Christian Penetration Of Africa Brings Weird Names

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—There is nothing sacrilegious about the African Castoril Dead Church.

Or the Catholic Church of South Africa King George Win the War. Or the African Correctly Apostolic Jerusalem Church in South Africa.

They are just a few of the 1,400 religious sects which have grown up among the Bantu people of South Africa since 1910, when missionaries poured in. They have deviated a bit from the more orthodox religions represented by the missionaries.

They include much religious dancing and chanting. They baptize in the name of the Holy Trinity by total immersion and preachers claim Christ was a black man. Periodically a drowning is reported after an overenthusiastic minister has held a convert's head under water too long.

They count their memberships either in thousands or on the fingers of one hand. Their ministers are either flamboyant prophets or domestic servants who don robes on Sunday afternoons to hold religious rituals on a nearby vacant lot.

The four largest are: The Church of Christ, founded by self-styled Bishop James Limba; the Church of the Nazarene, whose prophet is J. Galilee Shembe, a university graduate; The Zion Christian Church of Edward Lekanyane; and the Nationwide Parish of Nicholas Bhengu, preacher and faith healer. Each of these churches has an estimated membership of 50,000 and in most cases are family concerns with leadership handed down from father to son.

The sole church recognized elsewhere in the world is the African Methodist Episcopal Church, which is part of the American Negro church of the same name.

Task Force Named To Go Over Educational Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Folsom has appointed a special task force to review the recommendations of the Presidential Committee on Education Beyond the High School.

The committee, in a report to President Eisenhower, proposed among other things that parents of college students be given income tax relief through deductions or credits, that the federal government back a work-study program for students, and that college teachers' salaries be doubled in 5 or 10 years.

Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), meanwhile, said he planned to introduce a bill calling for 2 1/2 million dollars for a state-by-state survey of what colleges will need to meet an enrollment which the committee estimated will double by 1970.

Case said the bill would allot money to states on the basis of school-age population, with the states matching the federal contributions. No state would get less than $10,000 in federal money.

Adult Brain Usually Weighs Three Pounds

By RAYMOND COFFMAN
Usually I get up in the morning at whatever time I happen to awake between 7 and 8 o'clock. The other night, however, I wanted to be sure that I would wake up at half past seven, and I set an alarm clock.

As it turned out, I awoke with this question on my mind, "What's the matter with that alarm?" I looked at my clock, and saw that the time was exactly half past seven! The minute hand was splitting the 30-minute mark! Six minutes later the alarm sounded.

I mention that incident because it is an example of the power of the brain. Some persons can awake at the exact time they decide in their own minds. They have a "sense of time." We may describe this as an extra sense, in the same way that an excellent "sense of direction" is an extra sense.

The brain of an adult usually weighs about three pounds, but some human brains weigh almost four pounds. Extreme size supplies little, if any, proof that the brain is superior. Some feeble-minded persons, as well as some who are brilliant, have extra-large brains.

Q. How does the human brain compare in size with the brains of animals?
A. It is larger than the brain of any animal except the elephant or the whale. An elephant's brain usually weighs from six to 10 pounds. The total weight of an adult elephant is from 30 to 40 times that of an average human adult.

Q. Whales have brains which are much smaller in proportion to weight than those of elephants.
A. They are called "smart insects," but the brain of the average bee contains only about 900 nerve cells.

U. S. May Link Relations With Red Bulgaria

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some high administration officials are looking into the possibility of re-establishing diplomatic relations with Communist Bulgaria.

The last time congressional leaders were sounded out on such a move, months ago, the State Department drew a completely negative reaction and the matter was dropped. However, a new interest in taking action to end the seven-year-old break is now developing.

Diplomatic authorities are reported to feel the United States would gain it.

One of the chief arguments is that the American government should have representatives in contact with all the Soviet satellite governments in Eastern Europe and in position to observe closely developments throughout the European belt of Communist governments.

Furthermore, they argue that the conditions which originally brought the decision to break off relations in February 1950 have long ceased to exist.

At that time, less than two years after the Yugoslav break with Stalin's Russia, the satellite countries were caught up in political turmoil, harassed by fears of Titoism and given to exposing what they called plots to get them to break with Russia as Yugoslavia had done.

The purge charges against alleged traitors sometimes included charges against the United States or its diplomats.

In the case of Bulgaria charges of interference in the country's internal affairs were made against U.S. Minister Donald R. Heath in connection with the purging of Deputy Premier Traicho Kostov. The Bulgarian government declared Heath personally unacceptable and ordered him out of the country.

The United States reacted by denouncing the accusations against Heath and breaking off diplomatic relations. This final step followed the exchange of a series of notes between Washington and Sofia concerning Bulgarian treatment of American legation personnel.

In April 1956 Premier Anton Yugov, the present head of the Bulgarian government, came to power and feelers were put out about the possibility of resuming diplomatic relations with Washington. State Department officials showed interest but decided after sounding out congressional sentiment that the move would draw little or no support.

Knowland Governorship Bid May Toss GOP Into Brawl

WASHINGTON (AP)—The expected announcement of Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) that he will seek the California governorship may plunge Republicans into a battle over their Senate leadership in the next session.

Knowland has announced he will not seek re-election to the Senate next year. He has indicated he intends to hang on to his GOP leader's post, however, until his term ends.

But if he becomes a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and is faced with a campaign fight, some of his colleagues doubt he will want to be tied down in California primary battles usually are a 60-day affair, carried on in April and May before the June test at the polls. This is about the time Congress begins to get busy—considering major legislation.

If Knowland were forced to campaign against GOP Gov. Goodwin J. Knight he would have little time to spend handling his leadership duties at a critical period.

Knowland has given no sign he will step out of the way for Knowland. The governor has said he doesn't want to run for the Senate.

But a Knowland announcement would be likely to bring a statement from Vice President Nixon that he is supporting the senator. This is on the theory that Knowland would be the stronger candidate and that Nixon feels it is necessary to keep California in Republican hands if the GOP is to win in 1960.

Sen. Kuchel (R-Calif.) and a majority of the 17 GOP California congressmen could be expected to line up behind Knowland also.

Faced with any such weighty opposition, some politicians think Knight might find it the better part of political valor to switch to the Senate contest.

In Sacramento, Calif., Knight declined to comment.

If he faces no major primary battle, Knowland can be expected to continue as Senate GOP leader. As assistant leader, Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) is the obvious heir apparent, Dirksen made every effort to establish himself as an Eisenhower Republican in last year's campaign when he won re-election in Illinois.

Some of the original Eisenhower supporters have not forgotten, however, that Dirksen fought hard for the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio in 1952.

Demos Puzzle Over Butler Statement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leading Democrats said today they are puzzled by the complaint of National Chairman Paul M. Butler that a clique of party members is trying to undercut him in his job.

Butler told a party rally in Los Angeles Saturday night that a group of men "who would weaken the prestige and the influence of the office of national chairman to gain their ends" is trying to capture control of the party.

Butler said these "saboteurs within our party" aim to "dominate the 1960 national convention and dictate the nomination of our presidential and vice-presidential candidates."

Butler's speech named no specific person, and a party committee aide here said the chairman did not care to elaborate.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who snubbed Butler's invitation last year to become a member of a party policy advisory committee, said he doesn't know whom Butler is talking about.

Johnson, who has been mentioned as a possible presidential aspirant in 1960, made it clear he doesn't care who heads or controls the national committee at this time.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), the 1956 vice-presidential nominee, said in a separate interview he had heard "some talk" about the possible replacement of Butler as national chairman.

"But I know of no concerted campaign to get him out," Kefauver said. "As far as I'm concerned, he's doing a creditable job. He's working hard and trying hard."

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) an assistant chairman of the national committee, said it was news to him that anybody was trying to get control of the committee.

"The relations between Mr. Butler and the members of Congress have been cordial and cooperative," Mansfield said. "Personally I think he is doing a good job."

Butler has been the target for several abortive efforts by former Chairman Frank E. McKinney of Indiana to bring about a change in the chairmanship. McKinney has been close to former President Harry S. Truman, who retains a measure of influence in committee affairs.

Reports were published a month ago, but denied at the time, that McKinney, Johnson and a few others met with Truman to discuss a change in the party chairmanship. Truman and the others denied there had been any such meeting.

Politicians here generally think that Butler may have been a little premature in starting his backfire against any ouster move.

Former Sen. Earle C. Clements of Kentucky, most often mentioned as a possible successor, apparently feels that for the time being at least his job as executive director of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee will be more important in 1958 than the national chairmanship.

Northeast Texas Gets Needed Rains

By The Associated Press

The remnants of tropical storm Bertha dissipated over northeast Texas Sunday after touching off welcome rains on parched farmlands in the eastern part of the state.

Earlier heavy rains, however, posed a threat of lowland flooding Monday along the Trinity River near Liberty, 46 miles east of Houston.

The Weather Bureau said the river would rise to 27.5 feet due to the torrential rains upstream that totaled as much as 12 inches. Farmers were advised to move livestock to higher ground.

The Weather Bureau said the river would have to rise to 36 feet to pose a threat of flooding at Liberty itself.

A flow of moist, southerly air from the Gulf of Mexico wafted over northeast Texas Sunday in the wake of once-feared Bertha, triggering scattered showers Sunday, but the Weather Bureau said no rain was reported after midnight.

Thousands of persons fled their homes along the Louisiana and Texas coast Friday before the storm moved inland near the Louisiana-Texas border and began breaking up without causing any great damage.

The rains in east Texas were hailed by cotton and grain sorghum farmers whose crops have not matured in dry topsoil.

A. B. Jolley, former Dallas

County agricultural agent, called Bertha the "finest thing that could have happened."

He said there was some crop damage in isolated areas where 6 to 10 inches of rain fell over the weekend. The heaviest downfall was reported north of Palestine in east Texas, where 12.8 inches was recorded.

There was some minor flooding of homes and business places at Trinity, 100 miles southeast of Palestine, and at Trinity, 35 miles northwest of Livingston. Livingston got 11 inches of rain Friday and Saturday and Trinity reported 10 inches.

Two weekend traffic deaths in Texas were blamed on the rains.

Rights Strategists Jockey For Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rival Democratic and Republican strategists jockeyed for advantage today while the civil rights bill remained in a parliamentary snarl.

With the House out of session until tomorrow, no action was expected before then.

Leading House Democrats were trying to line up support for acceptance of the Senate version of the bill, or a possible compromise that would limit the scope of a Senate jury trial amendment to voting rights cases only.

House Republican leaders, meanwhile, worked to get the bill sent to a Senate-House conference in hopes it could be strengthened and some features objectionable to the Eisenhower administration removed.

Most Southerners continued in opposition to any kind of a civil rights bill. Sen. Thurmond (D-SC) yesterday called it "purely a political bill" which he said would only inflame racial tensions.

Both Senate and House bills would give the attorney general new powers to seek federal court injunctions against violations or threatened violations of voting rights. Any person violating such an injunction could be prosecuted for contempt of court.

Under present practice, federal judges try violations of court injunctions without juries. But the

4 People Die In Mistake Deaths

YREKA, Calif. (AP)—A part-time gold miner just out of jail on a wife-beating charge sought to blast his wife out of existence yesterday.

He ended, said the sheriff's office, by blowing himself to bits and killing his son, daughter and son-in-law with a homemade dynamite bomb.

Wilbur Smith, 47, died instantly as his 16-year-old son Ted, his daughter Mrs. Charlotte Sturgis, 20, and her husband Doug, 25, sought to wrest the bomb from him. They too died in the blast that rocked this mountain town and the countryside.

"We're definitely labeling it murder and suicide," said Under-sheriff George Banich.

He said Smith had been released Thursday from jail, where he had served a term for disturbing the peace and wife-beating that began with his arrest July 14.

Banich said Smith had vowed to "get Clara," his wife, 45. She was inside the house and was not injured in the explosion.

A neighbor, Patricia Swickard, 15, told Siskiyou County sheriff's officers she saw Smith arrive outside the house. She said the Sturgises and young Doug went outside and argued with him, then tried to take something from him.

The blast followed, hurling pieces of Smith's body as far as 200 feet from the driveway where he had been standing. The scene was littered with broken bodies and smoldering bits of clothing when police arrived with volunteer firemen.

Mrs. Smith was hospitalized for shock and hysteria.

Moscow Youth Festival Ends

MOSCOW (AP)—The 34,000 delegates to the Communist-sponsored World Youth Festival began to leave Moscow today after 15 days of meetings often heated by arguments from both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Some of the delegates were returning to homes all over the world. Others—including a group of Americans defying the State Department—are going on to visit other Communist countries.

The delegates got a flag-waving sendoff at the festival closing yesterday before some 65,000 Russians in Lenin Stadium. They heard an appeal from Bruno Bernini, Italian president of the party-line World Federation of Democratic Youth, to work for abolition of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

As the State Department had warned, the festival was a propaganda show that clearly impressed some delegates from Africa and Asia. But other youths found as many bad points as good ones about the Russians.

The more than 150 Americans ranged from three who spent hours presenting the American viewpoint for attentive crowds to one unidentified youth who is reported planning to defect and stay in the Soviet Union.

Forty-seven of the Americans began turning their passports over to Red Chinese authorities last night for visas to visit China as guests of the Peiping government.

Graham Claims Sin Cause Of Delinquency

NEW YORK (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham, opening a week-long series of sermons devoted to juvenile delinquency, said last night that sin produces "boredom, mischief, gang war—all kinds of things."

Conceding the importance of slums and family trouble in contributing to juvenile crime, Graham declared: "The trouble is deeper than environment. The trouble is deeper than parents."

Addressing an audience of 18,500 at Madison Square Garden, Graham urged youth to shun lust and dedicate themselves to Christ. About 40 per cent of the audience was estimated to be under the age of 25.

Graham has taken note of recent outbreaks of crimes of violence by teen-agers in the city.

In his sermon he drew an analogy between today's youth and the story of Samson in the Bible.

"Samson squandered his God-given strength on lust and passion," Graham said. "Many young people are yielding to the passions of the moment."

"True love is kind and long-lasting. Lust is selfish and short-lived."

Graham urged youth to dedicate their lives to Christ, and said, "There is no boredom in a life dedicated to Christ."

"Samson's real problem was sin," he continued. "Sin is the cause which produces gang wars and all the ensuing troubles. The road to sin may have its kicks and blasts but it ends in destruction."

Graham said that poor environment, too much leisure time, lack of parental guidance, bad literature and bad movies are among the factors in juvenile delinquency. But—making clear that he was talking about sin—he said, "We must get at the cause."

Urging parents to provide good Christian examples for their children, Graham advised the parents: "Don't send your children to Sunday school—take them."

Gov. Price Daniel of Texas and his wife Jean attended the meeting.

Daniel told the audience in a brief talk: "We can have a Christian state and nation only insofar as our boys and girls are taught to carry out the principles of God and the saving grace of Jesus Christ."

After the sermon, 621 persons stepped forward to make "decisions for Christ." This raised the total to 45,144. Total attendance since Graham's New York crusade started May 15 stands at 1,494,300.

Traffic Takes 15 During Weekend

By The Associated Press

At least 15 persons died in traffic accidents and other types of violence brought the total deaths to 24 in Texas during the weekend.

Mrs. Ernest Hancock, 57, Irving, Tex., was killed Sunday when a car collided with a north-bound Santa Fe railroad freight train near Bluff Dale in West Texas.

Winifred Alexander, 30, of Midland, was beaten to death Sunday following a family argument.

Mrs. Thomas Yarbrough Jr. was shot to death in her home at Odessa Friday. Murder charges were filed Saturday against her husband.

Hope Fades For 3 Men On Mountain

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP)—Hope of rescuing three men trapped on the north wall of Eiger Mountain faded today as fresh blizzards swirled around the vertical rock face.

The rescue attempt was interrupted by new snows yesterday after a fourth member of the climbing party was hauled to the summit in a daring Alpine feat.

The only climber whose position is known to the rescuers is Stefano Longhi, 44, of Lecco, Italy. Longhi was injured in a rock fall several days ago. He has remained dangling from a rope some 300 feet below the ledge where the others had been sheltering 1,200 feet from the summit of the 13,936-foot peak.

He was reported still alive yesterday.

Nothing was known of the whereabouts of the two Germans in the party who left the rocky ledge where they had camped for several days to try to make their way to the summit, then disappeared. They are Huenher Nohrurt, 27, and Goetz Meier, 26.

The fourth man, Claudio Cordi, 29, of Lecco, was hauled to the summit just before the weather broke yesterday.

A rescue column carrying Cordi down from the summit was forced to pitch camp in the snow during the night and resumed the difficult descent at dawn.

Cordi's dramatic rescue was carried out by Alfred Helepart, a German guide who was lowered three times on a winch-operated cable. No one has ever before climbed down the north wall, an operation similar to climbing down the side of New York's Empire State Building.

On the first two attempts, Helepart came down too far to one side and had to be hauled up again.

On the third attempt rescuers at the top heard him say over his portable radio: "Further, further, I can see him now."

Later Helepart messaged that Cordi was too weak to make the climb alone and that he had tied the rescued man to his back. It took an hour to haul the two to the summit.

Cordi mumbled his thanks and asked for water on reaching the top. Then he collapsed.

Eiger Mountain has one of the steepest rock faces in the Alps. Shaped like a pyramid, the north wall drops vertically to the valley floor more than 6,900 feet down.

A Bible Thought For Today

Every way of a man is right in his own eyes; but the LORD pondereth the hearts. (Proverbs 21:2)

The Railroad, The Levee, And Texas

"It is a curious fact," runs a "filler" put out by a railroad magazine, "that both the author and the date of the famous railroad song, 'I've Been Working on the Railroad,' are unknown."
Texans know this song as "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," or simply "The Eyes of Texas." Tens of thousands of Texans, and we dare say practically all the people in other states of the Union, believe this to be the official state song of Texas.
It is nothing of the kind, of course. It is the theme song of the University of Texas, but since it is played on many solemn occasions and the audience rises and removes its hats, it is small wonder "The Eyes" is thought to be the official state song.
"The Eyes" lyrics reputedly grew out of the habit of a University of Texas professor in always reminding his students that "the eyes of Texas are upon you."

Presumably the lyrics were written and set to the old railroad song while the student author had his tongue in his cheek. Like so many other things and incidents in history, something conceived in a playful manner became serious—in the case of "The Eyes," almost revered.
People who were raised in Central or East Texas might remember the old song as running, "I've been working on the levee," not the railroad. It probably came to us via Louisiana where levees were numerous and quite possibly it antedates railroad construction in this country.
The official state song of Texas is called "Texas, My Texas," but it might as well be "The Eyes," since "The Eyes" have it by overwhelming popular sentiment. A Legislature can name a song, but the people will sing what they please.
The lyrics were written by John Lang Sinclair and set to the tune of "Levee Song."

Picture Of A Master Spy

What does a master spy look like? How does he conduct himself? How can he operate so long without being detected? How would he be hard to find a more self-effacing, colorless or tighter-mouthed man than Rudolf Ivanovich Abel, under arrest and indictment for masquerading for nine years in Brooklyn as a plodding artist. That is precisely the type of the most effective and dangerous of professional spies, the last person on earth his acquaintances would suspect of being a master craftsman in the spying art.
Abel is accused of spying for the Soviet Union in military and atomic matters. He has served the Russians for 27 years, and he had but recently reached the rank of full colonel in that arm of the Soviet military set-up that corresponds with our own CIA—the highest-ranking Soviet spy ever hauled in by the FBI. He is also called the chief of all Russian spying activities in this country.
All of these allegations, of course, are still subject to the scrutiny of our judicial system.

But as of the moment, Russia has made no move to protect its man. Usually in such cases it gyrates in all directions. If it holds off in this particular case for the time being, a countermove may confidently be expected before long. The Reds will turn up with an even more sensational spy case involving an American, or somebody allegedly working for the Americans. For while our FBI must operate under the stern rules of Anglo-Saxon justice, the Soviet Union is not handicapped by any restraint whatever.
There is no calculating the damage a master spy can do to a country. In his nine years as an "artist" in Brooklyn, Abel directed the activities of no telling how many underlings doing nobody knows how much damage to our atomic and military establishments, by way of digging out and presenting secrets to his masters.

Plenty Of Politicking Behind Civil Rights

WASHINGTON—The politics of the "civil rights" controversy is a fascinating struggle behind the scenes.
The Republicans and their "liberals" of the Democratic party each thought they had a perfect issue in the coming campaign—an issue which, while causing the Democrats not to lose too much of their strength, would at the same time aid the Republicans in increasing their percentage of the Negro vote. The Democrats have about 60 per cent now and the Republicans about 40 per cent.
But something happened to the scheme. The southern Democrats—most of them experienced legislators—led by the skillful Sen. Russell of Georgia, managed to raise a fuss about federal coercion through the possible use of the military forces as provided under old statutes. This scared lots of people even in the North. The famous Part III was therefore eliminated.
Then the Southerners started a big debate about the need for jury trials. This, too, stirred the country. Finally, some of the "liberals" inside the Democratic party, including former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, did the trick of drafting legislative language on jury trials and got behind an amendment offered by Sen. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Democrat. This seemed to be an important concession to the southern viewpoint, though, on final passage, it didn't win the votes of 17 southern Democrats and Sen. Morse of Oregon, who has been rather friendly to the southerners on some roll calls.
Meanwhile, the White House strategists, thinking they had a chance to get into the play, came out with the statement that the President was "bitterly disappointed," and hints of a veto were leaked out by Republican leaders in the House.
The moment the Democrats saw this, they changed their tactics. Even so ardent an advocate of "civil rights" as Rep. Emanuel Celler, Democrat, of New York, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and an author of the House bill on "civil rights," said the Senate version wasn't so bad after all. Sen. Humphrey, Democrat, of Minnesota had some very kind words, too, for the Senate bill, although as a "liberal" leader himself he had fought the jury trial amendment adopted by the Senate.
This was the tip-off that the Democratic party leaders felt they had the Republicans in a hole. For it could now be demonstrated that the Democrats from both the North and the South wanted the legislation to pass and only those "narrowly partisan" Republicans—as Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Democrat leader of the Senate, expressed it—were standing in the way.

Under these circumstances, the Democrats lined up almost solidly behind a move to get action on the bill promptly, to make the conference report palatable to the South so as at least to avoid a filibuster, and to send the measure to the White House and dare the President to veto it.
For, if Mr. Eisenhower were to kill the bill, the Democrats would be shouting from the housetops that Ike was responsible and that the Republicans were blocking the only constructive measure on voting rights for Negroes to come out of Congress in many decades.
Then the Republicans had to change their tactics and make an effort at least to get the bill changed in the joint conference committee between the House and Senate, where differences are ironed out and the final report submitted for a vote in each house.
It is a safe bet now that, when the conference report comes out and the two houses adopt it, the White House will have a change of heart, will forget about a veto and will approve the measure and make it law.
But while the conference committee meetings are going on, the President's lieutenants on Capitol Hill will be threatening a veto and will use every pressure they can to get the bill modified to meet the administration's wishes.
Some of the Republicans are talking big about a special session of Congress to be called for November and an "all winter" fight to get the conference report adopted if a filibuster develops. But it would be surprising if they went through with their threat. For the practical politician always takes what he can get at the moment and trusts to the future to get more.
That's why the Democrats of the North, who have been compelled to eat crow on the jury trial amendment, are listening to the harmonizing voices of the southern senators while waiting to see if the Republicans will blunder and kill the bill. If this doesn't happen, they hope at least that the administration will be put in the position of being an unwilling supporter of a "civil rights" bill for the enactment of which the Democrats will be claiming the major credit on the political stump next year.

What Others Say

The capitalist employer is a crafty and ruthless fellow. If you take the Communist word for it, Radio Bucharest has just exposed one of the tricks capitalists use to take advantage of their employees.
In Great Britain they give their workers time off to drink tea. The tea is hopped up with caffeine. Workers drink it, get very nervous and unconsciously speed up their work in a frenzy to overcome the effects of the tea. In the United States, capitalist employers, says Radio Bucharest, work the same trick with coffee—and even require "coffee breaks" to make sure that their employees get enough caffeine into their systems.
Here is one piece of propaganda that capitalist employers will probably welcome. The coffee breaks that get out of hand and cut deeply into production are frequent headaches of many a boss.
If the idea can be sold that coffee breaks are really designed to exploit workers maybe fewer people will take them, those who do will shorten them and everybody will get more work done.

After All He's Been Through!

James Marlow The Man With The Tingling Ears

WASHINGTON—The man with the tingling ears is Sen. Lyndon Johnson, who likes prairie. He got plenty for his maneuvering on the civil rights bill. No matter who wins or loses in that fight, he did himself some good, personally.
The tall Texan, leader of the Senate Democrats, disclaims presidential ambitions in 1960. But, for a man who may be a candidate, he was painfully lost in the political woods when the civil rights fight started.
It was his opposite number, Sen. Knowland of California, leader of the Senate Republicans and also a presidential possibility, who got up June 20 and proposed the Senate consider the civil rights bill passed by the House two days before.
This move gave Republicans the jump in claiming—if a civil rights bill was passed—the gratitude of Northern Negroes, whose vote is increasingly important and in time the gratitude of Southern Negro voters.
This is what Johnson faced when Knowland suddenly opened the battle:
1. Ruination of his own presidential hopes—if he has any—at the next Democratic convention if he joined his fellow Southerners in fighting a civil rights bill.
2. A shattering split in the Democratic party. Southern Democrats had threatened all-out resistance. They could be crushed and a bill passed only if Northern Democrats lined up with Republicans against them.
3. Condemnation of the Democratic party, not only by Negroes but by all those sympathetic to civil rights legislation, if Northern Democrats let Southern Democrats block the bill. Such criticism would not help the Democrats' chances in the 1958 elections.
All three problems could be solved if:
Southerners agreed to compromise instead of filibustering; Northern Democrats agreed to some compromises the Southerners wanted; and the compromised

Speaking Of Distinctive Names—

If you have a name like Bugle Bogalski, don't petition the courts for a change to something like Bogey Smith. Especially if you have a musical bent.
Make the most of it. Your name could be your fortune, even if you have trouble sounding E Flat.
The public likes unusual, offbeat monikers, whether they be genuine or adopted. Baseball probably uses more nicknames than can be found in any other profession, but all sports have them and have reaped a golden harvest because of them.
Of course, headlines like Herb Score and Early Wynn, who shouldn't be in any other endeavor, employ their genuine names. Their handles are perfect, as they are.
Bill Skowron, the New York Yankee first sacker, is becoming more widely identified as "Moose." Then there are Puddinhead Jones, Minnie Minoso, Nellie Fox, Duke Snider, Dusty Rhodes, Toothpick Jones, Windy McCall, Whitney Ford and Yogi Berra, to name a few. Not many people, in all likelihood, could—if put to the test—supply their real names.
Gunboat Smith, active as a fighter in the Jack Dempsey era, became more widely renowned, in all probability, because of his nickname.
Perhaps the most popular boy to play baseball in Big Spring since World War II was Potato Pascual. His real first name was Carlos but few fans knew it.
One of the Chicago newspapermen has a fishing writer named Harvey Duck—genuine, I suppose. There's a Soda Popp living somewhere in this state and that's the way it reads on his birth certificate.

A few years ago, Crane High School had a fellow named Crane who coached the Golden Cranes.
Ever so often, you hear of a Harry Harry, a William Williams or a Wallace Wallace.
Men like Aaron Burr, Rasputin and Jack Ketch (a hangman) have a sinister sound all their own.
Praise God Barebones was a 17th Century character who used his real name—he was an English non-conformist imprisoned for railing at royalty. And he had a brother with an even more unusual handle—Christ Came Into The World to Save Barebones.
Wrestling had its Strangler Lewis and Sneeze Achue. I doubt if a dozen people in this country knew Achue's real name.
A football great, Eagle Day (of Ole Miss) has his real name, Nebraska had a great back several years ago named Hopp. Sports writers took delight in calling him "Hippity." Then there was Hurry Cain of Alabama.
The painter Rembrandt must have thought a long time before his name his son Rumbartus.
There's a fellow up in Wisconsin who was christened Oofy Goofty Bowman. New York City had a press agent half a century ago who went by the name of A. Toxen Worm. A European named Engelbert Humperdinck gained renown by writing "Hansel and Gretel."
Some names sound so impressive, chances are you look forward to meeting the people who wear them long before you get the chance.

Away With The Palace Guard!

If it is true, aeronautically, that this is one world and anyone can reach any place within the turning of the sun, then I am probably in grave danger of having my face slapped within the next 24 hours. For I am rushing in where angels would head for home.
My only excuse is that I am fascinated by the present internecine strife in England caused by a few candid words of criticism of Her Majesty written by a peer of the realm. Another irate Briton has already slapped the offender's sassy face. And before this can see print it is possible that the critic, Lord Altrincham, will have been hanged, drawn and quartered at Tyburn.
To one at this unsafe distance, it seemed that Milord spoke a few blunt words, not so much about the Queen as about that tight little, not so bright (in his opinion) little group of stiff-upper-lip, hold-that-U-line British aristocrats, in advisory capacity, who eternally surround England's rulers.
It is Lord Altrincham's contention that they are turning this charming young woman into a prig who, on public occasions, is permitted to mouth nothing but the fatuous platitudes they put into her pretty mouth. Although he claims to be a Conservative, Lord Altrincham is so radical he believes the monarch should have a personality! Not only a personality, but a personality of her own!
This firebrand wants Elizabeth II to bounce the diehard Palace hands around her and get a new batch pep to the exigencies of the 20th Century.
Well, sir, I think Lord Altrincham will probably stop hitting himself in the head pretty soon, if only because it feels so good. Granting that my experience with royalty is limited, nonetheless I believe that one of the crosses the British royal family must bear is the everlasting vigilance of that Palace guard of horse-faced British aristocrats.

In 1939, I got a good look and came in fairly close contact with the Palace guard that rode herd on the late Queen VI and his Queen, Elizabeth, now Queen Mother. For six weeks in May and June of '39 I travelled back and forth across Canada and down into the U. S. A. with the parents of Elizabeth II and their trail bosses.
At the time, it seemed to me that Their Majesties were warm, pleasant persons who were agreeably human and gracious in public whenever they dared to be, i. e., when their aristocratic guardians weren't looking. But most of the time, the Palace guard kept a tight rein and Their Majesties were regal, as demurred.
At the risk of getting my face really mauled, the British royal family looks mighty cozy and middle-class. It has escaped the long, lean, horse and haughty lineaments of the English aristocrat who so often looks as if he smelled something offensive.
Too often, the Palace guardians have resembled those aristocrats caricatured by Gilbert and Sullivan in the last century and by Noel Coward in this. The royal family looks intelligent and well-bred, but in appearance it bears no relation to the titled Blimps who try to mold it in the Blimp image.
Queen Elizabeth is an intelligent, pretty and charming young woman. But at this point in her life she is, to the public and through no fault of her own, more a picture postcard than a person. But maybe her subjects like her that way, and Lord Altrincham and I are doomed to be punching bags.

Tariff Changes And Neighbor Nations

WASHINGTON—Pressure is being applied to push through in the last-minute Congressional log jam a bill to bail out the lead and zinc industry. It also would, according to opponents who testified against it, make a gaping hole in the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which other industries would be quick to take advantage of.
The pressure has come in part from organized labor since serious pockets of unemployment have been created in the lead and zinc states. The administration measure would apply an excise tax to imports of lead and zinc based on a sliding scale, depending on the domestic price of these metals. This would be the same as an increase in the tariff, which under the trade agreements act can come only on a finding of the tariff commission approved by the President.
Some of this country's American neighbors—Canada, Mexico and Peru—depend on their exports of lead and zinc to offset trade balances heavily weighted on the side of the United States. When a similar plan to put up the barriers against lead and zinc was put forward three years ago, the State Department offered 15 reasons why it should not be adopted since it would do so much harm to the American trade position. State Department witnesses supported the present measure.
The proposal of three years ago was ascribed to the Assistant Secretary of Interior in charge of mineral resources, Felix E. Wormser, who resigned on June 15, is credited with the present plan, too.
His service with the government follows a pattern fairly similar under the Eisenhower administration. He resigned as president of the Lead Industries Association and vice president of the St. Joseph Lead Company to take his position in Interior. On resigning from government six weeks ago he again became vice president of St. Joseph Lead.
At the time of his confirmation in April of 1953, Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) asked him about his stock holdings in the lead company. Wormser said he had sold his stock. Jackson then asked about his pension rights and whether he intended to return to the company when he left government.
"Quite frankly they would be very glad to have me back," Wormser said, asserting that there had been no definite understanding when he resigned as vice president, "or at least that is what they have told me."
While he now is with the company in

New York, Wormser occupied a front-row seat at the House Ways and Means Committee hearings where committee members referred to the "Wormser plan." Democratic Representatives Hal Boggs of Louisiana and Wilbur Mills of Arkansas gave administration witnesses a tough time, reading back excerpts from the State Department presentation of 1954 and the cogent arguments offered by President Eisenhower when he turned down a recommendation for an increase in the lead and zinc tariff.
Some opponents have indicated they would favor a production bonus for domestic producers, thereby avoiding a direct breach in the tariff wall by Congressional action. At the House hearings, members brought up minerals and other commodities in their own districts undergoing price and sales difficulties. If you can do this for lead and zinc, why not for fluspar? Why not for petroleum? Why not for copper?
Most Republicans are reported for the administration measure, and it is gaining some Democratic support. With a little old-fashioned log rolling, it might be pushed through. Then the next session would see a flood of similar bills and the Act was meant to end would be off to a fine start again.
An effective veto against the bill was George L. Bell, president of the Committee for a National Trade Policy made up of industrialists working for a liberal trade program, including American adherence to the Organization for Trade Cooperation long advocated by President Eisenhower. Bell pointed out that a 10 to 20 per cent increase per pound on lead and zinc, which go into many articles of common use, would contribute greatly to the inflationary spiral.
Many congressmen complained the administration was passing the buck to Capitol Hill for a responsibility resting clearly on the executive. But if the bill is passed, the harm done to international relations will be the same no matter where the blame finally rests.

Word Of A Connoisseur

The middle-aged Frenchman is world-renowned as a connoisseur of women. And Maurice Chevalier is among the most distinguished of his compatriots. In today's Hollywood Beauty, he gives Lydia Lane his own views on what makes a woman attractive and desirable. Miss Lane, vacationing in Paris, France, met Maurice on his return from Hollywood where he has just completed "Love in the Afternoon" for Allied Artists, co-starring with Gary Cooper and Audrey Hepburn.

An Old Expert Talks Of Attractive Women

By LYDIA LANE

Paris, France — When I heard the inimitable Maurice Chevalier was in Paris, I hoped I would be able to meet him and to chat about women with this bon vivant who so frankly lives for love. Mutual friends arranged it and we met at a side-walk cafe on the Champs Elysees.

He met me with an infectious smile and said, "It is a very delicate subject for a man to talk about women. It may appear as if he thinks he knows it all. I am no longer young and at 68 you look for different things in women."

"But Mr. Chevalier, you are a connoisseur," I insisted. "Regardless of your age women are interested in knowing what you think about them and what attracts you to them."

"Oh," Maurice said with twinkling eyes, "you want me to tell you the experiences of love." He leaned back in his chair. "Every woman has something different to attract you. It's a very strange thing. When it is happening you don't know what it is. Only much later you look back to find out why. It counts a lot what a woman has in her eyes and how she makes the contact."

"Some men are attracted by indifference," I commented. "A man is vicious or sick if he can't be attracted to a lovely woman when he knows that she likes him. If a woman did not look at me with nice eyes," he confided, "I would not be attracted to her. I want a woman to meet me half way," he exclaimed. He went on to say that when a girl isn't popular with men it is usually because she doesn't really like them. "If a girl is greatly attracted to a man, it is catching," he explained.

"Do you go along with the theory that gentlemen prefer blondes?" I asked. "He was indignant. "It's not the COLOR of her hair! I've loved women with hair every color there is. What counts is the way she makes you feel. And at different times or moods you are attracted by different things or types. There are so many vibrations between people you can't explain, but they have a great deal to do with the mystery of why we fall in love. So many things build sentiment. His voice grew softer. "You don't know why you want to kiss some women and others you would like to hug."

We chatted like the differences between American and French girls. "Women in love act the same everywhere," Chevalier reflected. "But American girls are brought up differently from the European. In the United States there is more fight between the men and women."

"Do you feel that American women demand what European get with charm?" I asked. "It seems life has put American women on the defensive," he replied with great tact. "I never think of criticizing a woman." "But surely there are some traits that are more endearing to you than others," I persisted. "I like a woman to be natural," he continued. "I do not care for pretentiousness or affectations. I like her to appear elegant but not showy. I do not want to be around a woman who is all keyed-up and who makes me feel nervous. Chevalier gives encouragement to the plain girl. "One woman may be much more beautiful than the other but you will choose to see much more of the one who makes you feel happy," he said. He seemed to make a game of it then by listing many of the things he likes about women. "A voice has a lot to do with being attractive," he continued. "Some voices can't be enjoyed. Especially if they are too high pitched, nasal or whining."

"I have had a nice life," he told me in parting. "I enjoy working in night clubs, on TV and in pictures and," he added, "when there is a pretty girl around I can still appreciate her."

Even Young Fry Is Getting Conscious Of Need To Diet

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor: Things have gone far enough in the diet merry-go-round, it seems to me, when a little girl writes her mother from summer camp: "Dear Mummy: Please send me some sunflower seeds and wheat germ. All they give you here for breakfast is gooey sweet rolls."

This product of our modern age is Pamela Stark, 11-year-old daughter of Wilbur Stark and Kathi Norris, TV producing-editing team currently involved with a Saturday show called True Story. Mummy Kathi is a lissome Irish colleen with a 21-inch waist who looks like a debutante despite the fact that she has three children—5-year-old Bradley and year-old Kitty, in addition to Pamela. All three have been raised on such things as raw vegetables and molasses, which they prefer to marshmallow fudge sundaes.

There is no doubt that the Stark children, as well as Mom and Pop, are all healthy and handsome examples of the ideal young American family — the kind you see looking fondly at an insurance policy or piling into a new car in four-color slick-paper magazine ads.

The question that worries me is—are they missing any fun? There are others, it seems, who have a similar feeling of panic when confronted with some of the currently fashionable facets of modern living. Take Jean Kerr, for instance, who has a piece in the current issue of Harper's Magazine entitled "Aunt Jean's Marshmallow Fudge Diet," in which she issues a personal declaration of independence against all fad diets, including the latest one consisting of mother's milk.

Mrs. Kerr, author, playwright and year-old Kitty, in addition to Pamela. All three have been raised on such things as raw vegetables and molasses, which they prefer to marshmallow fudge sundaes. "What actually holds a husband had worked on a children's safety program on a Louisville radio station.

Hospitality, Inc. is run on a 24-hour-a-day basis, and, Mrs. Nelson says, anyone can call at any time of the day or night for free information on how to go in Louisville or where to find something. For the baby sitters' bureau, she employs registered nurses who work in doctors' offices during the day.

The nurses baby-sit for children 12 or under, and, on several occasions, have helped save lives when their wards swallowed objects or became ill, Mrs. Nelson says.

Her latest idea is for a "New-comers' Bureau," which she plans to make a part of Hospitality, Inc. The purpose? To help newly-arrived families learn some of the things they'll need to know about Louisville.

For example, Mrs. Nelson explains, families should be taken around to show them where to find the best stores, markets, laundries, and perhaps, a good florist shop and a reliable insurance firm.

Mrs. Nelson knows Louisville and the rest of Kentucky inside-out, and works closely with local and out-of-town chambers of commerce.

She has one postcard from Japan simply addressed "Louisville Visitors." She says the card was delivered to her without question.

Mrs. Nelson has two daughters, Emeris, 17 and Davalyn, 14, and a son, John Glennon, 10.

"That way people won't have to ask 'which Nelsons,'" she says. Mrs. Nelson also finds time to collect coins and stamps. She has a sense of humor, too, and carries a batch of Confederate money in her purse all times so she can tell people, "I firmly believe the South may rise again."

The fact that Mrs. Nelson is a Kentucky Colonel may have something to do with it.

Ivy League Blazer For Girls, Boys
Associated Press Women's Editor: The Ivy League look is all the thing these days, for girls as well as boys.

Any high school belle would love a braided-trimmed denim blazer. In her school colors to wear with her bermuda shorts.

Local sewing center experts suggest you choose denim in a neutral color such as charcoal gray or natural and achieve the old-school-like effect with rickrack braid in the school colors.

Or, if you like, you can use the denim in one color, the braid in the other. If your school colors are blue and gold, you could make the blazer of blue denim and trim it in gold rickrack, or you could have the blazer a neutral tone and achieve the school colors by stitching on blue and gold rickrack.

You can get rickrack in all widths, and the very wide kind makes bold, effective stripes.

You will need 3/4 yards of 35-inch fabric, plus less than a yard of non-woven fabric for interfacing, for an unlined blazer, which can be made by a standard pattern.

Follow pattern directions for making the blazer, remembering to press as you sew for perfect seam-work. Alterations are easily made with the inch rulers printed right on the pattern.

The pattern envelope also includes directions for making back-belted Ivy League shorts.

Brides-Elect Honored At Sunday Party

A surprise breakfast Sunday morning in the home of Mrs. W. B. Younger was a compliment for brides-elect Marlene Mann and Clara Freeman.

Hospitality Pays Off For Visitors To Louisville

By R. J. BUTLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP)—Mrs. Virginia Nelson really believes in hospitality. In fact, she makes a living from it.

Mrs. Nelson runs a one-woman firm called Hospitality, Inc., an organization she uses to make visitors comfortable when they come to Louisville.

This business covers everything from planning dinner parties and conventions to providing a baby sitters' bureau for people who stay over in hotels and motels.

"Why make a living out of hospitality?" "Because people in this world are lonely," she says, adding that "I'm thoroughly disgusted with the way ordinary visitors are treated many times."

She explains that just a few people who are treated without courtesy can give a town or state a bad name.

Before she started Hospitality, Inc. in 1951, Mrs. Nelson had edited the women's section of a monthly agricultural magazine. She also

The Answer To Insect Problems

Try No-Roach when you need protection against insects. This speedy killer will rid an area of insects in no time. You can apply Johnson's No-Roach to cupboard walls, baseboards, near sink, and cabinets, and on pipes. It can be used on rubber and asphalt tile, too.

Stop Insects, Try No-Roach

No-Roach has been proven effective again and again for keeping crawling insects away from foodstuffs.

Just recently, stores in Miami, Fla., which had been plagued for years by weevils infesting spaghetti and rendering them unusable, tried a coating of No-Roach in certain shelves. On the treated shelves there was no infestation of any kind, all season long. But on the untreated shelves, the destruction continued.

In exactly the same way today's No-Roach can mean reassuring protection against roaches, ants and other crawling insects in your own kitchen.

No-Roach is a liquid which you apply with a brush. Within minutes it dries to form a colorless, odorless contact insecticide, that says effective for months.

To eliminate cockroaches, apply No-Roach to cupboard walls, baseboards, near sink and cabinets, on pipes and wherever you see cockroaches. It can be used on rubber and asphalt tile, too.

For ants, brush No-Roach around table legs and counter tops, across window sills and door sills, and across ant trails. Ants will not cross the coating. Pour a few drops into ant hills.

No-Roach is also effective against resistant roaches, bedbugs, silverfish, waterbugs, spiders and other crawling insects. Remember, when you use Johnson's No-Roach, you don't have to move dishes, pots and pans, or breathe harmful vapors, as you must with contaminating sprays. Apply No-Roach just where you want it. The invisible coating stays effective for months. No-Roach, the brush-on insecticide, is preferred by good housekeepers.

Be safe... and be sure, with No-Roach.

The product is available in Big Spring at Safeway, Piggly Wiggly, Hull & Phillips, Newsom, and Bud Green food stores and at Cunningham & Phillips, Big Spring Drugs, and other drug and grocery stores.

'FORMIDABLE DARLINGS'

Britisher Sees U.S. Males Utterly Cowed By Women

LONDON (AP)—A British newsman came up today with the appalling finding that "American womanhood has got American manhood firmly pinned-down by the ears." Edward N. Connor, columnist for the Daily Mirror, said he reached that pained conclusion after close observation of the "formidable darlings" during a recent tour of the United States and from talking with American women tourists in London. "All this talk about the 'dominant male' just ceases to be true when you sail past the Statue of Liberty," reported Connor. "The American gal is more pampered, petted and pursued than any other female on earth," the columnist declared. "Not only have they got the poor sucker in a headlock of inextricable moral superiority that will break his neck if he tries to get free, but these Yankee Amazons are growing physically bigger every year. "The average American woman gains an inch in height every 10 years and now is a half head taller than she was 50 years ago. Come the year 2,000 the average honey chile will be topping 6 feet 4 inches in her nylons and looking askance at any Romeo from Dallas, Denver or Des Moines who weighs less than 250 pounds and can get under a six-foot door without stooping. "Letting go at the American woman and matters financial, Connor declared: "She spends eight billion dollars a year on clothing her nakedness and considers that if she hasn't at least one car she is a cripple and that if she hasn't a refrigerator, television set and washing machine, she might as well live in a cave. "She buys four times as much goods as the man who provides her with the money to do so and—the most fatal statistic of all—she outlives her husband by an average of seven years. "Furthermore and moreover, the Britisher deplored: "She knows exactly what her husband earns and actually strips cash off him when he arrives home on pay day. He exists on an allowance. "She believes in 'togetherness' which, in her appalling jargon, means that when the old man comes home limp as a plastic spongebag after belting it at the office, he is expected to play with the kids instantly. "It is a wonder," Connor concluded, "that the race doesn't die out."

Wealthy Venezuela Lacking In Liberty

By LARRY ALLEN CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 12 (AP)—Venezuela, with more money in its pocket than any South American country, is tragically poor in one previous commodity—freedom. In this land, a little larger than Texas, an ocean of oil is pumping more than a billion dollars a year into public coffers. But, at the same time, it is a land of little personal liberty. For Venezuelans, there is the right to talk about or write about almost everything—except criticism of the military dictatorship that is their government, and anything that pertains to it. This taboo is quietly and strictly enforced by the Seguridad Nacional, the secret police, which maintains a far-ranging, efficient network of listening posts and paid informers. But possibly an even greater safeguard against internal unrest is the fabulous prosperity that is welling up from giant, oil-rich Lake Maracaibo. Some nine oil companies, sinking their wells into the fabulous oil field under the lake, are paying a minimum of 50 per cent of their profits to the Venezuelan government. Last year, nearly three-quarters of the government's $1,300,000,000 income came from oil profits. The money is financing one of the world's largest and most startling public works programs. The country dazzles with new superhighways, supermarkets, hospitals, schools, medical centers, schools, bridges, stream-line factories, and modernistic, 15-story apartments and skyscrapers in Caracas that are turning this mushrooming capital into canyons of exciting and futuristic architecture. The military dictatorship, headed by President Marcos Perez Jimenez, tolerates no opposition. Its word is the law. Venezuelans whisper reports of mass arrests—which the police deny. Once a person is flung into jail or prison, he may stay there for months—and some have been there for years—without ever being told why he was arrested or brought to trial. None of his family may see him. Police may never even admit his arrest. So, talking about or criticizing the government, the average Venezuelan shrugs and says: "What good would it do? There's nothing we could do about it anyway. Pee-Jay (Jimenez) has the guns, so why talk? At the best, he'll land in jail. Anyway, we're prosperous—at least most of us—and a full stomach comes first." Even the newspaper he reads is carefully screened. Editors have to submit full page proofs to the censors before they can print. Even a simple social item must bear a stamp of approval.

Didn't Write About Gilliam

Dear Editor: There has been a mix-up somewhere. Will you make a correction? In last evening's Herald there appeared a letter to the editor that had my name affixed to it, but one which I did not authorize. It was entitled "County payor" and regarding Mr. Red Gilliam's business transactions which I know nothing about. Sometime ago, however, I did write a letter opposing racial integration but it was not attended space so I presume this is how the mixup came about. I thank you. William N. Blansitt

Just Talkin' by Jess Blair

ONTARIO, Oregon — It's corn-canning time in Oregon. Also potato-picking, barley-threshing and trout-fishing. Not many farm people are fishing, though, for the harvest is in full swing. Today in Nyssa, Oregon, a small village south of here, I counted 22 trucks of potatoes waiting to be turned to unload. All along the side street one could have picked up hundreds of potatoes that had spilled out. Yet no one bothered, for potatoes are as common here as cotton is in West Texas during October. Last year the potato farmers sold their crop for over $7.00 per hundred pounds. This year it started out at $1.75 but today went to $2.35. A government potato inspector staying in the cabin next to mine said there was no market in the world as unstable as potato prices. He said he had seen them drop 50 cents a hundred in one day. The early potatoes in particular must be sold in a hurry and the farmer takes just what he can get for them. He said most farmers would make a little money, though, unless the price went below $2.00.

Madams Called 'Confidential' News Sources

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Confidential magazine obtained information for its stories "from madams, procurers, call girls and private detectives," a former editor of the scandal publication testified today. Howard Rushmore, editor from 1954 to 1955, said this under cross examination as the criminal libel trial of the magazine went into its second week. Rushmore said that while he was editor the magazine published scandal stories about movie stars, Dick Powell, Robert Mitchum, Corinne Calvet, Mae West and many others. Asked if he intended to injure any persons in the scandal stories which he wrote, Rushmore said, "I did."

With CASH from S.I.C.

Hi, there, newcomer! You're supposed to be a "bundle of joy." You will be, too, if the bills don't get your old man down! Tell him about S.I.C. We've had babies ourselves - every one of us. And paid for THOUSANDS of them! LOOK: $18.62 a month (24 months) repays that $360 S.I.C. loan - how about that? Subject to usual credit requirements, of course. So pass the cigar, man! Wait! Come on down here - we've got a cigar for you! Drop in!

Main Civil Rights Feature In Voting Privilege Protection

By JOHN CHADWICK
 WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—The principal feature of the civil rights bill is the authority it would confer on the attorney general to get federal court injunctions to enforce voting rights.

At present the attorney general can only bring criminal prosecutions in this field, and a prosecution can only be launched after an alleged offense has been committed. The attorney general cannot act in advance to prevent an offense, as he could under the civil rights bill.

The measure also provides for a bipartisan civil rights investigating commission and the appointment of an additional assistant attorney general to supervise a new civil rights division in the Justice Department.

There are two major differences between the Senate bill and the bill passed by the House in June.

1. The House provided for the use of injunctions to enforce civil rights in general, not just voting rights. The Senate limited use of injunctions to voting rights.

2. The House rejected all proposals for jury trials in contempt of court cases growing out of alleged violations of injunctions or other court orders. The Senate voted for jury trials in criminal contempt cases.

BILL WEAKENED
 Because of this jury trial amendment adopted by the Senate, some supporters contend the bill has been drastically weakened, if not made ineffective. They argue that a Southern white jury might be reluctant to convict an election official accused of criminal contempt in denying a Negro his voting rights. The judge should be permitted to settle such questions and enforce his own records without a jury intervening, they say.

Here is a description of the principal provisions in each part of the Senate bill:

The commission provided for in Part I of the bill is to be composed of six members, appointed by the President subject to approval by the Senate. Not more than three members may be from the same political party.

The commission is directed to investigate sworn, written allegations that citizens are being deprived of their right to vote, or to have their vote counted, "by reason of their color, race, religion, or national origin."

It also is directed to "study and collect information concerning legal developments constituting a denial of equal protection of the laws" and to "appraise the laws and policies of the federal government with respect to equal protection of the laws."

FINAL REPORT DUE
 Within two years after enactment of the legislation, the commission is required to submit to the President and to Congress a final report of its activities, findings and recommendations. Sixty days after the submission of this report the commission shall cease to exist.

A full-time staff director is to be appointed by the President, subject to the Senate's approval. The commission may appoint such other paid personnel as it deems advisable.

Hearings may be held by the commission, or any subcommittee of two or more members, at such times and places as it wishes. It may issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of records.

In case of refusal to obey a subpoena, the federal district courts are authorized upon application by the attorney general to order a person to appear before the commission and to punish for contempt anyone who refuses to appear. The commission will be barred from issuing subpoenas that would require the attendance of witnesses at hearings to be held outside the state where they reside.

Witnesses would be permitted counsel to advise them on their constitutional rights and would have to be furnished a copy of the commission's rules.

If the commission determined that evidence or testimony at any hearing might tend "to defame, degrade, or incriminate any person," it would be required to:

- (1) "receive such evidence or testimony in executive session,"
- (2) "afford such persons an opportunity voluntarily to appear as a witness," and
- (3) "receive do so."

and dispose of requests from such persons to subpoena additional witnesses.

TESTIMONY RULES
 The bill also provides that no testimony taken in executive session "may be released or used in public sessions" without the commission's consent and declares: "Whoever releases or uses in public without the consent of the commission evidence or testimony taken in executive session shall be fined not more than $1,000, or imprisoned for not more than one year."

Any members of the commission already employed by the government would serve without pay. Others would receive $50 a day for days spent on commission work.

Part 2 of the bill simply provides for one additional assistant attorney general, appointed by the President and subject to Senate approval. However, the intent is for him to head a new civil rights division in the Justice Department.

In Part 3, the Senate bill provides for the repeal of an old Reconstruction era law that authorized the President to employ troops to enforce court orders in civil rights cases. Other laws give him this same authority and they remain on the books.

The Senate struck out altogether authority provided in Part 3 of the House bill for the use of injunctions to enforce civil rights in general.

Part 4 of the bill arms the attorney general with authority to obtain federal court injunctions against illegal interference with the right to vote.

Although the attorney general now is limited to criminal prosecutions, private individuals may file damage suits or seek injunctions. Individuals now have to go through the state courts before taking their complaint before the federal bench, however. The bill would permit them in future to go directly into federal courts.

The new authority for the attorney general is aimed at assuring that all citizens may be allowed to vote in any election without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude.

It also is directed at preventing any interference with a person's right to vote for any candidate for federal office in any general or primary election by intimidation, threats or coercion.

The bill empowers the attorney general to seek an injunction for the United States, "whenever any person has engaged or there are reasonable grounds to believe that any person is about to engage in any act or practice which would deprive any other person" of his right to vote.

JURISDICTION GIVEN
 It also specifically provides that the federal district courts shall have jurisdiction over these proceedings and shall exercise it "without regard to whether the party aggrieved shall have exhausted any administrative or remedies that may be provided by law."

Any person cited for contempt of court for alleged violation of court orders obtained by the government would be entitled to counsel and to make a full defense. If a person were financially unable to provide counsel, the court would be duty bound to provide it for him.

Part 5 of the bill was added by the Senate to provide for the right to trial by jury in criminal contempt cases arising not only under this legislation but under all federal laws enforceable by injunction.

In criminal contempt proceedings are those in which a judge seeks to punish a defendant for disobeying a court order. Those classed as civil contempt merely seek to force the defendant to comply with an order.

In criminal contempt cases the bill fixes a maximum penalty for "a natural person," as distinguished from a corporation or association, of a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for six months.

This part of the bill provides that nothing in it shall be construed "to deprive courts of their power, by civil contempt proceedings, without a jury, to secure compliance with or to prevent obstruction of, as distinguished from punishment for violations of," any court order.

Nor does the jury trial provision with respect to criminal contempt proceedings apply to contempt committed in the presence of the court, "or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice."

Some authoritative sources have predicted President Eisenhower would veto a civil rights bill that included the Senate's jury trial amendment. However, Eisenhower told his news conference Wednesday he wouldn't discuss this question in advance.

The implications of guaranteeing jury trials in all criminal contempt cases are broad—so much so that the full scope is still subject to much speculation among both lawyers and legislators.

For instance, the bill states that jury trials would be required in criminal contempt cases in any court of the United States. Some lawyers read this to include the Supreme Court which, of course, never acts with a jury.

In another section of Part 5, the bill states that the federal jury law to eliminate a requirement that federal court jurors be qualified under the laws of the state in which they serve.

One effect of this provision would be to make women eligible for federal jury service in all the states. Under the laws of Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, Senate officials said, women now are barred from jury duty.

There already is a law barring racial discrimination in the selection of federal court jurors.

Polish Reds Wind Up Pep Meetings

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's Communist party has ended a nationwide series of pep meetings designed to prod lagging members to action in the face of mounting economic troubles.

Reports indicate many of the party's claimed 1,400,000 members have withdrawn from all political work. Only the party leadership knows what proportion remains active after the shocks of de-Stalinization, the Poznan uprising and the Hungarian revolution. Estimates here in the capital run from 250,000 to 750,000.

The party's insistence that only a Communist-led productive drive can improve living standards and bring real freedom has run into renewed trouble with the workers clearly alarmed.

The local party meetings discussed a letter from the leadership which spoke frankly about the economic problem. It made the point that workers can expect no wage hikes this year and that strikes or other protests would only hamper rather than increase chances of partial improvement. It urged members to get out in a persuasion campaign. A main point they are called to put over is that Poland is going broke. The official party newspaper
