Daniel Optimistic On Legislative Program

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel said today there is a possibility that more than 90 per cent of his program recommended to the Legislature will be acted upon favorably.

The governor held a mid-morning news conference as both houses met after apparently the last weekend recess of the session. Mop-up action was expected shortly in the Senate on the bill increasing teachers' salaries but other pending bills were in a questionable position.

"I'm in hopes the Legislature will finish its work this week," Daniel said, but added that there were several highly important pieces of legislation that need to be completed.

He listed these as the multi-million dollar state issuance of bonds for water conservation, reorganization of the Insurance Commission and a lobby registration bill.

The governor said he was "studying the segregation bills from the standpoint of their constitutionality." He has until Friday to sign the first segregation bill passed by both houses. Daniel said he did not plan to ask an opinion of the attorney general unless some uninvolved legal question was involved.

Daniel said 32 of the 50 recommendations made to the Legislature have been enacted by both houses. He said 6 have passed both houses and are in a conference committee and 4 have passed the House and await action by the Senate.

"He said he still was not giving up hope 'until after today' on his proposed state law enforcement commission and the proposal for registration of persons representing others before state agencies. Both are considered dead.

Daniel said "That's a Calvert question" when asked if there would be enough money to take care of such pending bills as teachers and judges pay raises, and aid to the totally disabled. He referred to Comptroller Robert Calvert who certified the major appropriation bill over the weekend. The comptroller must decide whether money is available on all spending bills.

Estimated revenue in the general fund plus the intake from pending bills apparently still would be short of meeting demands if present spending bills are passed in present form.

If all goes smoothly in the Senate, the Legislature will end at 6 p.m. Thursday. That would mean a 136-day session, the last 16 days without pay.

Sen. A. M. Aikin, leader of the teachers' cause, said last night, "we are in pretty good shape" but added that there was a financial problem yet to be cured.

The House approved Friday the bill which puts the starting pay of a college graduate at $356 a month, plus $6 a month for each year of experience to a top of $72. Estimated cost for the two years: $8 million dollars.

Three additional money-making bills plus the money unappropriated by passage of the two billion dollar state spending last week total between $47 1/2 and 51 1/2 million dollars. The top figure is based on a maximum of 12 million dollars which could be used when the bill is passed transferring one per cent of the permanent school fund to the available school fund. But there was talk today that the transfer might bring in as much as 15 million dollars which would amount to dissolve the financial problems.

In addition to the teachers' pay, about six million dollars are slated to go for aid to the totally disabled, increased judges pay and gas metering tax refunds.

Calvert certified the general appropriations bill over the weekend. He said he also would "certify the bills in the order they come to us." Without such an okay declaring that there would be the money available, the bill would either have to be trimmed or the Legislature would have to take the unusual step of deficit financing.

The anti-segregation bill may have the key to final adjournment in the Senate which has yet to accept the "sine die" resolution approved by the House. The bloc defeated attempts by the segregation bloc to bring up another segregation bill last week. Another run on these bills could come at any time. If the bills can be laid out, a filibuster would be in the offing provided the South Texans can get the floor.

Sensors today or tomorrow will clean up the 200 million dollar bond program for building dams and reservoirs. A joint conference report on the loan fund for cities and water districts was approved by the House weeks ago but Sen. George Parkhouse has held back the report pending passage of the measure allowing the state to buy space in federal reservoirs. The federal reservoir plan may clear the House today but in such a different form that the two houses probably will not be able to work out an agreement in the waning days of the session.

Parkhouse said he would take up the other resolutions regardless today or tomorrow. If he doesn't offer the resolution shortly, several other senators have said they would force a showdown.

New Career
Curvesome Marie McDonald is shown as she launched her first night club act at Reno, Nev., with songs and a display of what she called "elegance."

It is his opinion that the question asked was not prejudicial and that it was harmless. The defendant's motion for a mistrial is overruled.

Foreman asked at once for another mistrial, saying that articles appearing in both the Houston Chronicle and Houston Press over the weekend "vilify" Parr and might prejudice the jury.

He said the articles were based on a letter written by Parr's Duval County opponents in criticism of the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

This motion also was overruled. The first trial lasted 42 days and ended in a hung jury Dec. 18, 1956. Ineligible jurors caused other mistrials March 12 and March 20. The trial was interrupted Thursday for a long weekend. Ingraham gave Wilkey and Foreman time to prepare briefs on the motion for mistrial made by Foreman.

Parr, eight Duval County associates, and two banks formerly headed by Parr are on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud the Benavides School District of more than $200,000 from 1949 through early 1954.

The motion for a mistrial arose during testimony of R. R. Gonzales, who has been tax assessor-collector of the Benavides School District since 1955.

Gonzales said he had in his possession "a room full of records."

Wilkey asked Gonzales if he were willing to bring into court additional records "at the request of either the defense or prosecution."

Foreman said Wilkey's remark gave grounds for mistrial in that it was intended to comment by the prosecution on the failure of the defense to produce evidence.

Gunmen Get $1,300 From Food Store

Two youngish men slipped through a vent in the roof of Newsum's Grocery on Gregg early today, held up a nightwatchman, and made away with over $1,300 in cash.

Police today said they had a "number of suspects" but had nothing definite on any of them at noon.

The incident occurred about 3 or 3:30 a.m. today police officers surmised. They got the first word of it about 3:55 when they received a call from a nearby service station attendant.

The two men, described as being between 20 and 22, tried one vent on the roof of the store at the 1910 Gregg address before they found one that would take them into the building.

After they got into the building, one held the nightwatchman, Edward Mendoza, at gunpoint while the other went through the safe. Mendoza was an assistant taking the place of the regular night man, who was on vacation.

The robbers got away with 400 silver dollars, $200 in $2 bills, $250 in assorted silver in rolls, and $508 in currency.

In addition, they took the nightwatchman's .38 revolver and a .30-30 Winchester rifle in the office.

Mendoza described one of the men as being between 20 and 22, about five feet 10 inches, and weighing between 160 and 180 pounds. He was armed with a .38 revolver.

The other was about 21, stood five feet, eight inches and would weigh about 150. He also had a pistol, but Mendoza could not describe it.

Officers were checking their leads this morning and hoped to have something definite on the case later in the day, C. L. Rogers, police chief, said.

Drive For Bible Funds Is Success

It appeared Monday that the one-week campaign for funds to underwrite the high school Bible class had succeeded.

The Big Spring Pastors Association had asked for at least $1,000 to underwrite the course beyond the regular budget participation of the churches represented in the association. Preliminary figures indicated Monday that there was $1,274 in sight with possibly others still to send in contributions.

All who want to have a part should send or bring their contributions to the Herald (with checks payable to the Big Spring Pastors Association). However, no further appeals will be made after today.

Through some special gifts, including one $400 anonymous contribution, the First Baptist Church Sunday raised $388 additional money (another $100 had been acknowledged previously) for the fund.

Two Sunday School Classes, the Allene Read at the First Presbyterian and the Philathea at the First Methodist came in with $25 each. There was an anonymous gift for the same amount and Dr. E. O. Ellington gave $25. Part of the breakdown of the First Baptist collection was not yet available.

Among latest donors to the fund were David Waldo Jones family, Mrs. R. V. Guthrie, and an anonymous giver for $10 each; anonymous, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Neal, Mrs. C. L. O'Brien, and G. F. Reynolds, $5 each; Bob Johnson $1.

Jet Sets New Unofficial Record

McGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N. J. (AP)—A F100F Super Sabre jet yesterday flew from Palmdale, Calif. to this base in 3 hours 30 minutes to set a new unofficial transcontinental record.

The F100F fighter was piloted by Maj. Robert Risner, 32, of the Tactical Air Command, 479th Fighter Wing at George Air Force

All Workers Assigned To Repairs On County Roads

Road construction work by the Howard County bridge and road crews is stalled completely, Walter Parks, county engineer, told the Howard County Commissioners Court Monday morning.

All men in the department have been placed on maintenance crews making repairs to highways damaged by the series of heavy rains of the past 10 days.

Parks said that some progress toward making repairs is being made, but that a great deal of work remains to be done before all of the ravages of the storm can be erased.

Commissioners devoted most of their Monday morning session to a study of roads and what the weather has done to them.

A petition asking that the county open a road along what is called the "Hartwell road" between the Andrews and Stanton highways was presented to the court. The road would extend about four miles.

The commissioners assured the petitioners the matter would be given prompt consideration. Afterwards, the board reviewed this project with Parks and indicated that the petition would be granted. The commissioners said that the proposed road would be of considerable value to traffic.

Parks said that construction work on new roads would be resumed as quickly as the repairs on damaged roads can be completed.

Ex - Washington Items On Sale

LONDON (AP)—Two heraldic stained glass panels once belonging to the ancestors of George Washington will be sold at auction here May 31.

For many years the oval-shaped panels were set into walls of Sulgrave Manor, the Washington shrine in Northamptonshire where several generations of Washington's forebears lived. Many pictures and objects associated with the family are preserved there.

The manor is now owned and administered by a trust but the panels, which bear the coat of arms of John and Lawrence Washington, were removed by a former owner before the trust took over.

They have been put up for sale at the Sotheby auction rooms by Sacheverell Sitwell, author and brother of Dame Edith Sitwell, the poet, and Sir Osbert Sitwell, the writer.

Since 1840 the panels have been at Weston Manor in Northamptonshire, the home of Sacheverell Sitwell. They were taken there by H. Hely-Hutchinson, who owned Sulgrave Manor after it passed out of the hands of the Washington family.

The arms of both John and Lawrence Washington bear the gales and mullets—stripes and stars—which are believed to have suggested the design of the United States flag.

The panels are believed to have been made by Robert Washington, son of Lawrence, in 1588, to celebrate the marriage of his eldest son, another Lawrence. The second Lawrence was the grandfather of Col. John Washington, who settled in Virginia in 1657.

Duke Begins His Schooling

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Bedford is going to school today for the first time in his life. He is 40.

Gwyneth Thurburn, principal of a London speech training school, is giving him the first of a series of elocution lessons.

The duke was educated at home by a private tutor. He explained: "Father wanted to Eton, but he hated it. He didn't want to inflict the same agony on me."

Now he wants to be able to make a speech in polished Queen's English. Every year thousands of Americans and other tourists visit his residence, Woburn Abbey, and this summer he plans to give them a nightly commentary on the history of the place and on the family collection of plate and old master pictures.

"I haven't a bad voice," the duke told newsmen, "but I get too many 'ers' and 'ums' in. I have to make a lot of speeches and I might as well make good ones."

"So I'm going to school at last—just like a child of five."

A school spokesman said: "It is most unusual to have a pupil like the duke. We have 250 students here but most of them are young people training for a stage career."

The duke charges visitors 20 shillings—28 cents— to roam around the vast estate, to see the deer in his private park and the fabulous collection of paintings.

It's part of his plan to keep the old family place going and to raise five million pounds—14 million dollars—to pay off the death duties he owed the government after his father, the 12th duke, died in 1953.

Budget Cutting Congress Gets Foreign Aid Plan This Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration's proposed $3,800,000,000 foreign aid bill will be submitted this week to a Congress hup deep in an economy wave.

State Department sources and Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) had said President Eisenhower would submit his aid message today. But White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said this was incorrect; that it probably will go up tomorrow.

Eisenhower will make a nationwide radio-television appeal tomorrow night in behalf of the program.

Secretary of State Dulles will take over Wednesday as the lead-off witness at a series of public hearings by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Eisenhower has scaled down his original request for $4,400,000,000 by lopping 500 millions from proposed military assistance for the fiscal year starting July 1.

But a special Senate committee which spent many months weighing the foreign aid program urged him to cut further in that field and make a "country by country" re-examination of his requests for economic assistance.

Eisenhower's program proposes a greater shift from outright grants to loans in nonmilitary aid and long-range authority for all aspects of aid abroad.

A key proposal is that Congress

Pre-School Orientation, Registration Are Slated

Big Spring youngsters who will start to school next fall will start getting acquainted with their future teachers, classrooms and playgrounds Tuesday.

The occasion will be the pre-registration of pupils expecting to enter the first grade next September. A general orientation program for the youngsters is planned in connection with the pre-registration.

S. M. Anderson, curriculum director for the local schools, said the pre-registration and orientation will start at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Parents are advised to take their beginning pupils to the elementary school they will attend next year.

Anderson said purpose of the orientation is to acquaint the pupils with the teachers and to show them the schools and explain the school routine.

The pre-registration is being held to enable school officials to make plans to get the youngsters off to a smooth start on the school careers next fall.

Molecular-Stage Sniffer Developed

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Gulf Oil Corp. said today it has developed a method of detecting almost infinitesimal amounts of matter and can use the information in producing premium motor fuels.

The oil company said the development can detect as small a unit as one part in a million. That is comparable to locating a one-fourth inch ink spot on a string stretched between New York and San Francisco.

Greek Sentenced

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—A Nicosia court today sentenced Arghis Karadymas, a Greek citizen, to 10 years imprisonment. He was charged with hiding arms, ammunition and explosives in a priest's house.

Union Finds Beck Guilty Of Charges

Judge Refuses Parr Motion For Mistrial

HOUSTON (AP)—Federal Judge Joe Ingraham denied two motions for mistrial today and ordered the fourth George Parr mail fraud trial to proceed.

The original motion, made Thursday by defense lawyer Percy Foreman, asked for a mistrial on the grounds a remark made by U.S. Atty. Malcolm Wilkey was prejudicial.

Foreman said the remark amounted to comment by the prosecution on the failure of the defense to produce evidence.

Ingraham, after studying briefs over the weekend, said:

"It is my opinion that the question asked was not prejudicial and that it was harmless. The defendant's motion for a mistrial is overruled."

Foreman asked at once for another mistrial, saying that articles appearing in both the Houston Chronicle and Houston Press over the weekend "vilify" Parr and might prejudice the jury.

He said the articles were based on a letter written by Parr's Duval County opponents in criticism of the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin.

This motion also was overruled. The first trial lasted 42 days and ended in a hung jury Dec. 18, 1956. Ineligible jurors caused other mistrials March 12 and March 20. Wilkey asked Gonzales if he were willing to bring into court additional records "at the request of either the defense or prosecution."

Foreman said Wilkey's remark gave grounds for mistrial in that it was intended to comment by the prosecution on the failure of the defense to produce evidence.

Spiked Beer
Officers said Mrs. Lucy Wireman admitted she had been putting rat poison containing arsenic in to her husband's beer. She said she did this "to stop his drinking." Ora Wireman is in a hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich., with a severe case of arsenic poisoning. She is in jail, charged with attempted murder.

Natural Gas Bill Termed 'Essential'

GALVESTON (AP)—A natural gas bill acceptable to all segments of the industry was described today as essential for explorations to find enough gas to meet enormous demand.

Arch Rowan, chairman of the gas committee of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Assn., said a 50 per cent increase in exploratory drilling is needed if the anticipated market in 1965 is to be met.

Joseph Hedrick, president of the Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of Chicago, said passage of legislation which provides incentive for aggressive exploration and development of gas resources by producers and pipeline companies can lead to rapid discovery of vast unlocated reserves.

Rowan and Hedrick took part in a gas panel discussion at the opening session of TIPORO's convention, which Wednesday is expected to be asked to reject the new Harris Gas Bill if two amendments backed by President Eisenhower are accepted.

Rowan's committee met yesterday and it is understood to have turned down the Eisenhower amendments which have been described as "absolutely unacceptable" by TIPORO's president, A. E. Herrmann of Amarillo. The committee is expected to ask the convention to endorse the Harris bill, however, if several TIPORO amendments are accepted.

TIPORO has proposed 11 amendments designed to remove provisions described as discriminatory toward independent producers.

Other participants in the gas panel included John Heyke, president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co., and William Connoley, a member of the Federal Power Commission.

The Harris-Fulbright bill would have removed well-head gas prices from federal control. The new Harris bill would recognize Federal Power Commission authority to set reasonable market prices after considering natural gas as a commodity. The new bill would abolish the utility rate formula now in use.

Rowan said the new Harris bill does not free the producer from regulation but does free him from "rank judicial regulation."

The FCC's current authority resulted from a 1954 Supreme Court ruling which put gas producers under utility controls.

Rowan said the new bill does not go as far as he would like, but "it does have certain sedatives in it that alleviates the pain of the independent producer to some extent."

AFL-CIO Scores Misuse Of Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The AFL-CIO Executive Council today found Dave Beck "guilty as charged" of misusing Teamsters Union funds.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, announced the finding and said the Council had made permanent its previous temporary removal of Beck as an AFL-CIO officer.

"Whether Beck stole the funds or borrowed them, the record shows he took advantage of his position as a trade union official to use money belonging to his members for his personal use and profit," Meany said.

Meany said Beck had been found guilty unanimously for "gross misuse of union funds entrusted to his care."

Meany said that whether Beck had violated any state or federal laws "dealing with theft, misappropriation or embezzlement" was up to the authorities and not for Beck's fellow labor leaders to pass on.

But there was no question, Meany said, that Beck violated basic union rules for honest handling of union funds.

Meany said Beck's post as an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member is now vacant. He said the Council may name someone else this week to fill the positions, not necessarily from the Teamsters Union.

He said the vacancy can be filled by any member of the AFL-CIO in good standing.

Beck spent only about half an hour with his union colleagues. He refused to answer their questions about the vast web of testimony produced before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee that he had misused large sums of union money.

The Teamsters president came to the session with a statement challenging the Council's right to suspend him, calling its action a "nullity" and demanding that it drop ouster charges.

When Beck left, he took a backdoor route to the basement of the AFL-CIO headquarters building and sped away in an automobile, giving newsmen no chance to question him.

Beck listened to a general summary of the charges against him and to a dressing down by Meany.

Meany said that before Beck read his statement "he listened to me for about 20 minutes."

"I summarized the charges," Meany said, "I told him what I thought of his actions."

Meany said he couldn't recall when any other labor leader had been ousted from membership of labor's top policymaking group.

Beck has a right to appeal his ouster to the AFL-CIO convention next December in Miami. Asked how this appeal might occur, Meany said Beck would have to "get his union to bring the matter to the convention if the union so desires."

But Beck's own loss of standing in his union seemed to indicate the Teamsters will make no such appeal in his behalf. Moves are under way within the Teamsters organization to have Beck step aside.

Separate ouster proceedings against the Teamsters union itself, largely based on Beck's questioned activities, are due to be heard Friday by the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee. However, this hearing may be postponed to give the Teamsters more time to prepare an answer.

4-YEAR SERVICE

Beck has been a member of the AFL-CIO Council since August 1953. About six months earlier, he had been elected president of the Teamsters Union.

Beck, arriving promptly for the meeting, was kept cooling his heels for half an hour before being called into the meeting with 22 "yellow labor" leaders—all like him, presidents, or former presidents of labor organizations.

The purpose of the meeting was to give Beck an opportunity to answer in closed session with his fellow labor leaders the corruption charges he refused to talk about publicly before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

Beck invoked the Fifth Amendment more than 200 times before the Senate committee in refusing to answer committee charges that he "stole" more than $300,000 of Teamsters funds. Beck has repaid the union about $370,000 which he says he borrowed.

As he went into the meeting of the AFL-CIO committee, Beck issued a 500-word statement saying that his temporary suspension was illegal.

Beck, appearing a bit more grim and serious than his usual buoyant self, went into the closed meeting at AFL-CIO headquarters accompanied by Gerard Treanor, a Teamsters Union attorney.

Beck noted in his statement that he is under indictment on charges of evading income taxes.

"To make malfeasance and maladministration as an officer of the AFL-CIO, and do not relate to events alleged to have occurred at a time when the AFL-CIO constitution was operative."

The AFL-CIO constitution, under which Beck was suspended, was adopted in 1955.

Beck's statement wound up with a demand that the Council revoke his suspension and ouster charges against him, or in any event defer hearing on the charges until after trial of his income tax evasion case in Tacoma, Wash.

Second Whooper Egg Expected

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The world's 28th whooping crane is one day old today and its parents, Jo and Crisp, are waiting for a second egg to pop any day.

Jo laid her first egg 32 days ago. The chick started hatching early Saturday and broke through shortly before midnight.

The second egg came three days after the first in the Audubon Park Zoo, Park Supt. George Douglass said it should hatch tomorrow or Wednesday.

Dragnet Fails To Catch Jailbreakers

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An intense dragnet operation turned up no trace today of three prisoners who gained complete control of the Johnson County courthouse Sunday and escaped after locking up 17 officers and trustees.

Five Negro prisoners escaped but two were recaptured quickly.

The break from the 11th, 12th and 13th floors of the 22-story courthouse in downtown Kansas City was not discovered for more than 30 minutes. About 300 other prisoners refused the opportunity to flee.

Led by a tough, convicted robber armed with an improvised ice pick, the five men grabbed an unwarmed deputy, got his keys and swiftly took charge of the jail.

They armed themselves with guns taken from the jailers and from the jail arsenal.

Sheriff Arvid Owsley said Deputy Gould Winn violated rules by entering a jail section alone to get a scrub bucket.

Shuffling up and down in the jail elevators, the five men rounded up jailers, trustees, and maintenance men. Some were handcuffed to posts. Others were locked in rooms and cells.

Then the five rode an elevator to the ground floor and departed.

About 30 minutes later another jailer coming on duty discovered the break and was releasing the deputies when city police arrived from headquarters across the street. A detective had made repeated telephone calls to the jail but got no answer.

Robert Delovon Brewer, 28, Nacogdoches, Tex., and Charles Beasley, 20, Kansas City, were captured an hour later in a taxi cab. Brewer was serving a year for petty larceny. Beasley was awaiting trial for burglary.

Still at large were Emanuel Andrews, 28, described by Owsley as dangerous and the leader; Robert Polk, 25, and Isaac T. Sanders, 23, all of Kansas City. Andrews had been sentenced to 20 years for first degree robbery. Polk was awaiting trial on a robbery charge, and Sanders was a federal prisoner held on an alcohol tax violation.

The Favor Is Returned

Eighteen years ago, E. E. Paxton, left, took a young friend on his first cross-country flight in an airplane. Saturday that friend, now Col. Leslie F. Garrett of Webb Air Force Base, returned the favor by treating Paxton to his first ride in a jet. Mr. and Mrs. Paxton, of Eldorado, Ark., spent the weekend as guests of Col. and Mrs. Garrett here. Paxton described the jet flight as the climax of his flying career which started in the days of the American Eagle, Star Cavalier, Fairchild 24 and Stinson Reliant.

Slight Threat Of More Rain Seen As Texas Starts Drying

By The Associated Press
The threat of more thunderstorms hung over Texas Monday. Skies were clear to partly cloudy with only a little fog north of Beaumont and around Beville to mar the weather picture. But a low pressure trough lay down the eastern side of the Rocky Mountains, extending into West Texas. The Weather Bureau said if it continued to drift east, it would kick off another round of storms. The bad weather center, however, would probably be north of Texas, the bureau said. Showers and thundershowers were forecast for East and South

Texas with showers and thunderstorms in the North and West. Bright skies Sunday gave the state a respite from 32 days of drenching rains and tornadoes. Threats of floods subsided. However, the Wichita River on the north side of Wichita Falls and Holliday Creek, which crosses the southeastern part of the city, continued to rise Sunday night. Some families moved from their homes. The Wichita flooded some low areas. Both Wichita Falls and Wichita County appeared for federal disaster aid Sunday. Mayor K. C. Spell of Wichita Falls said the city needed it because of raw sewage from sewage lines flowing into flooded areas and because the city was short of money. He said the county appeal was based on the "dire straits of county roads. They have really taken a beating." Farmers were cheered by the fair weather. Although the heavy rains have all but broken the drought in most areas, farmers are a month behind in their spring planting. Plantings have been washed out, small grains and wheat damaged and fields too wet to work. Ranges and pastures were in excellent shape, however. The only rains Sunday were light sprinkles at Galveston, Houston, Lufkin and Dalhart. High temperatures ranged from 77 at Amarillo to 105 at Presidio. Predawn temperatures Monday were in the middle or upper 70s along the coast and in the upper 50s or lower 60s in the Panhandle.

Flood Threats In Plains Area Eased

By The Associated Press
Dry weather helped to ease flood dangers in the storm-stricken areas of the southern Plains today but rain fell in many other parts of the country. Oklahoma was hard hit by four days of floods, with at least nine deaths and damage estimated at 25 million dollars. The Arkansas, Washita and Cimmaron rivers and many smaller streams overflowed. Tulsa escaped serious flooding from the surging Arkansas. The town of Bixby was hit, with 800 of 2,300 residents reporting flood damage. Rivers in Kansas and Texas subsided, with only scattered reports of minor flood threats. Fair weather prevailed from Kansas southward through the southern Plains and in the Lower Mississippi Valley eastward across most of the Gulf Coast region except for scattered showers in Florida. There were wide areas of precipitation from the Dakotas and Nebraska westward to the Pacific and southward into northern New Mexico. Heaviest rainfall was reported in western Nebraska. More than 2 inches of rain fell in Scottsbluff in 6 hours. Snow fell in the higher northern Rockies. Showers, rain and drizzle hit broad areas in the eastern half of the country. Drizzle was reported in the Middle Mississippi Valley. Rain or showers fell in the Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic Coast states and northward into New England. Rainfall was heavy in some parts of western New York state. Readings in the 30s were general in northern Nevada and southern Utah and in the higher elevations in the northern and central Rockies. One of the lowest marks was 26 above at Grand Marais, Mich.

Graham Sets New Records, Sees 'Destruction By Fire'

NEW YORK (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham drew 19,600 people to Madison Square Garden last night—the largest crowd to date in his New York crusade.

The arena's 18,500 seats were filled, and there were 800 standees. Graham's staff said 84,000 persons have attended the five nights of the crusade here in progress. Another record was set last night when 913 persons—husbands and wives, old and young, children and teen-agers—came forward in response to Graham's fervent plea to "turn to Christ now."

The people of Noah's time. "They didn't have time to listen. . . . God decided I'm going to send a judgment. . . . destroy man and start all over again."

To date, 3,526 have walked down to the pulpit, signifying their acceptance as of Graham said, "a new life that Christ can give." Graham took as his text Matthew 24:37-38—"But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. . . . For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the Ark. . . . The evangelist said that "crowding God out of our lives was the sin in Noah's time," and that the same sin is widespread today. "God warned them," he said of

The speaker related the biblical account of the great flood that wiped out civilization except for eight people—Noah and those who heeded the warning and boarded the Ark. He referred to II Peter, third chapter, and the prophecy that God again will wipe out the human race because of sin, this time by fire. "One of these days God will shut the door and the day of grace will be over," said Graham. Graham earlier yesterday addressed a Norwegian Independence Day crowd of 40,000 persons at Leif Erickson Park in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn.

U. N. Ruling Asked On Suez Argument

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau planned to ask the U. N. Security Council today to state that Egypt's plan for operating the Suez Canal is not the final word. Leaving Paris by plane for the reopening of Council debate on the canal, Pineau conceded the French "don't have big illusions on the results of the debate." "We intend essentially," he told newsmen, "that the United Nations should state that the de facto situation of the Suez Canal is not final."

quest to be heard although Egypt has barred her ships from the waterway. The Israelis say they will try to send a ship through the canal but are delaying the test until after the Council debate. Egypt contends that she and Israel are technically still at war, and that she can bar Israeli ships as a defense measure permitted by the 1888 Constantinople convention. Israel in reply cites a Council decision of Sept. 1, 1949, that Egyptian interference with Israeli cargoes in the canal could not be justified on grounds of self-defense.

A Bible Thought For Today

One Victory For Free Press

A free press is based on two major premises: 1. That it has access to the sources of news; 2. That it be free to publish the news.

The free press clause has been in the Constitution 167 years. It was put in there for the protection of the people, who were deemed to be entitled to know what was going on in their government. Since it is the business of newspapers to print the news, a responsibility they bear to their readers, it follows that the chief burden of making that guarantee of the knowledge of what goes on is always devolved on the press.

The right to have access to the news and to publish it is under constant attack, after all these decades. Almost without exception the high courts have upheld that right with zealous care, yet there has been no noticeable diminution in the number of challenges.

The latest originated with the New York Post. A policeman had been tried for shooting a 15-year-old boy as he fled from the scene of a disturbance, and was acquitted after a few minutes' deliberation. The Post thought the case should be looked into further, and requested the court for a transcript of the trial.

The judge refused, contending that only the principals in the case were entitled to the transcript.

In behalf of the Post, the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the New York Daily News and the New York Herald Tribune intervened in the case. Last Thursday New York's highest court unanimously held that newspapers were entitled to transcripts of a trial judge's charge to a jury. It pointed out that the state's Constitution flatly provided that "judicial opinions or decisions shall be free for publication by any person." It ruled that the transcript in dispute might properly be regarded as a decision within the meaning of the law.

Thus one more successful defense of a constitutional guarantee. But it won't be the last. They keep coming all the time, after 167 years of experience.

Confusing Week For The Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is a big week for President Eisenhower and perhaps a confusing one for the public.

This week he sends a special message to Congress on his foreign aid program. Then in a nationwide broadcast explaining it, he makes an indirect appeal for public support.

The confusion is in the arithmetic and the program itself.

Earlier this year the President—without going into the details which he will provide in his special message—asked Congress for $4,400,000,000 in foreign aid or, as it has been called, mutual security.

Later when he saw Congress was going to trim foreign aid whether he liked it or not, he seemed to give ground in an effort to pacify the lawmakers.

He suggested that perhaps a little more than 500 million dollars could be chopped off his request, leaving it at $3,880,000,000 for next year. That may turn out to be more illusion than reality.

He still has on hand 500 million dollars which Congress previously voted for spending this year.

It won't be spent this year. And it can't be spent next year unless Congress approved it all over again.

So he may ask Congress to re-vote the 500 millions. If so, he hasn't really chopped 500 millions off the original request of $4,400,000,000 for next year.

That's not the only confusing part of it.

The words "mutual security" have been like a blanket spread over all kinds of foreign aid, lumping it together. Because of this, and because parts of it overlap, Congress complains it's confused.

This is how the lumping is done, with the following divisions of foreign aid all put under the same mutual security tent:

Direct military aid to friendly countries, meaning weapons; indirect military aid, or defense support, like money for their armies; loans and grants (gifts) to help other countries develop economically; and technical assistance, which means help to backward countries in such fields as health, education and farming.

They were the teen-agers who spent the normally carefree years of their lives in the enemy internment camps in the Philippines during World War II.

How are they doing now? Five Seattle housewives with a total of eight children—are finding out. They are Mrs. Walter Irvine and two sisters—Mrs. Wayne Lichter and Mrs. Martin Squires. Mrs. Irvine is the former Liz Lautzenhiser of the Santo Tomas camp Lautzenhiser; the sisters were Margie and Betty Whitaker when interned with their parents in the Santo Tomas and Los Banos camps.

They have written to every corner of the world in an attempt to discover what the "teen-agers of Tomas and Banos" are doing now. So far they have had 200 responses from about half the 200 teen-agers in the camps.

When they feel they have contacted everyone they possibly can, the Seattle women will put all the information into an illustrated booklet.

What have the letters shown? "Most of the teen-agers have done well despite the interruption in their lives," said Mrs. Squires. "There are diplomats, missionaries, businessmen, professional men and, of course, a lot of housewives and mothers," added Mrs. Lichter.

What do the Seattle women remember about their three years in the camps?

They recall the bitter pill of having to bow to the more haughty of the Japanese guards and the slaps many of the other internees received for failure to comply. They recall the deadly diet of rice, rice and more rice—and the latter days of food shortages when more rice would have been like manna from above.

And the irony of the American liberating force bringing rice for them with the motorized 1st Cavalry Division column that smashed through to Manila.

Why Not Laws In Plain Language?

It was Abe Lincoln, wasn't it, who said God must have loved the common people because he made so many of them.

The laws that have been written for them are something else again, however. Regrettably, few of us understand the verbiage of the statutes that govern us.

I'm for simplifying matters. If I'm guilty of overparking, I don't want to be made to think I was guilty of plotting to undermine the peace and dignity of the state by some individual quoting from the book.

I don't think the ends of justice would be defeated if the ordinary citizens could understand the laws under which they live.

I think the layman is much better off if he finds he can absorb the meaning of a statute, without having to call in some interpreter.

Can you understand your will without having it explained to you by some legal eagle? Can you hack away the excess suet of a wordy city ordinance and get to the meat of it without having to carry a law dictionary to a meeting of the city commission with you?

My suspicions are aroused sometimes when I find barristers arguing over the proper interpretation of some legal document. Methinks the writers of such mystery should be asked to return to school and become better versed in the common tongue.

It got downright funny during World War II to see some of the learned minds in the military try to unscramble some of the gobbledygook sent along by the big brains in Washington.

A few of the tall hats made a career out of framing replies easily as complex, though.

Laws and other legal documents are usually written by gentlemen trained in that business. Regrettably, they are all too often written solely for lawyers — as indecipherable as the Latin on a doctor's prescription.

Oftentimes, a principal in a law suit can hear his case and, in the end, not know whether he has been sent to the rock pile or won the right to visit his pet dog on Thursdays.

As someone so aptly put it, we'd all be better off if the players could understand the ground rules, as well as the umpires.

There Are No Painless Dentists Yet

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield has warned the public that "medical quackery by mail has reached the highest level in history."

Chief Kickapoo and the Medicine Show now operate via the post office. Summerfield points out, selling quack cures good for man and beast and swindling the public of goodness knows how much hard cash annually.

This opened a fascinating new vista to me. Au contraire, my mailbox in the past four months has been stuffed with the opposite kind of goodies. The boxes bristles with dire warnings against fluoridation of drinking water, the Salk vaccine, vivisection and the latest scientific techniques for the treatment of tuberculosis.

From this I conclude that a well-organized and financed campaign is under way not FOR but AGAINST medication. The literature is odd, to say the least, and the arguments specious, misleading and slightly hysterical.

Indeed, whoever is financing the campaign against fluorides in water might as well be advised now that, as far as I am concerned, he's barking up the wrong tree. After a long and horrendous year spent tete-a-tete with my dentist, I shall welcome anything slipped into my drinking water that guarantees fewer cavities in my chompers — even though the therapeutic nostrum is cyanide of potassium or something equally as quick.

Doubtless persons who oppose fluoridation of drinking water either are blessed with teeth impervious to time, tide and fudge sundae, or they came into this world fully equipped with store-bought wear-teeth. Or maybe they are brave as lions. Me, I'm a coward when it comes to the dentist, just a lily-livered, leather-pulling, no-count coward.

Five years ago we cowards glimpsed a brave new world of painless dentistry when science announced the perfection of reved-up, superionic, jet-propelled drill. It would, said the scientists, make dentistry a pleasure for the patient.

After five years of nagging on my part, my dentist finally bought one of these contraptions for humanitarian reasons, mainly me. And it serves me right.

With this new souped-up drill that operates at a minimum of 45,000 revolutions per minute, the doc is still forced to administer the same old dosage of novocaine. To quiet his nerves, he says, not mine.

This is a water-operated drill that spreads a fine spray. At the end of an hour the patient looks and feels as if he had fallen into a fountain. In addition, it is necessary to keep a sump pump in the patient's mouth throughout the operation, lest he drown.

Furthermore, this superionic drill has the falling characteristic of all jets: Noise. Once the dentist gets to work on a heat-up molar, the concatenation inside the customer's noggin is a lyric combination of an air raid siren, a banjo reunion and a compression drill tearing into concrete.

It all adds up to a gruesome toothsome. Once more, science* has crossed with teeth impervious to time, tide and fudge sundae, or they came into this their own countries to gather news inside Red China.

Much information is already coming out that way. But much of it isn't printed when it comes out. Thus, in March a group of former Japanese military officers of high rank were in Red China for a month. They interviewed Mao and Chou En-lai. When they came out, they told a sensational story about how these Red Chinese leaders urged the Japanese people to join with the Communist Chinese "to expel" the United States from Asia. The article, which was put into the congressional proceedings on March 28, had been furnished several days before to the American press services by an American periodical, whose correspondent got the news in Tokyo. But it was not printed in the principal newspapers of the United States, thus indicating that there probably isn't much interest in the news from Red China nowadays despite the protracted discussions here about letting American newsmen enter Red China.

Perhaps the most pertinent comment on the whole subject has come from Walker Stone, editor in chief of the Scripps-Howard papers, who wrote from Rangon last month:

"Americans, engaging in academic disputes about free press, over whether U. S. correspondents should roam through Red China, or in disputes involving the principles of free trade, over whether goods should be sold to Iron Curtain countries, cannot know the effect of their words in this part of the world. These are not academic questions here; they are matters of life and death. When someone sneezes in Washington, politicians out here catch cold."

"Any sign in the United States of yielding to Red China is taken as a step toward recognition and giving respectability to the Communist regime."

"So, after all, it's a question of whether Red China, by its propaganda maneuver, shall use American newsmen as 'instruments' of its foreign policy or whether American newsmen will, as between the two 'instruments,' prefer to abide by their own government's wishes in a difficult question of international relations. ### The Press And Foreign Relations

WASHINGTON — Whenever the press is itself engaged in a controversy affecting its own interests, it is important that both sides of the dispute be fully presented. Thus, in the argument that has developed between the Department of State and the press services of the United States about sending news correspondents into Communist China, it is only fair that the position taken by the Secretary of State himself should be widely disseminated so that the public may make up its own mind as to the merits of the issue.

Mr. Dulles, at his press conference last week, was asked, for instance, to explain his recent statement that constitutional freedom of the press is really a right to publication of news and not a right to go everywhere to gather news. He replied:

"It has been suggested that by reason of the First Amendment that newspaper people in exercise of the freedom of the press have a right to freely travel everywhere. I merely pointed out that that is not the interpretation of the Constitution which the United States Supreme Court has adopted."

Mr. Dulles was asked for citations from court decision and he gave a number of them, the latest being a 1946 opinion by the Supreme Court of the United States which said:

"The purpose of the Constitution was not to erect the press into a privileged institution, but to protect all persons in their right to print what they will or to utter it."

Turning to the question of passports, Mr. Dulles pointed out that the scope of the authority of the State Department to issue or withhold passports was now under study in court cases and that he would be guided by what was finally decided.

"Doesn't your policy," he was asked, "amount to using newsmen as a weapon to force the Red Chinese to do what we want them to do?"

"It is, I think, a policy," replied Mr. Dulles, "which is designed to secure respect for American citizens, American lives, and the American passport throughout the world."

"Is it not true that your policy amounts to making the press — the American press — an instrument of American foreign policy?" was the next question. Here is the reply:

"No. Because our policy applies not only to the American press but to all Americans."

Mr. Dulles went on to say that he saw no objection to the use of foreign citizens to gather news in Red China for American press services. There are good newsmen who are citizens of countries which have recognized Red China. Many Canadian and British, Australian and other newsmen are already trusted employees of American press services and are regularly sending reliable news dispatches to the United States from foreign countries. They could, of course, get passports from

Jolt For The Soil Bank

The House got its tail over the dashboard and tore out across the wild prairies last week when it voted to kill the Eisenhower soil bank farm program as of the end of this year. It had been set up during last year's political campaign to run through 1960. Its proclaimed purpose was to reduce production and encourage conservation practices.

It was charged at the time that the soil bank plan came too late in the season to achieve any real beneficial effect. Some Democratic orators claimed it was designed especially to soothe and beguile the Midwest farm belt voters, for while it came too late to help Southern farmers — they had already committed their 1956 programs — it was not too late for the Midwesterners, for they still had time to cut their cloth accordingly.

Complaints started coming in almost immediately. It was claimed farm land speculators were moving in and blocking up large scale purchases in the expectation that soil bank money would ultimately pay most of the cost.

Be that as it may, the Democratic majority in the House, 165 of them, joined by 38 Republicans, voted 192 in favor of knocking the soil bank in the head. This was in the form of an amendment to the administration's Agriculture Department appropriations bill.

On the other side stood 187 votes, made up of 41 Republicans and 46 Democrats. Thus the margin of defeat was five votes. Eighteen members of the Texas Democratic delegation voted to kill the soil bank, as did the lone Republican from Texas.

It is now up to the Senate to go along with the House, or not to go along. If the so-called upper body refuses to go along there will have to be a conference committee to settle the dispute.

So as of this writing the soil bank plan isn't dead, but only half dead. Its survival will likely depend on how the nation's farmers react to the House action. If they don't like it they'll let the boys up at Washington know how they feel, and the Senate will refuse to go along.

It may be the House action was intended to give the administration a jolt in retaliation for Mr. Eisenhower's having gone over Congress' head in appealing to the people to stand by his embattled budget.

Then, having expressed its feelings in this roundabout way, and having got rid of its gorge, the House conferees will go along with the Senate and let the soil bank stay in the final appropriations bill.

We can only wait and see. If we were guessing we'd guess it stays in there.

Appointment Could Change TVA Concept

WASHINGTON — The power of the executive under the American form of government has its limitations, particularly when Congress is in a rebellious mood. But it is, nevertheless, a great power, if only by reason of the authority to fill the boards and commissions that loom so large in the bureaucratic structure.

This is well illustrated by the Tennessee Valley Authority which the Eisenhower Administration is about to take over in filling a second vacancy on the three-man TVA board. Ardent advocates of the TVA concept for the development of a whole region, through utilizing all the potentialities of a great watershed, have been deeply apprehensive.

To try to do what the United States Chamber of Commerce recently recommended — sell TVA to the private utilities — would be politically impossible. But it is not impossible, or so the dedicated friends of TVA both in and out of the region believe, to cut back the development in such a way that eventually there will be no other choice than to merge it with the private utilities.

That would be accomplished by appointing men to the board who take the narrowest view of TVA's role. The first Eisenhower appointee to TVA's board was General Herbert D. Vogel of the Army Engineers. Since he was named TVA chairman three years ago, Vogel has repeatedly been accused of betraying TVA.

It now appears that Vogel will, in effect, name the second man to the board. He has recommended the appointment of Adolph G. Ackerman, a consulting engineer formerly with TVA. Ackerman is the only name under consideration and as of now, it is highly probable that he will get the job.

The Senate must confirm the nomination, and ordinarily considerable opposition could be expected from Senators from the TVA area. But if the nomination should be sent up toward the end of a session in which legislation has been long delayed and tempers are worn down, then a prolonged fight would be unlikely. Or better still, from the viewpoint of those who want to see control established with as little fuss as possible, if the appointment were made after the Senate was in recess, the possibility of resistance would be virtually eliminated.

That is the fear of those who would like to prevent the appointment of a man whom they believe will be subordinate to Vogel. They are aware that the Ackerman nomination would have great plausibility. He is an engineer. He served with TVA, although as an associate of Arthur E. Morgan who dismissed as chairman after a bitter controversy caused a profound upheaval in TVA.

To name a second member with the Vogel outlook, so the argument of the TVA advocates goes, is to put the agency under the thumb of the chief executive. It is actually to concentrate more power in Washington, which is precisely what this Administration says it does not want to do.

Republican Senators with some feeling of friendliness for TVA complain that it has been impossible to find names of able men willing to take the job to suggest to the White House. Truly able men would not be interested, so runs their complaint, in a time of inflationary prosperity at a salary of $20,000 a year.

An able administrator could command a much higher salary. This leaves out of account, of course, those who might be willing to take such a position out of an idealistic conviction that in this way they could contribute more to the welfare of the region and the nation than they could in private enterprise. Such men might fall short of the Republican's specification, and the Administration, in view of the growing attack from the right, is just now very sensitive to the charge of being New Dealers.

It would seem that General Vogel's virtue is that he knew what he wanted and he was ready with a plausible name at the moment when the White House began to be faced with an unpleasant necessity. With Vogel having a majority on the board, the friends of TVA are saying disconsolately, the TVA idea as it grew out of the dream of the late Senator George Norris will come to an end.

Hubcaps Branded

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A program designed to discourage automobile hub cap thieves has been started here. Some 750 service stations have been equipped with electric engraving tools used to mark the caps of motorists. Police mark the hub caps of at least 100,000 of the estimated 220,000 cars being driven in the greater Denver area. The marking is done free. The program is sponsored by the Petroleum Retailer's Assn. of Colorado and the Denver Auto Theft Bureau.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY Likes Old-Fashioned Recipes For Beauty

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — Norma Brooks Ward, better known to her fans as "Candy" on "The Bob Cummings Show," declares that when you are in show business you have to be prepared to change the color of your hair at any moment.

"Dyeing one's hair is so much trouble," she confided, as we chatted at CBS-TV. "Unless one absolutely needs to change the color, I would not advise it. I've never attempted to do it myself because I know that it takes an expert to do it right, and going to a salon takes so much time. I was so happy when I could let my hair grow out to its natural shade again."

I noticed that Norma's nails were without colored polish. "I like a clear polish now because my nails were breaking and were so many different lengths that I didn't want to attract attention to them. But they are getting long and strong again because I'm using a white iodine solution. I keep this in a bottle with a brush attached to the stopper and paint them at least once a day."

"Don't you find this drying to your nails?" I asked. "Oh, I suppose it would be," Norma admitted, "but I always massage an odorless castor oil into my cuticle. I never have to cut my cuticle and I never have a hangnail. I keep this oil in an empty nail polish bottle because I like the attached brush. It's so quick to apply."

"Do you have any other beauty tricks?" I wanted to know.

Relerce Jones Has Atlas Plycron Tire

The new Atlas Plycron tire, sold locally by the Relerce Jones Humble Service Station at Fourth and Scurry Streets, increases carcass strength and, for that reason, gives greater blowout protection.

The new zig-zag tread provides hundreds of deep, non-skid edges and the new, improved, wide seven-inch tread and abrasion-resistant carbon black gives greater mileage that ever before. This means economy — lower cost per mile of driving.

The improved traction of the Atlas Plycron tire means better performances of your car at all speeds — on all kinds of roads. New treads and narrow outer ribs give softer riding, easier steering, cooler running and minimum squeal on turns.

Humble's Atlas Plycron Cushionaire tires are specially made in the Southwest, and specially tested in the Southwest to meet the Southwest's special driving conditions, where the tire temperatures rise in summer to 250 degrees Fahrenheit — beyond the boiling point in water.

If you trade with Jones, you trade with a man who has made his reputation catering to the wants of Big Spring's motoring public. The quality of the Atlas tire you get is known and guaranteed, service is prompt, courteous and complete and you'll get a trade you can boast to your friends about.

The Humble Company guarantees Atlas Plycron Cushionaire tires against all road hazards for 18 months of passenger car service.

The Jones station remains open seven days a week to offer service to its customers and maintains a vehicle for emergency duty to the motorist who might be stranded within the area.

River Maintains Courteous Staff

A staff of friendly, courteous personnel, backed by scores of years' service to bereaved families, is maintained at the River Funeral Home, Seventh and Scurry, Big Spring.

In addition, every facility for conducting the final services for a loved one, in strict compliance with a family's wishes, is provided by the institution.

Owners of the funeral home are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond River, both of whom, through training and experience, are expert at handling all the multitude of details involved in planning and conducting a funeral. Both Mr. and Mrs. River are licensed funeral directors.

Other members of the staff, also licensed, are Ernest Welch, Bill Gray, Joe Brown and Elbert Mann. They make up probably the only funeral home staff in Texas with every member holding funeral director's licenses.

Objective of everyone on the River staff is to fulfill every desire of a saddened family in the arrangement of funeral services.

Mr. and Mrs. River purchased the funeral home that now bears their name from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eberley four years ago. The Eberleys had operated the institution for more than 30 years.

River literally grew up in the funeral home business. His father operated a funeral home in Missouri, and Raymond started working there at the age of 14. He has operated his own business for 31 years.

He also has owned funeral homes in Missouri, and New Mexico and is a licensed funeral director in each of these states, as well as Oklahoma.

River Funeral Home maintains two ambulances for emergency service anywhere in the area. Each is equipped with oxygen, air conditioning and two-way radio

Little Leaguers To March In Rodeo Parade June 12

Plans are being made for about 150 Little League baseball players to march in the rodeo parade June 12. The players will represent the National, Texas and American leagues, rodeo officials announced today. Also, about 125 horsemen in at least five Sheriff's Poses will ride in the procession. Seven local organizations have entered floats in the parade. The Webb Air Force Base Band will lead the procession which is scheduled to start at 4 p.m. June 12. The big parade will open the annual four-day rodeo and cowboy reunion. Organizations entering floats in the parade will be competing for $100 in prizes. First place will be worth $50, second $30 and third $20. Plans to enter floats have been announced by the Junior Woman's Forum, Desk & Derrick Club, Evening Lions Club and Big Spring Civic Theatre, Toastmasters Club, American Legion, Howard County 4-H Club, and the Mu Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Sheriff's posses and mounted patrols will participate from Mitchell County, Lynn County, Dawson County, Martin County and Big Spring.

Ike-Monty Statement About Gettysburg Is Nothing New

By ROBERT D. PRICE
NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—By all the fuss stirred up, you'd think President Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery had said something new when they criticized tactics at the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg. They didn't. It never has been a secret that Gettysburg was far from a model of military maneuver. The multiplicity of mistakes made there, the might-have-beens make one reason why the battle has become such a fascinating study. Arguments about Gettysburg were on before armies left the field. They have been going on ever since. Over the years a weight of evidence has developed that is fairly conclusive. The point here is that Eisenhower and Montgomery said little that had not been said before. The battle was 1863, the third year of the war. The Confederacy, flushed with victory at Chancellorsville, decided to invade the North. Robert E. Lee marched his divisions up Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, then spread out over Pennsylvania, striking as far as Harrisburg and York. The Union Army, under " Fighting Joe" Hooker, pursued until late June, when George Meade replaced Hooker. The armies, groping for each other like wretches in a fog, collided accidentally at Gettysburg. For three days they fought, in the hills around the town, a battle that cost 50,000 casualties. The Confederates were defeated but retreated intact. Although the Confederacy fought on until April 1865, it never again mustered strength for an offensive thrust. Now consider the Eisenhower-Montgomery criticisms: 1. The famed charge of 15,000 Confederates led by Gen. George Pickett against the Union center on the third day of battle was "a monstrous thing," in Montgomery's words. In 1883, the Comte de Paris, writing a history long regarded as a standard work, concluded that the attacking column was "doomed to certain destruction." In 1955, Clifford Dowdley, one of the best of modern historians, wrote in "The Land They Fought For" that Pickett's charge was the "anticlimax of three days of blundering." 2. Lee displayed poor generalship. The late Douglas Southall Freeman, acknowledged peer of Lee biographers, wrote in 1944 that "next to Malvern Hill"—where Lee threw his divisions heading against an entrenched position—Gettysburg was "the worst fought of all" Lee's battles. 3. Meade should have crushed the defeated Confederate Army of Northern Virginia. E. P. Alexander, chief of artillery in James Longstreet's 1st Corps, dealt lengthily with that question in his "Military Memoirs of a Confederate," published in 1907. "It must ever be held a colossal mistake that Meade did not organize a counter stroke," after Pickett was repulsed, he said. "An advance by a single fresh corps"—and Meade had that Corps—"would have cut us in two."

St. Lawrence Girl Leads Boys In Contest On Ranges

GARDEN CITY (SC)—A girl seems to be the best informed of all the members of the Glasscock County 4-H Clubs on range management. She is Pat Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Saunders of the St. Lawrence Community. Pat was the only girl in a class of nine Glasscock 4-H'ers who enrolled in a six-day Range Management School conducted by Oliver F. West, county agent. The school, held last week, was climaxed by a range management judging contest and Pat was the high point individual both in the school and in the contest. Gary McDaniel was second and Doug Parker third. Others enrolled were Bud Saunders, Jack Asbill, David Harris, Walter Lowe Jr., Vernon Asbill and Ritchie Reynolds. The members of the class learned to identify 50 grasses and range plants, had some work on range conditions classification and treatment and practice in range plot judging.

Beauty And The Little Beasts

Marilyn Medina, one of the beauties with the Al G. Kelly and Miller Brothers Circus, plays with two of the smallest beasts to accompany the circus here Thursday. The baby tigers and scores of other animals make up the menagerie for the circus which will stage two performances north of the rodeo grounds in West Big Spring.

Circus To Spread Canvas In Big Spring Thursday

The Al G. Kelly and Miller Brothers Circus, largest now on tour in this country, will move into Big Spring Wednesday night and Thursday morning for two performances. The big top will be set up just north of the rodeo grounds in West Big Spring. The matinee performance is to start at 2 p.m. Thursday and the night show begins at 8 o'clock. Arthur W. (Art) Miller, general representative for the circus, said that Tim McCoy, veteran western movie star, will appear in person during the performances. This will be the first appearance of a circus in Big Spring in several years. More than 200 animals, an aviary of tropical birds, dens of reptiles and a vast herd of horses are included in the show, along with scores of traditional circus acts. Miller said the Al G. Kelly and Miller Brothers Circus is exceeded in size only by the famed Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey show. Since the latter folded its big top for the last time, the Kelly-Miller circus is the largest on tour under canvas this year.

Sex Offender Admits Slaying

BRISTOL, Conn. (AP)—Police said a convicted sex offender confessed today to the week-old slaying of pretty, 9-year-old Brenda Jane Doucette. They said short, slender George J. Davies, 30, of Thomaston admitted killing up the blonde third-grader, on her way to school "with the intent of committing sexual assault." Detective Thomas Loden quoted the slight-built Davies, the father of three children, as saying he "killed her when she began to scream." Davies was arrested on a coroner's warrant. It charges he killed the youngster after driving her to an isolated spot in nearby Wolcott.

Postal Fund Fight Like Goliath Tale—But We're In The Middle

By BEM PRICE
WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Everybody likes a David and Goliath story—unless they are in the middle when the rocks are hurled. And that is about where you are in the feud between Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield and the Democrat-controlled Congress. Summerfield asked Congress for $1.4 billion dollars to run the postal service for the next fiscal year beginning July 1. Even before the House and Senate Appropriations committees had acted on a cent of the request, Summerfield said he needed 70 to 90 million dollars additional. Despite his statement, both the House and Senate committees cut his original estimate by 58 million dollars. Summerfield promptly said he was going to reduce services. This is the attitude he took when Congress gave him 47 million dollars less than he asked last year—but with one slight difference. In the fiscal year which ends June 30, Summerfield spent his funds as if he had all the money he had asked originally. The net result was that he was short in the fourth quarter and curtailed services on a weekend in April. Congress then gave him 41 million more. Next year, Summerfield told the congressmen, he won't wait until the fourth quarter. The cuts in service will begin in July. All of this raises questions vital to you, aside from the possible reduction in services. Is Congress going to permit Summerfield to dictate his budget, however, indirectly? Or is Congress going to retain its constitutional right to control money spent by the executive department? If Congress doesn't give his department the money he says he needs, isn't it Summerfield's responsibility to make cutbacks? And whose decision is it where he cuts? Is part of this year's trouble because he painted mailboxes and trucks red white and blue instead of the traditional green, and extended service too heavily to new areas? One thing certain: While these questions are being settled neither Congress nor Summerfield is going to get their mail. You may be. This raises another question: What's going on inside the Post Office Department? In any case, since Summerfield told Congress in April that if he didn't put up the money he would shut up the post offices, this town has wondered, "Who goofed?" If Congress hadn't seen fit to fork over an extra 41 million dollars—pin money in a $2,984,000,000 operation—the post office would have been on a reduced service basis, Summerfield said, until the beginning of the new fiscal year July 1. As it turned out, the world's largest peaceful enterprise did partially shut down April 13 and 14 because Congress was slow in providing the money Summerfield said he needed immediately. Was it Congress' fault that the department ran short of money? Was it mismanagement on his budget by Summerfield? Was Summerfield playing politics in trying to force Congress to pass his postal rate increase bill? Should the Post Office Department be put on a pay-as-you-go basis? Did the Budget Bureau foul up the works? Is service really better? The answers obviously are not simple, for in any operation involving 508,000 people there are bound to be two or more sides to every question. On the record, though, this much seems clear: To get through the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, Summerfield asked for $3,030,557,000. The Budget Bureau cut his request to an even 3 million. Congress trimmed that by $15,860,000 more. In brief, Summerfield started out the year with $46,217,000 less than he said he needed—or roughly 1.5 per cent. As for what happened in April, when the department curtailed services, this much also seems clear. Summerfield overspent his budget during the first three quarters by $30,500,000, roughly the amount the Budget Bureau had trimmed from his original request. The department wound up in the fourth quarter with $40,727,000 less than Summerfield said he needed to take care of his growing operation.

Coahoma Woman Praises New Medicine

To my Friends and Loved Ones: This is my first time to write a testimonial about any kind of medicine, but this Citru-Mix has helped me so much that I want to tell others who suffer from that dreadful thing called rheumatism. I had it, rheumatism, arthritis or lumbago, or whatever you call it all over my body. It would be in my right shoulder then jump to my back or hip. It seemed that it would play around over my body. It has been in my toes, eyes and teeth. I would have to go to bed and quit, but not often as I am a mother of five children, I have been in hospitals and have gone to Mineral Wells and Marlin, Texas. Citru-Mix was recommended to me by a neighbor and I took three bottles. I got relief in less than two hours after the first dose. That has been ten months ago and I have not had one ounce of trouble since then. I want you to try just one bottle if you have suffered as I have. I have written this letter with my own free will and no one has paid me one cent for it. You may use it as you wish for advertising purposes. Mrs. Mary Wilson Coahoma, Texas Citru-Mix is sold by the name of R-12 at Collins Brothers Drug Store and Walgreen Agency in Big Spring, Texas (Adv.)

electric power

It takes a giant transformer to step up electric power, and it takes a giant medium to step up sales power. That medium is the daily newspaper, a giant that lives in every town.

The amount of sales power you get out of an advertising medium depends on its coverage, availability, readership (or listenership or viewership), flexibility and believability.

Ingredients like these can transform an ad campaign into a profit for the retailer, wholesaler, distributor, or manufacturer. And newspapers have these ingredients in abundance.

With newspapers, you can reach just about every prospect for your merchandise. You can gear your advertising to the weather, to readers' special interests, to time, to place—to suit your own convenience. And best of all—newspapers are the action medium.

That is why all advertisers invested more than $3,305,000,000* in newspapers last year—more than in TV, radio, magazines and outdoor combined.

Step right up and step up your sales power. Use the daily newspaper.

All business is local... and so are all newspapers.

Young Well Victim Reported Better

MANORVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—Seven-year-old Benny Hooper Jr. says he feels better and wants to go fishing.

But first, said his doctors, he'll need another week or 10 days to shake off several respiratory ills.

Benny was trapped almost 24 hours in neck-high sand after he fell to the bottom of a narrow well in his back yard. Rescuers pulled him from the 24-foot pit Friday evening.

Three doctors gave the blue-eyed boy a thorough examination at Bayview General Hospital in nearby Mastic Beach yesterday.

"He's in no danger as far as we can see," said Dr. Joseph H. Kris. "He has a simple inflammation of the right lung, a simple inflammation of the bronchial tubes leading to that lung and a simple inflammation of the sinuses."

The lung inflammation, he added, is not pneumonia but pneumonitis, which is less serious.

Benny was reported in "good" condition today after "a very good night." His temperature was 99—almost normal. He was still in an oxygen tent as a precaution.

The blond youngster made short work of a milkshake and a bowl of pudding for supper.

Earlier, his mother and father, his 6-year-old sister Wendy, and his grandparents visited him. That's when he brought up the subject of a fishing trip.

Hooper, a 33-year-old truck driver, promised to grant him his wish this summer.

Before the visit with their son, Hooper and his wife, Borghild, 30, went to Bible Protestant Church here to give thanks for the "miracle at the well."

Benny fell in the freshly dug well Thursday evening while his father turned to look for some pipe. More than 200 men fought through the night and the next day to reach the boy.

Sam Woodson, 39-year-old Negro construction worker, pulled the boy out.

Hooper issued a statement yesterday saying "God and teamwork did the job."

"I know personally everyone who worked in the hole from the very beginning and the relief workers who were there at the end," he said. "To single out any one person as a hero would be grossly unfair."

He said he wanted to express his "humble thanks and gratitude" to all who helped in the rescue.

Facing Operation

Debbiejo Bassett, 6, (center), critically ill Shadyside, Ohio, girl, is wide-eyed with excitement as she awaits her turn at rehearsal just before kindergarten graduation at Bellaire, Ohio. She is flanked by young Greg Vinko and Sally Jane Pott, probably neither of whom realize Debbiejo's condition. Pott has left her with use of only a fraction of her sole remaining kidney. She is scheduled for another in a series of operations shortly.

Youth Entombed 4.5 Hours In Vault

NEW HAVEN, Mich. (AP)—It didn't take long to get the 17-year-old John Chaffee Jr. out of a steel door in a vault. He called police. No one knew the combination.

Finally, some 2½ hours after John got trapped, locksmiths were summoned from Detroit, 35 miles southwest.

Chaffee appeared in no immediate danger. He lay on the floor of his 6 by 8-foot dungeon to breathe air from a tiny opening between the floor and door bottom.

When he was safely out, though, John said he had been uncomfortable and "plenty scared."

News of young Chaffee's plight spread quickly through New Haven, a town of 1,062, and many gathered at the old bank, including John's father, mother and younger sister.

Mrs. Anna Jouscou, 32, who owns a tavern next door, said she kept potatoes and onions in the vault all winter, and that her 5-year-old son Johnny had played in it frequently.

John fought off hysteria, mounting heat and thinning air while Detroit locksmiths rushed to the scene to free him. They did it after burning four holes in the steel door to release bolts that had been jarred into place.

Smoke from the cutting torches was pretty awful, John said, "but I crouched in a corner, pulled my jacket over my head and kept my eyes shut real tight. It was sure wonderful to see that door open."

Chaffee, a New Haven High School senior, and Richard Schroudt, 19, were among a group of young people cleaning up the old bank building for a party next weekend. In a bit of horseplay Chaffee ducked into the vault and Schroudt pushed the heavy door shut.

Then Schroudt found he couldn't open it, even with the help of half a dozen other husky youths. They called police. No one knew the combination.

Finally, some 2½ hours after John got trapped, locksmiths were summoned from Detroit, 35 miles southwest.

U.S. Industry Has Large Stake In Nevada A-Tests

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—American industry has an estimated 2½-million-dollar stake in the atomic test series which awaits a go-ahead today from weather experts.

The first test firing, tentatively set for early today, was postponed again last night by adverse weather. It was the fifth consecutive daily cancellation.

Because of the military significance of the six-year-long nuclear experimentation program carried out on this southern Nevada test ground, the role of business sometimes sags from sight.

The products of everyday life—the materials your home is made of, the automobile you drive, the food you eat—are being tested under conditions of atomic attack to determine if they would protect you, transport you, sustain you.

"Industry participation in the atomic test series deserves special mention," says Harold L. Goodwin, chief of Civil Defense cooperation for the tests.

"It began in 1953," he recalled, "with an extensive test of passenger automobiles. Since then many industries have participated."

"If the Federal Defense Administration has a clear need for information, we may ask for industry cooperation. Or, if the industry needs information for disaster planning and there is Civil Defense value to be derived, we sponsor the industry's proposal."
