Air Force IRBM Lands Short Of Target Area

Defense Dept. Brags Too Soon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP) - The Air Force's Thor missile was shot skyward in a beautiful launching today, but the effectiveness of its flight was in doubt.

New Effort To Fire Satellite Gets Under Way

By VERN HAUGLAND CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP) - A new effort to fire a baby moon into an orbit, possibly this month, got under way here today on a double-barreled basis.

The renewed program started off in these primary directions: 1. An airline-crash type investigation of every detail of the launching failure Friday which destroyed Vanguard TV-3, the first U. S. satellite-bearing rocket ever fired.

The experts urgently need to know exactly what caused the huge vehicle to lose thrust at the very moment of takeoff and topple back upon its own fiery tail. 2. An expedited effort to "clean up" the fire-damaged launching stand and the concrete-paved pad surrounding it.

The flight equipment necessary for the second Vanguard try already was on hand at the heavily guarded reservation from which missiles are fired down the 5,000-mile testing range into the South Atlantic. It included:

- 1. A three-stage Vanguard, identical in appearance to the 72-foot monster that consumed itself before thousands of excited beach-watchers Friday. 2. A shiny new 6.4-inch baby satellite to go into the rocket's nose.

The process of getting the rocket set up, of giving the powerful engines static test firings while they are in the launching rig, and then of finally preparing them for an actual launching, cannot start until the stand is ready to receive them.

ONLY STAND It is the only stand of perhaps a dozen at the test center that is capable of handling the giant Vanguard. Elliott Felt, operations manager for Baltimore's Martin Co., which built the launching vehicle, and J. Paul Walsh, deputy director of the project for the Naval Research Laboratory, told a news conference that structural experts have flown here to help with the repair work and with the crash investigation.

Among them were representatives of Loewy - Hydrospe Division of the Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Co., builders of the 12-foot-high launching stand. This stand supports the vehicle and provides the blast tube through which rocket exhaust flames are deflected during static or tied-down, test firings. The launching stand, anchored deeply into the sand is not to be confused with the gantry crane or mobile derrick which surrounds the launching stand and the rocket.

The gantry crane is 110 feet high and can lift eight tons. Once the rocket is ready for firing it is rolled back on tracks 100 to 125 feet. Felt said the crane was undamaged by the ball of fire that swept the launching stand. Neither did the flames and debris reach the concrete blockhouse, 75 feet away, from which as many as 50 persons can observe the firing.

The other support structure effected by the misfiring was the slender disconnect pole or cable tower, standing almost as tall as the Vanguard rocket itself. The tower was linked to the rocket until the final moments by loops of electric wiring.

Officials had not yet assessed the tower damage. From the observation beaches it appeared fire blackened but intact. The U. S. plans at least two more test launchings of grapefruit-sized satellites before going into its 21-inch fully instrumented space program.

This program is a part of the coordinated worldwide scientific surveys in which all major countries are participating during the International Geophysical Year. Soviet Russia already has launched two satellites, one with a dog in it. However, while the U. S. Vanguard program is primarily scientific, the Communists have frankly offered theirs as a demonstration of their capability in the field of intercontinental missile warfare.

CHEER FUND STILL NEEDS YOUR MONEY

After a good start, contributions to the Christmas Cheer Fund slowed—too much for comfort—at the end of the week. Whereas contributions from R. G. Wilson, W. L. Wilson Jr., Tommy Cole and W. C. Kennedy had added $34 Friday, Saturday's total was $20, making the grand total $161.00. Several hundred dollars of expense have been incurred by city firemen in preparing for toys, parts, etc. to make sure no youngster is missed at Christmas, and unless contributions pick up sharply, the firemen are liable to be left holding the sack—and not Santa's sack. Mail or bring your gifts to the Herald, made payable to Christmas Cheer Fund, please. Latest ones to rally to the cause are: Jack Wilcox $10.00, J. D. O'Bar $5.00, R. V. Jones $5.00, Previously given $141.00.

Grocer Relates Bomb Incident

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP) - A Knoxville, Tenn., grocer testified today his store was dynamited during a Teamsters strike last year but no one was ever prosecuted.

The grocer, B. B. Powers, told a Senate committee he recalled the names of two witnesses but he said there were no arrests and no grand jury investigation. Interviewed by reporters after the hearing, Knoxville Dist. Atty. Hal H. Clements denied there was any "political coverup" for what Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) has described as "Teamsters Union 'goon' squads."

Powers said the blast in his store, which caused $2,000 damages, occurred during a Teamsters strike against one of his soft drink suppliers.

The dynamiting was one of a series of terroristic acts related to the special committee investigating improper activities in the labor-management field. McClellan, the committee chairman, said in opening the hearing Thursday that his investigators had uncovered evidence of organized terrorism by the Teamsters Union in Tennessee and other Southern states.

Ike Gets Report On Test Failure

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 7 (AP) - President Eisenhower received by special courier today a short, preliminary report from the Pentagon on why the Vanguard satellite launcher blew up.

The full report the chief executive has demanded is expected next week, after Eisenhower returns to the White House. Responding to a question, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said he had heard no mention of the word "sabotage."

Hagerty said the initial report on what he termed "the accident of yesterday" contained little more information than was disclosed yesterday. Officials of the Vanguard control center in Washington said then the satellite launching rocket failed because of lack of thrust in the first of its three stages.

150 Youngsters Show Up At Party

HOUSTON, Dec. 7 (AP) - When Mrs. Foley Santa Maria told their 14-year-old daughter, Phyllis, she could have a party they didn't plan on 150 youngsters showing up. What the parents didn't know was that Phyllis used a mimeograph machine to produce her invitations.

Santa Maria hired a police officer to direct traffic in front of his home tonight when it became obvious the party was going to attract more than just a few close friends. Both Mr. and Mrs. Santa Maria helped distribute 20 gallons of punch, 400 hot dogs, two tubs of pop corn and 429 doughnuts. The couple decided after the party that "a grand bunch of kids" attended.

'HUMILIATED' BY U.S.

Slavs Spurn Further Aid

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 7 (AP) - Usually well-informed Yugoslav sources said tonight this country has spurned any further U. S. military aid.

President Tito, these informants said, told U. S. Ambassador James Riddleberger of the decision yesterday, with a statement that the aid was being declined because of frequent "reappraisals" made of it by the United States.

Tito called the reappraisals "humiliating for Yugoslavia," the informants said.

(The State Department in Washington said it had not received a report from Riddleberger on his talk with Tito.)

The Yugoslav informants said Yugoslavia wants to continue friendly economic and political relationships with the United States. American military aid was first granted to Yugoslavia after it was booted out of the Soviet-led Cominform in 1948. Billions of dollars in military aid have been granted to Yugoslavia since.

After Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union gradually began drawing closer together, the United States began reconsidering its aid policy. Last October, after a break of several months, President Eisenhower decided the aid should be continued. At present, American military aid is again being reappraised.

The Central Committee of Yugoslavia's Communist party approved Yugoslav refusal to sign the main declaration which emerged from the Moscow talks of ruling Communist parties during the celebrations of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

Look Out For The Counterfeiters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP) - Some people just don't have the Christmas spirit. They take advantage of the Christmas shopping spree to pass off counterfeit money.

That was the word of warning today from Chief U. E. Baughman of the U. S. Secret Service. He said the counterfeiters and note passers are quick to take advantage of the Yuletide rush with its crowded stores and increased sale staffs of untrained persons. Baughman said that in order to detect counterfeit money it is first necessary to become thoroughly familiar with genuine currency. Thus, if you can hang onto a bill long enough to study it, take a good look at the portrait.

Baughman said these counterfeit notes have been circulating in the Southwest; $20 note on the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and a $100 note on the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

131 Rebels Killed

ALGIERS, Dec. 7 (AP) - French army headquarters today claimed French forces killed 131 Algerian nationalist rebels in three operations.

Christmas Buying Hits Full Stride

Saturday saw the real start of the Christmas buying season in Big Spring. Traffic was heavier than usual. Parking places were rare.

Buyers seemed to be more interested in "heavier" merchandise—blankets, coats, suits and kindred most costly items—but merchants said this was typical. Christmas buyers dig into the smaller items as the holiday nears. Initial buying, they said, is usually for the more costly presents.

Gift wrapping departments were working overtime and were being augmented with additional help in most stores. Bundle-laden pedestrians thronged the sidewalks and jammed intersections between traffic signal changes.

The bright sunny weather, not too cold and not too windy, was ideal for shopping. Merchants going out, too, that a great many customers have just realized how near Christmas really is. There are only 14 shopping days left.

The late Thanksgiving slowed the start of the holiday buying season here just as it did all over the country. It is traditional, merchants said, that folk delay Christmas buying until after Thanksgiving day has passed. Merchants here seem to feel as do business men elsewhere that perhaps more dollars will be spent for Christmas goods this December than last but that in actuality the volume of merchandise bought will not be a great deal larger. Increased costs will account for this situation.

Stores here were ready, it was said, for the rush. Christmas merchandise and Christmas merchandising preparations have been ready for several weeks.

With Luck On Your Side, You Can Fall Down Elevator Shafts

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN CHICAGO, Dec. 7 (AP) - Sometimes you just can't win unless Lady Luck is on your side. A review of this year's odd accidents, compiled by the National Safety Council, showed:

A frown from the lady and such noble impulses as love and affection or a determination to play it safe can have lethal results. With her blessing, falling down an elevator shaft can be an entertaining and stimulating experience. Such as: Motorist Thomas Ciappa of Oswego, N.Y., reasoned that good brakes make good accident insurance. So he tipped off to a broke-testing station to get his brakes relined. Oops. Too late. His brakeless car kept right on going through the station door. Damage, $300.

Across the country in Olympia, Wash., John Arends breathed deeply with relief. Mrs. Arends was being wheeled safely from the hospital delivery room and he was a proud papa. He rushed over to kiss her, got a whiff of the ether and passed out on the concrete floor. Mother and child, fine. Father, two broken front teeth. In Chicago, Mrs. George Rethal tripped into the darkened bedroom to comfort her husband, recovering from a sprained ankle. She tripped over a crutch protruding from the bed, fell and broke her arm. With far less damaging results, Donald McKeon and William Vesialdes tumbled down an elevator shaft at the 21st floor level of a new skyscraper in Morningside Heights, New York City. McKeon fell four floors, grabbed the cable and swung himself safely onto the 17th floor landing. Vesialdes slid 18 floors down the cable before he managed to ease himself onto the third-floor landing platform. Both suffered minor bruises. Dr. Alex Buchholz and his wife ran into each other on the street in Chicago. Trouble was, both were driving cars. With husbandly concern, Buchholz, uninjured, took Mrs. Buchholz to the hospital for personalized treatment. In Los Angeles, safety award winners George Madden and Harry Hayman ran through the same routine with their taxi cabs. The collision broke a 15-year accident free record for Madden and an unblemished 8-year record for Hayman. Melvin Carter of Kinlock, Mo., added a paragraph to the dangers of hitchhiking. A passing car hitched his protruding thumb so hard he had to have it treated. Carter went his way — on a bus. That little kitchen puzzler—

Communist Unions Seize Dutch Banks

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 7 (AP) - Communist-run unions took over three Dutch banks today, and an Indonesian news agency said the military had seized all Dutch property in revolt-minded north Sumatra.

The P.I.A. News Agency reported the military commander of north Sumatra, Lt. Col. Djamin Gintings, had seized the enterprises to prevent them from falling into the hands of trade unions. The big island of Sumatra is rich in resources, many British, French and American firms are in the area.

It was not clear immediately whether Gintings' seizures meant nationalization of the Dutch firms. Earlier reports from Sumatra had said the Indonesian campaign against the Dutch had little effect there. These reports said the Dutch were living under "nearly normal conditions."

Dutch interests in north Sumatra included the control of railroads and communications as well as electricity, gas and water supplies. North Sumatra was the scene last December of an unsuccessful revolt led by a former army commander, Col. Maladin Simbolon. Gintings was sent there to replace him as army leader.

Cold Front Moves Into N.W. Texas

By The Associated Press A fast-moving cold front swept into Northwest Texas Saturday, whipping up some dust.

The Weather Bureau forecast freezing temperatures in the Panhandle and South Plains but said the front otherwise wasn't expected to have much effect. Skies generally were clear over the state after scattered rainfall Friday night and early Saturday.

Northerly winds with gusts up to 58 miles per hour whipped up dust in the Lubbock area before subsiding Saturday night.

Phony Clue Planted In Search For Girl

SYCAMORE, Ill., Dec. 7 (AP) - Investigators said today an unknown individual may have planted a phony clue, hampering them in their search for missing 7-year-old Maria Riddolph.

James E. Boyle, assistant DeKalb County state's attorney said the ruse involved the doll Maria was carrying when she vanished Tuesday night shortly after a stranger offered her a piggy-back ride.

Bolivian Air Force Leaders To Inspect Webb Facilities

Plans were completed Saturday for demonstrating Webb's pilot training facilities and methods to high-ranking Bolivian officials Monday and Tuesday.

The four Bolivian officers who are receiving a general orientation tour of Air Force-wide activities are Gen. Walter Arze, commander of the Bolivian Air Force; Lt. Col. Javier Cerruto, chief of staff for the Bolivian Air Force; and Maj. Medardo Chavez, commander of the Bolivian Air Force Flying School.

They will be accompanied by Col. Glenn C. Thompson, chief of the USAF mission to Bolivia, and Capt. Joseph M. Kristoff, USAF escort officer. United States pilot training at all levels will be inspected by the group, as will activities at different command levels of the Air Force's many other varied functions. The party will arrive Monday morning at Webb AFB from Randolph AFB, following a tour of facilities in the San Antonio area, and will depart Tuesday morning for Dyess AFB, at Abilene.

During their stay here, the visitors will be given a briefing on the local pilot training program and will tour such functions as Maintenance and Supply and Pilot Training Groups. It is planned to give them jet indoctrinations flights in the T-33 jet trainers. A dinner will be held at the Officers' Club on Monday night.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week With Joe Pickle

Help! Help! Help! The city firemen urgently need your help in order to lay in a good supply of renovated toys for needy children on Christmas. So far only about one-fifth as many used wheel toys have been donated to the collection. If you have old bicycles, tricycles, wagons, etc. around the house, take them to the city hall station first thing Monday—please.

Saturday gave all the appearances of a Christmas shopping season in high gear. Traffic downtown was heavy and shoppers were buying rather than browsing. Postmaster Elmer Boatler said that early volume presaged a record Yuletide for the postmen who last year handled 2,400,000 pieces of mail from Dec. 1 to Dec. 24.

Dawson County, having a tough year on its highways, wrote up Frank A. McAnnally of Andrews as its 10th traffic fatality of 1957. Tragic, although not violent, was the puzzling death of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Oliver, teachers at Knott and Big Spring, sometime Tuesday. They were found dead in their home.

The Chamber of Commerce is in the market for a new manager with the resignation of Wayne B. (Red) Smith. Manager here for the past 14 months, Smith will quit on Jan. 1 to enter private business here. Apparently there will be no dearth of applications for the place he will vacate.

Are you looking for some early spring beauty in your garden? Then we suggest you drop by Howard County Junior College and get yourself a supply of Calceola plants. These have come up by the multiplied thousands in the beds around the administration building.

Landmark To Serve New Purpose

The Dora Roberts residence on Scurry, long a landmark in Big Spring, is to be transformed to serve as the future permanent home of the Howard County Free Library.

TO BECOME LIBRARY

Dora Roberts Home Will Be Given Thorough Overhaul

The Dora Roberts residence, a landmark in Big Spring for many decades, will have a definitely "new look" when it is remodeled to serve as the permanent home for the Howard County Free library.

Actually, about all that will remain of the original lines of the old dwelling will be the four walls.

Inside, all partitions will be removed. The roof will be flat and the original floors will be removed and replaced.

Most of the original windows will still remain but where there is now a big bay window on the south will be located the main entrance to the building. The present front door will be left intact but it will be relegated to the position of an emergency exit rather than a principal doorway.

The front porch on the northeast corner, if present plans work out, will be annexed to the main room of the building. Its present openings will be walled up with stone and windows inserted to make porch area into what will serve as a reading room when the library occupies the building.

FLOORS TO BE REPLACED
The floors will have to be replaced, according to Bill French, Big Spring engineer, whose firm designed the new plan, for the reason that books are extremely heavy and the present flooring was never planned to carry the load which will now be imposed on the building.

The roof has to be replaced because the present roof depends on partitions inside for its support—these partitions are to be eliminated.

Decision to make the main entrance replace the present south bay windows was impelled by the necessity of eliminating a long flight of stairs from the street level. At the front of the building on Scurry, to reach the porch, the visitor must make his way up numerous concrete steps. With the new entrance on the south, the number of steps will be materially reduced.

Inside, all wall will be refinished. Acoustic type ceiling will be installed. Lighting will be provided from fluorescent racks along the ceiling. The building will be air-conditioned—winter heat being provided through the same system.

One room in the extreme northwest corner will be devoted to housing all air conditioning and heating equipment.

The librarian's office will be located in the southwest corner. Immediately to the east of this office will be located the main receiving and issuing desk.

All shelving and furniture from the present library in the Howard County courthouse will be utilized in the new building. Additional wall shelving where it is needed and here opportunity to install it exists will be added.

The floors will be covered with tile. Actually, the new library will not have a great many more square feet of floor space than is provided in the wing of the courthouse now occupied by the library. However, it will have other features which will be of considerable benefit.

French said that he believes all of the changes and rebuilding proposed to transform the residence into a library can be accomplished for the $40,000 which the Dora Roberts Foundation has earmarked for the job.

However, if it is found that funds are not adequate, it is possible to effect some economy measures. Walling up the porch on the northeast corner, for example, can be eliminated. French said that this project will be a tolerably expensive item in the renovation program—the building is made of cut stone and preparing stone to close the arches which now exist will be costly.

He has high hopes, however, that when the bids are opened on Dec. 19 that they will be inside the $40,000 available for the job.

He would not make an estimate on the probable time it will require to complete the work. Such jobs, he said, often prove difficult and time is hard to figure.

All plans and specifications for the building are now complete. The plans have been formally approved alike by the Dora Roberts Foundation and by the Commissioners Court.

The Dora Roberts Foundation, created by the late Mrs. Roberts, deeded the residence and the land it occupies to the city early this year.

It was specified that the donors wanted the building to serve as a permanent home for the Howard County Free Library.

Later, the Foundation agreed to set aside $40,000 to pay for redesigning the building to its new purposes. French was assigned to prepare the plans.

He completed the work on these some three or four weeks ago. They were considered by Mrs. Opal McDaniel, county librarian and by R. H. Weaver, county judge, who approved them.

They were then transmitted to the officers of the Roberts Foundation for study. Saturday, the Foundation advised Weaver that the plans were satisfactory.

Monday, the county commissioners set 2 p. m. Dec. 19 as the date for receiving bids on the job.

Beauty Operators Helping Patients

Operators for the Texas Association of Accredited Beauty Culturalists, having completed their annual Christmas good turn at the Big Spring State Hospital, are anxious to do more.

Every year, for the past three years, members of the association in several West Texas cities have provided permanents for women patients at the hospital. Around 500 women have thus been brightened for the happy holiday season.

This year, operators from surrounding cities volunteered their services and Big Spring beauty shops opened their door and equipment. Previously, permanents had been administered at the hospital where space and accommodations were less conducive to most effective work.

J. D. Kirk, Odessa, project chairman for the area units of the state association, said that the operators were anxious to do more than merely give permanents once or twice a year. They stand ready to equip a beauty shop at the hospital if and when adequate space can be provided. Beauticians previously have given equipment now in use on a limited scale.

Kirk said that his colleagues were hopeful that accredited beauticians in other areas and other states would be interested in similar projects for mental hospitals nearer them. Operators at Abilene, Cisco, Sweetwater, Big Spring, Odessa, Midland and Lubbock have had a part in the project here.

Rainwater, Hayward Invited To Meeting

Champ Rainwater and G. H. Hayward, local director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, have been invited to attend a meeting of the WTCC's board in Abilene Tuesday, according to B. E. Godfrey, president.

Godfrey said directors will review the organization's work program for the past few months and a study of project activity scheduled for coming months.

Charter Proposes New Bank At Clute

AUSTIN, Dec. 7 (AP)—A new bank at Clute in Brazoria County was proposed in a charter application filed today with Banking Commissioner J. M. Falkner.

Sen. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton is among the proposed directors. J. P. Bryan has been proposed as chairman and J. T. Suggs as president.

The proposed capital is $100,000, surplus $50,000, reserves $50,000.

ABC Club Reminded Of Its Birthday

Roy Reeder, chief speaker at the American Business Club luncheon held Friday in the Settles Hotel, reminded members that the club observed its 22nd birthday anniversary Dec. 5.

Reeder, with the help of YMCA personnel, screened a movie of 1939 vintage screened with local talent and financed with local money.

He said it might have been the worst ever put on celluloid but it provided many a laugh among the members.

An ABC membership party will be held in the Howard County Junior College snack bar next Friday evening, according to Merle Creighton, who is in charge of arrangements.

At that time, a team captained by J. B. Apple will be treated by three other teams, losers in an attendance race conducted within the club.

Guests at the Friday luncheon included George Oldham, Everett Taylor, Mrs. Coy Nalley, Clyde Smith and Wayne (Red) Smith.

Safeway Agrees To Monopoly Ban

FORT WORTH, Dec. 7 (AP)—Safeway Stores Inc. agreed in Federal court today to stop selling food products at prices below cost and to cease operating retail stores below the cost of doing business.

Judge Joe Estes approved the anti-monopoly consent judgment in the government's anti-trust suit against Safeway's nationwide operation of more than 2,000 stores and subsidiaries. The hearing lasted 13 minutes.

If the judgment is violated, Estes can sell or close for a "reasonable length of time" the stores in which the prohibited practices occurred.

The government filed a complaint against Safeway Nov. 1, 1956 charging the food store chain with attempting to monopolize the retail grocery business in Texas and New Mexico in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

Thick Rule Book Still Can't Stop Big Insurance Swindlers

Editor's Note: Since 1953, the insurance industry and its regulators have produced a thick rule book, but swindlers are still at work. How do things stand today? This story by Garth Jones, who has specialized in covering insurance investigations, brings the picture up to date.

By GARTH JONES
AUSTIN, Dec. 7 (AP)—Texas has a thick rule book on insurance operations but any big whirlwind of the industry—if his conscience dictates—can still spin a sinister swindle scheme.

"Hot oil in East Texas in the 1930s couldn't hold a candle to the racketeering possibilities in Texas insurance," a district judge remarked not so long ago.

Some big shots of state government and industry think still more laws are needed.

Others, in both government and business, think enforcement of present laws is the answer.

BOILED WITH UNREST
The industry, second to oil in feeding Texas' pocketbook, has boiled with unrest since 1953 when the first of a long series of firms skidded to disaster.

Dust still hasn't settled on a skirmish during the recent special session when the Senate tried to throw out State Insurance Commissioner William Harrison by refusing to confirm his appointment by the new three-man insurance board.

The attorney general ruled, upon request, that the senators overreached their jurisdiction—which left Harrison holding the reins of an industry split over the question of whether he should be the board's chief executive officer.

Outside of the jurisdictional squabble, the state Insurance Department is still trying to close the gates that were opened when Texas got the reputation of having the worst insurance laws in the nation.

"They went that way," has been the frequent alarm sounded as company after company joined Texas Mutual Insurance Co., General American Casualty Co., U.S. Trust & Guaranty, and ICT Insurance Co. in bankruptcy.

"Rid the industry of its few remaining rotten apples," Gov. Price Daniel begged, when his clean-sweep vigilantes took office after a rugged legislative fight to reorganize the department.

"We simply cannot say that we still just walk about the apple tree, pluck off the few rotten apples, then throw them away and everything will be sanitary thenceforth," Insurance Board Chairman Penn Jackson said a few weeks later.

Two state insurance examiners testified before a Senate investigation committee recently that in some ways the scandal-riddled Texas insurance trade was in worst shape than ever before.

"There definitely are more bankruptcies to come," one predicted.

Can there be a repeat of the U.S. Trust and the ICT boom-and-busts?

New laws passed in 1955 lowered the boom on such twilight insurance-banking-stock selling empires as U.S. Trust.

However, another ICT could be organized today in the same manner that BenJace Cage used seven years ago. Cage is under 10 years sentence for embezzling ICT funds.

Every probe group that has looked into the complex ICT dealings found out that a Dallas bank loaned Cage $200,000 on May 23,

Midlander Killed In Auto Accident

MIDLAND (AP)—King Cole, about 20, of Odessa was killed Friday when an auto overturned several times 21 miles southeast of here.

Two persons riding with him were injured. They were his brother, Chuck Cole, 14, and Gene Ewart, 17, also of Odessa.

They were on a hunting trip. Survivors said King Cole reached down to adjust the car radio, and the vehicle went out of control, into a ditch and overturned.

1950, for the express purpose of establishing Insurance Co. of Texas, which actually was not chartered until the next day with the $200,000 as its only capital. On the same May 24 the brand new insurance company paid Texas Lloyds, also owned by Cage, $200,000 for a reinsurance agreement. Cage wrote a $200,000 check to the Dallas bank on June 2 and paid off his note.

"Just ordinary routine business," the bank vice president told investigating committees, adding that he would do the same thing again under the same circumstances.

Attorneys for the Dallas bank said it was "a usual and customary bank function for bank customers."

The State Banking Commission said such transactions violated none of its provisions.

The state Securities Commission said it was not involved. COULD REPEAT

"It could be done again today," was the answer to a query made to the State Insurance Board.

"Nothing in the law prohibits a man from borrowing money from a bank in his own name and then using the money to form an insurance company so long as he is the one responsible to the bank for repayment of the loan, and not the insurance company."

The Insurance Board spokesman added that if money was taken out of the capital of a newly formed insurance company to repay such a loan then the person responsible could be tried for embezzlement or misappropriation.

Any such violations must be tried under the state's criminal code. The insurance code has no penal provisions and provides only that a firm's license may be lifted for violations.

Not only have some Texas banks been criticized for certifying that a new insurance company had the required capital on deposit, then allowing it to be withdrawn, but they have been accused of furnishing short term loans to puff up an insurance company's financial condition for the vital year end statement,

Troubled Indonesia Is Facing Bloodshed

By OLEN CLEMENTS
SINGAPORE, Dec. 7 (AP) — Indonesia is in trouble, and the situation is likely to get worse — possibly with bloodshed.

The Dutch, who in 350 years had knitted the Indonesian economy together, are being run out. The economy could collapse, laying the eight-year-old republic open to easy Communist seizure.

Also in the background is the possibility that Indonesia — a nation of 3,000 islands and many cultural groups — will split up into several nations.

Indonesia's latest crisis grew out of its demand for Dutch West New Guinea. The attempt to kill President Sukarno last Saturday added fuel.

Out of the smoke of U.N. rejection of an Indonesian request for negotiations on West New Guinea and the attempt on Sukarno's life came these events:

Seizure of Dutch enterprises by workers — some from Communist unions; banning of the Dutch KLM Airlines from Indonesia; ouster from the country of Dutch nationals.

It all started with a government-sponsored boycott of the Dutch to show Indonesia's displeasure at the U.N. rejection of its New Guinea proposal.

Foreigners are apprehensive, and few know from hour to hour what is going to happen next. The Dutch most definitely are through in Indonesia. The Americans, British, Australians, Chinese and Indians wonder if they are the next.

Dutchmen and other foreigners arriving here say there is likely to be shooting in Indonesia before long. None seems to know which factions will take part, but most guesses are the Masjumi Moslems, Communists or rebel troops, and the army, or maybe all of them.

The Indonesian government has never been too stable, and in the midst of these troubles several ministers are reported shaky. Sukarno has been pretty much out of sight since the attempt on his life, but his aides say he still intends to visit the Vatican and South American in the next month or so.

False Alarms

Keep Cops Busy

DALLAS (AP)—If a real holdup alarm comes along, Dallas police are all warmed up and ready.

They went rushing in answer to a signal yesterday from the payroll office of the Sears, Roebuck warehouse. All a mistake, the policemen were told. Somebody accidentally tripped the alarm.

Four hours later, officers swarmed into the Lakewood State Bank. This time they found a new teller unwittingly standing with a foot on the holdup button.

French Order Banks To Deposit Dollars

PARIS, Dec. 7 (AP)—French banks have been ordered to deposit 30 per cent of their dollar holdings with the Bank of France, the Finance Ministry said today.

A spokesman said the move was ordered to facilitate dollar transactions of the Bank of France.

Heidelberg Castle
Has Gigantic Cask

By RAMON COFFMAN
HEIDELBERG—This city is the home of a university which was founded during the Middle Ages—572 years ago, to be exact.

The university owns a fine collection of hand-written books, and these have gone through a strange history. Thirty-five hundred manuscripts were taken from Heidelberg by the ruler of Bavaria, and were sent to Rome. They were kept in the Vatican until the French carried them to Paris. One year after the downfall of Napoleon they were given back to the University of Heidelberg. They had been away for 192 years!

Heidelberg Castle dates back seven centuries. Inside it I saw the largest barrel I have observed in my travels. It was used in the past to store wine.

"How much would it hold?" I asked the guide.

"It is large enough for 55 thousand gallons of wine," he replied. "It is 18 feet high and 27 feet long."

"What about this other barrel?"

I inquired.

"Oh, that is a small one—it will hold only 10 thousand gallons!"

Visitors might suppose that the people of the castle had a terrible craving for wine. The huge casks, however, were employed for wine which was taken in the course of taxation. Later it was marketed, and the nobles received money.

One resident of the castle, however, did make a little dent in the wine supply. His name was Perkeo, and 'tis said that he drank 18 bottles of wine a day.

Perkeo was an idle fellow, but he built a clock which was of interest to his guests.

"Would you like to make the clock strike?" the guide asked my 8-year-old niece, Heather Hollan, who is with me on this trip.

"Yes," she replied, and was told to pull a hook. When she did so, the make-believe clock opened and out came the tail of a fox!

Game Of Poker Ends In Dispute, Charge Is Filed

Curtis Newton Houston, 56-year-old proprietor of a restaurant on West Highway 80, was released on $1,000 bond Saturday afternoon following filing of robbery charges against him in the court of A. M. Sullivan, justice of the peace.

Sheriff's officers said that the complaint was made by Lee Johnson, an employe of Cage Brothers Construction Co.

Johnson, in a statement to officers, said that he and Houston engaged in a poker game Friday night. He said he started the game with $140 of his own money and when the game broke up around 4 a.m. Saturday he had won $1,000 from Houston.

He said he attempted to leave the cafe with the money and was halted by Houston, who covered him with a pistol and forced him to leave not only what he alleged he had won but his $140 as well.

Houston denied the charge and said that on the contrary, Johnson had won several hundred dollars, had taken his winnings and left the place. He was only held a short time before he posted bail and was released from custody.

Air Force Appears Likely To Get Big Cut Of Defense Fund

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Strategic Air Force appeared likely today to share substantially in a proposed two-billion-dollar increase in defense spending.

While much of the two billion will be earmarked for a speedup in the missile program, the long-range planes are expected to get a sizable chunk also.

Sen. Robertson (D-Va.), a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the Air Force alone has asked for a two-billion-dollar increase in the next fiscal year over its current budget. However, he forecast in a statement that "it probably will not receive half that amount."

Whatever final budgetary decision is made by President Eisenhower and his aides, the Strategic Air Command (SAC) has won itself some new friends in Congress as a result of the U.S. lag behind Russia in developing intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Members of a Senate preparedness subcommittee which will resume an investigation of the missile and satellite programs next week have been told that until this country gets long range missiles SAC remains the backbone of deterrent power against possible Soviet attack.

The subcommittee, led by Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, is expected to recommend strengthening of SAC through the addition of more planes and dispersal bases.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) chairman of a subcommittee which has started disarmament questions, said it is his belief that "we must rely for a considerable time on manned aircraft for our basic retaliation force."

Robertson said he is prepared to support increases in defense spending. He complained, however, that there seemed to be no plan for cutting down on conventional arms.

"It does not appear to be logical to prepare at one and the same time for a nuclear war and a conventional type war," he said. "We must give priority somewhere. I am also concerned by reports that of the proposed two billion dollar increase, 450 million dollars will go for increased military salaries but with the same rate of increase given truck drivers as will be given electronic technicians."

Robertson said as an economy advocate he is concerned about reports that the President will ask for $3,900,000,000 in foreign aid.

"I am convinced," he said, "that if we donated the entire receipts of our government to foreign aid, we could not hold our allies if they became convinced that we could not protect them physically from Russia. Whether we can provide such protection may be demonstrated within the next 18 to 24 months."

Wine Tastes A Little Flat Today

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A man who sought refuge from the rain narrowly escaped death in an 1,800-degree incinerator yesterday.

Police said the man had crawled into a large trash container behind a public library to get out of the rain, taking a bottle of wine with him.

A dump truck picked up the container and the man, Clarence H. Shackleford, 57, was dropped into a 25-foot pit in front of the incinerator. A crane operator spotted the man's arm protruding from the debris, and he was rescued moments before a power shovel came down for another scoop to the incinerator.

Shackleford was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

RELAXATION FOR OUR SENIOR CITIZENS
New YMCA Club provides fun, fellowship for the "golden age"

DOORS STILL OPEN

Senior Citizens Club Gets Started At Leisurely Pace

The Senior Citizens' Club at the YMCA is progressing at a senior citizens' pace—slower, perhaps, but steadily and with more enjoyment.

There are already more than a dozen members of this youngest YMCA small group activity, and the door is wide open for more.

No specific definition has been given for a "senior citizen," and while most of the members are around the retirement age, the mark has been fixed rather loosely at 50 years and above.

The club has at least one unique distinction—there are no dues and no fees. All anyone has to do to belong is come to the meetings.

Friday from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the YMCA building. A special invitation is out to couples and men because up until now women have outnumbered the men.

Objectives of the club are to afford a means of Christian fellowship for those who have, as Browning wrote, reached that part of "life for which the first was made." They have visitation, recreation and refreshments.

Later they may take a hand in some civic project, for most of the members thus far have indicated that they are interested ultimately in more than enjoying themselves—they want to help somebody.

A permanent steering committee has been set up and is composed of Dee Davis, Mrs. Jessie Thomas and Mrs. Bob Wolf. Mrs. Lee O. Rogers, long a leading volunteer worker for the YMCA, is the hostess for the group.

Named to a committee to plan for the Dec. 20 Christmas party are Mr. Davis, Mrs. Mae Jenkins and Mrs. Rogers. Detail and time for the meeting have not been worked out, but likely will take final shape at the meeting Friday at the YMCA. Members are hopeful that many more of their age and interest will come and enjoy the planning with them.

St. Lawrence Seaway May Create World's Eighth Sea

Editor's Note: The long-dreamed-of, billion-dollar St. Lawrence Seaway is near completion. The following story, first of three authoritative articles on the seaway, gives a vivid picture of the tremendous engineering feat, its progress to date, and of the men behind it.

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
MASSENA, N.Y., Dec. 7 (AP)—Men are moving water and earth to form what may be known as the nation's new north coast.

Or it may be regarded in a broader sense—as men of imagination already have suggested—as an American Mediterranean or the world's eighth sea.

What these name-coiners are talking about is the end result of the work on the St. Lawrence Seaway and related projects on the Great Lakes.

The on-the-scene supervisor of the U. S. share of the seaway construction, Martin W. Oettershagen, calls the over-all river-and-lakes improvement plan "the most ambitious integrated navigation program ever undertaken on this planet."

BILLION-DOLLAR JOB
Its full eventual cost is reckoned at a billion dollars.

The main purpose is to deepen the water route from the present 14 feet in the shallow sections to 27 feet so bigger ships can carry heavier cargoes through it.

The major work now is being done along both sides of the St. Lawrence River.

"We're ahead of schedule," Oettershagen reported. "We've had a lot of dry fall weather."

Canada and the United States are constructing a total of seven new locks in four new canals to bypass rapids and to get around power structures being built in a simultaneous hydroelectric development.

The locks also will provide a Scholarship In Science Raised

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Dec. 7 (AP)—The Pearl Harbor Day edition of the Adirondack Daily Enterprise raised $2,005 today toward establishment of science scholarships for high school graduates in Saranac Lake and nearby Lake Placid.

A total of 93 business firms placed that amount of advertising in the 16-page paper, the largest that could be printed on the Enterprise's press. The newspaper turned over $1,740 to the Saranac Lake Board of Education and $265 to the Lake Placid board.

Spain Gets U. S. Nuclear Material

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 7 (AP)—American nuclear material for Spain, worth 112 million dollars, arrived today by plane from New York.

The material included 20 kilograms of Uranium 235 and four of Isotope U235 to be used in an atomic reactor nearing completion by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission at Alameda, Calif., which will be moved shortly to the Moncloa plant in Madrid.

Spain is being supplied this material under agreement with the United States for atomic cooperation for peaceful purposes.

series of steps in the river-lakes system that slopes up from sea level at the Atlantic end to 602 feet above sea level at the Lake Superior end.

The St. Lawrence Seaway development Corp., the U. S. agency is building two locks, the Eisenhower lock and the Grasse River lock, in the Long Sault Canal that is being dug along a 10-mile line north of Masena.

SENSE IMMENSITY
You can sense the immensity of the work if you stand on the edge of the Eisenhower lock and look down into the man-made, cement-lined canyon. It's 105 feet deep and 800 feet long.

The Grasse River lock — it's also 800 feet long — the Eisenhower lock and the others on the Canadian side are eye-catching features of the work in progress at scattered points along a 182-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence between Lake Ontario and Montreal. Dredging is under way in the Thousand Islands section and several other areas.

All these channel-deepening tasks dovetail with the big power development along the swift, cold river.

In an undertaking that is separate but being carried out at the same time New York State and Ontario Province are building power facilities that will cost an estimated total of 600 million dollars and will have a total capacity of 2,200,000 horsepower.

At peak last summer — 1957 — about 16,000 men were employed on the seaway and hydroelectric projects.

The first earth was turned in U. S. phase of the seaway construction in March 1955.

"The locks on the United States side will be ready July 1, 1958," Oettershagen reported.

The Canadians are building five new locks — the St. Lambert lock and the Cote Ste. Catherine lock near Montreal, two locks in the Beauharnois Canal a little farther upstream in Quebec Province and the Iroquois lock at Iroquois, Ontario.

Gordon Murphy, chief engineer for the Canadian agency — the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority — reported in his Montreal office: "We'll be ready when the navigation season opens in 1959."

The seaway now is limited to vessels with 14 feet draft — and it will be until the spring of 1959. Canada has been operating six old canals in the rapids sections that can accommodate boats with a 14-foot draft and a 250-foot length. Such boats (they call ships boats on the Great Lakes) can carry about 1,500 tons of general cargo or about 2,500 tons of ore.

With those limitations, Oettershagen said, boats carried about 13 million tons of all kinds of cargo on the river between Lake Ontario and Montreal in 1956.

When the new, deeper seaway is opened in 1959 general cargo ships up to 500 feet in length and ore vessels up to 720 feet long can sail the St. Lawrence.

"Ships probably will carry between 7,500 and 10,000 tons of general cargo and up to 25,000 tons of ore," Oettershagen said. "Thus, they will have at least five times as much general cargo capacity and ten times as much capacity for bulk commodities."

He estimated that in 1959 about 30 million tons of cargo of all types will move through the seaway between Lake Ontario and Montreal.

The deepening of the St. Lawrence River and the Welland Canal and related improvements in the Great Lakes will, in effect, draw the Atlantic Ocean 800 miles farther west and create a north coast for the United States in the process. In the full picture are two nations, two provinces, eight states and dozens of cities.

He reckoned the eventual costs of the seaway — including the estimated $15 million on dollars Canada and the United States are spending in the St. Lawrence River navigation improvements—deepening channels connecting the Great Lakes and work in harbors and ports will add up to one billion dollars.

The Welland Canal, linking Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, is being deepened to 27 feet.

But nobody can say precisely when the plans for improvements on the lakes west of there will be completed.

DEPTHS DESCRIBED
Oettershagen sized it up this way:

"After the seaway (the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario and through the Welland Canal into Lake Erie) is opened in the spring of 1959 we will have a depth of 27 feet into Lake Erie.

"But a 27-foot passage to Lakes Huron, Superior and Michigan will await completion of the deepening of connecting channels. The deepening of those channels is scheduled to be finished in 1962.

"Most Great Lakes harbors have 21 feet depth, with approach channels as much as 25. There won't be 27 foot approaches to all harbors until the entrances are deepened. That phase is under study now by the U.S. Engineers Corps.

"And then it is up to the cities to develop their own port facilities."

Revaluation Panel To Meet Again Monday

Members of a special county school board-city committee will try to meet Monday afternoon to take another look at three revaluation firms. The three are being considered for a joint tax revaluation survey for Howard County.

The committee's secretary, H. W. Whitney, tried over the weekend to contact the six committee members to ascertain if they would attend the session Monday. If all cannot attend, the meeting will probably be postponed until Wednesday or later in the week. Whitney had not been able to reach every member Saturday at noon.

A meeting for Tuesday would be cancelled out since that is the time for the regular City Commission session.

Whitney contacted Hudson Landers who is chairman of the committee, reporting he had heard from a majority of cited queried about the three firms, and Landers then asked him to call the meeting.

The committee is considering three firms for the job, Southwestern Appraisal Co., Erik Ehrenborg & Co., and Pritchard & Abbott.

In addition to Landers, others on the special committee are County Commissioner G. E. Gilliam, School Trustees Robert Stripling and Omar Jones, and City Commissioners Roy Bruce and Curtis Driver.

Here's a Japanese method for conquering city traffic problems—an expressway on the roof of a serpentine building. The roadway will not be complete until next year, but stores and tea shops already occupy parts of the building which winds through the heart of Tokyo.

Is It Highway Or Building? Artful Tokyo Combines Both

By RENE GEORGES INAGAKI TOKYO (AP)—The longest building in Tokyo is a road—and the city's only expressway is a building. This Oriental paradox is the result of combining a two-story building with an elevated highway: the road runs on the roof and the building curves as dictated by the course of the road.

A private firm headed by Minoru Higuchi is building it. When completed, the building—interrupted by six bridges carrying its roof road over intersections—will provide some 650,000 square feet of rentable space.

Commissioners' Automobile Stolen

Officials in the city and county continued their search Saturday night for the 1952 Chevrolet—owned by a county commissioner—which was stolen Saturday afternoon.

The car, belonging to Hudson Landers, was stolen after 3 p.m. from the parking lot south of the Ritz Theatre.

Shortly afterwards, a car was sideswiped in Coahoma, and the victim pursued the offender and got the license number of the car. It turned out to be Landers' car, and the man who had been sideswiped told the sheriff's office three men were in the car when he was hit.

Jumps From Truck Into Car's Path

LAMESA — Juan Campos Ramirez, who jumped from a moving truck and rolled into the path of an approaching car, was in a serious condition at a hospital here Saturday night.

Ralph Ward, State Highway Patrolman, said that Ramirez apparently had jumped from the truck, landing between it and a trailer before rolling to the other side of the highway. He was struck by a car driven by WuzdiZabak, 40, Houston, and received chest injuries and facial cuts. Ward said no charges were filed.

Uranium Mine In Germany Folds

NUERNBERG, Dec. 7 (AP)—West Germany's only important uranium mine has quietly folded up. The mine had been operating since 1950 in Weissenstadt. Production costs proved high and operations were ended because imports from the United States are three or four times cheaper.

GARDEN CITY, Dec. 7 (SC)—Missouri officers will come to Glasscock County sometime this week to take custody of two men arrested near here Friday night by Sheriff Buster Cox.

The two men, identified as Harold Lee Breeder, 38, Bucyrus, Mo., and Edward Doyle Hill, 30, of Success, Mo., were in possession of a 1955 Oldsmobile allegedly stolen in Houston, Mo., on or about Thanksgiving.

New Egg Law Is Explained

The county agent's office has been receiving numerous inquiries about the recent egg law that was passed by the State of Texas. Agent James Taylor said.

The law deals with five groups of people concerned in the production and sale of eggs. The groups are producers, retailers, wholesalers, processors, and brokers.

Most of the people in Howard County that are producing eggs come under the "producers" category. This category refers to people producing eggs from their own flocks and selling directly to consumers, Taylor said.

Scouting—properly caught and taught—will go a long way toward giving the nation a new and needed stability, Dr. P. D. O'Brien told the annual Lone Star District meeting Friday.

The First Baptist pastor addressed the dinner affair at the high school cafeteria honoring volunteer leaders of cub packs, scout troops and explorer posts.

Dr. O'Brien said, and the remedy is in young people who will be anchored to the great fundamentals of America. Urging unit leaders to redouble their efforts, he reminded that "character is caught, not taught."

4-H 'Achievement Night' Program Set For Dec. 14

Leaders of the Howard County 4-H club organization will meet on Monday or Tuesday to draft plans for the annual 4-H Achievement Night program scheduled for Dec. 14.

Jimmy Taylor, county agent, said that this year's event will be a combination affair—achievement night and Christmas party. It will be in the Elbow school gym.

Highlight of the occasion will be the selection of the Gold Star boy and Gold Star girl for 1956. This coveted honor goes to the boy or girl who has made the most outstanding contribution to 4-H club work during the year.

Awards will also be made to both boys and girls who have been outstanding in specialized fields of 4-H club endeavor.

Rudder Calls For Changes To Save Veteran Land Program

AUSTIN, Dec. 7 (AP)—Land Commissioner Earl Rudder said today he would like to see the 1955 veterans land program changed.

Rudder said the changes needed were a new constitutional amendment to raise the interest rate on bonds from 3 to 4 per cent, or an improvement in the tight bond market.

The amendment should be passed by the Legislature, Rudder said. The 200 million dollar veterans land program has been mired by the current bond market.

Rudder, who completes three years in the land office next month and is expected to quit to take the vice presidency of Texas A&M around Feb. 1, said the first 100 million dollars will be completely spent by 1959.

"The revolving features end then and there won't be a nickel for buying land," he said. "Under the revolving fund, 1,324 veterans have purchased land since Oct. 30, 1955. The total program has seen 17,628 veterans taking part in Texas' bonus-type program for veterans."

The same program—which is self-supporting—was the backbone for one of Texas' major governmental scandals which broke before Rudder took office.

Giles was indicted along with 21 others as courts in nine counties returned 377 indictments alleging more than 5 million dollars of fraudulent land sales. Giles is serving a 6 year prison term. Only five others have been tried.

T. J. McLarty of Cuero is the only other defendant in prison. Two other cases were quashed and the Court of Criminal Appeals ordered new trials for the other two.

Does Rudder think there could be a repeat in the land scandals? "No," he said. "We set up a system with the help of the Legislature which actually gives this program local control. Everyone talks about doing away with centralized government but we have actually done it in the new program."

Rudder said his major problem when appointed was "weeding out those (employees) who couldn't be trusted and get others who could be trusted and had the ability to do the job."

"The crux of the veterans' land program is appraisal. Our appraisers have gone to four special schools to learn better how to do it. We get some kicks from land dealers but only 37 of 1,744 contracts were not fulfilled because of unwillingness of the dealers to take our appraisals."

Rudder said the permanent school and university land programs directed by the land commissioner also have been improved.

Achievement Day At Forsan A Big Success

FORSAN, Dec. 7.—Forsan's second annual 4-H club community achievement day was staged Saturday and was hailed equally successful as the initial event in 1956.

Twenty boys and girls from the Forsan 4-H club participated in the event. Feature was judging of the boys' and girls' showmanship ability but the stock entered—18 lambs and two steers—was also judged for fatness.

Harry King was classified as top showman in the group for exhibitors from 10 to 12 years of age; Lanell Overton won the ribbon in the 13 to 14 years old group. Muri Bailey was champion in the 15 and older group. These were all in the lamb category.

Only two steers were shown—entered by Jerry and Terry Harkrider, twin brothers. The judges gave the nod to Jerry as the best showman.

Judge of the stock for fatness and fitness was Lloyd Robinson of Knott. Showmanship judges were Ellis Iden, Vealmoor, and Max Fitzhugh, Big Spring.

The show was staged at the bus barn at the Forsan school. A barbecue was served to 100 at the noon hour.

The event is sponsored by the parents of the 4-H clubbers in the community.

Rudder said the minimum price on rental and bonus at school lands for the mineral leases," he said. "The board had been charging $2 rental an acre and $5 bonus. We made it $3 rental an acre and $15 an acre bonus."

"If the land isn't worth a $15 an acre, we'll keep it until it is," Rudder said, explaining recent lease sales have been postponed because foreign oil imports have hurt bonus expectations.

Rudder said his record shows: In the six land sales during his term, bonuses and rentals averaged $113.84 an acre. In 31 sales since 1939 prior to Rudder taking office, the average was $31.20 an acre. The overall average is now $41.72 an acre.

Direct supervision of inspections in oil runs on school lands has brought in "a little more money because a few individuals were incorrect in inspection of tideland drilling has paid off. Past practices of allowing inspectors to rent equipment to drilling companies have been eliminated.

During Rudder's tenure, the permanent school fund went up 34 per cent to a total $94,046,564, while the university fund increased 40 per cent to $84,717,609. The state's largest land sale, $32 million in bonuses and rentals in 1953, made up part of the boost.

4-H Exhibitors To Outline Show Plans

Fifty boys and girls who plan to enter stock in the area fat stock shows this winter and spring will meet at the Howard County courthouse at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Object of the meeting, according to Jimmy Taylor, county farm agent, is to outline plans for the shows, consider exhibits to be entered and review participation plans for the 4-H club members of the county.

The county 4-H members plan to enter half a dozen shows this season. First of these will be soon after January 1.

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 (AP)—To hammer home American failure yesterday to launch an earth satellite, the Soviet press used the simple device today of republishing a U.S. and European comment. So ample was the U.S. self-condemnation that none of the Soviet propaganda agencies found it necessary to add any criticism.

They found republication of U.S. official and press comment more than sufficient to emphasize to their own people and the rest of the world Russia's leadership in rocketry.

U.S. press comment as relayed by the Soviet news agency Tass was liberally spiced with such phrases as "devastating blow to American international prestige," "shattering of morale," and "Washington plunged into gulf of disappointment and dejection."

Press comment from Copenhagen carried such phrases as "terrible fiasco." Tass forwarded from London the quote that "American self-sufficiency exploded."

No Need For Reds To Add Criticism

MOSCOW, Dec. 7 (AP)—To hammer home American failure yesterday to launch an earth satellite, the Soviet press used the simple device today of republishing a U.S. and European comment.

So ample was the U.S. self-condemnation that none of the Soviet propaganda agencies found it necessary to add any criticism.

Press comment from Copenhagen carried such phrases as "terrible fiasco." Tass forwarded from London the quote that "American self-sufficiency exploded."

Another U.S. press pickup said Washington's distress was aggravated because the NATO summit meeting in Paris is only 10 days away.

As relayed to Moscow by Tass, U.S. and foreign comments placed the collapse of the satellite rocket on a par with Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor in destroying Washington's prestige.

But a small sampling indicated Moscow's man-in-the-street was little interested in the failure of the U.S. rocket. A taxi driver and a doorman were asked what they thought about the rocket collapse. They replied they would rather talk about the Soviet Union's performance in the coming ice hockey championships in Oslo.

None of the Moscow papers mentioned Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev's statement yesterday that a fragment of the carrier rocket of Sputnik I hit the United States Sunday and that the Americans were refusing to surrender it.

225 Participate In FFA Contests Here

Approximately 225 FFA students and their instructors attended the Area II Future Farmers of America Association contests at the Big Spring High School yesterday. These were the leadership contests held annually in the 44-county area which composes Area II.

First place winners in the various divisions will enter the state contests to be held at Huntsville next week. While the placings were well distributed over the area, Roscoe and Brownfield were well ahead, with each one having won two first places. Big Spring failed to place first in any division, but came in with a second, third and fourth, to rank well up among the leaders.

The name of the contest and the order of ratings were as follows: Senior Chapter Conducting: Roscoe, Brownfield, Big Spring, Marfa.

Junior Chapter Conducting: Roscoe, Hamlin, New Home, Big Spring.

Farm Radio: Brownfield, Big Spring, Robert Lee, Hamlin.

Farm Quiz: Robert Lee, New Home, Hawley, Lamesa.

In addition to the official contests, The Texas Electric Company gave several awards for farm achievement and education in electrical work. Presentation of special awards were made by Bob Conley, district manager of Texas Electric at Sweetwater.

Two honorary membership awards were presented to Lawrence Davis of Coahoma and Jim O'Brien of Lamesa.

The City of Big Spring voted last week to make a $250 monthly contribution toward the maintenance of service at Hamilton Field, which it had turned back to its owner, Cecil Hamilton. He said he would keep the port open during daylight hours, thus maintaining civil air service here.

Air Force headquarters last week announced extension of the base housing project deadline to Jan. 3, 1958. That may put it where FEMA funds will be available. If not, this may be the last extension to the contractor.

School administrators and trustees set up machinery for a county-wide school study. They approved plans to name a 55-man committee for local studies on curriculum, finances, teaching force, construction. It will be part of a statewide study.

Three Latin-Americans, alleged to have entered Hull & Phillips store on the north side last week, were not so wise about how to cash in. They were picked up at a bank, when they attempted to convert a sack full of silver ($165) into currency.

This busy season is open season for crooks and thieves. So keep your car securely locked (better put merchandise in the trunk). If experience of the past week is a criterion, clerks had better double check on strangers offering checks or slick-fingered shoplifters.

The contests were arranged and supervised by Clemon Montgomery, Area II supervisor, Big Spring.

Legal Still.
Dr. Kenneth C. D. Hickman patiently waits for his vapor compression still (foreground) to turn salty brine into fresh water. The machine has a capacity of 500 gallons a day.

Rochester Scientist Perfecting Household Salt Water Purifier

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—The white-haired scientist waited for the ticking of the small, square machine to stop. Then, from a glass jar which was connected to the machine by tubing, he drew a glass of clear, odorless fluid and drank it.

Dr. Kenneth C. D. Hickman smirked his lips. "Not bad."

The fluid was plain water which a short time before had entered the machine as heavy brine. It had been purified in a vapor compression still Dr. Hickman designed.

No bigger than an automatic washing machine, the unit, as yet unnamed, is tailored for householders on coastal lands where supplies of pure water are slim or non-existent.

The unit can also be used, the doctor says, to purify "polluted" waters inland.

HOUSEHOLD VERSION
It is a "baby" version of a large, commercial unit which Hickman designed for the U. S. Department of Interior. The department is planning a test-run for this in the near future at Wrightsville Beach, N. C.

The little unit was built in a laboratory owned by Aqua Stills, Inc., a Rochester research company established to develop the process. Hickman is vice president of the company.

Entirely automatic, the still uses less electricity than a home laundry machine and can turn out 500 gallons of pure water a day, Hickman says, about 100 more than the daily requirements of the average family.

Hickman says plans are under way to put the little still into production within a year.

Manufactured in small quantities, it will sell for about $1,500 but in mass production its price could be trimmed to $300 a unit, the doctor says.

COMPLETELY AUTOMATIC
An electrical pump maintains the still's supply of water. Inside, the impure water is passed through heat exchangers, rapidly whirling cylinders, changed to steam, condensed back to water and finally run into a storage tank.

When the tank is full, the elec-

Ex-Wife Of Ike's Brother Demands Her Back Alimony

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. Dec. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Alida B. Eisenhower testified today that her ex-husband Arthur, elder brother of President Eisenhower, owes her $3,000 back alimony.

Mrs. Eisenhower said the money was the balance remaining on a $20,000 settlement agreed to in 1953, when the court also increased her monthly alimony payments from $250 to $350.

She appeared to contest Eisenhower's motion that the monthly payments be reduced or terminated. He contended, through testimony by his present wife, Mrs. Louise Eisenhower that his income is only $500 a month from retirement annuities and even that has been cut off by a court order as result of the alimony dispute.

Eisenhower, 69, is a retired Kansas City banker.

Circuit Judge John R. James took the case under advisement after testimony by the first Mrs. Eisenhower.

Mrs. Alida Eisenhower testified she married Arthur in 1906 and that he obtained a divorce in 1924, agreeing to pay her $250 a month alimony. Eisenhower remarried in 1925.

205 May Die In Holiday Traffic

AUSTIN, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Department of Public Safety predicted today 205 persons would die violently in Texas during the Christmas-New Year's holiday period.

The estimate includes 113 deaths on the highways, 48 suicides and murders and 44 accidental deaths for the 12-day period Dec. 21 through Jan. 1.

During the same period last year, 108 persons were killed in 89 fatal traffic accidents, reported Homer Garrison Jr., DPS director.

"Our estimated 115 traffic deaths for last year could have been exceeded except for the cooperative around-the-clock effort of all law enforcement agencies throughout the state. Traffic law enforcement will again be strengthened in an effort to prevent traffic accidents and accident prone situations," Garrison said.

Salvation Army Starting Work On Transient Lodge

Demolition of the building which has served as a transients' lodge at the Salvation Army is getting underway as the initial step toward a new plant.

In its stead will rise a haydite block building with some 3,500 square feet of floor space made possible through a $20,000 grant by the Dora Roberts Foundation.

Lt. Fred Overton said that operations would be handled on a slightly curtailed basis pending the completion of the new building. This is expected to require something like 120 working days after the start of construction.

The new lodge, located immediately north of the Dora Roberts Citadel, will be of masonry construction with flat roof.

Interior of the plant will be departmentalized according to need. Areas are including for separate sleeping quarters for men and women, for a clothing room, dining room and kitchen, shower baths, manager's office and auxiliary offices and storage rooms.

There will be central heating and cooling.

The present building was converted from part of a barracks building acquired from the old Big Spring Bombardier School.

Solon Surrenders Airline Seat To Aid Heart Victim

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7 (AP)—Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) got away before anyone could thank him today for voluntarily surrendering his berth on a Pan-American Clipper plane enroute from Honolulu to Los Angeles when a woman passenger suffered a heart attack.

Returning from a survey of International Geophysical Year activities that took him to the north and south poles, Harris helped Dr. A. M. Akelberry of Salt Lake City administered sedation to Mrs. Peter Ratermanis, 4231 Hueco St., El Paso, Tex., who was stricken while en route home from her former home in Manila with her 14-month-old daughter.

Purser Dorace Caw gave Mrs. Ratermanis emergency oxygen and the pilot, Capt. Freddy Waltz, asked if there was a physician aboard. Dr. Akelberry, after examining the woman, said she would require complete rest.

Harris gave up his space but made connections with a plane for his home in Eldorado, Ark., and left as soon as the Clipper touched down.

Mrs. Ratermanis had recovered sufficiently in Los Angeles to make connections on a plane for El Paso.

County To Review Plans For Airport

Members of the Howard County Commissioners Court will confer Tuesday with officials of the Civil Aeronautics Authority in Port Worth on the next step in the Howard County airport project.

It was believed Saturday that some of the time of the Monday session of the court would be devoted to a review of the status of the airport. It will probably also be determined just who will make the trip to Fort Worth.

Louis Jean Thompson, engineer who has contract to prepare plans and specifications for the airport, will be one of the delegation. R. H. Weaver, county judge, will be another. How many commissioners may go along was not certain.

Thompson has told the county officials that work of preparing plans and specifications is proceeding satisfactorily and that with good luck no change in the time schedule for the project will have to be made.

Commissioners may also re-

Dulles Misses Bold New Idea For NATO

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles apparently has failed to find the bold new political idea which he hoped President Eisenhower could take to the allied summit conference at Paris Dec. 16 to inject new life and unity into the Atlantic alliance.

As a result, the best informed diplomats now expect that the major achievements of the Paris meeting will lie almost entirely in the military field. This will be true unless the United States is compelled to bow to the demands of its European allies to yield some freedom of action in the interest of allied cooperation.

The pressure from European governments for concessions from the United States is growing as the NATO conference approaches. But the basic policy decisions which have now been completed by the Eisenhower administration are reported to rule out radical changes in the political operations of NATO.

They do, however, call for far-reaching — and generally well known — steps to bring Europe's military forces up to the threshold of the age of pushbutton warfare.

The broad outlines of U.S. policy have been communicated to allied governments in a memorandum presented to NATO ambassadors at Paris by U.S. Representative Randolph Burgess. This is said to contain no surprises.

The American program calls for establishing bases for intermediate range atomic missiles in Western Europe, backing these up with stockpiles of nuclear weapons under American "custody," pooling scientific brainpower to a greater extent than at present, increasing political consultation in the 15-nation alliance, promoting an interlocking association with allies in the Middle East and Asia, and further splitting up the weapons manufacturing lakes of the West.

When Secretary of State Dulles started his personal crash program of planning for the NATO meeting last month, he wanted some dramatic new concept which would go far to achieve greater interdependence of the anti-Communist allies. He wanted to channel the forces of public excitement, fear and readiness for action into a plan for strengthening the Atlantic alliance and reassuring the Atlantic allies of America's full support.

In his search for ideas he has consulted several Western foreign ministers, his own advisers, Democratic leader Adlai Stevenson and former U.S. experts on NATO af-

More To Firing A Rocket Than Lighting Match

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
AP Science Reporter
To many Americans, a rocket up to now was something shot off on the Fourth of July. But there's a lot more to firing one in this space age than lighting a match and stepping back. There are scores, perhaps hundreds, of things which might cause a failure like that in the big Vanguard test at Cape Canaveral Friday.

Project Chief John P. Hagen laid the explosion of the 72-foot rocket to mechanical trouble, not design, and said plans to put several test satellites into the air will go ahead.

A Fourth-of-July rocket uses oxygen from the air to burn its fuel. But the modern rocket, bigger by far and designed to put a baby moon in an orbit 300 miles above the earth, must carry its own burning elements with it. The reaches of space have no air and little oxygen.

The first stage engine uses a high grade kerosene, and liquid oxygen. The two are just waiting to get together. The rocket engine obliges by introducing them in the combustion chamber. Then through a mechanical system they are ignited.

In the second stage, the two fuel elements need no third party to ignite them. One fuel is called unsymmetrical dimethyl hydrazine. The other is white fuming nitric acid.

A timing device picks the time to fire off the second stage, and without so much as a spark to help, it mixes the two fuels. They ignite by themselves and explode.

The third stage is the most like the Fourth of July rocket. It's fuel is solid, and is ignited by a delay fuse which sends it blasting up to about 18,000 miles per hour.

The first stage burns out in about 2 1/2 minutes. The second stage lasts a little less than two minutes. The third stage takes just about a minute.

In Friday's misfire, just about everything in the first two stages burned together. Their fury was such that the rocket, which barely got off the ground, was all but consumed in its own fire.

For two seconds everything had worked well—and then suddenly it fell back down the two to four feet it had risen. The excess fuel suddenly mixed together provided the funeral pyre.

The ball of flame shot up to 50 feet or more. Until the final rocket is built and fired, failures may occur anytime. More is learned than is lost from them.

Construction At Year's Low

From the strongest month in five years, building permits in November tumbled to the smallest 30-day total since January of 1955.

Building projects totaling $833,965 were started during October, and only $114,415 during November. The high figure was the largest since June 1952, and the other was the lowest since $67,325 in January, 1953.

Only 35 building permits were issued during November, also a low total.

Total for the 11 months of this year is $3,489,970, compared with $4,107,660 for the same time of 1956. The number of permits for this year is 728, and during the first 11 months of 1956, 775 were issued.

Legislature Special Session Plays Mountain-Molehill Game

By DAVE CHEAVENS
AUSTIN, Dec. 7 (AP)—Mountains of political questions and molehills of firm answers emerged from this year's legislative sessions. Gov. Price Daniel's rating was the biggest unanswered question.

His close associates insist that Daniel's claim of a perfect percentage in the legislative battling averages is valid and that it will convince most voters that he has earned re-election.

His critics insist that while Daniel's legislative record is quantitatively excellent, the qual-

No Leads In Gulf Death

CORPUS CHRISTI, Dec. 7 (AP)—Sheriff Johnnie Mitchell said today he has no leads in the death of Mrs. Grace Condrin, 47, of San Antonio, whose body was found on a mud bar in an inlet near Corpus Christi Bay yesterday.

"We searched the area where the body was found this morning and talked to people in the area but didn't turn up anything. Apparently we have gone as far as we can without an autopsy report. The pathologist said he would death by Monday, but I am going to press him for something before that time," Mitchell said.

Members of the family were questioned for some time yesterday after the body was found but Mitchell said nobody is being held.

Mrs. Condrin had been missing two weeks. She disappeared from the home of her brother, George Guddin, shortly after she arrived here with her daughter, Cora, Nov. 23.

Her husband, a fleet test driver for Armstrong Tire and Rubber Co. of San Antonio, has been attempting to organize members of his company into a union. He said he feared anti-union people might be responsible for his wife's disappearance.

ity is below par and that he has antagonized many who helped elect him.

This one fact stands out in the midst of all the speculation: Neither the liberals nor the conservatives have yet found a candidate they think could beat Daniel in a second-term bid.

One of the most interesting developments of the year has been the apparent strengthening of Sen. Ralph Yarborough's political position. He is in a spot now where he can keep all the backstage string pullers guessing: Will he run for the full Senate term, or does he still hanker enough to be governor to try again to beat Daniel?

Yarborough isn't saying. He has taken his smile and handclasp into every section of the state in the interim between sessions of Congress. He has delivered uncounted thousands of words in back home speeches, over the radio and television.

Yarborough doesn't have to say what his plans are for five months, and probably won't.

The current Yarborough "keep-'em-guessing" technique is a reminder of former Gov. Alan Shivers' always-cagey approach to a candidacy, even an obvious one. Shivers kept his enemies and sometimes his friends dangling until what he considered the precisely proper moment of decision came. Usually his political timing was perfect, and those waiting for him to act had no choice but to pick up the scraps.

Daniel was reminded this week that the time for filing was just a few months hence. A reporter asked the routine question: "Will you run for re-election?"

The governor didn't muffle the answer.

He started off with one of his rare laughs and replied that he wanted to get his desk clear before he even thought about it. That reply was good enough in view of the fact that first-term governors usually aim a large part of their activity at the re-election target.

In the first year of his first term as governor, Daniel apparently was determined at any cost to ram through his program topped with such matters as water conservation, lobby and influence controls, insurance reorganization, and in the special sessions public school bills aimed at slowing down integration.

tactics sometimes puzzling or even alienating his backers, and enflaming his opponents. Through it all Daniel made his own decisions, right or wrong, and is building up a reputation for independence in the governor's office.

Daniel alienated many of his one-time South Texas backers by aligning himself with the East Texas segregation bloc. He made many of his conservative backers in such big cities as Houston angry because of his water legislation. He irritated the rural bloc by not submitting a bill to ease farm-water use regulations. The liberals in general were not pleased. Some critics said the lobby bill is worthless. Integrationists said the segregation legislation would not stand up.

But no opponent for Daniel from any camp has appeared yet.

'HAWKS TAKE TEMPLE CAGE CROWN AGAIN

TEMPLE, Dec. 8 (SC) — HCJC's Jayhawks of Big Spring beat Odessa JC, 95-91, in an overtime period here Saturday night to clinch their fourth straight Temple tournament championship. The meet has had no other champion, outside of HCJC.

Odessa tried a full court press throughout the game and almost got away with it. However, 36 fouls were called against them, compared to only 13 for the Hawks, and the Big Springers took full advantage from the penalty line.

The Wranglers finished the last 30 seconds of the overtime period with only four men on the court. Odessa took only nine players and five of them fouled out. HCJC had a four-point lead when the fifth player went to the penalty box, however.

Larry Gloré played an outstanding game for the Hawks and wound up with 19 rebounds. No trophy was awarded for the meet's outstanding player but all agreed that Gloré was the top player.

In the overtime, HCJC fell four points behind but won out when Gloré hit two field goals and Benny Carver connected consistently from the foul line.

Odessa led all the first half, although the Hawks pulled to within three points of them just before the buzzer. With two minutes to go in the first half, the Wranglers led, 43-37.

The Wranglers maintained a three-to-five point cushion in the third period but HCJC shot ahead by as much as nine points in the fourth.

Floyd Evans, who wound up as the top scorer of the game, hit a field goal just before the regular game ended to tie it at 85-85.

Carver hit on ten of ten free shots in the last half.

Gloré was named to the all-tournament team, along with Bob Dyer, Wharton; Warner Gamblin, Odessa; M. R. Griffin, Panola; Carl Craft, Temple; and a nd Bragg Stockton, Tarrant.

Named to the second team were Morina, South Texas; Carver, HCJC; Roger McQuary, Tarrant; Jim Horn, Panola; and Robert Risinger, Odessa. Tommy Zinn, HCJC; Kennedy, Henderson; and Quisenberry, South Texas, won honorable mention.

Tarrant won third place by defeating Panola, 79-74; while Wharton grabbed consolation laurels by turning back Temple, 94-71.

In Friday night's game with Tarrant, which HCJC won, 107-78, the Hawks trailed by five points three minutes before the half but led, 47-37, at the intermission. In the first three minutes of the second half, they hit eight of eight field goal attempts.

Abilene Roars Past Sandies

AMARILLO, Tex., Dec. 7 (SP) — Abilene's Eagles, driving hard for new records at every turn, exploded for three touchdowns in the second half this afternoon to outclass Amarillo 33-14 in a Class AAAA quarterfinal football play game.

It was Abilene's 49th consecutive victory and put the Eagles in their familiar role as favorites to win an unprecedented fourth straight Class AAAA state title.

Second-string Abilene quarterback Freddie Martinez figured in scoring plays the first two times he appeared in the game to share offensive honors with fullback Bill Sides.

Amarillo scored in the first period on a 3-yard pass play from fullback David Russell to end Joe Ted Davidson. Dickie Polson kicked the first of two extra points for the Sandies.

Sides and Martinez combined on a sensational running-lateral play in the second period to tie up the game. Sides took a handoff on the Amarillo 45 yard line, lateralled to Martinez on the 31-yard marker and the speedy quarterback carried it over for the score. Don Hughes kicked the extra point, the first of two conversions in five attempts.

Fullback John Sudbury scored on a 1-yard plunge with 3:49 left in the first half but Abilene came right back to tie it up.

After returning the kickoff to their own 39, Martinez passed for a touchdown to end Jim Perry on the Amarillo 38 and ran it over, making it 14-14 at the half.

With 6½ minutes left in the third period, Abilene drove 57 yards for a touchdown. Sides scored it on a 1-yard plunge.

Fullback Chuck Colvin climaxed a 78-yard drive in the fourth with a 27-yard dash into the end zone to put Abilene out in front 26-14.

Fullback Stanley Cosby tallied.

The final Abilene touchdown on a sensational 57-yard scoring run with 3:50 left in the game.

Both teams racked up 17 first downs, but Abilene made 325 yards on the ground to 182 for Amarillo. Abilene also led in passing yardage, 106 to 80. The Eagles connected on 4 of 7 passes and had one intercepted. Amarillo completed 6 of 14 passes and lost one to an interception.

Each team recovered two opponents' fumbles. Amarillo was penalized 5 times for 44 yards while Abilene lost 10 yards on two penalties.

FOR THIRD WIN

Steers Decision Monterey, 57-42

LUBBOCK, Dec. 8 (SC) — The Big Spring Steers jumped into an early lead and held it all the way in defeating the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen, 57-42, here Saturday night.

The victory was the second in two nights for the Longhorns over a Lubbock club and their third success in four season starts.

The Steers, despite the one-sided win, weren't as impressive as they were in downing Tom S. Lubbock on Friday.

Jimmy Evans stepped out to pace the Big Spring scoring with 13 points. Jan Loudermilk and Benny McCrary each had 12 for the Steers.

Dick Deike, who had been as hot as a two-dollar pistol in previous games for the Plainsmen, couldn't solve Big Spring's zone defense and was limited to a mere four points.

The Steers built up a ten-point cushion at the end of the opening period and led, 31-19, at half time.

Johnny Johnson's team takes part in a big triple-header at Steer Gym in Big Spring, starting about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, at which time it entertains Monterey. HCJC's Jayhawks play Ranger at 8:30 p.m.

Ysleta Sweeps Two From Tornados

LAMESA, Dec. 8 (SC) — The Ysleta Indians swept a two-game series from Lamesa by winning here Saturday night, 39-28.

The Tornados connected on only 19 per cent of their shots Saturday night. They led at half time, 15-14, but made no field goals in the last quarter.

Richard Mallory led Ysleta with 15 points while Doyle Norris had eight as the Lamesa leader.

On Friday night, Ysleta won, 48-40. Mallory and Bob Skov each scored 12 points for Ysleta. Morris had ten for Lamesa.

The score was tied, 25-25, at half time and Lamesa led at the end of the third period, 33-32.

Jones tied up the count at 40-40 late in the game and again at 44-44.

In the girls' finals, Stanton defeated Knott, 53-42, handing the Billies their first defeat of the year.

Linda Glaze scored 27 points and Jonnie Rhodes 21 for Stanton while Sue Paig had 19 and Ann Rogers 14 for Knott.

O'Donnell won boys' consolation by defeating Coahoma, 59-32.

McCamey Knocked Out Of Playoffs

SEYMOUR, Tex., Dec. 7 (SP) — Seymour romped over McCamey 33-13 today to easily win its quarterfinal game in Class AA of Texas schoolboy football.

Halfbacks R. L. McClung and Larry Martin each scored two touchdowns for Seymour.

McClung scored first on a 3-yard plunge in the first quarter. In the second quarter he intercepted a McCamey pass and ran 52 yards for a touchdown.

Martin went over center from the 2 in the first quarter for one score and then broke off tackle for 38 yards in the third quarter for another.

Quarterback Billy Ryan got the fifth Seymour touchdown, a 43-yard run in the second quarter. Center Bill Moss made the three conversions.

McCamey scored both of its touchdowns in the fourth period. Fullback Jerry Brown plunged over from the one and quarterback Johnny Nicholas passed to end Kenneth Wallace for 38 yards for the one. Nelson Huffman made the one good conversion.

SEYMOUR, Tex., Dec. 7 (SP) — The Seymour-Terrell semi-final game in Class AA schoolboy football will be played at Terrell next Friday at 8 p.m. School officials selected the site and time here today.

MAROONS VANQUISH JEFF

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 7 (SP) — The Austin Maroons cashed in on every break offered them to move into the state Class AAAA semifinals with a 21-13 victory over Jefferson of San Antonio here this afternoon.

Bob Nunis, 185-pound halfback who seems destined for college stardom, raced back a punt for 48 yards and the first Austin touchdown and caught a short pass to score on a 21-yard play to put the undefeated Maroons in front 14-0 at halftime.

Jeff came right back with two fast scores in the third period as an on-side kickoff worked and a 53-yard touchdown march followed. Stuart McBirnie finally bulled his way over from one yard out.

The San Antonio club tallied again just moments later as McBirnie again pushed over from a yard out after Austin had fumbled the ball away on its own 19.

Neither team threatened again until the fading minutes when Austin managed its only real drive of the game — a drive that carried 64 yards. Gary Craig climaxed this final push with a three-yard plunge over tackle.

Don Jester added all three Maroon points.

Jefferson completely dominated statistics, gaining 197 yards rushing compared to 123 for Austin and stacking up 14 first downs compared to 8.

Hix Green, little Jefferson backfield star, electrified the crowd of 9,000 by rushing over tackle and down the sidelines for 85 yards on the first play from scrimmage but a clipping penalty erased this run and dampened the spirits of the local eleven.

NOTRE DAME LASHES PONIES, 54 TO 21

DALLAS, Dec. 7 (AP)—Notre Dame rode with its smashing Bob Williams and Patrick Doyle to a 54-21 victory over Southern Methodist today to wind up its "comeback season" with a flourish. The Irish were running up their highest total in the 9-game SMU series and they were participating in one of the roughest games ever seen in the Cotton Bowl. The teams drew nine personal fouls between them. Once they almost came to blows.

Notre Dame, conqueror of mighty Oklahoma this year, ended the season with a 7-3 record — quite different from the 2-8 disaster of 1956. While Notre Dame dominated the game most of the time, Southern Methodist put up a terrific battle and saw its Don Meredith set a new collegiate record for percentage of pass completions.

Meredith, who threw for two touchdowns today while completing 7 of 15 passes for 136 yards, ran his average for the season to 69.6 per cent. This wiped out two records, one for 68.6 per cent set by Utah's Lee Grosscup this year for a minimum of 50 attempts; the other for a minimum of 100 held by Paul Larson of California, who had 64.1 in 1954. Meredith's total is 71 of 102. Grosscup had 94 out of 137.

Williams scored two touchdowns, intercepted a pass to set up another and directed the Notre Dame team expertly. Doyle racked up scores on runs of 45 and 17 yards. Norman Odyneic also made two touchdowns with short plunges, while Charles Lima got the other Irish touchdown with a 3-yard lunge.

Lon Slaughter made two touchdowns for SMU, both on passes from Meredith. Jim Welch got the other Methodist counter on a 1-yard plunge. The game saw each team assessed 109 yards in penalties with SMU drawing five personal fouls and Notre Dame four, while on two other occasions personal fouls offset each other. But most of the penalties were caused by two hard-hitting teams that went all out on this, the final game of the season, and there appeared little evidence of deliberate unethical play.

Behren Says Winfred Shipp The Best

Dub Behrens, the Coahoma football mentor, says Rotan's 200-pound Winfred Shipp, a guard, was the finest college prospect among District 6-A players the past season "but my four boys aren't far behind." He had reference to Don White, Frog Harrington, Bobby Null and David Stoker, all of whom rated the All-District team. Coach Wayne Grabel of Stanton expects his team to fight it out with Merket for the 6-A championship. Possibly the biggest play in the last SWC football race occurred during the Arkansas-Rice game when an off-side penalty gave the Owls a fifth down from the Parker one-yard line. The Owls went ahead and got the winning TD, then started a winning streak that carried them to the Cotton Bowl.

John Druze Was Successful Aide

Johnny Druze, whose Marquette University football teams have lost 18 straight games and have placed the school's football program in jeopardy, was once known as the game's most successful assistant. The teams he helped coach at Boston College and Notre Dame won 100 while losing only 11 and tying 3. Jim Owens, now at the University of Washington, to get a lot of favorable consideration at the next Texas A&M mentor. Parking lot operators were getting as much as $3.50 to park automobiles of fans attending the Los Angeles Rams-San Francisco 49ers NFL game in Los Angeles recently.

Jackie Collins, Scotties Swarm Over Coyotes, 28-6

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Dec. 7 (AP)—Halfback Jackie Collins staged a sensational offensive display this afternoon in leading Highland Park to a 28-6 Class AAAA football quarterfinal victory over Wichita Falls. The victory put Highland Park into the Class AAAA semifinals next Saturday against defending champion Abilene.

Collins scored twice, chewed up the Coyotes' defense in racking up 216 yards rushing and kicked four extra points. His touchdowns came on runs of 35 and 90 yards.

Highland Park scored in every period while Wichita Falls' lone touchdown came in the third period. Collins faded to the right in the first, doubled back to his left behind a swarm of blockers and dashed 35 yards to put the Scots ahead. A 29-yard pass from Highland Park quarterback Bobby Reed to end Stinson Jones put Highland Park ahead 14-0 at the half after Collins' conversion. On the fourth play of the third

Frank Broyles Named Porker Grid Mentor

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 7 (AP)—The University of Arkansas announced today Frank Broyles, football coach at the University of Missouri, will succeed Jack Mitchell. The announcement was made after the university board of trustees voted to hire the Georgia Tech alumnus at a noon executive session. Broyles, whose first head coaching assignment was at Missouri this season, is a veteran of 10 years' experience as player and assistant coach under Tech's Bobby Dodd.

AS Usual, SW Race Crazy

FORT WORTH, Dec. 7 (AP)—The so-called football experts took another licking when Rice won the Southwest Conference football championship. It was nothing new—they had been doing that for 20 of the 24 years in which TCU conducted its poll. The 86 writers and sportscasters voting last August selected Baylor to win the title by a narrow margin over Texas A&M, Arkansas was placed third, Rice fourth, Texas fifth, TCU sixth and SMU seventh.

Not a single team came out as predicted. The finish: 1. Rice, 2. Texas, 3. A&M, 4. SMU, 5. TCU and Arkansas tied and 7. Baylor. One writer called the turn, Dick Moore of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Moore picked Rice, saying "It's about time for Jess Neely to hit again." The only writer to select Baylor for last was Dick Richmond of Stations KEYS, Corpus Christi. Only three placed Texas second—Tommy Hart, Big Spring Herald; Clint Fermy, KDAN, Hereford; and O. Shelton, KWFT, Wichita Falls. Ted Allen of the Kilgore News Herald, had Baylor first, and Rice last.

Steelers Prove Good Mudders, Tip Giants

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 7 (AP)—Pittsburgh's Steelers proved better mudders than the New York Giants today, wallowing their way to a 21-19 upset victory which handed the Eastern Conference championship of the National Football League to the Cleveland Browns.

James Parker Paces Ponies Past Kermit Jackets, 20-0

MIDLAND, Tex., Dec. 7 (AP)—Sweetwater unleashed a bruising ground attack sparked by fullback James Parker this afternoon in whipping Kermit 20-0 in a Class AAA football quarterfinal battle.

A Bible Thought For Today

For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ. (Galatians 1:10).

Our Road Program Put In Good Light

In a meritorious series of articles recently, the San Angelo Standard-Times made a detailed study of various operations in the road program of Tom Green County.

Tom Green is one of those Texas counties still straddled down by the archaic system under which each of four county commissioners runs his precinct as his own domain. There is no coordination of purchases for road machinery and equipment for that machinery.

As a result, the newspaper study found Tom Green's costs on such items as tires for road equipment were far above those in other counties.

Some detailed comparison was presented by the newspaper between Tom Green and Howard, because Howard is one of the counties having adopted a more efficient and progressive outlook, and is one of those in which a county-wide coordinated program is working with considerable success.

Without repeating many of the statistics revealed in the San Angelo paper's study, it may be said that the comparison put Howard County in a very fine light.

Not there is much point of pride in the Tom Green situation, but the revelation there can serve some purpose in making Howard County citizens feel pretty good about what this county has accomplished in the last four or five years.

While the Tom Green road program is going in four directions at once, its costs are excessive, and it is showing no new road construction.

Howard County, on the other hand, is keeping its maintenance on a basis of sound priority, and is showing real results in new road construction. We may not yet have met every goal hoped for, but we certainly have made splendid progress.

The very contrast between these two West Texas counties should be evidence enough—if more evidence were needed—to demonstrate that the county unit system in road operations is sound economy, achieves real value for the money spent, and means systematic all-around development for the county's roads.

There was some rough sledding at the start, but the way gets smoother all the time. The county officials who have given our county-wide system a fair chance should be commended, and everyone connected with the road program is due recognition.

May the Fates forbid any thought of returning to the old method, and have us lose every factor of efficiency and good returns on investment that we have achieved to date.

Special Texas Poll

How Texans Support Their Churches

By JOE BELDEN
Director, The Texas Poll

Have you ever stopped to consider how many Texans go to church only on special occasions? The answer is, 31 per cent.

How many never attend? Answer, 5 per cent.

Of church-goers, how many are not registered as members but do attend as visitors? Nearly one fourth, 24 per cent.

And what do most Texans think and do about inviting others to join their church? What is the attitude toward giving to the church? How active are clergymen and laymen in visitation work and personal evangelism? What denomination has made most headway in Texas?

—are reflected by their answers to this question:

"In your opinion, should people who don't belong to church be left alone, or do you feel they should be asked to join a church?"

	Members	Visitors	Abstentees
Leave them alone	13	29	42
Ask them to join	79	57	48
Ask them to attend, but not to join	4	5	4
No opinion	4	9	6
	100	100	100

About three of every four church members — 73 per cent — can recall having asked some one to join their church at some time in the past. Protestants are much more likely to recall such an experience than Catholics. Of the Baptists interviewed, 83 per cent remembered they had asked some one to join; of the Methodists, 76 per cent; other Protestant members, 81 per cent; Catholics, 42 per cent.

28 per cent recalled having been visited by both a minister and a layman.

Baptists are credited with having made the greatest proportions of visits both by ministers and by laymen. Methodists second. The relative standings, which serve as a measure of out-of-church efforts by the various denominations, are as follows:

Credited To:	Per cent	Visits
Baptists	48	49
Methodists	20	17
Catholics	5	5
Christian	5	4
Presbyterian	4	4
Church of Christ	4	3
Lutheran	4	3
Episcopalian	2	1
Jewish	1	1
Other churches	8	14
	100	100

Answers to these and other questions which "God's salesmen" of all denominations can use to assess past efforts and to set future goals in this state are supplied by a survey based on 1,000 personal interviews with a representative cross section of the adult Texas population.

This survey by The Texas Poll is probably the first of its kind to be conducted in the state. Besides affording an insight into attitudes of the general public, it provides an up-to-date measure of the relative standing of each major denomination on a statewide basis.

Testimony of the adults indicates 95 per cent attend church at some time or another. But only 45 per cent are in the habit of going every week.

The most significant differences in attendance habits are that women go to church more frequently than men, and the upper economic levels go more frequently than the lower levels. These differences are seen in a breakdown of answers to the following question:

"Do you attend church every week, almost every week, only now and then, or never?"

By sex:

	Men	Women	All
Every week	38	52	45
Almost every week	20	19	19
Only now and then	24	27	31
Never	8	2	5
	100	100	100

By economic level:

	Upper	Middle	Lower
Every week	49	47	37
Almost every week	22	19	17
Only now and then	24	30	40

The results show that Baptist members, as a group, are more inclined than any other denomination to suggest a family should tithe by giving one-tenth of its income to the church. A majority (57 per cent) of Baptist members suggest this.

About six of every 10 of all registered church members uphold the general idea of giving a set amount each week or month throughout the year, but only about one of every three recommend giving as much as one-tenth.

The tabulation below reflects the attitudes of the general adult public and sub-divisions of the public toward financial support of churches. In the first column are shown the percentages of each group approving the policy of giving a certain amount each week or month throughout the year; in the second column, the percentages who said the average-size family should contribute one-tenth of its income:

	Favor	Suggest
State-wide, all adults	52	32
Registered church m'brs	60	36
Visitors to churches	32	21
Absentees	22	16
	100	100

	Per cent
Registered members, by denominations:
Baptists	62
Methodists	69
Other Protestants	63
Catholics	44
Others	6

Of all who attend, 76 per cent report they are registered members of the churches where they worship, while the other 24 per cent classify themselves as visitors.

In Baptist churches, 74 per cent classify themselves as members and 26 per cent as visitors; Methodist churches, 80 per cent members and 20 per cent visitors; other Protestant churches, 75-25; Catholic churches, 79-21. These comparative percentages indicate each major denomination is doing about as well as its competitors in selling visitors on the idea of joining the church.

The survey discloses that most people attending church as visitors are receptive to an invitation to join. But a substantial proportion of visitors — about three of every 10 — definitely want to be left alone to make up their minds. People who don't go to church at all are about equally divided between wanting to be left alone and being open to invitations to join or attend. Among registered church members, about eight of every 10 believe non-members should be asked to join, not be left alone.

We Still Have To Undergo Adjustment

A strange something or other has taken place since President Eisenhower's recent mild stroke. Financial sentiment has undergone a rapid improvement. Stock and bond prices have risen sharply. Investment bankers meeting in Hollywood, Fla., anticipate good sales of new issues in 1958. Brokers' market letters talk about another round of inflation.

Yet, the basic problems which led to the stock market decline prior to President Eisenhower's illness remain, and, if anything, are compounded by his illness: (1) The country is engaged in a war of misadventure with the Soviet Union, in which Russia is granted to be ahead—only temporarily, we hope. (2) The President's physicians are sure to shield him from emotional stress in a position in which, the state of the world being what it is, stress and strain are continuous. And (3), the business readjustment, far from being over, is still very much with us.

there were 27 shopping days, this year there are only 22 shopping days.

Record stocks of merchandise must be moved in five fewer shopping days than last year. And recent results are unencouraging. Department store sales ran ahead of 1956 with reasonable consistency through September. Then in October something happened. Maybe Asian flu. Sales slumped and in November fell noticeably below a year ago.

Industrial production throughout 1957 had edged irregularly downward. The Federal Reserve Board index registered 147 last December, reached 145 in October and, perhaps, dropped another point in November. Yet, all the while, inventories—stocks which manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers want to sell—have climbed to an all-time high—above $90,000,000. And sales, instead of climbing, have been slowly drifting down (see chart).

Manufacturers' inventories dropped a bit in October. But the test is not what happens to manufacturers' stocks, but how consumers rally around Santa Claus. And the calendar's not favorable. Between Thanksgiving and Christmas, 1956, this year week was one day nearer to Christmas. And since sales mount sharply day by day as Christmas nears, the season week-by-week comparisons favor 1956. That will be made up in Christmas week this year, when there are two shopping days (Monday and Tuesday), as against only one in 1956. So, don't forget to evaluate what department store statisticians call the "one-day date lag."

INFLATION OR DEFLATION

It's a mistake to prejudice Christmas sales. It always is. Consumers are as unpredictable as the stock market. And yet, certain evidence can't be overlooked. Personal income dropped in both September and October. Which means that the capacity of consumers to pay off debts and at the same time to buy as much as before has shrunk. A report of the American Bankers Association is pertinent:

"There is every indication that collections are getting tougher," the ABA said. "Losses from repossession of cars are averaging around $350 after allowing for dealer reserves. Other credit losses are beginning to become more noticeable." Inventories being what they are, such a report is not reassuring.

The upturn in Wall Street sentiment can be rationalized. It always can: The Russian spunk has forced a revision of the defense program. So, government spending will increase. Therefore, we're on another round of inflation-spurred prosperity.

Nevertheless, that's a long and optimistic leap into the future. If government spending increases sharply, if business takes a jump for the better, the Federal Reserve Board, which recently stopped fighting inflation and began moderating a recession, will have to reverse policy again.

And before that, we'll first have to go through the readjustment, which Wall Street seems to assume is behind us instead of being very much here.

Bible Words for Today

EPHESIANS 4:32—"And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." (King James)

To catch the full force of these words it should be noted that they were addressed, not to unbelievers and wicked men, but to Christians, church people, people whom St. Paul referred to as "the saints which are at Ephesus, and to the faithful in Christ Jesus."

On first thought one might assume that Christians would be the last people in the world to need an exhortation to be kind, tender-hearted, forgiving. Fact is, however, that your most devout follower of Christ is likely to be quickest to recognize and acknowledge how easily and how often he fails to live up to the example and spirit of his Master. Christ's presence is with His followers in their daily life, not only as their Hope and their Salvation, but also as their Judge. They are haunted unceasingly by the realization that they have yet a long way to go before they will be what He wants them to be.

Devout Christians know how pertinent was the little girl's prayer, "O God, make all the bad people good, and, please, make all the good people nice. Amen."

Dr. James E. Wagner, President, Evangelical and Reformed Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

Bake A Cake

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—C. W. Glotzbach, Internal Revenue Service director here, told his section chiefs he would bake a cake for all who signed their sections 100 per cent for U. S. Savings Bonds. At last report he had baked 24—with the help of Mrs. Glotzbach.

Striking Home

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Police Department had a double-barreled reason for going after an automobile thief.

The car he stole was parked right by the station house and it belonged to Patrolman John L. Shaughnessy.

Poor Housekeeping

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, (AP)—Who ever was responsible for cleaning the Bethlehem Lutheran Church here 44 years ago missed a place.

Wrecking contractors, dismantling the 75-year-old church, found a grey substance inside the base of the pulpit.

It was mud left from a 1913 flood.

Head And Handwriting Experts

Wonder whatever became of those phrenologists, or people who called themselves such. The ones who would go around the country, frequently with carnivals, set up a tent and get set for the yokels.

The front of the tent always had a sketch of a head, and this was divided off into bits and pieces, sort of like the map of the Middle East. I always thought one zone was the one that told you how to eat, another told you how to study, and other how to tie your shoe laces, and so on.

In addition to this jigsaw puzzle arrangement of the cranium, skulls have bumps and dips, too, said these phrenologists. The point of it all, you see, was to have the sucker come in and have a reading of his head. The expert skull thumper would be able to tell you whether you would be rich, whether you should take up science or music, and how bright your prospects were for matrimony.

Well, I never did get a reading on my skull. For one thing, I felt that the phrenologist might saw up my headpiece according to that map on the outside wall, and I might lose the section that told me when to eat.

For another thing, this permanent goose egg on the back of my noggin, which was caused when I fell in the fireplace when I was a tot, I feared would get misinterpreted by the phrenologist. He might be rubbing my pate, come across that knot, stop and whistle, and say, "Son, you are destined to become the next shah of Persia." When this was just a knot that the family always felt made me a little daft.

Probably a pity not to have gone through with a reading, though. Because I will never know whether my daily undertakings at making a livelihood are in harmony with my head bumps. Shucks, I may have been carved out—skullless—for television purposes rather than a county newspaper drudge. Might have carried two six shooters instead of being plumb scared to death of the things.

But if the phrenologists ain't phrenologizing any more, there are still some handwriting experts left. I got a come-on letter from one of them the other day. Said if I would send in a specimen of my handwriting, the expert could let me know short order whether I am a gentle, generous soul, or whether I am mean enough to squeeze little chickens.

You see, the way you dot your i's, or the way you make your o's, will demonstrate whether you're by nature sarcastic, or whether you like your eggs without salt.

I could picture myself coming before one of these writing experts, and thrusting out a piece of paper on which I had written "Now is the time for a good man to come to the aid of their party." The fellow would take a squint and say, "I see, sir, by the way you cross your i's that you are under great stress."

And I would say, as I paid him the fee, "You are so right, doc. It's the arthritis in my hand. It hurts like heck when I make that little slant mark."

The Art Of Silent Meditation

For most people, this is the busiest time of the year. There are gifts to buy and wrap, cards to address and mail, parties to go to and visits to plan. It is a sad fact that Christmas may become, instead of a time of renewal of strength and power, a period of dissipation of creative energy.

I once knew a man, a very busy man with great responsibilities, who solved not only the Christmas problem, but also the continuing problem of energy dissipation. He made one room in his house into what he called his "silence room."

This room was small, but its one window looked out on a city park where he could see trees and flowers. The only furnishings were a table, a straight chair, a picture on the wall and a book on the table.

Every afternoon when he returned from his office, he would sit in that room, open the book—a Bible—and turn to certain passages about peacefulness. He knew them by heart, but he liked to re-read them. Since thoughts are known to affect physical states, he conceived of the calm, sturdy, faith-filled words of the Bible as actually touching his whole being with healing power.

The picture on his wall was an inspiring view of the Matterhorn, that great temple of snow-covered rock jutting up out of the Swiss Alps, towering above the picturesque village of Zermatt at its base. He looked into the vast silences represented by the picture and quoted the great words of the 121st Psalm: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." Then he would conceive of the healing quietness of God as filling his mind. This procedure, repeated regularly over many weeks, kept this man free of the prevailing tensions and anxieties experienced by so many.

You may not have such a "silence room" in your own home; indeed it may not be possible to create one. But in some way you and I will do well to find some means for developing inner quietness.

So the next time you come home from Christmas shopping or a busy day at the office, try practicing the art of re-creative silence. Find a quiet corner at home where you will be free from interruption. Sit in an easy chair and relax, then close your eyes and deliberately recall peaceful scenes from your own experience, moments when you felt at perfect peace. By the genius of re-creative memory you can recapture such moments. I like to call this the technique of memorized peacefulness.

I discovered this valuable method for keeping relaxed some years ago at Atlantic City. I was watching the sea wash up on the shore. The fleecy white clouds, blue sky and foam-crested ocean was a scene of peace and beauty. Closing my eyes, I suddenly realized that I was still seeing exactly the same scene. It occurred to me that if I could see it now, with my eyes closed, only a moment later, why not ten years hence? Why couldn't I recall this scene and this peace from memory? So I memorized that peacefulness to draw upon it when needed. Perhaps God gives us such perfect moments of tranquility that we may draw upon them later when the stress of life becomes difficult to bear.

But of even greater value is the practice of filling the mind regularly with favorite Bible passages that convey thoughts of peace and strength. Close the Book and just sit and think about what you have read. The peace of God that passeth all understanding can become a real experience for you.

This daily exercise needn't take very long. But do it regularly and you will find new life and new vitality in the art of silence.

The Middle East Tinderbox

WASHINGTON — With most of us absorbed in the drama of President Eisenhower's illness, going through the cycle from fear to anxiety to hope, the world does not in this unhappy interval stand still.

The peril of the day before yesterday, at the focal points in the struggle with Communist imperialism, is not diminished in the least. The reverse is true, and particularly in the Middle East where the danger of an immediate explosion is perhaps greater than anywhere else. That is why interest centers on the latest mission of United Nations' Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to that area.

Hammarskjold believed that the short-range trend in the direction of breakdown and war was so serious that he had to take time out for his mission at the climactic close of a session of the General Assembly. At the same time Hammarskjold thinks that if the present explosive situation between Jordan and the Arab neighbors can be reduced to manageable proportions, then the outlook for the longer future is comparatively hopeful.

The hope is based on the belief that the Arab states and Israel have come to a realization that they can't shoot each other off the face of the map. This is difficult or impossible to document. It is partly intuitive, growing out of months of the closest relationship with diplomats and foreign ministers of every country in the Middle East.

The dark outlook for the immediate future is based on the hazards that lie all about Jordan's borders and in Amman itself. A war could erupt in one of several ways. It could come through Israeli action in response to the provocations from Jordan. It could come through a takeover in Jordan by pro-Nasser and pro-Syrian elements coupled with the assassination of young King Hussein. It could come through some reckless act by the King as he is more and more aware of his lonely position.

American policy in the Middle East in recent years has by its rigidity and its inflexibility increased the hazards. As seen from the broader vantage point of the U.N., it has been fundamentally un-

Fast And Frosty

Laying in supplies of Shell's aviation gasoline at this airport at Frobisher Bay, Baffin Island, has to be fast as well as frosty. The harbor at the airport 200 miles from the Arctic Circle is ice-free only eight to ten weeks a year. Shell recently built a 3,360,000-gallon storage tank to refuel planes flying the polar short cut from Los Angeles to London.

Oil Imports Drop To Lowest Level Since Volunteer Cut

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Crude oil imports last week dropped to their lowest point since President Eisenhower ordered a voluntary curtailment program.

Total crude imports for the week averaged 860,000 barrels a day. The record average of 1,269,100 in August was set two weeks after the curtailment program order was signed.

Last week's average was the lowest reported by the American Petroleum Institute since the week of Jan. 4, when a low of 794,800 barrels daily was recorded during the Suez Canal emergency.

The new low resulted from a sharp decline in California, where independents last week asked federal officials to place the state under quotas established by the curtailment program. The West Coast currently is exempt from the quotas.

California imports for the week averaged 131,900 barrels a day, compared to a daily average of 306,800 for the weeks ending Nov. 22. Foreign crude receipts in the rest of the country increased slightly to 709,400 barrels a day, compared to a 608,400 average for the four weeks ending Nov. 22, the low point since the end of the Middle East crisis.

Capt. M. V. Carson Jr., administrator of the voluntary program, also indicated this week that early results are encouraging even though three importers have not accepted assigned quotas.

Carson told the Interstate Oil Compact Commission several East Coast refineries now are using domestic crude for the first time in recent years.

He said October imports for the areas included in the curtailment order averaged 767,000 barrels a day, a figure that is some 4,400 barrels daily below the recommended level. Carson said imports in September, the first full month after the curtailment efforts got under way, were only 16,100 barrels a day before the desired level.

Unrest Stirred In Honduras By Signs Of Oil

BELIZE, British Honduras, Dec. 7 (AP)—British troops—rushed in from Bermuda—stood watch on this Central American colony today. Nevertheless a political leader accused of plotting for union with Guatemala summoned his followers to a mass outdoor meeting.

The troops were called by British Gov. Colin Hardwick Thornley after a charge was made in the House of Commons that George Price, leader of the People's United party (PUP), had discussed with Guatemalan officials the possibility of joining with that neighboring nation.

Seven hundred troops of the British Worcester Regiment boarded a British warship at Hamilton, Bermuda, in darkness Wednesday and set sail in secrecy for Belize. Others were flown in yesterday. British officials in Bermuda said the troops were sent to reinforce the regulars stationed in this British colony.

Guatemala and Mexico, both bordering on the colony, claim British Honduras. Guatemala has stepped up her campaign for the colony since signs of oil were found in a northern province. The natural outlet from northern Honduras into the Caribbean is through Belize.

Shell Boosts Scholarships

Shell Companies Foundation, Inc., has announced that fellowships will be provided for special study next summer to 100 high school teachers of physics, chemistry, and mathematics.

This is a 67 per cent increase in the size of the Foundation's Merit Fellowship program since the first 60 fellowships were awarded in 1956. There were 90 fellowships last year.

The Foundation said the program is designed to help check the nation's shortage of scientists by strengthening the teaching of high school chemistry, physics, and mathematics and thus encouraging more young people to plan scientific careers.

Half the fellowship teachers attend full summer sessions at Stanford University, and half go to Cornell.

Applications for fellowships close Feb. 1, the Foundation said. Five years teaching experience is required.

Fellowship teachers receive allowances for travel, tuition, living expenses, and $500 in cash to offset the loss of other summer earnings. Teachers attend lectures and laboratory sessions, hold group discussions with scientists, and visit nearby research installations.

Requests for fellowship applications should be sent directly to the two universities. Teachers living west of the Mississippi should write the School of Education, Stanford University, Stanford, Calif.

Well hardly. Oilman Angus Elliott is not peering through some sort of telescope, but rather aims a wired looking device that squirts a blanket of foam, to sniff out oil fires. This contraption is located aboard Halliburton's 808, the first oil well fracturing barge for offshore wells.

Atomic Age Bodes No Ill For Oil

By CHARLES HASLET
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Sources close to the petroleum industry say they are optimistic about its future in the atomic age.

Despite an expected increase in atomic energy for peaceful and military uses, they say they believe there is no need for fear by the oil industry.

Russell Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America IPAA, expressed the belief that the very use of atomic energy may create enlarged activities for the use of petroleum where it is particularly adapted.

He said he doubts atomic energy will in the very near future cause much of a cut in use of petroleum products to power transportation. His opinion is that atomic-power automobiles are a long way off.

Frank Porter, head of the American Petroleum Institute, summed up his view on the situation this way: "I haven't seen any signs of consternation in the petroleum industry about the future of petroleum in the atomic age."

"There will be room for all in the energy market," he said. "An official of the Interior Department Oil and Gas Division said he foresees an increase in oil and gas operations in the future. As he sees it, atomic energy may supply some of the energy now provided by oil and gas. But the over-all demand for energy will increase to such an extent that the oil and gas operations will have to be increased.

Congress may consider at the session opening next month expenditure of more money to aid in some private construction of atomic power plants.

Wilson Confident Of Tideland's Win

HOUSTON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said today he is confident the state will win before the Supreme Court the new challenge to the state's ownership of its tidelands.

Wilson said Texas' case is different from arguments of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi. He believes the court will permit the state to argue its case separately.

He said he disagrees on two points with President Eisenhower, who reaffirmed his belief Texas has a right to its tidelands. The President's comments were made in a letter to H. G. Porter, national Republican committeeman.

The President said he regretted that the submerged lands act of 1953 was ambiguous and failed to accept the administration's recommendations and specifically define the Texas tidelands boundary as three marine leagues or 10.35 miles. Wilson asserted the congressional act is specific and recognizes the state's historic boundary.

Jesse's Talkin' by Jesse Blair
Saturday is a slow day at the gin. Most braceros stop work Friday night, and the cotton surplus is ginned by the next morning.

Whitaker says the Co-Op has ginned over 2,500 bales and might get 4,000. It will depend on whether the late bolls open or just slightly crack.

Elbert Long, Big Spring farmer and feed dealer, has troubles. He drilled an irrigation well in the northeast corner of Glascock County and can't get a cotton allotment.

Stanton's claim to being the capitol of Texas is being challenged by Big Lake. Elbert Steele, former FFA instructor at Stanton, carried along some breeding chickens and all his know-how when he moved to the Big Lake school last July.

Steele says his daughter, who won major prizes last year in capon shows, has some birds this year equally as good if not better than her winners last year.

Bill Robinson, farming in the Hillger community, says his cotton will make about a quarter of a bale, or maybe a little more. The dry weather hurt yields more at that community than did the freeze and wet weather.

Jack Buchanan will have another big crop of sorghum alum seed for sale in a few weeks. Though he hasn't threshed all of it, he has 40 acres on which the yield will be about 400 pounds to the acre.

Blast Levels Buildings

An explosion which demolished four stores in Villa Rica, Ga., claimed the lives of 17 persons and injured from 20 to 30 more. Rescue workers continue to search the debris for more persons who may have been trapped in the blast, caused by a faulty gas line.

Lyndon Claims U.S. Farmers Scapegoats For U.S. Issues

ABILENE, Dec. 7 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) said today there has been a continuing attack that "stems from many sources" on the country's agriculture for the past decade. "It can be traced partially to an Agriculture Department which has little sympathy for farmers," Johnson asserted. "The facts are quite different from the representation," he told the Texas Farmers' Union convention. "We know that the prices paid to the farmers bear little relation to the prices paid by the housewife."

Johnson said farmers have been the scapegoat for the past several years and there is a special problem which must be solved as rapidly as possible. "It seems that the major task of any farm organization should be to break down the barriers of suspicion which have arisen. We must frankly face the facts that until those barriers are broken down necessary legislation will be very difficult to enact," he added. Johnson also said he attended a conference at the White House early this week when the missile and satellite programs were discussed at length. The Senate majority leader said: "It is serious (situation) and can be described in no other terms than as a crisis. There can be no doubt that the current situation calls for sacrifice. There is an urgent need for action, even an urgent need for urgency itself."

Firemen Rescue Boy From Dirt

VICTORIA, Dec. 7 (AP)—Firemen rescued Perry Tongate, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Tongate, who was buried by loose dirt today while digging with two companions in a steep embankment along the Guadalupe River. Saved after two hours, Tongate was in shock but apparently was not otherwise hurt.

Yule Buying Binge Off To Belated Start

By WALTER BREEDE JR. NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP)—The annual Christmas buying binge got off to a belated start this week. But most merchants were optimistic. The delayed take-off stemmed from the Thanksgiving holiday which fell one week later than usual. Most people don't start their Christmas shopping until after the turkey day feast. Despite the shortened shopping season, a U.S. Commerce Department survey found retailers in 23 cities confident of meeting or beating last year's dollar totals. Retailers in eight cities looked for a decline.

Negro Home Hit By Blast

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 7 (AP)—A house into which a Negro family was preparing to move was shattered by two dynamite explosions early today. No one was injured. The blasts, heard over a mile-wide area, virtually wrecked the building. The dynamiting was one of a series since Negroes began moving into the former all-white Fountain Heights section in west Birmingham. Two other Negro families recently moved into the section without being harmed. Earlier a house bought by a Negro widow was wrecked before she could move into it. The frame residence had been purchased by Robert Greer, police said. The family had planned to move in earlier but was asked to wait until city officials completed an inspection of the premises as required when new occupants move into a home. White property owners have formed an association designed to prevent sales of Fountain Heights homes to Negroes, although race isn't mentioned in a statement of policy announced by leaders of the organization.

lion dollars more for it. While merchants wondered how their multi-billion-dollar Yuletide gamble would pan out, government experts were quietly giving the economy a hypo. Thanks to the manipulations of the Federal Reserve Board's open market committee, commercial banks around the country this week suddenly found they had more money to lend. The effects were noted immediately in Wall Street. Executives of big New York commercial banks began to talk openly about cutting their interest rates. Bond prices rallied briskly. A barrage of unfavorable reports concerning steel production, freight carloadings and auto sales battered the stock market, and the misfiring of the Navy's Vanguard satellite on Friday, didn't help. Even so, the market kept its loss to a minimum. Sales of 1958 automobiles developed mixed trends this week. Chevrolet dealers said business good; retailers of other big volume makes were less enthusiastic. Ward's automotive reports said disappointing sales have prompted many manufacturers to cut their December production schedules. Total U.S. passenger car production this month will be about 6 1/4 per cent lower than originally planned. Steel production ebbed to 72 per cent of capacity this week. Indicated output of 1,843,000 tons was the lowest for any strike-free week in three years. Freight carloadings for the four weeks ended Nov. 30 were down nearly 15 per cent from a year ago. Soft coal production for the latest week was 25 per cent below 1956 levels. Chevrolet dealers said business companies in October totaled $29,400,000, down three per cent from a year ago, and failed to show the normal seasonal increase. Manufacturers' inventories at the end of the month were valued at $3 1/2 billions, compared with $1 1/2 billions at the same time last year. Hopes for tax relief next year were dashed by congressional leaders. Individual income taxes are expected to stay at present rates. The 52 per cent rate on corporate earnings is expected to be continued beyond the June 30 expiration date, along with present federal excise taxes on liquor, cigarettes and autos.

Reds Repeat Rocket Claim

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Moscow radio said tonight fragments of the carrier rocket of Sputnik I "fell in the territory of Alaska and the West Coast of America" Sunday. The radio, as late as Thursday, had been insisting the rocket still was aloft. But now it followed up Nikita Khrushchev's accusation yesterday that a fragment of the rocket hit the United States and that the Americans refused to give it back. The Moscow broadcast said scientific observations made it possible to establish that the rocket began to come down into the earth's denser atmosphere Saturday. "Particularly intense descent took place on Dec. 1 along a path running through the area of the town of Irkutsk, the (Siberian) Chukotka Peninsula, and Alaska, and further along the West Coast of America," the broadcast continued. The U. S. Army at Fairbanks, Alaska, reported a fragment of the rocket was believed to have fallen Sunday 100 miles south of Fairbanks. But nothing was reported found, Washington officials said they have no evidence the fragment hit the United States. Moscow radio said observations showed the rocket covered 24,230,000 miles from the time it first shot into space Oct. 4 until it blasted out Sunday. The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., reported its observations indicated the rocket plunged to its death Saturday night, possibly in the South Pacific.

French Irritated By U.S. Silence

PARIS, Dec. 7 (AP)—The French are irritated because they say they have heard nothing from Washington about U. S. proposals to be laid before the Dec. 16 summit conference of NATO powers. Some even say they expect nothing of great moment from this meeting called in Paris to bolster the Atlantic alliance against the Soviet menace in a missile age. There is growing talk of neutralism, not only in France but in other NATO nations. All these points were touched upon by a French-foreign ministry spokesman at a news conference yesterday, little more than a week before the heads of NATO governments assemble for a three day session. The spokesman said normally at such sessions a government with an important proposal sends at least a digest to its allies well in advance so they may take a position before negotiations open. The spokesman insisted that as of Friday France did not know what the United States has in mind to extend or reinforce cooperation among NATO members. U. S. Permanent Delegate W. Randolph Burgess was reported to have circulated among NATO members a U. S. proposal covering co-ordination in the manufacture of arms and equipment. But it was understood the report made no suggestions as to how the manufacturing roles should be parceled out. The Foreign Ministry spokesman said Gaillard was speaking formally for the French government. The spokesman said many people in France and some NATO governments already are thinking Russian military advances have created a completely new strategic situation, and the whole aspect of the NATO alliance has changed or is changing. A war between Russia and the United States is in theory possible without touching Europe because the Russians no longer would have to fight their way through Germany and France. They can attack the United States directly with long-range missiles. These circles, and some governments, continued the spokesman, now are saying to themselves: perhaps we can fall intact either into the hands of the Soviet Union, or remain within the American sphere as we would prefer. But can we not all become, in effect, Swiss?

Decorating Is Half The Fun!

DECORATIONS IN THE MAKING are the Christmas tree skirts being worked on by Mrs. George Peacock, at left in photo above, and Mrs. J. H. Fish. Made of felt in various colors, the circular skirts are embellished with sequins, beads and sparkling ornaments in the yuletide motif. This work is being done as a project of the 1946 Hyperion Club for the benefit of their Howard County Junior College scholarship fund. Having made skirts for their own trees, members decided to make some to place on sale. Mrs. Peacock is president of the group, and Mrs. Fish is chairman of the ways and means committee.

MANY WILLING HANDS join in the Christmas decorating at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Smith, 602 Elgin, as their children decide where to place the figure of Santa Claus. Holding the replica of the "jolly old elf" is Mike, 8, while six-year-old Cindy is ready to string the colored lights around the window. Two-year-old Becky preferred the velvet poinsettia; Vicki, who is 11 months old, supervised the job from her mother's arms. The Smiths plan to enter the lighting contest which is in progress at this time. Registration at the Chamber of Commerce is all that is necessary for entry.

A CHRISTMAS TREE FOR THE BIRDS is prepared by Ruth Beasley at her home, 703 East 17th, as she spreads peanut butter on the trunk of a tree. The white object on the tree is a soap container converted into a holder for suet — also needed by the feathered creatures in the winter. Probably birds in other neighborhoods do not live so luxuriously. Miss Beasley has wired a shortening can for an electric globe and over this fits a coffee can. This furnishes warm water even when the temperature drops below freezing.

A FAMILY TRADITION is the small tree being trimmed (photo at left) by Mrs. Norman Furlong, 1308 Pennsylvania. When the family lived in the North, they put up a large tree on Christmas Eve, but something was needed earlier to add to the holiday spirit, they felt. Thus was started the small tree, which was decorated the first Christmas after the Furlongs' marriage — about 34 years ago. Each year since that time, a tree is set up during the first part of December, with a larger one trimmed later in the month. This one has at its base a group of choir boys and pine cones.

TYPICAL OF THE SEASON is Mrs. Harry Gunn, 1809 Main, who, with her two children, begins the outdoor decorating which other Big Springers will soon be doing. To keep busy little hands out of mischief, the task of holding the lights and wire was given to Kellan, who is four years old. It didn't take one-year-old Russell long to learn how to unscrew the globe in each socket. Mrs. Gunn plans to enter her outdoor decorations in the lighting contest which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Council of Big Spring Garden Clubs.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Rita Found Fashion During Stay In Paris

By LYDIA LANE
HOWLYWOOD—Those who remember Rita Hayworth as the shy little girl dancing with her Spanish-born father at Agua Caliente never dreamed that one day she would become a princess and a member of the international set.
 When Rita returned to Hollywood after years in Europe I was delighted to receive an invitation for tea. As I drove to her dressing room at Columbia, I wondered how she would be conditioned by this life abroad—by calling Paris home.
 Rita greeted me in close-fitting jersey pants and turtle-neck sweater. Her cheeks were flushed from working on a dance routine. Her hair was pulled back into a pony tail and she looked more like a co-ed than a femme fatale.
 We started talking about her life abroad.
 "I have come to the conclusion that nationalities are not nearly as important as we are led to believe," she began. "It is a community of interests that really matters. But of course early environment does leave its imprint."
 "The average French woman is less career-minded than the American. And she is less competitive. She spends much more time on her hair and with her wardrobe than we do."
 "Paris is a style center, and living there has developed my fashion sense," Rita admitted.
 "The French designer is a perfectionist and demands hours and hours of fittings. You go back again and again until every detail is flawless."
 "They are extremely concerned with fabrics, and great care is given to the fit of undergarments. French dresses are as beautiful on the wrong side as on the right, and because they are so exquisitely made they never lose their shape or wear out.

 "But these are custom-made clothes which only the rich can afford. On the whole, the most beautifully dressed women in the world are the Americans."
 Rita is enthusiastic about the 27 changes she wears in "Pal Joey" which Columbia's Jean Louis designed for her. "They are simply beautiful," she exclaimed.
 "What are your tastes in foods?" was my question.
 "I love French cooking, the leisurely way of eating and serving of wine with meals. They serve many courses, but never very much at one time. Here the portions seem enormous, and I find so much crowded on my plate it is unappetizing. I think we would be less concerned about gaining weight if we learned to eat slowly and to be served less."
 I wanted to know if she found French food fattening.
 "The average French family eats very simply. Only the chefs in the famous restaurants make all those complicated, rich sauces."
 "Don't you have to watch your weight?" I asked.
 "Not when I'm dancing. I work so hard that I burn up whatever I eat, but I've never had a large appetite."
 Rita confessed that she doesn't feel well when she doesn't exercise. Her eyes lighted up as she talked about how much she enjoys dancing.
 "I work six hours a day on new-

Study Of Germany, Christmas Party Held By Woman's Forum

A study of Germany was combined with a Christmas party Friday afternoon when members of The Woman's Forum met in the home of Mrs. J. D. Elliott. Assisting Mrs. Elliott in the entertaining were Mrs. Charles Tompkins and Mrs. Max Fitzhugh.
 Taking parts in the discussion of the subject, "Germany: Promise or Peril?" were Mrs. Jack Smith and Mrs. C. M. Boles. Mrs. Smith said that Germany is confused as a nation and as a people. They have a feeling of insecurity and are widely separated in religion.
 While this country has produced outstanding scholars in the arts and sciences they have not been aggressive enough to secure a firm footing. They have never been a happy nation because of tensions and strains, she said.
 Mrs. Boles pointed out that Germany's problems stem from their economy, and they have a great need in establishing world markets. At present there is a need for 3,000,000 dwellings in Germany. They are greatly overpopulated. They must find markets out of their country for the products of their industries.
 An outstanding accomplishment during the past few years has been the unification of the steel and iron industries of the Ruhr, which in the past has caused much dissension. The future of Germany, said the speaker, would be decided, in the greater part, in Washington and Moscow.
 During the business meeting, the club voted to donate $50 to the State Hospital party on Dec. 19. Mrs. E. P. Driver announced 38 dresses had been donated to the Fashion Shop. Resignation of Mrs. L. B. Maulden was accepted, as she and her family have recently moved to Abilene. Members were asked to join in the Christmas home decorating contest sponsored by the Council of Garden Clubs and the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

 Mrs. Carl Benson served coffee at the refreshment hour. The table was laid with an embroidered blue linen cloth. The central decoration was a small white net tree decorated with miniature blue ornaments. Silver candles in matching holders burned in the center of the table.
 Gifts were exchanged from the silver and blue tree and were distributed by Mrs. Tompkins.

Couple Weds With Double Ring Rites

LAMESA—Eleanor Brewer became the bride of Everett Earnest Phillips in a double ring ceremony Friday evening at the First Methodist Church of Lovington, N. M. Wedding vows were pledged before the Rev. Paul H. Tripp, pastor of the church.
 Miss Brewer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewer, Route B, Lamesa. Mr. Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Phillips, 609 S. 3rd Street, Lamesa.
 Fashioned of white Italian velveteen, her gown featured a decollete neckline and push-up sleeves fastened with tiny covered buttons. The narrow waist ended in a full ballerina length skirt. She wore a pale blue necklace and bracelet, a gift from the bridegroom. A large white picture hat and blue slippers completed the ensemble.
 The bride carried a bouquet of white roses showered with lovers knots and shredded pink carnations.
 Louise Taylor was in attendance as maid of honor. Melvin Foster of Denver City, attended his cousin as best man. Miss Taylor wore a dress of baby blue corduroy and carried a bouquet of white carnations tied with blue.
 After a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple will be at home at 609 S. 3rd Street, Lamesa, where the bridegroom is employed at Nix Motor Co.
 For traveling the bride chose a cocoa brown and white wool sheath dress. Her accessories were black and white.

Susannah Wesley Class Has Annual Yule Luncheon

Christmas was the theme for the Susannah Wesley Class luncheon Friday at noon when members and their guests met in the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church.
 Mrs. J. P. Meador, president, presided and introduced the guests, who were Mrs. Willa Smith of Palos Verdes, Calif., Mrs. Louise Holderman of Seymour, Ill., Mrs. E. O. Hicks, Mrs. Lowell Baird, Mrs. Myrtle Lee and Mrs. Joe Pickle.
 Mrs. C. E. Thomas Sr. gave the invocation and the benediction. Mrs. W. D. McDonald gave a reading as a meditation, "I Am the Spirit of Christmas." Mrs. Lee painted a pastel scene of The Holy City accompanied by a recording of the song.
 Groups captained by Mrs. A. C. Bass and Mrs. R. L. Warren were hostesses for the affair. The turkey meal was served buffet style. Places were laid around the T shaped tables decorated with runners of red pyracantha berries laid on flat cedar.
 The centerpiece was a giant cluster of gilded pine cones with vari-colored Christmas balls intermingled. A nativity scene was placed at the base as the center of the arrangement.
 Thirty-nine attended the luncheon.

Daughter Is Born

Mr. and Mrs. David La Morte OK Trailer Courts, are parents of a daughter Nancy Renee, born at Medical Arts Hospital Dec. 1. The mother is the former Wynonia Gene Hock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Yater. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. David LaMorte, Blue Island, Ill.
 "I'm strenuous, and often I'm sore, but hot baths with epsom salts help. You have to use your body," she insisted, "to keep from getting stiff, flabby and old."
 When I mentioned what lovely skin she has, she confided that she was always very careful to keep her skin clean.
 "I like to be sure all the makeup is out of my pores, so I steam it and scrub it with soap and water," she offered.

'Remember This?'

2nd Lt. and Mrs. Yone Nomura seem to be asking each other this question as they thumb through their treasured photo album. Many of the pictures were made in Honolulu, Hawaii, hometown of the couple. The smiles perhaps are prompted by the thought that in March there will be a baby Nomura to begin appearing in the album.

Couple From Hawaii Want White Christmas

If Mrs. Yone Nomura gets her wish, there will be a White Christmas for Big Spring this year. The snow that dazzled the town last month was the first she had ever seen, and she was properly impressed. Second Lt. and Mrs. Nomura, who reside at 1005 E. 14th, are both natives of Honolulu, Hawaii. This is her first visit to the States but the lieutenant has been here before, having served for two years in the army. This time his assignment is quite different. His ambition to become a jet pilot led him to enlist seven months ago in the Hawaiian Air National Guard, and he has been in pilot training at Webb Air Force Base since their arrival November 18.

Quartermaster Federal Credit Union. His wife has had clerical experience, having been employed by Sun Life Insurance of Canada. Chilled by the cold weather here, the couple is gradually becoming acclimated. In Hawaii the temperature never plunges below 53 degrees, and the summer average is 88 degrees, says Mrs. Nomura. Beautiful scenery is invariably emphasized in all the travel folders about Hawaii, and she and her husband fervently recommend the island as a vacationer's paradise. Right now, they are mighty homesick for it themselves and are not counting the days until their first Christmas away from home.

Their introduction to Texas began with a month-long stay at Lackland AFB. The transfer to Webb followed a six-month period at Hondo AFB. From that field also came friends, a fellow student pilot and his wife, 2.C. Lt. and Mrs. Harlan Munson, who live only three doors from the Nomuras. The concurrent move proved a happy turn of events for all concerned. The Nomuras have been married two and one-half years. They had been classmates at the University of Hawaii, where her major subject was sociology. When he completes his service with the Air Guard, he plans to return to the University and will change his major from pre-dental to business administration. An insight into this career area came while, as a student, he worked parttime as a bookkeeper for the Hawaiian

Top Off Your Hairdo With Yule Motifs

To complement the high-fashion finery you'll be wearing during the holiday festivities, put a gay lift in your coiffure. Dress up your hair-do—with berries, holly wreaths, silver dust, mistletoe—or even little balls. This gay motif is not new. Ladies of the French court spent weeks before Christmas dressing their hair in upsweeps and ornamenting them with bird cages—complete with birds, bridges strung with multi-colored wire, bows, feathers—the more bizarre the better. Their grooming sessions would last for weeks—a far cry from today's woman. Today, our fair lady sets her hair in a matter of minutes in any style she chooses—loose casual, medium or very curly. Another uncomfortable custom of the French courts which the ladies endured for the sake of fashion concerned the sleeping arrangements. Between grooming sessions they retired at night to a "coiffure chair," a specially built

Fruit Juices Used In Pork Chop Dish

Pork chops cooked with fruit juices are delicious and are so easily prepared. All the cooking is done in a slow oven to bring out the delicate pork flavor. Ingredients: 4 thick (about 1 1/4 lbs.) loin pork chops, 1-3 cup pineapple syrup (leftover from canned fruit), 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. ginger, 4 slices orange (unpeeled). Method: Remove excess fat from around chops with sharp knife. Melt a small piece of the fat in a heavy 10-inch skillet; add chops and brown rapidly on both sides. Arrange chops in shallow baking dish. Mix pineapple syrup, salt and ginger; pour over chops; top with orange slices. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven until tender—about 1 hour. Makes 4 servings.

Cheddar Cheese Is Added To Potatoes

Mashed potatoes are good any time but the added flavor of cheddar cheese adds to the goodness of the dish. Ingredients: 4 medium-sized potatoes (about 1 1-3 pounds), 1-3 cup light cream, 1 tsp. butter or margarine, Salt, White pepper, Grated cheddar cheese. Method: Pare potatoes; cut into even halves or quarters; cover with boiling salted water and boil until tender—about 25 minutes. Drain and put through ricer or mash another way so there are no lumps. Heat cream and beat into hot mashed potatoes with butter and salt and pepper to taste. Turn into a shallow baking dish—an 8-inch pie plate is fine; sprinkle with grated cheese. Place under broiler and broil slowly until very hot and cheese melts. Makes 4 servings.

GOOD FIT

Blousiness Absent Due To Cut, Darts

When Mollie Parnis designs a shirtwaist dress, she trims it down to a perfect fit, eliminating any blousiness in the bodice by darting it in front and back, cutting it in one with slender shaped sleeves.

The full skirt with tiny unpressed pleats with a big inverted one in the center front, continues to enjoy universal popularity because it is so flattering to any and all figures.

For parties, make it up in rich flower prints, silk, satin, surah, taffeta, or in brocades, faille, peau de soie.

Lamesans To Hold Open House Today

LAMESA—Residents of Lamesa are adding to their busy schedule of Christmas activities to calling at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Harvick, who are holding open house this afternoon at their new home located at 21st and Main Avenue.

It was just a little over five years ago that Elbert Harvick was stricken with bulbar and spinal polio and was paralyzed from his waist down. Two weeks ago Elbert, his wife, Billie and their daughter, Tonia, moved into their brick home, which is designed especially to take care of his needs.

The wide doors make it easy to move his iron lung into any room in the house and the windows in his room are wide plate glass, which enables him to see everything on the street. The kitchen, living and dining rooms are, together with Elbert's room, easily accessible to the living area. The house is attractively done in a shade of paint which he "supervised."

Another feature of the home is the loading ramp and the double carport, which makes it possible to drive the car right up to the door in order to lift Elbert in the station wagon when he takes an occasional outing away from home in his portable chest respirator.

Hosting the open house today are former neighbors of the Harvicks when they lived in the Hancock community, Mrs. Bunk Smith, Mrs. Bob Hale, Mrs. L. W. Emfinger and Mrs. A. E. Hale. Friends of the family have been invited to call between two and five this afternoon.

Betrothal Told

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Davie, 1107 North Gregg, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Frances, to Douglass Kohout. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kohout of Stamford. Date and place for the wedding have not been announced.

Punch Almanac Is Calendar Of Drinks

From time immemorial, punch and conviviality have been synonymous at holiday time.

Hosts and hostesses through the ages have found the traditional wassail bowl easy to make, economical in serving large numbers of guests, and festive in spirit as well as colorful in appearance.

What better way for today's modern hostess to center her holiday open house—decoratively, elegantly and informally—than around her punchbowl?

Talented is the hostess who uses versatility as the main ingredient of her punch. As a year-round guide for her, Wallace Silver-Smiths, in cooperation with the editors of Gourmet Magazine, have compiled Punch Almanac, a calendar of seasonal punchbowl drinks.

Crowd-pleasers for those "y'all come" parties are February's Fish

House Punch, March Golden Punch and others through November's Dragon Punch.

When a telephone man drives, safety comes first!

One of the first things telephone people learn is that no job is so urgent it can't be done safely. The remarkable safe driving records made by telephone men is proof they've learned that lesson well.

By telephone news reporter
 Don Davis

It's too bad that safety records are often thought of as dull and not newsworthy while a major accident makes front page headlines. The greatest human drama is in the accidents that don't happen—the accidents that good safety habits prevent from happening!

Not long ago, a newspaper editor wrote, "We salute the drivers of telephone company trucks. They never drive fast or recklessly, time and again we've seen them yield truck fleet, but it must be excellent. It is nothing short of inspiring to see an entire corps of drivers display the courtesy and friendliness that is habitual with telephone company drivers."

SAFE MEN BEHIND THE WHEEL. Courtesy and thoughtfulness are trademarks of telephone people who drive on the job—one of many ways telephone employees try always to be good neighbors and good citizens of the communities they serve.

BEST IN NATION

With thanks for such praise, we'd like to confirm the editor's feeling that the safety record in the telephone business must be excellent. It's among the best in the country. The National Safety Council's award of honor—its highest award—was again presented to Southwestern Bell for its safety performance in 1956. Scores of state and local safety awards also were earned, including many presented to telephone people as individuals.

But more important than the awards for safety are the results. When you consider that Southwestern Bell vehicles logged some 72 million miles last year, it's easy to see how the public benefits. Telephone company safe driving practices are a major protection of life and property—a way of working that's summed up in the slogan: No job is so urgent it can't be done safely.

ADD EXTRA VALUE

Safety behind the wheel is, of course, the form of telephone company safety most apparent and closest to the public. But telephone safety behind the scenes is a very real and constant thing, too. Motor vehicles get regular inspections, are kept in top condition. Tools, equipment and methods are constantly being studied to improve the safety factor, designed to reduce accidents.

Telephone service shows its value in many ways. Not the least of its value is the thoughtful way telephone people bring it to you—safely, with always a sincere regard for life and property.

"We don't know the safety record of the telephone company's SAFETY-RATER DEVICE provides checks and tests of company's drivers. Device rates reflexes and vision, points out weaknesses that practice and extra caution can overcome.

To Be January Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Orr of Temple, former residents of Lamesa, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Martha Lee, to Kenneth Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Miller of Brownwood. The couple will exchange wedding vows on Jan. 25, in the chapel of the First Baptist Church at Temple.

Ann Bishop Is Bride In Saturday Ceremony

LAMESA—Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday evening by Lacreacia Ann Bishop and Billy Ray Gilbreath. The Rev. Giles Hankins read the double ring ceremony as the couple stood before an archway of greenery flanked by baskets of white stock and branched candelabra, in the sanctuary of the North Side Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Randolph, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Gilbreath of Lamesa are the bridegroom's parents. As the guests assembled, Martha Smith played wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. Alvin Smith as she sang "O Promise Me" and "Always."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length dress of white Chantilly type lace. Her fitted bodice came to a point in the center front and from this stemmed a skirt worn over crinoline. She wore a half hat with a veil of illusion. The bridal bouquet was formed of pink and white carnations.

Sue Vaughn was the maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of pink cotton satin with a white cummerbund and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Serving as bridesmaids were Jane Jones and Alma Ann Agee. They wore identical dresses fashioned after the maid of honor's except in white with pink cummerbunds. Their bouquets were of pink carnations.

Euell Ray Hill of El Paso was the best man. Ushers were Darwin Bishop, El Paso, brother of the bride, and Gerald Kirkland, Hereford, brother-in-law of the bride. The tapers were lighted by Lonnie Gilbreath and Carol Lisenbee, while Gloria Ann Rushing, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl.

Following the exchange of vows, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The table was laid with white linen and featured the attendants' bouquets. Members of the houseparty included Karen Campbell, Sunny Palmore and Charlott Hilley.

When the couple left on a wedding trip, the bride chose a blue suit with black accessories. They will make their home in Hobbs, N. M.

The bride is a junior at Lamesa High School, and her husband is employed by the General Telephone Company in Hobbs.

BRIDAL TEA
Miss Bishop was complimented with a bridal tea Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. X. Hill. Assisting with the hostess duties were Mrs. W. D. Phillips and Mrs. Gerald Kirkland.

Guests were registered by Lonnie Ruth Gilbreath, niece of the prospective bridegroom. The tea table was laid with a lace cloth over pink and featured pink carnations with a miniature bride and bridegroom standing in the center of the arrangement. The appointments were of crystal.

Approximately 50 guests registered.

Washable Wall Coverings Save Work For Mom

No matter how hard a mother tries to prevent it, those little fingerprints always have a way of showing up on wall surfaces throughout the house. Especially, of course, in the youngster's room.

Removing grimy smudges and stains from a painted surface isn't the easiest thing in the world. Any mother with a couple of robust youngsters will vouch for that.

Since you can't prevent those things from happening, the only thing left to do is find some way to combat them. One way is to use a washable material to cover those wall areas in junior's room which are within his reach.

Now on the market is a plastic coated covering with a latex-fiber base. It has an adhesive backing and can be used effectively to renovate any marred or worn surface. It's an adhesive veneer and it is remarkably easy to apply.

Merely peel off the paper backing and place the adhesive veneer on the surface being covered. It won't chip or shrink and it will stick to any smooth surface indefinitely.

Mother can carry the Marvalon scheme into the room furniture as well by using the leftover material for making decals—animals, airplanes or dolls—for the cribs, chairs or toy chest.

Soak Barley

Put a quarter cup of pearl barley to soak in the evening. Next morning, cook it in four cups of water until it's tender. Add the cooked barley to a beef and vegetable soup.

Coffee In Talbot Home Honors Miss Pitman

Friends of Nancy Pitman gathered Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. Harold Talbot to have coffee in honor of the bride-elect.

Miss Pitman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Pitman, 1411 Runnels, will be married to Lt. Christian Michael Lohner on Dec. 27 at St. Thomas Catholic Church. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lohner of Irvington, N. J.

Sue Barnes, a cousin of the honoree, and Mrs. J. Barnet Whisenant of Fort Worth alternated at the guest register.

Hostesses were Mrs. Bill Bonner, Mrs. Leslie Green, Mrs. Bill Griese, Mrs. Larson Lloyd, Mrs. Murph Thorp and Mrs. Talbot. The refreshment table was laid with a green felt cloth and centered with an arrangement of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums in a brass bowl. A brass coffee service was used on the table, and floral decorations throughout the house were chrysanthemums.

For the party, Miss Pitman selected a pale blue polished cotton frock in two pieces. Her slippers were in the same shade of blue. The bodice and full skirt were sprinkled with rhinestones and she wore jewelry to match.

Calling hours were from 10 to 12.

Many Angles To Picking Right Gifts

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures

If you are giving a gift to someone for Christmas, take some pleasure in the giving. Plan it out carefully, shop for it yourself, and wrap it pretty. A gift should not look like it was a "command performance."

Buy yourself a small notebook. Mark it: Christmas, 1957. List the names of all those to be gifted, and next to the name, a gift suggestion. This list will come in handy next year, so that you will not give the person a similar gift, unless there is a good reason. Handkerchiefs can become redundant in some Yule stockings. The notebook may be used also to list what the person gives you.

What does she-he like? Is there a hobby? Do they need something special? These are questions to be asked before planning the gift.

Does she like clothes? If so, sports shirts, sweaters, long red baby-type pajamas, black skin-tight leaping pants in suede, velvet or corduroy are sure-fire gifts. Put monograms on anything you buy her this year.

Is he a clothes horse? Ties, socks, shirts, sweaters—including the new fisherman sweaters are all likely gifts. Anything handmade pleases a man.

Does jewelry give her a lift? Charms are high on the list of feminine favorites. Silver bracelets are fun and inexpensive and she can never have too many. Good earrings are the order of the day.

Is she away at school? How about jars of snacks, potato chips, pickles, olives, sardines, crackers, all packed and ready to go to a party, maybe even with napkins?

Does she travel? A little kit complete with folding clothes hanger, bathroom wash line, toothbrush, hair net, curl pins, wash cloth with initials may be put together yourself. Buy a plastic zippered bag and equip it, maybe initialing it. Love that record player? He or she may go for some of the new albums.

If she entertains at home, she may like napkins with her name imprinted, a milk glass punch bowl, ice cream soda glasses in their metal jackets, a case of her favorite soda pop, a gift certificate to the grocery store (not too far-fetched when you think of the high cost of party-giving these days).

Visiting in Andrews and Seminole have been Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swiger.

Baptist Women End Week With Day Of Prayer

Friday was observed around the world as the "Day of Prayer," and special programs were heard by the WMS groups of local Baptist Churches. They brought to a climax a week devoted to prayer for foreign missions and emphasis was given to the Little Moon Christmas Offering, for which a southwest goal of five million dollars has been set.

Rob Culminating their observance of the Week of Prayer, the First Baptist WMS met at the church Friday morning for a program from the Lida Giannetta Circle, with Mrs. Billy Smith as leader.

To the general theme "For God so loved" were added the words "that we must love Him, too." John 3:16 was read as the call to worship, and a recording of "Love of God" was followed by Mrs. J. W. Arnett's prayer of thanksgiving for God's love. Mrs. Clyde Angel read the scripture meditation.

Mrs. Smith pointed out that the Friday program was different from others during the week in that this particular day throughout the world was the day of prayer. WMS members around the globe have observed this date since it was first designated in December, 1931, at a meeting in Honolulu. To stress its significance, the women clasped hands and prayers were offered.

Program participants and their topics were: Mrs. T. H. McCann, "Shall we share our heritage with the peoples of the world physically and spiritually hungry"; Mrs. J. D. Thompson, "Perfect love casteth out fear"; Mrs. C. T. Faulkner, "People have hate and prejudice in their hearts because they have no love for God." The group pledged themselves to try to win

Language Studies Are One Of The 'Arts' In Big Spring Curriculum

By WAYLAND YATES

They call it "language usage" in the elementary grades.

In high school, it's "language arts."

And that pretty well sums up the language program in the Big Spring school system.

The first grader works with the rudiments of his language. The high school student still is concerned with the mechanics of sentence and paragraph construction, but he also has learned a great deal about the culture, history and geography that are wrapped up in his language.

If the senior has applied himself through the years, he is well on the way toward mastery of one of the greatest "arts" of all time—communications.

If he desires, the Big Spring student can spend a total of 17 years in language study—12 years of English, three of Spanish and two of Latin.

It would be hard to enumerate all of the benefits a student derives from his language studies. Some of the profits might never be recognized as having resulted from explorations in the world of words and phrases.

For example, that attitude of supreme confidence which some people have and for which others are constantly grasping may be entirely due to a person's ability to express his ideas and opinions—clearly and easily. Who, teachers ask, could have any confidence in himself without being capable of voicing his thoughts in an understandable manner?

OBJECTIVE

Learning to communicate ideas—by speaking and writing—is the objective of the basic language program in the elementary schools. Mrs. Ruth Rutherford, one of Big Spring's elementary principals, explains.

"We realize that when a child first comes to school, he has been talking for some years," she points out. "We begin by talking together, with pupils sharing experiences and repeating in their own words the stories told to them by the teacher."

First attempt at written communication comes when the things the class talks about are written in simple sentence form on charts or the black board.

Later, when the pupils learn to spell some words, they begin to write short notes and letters. The first graders copy notes inviting their mothers to visit their classrooms. Then, as the Christmas season approaches, they may write to Santa Claus.

By the time they reach the third grade, students are using a form for letter writing, although their notes still are friendly in nature. Business letters are taken up in the fifth grade, and are more widely developed in the sixth, along with the other writing skills that have been developed in the first few years of school.

GRAMMAR

The study of grammar also starts early in the first grade, with the pupils learning that a sentence begins with a capital letter and ends with a period. Correct usage of verb forms is taken up, although it may be only in the teacher's correction of misuses on the part of the youngsters.

Drill on the correct verb usage is intensified in the third grade. In the fourth, the various parts of a sentence—subject, predicate, etc.—and such parts of speech as the noun, pronoun and adverb are introduced. Here, also, begins the study of the dictionary's use.

Fifth and sixth graders study all parts of speech, sentence structure, rules for dividing words, punctuation, etc. Types of sentences—simple, complex, compound—are introduced and simple diagramming is undertaken.

Written reports are gradually introduced as the student learns rules for paragraph structure, outlines and other writing techniques. Throughout the elementary grades, the language study is "enriched" with the study of literature. Film strips are used to illustrate nursery rhymes, folk tales and the "children's classics." Poetry is read to the youngsters and they memorize certain poems.

SPELLING

Spelling, of course, is a vital part of the language program and the pupils get their first spellers in the second grade.

First-year vocabulary goal is the 2,500 "basic words." By the time the pupils enter junior high, this has grown to about 7,800 words.

Study of English is required in all three years of junior high and three years of high school. In the seventh and eighth grades, emphasis is placed on grammar, although literature isn't neglected.

In the ninth, the pupils take a grammar course for 13 weeks and literature for a like period.

Spanish also is introduced at the junior high level as an elective course. The junior high course is the same as first-year Spanish in high school—if taken in junior high, it qualifies the pupil for second-year Spanish when he enters high school.

Starting this year, the local junior high also is offering two "exploratory" courses in languages—Spanish and Latin. The student has the option of enrolling for 18 weeks of each subject "to get an idea of what the languages are like, so they may follow or disregard them in selecting major fields of study in the high school," Tom Ernest, junior high principal, explains.

ALTERNATE STUDIES

In the high school, students alternate their studies of grammar and literature, taking a half year of one and then a semester of the other.

Emphasis is on American literature in the junior year and on English writings in the senior. Sophomore literature is a mixture of all the outstanding writings.

Grammar studies, of course, are much more complex than those of elementary and junior high schools, although the same fields are covered—vocabulary, spelling, sentence construction, parts of speech, composition and oral reports. Outside reading becomes more common and research themes and special reports are a routine part of the curriculum.

Summing up the high school English program, Ione McAllister, one of the teachers, stressed that objective of the work is to teach the pupil to apply the principles of grammar to speech and writing, and to instill a greater appreciation and understanding of literature.

Study of Latin was reinstated in the high school language program last year after a lapse of six years. It is an elective course, taught by Mrs. Rita Weeg, and introduces the fundamentals of the language from which comes 60 per cent of the English vocabulary.

Classical Latin pronunciation is insisted upon, and emphasis also is placed on grammar, foundation for the English system.

Mythology also is studied, and from this the student gets an insight into the modern world's indebtedness to the Roman civilization for its law, architecture, history, etc.

Mrs. Weeg points out that Latin studies give the English student a better understanding of his own language and strengthens his work in English. Also, she says, preciseness of Latin expression develops a sense of accuracy, perfection and quick, clear thinking.

Three years of Spanish is offered in high school, including the first-year course which also is available in junior high.

This also consists of grammar and literature, and the third-year course actually qualifies the student for third-year college Spanish. Students who take only two years of high school Spanish are ready to take up the subject at the second-year level in college.

Colleen Slaughter, high school teacher, points out that Spanish is not offered as a "conversational" study. Rather, development of vocabulary, the rules of grammar and the study of Spanish literature are introduced.

Gifts To Help Children Learn While Playing

The child who used to spend hours stuffing clothes pins in milk bottles and dumping them out was a pioneer in the "learning by playing" field.

In fact, an educational toy manufacturer turned out plastic milk bottles and clothes pins so today's siblings may go through the "put-in, take-out" phase of learning. And out of the kitchen. Thus, as in the case of a growing number of toys, a child no longer "just plays." He "learns" while he plays.

A staunch supporter of educational toys is Gilbert G. Southwick, president of Childhood Interests. He explains the educational toy stand thus:

"Watching a toy perform is amusing, for a short time," he says. "But the toy may contribute little or nothing to the small fry's mental and physical development."

"On the other hand playthings which make the youngster a participant tend to encourage him to exercise his imagination. Besides they develop his skill in arts, crafts or music . . . and, improve his physical coordination."

Special Session

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The Rhode Island Legislature will meet in special session Friday, Dec. 13. The last special session was held Friday, Nov. 13, 1953.

Traffic Safety Program Begins

AUSTIN — A statewide traffic safety program has been started in an attempt to save the lives of more than 100 persons, who would be killed in Yuletide season traffic accidents.

The governor's Traffic Safety Council Executive Committee adopted the program last week. Gov. Price Daniel said the death toll could be cut if people would observe speeding regulations and not drink while driving.

"Even if we can hold the death rate during the holiday period to the same as last year's, the death toll will be 61 less this year than 1956," Daniel said.

Department of Public Safety Director Homer Garrison Jr. said 252 persons were killed in December 1956, with 108 of the fatalities occurring during the 11-day Christmas and New Year's holidays. He said 115 are expected to die during the 12-day holiday period this year.

Christmas Gifts That Cure

Here is a collection of gifts produced by patients at the Big Spring State Hospital as part of the occupational therapy program. Mrs. Bob Bright, left, is chairman of the volunteer project to offer the gifts for sale as a means of promoting increased occupational therapy — one of the best means for hastening recovery of many mental patients. Helping her exhibit these are Mrs. Lee Nix and Mrs. Annie Simpson, occupational therapists, and Mrs. Ira Thurman, coordinator of volunteer services at the hospital. Mrs. Bright will be offering these and other items Thursday at Piggly Wiggly. As patients make items, proceeds from sale of one goes to provide more materials and the other goes to the patient who made them.

Teletype Notes 50th Anniversary

By The Associated Press
Fifty years ago a company was formed in Chicago to develop and manufacture a machine which its backers hoped would make it possible for a man to sit before a keyboard at one end of a telegraph line and type letters which would be duplicated by another machine at the other end.
The machine was the teleprinter. The company was Morkrum, named for its maker Joy Morkrum — the financial backer — and Charles L. Krum — who provided the inventive genius.
Perfecting, multiplied and stretched in all directions, teleprinter networks have since become the lifelines of news dissemination throughout the globe. The biggest user of teletype machines today is the Associated Press, which brings news from the world over to American newspapers and radio and TV stations.
The AP also was the first major user of the machine, introducing it to newspapers with a 16-point network set up by Kent Cooper, former AP general manager, in New York in 1915. Today more than 7,000 machines are required by the AP's constantly chattering networks.
The first teletype machine was developed in 1907. The first commercial sale by the Morkrum Co. was made three years later when The Postal Telegraph Co. commissioned Morkrum to equip its offices in New York and Boston. Western Union began using the machines in 1912.
Installations jumped sharply during World War I when there was an acute civilian shortage of skilled Morse code telegraphers. In 1922 the company became the Teletype Corp., the name it holds today. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. bought the corporation in 1930.
Technical developments over the years have brought tremendous increases in the speed with which words can be transmitted. Present normal speeds run up to 100 words a minute and can be increased if necessary to as much as 600 words a minute.
The company now also manufactures a Teletypesetter, an adaptation of the regular teletype which yields both the printed word and a narrow perforated tape. Run through special equipment, the tape automatically operated a linotype machine, setting the type needed by a newspaper or magazine.

Modern Institution In Florida More Like Motel Than Hospital

By CHRIS MacGILL
HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—The patients gave the best descriptions of the nation's newest hospital for the mentally ill.
"It's like coming out of prison," said an inmate just transferred to the South Florida State Hospital from an older institution.
"This is like living in a motel," was the incredulous declaration of another transferee.
"It's nice and airy and open," said a third. "It makes you feel cheerful."
Even the garbage cans are gaily colored at this hospital, where architecture and decorating go hand in hand with medical therapy to cure the mentally disturbed.
The layout could be mistaken at first glance for an elaborate resort motel.
"Where are the enclosures?" asked a visitor who had been an attendant at a northern mental hospital. He was accustomed to so-called "bull-pens," fenced and dreary, for patients to plod around to get outdoor exercise.

CLEVERLY DISGUISED
He was standing near one of the sunny patios which serve the purpose here but didn't recognize it for what it was.
The patios are walled but the enclosures are of the type which surround the gardens of luxurious suburban homes — concrete-block latticeworks which admit the breeze and allow patients a free view of the outside.
Architect William Gilroy of Fort Lauderdale spent weeks touring mental hospitals in other states and Canada before drawing up what he calls the "campus plan" of this institution.
He found most "more like prisons than healing institutions." Avoiding the penal atmosphere was his major objective in designing the South Florida hospital. There are no bars at the wide

Replace Sugar In Yule Meals

Christmas and calories just naturally go together.
One way to keep slim is to concentrate on desserts and breads high in taste and low in calories. These may be made with noncaloric sweeteners in place of sugar.
This cranberry chiffon pie has only 99 calories a serving, made with a noncaloric sweetener, instead of the usual 236 calories.
Cook 2 cups raw cranberries in 1/2 cup water until skins pop; force through sieve. Combine 2 tablespoons Sucaryl solution or 48 Sucaryl tablets and 3 egg yolks in top of double boiler. Cook until mixture thickens.
Soften 1 envelope gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Add to cranberry mixture, stir until dissolved. Remove from heat and cool to room temperature. Beat 3 egg whites until peaks form; gently fold into mixture. Spoon into 8-inch plate slightly oiled and sprinkled with fine bread crumbs. Chill until set.
Spoon topping of 1 cup cottage cheese, 1 teaspoon Sucaryl solution and 1 tablespoon lemon juice beat fairly smooth, around edge of pie.
Because noncaloric sweeteners differ widely in sweetening power, the recipe will not adapt to use with a sweetener other than Sucaryl.

Surgeon Slaps 'Carelessness'

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The rise of the wonder drugs has made doctors less careful about germ precaution measures in hospitals and operating rooms, a Philadelphia surgeon said today.
Dr. H. Taylor Caswell of Temple University Hospital told the closing session of the American Medical Assn.'s 11th annual clinical meeting: "The medical profession has come to regard the problem of infection much less seriously than it did prior to the development of antibiotics. We are now in an era when this attitude must be changed."
Declaring that certain strains of staphylococci germs have become resistant to most of the wonder drugs and that they present "a serious problem in hospitalized patients," Dr. Caswell said: "A return to the most strict hospital techniques of sterilization is essential. Unless this is done, successful control of infections in hospital patients and antibiotic-resistant staphylococci is doomed to failure."
The surgeon said, "One of the most important means of spread of the organism is by direct contact with personnel or patients with active infection or by direct contact with heavily contaminated hospital materials."
These wily bugs, he said, have been reported as sources of infections in various hospital targets including clean surgical wounds; in newborn babies as skin ailments; in nursing mothers as breast abscesses; in the respiratory tract as a form of pneumonia; and in severe types of stomach or intestinal inflammation in postoperative surgical patients.
He indicated that sharp reductions in such infections is possible.

Economists Predict Business Increases

A "moderately good" advance in the nation's economy, accompanied by a leveling of consumer prices, is predicted for 1958 in a detailed economic forecast released by Carol M. Shanks, president of the Prudential Insurance Co.
The advance will push the gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced in the United States—to a record high of nearly $450 billion. This represents an increase of $13 billion over the estimated GNP for 1957, he said.
The "leveling in consumer prices will mean that this advance will be real, and not illusory" like 1957's, says the forecast, which is prepared annually by Dr. Gordon W. McKinley and his staff of Prudential economists. They point out that at least half of the $21 billion increase that took place this year has been attributable to inflated prices, not to increased output of goods and services.
While they believe that "hesitation" will continue to keynote business activity during the next few months, they look forward to a "brisk advance" in the second half of the year.
The Prudential economists say the advance will be largely due to a gradual shift in the buying habits of the American public, which will

NEW MOREHEAD TRANSFER HEADQUARTERS
Open house observance slated this afternoon

New Warehouse To Have Open House

As completely fireproof as it is possible to be, Big Spring's newest warehouse will be put on display with open house today.

It is the 13,000 square-foot plant of Big Spring Bonded Warehouse and Storage Company at First and Johnson Streets. G. G. Morehead, president, has invited the public to inspect the new facilities between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Besides its concrete and steel construction, the new warehouse has several features. Among them is the provision for "palletized" warehousing, a practice whereby household or other goods may be placed in individual, sealed containers for storage. This not only affords practically dust-free storage but it also protects odd-lot items from pilferage or inadvertent damage.

Another feature is the elimination of loading docks as such. Thus, trucks will be unloaded directly into the door, or they may be backed into the plant itself for interior unloading.

The building, which represents the culmination of a lot of planning by Morehead and his son, Jimmy L. Morehead, vice president, and Mrs. G. G. Morehead, secretary-treasurer, is of concrete tile walls, concrete floors, steel sash, and steel beams.

Design of the plant is equally adaptable between regular (household and miscellaneous) storage and commercial storage. The building has openings on the north side where there is trackage ample for two box cars at the same time. Trucks may be unloaded or loaded from the Johnson Street side.

ALLIED AGENT

Big Spring Bonded Warehouse and Storage is local agent for Allied Van Lines, which means connections to any point in the nation. It also includes connections with Allied Sea Van Service to virtually any point in the world, and Allied Air Van Service, a new means of moving household goods. In addition, Morehead has his own

Barometers Good Gifts

It's nice to know what the day has in store. And you can sound like a walking weather bureau.

With a barometer at home you have a clue to the weather in your immediate vicinity for the next 24-hours.

Barometers have changed since the 1700's when they were introduced into the American home by retired seafarers keeping a weather eye out. Today, barometers serve a dual purpose in American homes: useful weather prophet and ornamental wall decoration.

For a traditional home, you'll find pendant "banjo" styles with cases of rich mahogany or walnut. There is also a pendant style in transitional design. It blends with French Provincial or other in-between styles. The ship's wheel barometer is a favorite for den, playroom, library or office.

Basically, a barometer is a device for measuring the weight of air. When bad weather is approaching the air is disturbed and weighs less. This change is detected by the barometer which begins to fall and thus predicts the advance changing weather. The opposite happens when good weather, or a high pressure area, approaches.

Dairy Dollars

It isn't meat and potatoes that take Dad's dollars. It is meat and dairy products. Twenty-five per cent of the family food dollar went for meat and 17 per cent for milk, ice cream, butter and cheese last year.

Quiet Lady Barbers Keep Russian Beards Trimmed

By STERLING SLAPPEY

MOSCOW (AP)—Beards and Communists — often in conjunction — currently are highly popular in the Soviet Union.

The reason for the popularity of Communists is that they own the joint. Much of the popularity of beards, however, is because of the barbering.

Most Moscow beards and practically all heads are taken to barber shops for trimming. Lady barbers do much of the work. They charge 20 cents per beard, 20 cents per head and they use meticulous care.

Moscow's plushiest tonsorial establishment is an 11-seater on Gorky Street. You sit facing the mirror, not with your back towards it, and on most occasions the emporium is still and quiet.

The lady barbers seldom talk about politics, the weather, why Dynamo is in the second division of the Soviet Soccer League or how many goals Alexei Alexandrovich Abakumov has kicked for Spartak.

Instead they let you sit in peace while they shape up the head and weed out the beard and they send you away not much poorer and smelling wonderfully of old-fashioned lilac water.

Moscow barberesses get a range of hair to work on which is unmatched in the United States and possibly the world.

Hundreds of goatees come in for trimming.

There are still devotees of the Stalin mustache droop, proving just how deep went the roots of the "cult of the Personality."

Lenin has been dead for 33 years but you still see dozens of little shovel shaped tufts of hair on the chin and the blob on the upper lip which he favored.

One of the Soviet Union's top nuclear scientists has let his chin whiskers run for years. All he ever seems to do is brush them in two long strips—one flowing down near his right hip and the other near his left hip.

An imminent chemical scientist favors letting his chin be covered completely with a growth shaped like the blade of a bulldozer. This type of thing makes for a forceful appearance and in some cases has been known to camouflage a receding chin.

Many members of the government and Communist party favor some sort of face hair, either a bit on the lip or the full works.

To curb unwanted growth barberesses have various size special scissors with curved cutting blades. They nip smoothly around the edges of the beard on the Uzbekistan collective farmer and on the mustache of the Turkman steppe rider.

Like many other things in Russia, barber shops look like their counterparts of 25 years ago in the United States.

About 25 years ago also have passed since you could get a decent haircut in the United States for 25 cents.

'Autorama' Slated For Next Saturday

Sleek and powerful new automobiles comprising the industry's offering for 1958 go into a gala display here next Saturday.

The occasion is the local car dealers' "Autorama," which will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Dec. 14. And, to give it an unusual setting, the Autorama will be staged on the block of Main Street between 3rd and 4th. This block will be closed to vehicular traffic and converted into a 300-foot long "auto" display space, so that families may stroll the entire "mall" and have a leisurely look at 1958 automobiles.

The Autorama shapes up as the biggest auto show ever staged in the city. Every franchised new car dealer in the city will have models on display.

A special attraction will be the awarding of nine big Christmas turkeys, through registration of visitors at the various dealers' booth. Beginning at 11 a.m., a turkey will be given away every hour until 6 p.m., with another award at 3:30 p.m.

Closing of the Main Street block to make possible the extensive exhibits was made possible through cooperation of the city administration, the bus lines and merchants who have stores in the block. The bus stop for the day will be on the courthouse side of the 4th and Main intersection.

Dealers participating in the Autorama, which should include more than half a hundred of the newest models, are:

Jones Motor Co., Truman Jones Motor Co., Lone Star Motor, McDonald Motor Co., McEwen Motor Co., Tarbox-Gossett, Tidwell Chevrolet, Shroyer Motor Co., and Marvint Wood Pontiac.

Big Question: Can NATO Beat Reds?

By STANLEY JOHNSON
PARIS, Dec. 7 (AP)—Galvanized by Soviet sputniks and massive missile advances, government chiefs of the NATO nations meet here next week determined to forge a dynamic new program to push the West ahead of the Russians.

But the great question is: Can they do it?

Can dissensions and rivalries within the Western Alliance be put aside? Can questions of national pride and national budgets be subordinated to the imperative needs of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a whole?

The condition of President Eisenhower, after his latest attack, and the question of whether he or Vice President Nixon would come to Paris caused little anxiety here. The general feeling in NATO circles is that the vice president has developed into a top-ranking international diplomat and it would be worthwhile to see him operate under such circumstances. They feel that Nixon could speak with the full authority of the President, if necessary.

The meeting's program is expected to call for much tighter Allied cooperation in scientific education, experimentation and manufacture, a cooperation which would end rival developments in the same field and replace it with a planned share-out of information.

Among other things, the American delegation — which will also include Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Defense Secretary Neil McElroy — is expected to pledge efforts for congressional modification of the McMahon Act, which strictly limits American sharing of atomic secrets.

Even before this legislative action is possible, the United States is expected to pledge a share-out of missiles — when it has any to share — even though keeping control of nuclear warheads in its own hands.

This leads directly to one of the thorniest problems the conference must face: Which other NATO powers are willing to face certain Russian wrath for possession of these instruments?

Determination to strengthen the Alliance so far as possible has by no means been unanimous on this particular issue. West Germany is reluctant to become a rocket base, while France has already asked the United States for such weapons.

Proposals are also expected that, instead of supplying individual national forces with nuclear weapons, supranational groups handle them directly under NATO control.

Since NATO's European military chief is an American — currently Gen. Lauris Norstad — this would ease U.S. congressional action.

But — on the same grounds — it runs smack into the national pride and partial legislative resistance of the other members.

France, in particular, has been showing extreme sensitivity about any action which might look like a slight. Hints have been plentiful that the French will explode their own nuclear bomb in the not too distant future; press and Parliament react with hair-trigger explosiveness to any implication that nuclear America and nuclear Britain may aim at being directors of the alliance at the expense of the military weaker powers.

Both the United States and Britain have gone out of their way to soothe these fears but, especially after their arms deliveries to Tunisia, without much success.

Also in the military field, Britain and the United States must convince the continental members that their increasing reliance on nuclear deterrents will not expose such countries as Denmark, Belgium and Holland to irrevocable Soviet ground invasion. Such fears have echoed and re-echoed throughout the fall in parliaments and at the NATO parliamentary conference last month. They want guarantees of continued Anglo-American presence with conventional ground forces.

Science Toys May Lead Children To Good Careers

What's in a toy? Perhaps a career. And mother, don't chew your nails at the thought of Junior blowing up the garage with his chemistry set. He may win a Nobel Prize some day.

Teen-age science contest winners of the last decade say their science interests started before they were 10 years old. A big boost came from chemistry and microscope sets.

And even if Mother thought chemistry "dangerous," 60 per cent of the experimenters had home labs.

However, 7-15-year-olds can have fun with science without making it a career, the teen-agers agree. In fact, they can now solve neighborhood "crimes" with detection sets or surprise the family with a veritable garden, growing in water, applying hydroponics.

EMBRYO SCIENTISTS team up to analyze microscopic substances with toy microscopes. Four-turret scope gives projections up to 455 powers. Manual and test substances get beginners off to good start.

Bur Burners Could Become Useless

Bottle-shaped structures such as the one above are found at each cotton gin in this part of the country. They are burners in which cotton burs are burned after the ginning process has been completed. Dr. Earl Burnett, U.S. Experiment Station director, would like to see bur burners cease to have any value — he wants the farmers to take the burs back to the land and employ them to curb wind erosion and improve moisture retention in West Texas fields.

Experiment Farm Chief Urges Return Of Cotton Burs To Soil

By SAM BLACKBURN
 Dr. Earl Burnett, director of the U. S. Agricultural Experiment Station here, had his way about it, the bottle-shaped "bur burners" which are a common-place feature of every cotton gin would become useless and idle overnight.

Never again would these structures belch forth their fog of blackish smoke and permeate the air with the distinctive odor which goes with burning of cotton burs.

Instead, the burs, once all lint and seed confined in their clutches had been retrieved, would go back to the cotton fields from whence they came—every single solitary bur.

RETURNED TO THE FIELDS
 At the field, they would be carefully spread like a dark brown carpet over the land—the deeper the nap on this carpet the happier the experts at the experiment stations would be.

Burnett said that experiments which have been under way for some time at the Spur station and which are now being carried out here have demonstrated beyond all doubt that the cotton burs have invaluable use in controlling erosion from the wind and in vastly increasing water penetration.

In West Texas where the issue of saving every drop of water and reducing erosion from the wind is so vital, he feels that utilization of any material is worthwhile. When the material is the otherwise worthless cotton bur — by-product of cotton ginning and heretofore a problem rather than a possible benefit—there is all the more reason to make use of it.

Up to about three years ago, Burnett explained, such employment of cotton burs was not possible—their destruction was arbitrarily ordered by the quarantine board in the fight to curb the menace of pink boll worms. This resulted in the building of the countless bur burners by gins and the setting up of systems to convey the burs from the gin to the burner. The burner, because of the fire hazard it posed, had to be remote from the gin proper—hence fans were employed to drive the unwanted burs to the incinerator.

Burnett said it has been found that the fans—supplemented by a relatively simple additional piece of machinery—proved effective in destroying the pink boll worm. As a result, burs, now being burned by the ton all over the West Texas area, are free of insect contamination. Hence, their utilization in rebuilding or conserving soil is not only possible but practical.

GINNS WOULD COOPERATE
 Some of the gins here, he said, are already equipped to decontaminate the burs and all others are doubtless eager to do so, if the farmers and land owners were willing to remove the burs from the gin site. Burning the burs is the easiest method of disposition but it is not altogether without its bad features — the fire hazard posed even by the most improved burner is something to keep the gin manager uneasy throughout the cotton season.

In the Lubbock area, Burnett said, a number of gins have provided themselves with special trucks rigged to haul and spread the burs on the cotton fields of their patrons. The cost is around $2.50 per ton, Burnett reported.

Experiments at Spur have shown that the employment of burs calls for a minimum application of not less than two tons per year per acre. Four tons comes nearer to the desired amount and for best results, the experiment stations recommend not less than four tons.

Some acres tested in Spur have utilized as much as 16 tons per year per acre—the results were helpful but the costs were out of the reach of the average cotton grower.

If the land to be treated is worn out or is deep sand, it is well to plow the burs in. This augments the fertility of the land in addition to offering some benefit — diminished as compared with the second and favored method—in soil erosion control and water preservation.

DO NOT PLOW UNDER
 In Howard County, Burnett recommends that the burs be spread evenly over the top of the ground but not plowed under. He explained that employment of two tons of burs per acre will provide just a very thin layer over the acre—not even enough, actually, to completely cover the surface. Four tons, naturally, would provide a coverage twice as deep but even four tons, spread over an acre, will leave only an extremely thin coating.

Citing benefits that use of burs offers, he quoted reports from the Spur station experiments. On land in that area which had a normal production of 100 pounds of lint cotton, two tons of burs upped the production to 140 pounds of lint. Where four tons were used, the production increased from 100 to 170 pounds of lint per acre. Eight tons did not materially increase production—at least not sufficiently to justify the added expense of application. When 16 tons were used, the production was 200 pounds as compared with 100 pounds. Sixteen tons distributed at $2.50 per ton would represent a sizeable cash investment which could not be offset by the increased cotton yield. On four tons—which seems to be the best application ratio — the increased yield will offset the cost of treatment, he said.

However, the increased yield is not the real value of the bur application program, Burnett emphasized. He showed charts which were kept of water penetration in comparative tracts of land—untreated, treated with two tons, with four tons and so on.

Land which had a 2 per cent grade, he pointed out, lost 35 per cent of its rainfall water in runoff.

Land of the same character where two tons of burs had been applied and plowed under as recommended for worn-out or heavily sandy soil, lost only 14 per cent from runoff.

Land where two tons of burs per acre had been applied on top of the ground and not plowed in lost only 7 per cent runoff.

Check of penetration was most illuminating. Fields treated with four tons of burs on top held valuable moisture much longer than untreated lands — in some instances, retaining moisture sufficiently long to preserve the crop in the dry intervals which occurred between rains at the critical pe-operating and the burs are available. Further, it increases the expense to haul the burs to the farm, stack them and then later handle them a second time. The best method is to do the job in one operation—get the burs at the gin, haul them to the field and distribute them.

"This is not the final nor only answer to the problem of water conservation in our fields nor to the difficulty we suffer from wind erosion. However, it is one step which experiment has shown does help and brings highly profitable benefits."

OFFERS 'STARTER' Rock Collector Proposes Museum

C. D. Curtis, whose interest in rocks became a serious hobby only a few years ago, has advanced an idea which he believes would lead to establishment of an area geology museum.

Business could be combined with altruism in such a way that Curtis believes the project could become self financing.

Briefly, his proposal is this: Secure a place, preferably easily accessible to tourists as well as townspeople, for housing a rock collection which would include his own collection as a starter.

"Rock hounds" (hobbyists who delight in geological specimens and semi-precious stones) and others interested in geology and artifacts would be invited to buy items on exhibit or to make purchases which would be donated to the museum for permanent display. They also would be encouraged to leave specimen either for commission sale or as gifts to the museum.

Curtis said he would be willing to operate such an undertaking for bare expenses. At the end of three years he would retire, leaving the collection to the museum. He envisioned the city, schools or college as a possible operating agency.

Curtis, who resides at 415 Dallas, said he valued his own collection at around $20,000. He collected semi-precious stones as a lad. Although he continued to gather interesting rock from all over the state as an adult, he always gave them away. A few years back he began forming his own collection.

Perhaps his rarest find is a pair of pyrosaur eggs, discovered in the Davis Mountains. These antedate the dinosaur age by perhaps many million years, according to some geological estimates. No value has been placed upon them, but Curtis believes the figure would run into many thousands of dollars. The Chicago Museum of Natural History has made inquiry about them and the University of Texas also has expressed keen interest.

Curtis served as a minister so long as health would permit and even now is supplying two mission churches in Runnels and Coleman counties. He spends considerable time, because the high climate seems to agree with him, in the Davis Mountain Area.

He believes that Texans will share his keen interest in geology, particularly that of this region. That is the basis of his idea for the "stone shop" which might lead to a museum. At any rate, Curtis would welcome the reaction of others who might be interested in such a project.

Farmers Make Final Effort To Harvest Crops

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 7 — Farmers are in a final effort to harvest what is left in their fields, and looking ahead to the first year in a decade which offers plenty of moisture, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said today.

"After weeks, in some cases months, of delay because of rain and freezing weather they are using every means available to harvest," Director John Hutchison said. "District agents report some crop acreage will be abandoned, and that some acreage of small grain will not be planted due to excessive delay."

The bulk of crops to be harvested are in the South Plains, Panhandle and West Texas. The latest damage to crops is in the Lower Rio Grande Valley where hard frost nipped tender vegetables.

With good pastures and steady improvement in range conditions livestock is entering the winter in good condition.

In the South Plains where the biggest setback has been with cotton and grain sorghum, Agent W. H. Jones said at Lubbock that "Farmers are using all manner of devices to salvage cotton. Sorghum combining is in full swing. The sorghum needs at least another week to 10 days and cotton about 30 days to complete harvest. Gins are running 24 hours a day and are getting behind gradually. High winds earlier which helped dry the surface also caused damage in the Plainview areas as heavy headed sorghum fell."

Farther north in the Panhandle, farmers are making full use of excellent harvest weather. The grain crop is about in and cotton is being harvested about as fast as gins can take care of it. Wheat and cattle are in good condition. The far West Texas cotton harvest has resumed, but there is some labor shortage. Ranges and livestock are in good condition and winter feeding has not been necessary yet. Lambing has begun in the Rocksprings section. The carrot harvest is complete and lettuce was damaged by low temperatures.

In the Edwards Plateau cotton farmers are moving at a rapid pace to get their cotton harvested, but that the grades are low. Some counties such as San Saba say it's still too wet for cotton and peanut harvest, concluded Roy Hucklebee at San Angelo. Oats and wheat in the San Angelo area are excellent. Livestock is in good condition and pastures are improving.

Twins All Over

There are twins all over the place, as these trick shots from Hollywood studio publicity men illustrate. At left, Jack Palance, who plays two brothers, falls in love with Barbara Lang. At right, William Talman, who also plays two brothers, protects Kristine Miller from a lawless town (that's what the studio's caption said). In neither case is it indicated which brother is which. You'll just have to see the film to find out. Palance is in "House of Numbers," Sunday through Tuesday at the State; Talman in "The Persuader," also Sunday through Tuesday at the State.

CINEMA COMMENT

By BOB SMITH

"The Strange One." This is a long-awaited movie event in Big Spring. It is the weird tale of a mentally unbalanced youngster and the havoc he wreaks in a military academy. Based on his novel and successful Broadway play, "End as a Man," the movie script for "The Strange One" was written by Calder Willingham.

Ben Gazzara, one of the brightest of the young stellar crop out of Hollywood, takes the title role and is entirely convincing as the paranoid. Julie Wilson is introduced to screen audiences in this film, and she gives promise of more sterling performances in the future.

Gazzara is seen as Jocko de Paris, cadet leader in a Southern military academy, who so manipulates events that a son of one of the school's executive officers is found dead and expelled. Then, in a series of chilling plots, Jocko silences his involuntary accomplices.

This is one of the most bone-chilling psychological plots in several years.

"Bundle of Joy." This film might well have been prophetic as it stars an old married couple, Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds, in the craziest, most mixed-up yarn of the year on the subject of foundlings. The plot has Miss Reynolds finding a foundling and deciding to keep it—only to discover that everyone, including her husband, thinks it's hers.

How the bemused girl finally works things out through placing the blame on practically every available male makes for plenty of comic relief.

"20 Million Miles to Earth." A sort of modernized King Kong story, with a Venusian monster substituting for the famed ape. But the newer version lacks the gripping drama of the original.

"The 27th Day." The first time this one came around, I was misinformed on the nature of its plot (a not unusual sort of incident) in a Hollywood publicity booklet. Now that I have seen it, it can be said this film rates favorably with the year's output of science fiction. It is the story of a mysterious

LOOKS AT BOOKS

By Sam Blackburn

BRANN AND THE ICONOCLAST by Charles Carver. With an introduction by Roy Bedichek. Illustrated. University of Texas Press.

The weird feud between William Cowper Brann, crusading journalist, and Baylor University which split 1890 Waco apart and was the motivating factor in several gun deaths and numerous instances of violence, is fairly well known to most Texans.

Even those who are not intimately familiar with all of the fantastic episodes which were involved in that quarrel have heard of Brann and of his widely circulated magazine The Iconoclast.

The feud was responsible for the loss of several lives — including Brann, himself, and of the man, Tom Davis, who killed him.

There were instances where enraged Wacoans fought with Brann, horsewhipped him. There was an instance where Baylor students kidnapped him and threatened to lynch him on the campus of that famous college.

The book that Carver has written is not as complete, perhaps, as some might desire. It does contain a number of highly illuminating examples of the vitriol pen of the crusader. It also details most of more lurid of the misadventures and tragedies which developed as a result of Brann's acid attacks on the university and its officials.

Brann's publication was a widely read periodical during its relatively brief life. It boasted of 120,000 circulation. It did not limit its barbs to Baylor, Waco and the Baptist church — although it was most generous in the space it allotted to these topics. It assailed any and all things which Brann did not like. He was an avowed enemy of late Victorian hypocrisy and his flow of words was so corrosive that his statements were bound to raise instant resentment and anger in any reader who held different views.

The book has an introduction by Roy Bedichek, prominent Texas author, naturalist and educator. Bedichek was a boy in Waco in the days of Brann and naturally has a sharp recollection of the events and incidents which are recorded in Carver's account.

Carver was born in Ardmore, Pa. He was in Waco for a time, writing short stories, teaching playwriting at Baylor and operating an advertising agency. He became deeply interested in the Brann episode and began gathering material for his book. In 1957, he moved to New York to become a member of the staff of a Manhattan advertising agency.

He is the author of numerous short stories which have been published in Collier's, Esquire, This Week, and the American.

There is a large number of ancient photographs in the book — including several pictures of the lanky, rawboned Brann. The book will undoubtedly revive memories

Flynn Chooses His Leading Lady NEW YORK (AP)—Jan Brooks, a 21-year-old English actress who has never appeared on the London stage has been picked to be Errol Flynn's leading lady in "The Master of Thornfield" on Broadway.

The play, an adaptation of Charlotte Bronte's "Jane Eyre," is planned by producer Huntington Hartford for arrival in March. Hartford discovered Miss Brooks at a small suburban London theater where she has been acting for a year and a half.

book will find many readers in Texas. How intense was the hatred for this man, Brann, is perhaps best illustrated by the opening paragraphs of Carver's book. In these he relates how, after Brann had been slain and buried, some unnamed gunman visited his grave and blasted the headstone over it with gunshots. A photo of the marred tombstone, incidentally, is in the book. If you are interested in Texas history, there is meat in this one for you.

LIFE WITH MUSIC

'Messiah' Made Its Debut In 1742

By RICHARD D. SAUNDERS

This is the season when most church choirs will lift their voices in Handel's noble oratorio, "Messiah," which has been a Yuletide favorite for over two centuries. Though it is unquestionably the most popular oratorio in England, its first hearing was in Dublin, Ireland, and while it now is almost always associated with Christmas, the premiere was given, April 8, 1742—actually in the form of a paid rehearsal preceding the official performance.

A notice in Faulkner's Journal read: "For Relief of the Prisoners in the several Gaols and for the Support of Mercer's Hospital in Stephen's Street and of the Charitable Infirmary on the Inn's Quay, on Monday the 12th of April will be performed at the Musick Hall in Fishamble Street Mr. Handel's new Grand Oratorio called Messiah, in which the Gentlemen in the Chorus of both Cathedrals will assist, with some Concertos on the organ by Mr. Handel. N. B.—No person will be admitted to the Rehearsal without a Rehearsal Ticket, which will be given gratis with the Ticket for the Performance when paid for."

NO HOOP SKIRTS Accommodations were limited, so that the Journal followed with another notice which stated: "Many Ladies and Gentlemen who are well-wishers to his Noble and Grand Charity, for which his Oratorio was composed, request it as a Favour, that the Ladies who honor this Performance with their Presence, would be pleased to come without Hoops as it will greatly increase the Charity, by making Room for more Company." A later notice requested the men to come without their swords! The hall was packed and the audience enthusiastic. But there appears to have been a slight difficulty over the lack of ventilation.

Julie Andrews Has No Worries

NEW YORK (AP)—British actress Julie Andrews, winding up her sensational stand in "My Fair Lady," has no worries about future employment.

Besides her stage successes, she has appeared in several television shows and may be well on the way to becoming a popular recording artist.

Columbia Records has released two of her albums this season. They include "Cinderella" and a collection of old English songs.

In addition, Julie has recorded an album of nursery rhymes for Angel records.

Broadway Bonanza

NEW YORK (AP)—The Broadway stage continues its heavy contributions to billion dollar record industry. Eight plays currently appearing on Broadway can be heard by home audiences via original cast recordings. They include "My Fair Lady," "Bells Are Ringing," "Happy Hunting," "Jamaica," "Li'l Abner," "New Girl in Town," "The Most Happy Fella" and "West Side Story."
