Ike Willing To Talk Ban On Atom Tests

Change Noted In Policy For Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he would be perfectly delighted to make a satisfactory agreement suspending atomic tests while negotiating with Russia for some permanent disarmament program.

Under questioning at a news conference, Eisenhower said he believed—although he did not want to commit himself finally at the moment—that a prohibition on the manufacture of atomic weapons might not necessarily have to be a part of the package for suspending tests.

His tentative comment on this point was contrary to what State Department officials have been saying privately since negotiator Harold Stassen returned to London. Their line has been that the United States would only agree to suspend tests as part of a first step agreement which also provided for halting manufacture of weapons under a carefully inspected program.

Eisenhower told his news conference that a three-point proposal put forward by Russia in the United Nations talks at London a week ago deserves the most earnest and sympathetic study although he could not yet say how it would work out.

The Soviets called for a two-to-three-year moratorium on atomic tests, for a commission to supervise the agreement and for inspection posts within the territories of Russia, the United States and Britain.

Eisenhower said this was a hopeful sign for the Russians to put up such a proposal but that he would want to see all the details. He added it is one thing to state a generalization and another to see how it works out. Eisenhower began his question and answer discussion of disarmament by stating that Stassen was not reprimanded when he returned to Washington 10 days ago. The Allies, mainly France and Britain, had complained that Stassen was working too closely with the Soviet representative, Valerian Zorin.

Eisenhower said that he had heard of the feeling that Stassen was running too fast. In response to further question he said that he did not think that Stassen's usefulness had been ruined by being called home for consultation and by the reports that he had been reprimanded.

Bristow Party To Draw Crowd

Ticket inquiries indicated today that there will be a large turnout of fellow townsmen Friday evening, when the community makes a gesture of appreciation to Obie Bristow. The prominent Big Spring, now serving his third term in the Texas House of Representatives from this district, will be honored at an informal barbecue.

Friends of Bristow sponsoring the affair have stressed that tickets should be purchased by noon Thursday, so that suitable arrangements can be made for food. They are available at the Chamber of Commerce at $1.50 each. The barbecue will be at the Cosden Country Club, starting at 7 p.m.

While the program will be brief and without formality, there will be three to publicly voice appreciation to Obie for his services to the city and to the state. These are Waggoner Carr of Lubbock, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Dr. P. D. O'Brien of the First Baptist Church and the Rev. Bill Boyd of St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

NAACP Denied Time Extension

TYLER (AP)—A request by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People for a 90-day extension of time to file exceptions to a permanent injunction was denied yesterday by Dist. Judge Otis Dungan.

The injunction was issued by Dungan. He said that the rules made no provision for an extension of time, there was nothing before the court permitting him to grant or refuse the request. The deadline for filing exceptions to the injunction was yesterday.

Japs Await Final Ruling On Girard

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese officials warned today an American court decision blocking a Japanese trial for William S. Girard would menace the U.S.-Japan Mutual Security Treaty unless the U.S. Supreme Court upsets the ruling. Justice Minister Umekichi Nakamura said the District Court ruling was "not binding" and Japan would go ahead with Girard's trial as planned.

Yuzo Kawachi, the judge assigned to preside over the trial, said, "The trial will open about the middle of August." He acknowledged, however, that he didn't know what would happen if Japan orders Girard produced for trial while U.S. Army authorities are under orders to hold the 21-year-old soldier from Ottawa, Ill., for trial by an Army court-martial.

Supreme Court sources pointed out that if he fails to appear at the first court session, the trial cannot open. Girard now is in Army custody, confined to Camp Whittington, north of Tokyo. Fears that Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy's injunction would damage relations between the two countries were expressed by Atty. Gen. Tosa Sato and Minoru Tsuda, spokesman for the Justice Ministry.

But both voiced confidence the U.S. government will do all it can to let a Japanese court try Girard. The Washington government already has filed notice of appeal to the high court. Sato declared McGarraghy's order breached an agreement under the mutual security pact governing trial of Americans in Japan. The Japanese claim jurisdiction under the agreement to try Girard for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Naka Sakai on a U.S. firing range last January.

Justice Minister Nakamura said the court ruling was not binding because the Japan-U.S. joint committee created by the administrative agreement between the two governments has the "final say" on the question of jurisdiction over Girard. The Joint Committee's ruling that the Japanese could try Girard had been approved by the U.S. government.

Pay Hike Rejected

CHICAGO (AP)—A Montgomery Ward proposal, which the union said approximates a pay hike of 5 cents an hour, has been rejected by a Teamster Union local in Chicago.

All indications pointed to a direct appeal to the Supreme Court, with hopes for a final decision before the court ends its present term next Monday. The final decision on whether to go directly to the Supreme Court rather than going through the U.S. Court of Appeals here rested with Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin. His decision is expected today.

Appeal machinery was set in motion within an hour after U.S. Dist. Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy handed down his decision in favor of Girard yesterday afternoon.

This came in the form of a formal notice of appeal filed in District Court. Girard's attorneys and supporters were jubilant at McGarraghy's decision. The judge ruled that to surrender the 21-year-old soldier to the Japanese would violate his constitutional rights. The State and Defense departments had decided some time ago that Girard, a specialist, third class from Ottawa, Ill., should be tried by Japanese courts on charges that he fatally shot a Japanese woman who was scavenging for scrap metal on a firing range in Japan.

Girard, who was guarding equipment on the range, has said the shooting was accidental. The woman, Mrs. Naka Sakai, was killed by an empty cartridge casing fired from a grenade launcher. Girard now is in Army custody at Camp Whittington, about 60 miles from Tokyo.

At the Pentagon, a spokesman said the Defense Department will take no action while the case is being appealed. The State Department refused comment. The incident was blown up into an international storm, and the case reached its latest stage as Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi was heading for a series of talks with high U.S. officials in Washington. Kishi was due here today.

Govt. Will Hasten Appeal For Reversal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government moved with all speed today in an effort to upset a court ruling barring U.S. authorities from turning over GI William S. Girard to Japan for trial on manslaughter charges.

All indications pointed to a direct appeal to the Supreme Court, with hopes for a final decision before the court ends its present term next Monday. Hoffa Charges Wire-Tapping In Bribe Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa's lawyer today claimed evidence against him was obtained by wiretapping, but the government promptly denied it.

Hoffa, Midwest Teamsters Union boss, arrived half an hour early this morning for the start of his U. S. District Court trial. The government charges he bribed and conspired to plant a paid informer on the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee staff.

Hoffa's attorneys filed a motion to quash any government evidence obtained through wiretapping. They also subpoenaed Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell to testify on whether there have been any wiretapping authorizations to the FBI.

But the government promptly filed an answering motion to quash the Brownell subpoena. This contained a denial by Brownell that there has been any FBI wiretapping.

Hoffa's future as a Teamster leader largely hangs on the outcome of this trial. Conviction probably would end his power; an acquittal likely would put him in line to become the next president of the Teamsters. But he also is under a federal wiretapping indictment in New York.

The 44-year-old Hoffa was called to trial in U.S. District Court with a codefendant, Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney and former counsel to several congressional committees.

They are charged with conspiring to bribe and bribing an attorney to get a job on the staff of the Rackets Committee and to feed Hoffa secrets about its work. They also were charged with obstructing operations of Congress and the rackets probes.

Hoffa was arrested the night of March 13 in a hotel lobby here. FBI agents nabbed him after he allegedly received new Rackets Committee data from John C. Chesky, a Rackets Committee staff member.

The three-count indictment against Hoffa and Fischbach alleges that Hoffa agreed to pay Chesky some $18,000 to keep him informed of committee activities, and that Hoffa actually paid Chesky $2,000.

Uphold New Trial For B. R. Sheffield

AUSTIN (AP)—The Court of Criminal Appeals voted 2-1 today to uphold its previous ruling that B. R. Sheffield, partner of Bascom Giles in a veterans' land scandal deal, should be retried again.

The three judges voted together April 24 when they cancelled a 10-year prison sentence given Sheffield. He was convicted in Lubbock in August on a charge of passing a forged instrument. Judge K. K. Woodley voted against the other two judges today. He said the court had erred in its early decision when it said Sheffield should be retried because the trial judge erred.

Japanese Prime Minister Here For Friendly Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Japanese Prime Minister Kishi arrived today for three days of high level talks which he said may open a "new era of Japanese-American relations."

The 60-year-old Conservative leader flew here from San Francisco on President Eisenhower's plane, Columbine III. He was greeted at National Airport by Vice President Nixon and a military reception.

Nixon told Kishi of the "admiration, respect and friendship" of this country for the people of Japan. In an airport statement, Kishi said the purpose of his visit was "frank and friendly" discussions with the President and top aides. The objective, he said, is for Japan and the United States to work together more closely, and hence more effectively, in the cause of world peace and human welfare.

"I confidently hope," he added, "that my visit to America will help prepare the way for a new era of Japanese-American relations." Kishi was accompanied by his new ambassador to this country, Koichiro Asakai.

Among officials on hand for the airport greeting were Secretary of State Dulles, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Douglas MacArthur II, U. S. ambassador to Japan.

Kishi, once purged from political activity by U. S. occupation forces but now regarded as a firm ally, went from the airport to the Blair House, the government guest house. Later he planned to go to the White House to begin talks with Eisenhower. They also had a round of golf on tap.

Robbers Take $250,000 Loot From Singer's Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Three armed thugs robbed opera star Lauritz Melchior last night of cash, furs and jewels he said were worth nearly $250,000.

Police surmised that the robbers slipped into the Melchior estate when an electric gate was opened to admit guests.

Melchior said part of the loot consisted of what were once part of the Royal Danish jewelry collection. He said he acquired the items in the 1930s so they wouldn't fall into the hands of Germans. One item was a diamond necklace Melchior said once adorned the neck of the Grand Duchess Anastasio of Denmark, mother of the present King Frederick IX.

"I told them of a wall safe behind my record collection in the anteroom," Melchior said. "I knew there wasn't much in it. But these fellows were pretty cagey. They wanted to know where the real stuff was."

Mrs. Melchior, former German opera singer, finally led them to it. While they were tying him up, Melchior said, he decided to fake a heart attack. The Wagnerian tenor, clad only in shorts, keeled over, pretending to retch, and simulated a man on the very brink of death.

His performance, he said, disconcerted the robbers. One got him a drink of water. Another checked his hands and feet and loosened the bonds slightly. When they left they promised to call back to see if everything was all right. The call never came.

Search For Dahse Goes Without Letup

Civilian and military pilots kept doggedly at their search Wednesday in an effort to turn up some trace of C. A. Dahse, 32, missing on a flight from here to Tulsa, Okla. since Friday.

From Col. Sid Perryman at Wichita Falls came word that the search was continuing with every available resource. Col. Perryman, who resides in Olney, is commander of the Texas wing of the Civil Air Patrol.

While more than a score of planes piled the probable route between Big Spring and Wichita Falls, operations in Oklahoma were stepped up. Reports that headquarters for the search had been moved from Wichita Falls to Duncan, Okla. were in error. Actually, there were new operations out of the Duncan area.

The Oklahoma search heads up under Col. Howard at Oklahoma City. Mrs. H. W. Smith, mother of the missing private pilot, had flown Tuesday with Bill Edwards, Cosen pilot, in company with a daughter, Nancy Smith, and Ann McLaughlin, Tulsa, whom Dahse was to have visited last weekend.

Wednesday, H. W. Smith took off with Cecil Hamilton in a continuation of the search. At Wichita Falls, Col. T. E. (Dink) Hubby, commander of Group II for the Civil Air Patrol, said that five planes were in the air out of Wichita Falls early Wednesday morning. More were due to join the search. He was in touch with Col. John Wallace, Mineral Wells, commander of group IX. Together they had reports of

Court Throws Out Conviction

AUSTIN (AP)—The Court of Criminal Appeals voted today to free B. F. Donald of Alice, who had been convicted of conspiring and misapplying $1,000 of Benavides School District funds.

The majority opinion by Judge Wesley Dice said the indictment was insufficient. The court reversed the lower court's judgment and ordered the prosecution dismissed.

Judge K. K. Woodley disagreed and said the decision was a "change of position by this court" and "is unfair to the state." The decision knocked out a five-year sentence given Donald, convicted in a change of venue trial in New Braunfels. He had been treasurer for the district.

Donald had been indicted with Duval County politician George Parr, D. C. Chapa and Givens Parr. The appellate court had thrown out a similar conviction against Chapa in March. Chapa is a former assessor-collector for the district.

Strike Holds Up Big French Liner

PARIS (AP)—The French liner Liberté was forced to delay its scheduled departure for New York today because of a strike by maritime engineers and mechanics of the Communist-dominated General Workers' Union.

Six Jurors Picked In Washburn Trial

DALLAS (AP)—The job of picking a jury for the second murder trial of Harry Washburn in the booby trap slaying of his former mother-in-law was half finished by noon today.

Six veniremen were questioned during the forenoon and a single juror was accepted. He is C. B. Hill, 24 printer for a paper firm. Lawyers previously had averaged one juror from every 10 panel members.

Dakota Recovers From Bad Floods

SIoux FALLS, S.D. (AP)—One of the worst floods ever in South Dakota began to wane early today, leaving three dead, two missing, and millions of dollars in damage along a 100-mile line. The three-day floods, created by torrential rains Sunday, widened the big Sioux River and a host of creeks.

The French Naval Radio Station identified the vessels as the 15,000-ton tanker Stony Point, sailing under Liberian papers, and the 19,000-ton Greek tanker Ioannis. But the Greek ship was also reported to be a freighter named Joannis or Ionis.

All reports of the disaster, some 20 miles off the tip of the Brittany peninsula, came by ship's wireless from rescue craft. The fog was so thick off the coast that aircraft couldn't locate the burning ships.

Byrd Challenges Humphrey Claim Of Federal Savings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) today sharply challenged claims of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey that the Eisenhower administration has reduced the national debt and federal spending.

Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, led off the questioning of Humphrey, first witness in the committee's long-heralded investigation of the nation's financial condition.

The Virginian said Humphrey, in his 50-page statement yesterday, stated the administration had cut both the debt and the rate of federal spending. The facts, Byrd declared, are that the debt has gone up almost

Reduction Is Over 384,000 Barrels A Day

AUSTIN (AP)—The Railroad Commission slashed the July oil allowable today by 384,631 barrels a day, believed to be the largest monthly cut of record.

The statewide pattern was based on 13 days or production for an allowable of 3,033,004 barrels daily.

The decision was reached by Commissioners Ernest Thompson and William Murray who said they could not recall any more drastic cut in any one month before. They said this would have to be verified from commission records.

Commission Chairman Olin Culbertson, who was absent, had a statement read saying he would not vote for less than 15 days of permitted production.

The announcement by the oil regulatory body after its monthly prorating hearing was loudly applauded by representatives of major purchasers and independents.

All major oil companies asked for a reduction, including a 12-day recommendation by Magnolia. Independents took the view that a "rateable take" based on a smaller producing pattern than June's 15 days would be better than selective buying as a result of pipeline prorating.

"The purchasers are setting their own allowables anyway. We may wishfully think that 15 days should be taken, but in reality they won't take production based on that many days," said Bruce Street for the West Texas Oil and Gas Assn.

In his statement, Culbertson said he thought "that a further reduction in producing days authorized by the commission will have serious and adverse effect upon the functioning of the state governmental agencies which rely to such a great extent on taxes collected on oil."

Representatives of the major oil companies made these production recommendations: 15 days, Sun; 14, Shell, Gulf and Texas; 13, Atlantic, Indiana Oil Purchasing, Cities Service, Phillips, Humble and Sinclair; 12, Magnolia. Purchasers have nominated for 2,959,669 barrels, a drop of 106,111 from June nomination. The forecast of demand by the Bureau of Mines was 2,875,000 barrels daily, a drop of 200,000 from June.

Oil Tankers In Collision At Sea

BREST, France (AP)—Two big oil tankers collided and burst into flames in darkness and fog off Brittany today. Eight sailors died in the oily sea but more than 50 were rescued.

It was a ticklish job for rescue vessels picking their way gingerly through fog and fearful of explosions from the burning ships. But they managed to pick up the surviving crewmen, including 10 who were seriously hurt. Late this afternoon none was reported missing.

The French Naval Radio Station identified the vessels as the 15,000-ton tanker Stony Point, sailing under Liberian papers, and the 19,000-ton Greek tanker Ioannis. But the Greek ship was also reported to be a freighter named Joannis or Ionis.

All reports of the disaster, some 20 miles off the tip of the Brittany peninsula, came by ship's wireless from rescue craft. The fog was so thick off the coast that aircraft couldn't locate the burning ships.

Thomas said that when the transcript is complete next week he will go to Austin to ask the Court of Civil Appeals to permit a bail bond for Rocha and Wright so they can be released pending outcome of the appeal.

Big Spring Youths Denied New Trial At Sterling City

STERLING CITY (SC) — Motion for a new trial in the case of three Big Spring boys was denied by Judge G. D. Murrell here this morning.

Clyde E. Thomas Sr., and Wayne Burns, Big Spring, representing Nicky Rocha, Herman Lee Wright and Doyle Hall, gave formal notice of appeal. Thomas said appeal bond of $400 had been posted for each of the boys.

The three were charged originally with Mickey Martinez as being delinquent in connection with attempted service station holdup and the fatal shooting of Taylor Garrett on May 7. Martinez previously was sent to the State Boys School at Gatesville. Last week, Nicky Rocha and Herman Lee Wright were ordered to the school, but Doyle Hall, who was asleep during the incident, was prohibited to his parents.

Thomas said that when the transcript is complete next week he will go to Austin to ask the Court of Civil Appeals to permit a bail bond for Rocha and Wright so they can be released pending outcome of the appeal.

Byrd said the administration's budget now being considered by Congress for fiscal 1958 should be listed at $73,600,000,000 instead of the usually stated $71,800,000,000. That is because $1,800,000,000 of highway spending included in previous budgets was listed outside the 1958 totals, he said.

Outstanding Airman To Be Webb Representative At AFA

M-Sgt. Vincent Best, wing sergeant major, has been selected to represent Webb AFB as the outstanding non-commissioned officer at the national convention of the Air Force Association.

Sgt. VINCENT BEST

The AFA will meet in Washington, D.C., in July. Each year one airman from each of the major commands is selected to be honored during this convention. The airman is given expense money, hotel rooms and meals are furnished, and they occupy seats of honor during the business meeting and social events.

Sgt. Best will be competing for this high honor with other outstanding non-commissioned officers of the Air Training Command. He is a graduate of Antwerp High School, New York. His higher education was obtained at a private school, Delbert's of Philadelphia, Pa., where he studied accounting. During his school years he was active in a variety of sports, including football, baseball, softball, bowling, basketball and hockey.

Best entered the Air Force on Jan. 12, 1940, and has continued his service without interruption. Shortly after his initial enlistment he graduated from the Army Administration School, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La. He reached the grade of master sergeant Feb. 6, 1945.

Sgt. Best, who has just turned 34, has a total of 17 1/2 years of active service, with a third of that time in overseas assignments.

During World War II he served in Trinidad for 12 months during 1943 and 1944. Immediately following that tour he went to the India-Burma-China Theatre, for a 19-month assignment. Five years later he was sent to England, where he was stationed during 1951 through 1954.

During his tour in Burma, the sergeant recorded 35 combat missions as supply liaison sergeant, making frequent flights over the "hump."

He has been awarded the Purple Heart, Bronze Star, Good Conduct Medal, Asiatic Pacific Campaign Medal, Chinese Liberation, Pre-Pearl Harbor and American Defense Medals, the World War II Victory and Korean Defense Medals.

New Insurance Board Waits On Commissioner

AUSTIN (AP)—The Board of Insurance cannot function until it has a commissioner of insurance, the attorney general has ruled.

The reorganization bill requiring a commissioner was signed into law June 12 by Gov. Daniel. Atty. Gen. Will Wilson issued the opinion yesterday to the board, answering questions about the bill. Speculation arose at once as to the legal effect of any action taken by the board since June 12.

The commissioner will have to serve without pay until Sept. 1 as no appropriation was made and the state spending bill does not become effective until then. Commissioner will draw $20,000 a year. Wilson said the present board may appoint a commissioner and limit his term until the new board comes in July 1 and appoints a permanent commissioner.

Chairman John Osores said the board was studying the opinion and "will take such action as allowed to take under the opinion." He and Commissioner Mark Wentz will leave the board June 30. They will be replaced by David Irons and Penn Jackson. A Daniel appointee, J. P. Gibbs, has been retained.

Cotton Measuring To Commence Soon

Cotton measurement in Howard County in connection with the program of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee will be launched in the immediate future, according to Gabe Hammack, office manager.

In a letter to all farmers enrolled in the ASC, Hammack asked that all growers send a postal card to the ASC office advising when a stand of cotton has been secured on the farm. These cards, it was said, will be of material help in the task of measuring the acreage.

Hammack also pointed out that the farmer will have to be with the reporter when the crop is being measured. The farmer will be expected to assist in the work and show the reporter all of the land planted to cotton on the farm.

At the same time, Hammack asked that any person who can work at measuring cotton fields in the summer to contact him. Several such employees will be needed.

Persons who are over 20 years of age and those with a farm background will be preferred, it was said.

"Remember," the letter warned, "in strip cropping cotton with fallow or other crops than cotton must be at least four normal width rows and the pattern must be consistent across the entire plot. Normal width means the fallow or other crop rows must be the same as the cotton rows and under no circumstance less than 36 inches."

Take All Else, But Leave My Stamps

NORTH SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Thieves finally made Mrs. Grace Sebastian angry.

Police said she told them she didn't care enough to report the theft of a $100 watch, $80 in cash, $100 worth of liquor and some gas from the car over a period of six weeks.

"But when they took my seven books of trading stamps I got mad," she complained. "I licked every stamp myself."

'Operation Andrew' Works For Graham

NEW YORK (AP)—One person brings another. That's a key way by which New York Christians are getting skeptical acquaintances into Madison Square Garden each evening to hear Billy Graham. Businessmen and housewives, the famed and the lowly are taking part in the job.

It's called "Operation Andrew"—derived from the fact that the apostle Andrew brought his brother, Peter, to Jesus. "Very few ever came to Jesus without somebody bringing them," Graham says.

There are some striking examples of how the process is working to get a variety of people out to hear the evangelist—who otherwise might not go—but who end up in some cases dedicating themselves to Christ.

One Manhattan business executive, Jewish-born Jack L. Lewis, who was led to Christianity by Graham, has reserved a box at the Garden, and brings about 15 to 18 guests each evening.

"I've never been so happy as since I found Christ," he said. "I was always groping for something . . . and now that I've found it, I want others to find it too."

He rounds up his groups by hundreds of telephone calls to friends, customers and business associates, and on occasion, by taking large parties out to dinner before the Graham meetings.

Morris Townsend, another New York businessman, fills a reserved box each evening with guests.

But the main "Operation Andrew" chore is being done by ordinary church people. Two churches are running nightly bus rides to the meetings—free to all—from downtown Brooklyn. Others are doing the same from other areas.

Rains Move To South Texas

Heavy rains drenched parts of South Texas Tuesday night and tapered off Wednesday.

A downpour of 5 inches in an hour at Brownsville flooded streets. Lighter rain spread from Del Rio and Laredo to Lufkin. Light rain fell again Wednesday morning at Brownsville.

The Weather Bureau forecast widely scattered thundershowers over all sections of the state through Thursday.

Heavy rains Tuesday night came as a cool front swept into Louisiana after lashing North Texas and South Plains crops.

More than an inch of rain fell Tuesday in Wichita Falls and Dallas and other areas received lighter amounts. Cotton plants were beaten to the ground again near Electra.

Doug Is Host To Royal Family

LONDON (AP)—More than one British blueblood turned green with envy last night when Douglas Fairbanks Jr. scored the season's social triumph by entertaining Britain's royal family.

The veteran American actor and his West Virginia-born second wife staged the coup with an elaborate coming-out party for their debutante daughter Daphne. The affair—a champagne fete for 350—was held at historic Cliveden, home of Britain's Astor clan. The third Viscount Astor, a pal of Fairbanks, loaned him the palatial spot for the night.

Enticing Queen Elizabeth II, Prince Philip and Princess Margaret all to a private party is no mean feat for anyone, let alone an American show person.

The dapper Duke of Bedford tried it last week at a coming-out party for his stepdaughter Nora Lyle and got a turndown. "I asked them all," said the duke, "but they were busy."

Fairbanks and his wife since the war have made their home in England, where he is associated with a number of film and television enterprises.

Fairbanks, who had a distinguished war record with the U.S. Navy, made the Dieppe raid with Adm. Lord Mountbatten and through him met Mountbatten's nephew Prince Philip.

Here's the scientific way to measure the actual pulling power a truck can deliver to its rear wheels. All three low-priced trucks were hooked up, one by one, to a special dynamometer truck. Each was comparably equipped and test-loaded.

Super-sensitive gauges inside the dynamometer truck register the maximum pull of each truck at 10 m.p.h. Insets in photos above show actual gauge readings in each case. To convert these readings into pounds, simply multiply them by three.

The results are conclusive evidence that Dodge Power Giants give you a third more pulling power than either of the "other two" low-priced makes. And this is just one of a series of tests that prove Dodge is the best truck of the low-priced three.

A Bible Thought For Today

But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him. (1 John 2:27)

Best Time To Face Inevitable Problems

Come July 2 and bids will be opened on 800 units of housing which may cost upwards of $74 million. The will be located south and east of Webb AFB and will be reached via the old San Angelo Highway.

This means that during the construction interval, scores upon scores of automobiles daily will be plying the road. Upon completion, every family will have at least one car which will make one or more trips daily to town.

Already the road is carrying a heavy volume of traffic. Our guess is that the amount of travel will double or treble, in which case the present roadway will be inadequate and hence not entirely safe.

We submit therefore that it is time to give some serious thought to either widening the road, or preferably to converting it into a four-lane thoroughfare which will handle almost any volume of traffic both rapidly and safely. There is vastly more involved than the base housing area (which might be enlarged by the time it is completed), for the entire area from that point to town will in all probability settle as steadily and even rapidly.

And while giving consideration to this, it would be well to think about some sort of traffic circle at the point where the City Park road merges with Marcy Drive as it swings around the base of scenic Mountain toward the base.

The best and most economical time to do something about these inevitably pressing problems is now before property is constructed where roadway will be needed.

A Couple Of Hard Money Men

We came out of the First World War with a public debt of around 25 billion. Considerable progress was made in trimming it down during the first few years following the armistice, but when the great boom leading to the big bust got in full swing in the midtwenties and tax-cutting and tax - refunding reached the zenith, payments on the public debt fell off.

The right kind of tax structure and diligent paying off of the debt in the 1920s might have prevented the big bust of 1929, and cleared the debt entirely.

The debt limit today is $275 billion, and expenditures keep the total bumping right up against the limit most of the time. No really serious effort to pay off the debt has even been made.

Out of Senate Finance Committee hearings opening Tuesday may come something designed to reduce the national debt by the extreme expedient of starting to pay it off. One proposal by Sen. Keating would start pushing the debt ceiling down by setting aside about two per cent of national revenues in 1958, by three per cent in 1959, and by five per cent starting in 1963, for debt - reduction purposes.

The hearings which opened this week will pit two conservatives against each other in the person of Senator Byrd (D-Va) and retiring Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey. It will be Humphrey's chore to defend the administration's fiscal policy and Senator Byrd's to rip into it hammer and tongs.

Senator Byrd is a budget - balancer and expenditures-slasher from way back. In this role he enjoys the respect of conservatives on both sides of the aisle. The late Sen. Robert Taft said he agreed with Byrd 80 per cent of the time in his stand for economy in government and the elimination of waste.

Byrd, who observed his 70th birthday June 19, is an apple - checked and apple - rich Virginian who won a reputation as a budget - balancer during a four - year term as governor of Virginia.

Ever since he entered the Senate in 1933 Senator Byrd has bombarded Congress and the newspapers of the country with anti - debt and pro - economy material. Through thick and thin he has fought for economy in government as a means - the only sure means - of keeping the budget balanced and the national debt in focus.

It will be interesting to see how these two hard - money men, Byrd and Humphrey, spar with each other in these hearings.

Democrats Wear Isolationist Tag

WASHINGTON. — The vote by which the mutual security program favored by President Eisenhower was adopted by the Senate reveals conclusively that it is the Democratic party which contains the larger bloc of "isolationists" and not the Republican party.

Counting those who were present and those who were absent but who announced their stand on the measure, the final tally of record is 65 for to 29 against the "foreign aid" program. Eighteen Democrats and 11 Republicans comprised the opposition.

This means that more than a two-thirds vote of the 94 recorded favors international cooperation along the lines of a mutual defense fund and a developmental loan fund together with economic and technical aid.

But this isn't the picture or the story which has hitherto been given to the American people or the European peoples. For months the Stevenson-Truman worshippers in the radio and communitarian field have been holding the Republican party up to ridicule as dominated by an "isolationist" or what they conveniently call a "right wing" group though the general public has never been told exactly what that means in international affairs.

Many of the British and French correspondents here and in New York who usually relay to Europe and accept as gospel the views of the anti-administration critics with hardly ever an analysis of the political and partisan forces behind them now must in the interest of accuracy revise their reports and tell the European people that 18 Democrats in the Senate as contrasted with only 11 Republicans were ready to kill the President's request for a $2,637,600,000 authorization to carry on the mutual security program.

Also on the final record it is shown that 36 Republicans contrasted with 39 Democrats favored the program - again more Republicans than Democrats. The opposition of 18 Democrats and only 11 Republicans indicates clearly where the danger of the future lie.

It so happens that 13 of the Democrats come from cotton-growing and two from wool-growing states which makes 15 out of 18 senators as coming from states which have been lukewarm toward doing anything that mutually could build up the economy of countries whose products might compete in world markets with American producers. This may be a mere coincidence but there were overtones in the debate against the Eisenhower doctrine a few months ago which disclosed some of the same cleavages reminiscent of the days of tariff controversy.

But it must also in all fairness be inquired whether any economical influences from back home governed those who voted for the foreign aid program. Thus there was quite a lot of enthusiasm in Democratic circles emanating from the financial centers of the nation which looked on the $500,000,000 developmental loan fund in the new measure as possibly the foundation for a structure of private investments that could pyramid into a large amount of private business such as is always generated when government money starts the revolving of dollars in international exchange. The Democrats as a party still must rely to some extent on some of the big conservative banking and legal talent of the Eastern seaboard for their campaign support and contributions.

Hence it may be inferred that the large vote for the program came from elements which rightly foresaw as did many Republicans perhaps a new period of growth in foreign trade and investment - "ong orthodox lines instead of so much on the "give-away" basis.

The program just adopted took many months to formulate and it had bi-partisan support outside as well as inside Congress. It is most unfortunate that the Democrats have so many "isolationists" now because it causes their leadership to tread a zigzag course which often means withholding bi-partisan cooperation. This doesn't prevent some of the same Democrats from continuously sniping at the President's handling of foreign affairs though mostly they concentrate their fire on Secretary Dulles when they know that the President makes all the important decisions. There is still a hesitation to fight Mr. Eisenhower himself too vigorously. It's easier to attack Dulles.

Over the weekend the Democratic leadership revealed a glaring inconsistency in their off-repeated charges that it is the Republican administration which ignores bi-partisanship in foreign policy. It was announced, for instance, that the Democrats wouldn't send any senators to London to sit alongside Harold Stassen as an adviser in the disarmament talks as the administration requested. This may be wise strategy politically and a realistic appraisal of the difficulties anybody including Stassen's superiors in Washington would have nowadays in advising him. But publicly at least it puts the Democrats on record as breaking down a useful custom in international affairs - sending some senators of both parties at least as consultants if not principals in an international mission.

It seems incredible however that only a few weeks ago many newspapers were reporting from Washington that "foreign aid" was doomed and now the program sails through the Senate by more than a two-thirds majority and with the Republicans outnumbering the Democrats in votes given in support of the measure. ### Court Ruling Puts Brake On Red Prosecution

WASHINGTON. — The government - because of the Supreme Court decision overturning the convictions of 14 Communists - may have to drop its cases against another 45 already convicted, or attempt to try them again.

The court's decision Monday put a brake on the prosecution of Communists. They can still be prosecuted. But the government will have a tougher time. And one charge, used in almost all Communist trials, can't be used at all any more.

This is an explanation of what the court did and what the government faces: In 1940 Congress passed the

Smith Act, under which the government has obtained convictions against 103 Communists. For the purposes of this explanation, the Smith Act says three things:

1. It's a crime to conspire to organize a party or group whose purpose is forcible overthrow of the government.
2. It's a crime to teach or advocate the forcible overthrow of the government.
3. It's a crime to be a party member, knowing its purpose is forcible overthrow of the government.

Only 4 of the 103 convicted Communists were tried and found guilty under No. 3. They are appealing now to the high court.

Their situation is not pertinent to this story and can be dismissed here.

But the remaining 99 were tried under Points No. 1 and No. 2: the combined charge of organizing and advocating. Of those 99, the Supreme Court has upheld the convictions of only 28. Five convictions it threw out because of the questionable testimony of a witness.

A total of 52 - excluding the 14 whose convictions were thrown out Monday - are now in the process of appealing the guilty verdict against them to the Supreme Court. A breakdown of those figures will be given later.

The Communist party was actually created in 1919. It changed its name to the Political Action Assn. in 1944. In 1945 it resumed the name of Communist party.

It's a fact the party is continually recruiting new members while old ones drop out. But the court this week decided the party under the terms of the Smith Act was organized in 1945.

The court said the 14 - whose convictions it overruled this week - should not have been convicted on the organizing charge. It gave this reason: There is a statute of limitations which says a man cannot be tried for a crime under certain laws - including the Smith Act - unless tried within three years after committing the offense.

But, the court says, the Communist party was organized in 1945. So unless a man was charged with organizing it within three years of 1945, he can't be charged or tried.

Navy Digging In Vain To Find Missile In Yard

ERICA, Va. — After three days of digging that produced nothing except a yawning hole in the ground, the Navy has yet to unearth the one-ton missile that landed in a back yard here last Wednesday.

Workers using a heavy power shovel have excavated a crater 35 feet wide and 30 feet deep behind the cottage where the non-explosive 16-inch shell fell. The projectile apparently was still deeper in the sandy soil.

Repeated cave-ins and the tendency of the crater to fill with water discouraged the Navy, which indicated it might give up the search as a bad job. The shell, from a gun at the Dahlgren Naval Proving Grounds about 25 miles from this resort community, misfired and landed several miles from its target area.

Around The Rim Looking Back Over 25 Years

My aches and pains and the things which happen to me are no different than those which come to you, and so I hope I won't be boring you with a brief bit of reminiscing.

Recently my colleagues paid me a surprise honor on the occasion of 25 years service with the Herald, and I cannot resist a little backward glance. Some mighty nice - in fact much, much too nice - things were said and written, but I am human enough to enjoy the fragrance of a flower while you can still sniff it. I have achieved just enough wisdom in the 25 years to realize that if I save that clipping, my great-grandchildren will be impressed by it.

Under a circumstance like this, you sort of get the feeling that maybe you're fudging a little because lots of people have put in 25 years of work, or even 50. The only real achievement in my instance is that I managed to sit still.

In all the years I have been privileged to be associated with the Herald, I can remember very few sensational cases in which I had a direct or intimate connection. Maybe I had the knack for being in the wrong place at the right time, or vice versa, but I never was witness to the eloping of an heiress, or a bank robbery. Only once did I get to play detective by suggesting a lead to some officers, and then I wasn't nominated for the Sherlock Holmes award of the year.

I can't recall anything I might have written which caused any derelict officials to be driven naked and disgraced from the temple of justice. Nor can I remember that any dramatic reforms have blossomed forth following editorials or other items I might have penned. You might conclude that it has been a pretty dull 25 years. On the contrary, they have been interesting and often exciting. Gradually many changes have come about in which you get the feeling that perhaps you had a small part like the drops of water wearing on a rock.

The things I remember most are the good things which happened to my friends and my community, or sometimes the tender sorrows which you share with those you have come to know and love.

I remember such things as John R. Hultes, then approaching his 60s, hiking miles across the hills with his little Latin-American Scouts trailing him like quail; or Shine Phillips, his glasses pulled up on his forehead, laughing until tears filled his eyes; or Uncle John Wolcott pulling the stars back on that model A as he headed home for lunch; Supe Blankenship almost tipping over backwards on the stage during commencement; the look of consternation on George O'Brien Jr.'s face when he realized homefolks had thronged the airport to pay tribute to him as a Medal of Honor winner; the way people suffered and then exulted when the football boys broke a long drought and went to the state finals; the little knots of smiling people peering out of doors as rain poured down.

I had learned to write in all these years, I could write a book about such things.

Just A Nice, Quiet Family Wedding

Is there any event in the life of man in which so many careful, well-laid plans gang at a-gley as at his wedding? And which are only laughing matters in retrospect, after the last grain of rice has been swept out of the house?

The youngest Robb niece was married the other day. And with a deal of June-moon pomp and circumstance, despite the fact that just over three years ago, on her older sister's wedding day, she jumped at her exhausted father's offer of a $1,000 bonus if she would only elope when the time came.

What loving thought and efficiency went into the plans for Mary's wedding! After all, experience and Harriet's wedding three years ago had been our teacher. But there are special gremlins (suitably dressed in white, of course) who do nothing, I'm sure, but toss monkey wrenches into wedding machinery.

Gremlins certainly got into the wedding dress. Nothing else can account for the fact that when the exquisite picture-gown of white embroidered organdie, arrived at home, four days before the wedding, it had been ruined by a pair of inept scissors.

And nothing could be more symbolic of the fact that all the world loves a bride than the frantic race against time by a great Fifth Avenue store. On the day of the wedding, it delivered a duplicate dress, perfect to the last stitch, that sent the bride to the altar beautiful as a dream despite the 96 - hour nightmare that left the whole family limp.

The bride's handsome mother got up and down the church aisle without so much as a limp, though eight hours earlier she had fallen upstairs and declared herself maimed for life.

The bride's brother turned out to be the most efficient usher of the lot, after leaving his proper shoes and shirt at his home (they had to be rushed to him) and being on his way to the church minus his lawn - colored vest when some one noted the oversight.

The bridegroom wasn't nervous at all. His tones were firm and ringing when he said "With this wing I thee wed." Still calm and collected at the conclusion of the ceremony, he started down the aisle without kissing his bride - and had to be gently reminded of the oversight while the church rocked with laughter.

There was a rather long wait after the bride tossed her bouquet, as guests stood about clutching rice and rose leaves with which to pelt the happy bride and bridegroom as they set off from the reception on their honeymoon. Somehow in the excitement, the person entrusted with taking Mary's going - away ensemble to the reception had forgotten to do so, and had to race across the town to fetch it. Otherwise, nothing much happened. It was just a nice, family wedding like thousands of others in America this month.

The bride's 84 - year - old grandmother had the last word. "Thank goodness," she said, "there aren't any more grandchildren to get married. I don't think I could stand another wedding!" And we all said "Amen." (Copyright, 1957, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Budd Has Plan To Repay Colleges

PHILADELPHIA. — Late in February, the finance officers of 36 colleges and universities - from Yale to Michigan and Cornell to Pennsylvania - blinked happy eyes at surprise checks from the Budd Co., manufacturer of automobile bodies, railroad cars, plastics, jet engine components, nuclear systems, and other products.

The checks ranged from $176 each for Marquette of Wisconsin and Stevens Institute of New Jersey, to $352 for Wesleyan, President Edward G. Budd Jr.'s own alma mater, to $704 for Harvard, to $2,188 for Temple University, Philadelphia, biggest recipient.

The checks, though unexpected, were not exactly unusual. Budd is a diversified company, whose products do not include mousetraps. Yet, in recent years, fund-raisers from American institutions of higher learning have been beating a well-worn taxi route to the door - usually with negative results and considerable soul-searching and vexation to Budd and the senior officials of the company.

The vexation was largely internal. "We felt an obligation to help colleges and universities," said Budd. "But we had no way to do it. There was always the tendency to handle each approach on a per-sonal basis or an expediency basis. The tendency is for the giver to favor his own school. I wanted a plan we could justify to our stockholders."

Over the years, the company had made some contributions - $100,000 to the University of Pennsylvania in 1950 for a physics library; $100,000 to Temple in 1951 for the general building program; a total of $32,000 to Drexel Institute of Technology, Philadelphia, in 1952 and 1954 for its building program; $31,500 over the years to Massachusetts Institute of Technology for research; and $11,500 in 1955 and 1956 for a transportation research center at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Finally, a plan was drafted, which, in use Budd's own words, "is based on the usefulness of educational institutions to the company." A sum of money is appropriated yearly. This sum is prorated among institutions that have supplied the 285 members of Budd's executive staff.

In this, the first year, $25,000 was appropriated. So each executive was worth $88 ($25,000 divided by 285) to his alma mater. To qualify, a college must provide Budd with at least two executives and operating funds from private sources. This last eliminates most state institutions. Since Temple supplied 36 Budd men, it got the top amount. The University of Pennsylvania came next with 35 employees and $3,000. Drexel Institute third, with 26 employees and $2,328. Villanova, outside Philadelphia, fourth with 20 and $1,700, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology fifth with 19 and $1,672. Pennsylvania State University was next with 18 and $1,584.

Budd gifts can be used for buildings, research, scholarships, salaries - anything educational. This prompted Carroll V. Newsom, president of New York University (four Budd executives, $352) to say in a letter of thanks: "Funds for general purposes, so badly needed in educational institutions, are hard to come by, and we are doubly grateful when we receive them."

The Budd plan is modest. It doesn't compare in dollar value to the million dollar Du Pont annual provides for scholarship, research, and direct grants. It's tiny relative to the $5,000,000 spent annually by General Motors on a four-part program embracing scholarships, research, unrestricted grants, and operation of the General Motors Institute (for engineering) at Flint, Mich.

The Budd plan has simplicity to commend it. Gifts are not contingent on recruitment of employees, as the Bethlehem Steel plan. They're not directed to special research or scholarships, as are so many corporate-giving plans. They're an unrestricted "payment" to institutions that have furnished persons who have made good at Budd.

What Others Say

Fervent sponsors of civil rights legislation have fought vigorously against extending the right of trial by jury to contempt proceedings arising out of civil rights litigation.

Much the same approach has been taken to the Fifth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution, which safeguards the citizen against self-incrimination. We grant that use of the Fifth Amendment has been carried to undue lengths, just as civil rights feel has been the case by those seeking jury trials in contempt proceedings in civil rights cases. But it would be blindness not to recognize the danger of gradual erosion of constitutional rights and liberties in the process of attacking them by indirection.

The process is bolstered by the desire not only to obtain convictions but also to secure them without due process of law. In that arbitrary attitude one may recognize the ultimate death of all the rights embodied in the Constitution, including that detailed in the equal rights amendment. —JOHN WORTH SEAR TELEGRAM

Ike Defends Rights Bill As 'Moderate'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today his civil rights program is moderate and decent and is not aimed at persecuting anyone.

Eisenhower told a news conference he is badly disappointed that some people believe the civil rights program involves an intent to disturb the rights or social order of a particular section of the country.

The bill passed the House yesterday. A boiling controversy is in prospect over efforts by a Senate group of Republicans and self-styled "Liberal" Democrats to speed Senate action.

Led by Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), this group seeks to put the House bill on the Senate calendar— withholding it from the Senate Judiciary Committee where it might be sidetracked for weeks, and perhaps forever.

Eisenhower was asked whether he hopes Senate Republicans will remain in Washington throughout the summer if necessary to help break a prospective filibuster by Southern senators against the bill.

Eisenhower declined to answer that directly. He said he normally does not comment on the handling of legislation before Congress because he does not wish to interfere.

He went on to say, however, that the civil rights program he recommended to Congress was designed to be conciliatory and moderate. Not in any part of it, he said, was there any thought of persecution.

Eisenhower said when the Supreme Court unanimously decided against further segregation in the nation's schools a great many things could have happened. He said the opinion caused a great deal of stir.

It was his thought, the President added, that this was a time for moderation and for development of some plan for good will. He was badly disappointed, Eisenhower said, to see that some persons believe there was in the program an intent to disturb their established rights and social order.

U. S. Blamed For Europe Occupation

TOKYO (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev says the United States bars the withdrawal of foreign troops from Western Europe because it fears the people of that area "might want something other than capitalism."

Asahi Shimbun, Japan's largest newspaper, today published a 3½-hour interview with the Soviet Communist party boss in which he declared U. S. reliance on military force to preserve peace in the "philosophy of a man who desires war."

"We would like to withdraw our troops from Germany, Poland, Hungary and other nations," Khrushchev said, "but America, Britain and France do not want to withdraw their troops."

Khrushchev called for a "united movement" on disarmament, nuclear weapons and peaceful co-existence.

"I feel it would be a good idea for Russia to express its willingness to ban nuclear tests and for Japan, India, Red China and other Socialist and anticommunist countries to follow up with their declarations," he said.

The Russian Communist chief again asserted it is technically impossible to conceal nuclear test explosions, but said "Russia is ready to allow international inspection in Russia in return for inspections in the U. S., Britain, Canada and other points."

Condition of Richard L. Hardy, King Apartments, who was severely injured early Tuesday when his car was wrecked 10 miles west of Big Spring, was reported as satisfactory this morning at the Big Spring hospital.

X-ray examination disclosed that Hardy's injuries were restricted to a broken arm, a broken ankle and injuries to one hand. He had no internal injuries, it was said.

Hardy lost control of his car after it rumbled a pile of gravel. The car flew through the air for 72 feet, the state highway patrol reported and turned over, throwing Hardy out.

Lawsuit Clouds Nuptials

A half million dollar lawsuit brought by the future bridegroom's parents against the parents of the bride-to-be cast a shadow over the plans of Leland W. T. Cummings Jr., and Mary Louise Werner to be married in Milwaukee, Wis., Cummings Sr., a Philadelphia chemical engineer filed suit in court against Miss Werner's father, wealthy Milwaukee industrialist Arnold J. Werner. The older Cummings alleged conspiracy to deprive the Cummingses of the services of their son. (AP Wirephoto).

University Faculty Argues Case Of The Negro Co-Ed

AUSTIN (AP)—University of Texas President Logan Wilson said yesterday faculty members debate over the removal of a Negro coed from an undergraduate opera does not reopen the case.

"It was just debate," Wilson said about a meeting of the faculty council Monday when some professors called his action "distressing and damaging" while others said it was "judicious."

No official action was taken by the faculty, who are elected to a non-council professor.

Wilson, not present at the meeting, said he did not plan for the election of a faculty committee on integration, as was suggested by a non-council professor.

Dr. Roger Shattuck had suggested the new faculty committee, after calling Wilson's action "distressing and damaging."

Wilson removed last month Barbara Smith, 19, of Pittsburg, Tex., from her lead role in "Dido and Aeneas." She was to play the lead opposite a white man.

"The people of Texas and all other American citizens are entitled to some kind of testimonial to the administration's attitude was not approved unanimously," said Dr. R. H. Williams, who submitted a 5-page report condemning the actions.

Other professors who commended Wilson's actions as "judicious" were Drs. J. W. Reynolds, Glenn Barnett and Clyde Colvert all of the College of Education.

Daniel Seeks Gas Bill Change

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel has asked a provision which he said threatens state powers "be stricken" from the natural gas bill pending in Congress.

In a letter made public yesterday to Senate majority leader Lyndon Johnson, Daniel said:

"I am convinced that relinquishment of state power to control gas prices through proration, ratable measures would constitute an additional step toward the loss of state power to control any natural resource."

Daniel said he was talking about a provision of the Harris-O'Hara bills which would free natural gas producers of utility-type rate regulation.

The provision, he said, "would pose a serious threat to state powers of conservation and could also affect the power of the state of Texas to tax natural gas."

The governor said limitation of gas production to market demand and the compelling ratable take "are well established conservation measures."

"The courts might conceivably find that such taxes constitute a regulation of the sale price of gas," Daniel wrote. "Federal preemption in this field would be disastrous."

Accident Victim Said Satisfactory

Jess Talkin

Yesterday I drove over part of Mitchell County hoping to see some good crops. The only crop I saw worth mentioning was sunflowers. There are millions of them and they stand from four to eight feet tall.

At Westbrook I turned south across the railroad and went through the old Conway community. About five miles from town I stopped and talked to Dalton Conway, who was trying to plant a field that had grown up in sunflowers.

"That field was too wet to plant all spring," he said, "then yesterday when I finally got the tractor in it, I found it too dry. Those sunflowers took out all the bottom moisture while the top was drying."

Conway said a lot of land in the community had been put in the soil bank. No one has much crop, and for weeks at a time could not get into the fields. His gauges showed a total of nearly 17 inches since April 1.

Conway said the place was once a thriving community, but nearly half the people have left since the drought started. He has spent most of his life there, and said the community was named after his grandfather who was one of the earliest settlers in Mitchell County.

I had never been down there, so decided to see more of the country. I drove on south to intersect the Colorado City-Sterling City highway and passed through the Spade community. There is not much community left. Many houses are vacant and some fields have been abandoned. This is a rolling, brushy area, with only a few level places. The fields are sandy on the ridges but have reddish clay along the draws and creeks.

I stopped at two houses but no one was home.

When I crossed the Morgan Creek bridge just a few hundred yards below the big lake, I stopped to visit with a Mr. Mearse. He is a man past 65 and lives two miles north of Loraline.

He said they had plenty of trouble getting a crop started, but this morning he wasn't worrying about cotton and maize. He had put a paper sack lunch and jug of water in the old car, and came up to the creek to catch himself a mess of catfish.

I stayed quite awhile, for this is the kind of fishing I know best—a cane pole, a can of worms and a pool of still water. I half expected to see him spit tobacco juice on the worm, but Mr. Mearse didn't seem to be a chewing man.

He began to get some bites right soon, though, and probably caught a big mess for supper. I had to go on to Colorado City but the next time I'm down that way, I may just put in a fishing line and can of worms and drive over and catch bridge again. Maybe Mr. Mearse left a few of those catfish in the creek.

Mitchell County is probably as bad off as Howard in the crop department. County Agent Jack Burkhalter said that heavy rains had kept farmers out of fields. A few crops planted last week were coming up, while others got hit by an inch to an inch and a half rain early yesterday morning, and may need replanting. Most of the older crops are weedy and will require a lot of hoeing.

Burkhalter said ranchers were very happy over grass prospects. He said all the ranges are healing over with weeds and grass, but hardly anyone is buying cattle to put on the new grass.

"I expect some of them may buy more cattle later on," he said, "but they want to give the grass a chance to grow awhile yet."

There is a scarcity of good lumber for the FFA and 4H feeding projects, and several county agents and agricultural teachers are still scouring the country for them.

Bill Sims, assistant county agent at Big Spring, says that during the drought most West Texas ranchers sold off a lot of their breeding stock. He says good lambs are hard to find.

Farmers are always saying they haven't made a crop since such and such a year. Bill Winters of Vincent says he has a record to beat this. He has never made a good crop.

Bill is not very old, though, and has been farming only six or seven years. He had a good chance this year, but the rains just kept coming and he kept planting over. Yesterday he was at it again, and said the rain last week took out a good stand of cotton.

Bill is a brother to Willis Jr., who owns quite a slice of country near Balmorhea. He said Willis intends to feed out several thousand head of steers this year, providing he makes a feed crop.

C. A. Denton, who lives near the Cosden refinery, seems to be doing all right with his flock of 830 caged hens. Denton started in the business rather cheaply last summer. He made the house from sheds already on the place and bought cages for half price.

The hens started laying last July and have been in steady production ever since. For awhile they dropped down to 50 per cent, but he says the last few weeks brought egg production back to 60 per cent.

Denton says the hens have helped a lot on making a living. He made some mistakes as everyone will, but he profited from these errors and is now making some profit.

Two things he did help increase the profits. He began buy-

$173,000 Contract Awarded By Furr

Construction is due to begin this week on a 20,775-square-foot super market at Eleventh Place and Donley for Furr Food Stores.

Contract for construction of the store and for paving Young and Donley streets adjacent to the block it will occupy was awarded Tuesday to James E. Walker, Lubbock builder. Walker's adjusted bid was the lowest of eight proposals.

Roy Furr, president of the food chain, and G. R. Billingsley, architect, said contract with Walker would be signed today. Work order was to be issued immediately, and Billingsley said construction probably will be under way by the end of this week.

Walker's bid for building the store and installing paving was a $173,062. The offer called for substituting concrete block for face brick on the exterior.

The Walker base bid was about $300 higher than that of West Texas Builders, also of Lubbock.

but the other firm cut its offer only $3,029 for deleting brick and Walker chopped off $5,549.

Estimated completion time is 90 calendar days, which will permit opening of the store around Jan. 1.

The building will occupy an area about 150 by 130 feet. It will be situated on a full block, bounded by 11th, 12th, Young and Donley. Parking facilities will be provided for 194 automobiles.

The eight bids tabulated ranged to a high of $189,987. Bidders, in addition to the two Lubbock firms, were Suggs Construction, A. F. Kasch & Sons and J. D. Jones Construction, all of Big Spring; Rose Construction and Boyd J. McDaniel Company of Abilene; and Basin Construction, Midland.

Dissension Still Prevails In Board Of Water Engineers

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Board of Water Engineers today remained in an unsolved puzzle as members disagreed whether firing their chief legal counsel would restore harmony. "I can't say Joe Carter was the main reason for dissension of the board," said member Otha F. Dent, who supported Carter. "His leaving doesn't mean board harmony."

Chairman R. M. Dixon had asked for Carter's resignation as chief counsel, a job he has held since 1953. Longtime board member and former chairman H. A. Beckwith said he voted to accept the resignation "in the interest of board harmony."

Dent, who said he voted "reluctantly" with Dixon and Beckwith, did not explain what the reasons were for the dissension among the 3-member board. The intraoffice fight broke out into the open last week, delaying the board's long awaited action on whether to allow construction of multimillion dollar Canyon Dam. Dixon early last week said he expected the decision before Friday, but delays followed delays. The board continued in "closed conferences"—not open to the public—to discuss the project.

Both the city of San Antonio and the Guadalupe Blanco River authority seek permission to construct the dam near New Braunfels.

Still not commenting, Carter yesterday handed in his resignation effective July 1. He did not give any reasons.

Dent and Beckwith both voted with Dixon in accepting Carter's resignation. However, both said they did not ask for it. Beckwith said he voted to accept the resignation "in the interest of board harmony."

Freak Mishap Stops Train

GRANTS, N. M. (AP)—About 35 passengers were bruised and shaken up last night when a freak accident slammed on the emergency brakes of the Santa Fe's westbound El Capitan streamliner.

No one was hurt seriously. A railroad spokesman said about 14 miles east of Grants a loose tie plate flew up and severed the air brake hose on one of the cars. This automatically applied the emergency brakes. The four rear cars came uncoupled and then slammed back into the forward part of the train as it stopped.

A tie plate is an inch-thick piece of steel about 8 by 12 inches. It fits between the rail and a tie and is normally spiked to the tie. The El Capitan resumed its Chicago-Los Angeles run about four hours late with all the passengers.

Ike Wins Victory In Atomic Agency Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—Strong, bipartisan approval of U. S. membership in the International Atomic Energy Agency has given President Eisenhower another foreign policy victory in the Senate.

Democrats slightly outnumbered Republicans in the 67-19 vote by which the Senate last night ratified the IAEA treaty and approved U. S. participation. The proposed agency is an outgrowth of Eisenhower's "atoms for peace" proposals (in 1953. No House action is necessary. Democrats also outnumbered the Republicans in a 55-31 vote rejecting an amendment by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) which would have denied Eisenhower authority to provide fissionable materials to the agency without prior congressional consent. With Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), the majority leader, supporting the President all the way,

Vote Set On Wheat Quotas

Referendum on wheat marketing quotas for 1958, recently declared by the Secretary of Agriculture, will be conducted at the ASC office at 403 Lancaster on Thursday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

All wheat growers of the county who expect to produce more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest in 1958 are eligible to vote in the referendum. Both a farmer and his wife, if they qualify as wheat growers, may ballot in the referendum. It was announced at the same time that July 1 is the final date to apply for "new grower" wheat allotments for 1958. All farms with no wheat seeded for grain in 1955, 1956 or 1957 are considered as "new farms" under the terms of the wheat allotment program. Application forms are now available at the ASC office. All of the wheat growers on the rolls of the

Royal Enclosure At Ascot Never Saw The Like Of It

ASCOT, England (AP)—The babe with the biggest bust in British show business gate-crashed the hallowed royal enclosure at the Ascot races yesterday. It was sensational, and the place may never be the same again.

The girl with the bust is Sabrina, nee Norma Sykes, known the length and breadth of the British Isles as "Television's Dumb Blonde." She has become famous by the simple process of standing in front of the cameras and breathing. The vital statistic is 41 inches. Sabrina's appearance before the royal family and among the peers of the realm created a bigger shock than the victory of an 8-year-old gelding named Bonhomie in the day's feature race, and Bonhomie paid 75-1 on the tote. They won't let you in the royal enclosure at all if you are divorced.

Dressed in a low-necked flowered organdy, Sabrina walked into the enclosure without a ticket while the gate man was groping around the royal turf for his eyeballs. "Scandalous!" hissed 17 duchesses, or it may have been 18. "Shocking!" muttered six viscountesses, or maybe it was seven. "Yes, m'deah," murmured their titled escorts as they kept on looking.

A reporter who encountered the show girl asked her what in the world she was doing in the royal enclosure. "Looking," giggled Sabrina, "for the ladies' powder room." After a 15-minute search Sabrina departed as thousands peered, including a rare assortment of pop-eyed dukes, viscounts, lords, barons and earls. Queen Elizabeth II and the other members of the royal family did not appear to notice.

Insurance Firm's Creditors To Get 33c On Dollar

AUSTIN (AP)—A payment of about 33 cents on the dollar can be made to creditors of the defunct U.S. Trust and Guaranty Co. when litigation is completed.

This was reported yesterday by state liquidator J. D. Wheeler, who said $2,449,221 is available for $7,292,385 in approved claims. A group of claimants' suits seeking priorities in disbursement of assets were recently tried and is now on appeal. Other assets to be made available for distribution later include the Waco home of A. B. Shoemaker, former president of the firm, and some real estate including a farm.

Town Turns Down Merger Proposal

PORT ARTHUR (AP)—By a vote of 747 to 113, residents of the suburb of Griffing Park yesterday turned down a proposed consolidation with Port Arthur. Lakeview, another suburb, is to vote on a similar proposal in the near future. Port Arthur is seeking to promote mergers with two other suburban municipalities, Pear Ridge and Groves.
