City To Consider Bids On Vehicles

City commissioners may not purchase two new cars for the police department at their bi-weekly meeting Tuesday night.

However, they will consider specifications for maintenance truck and possibly discuss zoning changes.

At its last meeting, commissioners called for bids on two new cars. They were asking for four-door, 1957 models. However, Roy Bruce said Saturday that the bids might not be accepted.

Since some of the companies have not shown their new cars, they possibly have not received their prices. For this reason, they could not bid. Bruce said the commission might delay until its Nov. 13 meeting or call a special session and let the bid at that time.

He said they did not want to slight local firms if they wished to bid but did not have their prices.

At the Oct. 9 meeting, the council decided to purchase a new truck for the maintenance department. The city plans to place a water tank on a truck now being used for garbage and mount the garbage bed on the new truck. Specifications will be drawn up at the Tuesday night meet.

The zoning board is meeting Monday night in a public hearing to consider making an area between 10th and 12th from Gregg to Main a business zone. If the board approves the changes, the commission then will sanction or reject the proposal.

Air Force officials are slated to meet with Jack Bellamy, city engineer, Monday afternoon to discuss the proposed water and sewer lines to serve a base housing unit.

If the meeting is held, Bellamy will probably make a report to the commission on the discussion.

The city is thinking of paying additional cost and enlarging the lines for its use.

North Magnetic Pole Pulls Compass Needle

By RAMON COFFMAN

A letter from Phil Palker brings up the subject of the earth's poles. He writes:

"Last July you wrote about the Up and Down directions from the viewpoint of people on various parts of the earth. What impressed me most, however, was what you said about the North and South pole not really existing. If they don't exist, how can the compass point to the north? Every machine we know turns on a bearing of some kind. Doesn't the earth turn on a true axis?"

What I said last summer was this:

"Instead of being a pole, the North Pole is a point, or a spot."

I also said that the same thing is true about the South Pole.

That was different from saying that the poles do not exist. The earth turns on a so-called "axis," but if we could drill to the position of the axis, we hardly could expect to find an iron rod!

Nothing like a telephone pole (or barber pole) exists at either end of the earth. Nevertheless we have a geographical North Pole and a geographical South Pole.

Notice that word "geographical." In addition to such poles, the earth has a magnetic poles, and they are in different places than the geographical poles. The North Magnetic Pole is in the extreme northern part of Canada.

With the passing years, the position of the North Magnetic Pole changes. It stays in the same general area, however, within range of the position located by 71 degrees north latitude and 96 degrees west longitude. Our compass needle points to the North Magnetic Pole instead of to the geographical North Pole.

The South Magnetic Pole is in the South Frigid Zone, but it is about 1,400 miles from the geographical South Pole.

Minister Finds Alaska Like 'A Part Of Another World'

When Dr. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist Church, left here 10 days ago it was 90 degrees. When he got to Anchorage, Alaska, two days later, it was 20 degrees and snowing.

Dr. O'Brien is conducting a two-week revival meeting in Kenai, southwest of Anchorage. Dr. P. W. Malone, chairman of the board at the First Baptist Church, is projecting films of the Holy Land at 14 different places in Alaska during the two-week simultaneous campaign sponsored by the Southern mission board.

Commenting on the sudden change in temperature, Dr. O'Brien noted that "it was not hard to tell how short nylon shorts really are." He said that it had snowed some almost every day since his arrival and the ground is frozen hard. Most of the streams and small lakes are frozen over. People put their frozen food in the refrigerator to thaw it out for cooking. Relating his experiences he said:

"But a neighbor has loaned me a parka, which is about the warmest thing I ever backed into. They say I look like Admiral Byrd, but I feel like a covered wagon."

"The people here are extremely friendly. I imagine some of it is due to their loneliness for this is a far-separated place from the rest of Alaska. It still seems like part of another world to me. The spiritual life of the community is very low and we are finding it very hard to arouse interest. Several denominations are represented here, at least by token efforts, but none of them can be called thriving."

"For many years the Greek Orthodox Church was the main spiritual center of the Kenai peninsula, but it lost its priest by death a year ago and now they are almost out of business. Beside this church and the Baptists, only the Methodists and the Church of Christ have organized congregations. The section hardly known when Sunday comes. This has been a commercial fishing center for

Calm

James C. Burmeister, six-foot, 245-pound utility company lineman, appears undisturbed as he is questioned by police in St. Petersburg, Fla., regarding the hacking deaths of his 32-year-old wife and the couple's two children, James Jr., three years old, and Marilyn, nine months.

Scouts Will Distribute Get-Out-Vote Materials

Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts in the Lone Star District will do their good turn toward getting out a maximum vote in the Nov. 8 election, John Taylor, district chairman, announced Saturday.

Along with those throughout the nation, they will distribute door-knob hangers to remind citizens of their obligation to vote in the general election.

Eight thousand of these will be put out in Big Spring, Stanton, Garden City, Sterling City and other points.

The effort will be entirely non-partisan, without reference to any candidate or party. Patriotic agencies and civic-minded individuals all over the nation have endorsed years and has two large fish processing plants. An arm of the Pacific ocean washes the doorsteps of many of the homes.

Incidentally the word tenal is pronounced "Keen Eye." It is derived from an Eskimo word which the natives tell me I don't need to know.

"Today I visited an old lady more than 90 years of age who was born here. I would give a lot to have our conversation on tape. She is as spry as a spring chicken and as clever as Mark Twain. When she saw how much I was enjoying her descriptions of pioneer experiences, she pulled out all the stops, and in her peculiar Russian brogue she kept me in stitches for an hour. She one time owned a dog sled and team, carried her own gun and freighted across these mountains. She can tell bear stories until Joe Evans would turn green with envy. Tomorrow I have a date with her to go through the Orthodox Church building and have her explain their mode of worship."

"I have called on almost every business house in town in interest of the church and revival. I found one religion that was new to me: it is called Silent Unity. I want to go back and ask more about it. Today I visited a saloon keeper who was reared at Amherst, Texas. His parents are members of the Amherst Baptist Church, and he and I know many of the same people. I hope to win him to the Lord this week, and if I do I expect him to change his business."

$100,000 City Taxes Come In

With the aid of over $15,000 collected Friday, current city tax revenue climbed above the $100,000 for the month.

Friday's total was the biggest of the month also.

The figure was $15,808.05, which gave a total of $100,808.85 collected since Oct. 1 when current taxes collections began.

Revenue is well below the same 1965, the aggregate was $113,887.50. Through 18 days of collections in 1966, Saturday was not available, but it was a large sum for half a day's collections, tax officials said. The morning mail included returns from three loan companies, one of which would reach into the thousands of dollars, they added.

Property owners paying their taxes in October receive three per cent discount, and a two per cent credit is given in November.

Powell Lake Rises A Foot

Powell Lake, east of here, gained over a foot of water as a result of rainfall the past week. The other city lake, Moss Creek, however failed to show as much gain.

Moss Creek Lake had 2.5 inches of rainfall in the series of showers which fell last Sunday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Very little runoff was shown, and the level of the lake now stands at 21 feet 8 inches.

Powell Lake had 2.2 inches of rainfall on its water shed. As a result, the level moved from 16 feet 8 inches to 17 feet 10 inches during the week. The three rains measured .9, .8, and .5 inches on the three days, respectively.

At Moss Creek, the measurements on the days were an inch each on the first two and .5 inch last Thursday.

Lamesa Scout Unit To Note Ninth Anniversary Tuesday

LAMESA Oct. 21—Boy Scout Troop 25 will hold its quarterly Court of Honor and observe its ninth charter birthday at their family night Tuesday, at 7 p.m. in the new Lamar Forrest Community Building.

The troop was organized in October, 1948, by the local DAV chapter, and at the present time F. S. Salsar serves as the DAV institutional representative. A ceremony is planned for Tuesday night in which the four patrol leaders of the troop will take part in cutting the large birthday cake planned for the celebration.

The tenderfoot investiture will be given to Wayne Luckemeyer, Brian McNeal and Jesse Franklin by the scoutmaster, R. L. Price. Second class awards will be presented by F. V. Lester, troop advancement chairman, to Ray

Advancing from second to first class scouts are Gary Lee Morrow, Billy Lester, Gary Jordan and David Lewis. Their first class awards will be presented by Price and Lester.

Richard Lewis, assistant scoutmaster, will present the following merit badges: Jerry Teaff, canoeing and rowing; Kenneth Carson, rabbit raising; and Richard Bennett, basketball.

A special invitation has been extended to former members of the troop to attend the special birthday observance and Court of Honor. In addition to the presentation of awards, troop committeemen, Sam Jenkins and A. H. Essary will appear on the program; the opening and closing ceremonies will be led by Don Ray Dudley, senior patrol leader.

Sales in Howard during September amounted to $67,844 E bonds and $18,000 in series H, boosting the year's total to $78,298 or 97.2

DINNER IN THE GROEBL MANNER describes the second table shown in the Pilgrimage of Beautiful Table Settings, sponsored this afternoon by the Xi Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Although Mrs. Groebel, 615 Dallas, insists that formality is not "the Groebel manner," this table is laid with Venetian handmade lace and set for a formal dinner. An arrangement of flowers and silver leaves centers the table, while place cards bear tiny blossoms. Silver candelabra hold twisted tapers. Mrs. Odell Womack, at left, will greet guests in this home.

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

SOCIETY BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1956 SEC. C

SILVER RHYTHM will flow from the silver service to the other shining silver appointments when Mrs. Marvin Ferguson, 500 Birdwell, opens her home this afternoon in the Pilgrimage of Beautiful Table Settings. A cloth of Hawaiian linen forms a background for the "play like refreshments" being served by Mrs. Melvin Coleman, at left, and Mrs. Ferguson, at right, to Mrs. L. D. Chrane. Visitors this afternoon will view this table along with others which are sponsored by the Xi Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

REGAL SPARKLE is being planned by Mrs. L. A. Plowman, at left, and Mrs. R. L. Heith for the table to be displayed this afternoon in the Plowman home, 506 Birdwell. This is the fourth stop in the Pilgrimage of Beautiful Table Settings sponsored by the Xi Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority as an annual event. Proceeds from the Pilgrimage are used for various projects and welfare work carried on by the sorority.

Pilgrimage Set Today

This afternoon at 3 p. m. the Pilgrimage of Beautiful Table Settings will begin. Sponsored annually by the Xi Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi this is the seventh year of the tour. Six tables, ranging in settings from informal to formal decorations, will be shown in local homes. Tickets may be bought at the first home to be visited. Proceeds from the group's affair will be divided between their national project, aid to the Muscular Dystrophy fund, and contributions to various local funds such as Cancer Society and United Fund.

(Photos by Keith McMillin)

CONVERSATIONAL BRUNCH (below) is most pleasant when it is with such delightful companions as Mrs. Champ Rainwater, sponsor, Mrs. Charles Tompkins, president of the Xi Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Sorority, and Mrs. Harold Talbot, hostess. This is the first table which will be displayed by the sorority from 3 to 3:30 this afternoon in their Pilgrimage of Beautiful Table Settings. Mrs. Rainwater, whose home is at 716 Hillside, has chosen rich shades of brown and copper for an informal meal.

FANTASY of black and gold might well serve as a pattern for an attractive Halloween breakfast or luncheon. Mrs. H. M. Smith, 1602 Cole Lane, who will sponsor the table, discusses with Mrs. Paul Darrow, at right, the dried arrangement which they plan to use. The golden yellow of the pottery, with small black figures, makes a striking accent against the black tablecloth. This is the table which will be displayed in the Pilgrimage of Beautiful Table Settings, which is sponsored annually by the Xi Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority this afternoon.

Wedding Date Set

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Ward, 707 E. 12th St., are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Shirley Ann, to John L. Berry...

Takes A Lot Of Work To 'Change Your Type'

By LYDIA LANE HOLLYWOOD — Those who knew Martha Hyer when she first came to Hollywood remember her as a dark-haired teen-ager from Texas...

Martha about any advice given her by studio make-up men.

"Oh, yes," she exclaimed. "I was told my eyebrows were too thin and too close together and that my problem was to balance my face."

"To do this we changed the shape of my mouth, giving full importance to my lower lip, which I was not filling-out completely. And they taught me how to shade my jaw so that it looked less prominent."

"But I suppose the most dramatic change was becoming a blonde. I first bleached my hair when I played the opposite type to Audrey Hepburn in 'Sabrina.'"

"Blonde hair goes well with your blue eyes," I commented.

"Yes," Martha agreed, "but it didn't go with my sun tan, so I had to give that up. And I suppose it's a good thing, because my doctor feels that too much sun ages your skin. It is not good to see how long you can stay in the sun or how brown you can burn."

"I think it's important to find a cream that will agree with your skin. You might have to do a bit of experimenting, but since I've found the right one I find I get more compliments on my complexion."

The talk spun around to exercise. "I am a great one for the before-breakfast-work-out," Martha laughed. "I have a regular routine I do to records."

"For the hips you can't beat a rock and roll rhythm. I sit on the floor, extend my legs and rock my hips back and forth about a hundred times."

"Next I lie flat on the floor, raise my legs to about a 45-degree angle and do splits in the air. There is nothing better for the inside thigh, which is a muscle we use so little it's apt to become flabby. I began with ten times but I've worked up to about 50."

"And this last exercise is for my waist. I stand straight, extend my arms to my side, shoulder height and bend to my left, seeing how far down my leg I can go with my hand. When I feel a strong pull on my right side I reverse the exercise."

"All these only take about 15 minutes," Martha concluded, "and I've found I have no problems with my figure."

Martha Hyer grew up from a dark-haired teen-ager to a blonde sophisticate for bigger movie opportunities. She's soon to be seen starring in 'Showdown at Abilene' for Universal-International.

Fall Flower Show To Feature 'Mother Goose'

Tuesday, Cosden Country Club will be transformed into 'The Garden of Mother Goose.' That is the theme of the Fall Flower show to be presented from 3 to 8 p.m. by the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs.

Arrangements will feature characters and jingles associated with the literature of toddlers and the pinafore set. Included will be a class for black and white composition, with the title, "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep."

"Rockabye, Baby" will be a crescent arrangement. Painted materials may be used for the composition arrangement titled "Little Queen Pippin." A Hogarth Curve will cover the class, "There Was A Crooked Man."

"Robin Hood" will be an all-green arrangement, placed in a green container. A free standing arrangement will be the one with the name, "Here We Go Round The Mulberry Bush."

Dried materials will make a composition arrangement to be classed as "Harvest Home." "Jack, Be Nimble," as might be supposed, will feature candles. A miniature arrangement, not to exceed three inches in height, will be "Jerry Hall."

New flower arrangers will have their day with the class of "If Wishes Were Horses," and "Hickory, Dickory Dock" will be a vertical arrangement.

Another tiny arrangement class is named, "Little Miss Muffet," and may be from three to eight inches in height.

Designed only for winners of blue ribbons is the group under "Birds of a Feather." A composition featuring fruits and vegetables is appropriately named "Father in the Dell." This may be made with or without fresh flowers.

For men only, is the class of arrangements titled "I Had a Little Husband." And for children from six to nine years of age, there is a class, "Ten Little Indians."

For the ten to 15-year-olds, a class has been named "A Million Little Diamonds."

In the horticulture division, classes will be open for chrysanthemums, dahlias, roses and iris. Also included are such perennials as carnations, daisies, snapdragons, salvia, lilies, gaillardia, gladioli, scabiosa, heliotrope, heliopsis, helenium, luthrum, hardy asters and perennial phlox.

Among annuals entered in the show will be petunias, cosmos, zinnias, celosia, marigolds, nasturtiums, geraniums, verbena, ageratum, periwinkle, calendula, sweet alyssum, globe amaranth, plumbago, bells of Ireland and feverfew.

Dusty miller, Joseph's coat, coleus, caladium, summer poinsettia and elephant ears will be entered in the foliage plants classes. Also to be shown are flower shrubs flowering vines, pyracantha and other berried shrubs.

General chairman of the show is Mrs. V. A. Whittington; the ticket committee is headed by Mrs. J. B. Long; Mrs. W. D. Caldwell is chairman of the classification and entry committee, while Mrs. Deway Mark and her committee will serve as hostesses. All are members of the Spicers Garden Club.

From the Planters Garden Club is Mrs. J. W. Dickens who will arrange the staging for the show. The education and conservation exhibit will be assembled by Mrs. O. W. Sparks and a committee. They are members of the Planters Garden Club. Mrs. Dickens will be assisted by Mrs. Bill Tubb, a member of the newly-organized Four O'Clock Garden Club.

Arranging for and entertaining the judges of the show will be a group headed by Mrs. James Lewis of the Rosebud Club. Members of the Big Spring Garden Club, who will serve as committee chairmen, are Mrs. Obie Bristow, schedule; Mrs. John Knox, clerks and awards, and Mrs. D. S. Riley, publicity.

Admission to the show will be 50 cents, with no charge for children under 15 years of age.

"Sounds simple, doesn't it?" she continued. "But if you are used to good food, Texas style, you stretch your stomach and you form a habit of eating more than you need."

"I think my living in Japan was the turning point. Their food is simple. They have no rich sauces, no fancy desserts or bread and butter. Their main dish is fish, often raw. I learned to eat as they do and when I came home I was no longer craving sweets or rich foods."

Picking up a conversational thread we had dropped, I asked

Roy Ratliff Family Newcomers To City

New to Big Spring, but not to West Texas, are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ratliff, 1511 Johnson. The Ratliffs moved to Big Spring about three weeks ago from Abilene. Ratliff is the assistant state fire marshal recently assigned to this area. He is employed by the state fire insurance commissioner, Mark Wentz, a former Big Spring resident. Inspecting fires for signs of arson is Ratliff's main job. "When an insurance man thinks there may be signs of foul play at a fire, I am called out to that city to inspect the fire," Ratliff explained. Haskell is the hometown of Ratliff. He was the former county clerk in that city. The Ratliffs are a well known pioneer family in that area. His brother, Senator David Ratliff, is perhaps the most noted, but he also has four other brothers who are lawyers,

Forsan Study Club Has Mexican Supper

FORSAN — Mexican supper was served to the members of the Forsan Study Club and their families Thursday evening when the group met at the school. A Halloween theme was used in table decorations which were in charge of the social committee. Girls from the Bingham Dance Studio in Big Spring gave the program for which Mrs. Frank Honeycutt was mistress of ceremonies. Approximately 70 attended. Guests of Mrs. W. J. White and George were Mrs. O. D. Morris and La Rita of Midland and Mrs. J. D. Phillips and Max of Odessa. Mrs. Belle Overton has returned from Ballinger where she visited Mr. and Mrs. A. W. PLATTER PALAVER

By Mary Sue Hale

"Green Door," as done by Jim Lowe on Dot label, is presently number 10 on the nation's hit parade—and still climbing. Locally this record is exceptionally popular, rating much higher than 10th in popularity. A second number that has enjoyed a mammoth local rating is Eddy Haywood's rendition of "Soft Summer Breeze." In the past, every disk recorded by Bill Haley and his Comets have seemed to be tinted with his big record of a number of months ago, "Rock Around the Clock. But this isn't the case for "Rudy's Rock" and "Blue Comet Blues," the two numbers on his latest release. The first mentioned is especially good listening, as it features a saxophone solo, and the second song is very different from anything currently popular. Give this record a couple of weeks, and then check its rating. "Every Day of My Life" by the McGuire Sisters, plays up the fact that slow, dreamy precision but smooth harmony still has good appeal. It seems rather obvious that this record will lose no time in becoming a favorite. This latest McGuire Sisters release has excellent orchestra backing, and a male vocal group lend assistance to the girls, making this a really outstanding disk. Little Richard's Specialty recording of "She's Got It" doesn't specifically state what it is that she "has" but he seems pretty positive about the fact that she does indeed have "it." The result is a platter that is a rock 'n roll favorite with the younger set. The Karen Chandler-Jimmy Wakley team up for the record of "Tonight You Belong To Me," has scored a rather large hit, around this area. I'm sure that through the years many good recordings of "Heart and Soul" have been made. After

They will also have charge of the closing ritual following the noon dinner Sunday.

Rotary Anns Honor Mrs. Rex Webster

Following an informal program the women went to the home of Mrs. D. L. Adcock for dessert. Mrs. Adcock was assisted by Mrs. C. A. Hollingsworth and Mrs. Matt McCall. An arrangement of pink roses in a silver bowl flanked by pink tapers was used on the table. Twenty-three women attended.

Later in the evening the women were joined by the men following their dinner meeting at the Green Hut.

Stuffed Franks Are Delight To Prepare

This new way of preparing franks is easy and quick and provides plenty of nutrition.

Ingredients:

Two packages (12 ounces each) frozen mashed potatoes, salt, butter or margarine, 8 to 10 (1 to 1 1/4 pounds) frankfurters, 1/4 to 1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese, paprika.

Method:

Heat potatoes according to package directions using the amount of salt and butter called for on label. Cover frankfurters with boiling water; cover and allow to stand off heat for 5 minutes; drain. Carefully slit each frankfurter lengthwise, but all the way through. Hold frankfurters open and pile potatoes over cut surface; sprinkle potatoes with grated cheese and dust lightly with paprika. Broil about 5 inches from high heat until once. Makes 4 to 5 servings — till tops are lightly browned. Serve 2 franks for each portion.

Indians Had Disposable Diaper First
 TORONTO — Nature's throw-away diapers still are used by many Northern Ontario Indian mothers who stick to the economical and practical methods of baby care their forebears have followed for centuries.
 Indian mothers use absorbent moss, which they pack around the baby being carried in a "Tikinagun" or moss-bag on its mother's back.
 Frank Belmore describes the Indian's answer to a diaper service in "The Tikinagun," an article in the current issue of Sylvia, published by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.
 The Tikinagun is a basket-like cradle, made mainly of wood, in which the Indian child, padded with moss and firmly laced, spends most of his time until he can walk. He rides strapped to his mother's back or in a canoe or sled. But is taken out at night to sleep.
 Tradition and superstition are linked in the making of a Tikinagun, spruce being used for the main board. Pine is taboo because the Indian associated pine branches with the sighing of the wind which would disturb a sleeping child.
 The spruce is cut from the southeast side of three because of the Indian belief in the influence the rising sun has on life. The child's back will rest against the side of the wood away from the heart of the tree, because to face the center of a tree is a symbol of death. His head will be at the end of the board toward the top of the tree because nothing can grow upside down.
 The baby is bound into a U-shaped frame of ash or white birch by a laced-up strip of plaid blanket. Around him is packed the absorbent moss. Rabbit fur keeps his feet warm in winter.
 Indian babies suffer no diaper rash, possibly due to the moss having antiseptic qualities. A dusting powder of rotted birch wood is sometimes used to relieve chafing.
 When the baby outgrows his Tikinagun at about 10 months, he is transferred to another in a large size. Instead of throwing the old one away, it used to be custom to take it into the bush and fasten it to a sturdy tree.

SESSION TODAY

History Group To Meet At College

Howard County Junior College has offered its facilities for the once-a-month Sunday afternoon meetings of the World History group of Big Spring. The college will open its library and a history classroom for the October meeting to begin at 2 p.m. today.

Paul Vagt, college librarian, Ray F. Broussard, history teacher at the college, Orland W. Johnson, teacher of choral music, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Lillie Gruesen, all members of the group, and Charles Cain, its leader, made the preparations for today's discussion. The year-round world history discussions are free, open to anyone who is interested, involve neither lectures nor examinations and are not connected with college courses. Although the idea for the series grew out of the Great Books activities sponsored nationally by the Great Books Foundation and locally by the college, and out of the earlier American Heritage meetings held in the Howard County Free Library, the World History organization is entirely self-governing. It chooses its own reading matter and criticizes the authors with the utmost freedom.

Today's meeting, second in the series, will deal with H. G. Wells' ideas on early thought (prehistoric), the distribution and classification of languages and races, and the first known civilizations, both African and Asian. Sidelights from other historians will be thrown into the discussion and newer evaluations by ethnologists, archeologists, and leading authorities in the infant science of linguistics.

A second unit of the group is under consideration to accommodate the many applicants unable to meet on Sundays.

Aristotle's "Poetics" is scheduled for discussion at the Monday session of the Big Spring Great Books group. The meeting will open at 8 p.m. in Room 211, Permian Building.

The celebrated Aristotelian work will be considered not only as an analysis of the poetry and drama of ancient Greece and as the chief influence in the creative writing and literary criticism of the western world for more than two thousand years, but also in comparison with the literary productions and standards of other cultures, ancient and modern, oriental as well as occidental.

Great Books meetings, held on the second and fourth Monday evenings of each month, are open to all interested persons. There are no lectures, fees, dues or obligations of any kind.

Drought Tightens Bond Market For Water Projects

FORT WORTH, Oct. 20 (AP)—Bond money for the state's water projects is tightening because "we have been dry in Texas so long and have made so much noise about it," a speaker at the Texas Water Conservation Assn. convention said today.

W. E. Tinsley, executive director of the Municipal Advisory Council of Austin, said the time is past when investors bought water bonds on the premise that water is essential to man's existence and therefore he is sure to pay for it.

Tinsley pointed out that revenue bonds are easier carried in an election since no property taxes are involved.

"Revenue bonds are good bonds only as long as the encumbered public facility produces sufficient revenue to pay operation and maintenance costs and has plenty left over for debt charges," Tinsley added.

Investors are becoming more wary of Texas' bonds, the speaker continued, and are beginning to be very careful in putting up their money.

Ropers Sign Up

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Oct. 20 (AP)—Fifteen top steer ropers have put up forfeit money for the annual roping-branding contest here Nov. 11. Each roper is putting up $250 and will rope four steers.

Pickled Pigs

ATASCADERO, Calif. (AP)—Did you know that water and barley and pigs produce pickled pigs? Neither did Jim Bentley, an Atascadero farmer, until yesterday.

Bentley thinks a lot of his three pigs. He gave them a special treat of barley soaked in water. Later he tried to herd them into their pen and found they couldn't move.

So Bentley rushed to the telephone and called a veterinarian. "Humph," said the vet after a quick look. "They're not sick, just drunk."

Gunman, Not Stork, Visits Hospital

BOSTON (AP)—A lone gunman wearing women's clothes—entered the Boston Lying-in Hospital today, forced four employees to open a strongbox and escaped with $2,500 in cash and about $37,500 in checks.

All four employees, three women and a man, told police the intruder was a man despite the garb.

The holdup man poked what appeared to be a weapon under his coat and demanded the receipts. He escaped on foot.

Building In Slight Dip

AUSTIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—Building in the first nine months dipped 11 per cent below 1955 but was 6 per cent above 1954, the Bureau of Business Research said today.

The total authorized building during September was 73 million dollars and the January-September total was 719 million dollars.

Lagging residential building registered its lowest monthly total in September since January, 1954. It was 31 million dollars.

Knife-Fork Club To Hear Humorist

Second speaker of the fall season for the Big Spring Knife and Fork Club will be Win Pendleton, public relations counselor, columnist and radio speaker of Washington, D. C.

WIN PENDLETON

Pendleton, who insists that a public relations man is in a peculiarly difficult position in the national capital, will discuss, in an entirely humorous vein, "Why Public Relations Men?"

He insists likewise, that life in the world's most serious city is not endurable unless one develops a sense of humor.

The Big Spring Knife and Fork Club has 300 on its rolls at present and it is anticipated that most of these members will be at the Settles Hotel on the evening of Nov. 1 to hear Pendleton. The dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Pendleton is hailed as one of the most amusing platform speakers of the day. He has an endless stock of ludicrous and amusing things to tell about Washington and the people who live there.

His talk is strictly for entertainment and he will not, it is promised, endeavor to do anything more than keep the listeners highly amused from the time he takes over until the end of his address.

Producer of a column, "Washington See-Saw," which is carried regularly by about 100 papers in the United States and abroad, Pendleton puts in a full day gathering the important news as it breaks. But he avoids the discussion of serious matters in his talks, preferring to talk about things that are humorous or at least have a humorist twist.

"There's so much seriousness these days, that the need for laughs is paramount to being informed about how bad certain conditions are," he says. "While Washington heads the list as the most serious city in the world, it also has its share of the ludicrous, and it is this I want to bring to my audiences," he continues.

A consultant to several congressmen, Pendleton's advice to his clients begins sagely with "The politician's fatal mistake comes when he begins to believe his own publicity."

During World War II, Pendleton was in charge of the Speakers Bureau for the United States Army in London. He still frequently acts as a consultant to the Department of Defense on mediums and media.

Manufacturing Employment Up 39 Per Cent In West Texas

ABILENE — Manufacturing employment in West Texas has increased 39 per cent in the past five years, an article in the October issue of West Texas Today reveals.

The article, written for the monthly publication of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce by Ted Clifford of the Texas Employment Commission, points out that all non-farm employment has increased 20 per cent in the same period.

Factory employment in West Texas, the article says, has "jumped 39 per cent to 132,122" in 1955 as opposed to 94,990 in 1950. The TEC estimates that West Texas non-farm employment has gained 20 per cent to a total of 856,300 in 1955 as compared to 710,995 in 1950. Howard County non-farm employment gained from 8,725 to 9,700, average of 11.2 per cent.

"Factory employment makes up 15.4 per cent of all non-farm employment in West Texas," the article states. In 1950 it made up 13.4 per cent. Among the 132 counties in the WTCO region, two—Tarrant (Fort Worth) and El Paso—have factory employment running to five digits; 15 have totals in four digits; and 51, totals in three digits. Six counties have no manufacturing employment, and 17 have 10 or fewer factory employees. The article further points out that Tom Green County (San Angelo) has made the best percentage increase in manufacturing employment in the five-year period. Its factory total has jumped 40 per cent to 2,050. El Paso has done nearly as well with an 81 per cent leap to 12,326 factory workers.

Lubbock has achieved a 60 per cent rise to 4,401. The most populous county, Tarrant, has made a 41 per cent gain to 57,200. Potter-Randall, taken together because Amarillo is in both counties, has scored a 43 per cent advance to 5,207. Taylor has chalked up a 35 per cent increase to 3,200. McLennan, 29 per cent to 8,768; Wichita 18 per cent to 3,491; and Hutchinson (Borger) to 4,150, the article states. Howard County rose 30 per cent to reach 1,000.

Tarrant County, whose 57,200 factory workers made up 43 per cent of all factory employment in the region, in turn has nearly one-half of its total working in transportation equipment plants. All but a small fraction of that number are in aircraft industries. Next major industry group in Tarrant is food processing, which includes such businesses as bakeries, bottling plants, packing plants, candy factories and the like.

The county had around 11,000 workers in this industry group. El Paso, second largest manufacturing center in West Texas, counted the largest number of its factory workers in apparel and other fabric products making a total of 3,300. Food processing, always one of the larger groups, had 2,200. Also running to four digits were primary metals, with 1,900 workers and petroleum refining with 1,100.

He Was A Rich Man

CHICAGO — The examining physician at Cook County Hospital tried yesterday to cheer the shabbily dressed little old man brought in for treatment of injuries suffered when he was hit by a car.

"I'll bet you're a rich fellow," the doctor said.

"Oh, yes," replied the man, who was identified as Rashad Joseph, about 80. "I've got four or five hundred dollars."

As he was being admitted to the hospital, Joseph checked for safekeeping a total of $27,311, including several $500 bills and 10 gold pieces of $10 and $20 denominations. Most of the cash was in a second pair of trousers he was wearing.

Joseph's wife Edith stood by while her husband, a retired porter, was taken to the X-ray department for examination of head injuries.

"I never knew he had all that money," she said.

William Tell Freed On Bail

NEW YORK — A New Jersey youth wearing a Robin Hood outfit and carrying bow and arrows was picked up in Times Square last night while offering to shoot an apple off the head of any willing person.

David Hahn, 19, Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., was standing at the corner of Broadway and 43rd St. He was wearing a green Robin Hood costume, hunter's cap and deerskin jacket. He carried a large bow and two steel-tipped arrows.

Freed in $10 bail for a later hearing, Hahn refused to talk about the incident. Police said it might have been part of a fraternity initiation. Hahn was charged with disorderly conduct.

Lawbreaking Legal — For A Fee

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Feel like lawbreaking?

It can be done, legally, in Santa Ana—for a fee.

To clear streets of automobiles at night for city street sweepers, Santa Ana made it illegal to park on the street overnight.

But for citizens who really have to park there, the ordinance provides that the law can be broken by anyone who pays a $4 monthly fee. The fee is for a permit to park on the street in violation of the ordinance.

Abilene Council Calls Bond Vote

ABILENE, Oct. 20 — The Abilene city council has called an $8,000,000 bond election for Dec. 11, with $3,500,000 proposed for water and sewer expansion. Other items would be for streets, an underpass, fire station, golf course, airport improvements, library and parks.

Here! New Task-Force 57 Chevrolet Trucks! Performance-proved in a history-making test on the ALCAN Highway to Alaska

Here are the trucks that conquered the ALCAN Highway—one of the world's most challenging roads! Six new '57 Chevrolet trucks, heavily loaded with cargo, roared north from Dawson Creek, B. C., through 1,520 miles of mountains and mire, rain and hail—every conceivable natural roadblock—to Fairbanks, Alaska. Running around the clock, they made this tortuous trip—normally a 72-hour run—in less than 45 hours.

Like a carelessly unwound ribbon, the Alcan Highway twists and reels for 1,520 miles. It tumbles over towering mountains of awesome beauty and wanders through desolate Yukon forests.

This is the road that was chosen to give the new '57 Chevrolet trucks a supreme test of stamina, performance and handling ease. The results of that test made hauling history!

It's the road where trucks grow old before their time. The road where gravel endlessly sledgehammers the life out of trucks. Where a fog of superfine dust chokes engines, and vicious ruts jolt and jar each chassis unit.

FIRST WITH THE MOST MODERN FEATURES!

New 283-cubic-inch Taskmaster V8 delivers 160 high-torque horsepower. Standard in Series 5000, 7000 and 8000, optional in Series 6000 at extra cost. Horsepower ranges up to 210 in Chevrolet's complete line-up of modern V8 and 6 truck engines.

Revolutionary Powermatic Transmission—exclusive with Chevrolet trucks—is an extra-cost option in Series 5000 and 6000 and all heavy-duty truck models. Hydra-Matic is offered in 3000 and 4000 Series models at extra cost.

L.C.F. models outdate the C.O.E. because they're lower, hand-somer, easier to get into and out of, and save time in routine engine maintenance. Yet they offer all C.O.E. advantages.

Heavyweight Champs with Triple-Torque tandem are rated at 32,000 lbs. GVW, 50,000 GCW. And Chevrolet's advanced tandem axle unit offers a built-in three-speed power divider.

The Chevrolet Alcan run was sanctioned and official results certified—by the AAA.

Proved on the Alcan Highway... CHEVROLET Champs of every weight class!

Alcan fleet reports up to 18.17 miles per gallon! That's the mileage reported by the Cameo Carrier, with Thriftmaster 6 and Overdrive (optional at extra cost).

All the way in DRIVE range with Powermatic! This Powermatic-equipped 10000 Series tractor traveled the Alcan Highway in a single forward-speed range!

New Super Taskmaster V8 flattens Yukon mountains! This Series 5000 truck with its new 283-cubic-inch V8 climbed towering grades with ease.

Homer Garrison Keeps Watch Over Fellow Texans

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN, Oct. 19 (AP) — Homer Garrison Jr., 54, has spent more than half his life proving to Homer Garrison Sr. that a boy who chooses law enforcement as a career doesn't have to wind it up as the town nightwatchman.

Instead, the six-foot-two, square-jawed state police director keeps his cool—and sometimes cold—eyes on the security and safety of eight and a half million Texans.

And the father, 89, still living at their Lufkin home, long ago was convinced that his tall, gangling 19-year-old son knew what he was doing when he became a deputy sheriff of Angelina County in deep East Texas.

Garrison Sr. was just as proud as other Texans when the director of the State Department of Public Safety won worldwide recognition a few years ago by being elected president of the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police. That in effect made him Mr. Police Chief of the world.

When Homer Garrison was still in his teens, he began giving off some signs of what it takes both physically and emotionally to become a good officer.

The young deputy sheriff, on one of his first assignments, rushed a man holding a cocked .45 caliber single action coil, got his thumb under its raised hammer, and disarmed the fellow by jerking the gun away.

FIRST ARREST

His first arrest, Garrison says, nearly scared him to death and he has been scared so many times since that he has lost count. In the first case, he settled a drug-store brawl in Lufkin by clobbering its instigator and kev figure with the barrel of his .45, catching him by the collar, and dragging him two blocks to the county courthouse for a sobering experience just outside the jail door.

"I was scared I had hurt him bad and I'm glad I hadn't," Garrison said. "There was a fine legal point involved, too. I had been deputized but not formally commissioned. My boss, the sheriff, was worried about it. But the man was armed with a big, heavy old-fashioned lemon squeezer, he was drunk, and he had hit the druggist with it."

Garrison's action had the effect of putting the man he arrested on the permanent water wagon. "He's still living and he is one of my best friends," Garrison says.

Once in his career as head of the state police and the world-famous Texas Rangers, Garrison himself bore out the proud adage: "One riot, one Ranger."

He and several Rangers were on that job and when his companions went to lunch, Garrison alone guarded the door of an industrial plant besieged with strike trouble.

"The leader of the crowd that was threatening to come in and wreck the place knew the other officers had gone. He walked right up to the deadline we had set down the middle of the street," Garrison recollected.

"He and his friends kept coming and I just sat there waiting for them, scared stiff. It helped to know I had a machine gun behind the door, but I didn't want to have to use it. I didn't want to. They walked right up to the middle of the street and stopped."

EARLY PINCH

That experience was typical of Homer Garrison's theory of law enforcement. That is, try to pinch off violence before it happens. Keep traffic hazards under control with maximum patrols and warnings and a constant hammering at safety education.

"I never shot anybody," Garrison says, "and I pray that I will never have to in doing my duty. I've had to hit some, but we teach our men to take the man without taking his life, stop the crime before it is committed, prevent the automobile accident before it happens, keep the peace without making trouble."

As to the business of being scared, Garrison says that any officer who says he isn't or hasn't been usually is bragging. "I have just known two or three Rangers who did not know fear," Garrison says, "but they are all brave men."

That's just one facet of Garrison's character. There are others equally potent in the makeup of the man who heads a law enforcement body of more than 1,200 commissioned state officers including 51 Texas Rangers, the men who wear modified western hats; 625 smartly-uniformed State Highway Patrolmen; and a host of ballistics experts, chemists, communications experts, lig detector operators and other laboratory technicians and specialists in other police fields.

Garrison is keenly conscious of his individual civic duties. He is a churchman, past chairman of the board of stewards of the First Methodist Church in Austin; a Rotarian; a former director of the Austin Chamber of Commerce.

Garrison is deeply concerned about juvenile delinquency and other problems of youth. Once again, his chief concern is in stopping trouble before it starts.

He is a member of the State Youth Development Council. He is a working vice president of the Capitol Area Council of the Boy Scouts. His son, Tray, 14, a ninth-grader, is an Eagle scout and on the top rung of the ladder in scouting.

NO POLITICS

People wonder sometimes just how much politics is involved in the state police organization.

To Garrison, the answer is: "Absolutely none at all." Its governing body is the three-member public safety commission adopted by the governor for overlapping terms, subject to Senate confirmation. The commission is strictly a policy-making body. Garrison is its chief executive officer and in the final analysis he's the man who says where to concentrate the Rangers and where to spot the highway patrol in potential disaster or danger areas.

In the recent racial troubles at Mansfield, the Rangers, Gov. Shivers and Garrison got considerable publicity. The Rangers and the department's internal security men had been in close touch with the situation for days before any formal orders were issued.

There was a day in Texas when the Ranger force was made up of 31 men—each appointment fathered by a state senator and each Ranger known as "senator so-and-so's man." Now they are merit jobs—coveted as promotions within the Department of Public Safety. A Ranger or highway patrolman whose conduct doesn't fit the rigid standards now established doesn't last long with the force. There is seldom any fanfare, but out they go.

OPEN DOOR

Garrison follows the open-door policy in dealing with the public and with his farflung police organization. When you dial the state police switchboard at Austin and ask for Col. Garrison, the presumption is that your business is important. The call goes not to Garrison's secretary, but to Garrison direct. His secretary answers the phone only when he isn't in the office, or when he is in a really vital conference of some kind.

That rule stands for all the other department heads in the big new glass and steel, strictly functional public safety headquarters. If the phone call to the head man concerns a matter such as a driver's license or some other relative triviality, Garrison politely refers it to the correct office. Garrison's is a 24-hour-a-day job, but his nature is such that night calls don't cause him to lose any sleep. Nor do his responsibilities keep him from relaxing.

At home, says his wife, pretty brunette Mary Nell, he keeps a pencil and a pad by the telephone. He makes notes on each call at any hour—and he is awake instantly. If a decision is indicated, he makes it on the spot, hangs up the phone, and goes back to sleep.

"He doesn't worry about his problems," said Mrs. Garrison. "He is concerned about traffic deaths for instance, but his method is to do everything possible about any situation that presents itself, then relax."

Garrison's chief outdoor recreation is fishing with his wife and son. Every year he and Tray go deep sea fishing. As in his police work, Garrison uses the method that works. If the fish won't hit artificial baits, he tries worms or minnows.

When Homer Garrison had his legal disabilities as a minor removed to become a commissioned police officer, he made up his mind that he would go all the way. His father wanted him to become a civil engineer and warned him that a good many law enforcement officers do indeed finish their careers beating around the town square at night testing locks and jailing drunks.

He bought or borrowed every book he could find—and in those days 35 years ago there weren't many—on police administration and methods. He read law and kept up with what was going on in the world.

In 1929 he became a license and weight inspector for the Highway Department, which then handled that work. When the State Highway Patrol was created in 1930, he became one of its five lieutenants in charge of a district.

He rode a motorcycle in those days and he still can. But he doesn't like it. Officers say he can really handle a car—fast if he has to.

State Police Director

Homer Garrison Jr., 54, Texas State Police director, sits astride a State Highway Patrol motorcycle in Austin, much as he did in 1930 when the Patrol was organized, when he was one of its five lieutenants in charge of a district. He can still ride one but doesn't like it. He heads a law enforcement body of more than 1,200 commissioned state officers including 51 Texas Rangers. When the Department of Public Safety was created in 1935, Garrison was named assistant director under the late Col. H. H. Carmichael. He succeeded him.

Pt. Arthur Theatre Starts A Comeback

By MARSHALL COMERER
Associated Press Staff

The Port Arthur Little Theatre, its building destroyed in a fire last July, started a strong comeback last week.

Its production was "Time of Cuckoo," presented in the Knights of Columbus hall, loaned to the group until it can find or build a new home.

The consensus of critics and the audience was that the experimental arena style was a great success and that Port Arthur's little theater has "the personnel, the vigor and the know-how to overcome" the blow dealt by the fire.

The season's opener of the Beaumont Community Theater, Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate," was called "pleasant" but short of the inspired performance of "Finian's Rainbow," which set a standard when the group produced it last spring.

Singled out for high praise were Bill McDermand, the lead, and Ann Basco, who joined the cast at the last minute when another member of the cast became ill.

The Margo Jones Theater '56 in Dallas opens its season Nov. 6 with "Stalin Allee," a farce laid in East Berlin.

The theater plans a season of 30 weeks with seven new scripts and one classic revival.

Theater '56 will present a guest appearance by Henry Daniell, the villain of stage and screen, in the leading role of "The Tin Cup," a new murder mystery which he plans to play on Broadway. It opens Jan. 29.

Openings this week include: The Corpus Christi Symphony Orchestra Monday with pianist James Gregory as soloist. He will play Liszt's Concert 2 in A Major.

On Thursday Houston's Alley Theater opens its fifth week of "Sabrina Fair," and the TCU Little Theater season opens with "Born Yesterday," the farce by Garson Kanin.

The Midland Symphony will give its first concert Saturday night.

The Wichita Falls Symphony has scheduled its first major concert Nov. 5. Marjorie Lawrence will be soloist.

The Fort Worth Opera Assn. plans two productions by its members during this, its tenth season. They will be "Barber of Seville" Dec. 5-7, and "La Traviata," March 6-8.

Holden May Take Moon Trip After All

As a boy William Holden had wild dreams of making a trip to the moon. Now, after filming "Toward The Unknown" at Edwards AFB, Calif., he wouldn't be surprised if he does.

"After talking with Air Force rocket pilots at Edwards I'm willing to take bets that trips to the moon will be made in my lifetime," Holden said. "Manned space flights will be a reality within 20 years in the opinion of many of the pilots."

He had just climbed out of the X-2, the latest in rocket planes, for his role of pilot in the film. The X-2, before the recent blast that ended the life of its real pilot, Capt. Milburn Apt, reached a speed of 2,200 miles per hour.

Holden continued: "The boys at Edwards daily are probably doing more than any other group to make a trip to the moon actuality. Of course that is not their objective. The purpose is to make sure planes will fly safely and that they will be superior to enemy aircraft."

"However, by probing the unexplored aspects of flight, the men at Edwards are actually pioneering the flight into outer space."

"These men are not mere pilots. They are aeronautical scientists

'Toward Unknown' Air Pioneer Tale

The story of the pioneers of the future, the rocket pilots who shape America's future in the air by flying the latest jet and rocket planes, is told in "Toward The Unknown," playing Sunday through Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre.

Starred are William Holden, Lloyd Nolan, Virginia Leith and Charles McGraw. Holden, head of the producing company, appointed Mervyn LeRoy as producer-director. LeRoy's latest epic was "The Bad Seed."

Sharing honors with the cast is the X-2, experimental plane which carries an important "role" in the

as well. Holden, who was in the Air Force in World War II, is qualified to understand the problems and objectives of the Air Force. When the officer he portrays in "Toward The Unknown" has a burning desire to be assigned to the X-2, Holden can understand the motivating force.

"As those ships cross each new frontier, further reaches of space come into view," Holden continued. "New types of engines and aircraft must be designed to investigate these. One advanced aircraft leads to another and all of them lead toward that space ship we'll ride some day."

story, filmed at Edwards AFB, Calif., where America's latest planes are tested. It is, however, perhaps the last time the X-2 will be shown on the screen. The plane blew up in flight some time after "Toward The Unknown" was completed, carrying test pilot Capt. Milburn A. Apt to his death.

Holden is starred as a Chinese brainwash victim who had signed a false germ war confession in Korea. After a rest cure, he tries to get on at Edwards as a test pilot. But he meets with suspicion on the part of several fellow officers. He must fight his own doubts as well. Miss Leith is starred as a former sweetheart, Nolan as the commanding general, and McGraw as a flying colonel, one of Holden's few friends.

The story is not a narrative of the nation's test pilots, but is rather a personal drama of one man fighting a dark past. But the personal drama is not allowed to cover up the equally interesting background featuring some daring test flights.

X-2 Is Star Of Holden Film

One of the stars of "Toward The Unknown" is a needle-nosed little plane called X-2. She is now deceased, her parts gathered from many square miles around Edwards AFB, Calif., the nation's testing ground for new experimental planes.

X-2 may not have had the personal appeal of actor William Holden, but she traveled a lot faster. Her predecessor, X-1A, set a record of 1,650 miles per hour and an altitude of 90,000 feet. X-2's speed record was 2,200 miles per hour.

X-2 was in its hangar for filming of ground sequences, and Holden admitted he could never steal that particular scene.

For one sequence Holden was to show inner excitement as he climbed into the cockpit. As a former Air Force man, it didn't require much acting on Holden's part. He was amazed at the tremendous advances in the 10 years since World War II.

For story purposes Holden was supposed to take X-2 aloft. In real life the honor went to famed test pilot Lt. Col. Pete Everest, who looks something like a movie hero himself.

X-2, known as the "flying laboratory," was designed to investigate problems encountered beyond the speed of sound. It carried more explosive rocket force than was ever packed into a plane.

Even standing in the hangar, X-2 proved exciting to the Hollywood technicians, not an easily impressed group. As one man put it: "I felt as though I was helping to photograph a little bit of history."

But X-2, like her predecessor, went the way of many experimental planes. She blew up in flight a few weeks ago, killing her pilot, Capt. Milburn Apt. Apt and X-2 had been prominently featured only a few weeks before in a Life Magazine special "air age" issue.
