Area Pioneer Dies Of Heart Attack

Thomas Riley Lovelace, 81, a real pioneer of West Texas, died from a heart attack at his home at 1908 Runnels early Thursday. He was stricken in his sleep at 3 a.m. and died suddenly.

Funeral has been set for 4 p.m. Friday at the Wesley Methodist Church, where he served unceasingly as a member almost since its inception. The Rev. C. W. Parmenter, pastor, will officiate, and burial will be in the City Cemetery. The remains will lie in state at River Funeral Chapel until shortly before time for the services.

Mr. Lovelace had been to the hospital earlier in the evening to be at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Eliza Jane Lovelace, who is 103 years of age. She had fallen Monday evening and was to have undergone surgery Thursday morning for a hip fracture. The operation, however, was delayed.

Victim Of Rabid Dog

King Lear, 6-year-old Dallas boy, who was bitten by a rabid dog on Aug. 16, is administered a rables shot by Mrs. Rachael Ray (left), county nurse. Young Lear was bitten by the dog when he and his mother stopped at a filling station at Rockwall, about 25 miles from Dallas. Later the dog was found to be rabid and newspapers, wire services and radio stations joined in a state-wide broadcast to locate the boy. His mother heard a radio newscast which told of the search and she rushed him to the medical center where treatment was started. Mrs. Claude Lear comforts her son as the series of shots was started.

Editorial A Decision For Daniel On Saturday

few days of the governor's run-off race serves to increase the odds that a majority of Texans Saturday will cast their votes for Price Daniel.

Daniel had a most resounding lead in statewide totals in the July primary, had a substantial margin in Howard County. The chances would seem to be that he will repeat in both standings this week-

An air of defeatism, a sort of frustration must be manifest to most people in the type of utterances that have been made. at a time when there probably was hope that the hour was too late for honest refutations.

It is this sort of thing, as we have pointed out before, that Texans are ready to put aside. Dignity and moderation in

The trend of campaigning in the last campaigning, which have characterized w days of the governor's run-off race Daniel, certainly would lead to the expectation of dignity and moderation in running the state's affairs.

> The administration of the state of Texas is too important a thing to put into the hands of those who seek it because of devious reasons. It belongs in the hands of a man whose entire career has fitted him for the office, whose record as a public servant is without blemish, whose accomplishments for the people of Texas have been many. Price Daniel's record can be examined from legislature, to attorney general, to U.S. senator, and it will show that he has performed honestly and ably in the interests of Texas. This is important to all Texas people, and we think will be reflected in their decision for Daniel on Saturday.

Nip And Tuck On Civil Rights

As forecast here months ago, the Republican platform plank on civil rights is not much different except in phraseology from that adopted last week by the Democrats at Chicago. The Democrats had declared that "we reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."The GOP platform declares that the use of force or violence by any group or agency "will tend to worsen the many problems inherent in the situation." Obviously, the Democratic reference to force is the stronger; it condemns it roundly, while the GOP plank merely recognizes that its use would 'worsen" the problems involved.

Neither party endorses the Supreme Court decision on segregation; the GOP plank "accepts" it. Both point out the gravity of the problems arising from the court's decree. The Republican plank pledged support for a civil rights program recommended by President Eisenhower to the last session of the Congress, and that is one place where the GOP plank differs from and is stronger than that adopted by the Democrats.

That Eisenhower recommendation was passed by the House but got bottled up in the Senate, thanks to Southern conservatives. It called for the setting up of a civil rights division within the Justice Department to help protect individual rights.

Southern senators argued that this measure, if adopted into law, would arm the Department of Justice with men and means to go into every part of the country and carry on open warfare against individuals and firms which were accused of denying civil rights to anyone. They argued the federal government would supply attorneys, free of charge, to press the case of everyone who believed or imagined he had been denied a civil right. Local courts would be bypassed and ac-tion carried directly to federal courts. This, the conservative Democrats argued, would be a flagrant violation of states' rights, and open up a mare's nest of interference and harassments.

Two leaders in the demand for a "strong" civil rights plank, Roy Wilkins of the NAACP and Joseph L. Rauh, chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action, declared the GOP platform on the subject was "a thin shade stronger" than that passed by the Democrats.

Around The Rim After Looking Around Some

A few observations and first-impressions on a loop through the heart of America.

Ohio farmers in the corn and hog belt are so prosperous that they're now spending their winters in Florida. One whiff of the air off their hog pens and you wonder why they come back in the summer.

The farm operators in western New York are complaining about the rain. Crops, mostly fruit, are rotting in the fields because of the wet weather.

A Texan is still something of a curiosity north of the Mason-Dixon line, when he strays off the beaten path. You'll find the natives engaging you in conversation for the privilege of hearing a Southwestern drawl.

East Texas farms appear to be suffering from drought as much as fields in the western part of the state. West Arkansas people also are complaining about the dry weather which has stunted crops. There isn't much of a fruit crop in most sections south of Missouri and west of the Mississippi. Even in the Midwest they ask about the dry weather in Texas.

There are good roads and bad ones, and you'll find some of the good ones in just about every state except Oklahoma and New Mexico. Generally, though, Texas can still claim the best highways. In the Midwest, you see few dirt or gravel roads. The county roads may not be 10 feet wide-but they're paved.

. . . A look at the dirty, blackened buildings of the North and you think more highly of the West Texas dusters. You'd rather have sand than soot settling all around.

Texas politics puzzles the Yankees. They ask why some of the Democrats aren't in the Republican Party, and they want to know what the deal was on the veterans' and stink. They also are curious about the Eisenhower-Nixon prospects for November.

Just about 80 per cent of the national income is earned within 500 miles of Cleveland, Ohio. The way residents of that section have to struggle with teeming humanity, traffic jams, smoke and dirty factories, though, I figure they really earn the money. I'll keep working for my share of the other 20 per cent.

SAN FRANCISCO-As a reformed society editor, I find myself-to my surprisethe most uniquely qualified reporter now attending the Republican National Convention

So guests could have three glasses of champagne each as against the 2.5 glasses at the The mayor's party is known as the Centennial Ball in honor (1) of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the aptlynamed Grand Old Party and (2) of the centennial marking the designation of San

In all fairness to the GOP, I can't tell whether all the Republican ladies are wrapped in mink stoles because the Re-publicans are in power or in San Francisco. The weather in Chicago was not calculated to produce mink on Democrats, even if they had it.

Marguis Childs

which the Democrats mean to push hardest in the forthcoming campaign is that the Old Guard of the Republican party took over in San Francisco to insure that Richard M. Nixon again would be Vice President and their skillful agent at the center of government in the four years to

It is much too early to say whether this will be effective in winning the independent middle-ground vote which went in large numbers for the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket-four years ago. But to call the managers of the Republican party, who are stage-managing this convention, the "Old Guard" is a major error.

The Old Guard, as familiarized by the cartoonists, was an old gentleman in a top hat standing with a belligerent expression behind the ramparts of things-as-theywere and ordering the tide of change to stand still. A bumbling fellow, he was nevertheless determined to have his way and keep the Grand Old Party undefiled by such vicious doctrines as social security.

Those in the dominant group in the party today have very little in common with this caricature out of the past. They are skillful managers, representing in politics the "managerial revolution" which has taken place.

In the corporate structure at the top of American industry and finance, they understand the uses of publicity, showmanship, and the skills of political manipulation. And they are beginning to feel more and more confident, not that they can stop the tide of change but that they can channel and control it for a long time to come. This last is perhaps the major difference between the Old Guard and what might be called the "New Guard." The Old Guard was closely linked to the ownership of big business, the classic example being the Cleveland industrialist,

SAN FRANCISCO - The line of attack Mark Hanna, and William McKinley. The new political managers have themselves, instance after instance, stepped out m of the top echelon of business management which in recent decades has replaced ownership in control of the business struc-

Another Cleveland industrialist, George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury and the most influential figure in the Administration aside from the President himself, is the Mark Hanna of his day.

Humphrey took over the management of the Hanna industries and by his ability and driving force brought about a highly successful expansion in coal, steel and a dozen related fields.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, former New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey - these men have about as much resemblance to the Old Guard as an oldtime minstrel show has to a slick Rodgers and Hammerstein musical.

These new managers make lavish use of the professional publicists. The professionals can persuade a sponsor - for the benefit of the GOP - to yield television time for a political speech. In a thousand and one ways they can provide the technical services that make it possible for the politician to compete in the mass media with entertainment highly paid to sell the products of industry.

One of the most skilled of these public relations firms is Whitaker and Baxter, here in San Francisco, which has some of the management chores, such as putting on the champagne dinner for 11,000 people in the Civic Auditorium.

Celebrating the exploits of Clem Whitaker and his attractive partner, Leone Baxter, one of the San Francisco newspapers expressed it by saying that their specialty is "piloting a politician or an idea into the snug harbor of public acceptance." This same account credited them with helping elect California's former Governor, Earl Warren, now Chief Justice of the United States, and the present Governor, Goodwin Knight. The American Medical Association paid them $4,700,000 for drilling the phrase "socialized medicine" into the American consciousness and thereby killing the Truman Administration's plan for national health insurance. Vice President Nixon has proved himself time and again as one of the team of managers. When it was disclosed in the '52 campaign that his business friends in Southern California had provided him with a generous fund to help him "do his job" in Washington, Nixon went on the TV networks with a high-powered presentation that was stage-managed with the help of professionals. Some were offended by this dramatic performance, but it drew an enormous response in telegrams and mail from throughout the country. The President has unbounded admiration for these men, most of them from small towns and a modest background, who have made their way to the top.

They are for the most part content to operate with a minimum of personal publicity. They are not making the speeches at this carefully planned ratification meeting. They are making the decisions.

And it would be a great mistake to underestimate the powers and the capacity of these new political managers, this New Guard replacing the quaint old fellow in the top hat out of the past

The three Western Powers are in a bet- ble distance of the proposals made by ter position today than they were two Mr. Shepilov on Friday, that there be weeks ago. Then, Britain and France, "a new international convention . . . or with the United States refusing to support an agreement supplementing the convention of 1888, with a view to confirm and giving the impression that they might go guarantee freedom of navigation of the Suez Canal with the observance of the sovereign rights of Egypt." What the West is asking, in addition to what Mr. Shepilov has proposed, is that Egypt agree to do the kind of thing that we often do in this country when we want to keep politics out of some great complex of public utilities, as in the Tennessee Valley or in the Port of New York.

This is a reasonable position for the West to take, and a good one to take even if Egypt is not yet willing to agree. For now that the West has squared its demands with the moral, the political and the legal realities, the balance of power as between Egypt and the West can be expected to right itself.

The glamor and the glory of his coup will not keep shining brightly forever if the traffic becomes snarled and if the canal silts up and if the Aswan dam remains unbuilt. What Mr. Dulles proposed on behalf of the Western Powers is a cheap price to pay for the restoration of Egypt's credit.

There is more washing and ironing to be done, supplying the crisp, clean clothes your family needs during wilting summer weather.

I work harder operating your electric refrigerator to protect your perishables and supply extra quantities of ice cubes, cold drinks and frozen desserts.

Because there are more and bigger jobs for me to do during extremely hot dry weather, most electric service bills are higher during such periods. But it's now . . . when you're able to stay cool and comfortable in spite of the heat . . . that you can really appreciate the value of my services. I'm your greatest aid to summertime comfort and year-around better living.

We're Sorry....

Sorry if you're not finding everything you want in our stores these days. But we have a strike on our hands that prevents us from operating normally. However, we're operating as near normal as possible and we'll keep our stores open until the strike is settled.

What the Strike is about ....

Last week our mechanics union (18 members) in the truck repair shop went on strike, after turning down the best terms for a contract in the food distribution business in the area. Without a contract they have had the best wages and working conditions for food handlers in the area.

When the mechanics put up a picket line, many of our warehousemen and truck drivers, who also belong to a union, refused to cross the line. That's what has slowed down operations at Safeway's big Distribution Center at Garland where our warehouses are located. That's why our trucks cannot be loaded as rapidly as usual with supplies for our retail stores.

Wages offered our mechanics:

$92.16 for a 47-hour week, which is an average of $1.96 per hour. Plus 10¢ an hour bonus for night work. The offer represents an increase of 10¢ an hour for the first year of a three-year contract, 8¢ an hour for the second year, and 7¢ for the third year. Those are the terms on which a contract settlement was made with nearly 300 truck drivers and warehousemen last June 17. It is a just and fair offer.

We are arranging for outside supplemental supply sources so that we can serve you as nearly like you want to be served as possible. We hope you'll continue to SHOP SAFEWAY during this strike period and we will do our level best to have everything you want.
