'Mad Bomber' Nabbed After 25 Years Of Hate

Newspaper Given Credit For Capture

Interested?

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP)—A clean-cut man in a blue suit told calmly today of 25 years of suffering and of hatred boiling up inside him. Then he confessed he is New York's "mad bomber." George Metesky is his name. He is 53, stocky and gray-haired. He said he made a vow a long time ago to go on planting bombs in New York until he either got caught or died.

Arm said Metesky signed a written statement saying he is the man who, because he felt he got a raw deal from the company he used to work for, planted at least 32 bombs in public places in New York City since 1941. Several of the bombs exploded, killing 15 persons injured, none critically. Arm quoted Metesky as saying he never meant to kill anyone. The commissioner added that Metesky said he planted bombs in New York "whenever he felt like it."

Metesky could well have passed for a school teacher as he went over each bombing, one by one with police in Waterbury's police headquarters in all-night questioning. He was awakened from his bed shortly after midnight and taken in.

Arm said Metesky held a year-long grudge against the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York. Metesky said he contracted pulmonary tuberculosis after he was gassed while working at the firm's Holt Gate plant in New York in 1931, according to Arm. He claimed the company refused to take care of him and that was the reason he planted the home-made bombs, Arm said.

White House Press Secretary James Brown today took over the job during exchange with newsmen over pictures made by a Navy photographer at the private Eisenhower-Nixon private inaugural. He said the pictures would be made available immediately but added, "I would think I could get them later if anybody is interested." This brought roars of laughter from newsmen who had prevailed on against reporters and photographers at the ceremony.

Alcorn Is Named To Top GOP Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—H. Meade Alcorn Jr. of Connecticut today was unanimously elected Republican national chairman. President Eisenhower had named him as his choice.

Alcorn was chosen by the committee on motion of L. Judson Morehouse, New York state chairman. Harry Darby of Kansas, chairman of a subcommittee which conferred with Eisenhower at the White House, had just reported that Eisenhower "would like it very much" if Alcorn was elected to succeed retiring chairman Leonard W. Hall.

Tornado Is Fatal To 8 In Oklahoma

GANS, Okla. (AP)—Eight persons were killed today by an out-of-season tornado that smashed this tiny farm community near the Arkansas border before dawn.

Two families were hardest hit, one with four dead and the other with three. At least a dozen others were injured. Two other twisters struck in eastern Oklahoma, destroying some property but there were no casualties.

The National Guard, Highway Patrol and county officers rushed to Gans, which has a population of about 600. Six houses were demolished, including those of the victims who were still sleeping when the twister swept down through hazy clouds.

A tornado forecast had been issued for the area by the U.S. Weather Bureau as a cold front from the northwest swept into Oklahoma. Record temperatures in the 70s were reported yesterday.

The two other twisters were at Warner and Weverka. The dead, all from Gans or the immediate area: Joe Johnson, 67; C. J. Johnson, 14, his son; Mickey Johnson, 12, another son; Jimmy Meek, 20; Ted Jenkins, 67; Norma Jenkins, 47, his wife; Bonnie Jenkins, 14, their daughter; Darrel Jenkins, 7, their son.

U.N. Arms Talk In Final Stage

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The current U.N. disarmament debate went into its final stage today as the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to meet on an immediate basis on all nuclear weapons tests.

The two other twisters were at Warner and Weverka. The dead, all from Gans or the immediate area: Joe Johnson, 67; C. J. Johnson, 14, his son; Mickey Johnson, 12, another son; Jimmy Meek, 20; Ted Jenkins, 67; Norma Jenkins, 47, his wife; Bonnie Jenkins, 14, their daughter; Darrel Jenkins, 7, their son.

Among the dead persons brought to hospitals at Fort Smith Ark., about 15 miles away, were Mrs. Lorea Meek, wife of the dead man, Lena Mae Meek, 2, and Lorena Meek, 2, believed to be their children.

The United States previously suggested a plan for advance registration of test explosions as a preliminary towards an eventual ban on such tests.

Solar Forecast Of Rainfall Announced

By BENNETT TAYLOR, AP Science Reporter. PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A veteran solar researcher says he has found a way to forecast fairly accurately the rainfall of a community for as much as 10 years in advance. Such a system of forecasting if established in about 30 areas west of the Rocky Mountains could be of enormous value, he asserts.

Parr Jury Forms

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP)—Selection of a jury resumed today in the trial of South Texas political leader George Parr, charged with conspiring to steal Bonaville School District funds.

Solar Forecast Of Rainfall Announced

The procedure is based upon his finding that variations in weather are identical with minute changes in the amount of solar radiation reaching the earth's surface. Variations ranging from 1-50 of 1 per cent to 1-4 of 1 per cent in solar radiation are paralleled, Dr. Abbott says, by changes of 5 to 25 per cent in normal average rainfall and by 1 to 5 degrees in temperature fluctuations.

Weather men generally do not believe that such small solar changes can produce such large weather variations, Dr. Abbott says. Nevertheless he asserts that his forecasting based on it has been 50 to 90 per cent correct.

The sharp peaks and valleys of daily weather graphs have to be averaged and "smoothed out" before they will match the solar graphs of the same dates. The weather lags behind the solar activity by varying lengths of time, depending on the community, the condition of the atmosphere, the extent of sunspots at the time and even the activities of the populations of large metropolitan areas, Dr. Abbott says.

Chef Highballs Hamburgers To Customers By Fast Freight

Nat Begun presses the starting button . . .

BALTIMORE (AP)—It may be a heckuva way to run a restaurant, highballing hamburgers to customers by mainline fast freight. But it has the small fry ga-ga and Pop on the edge of his seat.

And if Mom doesn't give a hoot for model railroad, at least she can enjoy her food unmolested while her offspring give their attention to Nat Begun's "built-in baby sitter."

At Begun's "Hamburger Junction" on Baltimore's northeast fringe, a model freight train circles the inside edge of the counter.

The chef loads the freight—a hamburger and french fries, perhaps—on the flat cars at the kitchen window. He pushes a button and, a two-unit Diesel engine, its horn tooting, drags the load down the main line.

When the freight reaches its destination a waitress punches one of the strategically located control buttons beneath the counter and the train stops. After she unloads the empty freight deadheads . . . and a load of hamburgers reaches the customers

More Witnesses Appear At McDonald Kidnap Hearing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police offered testimony by three new witnesses today as the county grand jury restated the kidnap story of Marie (The Body) McDonald.

The offer of new police witnesses brought an indignant charge from the actress' attorney Jerry Giesler that "they seem to be trying to make one of those old-time slapstick mysteries out of this."

He said that if the grand jury gives time to Police Chief William Parker's witnesses he would offer rebuttal evidence of six others—including comedian Danny Thomas, Thomas' wife Rosemary; and in a reappearance, Marie herself.

Chief Parker said he hoped that before the jury decides what action to take it would hear his three last-minute witnesses: actress Lynn Carter, 32; Police Capt. Robert Lehman; and private detective Allen Amadil, 22.

The chief refused to discuss what the witnesses would have to say.

Prior to her initial grand jury appearance last week, Miss McDonald told newsmen that she hoped the jury would issue John Doe indictments against the two swarthy men she said kidnaped her from her home, drove her 150 miles to the desert, mistreated her and abandoned her on a lonely highway.

Few Openings Remaining For Scouting Trip

Harvey Hooser Jr., who is one of the Boy Scout leaders from Big Spring selected to accompany local Boy Scouts on their summer trip to Valley Forge for the annual Boy Scout roundup, said there are a few openings for boys to make the trip still available.

Hooser said that while the original number of boys allotted to this community had been filled at the outset, quite a number of these youngsters have had to cancel their plans. As a result of their action, the places they had in the party are now open to other scouts who may want to go.

Only 15 boys from Big Spring are to be allowed to make the trip. It was estimated by Hooser that probably not more than 12 applications are now active. He suggested that any scout who wants to go to the Jamboree take action at once.

Total cost for the trip—including transportation by train to and from Valley Forge and room and board for the duration of the rally—is $252. Also included in the plans and not requiring additional money will be trips to Washington, New York City and Niagara Falls.

Hooser suggested that any local scout who wants to make the trip contact Bill McRee, scout executive. He also said that he would be pleased to discuss the matter with any youngster who wants to go to Valley Forge.

Judge Thanks Editors For News Pictures Compliment

TYLER (AP)—The Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. was thanked yesterday by Judge Otis Dunagan for its action in commending him for opening his court to photographers.

First NAACP Brief Received

TYLER (AP)—The first of three briefs on a plea of privilege hearing in which the Texas branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People seeks to have a hearing moved from Tyler was received yesterday by Dist. Judge Otis Dunagan.

The NAACP wants to have a hearing on a permanent injunction moved to Dallas or Austin.

An eight-day plea of privilege hearing was held here in December. Yesterday's brief and the ones expected from the NAACP and the state are in lieu of final arguments.

W. J. Durham of Dallas, Negro attorney for the NAACP, filed yesterday's brief.

In September, Dunagan, at the request of then Atty. Gen. Shepherd, put the Texas NAACP under a temporary restraining order. The state said the NAACP was illegally solicited lawsuits. The NAACP has been out of operation in Texas since then.

Sept. 28 a hearing was started to determine if the temporary restraining order should be made a permanent injunction. The temporary injunction was issued Oct. 24.

Cool Weather Chills West

By The Associated Press

Wintry weather moved into the central part of the country and chilled Western areas, but it was mild in most of the eastern third of the country today.

Rain or snow fell in many sections. Rain extended over the Gulf states. Wet weather was reported from the upper Mississippi Valley westward across the Northern Plains into the Rockies and in the Pacific Northwest. Heavy rain hit sections from the southern tip of Lake Michigan southwestward into the lower Mississippi Valley.

Cold air headed into the Great Lakes region, the Middle Mississippi Valley and the Southern Plains. It was below zero from Montana eastward across the Northern Plains, with readings ranging from -10 to -30.

In contrast to the cold weather moist tropical air spread over the Eastern areas and temperatures were in the 40s and 50s from the lower Great Lakes to the Atlantic and in the upper 40s along the Gulf Coast.

The fresh outbreak of icy air was expected to reach nearly to the northern Appalachians and lower Mississippi Valley during the day.

WORLD'S BIGGEST OPEN PIT MINE AT BINGHAM, UTAH
 Produces 30 per cent of nation's annual yield of newly mined copper

LARGEST MINE 30 Per Cent Of U. S. Copper Comes From Open Pit In Utah

By FRANK WETZEL.
 BINGHAM, Utah (AP)—"Man," said the tourist. "Dig that crazy golf divot."
 And crazy it was, man, for the tourist stood on the lip of the world's largest open pit copper mine, one and three-quarters miles across and 2,210 feet deep.
 For the statistically minded: The mine produces more than 13 billion pounds of copper a year—30 per cent of the nation's yearly yield of newly mined copper and 10 per cent of the world's annual supply.
 The mine has produced, in 51 years, enough copper to encircle the earth at the equator with a solid band one inch thick and more than two feet wide, or about 13 billion pounds.
 The pit is so big engineers keep track of its changing face with aerial photographs.
 There are 175 miles of railroad track on the various bench levels in the mine. The pit, shaped like a bowl or cup, looks similar to a giant football stadium.
NO CROWDING
 If the bench levels were covered with bleachers, all the people in Utah and Texas could be seated comfortably. It would take all the people in Nevada to sell the hot dogs, peanuts and popcorn. The spectators could watch as many as 10 separate football games going on at the bottom of the pit.
 The pit is owned by the Kennecott Copper Corp. and is operated by the company's Utah Copper Division. Operations continue around the clock. About 3,220 men are employed at the mine.
 Its development is a study in perseverance, chiefly by Daniel C. Jackling, who worked his way up from a dollar-a-day hard rock miner to a multimillionaire.

 The average grade of ore now being mined is only .82 per cent copper. Ore containing as little as .4 per cent copper is processed, with material below that grade going to the dump heaps.
 Sixty years ago such poor grade ore was considered useless. But Jackling developed a process for mining the low grade ore—a process which now accounts for more than 60 per cent of the world's copper production.
NOISY WORK
 The mining process begins by blasting. More than six million pounds of dynamite are used in the pit each year.
 Through a series of careful tests, engineers decide if the blasted material has enough copper to be worth processing.
 Electric shovels load the material into side-dump railroad cars. The shovels, weighing from 200 to 250 tons, load a 100-ton ore car in about seven minutes with dippers taking 10 to 14 tons of material at a bite.
 If the material contains enough copper, it goes to the mills. If it doesn't it is hauled to the various outlying waste dumps. The waste mined over 51 years—$27,700,000 tons of it—has filled in branch canyons and gullies and it is necessary to haul the waste farther and farther to new dump sites.

 The ore is hauled over the company-owned railroad to the Arthur and Magna mills near the shore of the Great Salt Lake. Here the ore is processed into a concentrate containing about 30 per cent copper.
PURITY INCREASED
 The copper concentrate goes from the mills to a nearby smelter where anode copper is produced. The anodes contain 99 per cent copper.
 From the smelter the anodes go to a refinery at Garfield, where the copper reaches 99.96 purity and is cast into marketable shapes and is sold to a variety of customers.
 For the entire mine-to-refinery operation, the Utah Copper Division employs 6,300 men. During 1955, the expenses for payroll, taxes, supplies, freight and other items totaled nearly 134 million dollars—a major factor in the economy of Utah.
 How long before the mine peters out? Well, that's a tough question to answer. In any such mass production operation, the increase in cost of only a few cents a ton can shorten the life of the mine considerably.
 Years ago the cutoff point for economically mining the rock was 16 pounds of copper per ton. Today ore containing only 4 pounds of copper a ton is shipped to the mills. Sometimes ore of only 4 pounds per ton is milled.
 Kennecott is plowing millions of dollars back into research and new equipment in efforts to increase efficiency. The company says it has turned literally millions of tons of waste into ore, thus greatly lengthening the life of the mine.

Tibetan Ruler Delays Return To Homeland

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Many diplomats and Indians are wondering if the Dalai Lama, spiritual ruler of Tibet, is having second thoughts about returning to his Communist-occupied homeland.
 Delays in ending his Indian visit have given rise to rumors that he is.
 The Dalai Lama, 22, and the 19-year-old Panchen Lama, No. 2 man in the Tibetan hierarchy, came to India Nov. 23 to take part in Indian ceremonies marking the 2,500th anniversary of the birth of Buddha. Followers of the two young men believe both are reincarnations of Buddha.
 The two originally were scheduled to leave for home Jan. 4. They extended their stay two weeks and now apparently have prolonged it a second time.
 An Indian government spokesman said today the Dalai Lama will end his present visit to Calcutta Friday and go to Kalimpong, Indian terminus of the main caravan route to Lhasa, the Tibetan capital. The spokesman said he did not know when the Dalai Lama would leave Kalimpong for Tibet.
 Rumor has it that the "living Buddha" has delayed his departure while trying to decide whether to seek asylum in India. While the rumor remains unconfirmed, many foreign diplomats here believe it has substance.
 Several members of the Dalai Lama's party went to Katmandu in Nepal, this week. Reporters there quoted at least one member of the Tibetan party as saying both Lamas "have agreed to return to Tibet reluctantly." He said they had hoped to visit Europe and the United States.
 The reports from Katmandu also quoted the Tibetan as saying Chinese Communist authorities who control Tibet have been advised of the schedule for the return of the Lamas.
 There has been no suggestion here that the Panchen Lama does not want to go back to Tibet. He generally is considered to be pro-Communist and spent much of his early life in China.
 But the Dalai Lama fled Lhasa six years ago when the Chinese Reds invaded Tibet. He reached Yatung, near the Indian frontier, but his advisers convinced him he should return to his capital.
 He since has appeared to have accepted Communist rule.

Back To Business As Usual For Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's back to business as usual today for President Eisenhower after a brilliant inaugural celebration, crowned by appearance at four gay, diamond-studded galas honoring the start of his second term.
 They kept him on the go until nearly 1 a.m.—and he seemed to enjoy every minute.
 With his lady on his arm, he left the White House soon after 10 o'clock, started to the Washington Armory and showed up at three hotels in the next 2 1/2 hours.
 Dance orchestras played, colors were trooped, thousands of people promenaded past the presidential boxes, and celebrated singers gave their all with everything from the National Anthem to "The Blue Danube" and "Mr. Wonderful."
 The President was a picture of perpetual motion.
 He bowed, waved, smiled, bobbed up and down from the chairs, gave one-and two-handed salutes to acquaintances, and fell into at least one deep conversation.
 That was with Secretary of State Dulles, one of his guests in the presidential box at the Statler Hotel. They put their heads together and talked intently, apparently oblivious of the cyclone of sound and color around them.
 Vice President and Mrs. Nixon also made the circuit of the celebrations. Cabinet members were divided among the four affairs.
 Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, and his wife Barbara were with the President. The major wore his Army dress uniform of dark blue with gold epaulettes.
 At one of the last stops along the route, Mrs. Eisenhower told friends, "We've just had a lovely party." The President, sipping tomato juice, added, "In fact, everywhere."
 They all returned to the White House at 12:42 a.m.
 The President also told friends yesterday's inaugural parade was "the best parade I've ever seen." He described it as "less of the ragged, strolling kind of thing." Four years ago, at his first inauguration, the big procession kept him in the reviewing stand until well after darkness fell.
 Yesterday, a shorter army of marchers moved smartly. The parade lasted about an hour longer than the optimistic schedule called for, after a late start.
 It brought a colorful column of bands and uniforms, precision marching units of the armed services, flower-decked floats with pretty girls in evening dresses aboard—and the grim symbols of modern warfare—missiles, big and small, developed by the Army, Navy and Air Force.
 Eisenhower's flashing smile faded away each time one of the deadly missiles rolled past the stand.
 But the big grin came back when Miss Burma, a Republican elephant, came ambling past. The pachyderm halted, rose on her hind legs and raised her trunk in a solemn salute.
 Standing near the presidential reviewing stand were two men who played vital roles in Eisenhower's life recently.
 One was Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist who supervised treatment when Eisenhower was stricken in 1955. The other was Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton who operated on him after an attack of ileitis nine months later. White told reporters the President "apparently is in excellent health" now.

Island Legates To Form Union

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Delegates from 11 islands arcing 2,000 miles between North and South America gathered today to set up the government of a British Caribbean federation.
 The island federation will unite Trinidad, Jamaica, Barbados and the Windward and Leeward Islands as a separate member of the British Commonwealth. Britain will retain control of the federation's defense, foreign relations and some of its financial policies.
 British Guiana and Honduras, which are undecided on whether to enter the federation, sent observers to the meeting of the standing federation committee.
 The two-week meeting will draft a federal constitution, pick a capital, select a name for the new grouping, consider a national anthem and the design of a national flag, and plan the mechanics of government organization. A special commission is also to report on plans for a customs union.
 The location of the capital is expected to create the greatest controversy. But indications were that the committee would accept the recommendation of a site near Bridgetown, Barbados, made by a special commission appointed by British Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd.

Slick Mercury

BOONVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—The temperature climbed 94 degrees in less than a week in this Adirondack Mountain community. The mercury plunged to 55 degrees below zero last Tuesday, an official all-time low for the state. Yesterday the temperature was 39 above.

A Bible Thought For Today

For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. (Isaiah 55:10-11)

Editorial

Essential Ingredient: Alert Press

Among the many "lobby control" bills dropped into the Texas Legislature during its opening days this session is one which is expected to receive careful consideration. It's the one recommended by the Texas Legislative Council.

The bill approaches the lobby problem from the viewpoint of state officials. It would set up a code of ethics for legislators, state officers and employees. The responsibility is put on the public servant to conduct himself properly. Some signs are set up to guide where private interests and official duties are in conflict.

Ten House members, including some very able West Texans, signed the measure as co-authors.

To a layman, such specific rules of conduct might seem useless. Black is black and white is white. But, in the often-confused governmental picture, there are all shades of gray, as well. Lawyers, in particular, who are members of the Legislature (and that's the leading profession in both the House and Senate) sometimes have to decide which is their major job, law or legislation. The code of ethics should be spelled out.

That, however, won't clear up all the lobby problem. There must be some enforcement of the code. The lobby itself should have some sort of supervision. We must have an alert state press which will bring to light any dark dealings. And, the whole legislative profession needs to be upgraded — an action which the lawmakers themselves must initiate.

Certainty Of The Uncertainty

The entire January 10 edition of "Weekly Weather and Crop Bulletin" put out by the United States Weather Bureau is concerned with that recurrent phenomenon, drought.

This study gives a partial answer to a question that has plagued many minds, doubtless for countless generations: Does the weather in general follow a more or less regular pattern?

"The fact is . . . that little definite evidence of periodic variation can be found whose period is consistent from one station to another and from one part of the record to another," the report says at one point. "Rather striking periodicities nonetheless show up in certain records, such as the 11-to-12-year cycle at Natural Bridge, Ariz., the 20-year cycle at Columbus, Kan., and the somewhat longer but irregular cycles at other Kansas stations. It is uncertain whether or not these rhythms have any physical meaning and will continue in the future."

In short, up to this good moment, it is impossible to look at the behavior of the weather in a given locality in former years and decades and from the data thus available to predict what the weather is going to be next week or next month or next year or next decade.

However, the survey goes so far as to say that "long-term trends are evident in some of the precipitation records in the drought (drouth) area. Several shorter-period records show downward trends which appear significant." We gather the impression that even granting the presence of these "trends," it is still impossible for weather scientists to arrive at any firm opinion regarding the future from the experiences of the past.

Mankind has been intimately concerned with the weather since the dawn of human history, but as a science meteorology is still rather new, and as in all sciences its dedicated seers are still pretty cautious in dealing with "trends." Some of them talk in terms of 50 to 100 years with great conviction, but others are just as ready to dispute their views.

The USWB summary notes that the current dry spell "has in general equalled or exceeded that of any other drought occurring in the same area since the beginning of precipitation records about the middle of the 19th Century"—that is, back in the 1850s. Tree-ring data, it says, suggests that "there have been no droughts of substantially greater severity in Western and Southwestern United States since about 1870, and perhaps not since 1570."

The report does come pretty close to underwriting a trend in these words: "Return periods of drought of present severity are of the order of 40 years in Texas, Colorado and New Mexico; 60 years in Arizona; and roughly 140 years in Oklahoma and Kansas."

That "of the order of" is a very elastic thing.

Caring For Refugee Children

ANDAUF, Austria — Every facet of Austrian life has felt the impact of the Hungarian revolt, its savage repression and the continuing flow of refugees across the Austrian border and has risen nobly to the crisis.

But life in the border towns, such as this farm village of 3,000, has been turned topsy-turvy. True, it is no longer swamped as it was in the beginning, when every home was an asylum and villagers felt impelled to go to the border night after night to guide refugees to safety.

Andau is now well-organized as a collection center, and as night falls lights go up in the Red Cross first aid station, in the men's dormitory (until three months ago, the village dance hall) and in the schoolhouse, half of which has been pre-empted as a dormitory for women and children.

(Because of the situation at the schoolhouse, Andau's kindergarten has been completely divided and the rest of its school children divided into two groups, each of which goes to school a half-day. In education-conscious Austria, this is a worrisome problem to Andau.)

Although most refugees in this area cross the border between 2 and 5 a.m., there must be someone at the Eisner Canal, five miles southeast of Andau, from dusk on to aid any fleeing Hungarian and to man the little rubber dingies that volunteers shuttle back and forth across this stretch of icy water.

The jeep must stand ready to rush back, over the all but impassable road, any refugee who is wounded or forced to swim the canal. A big tractor, pulling a farm wagon filled with hay, stands by to bring women and children back to the collection point. On a busy night, male refugees must walk.

Back of the men's dormitory, across a muddy yard over which a few planks have been laid as a walk, a team of cheerful women from the German Red Cross are preparing sandwiches and hot drinks in a lean-to devoid of any 20th Century conveniences. They accomplish miracles on a two-plate electric stove, which supplements an outdoor fire over which a huge kettle of water, which the women have had to carry some distance, bubbles.

It was 2:30 a.m. when I reached the schoolhouse and knocked on the door of the Save the Children Federation, one of the most widely respected volunteer agencies in Austria.

"We're not busy now, so you may come in," said a slight, middle-aged woman. She had the drawn look of fatigue, her face the transparent and paper-white that I saw on nurses in forward hospitals during the war.

Indeed, she turned out to be a registered nurse, Mary Hawkins of London. For 11 weary years since World War II she has worked with refugees in Germany, Korea, Palestine and now Austria.

This dedicated woman softly opened the door to the dormitory. At the far end, a moulting Christmas tree strung with a dozen tiny electric lights and a few homemade ornaments sent a soft light through the room.

"I've left it up," she explained, "because it cheers up the children after the dismal experiences they've been through in getting over the border."

The Christmas lights showed a bare room jammed with 32 Army coats, and children and young mothers sleeping in the canteen. Once the village kindergarten, it is now jammed with supplies and equipment, including a two-burner electric stove to make hot cocoa for the children and tea for their mothers.

"One of our big problems," Miss Hawkins said, "is children under four who are drugged, and almost all of them are to day. Unless such children are drugged and quiet, guides on the Hungarian side are afraid to help families trying to escape. Mothers have no idea how much to give a child, and many are given much too much."

"We've never lost a baby yet at Andau. But we got one the other night just 10 minutes before it would have been too late. We give them all caffeine injections and then keep the child awake all night. We don't let him go to sleep, no matter how much fuss he makes."

"And then there's the problem of frost bite. And it's not unusual for a frightened young mother, trying to get into the rubber dingy, to drop her child in the canal. Then they rush the baby to us, and we get to work at once."

"Do you ever sleep?" I asked her.

"Certainly," Miss Hawkins said. "When we're not too busy, I always try to sleep between 11 p.m. and 5 p.m."

End To Struggle Not In Sight

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower's two inaugural addresses, placed side by side, conjure up a single vision: that of a whole line of presidents who in the years ahead may have to say the same thing.

The words of Eisenhower's second inaugural were different from his first in 1953, but the central theme was identical: the struggle against communism.

Communism suffered some reverses this past year but this country seems no nearer to victory over it — or even to a peaceful understanding with it — than it was four years ago when Eisenhower first took office.

The end to the struggle is not in sight. The picture may be the same when a new president takes office on Jan. 20, 1961, or in 1965, or in decades after that.

Eisenhower's address yesterday full of platitudes and moralizations, doesn't compare in style or in the hope it offered with what are perhaps two of the most famous inaugurals in history, Lincoln's in 1865, Roosevelt's in 1933.

But the circumstances were different. And nothing illustrates better how much American thinking has changed in a quarter of a century than reading Roosevelt's inaugural 24 years ago and Eisenhower's yesterday.

Lincoln spoke just a few weeks before the end of the Civil War and could point back to one of the milestones in American history in his first four years — the end of slavery. He also could point forward to victory and peace.

Roosevelt's first inaugural, delivered in the blackest moment of the depression, did not rely on hope for the solution of the nation's ills. It promised "action, and action now." It mentioned "hope" only once, and indirectly.

The one profound turn in American life and history: government controls on business and government assumption of responsibility for the welfare of the people. It was the beginning of a new American era.

Not so with the address of Eisenhower, whose problems are worldwide and who, by that very fact, lacks the control and authority Lincoln and Roosevelt had in dealing with purely American dilemmas.

Eisenhower offered "hope" things would get better but nothing new in the way of action. The action he promised — military strength and foreign aid — were already American policy before he took office four years ago.

The one quick, possible solution which Eisenhower might seek — war on Russia — is the one he wants most to avoid. His successors no doubt will likewise seek to avoid it if they can.

Around The Rim

Censorship's A Boomerang!

I haven't read "Ten North Frederick" by John O'Hara and, to be perfectly frank about it, I am not interested in reading it. I am familiar with O'Hara's books. He is undoubtedly a very effective writer and he can, I believe, write just about the most sordid and depressing novels I have ever encountered.

You probably read in the papers where "Ten North Frederick" has been banned from sale in the city of Detroit. The police have forbidden dealers to sell copies of either the paperback or the hardbound editions.

I am not interested in O'Hara's book as a book. I am deeply interested and concerned in the action of the police in forbidding its sale and in token forbidding its being read.

As a newspaperman and as an American I resent efforts by self-appointed experts to tell me what I can read or can't read. I also resent any infringement on the constitutional right of freedom of the press. I believe, sincerely, that episodes such as the police banning of the book in Detroit endanger my fundamental right to exercise my own judgment on what I write or what I may read.

And I'd like to tell you the story of "Hat Rack." A good many years ago, there was a very widely read magazine called "The American Mercury." Its editor at that time was H. L. Mencken. All of the younger generation read it. It was believed by many folk to be "radical" — actually, compared to books and magazines now circulated it was about as "radical" as a civic club journal.

Anyway, Mercury printed a short story in one issue titled "Hat Rack." It was a rather brief little anecdote about a simple-minded girl whose morals were no better than her mentality. The whole plot of the story was a peculiar moral warp in this girl. I read it when the magazine first appeared in the mail. It did not impress me even enough to remember it two days later.

Then, out of a clear blue sky, the news wires began to bring in reports of how Boston had banned American Mercury from being sold in that city. Copies of the magazine were picked up by the cops and burned in a public bonfire. The trouble all stemmed from the short story "Hat Rack."

I dug out my copy of the magazine and re-read the story. It still didn't impress me.

Word got out that I had a copy of the American Mercury in which "Hat Rack" was printed. I had a waiting list of people wanting to borrow it. These were people who for the most part wouldn't have ever read the magazine at all if all the furor hadn't been stirred up about it.

Within a couple of months, collectors were offering $25 a copy for any copies of the edition having the story. I imagine that the circulation of the Mercury probably skyrocketed. People subscribed to it who never before had even heard of the magazine.

Incidentally, one of my "pals" stole my copy. I didn't get to sell it for $25. I got over, though, I snatched a first edition he had of James Branch Cabell's "Jergen."

The major result of the action taken by the police in Detroit in banning "Ten North Frederick" will be the maddest rush to read the book you ever saw. I think I saw a copy at the Howard County Library. I am going to keep an eye on it and see just how many times it is asked for in the next few days.

Anytime censorship is applied and allowed to go unattended, the action weakens the basic framework of our American freedoms. It is never an issue of the specific incident which precipitates the censorship—there are undoubtedly a great many books and periodicals which would be the better for never having been printed.

The danger rests in two other directions: One — it sets a precedent for censorship of other things which could deprive you of information you are entitled to have, and two — it inspires a curiosity to read the very book or article named far out of proportion to the merit or demerit the thing itself has.

Big Budget For A Big Country

Looking at the big budget which the President has just submitted to Congress, the obvious question is why with Mr. Eisenhower in the White House, with a stalwart like George Humphrey in the Treasury, Federal spending has risen so much.

There can be no doubt about what Eisenhower meant to do when he took office four years ago. He promised then that in two years he would reduce the last Truman budget, which reflected the Korean War and rearmament, down to sixty billion, a reduction of some fourteen billions, and he certainly hoped that the reduction would "steadily continue."

In his first two years he did reduce expenditures by some ten billions, mainly by savings on national defense. But since then he has felt he had to ask for more and more money. The new estimates are not much below the high Truman budget of 1953, and, if expenditures for Federal highways are included, they are higher by nine billions than the first Eisenhower budget. The bulk of the increase is for defense. But there is not insignificant increase of three billions in what are called "civil benefits," a term which covers the veterans, agriculture, housing and natural resources.

All this has happened under Eisenhower and Humphrey, and in the face of an Eisenhower landslide, which removes any need to bid for votes. Mr. Humphrey makes no bones about his personal unhappiness at the size of the expenditures. What, if he had had his way and not been over-ruled by the President, would he have done to reduce the budget?

He has not said plainly what he would have done. But reading between the lines, it appears that he would have altered our present military policy on the one hand, and on the other, he would have resisted sternly the various demands for Federal aid.

In the field of "civil benefits," he would have fought off the advance of the welfare state.

In other words, the substantial reduction in the Eisenhower budget which Mr. Humphrey regards as so necessary to our economic health, could not be made without fundamental changes in policy.

For the new budget is big because of the big policies to which the President has committed himself.

Yet, apart from the various items which of course need to be scrutinized by Congress, it is fair to measure the overall size of the 1958 budget by the smaller size of previous budgets. Since the Eisenhower administration came to power in 1953 the population of the United States has increased by 10,000,000 persons. This country, in fact, having an explosive expansion of its population. The labor force has increased by about 6,000,000. The total national production is larger by more than $50,000,000,000. Surely, the President is right in saying in his message that "the budget must also reflect the general responsibilities of a government which will be serving 172,000,000 persons in the fiscal year 1958."

Compared not with other budgets but with the growth of the nation and of the economy, the present expenditures have not increased even proportionately. Short of a miracle, that is to say a peace settlement of the cold war, it is vain to expect expenditures to be drastically reduced. These big expenditures reflect the two basic facts — that the population is growing prodigiously, and that there is a race of armaments proceeding at a rapid rate.

The prospects are that the growth of the American population will require increased government spending. For when the population grows and becomes concentrated in the great metropolitan centers, the need for public expenditure is bound to rise. Masses of people living in cities and in suburbs need all manner of public works and facilities which are not necessary when they live in country villages.

We speak of the American way of life. In a material sense we have a rapidly expanding population with a way of life which is new in our generation. This great human change is reflected in all the government budgets, federal, state and local throughout the land.

Fate Of U.N.'s Power In Balance

NEW YORK —What happens in the turbulent dispute in the United Nations over the Middle East may determine for a long time the course of history.

It could mean the difference between a world evolving toward peaceful means of settling disputes and the final blackout of all hope for the U.N. as an effective organization for maintaining the security of nations and preventing war.

So much has happened since the attack on Egypt last October that what is at stake here is little understood. But if the emergency U. N. troops now policing the cease-fire in Egypt can be kept in being and their task extended to patrolling the borders between Egypt and Israel, and perhaps even between Israel and her Arab neighbors, then an order-keeping force under the U. N. flag is a real possibility.

If on the other hand this force disintegrates, the prospect is not merely for a renewal of all the old tensions with the likelihood of another conflict, but the futility of a U. N. peace-supervising force will have been demonstrated. And when another war breaks out it will not be possible to improvise, as was done in the desperate hours at the beginning of November, to put men in uniform with the avowed purpose of stopping the fighting.

In a sense then, this is either-or-between hope and despair. The prospect of hope opened up makes the so-called Eisenhower policy for the Middle East seem a sterile and even a self-defeating doctrine. If there is a reversal to the old tensions, the raids and the counter-raids, nothing in the doctrine unfolded thus far in Washington can check the drift of war.

In those perilous days at the beginning of November when a full-scale war threatened to grow out of the Suez attack, Lester Pearson, Minister of External Affairs for Canada and head of Canada's U. N. delegation, put in a hastily drawn resolution calling for creation of the emergency force to stop the shooting. He sent it up to Dag Hammarskjöld, U. N. Secretary General. Hammarskjöld's scribbled reply was, "I don't think it will work. But we have to try it."

"It worked," Pearson says today. "That is the important thing — that for the first time such a force was effective. If it can be kept in being and its usefulness further demonstrated, I believe we have made a start."

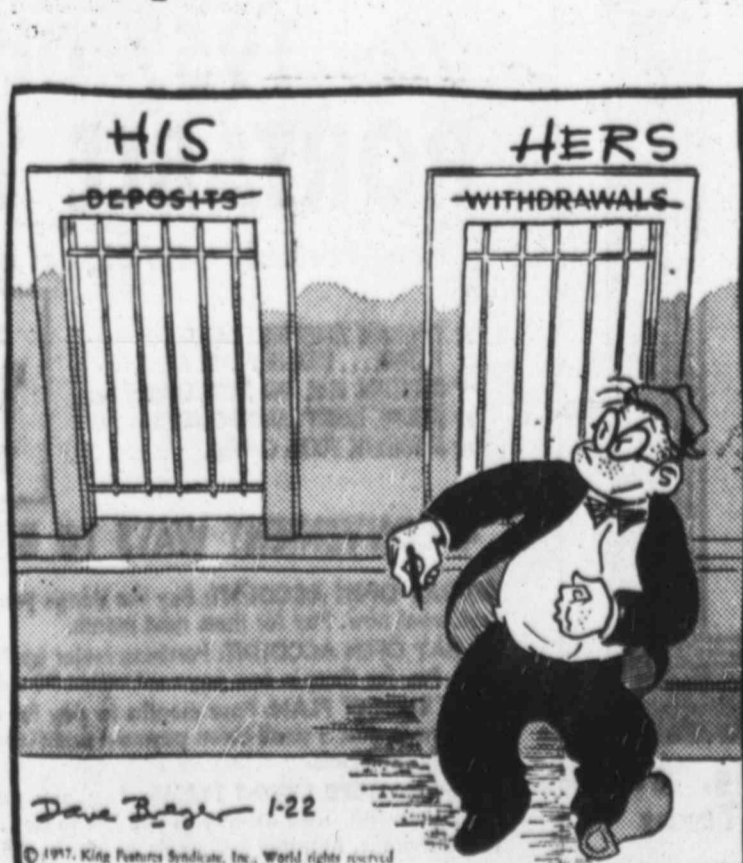

The old concept was of an army that would fight to put down an aggressor. What we can foresee today is a constabulary. It would be made up of units pledged by individual nations, not the great powers, and ready to answer the call of the Secretary General on the vote of the General Assembly."

Such a force, if it had been immediately available, might have averted the tragedy of Hungary, Pearson believes. Flown to Hungary, the U. N. troops would have been stationed on the borders. The invading Russian divisions would have had to move then down and Pearson thinks they would have stopped short of that.

"After all, the London lobby on his beat doesn't even carry a gun," Pearson points out. "He keeps the peace by the moral authority he exercises as the representative of law and order. I believe a peace-supervising force wearing U. N. uniforms can eventually have the same kind of authority where danger threatens."

Mechanic Takes Plane For Suicide

NEW YORK (AP) — Defeated in love, a young airline mechanic's helper penned a suicide letter declaring "I am really nuts." Eight hours later he crashed to his death Saturday night in a $100,000 airplane. "They'll never be able to stop me once I get on the runway," wrote 29-year-old Allan Adler of Brooklyn. The two-page semiliterate letter outlined in detail Adler's suicide plans. It was written Saturday morning but never mailed to its intended recipient, Adler's chum in the Air Force. A Civil Aeronautics Board official, investigating the crash at Jewell Airport, found it yesterday in Adler's locker in the hangar of Pan American World Airways, Adler's employer for 14 months. Adler told his friend, 17-year-old Daniel O'Leary of Brooklyn, who is stationed at the Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.: ". . . If I were you I wouldn't feel too bad about my dying because I don't care anyway you wouldn't want to go with a crazy guy — and I am really nuts. . . . Right now my hand is shaking like a leaf and I ain't scared because I always wanted to fly & tonight I'll get my chance. I'll be on my own at the controls just like I've been alone always." Adler told his friend that he had "brock off" with a girl friend named Lynn but planned to see her "just once more because you see tonight when I go to work I won't be coming back home any-

Mamie Begins Second Term With Long Day

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower launched her second term as First Lady with a 16-hour schedule which ended early today with her comment: "It's been a long day." Inauguration Day started for her at 8:30 a.m., and it was 12:42 a.m. when she arrived home after attending four inaugural balls. Through it all—oath-taking ceremonies, a ride down Pennsylvania Avenue before thousands of spectators, nearly three hours in the parade reviewing stands, and the split-second timing needed to get to all the inaugural balls — she was smiling, waving and obviously enjoying herself. The First Lady, who is two months past 60, said she enjoyed the parade this year "more than I did the one in 1953 because it wasn't so cold." The temperature hovered in the mid-40s as Mrs. Eisenhower sat in a front row of the presidential reviewing stand and watched the marchers. Yesterday's parade also was just about half as long as the 1953 spectacle. Mrs. Eisenhower changed from the lilac suit she wore for the swearing in to her shimmering citron-yellow ball gown of lace over net and matching taffeta. She took care to hold aside the full back sweep of the taffeta as she sat down at the presidential boxes at the balls. At each of the balls, grand promenades had been scheduled to let the huge throng of some 15,000 guests pass before the Eisenhowers.

Although they had been carefully rehearsed by key participants and staged by a Hollywood choreographer, some of the promenades ended up in a great crush. At the army, largest of the affairs, the ballgoers lined up 16 abreast and moved past the presidential box at a rapid clip to the swinging rhythm of "Marching Along Together" and "I Love a Parade." But not all had made the circuit when the time allotted for the march was over and the master of ceremonies called for a waltz. Only those on the crowd's fringes could find room enough to dance. The others clustered around the main box until the President and his wife departed. The numbers of people were smaller, but so was the space, in similar events in three hotel ballrooms.

Vice President Nixon and Mrs. Nixon, who wore an ice-blue satin dress, followed after the President's party on a later schedule. They took their young daughters, Patricia, 10, and Julie, 8, to the first stop at the army. The little girls wore pink dresses.

Red China's Movie Plots Getting Stale

HONG KONG (AP)—The plots of Red China's movies are all the same and the audiences are getting bored. Some Communists are suggesting the addition of a little entertainment to the regular diet of ideological instruction. The official New China News Agency reported from Shanghai that only 40 per cent of the people are going to the movies. It blamed functionaries and censors who know nothing about film art. Writers at a movie studio, the agency reported, wanted to make a film about the love affairs of a well-known courtesan of an early Chinese dynasty. The agency said the proposed film had an accept-

Phychiatrist Says Borchers Insane

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A psychiatrist contends that Walter Borchers Jr., 45, Pasadena insurance man, was insane at the time of the fatal shooting of his red-haired Texas sweetheart, Mary Dorothy McCully, 31. Dr. Vernon Miller told a jury weighing Borchers' sanity yesterday that in his opinion the insurance man was insane when he examined him Oct. 11, the day of his arrest. But, said Miller, he believes Borchers was legally sane when he examined him Thursday, the day a jury convicted him of second degree murder. The sanity trial was ordered because Borchers entered a double plea of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. Miss McCully, Borchers' part-time secretary, was previously wed to Dallas bar owner Louis (Chicken Louie) Ferrantello, who was killed after their divorce.

Citizen Interest Said Answer To Mental Health Problems

Texas can prevent the fifth cycle from returning to deterioration in mental health problems only if average citizens awake and remain awake.

Arts A. (Bob) Hallas Jr., Austin, director of the Texas Research League's monumental survey of the mental health problem in the state, told a large delegation here Monday that increased lay interest was the most hopeful sign on the horizon.

Addressing a luncheon of the State Mental Hospital Development Association, Hallas declared that Texas was the only major state remaining with the power to effectively turn the mounting tide of mental illness. This is due in part to a position of attacking the problem before hospitals are overwhelmed and also because Texas has a "young" population in the sense it has only recently been admitted.

"The majority of persons in a rural area may be a private problem," he said, "but put him in a crowded three-room apartment of a tenement and he becomes a community and state problem."

Texas has attacked the problem four times and then relaxed, he recalled.

Mental illness can be cured, and more important, it can be prevented in numerous instances, he declared. Slugging the trend of mental mal-adjustments at the source is one of the most practical approaches to the problem, for currently one of every eight persons in Texas can look forward to spending some time in a mental hospital. Texas today has 35,500 mental patients and unless the rise in mental illness is halted the state can look forward soon to having to double its $5 million capital investment of the past decade.

"The only way to get patients out of hospitals is to cure them," Hallas said. "It takes 10 years to send out-training of a psychiatrist, so if we are to solve the problem of adequate staff within the next 10 years — we are already four years behind."

He lauded the SMHDA as an agency which was helping maintain the vital link between the patient and his home and community. He urged that the association follow the lead of professional men in leading helping hands to hospitals and to state the initiative if necessary to prevent a "harvest of apathy."

The association has done a tremendous service in getting over the message that mental health is something of which no one need be ashamed of frightened, he added.

Louise Evans, staff member for the Amarillo Globe-News, told of an unexpected degree of interest which greeted a recent series in that paper on mental health. Three

Canal Clearance Hits Two Delays

PORT SAID, Egypt — The U. S. salvage fleet trying to clear the Suez Canal has suffered two time-consuming setbacks.

In Port Said Harbor, three powerful U. S.-chartered cranes lifted the scuttled Egyptian tug Harada to the surface. Then a 15-inch steel cable broke and the buoy tug settled to the bottom again — the third time efforts to raise it have failed.

Forty-three miles south of Port Said, wrecked land explosives in the wrecked Egyptian dredger Edgar Bonnet. Attempts to raise the bulk were postponed temporarily.

Acreage Reserve Rate To Be $29

Howard County's payment rate in the 1957 acreage reserve program for cotton is $29 per acre, which is $8.25 higher than the basic rate for 1956.

This figure was revealed by the Howard County office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

Howard County's $29 per acre — which is the average index rate for the county for upland cotton and not the exact figure for each individual farm — compared with the basic rate of $20.75 granted last year.

Howard County's rate is the same as that allocated to Mitchell County; Nolan County is $28 — which is $1 less than the rate set for the former two counties.

The JSC began mailing notices Monday to cotton growers stating the individual farm payment rates for the 1957 acreage reserve (cash) to each Howard County farmer.

A farmer has 15 days in which he can file an appeal if he is dissatisfied with the rate assigned to his farm.

The sign-up for 1957 acreage for the cotton reserve will probably start around Feb. 1. Deadline for signing up for cotton is March 1.

Scandal Defendant Sets Up Death Alibi

VENICE, Italy — Giuseppe Pizzini testified today that he could not have been involved in the death of Wilma Mantini because he was holidaying 100 miles away. He named Italian movie actress Alida Valli among those who could alibi him.

Pizzini, 39-year-old journalist son of a former Italian foreign minister, told the three-judge court he, Miss Valli and others were at the seaside resort of Jervis, below Naples, "before and after the reported crime was supposed to have taken place" here.

Pizzini is one of the three principal defendants in the case which has rocked Italy for three years. He is charged with contributing to the death of the black-haired, 23-year-old party girl "by abandoning her, believing her already dead, at the edge of the sea."

Wilma's body was found on the sands of Ostia beach in April 1953. Police closed the death an accidental drowning but subsequently accusations were made that she died after a high-society dip and sex orgy.

Communist charges that members of the — Premier Alcide De Gasperi's government were linked with the scandal almost brought down the regime.

Pizzini was the first person called to the stand. He told the court:

"I could not have done any of the fantastic things that have been charged to me because I was not in Rome."

Asked by the court if any per-

Uncle Roy: Six Languages Are 'Children Of Latin'

By ROBIN COFFMAN

Latin is called a "dead language" but millions of students take it as a study in high school.

Q. Why do people say that Latin is "dead"?

A. Because it has gone out of use in Italy and elsewhere. It was a living language during ancient times. Priests of the Roman Catholic Church read and chanted Latin, but you will not hear it spoken on the streets of any modern country.

Q. Which present-day language is nearest to Latin?

A. Italian, both from Italian, we have various "romance" languages which are akin to Latin. French, Spanish, Portuguese and Portuguese (along with Italian) may be described as "children of Latin." But all of them differ from the parent language. If an ancient Roman could come back to life, he probably would find it unrecognizable what a modern Italian was talking about, but he might start to "catch on" within a week or two.

Q. Does English have many Latin words?

A. A vast number of English words are of Latin origin, but most of them have been changed a good deal. Something like a quarter of a million English words were derived from Latin, or else came into the English language after the French-speaking Normans con-

A scene on a street in ancient Rome.

...and English almost nine centuries ago. Most French words have Latin roots.

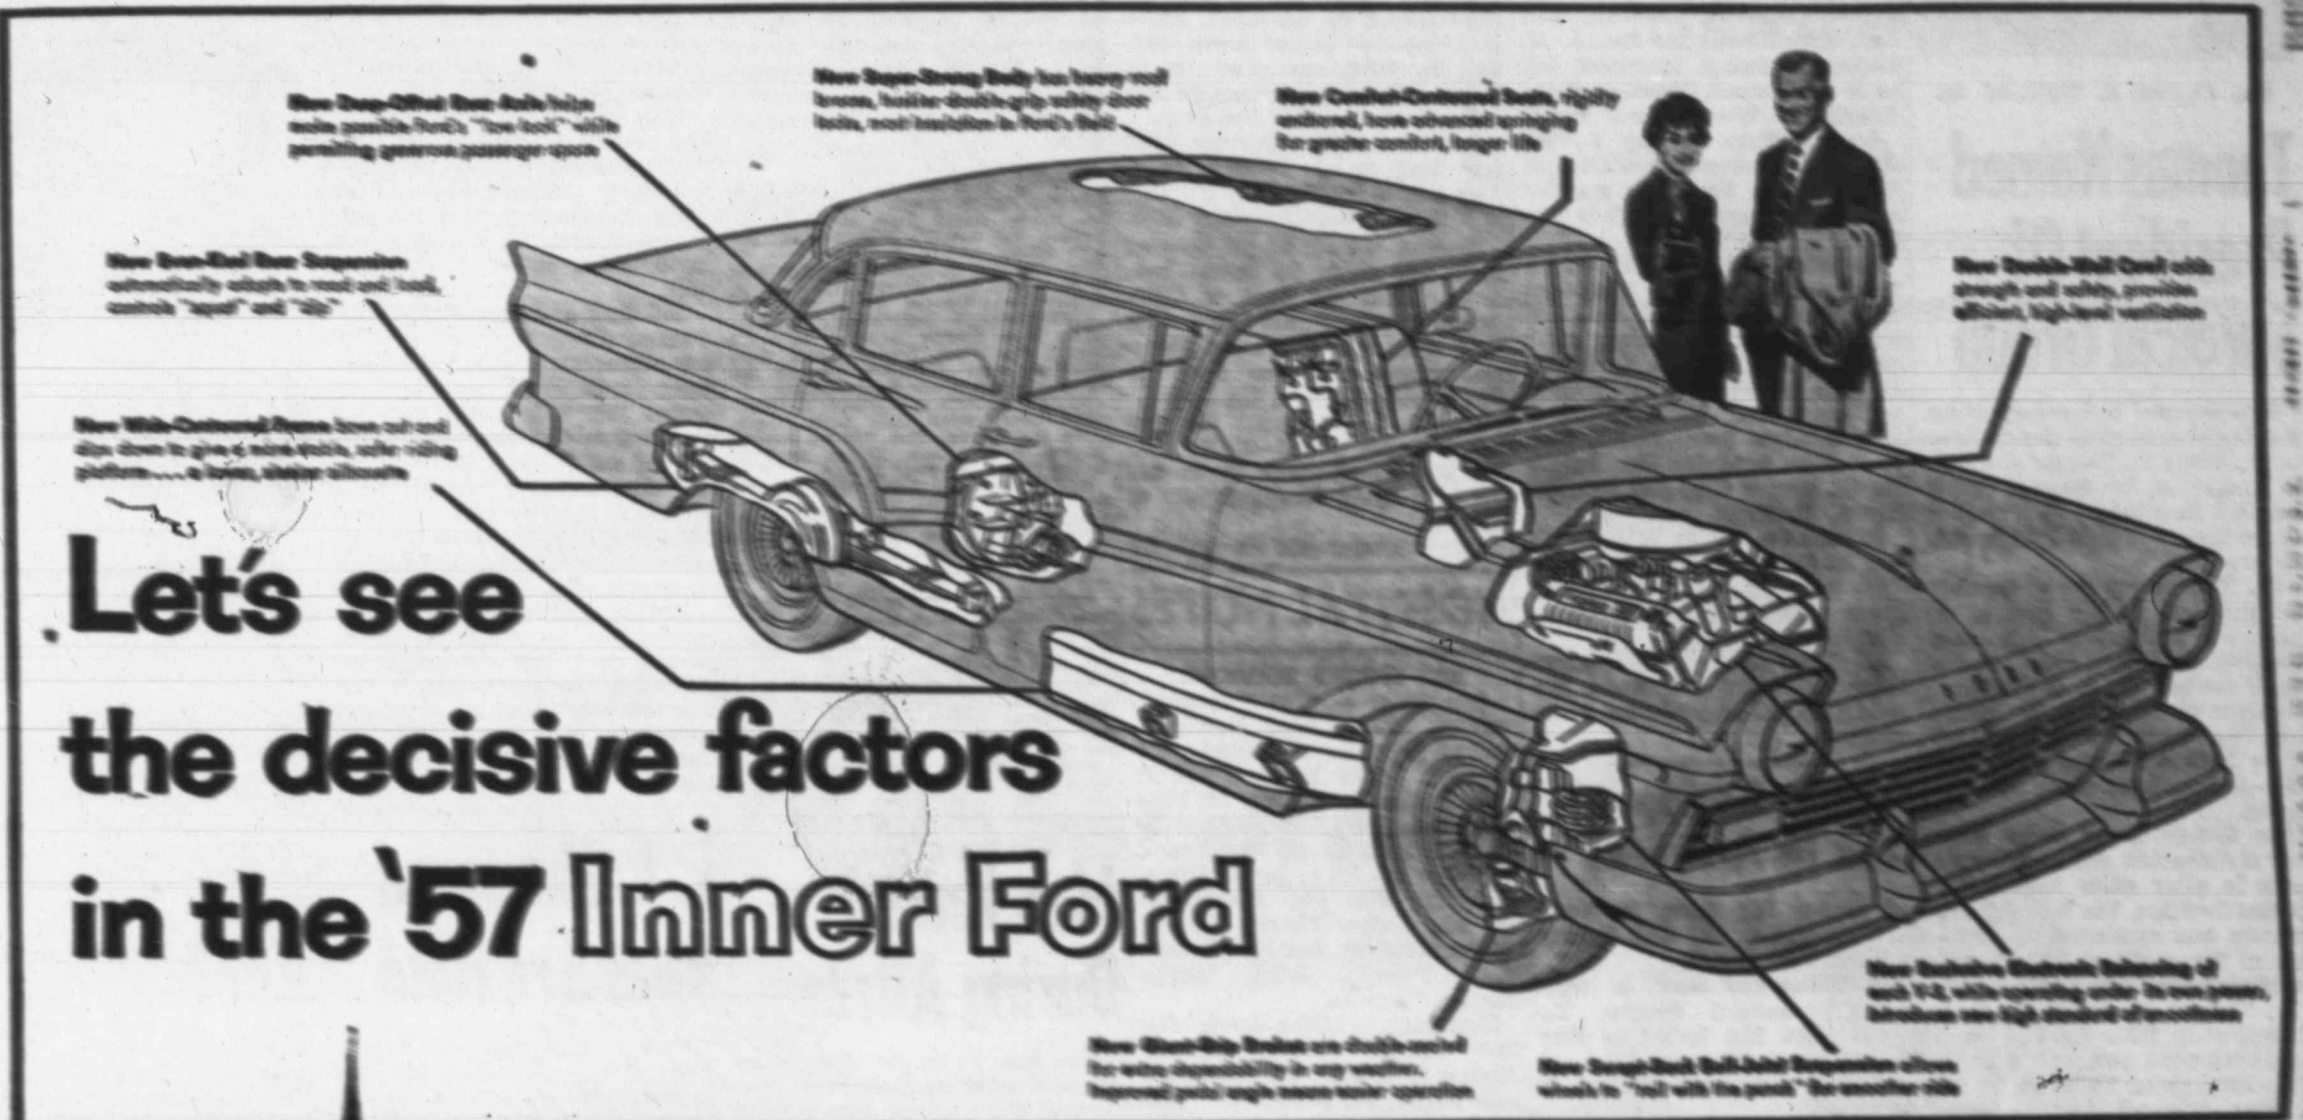

Q. How did the ancient Romans spread their language?

A. Chiefly by conquest. The Latin-speaking Romans invaded and conquered Gaul (now called France), also England, Spain, Rumania and other lands.

After making their power firm, the Romans taught Latin to the residents of conquered lands. To a large extent, the laws of Rome were adopted, in addition to the language.

City, Air Force Talks Set Tonight

Another session between the Air Force and city commissioners concerning financing water and sewer lines for Webb's housing area is slated for tonight.

Today at 5:15 p. m. is the regular time for the city commission meeting, and the group plans to complete its regular business as soon as possible and then turn to the Air Force for discussions.

H. W. Whitney, city manager, said that C. F. Browning, chief utility engineer for the Air Force in Washington, is in Big Spring for the talks. Whitney and Browning had talks Monday afternoon, but nothing official came of the meeting.

The Air Force group was in Big Spring last on Nov. 20 for discussions and claimed at that time that the city would have to pay for the entire project. Part of the money could be borrowed from the government but the Air Force would not pay any costs outright.

At a later meeting, the city commission drafted a proposal for rejecting the Air Force plan. The city's proposal called for the government to advance the city the entire cost, and then the city would increase water rates. The increased amount for water would then be applied toward retiring the debt.

Jaycees Urged To Show Enthusiasm

Jaycees were urged Monday night at their second annual Bosses Banquet to exhibit enthusiasm, enterprise and ingenuity.

Alex Buckley, Abilene attorney and previously honored as his city's outstanding young man, told the dinner gathering at the Sottles Hotel that these qualities not only lit young men for leadership but made them better employees as well.

Bill Gray, member of the River Federal Home staff, was cited as the outstanding Jaycee for the past year. David Simms, president, presented him with a gift from the club and said of him that "he has worked capable and willingly simple when asked." Gray had worked on the teen-age golf and tennis tournaments, served as a local and state Jaycee director, and assisted in several other projects.

Buckley declared that enthusiasm counted for as much as professional skill in accomplishing things. He reminded Jaycees that it is necessary to put out in order to get in; that almost anything can be accomplished through dedication.

Simms expressed appreciation to employers for permitting Jaycees to devote themselves to an impressive list of projects which he enumerated. Included were a poll tax payment campaign, sponsorship of the club boy livestock and the swim shows, the bosses night banquet, entertaining the summer tri-regional meeting, representation at the state convention and fall board meeting, staging the teen-age road-e-o and golf and tennis tournaments, execution of a safety campaign with Scotchlite tape for bikes, selling cards for mental hospital patients and presenting the Harlon Gabetrotters, formation of the Howard County Junior Live-Stock Association; and aiding the Salvation Army on Christmas projects.

Oliver Coater, past president, presided as master of ceremonies and John Taylor introduced Buckley. Guests included Buddy Gray, Ballinger, regional vice president, Bob McGarrity, Ballinger, Bland Harrison, Stamford, and Dick River, Abilene, as well as Mayor G. W. Dunaway, and representatives of local communication media and the senate chamber.

200 Expected At Banquet To Honor Dealers

A crowd of 200 is expected tonight at a special dinner program honoring service station operators of the city. Occasion is the third annual dealer appreciation banquet, tendered the service station people by wholesalers.

The program will be at the Cosden Country Club, beginning at 7:30. Big Spring Oil Men's Club is the sponsoring group.

Spectacular Flames Destroy Huge Chicago Grain Elevator

CHICAGO (U)—A spectacular, multimillion-dollar fire destroyed a huge, old grain elevator along the river front on the South Side last night.

Some 400 firemen fought the conflagration in the 10-story elevator in a driving rainstorm. Nearly 100 pieces of equipment, including three fireboats, were sent to the scene, 94th Street at the Calumet River, an industrial district on the far South Side.

Amid towering walls of flames, some three million bushels of grain were reportedly destroyed.

However, firemen succeeded in saving a newly built elevator about 150 yards from the blazing 125-foot-tall structure. The new elevator contained about 3 1/2 million bushels of wheat.

Fire officials said they expected the fire would burn "for three days" although they expected to have it under control before noon. Some 40 pieces of equipment were kept at the scene throughout the night.

Julius Mayer, executive vice president of the Continental Grain Co., owners of the elevator, said the loss would amount to "several million dollars."

Robert J. Quinn, fire commissioner, estimated damage at five million dollars.

The flames from the elevator, fanned at times by strong winds, were visible nearly into the Loop, some 14 miles north, and attracted thousands of persons, despite the blustery weather.

Some 200 policemen, responding to the extra alarm, rerouted traffic and kept the crowd blocks from the blazing building.

No injuries were reported. However, a newsreel cameraman, Floyd Traynham, 61, of the Universal International Film Exchange, collapsed at the scene and was pronounced dead on arrival at a nearby hospital.

The elevator reportedly contained wheat, rye, oats and beans. A company official estimated the grain's value at about $2 a bushel.

The fire, which was believed to have started about 10 p.m. in the roof of the 63-year-old elevator, was discovered by a watchman. Only one other man was in the building at the time.

A 530-foot freighter was docked in a nearby slip and tugs were unable to remove it. However, the firemen kept hoses on the big boat and it did not catch fire. The freighter had unloaded a cargo of wheat in the elevator which was destroyed. A 150-foot barge loaded with grain docked in the same slip was reported destroyed.

The elevator, of wood and corrugated metal and reportedly the oldest grain structure in Chicago, was 340 feet long and 200 feet wide.

Company spokesmen did not say if any of the grain in the elevators was owned by the government.

Nurses Blamed For Prank Which Killed Two Students

LEXINGTON, Ky. (U)—A tragic "prank" which led to the fatal burning of one student nurse and serious injury to another was blamed on two registered nurses last night.

Fire Chief Earl McDaniel said Margaret R. Donovan, 24, and Mary Frances Hutchinson, 26, both of Lexington, admitted in signed statements they dosed two student nurses with half a pint of ether.

One of the nurses was smoking a cigarette. The fire occurred last week.

Kathleen Oehler, 19, of Frankfort, died Sunday night and the other student, 23-year-old Charlotte Smith of Danville, is still on the serious list at St. Joseph's Hospital, where the incident occurred.

McDaniel said officials will confer today on the possibility of filing charges against the two. No charges were brought last night.

McDaniel said Miss Donovan and Miss Hutchinson told him ether-throwing was a "nurses' prank" which had been done by others before "to make them jump." Either feels extremely cold when in contact with the skin.

The fire chief said Miss Hutchinson admitted pouring ether in Miss Oehler's lap and Miss Donovan poured it on Miss Smith without realizing she was smoking a cigarette.

He quoted the nurses as saying Miss Smith "almost instantly went up in flames." The fire spread quickly to Miss Oehler.

The chief said the nurses immediately pulled the two students from the lounge and put out the fire with the aid of an orderly. Miss Donovan and Miss Hutchinson suffered hand burns.

College Prof Top Video Quiz Winner

NEW YORK (U)—Charles Van Doren, a 30-year-old Columbia University teacher, now is the nation's top money winner of television quiz programs. His winnings total $104,500 — with the sky the limit.

Van Doren, an English instructor and the son of the Pulitzer Prize winning poet, boosted his earnings last night on NBC-TV's Twenty-one show by besting two challengers. He started the evening with $99,000 and added $5,500.

He returns to the show Jan. 28 to announce whether he'll take his winnings or try for more. NBC said there is no limit to what he can win.

The $104,500 amount, the broadcasting company said, is the largest amount ever won by anyone on a TV quiz program.

The show draws its name from the card game "21." The rules governing competition somewhat follow its rules.

The contestant and challenger are placed in separate booths. They cannot hear each other or know what the score is.

A category of questions is chosen arbitrarily. Each contestant picks a question that ranges in difficulty on a scale from 1 to 11.

Van Doren correctly answered questions on art, the American revolution, explorers and medicine to increase his earnings.

For 10 points, he listed Milan as the city and Santa Maria delle Grazie as the church where Leonardo da Vinci's fresco "The Last Supper" hangs.

He picked up another 11 points by naming four European military leaders who fought with the colonists during the Revolutionary War. They were Casimir Pulaski, Baron von Steuben, Tadeusz Kosciuszko and Jean Baptiste Rochambeau.

A question about explorers yielded nine points. Van Doren named Mt. Everest as the world's highest mountain climbed by Hillary and Tensing in 1953.

For another eight points he supplied the common names for the following medical terms: caries (cavities), myopia (nearsightedness) and missing patellar reflex (no knee reflex).

More Egyptian News Expelled

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (U)—Another shipload of Jews has left Egypt on a one-way journey in search of new homes.

The Egyptian passenger ship Misr sailed yesterday for Greece and Italy with more than 900 Jews aboard. It could not be determined how many were forced to leave and how many went voluntarily.

The Misr, which normally carries Moslem pilgrims to Mecca, landed 957 Jews at Naples Jan. 6. Many said they expected the rest of Egypt's 40,000 Jews to leave this country.

Egyptian authorities have denied the expulsion of any Jews who are Egyptian citizens. They say no Jew has been expelled or interned without "full proof" of subversive activity, usually dealing with Israel.

Fashion For All Occasions

ROME (U)—Milady next summer can dress for the supermarket or the dance floor and end in the swimming pool if she likes with only a quick strip act.

Winding up the Rome spring fashion openings, Mingolini-Gugenheim presented ensembles that started out as demure street dresses or frothy dancing frocks in green and white organza.

Skirts and tops whipped off to disclose trim swimsuits underneath. In cotton, the idea looked practical. It seemed a little improbable, though, in the more fragile organza.

Mingolini-Gugenheim like ensembles. Hardly a dress was without its matched coat or jacket. Wool coat linings tie in with print silk dresses, companion capes and shawls complete evening gowns. The old-fashioned coat or wrap that covers several dresses is out. The new idea suggests removable, changeable linings to make good coats more versatile.

New Mental Hospital Asked

AUSTIN (U)—The state hospital board said yesterday a new mental health training and research center was the key to new methods of treating the insane.

Dr. Raleigh Ross, chairman, and other board members appeared before a House Appropriations subcommittee asking that the recommended $4,732,242 be raised to $11,556,857 for the next two years.

Ross said the state hospital system already was using modern treatment methods as much as possible.

However, he said the proposed new hospital was vitally needed as a training and research center "just like M. D. Anderson"—the cancer research center at Houston.

Fire Threatens Block In Angelo

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (U)—Fire smoldered through the McClellan Variety Store last night and threatened an entire downtown block for a time.

Fire Chief Tom Biggs refused to estimate the damage, but Bill Wilcoxson, manager, said the entire downstairs stock in the two-story building was lost.

Flames were not visible, but a bright glow could be seen around the building.

There were no injuries.

All the blue chips will be showing for Big Spring tonight when the Steers take the court in Abilene against Nat Gleaton's surprising Abilene Eagles in a District 2-A-AAA basketball headliner.

Tipoff time is 8 o'clock. There will be a B team contest at 6:30 p.m.

A defeat at the hands of Abilene would put a serious crimp in the Steers' title hopes. On the other hand, Abilene can suffer a loss without getting hurt too badly in the conference wars.

The War Birds are now leading the conference race with a record of two wins and no losses. Big Spring is 1-1.

Abilene has been a mild surprise in district play. Due to the lengthy football season the Eagles went through, they weren't taken seriously as a title contender.

However, they looked little short of sensational in bowling over San Angelo and Midland, in that order. They beat the Bobcats nearly 40 points (75-30) and came back to humble Midland in the Bulldogs' own gym, 47-41.

Big Spring got off to a good start, defeating Midland, 50-43, but lost to Odessa in a thriller here last week, 65-61.

The Steers own one win over Abilene, having humbled the Eagles in the Odessa tournament by four points.

Abilene lost three of five starters from last year's team. Gleaton has built his team around Ted Lucas, a sharp-shooting forward; and Lynn Gregory, a real scorer in conference tests to date.

Bill Warlick, Randy Hurst, George Nichols, Ralph Burton and Ken Cook are others who have been seeing lots of action for Abilene. Coach Johnny Johnson's Big Spring team, which now has a 14-1 won-lost record, will probably go with a lineup composed of Jimmy Evans and Donald Lovelady at forwards, Jan Loudermilk at center and Mike Musgrove and Jesse McElreath at guards.

Evans was very impressive against Odessa, stepping out to score 15 points. He also came down

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:

JOE BECKER, Brooklyn Dodger coach:
"Jackie Robinson had untold trouble keeping his legs in shape last season. Many of the Dodger players expected him to give up the game. Robinson was a had guy for team morale before and after a game but once the first pitch was thrown, he was a guy who could beat a team more ways than any player I've ever known."

FRANKLIN LEWIS, Cleveland scribe:
"It may come to pass that Floyd Patterson will be the most magnificent heavyweight champion in our time... But just now he has no electricity. No dynamic personality on the silver screen, no snarling killer, no up-from-the-gutter lad fighting only to support the Little Ones, close and convenient... Only Rocky Marciano supplied these facets. And so you can only hope he can come back, win or lose, because he got under your skin. He was the champ, a great fighter who could score a knockout in any round from one to 15. It is difficult to accept a substitute for the real article."

BOB HOBERT, Minnesota tackle, who broke out in tears when he saw Iowa and Oregon State run onto the Rose Bowl turf New Year's Day:
"We should have been here and we would have beaten Oregon State just as decisively. The Minnesota attack is made to go against a defense like Oregon State used... After what I saw here today, Oregon State would be lucky to finish sixth in the Big Ten. I think Ohio State, Michigan, Michigan State and Minnesota (in addition to Iowa) were far superior to them."

JIM NORRIS, president of the International Boxing Club:
"We've got to find opponents for Floyd Patterson for a lot of years. The way it looks, he'll outlive all of us as a champion."

DON FAUROT, retiring Missouri football coach:
"I know of no coach who can keep his team in as fine physical condition as Bowden Wyatt (of Tennessee). Wyatt's players always want to play, and they're always ready to play."

WALTER O'MALLEY, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers:
"Next to Babe Ruth, Jackie Robinson must have been the best road show baseball has ever had."

CLARK SHAUGHNESSY, on why his job of helping coach the West All-Stars for their Shrine football game with the East the Saturday before New Year's was an easy:
"It was a cinch. All I had to do was to tell them what to do. They already knew how. Besides, being tops in ability, they were also tops as physical specimens."

BOB HOPE, to Forest Evashevski, coach of the Iowa football team, before the Rose Bowl game:
"Your name intrigues me. Before you came out here, I figured Forest Evashevski was a park in Russia."

MUSHKY JACKSON, New York fight character, upon observing that Gene Fullmer, the middleweight boxing champion, always carries many scars upon his person:
"I would say that in his 40 bouts, Mr. Fullmer has had some-one besides the referee in there with him."

JOHNNY JORDAN, Notre Dame basketball coach:
"In my opinion, Louisville (of Kentucky) is the Nation's No. 1 basketball team."

GEORGE WEISS, general manager of the New York Yankees, commenting on Mickey Mantle's salary demands:
"We had rather pay high salaries for superlative performances than moderate salaries for mediocrity."

Tarheels Claim First in AP's Casaba Poll

By The Associated Press
Undeclared North Carolina, once merely the second best team in its state, today was No. 1 in the latest Associated Press poll, a happy situation which immediately set Tar Heel Coach Frank McGuire to worrying.

The Tar Heels (12-4) heaped ahead of Kansas, season-long poll leaders, after the Jayhawks dropped a 28-37 decision last week to Iowa State. It was the first Kansas loss after 12 victories.

McGuire said he was happy about the selection, but "a little concerned too. It's quite a load for my boys to carry... The kids may be pressing from now on in order to maintain top ranking."

McGuire's Atlantic Coast Conference leaders, inactive during midwinter exams, will resume play Feb. 5. For past few years, North Carolina has played basketball second fiddle to North Carolina State. State this year has slumped to the ACC second division.

Sportswriters and sportscasters voting in the poll gave North Carolina 79 of 128 first-place votes and 1,199 points. Kansas was left with 8 firsts and 822 points on the basis of 10 for each first-place vote, 9 for second, etc.

Iowa State climbed from ninth to third on the basis of its win over Kansas, earning 2 firsts and 622 points.

Louisville moved into the fourth spot vacated by Kentucky, which dropped to fifth. Southern Methodist fell to sixth from third. UCLA, Seattle, Illinois and Bradley, in order, filled out the top 10.

Rankings are based on games through Saturday, Jan. 19. The top 10, with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. North Carolina (79) 1,199
2. Kansas (8) 822
3. Iowa State (8) 622
4. Louisville (7) 636
5. Kentucky (2) 549
6. SMU (1) 473
7. UCLA (1) 407
8. Seattle (0) 387
9. Illinois 370
10. Bradley (3) 270

The second 10, in order:

Wake Forest, Ohio State, Vanderbilt, Canisius, Duke, Oklahoma City, West Virginia, Tulane, California and Western Kentucky.

Owens Assumes Huskie Post

SEATTLE (U) — Jim Owens, 39-year-old assistant of Texas A&M, will arrive here in about a week to take over his new duties as head football coach at the University of Washington.

Owens' appointment to the post as successor to Darrell Royal was announced last night by George Briggs, athletic director at Washington. Royal, who attended Oklahoma university with Owens, left Washington last month after one season to become head coach at Texas.

Briggs declined to disclose salary or length of contract, but in Texas Owens said his contract is for three years.

Royal came here under a four-year contract calling for $17,000 a year.

Owens is the third head football coach Washington has had in a year. Royal had succeeded John Chertberg, who was fired a year ago. Chertberg was elected Lieutenant Governor of the state on the Democratic ticket last November and took that office this month.

The Washington post is the first Owens has had as top football man at a major institution. After graduation from Oklahoma in 1950 he played for the professional Baltimore Colts. From 1951-1953 he was assistant to Paul (Bear) Bryant at Kentucky and in 1954 moved with Bryant to Texas A&M.

Owens has been given a free hand in selection of his assistants. He will name the five today. Some of them, he said, will be from Texas A&M and some would come from colleges outside Texas.

The new coach is a devotee of the split-T offensive used by Woody Hayes.

Owens served 24 years with the Naval Air Corps during World War II. He is married and has two small daughters.

Bucks Break 'I' Spell In Big Ten Cage Race

By DON WEISS
The Associated Press
The "I's" have had it for so long a time in Big Ten basketball it's downright intrusion when someone other than Iowa, Illinois or Indiana lead the pack.

Ohio State's current intruder, drawing more respect with every game. The Buckeyes, 12th in the Associated Press national rankings and 10-3 over-all, won their fifth straight conference game without a loss last night, rallying to defeat Wisconsin 67-64 at Madison, Wis.

It was the Buckeyes' second victory away from the home court in a league race where what a team does on the road usually settles the title. A couple more and the Western Conference could be out of the hands of the three I's for the first time since 1940-50.

LAUGHLIN IS TEAM WINNER

Bowlers from three states converged on Webb AFB last weekend to compete for trophies in the Webb Invitational Bowling Tournament. Teams from Abilene, Clovis, Goodfellow, James Connally, Kirtland, Laughlin, Luke, Reese, and Walker AP Bases participated.

Keen interest was shown in the doubles event as Best and Stares emerged as victors. The local men won this event with a score of 1137. Boeder and Crawford, from Laughlin AFB, were runners-up, scoring 1065.

In team competition, Laughlin AFB, won top honors as the eagles produced some top-flight scoring: Kirtland AFB, N. M., was second place and Webb placed third in this event.

The singles competition ended with Newman of Clovis AFB, N. M., high man, and McLain of Kirtland, runner-up; All Events Champion was not declared until the last frame had been scored. Boeder of Laughlin, (Del Rio) came through with the high score, a total of 1712, while pressing close was M. Sgt. Vincent Best of Webb with 1700.

LEAD AT STAKE

Coahoma To Host Merkel Tonight

COAHOMA (SC) — The District 6-A basketball spotlight will be on the Coahoma Gym tonight, where the powerful Merkel Badgers do battle with Dub Behrens' Coahoma Bulldogs.

Girl teams of the two schools clash at 7 p.m. The boys' game goes on at 8:00.

Coahoma is the favorite in the girls' game but the underdog in the boys' contest.

Merkel has one of the state's best Class A cage clubs, built around high-scoring Robert McLeod.

Football fans of the area will remember McLeod as the fancy-dressed quarterback of the Badgers.

Both Merkel and Coahoma will carry undefeated 6-A records into the boys' game. Coahoma had to go all out to tip Reese by one point last week, however. Merkel had an easy time in its game with Roby.

Behrens will lean heavily upon such boys as Ruyce Hill, Jo Hill, Marcus Stanley, Hugh Covert and MacTobinson.

Kermit Rutledge takes some of the pressure off McLeod in the Merkel lineup.

Others 6-A games send Rotan to Roscoe and Roby to Stanton.

Standings:

Ackerly Boys Clinch Top Spot In 8-B Round Robin

five for the season and are 3-2 in conference standings, good enough for third place in the standings. Coach Prather made sparing use of his regulars in the girls' game.

KLONDIKE (SC) — The Ackerly boys clinched first place in the District 8-B round-robin basketball play by bolting the Klondike Cougars, 60-58, here Monday night.

The Eagles have now won five games without a loss in conference play. The district tournament takes place in Dawson Jan. 31-Feb. 1. If Cliff Prather's boys win that too, they will be declared conference titlists. Should some team other than the Eagles win, however, it will then engage Ackerly in a series for the district crown.

The Ackerly boys have now won 11 while losing only four in overall competition.

Joe Cook, held to one field goal the first half, led the last period sport that paid off in victory for Ackerly. He made six points as the War Birds outscored the Cougars in the final quarters, 16-8. The two teams were tied going into the final round, 28-28.

Dalton Gill paced the Ackerly attack with 12 points. Cook had 12. Ackerly also won the girls' game, 52-35, as Janice Beardon hit 10 points, as Janis Kunkle 17 and Dorothy Williams 15 for the winners.

The Eagles have won 15 and lost

Hickok Award Goes To Yank Star Slugger

By MURRAY ROSE
ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Mickey Mantle, picking up postseason honors at the same pace he belted homers last summer, headed West for more today with the $10,000 diamond-studded S. Rae Hickok bell his newest talking point in continuing contract discussions with the New York Yankees.

The majors' triple crown champ in home runs, batted average and runs batted in received the bell, symbolic of the Hickok Pro Athlete of the Year award, at the annual Rochester Press-Radio Club Polo Fun dinner last night.

Mantle was voted the honor by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters over 11 other monthly winners of the Hickok competition, among them Yankee teammate Don Larsen of perfect game fame, who was runner-up, and heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, who was third.

Mickey said it would be more than a week, Jan. 31, before he would have enough of a break in his grand banquet tour to talk with Yankee officials again.

Tomorrow, he will be in Milwaukee to receive the Frederick C. Miller Memorial Trophy from the Fraternal Order of Eagles for having been voted Male Athlete of the Year in the annual year-end Associated Press poll. Thursday, he flies to Tulsa for another function.

"I talked with George Weiss (general manager of the Yanks) in Chicago Sunday and will see him again in New York at the end of the month," the busy young center fielder said.

Pressed for what has taken place in earlier talks, Mantle said: "We haven't talked too much about terms so far," and added with a grin, "Mr. Weiss has been explaining certain things to me."

How about reports he's asking $60,000—about double his 1956 salary?
"I haven't any idea what I'm worth," he said.

C Team Wins At Andrews

ANDREWS (SC) — John Perry Yates' Big Spring C team gained revenge for a defeat suffered at the hands of Andrews C contingent by winning a 42-39 verdict here Monday evening.

The Dodges had to come from behind in the final period to turn the trick.

Joe Bob Clendenin paced Big Spring's attack, scoring 16 points. Eston Hollis had 11 for the victors.

Big Spring now has an 8-3 won-lost record.

Thorpe Still Leads Scoring

Paul Thorpe of Odessa continues to lead the individual scoring race in District 2-A-AAA basketball play, with a total of 54 points.

Thorpe has played four games, however, and boasts only an 18-point average, whereas Big Spring's Jan Loudermilk — who ranks only fourth in the derby with 41 points — has averaged 20.5 points a start. Loudermilk has played in only two games.

The conference is almost certain to have a new leader after tonight, since Thorpe will be idle. Runnerup Larry Cooper of Midland is only four points back of Thorpe and he will be in action against San Angelo.

Carl Canon of Odessa is third, with 45 points. He, like Thorpe, will be idle.

Ted Lucas, Abilene, could conceivably grab the No. one position. In fifth place in the race, he is only one point back of Loudermilk and only 14 off Thorpe's pace.

Lucas and Loudermilk will be in action against each other in Abilene.

The B game starts in the Knott gymnasium at 5:45 p.m. with the girls' A game at 6:45 p.m. The boys' A game follows immediately.

The Forsan boys carry a 2-0 record into the final game, while Knott has an 0-2 record. In the girls' division, the reverse is true. Admission is 20-40 cents, said Bill Bolin, Knott superintendent.

Flew Home, But Not In Own Plane

DALLAS (AP)—Robert Priddy of Wichita Falls flew home last night, but not the way he intended. Priddy was taxing his light plane some distance behind a four-engine DC6 as both craft headed for take off.

Airport authorities said the airline pilot gunned his engines and the prop wash snook Priddy's plane. The oil drilling executive said he wheeled his craft to one side to get away and it was toppled over onto its back.

Priddy wasn't hurt, but had to have his plane towed away for repairs. He caught a commercial flight home.

Cold Front Enters State

By The Associated Press
A cold front led by a squall line moved deep into Texas Tuesday. Scattered rains lashed the state and more showers and thunderstorms were forecast for all but West Texas. Snow flurries were expected in the Panhandle.

Some severe weather was possible along the Red River in North Texas, the Weather Bureau said, as a result of turbulence over Oklahoma.

Freezing temperatures were expected to push into South Texas. The squalls were on a line approximately from Mineral Wells to Ardmore, Okla., early Tuesday and the north was still pushing down the Panhandle.

Mineral Wells and Abilene had showers. Wichita Falls had a brief but heavy rain. Nearly all the Gulf Coast and East Texas received moisture.

Freezing temperatures ranged from 22 degrees at Alice and Kingsville to 26 at Amarillo, behind the front.

Bit-and-miss showers wet scattered parts of Texas Monday. Severe weather predictions failed to materialize, however.

Gusty winds kicked up dust in far West Texas. Visibility was down to two miles at Salt Flat and 3 miles at El Paso late Monday.

Texas had a half inch of rain and hail late Monday. Light rains fell at Austin, Laredo, San Antonio, Victoria, Lubbock, Beeville, College Station and Dallas.

High temperatures Monday ranged from 36 at Dalhart to 47 at Alice.

Abandoned Baby's Mother Is Held On Felony Count

EL PASO (AP)—Mary Ellen, 22, who police said abandoned her newborn baby in a hospital here Nov. 18, has been arrested in Buffalo, W. Va., on a felony charge.

Police said the woman's traveling companion, who in El Paso said he was the father of the baby he never saw, was arrested in Bellevue Falls, Va. He was identified as Edward Brown, 22, also arrested on felony charges.

Police said the two posed as Howard and Mary Miller. She entered Providence Memorial Hospital Nov. 18 and gave birth that day to a boy, Harold Miller. She checked out of the hospital Nov. 19 without the baby.

Bogie's Rebellion Rooted In Childhood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Postscript on Bogie —

The story of Humphrey Bogart shouldn't be closed without a final chapter on his basic nature. The character of the grouchy, unimpeachable, which he created both in public and private, was only the external aspect of his life.

He had feelings, though he stoutly denied any tendency to sentiment. No actor could be so accomplished as he was and not understand emotion.

Perhaps the reason for this tough mask could be found in his boyhood. His father was a successful New York doctor. His mother was even more famed as an illustrator.

"I admired my mother, but I can't really say that I loved her," Bogart reflected in later years. "Hamprey Bogart was devoted to her own career and gave scant notice to the rearing of her two daughters and son. She was conservative and socially minded, while Dr. Bogart was a liberal who liked boating, fishing and plain people."

It was only natural that Humphrey grew up a rebel. He was shunned off to boarding schools and was expelled from one of them for "uncontrollable high spirits."

These high spirits were predominant in his life up until his marriage to Lauren Bacall. Though he remained an intellectual rebel, a happy marriage and fatherhood appeared to calm him down. He seemed to find the security which he lacked from boyhood.

"Bogie's insecurity was what made him a big drinker," his wife once observed. "He was egged on by certain individuals who wanted to bring him to their level . . . Now he has learned he can go into people's homes, and be accepted as an individual."

Only Betty (Miss Bacall) oberved him with his guard down. She recalled two occasions when she saw him cry. Once was when she was meeting him in New York before their marriage. She was delayed by a press conference and he telephoned her bitterly. "You actresses are all alike — your career comes above everything." But when she walked to his hotel room, he started crying. She saw him cry again the first time he saw their son Stephen in his schoolroom.

Perhaps the best description of Bogart's unique function in Hollywood was in John Huston's elegant eulogy:

"In each of the fountains of Versailles there is a pipe which keeps all the carp active, otherwise they would grow overfat and die. Bogie took rare delight in performing a similar function in the fountains of Hollywood."

Prentiss crumpled under his attack. Yet his victims seldom bore him any malice, and when they did, not for long. His shafts were fashioned only to stick into the outer layer of complacency, and not to penetrate through to the region of the spirit where real injuries are done.

Recently a group of Hollywood observers was sitting around and trying to figure out who could inherit the colorful mantle of Bogart. Among those mentioned: Frank Sinatra, Martin Brando, Mike Todd, Huston himself. None seemed really to qualify.

The truth is that Bogart can never be replaced.
