Storm Leaves Areas In 5 States Paralyzed

The worst spring blizzard in 30 years continued to rage in the Midwest today, paralyzing transportation and crippling communications in many sections of eight states.

One major train, carrying 400 passengers, and an estimated 7,500 highway travelers were reported stranded but none were believed in danger.

Four deaths were attributed to the storm.

The train was the Union Pacific's City of St. Louis, westbound from St. Louis to Los Angeles. It was mired in drifts ranging up to 18 feet near Winona, Kan., about 50 miles from the Colorado line. Snowplows were expected to reach it about noon today.

Another train, the Rock Island's eastbound Golden State Limited, carrying 92 passengers, was reached by rescue parties early today and all aboard taken to Meade, Kan. The train had been snowbound by drifts up to 15 feet between Meade and Plains, Kan., since Sunday. Six coaches of the train were reported covered completely by snow.

The Weather Bureau at Kansas City reported the storm was causing high winds and heavy snows this morning in northern Missouri and southern Iowa as it moved toward Illinois and Indiana. Snow also was still falling in parts of Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska. Conditions had eased somewhat in Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

Forecasters for more heavy snow were in effect from northeastern Kansas and neighboring sections of Nebraska eastward into parts of lower Michigan and Indiana. Accumulations of from eight to 10 inches were predicted for parts of Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri with generally lesser amounts expected over affected portions of Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and lower Michigan. North central Indiana had freezing rain and snow.

The snow belt was fringed to the south by rain.

Despite the immediate hardships resulting from the three-day storm, farmers welcomed the moisture. In some areas it was sufficient to bring expressions of belief that the prolonged drought had been broken.

Temperatures were not severe—generally only a few degrees below freezing—thus minimizing changes that serious injury would be suffered by marooned travelers. Estimates of stranded motorists included 1,600 in New Mexico, 1,600 in Colorado, 1,200 in Kansas, 1,000 in Texas, and uncounted hundreds in Nebraska and Iowa.

Omaha was choked by 14 inches of snow and the fall continued this morning in the teeth of a 36-mile-an-hour wind. Lincoln, 60 miles southwest, had a similar situation. Schools in both cities were closed and some business houses failed to open.

There was 14 inches of snow in the Council Bluffs, Iowa, area, and more falling.

The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., reported the storm did more damage to its properties in Kansas than any previous blow. Construction crews from many parts of the Midwest converged on the battered state to restore communications and officials said damage would run over a million dollars. The entire state west and north of Hays was cut off from telephone service, as lines and poles snapped under the storm's impact.

Two storm-caused deaths were counted yesterday in Nebraska, one each in Texas and Kansas. Dozens of rescue stories poured in from the area as peace officers, highway crews, national guardsmen and private citizens combined their efforts.

North of Garden City, Kan., a dozen would-be rescuers managed to reach 35 stranded motorists, and they all had to sit out the storm together.

The National Guard at Garden City sent out a tank-like howitzer to help an expectant mother. The howitzer became lost. Another was sent after it and stalled. The woman reached the hospital via a huge road grader and a Sant Fe work train.

At Vega, Tex., the courthouse, school, Legion hall and homes were opened to more than 400 travelers from a dozen states.

Gov. Price Daniel of Texas ordered state agencies to give all the help possible to local communities.

In Kansas Gov. George Docking appealed to the Army for use of helicopters from Ft. Riley.

Ike, Macmillan Write Secret Policies On Key World Issues

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan today were reported to have spelled out secret policy directives on key world issues in Europe, the Middle East and Asia aimed at pinning down the revitalized British-American partnership.

After the windup of the Big Two's four-day meeting, informants said a number of solid written understandings lay hidden behind the generalities of their joint 800-word communique.

In their 11-point statement, Eisenhower and Macmillan yesterday announced the United States will supply "certain guided missiles" to help hard-up Britain streamline its defenses in the atomic age.

Macmillan told a news conference the talks had been a "great success" because "we've reached a number of conclusions on some large issues. We've tidied up a lot of points, and we've set in motion methods of better cooperation on questions still unresolved."

Informants said the Briton's guarded reference could be taken to mean:

1. Eisenhower and Macmillan signed understandings on ways of handling jointly certain international problems. These presumably include American readiness to give or lend-lease missiles to Britain, American willingness to join in easing Allied bars on nonstrategic trade with Red China and the formulation of an international convention to safeguard freedom of oil pipelines.
2. Also reported included are plans for joint action in case of any sudden worsening of the Middle East situation—for instance, if the wobbly state of Jordan collapses or if new fighting flares between Israel and the Arabs.

2. The two statesmen agreed to drop all thought of short-term pressures to force Egypt into a settlement of current Middle Eastern disputes. Simultaneously, they undertook to act independently outside the United Nations if long-term measures should be needed to isolate an uncooperative Egypt. And they cleared their ideas about promoting European unity and encouraging African political and economic development.

3. The two decided to order their governments to resume cooperation at all levels, to pool military and political information, and to dovetail diplomatic planning.

ELVIS PULLS TOY GUN ON MARINE DURING ALTERCATION

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A lanky young Marine says he doesn't plan to file a complaint with police because Elvis Presley pulled a "pistol" on him.

But Pvt. Hershel Nixon, 18, says he feels the rock 'n' roll singer owes him an apology.

Police said they won't take any action in the Friday night incident unless Nixon does file a formal complaint.

Presley said he whipped out the Hollywood prop pistol Friday night because Nixon tried to pick a fight while the singer was signing autographs for admirers on a midtown street.

Nixon said, "I didn't try to pick a fight and I wasn't drinking. I had no way of knowing the pistol was a toy."

The Marine, stationed at the Memphis Naval Air Station, said he left after Presley pulled the prop gun and said, "I'll blow your brains out, you punk."

Presley, 22, said the Marine accused him of bumping into his wife as she walked out of a restaurant about two months ago. "She told me all about it," he quoted the Marine as saying. "I want to get it straightened out right now."

Presley, who returned recently from Hollywood, said he edged away but the Marine followed.

"I told him I didn't know what he was talking about because I had been in Hollywood," Presley said. "Then I thought about that toy gun and I pulled it out. I said, 'You don't want to start trouble with me, do you?'"

"I was smiling when I took it out of my coat. Everybody else standing around there knew it wasn't real."

Rescue Parties Batter Panhandle Snowdrifts

1,000 Motorists Dug Out So Far

By The Associated Press

The Texas Panhandle's worst blizzard in years halted Monday but rescue parties still battered at massive snow drifts, seeking to reach stranded and ailing persons.

More than 1,000 motorists were rescued earlier and brought to safety in towns and cities, where they were housed in whatever space was available.

Much of the Panhandle still was paralyzed by drifts as high as 10 feet Monday morning.

At least two travelers froze to death in Texas. Another died in a car crash blamed on blinding snow, and a rescue worker died of a heart attack.

Neither of the frozen men were identified at once. One was found east of Amarillo on Highway 66. Another was found near Summerfield, in Castro County northwest of Plainview.

The Amarillo Globe-Times said stranded storm victims still were being dug out today as heavy road equipment blasted its way through 10-foot drifts.

Main highways may be cleared by nightfall, the Highway Department estimated.

The last known large group of distressed persons was brought into Canyon during the night after hours of extreme difficulties.

They were 14 passengers on a New Mexico Transportation Co. bus which was stranded between Canyon and Unger on Highway 60.

National Guard trucks were unable to reach the bus, and a rescue train was derailed. A railroad wrecker was sent from Amarillo, and a snow plow from Clovis, N.M., and the 14 were brought to Canyon on a railroad engine.

They were housed in the courthouse jury room and slept to a late hour Monday. All were adults and there was no illness.

Skies over most of the Panhandle were bright and clear today, and temperatures were easing above the freezing mark. In the South Plains, south of the hard-hit area, skies were cloudy, but no blizzard was expected there.

The Texas storm was part of a punishing spring blizzard that left the High Plains sections of five states snowbound. At least four deaths were attributed to the blizzard, two of them in Texas.

Hardest hit areas over the weekend were southwest Nebraska, eastern Colorado, western Kansas, the Panhandles of Oklahoma and Texas and the northeast tip of New Mexico.

80 M.P.H. WINDS

Winds reached 80 miles an hour over the High Plains at one time, and caused a "white out" like that in Antarctica with visibility zero.

At least two rescue operations were on in the Panhandle.

Rescuers worked all night seeking to reach Mrs. Ben. Wilson, who is ill in a farmhouse 20 miles southeast of Amarillo. The rescue party included three bulldozers, an armored truck, an ambulance and a sheriff's car. They had tried all day Sunday without success.

A helicopter was dispatched from Clovis, N.M., Air Force Base to Vega, Tex., to take a sick child to a hospital at Clarendon. The child, a traveler whose name was not learned, was suffering from exposure, dysentery and after effects of hunger.

Highway patrolmen Harley Capps and R. C. Parker and Bill Hunter of the Wichita Falls Times got through to the Andy Brown farm home near Jericho, east of Amarillo, where 96 persons spent the night. Hunter said all were in good shape. They were expected to be evacuated during the afternoon.

Mrs. Brown reported by telephone that the storm victims included passengers from two buses. They "all are doing just fine," she said Monday morning.

The 96 were out of cigarettes, coffee, bread and milk but had some lunch meat.

SLEPT IN BARN

Some of the men stayed overnight in the Brown's milk barn, which is heated, Brown said.

A National Guard truck out of McLean got through with some food last night but brought only one carton of cigarettes.

Ten or 12 of those at the farm home a mile from Jericho were children. Two had fever Sunday but were well today.

The group took up a collection of $168 for Mrs. Brown to show their gratitude.

At Vega, directly west of the Panhandle hub of Amarillo, the town of 700 had its population swelled by 600-700 stranded travelers.

Lynn Harwell, assisting the sheriff's office, said all the blizzard victims there were warm and no one was hungry, although, as he said, "they may not get exactly

Wind Damages Are Tabulated, City Plastered

Much of the High Plains country was covered with snow today but in Big Spring the covering was reddish dust blasted into the area by a roaring wind which was this section's share of a late March blizzard.

The storm rated as one of the worst weather spells of the past year.

Raging north winds, peaking at times at 60 miles per hour pushed mountains of loose dust, huge but ineffective clusters of snowflakes, a little fine rain and occasionally some sleet into Howard County. It was cold and only hardy souls went out into the storm.

Considerable damage was reported as a result of the storm.

Trees suffered heavily and many television antennas were down. Plate glass collapsed under impact of the wind and power lines are reported down in some sections of the city.

No estimate on dollar damage inflicted by the storm was available, but insurance men said that it would probably run into high figures.

Officially, it did not freeze.

Low temperatures on Sunday morning were 24 and Sunday night the mercury reached 33 degrees but did not fall into the icing category. However, there were reports of ice. Windscreens, some observers said, had thin skims of icy particles early Monday. Other residents said that shallow ponds and exposed water was congealed.

Fred Keating, U. S. Experiment Station, said that he would not say that fruit, shrubs and flowers had not been nibbled by the late and unseasonable cold. From a scientific standpoint there was no freeze, he pointed out; yet, there were the reports of ice.

"Whether any damage has been done by the cold to fruits and flowers, we will know by Tuesday," he said.

Meantime, shiny automobiles which were their owners' pride and joy last week presented a sorry sight Monday morning. They were coated in dust and the spattering snowflakes had transformed this dust into unsightly blobs of reddish mud.

Despite tightly locked windows and doors, the dust worked its way inside and left interiors of cars—and homes—heavily powdered.

Housewives sadly inspected their homes and furniture. What had happened to the interior of cars had happened to houses. Despite weather stripping, the dust had invaded the homes and layers of the snow-colored powder lined window sills, piled up along door openings and dulled the gleaming finish of furnishings and wood work.

Observers described the storm as the worst in many years and comparable with one which battered the town in April of 1938.

Stores were digging out Monday morning. Show windows were heavily plastered with dust and mud. Sidewalks were deep in dirt. Return of the wind in what appeared to be increasing tempo at 10 a.m. discouraged some of the efforts at restoration of order.

Officially, the storm added a meager .04 inch moisture to the accumulated dampness of the month. This brings the year's grand total to 1.89 and the month's total to .40.

No complete report of all of the physical damage inflicted by the wind was available. The Tip Top Drive-In at the south edge of the city lost its car awning when two-inch pipe gave way under the blast and caused the collapse of a 4-inch supporting pipe. The Arnold Garage reported a front glass blown out as was the situation at the Nabors TV shop on Gregg.

There were trees down in the 400 block on West 4th and others in the section of Second and San Jacinto. Wires were down in the 300 block on East 6th; in the 1900 block on Scurry, 700 block on West 4th and in the 500 block on Gregg.

Webb Air Force Base measured the wind at 52 knots at certain

Legislature Halts To Pay Tribute To Dead Colleague

AUSTIN (AP)—The Senate joined the House today in shunting aside legislative business to pay final tribute to Rep. Charlie Heitman, who died unexpectedly Saturday of a heart attack.

Heitman, 55, from the 6th District comprising Nacogdoches, Sabine and San Augustine counties, collapsed at his desk in the House chamber and died 15 minutes later.

Gov. Price Daniel paid tribute to the popular lawmaker from East Texas as "one of the most able and conscientious members of the House."

Heitman was clearing his desk of accumulated work—as many members do during the weekend recess—when he was stricken.

Special buses were chartered to carry members to Nacogdoches, where services were scheduled for 4 p.m. under the direction of the Rev. William Cook, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Heitman and his wife operated a woman's clothing store. He had been in the auto business many years.

His widow and their son, Charles, 8, survive.

House committees which had scheduled numerous top bracket bills for public hearing this afternoon and tonight, called off their meetings to permit members to attend the funeral.

Daniel scheduled a statewide television speech tonight on progress of the Legislature.

Good Receives Regional Award

Grover C. Good, who probably has devoted more time to the affairs of the Young Man's Christian Association than any other individual in this region, has been awarded the Southwest Area Council Distinguished Service Award.

The presentation was made during the weekend at the annual council meeting held in the Bucaneer Hotel in Galveston, and the top honor of the council caught him completely by surprise.

Mr. Good had made the trip to the meeting, in company with Arnold Marshall, member of the area board, Clyde McMahon, a past president of the local association, Mrs. Lee Rogers, and Bobo Hardy, general secretary.

After completing studies at the University of Texas, Mr. Good taught school for a short time until he decided to enter YMCA work professionally. He served at San Antonio, El Paso and Berkeley, Calif., and at the time of the formation of the Southwest Area Council in 1935 he had been state secretary for about 10 years. For the next decade he continued this work, specializing in the older boys program and also serving as associate secretary of the council.

Then he went back to El Paso and from there to Houston where he spent four years before reaching retirement age. But that didn't mean retirement, for Big Spring drafted him into service and for the next five years he worked with

When he "retired" a second time at the end of 1955, he and Mrs. Good were given the highest honors of this association. Recently, he accepted a position as representative of the TCU expansion fund. Mrs. Good passed away last year. He has one daughter, Mrs. Aileen Bean, El Paso.

Three Hurt When Drilling Rig Falls

A Snyder man and his two sons miraculously escaped death Sunday when high winds toppled a drilling rig four miles southeast of Coahoma.

The blast that felled the rig also swept the "doghouse," in which the three were sheltered, out of the path of the falling tower.

Alfred Morris suffered a fractured arm. His sons, Ronnie, 11, and Alfred Leon, 4, received severe lacerations. Ronnie also has possible skull injuries, but none of the trio was considered in a serious condition today. They are receiving treatment at Cowper Hospital.

Morris, a watchman, had taken his sons to stay with him at the rig after it ceased operations Saturday. They were in the doghouse when a strong gust of wind pushed the small shelter to one side and up-ended the drilling rig.

The machinery smashed Morris' car as it crashed to the ground. The doghouse also was badly damaged, and observers said "only a miracle" saved the lives of Morris and the youngsters.

Thousands of pounds of drill pipe were stacked in the rig. No estimate had been made today of extent of damages, but virtually all of the equipment was ruined.

The rig is owned by the O. F. Leonard Drilling Company of Fort Worth, and the drilling site is the Leonard No. 8 O'Daniel, four miles southeast of Coahoma.

Faith, Hope Called Big Medical Aids

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE AP Science Reporter. ST. LOUIS (AP)—Faith, hope and medicine make a wonder formula for many seemingly hopeless cripples, a physician declared today. It often brings back crippled limbs whose muscles have wasted from disease or accidents, said Dr. George J. Boines of Wilmington, Del. The patient's faith and hope are vital ingredients, he said. The medicine takes many forms, including special exercises and physical therapy to regain control of useless limbs. Dr. Boines described methods and results in an exhibit at the opening of the ninth annual Scientific Assembly of the American Academy of General Practice, the organization of family doctors. Muscle failure caused by polio, cerebral palsy, injury, multiple sclerosis and other conditions can and should be treated energetically, he said. And such crippling "should never be regarded as incurable." A first step is to correct any coexisting problems such as anemia, dietary faults, diabetes and anxiety. Then comes physical therapy and exercise, often with the aid of braces and crutches. All the time, the patient is making a determined effort to help himself. Dr. Boines cited some examples: A 25-year-old woman was regarded as incurable, with no hope of ever walking, after a brain injury in 1954. Today she walks with canes and a foot brace, is earning a living by teaching school. A girl of 18, crippled by polio as a baby, couldn't walk because of a deformed left knee and leg. A year later she was walking with a foot brace, afterward discarded it. She's now a school teacher.

Beck To Show Up For Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—An attorney for Dave Beck said today the Teamsters Union president will "without question or qualification" show up for a hearing tomorrow by investigating senators who have a $270,000 question to throw at him. Beck's attorney, former Sen. James H. Duff, told newsmen: "Any report that he is not coming is just plain bunk." The senators want to ask Beck about his turning over $270,000 to the union, which recorded it as repayment of loans, when so far the senators have been able to determine there was no record of the money having been lent to Beck.

WIND

(Continued from Page 1) There were numerous reports of Saturday night revelers and motorists seeking shelter pending Sunday in night clubs in the vicinity of Amarillo. The biggest storm refuge center, however, was at Vega where travelers from several dozen states helped to town's folk cook meals in the school cafeteria and swapped experiences about the storm. There was admission of the magnitude of Texas snowstorms. "This is the worst blizzard I have ever been in and I have seen a lot of them in Iowa," Morris Dunkelberger of Armstrong, Iowa, said.

Women Military Chiefs WAVEs' Director Is Ex - Newspaperwoman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fourth director of the WAVEs, 46-year-old Capt. Louise K. Wilde, is a former newspaperwoman who served as publicity director of Mt. Holyoke College.

Before joining the Navy in 1942, she had been assistant to the president and also freshman dean at Rockford College, Ill.

A native of Concord, N. H., she helped shape the legislation that made the WAVEs a permanent part of the Navy and "got so interested in its possibility as a career field that I sold myself on it."

She specialized in public relations in the WAVEs and was sent to Hawaii in 1945 as district director for the 4,000 WAVEs on duty in the 14th Naval District. She served also as assistant to the three previous WAVE directors in Washington.

She received the Bronze Star for her work on demobilization duty at Pearl Harbor after the war, and also the Secretary of the Navy's Commendation Ribbon for her wartime work as coordinator of public relations under the first WAVEs director, Capt. Mildred McAfee Horton, during a period when WAVE strength was built to 86,000.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY Stress Individuality With Your Own Color

By LYDIA LANE
PALM SPRINGS — Lily Pons, the first glamorous opera star, proved it was possible for a prima donna to have both a good voice and a good figure.

"I have shown them that it is not necessary for a young operatic star to be over-weight," Miss Pons told me when I visited her in her attractive Palm Springs retreat.

"You sing with muscle, not fat," she insisted. "I have seen many big women with small voices."

Her beautiful eyes twinkled. "The new stars in the Metropolitan are dieting — only the old ones are fat. A voice is not enough today; when people go to the theater they expect glamour."

Miss Pons said, "I have always felt that an attractive appearance was something you owed those around you and this obligation is even greater when you are in the public eye."

Miss Pons is proud of her American citizenship but she is as French as the Marseillaise. Since her name has appeared on numerous lists of the world's best-dressed women, I asked her about fashion.

"What do you consider the most striking difference between a well-dressed girl here and in France?" I wanted to know.

"Individuality," Miss Pons said quickly, with her cute French accent. "I don't like to run the chance of seeing someone in a dress like I'm wearing. This lack of individuality does not seem to bother those who are born in America. I have my clothes made with a suggestion from me as to color. I like all shades of tobacco but orange is my color. Color gives you vibrations," she asserted. The room we were sitting in was black, white and orange.

"There are many shades of orange and I feel happy around all of them," she confessed. "I was born in Cannes and orange is the color of the Mediterranean. And there in the sea towns they have their own dyes and you see this distinct shade in the awnings and the tile roofs."

"Part of feeling well-dressed," Miss Pons continued, "is finding YOUR color. I follow simplicity in choosing my wardrobe, whether it is a tailored suit, coat or an evening dress. I am petite and can wear fussy clothes but I don't think overdressing is attractive on anyone. It is understatement." She lapsed into French, first asking if I could understand it.

"I have beautiful jewelry but with formal clothes I wear a handsome necklace and one ring, or two clips and a beautiful bracelet, never more."

Miss Pons mentioned how important posture is to looking well in your clothes.

"I am a little over five feet but I am tall. I look taller. I give two or three inches to my appearance by always standing erectly. I stand and sit very straight. It is habit with me. I am not comfortable all slumped over," she said and crumpled down on the sofa to illustrate her point. "Correcting your posture is a matter of discipline," she explained.

"An opera star must have plenty of that," I commented.

"Do you have to diet to keep your beautiful figure?" I asked.

"No," Miss Pons confided. "I am too active. I work too hard. Even here in Palm Springs, in my months of rest, I am preparing my roles and I swim and ride horses in the desert."

"Is that how you stay so young?" I asked.

"You must recognize the limits of the body and you must have a firm mind to discriminate," she explained. "If I diet I give my body what it needs but a little less. I do not believe in extreme privations."

"The tempo in this country is killing and you must build a defense against it," she said. "I never heard that word in France," she told me. "Staying young is in the spirit, a reflection of the mind, your interests. We came to this earth for a purpose and accomplishments keep us happy and young."

Smart Girls Knit Own High-Styled Sweaters

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor
Knitting needles are in fashion this spring, as women of all ages in all sections of the country discover new high-style designs for knitting.

The vogue for bulky knits has revived interest in this oldest of the needlework skills, since heavy yarns and big needles make it possible to turn out fashionable sweaters, capes and other knit fashions in jig time.

The knit-and-purl brigade is producing all kinds of handsome knitted garments nowadays, ranging from simple stoles to ambitious suits and dresses. Short bulky capes are in high favor, for wear over practically any summer costume, and casual box jackets are running a close second.

With current attention centered on fashions of the 1930's, the hip-length jerkin is back in style, and some of the most effective are turned out by the girls who attend to their knitting. These straight, casual, sleeveless sweaters may be worn with skirts or shorts, are simple to make and fun to wear. One effective pattern uses contrasting stripes of navy and white for a straight, loose jerkin which buttons down the sides and has a dashing nautical air. It is simple for even the amateur knitter, since it is made in a straight piece with an opening for the head — no complicated sleeves or curves.

It may be made in any color combination, but navy, red or black with white are the favorites. Alternating broad and narrow stripes lend added distinction.

Attending from Big Spring were Mrs. Ruby Martin, Mrs. W. E. Moren, Mrs. A. C. Bass, Mrs. C. W. Farmer, Mrs. Bill Estes, Mrs. Albert McGuffey, Mrs. H. F. Hodges, Mrs. John L. Appleton, Irene Koonz, Mrs. Ruby Rowe, and Mrs. Lina Fiewellen.

Methodists Attend Meet In Snyder
Big Spring Methodists were represented at the Annual Northwest Texas Methodist Conference Wesleyan Service Guild meeting held Saturday and Sunday, March 23-24. Theme for the meeting was "The Spirit of Christ For All of Life." Featured speaker was Mary Lou Santillan of Holding Institute, Laredo.

New Fabrics Miraculous— But Need Special Care

By EDWARD S. KITCH
CHICAGO — Those miracle fabrics should be handled with care. A manufacturer says cold water washing and moderate drying heat are necessary to prevent permanent damage.

A panel studying the handling of garments made of man-made fibers has found the most favorable temperature for washing synthetics was 60 degrees, although some can withstand 100 to 120-degree water.

A report submitted by Dr. R. W. Peterson at a meeting of the Textile Research Institute points out that the most harmful variable is spinning the fabrics while they are warm or hot in a drier.

According to the research team, heat activates the fiber molecules and places them in a mobile state. If the fibers are compressed by rapid spinning while warm, the fabric forms deep creases, which become set in the fabric upon cooling.

The recommended drier temperature is about 170 degrees. Light loads require a buffer material such as a towel.

Over the past 10 years, increased production of older man-made fibers and a newer series of synthetics have won a lion's share of the textile market.

U. S. Department of Commerce reports show that the world output of man-made fibers has grown to five billion pounds a year.

KINDS OF FIBERS
The department also has classified man-made fibers according to their basic raw material. They are:

- 1. Cellulosic fibers made from wood pulp and cotton linters (rayon and acetate).
- 2. Protein fibers made from corn, peanuts and milk (zein and casein fibers such as Vicara).
- 3. Mineral fibers made from sand and limestone and soda ash

Traditional Decor Takes On New Look

The newest trend in home furnishings goes back to old favorites with modern improvements.

In recent furniture showings, the most notable change has been the return to traditional designs re-produced with a contemporary touch. A grandfather clock gets modern treatment with plastic material, streamlined design and new electric works. An old-fashioned breakfast china cabinet is done in handsome natural mahogany, with doors and drawers working with modern mechanical perfection.

The round dining room table of etched-inlaid wood with a 1/2 grandfather's day stages a comeback, but with formica top and streamlined base.

There are rocking chairs brought up to date with foam rubber upholstery and easy-to-clean plastic upholstery.

So today's designers use what is best and most beautiful from the past, and give it the convenience and smoothness of the present.

Pre-Shower Gift Hints

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Today's bride-to-be doesn't hesitate to say what she'd like from the girls who plan her showers. The tactful way is to make up a list of needed things and give it to the girl who is planning the shower when she asks for it (and she will if she is a good friend.)

Then the word should get around. Popular showers are: metals, appliances, linens, china, "Personal" and "miscellaneous" showers have died off, the average girl being more practical these days than in the last generation; she wants things she needs and can use.

If the shower is to be a surprise, the girl's mother or best friend are expected to "tip off" the crowd what the couple's requirements are.

Choose a fun motif for the party. You don't have to limit it to the large umbrella; that's been overdone. A North Pole party could be fun anytime of the year. Serve "blubber" sandwiches — hot dogs with cheese sauce; "penguin punch" — cola with toasted marshmallows.

Snowballs may be made in advance, kept in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator. Just roll ice-cream balls in coconut and wrap in wax paper, remove a half-hour before serving.

Use a flameproof snowflake crepe paper in a midnight blue color as a runner across the buffet table. Place an icicle design crepe paper around the edge of the table. Place gifts attractively under the table or at one corner of the table.

The new idea is to give one gift from the entire group. Silver vegetable dish, tea or coffee service, coordinated table linens and china are likely candidates.

Stainless steel service is popular with young couples who may like to start it off at the dining table until the silver comes along, moving it into the kitchen later. One stainless steel picnic chest has the added advantage of a removable lid that serves as a cutting board and well-and-tree platter. It may serve indoors or outdoors.

One young couple who adore the outdoors and who have everything set for the home, selected the "outdoors" category for the bride's fourth shower.

This bridal shower idea works best for the couple planning to live in a house with a backyard where they can dine out, however. Their gifts included a barbecue grill, ice cooler, gay tablecloths, melamine and stainless steel tableware, wooden salad bowl, barbecue implements, steak tongs, chef's aprons, caps and gloves, and a handsome supply of charcoal.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Look for Bob Vanatta, coach of the Memphis State quintet that lost to Bradley by one point in the finals of the National Invitational basketball tournament last weekend, to wind up at the helm of the LSU Tigers.

East Texas State college at Commerce will lean heavily upon the quarterbacking wizardry of a Coahoma boy, Wayne (Skeet) Williams in football next fall.

Williams, who went from Coahoma to stardom at San Angelo College, was one of the standouts of the Lions' spring drills, which were completed only recently.

He had a big hand in the Whites' 29-0 win over the Blues in the final spring game. Although his forte is passing, Williams can also lug the mail with authority.

Skeet set up one score for the Whites by tossing to Dee Mackey, carried the ball to the eight and finally passed to Mackey for the final three paces.

Later, he flipped another aerial to Norman Roberts that set up the Whites' second touchdown. Roberts, a junior college All-American while at San Angelo College, moved the ball 47 yards to the ten, from which point the Whites went on to score.

Skeet himself booted the ball that gave the Whites their 20th point. In the Coahoma youngster completed four of five passes for 69 yards and one touchdown.

Skeet is the young man largely responsible for getting Roberts, a great defensive player, to transfer from Tulsa to East Texas to complete his schooling.

He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Williams of Coahoma.

Jess Mortensen, head track and field coach at Southern California, has written George McAllister, director of the 1957-ABC Relays, expressing his appreciation for the manner in which his Trojans were received here.

Chances are good the Big Spring Steers will scrimmage Pecos when they begin football workouts here next month.

The Eagles, of course, will be working out at the same time and the Pecos coach has contacted Al Milch, the local mentor, asking for the scrimmage.

The Baseball Players' Pension Fund will receive $1,960,000 or 60 per cent of the $3,250,000 that the Gillette people are paying for the radio-TV rights to the World Series for the next five years.

Vance Kimble, who operates a miniature golf course here, says close to 11,000 people played his course last season.

The 10,000th customer made the rounds three months and one day after he opened.

Kimble is planning for a bigger and better season this year. He's added concrete walks, grass and more lights.

NEXT WEEKEND

Two Track Meets Scheduled Here

Two track and field meets involving high school teams will be staged on the cinders of Memorial Stadium here this week.

District 19-B—composed of Forsan, Sterling City, Garden City and Knott—will stage its annual meet on Friday while teams from 8-B will gather there Saturday for their annual meet.

Qualifiers from both meets become eligible to take part in the Regional at Odessa next month.

Forsan is favored to retain championship honors in the Friday carnival. Ackerly will be among the outstanding teams in the Saturday show.

Frank Honeycutt's Forsan team will depend heavily upon such boys as Pat (Reilly) and Ed (Lyon) the most versatile athletes ever to represent the South Howard county school; Edell Ratliff and Leon Calley.

Brunton will run the 100, the 440 and on the mile relay team. Ratliff is a half-miler and will compete on both relay teams. Calley, a sophomore, has thrown the shot put 42 feet 6 inches and the discus 128 feet.

Coach Honeycutt said this morning he planned to bring about 16 athletes to the meet.

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone, who for some time had been trying to arrange a visit to this golfing center, "so I could say I have played at Pinehurst" has made her trip here a memorable one.

The 33-year-old Mason City, Iowa, housewife, 22-year-old Barbara McIntire of Toledo, Ohio, today in the all Midwest 18-hole finals of the 55th North and South Women's Amateur Golf Tournament over the women's par 74, 6,000-yard No. 2 course.

Mrs. Johnstone won her semifinal match yesterday from Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio, 1-up. Miss McIntire rallied to beat Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, 2 and 1, after losing two of the first four holes.

Hearn And Jeffcoat Take Their Lumps

By ED CORRIGAN

While it's too early to count them out of the picture entirely, indications today were that veteran pitcher Jim Hearn of the Philadelphia Phillies and Hal Jeffcoat of the Cincinnati Redlegs are having trouble getting their arms in condition.

Hearn, 33, has been kicking around the big leagues for a long time. Jeffcoat is 32. When pitchers reach their ages, managers want them to produce or begin looking around for youngsters to fill the gap.

Both were assigned starting roles in exhibition games yesterday, and neither came through. Hearn was clubbed for five runs by the Pittsburgh Pirates before he was taken out in the sixth inning at Fort Myers, Fla. Bob Miller, his relief, didn't allow a hit the rest of the way and the Pirates won the game 5-3.

Jeffcoat's ineffectiveness against the Chicago White Sox in Tampa, Fla., was even more pronounced. The Pale Hose slashed 11 hits off Jeffcoat on route to an 8-1 victory. The Cleveland Indians finally appeared to have snapped out of a slump that was beginning to worry rookie Manager Kerby Farrell.

After losing five games in a row, the Tribe whipped the New York Giants 4-3 in Los Angeles with ace Herb Score yielding just two hits in five innings.

The Yanks crashed out 16 hits against four Brooklyn pitchers and coasted to a 14-4 victory. Yogi Berra had four hits and sent home five runs.

Tom Morgan and Tom Gorman, a couple of Yank castoffs, combined to whitewash the Washington Senators, 4-0, for the Kansas City A's at West Palm Beach, Fla. They held the Nats to one hit in five innings.

A single by Eddie Yost off Morgan.

Sam Jones, Willard Schmidt and

Hoyt Wilhelm hung up the Milwaukee Braves for the Cardinals 1-0 at St. Petersburg. Jones went the first seven innings, the longest stretch of the spring for a St. Louis pitcher.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs capitalized on three errors to turn back the Baltimore Orioles 8-2 at Fort Myers, Fla.; the Boston Red Sox turned back the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League in San Francisco, 5-4, and the Detroit Tigers humbled the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League 13-3 in Lakeland, Fla.

Big Day

L.L. Bruce Sweeney (above), who says he's been a little slow rounding into shape, scored 18 points for Webb AFB in a dual meet with Sheppard AFB in Wichita Falls last weekend. The Lewiston, Idaho, star won first places in both hurdle races and the high jump and placed second in the broad jump.

East Favored In Cage Test

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The East, coached by Frank McGuire of North Carolina's new NCAA champions and boasting a galaxy of great scorers, is favored to win the 6th annual East-West all-star basketball game in Municipal Auditorium tonight.

McGuire's squad will include such cage hands as his own All America Lennie Rosenbluth; Grady Wallace of South Carolina, who topped the nation's scorers with 806 points in regular season play; big Charley Tyra of Louisville, 707, who scored 555 points; Jim Ashmont of Mississippi State, 708, and Joe Gibbons of Mississippi, 631.

Rosenbluth scored 791 points in the Tar Heels' season of 32 straight wins.

The West, coached by Bill Strannigan of Iowa State, has won four of the five games played for benefit of the Shriner's hospitals for crippled children. For the first time the West is the underdog.

Strannigan is expected to count heavily on the generalship of 5-foot 10-inch All-America Gary Thompson, who led Iowa State into third place in the Big Seven Conference race.

Jim Krebs, Southern Methodist's 6-8 great, Larry Friend of California, Gene Elstun of Kansas and Calvin Grosscup of Tulane also figure prominently in the West squad.

The game starts at 10 o'clock, EST.

Harris Family Is Big Skeet Winner

HOUSTON (AP)—Three members of a Galveston family walked off with six major championships and a number of other titles yesterday in the Houston Open Skeet Tournament.

Titus Harris Jr., the 1956 national open skeet champion, finished with the high over-all championship with 485 out of 500 targets. His mark included a perfect 200 straight for the all-bore championship.

Young Herb Plews just started clicking as a second baseman when he was hurt last July. The boy will live up to his potential this summer.

Steers And Snyder Try Again Today

The Big Spring High School Steers get back to their chores today, after being forced into idleness Saturday by the weather.

The Longhorns take on the Snyder Tigers in a 4:15 p. m. engagement here. Originally, the clubs were to have played a double header but chances are Snyder will return here later in the season for the second game.

Roy Baird's team faces a busy week. They host Andrews tomorrow at 4 p. m. and visit Snyder for two games on Saturday.

Big Spring will be seeking its third straight win today. The locals have knocked off Plainview and Durrell, Canadian 178-pound champion, at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

The husky, hard-hitting 24-year-old Brooklynite, has won six straight for an 18-2 record, including 10 knockouts. His only losses were to Rory Calhoun, 160-pound contender, when Angy was a middleweight.

A victory over Durrell, 27, could move DeFendis close to the top ten in the weight light heavyweight class. Durrell, who lost twice to Floyd Patterson, won heavyweight king, has a 36-15-2 record, including 15 kayos.

The meet in a television, DuMont 10:30 p. m., EST, 10-rounder. Veteran middleweight contender Joey Giardello of Philadelphia is a 13-8 choice to rack up his eighth straight victory. Wednesday night at the expense of Californian Willie Vaughn in their radio-television, ABC, 10 p. m., EST, 10-rounder at Kansas City Auditorium. Giardello's record is 67-18-5, Vaughn's 22-18-2.

Rats "Tiger" Jones, Yonkers, N. Y., middleweight contender, faces Arthur King, Toronto veteran, at Toronto tonight. Bantamweight contender Billy Peacock, Los Angeles, opposes Kid Anahuac, Mexico, at Hollywood, Tuesday night.

Bradley Should Be Among Top Clubs Next Season

Cable to bring the Braves their first NIT title. Between them they scored 87 points, Mason with 22, McMillon 18 and Cable 17.

With the score tied at 77-77, Dick Dhabalt got four of his eight points. Then with a set shot and two free throws he made it 81-77 and set the stage for the closing fireworks.

Little 5-9 Jack Butcher, "the giant killer" for Memphis State, almost stole the game for the Tennessee underdogs at this point. He sank a jump shot and followed with a pass to Ron Ragan for a layoff that tied the score. With 65 seconds left he dribbled in for the basket that apparently won the game.

But midnight struck for the valiant Memphis Cinderellas when McMillon came up with his basket and free throw and Bob Swander missed a jump shot in the last five seconds.

Win Wilfong, who scored 31 points for Memphis State, was named the tourney's most valuable player.

Mason, a skinny sophomore who figures to be even better next season, teamed with McMillon and

Defendis Is 12-5 Choice

Angelo DeFendis, one of rising stars of the light heavyweight division, is a 12-5 favorite to defeat Yvon Durrell, Canadian 178-pound champion, at New York's St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

The husky, hard-hitting 24-year-old Brooklynite, has won six straight for an 18-2 record, including 10 knockouts. His only losses were to Rory Calhoun, 160-pound contender, when Angy was a middleweight.

Yankee Star May Be Back In 5 Days Or So: Doctor

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' triple-crown winner, had just about recovered from a badly bruised left thumb when he was struck down again by another of a series of injuries that have plagued him over the years.

While working out in the outfield before yesterday's game with the Dodgers in Miami, Mantle ran into a hole in the turf and suffered a severely strained ligament.

"These things usually heal quickly," said Dr. Sydney Gaynor the Yanks' team physician, who rushed Mantle to a local hospital

Tar Heel Quint Fulfilled Role As Top Troupe

By SKIPPER PATRICK

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The North Carolina Tar Heels defied the percentages and odds to win their first NCAA basketball championship by beating the Kansas Jayhawks 84-83 in a triple-overtime Saturday night.

Playing before a jam-packed crowd of 10,500, most of them pro-Kansas, Coach Frank McGuire's Tar Heels stretched their one-season all-victory record to 32 games, night earlier they had gone three extra five-minute sessions in beating Michigan State 74-70 in the semi-finals.

The final game of the NCAA's 19th tournament was a championship test between teams rated No. 1 and No. 2 in the Associated Press poll of sportswriters and sportscasters. And it finished according to the script.

A brief scuffle in the second overtime involving two or three players and both coaches enlivened the proceeding.

The title was decided with six seconds remaining in the third overtime when Joe Quigg, a 6-9 junior from Brooklyn, N.Y., made two free throws. Kansas had the last shot, but Quigg blocked that one to insure the Tar Heel victory.

North Carolina played the three overtimes without the services of All America Lennie Rosenbluth, who fouled out with 1:45 remaining in regulation time. His team trailed then by one point, 43-44.

It was tied 46-46 after the first 40 minutes, 48-48 after the first overtime and again 48-48 after the second extra session.

Wilt Chamberlain, Kansas All America who was voted the most valuable player of the tournament was the games' leading scorer with 23 points. Rosenbluth had 20.

The San Francisco Dons, champions the last two years, defeated Michigan State 67-60 for third place.

TCU, Bears And Steers Lead

By The Associated Press

Six games this week send the Southwest Conference baseball race into the heart of the schedule.

TCU, Baylor and Texas lead the race after one week's play. They'll meet the second division clubs in this week's round.

TCU beat SMU 8-0 last week in the most important game since it matched the Christians, defending champions, with the team that was expected to be the strongest contender.

Texas swiped Texas A&M 8-4 and Baylor skunked Rice 3-0. Friday and Saturday SMU and Texas play at Austin, Texas A&M and Baylor tangle at Waco and Rice and TCU get together at Houston.

TCU won two games from Texas Tech last week to take over the lead in season's play, displacing SMU. The Christians now have a 6-3 record.

Texas Team Is In 2nd Place

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Most of the excitement in the American Bowling Congress tournament was confined to the booster team division yesterday.

Two Fort Worth teams, the Coin-O-Novelly team and J. G. Garvel moved into second and fourth place, respectively.

Coin-O-Novelly posted scores of 893, 914 and 934 for a 2,746 aggregate. Its total was the highest booster team game posted in the first 16 days of the 51-day tournament.

The Peter Hand Reserve Beer team of Chicago, which went to the top of the open team heap last week with 3,126, was not seriously challenged tonight. The Bill Zee Fixture team of Albuquerque, N.M., mustered the best threat, 2,880.

Dayle Porter of St. Louis today rolled a 277 in the singles, the best game recorded in that division. Porter slipped to 148 in his second game and finished with 182 for a 607 series. Porter, 48, has ten years of ABC experience.

'NATURAL THING' It's No Trouble To Be Courteous

Mrs. Maudie Lumpkin wasn't getting much work done at her post in Swartz department store this morning.

Most of her time was absorbed answering the telephone and in receiving congratulations from friends who braved the brisk north wind to come to the store to see her.

Mrs. Lumpkin was one of two store employes chosen out of many score nominated for the honor as Big Spring's most courteous salesperson.

She was enjoying the experience but at the same time she confessed that she was just a little embarrassed by all of the attention that the honor was creating.

"I am happy that I was selected, naturally," she said. "What makes me the happiest is that it shows I have friends. And I just don't know what life would be worth if it wasn't for friends."

She said that no one in Big Spring could have been more surprised than she was at her selection.

"I've been ill with the mumps," she said. "I was sick most of the time all of the excitement about this selection of the most courteous person was under way. As a result I was a little out of touch with the matter."

"Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, my phone rang.

L. E. (LONNIE) TAYLOR
... most courteous man employe.

'DOING IT RIGHT' Courtesy Just 'A Part Of Job'

"Being courteous to customers is just a part of my job," commented Lonnie Taylor, a Piggy Wiggly employe.

Taylor, voted Big Spring's most courteous male employe, said today that he felt that his being courteous was nothing more than he was supposed to do.

At Piggy Wiggly, Taylor is a stocker and has been employed there for five years. He has been a resident of Big Spring since 1941. Taylor, 35, resides at 1204 E. 15th. Before joining Piggy Wiggly, he was employed in the baking industry for 35 years.

Taylor said he was instructed when young to do every job right, and he said that being courteous was included in "doing it right."

"I owe it to the company to treat customers courteously, because the company will profit by it," he said.

Courtesy extends from the youngest to the oldest, Taylor added. "The youngsters deserve attention and courtesy just as much as their parents, and they are friendlier in return more often than their parents."

In sacking groceries, Taylor said he tried to take the time needed to do a good job rather than throwing the articles in the sacks hurriedly. "As expensive as groceries are anyway, people do not like to get home and find their tomatoes smashed under a pile of canned goods."

"The same is true with frozen foods. By placing all the frozen goods in the same sack, customers can transfer them all to freezing unit quickly rather than having to dig through three or four sacks hunting for them," he added.

Civilian Manpower Cut Of 65 Is Ordered For Webb AFB

Webb Air Force Base personnel officials have been directed by higher headquarters to reduce base civilian manpower by 65. This is necessary to meet proposed manpower ceilings.

As reported in the March 9 issue of Air Force Times, the strength cuts will reduce total Air Force civilian rolls by over 10,000 by June, 1958. Peak civilian strength last October was 354,000. With the new cuts, it will trim to about 345,000 by this June. Thereafter, the limits will depend on a number of factors, including budget limitations, but the planned strength for June 1958 is about 341,000.

Webb Air Force Base refused to disclose the number of civilians employed at the base at present, but at the beginning of the year the civilian employees numbered 732.

Officials emphasized that this cut is not dictated by fund limitations, but is an adjustment based upon new personnel requirements.

The Air Force has directed that so far as possible the reduction be made by simply not filling spaces left by employes who retire, quit, or leave for other reasons. When attrition does not suffice, some forced reductions will be made.

Officials could not say what types of employes would be removed in the cutback. However, when attrition does not meet the ordered reduction, the usual procedure is to reduce in the least critical skilled positions.

Of the people who will be given final notice, all possible effort will be made to relocate them in both federal employ and private industry. Specific notices will be given those employes affected not later than the middle of April, 1957.

Civilian regulations require not less than 30 days notice be given employes who may be separated or reassigned and the final action must be based on the employes' rights under retention preference regulations.

Proportional allocations of civilian losses have been given group commanders and staff section heads who will decide on a functional priority basis those civilian positions which can be released.

In an effort to find employment for those employes who are released under this reduction in force, the civilian personnel division will contact other federal and private industry in this area for vacancies which might be filled by those who might be released at Webb AFB.

Webb Air Force Base personnel officials have been directed by higher headquarters to reduce base civilian manpower by 65. This is necessary to meet proposed manpower ceilings.

As reported in the March 9 issue of Air Force Times, the strength cuts will reduce total Air Force civilian rolls by over 10,000 by June, 1958. Peak civilian strength last October was 354,000. With the new cuts, it will trim to about 345,000 by this June. Thereafter, the limits will depend on a number of factors, including budget limitations, but the planned strength for June 1958 is about 341,000.

Webb Air Force Base refused to disclose the number of civilians employed at the base at present, but at the beginning of the year the civilian employees numbered 732.

Officials emphasized that this cut is not dictated by fund limitations, but is an adjustment based upon new personnel requirements.

Martin County To Become Area 'Cantaloupe Center'

STANTON (SC) — Martin County is all set to become the cantaloupe center of this portion of West Texas.

Seed and fertilizers have been received by the Stanton Chemical, Feed and Seed Company here and are ready for distribution to farmers. Jack Arrington, manager of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce, said that producers other than those who have signed may obtain seed. A sufficient supply of seed has been secured to cover more than the 1,000 acres committed to cantaloupes.

Most of the planting is to be undertaken within the next three weeks. The seed are planted with a corn plate with an eight-inch spacing. Experts figure that if each vine produces one large saleable cantaloupe this will yield 150 crates per acre, enough for profitable operation. In some instances a pre-treatment with a fertilizer heavy in potash is recommended, with a subsequent side-dressing.

The seed are of the No. 45 variety, said to be resistant to honey dew and other fungi or plant diseases.

A shed has been constructed on the T&P siding near the stockyards at the west edge of town and equipment will be moved in before marketing time. It is estimated that the growing season will approximate 100 days.

Firemen answered three calls over the weekend, but fire damage resulted from only one. Also one of the three was not a fire but only a preventive call.

At the residence at 509 N. Lancaster, a wood stove caught the roof on fire Saturday, and slight damage resulted to the roof. Firemen from the Northside sub-station answered the call and extinguished the blaze before it spread.

Firemen from the City Hall station went to 101 Goliad when a fire was reported, but it developed that the heating unit motor was on, which caused the alarm. No damage resulted.

The fire department was also called when electrical wires were down at 800 W. 4th Sunday, but no fire developed.

A Bible Thought For Today

Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the LORD'S sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme; Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well. (1 Peter 2:13-14)

A Ha, Look Who's In The Woodpile

Southwestern cattlemen have now joined Texas farmers in protesting U. S. Department of Labor regulations relating to the housing of bracero labor from Mexico. The farmers protested partly on the ground that housing for Mexican laborers imported for the crop season called, among other things, for rooms with 12-foot ceilings. Few modern homes in West Texas can boast of such high elegance as a 12-foot ceiling.

Well, sir, the 30th annual convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Assn. ran into something of the same nature at its Houston session this week, and unanimously passed a resolution asking that the Labor Department's housing regulations not be made applicable to temporary work away from ranch headquarters.

Describing the new bracero housing specifications as "absolutely ridiculous," longtime association attorney Joe G. Montague declared:

"Until they are changed you cannot use bracero labor with a chuckwagon," he told ranchers from 15 states. It seems that while American ranch-hands, who have been doing it for generations, think nothing of sleeping out in the open in their "suggans" or sleeping bags, braceros must be provided with better accommodations while working around the chuckwagon.

"The background of this," Montague said, "is that our own labor organizations are opposed to the importation of Mexican labor. Our Department of Labor is subject 100 per cent to labor union influence."

Ranchers, like farmers, have been unable to find Americans willing to work with crops or cattle, hence the need of bringing in Mexican labor for stated periods of time. Like the farmers, ranchers now charge the housing regulations relating to braceros, on top of other regulations of the past, will make it impossible to work their stock.

And the tenor of Mr. Montague's remarks is that the Labor Department is doing it a-purpose.

The anti-bracero people are demonstrating that there is more than one way of skinning a cat — and of throwing your weight around.

Don't Turn Off The Furnace—Yet

The advent of spring last week did indeed kick up a lot of fuss in the weather department over the Lone Star State. Dallas had several inches of snow to greet the season, or to bid goodbye to winter as the case may be. There was hail in many parts of the state, up to baseball size in some spots. There were heavy rains up to ten inches in the coastal area, lesser quantities almost everywhere else. And then there was high wind, snow, sleet and plenty of dirt.

The tornado warning system functioned again; several twisters dipped down without doing any great damage anywhere, beyond exciting a lot of people.

There seems to be no practical way to give people warning of possible tornadoes without at the same time unduly exciting them. Such warnings might result in saving lives, and from that angle the service is distinctly worthwhile. Perhaps in time people will learn to take these warnings in their stride — not to the extent of ignoring them, but to rely on their accuracy without becoming panicky.

There are a few things to remember. 1. When weather conditions are such that tornadoes may develop, it does not mean they will develop; 2. If they do develop, they may not dip down; 3. If they dip down, they may not strike anywhere near you. Remember whereas only a few score people die in tornadoes every year, somewhere near 40,000 die in traffic mishaps.

Only forecast we have to make on the weather for the immediate future is to say that we seem to be moving into a period when rains will be more frequent (we hope) than was the case for the past several years. Also, don't have your furnaces turned off just yet. There may be some more cold weather in the offing.

The People Need Frank Talk, Too

WASHINGTON — This might be described as the era of fretfulness and irritation in democratic countries. Whether it is Britain with her labor troubles and financial strain, or America with her public complaining about high taxes and big budgets, the picture would be pleasing to the Kremlin were it not for the fact that Soviet Russia is having her troubles, too.

A well-ordered existence, free from anxiety and sacrifices of the fruits of one's labor, would be welcome everywhere, but the facts of modern life are not always understood by peoples generally — least to the danger of a devastating world war. Because every day's efforts to prevent it are not spectacular nor easy to explain, too many people in the world go on blissfully thinking we can all get back to "normalcy" by merely wishing problems off the slate.

It is not, therefore, to solve in a few days the big thorny questions of the day but to explain each other's viewpoints on current matters that Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain and President Eisenhower have sat down together at Bermuda.

Immediate solutions of knotty problems that face Britain and America will not come out of such a conference, irrespective of how hopefully the official communiques may be worded. By personal contact, frank discussions are taking place that would require weeks of negotiation through ambassadors. The results will be apparent in the months ahead — for Britain and America will work together.

Britain is in deep trouble — financial, economic, military and political. An empire has dwindled as colonies have one by one obtained their independence. Manpower that can be summoned in wartime is available in smaller numbers than ever before. Britain is still a world power and the closest friend America has, but "leadership" in global affairs has passed to the United States, on the one hand, and the Soviet Union, on the other.

Many citizens of this country are totally unaware of and many are only superficially informed about the responsibility that has been thrust on the United States by the events that have followed the ending of World War II. Talk is still heard about "all the money spent overseas being wasted," about trying to "buy allies" and about "meddling in foreign countries." But the stark fact is that America has the choice of either letting the Soviet Union achieve a commanding position in Asia and Africa as well as in Europe and the Far East, and someday trying to fight alone a combination of Soviet satellites, or else preventing now the penetration of the Communists into the free world.

All this takes money for military purposes and for aid to allies, but it could take more money and the lives of millions of Americans as well if a World War breaks out.

It isn't a time, therefore, to indulge in carping criticism, as so many British newspapers have been doing lately. Some of their attacks on President Eisenhower personally have been below the belt. This seems like a strange way to "win friends and influence people."

Americans are sympathetic with the plight of Britain and are concerned over the recent decline of the European countries in terms of military potential. Unquestionably there is still a feeling in London that America let both the British and French down in the Suez affair. But the answer lies in waiting for the later acts to unfold rather than in trying to reach conclusions in the middle of the drama.

The United States is moving cautiously in the Middle East, but with the economic leverage possessed by this country, there are signs that the abuses of power by Nasser of Egypt can be curbed without involving America or Britain in a shooting war.

Britain needs money. Her military expenses have to be cut because her revenues from overseas trade are being curtailed. Who will make up the deficit in manpower and weapons? Theoretically, it's the United States. But actually the American taxpayer will want to be assured that major responsibility for Europe's defense isn't being shifted to America without the manpower burden and costs being equitably shared abroad.

Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Eisenhower are old friends. They talk frankly to each other. But what is needed is some frank talk to the American people and to the British people, respectively, so that attitudes of complacency and demands for more and more benefits along the lines of the "welfare state" will not imperil the national budgets. What's needed above all else today is a clear explanation of why nations that must have "guns" and "butter" can come only when blind partisanship and petty feuding are abandoned in all democratic countries in the interest of true patriotism.

Sounds More Tired Than Vigorous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the statements by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan — on what they agreed to at Bermuda — was a collection of banalities. It sounded more tired than vigorous.

For example: They agreed it's good to have military allies. That's hardly news. They said they will continue support for the reunification of Germany. No one expected otherwise.

Nor, to continue the example, did they have to go to Bermuda to agree, as they said they did, that they sympathize with the Hungarian people; that Russia is repressive; believe all countries should have liberal trade policies; have a common interest in European unity within the Atlantic community.

But they said not a word on the most important, immediate problem facing them: what they will do, individually or together, if Egyptian President Nasser keeps on kicking up his heels.

All they said — without mentioning his name — was to indicate they hope he will comply with United Nations' resolutions for restoring peace to the Middle East.

They may have reached agreements not put in writing. It's doubtful for example: Macmillan has favored a strong hand in dealing with Nasser; Eisenhower has preferred handling him through the U.N.

Eisenhower and Macmillan did reach positive decisions on three points:

1. The United States will let Britain have American guided missiles. This was a natural step,

What Is A Hungarian Actress?

NEW YORK (AP) — The only time Eva Bartok acts like a Hungarian actress is when people tell her in surprise, "Why, you don't act at all like a Hungarian actress."

That remark causes the slender, dark-eyed star, who was born in Budapest, to blow up a real temperamental storm.

"One Hollywood writer said I was very unusual Hungarian actress because I wasn't blonde, didn't mangle the English language, and was quiet," she fumed.

"What did they expect me to do—break up all the studio furniture?"

Miss Bartok, who twinkles brightly in the European celluloid sky, recently completed her first American film — an MGM opus called "Ten Thousand Bedrooms" in which she stars with Dean Martin.

"It is a nice clean comedy and has nothing to do with bedrooms," she said. All she did was act in the picture. Somebody else gave it the title.

Miss Bartok, although she came here to make a single picture, has signed up for another, and is contemplating a TV series that will inevitably be known as "Forever Eva," and tell the story of a young Hungarian girl's struggles in this country.

Eva hopes that meanwhile she can clear up the misconception that Hungarians are a madcap, harum-scarum bunch of footloose Bohemians.

Eva, who is intense and brooding, is suspicious of quick success and believes talent must always fight hard to find its place.

"After going to London in 1948," she said, "I had to wait two years before I could get a work permit, and five more years before I got a real part in a good play."

She likes to read, listen to music, paint, swim and ski.

She has no opinions about American men because, as she pointed out, all she has met is Hollywood men and she isn't sure they are typical.

"I think Hollywood women are more intelligent than Hollywood men," she said, smiling, "and they tell me Hollywood men are spoiled, because too many women make over them."

"I am an old-fashioned myself. I think the man should show the initiative—at least at the start."

"I spent five months in Hollywood as a bachelor girl, and my name wasn't linked with anyone. Not even one romance!"

"Don't you think for this I deserve at least an Oscar?"

Going, Going, Gone—The Mule, That Is

In a global war, the proud mule obviously is fighting a losing battle. The Army has given him the boot. The tractor is taking his place on the farm. Even his cousin, the burro, is getting the worst of it. The motorcycle and the hot rod have long since replaced the donkey in the esteem of the teen-ager.

At the rate he's going, he will be no more in his home state, Missouri, inside a couple of decades. The statistics shows the "show me" commonwealth had 20 times as many mules 35 years ago as it does today.

Considering the contributions the mule has made to our way of life down through time, we're not doing right by him. Like the horned toad and the bald eagle, his ranks have become decimated.

It wasn't so many years ago you could find a couple of the durable animals in any farm yard, that is, if they weren't out in the fields pulling a plow. But no more. He's as rare as a dodo bird around the rural dwelling.

The closest some farmers come to a mule these days is Red Mule chewing tobacco.

The animal is fighting a last ditch battle down in the land of magnolia and mint juleps, which has the reputation for resisting change more than other sections of this great land of ours. Half the mules in this country are supposed to live in 16 Southern states. Down there, they average two per farm.

A Midwestern newspaper mentioned recently that the mule not only enriched our heritage but our language, as well. How would we describe a stubborn person, it asked, without calling him "mule-headed."

A certain school principal here must have thought up a few choice adjectives many years ago when he came to work one morning following Halloween and found a burro roaming the halls of the top floor of the high school building.

This was one of the last donkeys to roam the streets around here. Chances are he got lonesome for the kids but how he strayed into the school building in the still of the night has never been satisfactorily explained to the school officials.

As far as I know, everyone graduated who was supposed to that year, though. Small vendettas used to break out here over donkeys among boys when I was a kid.

The creatures, it seems, didn't belong to anyone in particular. Possession was nine points of the law. But night-time rustling wasn't unheard of then and how anyone else to prove a burro wasn't yours, if you had him tied to a tree at sundown?

The horse has a chance to hang on. He's glamorous. But the mule, he's headed for oblivion because he isn't pretty enough.

I venture he'll take his time going on his way, however. When he wanted to sit a spell, he always did.

Selling Now Is Done With No Hands

Pity the younger generation. Not only will the children of modern times never sense the kletic joy of a gingersnap, but they'll even have a hard time learning what a crackerbarrel is. They won't see one, because modern selling doesn't countenance them. They won't find "crackerbarrel" in Webster's, Funk & Wagnall's, The Century, or the Oxford dictionaries — the unabridged ones.

Nor is this word, which goes with calico, homespun, and country-store politics, in the just-published Dictionary of American-English Usage, Oxford University Press, Americanization of Fowler's famous Modern English Usage. It isn't in the Dictionary of American Slang, Mencken's American Language, or such standard books of quotation as Bartlett's, Stevenson's, or Hoyt's. But the Dictionary of Americanism mentions it with an example: "Dr. Hal was the type of man who would sit around the crackerbarrel in a country store to discuss affairs with his friends."

The "crackerbarrel" has been done in by an economic revolution. Crackerbarrel selling is as passe as crackerbarrel politics, now that the radio and TV have entered the American home. The grocer no longer scoops out five pounds of sugar or flour from a bin or barrel into a sack for the waiting customer. He doesn't sell crackers by the pound or the dozen. Few women can remember when drug-gists poured perfume by the dram, taking it out of 8- and 16-ounce bottles. Boric acid and baking soda are not dispensed to order while you wait.

"The most expensive thing in the world today," explains Gustav L. Nordstrom, tall, 46-year-old director of the Folding Paper Box Association of America, "is a pair of hands." Machinery is used to fill boxes, wrap them. The package is the salesman — the silent salesman — of today, replacing the glass display case. It took hands to transfer the merchandise from the glass case to the customer. And the trend is away from hands. In 1932, the sales per worker in grocery stores amounted to $5,000, according to Nordstrom. Today, in a giant supermarket, sales productivity per worker will run to $50,000. But only because groceries are prepackaged, only because the customer serves herself.

As a result, the folding paper box industry has grown from $127,000,000 in 1939 to $900,000,000 in 1956, or some 600 per cent. Part of this is inflation — higher cost. Part of it is more expensive packaging — using colors and designs. But most of the gain is sheer increase in volume. More goods are going to the ultimate consumer in boxes than ever before. Tonnage has increased 14 per cent since 1939.

A modern package has three functions: One. Protection — to keep product sanitary.

Two. Shipping — to carry the product.

Three. Display — the merchandise must invite the customer, even if it's concealed. The wrapper on chocolate cake mix doesn't disclose the mix, but there's an enticing picture of the end product — a chocolate cake, beautifully embossed with vanilla icing.

Today the food industry, including candy, crackers and beverages (such as containers for Coca Cola bottles) take 35 per cent of folding paper cartons; soap nearly 13 per cent, soap which once was sold bare — it was supposed to improve with exposure; hardware 5 per cent; tobacco 10 per cent.

The modern theory is: Let the package sell the product. But it can do that only once. After that, the product must sell itself. In that, merchandising hasn't changed from the days of the crackerbarrel.

Don't Make Suez A Jugular Vein

It is one woman's opinion that the Western world must learn to live in the foreseeable future without its past dependence upon the Suez Canal and Mideastern oil.

It will take initiative, intelligence, imagination and guts, none of which the Western world has so far tried in the Mideast crisis, to solve the issue. But it can be done.

Indeed, it will have to be done, for it is as plain as the nose on Durante's face that the Suez Canal from now on will be a some-time thing, to be turned on or off at the whim of Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser.

"There are none so blind as those who will not see," but it should be obvious now to the most obtuse in both the United Nations and in the U. S. State Department that Nasser has set himself up as the operator of the Suez Canal but as its censor.

If and when the canal finally reopens on the inflexible terms of an Egyptian Hitler, there is not the slightest guarantee or assurance that free and innocent passage will be granted the ships of any nation that in any way offends Nasser. He has again barred Israeli shipping. But there is any guarantee that British and French shipping, for instance, will be permitted passage?

As long as the canal is to be operated at the whim of an irrational demagogue with whom the U. N. and the U. S. are too timid to come to grips, then the Western world must make plans to bypass it in deference to enlightened self-interest. Suez cannot be permitted to become a barrel over which the Mideast stretches the West at its pleasure.

Senator Mike Mansfield (D. Mont.) has already called for a free world boycott of the canal. There are estimates that it will cost $250,000,000 to underwrite such a boycott. But the free world didn't count the cost of the Berlin airlift, and it cannot afford to count the cost of finding substitutes for a waterway on which it can no longer depend.

I object to a by-pass of the canal as a means of punishing the Mideast. It is not punishment of the Arab but his own protection that the Western world must insure.

If the canal from now on is a chancy thing, how much more so are the great oil pipelines, which can be cut on caprice. For the West to make itself wholly dependent once more on either is sheer idiocy. There is ample oil and ingenuity in the Western world to lick this problem, if only the West will put its wits and determination to work and stop quailing before a tinpot dictator.

Before World War II, there were complacent people who thought they could do business with Hitler, a project comparable to trying to do business with a rattlesnake.

If experience has taught the West anything — and I'm not certain it has — it should have proved that it can't do business with Nasser or any other screaming demagogue with any more success than with der Fuehrer.

Isn't it high time we acknowledge that Suez's usefulness is lost to the West and plan accordingly? Suez isn't a Jugular vein unless we make it so.

Thoughtful Hint

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Municipal Judge Harper Harb recessed the hearing after the defense persistently contended three teen-aged boys were innocent of a charge of attempting to steal gasoline from trucks.

As the teen-agers started to leave the courtroom, a detective called to one: "Don't forget your gas can."

The boy picked up the can and started his car and got a bigger light than he put it down and went out without it.

Big Light

CALVERT CITY, Ky. (AP) — Hugh Smith shoved in the cigarette lighter on his car and got a bigger light than he expected.

In some manner, a spark ignited gasoline fumes and caused an explosion. The convertible, its top flapping, rolled on for 100 feet. The trail marked by its two doors and assorted nuts and bolts. Also left in its wake was Smith, who was blown out. He suffered only cuts and bruises.

Life Near San Francisco Near Normal After Quakes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Life along the San Andreas Fault was returning to near normal today after Friday's earthquake. By last night there had been 120 aftershocks from the main quake that rattled the San Francisco Bay area. Still blocked was Coast Highway 1, which hangs along the side of a Pacific Ocean cliff just south of San Francisco. Four quake-triggered landslides that covered the road are expected to be cleared by Wednesday. Gov. Goodwin Knight said that was the only damage to the state highway system. Gov. Knight said damage was generally minor but widespread and that there was as yet no over-all estimate. Hardest hit were Westlake and Westlake Palisades, brand new residential areas in Daly City near the ruined part of the highway. Joe Doelger, vice president of the firm that developed both areas, said 200 of the 4,000 houses suffered damage but only 20 were damaged seriously. Harold Stites, city manager of Daly City, estimated between 500 and 1,000 houses were damaged. Dr. Don Tocher, University of California seismologist, said he expected no more big shocks now. The Rev. John S. Weber, seismologist at Santa Clara University, said Friday's quake probably relieved tensions along the fault and might save off a big jolt for "several years." In San Francisco, all 137 public schools reopened today. Supt. Harold Spears said the system found $50,000 damage. The only fire traceable to the big quake came 48 hours later at the Crown Cork & Seal Co. in San Francisco. Firemen said the quake knocked packed cartons against a thermostat and put it out of commission. "That allowed a heater to overheat and cause the fire, which was controlled in 30 minutes."

Various Animals Can Glide Through Air

By RAMON COFFMAN
Have you ever thought of the different kinds of animals which have tried to fly? In almost every large division of the animal kingdom, at least one or two members can fly after a fashion. We have flying lizards, for example. In the East Indies, also in a few parts of southern Asia, there are bright-colored lizards which spend most of their time in trees. From time to time they spread out weblike skin on each side of the body and glide from a high limb to a low limb, or from a limb to the ground. In the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans (chiefly in the warm

The so-called "flying frogs" represent the amphibians. These little tree-dwelling animals have extra-large webbed feet, and the feet are employed as parachutes, of a sort, when the frogs make long leaps. Insects, in general, are more successful at flying than any other members of the animal kingdom except birds. Hundreds of thousands of kinds of insects are at home in the air. Usually they have four wings apiece, but some of them (including various kinds of flies) have only single pairs of wings. Young insects usually are without wings of any kind. A vast number (but not all) start life as grubs. Butterflies and moths are caterpillars at the start; their changes from caterpillars to winged insects give us an amazing story. Next time I shall take up the efforts of furry animals to fly, and the great success of birds.
