Now There's Realism

American actress Jean Seberg covers her face with her hands as London film studio workers seek to beat back flames which flared too closely around her in filming a stake-burning scene of the movie "Joan of Arc." A worker in the foreground uses a fire extinguisher against the blaze. The script called for a gas flame to spring up briefly about the 15-year-old Marshalltown, Ia., actress, with a dummy to be chained to the stake for completion of the burning. But the gas flared too fiercely and Jean suffered singed hair and minor hand burns.

Justice Reed Reads His Last Opinions Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Associate Justice Stanley F. Reed, 72, reads his last Supreme Court opinions today, then steps into retirement after more than 19 years' service on the high bench.

The Kentucky Democrat, an appointee of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, said it was no longer wise for him to endure the "strain of unremitting exertion" required of a jurist.

President Eisenhower has not yet nominated a successor.

The court has been in recess since Jan. 28.

Reed was expected to read majority opinions he has written in a number of pending appeals. His votes also have been cast on court orders ready for announcement.

Reed's retirement leaves an eight-judge court to hear arguments on a long list of new cases scheduled this week and next.

Some are major ones, causing lawyers to speculate on the possibility of some 4-4 decisions on important issues. Such split decisions affirm the judgments of lower courts.

Shortly after Reed's departure, eight justices will hear three hours of debate on whether Congress has power under the Constitution to authorize court-martial trials of civilians who accompany the armed forces abroad.

Last June the court, in a 5-3 decision, said Congress has the power. It so ruled in the cases of two women who killed their husbands overseas, were court-martialed and sentenced to life imprisonment. Counsel for the women won reconsideration of the decision.

Other appeals to be heard this week and next raise these questions:

1. May the House Committee on Un-American Activities compel witnesses to identify persons who in the past might have been Communists?
2. Is New Hampshire's Subversive Activities Control Act invalid under the federal Constitution?
3. Did the FBI violate the constitutional rights of two men and a woman who got prison sentences for sheltering a fugitive Communist party leader in a California mountain hideaway?

Bonds Set For Dope Suspects

Bonds were set today for four men picked up on possession of narcotics warrants over the weekend, but only one had made the bond by noon.

Released this morning was Santos Mendez, 34, in custody were Raymond Chaves, Nemesio Williams C. Sherman, and Henry Phillips. Justice A. M. Sullivan set bonds of $3,000 for each of the men. This is the amount requested by District Attorney Gil Jones.

All but Phillips were picked up in the gigantic dope raid on the Northside Saturday night. Local state authorities, 30 strong, swooped down on the lively "flats" area Saturday night and arrested 29 persons, including the four wanted on felony warrants issued in connection with alleged violations of narcotics laws.

The raid was one of five held Saturday night over the state, as Texas officials continued to crack down on dope pushing. Other raids Saturday were at Fort Worth, Dallas, Midland, and Odessa. Earlier officials hit Abilene, San Antonio, and Waco.

The arrest of Phillips Sunday night on the Northside by city officers left only James Leach at large. A warrant was issued for him at the same time as the other, but he has not been located.

The night's total of arrests reached 29. In the number were eight females and 21 men. Eleven of the misdemeanor charges were for vagrancy and loitering, one was for assault in jail, another was for

"It will create a situation that will be very hard to cope with," he said.

Stevenson said if the Liquor Control Board had enough men and equipment it could at least curtail large scale bootlegging operations. The board now has 111 officers to police Texas' 254 counties, of which 153 are dry.

He said he has repeatedly asked the Legislature for more men and state-owned cars for his agents.

Stevenson said it was his conclusion, "unfortunately," that the majority of Texans, even in dry areas, do not want liquor laws strictly enforced.

In many cases, he said local law officials turn their backs on liquor violations and leave what enforcement there is to state agents.

State Senate Negates Shivers Appointments

Daniel Wins Fight For Withdrawal

AUSTIN (AP)—The Senate voted 30-0 today to grant Gov. Price Daniel's request that six appointments made by former Gov. Allan Shivers be withdrawn.

The Senate action came without discussion. Sen. Ottis Lock of Lufkin, chairman of the Nominations Committee, earlier had announced its approval of the governor's request. The powerful Senate group had held the request without action for more than a week.

The Senate passed 23-6 a proposed amendment which would allow the use of state funds for advertising the advantages of Texas to tourists and industry. The same amendment is being studied by a subcommittee in the House.

In a news conference at about the same time, Daniel said he "knew he had 22 votes" when only 21 would be needed to carry the Senate. He said he did not "anticipate any trouble" in getting approval for the names he would resubmit to the Senate.

In the House Speaker Waggoner Carr named a five-man insurance investigation committee to begin work "immediately" and report back before or on April 1.

Rep. Scott McDonald of Fort Worth was named chairman. Other committee members were Rep. Carl Conley of Raymondville, James Cotton of Weatherford, Paul Pressler of Houston, and Tom Joseph of Waco.

The purpose for the April 1 date was to give the Legislature time to pass any necessary legislation after the investigation report, Carr said.

Carr urged the committee "to place the blame where it belongs and commend where it is due" in the filed major probe of the industry business for three years of bankruptcy and constant changes.

"He added that he believed the "overwhelming majority of the insurance industry has kept faith with the people and I know we will have their support."

The probe may reasonably be expected to determine, among other things, what part members of the Legislature have played in the affairs of the ICI Insurance Co. of Dallas that went into receivership last year.

During last year's probe into defunct U.S. Trust and Guaranty Co. of Waco, legislators — especially members of the Senate — were brought occasionally into the spotlight. Such a payment of legal fees as high as $10,000 to senators was disclosed.

The ICI's permit to do business was withdrawn after the Insurance Commission held it was "hopelessly insolvent." The firm was placed in temporary court receivership.

Carr will select the five committee members authorized by a resolution overwhelmingly approved by the House last week.

The Legislature — not far from the halfway point of the suggested 120-day session — also may step into the show-down phases of spending and taxing.

Comptroller Robert Calvert was expected to have a revised estimate of revenues ready for the lawmakers perhaps into this week or early next week.

Public hearings have been completed in the House on spending bills. The Appropriations Committee as a whole was working on its recommendations of what should be spent on maintenance of state services. The House committee was about 10 days ahead of schedule compared with past sessions.

The President also nominated Ambassador to West Germany, and William J. Sebald, a career diplomat, to be ambassador to Australia.

Youth Returns To Face Trial

WICHITA FALLS (AP)—A 19-year-old youth who admitted shooting his stepfather and mother because they wouldn't help him buy a car was returned here yesterday from California to face trial.

The youth, James Clifford Parks, was brought here by Dist. Atty. L. T. Wilson and two other officers from San Diego, Calif., where he was taken after being picked up Monday night as a curfew violator while crossing the border at Tijuana, Mexico.

He said he shot his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther E. Parks, a week ago Saturday night after an argument over whether they would help him buy a car. He said he had part of the money he needed, but they refused to help him with the additional cash.

Sheriff Weldon Bailey said he had received reports of three verbal threats to "get Parks," all made by the same person. The youth was held in a cell on the top floor of the jail.

The flier was stationed at Webb for approximately two years before transferring to Craig AFB, Selma, last August. He went through pilot training here and later served as an instructor. The same assignment he held at Craig, he and Miss Brown were married Feb. 10, 1956, in Big Spring.

Showers, Sunshine—And Blossoms

Convinced that they'd better enjoy their orchard while they can, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mattingly, 801 E. 15th, took up some of the beauty and aroma provided by early-blooming apricot trees. Spring-like weather, above-normal moisture and sunshine combined to bring out the blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Mattingly said the trees started blossoming about 10 days ago. About a half dozen apricot and peach trees were adorned in their spring finery this morning. The Mattinglys are fearful the blossoms are in for the same fate they suffered last year when they were stripped by a late frost. (Staff McClintock Photo.)

Johnson Raises Hopes Of Israel Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today that the chances for a Middle East settlement "appear to be somewhat more hopeful."

Johnson, the Senate's Democratic leader, told reporters he thinks "what we need is time and patience" to work out an agreement under which Israel would withdraw its troops from Egypt.

Apparently reflecting an exchange of views with Dulles in a telephone conversation, Johnson said that "so long as the parties to the Middle East dispute keep talking, there is a possibility of a settlement."

Johnson said that Dulles reported to him on the secretary's conversations with Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban yesterday. From these conversations came indications that Israel and the United States have moved closer to agreement on a formula for an Israeli troop withdrawal. The big question was whether Egypt would go along.

Johnson said "the important thing is to find a path to settlement which does not involve direct coercion."

"Once things are put on a 'put up or shut up' basis, a dispute will be created that could be with us for many years to come," he said.

"There are some signs that at least some of the parties to the dispute realize that fact. I hope that this realization spreads."

Johnson said he had expressed to Dulles his own view that "Israel should get her troops out and the U.S. should get its troops in, simultaneously" in the Gulf of Arabia and Golan Strip areas.

He has opposed sanctions against Israel and expressed the hope that the administration "will not be hasty" in giving any support to the U.N. for sanctions.

United Nations action also would be necessary for some of the Golan Strip and Golan Strip areas. The United States could give Israel still more time to work out a full solution either by seeking further postponement of debate, or by withholding announcement of its own stand for several days while debate proceeded.

Daniel said the raid was his idea, coming out of a meeting with Garrison and federal officials last December.

"We're going to whip the dope traffic in Texas," Daniel said.

He said it was a warning to peddlers and the big raids were only the first step.

Daniel said the second step would be his recommendations to the Legislature to double the size of the state narcotics section in the Department of Public Safety.

Daniel said more money was needed in buying dope for evidence.

Lt. Glenn Sutton, former Webb AFB flight instructor and husband of the former Sally Jane Brown of Big Spring, was still missing this morning in the rugged mountain territory between Reno, Nev., and Sacramento, Calif.

Lt. Sutton and his jet plane disappeared about 7 p.m. Saturday on a flight from Reno to Sacramento. It was estimated he was about 10 minutes from a landing at Sacramento when he last contacted control tower personnel by radio.

Search for the missing flier and plane was called off Sunday because of weather conditions in the area. Efforts were to be made to resume the hunt today.

Hutcheson Due Here Tuesday

A caravan of perhaps a dozen automobiles will accompany Thad Hutcheson, Republican candidate for United States Senator, here Tuesday.

He is due to arrive at 11:45 a.m. at the Settles, where E. B. McCormick, local Republican chairman, and other supporters and friends will meet him briefly.

After an address before the Rotary Club, Hutcheson will leave for Abilene, again accompanied by a number of supporters from that city. He is due to speak at 7 p.m. today over the Midland television station.

Eban was expected to counter on U.N. angles today with Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld in New York.

Dulles met with Eban after the ambassador flew back to Washington with new instructions given him at Jerusalem by Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion. The Dulles-Eban meeting followed a morning session Dulles held with Chumwashe.

In their discussions, the two men divided the problem up into United States and United Nations aspects, then issued a joint statement which spoke hopefully of prospects for solution of both.

The statement said Eban was reporting Dulles' remarks to Jerusalem immediately and was remaining "in close touch" with the State Department.

Lamesa To Vote On $300,000 In Bonds

LAMESA — Voters of Lamesa will ballot Tuesday on $300,000 general obligation bonds for water, sewer and fire department improvements. Included in the three measures will be $240,000 for water, $10,000 for sewer and $50,000 for fire department improvements.

The money for the water department will allow the city to build a pipe line to the 320-acre water field the city has purchased and leased four and one-half miles north of the city. It will also provide for the development of the field and service lines to the main.

The sewer bonds will provide expansion of the sewage system in the city and the fire department funds will be used to construct a fire station in the northern part of the city and to purchase two fire trucks.

Mayor Bob Crawley has stated that although the bonds are tax bonds, they will not require a raise in either taxes or water rates. He said the reason the city did not call in the revenue bonds from the previous issues and issue more revenue bonds was the cost of doing so. The city's financial agent had informed them it would cost at least $30,000 additional to go that route.

The mayor also warned that if the water bonds do not carry, Lamesa can expect enforced water rationing this summer. Voluntary rationing was successful last summer, according to Mayor Crawley, but the extra connections since then and the continued lowering of the water table would make rationing almost imperative.

At the present time, Lamesa is depending upon 1920, 1933 and 1948 fire trucks, and the State Fire Insurance Commission has warned the city they must do better or suffer more than the 5 per cent penalties they now have on their fire insurance premiums. The city must also build an additional fire station in the north part of town and employ additional full-time firemen.

All balloting will be in the city manager's office in the city hall. The polls will be open at 7:00 a.m. and close at 7:00 p.m. All holders of current poll tax receipts or exemption certificates who have rendered either personal or real property for taxation, and who reside in the city, are eligible to vote.

Liquor Control Chief Says Bootleggers Push Dry Vote

HOUSTON (AP)—Coke R. Stevenson Jr., administrator of the Texas Liquor Control Board, said yesterday he has definite evidence professional bootleggers play an important role in efforts to create more dry areas in this state.

Stevenson, interviewed on a television program, said bootleggers are taking an active and effective part in the campaign of dry forces to bar the sale of legal liquor in Texas, and to maintain the status quo in areas already dry.

He said if current efforts to dry up Harris County are successful, it would triple the work of agents here.

One Year Ago, Stalin Fell; Now Khrushchev Eats Crow

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
NEW YORK (AP)—A year ago today Nikita Khrushchev made a history-making speech in the Kremlin—still unpublished in Russian—denouncing Joseph Stalin for unspeakable crimes.

Now he is being forced to eat his words. On Jan. 17 he declared in public that "Stalin was a model Communist."

This is the same Stalin that Khrushchev, just a year ago, called "capricious, irritable and brutal," to whom he attributed "a persecution mania" and a "mania of grandeur," whose acts he described as "shameful" and "monstrous."

When Khrushchev exposed Stalin in Feb. 25, 1956, he probably didn't realize the consequences. In the last 12 months the speech has shaken the Soviet empire and undermined Khrushchev's own power. It exposed the faults and brutality not only of Stalin — but of the Soviet system as well.

A great spiritual ferment and unrest among all peoples under the Communist yoke was given a tremendous push. The subjects of communism, particularly young people, were shocked out of passivity and submission to authority. Today people in Russia and other Communist countries are openly questioning the foundations of the Communist totalitarian system.

A blow was delivered at all Communist parties outside Com-unist-dominated countries, particularly in Western Europe. Moscow's leadership of the international Communist movement was jolted.

As a result of the Khrushchev revelations, Poland went through a period of unrest and self-searching. The bloody Poznan bread-and-freedom riots followed in early summer. In late October came the establishment of a national Communist regime under Wladyslaw Gomulka free of direct Soviet domination in internal affairs.

In Hungary, unrest ousted the Soviet puppet government of Rakosi, and then mounted till it burst into open revolution in late October. The Kremlin put down the revolution with armed force, regained the eternal hate of all Hungarians and exposed to the world the brutality of Communist imperialism.

After the events in Poland and the revolution in Hungary, the Kremlin grew frightened. It slowed down the movement toward reforms in Soviet life. It brought successive delegations from its satellites to Moscow to repair the strained lines of control. Meanwhile, developing economic problems have forced the Kremlin to attempt to reorganize Soviet economic life.

The consequences to Soviet imperialism of Khrushchev's attack a year ago on Stalin have only begun.

Ousted Official Says Yanks Held In China Are CIA Agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ousted official of the U.S. Information Agency says at least 2 of the 10 Americans held prisoner by the Red Chinese are agents of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Another .03 Of Rain Recorded

Showers from 8 a.m. Saturday through 8 a.m. Sunday added .03 inch precipitation to the total received so far in February, the U.S. Experiment station reported Monday.

This brings February's rainfall to .97 inch and the total for the year to 1.49 inch. Soon after morning broke Sunday, the skies cleared and a bright sun beamed throughout the day. Temperature climbed to 72 degrees and an otherwise perfect day was marred only by a stiff northerly wind which whipped up considerable sand during the afternoon.

newsmen from going to Communist China. He said the department fears the newsmen might learn some of the imprisoned Americans are intelligence agents and that this might weaken U.S. efforts to get the prisoners freed. State Department and CIA spokesmen declined comment. Edmundson was fired last month from his USA post in Korea after he had criticized President Eisenhower's proposals for blocking Communist expansion in the Middle East.

Appearing on a television interview, Edmundson said he, the CIA and the Red Chinese all know that some of the 10 Americans are agents of the CIA and "perhaps other intelligence agencies."

He named only "Fecteau and Downey." Two of the Americans still in Red Chinese hands are John T. Downey of New Britain, Conn., and Richard H. Fecteau of Lynn, Mass. At the time of their capture in 1952, they had been listed as civilian employees of the U.S. Army who were aboard an Air Force plane when it was shot down.

Six other American prisoners have been identified as clergymen and the remaining two as businessmen. Edmundson said the CIA errs, when some of its employees are caught, in describing them as businessmen and civilians. He said this arouses emotions in the United States, adding that such emotions can "cause tensions and create a national atmosphere that can lead a nation to war."

Stokes Jr., commander of the First City Troop, 28th Reconnaissance Company, Pennsylvania National Guard, as they posed for a picture. Forty mounted members of the unit who escorted Wilson to the speaking engagement wore fancy dress uniforms which they pay for themselves.

Bristling Pacific Storm Hits West Coast, Leaves 3 Dead

A bristling Pacific storm, with winds up to 158 miles an hour, barged into the West Coast over the weekend and killed three persons, flooded part of an Oregon city and grounded transoceanic air traffic.

Warm moisture-laden air from the Gulf of Mexico spread into the Midwest and brought relatively mild temperatures to the rest of the nation. Continued rain was in prospect for the West Coast today, but without the furious winds.

The gale blasted parts of Washington state yesterday with gusts up to 158 miles an hour. The thawing wind melted snow on the slopes along the Powder River in eastern Oregon and about 40 homes in Baker were flooded.

Friendly Talk Solves Problems

In rapid succession, petitions have been filed for elections on consolidation of three school districts into one. Overtures have been made by two districts to one other.

Here, and we presume elsewhere in the state, there seems to have developed an unprecedented wave of this sort in anticipation that the Legislature may set up some requirements for minimum sized districts. The State Board of Education has suggested such a course and it may be that the Legislature will take some such action, and again it may not. So what it adds up to is that a lot of districts are hastily making marriages of necessity or convenience.

Coupled with these developments is some talk about procedures whereby the big fish could gobble up the little ones, wily nilly. This has provoked a near hysteria in some instances.

Now we don't know what the outcome of this will be here and all over the state, but we do know that a certain uneasiness has been brought to bear. It would be all too easy for constituents and for communities to lose perspective and to trample down good feeling and good will which have long been built on mutual trust and understanding and on an ability to sit down and discuss things frankly and freely.

That's the spirit in which such matters should be faced. When men soberly consider all factors and then earnestly seek a wise solution, they usually come up with one that will be lasting and mutually satisfactory. In the case of schools and school districts, decisions so reached will tend more nearly to answer the transcendent question of what is, after all, best for the children.

Our Transitory Hero Worship

The American people are a mercurial, perhaps a fickle, lot. It's off with the old and on with the new at the drop of a hat. A year or two ago the world of promotion and publicity resurrected a frontier character, Davy Crockett, and gave him a run the like of which hadn't been seen since Lindy flew the Atlantic.

Not that Davy wasn't quite a guy in his own right. He was a hero in Tennessee and Texas in his day, and for a time cut quite a spurge in Washington and indeed throughout the country.

But it took a singable song to resurrect him, a motion picture to "immortalize" him, and a nationwide outbreak of Davy Crockett jimmickery to make him a sort of tutelary god among the nation's small fry. Davy's tutelary jurisdiction covered the wild frontier, and as suddenly as he reappeared he went right back into limbo as soon as the American custom of going hogwild one day and cooling off the next asserted itself.

We hear that another famous frontiersman, the redoubtable Daniel Boone, is being dug up next for the full Hollywood treatment—song, motion picture, television rights and the usual commercial tie-ins.

Well, sir, we feel musing on the transitoriness of this kind of artificial stimulation with the passing of another George Washington birthday. Aside from a few closed banks here and there—but not in Texas—and shut-down governmental and private-enterprise activities for the day, very little note was taken of George's anniversary.

But he'll be back. We Americans pour out our admiration and adulation of our heroes in cycles. For the last few years Abraham Lincoln has been getting the big play—plays, books, motion picture shorts and the like. But not much commercialization, for even the hucksters are awed by the tremendous historic stature of Lincoln and Washington.

Around Washington's bicentennial the Father of His Country became supreme in the national gallery of greats, but he fell into momentary overshadowing as the Lincoln movement approached its climax. There is no present sign of a falling off of interest in Lincolniana, but you can put it down as a certainty that it will cool perceptibly—just as soon as we discover someone else to get absorbed in.

We seem not to have room in our emotional system for more than one supreme hero at a time, and this being so we can confidently look forward to the time when the Lincoln veneration ends, and some other idol will take his place—only, in his turn, to give place sooner or later to someone else as yet unknown.

Not that they aren't all worthy in their various ways, but that we are given to overdoing things and thus bringing on self-boredom.

United Action To Prevent War

WASHINGTON — These are strange times. A military man is President of the United States, but he's no swashbuckler. He's a man of peace.

Yet the Congress, which under the Constitution has the sole power to declare war, doesn't want to exercise that power. It wishes instead to concentrate in the President all responsibility for using the armed forces.

What is the reason for this paradox? Is it partisanship—an attempt to pass the buck by a Democratic Congress to a Republican President in a delicate period in world history?

There may be some partisanship here and there in the Senate but certainly when the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Sam Rayburn, Democrat, votes in favor of a resolution to "authorize" the President to use the armed forces in the Middle East if he deems it necessary, there can hardly be good grounds for assuming that partisanship is a controlling factor.

The truth is there are many conscientious men in both parties in Congress who have not come to grips yet with the realistic situation in the world as it affects the Constitution of the United States. The powers in this great charter of government have long been used to deal with "hot wars" but never before has the challenge come in what is today termed a "cold war."

The real question before the country is how the Constitution can be used, not merely to fight "hot wars," but to prevent a world war from breaking out in an age that utilizes nuclear weapons.

It will always be debated whether President Truman handled the Korean episode correctly. It is true that he ordered sudden intervention by American forces to repel the aggression by the Communist armies even before the Security Council of the United Nations voted such action. But he failed to go to Congress to get ratification, and this is a sore point between Republicans and Democrats that crops up in political discussions.

Mr. Truman was right in intervening. He could not wait for authority from Congress, though he did consult some of the leaders. Nor is there any real difference of opinion today as to what the duty of a President should be when any attack occurs—he must order American forces to repel that attack, and go to Congress later for ratification of a "state of war" in order to legalize the step.

But what shall be said of the use of constitutional power to prevent a war—not necessarily to wait till an attack has come? This is the real issue, and it is a novel one. It involves what some members of Congress have mistakenly described as a delegation of power to a President by Congress.

Actually, it is advance notice to foreign nations of the readiness of Congress to authorize now and ratify later any action the President may take if war becomes necessary. This doesn't mean any advance delegation of power at all. The act of delegation never occurs because only Congress can declare war or ratify the existence of a "state of war."

The Constitution has many pointed provisions that give to Congress exclusively the right "to declare war" and regulate the use of the armed forces. Article I, Section 8, says Congress "shall have power" not only "to declare war" but "to define and punish piracy and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations." This same article says Congress "shall have power" to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces.

But while there is no dispute about how the armed forces shall be directed to act when invasion or attack on American interests comes—as provided, for instance, in various treaties such as NATO—the new question is how Congress, acting along with the President, can serve notice of America's intention to use force if its interests are threatened. It is the formal expression by Congress of its intention to ratify a "state of war"—if any nation or group of nations embarks on such a course against this country—which is all-important now. That's the fundamental fact in the Eisenhower Doctrine resolution as passed by the House. It's a process of preventing war rather than a means of declaring war which Congress and the President would join in establishing. It's a constructive move toward the maintenance of peace in an atomic age.

The Pants Need Mending

WASHINGTON — The United States and France were as close as a pair of pants until they split over the French attack on Egypt last November. The pants have badly needed mending ever since.

So when President Eisenhower and French Premier Guy Mollet meet tomorrow — the first such meeting since the invasion of Egypt — it will be like a couple of tailors sewing on a patch.

And the result, like any good patch, will probably be satisfactory but unsensational.

Mollet was premier when the attack was made. It was a combined French-British assault, arranged by Mollet with the then British Prime Minister Eden. It was also one of the clumsiest fumbles in French-British history.

The White House was equally mad at both men for the attack which infuriated the Arab world just when the United States was extremely anxious to keep the Arabs friendly to the West and away from Russia.

Eisenhower and the United Nations put pressure on the British and French to stop the shooting. Both did and left Egypt. But the independent French-British action caused the first postwar bustup among the three big allies.

Mollet and Eden very quickly wanted to come here to see Eisenhower to get things straightened out. That kind of reconciliation so soon wouldn't have looked good to the Arabs. Eisenhower gave the two prime ministers a cold shoulder.

In the backwash of that military fiasco, the split between the United States and Britain, and Eisenhower's aloofness, Eden ran into trouble at home and finally resigned, pleading illness.

Not so Mollet, a dry, professional, colorless French politician. Reports from Paris say the French, even though dismayed by the willingness of their government to back out of Egypt so fast, admired Mollet for his daring in fighting at all.

But the rift between this country and its two allies couldn't be permitted to go on indefinitely. And Eisenhower, after talking things over with Mollet, will visit with Eden's successor, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

What sometimes gets lost sight of in concern over the American-British-French split was why the British and French, who had worked hand-in-glove with this country, had attacked Egypt on their own without telling the United States.

Eden and Mollet were sore at the way Secretary of State Dulles had handled Egyptian President Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal. The British and French didn't want to let Nasser get away with it.

Dulles offered some plans for dealing with Nasser. None of them worked. They used up time. And they left Nasser in undisturbed possession of the canal. Eden and Mollet didn't want any more of Dulles' delays. So they struck.

But it seemed clear from the beginning that any quarrel of this kind between the United States and its allies could be only temporary. They need each other too much in standing off communism to go their separate ways.

Higher Standard Of Inner Living

NEW YORK — Leopold Stokowski, forecasting the coming of "an American renaissance," called today for "a higher standard of inner living."

Now nearing 75, Stokowski, for nearly half a century one of the world's most controversial symphony orchestra conductors, said: "Athens had its great period, Italy had its renaissance. And America is going to have its renaissance, too. I feel we are seeing its initial phase now."

"There has been a great development of public taste in the United States. America is not musically illiterate. It is growing and evolving musically — very fast."

Recalling that when he first came to this country from Europe in 1905 the only well-known symphonies were in Boston, New York or Chicago, Stokowski said: "Now every university has one, and many high schools do, too. We have vastly more orchestras than any other country of the world of comparable size."

The maestro, now conductor of the Houston Symphony, sees the increasing leisure afforded by the machine age as the first step toward the creation of a world-inspiring cultural renaissance here.

Stokowski conducts an interview as he does an orchestra, with a mixture of charm and Olympian aloofness. Time has whitened the maestro's famed loonine mane, but, sitting in an armchair in his East Side apartment, he gestured now and then with his pale, eloquent hands as if calling on invisible violins to emphasize a remark.

Where will the American renaissance flower — in Texas? To adopted Texas Stokowski this requires no great stretch of credulity.

"I am a Texan," he said, his blue eyes twinkling. "Already in Houston we have 30 scientific laboratories, a symphony orchestra, a ballet, an opera society and two art museums. And many other Texas cities have equally good institutions."

Stokowski rose, bowing. The concert was over.

Florida City Boasts Last Flea Circus

SARASOTA, Fla., Feb. 25 — This tourist city on the Gulf Coast of Florida, where the Ringling circus has wintered for 30 years, now boasts also a flea circus—the last to survive in the country, its impresario says.

Roy Herbert Hecker, trainer, keeper and curator since 1925 of Hubert's Museum on busy 42nd Street in New York City, shut up shop last fall and with his wife has reopened a spot north of the city it's still Hubert's Museum.

The program advertises seven acts, including chariot races, juggling, playing football, operating a merry-go-round and a flea hotel; fleas dressed in costumes and dancing to music and a flea named Paddy carrying a flag and jumping through a hoop.

While there are 500 species of fleas, Hecker trains only the "pulex irritans," the common house flea, because of its intelligence, endurance and length of life.

It took Hecker two years to train himself but it takes only three weeks to train a flea, he said.

"I first separate the bright from the dumb with an intelligence test," said the professor. "Then I put them into a glass tube to break their habit of jumping.

Next he puts tiny collars around their necks and trains them for a particular act. Only 3 out of 10 come out as true performers.

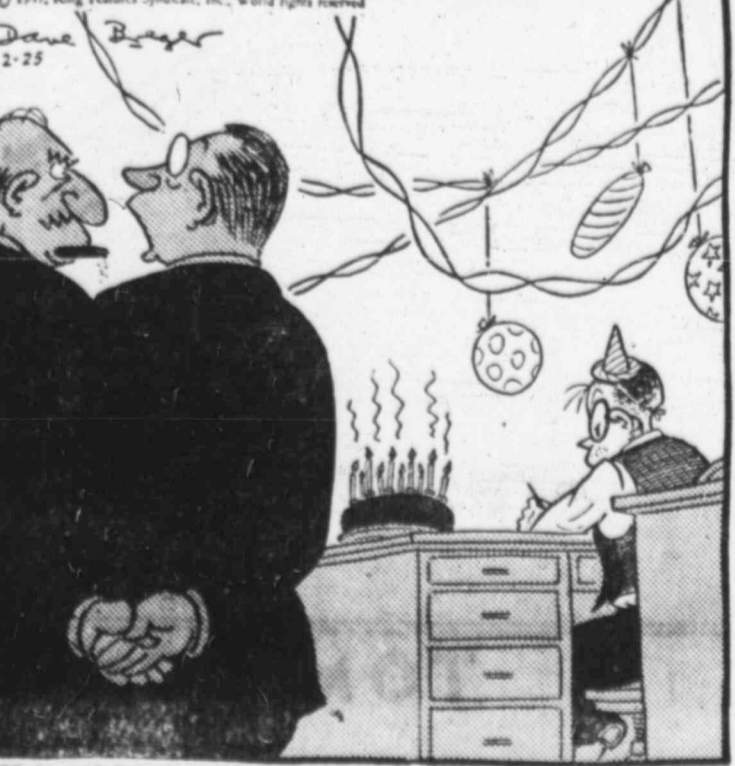

"Sometimes they get temperamental like actors," Hecker said, "or their legs get tangled or broken in their wool and cotton blankets."

But, he added, there are always understudies in his many mother of pearl chests ready to go on.

Hecker manipulates his 60 fleas with the aid of a pair of tweezers, picking them up by their thinner-than-hair collars or halters.

How does he feed the fleas? Certainly not by calling in a local hound dog, Human blood, says he. Every day he rolls up his sleeve and lets them siph away. The nonworking flea is fed only twice a day but the performing flea must eat three or four times daily.

Around The Rim

Let's Not Get Familiar With Snakes

They say you can always tell the difference between a venomous snake and non-venomous kind by the fact that they have a sharp or blunt tail.

I never make it a point to get close enough to either kind to conduct an investigation. A serpent can make me take it on the Arthur Duffy faster than a forked-tongued woman, and that's pretty fast.

A garter snake which can get the shakes if a cricket starts chirping a couple of wagon-tongues away can look as big as a boa constrictor to me. And just as mean as a diamond-back rattler with a sun-burned underbelly.

They tell me more than 50 people die annually in America from snake bite. No statistics are made available, however, on the years our citizens lose from being scared just by having to give the serpents a wide berth.

Some time ago, a couple of three king cobras took it on the lam into the underbrush in Missouri. I told the citizens along the West Coast looked under the beds for a month each night afterwards, half-afraid the snakes had moved in with them.

I doubt if the snakes had the train fare to even get out of Missouri but you can see how the darn things effect a body, just by reading about them.

Does it make you shudder when you read of some religious cult which tempts fate by wearing the snakes like fur stoles and caressing their ugly little heads?

The odds against the zealots aren't as long as you'd think, however. Many of the cults exhibit the poisonous kind but don't dare play footsy with them until their lethal weapons have been removed.

An Englishman named M. W. F. Tweedie, who claims to have had considerable experience with snakes in India, says the savagery of cobras is over-emphasized. He cites the capture of a 15-foot specimen on a Singapore golf course by a linkster who seized it by the tail, thinking it was a python. The cobra made no effective resistance.

The linkster, I am afraid, had spent too much time at the 19th hole before going out on the grounds.

The golf-kilting snake must be an exception in Asia, however. An estimated 12,000 persons die annually in India alone as the result of snake bites, and the snakes don't wait to be piked up. They'll meet you more than half way, in most instances.

If you are enchanted by the romance of such things, you might be interested in knowing that the serpent with the most venomous bite is the sea snake, which can be found in a vast triangle bordering the Persian Gulf, southern Japan, the western Pacific and northern Australia.

He's supposed to be twice as toxic as the Australian tiger snake, four times as deadly as the Australian death adder and ten times as lethal as the common cobra.

I only hope he doesn't develop a liking for dry land.

'French' Dressing A Libel On France

In this century the French have had to endure a series of catastrophes that would have challenged Job, the champ. But there is one indignity in this time of stress that we Americans can and should spare the countrymen of Lafayette.

Congress, if not the spirit of fair play, should see to it that this mongrel mixture that passes for French salad dressing in planes, trains and most American restaurants should be forcibly restrained from the use of the word "French" in its nomenclature.

This American fluid, approximately the weight, density and flavor of warm axle grease, sustains the same relationship to the original as corn silks to Carona Carnas. It labels a friend and ally, as if the international situation weren't ulcerous enough to begin with.

In recent days I have traveled some 6,000 miles in the U.S.A. and, except for this so-called French dressing, I find my own, my native land fair and without peer. But one of the nation's crying domestic problems is to re-educate a raft of its chefs in re French dressing, a reform that might clear up a lot of the nervous indigestion that seems to animate so much of public life and legislation.

What passes for French dressing in this great nation passionately addicted to green salads is a thick semi-liquid, usually brick red in color. It spreads slowly through a salad, like lava over a Vesuvian landscape, and has the same effect on tender lettuce, endives and chicory. It — the bogus French dressing — wills everything in its path, reducing it to an unpalatable pulp.

In tensile strength, the only item that can stand up to it and survive its deadly embrace is red cabbage. (And while I am about it, who ever decided that red cabbage was indigenous to the salad bowl?

This, too, is a crime against nature — human nature, that is. Raw red cabbage is so much cyanide in the digestive tract of Homo sapiens. Off with its head!

True French dressing is one of the lofty heights of haute cuisine. Like other great French dishes such as pot-au-feu, Vichy's soise, and cassoulet, its essence is simplicity. A good French dressing is to one of recent green salad as a moustache to a kiss, a star to a garter.

A gastronomic delicacy of the first rank, French dressing is a delicate union of olive oil, wine vinegar and perhaps a soupçon of lemon juice, salt, freshly ground pepper and a pinch of dry mustard. Some purists even bar the mustard.

It should be made with four parts of olive oil (substitute anything else and it isn't — repeat isn't — French dressing) to one part of wine vinegar and a soupçon of lemon juice. If it seems to lack sharpness, to this add plenty of salt, freshly ground pepper and dry mustard.

A good waiter in a first-class restaurant will mix this dressing for each individual order, stirring it quickly and skillfully together before pouring it over a bowl of greens.

Let the waiter do it, my motto. I am painfully allergic to the exhibitionist who has a truckload of ingredients delivered to his restaurant table and spends the next 30 minutes making a mess of himself, the table and the salad as he mixes his own dressing.

Still and all, I am beginning to sympathize with him. If I am out on the road much longer and many more salads are ruined by concealed crank-case fluid, flavored with salt and paprika, darned if I won't turn into one of these do-it-yourself salad pests. As for the French, they've got a United Nations, not to mention a Federal, case.

Wilson Gets Support In Guard Dispute

PRINCETON, N. J. — As the explosion detonated by Defense Secretary Wilson's charges about the National Guard echoes and re-echoes through Washington corridors, the public's attitude about the whole affair is as follows:

1. The weight of sentiment among all adults interviewed in the latest Institute survey lines up on the side of Mr. Wilson in his claim that some young men used the National Guard to avoid the draft at the time of the Korean War.

Agreement with the Secretary's charges stem in some instances from personal experiences of persons interviewed who knew of young men who joined the Guard for the express purpose of avoiding the draft.

2. In line with President Eisenhower's views about extending the period of training for National Guardsmen, nearly two out of three Americans believe that Guardsmen should be required to take six months basic training in the regular Army before going on in the National Guard.

3. Only about one person in four across the country today is aware of the National Guard's semi-independent status in the nation's defense set-up.

4. Even among this "informed" group, sentiment is in favor of placing the Guard under the direct supervision of the Army.

Some of those who believe the Guard should be federalized feel that such a move would greatly increase the efficiency of our armed forces in general and would help to reduce present tensions existing between the Guard and the Army.

The questions that Institute reporters put to a true cross-section of American adults from all walks of life:

"Defense Secretary Charles Wilson

claims that some young men went into the National Guard to avoid the draft at the time of the Korean War. Do you agree or disagree?"

Agree	41
Disagree	37
No opinion	22

"Do you think members of the National Guard should be required to take six months basic training in the regular Army before going on in the National Guard, or not?"

Yes, should	65
No, should not	21
No opinion	14

"Of those persons who knew the correct status of the National Guard in regard to the regular Army, the following question was asked:

"Do you think the National Guard should be placed under the direct control of the regular U. S. Army, or not?"

Yes, should	48
No, should not	41
No opinion	11

The storm of controversy over the position of the National Guard first blew up when Secretary Wilson — in testifying before the House Armed Services Committee about the Administration's plan requiring Guard recruits to undergo six months of military training — commented that the Guard "was really sort of a scandal during the Korean War" and charged that it "was a draft-dodging business."

In a press conference shortly thereafter, President Eisenhower said that he considered Wilson's remarks "unwise," but added that he felt the Guard "is never going to be the kind of force we need until we get these recruits having at least six months of good, hard basic training."

Spokesmen for the National Guard have opposed this measure, charging that the Army's new training requirement — effective April 1 — presaged federalization and extinction. They have countered with a proposal that recruits be allowed to take eleven weeks of duty training.

During the Korean War, about 37 per cent of the Army National Guard and about 84 per cent of the Air National Guard was called into Federal service.

Although not all of these men were on active duty in Korea, two complete Guard divisions — the 40th of California and the 45th of Oklahoma — as well as numerous other units, both Army and Air, saw action in that conflict.

Panic Button

BALTIMORE — As the siren wailed on in the pre-dawn hours, police were swamped with frantic calls. One woman screamed into the telephone:

"When is the hydrogen bomb going to drop?"

Police finally found the short-circuited siren atop a cannery and cut the wires.

In The Family

WAUSAU, Wis. — Circuit Judge Gerard Boileau, Wausau, a candidate for reelection, was going over his nomination papers when he found one completed sheet that carried only the names of the Theiler family of Tomahawk.

The paper, containing 21 names, was circulated by Ralph Theiler.

Mickey Mouse

OKEMA, Okla. — H. L. Oliver can't figure out his tomcat's likes. The cat naps in front of the TV set through all types of programs and commercials and only becomes alert when cartoons are on.

Miss Reeves Becomes Bride Of Mr. Seewald

LAMESA — A tree of greenery with baskets of white gladioli and candelabra formed the setting for the wedding of Mary Gladys Reeves of Waco and Kenneth O. Seewald of Boerne. The couple was united in marriage Saturday, at 7:30 p.m. in Miller Chapel on the Baylor University campus in Waco.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Reeves, 106 N. 14th St. Lamesa are the bride's parents; parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Seewald of Boerne.

Dr. Cecil P. Sansom read the double ring ceremony.

Mary Gaunt of Boerne, presented the traditional wedding music and accompanied Pat Beckham, Lamesa as he sang, "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Alcon lace over slipper satin. Her Peter Pan collar and tapered sleeves and round yoke were outlined with seed pearls. A panel of satin fell from the shoulder to the hemline, while her voluminous skirt was worn over crinoline. From her pearl covered tiara fell a veil of silk illusion. She carried a bridal bouquet of white carnations surrounded by stephanotis and feathered carnations.

John Whitney, Waco, was the maid of honor, while Alice Seewald, sister of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of blue crystal-latte over tulle. A flowing panel down the back with matching shoes and head band completed their costume. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations.

Johnny B. Armstrong, Dallas, cousin of the groom, was the best man and William Maxwell Burkett of Corpus Christi was the groomsman. Ushers were O. J. Kneupper, Boerne and Ronald Ayers, Dallas.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held in the North Lounge of the Student Union Building. The bride's table was laid with lace over blue and featured the attendant's bouquets.

Members of the house party included Mrs. Charles Reeves, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Lynn Reeves at the table, while Carol Horne registered the guests.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to Monterey, Mexico, the bride chose a charcoal grey linen suit with black accessories. They will make a home at 817 S. 7th St., Waco, after March 1.

The bride graduated from Lamesa High School and Baylor University and is employed as social secretary for the American Red Cross in Waco. Her husband graduated from Boerne High School and Baylor University. He is presently employed with Monarch Logging Company in San Antonio and will return to Baylor March 1, to obtain his Masters Degree in the Department of Geology.

She Attracts Men

According to Denise Darcel, the secret of attracting the opposite sex is by being feminine, sweet and well dressed. Denise is keeping busy with night club and TV personal appearances.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Make 'Em Look At You, Is The Denise Theory

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Denise Darcel's first Hollywood role was as the French girl in "Battleground" and when I met her at that time she was overweight and unsophisticated.

After Denise closed her New York apartment and moved back to Hollywood I met her for lunch. When she entered the room I hardly recognized her. She was dressed in a simple black sheath which revealed her beautiful figure. She wore diamond earrings and a black turban with a veil and as she walked toward me in the Lounge at the Beverly Hills Hotel, every head turned in admiration.

When I remarked about this Denise laughed. "If they don't look at you something is wrong and you should know this before you leave home," she said with an enchanting French accent. "If I know my hair is not right or my dress does not fit the way it should, my whole evening is spoiled. What clothes can do for a woman!" she exclaimed, throwing up her hands in a typical French gesture.

"This does not always mean you have to wear courtier dresses. Last summer I bought a little black cotton suit for $20. It fit beautifully and I wore a little white sailor hat with tiny white rosebuds around the brim, white gloves and a string of pearls. My whole outfit cost under $40, but everyone thought I had on something from France. I got compliments every time I wore it.

"I love hats. They make a costume. You can wear the same dress but if you choose a different hat you give a new appearance.

"And the most important thing in a dress is the way it fits—the way it is cut—not to be too tight—or too loose. That's why I love French clothes. They never lose their shape and you can wear them season after season and they come back from the cleaners looking like new."

"Do you buy your clothes to please men?" I asked.

Denise looked up from her teacup and smiled. "Of course!" she exclaimed. "I have experimented but men like sheaths best and they don't like too much make-up. I don't either. It shows up every wrinkle and some you didn't know you had. Only young girls who want to look older can afford to cover their skins with make-up."

Denise advises that being feminine is the way to attract a man. "Don't demand this and that. Make him feel big and strong. Agree with him, listen and smile. Be yourself and he'll want to see you more often," she concluded. (Copyright, 1957, Mirror Enterprises Co., Los Angeles, California.)

Be Good To Your Skin This Season

The vacationer who wouldn't trade a ski slope for a palm tree faces more beauty hazards on snow.

Skiers, skaters, or ice-boat sailors skimming over frozen lakes can take comfort from these easy ways to lick such hazards.

1. Wear a protective foundation make-up when you play on snow or ice under a strong Northern sun. Without it, your skin will suffer as had a burn as a beachcomber's untimed stay under a Jamaican sun. Cake, fluid or cream stick foundation make-ups not only filter the sun's reflected rays, but protect against the deep freeze of zero weather winds.
2. If you want to add further protection to extra sensitive skins, wear creamy eyeshadow and fluid or cream rouge. Carry a creamy make-up base and powder and pat on extra protection and beauty when you stop to relax.
3. Wear the thickest coat of eyelash make-up you can apply. Next to dark glasses, this will be your best protection against sun-glare.
4. Lips reddened with a cream-rich lipstick will be safe from cracking, no-matter how high the slope or dry the air.
5. When you're ready to slip into your date dress and your most alluring make-up, let the violent red in your cheeks subside, or camouflage excessive color, with foundation powder and rouge.

New Champs Will Reign

By The Associated Press

The Texas Schoolboy basketball race, trimmed down to district champions in all divisions, starts cutting for the state tournament this week.

There's not a defending state titlist left in the field although two 1956 champions are still in the race in different divisions.

Buna, kingpin of Class A, and Pollok Central, winner of the Class B championship, have moved up and Buna is a district champion of Class AA and Pollok in Class A.

Laredo, state champion of Class AAAA, was eliminated in the district race, as were Amarillo Palo Duro, champion of Class AAA, and Jacksonville, champion of Class AAA.

Buna and Pollok have gaudy records and will be among the favorites for state titles in their new divisions. Buna has won 61 straight games with a team sparked by the fabulous Stanley twins — Pat and Don. Pollok has a season record of 36 victories against only 8 defeats.

Class AAAA's district champions are El Paso Jefferson, Abilene, Pampa, Fort Worth Poly, Dallas Highland Park, Dallas Sunset, Grand Prairie, Lufkin, Houston Milby, Houston Jefferson, Port Arthur, Galena Park, Austin, Harlingen, San Antonio Jefferson and San Antonio Burbank.

Class AAA's district kings are Phillips, Pecos, Snyder, Vernon, Garland, Sulphur Springs, Nacogdoches, Waxahatchie, Killean, Smiley, Beaumont French, Bay City, San Antonio Edison, South San Antonio, Cuero and Mission.

Class AA has 29 districts with these champions to engage in bi-district eliminations this week: Muleshoe, Floydada, Wellington, Stamford, Seminole, Coleman, Comanche, Bowie, Northwest, Lancaster, Terrell, Bonham, DeKalb, New London, Marlin, Rusk, Lampasas, Rockdale, Giddings, Gonzales, Cypress-Fairbanks, Buna, Clear Creek, Boling, Karnes City, Devine, C-Sinton, Benavides and Donna.

Not all district champions have been certified in Class A and Class B but they will all be known Monday.

Some of the classes decide their state representatives with regional tournaments and others by bi-district playoffs.

Four teams go to the state tournament from Classes AAAA, AAA, AA, and A. Eight will play in the Class D division.

NC Must Grab Meet To Earn Playoff Spot

By JIM KENSIL

The Associated Press

North Carolina's 22-game unbeaten streak is the envy of the college basketball world.

But six big-time college coaches have something that Tar Heel Coach Frank McGuire would give a lot to own—a berth in the post-season NCAA University Division Tournament.

To make the NCAA event, the Tar Heels must take the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament March 7-9. It's a sure bet McGuire would swap a defeat in either of UNC's two remaining regular season games for that prize.

McGuire has said that he feared going into the tourney unbeaten, because the pressure would be too great.

Sue a dilemma!

Coaches at Connecticut, Canisius, Kentucky, Miami of Ohio, Southern Methodist and Idaho State can rest easy until the NCAA tourney. The same goes for Manhattan, Seattle, Memphis State, Dayton, Cincinnati and St. Bonaventure, who have accepted 6 of the 12 spots in the other major postseason circuits, the National Invitational Tournament.

Connecticut wrapped up the Yankee Conference spot last week. Canisius accepted one of the seven "at-large" bids Saturday and the other four NCAA starter lock-up slots that night.

Twelve other conference races and the bids that go with them are still in the pot.

Southern Methodist made the glamor group by whipping Rice 75-72 to pick up a third consecutive Southwest Conference title; Idaho State did it with a 47-36 triumph over Western Colorado State for the Rocky Mountain crown; and Miami came in with a 47-40 over Toledo to grab Mid-American laurels.

Kentucky, 79-60 winner over Alabama, can still be tied for the Southeastern Conference top spot by either Vanderbilt or Auburn. But Auburn is on probation and Vandy has lost twice to the Wildcats, leaving the prize a certainty for Adolph Rupp's five.

West Virginia, with the Southern Conference championship already won, still must take the league tourney to get the NCAA nod.

Here's a look at some other league races:

Big Ten — Indiana boosted its first-place record to 9-2 by dumping Wisconsin 85-74, while Michigan stayed close, taking its eighth straight after two early losses, 70-45 over Minnesota. Indiana is at Michigan State Saturday.

Big Seven — If Will (The Still) Chamberlain is to be an NCAA showpiece, Kansas (8-1) must ward off the challenge of Kansas State (7-2). Both won over Nebraska and K-State 86-77 over Iowa State. Kansas is at K-State March 6.

Missouri Valley — St. Louis (9-2) turned back Bradley (8-2) 73-62 to take over first place, but the race still is a tossup.

Ivy — Late-comer Dartmouth moved into a tie for the lead with Yale at 8-2 by downing Cornell 84-49, while the Elis were stumbling before Princeton 56-33. The Indians, winners of nine straight, could wrap it up by beating both Princeton and Yale this week.

Skyline — Brigham Young (9-3) could have clinched but lost to Montana 71-63 and now Montana, Denver and Utah are only a game out.

Pacific Coast — With UCLA on probation, the 11-1 record is as good as California's in the league only, and if the Golden Bears keep playing as they did in beating Washington 72-62 they'll be in the NCAA.

Mid-Atlantic — This sprawling loop has no official standings, but Lafayette with 12 straight victories is a top choice.

All-Tourney Setups

Unknown Leads By 2 Strokes

HOUSTON, Tex. — Gene Bone, a newcomer who just four days ago was unknown even to many stars on the winter golf tour, held a 2-stroke lead today as he made his final bid for the $7,500 Houston Open.

The friendly 25-year-old from Louisville used good putting to overcome a few bad shots yesterday and boost his lead with a 54-hole 69-67-70-206.

The friendly 25-year-old from Louisville used good putting to overcome a few bad shots yesterday and boost his lead with a 54-hole 69-67-70-206.

This was 10 under par for the 7,200-yard, par-72 Memorial Park course and enabled him to beat off a surge by Bob Harris, former national collegiate champion from Winnetka, Ill.

Harris, seven strokes back after 36 holes, was red hot with a red putter, fashioning a 7-under 65 (third round for a 209 that moved him a notch ahead of Jimmy Demaret, a Houston native and gallery favorite).

Bone began play yesterday one stroke ahead of Doug Ford, former PGA champion from Mahopac, N.Y. Ford slipped to a 73 to tie at 210 with Arnold Palmer, the first round leader from Latrobe, Pa.

After Saturday's washout, only a light rain fell late in yesterday's play but there was a downpour last night. More rain was expected today.

Bone said he had no special strategy in mind.

"I'm just going to keep shooting, come what may," he said. "I'm really lucky."

His second shot skipped across a lake and landed on the fairway yesterday.

"I had some bad shots but my putter pulled me out of the holes," said the Pontiac, Mich., native who has won only $33.34 on the winter tour.

Bone made the turn at 34, two under par. He lost a stroke on 12 with a poor second shot and a short chip but went three-under with puts of 5 and 20 feet on 13 and 14. He lost a stroke on the final hole when his second shot was too long and his first putt was inches short.

The 28-year-old Harris had a front nine 31. He and two-birdied two greens and got other birdies with puts of 15, 10, 2, 5 and 10 feet.

A four-over-par 220 was needed as the field was cut to 63 pros and seven amateurs. Among those missing today were such stars as Jay Hebert, Bill Casper and Gene Littler.

SEW UP CROWN SMU Five Looks To NCAA Meet

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Associated Press Sports Editor

Southern Methodist's Mustangs, the Southwest Conference basketball champion safely stowed away, look toward their third straight appearance in the NCAA playoffs with hopes this time of going all the way.

It will be either Kansas or Kansas State, most likely Kansas, in the regional NCAA tournament, to be held in Southern Methodist's coliseum March 15-16. Coach Doc Hayes will scout the Kansas-Kansas State game March 6 to find out which his team will have to face.

The Methodists, still sticking to only six players, whipped Rice 73-72 Saturday night at Houston to sew up their third consecutive championship. They still have two conference games to play but neither can make any difference in the final standings.

SMU won the title by beating both Texas A&M and Rice, lacing the former 71-68 before the big showdown with the Owls. With Jim Krebs leading the way with 33 points, SMU came from behind several times and overtook the Owls in the stretch.

Kansas, rated No. 2 in the nation to SMU's No. 6, would probably be the season's top duel of stars—Krebs vs. Will (The Still) Chamberlain.

SMU hasn't lost a college game on its home court since 1934 and would appear to have an excellent chance of finally taking the regional NCAA. In 1955 the Methodists lost in the first round and also lost the consolation. Last year they were beaten by San Francisco in the opening round but downed Temple for third place.

SMU has a season record of 19-3, losing only one conference game—that to Texas. The Mustangs play Texas Christian at Dallas Tuesday night and end the regular campaign Saturday night against Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Snyder Places Two On All-District

Snyder, undefeated champion of District 3-AAA, has placed two boys on the All-Conference basketball team.

They are Milton Ham, an unanimous choice; and Robert Dabbs. Others selected included Rex Wilson, Lake View; Doyle Goolsby, Lamesa; and Sammy Harvey, Sweetwater.

Second team selections included Richard Compton, Colorado City; Dwayne Prince, Snyder; Ewell Frather, Lamesa; Jim Barr, Lamesa; and John Craft, Sweetwater.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Robert McLeod, star of the Merkel team that meets Ropesville in that Class A playoff game here tomorrow night, is planning on taking unto himself a bride this summer.

For that reason, several of the Southwest Conference schools are shying away from him. Coaches of those schools have come around to the conclusion that a married athlete has too difficult a time in making expenses in college.

Incidentally, Manley Denton—one of the starters on the Merkel club—is a cousin to Sherry Coats, student manager of the Big Spring girls' volleyball team.

Not long ago, Buck Francis of Snyder suggested in a column that Nat Gleaton, coach of the Abilene Eagles, vetoed the proposal that his Eagles play the Snyder Tigers for fear of getting beat.

Gleaton turned down the game, but for a different reason. Gleaton wanted a home-and-home series. Snyder agreed to that but proposed that Abilene play in Snyder this year and the Tigers would repay the visit NEXT YEAR.

Gleaton told intimates his boys suffered a big letdown after winning District 2-AAAA championship honors. Everything that happened after that seemed anti-climatic to them.

With most other teams (e.g. Big Spring), the result would have had an opposite effect.

That's one big reason Class A Merkel was able to measure Abilene in that practice tilt last Friday night. The loss by the Eagles certainly didn't help District 2-AAAA prestige.

It could even hurt the chances of any boy within the conference to rate all-state laurels, unjust as that may sound.

George McCarly, the Texas Western basketball coach, now says Charles Brown is the finest center he's ever coached.

That's the Negro boy who terrorized West Zone clubs, including HJCC, last year before his coach discovered he was ineligible.

McCarly is now wooing Harold Holmes, another Negro boy, who would be performing for Lubbock Durbur this season, were he eligible. Holmes stands 6-6.

Al Milch, Big Spring's new football coach, attended the Rice coaching school, which closed at Houston Saturday.

The Rice clinic has the reputation for being the finest of its kind in the Southwest, the sprawling, Texas Coaches Association clinic notwithstanding.

High school coaches like it because Coach Jess Neely invites them right down on the field to see what he's doing.

Coach of the Plainview High School baseball team, which meets the resident Steers twice in practice tills this spring, is Good Graves, one-time star guard at Big Spring High school and later a standout at Howard Payne College.

Charles Bratton, the Lamarque giant who Peppy Blount recommended as all-state football material, is supposed to be bound for Baylor.

Bratton stands 6-feet-6 and weighs 270 now, and is still growing. He and Peppy are related.

Had Shantz Stayed Sound, A's Would Not Have Moved

By JOE REICHLER

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Little Bobby Shantz hadn't suffered a fractured pitching arm in 1952 and a pulled shoulder muscle the following year, the Athletics' franchise would not have been shifted from Philadelphia to Kansas City in the winter of 1954.

The 5-6 1/2, south-paw, who became a New York Yankee last week along with pitcher Art Ditmar in a trade involving 13 players, made this surprising disclosure today. His authority is none other than Roy Mack, former Athletics president, without whose consent the club could not have been transferred.

"Roy Mack called me to say goodbye after the club was transferred," related Shantz. "If you had been able to pitch, we'd still be in Philadelphia," he told me. Mr. Mack figured my injuries cost the club more than half a million in attendance and about that much in gate receipts. That would have been enough to keep the club going and there'd be no need to sell."

Shantz won 24 games and was voted the American League's Most Valuable Player before breaking his wrist in September 1952. The club attracted more than 827,000 spectators at home that year.

On days when he was scheduled to pitch, attendance at Connie Mack Stadium ranged between 20,000 and 30,000. On other days, attendance averaged 8,000. With Bobby sidelined by injuries, the club drew 362,000 in 1953 and 204,000 in '54.

On Nov. 8, 1954, the club was sold to Arnold Johnson, who transferred the franchise to Kansas City.

The injuries cost Shantz some money too, it was suggested to the now building 31-year-old native of Pettstown, Pa.

"I'll say it did," he said. "Between $30,000 and $40,000, I'd say. After winning only five games in '53, my salary was cut $8,000. It was cut again the following year. The endorsements fell off too."

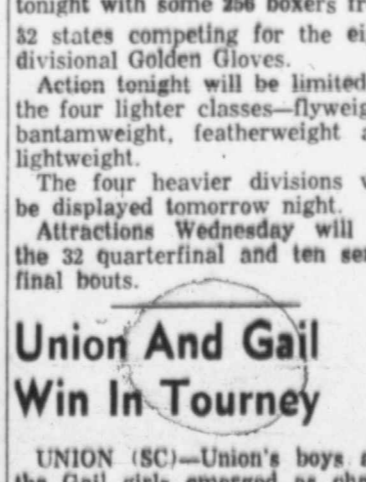

Shantz said he has worked out all winter in a Philadelphia gymnasium, along with Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons, Jack Meyer and Stan Lopata of the Philadelphia Phillies. He insists his arm is as sound as ever.

"I know I can help the Yankees. All I need is a chance to pitch," he said.

That would have been enough to keep the club going and there'd be no need to sell."

Shantz won 24 games and was voted the American League's Most Valuable Player before breaking his wrist in September 1952. The club attracted more than 827,000 spectators at home that year.

On days when he was scheduled to pitch, attendance at Connie Mack Stadium ranged between 20,000 and 30,000. On other days, attendance averaged 8,000. With Bobby sidelined by injuries, the club drew 362,000 in 1953 and 204,000 in '54.

On Nov. 8, 1954, the club was sold to Arnold Johnson, who transferred the franchise to Kansas City.

The injuries cost Shantz some money too, it was suggested to the now building 31-year-old native of Pettstown, Pa.

"I'll say it did," he said. "Between $30,000 and $40,000, I'd say. After winning only five games in '53, my salary was cut $8,000. It was cut again the following year. The endorsements fell off too."

Shantz said he has worked out all winter in a Philadelphia gymnasium, along with Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons, Jack Meyer and Stan Lopata of the Philadelphia Phillies. He insists his arm is as sound as ever.

"I know I can help the Yankees. All I need is a chance to pitch," he said.

Angelo Teen-Agers Picket 'Baby Doll'

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A group of placard-carrying teen-agers picketed a theatre here at the opening of the controversial movie "Baby Doll."
 Some carried signs reading "Save a Boy (and girls too)" and "Hollywood's contribution to Gainesville." Gainesville is the site of the Texas State School for Girls.
 Theater officials said the film played to an above normal crowd despite the picketing and the large number of letters protesting the film.

Traps for tanks—but not for truth

Freedom ends here—at the border of the Iron Curtain in a maze of barbed wire, mine fields, and the concrete "dragon's teeth" of anti-tank traps. Travel is virtually forbidden. Ike Warns Middle East Nations On Communism

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told the Middle East nations today the menace of international communism "could smash all their hard won accomplishments over night."
 In a world-wide radio broadcast marking the 15th anniversary of the Voice of America, Eisenhower noted that in the face of that menace, he has asked Congress to approve an anti-Communist program for the Mideast.
 "I believe that the well-being of the people of the Middle East requires the nations of that region to build up and strengthen their economies and institutions," the President said. "We want to see that kind of progress."
 The administration's Mideast program fits right in with that objective, he said, and continued: "In order that this constructive work may go on within these countries, they must be free of the menace of international communism, which could smash all their hard won accomplishments over night."
 "And so we give these countries the assurance that if such a danger develops, and if the United Nations machinery cannot deal with the danger, and a threatened country asks for our help, it can count on our help. So, behind the protective arm of this assurance, the real creative work of progress can go on, and, to speed this creative work, an extra measure of economic assistance for the area is included in my proposals."
 The administration program before Congress would provide for use of American troops in the Mideast, if necessary, and authorize 200 million dollars annually in financial aid.
 In his prepared text, the President made no specific mention of the current crisis precipitated by Israel's refusal to pull its forces out of territory claimed by Egypt.
 "But he appeared to have that situation in mind in saying that 'a principal source of order in the world... is the United Nations.' Israel has failed to comply with repeated U.N. demands that it withdraw its forces from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba.
 The President said that just as the United States supports "the vigorous independence of today's many separate nations, so too we support just as vigorously the practice of settling the inevitable disputes between these nations under the principles and procedures of the United Nations."
 "The history of the United States is that of a struggle for the right of self-determination and human dignity," he said. "Our story begins with a ringing declaration which has inspired millions of free people everywhere that 'all men... are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'"
 "But this same declaration also states that, along with this self-determination, we must show 'a decent respect to the opinions of mankind.'"

Lamesa Girl Scouts Plan Honors For Their Fathers

LAMESA — Preparatory to honoring Lamesa men in the Girl Scout movement during National Girl Scout Week March 10-16, balloting will get under way this week in the 25 troops here as the girls stage preliminary elections for "Mr. Girl Scout."
 In programs at the luncheon meetings of the various civic clubs during Girl Scout Week, a Girl Scout father selected by all the Girl Scouts in the city will be honored and invested as a Girl Scout by an investiture team which will include his own daughter. The men selected will not be announced until each is recognized in the special program at each club.
 The first man to be honored will be from the Evening Lions Club, and he will be invested at the meeting March 5. Candidates for "Mr. Girl Scout" from the club are Paul Oswalt, Hulon Henderson, Earl Henderson, J. B. Benson and Jack Mitchell.
 Only two men are candidates for Mr. Girl Scout in the Jaycees. They are Gene Pearson and Willie Akin. Their program is scheduled for March 13.
 Kiwanians whose names are listed on the ballot are Ralph Kinsey, W. B. Beeson, Vic Swygart, Lloyd Cline and Carroll Tune. The nominee selected by the Scouts will be honored at the luncheon March 12.

Patino Libel Suit Is Halted

LONDON (AP) — Jaime Ortiz-Patino's libel suit against the London Sunday Graphic came to an abrupt halt today. His beautiful, estranged American wife, who had been assisting the Graphic in its defense, changed her mind and refused to testify.
 Counsel for the newspaper said he could do nothing more than withdraw his defense that the Sunday Graphic's story about the Patino's turbulent marriage had been justified. He said he wished to make "a complete public apology."
 The attorney, A. P. Marshall, said the newspaper "now accepted completely the fact that the affections he had for his wife carried with them no abnormality or perversion of any kind."
 The case then went to the jury for decision. Gilbert Bayfus, counsel for the 26-year-old heir to a Bolivian tin fortune, insisted on "heavy damages." The exact amount is left to the discretion of the jury in British court procedure.
 The case, which opened last Monday, has made headlines in British newspapers with testimony of alleged sadism on the part of the young husband and alleged drug addiction by the wife.

Nobusuke Kishi Takes Over As Japanese Prime Minister

TOKYO (AP)—Nobusuke Kishi, a skillful politician who once scrubbed floors in U.S.-run Sugamo Prison, today became prime minister of Japan.

Kishi is a political conservative who is expected to make few changes in Japan's pro-Western policy. He has said Japan and the United States must always "go hand in hand" but that Japan also must do business with Red China.

The Diet (Parliament) elected Kishi overwhelmingly to the post he has long coveted, replacing Prime Minister Tanzan Ishibashi, who resigned because of ill health Saturday after only two months in office.

Kishi was Shibashi's foreign minister and had been "acting" temporary prime minister during the past month while Ishibashi was confined to his home with pneumonia and a weak heart.

The new Cabinet took office in ceremonies before Emperor Hirohito.

Kishi retained the foreign minister's portfolio and made only one change in Ishibashi's Cabinet—the addition of Mitsujiro Iishi, a senior member of the ruling Liberal-

Democratic party, as minister without portfolio.

Ishi's support brought about the unanimous recommendation of the party's executives that Kishi get the job. After that, Kishi's selection was automatic. The party holds 296 of the 467 seats in the dominant lower house. Kishi got 276 votes to 129 for Socialist Masaburo Suzuki in that body, and 147 votes to 50 in the upper house.

The new Prime Minister is 60, relatively young in high Japanese political circles. Ishibashi was 72 and his predecessor, Ichiro Hatoyama, 73, when they quit.

Kishi has been aiming toward the premiership primarily through behind-scenes work within the ruling party, rather than in the government. He helped unseat three former prime ministers—Hideki Tojo during World War II, Shigeru Yoshida in 1954 and Hatoyama last December. He lost to Ishibashi by only seven votes in the party's balloting for a successor to Hatoyama.

He served as commerce minister in Tojo's Cabinet but was fired after differing with the wartime dictator over war strategy. After the Japanese surrender, Kishi was jailed as a suspected war criminal but was free after three years without being charged.

Medic Describes Potential Danger

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Dr. Curtice Rosser of Dallas, Tex., says the forming of small pockets in the large bowel may cause little discomfort in most cases, but can be highly dangerous.

The disease, called diverticulosis, should be watched carefully by both patient and physician, Dr. Rosser said in a report prepared for the first working session today of the 10th Congress of the International College of Surgeons.

This disease of the small pouches, he said, is being recognized with increasing frequency and usually is found in adults.

LONGVIEW (AP)—M. L. Thornton will take office March 1 as executive director of the Texas Agricultural Lime Assn. Thornton, a longtime soil chemist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will have offices at Bryan.

Sec. Of Labor Urges Wider Minimum Wage

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration recommended today that about 2½ million employees, mainly store workers, be included under the $1-an-hour federal minimum wage law.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell presented the administration recommendations to a Senate Labor subcommittee.

Mitchell proposed in prepared testimony that the law be broadened to include employers doing at least one million dollars' worth of business a year and employing a minimum of 100 employees.

He did not propose any increase in the minimum, nor did he suggest that the additional workers to be covered should come under the law's provision for premium overtime pay.

The law now covers about 24 million workers. An additional 20 million workers not included are outside the present scope of the interstate commerce clause of the law.

He said some two million workers in large chain store organizations and "giant single-unit department stores and other large retail establishments" would be the main groups covered by his plan.

The administration proposal also would cover 65,000 employees of city transit systems, 15,000 telephone employees, 90,000 seamen, 50,000 employees of the nation's largest hotel systems, 30,000 employees of large taxicab companies and some 200,000 employees in about 100 construction enterprises.

While the minimum wage level has been increased, it has been many years since coverage of the law has been broadened. The AFL-CIO has urged that Congress extend the law to nearly 10 million of the 20 million workers now excluded.

The Fair Labor Standards Act provides generally that workers be paid a specified minimum wage, and that they be paid at time and a half for hours worked beyond 40 in a week.

A House committee is to start hearings March 1. With hearings starting early in both the Senate and House, some action on minimum wage extension is expected at this session.

The AFL-CIO has indicated that if coverage is extended this year it will press next year for a boost in the minimum to $1.25 per hour.

Bell Tolls But For Whom?

NIORT, France (AP)—After many months of bitter internal strife, the nearby village of St. Maxire today had a new bell.

But the mayor, a stubborn man, refused to witness its christening ceremony.

It all started when the old bell developed a crack and the priest asked the mayor to pay for repairs.

The mayor refused. Loyal parishioners chipped in. Soon there was enough to buy a new bell named by the parishioners Françoise Dominique.

The priest announced it would not ring for official ceremonies.

So the mayor, accompanied by the town crier and eight members of the Town Council, stormed the church and took the bell up in the town hall.

Angry members of the flock rallied behind the priest. Some of them wanted justice. To many others the toll of the angelus three times a day was the sole indication of time.

The mayor finally surrendered. Françoise Dominique. The christening ceremony was held without the mayor. Françoise Dominique peacefully tolled the angelus, but many parishioners feared that peace was not here to stay in St. Maxire.

4 More Bodies Found In Plane

SEOUL (AP)—Search crews today found four more bodies in the twisted wreckage of a U.S. Air Force Globemaster that crashed and burned Friday night on a Han River sandbar. This raised the list of known dead to 9, leaving 13 others still missing and presumed dead.

The big C124 transport was en route to Japan with 159 Americans aboard—10 Air Force crewmen, 147 Army men and 2 Army civilian employees. Most were on leave. Twenty-eight of the 137 survivors accounted for are still hospitalized, two of them in serious condition.

Uncle Ray:
More Craters Exist
On Moon's South Side

By RAMON COFFMAN
A youth named George Lott writes me that he owns a telescope of moderate size and takes a keen interest in studying the sky. He adds:

"It looks to me as if the moon was at one time a molten mass. Some parts of the surface look as if they had been hit by meteors."

For my part, I have had astonishing moments while looking at the moon through telescopes of various sizes. Even a high-powered instrument used in a university observatory gave me the impression, at first, that the moon looked like a peeled orange.

Closer study shows that the moon's surface has many holes in it. These have been described as craters, and the theory has been expressed that they are huge openings left by volcanoes.

Q. How many craters does the moon have?
A. On the side which is seen from the earth, 30 thousand craters.

Q. Are the craters spread evenly over the surface of the moon?
A. No. One of the puzzling facts about the moon is that the southern half of the side we see has three times as many craters as the northern half. Tomorrow I shall discuss a possible reason for this difference.
