $20 bills and another $400 in travelers' checks.

Officers said the only explanation he gave was that he quit his job as a fountain clerk at a Hollywood drive-in three days ago and was "feeling bad."

No Jurors Chosen For Brink's Trial

BOSTON (AP)—The trial of eight men charged with the $1,218,211 Brink's robbery — now in its eighth day — was no farther advanced today than the day the case opened in Suffolk Superior Court.

Not a single juror has yet been chosen to hear testimony on the nation's largest cash robbery although Judge Felix Forte has been parading prospective jurors into the court at the rate of 100 a day. Fully 600 men and women were examined for possible jury duty up to yesterday from an available pool of 2,000.

Rayburn Criticizes Ike Foreign Policy

CHICAGO (AP)—The top Democrat in the House of Representatives says the Eisenhower administration hasn't produced "a single new effective contribution toward world peace."

Taking over as permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention, Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn of Texas last night hit at the Republicans for "mis-handling" foreign policy and taking "the most serious risks" with the lives, fortunes and honor of the American people.

At home, he said, the Republicans have practiced a backward labor policy, taken income "out of the pockets" of farm families, and allowed many small businesses to go "to the wall."

Rayburn's induction as permanent chairman was the signal for a boisterous demonstration by the Speaker's fellow Texans in the big hall.

Rapping the gavel, Rayburn halted the demonstration with the smiling observation that "I'm not a candidate for anything."

He is a candidate for re-election to the House, where he already has served for more than 43 years. But he obviously was referring to the fact that most floor demonstrations are staged for candidates for the party's presidential nomination.

Driver Locates Missing Bricks

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—Found: 5,000 missing bricks and the lady who let her front yard be used as storage space.

A truckdriver, bringing the bricks from nearby Burlington, got two flats here. He couldn't jack up the wheels without unloading his cargo, and a lady said he could use her front yard.

Real trouble began when the truckdriver went back to Burlington for another load of bricks and some helpers for reloading the first batch. Then he couldn't find the lady's house and she didn't know who the bricks belonged to.

But now the man has located the house and the 5,000 bricks. "I knew the man would be back sooner or later," said the lady.

Duplicate Atom Engine Tested

WASHINGTON (AP)—A duplicate of the atomic engine which powers the submarine Nautilus has been run continuously at full power for 66 days and nights without refueling.

The Atomic Energy Commission, announcing completion of the test run at its Idaho testing station, said the experiment was made "to prove the reliability and stamina of pressurized water reactors for ship propulsion." It added:

"If the Nautilus itself had made a cruise for this length of time—1,600 hours — she could have steamed at top speed, submerged, around the world and many thousands of miles more."

4,500 Chinese Troops In Burma

MYITKYINA, Northern Burma (AP)—Military sources say at least 4,500 regular Chinese Communist troops are holding positions inside Burmese territory. They were reported giving all indications they are part of a "planned invasion" aimed at seizing and occupying portions of Burma.

Officials revealed July 31 that Red Chinese forces had occupied about 1,000 square miles of Burma's northern territory after clashes with Burmese forces. The poorly defined border in the rugged area has been disputed for years.

Haddix, Simmons Shine As Phils Topple Bucs

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Harvey Haddix, the guy St. Louis "couldn't use," and Curt Simmons, a springtime bust, are having themselves a ball these days even though the Philadelphia Phillies can't seem to make the unexpected boost pay off. The two southpaws each gained their seventh straight victories with a pair of six-hitters last night as the fifth-place Phils swept a two-night double-header with the still plunging Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 and 11-2. The sweep gave the Phils a solid .636 winning percentage since the All-Star game, and they still've been able to move up just one spot in that fast-stepping National League pennant race and yet trail the leaders by 12 games. Philadelphia managed to pick up just half a game on fourth-place St. Louis as the Cardinals rocked Milwaukee 6-2 and prevented the first-place Braves from padding

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Jess Wilbanks of Big Spring is a man who ordinarily doesn't show emotion. Even after he became fascinated with the horse racing game and bought himself some stock, you'd never know Jess had any interest in a race, just by being around him on the day he had a bangtail in competition. He tried to take it all in stride, that is, until his Stone Free went for the big money—something like $10,000 in a $14,000 race at Ruidoso Downs last Saturday. This was something special and Jess, although he still didn't betray the excitement of the $2 bet, fought a battle with his nerves all day. His friends knew tension was building up within him. Stone Free, a great little two-year-old he picked up in California, didn't let him down. Benefiting from a great ride by Herbert Hinojosa, the filly surged at the very end of a four-furlong race to wing home in front. Stone Free is a youngster with a bright future. Track observers say she won't hit her stride until next year. She cost Wilbanks in the neighborhood of $3,000 and has repaid her owner with a remarkable rate of interest. Some say her best distance will be either at 1 1/4 or 1 3/4 miles.

Jolly Kay, owned by Big Springer Bud Tucker, ran her next-to-last race in tying a track record at Ruidoso last Friday. She came back the next day and finished second by inches. That was her swan song. The seven-year-old mare was already in foal when she had her busy weekend. She's due to drop her colt in March. The Air Cobra mare, bred by Herbert Cope and raised by Tucker, has won no fewer than 17 times for the local horseman. Now, she'll be returned here and allowed to continue with her plans for a family.

Although baseball teams usually remain active through September, especially in the Southwest, where the climate favors them, the Webb AFB club has called it quits for the year. Seems the talent is straying from the reservation. Three members of the club—Bill Paschal, Floyd Ritter and Bob McDonald—are due AF discharges shortly. Two others, Art MacKinstry and Ed Aros, will have completed their flight schooling shortly and will be sent elsewhere.

Hank Lauricella, who starred for Tennessee in the Cotton Bowl one year, is now in the construction business with his father, John.

Attendance has fallen so low at the Friday night TV fights in New York that the International Boxing Club has stopped announcing the figures. You'll notice too, that the cameras never stray out over the crowd, for fear of showing too many vacant seats.

According to Lubbock's Charley Gillespie, Wahoo McDaniell of Midland probably lost the outstanding back vote in the North-South all-star football game to New London's Jackie Sledge because of a weakness in blocking.

Webb Defeated In First Game

CLOVIS, N. M., (SC)—Webb AFB of Big Spring faces an uphill fight in the Air Force softball tournament going on here. Webb lost its first game, 4-3, to Walker AFB of Roswell Monday night. Chenoueth was the winning hurler. He yielded five hits. Jack Long was the loser. He was tagged for seven safeties and surrendered two walks. Ed Sproesser of Webb hit the first home run of the tournament, a solo blast in the third. Malcolm McConnell drove one out with Sproesser on base for Webb in the sixth. Walker pushed across the winning run in the last half of the seventh inning. In other games, Kirland defeated the tournament favorite, Reese of Lubbock, 10-1; Biggs of El Paso nudged Holliman of Alamogordo, N. M., 7-0; and Clovis' banged Amarillo, 4-2. The tournament is double-elimination.

We'll Play 'Em As They Come, Says Haney

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Fred Haney, manager of the league-leading Milwaukee Braves, is going to "play them as they come" instead of fretting about the grueling six-week home stretch. The Braves had a chance last night to widen their margin over second-place Brooklyn but took a 6-2 defeat from the St. Louis Cardinals. It left Milwaukee two games up on the Braves and only three ahead of third-place Cincinnati. "We're going to play every game as it comes along," Haney said. "The team we have to beat right now is the Cardinals." St. Louis, with a 7-6 margin, and Philadelphia, 9-6, are the only two clubs in the league with an edge over the front-running Braves. Brooklyn is 9-10 and Cincinnati 4-9 against the leaders. Haney managed to find a bright spot out of the loss to St. Louis as his big fast-balling right-hander Bob Buhl made his first start in 11 days after suffering a chipped bone in the index finger of his pitching hand. Buhl gave up three runs and five hits in the six innings he worked. He walked four, two of whom came on to score, but didn't strike out a batter. It was his fifth defeat against 14 wins. One of the hits was a decisive two-run pinch homer by Rocky Nelson. "Buhl's ready to go," Haney said, "and that's heartening." Lefty Warren Spann will work for the Braves tonight against Tom Poholsky for the Cards in the second game of a three-game series.

Hogans Seeking Return Of Tax

FORT WORTH (AP)—Ben Hogan, the famous golfer, and his wife are seeking recovery of $20,294.34 he says he overpaid the government in taxes in 1950. Of the amount sought, $16,943.34 is what the Internal Revenue Service said Hogan owed as additional tax due on $45,000 he was paid for motion picture rights on the story of his life, "Follow the Sun." The picture was made after his golfing comeback from injuries suffered in an automobile-bus crash in 1949. The remainder of the amount sought by Hogan and wife, Valerie, represents interest on the purported tax overpayment since Aug. 15, 1955. The Hogans' petition says that in their joint income tax return filed for 1950 income they reported receipt of the $45,000 as a long term capital gain item, interpreting the sale of film rights for the Hogan story as exchange of a capital asset. The deficiency notice sent the Hogans by the commissioner of internal revenue held that the $45,000 paid the Hogans was ordinary income and not gain from sale or exchange of a capital asset.

Both Main Events Wind Up As Draws

BEAUMONT (AP)—Both main events of a boxing card last night wound up in draws. Alvin Boudreaux of New Orleans and Amado Flores of Houston went to a stalemate in eight rounds. Ted Mosely of Mobile and Irvin Chaline of Lake Charles, La., drew in four. Mosely was leading on points when he accidentally rammed his head into Chaline, drawing blood. Officials stopped the bout, calling it a draw. Boudreaux weighed 137, Flores 140; Mosely 130 and Chaline 130.

Ronnie Knox Says He'll Turn Pro

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California's fleet halfback Jon Arnett has bypassed Canadian League pro football offers ranging from $16,000 to $20,000 to stick with his alma mater. But UCLA's passing star Ronnie Knox has decided to turn professional at once. Back of Knox's decision is the uncertainty about his eligibility and the failure of UCLA to support his claim that he hasn't been receiving financial aid under cover. Arnett held a brief press conference yesterday with his coach Jess Hill and told newsmen he had decided to finish his education. "After all, that's why I came to the University of Southern California," he said. "Someone might question my turning down such flattering offers from Canada, but after careful thought I decided to finish school first, then consider any future I might have in professional football. If I had made any other decision, I'd find it very hard to live with myself."

Cardinals Sweep Pair From Cats

The Cardinals ran their won-lost record to 12-1 for the 1956 by sweeping a Senior Teen-Age baseball league doubleheader from the Cats here Tuesday night. The Red Birds won the opener, 3-0, behind the one-hit pitching of Wayne Fields. B. P. Newton, Fields and Bernard McMahon scored the Cardinals in the third inning. Ted Fields' team registered an 11-1 success in the afternoon. The only tally Billy Blum gave up was a home run by Dick Jackson in the third. Outside of Jackson's blow, the only Cat to get a hit was Pat Flynn.

Yazoo City Wins Over Amarilloans

PONCHATOULA, La. (AP)—New Orleans and Yazoo City, Miss., scored opening round victories last night in the Region 6 American Legion Junior baseball tournament. New Orleans whipped Stuttgart, Ark., 10-2 with little trouble and Yazoo City beat Amarillo, Tex., 4-1. Amarillo goes against Stuttgart and New Orleans against Yazoo City in the double-elimination tournament today. Yazoo City whipped Amarillo on the six-hit pitching of Hugh Janus, who struck out six and walked two. Opposing hurler Bill Curry allowed 19 hits. Yazoo City scored in the first inning on a two-run homer by Gary Dempsey. Another scored in the second on Janus' double. Dempsey singled home the final winners' run in the eighth. Amarillo scored in the ninth when the Yazoo City catcher dropped the ball on the tag that would have retired the side. Amarillo scored 600 000 001-1 Yazoo City scored 210 000 013-4 Curry and Hucksby; Janus Smith.

Labor Leaders, Offices Take On Perfectly Tailored Look

By NORMAN WALKER
By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—The perfectly tailored gentlemen alighting from a cab in front of a spanking new office building may be an American businessman or an American labor leader.

It's hard to tell these days. Even the building might be in the home office of either.

Organized labor is big business, dealing in hundreds of millions of dollars a year, and growing bigger all the time.

Estimates of the funds controlled by union treasurers vary all the way from 500 million to four billion dollars. Reserve and pension funds, completely or partially by organized labor, account for another $5 billion.

Unions are taking in more money and spending more than ever before as they slowly but steadily expand membership, now figured at more than 18 million workers.

A visit to any one of the modern, well-equipped headquarters buildings which unions are establishing, many here in Washington, is like inspecting the main offices of a thriving business firm.

Squads of office girls busily preside over rows of machines and typewriters, keeping a vast assortment of data on complex card systems and pouring out a steady stream of directives via the mails to locals all over the country.

Top union officials often have private offices as plushy as their business leader counterparts.

They get advice and counsel from a corps of well-trained lawyers, economists, analysts, researchers and other experts. They call the signals for far-flung teams of organizers, lobbyists and political contact men.

There never has been any thorough total tabulation of union revenues and spending. This is because union members pay their dues to local unions. There are some 77,000 local unions and each has a different dues rate.

The national unions usually let their locals charge what they want and need, subject sometimes to a minimum or a maximum figure. The national unions levy a "per capita" tax on the locals to run the national organizations.

On top of that, the AFL-CIO levies its own "per capita" on the national unions according to their membership.

Few people realize it, but the whole story of labor union finances is locked up in secret government microfilm files here in Washington. The data is guarded from the public about as securely as the files of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Full financial reports are required to be filed annually by all unions, national and local, under terms of the Taft-Hartley law. The labor department, which has custody of the secret records, has always held that it was the intent of Congress that this information was not to be made public, in violation of the law says nothing of keeping them private.

A member of a labor union can journey to Washington and, upon proper identification, see what has been filed by his own union. This is often done. But the visiting union man cannot see data for another union. Nor is anyone not affiliated with a union allowed to see any of the many thousands of filed reports.

Along with their heavy intake and expenditures of normal union funds, the labor organizations also manage at least a billion dollars worth of assets and reserves.

These include multimillion-dollar strike funds, buildings, land, summer camps, banks and insurance companies, and a wide variety of enterprises in which unions have their funds invested.

Unions often have a joint role with management too in managing pension and welfare funds.

Many unions keep a few shares of stock in the companies with which they have collective bargaining relations. This is to guarantee an invitation to stockholder meetings and copies of all company financial reports—in other words, to keep tabs on what the boss is doing.

Pension funds have grown so fast they now are estimated to aggregate nearly 25 billion dollars. Various pension and welfare plans are expanding at the rate of nearly seven billion a year.

However, only a minor part of this vast sum is under the direct control of labor unions. For the most part, management of such funds is in the hands of employers or banks.

In the men's and women's clothing industry and in coal mining, unions have a dominant voice in investing pension and welfare reserves, totaling probably 500 million dollars. Union-controlled retirement funds in the electrical industry are estimated at nearly 100 million and two big railroad unions administer 70 million in insurance reserves.

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers controls about 150 million dollars in pensions and other assets and the big teamsters and auto workers unions control about 40 million dollars each.

Union dues rates vary considerably. The Air Line Pilots Assn. charge pilots making nearly $20,000 a year up to $25 a month. But some unions charge as little as $1 a month.

Error Moves Road Title To Private Hands

WOLF CREEK, Ore. (AP)—Southern Oregon's Stumbo clan, not in a bargaining mood, made plans today to operate a toll road 16 1/2 feet long on the busy Pacific Highway.

Robert G. Stumbo, Wolf Creek logger and spokesman for his two brothers and a cousin, was surprised to learn that the Oregon Highway Commission—after two days of file searching—had admitted its mistake. The commission said the contested strip of U.S. Highway 99 had been overlooked in the past and, by golly, Robert, Harry and Allan Stumbo—the brothers—and cousin Clair W. Stumbo do have a lawful claim on the property.

The Highway Commission, not impressed with the toll road idea, is ready to negotiate with the Stumbos and buy the strip.

Stumbo announced at once that his attorney would handle any negotiations.

"I can imagine they are quite embarrassed," he said.

"But as for the toll road... Well, we'd like to sort of follow that along."

The family began making news and ribbing the state last Sunday when they stretched a rope across their property and put up a big "private property" sign on a long straightaway, 10 miles north of this small logging community.

Traffic was delayed for half an hour and the Stumbos had a start.

The day after the traffic-stopping they applied to the county clerk in nearby Roseburg for permission to operate the disputed strip as a toll road. The application even included a proposed rate schedule for livestock and wheeled vehicles.

Robert Stumbo told a reporter, "The Highway Commission has always pushed the little guy around down here in southern Oregon... and it occurred to us that if we're paying taxes on the property we just might as well take it over."

Uncle Ray: Charm Of Florence Works On Visitors

By RAMON COFFMAN

FLORENCE—After making a short visit to Florence, an American school teacher said to me:

"For years I have been hearing people speak of Florence and of how they would like to return for another visit. I never really understood the reason until I came here myself."

I, too, feel the charm of Florence. This is my second visit here, and I regret that my schedule allows only a day. My hotel is one of the best I have found in Europe, but that explains my enjoyment of the city to only a slight degree.

Q. How large is Florence?

A. It seems like a town with only 40 to 50 thousand people, but it has a population of 400 thousand!

Q. What river flows through the town?

A. The Arno. The city lies in the midst of hills, and its location has called forth the praise of poets.

Q. Did a great poet add to the fame of Florence?

A. More than any other, the poet Dante did so. While here he dreamed and brooded over his love for Beatrice, the fair maiden who never was to be his bride.

Florence was a leading city of Italy during the Middle Ages, also in the later period known as the Renaissance. Skillful artists spent important parts of their lives here. Among the works of art in Florence are paintings by Giotto, Leonardo and Michelangelo.

Q. What is the Ponte Vecchio?

A. It is a bridge across the Arno, with lines of shops. These shops sell various objects, but are best known for leather goods. Florentine leather, brightly worked with gold, is a specialty of the city.

Q. Does the name of the city explain the given name of "Florence"?

A. It does, in a sense. An English couple, Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale, were residing here when a child was born to them. They named

THE MINOR TRANGRESSORS

Drama - Unspectacular, Raw - Played Daily In Lower Courts

By SAM BLACKBURN

Spectacular trials in higher courts, usually dealing with crimes of a more sensational and serious character, have a high appeal to the lay citizen. Trials where the crimes involve violence—murder, rape, major thefts, and so forth—usually draw capacity galleries. Spectators fill all of the available seats and listen with absorbed interest to the testimony and argument in the case.

Other cases, which in their basic concept are just as important, particularly civil suits, seldom draw any audience. And trials of minor criminal charges—such as minor burglaries, driving while intoxicated and like matters—are often tried before an empty court room. Participants are limited to the judge, the attorneys, the jury, the court reporter and court clerk, the witnesses on the stand and occasionally a newspaper man.

High drama often develops in the spectacular trials. There is a strange fascination to the average person in a trial where an individual stands charged with homicide and it is traditional that in murder trials, every person including spectators concerned somehow is affected by the proceedings.

But life in its grimmer forms is often revealed in the lower divisions of the court with just as much vividness.

Nearly every day, a session of the county court is conducted in the Howard County Courthouse. There is relatively little formality in such sessions. They are convened at irregular hours when prisoners held in the jail signify they either desire to plead guilty or express a wish to have bonds set for the offenses for which they are being held.

When such cases arise, the procedure is simple. A deputy sheriff confers with the county attorney. The county attorney, in turn, advises the county judge. The prisoners are brought from their cells to the court room on the west end of the second floor of the building.

The judge takes his seat on the bench.

The county attorney calls the first name. Joe Doakes stands before the judge. The county attorney reads the complaint—a rather dull and monotonous proceeding since all complaints are in standard form and the only variation is in the name of the defendant and the offense for which he is charged.

"How do you wish to plead, Mr. Doakes?" asks the judge.

A typical case is Joe Doakes. He has been arrested for writing a worthless check. The check was cashed at a local business establishment. Joe mumbles that he pleads guilty.

"What about this matter, Mr. County Attorney?" inquires the court.

"Well, your honor," replies the official, "Joe seems to have been on a binge. He has written a lot of these hot checks. We know of a half dozen."

"What about it, Mr. Doakes?" asks the court.

Joe is in a pitiable condition. His eyes are bloodshot. He trembles all over and he can't keep his fingers still. His skin is pasty and there are black circles under his eyes.

He tells the court that he doesn't know how many checks he has written. "I been on a drunk for five weeks," he says. "I been drinking two fifths of whisky a day. I can't sober up." He then asks the court if he can sit down.

"I just can't stand up no more Judge," he says.

Investigation reveals that Joe is a skilled mechanic. He makes $18 to $20 per day when he works. There is plenty of work and when Joe is sober he can readily find employment. Joe has a family, too. A wife and six kids. They are in another town. How are they getting by? Joe shakes his head. He hasn't seen his family in weeks.

An officer volunteers information—Joe's family is being kept alive by donations from a church in the town where they live.

What to do with Joe?

In this particular case, he was committed to the Big Spring State Hospital for 90-days observation and treatment for alcoholism. Had Joe been a little less along the road of alcoholism, he would have been fined. Ten dollars, $25 or whatever the court might decide was fitting. Later on, when the 90 days have been finished, if Joe is improved, he will be brought before the court again. Then he will be fined for the hot checks he wrote.

And during those long weary 90 days when he is in the hospital and the additional days, after he was released from the hospital while he serves out time in the jail for his fine—what of the wife and six kids? No one knows. Presumably the church group which saw to it they did not quite starve those five weeks Joe was "hitting the bottle" are still providing food and shelter. Joe doesn't know; one wonders if Joe even cares.

Or take the case of Jose. Jose is a Spanish-American. He was arrested while driving an automobile under the influence of liquor. He was not involved in any accident; luckily officers apprehended him before that happened. "Si," Jose tells the court. "I am guilty," evidence to be adduced.

"I fine you $75 and sentence you to three days in county jail," says the court. This is the minimum punishment for this offense under state law. Chances are Jose will have to "lay out" his fine.

Another defendant. He is tall, skinny and past middle age. He, too, has bloodshot eyes and his face is covered with a stubble of beard. He is charged with aggravated assault.

Actually, it seems, what happened was that he came home drunk. In a rage he began beating his wife. His mother intervened in defense of the wife and he turned his attack on her. Noise of the brawl came to the ears of a neighbor. She armed herself with a pistol investigated and forced the man to desist his abuse of the two women.

He pleads guilty to aggravated assault.

"Was it your wife," the court asks, "you are charged with assaulting?"

"Yes sir," the defendant replies. "Where is she now?" the court asks.

"She's waiting for me in the car. Waitin' so we can go home soon as you let me go." He was fined—and went home.

The dramas in the district court trials are productions—the attorneys pull out all stops to make the best impression possible on jurors. Most county court trials are underplayed and the brief flashes of the raw stuff of human drama is made lie mostly beyond the scene.

The cast changes from day to day, but the set remains the same and little plays of life at its sordid corners are performed over and over again. Occasionally performers are back for "return" appearances. Officials know them well.

"Now let's see, John," drones the prosecuting attorney. "You were here about a month ago on the same sort of charge, weren't you?"

And John ducks his head sheepishly, nodding affirmatively.

FOR EMPLOYEES

City Will Retain Insurance Policy

Big Spring's city employees will continue to be covered by General American Life Insurance. The city commission Tuesday night decided to keep the present policy after consideration of bids in an effort to lower the premium.

A refund from the company also was accepted and will be placed in the general fund today.

The refund was $1,566.29. Two years ago, a refund to the city was $1,201.29, and it is presently in government bonds.

Zoning Changes Okayed by City

Zoning changes were approved by the city commission Tuesday which placed the east half of the block bounded by Scurry and Gregg, Eighth and Ninth in an F (business) classification.

At the same time, this classification was extended to the northeast quarter of the block immediately to the north.

Earlier the southeast quarter of this block had been rezoned as a site for the new Herald building. Actually, the northeast quarter had been used commercially since it has been the location of Cameron Company for a quarter of a century.

The change from a B (two-party residential) zone to F was requested by St. Paul Lutheran Church to permit the placement of a new sanctuary at the corner of Ninth and Scurry. The zoning board earlier had recommended the changes.

The new ordinance was passed by the commission governing butane storage. The new ordinance calls for storage in zones lettered G and below — industrial and residential areas — for fuel and for heating, but only on a resolution granted by the commission on each instance.

All storage tanks must meet a rigid list of safety measures, the ordinance contains an emergency clause and will take effect after proper advertising.

The change was caused by Western Commission asking for permission to erect a storage tank. The commission met at a subsequent meeting and passed a resolution specifically granting permission.

Walton Morrison, city attorney, said he patterned the ordinance partially after Lubbock's. Commissioners approved extending Ohio north to the Andrews highway, if right-of-way can be obtained.

At present people in the area can go from the north end of Ohio to the highway via a small trail. The property is owned chiefly by the oil mill and owners will be contacted.

The firm has consented to give an easement for construction of a road.

Actress Takes Sleeping Pills

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (U-P)—Bald, brassy Martha Raye is recovering after a bout with too many sleeping pills.

The 39-year-old actress and comedienne, unconscious when found on her bedroom floor, was described by hospital attendants as "awake and feeling fine."

Her physician, Dr. Ralph Robbins, said she must have taken about 20 pills. Robbins placed her in the hospital for treatment, including a spell under an oxygen tent. The doctor said he had no idea why she had taken the pills.

Miss Raye came to Florida in an unsuccessful attempt to divorce her fifth husband, dancer Ed Begley. A Miami circuit judge denied the decree, however, ruling that Miss Raye had not met the 90-day residence requirement.

Virus Cancer Idea Sets Off Research

By RENNIE TAYLOR Associated Press Science Reporter BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 15 (U-P)—A bold new theory pointing to viruses as the cause of cancer has set in motion research projects with dramatic and revolutionary possibilities.

Behind the idea are recent findings about the chemistry of matter which go into the makeup of living things. These particles, although not living in the usual sense, have the power to reproduce themselves and a latent ability to work great changes in cells.

Inside the cell they form proteins and other substances which allow the cell to live, function and multiply. They play a major role in virus formation and they are important in the life of a cancerous cell.

Some of the intracellular particles they form or promote apparently are not strictly normal parts of the cell, but rather things which resemble viruses, or even genes, the governors of heredity. Apparently they can lie dormant in a cell for generation after generation, causing no sign of abnormality or disease. Some multiply at the same rate as the cell itself.

So that a new cell has the same quota of these objects as the ancestor cell. A single cell may have only one of them, a few, or many.

But sometimes something unusual happens. Just what it is not yet fully understood. It may be a shock of some kind, or exposure to radiation, a change in temperature, or cell nutrition or even an evolutionary change. Whatever it is, the virus-like particles go on a rampage.

What they do may depend upon several things: the age of their host, his nutritional status or his

Firing Of Street Worker Is Issue At Commission Meeting

Discontent in the street department from the discharge of a worker had its repercussions in the city commission meeting Tuesday evening.

H. W. Whitney, city manager, and R. V. Foresyth, department chief, were to confer with employees, to iron out difficulties. Lester Goswick, heavy equipment foreman, had discharged an employee who he said had been warned several times about not fulfilling the duties of the job. Another man quit at the same time, and the two spoke to Commissioner Roy Bruce and also to Whitney about appearing before the commission. They showed up at the meeting but did not stay long enough to be heard.

Bruce claimed that the incident was not the first trouble in the department. He said that previously as many as 15 men in the street department had spoken to him about discontentment in the department, contending that they were centered around the departmental chief, Foresyth. Bruce said he felt the same way.

Quick disagreement was voiced by Whitney and Mayor G. W. Dabney. Whitney said he would stand behind any action taken by Foresyth. Bruce said the men had told him that Foresyth had misrepresented their work on various occasions. Bruce said he wanted to see the problem solved.

Mayor Dabney suggested that the chief and employees meet with Whitney, acting as arbitrator, to reach the source of the trouble. Bruce agreed with the idea.

The new foreman in the department, Goswick, had been hired at the request of the commission in an effort to take part of the work off Foresyth, who had to supervise the entire department plus keep all administrative work. Prior to this various commissioners had said that in driving over the city they had seen men of the street department loafing and expensive equipment sitting idle.

Goswick told Foresyth Tuesday he had fired the man for the simple reason that he was not doing the work.

Juveniles Held For Robbery

Three juveniles are being held — two in county jail and one in city custody — today after confessions to robbing Courtney Davis, 403 W. 3rd, Monday of cigarette lighters, cigar holders, and lighter flints.

The three confessed Tuesday to taking the merchandise, but all of it has not been recovered. Reported taken were 12 cigarette lighters, 15 cigar holders, 16 packages of lighter flint, and five billocks.

Police Detective Jack Shaffer said this morning that about half the loot had been recovered. Sergeant Alvin Hiltbrunner found part of the merchandise in the Remble Supply in the 400 block of W. 2nd Tuesday afternoon.

The three — two were 14 and one 13 — have not been carried before the juvenile judge.

Another juvenile Tuesday confessed to city police that he stole a battery from a vehicle belonging to B. L. Eggleston, 400 Hillside. The battery, taken Monday night, was returned Tuesday. The boy was 16.

The superintendent told the principals in regard to their cooperating with the various news media.

"Every teacher in this system is doing a better job than they are telling the public about," C. E. Green, bus supervisor announced that the school bus will follow the same routes as last year, except for minor changes. Parents of children who will be affected by changes will be notified.

Hull Clan Holds Annual Reunion

Eighty-four members of the Hull family, all stemming from the original couple of that name who came to this country in the early days — presumably from Tennessee — met at the Baptist encampment recently for the annual Hull reunion.

Earl Hull, county commissioner, who is a son of the original family, said the group came from all parts of Texas and from New Mexico. A picnic dinner was served for the group. No special program was attempted; the day was spent in "visiting."

These annual get-togethers have been conducted by the Hulls for many years, Earl said.

Jess Talkin

by Jess Blair

Martin County is becoming the capon center of Texas, so far as club capons are concerned. None are grown commercially, but the FFA and 4-H Club members are winning prizes wherever the birds are shown.

Several people deserve credit for this, but perhaps Elbert Steele most of all. Since he came to Stanton as vocational agriculture teacher, the capon business has started snowballing. He works tirelessly with the boys and right now is trying to develop a bigger, plumper bird with fewer pin feathers. To do this he is experimenting with crosses between Cornish Games and White Rocks.

Some of Steele's boys have won more money with their prize capons that their daddies have made with a cotton crop.

Since the case of sleeping sickness was reported last week, no other cases have developed, according to reports from local veterinarians. Both Dr. Simpson and Dr. Schwarzenbach say they have vaccinated several horses since that time.

I've taken a little ribbing over that 5,000-bale estimate for Howard County this year. Most everyone says it will be less, but very few of them will talk for publication. My guess was made several weeks ago and I might lower it a little now.

A. C. Kloven, local gin manager, is not afraid to make a guess and he says 4,000 bales. Leon Kinney down at the Texas Employment Commission hedges a little on his, but he thinks the county will make not more than 5,000 and it could be as small as 3,000 bales.

One thing everyone agrees on, this will be the worst year since 1952, and if there were no irrigation, it might turn out just as bad. There was only one irrigation well in 1952, whereas now there are 30 to 40 which may be responsible for 800 to 1,000 bales.

Haven't been able to find out how much cotton was ginned in 1952. It couldn't have been much. Gabe Hammack said the per acre yield was only eight pounds. This took in all land measured by the government as cotton land, though most of it was completely bare.

Cotton pickers will be needed in Martin County by the last of next week, says Kinney of the Texas Employment Commission. These are not boll pulling jobs but are for cotton picking.

Kinney says most of the crews in this locality don't like to pick cotton and always hunt work where they can pull bolls.

In former years most of the picking jobs have been handled by Mexican Nationals.

Glenn Cantrell, farming a few miles north of Big Spring, thinks that much of the burnt-up cotton will not be harvested this year. Even where there is enough to pick, he doesn't think laborers will be interested in gathering it. If a good soaking rain falls, farmers may plow the cotton under.

"I know I would," Cantrell said. "I'd rather put the land up while I had moisture than to wait on a crop that might not be worth gathering."

Mitchell County ranges are about as bare as during any time in history, says County Agent Jack Burkhalter. Ranchers south of Colorado City received some heavy showers at times, but much of the water ran off.

"Until we can get a turf back on the ground, the rains won't do as much good," he said.

Burkhalter says the runoff is also heavy on cultivated fields. He thinks the vegetative matter has been burnt out of the soil, so now it seals over and sheds water, particularly when the rains fall fast. He says guar or some other soil-building crop may be needed to get the soil back in good condition.

Rainfall at the Big Spring Field Station measured only 4.36 inches for the first seven months this year. In August two very small showers have fallen, but total only a fractional part of an inch.

During the critical months of June and July only 1.17 inches were recorded.

The other day at St. Lawrence the community was basking in the hot sunshine, and the air was so dry you could almost hear it crackle. Max Holder was stretched out on a bench in his store reading a newspaper. There were no customers because everyone was out irrigating or fighting the worms.

"I don't suppose it could get any drier," Holder said. "Things don't look so good as they did a few weeks ago. We haven't had rain this summer and cotton is not growing like it ought to. Most of us figured on getting a little sky moisture to help the wells, so now we don't have water to get over fast enough."

Holder has a 150-gallon well of his own which he used to irrigate 80 acres last winter. Next time around he watered 60 acres, then 50, and this time he thinks they can't cover more than 45 acres.

He says the wells are not large enough, but the people at St. Lawrence are thankful for these little streams.

"If we hadn't had these wells," he said, "I don't believe one person would have been living out here now."

Opening Oven Door Called Cause Of Utah Cafe Blast

MONTICELLO, Utah (AP)—A cook opened an oven door — and the burst of heat touched off an explosion that killed 15 persons in a crowded cafe.

State experts said this was the immediate cause of the blast Monday night.

They agreed with local officials that it was obviously a gas explosion. But they said a "very, very careful and deliberate" investigation still has left them without enough evidence to decide whether it was an explosion of natural gas or manufactured gas.

They said the investigation will continue.

The blast at the peak of the dinner rush demolished the brick and cinderblock building housing the Lariat Cafe, leaving nothing but a mess of splintered debris. Less than 12 hours earlier, the cafe had switched from manufactured gas to this southeastern Utah cattle and uranium town's new natural gas system. The old manufactured gas pipes were still in the basement.

LITTERBUG LEGACY

Cleaning Roadways Never Ending Task

By DON HENRY
Keeping Texas' highways clear of trash, beer cans and other rubbish is costly.

Just ask the State Highway Department.

A check of the department's records here showed that the clearing of debris. The check showed that the cost for just one afternoon — four hours work — was $30.12. This was the cost to Texas taxpayers for four men to walk the sides of the highway picking up beer cans and other trash, throwing them in a truck, and hauling them to the dump ground.

The four men and their truck have been working the county's highways since July 15, and they are less than half through. This is excluding Highway 80 east, which has been under construction and is considered comparatively clean, and will not be covered this summer.

The record showed that seven and a half truck loads of trash were collected off 80 from the Big Spring city limits to the Martin County line — a distance of 13.1 miles. The work took five and a half days. Each truck load is four cubic yards.

Cost of the five and a half days work was $245.49 — labor and truck expense. The department figures eight cents per mile on the truck.

Price of the work could be higher too if high school boys were not hired by the department during the summer. The boys are paid $1 the hour, and three of the four are schoolboys. The fourth is a full-time employee paid almost twice as much. But if four full-time workers were manning the trucks instead of the boys, the cost of clearing the road would be much more expensive.

South of Big Spring on 87, cost for the work was $176.60 and the crew picked up five and a half loads of trash. Average per load was $7.38, and the work took four days on the 15 miles.

Price per mile on that stretch of highway was only $11.77, pulling the county average per mile down somewhat. It should rise again, however, since the worst-littered road, the Snyder highway, has not been cleared.

Although crews do not work the clean-up campaign all year, they do clean Farm Road 709 about every two or three weeks. On the other roads, they make one complete sweep once a year plus smaller goings over during the year.

Signs are now being painted by the highway department stating that it is a violation to litter the highways, and this could possibly mean that the state plans to clamp down on violators.

But until it does, taxpayers will continue to foot the bill to the tune of $18 per mile per year over the state — money that could go to permanent roads.
