Just Took A Short-Cut

This 1957 Pontiac station wagon was located two-thirds up scenic Mountain by the Highway Patrol about midnight after it had rolled from the mountain. No one was found in it, but this morning, the owner, Robert L. Moore, 1004 W. 3rd, was in the Webb AFB hospital for treatment of cuts on the chest. Moore, a retired sergeant, works for Tucker Plumbing. Witnesses said that the car was parked near the edge of the mountain when suddenly it plunged over the ledge.

Arkansas Forcibly Halts Integration

Guardsmen Block Way Of Negro Pupils

National Guard troops called out by Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas forcibly prevented integration at the Little Rock Central High School in defiance of federal court orders today while a crowd of white persons shouted "nigger go back where you belong."

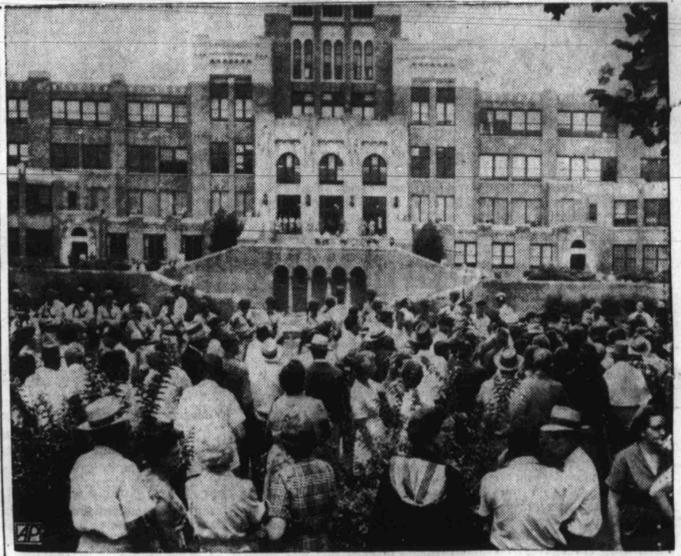

The federal-state test of powers reached its climax as the guardsmen, 200 strong, turned back repeatedly a teen-age Negro girl who tried to enter the building.

As she walked along the line of troopers she tried time and again to work her way through the close-knit formation. At each instance a soldier stepped forward to bar her path.

A crowd of some 150 whites yelled backing and encouragement for the guardsmen. They gathered around the girl, who refused to answer newsmen's questions, but made no attempt to harm her.

A federal judge last night ordered the Little Rock school officials to proceed with integration.

Later in the morning eight other Negro children tried to enter the school but were barred by the soldiers. Maj. Gen. Sherman T. Clinger, Arkansas adjutant general, said the all-white guardsmen acted on the governor's orders.

Crowd Assembles At High School

A crowd of about 500 students and adults gathers in front of Little Rock Central High School even though it had been announced there would be no integration. Arkansas National Guardsmen watched every entrance of the school. Defying a federal court order, Gov. Orval Faubus ordered National Guardsmen to the school to halt its integration.

Russ Airliner Leaves On U.S. Journey

LONDON (AP)—A big Russian jet airliner roared out of London airport today for the first flight to the United States by a Soviet civilian plane.

The twin-jet TU104 flew here from Moscow, stopped 2 hours and 25 minutes for refueling, then took off for Keflavik, Iceland.

From Keflavik it will fly to Gander, Nfld., and then on to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. It will be the first Russian plane to land in the United States in 20 years.

The 5,570-mile Moscow-to-McGuire flight was expected to take about 18 hours total flying time.

The last Russian aircraft to visit the United States—a military plane in 1937—made a 6,200-mile flight in 62 hours, flying over the North Pole.

There were conflicting reports of the number of persons aboard the TU104. A Moscow radio broadcast said 60 passengers boarded the plane but a news dispatch from the Soviet capital said there were 19 and a crew of 12, including three Britons. A Transport Ministry official at London Airport said the plane carried 36 passengers.

Some passengers stayed aboard during the refueling stop in London, making an accurate count difficult. Most of those aboard were translators and minor officials of the Soviet delegation to the U. N. General Assembly. The McGuire base is about 60 miles from the site of U. N. headquarters in New York City.

The 1,610-mile flight from Moscow to London was made in 3 hours 46 minutes. Keflavik is 1,190 miles farther along. Gander another 1,585 miles and McGuire another 1,185.

The TU104 was expected at the New Jersey air base early tonight.

5,501 Enrolled In Big Spring Schools

First-day enrollment found 5,501 pupils in Big Spring schools Tuesday, a gain of almost 100 over the first-of-school enrollment a year ago. Total at that time was 5,419.

Only in the over-crowded junior high school is enrollment this year below the September, 1956, level. There are now 1,176 in junior high, compared to 1,273 a year ago.

High school enrollment stands at 768, compared to 727 last year, and the elementary registration totals 3,475 against 3,419 last year.

All of the totals are expected to swell appreciably in the next few days as late registrants are added to the list. In fact, approximately a dozen others already are on the rolls. They are in the new School for Exceptional Children, but no exact enrollment figures had been compiled this morning.

The new school is being set up in the former South Ward building, and ex-students there are in College Heights and East Ward schools where new classrooms are being put in service.

Enrollment at both East Ward and College Heights is up as a result of the transfers. It is down slightly at Washington Place, also because of a realignment of district lines.

Other elementary schools showing enrollment gains are Airport, 449 now and 414 last year; Park Hill, 214 now and 189 last year; and Lakeview, 222 now and 196 last year.

Only in East Ward and Park Hill elementary schools was near-capacity reached on the first day of school. Junior high, of course, is still overflowing, a condition that won't be alleviated until late 1958 when the city's second junior high school is expected to be put in service.

By grades, a gain was made in first-year enrollment, but declines occurred in the second through fourth grades.

The high school sophomore class gained 41 pupils over last year, the 11th grade stands at the same

Paper Aids Girl, 7, In Finding Mom

HOUSTON (AP)—Linda McCarty, 7, walked into her grandfather's grocery in Conroe—and into the arms of the mother she has not seen or three years.

"Oh, that's my mamma!" exclaimed Linda, who ran to Mrs. Nellie McCarty, who disappeared three years ago.

After the tearful, joyous reunion, Linda leaned back and smiled. "Mamma, you're the prettiest mother in the world," she cried. Mrs. McCarty hugged her daughter.

Three years ago, the young mother, newly divorced, left the Houston home where she was living with a sister, and vanished. She left Linda and two smaller children, Larry and Judy, behind.

She tried to explain her action. "I was ill, and emotionally upset," she said. "I had no place to take my children, and no adequate way to provide for them."

"I thought it would be better if I just disappeared. I knew they would be cared for by their father's people."

They were. Linda went to live with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McCarty Sr., in Conroe. Larry and Judy went to live with an aunt in Bay City.

Linda could not forget her mother. Last week, she wrote to the Houston Chronicle, asking a reporter to "please find my mother and tell her to come and see me."

The Chronicle did just that. Mrs. McCarty saw a story in Sunday's edition.

"I glanced at the paper, then I looked again and cried," she said. "My children have never left my mind. I don't know why I left them, but I never will again."

Zachary Hearing Slated Thursday

DALLAS (AP)—A bond hearing for Edgar Zachary, charged with attempting to rape a Grand Prairie woman, 25, has been set for tomorrow.

Judge Joe Brown set the hearing yesterday after Zachary's attorney, Hal Jackson of Denton, complained that a preliminary bond of $25,000 was excessive.

Zachary, 49, also is being questioned about the disappearance nine years ago of Virginia Carpenter, a Denton college student.

Zachary said he drove the Texarkana student from the train station to the campus the day she disappeared. He was then a cab driver.

Tax Conference Is Postponed

A meeting of the city commission, the school board and the county commissioners has been postponed from Thursday until Monday night.

H. W. Whitney, city manager, said the school had asked the change because of conflicting dates. The annual Quarterback Club barbecue was slated for Thursday night, and the school officials felt they should attend the feed.

The meeting will be held at the police building, in the classroom, at 7:30 p. m.

This morning, R. H. Weaver, county judge, said it would be acceptable with the county although he had not had time to consult with the commissioners.

The city and school board plan on initiating a tax valuation survey, and the county was invited to join. The meeting Monday night will be to discuss the matter.

Hearing On School Budget Scheduled

Public hearing has been scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Sept. 10 on the new budget for the Big Spring school system, Pat Murphy, school business manager, announced today.

The hearing will be conducted in the administrative building, 110 E. 10th St. The budget anticipates revenues and expenses approximately $1,700,000 for the next year.

Judge Delays Trial For BenJack Cage

DALLAS (AP)—Judge Frank Wilson postponed the embezzlement trial of promoter BenJack Cage today so Cage can prepare a defense and appear before Dallas and Austin juries.

Cage, former head of the collapsed ICT Insurance Co., has been indicted on charges of embezzling $600,000 from companies he managed.

His attorney, M. R. Irion, told Wilson that Cage would need at least a month to prepare a defense. Irion said documents bearing on the case are widely scattered.

He also said that appearances before several investigating bodies will slow down defense preparation.

Cage appeared briefly in court, smiling and waving to acquaintances.

Wilson did not name a specific date for the trial.

Cage was to return to the Dallas County grand jury hearing room this afternoon. He testified four hours yesterday.

Also wanting to talk officially with Cage are the Postal Department, the Securities and Exchange

Commission, and the liquidator for ICT Insurance Co.

Commission, and the liquidator for ICT Insurance Co.

Cage also faces questioning by a Texas House investigation committee, the Travis County grand jury and the federal tax office.

Yesterday, carrying only a small notebook, he went before the special Dallas County grand jury which indicted him and came out smiling.

"I felt like a champion that has come off the canvas," he told newsmen.

Upon the advice of Irion, he refused to answer any other questions.

Cage also has a date with Rene Alfred Jr., attorney for the receiver of ICT Insurance Co. here Oct. 7.

The subpoenas specified no date for Cage's appearance before the Texas House Committee or the Travis County grand jury. But in Austin, Sen. Charles Herring said his Special Senate Investigating Committee plans a Sept. 23 talk with Cage.

Dist. Atty. Les Procter of Austin said he didn't know when Cage would appear before his group.

Cage's appearance here climaxed seven months of uncertainty and speculation.

SHERIFF HERE IS BUSY MAN, DOESN'T KNOW ABOUT ACTOR

The name is Miller Harris; not Frank Morgan.

The office held is sheriff of Howard County, Texas—not Cochise County, Ariz. And the job is a real one here and not just a role in a television series.

It seems a woman, who naturally a little provoked—her husband had been arrested and placed in jail for drunken driving—started all the discussion.

She strode into the office of Sheriff Harris Tuesday, highly indignant.

"She slapped a bond form down before the sheriff and announced: 'Now I guess you'll have to let him out of jail.'"

The following dialogue ensued: SHERIFF HARRIS: Well, ma'am, I don't know about that—I'll have to examine this bond first.

WOMAN: You don't act all like Frank Morgan.

HARRIS: Who's Frank Morgan?

WOMAN: Sheriff of Cochise—that's who.

HARRIS: Well, ma'am, mebbe I don't—I'm not Frank Morgan. Name's Miller Harris.

Articles Denied

Clinger told reporters Faubus "has declared Central High off limits to Negroes."

In Charlotte, N. C., a band of white students and spectators attacked a 15-year-old girl with rocks and sticks today as she left a high school after registering as the first student of her race there.

The girl, Dorothy Geraldine Counts, was walking along a street headed homeward with the crowd behind her as she was struck lightly with a thrown stick. She was not injured.

Police arrested a white youth. His name was not immediately made known.

Federal Judge Ronald Davies said he was taking at face value Faubus' statement that the 250 guardsmen were called out to keep peace and order and not as segregationists or integrationists.

After a five-minute hearing he ordered the board to proceed. He issued his first integration order Friday.

Faubus insisted at a news conference later that he is not defying a federal court order.

Referring to Judge Davis' decision, Faubus said today: "The governor of the state is the preserver of peace, not a federal judge."

Asked why local and state police could not deal with violence, if it occurred, Faubus said that "it is better to preserve peace than to quell disorders."

An aide said Faubus had received about 500 telegrams since his mobilization of troops. More than 98 per cent favored the move, the governor's aide said.

U. S. CHECKING

President Eisenhower said at Washington that Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell is looking into the situation.

In Sturgis, Ky., 17 Negro students returned to Sturgis today with 30 state police keeping a watchful eye on a crowd gathered in front of the school.

The Negroes, escorted to the school in six automobiles, were not molested as they entered the school, scene of integration troubles last year. The Negroes registered yesterday despite heckling from a crowd of about 250 townspeople.

In Atlanta, Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin today commended use of troops to prevent integration of the Little Rock, Ark., high school and said he would have done the same thing.

Surprise Witness Enters Confidential Libel Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Attorneys in the Confidential magazine criminal libel trial went to a suburban home today to take testimony from a seriously ill woman, a surprise witness for the defense.

Defense attorney Arthur Crowley said she has new information about the alleged cuddling of actress Maureen O'Hara and a Latin lover in Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood.

Crowley declined to identify the witness, but Dep. Dist. Atty. William Ritz said she is Miss Jan Harkins of Gardena.

Ritz spent the first part of today's session introducing in evidence checks which had been identified earlier in the trial as having been paid by Hollywood Research, Inc., to informers who provided scandalous tales for Confidential.

Indications were the long trial was nearing an end.

Both Miss O'Hara and Dorothy Dandridge testified yesterday that Confidential magazine stories involving them in love-making episodes were untrue.

The two stars put glitter into the criminal libel trial of the magazine yesterday when, their eyes flashing angrily, they snapped their denials while testifying for the prosecution.

They were the first, and perhaps the last, celebrities to appear in the trial of Confidential and Whisper magazines and their Hollywood agents Fred and Marjorie Meade. The prosecution expects to complete its rebuttal testimony today.

Miss O'Hara testified that the story entitled "When Maureen O'Hara Cuddled in Row 35" was completely false.

Outside the courtroom she told newsmen that she has not had an offer of work since the article appeared and that she feels the story is to blame. She has sued Confidential for five million dollars.

The red-haired Miss O'Hara told the court that she was in Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood only twice during 1953 and 1954, both times to attend premieres with her brothers.

Those years include the disputed periods in which, defense witnesses have testified, Miss O'Hara was seen in a rear row of the theater, embracing passionately with a Latin man.

Miss Dandridge, Negro singer and actress, said a story entitled "What Dorothy Dandridge Did in the Woods" was "absolutely not true." She testified she did not

Hailstorm Hits Fairview Area

A brief but battering hailstorm, accompanied by some wind and a half-inch of rain, struck a narrow segment of Howard County at 6 p. m. Tuesday. The storm was restricted to an area beginning at Fairview and extending three miles north and about an equal distance east.

In this particular district, the hail did extensive damage to crops, according to spokesmen for the Fairview gin. Some of the fields around the gin are pretty badly beaten, it was reported.

Walker Bailey, county school superintendent was en route from Big Spring to Vealmoor in his pickup truck. He was caught in the sudden storm and said that the deluge was so heavy that driving was almost impossible. There are dents on the hood of his pickup to testify to the force with which the stones lashed the earth.

Apparently the area covered was narrow and Bailey said that he did not believe that the storm reached as far west as U. S. 87. There was no rain at Vealmoor.

JetStar Transport On Maiden Flight

By JOHN BECKLER EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Eight months ago Lockheed Aircraft Co. directors nodded approvingly at some preliminary drawings of a small jet transport. Today the plane, named JetStar, tested its shiny wings in flight.

No one is claiming any records for turning out an airplane in eight months from drawing board to flight line, but it is a performance of note in the fiercely competitive aircraft industry.

Normally it takes anywhere from two to three years to transform a sketch of a new aircraft design into a modern airplane.

Clarence L. (Kelly) Johnson, Lockheed's vice president for engineering and research, heads the company's 350-man Special Projects Department—and the more special the project the better this 47-year-old engineering whiz likes it.

Late in World War II Special Projects turned out the prototype of the F80 Shooting Star in just 143 days. But the much larger JetStar, a swept-wing, 500-m.p.h., 10-passenger plane, may well be

SPECIAL NOTE TO COLLEGIANS

In your preparations for going to the campus, don't forget to arrange for The Herald to be sent to you during the school term.

Johnson was so sure of his crew's ability to put the plane together quickly that the day after that directors meeting eight months ago he posted a sign in the Special Projects area. It read: "First flight, 9 a. m., Sept. 4, 1957, 241 days left."

A worker from another department wandered into the hangar one day, expecting to see tireless crews swarming like ants over the JetStar. He found a group of silent men sitting on the floor munching sandwiches.

"Hey, what goes on?" he asked. "Here I come in at 10:30 in the morning and you're already eating lunch. What gives?"

"This," one man answered wearily, "is yesterday's lunch."

This picture received from Kingston, Jamaica shows a railroad coach's splintered vestibule and twisted mechanical equipment after the crash that killed 160 holiday excursionists. Some bodies were planned under this coach.

Dibrell Appointed Probation Officer

An order prepared by Judge Charlie Sullivan of 118th District Court, appointing John Dibrell, Big Spring business man and civic leader, as Howard County Adult Probation Officer was handed to R. H. Weaver, county judge, Tuesday afternoon.

The order stated that Dibrell was the new appointee for the post and that the court recommended his salary be fixed at $100 per month.

It was explained Tuesday noon that the Howard County Commissioners Court could not take any action on the matter of an adult probation officer for the county at its Tuesday morning session for the reason that "nothing official on the matter was before the court."

More Victims To Be Buried

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Eighty more victims of one of history's worst railroad disasters will be buried in private funerals in Kingston today.

A special train brought their bodies to this Caribbean capital city yesterday as 80 others were being covered with rain-drenched red earth at a mass grave near the train's wreckage, 60 miles from here.

The unofficial count of those killed Sunday night, when a holiday excursion train broke apart on a steep curve, has risen to 183. Other bodies are believed to remain in the wreckage at Kendall station, five miles from the mountain mining village of Mandeville. Driving tropical rains hampered the burials and the search of the wreckage.

Some 500 persons were injured. A government investigation will begin soon. The uncoupling of the overcrowded train, which sent nine of the 12 wooden coaches smashing down a 100-foot embankment, has not been explained.

Defendant Gets Speedy Trial, Prison Term

GARDEN CITY — Edward William Lane Jr., charged with DWI second offense, was indicted by the Glasscock County Grand Jury, brought before Judge Charlie Sullivan in 118th District Court, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary — all in the space of two hours and a half Tuesday.

Lane's case was the lone matter to be presented to the Glasscock County Grand Jury when it convened Tuesday morning. The grand jurors quickly voted the indictment.

Lane advised Guilford Jones, district attorney, that he desired to plead guilty. He was taken before Judge Sullivan and a delay developed—he had no counsel and there are no attorneys in Glasscock County.

Carroll Smith, Big Spring, was called by phone and agreed to drive to Garden City to represent Lane at the hearing on his guilty plea.

The judge, the district attorney and all officials connected with the formalities of opening court were back in Big Spring shortly after 1 p.m.—all work for the present completed in Glasscock County.

Three civil cases had been scheduled for trial but were not brought to a jury. Judge Sullivan excused the panel called for petit jury duty and dismissed the grand jurors.

Daily Average Oil Production Falls

TULSA (AP)—Daily average production of crude oil declined 14,800 barrels to 6,804,759 during the week ended Aug. 31, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Oklahoma accounted for the bulk of the loss, falling 12,600 barrels to 532,800. North Dakota had the best increase, up 7,000 barrels to 38,100.

The Journal estimated 1957 production at 1,786,936,025 barrels compared to 1,746,628,819 a year ago.

Other decreases were reported for Arkansas, down 4,600 barrels to 81,000, and New Mexico, 1,700 to 248,000. An increase was reported also for Louisiana, 500 to 796,000. Production was unchanged in Texas, 2,813,700 barrels.

Thunderstorms Taper Off In Texas After Causing 1 Death

Thunderstorms tapered off in Texas Wednesday after pounding storms Tuesday which caused one death.

The squall line which kicked off most of the storms moved out into the Gulf. Thunderstorms were reported Wednesday in the Beaumont, Galveston, Palacios and Corpus Christi areas.

Lufkin, College Station, Texas, Longview and Tyler reported fog.

Predawn lows ranged from 60 degrees at Dalhart to 80 at Laredo.

The storms Tuesday lashed the coast and parts of East Texas. Thunderstorms dotted other parts of the state.

Houston got more than three inches of rain in an afternoon storm. Water-logged streets snarled traffic.

Andrew Montemayor, 64, of Crosby, was killed when his truck skidded in hard rain and plunged over an embankment.

A gust of wind toppled a 64-foot crane at a Houston shipyard on autos and a truck, but there were no injuries.

Earlier, isolated thundershowers caused wind damage and power troubles in South Central and West Central Texas.

Heavy rains fell Tuesday afternoon at Nacogdoches, Lufkin and Henderson.

More than an inch in an hour and a half at Nacogdoches knocked phones out of commission for a time and radio KSWA off the air.

Late Tuesday, showers continued at Houston, Beaumont and Lufkin.

Heavy downpours lashed San Antonio and Coleman early Tuesday. Lightning shut off power for a time in San Antonio and rain blocked some streets.

Late Tuesday, the Weather Bureau said scattered thundershowers ran from 30 miles northeast of Abilene to San Angelo to about 90 miles northwest of Del Rio.

Another thundershower area was reported in West Texas, 50 miles west of Amarillo to about 70 miles southwest of Lubbock.

A scattered area of thundershowers was located about 30 miles southwest of Waco.

Still more showers ran along the coast.

Highs Tuesday ranged from 105 at Presidio to 88 at Galveston.

Official rainfall totals for the 24 hours ending at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday included: 3.28 inches at Houston, San Antonio 1.18, Abilene .51, Austin .27, Lufkin .24, Galveston .15, Palacios .14, College Station and Victoria .11 and Waco .05.

Lincoln Birthday Measure Signed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Tuesday signed a bill setting up the machinery for celebrating the 150th anniversary in 1959 of Abraham Lincoln's birth.

Texas Tornado Brings Goodwill Into Morocco

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—A Texas tornado is sending gusts of goodwill in all directions through Morocco.

King Mohammed V was the first to benefit with the gift yesterday of a $100 white cowboy hat presented on behalf of Gov. Price Daniel and the people of Texas.

Next came children at an orphanage who received cowboy boots and blue jeans.

The gifts began to flow with the arrival of more than 70 officers and men of the 47th Air Reserve Squadron of Dallas for a two-week training mission at Fort Lyautey Naval Air Station north of here.

The King promised the Texans he would wear the 10-gallon headgear, inscribed in gold lettering, when he goes riding. He often does in the forests around Rabat.

"We are familiar with the great size and general generosity of Texas and Texans," he said.

Capt. William Richards, commander of the Dallas Naval Air Station, and Cmdr. Burt Mans, also of Dallas, presented the cowboy hat. They also gave the King a cowgirl doll for his youngest daughter, Lallam, 3.

In a letter to the monarch, Daniel told him that Texans hold Moroccans in high esteem. He promised a fitting welcome if the King would visit Texas during his U.S. tour late this year.

Children at a Rabat orphanage were given almost 300 pairs of blue jeans and 40 pairs of high-heeled cowboy boots. They were presented by Lt. Cmdr. Earl Dinsmore, representing the Dallas Junior Chamber of Commerce, which donated funds for the project.

The Texas reservists had a barbecue last night in a clubhouse at Fort Lyautey. Cavendish Cannon, U.S. ambassador to Morocco, received a white cowboy hat. He and six members of the embassy staff were made "naturalized citizens of the State of Texas."

Probe Opens Into N.Y. Migrant Camps

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—A committee of key members of Gov. Averell Harriman's Cabinet today opens a full-scale investigation of conditions in New York state migrant camps.

They will have at their disposal a tape-recorded report of a 37-year-old Georgia Negro whose claims of mistreatment in a New York camp stirred a storm.

Harriman, who was expected to attend part of the session, ordered the inquiry. The interdepartmental committee on Farm and Food Processing Labor is conducting it.

The Georgia man, James H. Brunson of Augusta, returned North yesterday. He told newsmen he had come to New York originally not to earn money but to learn about conditions.

He reiterated that workers lived under unsanitary conditions, that he had been held in virtual peonage, that young unmarried women were forced into sexual relations and that there was much drinking and gambling in the camp near Hannibal, in Oswego County.

Brunson told newsmen that some camp buildings, 8 by 10 feet in size, contained two double-size beds to accommodate four people.

Families with three or more children had to cut holes in the walls to get more room, he said. The grounds were littered with debris, "kids stopped up the sewers" and there was "muck in the shower rooms," he said.

George Chilson and Frank Patane, the operators of the camp, have termed Brunson's report "a bunch of lies."

Autumn Weather Chills Midwest

A touch of autumn weather chilled the northern Midwest and cooler air spread across the northeast quarter of the country today.

As the cool Canadian air moved into the Northeast, temperatures dropped into the 60s in most areas from Kansas through the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast and northward through New England. Light rain fell in scattered areas along the Appalachians.

Lower temperatures and scattered light showers were reported from the Dakotas through most of the Great Lakes region. Thunderstorms rumbled across areas in Texas, Oklahoma and eastern Colorado during the night.

Helping At Birth Pleasing To Cop

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Doctors at Osteopathic Hospital congratulated Highway Patrolman George Moore for helping deliver Mrs. Raymond Wells' baby girl in his patrol car. Moore commented: "I have to cover so many accidents where people die that it's a pleasure to help bring somebody into the world."

People who can easily pay any price say:

"Pay more... what for? Ford's the buy!"

Why? Because this 1957 Ford gives you the advanced features, the solid ride, the effortless handling that you once expected to find only in expensive cars. And when it comes to looks, where in all the world can you find fresher styling than in the sculptured-in-steel lines of this new Ford?

Ford's superiority is evident in many places. In the vital rear axle, the pinion gear that turns the rear wheels is straddle-mounted... supported between two anti-friction bearings instead of being "overhung" from a single bearing. This makes operation quieter, smoother and longer-lasting. It's a feature that Ford shares with only one other car maker—Rolls Royce.

Or consider Ford's famous V-8 engine. No other manufacturer in the industry today electronically balances every V-8 engine, while operating under its own power, the way that Ford does. This means you get a smoother-running engine—the finest V-8 in Ford's 25 years of V-8 leadership.

These are only a few of the important hidden values that are yours in the new kind of Ford. But they indicate why so many people who can pay almost any price for a car—people who have driven expensive cars for years—are buying Ford today. Action Test this great performing car at your Ford Dealer's just once and you too, will ask, "Pay more... what for?"

Syrians Not Politically Bent

By ANGELO NATALE

DAMASCUS (AP)—The man on the Damascus street is little concerned by developments which have propelled Syria into the world spotlight.

It is business as usual in shops, movie houses and cafes while the Syrian press voices the government's charge of an American plot to overthrow the current regime and while the West pictures this country as Soviet dominated.

Syrians have never been what can be called pro-American but there has been no outward display of hostility toward Americans. The shops are full of American and other Western products. Businessmen say sales have never been better. Soviet bloc influence also is visible. Newsstands and bookstores are filled with Communist magazines and literature in English and Arabic. Billboards advertise new model Russian autos.

Sidewalk peddlers sell cheaply made busts of Egypt's Nasser or ashtrays bearing models of Syrian air force planes—including MIGs.

You'll also find American comic magazines eagerly bought by Syrian youngsters.

American films still predominate at first-run movie houses. Perhaps most affected by the recent events are U. S. Embassy personnel, who found themselves suddenly cut off socially from Syrians.

The Syrians, while not hostile toward Americans, apparently did not want to mix with them as friends in the light of current tensions. Syrian acquaintances of Americans still decline invitations to social gatherings which they previously would have accepted.

Final U.S. Traffic Score Set At 445

CHICAGO (AP)—A final tabulation of accident reports showed today at least 445 persons were killed in traffic accidents during the long Labor Day weekend.

This toll exceeded by 25 the pre-holiday estimate of 420 made by the National Safety Council. Although the toll surpassed last year's Labor Day toll of 435 as well, it was not a record for the holiday period. The largest traffic death toll was 461 during the 78-hour Labor Day weekend in 1951. In the holiday just concluded, an Associated Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, Sept. 2, showed an over-all death toll of 636 from traffic, drowning and miscellaneous accidents. There were 95 drownings and 96 deaths in a variety of accidents.

'Telemovies' Bring Mixed Reactions

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP)—Some 200 television set owners here changed channels yesterday and relaxed to enjoy a first run movie.

It was the debut of "Telemovies"—by which current movies are piped into homes through a coaxial cable for a charge of $9.50 a month.

Two channels are being used by Video Independent Theaters, Inc., of Oklahoma City to show the movies. Yesterday's showings were "Pajama Game" and "Mississippi Gambler."

The shows ran from 1 p.m. to midnight. There were mixed reactions on the "Telemovies"—or "TM" as Video calls it. A mother of two children, Mrs.

Tom R. Weaver, said she was only able to see one other movie the past year because of the trouble of hiring a baby-sitter. W. J. (Doc) Hayes liked the venture because there were no commercials.

But R. B. Coleman, who has five children, didn't subscribe to the service. He declared: "When they want to see movies, I like to get them out of my hair."

Video officials reported, however, that the reaction was generally good. They hope to boost the number of subscribers to 2,000 in this city of 28,000 within a year.

The entertainment world is anxiously watching the experiment, linking the motion picture industry and television.

Faubus Native Of Deep Ozark Region

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The man who ordered the National Guard to stand watch over Little Rock's Central High School comes from deep in the Ozark Hills—a far-removed land where a man might spend a lifetime without ever seeing a Negro.

A touch of the twang of the mountains remains in the speech of Gov. Orval Faubus, but he is far different from the average hill farmer (a term he loves to use in describing himself), and he has undergone a startling change since he opened his first gubernatorial campaign in 1954. He called the National Guard "the me-lish-ee" in his television speech Monday night.

His action in calling out the guard to prevent racial integration at Central High was somewhat startling to political observers since the governor seldom goes all-out in any direction. For three years, he has been parrying direct questions from newsmen with increasing skill. He has developed from a sometimes fumbling speech-reader in his 1954 darkhorse days to a pretty fair orator.

Faubus is 47, under average height with a plain face and an engaging grin that convinces voters of his sincerity. He has a reputation of retribution for his political enemies and fulfilled promises for his supporters. He numbers among his friends influential east Arkansas businessmen and planters who are strong segregationists, but he appointed Winthrop Rockefeller to head an effective new program of industrialization—a Yankee who votes the Republican ticket and has a Negro farm manager.

He has bucked tradition by up-setting one-term Gov. Francis Cherry in 1954 although Arkansas voters usually grant a second term without protest.

He defied another tradition in 1956 when he remained only slightly above lukewarm on segregation and still won without a runoff. During that campaign, he remained a middle-of-the-roader with this stock statement: "There will be no enforced integration in the public schools of Arkansas as long as I am your governor."

He said that integration was a problem for local school boards. (Last year, he said that he would not interfere with Little Rock's gradual integration plan.)

Faubus again seemed to have a hands-off attitude toward segregation when four anti-integration bills came up in the 1957 Legislature, but he signed them and said that they were more moderate than those passed by other Southern states. On the other hand, he waited so long to appoint the members of the State Sovereignty Commission that he was threatened with a suit.

Faubus

Gov. Orval Faubus, in a televised speech, ordered Arkansas National Guard units to maintain what he called "peace and order" at Central High School in Little Rock. His action delayed compliance with a federal court order directing the school to integrate.

Moon Used In Radio Relay

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Naval scientists reported today that the moon can be used as a radio relay station. Voice messages as well as radar signals have been successfully transmitted to the moon and echoed back to earth through use of high frequency radar equipment, they said. The results of six years of experiments were outlined by James H. Trexler and Benjamin S. Yapplee of the Naval Research Laboratory in papers prepared for a meeting of the International Scientific Radio Unions. As early as 1951, they said, their experiments convinced them that although the moon looks rough, it is comparatively smooth to radar waves. They theorized that it might therefore serve as a relay station for radio communication. They said this has since been confirmed.

Navy Jet Crashes Into Homes But Occupants Escape Injury

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Almost any other Tuesday at 5 p.m., the Charles Schneiders and Raymond Meyers would have been at home. Yesterday a Navy jet fighter smashed into their homes at that hour in suburban Berkeley, leaving them in charred ruins. The pilot, Lt. John R. Renshaw, Centerville, Md., appeared to be shooting for an open space a block west of the Meyer home. Instead his burning plane hit what may have been the only two unoccupied homes in the area. Renshaw was killed. Schneider, operator of a home improvement firm, said his wife Ruth would be busy getting supper almost any other Tuesday. Their children, Linda, 2, Charles, 5, and Richard, 3 1/2 months, would be at home. But it was the first day of school and his wife had picked out the children's best clothes. She told her husband at his office: "I think when the kids come home, they'll be all dressed up so I think we'll go over to mother's. If you can pick us up there." They were at the home of Mrs. Schneider's mother Mrs. Lorena Stevens, in suburban Jennings when the plane ripped through the Meyer home and into their six-room frame house, leaving only a few upright timbers and four drawers of untouched clothing in a scorched dresser. Schneider was still at his office. Almost any other Tuesday, Raymond Meyer would be in the shower bathing after a day on a construction job. But yesterday he was kept 10 minutes overtime. He made up a few minutes en route to pick up his wife at work. He made up a few more minutes on the home stretch. They were just two blocks away when the plane hit. Harry Fields, a neighbor, said the Meyers' house "just disappeared." "By the time I could get to the door, which was four or five seconds, the second house was in flames," he said. The plane apparently developed trouble immediately after takeoff from Lambert-St. Louis Airport a mile from Berkeley, and was on fire before the crash. Lt. Renshaw, stationed at the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent River, Md., had made the trip here to pick up some test equipment.

A-Bomb Use Seen In Artificial Quakes

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Reporter TORONTO (AP)—Atom bombs will someday be exploded underground to make earthquakes, an Australian scientist predicts. It will be done just for science and peaceful knowledge, he said. Shock waves from the bombs can help solve mysteries of what the insides of the earth are like from its thin upper crust down toward its metallic heart. The prediction comes from Prof. K. E. Bullen, seismologist of the University of Sydney. He says earthquake specialists two years ago asked Washington, Moscow and London for up to four A-bombs for just such use. Bullen, addressing the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics, wouldn't disclose the replies. But he said such planned explosions must come sooner or later to advance scientific knowledge. Some A-bomb and H-bomb tests have incidentally given scientists new insights into the earth's interior makeup, he reported. Bullen said shock waves from British bomb tests in Australia last year had supplied indirect evidence that the inner core is solid metal. The same waves indicated a thickness of 20 miles for the upper layer of the earth in Australia. From shock waves recorded from Nevada bomb tests in 1951, Prof. Beno Gutenberg of the California Institute of Technology figured the outer layer of the earth in that area was 20 to 25 miles thick.

Helpless 2 Days In Elevator Shaft

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Richard Chambers was in serious condition today after being found at the bottom of an elevator shaft where he had lain two days crying for help. Chambers, 32, told police he fell into the shaft while seeking a place to sleep. The building was being torn down. An unidentified woman stopped two policemen yesterday and said she thought she heard a baby's cry coming from the building. Police investigated and found Chambers. Hospital attendants said he suffered a broken leg and severe cuts.

Convicted Rapist Gets Execution Stay

HUNTSVILLE (AP)—John Wright, 35-year-old Negro scheduled to die for the rape of a pregnant white woman, Tuesday got a 10-day stay of execution. The stay was granted in Austin after court-appointed lawyers asked additional time to prepare a request that the death sentence be changed to life in prison.

Englishman Had Ride On Back Of Alligator

By RAYMOND COFFMAN A young Englishman, Charles Waterton, had an exciting ride one day. He rode on the back of an alligator! The event took place in British Guiana, where large, tough alligators of the cayman type live in, and around, the rivers. Waterton had been camping beside a river for some time when he learned from Indian companions that an alligator might be caught in much the same way as a large fish. The Indians made a hook of a sort from pieces of crossed wood. The hook was about one foot in diameter, and was suspended from a stake which had been driven into the river bottom. It dangled above the water surface. A strong rope extended from the hook to the men on shore. Late in the afternoon a greedy alligator came along. It tried to swallow the hook. Knowing the danger from a hooked alligator, the Indians advised the white man to shoot it. He told them that he wanted to take it alive to a zoo in England, and refused to use his rifle. The alligator was hauled to within a few feet of shore, and then the white man made a flying leap. He landed on the animal's back, and quickly reached down and seized its front legs. The legs gave him something to hold, and he needed support. No one could say that he had a safe seat! The alligator lashed with its tail, but Waterton was too far forward to be struck. He managed to keep his place, and enjoyed (?) a ride of 40 feet after the animal climbed up the bank! The alligator's jaws and tail were roped. It was placed on a river boat, and later was taken aboard the vessel which Waterton used to return to England. For GENERAL INTEREST section of your scrapbook. Dutch Sneed, 1102 W. Kentucky, Midland, Texas, wrote us as follows: "I am happy to endorse Barcenate. I lost 25 pounds on three bottles. I am now taking it for a tonic, more than as a reducing aid. Usually when I have tried a reducing aid, I have always been tired and run down, but not with Barcenate. It decreases my appetite, instead of increasing it." Get Barcenate from any Texas druggist. ## Dallas Segregation Hearing Ordered

DALLAS (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge William Atwell directed attorneys in Dallas' school segregation case yesterday to appear in his court tomorrow. The hearing will come almost two years to the hour since 23 Negro students applied for admission to white public schools here Sept. 5, 1955.

Judge Atwell would not indicate what action would be taken. Andrew Thuss, attorney for the Dallas Independent School District, said he had been notified of the hearing and both he and attorneys for the Negro students were to be in court.

W. J. Durham, who has represented the students in the case, was not available for comment. Judge Atwell has twice ruled against integration in schools here.

Sept. 16, 1955, he ruled schools here could remain segregated for a while. Later, the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ruled the veteran Dallas jurist could remain segregated while its officials continued their study of the problems.

Last July, the New Orleans court again ordered Dallas schools to integrate "with all deliberate speed." The schools asked for a rehearing, based on a Texas law which would withhold state funds from a district which integrated without approval in a local option election. The rehearing was denied. Meanwhile the school board announced it would continue to operate the schools in a segregated basis. There were no reports yesterday, the first day of school, of Negro students attempting to enroll in white schools here.

Torture Victim May Lose Hands NACOGDOCHES (AP)—A Negro girl, 7, faced amputation of her hands today as a result of an infection blamed on having been tied between two beds. A physician said both hands probably would have to be removed. Officer Charles Coleman quoted the child's mother, 39, as saying the girl developed a rash and blisters on her hands after she was tied by her wrists and feet between two beds four weeks ago. The officer said the mother accused her husband of tying the girl up. He said the stepfather told him the mother lashed the girl between the beds. Coleman said the flesh on the child's fingers had been eaten away by the infection. No charges were filed.

Make seeing and studying easier!

with proper light at the study table

School age youngsters need plenty of good light to prevent eye fatigue and to aid concentration. You'll be giving your children real help with their homework when you make sure they have good study lighting.

In most instances, a good table lamp with a 150-watt bulb will provide ample light. The lamp should be properly shaded to conceal the light source from the eyes and should be tall enough to spread light evenly over the work area.

Check home study lighting now. Be sure your youngsters have plenty of good light to make seeing and studying easier.

LOOK UNDER THE SHADE! To soften the light and prevent glare, a study lamp should be equipped with a diffusing bowl (A), or a 150 watt white indirect bulb (B), which has its own built-in diffuser. For three-way lamps use a 50-100-150 watt or 30-200-230 watt three-way bulb.

Changeover From U.S. Treasurer To Country Store Clerk Easy

By FRED MOEN

RICHLAND, Kan. (AP) — Georgia Neese Clark Gray, who used to be responsible for 27 billion dollars as the first woman U. S. treasurer, now may be found cutting meat or counting money in her combination general store and bank in this little community of 250 people.

From Government To Store

The former U.S. treasurer, whose name was on every bill issued by the government from 1949 to 1953, waits on a customer, Mrs. L. Roy Murren and her little son, Wayne, in the family general store and bank.

Mrs. Gray—politician, businesswoman, farm operator and former actress—signed her name on all bills issued by the U. S. government during the second Truman administration, 1949 to 1953. But she says life in this little crossroads, with a town water pump and old-fashioned wooden canopies over the sidewalks, can be more challenging than in the nation's capital.

MEAT, WHEAT, MONEY
You're most likely to find Mrs. Gray, a dynamic personality in her late 50s with nary a gray hair, sitting at a small wooden desk, with a typewriter at one side, behind the "cages" of the bank located at the rear of her well-stocked general store. She and her husband, Andrew, also own a cafe, 75,000 bushel capacity grain elevator, an insurance agency and 1,800 acres of nearby farm land.

She's just as adept at cutting up a roast at the meat counter or weighing a load of wheat at the elevator as she is cashing a check or listening sympathetically to a straw-hatted farmer asking for an extension on his cattle loan.

As treasurer, Mrs. Gray was the nation's No. 1 cashier—collecting and disbursing billions of dollars in government funds.

SMALL TOWN LIFE
"Most of the work of treasurer is done by rote," Mrs. Gray says. "You don't make any policy decisions. But operating these small town businesses means making decisions, taking risks and always being confronted with the human element."

"You know these people in a small town. You know their background. They know yours. Your emotions often get tied up and you sometimes make a deal that's not good business. But I'm a gambler on people. It's surprising how few people let you down."

She wasn't worried when she made the switch from Richland to Washington because — "If you can succeed in a little town you don't have to worry about succeeding in a city."

NO POTOMAC FEVER
Did she find it hard to make the readjustment from life in Washington back to Richland?
"No. I never got Potomac fever. Life in Washington means glamor, prestige and being in on things. You feel you are a part of government. In Richland you are a vital part of the community and state."

Mrs. Gray has been Democratic national committeewoman for Kansas since 1936. She has never sought elective office but during hot campaigns you'll often find her making fiery political speeches with the best of them.

"My main satisfaction in politics is helping people, whether they are Democrats or Republicans," Mrs. Gray says. She wielded considerable influence in the Kansas Democratic party which now holds the governor's chair for the first time in 20 years.

The Grays live in the 11-room, 65-year-old house built by her parents. They maintain an apartment, mainly for weekends, in nearby Topeka.

Patio Dinner Honor For Engaged Pair

Nancy King and Joe Liberty, who will be married Friday evening in the First Christian Church, were honored Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ann Gibson Houser, Cohostess was Mrs. Houser's sister, Mrs. B. R. Keller of Houston.

Miss King is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linn T. King; parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dyer of Ackerville.

Guests were served at two glass-topped tables on the patio; one, of clear glass, was laid with white linen place mats, hurricane lamps of crystal and an arrangement of shasta daisies and fern in a crystal bowl.

The second table, green-topped, was decorated in identical fashion, using green and chintz accessories.

Present for the dinner were the honored couple, their parents, Sarah King, Linda Kay Dyer, sisters of the couple, Eddie Mack Dyer, brother of the bridegroom-elect, Mary Ann Nugent, Mrs. S. H. Gibson, and B. R. Keller.

Woman Runs Cooperative Power Plant

MINTRURN, Maine (AP)—The moment you meet her eyes, smiling with interest and kindness, you tone down your complaints and thank her for being so kind as to make out your receipt.

She is Mrs. Phyllis Temple Stinson, who works on remote Swan's Island as one of the nation's youngest managers of a cooperative power plant.

Mrs. Stinson, 28, daughter of the Rev. Cecil Temple, a former minister of the Advent Christian Church here was named manager of the then six-year-old Swan's Island Electric Cooperative last year. She now heads a company serving 200 customers on a typical Down East island where some still cling to their kerosene lamps because they don't like this new innovation called electricity.

"That newfangled thing can't last, you just wait and see," said some, when electricity moved onto Swan's Island in 1950.

The day the power was to be turned on for the first time, one elderly lady sat near the door of her house with packed suitcases ready to leave "in case the darn thing blows up," Mrs. Stinson recalls.

But more and more residents are coming to her office on the 20th of the month to pay their power bills, due on that date. Only last year a cable was laid to the village of Frenchville on neighboring Long Island, and Mrs. Stinson believes her plant is capable of serving many more customers.

Fairview HD Club Has Study On Family Business Center For Home

Advantages of having a family business center in the home were discussed Tuesday afternoon for members of the Fairview Home Demonstration Club. The group met in the home of Mrs. W. H. Ward.

Elizabeth Pace, HD agent, was the speaker. She told the members that a center would save time and would enable the family to answer correspondence in one promptly. It would prevent costly waste and the loss of money, she said, as well as helping to avoid legal difficulties.

She described the making of two centers; one to be in the kitchen for filing household accounts, receipts, and other articles pertaining to the keeping of the house. The other center could be in any room of the house which is convenient for such work, the agent told the members.

Old furniture that might be re-done to make a center includes tables, wash stands or cabinets, Miss Pace said, and she showed examples of such reconditioned pieces.

Mrs. Ward brought the devotion from the book of Matthew. Roll call was answered by nine members who described their first day at school.

The thought for the day was "Never let an opportunity pass to say a good word to, or about, somebody."

Mrs. Lonnie Griffin, 303 Willa, will be the next hostess, it was announced.

Scheduled for 9 a.m. Sept. 16, 17 and 18, the sessions will be held in Ward Three at the base hospital.

A nursery will be in operation for workers' children during the time the women are in class and for the periods when they are on duty.

For further information, you may call the president, Mrs. Robert N. Rhodes, AM 3-3575, or Mrs. William H. Nottingham, AM 4-2978.

Baptist WMU Ends Study On Prayer

The final chapter of a study book was given for the College Baptist WMU Tuesday morning at the church. Mrs. G. H. Hayward was the reviewer, and she discussed "Practical Primer on Prayer."

The meeting was opened with a prayer by Mrs. Bill Blalack. Plans were made for the installation of officers and a coffee to be given at the church Sept. 25 at 9:30 a.m.

Announcement was made of the Week of Prayer to be held Monday through Sept. 13, with an evening meeting on Sept. 11. Other sessions will be held at 9:30 a.m. Eleven attended the meeting and were dismissed with a prayer by Mrs. H. W. Bartlett.

WMS Sets Goal For Prayer Week

A Week of Prayer goal was set by the WMS of the Baptist Temple when the group met Tuesday morning at the church. The week to be observed Monday through Friday, will have as its theme, "In Our Vineyard." Meetings have been set for 9:30 each morning during the week.

In charge of arrangements for programs are Mrs. John Lucas and Mrs. Garland Sanders. Proceeds will go into the Mary Hill Davis offering for the state mission fund.

At the meeting Tuesday, prayers were offered by the Rev. A. R. Posey, Mrs. Lorraine Sims and Mrs. W. B. Jackson.

Mrs. Sims read the birthday list of missionaries and special prayers were given for them. Reports were heard from the community missions chairmen.

Bible study for the morning was brought by Rev. Posey from the third chapter of Ephesians on the topic of Paul's plea for perfection.

Two Sets Of Twins Included As Guests

Two sets of twins were among the holiday guests of Big Spring families during the weekend. They are Tyrone and Flynn, Lonnie Mark and Lorrin Joe Wright of Corpus Christi, nine and three years old, respectively.

The boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe M. Wright, who have been visiting her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Tynes, 205 Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Tynes, 204 Austin and Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold, 424 Westover.

The H. E. Tyneses are parents of Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Arnold and F. P. Tynes. Another sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Rodger W. Wyman, Vicki Len and Michael Dennis of Lynn, Mass., were here, also for the family gathering.

Trim, Fit Classes To Begin At YMCA

The first in series of Trim and Fit Classes, sponsored by the YMCA, will begin at the Y on Sept. 17. The hour-long class will be held from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday through Friday for six weeks.

Gene Eads will be the instructor for the course, which will end on Oct. 11.

There is no fee for members of the Y, who may make their registration over the phone. Non-members are asked to come by the Y to register; the fee will be five dollars.

A nursery will be in operation at the Y for children of class members.

B. J. Pettys Have Holiday Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Petty, Garden City Highway, were hosts to a group during the Labor Day weekend.

Visiting them were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Rob Etheridge of Huntsville; the mother, Mrs. Pat Etheridge of Iraan, and his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Etheridge, Mark and Joanie of Kermit.

A Bible Thought For Today

Saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again. (St. Luke 24:7)

Maybe Speed Figures In It

Figuring the number of automobiles in use in this country exclusive of trucks and buses at around 50 million, it is possible to apply an interesting statistic and come up with a startling bit of inferential information.

During 1956 automobiles one year old or younger figured in 36 per cent of the country's fatal accidents. If the number of new cars was between 5 and 6 million, the new ones represented around 10 per cent of all cars in operation, but this ten per cent figured in 36 per cent of the fatal accidents.

Cars two years old figured in only 11 per cent of these accidents, those 3 years old in 10 per cent, and those 4 years old in 7 per cent.

These statistics come from the Texas Department of Public Safety and presumably they apply to Texas' experience only. In the main these figures apply in the same ratio to every year from 1950 to 1956, so there is nothing freakish about them.

What they indicate is anybody's guess, but it appears obvious that the age of automobiles has little reference to their operating safety. Is it that people place more confidence in a new car and therefore demand more of it in the way of top speed? Or is the impulse to let 'er out with a new car irresistible?

In 1956 the speed rate of 51 to 60 m.p.h. figured in a larger percentage of accidents than any other grouping, 19 per cent. The 61 to 70 m.p.h. grouping accounted for only 11 per cent, but above 70 m.p.h. for 17 per cent. We assume the higher percentage in the 51-60 grouping is due to the fact that more people operate within that limit than between 61 to 70, hence the greater exposure. By the same token, comparatively few people operate beyond 70 m.p.h., but the percentage of fatalities jumps up to 17. Above 70, the percentage of fatalities to cars involved must soar very high indeed.

Statistics Reflect Church Interest

A century ago only 20 per cent of the population of the United States belonged to a church or a synagogue. Last year, 1956, 62 per cent was the figure, a gain of 3 per cent. The gain in membership was nearly twice that of the increase in population.

In thirty years, a single generation, church membership in the U.S. has doubled while the population has increased by 40 per cent.

The Yearbook of American Churches says there were 60,148,980 Protestants in the U.S. last year, a rise of 1.7 million. Catholics numbered 34,563,851, up 1,167,204. There were 5.5 million Jews, the same as the preceding year, and 2.6 million Eastern Orthodox communicants. Catholics, Lutherans and Protestant Episcopalians count all baptized persons as members, but most Protestant bodies list only young people and adults who have attained full membership, the majority being over 13 years of age.

The rise of religious interest as well as religious emphasis was strikingly illustrated as Billy Graham closed his 16-week crusade in New York City with a tremendous rally at Times Square. The outpouring was estimated by a police inspector at 75,000, but Graham himself said 200,000.

Nearly 2,000,000 people attended the services at Madison Square Gardens and special services at other points, including an all-time record crowd of 100,000 at Yankee Stadium. General verdict: New York never saw anything like the Graham crusade and the attention it attracted

Party Contributions, Ambassadorships

WASHINGTON—Although the Democrats may need a lot of money for expenses in the 1958 congressional and 1960 presidential elections, many of the big contributors are on notice now that they had better keep their money—for they may not be given any ambassadorships if a Democratic administration comes into power.

This presumably is to be the new rule—at least it is the inference which the pious Democrats on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee want to convey. They have acted recently, indeed, as if contributions from anyone who expected to get an ambassadorship would not be welcomed.

It's a sort of victory for the "career" men in the Department of State who have been carrying on a vendetta for some time against the so-called "non-career" type of ambassador through it is strange their protest didn't seem to have affected the several Democratic administrations which held office from 1933 to 1953.

A little research into the records has just been conducted by the Republicans as a kind of self-defense measure. It reveals that a total of at least $600,000 was given to the Democratic campaign funds by 62 ambassadors and ministers and their families from 1932 to 1952. These appointees held in all 117 posts—an average of almost two apiece.

A Democrat—Joseph E. Davies—who was appointed ambassador to Moscow is listed along with his wife as having given at least $77,000 and also got an ambassadorship to Belgium and Luxembourg.

Another Democrat—James Cromwell—and his wife together gave $50,000 and the appointment came later as minister to Canada.

Another Democrat—Laurence A. Steinhardt—and his wife were steady contributors and gave in all about $42,000. The ambassadorships held included Sweden, Russia and Canada.

Another Democrat—Joseph P. Kennedy—and his family gave a minimum of $39,000 and the ambassadorship to Great Britain came later. Also they helped pay for a radio broadcast for F.D.R. in 1940.

Another Democrat—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr.—who with his wife gave $32,000 was appointed to nine ambassadorial and ministerial posts.

Then there was Averell Harriman who became ambassador to Russia and Great Britain. He is one of the richest men in the world. The contributions amounted to $22,600 for Democratic national campaigns alone.

The late Robert W. Bingham who was appointed ambassador to Great Britain, is listed as having contributed $20,000 to the Democrats.

Bert Fish, who held posts in Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Portugal over a 10-year period, contributed at least $17,600 to the Democrats.

William D. Pawley, ambassador to Peru and then Brazil, gave the Democrats $17,000.

Robert Butler of St. Paul, Minnesota, after contributing to the 1944 Democratic campaign was appointed ambassador to Australia and later became ambassador to Cuba. His total was about $15,000.

The records show, moreover, that about 12 big contributors to the Democrats in 1932 were given ambassadorial or ministerial posts by 1936 and that out of the 14 such contributors in the 1936 campaign, nine had been given diplomatic posts before and the remainder were given appointments within the next four years.

Six contributors to the 1949 Democratic campaign were serving in diplomatic posts already or were given them shortly after. Out of the 11 who contributed to the Democrats in 1944, five had contributed before and either were among those continued in ambassadorships or ministerial posts or were given such posts shortly thereafter.

Strangely enough though the Democrats lost in 1952 it was the year that produced the largest number of contributions to the Democratic party fund from ambassadors and ministers.

All this agitation has arisen because Max Gluck, ambassador to Ceylon, who contributed $26,500 to the Republican campaign fund, was given a rough ride by the Democrats on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He couldn't pronounce the name of the Ceylonese prime minister. There is some talk now of questioning the right of any senators to become members of the foreign relations committee unless they, too, can pass an examination in spelling and pronunciation.

One of the first items on the examination paper will be named like that of the new Turkish ambassador to the United States—Fuat Hayri Urganlı.

But if the "career" men in the Department of State will only be more cooperative and help to coach the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—as indeed they were not with Mr. Gluck—there may be little difficulty in getting a passing mark for the senators.

Plainly the Republicans, when a Democratic administration comes into power, will have to oppose confirmation of any prospective nominees who have contributed large sums—or else brazenly admit they haven't been impressed by the Democratic party's "purity" crusaders in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Ike's Patient On Integration

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has been something less than vigorous in supporting federal judges who ordered public school integration in the South and then ran into opposition. Patience has been his motto.

Patience, in fact, has been one of his most persistent policies toward problems at home and abroad. He's been using it for all its worth toward the problems arising from attempts at integration.

Eisenhower, who carefully avoids saying anything to offend

Southerners, except for criticizing "extremists on both sides," has never yet said publicly he approves the Supreme Court's ban on public school segregation.

"I am for moderation," he has said, "but I am for progress."

And there has been progress toward integration. Whether there would be much more if he spoke out forcefully for integration is so far one of the unknowns of history. He used his patience again yesterday when Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus blocked a federal court order to integrate Little Rock's

Central High School by ringing it with National Guardsmen.

Faubus denied he was defying the court and said he called out the troops to keep peace and order. But he also said his action could possibly develop into a "Southwide test."

But the school board—which had been ordered by Federal District Judge Ronald N. Davies to integrate the school—interpreted Faubus's use of troops as an effort to prevent integration and ordered would-be Negro students to stay away.

Only a week ago Faubus had asked a state judge to prevent integration at Central High.

Eisenhower was asked about all this at his news conference yesterday. He said the Justice Department was investigating and "the next decision will have to be by the lawyers and jurists."

Thus Eisenhower once again avoided becoming personally involved although this may have been cold comfort for Judge Davies, who had to stand by and see his integration order stymied.

But the judge appeared capable of standing on his own two feet. Since the school board, because of the troops, had stopped integration it faced the possibility of being found in contempt of the court's order to integrate.

So the board appealed to the judge last night. The judge promptly called the governor's hand—by ordering the board to go ahead and register the Negroes.

This left the next move up to the governor who now, if the troops in any way prevented Negro registration, could find himself in defiance of the federal government and possibly in contempt of court.

Death Penalty Easier To Dodge Under New Law

By ED OVERHOLSER

AUSTIN, Sept. 4 (AP)—A convict under the death penalty apparently has a much better chance to dodge the electric chair today than he did before the last Legislature rewrote the law.

Years ago, the law read that "any respectable person," such as the prisoner's mother, could swear that a prisoner held in the death cell was insane and gain a new jury trial on this question. If found insane, he would be transferred to an asylum.

Some state judges now say a law which went into effect Thursday puts the question on this subject back to pre-depression days. It appears to open the way for a prisoner to win innumerable trials on the question of his insanity long after a jury finds him sane and convicts him.

Before 1931, a jury had to be impeached to try the insanity question if the court had "good reason to believe that the defendant is insane." This information could be given by affidavit "of any respectable person stating good reasons to believe defendant has become insane."

A criminal court judge remarked that in those days "if after exhausting every effort to delay the execution, the defense attorney would get an affidavit from some relative a few hours before the execution declaring that the man was insane and he would have to be tried again on the insanity plea."

The new law also works to the disadvantage of the criminal who actually may become insane before execution. There is no specific way for him to prove his insanity as heretofore.

Moral Fiber Needs Bulwark

Last November Maj. William E. Mayer, a psychiatrist in the U. S. Army, made an address at the conference of professors of Air Science at Maxwell AFB, Ala. The title of this talk was "What Happened to Our P.O.W.'s in Korea," but its content was of tremendous import to us all.

I think you ought to know some of the salient findings from interviews and observations of hundreds and even thousands of boys who came back from Korean POW camps. Here are some of the things Maj. Mayer and other psychiatrists found:

There was no physical abuse that could be identified as being deliberate or systematic for about 99 per cent of the total group of prisoners. There were no narcotics used. No finger nails were pulled out by the roots. There was, contrary to popular notion, no perversion of the Pavlovian conditioned reflex (a process of mental conditioning whereby a dog will drool upon sight of food). Instead, the prisoners were segregated into groups.

The first division was as to color. The second was to weed out the "poisonous individualists," those who were leaders or tended toward leadership. And this is something that should frighten all of us—by taking only five per cent of the men, our people were left completely leaderless.

The next division was more subtle. They encouraged prisoners to talk. This merged into an innocent little game of "self-criticism," in which men made mockery of the confessions. But gradually it dawned that they were being listening and that frequently they had unbundled themselves of some very personal matters. Their natural defense to this was to collect the equivalent amount of information about others. Although POWs did not talk to each other, they knew an amazing amount of intimate information about others.

Normally, our men in other POW camps have developed intense emotional alliances with one another. Their alliances often last for many, many years after they are repatriated. . . . But among the Korean POWs there weren't any buddies.

One reason they couldn't be sure about anyone else was because of informing. By impressing upon the prisoners that they weren't informing on an individual but were engaging in a civic and social responsibility to the people or the group, the enemy succeeded in getting at least one informer (definitely known) out of every 10 men. Every squad had at least one informer and some four and five. Informers were rewarded materially, but ostensibly the person informed upon was not punished. Rather he was taken aside and asked to confess the error of his ways, determine not to repeat, and thus was off the hook.

In previous wars our returning POWs in open and ambulatory wards are active—hardly half in the ward at one time—and noisy. Those returning from Korean camps were distressingly quiet and withdrawn. If there were 50 assigned to the ward, most of the time all 50 would be present. When the Red Cross offered free telephone calls home to anyone for any length of time, only half of the men even bothered to accept. When they were urged to take passes to town, only half accepted—and they went into town alone.

Another amazing thing was that "not one American ever escaped from an organized prison camp in Korea, even in spite of what you hear on TV. There was never any effective sustained organized resistance of any kind. Although conditions of captivity were, as far as we can determine, infinitely better than those in Japanese POW camps in World War II, and were better than most of the German POW camps, men died at the rate of four out of every 10 Americans captured. That is the highest death rate of Americans in our history since the American Revolution.

"They died in many, many cases because nobody kept faith with them in an active way. There was the case of Sgt. Gallagher who threw out a couple of sick men (they had dysentery badly and were smelling up the hut) when it was 30 degrees below zero and they died. We asked other soldiers in the hut why they did nothing about it and they said, 'Well, because, sir, it wasn't any of my business.'"

Maj. Mayer is convinced that our men are as sound as ever but that "what our strengths were they still are, but they need much reinforcement, much reiteration." In short, we need to bulwark our moral fiber. What he has said ought to give pause to every thinking, consecrated American, especially those in education, religion and employment.

—JOE PICKLE

This Will Help The People Spend More

The cost of living has risen again (this is news) for the 11th straight month. But let us be of good cheer. There is aid and comfort in sight. A tax cut may happen at any moment if the U. S. Senate is held as considerate as is the House, always the people's friend.

The House—and bully for it—has already voted overwhelmingly to reduce the stiff Federal tax on pub-crawling or night-clubbing. If the Senate acts favorably on the House bill, the cabaret tax will be ruthlessly cut in half, resulting in tremendous tax relief to countless millions of Americans.

The House measure mercifully chops the cabaret tax from 20 to 10 per cent and means that every man jack of us can really save money by going Hernandez's Hideaway. If this bill becomes law, you and I certainly can't afford to stay home when we could be saving that 10 per cent by just stepping into Gyp, the Blood's, next door.

Entirely too many persons have been staying home since the advent of teevee, anyway. You can get too much of a good thing, including togetherness. Every day some kid who has been together with the teevee for too long chops up grandma and puts her down the disposal, just like they did on that crime program three nights ago.

It's time people as well as money were put in circulation once more. Furthermore, people are dying to save money these days if only someone, for goodness' sake, will show them how. People will jump at the chance to do both when they learn that they can circulate and save 10 per cent at the same time just by going night clubbing.

Such a tax cut will mean millions to the expense account aristocracy which, since World War II, has been the life blood of the night club and lobster-palace circuit.

The big spenders in the United States today are not the hereditary scions of great wealth (the inheritance tax has pretty well taken care of them) but the advertising moguls, business executives and movie, stage and teevee representatives who live on the corporate expense account.

The corporate expense account is the handiest, dandiest tax gimmick in the book. It does not necessarily enable a man to be a millionaire but merely to live like one. Even a neophyte can spot the man who lives on and by the corporate expense account. He's the fella who never pays. He always signs for everything, whether it's dinner at a swank restaurant, theatre tickets or a hired limousine. He lives by corporation cuff and guff.

The corporate expense account device has raised up a whole new exotic class in the U. S. A. Like royalty, it lives off the fat of the land at no real cost to itself.

Like royalty, it never carries money. It just signs for everything. Even for tips. At the end of the fiscal year, all those signed tabs are added up, deducted from the corporate income tax and handed to a Treasury agent as proof that all this gravy-train living is a legitimate expense contracted in the course of entertaining prospects and clients. All this, and a 10 per cent tax cut on the sucker circuit, too!

So everyone will be benefited by this bold action of the House in cutting the cabaret tax. It is only to be expected that a few carping killjoys will sneer at the idea of ordinary people saving money, even 10 per cent, by rushing off to a night club. But the only thing the expense account aristocracy has to fear is writer's cramp. (Copyright, 1957, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Bureau Of Budget Making Decisions?

WASHINGTON—Not until next January, short of a great national emergency, will Congress return to Washington and you can hear the sigh of relief go up from within the Eisenhower Administration.

It has been an unhappy time for President Eisenhower. The reputation he seeks to preserve—as a President of all the people—has been blurred by the rejection of much of his program and by the charge made more and more openly that he has failed to use his prestige and influence either with Republicans or Democrats in the Congress.

The President may have crossed a kind of great divide in the extraordinary career which raised him in the space of little more than 15 years from an obscure lieutenant colonel to a world figure. He must now recoup the losses of the past six months.

This is pointed up by a move made shortly before Congress departed. Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, Democrat of Minnesota, called on the Government Operations Committee of the Senate to make an inquiry into whether the Bureau of the Budget is taking over functions that, under law, are those of Congress and the duly constituted departments of government.

Behind this move, which seems in itself relatively unimportant, is a deep-seated conviction. This reporter talked with many members of the Senate and House, and they reflected the views of colleagues in both parties, who feel that executive decisions are being made by the Bureau of the Budget. The President has, in effect, delegated a large share of his authority to officials who have never been elected to any Federal office.

This is the charge, and in part, of course, it is politically motivated. But it comes in some instances from Republicans, when they speak privately, as well as Democrats.

The Bureau of the Budget was the agency chiefly responsible for putting a ceiling on spending by the Department of Defense. The same agency is now reported to have imposed a ceiling on foreign aid for the current fiscal year, regardless of the final appropriation by Congress.

Top military men concerned over the continuing loss of trained and able men were hopeful that the recommendations contained in the Cordier report covering service pay would at least be considered. It would have meant added cost in the next two or three years, with substantial reductions thereafter. They blame the budget bureau for sidetracking it.

In small as well as large ways, the bureau is accused of fixing policy. An appropriation for veterans hospitals contained the specific provision that $2,000,000 should be spent on the hospital at McKinney, Tex. This happens to be in Speaker Sam Rayburn's district.

Expenditure on the hospital may have been right or wrong, but Congress has the power under the Constitution to determine the money that shall be spent and how it is to be spent. (Copyright, 1957, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Getting Rich With Novels

NEW YORK (AP)—Most writers don't know too much about the dream of turning out a novel they can sell to Hollywood and become rich.

Dale Van Every, a top authority on America's early frontier, did it the other way. He quit a $75,000-a-year job in Hollywood in 1943 to become a historical novelist.

"I was making $1,500 a week—which made me a working picture writer, not a celebrity," he remarked dryly. "My only regret now is that I didn't quit sooner."

Van Every, now 61, has written six novels—the most recent is "The Voyagers"—since he turned his back on Hollywood, where he worked on some 100 pictures after an earlier career as a newsman here and in Washington, D. C. The novels have sold more than two million copies.

One of the ironies of his success as a novelist is that some critics, aware of his Hollywood background, feel his books have been written with an eye for the film market. Van Every says that actually the exact opposite is true. "None of my novels have been sold to the movies," he pointed out. "I use fiction only as a kind of sugar-coating for the facts. It is the facts that interest me."

"My pleasure in writing is the delight in recreating a lost world—the period between 1780 and 1811, when America really became a nation.

"Everyone knows about the frontier of the later West—the covered wagon, the stage coach, the cowboy and the horse Indian. "But even the college professors don't know too much about the earlier West, the frontier east of the Mississippi—the West of the stockade, the flatboat, the long rifle, the time when the Indians outnumbered and were stronger than the white settlers and won every battle except the last one."

Van Every, whose grandfather's grandfather was a Tory fighter in the Revolution, has been interested in this little-known period since boyhood. Thanks to his profitable years in the Hollywood vineyard, he was able to assemble one of the nation's finest private historical libraries.

A methodical craftsman, he writes five drafts of each novel, sometimes spends three or four days checking to be sure he has a detail of frontier life exactly right.

"Newspaper training is the best for anyone learning to write," he said, "and how to find and use them."

As a result of his interminable research Van Every lards his novels with such interesting facts as why Indians daubed a captive's head with clay before burning him at the stake. It was to preserve the scalp! Indians rarely violated a white female captive in order to preserve their own purity.

Indians used crushed sunflower seeds for hair oil. Indians regarded as delicacies the eyeballs of the buffalo, and frogs cooked whole in cornmeal gruel.

"They also enjoyed moose snout boiled dog's head, and turkey eggs eaten the day before they were due to hatch," added Van Every.

"Oh, oh — here comes another folding-chair complaint . . . !"

What Others Say

Uncle Sam has nabbed Col. Rudolf Ivanovich Abel as a master spy for Soviet Russia.

Abel allegedly is an old hand at spying on this country from within our gates. He has been linked with two alleged husband-and-wife spy teams indicted previously for membership in a widespread international Soviet espionage network.

His was the hand that directed the apparatus that radioed United States atomic and military secrets to Russia.

The arrest is significant. It proves that Red Russia has not ceased for one moment to infiltrate into this country, undermining and subverting by well trained "cells" and spying on us from every possible standpoint.

The smart American knows that the Reds have never abandoned their plan for world Communism, and that they have never excluded the United States from their imperial ambitions.

Appeals Added To Jury Docket

Six cases — appeals from convictions in the Big Spring police court — are to be appended to the current jury docket scheduled to open on Monday in Howard County Court, John Richard Coffee, county attorney, said Tuesday. The cases, he said, were not on the original docket because they had not been filed. The failure to file arose from a misunderstanding as to which agency was to officially list the cases. This seems to have been ironed out and Coffee said that he would ask that the six appeals be called for trial when the docket opens on Sept. 9.

25 Jurors To Get Notices This Week

Twenty-five jurors are to be summoned to report to the Howard County Court for duty next Monday, R. H. Weaver, county judge, said Wednesday. He said that the notices would be dispatched this afternoon. The jurors will serve in the trial of criminal cases docketed for hearing during the week of Sept. 9. Plans at present are to push ahead with one full week's trials and perhaps, at the end of the first week, to extend the activities through a second week. The panel is to be instructed to report to the courtroom at 10 a.m. Monday. Thereafter, the panel will be on hand at 9 a.m. for the period the trials are in progress.

Changes Made In Curriculum At Junior High

Several changes in procedures and in curriculum have found favor at junior high school, Thomas Ernest, principal, said today. One of the major changes has been the elimination of the traditional study hall. Now the pupil has a choice which may involve one of four courses: He may use the library where special instruction is given by the head librarian on how to use card files and materials; he may use the period for guidance purposes with the head counselor or teacher-counselor; he may use the period for directed study with the aid of a teacher-counselor on "how to study"; or he may go to teacher-counselors for special help on special problems or unusual difficulties. On the ninth grade level, new subjects added are typing, creative writing, art, office practice, library assistants (all of which offer one-half credit for 18 weeks of work). New exploratory courses on the eighth grade level include Latin, Spanish, creative writing, art, office practice and library assistants. The first day of school brought a total of 1,176 pupils, including 409 in the ninth grade, 355 in the eighth grade and 412 in the seventh grade. The meeting is especially important because it deals with the kick-off for the autumn program, said Koger. Meanwhile the district committee met with him Wednesday noon at the Wagon Wheel restaurant to map plans for the fall membership roundtable. This year the event is designed to enlist more boys and to secure such new additional units as are needed to provide adequate program for the boys.

100 Frosh Report For Orientation

More than 100 students turned out for the first session of orientation for freshmen at Howard County Junior College here Wednesday morning. Others were expected for the afternoon and the Thursday morning sessions, as well as for special testings in fields of mathematics, engineering and science on Thursday afternoon. A committee will review applicants (who must be from families who are members of the Cap Rock) and reach a decision, he explained. Meanwhile, Dr. Hunt appealed for more scholarship help. In the past, business firms, clubs and individuals have rallied to support this program to help sound, deserving students. Scholarships cost about $125 for one student per year, Dr. Hunt said. Those who could lend a helping hand to deserving students who otherwise might not be able to attend the college are asked to get in touch with Dr. Hunt. He said that the increased enrollment would inevitably increase the demand for scholarships.

'White Cane' Sales Slated

Saturday will be observed as "white cane" day in Big Spring under the sponsorship of the Cheerio Club. The Cheerio Club, composed of blind and near-blind members, is headed by Mrs. Ina Monteith. She said that members had prepared 750 miniature white canes, symbolic of the blind, for sale. Rainbow girls, under the direction of Mrs. Dolores Hull, will offer the canes for sale. There is no fixed price, said Mrs. Monteith, but the Cheerio Club hopes that donors will be as generous as they can. All proceeds are used to help the blind. During the past year the club has spent about $100 on clothing for needy blind patients at the Big Spring State Hospital, has aided aged blind who have no pensions or social security income, and has bought some medicines and contributed clothing to some youngsters in the state school for the blind.

'Flying Saucer' Is Weather Balloon

That UFO which hovered above Big Spring this morning turned out to be only a partial UFO. Webb AFB observers, peering at it through a telescope, said the object was some sort of a weather balloon at about 35,000 feet. Apparently the balloon was becalmed at that high altitude. Pilots indicated they might take a close look at it, but complete identification probably cannot be fixed until the balloon bursts and lets the instrument assembly descend by parachute.

Showers, Light Hail Fall In Glasscock

GARDEN CITY—Some parts of Glasscock County had brief but welcome showers Tuesday afternoon and evening. Garden City itself received only a light sprinkle but Bill Currie, who lives six miles east of town, reported that he had 3 inch of rain and some light hail. He said the hail covered the ground thinly but did no damage. John Cox, who lives 14 miles south, had 3 inch of rain on the south part of his farm. He said no hail fell there.

Cabbage Looper Is Newest Threat To Howard Cotton

Leafworms and bollworms are fairly well under control in the cotton fields of Howard County but a new menace, the cabbage looper, has made its appearance, according to Jimmy Taylor, county farm agent. The looper is a particularly vigorous enemy and ordinary poisoning methods which deal effectively with the other pests that torment the cotton grower are not always applicable in coping with him. Taylor said that the only poison recommended by the College Station experts is endrin and he added that while this insecticide will kill the smaller worms it does not work well on the adult looper. Taylor said that fairly heavy infestation has been reported by cotton farmers north of Big Spring. This attack is becoming sizable and can cause heavy damage if the worms are not curbed. He said the experts recommend use of 18 to 20 pounds of endrin as dust per acre. If spray is used a quart of the poison concentrate per acre is suggested. The looper is a readily recognized pest and farmers are well aware of his effective ravages on their crops.

Pastors Asked To Sponsor Annual Christmas Parade

Warren Spahn Bids For Hurling Award

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Wonderful Warren Spahn, now the National League's all-time southpaw shutout king, has the edge for the Pitcher of the Year award today while right-hander Jack Sanford, Philadelphia's latecomer, likely will have to be satisfied with the league's rookie citation.

Spahn, the 36-year-old master of Milwaukee's first-place Braves, moved ahead of Sanford and left-hander Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox and gained his 41st career shutout yesterday in an 8-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

It was Spahn's 18th victory, matching Pierce for the major league lead, and kept the easy-running Braves 8 1/2 games ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, who clobbered Cincinnati 14-4.

Sanford, a 28-year-old rookie, missed a big bid to keep pace in victories when he was lifted for an eighth-inning pinchhitter as the Phils took a 12-inning, 3-2 victory over Brooklyn.

In the American League, New York's "struggling" Yankees regained a 5 1/2-game lead with a 2-0 victory at Baltimore while Detroit chilled the second-place White Sox 3-2 in 12 innings. Those were the only AL games scheduled.

The New York Giants defeated Pittsburgh 6-5 in 12 in the other NL game.

Spahn got past the pesky seventh-place Cubs with a six-hitter, striking out five and walking only one. Southpaw Dick Littlefield matched Spahn's whitewash job for six frames, then dropped his third in a five-run seventh with three of the scores unearned. Hank Aaron then made it a romp with his 39th homer, good for three runs in the eighth.

The NL record for career shutouts was set at 90 by Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Sanford was tagged for both Brooklyn runs and the three meager hits. The Dodgers managed two by Gil Hodges. Dick Farrell and Bob Miller, who pitched the 12th, no-hit the Braves over the last five with Farrell winning his seventh.

The Phils had only three hits for eight, but Harry Anderson then junked Don Drysdale's bid for a second consecutive shutout with a two-run, two-out homer in the ninth that tied it. Ex-Dodger Chico Fernandez tripled and Willie Jones, batting for Farrell, hit a long fly for the clincher.

It was a base-running boner that saved it for the Phils as Charlie Neal missed third and was tagged out after apparently scoring on his RBI double in the seventh that made it 2-0.

The Cardinals rapped loser Joe Nuxhall and five relievers for 16 hits. They scored eight, two on Del Ennis' 18th homer, in the first two frames. Wilmer Mizell, who doubled home three runs, was tagged for solo home runs by Pete Whisenant and Smoky Burgess, but hung on with a 10-hitter.

Bill Skowron's bat won for the Yankees. He had two of their three hits, one his 17th home run, over the first seven against loser Billy O'Dell, then added an RBI single in the ninth off Billy Loes. Tom Sturdivant pitched 1 1/2, but needed ninth-inning relief from Sal Maglie, who retired the side in his Yankee debut.

Mickey Mantle was 0-for-4, losing three points for a .370 average in his bat race with Ted Williams. The Boston thumper, hitting .376, will miss the two-game series opener at Yankee Stadium tonight because of a virus infection.

Al Kaline thumped the White Sox, swatting his 21st home run to lead off the 11th. He also singled home a run in the first off Bob (No-Hit) Keegan. Gerry Staley lost in relief for a 5-1 record. Billy Hoeltz won his seventh with an eight-hitter, giving up homers to Larry Doby and Walt Doro.

Home runs by Willie Mays, Danny O'Connell and Valmy Thomas brought the Giants a 5-all tie, then Ray Jablonski lofted a sacrifice fly after two walks and an error had loaded the bases.

New Athlea Gibson Calm, Confident And Poised

By ED CORRIGAN

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — There is a new Athlea Gibson seeking the national tennis championship this year.

The old Athlea Gibson was nervous, high strung, irritable. The new Athlea Gibson is calm, confident, poised.

The 30-year-old Miss Gibson first came to Forest Hills in 1950, an unknown Negro girl from New York's teeming Harlem. She caused a ripple by almost beating Louise Brough.

She came each year only to be frustrated. Last year she made it to the final only to be beaten by Shirley Fry. She was jumpy that day on the center court and her game showed it.

Now, as Wimbledon champion, join the select circle of Wimbledon fears no one in her quest to don-U.S. champions. Only Helen Wills, Pauline Betz and Miss Fry will, Alice Marble, Maureen Connors are members of the exclusive club.

"I don't fear any player in the tournament," she said today. "Why be afraid of anyone? After all, it's only a game."

Miss Gibson is in the quarter-final along with Mrs. Mary Hawton of England, Mrs. Dorothy Knodel of Forest Hills, Lois Felix of Meriden, Mass., and Miss Brough.

In yesterday's play Miss Gibson eliminated Britain's Sheila Armstrong 6-2, 6-1; Mrs. Hawton turned back Mrs. Pat Todd, La Jolla, Calif., 6-4, 6-1; Mrs. Knodel whipped Ann Shilcock of Britain 6-2, 6-1; Miss Felix upset Christine Truman of Britain 6-2, 6-1; and Miss Brough defeated Lona Raymond, Covina, Calif., 6-0, 7-5.

In the men's division, Ashley Cooper of Australia, Badge Patty of Los Angeles and Cliff Mayne of Fort Monmouth, N.J., jumped the pack and gained the quarter-finals. Cooper turned back Tony Vincent, New York, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2; Patty crushed Don Fontana of Canada 6-4, 6-2, 9-7; and Mayne prevailed over Don Thompson, New York, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia meets Australian Roy Emerson and Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., goes against Mal Anderson, another Aussie, in today's top matches.

Equally important to the Yankee scheme is Mantle's inability to show any speed covering the outfield. Fly balls which he normally would catch with ease are dropping in for him simply because he can't reach them.

His batting average dropped seven points, from .377 to .370, in the three game series with the Baltimore Orioles ending yesterday. He got one hit in 15 times at bat.

HANEY IS CAUTIOUS Braves Not Going To Flub This One

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves are in. They're not going to flub it again. Fred Haney, the manager, turns pale at the mere mention of pennant. He knocks on wood, tugs at the top of each ear, spits over his left shoulder and mutters half angrily:

"I don't know anything about any pennant. The only thing I'm saying now is we're playing them one game at a time and we'll see what happens. This is the funniest league I've ever seen. One day St. Louis is in first place. Two weeks later, they're 8 1/2 behind after losing 12 of 13. Who knows? The same thing can happen to us. I keep cautioning my players against over-confidence. To hell with the standings. I tell them just to go out and play today's game."

Despite Haney's conservative talk, the pennant fever in Milwaukee is at an all time high. Skeptical at first, even after the Braves finally wrested the lead from the Cardinals early in August, the good burghers of Wisconsin are convinced their heroes are as good as in the World Series.

The players themselves act like a team with the pennant in their teeth. The veterans, like Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette, have the air of conquerors who know they can't be stopped. It is this air of confidence, more so than the victories themselves, that is causing many Milwaukeeans to consider the pennant race all over but the celebrating. Never before have the loyal fans detected such an atmosphere of command, such a measure of consistency, such grim determination as this fifth Milwaukee edition of the "Braves has shown this season.

It's still possible for the Braves to lose. But it's highly unlikely they will and Haney knows it. "This is not 1956," he declared. "Essentially it is the same club that lost to Brooklyn last year but in many ways it is a far different club. For one thing, the attitude is different. The team is more determined, more polished, more mature and it has worked much harder. Losing last year taught them a great deal. A team can't go through what those fellows went through last year without learning."

"Last year there wasn't a more disgusted group of players than the ones who flew back to Milwaukee after we blew the pennant in St. Louis. No one dreamed that there would be any people meeting us at the airport. Not only were there 20,000 at the airport but instead of booing us for losing, they put their arms around us and hugged us. 'Never mind, fellows,' many of them said, 'we'll get 'em next year.' You just can't imagine what an effect this had on the players. You just can't experience something like that and not be moved. That demonstration undoubtedly made the team more determined this year."

 Well, now, just by luck we've got $840 down here and man, would we like to see YOU tuck it into your wallet and carry it off!! When you need $840, you may need it bad. You may need it quick. You'd like to get it from some outfit who knows and understands just the kind of money problems that brought all this on. Man, we? We do! We've had 'em — every one at S.I.C., ourselves. And LOOK: $40.49 a month, 24 months, repays that $840 S.I.C. loan. How about that? Will you be on down?

GOP Liberals Set Leadership Drive

WASHINGTON (AP)—Self-styled Republican liberals have begun a long-range campaign to place one of their members in the line of succession to the Senate's GOP leadership.
As a part of this campaign, the all-out Eisenhower group may avoid any fight over the top leadership post when Sen. Knowland of California steps down from that job at the end of his term next year.
Instead, they are seeking to name one of their number as assistant leader, with the eventual hope of moving him into the top post and the more immediate aim of strengthening their voice in party policies.
Knowland's announcement he would not run again for the Senate apparently has put Sen. Dirksen of Illinois, now assistant leader, in line for once a strong supporter of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, more recently has taken pains to do yeoman service for President Eisenhower whenever he can.
As a result, Eisenhower has made it known he regards Dirksen as a valuable asset among Senate Republicans. With such a view prevailing, the GOP liberals who are not enthusiastic about Dirksen have about come to the conclusion that it would be futile to offer any opposition to him.
Dirksen, of course, probably would have to step aside if either Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.) of Sen. Bridges (R-NH) wanted to take over from Knowland. Saltonstall heads the Conference of All GOP Senators. Bridges is chairman of the party's policy committee.
Neither Bridges nor Saltonstall has indicated much interest in taking on the daily grind of the floor leadership. In their present positions, they sit in on all White House conferences and are in a position to wield influence among their colleagues.
If Dirksen replaces Knowland, the GOP liberals hope they then can put one of their number in the assistant leadership. The assistant's job doesn't always pay off with the top position but it does often enough for them to hope that eventually one of them would have command.
Even the assistant leadership would give the liberals a somewhat larger voice in policy matters and help them allay the frustration they say they have felt as many of Eisenhower's proposals went down the drain without a concerted Republican fight for them.
The quiet campaign for this objective hasn't gone far enough to indicate any single potential candidate for the place. It is obvious, however, that several are available, including Senators Allott of Colorado, Rush of Connecticut, Carlson of Kansas, Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Javits of New York.

Bogart's Widow Returns To Work

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was Lauren Bacall's first day at work since the death of Humphrey Bogart, and she was nervous.
"Nervous as I can possibly be," she confessed in her half-kidding, half-serious way. "This is the first time I've started a picture without having Bogey say, 'Good luck, baby.' It's kinda tough, you know."
The whole set knew, and everyone admired her courage. It was her first day on "Our Love" (stand by for a title change any moment), in which she stars with Robert Stack. "It's a real tear-jerker," she reported. "I die in it and get to run the gamut of my emotions—from A to B."
I watched her rehearse her first scene, in which she and Stack meet. She tossed it off with skill, later said she was aided by having worked with director Jean Negulesco in two previous pictures—"A Woman's World" and "How to Marry a Millionaire." Still, she had nerves.
"It's been eight months since I did 'Designing Woman,'" she remarked. "Think of all the things that have happened in that time."
"I'm glad to be going back to work. It gives me something to keep myself busy, and I need that desperately. All I've had to do is sit and think if I hadn't had the children, I would have been in really bad shape."
Her son and her daughter have taken their father's loss well, she said, though young Stephen had a difficult adjustment to make at first. Betty (no one ever calls her Lauren) said she planned to put their Holmby Hills house up for sale as soon as she can find another place nearby. The house is too big and there are too many memories there.
Her own formula for the future is more work.
"I'd like to go right into another picture if I can find one," she said. "I think work is a good thing for me."
"If I don't go right to work, I'm going to get out of this town for a while. I'm going to make a habit of going to New York regularly; that's my home and I like the life there."
"You have the theater in New York and lots of things to do. Hollywood is no place for a single woman."

'Good Faith' Grain Bill's Okay Pushed

By TEX EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service
WASHINGTON (AP)—The last piece of legislation to be passed by the House during the first session of the 85th Congress was a bill by Waco congressman Bob Poage.
In the closing minutes, Poage arose to ask unanimous consent approval of a minor Senate change in his bill, which means about a million dollars to grain dealers throughout Texas.
It seems that during the 1954-56 drought period many dealers gave grain to hard-hit ranchers and farmers either in anticipation of the individuals' soon getting drought relief certificates, or within a few days after such certificates had expired. Many dealers had taken this action with the sanction of county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committees.
Surplus government-owned grain was involved, and an examination it developed that those dealers technically were liable for the feed bill.
Agriculture Department officials were sympathetic, but said they could do nothing but press for the money, because of a technicality. This bill provides that such transactions done in good faith should be honored. It also means more than a million dollars to grain dealers in other western states.
The Senate amendment which brought the legislation back to the House floor at the last minute simply changed from 12 months to 6 months after the issuance of these certificates the time in which they would be honored.
Although this change would have been more in line with the views of anyone who might have opposed the measure, Rep. Smith (R-Wis.) arose as the lone objector, blocking its passage. Things looked bad for the bill's chances, because there wasn't a quorum (218 members) left in the House in the event Poage tried to pass it over Smith's objection.
Speaker Rayburn glanced down from his rostrum toward Smith, who came up to see what the Texan had to say. Rayburn assured him that the bill had already passed the House, with unanimous consent of Republicans as well as Democrats, and this Senate amendment made it even more restrictive.
That explanation seemed to satisfy the Wisconsin legislator. The bill was brought up again and he sat silent while Rayburn rapped his gavel and heard no sound as he called out that, without objection, the bill was passed.
After that, Rayburn in solemn words, bade his colleagues goodbye for the remainder of the year—provided some emergency doesn't call them back sooner. They next meet Jan. 7.

No Feudin' For Patti

NEW YORK (AP)—Patti Page, a blonde bundle of song, doesn't want to go feudin' and fightin' with anyone.
Miss Page, debuting soon as star of a new hour-long television show, "The Big Record," is determined to avoid such customary aspects of seeking major video attention.
"I haven't even thought about ratings," she avers.
"After all, you've just got to make up your mind that you never are going to be able to please just everybody."
Because a major trend of TV planning this season, along with cowboy shows, is the boom in shows spotlighting popular singers, Patti realizes that public tiffing with one or more rivals might appear to be inevitable.
"I'm not mad at anybody and I'm not going to be," says the lady of "Tennessee Waltz" and "Doggie in the Window" fame.
"I'm not even sure I'd want to get to be the top show in the ratings," she adds, "because then it seems you've just got to get in a feud."
Aside from such factors, Miss Page glows enthusiastically over "The Big Record" which takes over the CBS-TV network Wednesday evenings from 8 to 9 p.m. (E.D.T.) starting Sept. 18.
The show, stressing great names of the disc-making industry in person each week, will have Patti introducing an average of nine guests per outing.

President Signs FBI Files Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower signed into law Tuesday a bill aimed at protecting FBI files from unrestricted searches by defense lawyers.
Congress passed the bill as one of the last acts of the session. The Justice Department and FBI chief Edgar Hoover had asked for it because of the Supreme Court's Jencks case decision last June.
Atty. Gen. Brownell said the decision created a grave emergency in law enforcement. Hoover said his G-men couldn't go on with their work if their confidential files were opened to fishing expeditions by defense attorneys.
The new law spells out legal procedures to be followed in line with the Jencks ruling.
In that case, the Supreme Court said a defendant in trying to discredit the testimony of a government witness against him had a right to inspect all reports the witness had made to the government.
Clinton Jencks, a former labor union official, had been convicted of falsely swearing he was not a Communist. One of the government witnesses was convicted perjurer Harvey Matusow. The Supreme Court ordered a new trial.
Lower courts gave a broad range of interpretations to the Jencks decision in rulings as to what government files the defense could see. Federal prosecutors dropped some cases rather than turn over files which might give away confidential informers and techniques.
