

Railway Wreck

Thirty-nine cars in the center of a Virginia Railway train plunged from this trestle into Cub Creek and tore up the trestle in a derailment three miles west of Phenix, Va. The engine crew on the front end of the train escaped as did four men in a caboose who came two car lengths from plunging over the torn-up trestle.

Texas Baptists Set To Drop Loan Unit

DALLAS (AP)—If the Southern Baptist Convention agrees, Texas Baptists are ready to fold up their controversial loan agency for helping new churches elsewhere about the nation. This decision is set forth in a resolution adopted yesterday by the executive board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. Texas Baptists established their church loan corporation in 1952 in answer to what they said were appeals from groups trying to establish churches in nominally non-Baptist areas of the west, northwest and midwest. In reply to criticism from Southern Baptists outside the state that the functions of their parent organization were being usurped, Texas Baptist leaders had argued that the Southern Convention was falling down on the job by not making such assistance available. Executive board members said in their resolution, however, the loan agency and its assets will be donated to the Southern Baptist Convention provided that organization accepts "with a sense of obligation to . . . help finance churches in pioneer areas."

King Visits Disneyland

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Not even a king can resist the land of make-believe. Morocco's Mohammed V made a formal visit to Disneyland yesterday, in native regalia and with full entourage. He was so enchanted by what he saw that last night he slipped away from his hotel incoincidentally and traveled 35 miles to visit the famous fantasy-land all over again, in the role of a commoner. Some 22 members of the royal party went with him. But, like the king, they were in Western attire. They paid their way in and went unnoticed for quite a while. When Disneyland personnel learned they were there, the King asked that his party be permitted to go unattended, like any other visitors. The management complied. No reporters or photographers were there. The King would not permit Disneyland cameramen to photograph him, although he had posed graciously for scores of pictures during his official visit earlier in the day. A spokesman said Mohammed came back because he had been "enchanted" by his first trip and because his brother Khalifa Moulay el Hassan had missed that visit. They saw all the sights the king had seen during his earlier three-hour tour of the 21-million-dollar playground built by cartoonist Walt Disney. Mohammed, on both visits, rode a locomotive and a river boat. He took an imaginary trip to the moon via the magic of motion pictures, darkness and sound effects. He explored the jungle and the Mississippi River.

Missile Facility

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP)—The Lockheed Missiles Division said today it will build a three million dollar development facility here for the Navy's Polaris ballistic missile.

Get Pep And Keep Pep

You Don't Have To Leave Big Spring To Get Pep
With proper treatment there is no need to lose your vitality. Thousands of people will tell you that. After 40 has rejuvenated them back to normal. People that live on the seacoast and eat oysters are real red blooded people with lots of pep—you too can have that pep you once had and one bottle of After 40 will convince you. After 40 is sold by Collins Brothers Drug Store and the Walgreen Agency in Big Spring, Texas. (Adv.)

President Termed Trying To Keep The Budget In Balance

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower was described by Republican leaders today as making every effort to keep the budget in balance despite proposed sharp increases in military spending. Senators Bridges (R-NH) and Saltonstall (R-Mass) said in separate interviews they believe Eisenhower will be able to avoid deficit spending. Bridges, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he believes a two-billion-dollar boost in funds for missiles, strategic air bases, antisubmarine devices and outer space developments is justified by Russian advances in the missile and satellite field. "I believe cuts can be made elsewhere in defense and other activities so that the over-all budget will be no higher than this year's," he said. "I am sure President Eisenhower is making every effort to keep it within that framework."

CUTS POSSIBLE
Chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he believes a two-billion-dollar boost in funds for missiles, strategic air bases, antisubmarine devices and outer space developments is justified by Russian advances in the missile and satellite field. "I believe cuts can be made elsewhere in defense and other activities so that the over-all budget will be no higher than this year's," he said. "I am sure President Eisenhower is making every effort to keep it within that framework."

NO STAMPEDE
Saltonstall, who heads the Conference of All Republican Senators, said the Eisenhower administration is not being stampeded by Russian accomplishments but is "proceeding along lines of confidence in accelerating the defense program."

Girard Busted, Due Discharge
CAMP DREW, Japan (AP)—The U.S. Army today broke Specialist J.C. William S. Girard to buck private and indicated his Japanese manslaughter convictions might also mean an undesirable discharge for him. The homebound GI took the news in stride and scrapped any plans he might have had for a military career after four years of Army service. "I don't think I got a raw deal, and I'm getting out . . . I didn't think I had it coming, but it was legal," Girard said after the Army took his first punitive action against him for the Jan. 30 killing of a Japanese woman scrap scavenger.

Benson Vows He Won't Quit
WASHINGTON (AP)—A declaration by Secretary of Agriculture Benson that he intends to stay and fight for his farm views has quieted speculation regarding his tenure. But it is not expected to put an end to political controversy over the secretary. Benson told a news conference yesterday whether some people believe him to be a political asset or liability to the Republicans, he intends to stay and fight for what he considers to be right and in the best interests of farmers and the nation. His statement was designed, Benson said, to clear the atmosphere of recent widespread speculation that he would leave the cabinet because of opposition from some farm leaders in the party. But Democrats are certain to blast away at him and his policies as next year's congressional elections come closer. Democratic farm leaders say Benson is the best "campaign issue" they have in their efforts to increase their farm-belt strength in the new Congress to be elected next November.

Stevenson, who served as an adviser to Secretary of State Dulles on NATO problems and attended part of the White House briefing, said he agrees with most, but not all, of the proposals to be made at Paris. A Republican conferee, who asked not to be named, said these proposals center around the possible pooling of information on nuclear weapons, exchange of scientific information, the training of foreign personnel to handle nuclear weapons and establishment of international scientific scholarships. He said no hydrogen bombs were to be given to other countries. Some of the proposals would require changes in the atomic energy law, but some Democrats expressed doubt the proposals go far enough.

Lyndon Honored
HOUSTON (AP)—A testimonial dinner tonight will honor U.S. Sen. Lyndon Johnson. Approximately 1,350 are expected for the non-partisan dinner. The Senate majority leader is expected to make a major speech on the nation's missile and education programs. J. S. Abercrombie, chairman of the dinner committee, said House Speaker Sam Rayburn and seven other Texas congressmen are expected.

"IT WAS A NICE TRY, BUT . . ." seems to sum up public opinion about competitive cars attempting to equal the styling and features of the Swept-Wing '58. They tried to get as low, but had to lower the roof to do it. (Less headroom, same high, boxy, cooped-up look.) Their windshields got smaller, while ours got bigger. Most of them still don't have Total-Contact Brakes to assure smooth, even, safe stops when needed. Nor do they offer push-button TorqueFlite, the proven automatic transmission, and Constant-Control power steering that works full time—not part time as some other systems do. And Dodge no-sway, no-dip Torsion-Aire is standard equipment. (Bus-type air springs offered by some cars cost well over $100.00 extra.) So compare all the 1958 models with Dodge. We think you'll agree: Other cars are catching on, but they can't catch up. See Swept Wing '58 By Dodge At Jones Motor Co., Inc., 101 Gregg St.

Adlai Stepping Out As Advisor To Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson started slipping out of his role as Democratic consultant to the Eisenhower administration today.

The titular head of the Democratic party—loser to President Eisenhower in the 1952 and 1956 presidential elections—announced last night he had no desire to extend his consultations to the Dec. 16 Atlantic Pact (NATO) meeting in Paris.

He gave this reason: If he went, he would be "without authority."

Stevenson said he agreed with most of the Eisenhower proposals for revitalizing NATO, to be presented at Paris. But he acknowledged "differences between us." Without authority to make policies, he would be in the dilemma of having to support those with which he disagreed, or keeping silent through a patriotic desire not to upset the unity cart. In any case, he feared his friends at home and abroad would have been inhibited or misled.

All this was set forth in Stevenson's formal statement explaining why he turned down the Paris invitation which Eisenhower had extended less than 10 hours earlier.

The two met just before a briefing of Republican and Democratic congressional leaders on the plans for NATO and on other foreign and defense policy plans.

"The President could not have been more cordial," Stevenson later told a questioner.

Stevenson emphasized that the basic reason for his refusal was lack of authority. In a later interview, he said he felt there was no place at Paris for a Democratic consultant—"Washington is the place for me to do my consulting."

Stevenson had no outright criticism of Eisenhower or Eisenhower's proposals. But informed sources said both the President's actions and his program were factors.

Legislature Ends Session, Heads For Home

AUSTIN (AP)—One of Texas' law-making Legislatures went home today after spending a total of 187 days here in one regular and two special sessions this year.

Segregation was the issue that exploded all three gatherings past their predicted length and aims.

The second special session closed a little before 6 p.m. yesterday after spending 21 days passing three segregation bills, of which only two were asked by the governor.

"We'll be back here in January," Rep. B. H. Dewey of Bryan answered when asked about a growing state deficiency as the House approved a $355,000 outlay for this special session.

Actually, yesterday's action in both houses was an anti-climax to the stormy tug-of-war staged the past week over the third segregation bill.

Denominational Relations Is Big Issue At Church Parley

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP)—A touchy question throughout the history of the National Council of Churches—its authority in relation to member denominations—has come up at its General Assembly here.

The point was raised by the Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglas, executive vice president of the Congregational Christian Churches. He said the separate denominations have yet to recognize the "real dimensions" of the Council.

They act as if they "are the master," and the Council is only "a slave," he said.

The National Council includes most of the major Protestant and Orthodox churches—300 denominations altogether—with a total of 37½ million members, nearly a fourth of the nation's population.

Noting there are now more than 5,000 interdenominational councils and federations, on local, state, national and world levels, Dr. Douglas told a special meeting yesterday that Christians need to recognize the "real dimensions and significance of these councils."

"From one viewpoint the councils are creatures of the denominations. But there is another important sense in which the councils are called to be judges of the denominations."

"We know that there is a Church of Christ which transcends all the churches. This true church is never perfectly embodied in any of our existing churches, nor will it ever be so long as we continue in our present divisions."

But the Council of Churches, to the extent it represents areas of Christian life in which the divisions have been overcome,

"make manifest the true church in a way that their member communions are unable to do."

"To the extent that the councils do this, they also mediate judgment upon the denominations."

However, Dr. Douglas said, there is what he called a "denominational presupposition" in this country which holds that the individual denomination is the "proper object of ultimate loyalty."

This attitude, he said, has resulted in secondary choirs and other drudgery being heaped on the councils, with the effect that their real significance is blurred.

Much of the general public, he said, "regards councils of churches as being mainly preoccupied with opposing bingo and pari-mutuel betting on horse races."

These are worthy causes, he said, but with other "life-and-death problems" at stake, concentration on them makes the councils "symbols of religious and ethical triviality."

Daniel Vetoes 2 Bills, Signs 28

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel said today he had vetoed 2 bills and signed 28 to complete action on laws passed by the first special Legislature.

The governor also signed three bills passed by the second session.

A bill by Sen. Carlos Ashley removing Gillespie and Kimble counties from the 3rd Administrative Judicial District was vetoed.

Daniel said he killed the measure because it inadvertently placed Coke County in two districts.

He said he vetoed a bill by Rep. James Day creating Road District 1 in Waller County, because the boundaries of the district were not defined.

Bills signed included those:

- Correcting the name of the West Central Texas Municipal Water District.
- Authorizing the land commissioner to executive easements on state lands in connection with soil conservation and flood prevention projects.
- Creating Collin County Water Control and Improvement District 2.
- Creating Bell County Water Control and Improvement District 6.
- Authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds and notes by junior college districts.

Validating proceedings in connection with city tax bonds heretofore favorably voted for off-street parking, or park and off-street parking purposes.

Authorizing Trinity River Authority to have its bonds and contracts approved and validated by a district court in lieu of obtaining approval by the attorney general.

Paying judge of the Court of Domestic Relations of Potter County.

Setting up bail bond law for counties containing a city between 73,000 and 100,000 population.

Expediting the building program of the Texas Employment Commission.

Authorizing board of Texas Tech to convey land to Lubbock for museum.

Making more adequate provision for maintenance and operation of county-owned parks.

Clarifying purposes for which monies may be expended by the department of public safety.

Providing for a state insurance building.

Authorizing creation of a junior college in any county having an evaluation in excess of 100 million dollars.

Opening the quail season in Andrews County.

RACE BILL PASSES
Yesterday afternoon the Senate passed 13-12 and sent to the governor a House-passed bill by which county judges could require registration of organizations involved in school integration troubles. Backers of the bill openly said it was aimed at hamstringing the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

The bill was brought up after this session had passed last week the two measures asked by the governor—closing of public schools when there are mob or riot threats and giving the attorney general $50,000 to help fight local integration suits in federal courts.

The Senate named Sen. Jop Fuller of Port Arthur as president pro tem for the between-session period and voted to go home.

While the Senate was passing the segregation bill the House passed a number of resolutions, one of which would ask the attorney general to investigate the possibility of filing anti-trust suits against Texas oil firms importing foreign oil.

Both houses approved a resolution asking Congress to write new laws requiring that U.S. Supreme Court judges have at least five years experience on the bench.

Uncle Ray: Paint Covers Names In Shakespeare's Birthroom

By RAMON COFFMAN
STRATFORD-ON-AVON—Spring and summer are the chief tourist seasons in this town, the birthplace of Shakespeare, but tourists come in the autumn and even in winter. They offer a lasting tribute to the famous writer of plays.

This time I observed that the walls and ceiling of the birthroom have been painted. The paint covers hundreds of names which were written on the walls a century or more ago.

I noticed that with a bit of regret, the house used to be an inn, and the owner allowed his guests to write their names in various parts of the birthroom provided that each one paid a shilling, the present keepers of Will's first home probably felt that it was a bad example to have names written on the walls of a memorial. On the window panes, however, we may still see various signatures which were scratched on the glass.

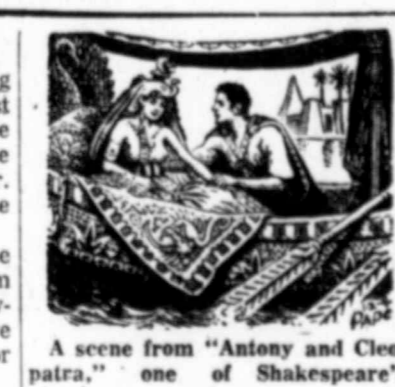

Payment was made for that privilege, as well as for writing on the walls.

I also have visited the church where Shakespeare's remains lie buried under the floor. Only a few prominent residents of Stratford-on-Avon were given burial in the church.

Some long-time readers of this column may remember the pretty English girl, age 10, who walked alongside me years ago after I left the school where I had talked to the pupils. The child's name was Dorothea Smith.

I walked over to the fishing tackle shop kept by Dorothea's father, Mr. Fred Smith. After chatting with him for a while, I said, "I certainly would like to see Dorothea again."

I knew that his daughter had been married years ago, and had gone to another city to live.

"That will be easy," replied Mr. Smith with a smile. "Dorothea and her husband and children are living in Stratford now, and she has a shop right next door to mine!"

In a few moments I greeted my old-time friend once more. Her shop contains clothing for children, and it is one of the busiest stores I have ever seen. She has several assistants, and I found all of them busy, making sales to one customer after another. I must have spent half an hour observing the operation of that busy and successful shop.

Turtle Ends Up In Soup

DALLAS (AP) — A giant turtle threatened traffic last night until a gourmet killed and butchered him.

Policemen D. D. Hutchins and M. R. Martin said they noticed a crowd of 20 watching the bulky turtle inch across a busy intersection.

"It must have weighed more than 30 pounds," said Hutchins. "It was so big a car might have flipped if any had run over him." He said the reptile was about a foot across the shell and 18 inches long.

The snapping turtle didn't appear a willing passenger in the squad car for a ride to the zoo, so officers radioed headquarters for advice. A sergeant headed for the scene.

But Hutchins said a passing citizen with a taste for turtle stew solved the problem.

"He let the turtle bite onto a coat hanger. The turtle held tight. The man dragged it home and cut off its head with an ax . . . his wife slashed it into turtle steaks."

LIFE AFTER DEATH

Famed Biologist Sees No Afterlife In Material Sense

DR. SELMAN A. WAKSMAN
NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Before the question—Can life exist after death?—can be answered either in the affirmative or negative, we must first make certain that we understand what we are discussing. Otherwise, this question could be answered only on the basis of speculative assumptions and generalities that are not subject to any kind of experimental proof.

The answer to this question must also steep clear of religious beliefs and prejudices that are largely in the domain of the theologians. A scientist is conditioned by training and experience to answer questions only on the basis of facts established through careful observation and subject to actual measurements, and, therefore, both consciously and unconsciously will apply the same type of criteria to the present question.

What is life?
Life is usually defined as a condition or state that characterizes animate or living matter (plants and animals). Living bodies have certain definite properties that differentiate them sharply from nonliving materials. These properties can be summarized briefly as follows:

1. Growth. This is a gradual increase of all the components of living systems.
2. Metabolism. This is the capacity of living systems to assimilate food substances.
3. Respiration. This includes both respiration in the presence of oxygen (aerobic state), and the ability of certain cells to live in the absence of oxygen (anaerobic state).
4. Reproduction. This characteristic of life ranges from the simple fission of bacteria and budding of yeasts to the complex sexual reproduction of both lower and higher forms of life.
5. Adaptation to the environment. This may be a result of spontaneous mutation, of interbreeding between strains and varieties, or still other factors.
6. Intelligence. Even single-cell organisms often show a rudimentary type of intelligence (such as reactions to heat and other destructive agents), but man has acquired mental processes that enable him to control or at least understand, actually or potentially, virtually all of the activities in the environment with which he is surrounded.

Thus, simple and complex forms of life are characterized by various properties that enable anyone to recognize their living state.

DEATH EXPLAINED
What is death?
A living organism, be it small or large, simple or complex, is said to die when its living functions come to an end. The body ceases to respire, cannot reproduce its own kind, cannot adapt itself to its environment, and all its other functions cease completely.

As soon as an organism dies, unless it is preserved by special chemicals or sterilized by dehydration, heat or other means, it is immediately attacked by lower forms of life (bacteria, molds and worms), which destroy its cells and tissues and transform the cells and tissues of the dead body into those constituent elements (inorganic and gaseous forms) from which the body was originally built up.

What characterizes living processes?
Living processes are primarily characterized by the fact that they can be measured. Even such infinitesimal forms of life as the viruses, which almost border on the inanimate, could be studied long before they were seen even with the highest possible microscopic magnifications. Their multiplication could be determined, their ability to cause specific diseases could be established, and means were developed for combatting them.

The somewhat larger forms of life, the unicellular bacteria, have been studied in an even greater variety of ways. Their nutrition, multiplication, adaptation to environment, and many other activities were gradually elucidated. They could now be combatted, if injurious, or encouraged, if they were found to make a valuable contribution to human welfare.

The living reactions of still higher forms of life can be measured in a multiplicity of different ways. Even the inexperienced observer can thus tell whether a plant or animal is alive or dead.

What about life after death?
Without considering religious and supernatural beliefs, and without considering processes that up to now have never been measured or evaluated, we must conclude that life, at least in a material sense, ceases with death. There is, therefore, only one conclusion that one can reach if one accepts the ancient dictum: "Omnia vivum ex vivo," or "All that is living must have originated from living matter." Just as no life can arise spontaneously, so we can hardly assume that life can exist without the commonly recognized reactions characteristic of living systems.

The material cessation of vital activity was so evident, even to the ancients, that believers in life after death have almost universally assumed that "life" continues to exist indefinitely in a different guise.

A MOOT POINT
This leaves us with the possibility that "life" after death, in the immaterial form of a soul or spirit, might provide immortality after the cessation of life. All attempts, however, to prove the existence of such spiritual entities by the methods of science have been universally unsuccessful. The scientist is no better equipped than the philosopher or the theologian to answer the problem of an unverifiable form of life, and would be unable to accept any unprovable speculations beyond those necessary for the conduct of experiments and the comprehension of the universe.

There seems to be no necessary scientific reason to believe in life after death. Man's natural desire for immortality is not a rational basis for scientific belief, although it remains a compelling factor in religious belief.

Therefore, we must conclude from our stated definitions of life and death, that any belief in life after death is in disagreement with all the accumulated wisdom and knowledge of modern biology.

Oil Automation

NEW YORK (AP)—The Texas Co. said today it has purchased the first digital computer produced for the fully automatic control of a petroleum refining process. The computer, manufactured by Ramo-Woolridge Corp. of Los Angeles, is being installed in a polymerization unit at Texaco's Port Arthur refinery.

That's Protection

PROTECTION, Kan. (AP)—This is the first town in the country where everyone under 40 has had a full series of polio shots. Basil O'Connor, president of the National Polio Foundation, gave the town a bronze plaque denoting its distinction after watching 312 persons line up at the high school gym for their third shots.

Conquest' Top TV Show On Science Topic

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Introducing Conquest, the new filmed series on the world of science which will appear all too infrequently on CBS-TV, Eric Sevareid, now 45 years old, remarked:

"That's not such a great age, but already I find that my education is old hat . . . My sons know more than I do."

That's true of all but a small minority of Americans. Watching Conquest certainly will never take the place of a graduate degree in physics, but to a science moron like myself the first offering was engrossing and even stimulating.

There were four segments in the first program on Sunday: A fine documentary filmed account of Maj. David Simonds' 19-mile balloon ascent; the under-ocean explorations of Dr. Maurice Ewing of Columbia University; an examination of cellular research; a brief discussion by two leading scientists on some of the scientific problems before us as a nation.

The scientifically better educated may have found the first Conquest program somewhat superficial. To me it was not. It raised and tried to answer absorbing questions.

Why, for example, should man wish to study the ocean floor? Because in its deposits are written much of the secret history of this globe—and something of its future.

One of the most stimulating qualities of the program to me was to observe the utter absorption of those involved in a variety of scientific pursuits. It demonstrated that the life of a scientist can be a good one.

Perhaps in the oblique manner, if in no other, Conquest fulfills an important role. The young, wondering what they are going to do in maturity, might well be stimulated by observing the lives of scientists.
