Rudder Leaves Land Post To Be A&M Veep

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—Land Commissioner Earl Rudder said today he has resigned to become vice president of Texas A&M.

Gov. Price Daniel named Bill Allcorn of Brownwood as his successor as land commissioner.

Rudder will assume the A&M position Feb. 1. He will be in direct charge of the campus at College Station, under President M. T. Harrington.

Daniel called Allcorn a "man who has assisted in clean-up operations" of the veterans' land program.

Allcorn was active in preparing felony charges against former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles and other involved in the veterans' land scandals.

Rudder was named to the land office and veterans' land posts by Gov. Allan Shivers, when Giles gave up the office under fire.

Dr. Harrington said at College Station.

"We are most fortunate to secure a man of Mr. Rudder's proven administrative abilities for this key position in our organization."

"All A&M men are proud of the remarkable record which this graduate of our college has made in both public and military service. We are confident that he will contribute much to the future development of the institution."

The new chief administrator for the state's oldest tax-supported institution of higher education is a native Texan, 42, and a graduate of two colleges of the Texas A&M system, Tarleton State College in 1930 and A&M in 1932.

His background includes teaching and coaching in high school and college, a brilliant military record, a brilliant business operations and outstanding public service.

He is commander of the 90th Division, reserve with the rank of major general.

The appointment was made by the College directors upon nomination by Harrington.

Daniel said he accepted Rudder's resignation with regret, saying "He has done a splendid job in this office, especially in cleaning up the veterans' land operations."

IT'S LAST CALL FOR CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND

A group of high school youngsters... a bunch of Webb Air Force Base workers who used their Christmas Party money... a new fraternal organization... a business firm which used the money it usually spends on customer gifts to help charity instead.

These are among the big-hearted donors who have helped boost the CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND.

Many individuals have helped, too, with large gifts and small, and all are accepted gratefully.

It's just about the "last call" for the CHEER FUND. It will have to close out Monday, so that it can be audited and turned over to the Firemen. They'll use what's needed to finance toy repair and fill baskets with food for needy families — and then on Christmas Eve they'll see that every child, no matter how destitute his home — gets some of this Christmas joy.

If there's money left over, it is used through the year, under direction of the public health unit, to provide medicine in cases of emergency. You can't go wrong on a CHRISTMAS CHEER gift.

The Fund is not as large this year as it has been in the past. It needs to grow by several hundred dollars, over the weekend. If you'll help, please write your check TODAY. Make it to the CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND and mail it to The Herald for acknowledgment. It'll make your own Christmas brighter.

Reds Challenge West On No-War Agreement

Propose Dismantling Parley Under U.N.

MOSCOW, Dec. 21 (AP)—Soviet leaders challenged the West today to sign a no-war agreement and proposed an international conference on disarmament. They scorned NATO's call for a foreign ministers' conference.

Before applauding members in a joint session of Parliament, Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev dared the West to sign a no-war agreement and decide the future "on the basis of which of our two systems gives its people the best lives."

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko announced the Soviet Union "calls for a special session of the United Nations or an international conference on disarmament." He said this could pave the way for an East-West summit meeting again being urged by Soviet leaders.

"A summit conference of representatives of capitalists and Socialist countries could undoubtedly help to achieve an early, positive solution of these burning issues, and the Soviet government has made statements to this effect before," Gromyko said.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union had proposed a summit meeting "that will solve all problems that trouble humanity, including disarmament."

As for the offer of the NATO conference decided upon in Paris this week to discuss disarmament at the foreign ministers' level, Gromyko said:

"We are in fact invited to sit again at a conference table with the same NATO members with whom we have patiently negotiated until now, and to launch again into sterile negotiations that do not advance the cause of disarmament one whit."

The West at such a meeting would put forward terms that the Soviet Union cannot accept "because they are in no way conducive to disarmament," Gromyko said.

"The Western Powers would not fail to accuse the Soviet Union of refusing to compromise or sabotaging the agreement and thus misleading public opinion. Judge for yourselves. Can anything useful be expected of a foreign ministers' conference thus composed?"

Gromyko said the NATO communiqué's call for a foreign ministers' conference was included "because of the difficult situation in which the guiding spirits of the arms race and the cold war have found themselves."

Secretary of State Dulles' "touch is readily apparent in this statement," he said. Gromyko added that Dulles needed "this outwardly conciliatory note to mislead the peoples who really want an end to the arms race and the cold war."

The Parliament closed a three-day budget session by endorsing Khrushchev's and Gromyko's proposals and adopting a resolution seconding Premier Nikolai Bulganin's recent letters to other governments.

The resolution said the United States, Britain and Russia should agree to bar use of atomic and hydrogen bombs and halt all nuclear tests New Year's Day. It also endorsed the idea of a zone stripped of all nuclear weapons in Central Europe.

Top Level Review For Defense Report

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—The reaction of high government officials to the Gaither Report on America's defense position is now being assembled, the White House said today, and may be considered by President Eisenhower Monday.

This top level review of what still was described as a highly secret document may take place at a meeting of the National Security Council scheduled for 10:30 a.m. (EST) Monday at the White House.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said in a statement dictated to newsmen that while some material from defense and other security agencies is incorporated in the report, its main content consists of analyses, views and recommendations of "eminent men drawn primarily from civil life."

The Washington Post, in a copyrighted story yesterday, said the report "portrays a United States in the gravest danger in its history." It said the report calls for multi-billion-dollar increases in defense budgets through 1970 to catch up with Russian advances in missiles and other areas.

Here is the statement Hagerty dictated:

"The report is one of a number of advisory studies on national security matters, which, as you know, the President from time to time requests and receives from many sources.

"Defense and other security agencies of the government make available to the (Gaither) Committee factual material and estimates in their possession bearing on the committee's work, and some of this is incorporated in the report."

ANALYSES

"The report's main content consists of analyses, views, and recommendations of the committee members who are eminent men drawn primarily from civil life."

"The report is of course a highly classified document. The views and recommendations in the report are being studied by the government departments and agencies concerned."

"The department and agency comments on the report are being forwarded to the National Security Council for the consideration of the President."

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) urged release of as much as possible of the report to the public and Congress, saying:

"There must be no cover-up for our inadequacies. So long as there is absolute suppression of the report, there will be suspicion of a 'cover-up.'"

Wiley added in a statement that "when the American people become aware of the true facts, they themselves will help to chart the top-priority program that is needed."

Europe Allies Lean Toward Summit Parley

PARIS, Dec. 21 (AP)—European diplomats, assessing results of this week's NATO conference, appeared determined today to ask the United States for more concessions before opening their countries to American missile and nuclear bomb bases.

Perhaps the major demand will be that the United States drop what Europeans feel is a negative attitude toward Russia and go into a high level conference prepared to make broad agreements.

Increasing doubt seems to be developing that Secretary of State Dulles is the man to lead the United States in these talks.

Nor did President Eisenhower's performance here dispel the fears of many diplomats concerning his health. The issues focused during the conference will require top level negotiations and intense thought over the next two years, Europeans are, frankly, not reassured that Eisenhower's health will allow him to maintain the pace needed for leadership.

DIFFER WITH DULLES

These findings became apparent from a running series of talks with European diplomats before, during, and after the conference.

At the conference an agreement in principle was reached to stockpile Europe with nuclear weapons, but only after an attempt is made to get Russia into a conference on disarmament and other subjects endangering peace.

A fundamental difference in point of view between Dulles and some of the European foreign ministers thus was made relatively apparent. Dulles clearly dislikes talking to the Russians because he feels it is fruitless. Europeans suppose that a great many Americans also feel that dealing with Communist powers is a solid and dirty business which a clean-minded country ought to avoid.

Europeans for the most part don't like communism but don't share the feeling of many Americans that it is a contagion to be avoided.

This is an important difference of attitude. While Europeans feel the late President Roosevelt went much too far in dealing with the Russians and trusting them, they feel Dulles is far too suspicious.

All Hopes Fulfilled At Paris Conference, Dulles Asserts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles came home today from Allied talks at Paris, declaring all had gone well there but that "continuing efforts and sacrifices are required."

Dulles, tired-looking and his voice hoarse and cracking, told newsmen the 15-nation Atlantic Pact summit conference "took all of the essential decisions for which we had hoped."

Dulles' 250-word formal statement upon arrival at National Airport seemed aimed in part at dispelling any idea that U.S. proposals had been essentially rebuffed by the European Allies.

The statement never mentioned the key U.S. proposal to establish intermediate-range missile bases in West Europe in response to Russia's new scientific-military advances. When reporters recalled that the basic idea was accepted only in principle, something on which Dulles had previously frowned, he denied feeling "discouraged or unhappy."

"We got everything we hoped for in that respect, in fact somewhat more," Dulles said.

The secretary had no comment on new Soviet proposals for an international conference on disarmament, instead of the foreign ministers disarmament talks suggested by NATO this week. Dulles said he was not even aware that such a proposal had been made by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in a Moscow speech today.

Dulles stressed that the NATO decisions "were not merely military" but "covered political and economic matters as well."

Above all, Dulles said, the NATO meeting strengthened the unity, cooperative spirit and mutual trust and confidence of the alliance.

"All that we have done during this past week adds up to another chapter in the waging of peace," he declared.

"And, as President Eisenhower said when he left Paris, what has happened means that we can now feel that peace is somewhat more secure but continuing effort and sacrifice are required."

Dulles commented that Russia appears to "have abandoned" disarmament negotiation. But his reference apparently was to the Soviet boycott of the United Nations Disarmament subcommittee.

Dulles' return brings him face to face with perhaps the most difficult task of his career. The Kremlin is pushing a full-blown drive for "peaceful coexistence" on Communist terms at a time of hesitation and uncertainty among the Allies.

Dulles has no prospect for rest and contemplation after the rigors of the NATO meeting.

He and President Eisenhower found there no strong allied support for the U.S. idea of countering recent Russian advances with a buildup of military strength. Instead the current ran toward having another try at talking away the threat of nuclear war in new negotiations with the Soviet.

New Activity Seen At Vanguard Site

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP)—Signs of limited activity around the Vanguard rocket-launching complex hinted today that the Navy will beat the Army to the next test in the race to put up America's first satellite.

Observers detected with binoculars what looked like a bit of the white nose of a giant rocket, peeping out over the top of the fixed launch stand and the roll-away gantry crane or working platform for the Navy vehicle.

But since their view was from the beaches some miles south of the highly secret Missile Test Center, they could not be sure of their find.

For the past two weeks a long slender arm of the Vanguard launch tower has extended out of the top of the structure, angled off to the right, much in the manner of a stirring stick leaning out of the top of a pop bottle.

Today, for the first time, the arm was leaning over to the left, apparently having been shifted overnight.

The area was more brightly illuminated last night than at any time since Dec. 6, when the launch stand was damaged in the flames that destroyed the Vanguard rocket after an abortive takeoff.

The activity indicated that the damage has been repaired and that a new rocket is being fitted in place.

Meanwhile in the Army launching area there were no indications of parallel preparations for the launching of the Jupiter-C rocket.

Both services have orders to put up as soon as possible the satellites that would be the U.S. answer to Russia's Sputniks.

The Vanguard, over which the Navy has control, is a purely scientific effort. The Jupiter-C, by contrast, is a direct product of the Army's Redstone ballistic missile program.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week

Well, as Ol' Turtle says in Pogo, "Deck the halls with Boston Charlie... Walla Walla, Washington." That time of the year is upon us. With two more shopping days left retailers generally figure on a pretty fair Yule season. It's been spotted by the homestretch has been encouraging.

We always undertake to advise our newcomers whether what they experienced was a bona fide sandstorm. That one Thursday? Yes, yes, a thousand times yes. It produced two good gin fires and a lot of damage like some brick off the HCJC gym. Henry Derrick reported a 6-foot tumbleweed in the teeth of the gale took his TV antenna. That fancy Christmas decoration at Webb AFB with Santa driving his sputnik was last sighted going east like the sputnik had been fired.

About the most you can hope for from one of those sandstormy days is that Howard County will catch as much good soil as it gives up.

Two important events affecting Coden were noted during the week. For one thing work has been started on the polystyrene unit. For another, Coden announced that its new 6-inch products pipeline to Wichita Falls has been completed, and marketing from Coden's half million terminal there has started.

Three young people were obliged, under court orders, to scrub the signs they had defaced on Scenic Mountain drive in order to alter their instructions. In (See THE WEEK, Pg. 5-A, Col. 4)

It's Winter-- By One Method

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—King Winter was supposed to arrive across the nation at 9:49 tonight—but the Weather Bureau said it was more fiction than fact.

Forecaster Ernest Rampey said the bureau no longer regards Dec. 21 as the first day of winter.

Rather, he added, the bureau classifies the seasons according to a monthly system that breaks down this way:

WINTER — December, January and February.

SPRING — March, April and May.

SUMMER — June, July and August.

FALL — September, October and November.

Dec. 21 is the day of the winter solstice or the time when the sun reaches its farthest point south.

Policy Message Due From Pope

LONDON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Roman Catholics in Britain were told tonight that Pope Pius XII's annual Christmas broadcast tomorrow is expected to be "an important statement of policy."

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Church in Britain distributed a statement to newspapers advising listeners here to tune in to Vatican radio, which will broadcast translations in 28 languages after the Pope concludes his speech in Italian.

Man Convicted In Corpseless Murder

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21 (AP)—A jury convicted L. Ewing Scott today of first-degree murder in the disappearance of his wealthy 63-year-old wife, Mrs. Evelyn Throsby Scott.

The bizarre corpseless murder case attracted wide attention because it had the ingredients of a good mystery: wealth, social position and an international manhunt.

The case had everything — except a body.

Scott's face scarcely moved as the jury returned its verdict. He watched each juror as the polling was conducted individually.

His counsel, P. Basil Lambros, was stunned. "I didn't expect this," he said. "I didn't think it would happen this way. I don't know yet about a motion for a new trial."

The jury will decide Monday whether the suave, silver-haired former investment counselor dies in the gas chamber at San Quentin Prison or is imprisoned for life.

The jury convicted Scott wholly on circumstantial evidence. He maintained to police that his wife is alive, that she vanished, voluntarily, May 6, 1955. But he did not take the stand to deny the accusation that he killed her to gain control of her $600,000 estate, and the state pointed this up repeatedly in its closing arguments.

Governor Appeals For Traffic Safety

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel's Christmas message to Texans emphasizes the traffic safety slogan, "Give the gift of life for Christmas."

Daniel issued the statement today through the press and on tape and film for radio and television stations, urging Texans to drive carefully and cut down on highway deaths.

Elvis Says He's Ready To Go; Movie Producers Not So Ready

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 21 (AP)—Freeman said Paramount stood to lose $300,000 if Presley doesn't report Jan. 13 to start work on his new film "King Creole." That much already has been spent on filming preparations, Freeman said.

The draft board's "greetings" reached the 22-year-old singer yesterday. As the word got around last night, scores of teen-agers swarmed around the gates of the Presley mansion, glumly discussing the prospect.

"It's a crime," said one. "Just awful."

Presley rode up to the big white house shortly before midnight, pausing briefly to sign a few autographs and change automobiles. Then he was gone again.

"He signed my arm," sighed one girl.

Another proudly displayed a scar on her heels, a knot on her ankles.

"Happened in the crowd at his Tupelo show," she explained. "But it was worth it—Elvis autographed my hospital bill."

Presley was classified 1A last January. If inducted, he would go to Ft. Chaffee near Fort Smith, Ark., for basic training.

Speaker for the occasion will be Frank Streetman, Oklahoma humorist popularly known as "The Mayor of Sasakwa."

Chamber officers for 1958 will be formally installed. These will include Dr. John E. Hogan, president; R. W. Currie, vice president; and J. R. Hensley, treasurer.

Streetman, who operates a grocery business in Seminole, Okla., has been hailed as "a second Will Rogers" by Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma.

Popular subjects of his satire are political figures and entertainers. His principal props are a battered hat, "musical" handsaw and tattered fiddle bow.

He has served as purchasing agent for the Oklahoma Highway Commission and has made hundreds of after-dinner talks in the South and Midwest.

Arrangements for the Chamber banquet have been shaped up by a committee which includes Doug Orme, Marvin Miller, Clara Zack and D. M. McKinney.

Dr. Hogan and the other officers were chosen by the Chamber board of directors last Monday. Although they won't be installed formally until Jan. 21, they will take up duties at the first directors meeting of 1958—on Jan. 6.

Christmas Business Runs Ahead Of '56

With but two shopping days left before Christmas, Big Spring merchants are jubilant over the success of the season.

"We're a little ahead of last year," was the almost universal comment on Saturday.

Stores were thronged with shoppers, clerks were busy, the streets were jammed with package packing pedestrians.

Saturday was the ideal shopping day of the entire Christmas buying period. The temperature was in the upper 60's, the sun was bright, the skies blue and there was just barely a breeze blowing.

Every bigger store in the downtown area said that business for the season so far is above that of last year and they looked for a grand rush on Monday and Tuesday as belated shoppers hit the stores for last minute purchases.

"We'll have the grand rush of men shoppers Monday and Tuesday," remarked one merchant.

"It's to be expected. Husbands have waited until the last possible moment and will be hard pushed as the days near to make amends for their procrastination."

Merchants said that buyers were "buying everything." They are not concentrating on any one particular line of goods but their demands are running the gamut.

Most stores where clothing is sold said that business has been brisk in that field. Appliance dealers have also been busy. Toy departments have been overrun.

The entire shopping season, most stores report, has been good. Only one grossly unpleasant day marred the picture. This was Thursday of last week when the city was besieged by one of the most vicious sandstorms since last March.

Stores said that business dropped off on Thursday to a degree but all expressed astonishment at the large number of buyers who ignored the duster and shopped anyway.

"We had a great deal more traffic on Thursday than we expected when the weather turned out the way it did," store managers stated.

Saturday saw a day with practically no parking space anywhere near the downtown left unused. As quickly as a car was backed out of a stall another was waiting to take its place.

Despite the congestion, the general humor of the crowd was happy. Bundle-laden shoppers, elbow-ing their way past each other on the crowded streets or working their way through jammed doorways, were smiling.

Horace Garrett Elected President Of ABClub

Over his protests, Horace Garrett was elected president of the American Business Club at that service organization's Friday luncheon at the Settles Hotel.

Garrett will succeed Clyde McMahon to the post and will be formally seated in January. He will serve for six months.

Garrett insisted he might have to devote too much time to his work to do justice to his job as president. Once named, Garrett accepted the position and laughingly said he would take volunteers for the club's various projects "the Army way."

Other officers elected were: George McAlister, first vice president; Allen Orr, second vice president; Paul Meek, third vice president; and Doyle Thomas, sergeant at arms. Thomas will be assisted in the execution of his duties by Tom Conway.

The election of a board of directors to work with Garrett and other officers was delayed until the next meeting.

McMahon said the club would not meet next Friday, due to the holiday season, but will convene again Friday, Jan. 4.

Guests at the Friday conclave included Sid Bolding, Altman Smith and Lee Harris.

YMCA Speaker Well Known For Interest In Youth Work

Few if any men in the Southwest are so well known as the man selected as the YMCA annual banquet speaker—Dana X. Bible.

The banquet has been scheduled for Jan. 23.

Although his name is more familiar on the sports pages, Bible is recognized for his interest in youth and institutions that serve them.

Bible is now in his 21st year with the University of Texas and is serving on a consulting basis with Ed Olle, who succeeded him as athletic director. Prior to that he had a record of 33 years as a football coach, achieving a record which is unparalleled for such a number of years. His team won 209 games, lost 74 and tied 19 during his tenure at Mississippi College, Louisiana State University, Texas A&M College, the University of Nebraska and the University of Texas.

Dana Bible was born in Jefferson City, Tenn., on Oct. 8, 1891, and following his graduation there he earned his degree at Carson-Newman College in 1912. He did graduate work at the University of North Carolina, Ohio State University and Centre College. Following his graduation from Carson-Newman where he had lettered in football, baseball and basketball, he launched his career by coaching at Brandon Prep in his native Tennessee.

He is listed in "Who's Who in America" and in 1954 was recipient of both the New York Touchdown Club's award for outstanding service to football and the Alonzo Stagg Award. For 27 years he was a member of the National Football Rules Committee and served as president of the American Football Coaches Association. He also has been named to Football Hall of Fame.

Red-Letter Dates On Political Calendar

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—The 1958 political calendar published today sparkles with red-letter dates important to Texans who expect to vote in many races or who plan to take part in conventions.

Perhaps the most important date is Jan. 31, the deadline on payment of poll taxes. A poll tax is your key to using the ballot box and your exclusive admission to precinct conventions.

That goes for Democrats and Republicans alike—no poll tax, no precinct convention vote.

Jan. 21 is also the last day for persons entitled to poll tax exemption certificates to get them from the county clerk.

A pamphlet published by the State Democratic Executive Committee includes a foreword by Gov. Price Daniel, who said of the calendar:

county conventions on first Saturday after primary.

June 9—State Executive Committee decide hour and place for Sept. 9 state convention and for State Executive Committee session that precedes state convention by one day.

July 6-22—Absentee balloting for first primary.

July 26—First primary election and precinct conventions.

Aug. 2—County conventions.

Aug. 3-19—Absentee balloting for second primary.

Aug. 11—State Executive Committee canvasses returns of first primary.

Aug. 23—Second primary.

Sept. 9—State conventions of both parties.

Nov. 4—General election.

Nov. 21—Secretary of state counts general election returns.

"It is my hope that it will serve as a reminder to all Texans to take an active part in primary and precinct elections. As citizens, this is our privilege and duty. If all individuals actively participate in party matters, we can be sure that a true majority will rule—which is the very essence of our democracy."

Next year Texans will elect a governor and a senator. Members of Congress and the Legislature will be named. Constitutional changes will be submitted on the general election ballot. Control of the Democratic party will be among the major issues.

Here are some outstanding political dates:

May 15—Last day for prospective candidates to file for places on primary election ballots.

June 9—County Executive Committees meet to set hour and place for precinct conventions on primary election day and for

Father Purges Self Of Contempt

One of the two men ordered jailed by Judge Charlie Sullivan in 118th District Court Friday had purged himself of contempt charges and was released from the jail. The other was still in his cell Saturday.

R. T. Caldwell paid $96.20 Friday afternoon—the allotment due to the support of his children and the costs in the case—and was freed from custody.

Andrew Gamba, who must pay $240 before he can be released, was still in jail.

The two men had been brought before the court on Friday on complaints they had not complied with court orders relative to support of their children.

White House Festive With Christmas Decorations

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Mistletoe hangs amid red ribbons on the great gold and glass lantern in the north entrance hall of the White House.

It's part of the special Christmas decorations, including eight Yule trees, set up just in time for President Eisenhower's arrival from Paris.

The President and his family plan to be in the White House Christmas Day — for the third year in a row.

When Eisenhower returned Friday, he found his house at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. gay with poinsettias, red carnations, Christmas tree ornaments and bright greenery.

With its traditional decorations, the White House reported today it has included a series of three nativity scenes, in light blue cases in the gold-decorated east ballroom. They are set amid boughs of fir and carry in gold letters the legend, "Glory to God in the highest—and on earth peace—goodwill toward men."

Nearly stands an 18-foot balsam fir, decorated with tinsel and white lights. The biggest tree in the White House, it was the gift of the New Hampshire - Vermont Christmas Tree Assn. and comes from the northern Connecticut Valley that divides the two states.

The big east ballroom, with its glittering chandeliers, is filled with Christmas music played on an hour-long tape recording.

White, pink and red poinsettias and red carnations are banked on tables and fireplaces amid greenery in the parlors and state dining room. Tall red candles and numerous miniature Christmas trees with ropes of tiny gold and red balls add to the holiday decor.

In the main entrance hall, in addition to the mistletoe, six tall marble columns are twined with ropes of greenery decorated with colored balls. Two huge Christmas wreaths hang on the columns.

Contractors, Architects To Hear GM Consultant

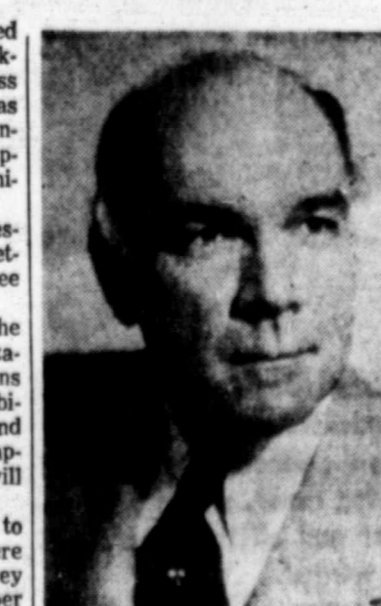

Dr. Kenneth McFarland, rated as one of the most forceful speakers in the nation, is to address a joint meeting of the West Texas chapter of Associated General Contractors and the West Texas chapter of American Institute of Architects in Midland on Jan. 29.

Arrangements for the joint session were worked out at a meeting of the AGC-AIA committee here last week.

The Midland dinner will be the first time for the two organizations to hold their general sessions together, said Oscar Rose, Abilene, AGC chapter president, and Hank Avery, Midland, AIA chapter president. The meeting will be at the Schrabauer Hotel.

Dr. McFarland is familiar to West Texans, having spoken here and at other points. One survey conducted by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, found him to be the nation's foremost speaker.

Presently he is educational consultant for General Motors with offices in Topeka. However, he flits about the nation constantly and has been called the country's No. 1 air traveler. Before he achieved his reputation as a speaker, Dr. McFarland had made his mark as an educator. He also has a background as businessman, farmer, stock raiser, civic leader, church worker, industrial and public relations consultant.

Indonesia Puts Out Hint Of Negotiation

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 21 (AP)—More than 1,200 Dutchmen boarded a ship all decked out for Christmas today and set sail for Holland.

As they boarded the British troopship Captain Cook, the Indonesian government expressed willingness to start negotiations to end its war of nerves with the Netherlands for possession of Dutch West New Guinea.

Six hundred children, 500 women and 50 men—many of them lifelong residents of these islands—will spend Christmas at sea before arriving in Holland, a country few of them know. The ship's dining halls and lounges were festooned in Christmas colors.

Their departure brought to 4,500 the number of Dutch nationals who have left since Indonesia applied the heat in its dispute with Holland over West New Guinea. Officials said applications for exit visas are pouring in from the 46,000 persons who made up Indonesia's Dutch population. A shipload of 700 Dutch left Wednesday. They also are leaving in smaller batches by air.

Science Post In Cabinet Is Demos' Goal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—A Democratic move to pull together all of the government's research and development activities under a new Department of Science appeared to be gaining ground today.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said a study begun by the staff of the Senate Government Operations Committee, before the Russian Sputnik launchings, had "disclosed a crying need" for centralized control of space weapons and other developments.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.), assistant Senate Democratic leader, said in a separate interview that a single agency, whose head would be responsible only to the president, should supervise the race to catch up with Russia in missiles and satellites.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), who has plugged for creation of a Science Department, is expected to ask the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, of which he is a member, to embrace this proposal in any report it may make on its continuing inquiry into the rocket program.

Mansfield said he thinks scientific research represents an "undue burden" on the military services which are responsible for use of the weapons scientists develop.

"The military services are primarily concerned with other responsibilities," he said. "They didn't develop the airplane, the submarine or even the Garand rifle. All of these developments came from the outside."

Judge Tells Couple Marriage Must Be Built On Cooperation

Judge Charlie Sullivan, 118th District Court, is seldom garrulous when he is presiding in a case. He limits his remarks to terse rulings on objections and rarely comments on any phase of the matter before the court.

Testimony heard by him in a child custody hearing Friday, however, aroused his honor to the extent that he deviated from his customary taciturnity.

The case was preliminary to a divorce hearing and dealt with the disagreement of the couple over which was to have three young children.

The wife, on the stand, admitted that she had, on occasion, went riding with another man, not her husband. She insisted that she was lonely; that she wanted "companionship" and charged that her husband had abused her on several occasions.

The husband, on the stand, admitted that he had "slapped" his wife several times. He charged he was incensed because she "did not take proper care of the children."

"The court has heard a very long time," Judge Sullivan stated. "The court has learned that a successful marriage has to be built on cooperation."

Here we have a wife who admits she has sought companionship of other men than her husband. Here we have a husband who confesses he has slapped his wife several times.

"The court does not hold that a man has a right to strike a woman at any time—even in self-defense. And the court does not feel that a wife has the right under any circumstances to seek the company of other men—even though there is no evidence that there was anything immoral involved in these episodes."

"These people claim they love their children. They insist they love them but they do not love them enough to make any concerted effort toward a reconciliation of their quarrel."

"The court is not going to make any final ruling on this matter at this time. The mother can keep the children for the present but she must keep them in Howard County. She will not take them to Oklahoma or to Wichita Falls or to any other place. She must take care of them as she should."

"The father must provide for their keep. He must pay the rent on the home at Coahoma; he must see they have food and clothing. And he must pay in the money to the court clerk as he should."

"The court will decide later what final disposition will be made of this case."

Gra-Y Activities Set This Week

Big Spring YMCA will be closed on Dec. 24-25-26 but other days of the Christmas week will be marked by a continuous series of special Gra-Y events, Everett Taylor, program chairman, has announced.

The activities begin at 10 a.m. Monday with the screening of a movie "The Fighting Stallion." Refreshments will be served when the picture is completed.

On Friday at 10 a.m., a county detective will be on hand to discuss the work such officers perform and to display the weapons and equipment used in law enforcement.

On the same day, at 2 p.m., there will be a visit to the city fire station where the department will demonstrate what happens when an alarm is received and how quickly the equipment begins to roll to the scene.

Saturday, at 10 a.m. Ben Hall and the Circle 4-Ramblers will be on hand to provide a program of western music. Games will be played after the program until noon.

All YMCA Gra-Y members are urged to attend all of these activities during the Christmas week, Taylor said.

Library Closed Until Thursday

Howard County Free Library will not be open until Thursday, it was announced Saturday by Opal McDaniel, librarian.

The Christmas holiday for the library staff begins Monday and extends through Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. McDaniel pointed out that schools are closed down for the holidays and that less demand for books will prevail this week. She also pointed out that the library hours of operation keep its doors open to 7 p.m. on all days but Saturday. The library closes at noon on Saturday.

Fred Overton Of Salvation Army Advanced To Captain

It's "captain" now for the Fred Overtons.

They received notice Saturday from Commissioner William Davidson of Atlanta, Ga., territorial commander of the Salvation Army of their promotion from first lieutenant to captain.

Like other Salvation Army ratings, the promotion carries with it only a nominal increase in salary but it does denote a satisfactory progress in service to the corps.

"I know that this added recognition which has come to you will cause you to dedicate all you possess in the service of God and the Army," wrote G. A. Stephen, field secretary who notified them of the promotion.

Lt. Fred Overton is the son of Capt. Tom Overton, Waynesboro, Va., a veteran in Salvation Army work. Both he and his bride, Iona Mullens, were members of the SA citadel in Williamson, W. Va., where they married in 1947. They felt called to full time SA work and entered the training college in 1950, getting their probationary commissions as second lieutenants in June of 1951.

Their first station was in Covington, Va., and others followed at Birmingham (Ensley), Ala., Columbus (Bealwood), Ga., Florence, Ala. and Sherman. They had been at the latter post for three years when they were assigned here last summer to succeed Capt. and Mrs. Dexter Breazeale, who went to Waco. The Overtons have three sons, Tommy, 9, Freddy, 5, and Jimmy, 7 months.

Acers Reject Union Protest

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—Employment Commissioner Maurice Acers rejected today a demand from a labor union that he disqualify himself from hearing an appeal by Tyler employes of General Electric.

An attorney for the Electrical Workers Local 782 in Tyler had asked that Acers be disqualified because of his prior rulings as member of the Texas Employment Commission that employes on vacation should not receive unemployment compensation.

The Tyler electrical workers were disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits while on vacation.

"Simply because he has ruled on similar cases in the past does not preclude a commissioner from ruling on pending cases involving the same principle," Acers said.

He said that the protest surprised him since the General Electric case had not yet been presented to the commission for review.

Each case is decided on its merits, Acers said, and the decision may be appealed to the courts.

THE LEGACY OF LUKE

A Memorable Interview Preserves Mary's Inspiring Triumph Of Faith

EDITOR'S NOTE: Were it not for the gospel of Luke, the world would not possess the powerfully moving words spoken between the messenger of the Lord at the Annunciation and the woman who believed Luke received the information directly from Mary. Here is a story that may have come about.

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Only a mother knows the measure of that greatest drama: The bringing into the world of a new child.

No other could realize the yearnings, the anxieties and uncertainties, the tremendous joys and high dreams of bestowing life. No other but God.

So it was that the perceptive physician Luke, in his project to trace the genesis of Jesus, turned his course toward Mary. He walked rapidly, astir with hope.

It was about 20 miles from Nazareth to Capernaum, past undulating fields, vineyards and clusters of acacias and yew trees. Oxen-pulled carts, loaded with autumn's final crops, trundled along the road.

Luke glanced at the gray sky. Winter's rains soon would be starting. Smoke hugg over the farm houses, and from within the rock pens came shouts, and the bleating of sheep getting a last shearing of the year.

BEST SOURCE
If Mary still lived, she would be in her 70s now. Almost 30 years before, her Son had made his tremendous sacrifice for man. Luke prayed silently, Grant that he might find her . . . she could reveal so much . . .

The road curved steadily downward, descending from the high, clear region of Nazareth, 1,600 feet in elevation, to the Galilee lake, 700 feet below sea level. Luke passed through Magdala, and on beside the clear, murmuring lake.

Here, on these shores, the Lord of Lords had stood and preached, a commanding figure, serene as the sun, forceful as lightning. Luke's eyes were misty as he passed the seven fountains and entered the fishing town of Capernaum.

It was a gray town, built of somber gray basalt. Gray streets, gray walls, gray houses. Like shadows, strangely shaped and solidified, their grayness darkened by the overcast.

A woman with a basket of onions on her head directed Luke to the house of John. This hardy apostle, the youngest of Jesus' band, would be about 50, little older than Luke. At the crucifixion, he had taken Mary into his care.

The house seemed different than the others. It was built of the same gray stone, but there was a bright pleasantness about it. A trellised bower of roses and golden heliotrope and oleander bloomed behind the hedges.

There, in the courtyard, John sat mending a net.

"Peace be unto you," Luke moved through the gate, and after they had exchanged blessings, the Greek doctor explained his purpose. John nodded slowly, meditatively. He stepped to the door, and pulled aside the woven covering for Luke to enter.

Was Mary there? There is no proof that Luke talked with her, but indications that he did are many and persuasive. He alone obtained intimate material about Jesus' infancy.

His language, in his book, is typically Greek in style, except for portions devoted to Mary, which have a distinctive semitic flavor as if quoting her own words directly.

Moreover, Luke himself writes that no one but Mary had the information. "Mary kept all these things . . . in her heart." Presumably, he saw her, must have had that exclusive, memorable interview.

The years had not aged her. Her skin was still soft, and smooth, and her eyes shone with a tender, wise tranquility. She pressed Luke's hand, smiling, and led him to a stone seat in the garden.

The perfume of full-throated flowers was in the air.

CHERISHED MEMORIES

Indeed, the coming of her beloved Son had been long ago, but those moments lived on in her mind and soul. Mary spoke quietly, her words caressing each cherished memory, each precious scene.

He had been hers, yet not hers; he had belonged, yet not belonged; what made him so dear also had parted him from her. Of many things, she had told no one before. Yet, it should be known.

She had been a young virgin, betrothed to Joseph in a happy, festive ceremony held at full moon before witnesses and neighbors in Nazareth. In turn the couple had sipped the cup of ritual wine. "Blessed, art thou, O Lord . . . who has sanctified . . . the betrothed . . . Honey wafers had been passed to the guests.

Not long thereafter the miracle had occurred. To her, shy and pious, had come the bewildering message, brought by an angel of God. "Hail, O favored one," he had said, "the Lord is with you."

Mary shook her head, still overwhelmed by the astounding appearance of years ago. "I was greatly troubled at the saying," she related, "and considered in my mind what sort of greeting this might be."

Unobtrusively, Luke etched her words on his wax tablet. She went on.

The angel had said to her, "Do not be afraid Mary, for you have found favor with God. And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you shall call his name Jesus."

Mary's voice took on a melodious quality, like muted singing, as she repeated the angel's saying about her Son: "He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High . . . and of his kingdom there will be no end."

Mary recalled her stunned question: "How can this be since I have no husband?"

And the angel had said, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore the child to be born will be called holy, the son of God . . ."

And Mary had said: "Behold, I am the handmaid of the Lord; let it be to me according to your word."

Luke's hand trembled as he marked down the wondrous passages. Mary told how, in her excitement, she had left Nazareth, and hastened to the home of her elderly cousin, Elizabeth, in Judea, who had met her with a jubilant, intuitive cry:

"Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb . . . mother of my Lord."

Mary, remembering the incident, spoke very low, and Luke leaned toward her to catch each word. She seemed to be experiencing anew the emotions she knew then, and again, low and sweet, came the singing tones—the reverent, thrilled rapture of a maiden opening her heart at her older kinswoman's salutation: "My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for He has regarded the low estate of his handmaiden. For behold, henceforth, all generations will call me blessed; for He who is mighty has done great things for me, and holy is His name . . . He has put down the mighty from their thrones, and exalted those of low degree; he has . . ."

SOURCE OF GREAT HYMNS

The song continued, beautiful, exalting, pure strains of human transport at one with God, and Luke inscribed all the words—words that would be the great hymns of Christianity—the Ave Maria, the Magnificat, the Benedicta, the Gloria in Excelsis.

Many other things, too, Luke alone learned concerning Mary and the child she reared. She went into her curtained room and from a chest, inscribed with the heraldic Lion of David, she took scrolls and ancestral documents to show him.

Ancient church traditions say that Luke, an artist and musician as well as a physician, painted a picture of Mary during his stay at the garden-enclosed house in Capernaum.

There, he had touched the well-spring of the majestic moment, of God's rendezvous with man, the juncture of flesh and eternity. But Luke's mission still was unfinished. He had yet to reconstruct that arduous, fateful trip to Bethlehem.

Jim Shoulders Wins Triple Rodeo Title

DENVER, Dec. 21—Jim Shoulders, a city-born cowboy, today became the greatest champion professional rodeo ever produced when the Rodeo Cowboys' Association confirmed here that he has won three more world championships.

For the second year in a row, Shoulders was named all-around cowboy and won the championships in the only two events he enters, bareback bronc riding and bull riding.

New saddle bronc riding champion of the world is Alvin Nelson, 23, Sentinel Butte, N. D. who came from behind this year to win the title in a spectacular month winning streak unmatched in modern rodeo.

Calf roping Don McLaughlin, Smithfield, won his fifth calf roping championship.

The new steer wrestling champion is Willard Combs, the elder of the bulldozing brothers from Checotah, Okla. Benny, the younger brother, won the championship in 1955.

The champions were named after a complete audit of the RCA point award system, which gives each contestant one point for every dollar won at RCA rodeos through the year. The rodeo season ended officially last week with the completion of the last rodeo at Crestview, Fla.

In winning all the championships available to him for the second year straight, Shoulders set several new records that will be hard to beat. First, he now has won a total of 11 world championships, breaking a tie at eight titles he shared with former bronc riding champion Casey Tibbs, Ft. Pierre, S. D., until this year.

He is also the first man in rodeo to win the all-around championship either three times or twice in a row. And although three titles in one year have been won by other hands, Shoulders is the first to win a triple crown twice.

The triple triumph was in doubt right up to the last bronc of the year. Going into the competition at Crestview last week, Shoulders led John Hawkins, Manhattan Beach, Calif., by a slim margin of 62 points. At Crestview Hawkins won both day monies and the average in bareback bronc riding while Shoulders could manage only two seconds and a third money there.

Today's audit showed Shoulders won the bareback championship by only 18 points, 15,197 to 15,179 for Hawkins.

In his other two races Shoulders coasted home, 8,355 points ahead for the big title and 2,302 counters out in front in bull riding. His total winnings for the year, $33,299, were short of the record he set last year by winning $43,381. But they brought the total of what he has won in prize money since turning pro as a high school junior 11 years ago to $294,000.

The only time this year that the all-around championship seemed in doubt for him was in September, when he broke his collarbone on a bareback bronc at Lewiston, Idaho. But Shoulders finished the ride on that horse, stayed to ride another bronc and two bulls to win the all-around cowboy trophy of that rodeo and only laid off a week, missing one rodeo, to let the break heal.

Mitchell Hereford Association Sets Sale For Jan. 18

COLORADO CITY, Dec. 21—Mitchell County's ninth annual Hereford sale, sponsored by the Mitchell County Hereford Association, is set for Jan. 18 at the Tate Brothers Auction Barn, east of Colorado City.

Jack Burkhalter, secretary of the association, said that 33 head of cattle have been consigned to the sale. Among consignors are Tom Glover, Leslie Hamilton, Earl Brown, the Thompson Ranch, Sam Thompson, Chesney's Choice Herefords, all of Colorado City; Roy Henderson and Dub Harkrider of Big Spring, Walter L. Boothe of Sweetwater, and Jim Brown of Cuthbert. Officers of the Association include Henderson, president, Thompson, vice president, and Gus Chesney, treasurer.

Chesney said that the Association plans to erect a permanent sign in east Colorado City, advertising the annual sale.

Damp Weather Cuts CRMWD Production

The damp autumn has had a noticeable effect on the Colorado River Municipal Water District water deliveries.

Consumption by member cities and other customers of the district sagged by 77,000,000 gallons during the month of November in amounting to 638,658,000 gallons. (Actually these are October consumption figures which show up in the November billing).

Odessa with 192,060,000 gallons declined 20 million from November, 1956. Big Spring with 145,890,000 dropped 11 million. Snyder at 46,215,000 was virtually unchanged, and SACROC and Lion Oil with 210,748,000 together were off by about 36 million. Sharon Ridge consumed 39,983,000, a decline of 10 million for the month.

Of production totalling 662,568,000 for the month, 442,568,000 came from Lake J. B. Thomas and the balance from the city and district well fields.

Water sales for the month stood at $112,728, and recreational revenues reached $752 for the month. Expenditures included $1,723 for operation of the Odessa well system, $2,625 water royalties, $4,112 maintenance, $17,018 operating expense, $4,302 administrative and general expense, $1,684 for recreation purposes, a total of $31,467 for the month. This left $82,013 available for debt service and other special funds required by the bond indenture.

Former Resident Is Ill In Tulsa

Friends here have received word that Grady Duling, former resident of Big Spring, is critically ill in St. John's Hospital, Tulsa, Okla.

Duling for some time was manager of the Crawford Hotel here, before moving to Tulsa three years ago to become manager of the Adams Hotel in that city.

Nederland Cops 3-A Title, 20-7

NEDERLAND, Tex., Dec. 21 (U)—The Nederland Bulldogs, shacked for nearly half the game by a rugged Sweetwater line and their own penalties, finally broke loose behind Roger Rienstra, Gary Thacker and Mike Johnson for two fourth period touchdowns to win the AAA state schoolboy football championship 20-7.

Nederland scored in the first period the first time the Bulldogs got the ball. Sweetwater scored in the third period to take a 7-6 lead, but the Bulldogs scored the winning and insurance touchdown in the final period.

Rienstra got the first touchdown on a 1-yard back. Sweetwater's touchdown came on a 24-yard pass to Jackie Fielder from James Parker. Parker kicked the extra point to put Sweetwater ahead as Robert Richey missed his first try for Nederland.

Thacker got the winning Nederland touchdown on a 2-yard run. Rienstra scored the insurance touchdown on a 1-yard back and Richey kicked both points. Johnson's run gained vital yards time and again for Nederland. Penalties often stalled budding Nederland drives.

Parker fumbled on the second play after the kickoff and Johnson recovered for Nederland on the Sweetwater 35. Fred Melder, Johnson and Thacker put the ball on the one and Rienstra scored. A Rienstra fumble was recovered by Leon Fitts on the Nederland 47.

Parker and Thacker blocked a Parker punt and Nederland took over on the Sweetwater 22 early in the fourth period. Rienstra, Thacker and Johnson brought the ball to the 2 and Thacker scored. Sweetwater rolled back to its own 39 after the kickoff, gambled on a fourth and two situation, but failed and Nederland took over on the Sweetwater 40.

Johnson, Melder, and Thacker brought the ball to the one and Rienstra scored.

CLASS A CO-CHAMPS

White Oak Scores In Final Four Minutes To Tie Mart

WACO, Tex., Dec. 21 (U)—Roy Bruce raced 71 yards for a touchdown with four minutes left to tie with Mart for the Class A schoolboy football championship.

Bruce, the big hard-running fullback, also intercepted two passes in the final minutes to get chances to score again, but both failed. The first time Dave Alexander, White Oak's end, missed a field goal from the Mart 18-yard line and the next time White Oak lost the ball on a fumble after Bruce had taken the interception to the Panther 10.

The teams were co-champions under a pre-game agreement which said if they tied in the score they would share the championship. But had the game been determined on penetrations, first downs and yardage, Mart would have won because it had four penetrations to White Oak's three, 14 first downs to 10 and 255 yards to 230.

New Net Names Don't Interest Jack Kramer

MELBOURNE, Dec. 21 (U)—Loaded down with more talent than he can comfortably pay for, pro tennis promoter Jack Kramer is not interested in signing a new name from the amateur ranks this year.

"Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper are good prospects but we are not interested in them yet," Ted Schroeder, Kramer's advance representative, said today.

TV Controversy To Make News Through 1958

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—The biggest sports controversy of fast-fading 1957 undoubtedly will still be making headlines well into 1958.

It concerns the unannounced but definite move of a major television network to institute a Sunday game-of-the-week major league baseball series during the 1958 season.

Aligned on one side are the network—the Columbia Broadcasting System—the major league teams and the fans who will benefit from the program.

Opposing them are the minor leagues, Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and several members of Congress who consistently have taken a dim view of major league operations.

CBS' plan first became known at the yearly baseball meetings early this month. The network made no announcement and did not defend its position.

When queried by reporters about the TV plan, the minors immediately said they would ask Congress to re-open its probe of last summer into alleged antitrust activities in professional sports.

Frick immediately denounced the move but said he was powerless to do anything about it. And in Washington, Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and its antitrust subcommittee, and Rep. Frank Keating (R-Wy.) immediately came to the defense of the minors.

After the meetings, both Celler and Keating accused major league clubs of threatening the welfare of all organized baseball by planning to televise the Sunday games.

Then, George Trautman, president of the minors, formally asked Congress for legislative aid to combat the TV program.

Still, the other side had no complaint. But this week The Associated Press learned the network and the baseball teams still plan to go through with the telecasts.

Bitter comment from Trautman and Frank Shaughnessy resulted from the disclosure. Shaughnessy, as president of the International League and as a member of a minor league committee formed to combat the TV move, has been one of the leaders in the minors' fight.

Another baseball feud is the Abilene Eagles edge Brownwood.

ABILENE, Dec. 21 (SC)—Evening of a two-game series, the Abilene Eagles edged Brownwood, 35-34, here Friday night in a non-conference basketball game in which only nine personal fouls and one technical were assessed.

Sloped to a defensive walk, both teams work for sure set shots with Abilene taking a 17-14 lead at halftime. They still lead at the close of the third period, 27-23, but fell behind in the final, 30-29.

Sophomore John McElroy, connected with a fielder for the Eagles, who promptly went into a stall. Randy Hurst added a couple of free tosses.

Fred Carpenter led Brownwood with 13 points. Ken Cook was "high" for Abilene with eight.

Champ Terrell To Be Tougher Next Year

WACO, Dec. 21 (AP)—Terrell won its second state championship in five years Friday.

Terrell was magnificent as it paralyzed Brady with a ground attack that swept up 370 yards and brought a 41-6 triumph for the Class AA championship at Waco Friday night.

Tommy Caughran, the great Tiger quarterback, led the mighty offensive with 156 yards with the Tigers sweeping over Brady virtually at will for three quarters.

In the final period, with Terrell reserves playing most of the way, Brady managed to better than hold its own.

Brady scored with a minute to go with a 65-yard drive against Paul Lea, who took a punt back 62 yards for one touchdown and made another with a 1-yard plunge; Tommy Wagginer, who raked up 89 yards running with the ball and scored once on a 1/2-yard smash; Caughran, who raced 13 yards for a 6-pointer; Jimmy Keller, who drove one foot for another score, and Walter Dickenson, who also tallied with a 1-foot plunge, were the siege guns of the Terrell attack. Keller kicked five points after touchdown, giving him 60 for the season.

Jan Loudermilk Is Ahead Of 1956-57 Scoring Pace

Rangy Jan Loudermilk is well on his way toward breaking his own basketball scoring record for a Big Spring player.

In 12 starts, the 6-foot-6 senior has counted 282 points. Last year, he shattered Charles Clark's three year old mark by tossing 330 points through the hoop in 24 games.

Barring injury, Jan will play at least 13 more games this season. He's averaging 23.5 points a start.

Loudermilk will benefit from the fact that he will play more games this season. He has already set a career scoring record for a Big Spring player, having scored 1,215 points in 65 games over a period of 2 1/2 seasons.

The record may never be approached, since few sophomores become regulars in high school.

Loudermilk counted 403 points in 29 games his sophomore year. Two other Big Spring players are over the 100 mark in scoring. Preston Hollis has 124 and Bill Thompson 122.

Milch wants to get the drills finished in time for the athletes to devote full attention to track or baseball, whichever sport they plan to play . . . For the edification of Snyder scribe Buck Francis, who read here that Big Spring and Sweetwater were trying to get together for a "Thanksgiving game," most coaches refer to their final regular season contest as the "Thanksgiving" contest, even though Texas Interscholastic League rules dictate that play be completed a week in advance of Turkey Day . . . Francis voiced the opinion that Sweetwater might be conceding the fight in District 3-AAA by discussing such an arrangement . . . Mike Fornieles, the one-time Big Spring hurler, recently picked up the mound victory for Marianao in the Cuban Winter League, although he saw action only in the last frame of an 11-inning struggle . . . OLD WARRIOR READY

U.S. Netters Bid For Cup Dec. 26

By WILL GRIMSLEY
MELBOURNE, Dec. 21 (AP)—The United States makes another bid for the Davis Cup Dec. 26-28 with faithful old court warrior Vic Seixas, 44-year-old Gardner Mul-loy, and Barry MacKay, power-hitting young giant who has never played in a cup match before.
The odds are prohibitive that the Yanks again will cross the Pacific with the Cup, although in the last year Australia has lost its famous Davis Cup twins, Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall, to the professional ranks.
This trans-isthmian continent, which turns out talent on assembly line basis, will defend the international trophy with two new racket precisionists, Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper, in singles. Cagney lefthander Mervyn Rose, who has been removed from his longtime official doghouse, teams with Anderson in the doubles.
The draw is scheduled Wednes-day. Opening singles matches are slated Thursday, the doubles Fri-day, and the final singles Satur-day.
Harry Hopman, Australia's cap-tain, enters the match apparently less sure of himself than in re-cent years. He predicts a 4-1 tri-umph for his charges, but warns

Coach's Prize

Coach Harold Davis of HCJC, director of the annual Howard Col-lege basketball tournament, displays a transistor pocket radio, val-ued at more than $50, which will be given to the coach of the winning team in the Jan. 23-24 meet here. The radio was donated by F. D. Rogers of the R&H Hardware Company, an annual con-tributor to the prize list. In soliciting prizes for the tournament, Davis didn't get a single turndown in his calls and praised local merchants, business men and friends of basketball for supporting the meet.

Tourney Prizes Valued At $382

Prizes valued in excess of $382 will be given to individuals and teams participating in the sixth annual Howard College basketball tournament, scheduled to be held here Jan. 23-24. Coach Harold Davis of HCJC, director of the meet, said he had met wonderful response from busi-ness men and individuals in rais-ing money for the array of prizes.
The Howard County Athletic Club is again awarding the first place trophy, valued at $30. R&R Theatres is supplying the second place premium.
Stagg Auto Parts and Tom Con-way Service Station are combin-ing to furnish the third place trophy. The fourth place cup is being furnished by Clyde McMahon while J. D. Jones is donating the fifth place award and Chub Mc-Gibbon the money for the sixth place team.
Awards for the coaches of the top six teams are being supplied by R&H Hardware Company, Zale's Jewelers, Alexander's Jew-elers, The Men's Store, Merle's Creighton and Toby's Drive In. Zale's is furnishing two watches, one for the coaches and the other for the outstanding player of the meet.
Members of the all-star team (ten, in all) will benefit from prizes donated by Cornelison Clean-ers (two), Hardesty Drug, Coker's Restaurant, Reeder Insurance, Poncho's News Stand, Snak-A-Ritz, Tate, Bristow and Parks Insur-ance, Gene Turner's Service Sta-tion and Cook Appliance Store.
The junior college itself is sup-plying miniature gold and silver basketballs for members of the championship and second place teams.

Seven Teams Scrap For First Place

The Webb AFB Bowling League is laden with contenders for the first place position.
Field Maintenance No. 1 moved into tie with the past leaders in action last week, M&S Group 1 with a high single game for the evening of 1078 and high three games of 3012.
Where four games separated the top seven teams last week, now only three divides the first and seventh teams.
Support Squadron was second high for the night for three game total honors with a 2941, and Headquarters, Wing had the second high single game with 1060.
Numerous bowlers scored high for the night but Daisley of Weather had high single game of 265 followed closely by Roos of Head-quarters Wing with a 256.
Three game totals found Garri-son of M&S 2 as high man with a 675 and Heise of 60th Fl. Line Maint. with a 665. Only seven games separate the last nine teams in the league. The league will conclude activities until Jan. 9, when the final round will com-mence.

Cage Officials Body Seeking Additions

By BOBBY HORTON
The Big Spring Chapter of the Southwest Basketball Officials As-sociation could use some new members, according to Boyce Hale, secretary-treasurer of the unit.
"This area is in dire need of at least ten young men to of-ficiate basketball games. It's a promising and worthwhile work, and a fellow must love it to stick with it," Hale commented.
Presently, the organization lists ten members, two associate mem-bers, and a couple of inactives. President of the Big Spring Chap-ter is Jimmy Ray Smith.
Besides Hale and Smith are Pete Cook, Jack Kelo, Bernard Rains, C. W. Tanner, James Tid-well, and Bobby Zellars, each of whom officiates regularly.
Emil Pierson and Harold Davis, both with HCJC, have been idle for the past few years. Associate members are Okie Hagood and Jimmy Tolbert.
Texas is divided into eight dis-tricts, each of which is separated into various local chapters. Big Spring's chapter was organized ap-proximately a year ago. Actual-ly, there is no requirement that a referee must belong to the SBOA, but more and more leagues are continually seeking its members to call games.

CAGE QUERY

From time to time, The Daily Herald receives inquiries relative to old and new basketball rules. The newspaper, with the help of the local chapter of the South-western Basketball Officials Association, will endeavor to answer as many as possible of them. Following is a typical question:
QUESTION: Is last player to touch the ball in the back court always charged with having caused it to go to the back court?
ANSWER: No. Comment — A player causes ball to go into the back court only if his team is in control.
Question: If ball touches Official, is it always treated the same as if it had touched an op-ponent?
Answer: Not always. Comment: If ball passed by A touches Official and goes out of bounds, it belongs to B.
Question: Team A is awarded a dead ball after out of bounds for a throw-in. After team has been given possession B-1 pushes A-1. Official calls a technical foul.
Answer: False. Treat ball as a live ball. Any contact results in personal foul.
Play: A-1 has ball out of bounds at the side. He throws ball across the court and out of bounds at the end without touching any play-er.
Ruling: Ball has not become alive, since it has not touched a player inbounds. Award ball to B a spot of the original throw-in.
Play: A-1 is dribbling toward basket when official runs into a player and accidentally blows whis-tle. Dribbler continues and scores.
Ruling: Goal does not count since it was dead ball which fell in the basket. Comment: Award ball to A-1 at the out-of-bounds spot nearest the place where official blew his whistle.
Thoughts: Grudge games are wonderful events when cancelled by mutual consent.
Time and effort spent in learning game skills pay dividends in a lifetime of enjoyment which comes from being able to do a thing well.

Food For Christmas Baskets

The Robb, theatre operator, watches as Anne Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Howard, 1811 Morrison, leaves a can of food at the entrance to the Ritz Theatre Saturday morning. An item of canned goods was the price of admission for the Children's Matinee Saturday. The "gate" of about 700 cans was turned over to the Christian Cheer Fund for use in the preparation of baskets for needy families. Gandy Creamery, which usually sponsors the matinee, cooperated with Big Spring Theatres in staging the welfare project.

Ike Works On Speeches, Hits Few Golf Balls

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower worked today on two speeches he'll deliver Monday, took a brief respite to hit a few golf balls on the White House south lawn, and returned to his office for further work.

The President's main speech Monday will be at 8:30 p.m., EST, when he and Secretary of State Dulles will discuss by television and radio from the White House the accomplishments of the NATO summit meeting in Paris.

The other presidential speech will be a brief Christmas greeting delivered on the ellipse back of the White House before Eisenhower lights the national community Christmas tree.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower will go to the tree lighting, called the Christmas "Pageant of Peace," at 5 p.m.

War, Birth Too Much For Actors

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21 (AP)—Actress Audrey Hepburn and film-land attorney Greg Bautzer collapsed after a realistic birth scene at the premiere of the movie "A Farewell to Arms."

The scene showed Jennifer Jones in the throes of agony.

Both Miss Hepburn and Bautzer left their seats to head for the lobby. The actress fainted on the stairs, Bautzer collapsed in the lobby. Both were soon revived.

Miss Hepburn's husband, actor Mel Ferrer, said before taking her home: "The war scenes and the delivery scene apparently were too much for her."

Insurance Commissioner Hits Back At Senate Panel Critics

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner William Harrison struck back today at Senate investigators for "abuse, insinuations, innuendoes, wise cracks and unsupported allegations" thrown at him.

Harrison, along with State Liquidator J. D. Wheeler, were targets of the sharply critical Senate Investigating Committee during a public hearing that ended yesterday in Dallas. It will resume late in January or in February.

"If differences of opinion occur, why cannot they be settled without bitterness and anger?" Harrison asked.

WORKS WITH HOUSE

He said the State Board of Insurance was "working in harmony" with the House Investigating Committee and would like to do the same with the Senate committee. He indicated the House probe would begin some sort of insurance investigation soon.

"I am not surprised at Mr. Harrison's concern over the disclosures made public since he became commissioner," Sen. Charles Herring, head of the Senate committee, said of Harrison's statement today. "He realizes of course that he has been derelict in his duty. In fact he had admitted that under oath."

Herring said he did not know what the House committee was doing. "I haven't discussed it with them," he said. "The Senate committee will continue with its hearings despite Mr. Harrison's personal feelings."

Harrison was on the stand when the Senate committee recessed yesterday. "We probably will see more of him in January or February," Herring said.

"It took the insurance industry of Texas about 12 years to get into its present situation," Harrison's statement said. "I think it only reasonable to allow this administration a minimum of two years to straighten it out."

Throughout the Dallas hearing, held in the glare of television camera lights, Harrison and Wheeler were criticized for approving the transfer of 11½ million dollars in business from the now defunct Physicians Life and Accident Insurance Co. to Estate Life Insurance Co. of Amarillo.

John L. McCarty, Estate Life president until his resignation becomes effective Dec. 23, said his firm likely would go broke because of the transaction.

MCCARTY'S DECISION

Harrison testified he thought it was up to McCarty to judge if the transfer was "a good deal" for his company.

"For some reason, which I do not understand, the Senate General Investigating Committee has seen fit to cast one of the most recently challenged company presidents in a hero's role in the Dallas hearings," Harrison said. "The man they chose for that role admitted under oath that on Aug. 27 he made a $2,000 'gift' to a man who at that time was an employee of the State Board of Insurance. That company president also admitted under oath that he submitted a false financial statement."

Harrison said the Estate Life financial statement presented the Insurance Department July 12 listed $230,000 in cash "which was represented by a check on a company under his control for which no funds were available or expected to be available."

He said that on the basis of that "false financial statement" the Physicians Life-Estate Life transaction was approved. He said:

"So far as I know Mr. McCarty was the only person who signed the contract who knew that it was approved as a result of his submission of a false financial statement to Mr. Wheeler.

"Now Mr. McCarty is saying that he was duped and defrauded by the State of Texas. I say that he duped the State of Texas."

The commissioner also said that if the transfer of policies caused Estate Life to go bankrupt that "Mr. McCarty caused the condition to arise by presenting a false financial statement to Mr. Wheeler."

Several times during the Dallas hearing there were broad hints Harrison should resign.

"Some of my friends have asked me why I continue to work the long strenuous hours and take the abuse I have received recently," his statement today said. "I do so because I know I can do the job that must be done and I do not know who else the board could get under the present circumstances who would be willing and able to take it over and do better than I."

"I could, of course, do much better if the job could have my undivided attention."

The recessed Senate hearings and the indicated House probe are present day continuations of probes that began almost four years ago.

The 1955 Legislature passed 22 new laws to chink any loopholes in the insurance code and the recent Legislature completely reorganized the Insurance Department.

Harrison said today that since he became commissioner last June that charters of 11 insurance firms had been cancelled, 7 were placed into conservatorship or a sort of protective custody, and 5 firms have been dissolved.

H-SU To Offer New Course For C-C Managers

ABILENE, Dec. 21 (AP)—Hardin-Simmons University said today it plans a program of study in area development and Chamber of Commerce management beginning next fall.

The school's director of business administration, Dr. C. N. Millican said the programs have been developed because "there is a current awareness that West Texas must give immediate attention to area and industrial development."

This stems from what Dr. Millican called "the gradual shift in population from rural to urban areas and the rapidly changing character of the petroleum industry."

He said Hardin-Simmons will be one of the few universities offering this specialized type of programs. Comparable programs are being offered at Ohio State and the University of Arizona, he said.

The program will specialize in general management, Chamber of Commerce and trade association management, or area and industrial development.

Dr. Millican said the programs were developed after consultation with various groups, and added, "industrial firms, banks, public utility companies, railroads, city and state governments and chambers of commerce have expressed a growing need for more personnel with education and training in area and industrial development."

Atom Power Costly, But U.S. Seeks Prestige In Research

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—The United States is spending millions harnessing the atom to produce electrical power it doesn't need—and may not need for years to come.

Not only that, the power thus produced costs two to four times as much as power obtained from conventional sources, such as water, coal or oil.

Yet there is a strong probability that Congress in its next session will demand even more power from such uneconomic operations.

The situation may seem to make little sense, but it is sharply related to the cold war and whether people everywhere can be convinced that the United States, rather than Russia, is able to lead them to a better, more comfortable world.

U.S. objectives in this race are two-fold:

1. To maintain scientific prestige abroad in developing the atom for peaceful uses.
2. To gain the know-how to make electric power profitably from the atom.

There are serious doubts that the first objective is being achieved. The second still lies in the future so far as this country is concerned.

INTO COCKED HAT

Rep. Carl Durham (D-NC), chairman of the Joint House-Senate Committee on Atomic Energy, returned this fall from an inspection tour of European nuclear power plants and told a meeting of scientists and engineers:

"The headline story of the Russian satellite knocked into a cocked hat any thought of setting for the status quo in atomic energy developments. . . . The Communist Sputnik brings back into focus what we on the joint committee have often said should be our overriding objective: to maintain our world leadership. . . . We have to get on with the job of getting large-scale atomic plants built and operating. In that way we can maintain real leadership."

This raises the question, of course, as to who is going to build and operate such large-scale reactors, government or private industry?

Under the chairmanship of Lewis L. Strauss, the task of carrying out U.S. policy has been delegated by the Atomic Energy Commission primarily to private industry.

In amending the 1946 Atomic Energy Act, the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress in 1954 opened the door to development of nuclear power by industry.

WORLD PEACE

Congress declared the policy of the United States in the field of nuclear electric power should be directed so as to promote world peace, improve the general welfare, increase the standard of living and strengthen free competition in private enterprise."

Repeatedly Strauss and AEC Commissioner Harold S. Vance have stressed the words "private enterprise."

But there have been grumblings in Congress, especially by Democrats, that industry was not getting on with the job properly.

In 1956 the Democrats made a strong effort to appropriate 400 million dollars for large-scale reactor development. Pressure from the administration, particularly Strauss, killed the proposal.

Today there is only one power-producing reactor plant in the nation which is wholly owned and operated by private industry, the 5,000-kilowatt producer at Pleasanton, Calif., of General Electric and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Other reactors are producing power for civilian use.

There is a 6,500-KW plant, owned by AEC, at Santa Susana, Calif. from which the Southern California Edison Co. gets electricity.

An AEC spokesman denies that the AEC makes electricity, holding that "we just sell the steam."

DUQUESNE POWER

At Shippingport, Pa., there is a 110-million-dollar, 60,000-KW plant almost wholly owned by the AEC. Duquesne Light and Power Co., which distributes the electricity, contributed five million dollars to the cost of the atomic reactor and put up some 10 million for turbines and plant facilities.

There are two other small producers at the Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, Ill., and at the AEC's Oak Ridge, Tenn., installation. The AEC says they produce for civilian use.

In brief, the United States is producing 81,500 kilowatts and only 5,000 of that is by private industry alone.

But three plants are under construction and scheduled to begin producing sometime between 1960 and 1965—the 80,000-KW plant of Commonwealth Edison near Joliet, Ill., the 275,000-KW plant (only 140,000 from nuclear reactors) of Consolidated Edison near Indian Point, N. Y., and the 100,000-KW of the power reactor development company near Monroe, Mich.

Two other medium-sized plants are in the immediate planning stage, the 75,000-KW plant of Consumers Public Power of Nebraska and the 134,000-KW plant of Yankee Atomic Electric Co. of Rowe, Mass.

The Indian Point and Joliet projects, except for the AEC's research, are to be industry projects alone.

On the face of it the United States has an impressive start in the nuclear power field.

By way of comparison, though, England has one plant—of 90,000 KWs at Calder Hall—which has been producing more power for commercial use since 1956 when all the present U. S. installations combined.

England is building three more such plants and is planning another 15 at a cost of about four billion dollars. In 10 years England expects to have about six million kilowatts of capacity, the United States about one million.

Russia, though the claims are viewed with some skepticism by the AEC, has announced a program of half a million kilowatts capacity by 1960.

Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) said after his return from Russia two months ago the Soviets told him they had two big plants under construction, one of 400,000-KW capacity and the other 420,000 KW,

Business Gloom Is Deep In Some Areas

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—The fog of gloom shrouding the nation's business lifted at a couple of spots this week and thickened in several others.

The Christmas shopping season roared to a climax in a blaze of artificial light. Shoppers, no longer hesitant, fought their way into jam-packed department stores and suburban shopping centers. Consumption of electricity smashed all prior records as merchants from Fifth Avenue to Main Street turned on the Christmas lights.

Away from the bright lights of Main Street, Christmas cheer was tinged with pessimism.

Layoffs were in prospect for thousands of workers producing cement, automobiles, typewriters, television sets and textiles.

Chrysler Corp., announcing a drastically curtailed production schedule, ordered a two-week holiday shutdown of its DeSoto and Dodge divisions in the Detroit area and a one-week closing of its Plymouth and Chrysler division plants. The announced reason: to bring production into better balance with dealer inventories.

Ford reported new layoffs at Mahwah, N.J. Chevrolet, still producing under a forced draft, edged past Ford in the 1957 production derby after setting a new weekly high of nearly 45,000 cars, but Ford still led in sales.

Despite higher production by Chevrolet and Rambler, total passenger car output this week was down nearly 10 per cent from a year ago. Production for the year passed the six million mark, but Detroit sources said there was little hope it would reach the announced 1957 goal of 6,200,000.

Steel output—estimated by the American Iron & Steel Institute at 1,739,000 tons—was the lowest in three years for a strike-free week. Steel scrap prices moved up for the first time in months, but this was due to foreign demand rather than any increase in domestic operations.

The oil industry scaled down its demand forecasts. Texas made a further cut in the state's "allowable" oil production for January.

The railroads reported a 15.9 per cent drop in freight carloadings from a year ago and asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a new round of freight rate increases averaging three per cent. This would be on top of the 15 per cent boost granted by the ICC last August.

After a dismal performance, stocks rallied briskly late in the week on expectations that federal reserve officials would make new moves to ease credit. When nothing happened, the stock market bogged down again.

TEXAS RETAIL SALES OVER $10 BILLION

AUSTIN, Dec. 21 (AP)—Texas retail sales this year have exceeded 10 billion dollars, up 3 per cent from last year, the Bureau of Business Research said today.

Sales for 11 months were 10½ billion dollars with nondurable goods sales totaling 7,150,000 billion dollars.

November's retail sales were estimated at 866 million dollars, 2 per cent below October, 1957 and 1 per cent below November of last year.

Leading cities in November gains over last year in dollars volume department and apparel stores were Greenville up 13 per cent, Paris up 7, Marshall and McAllen up 6, and Wichita Falls up 5 per cent.

What about a family stocking -Dad?

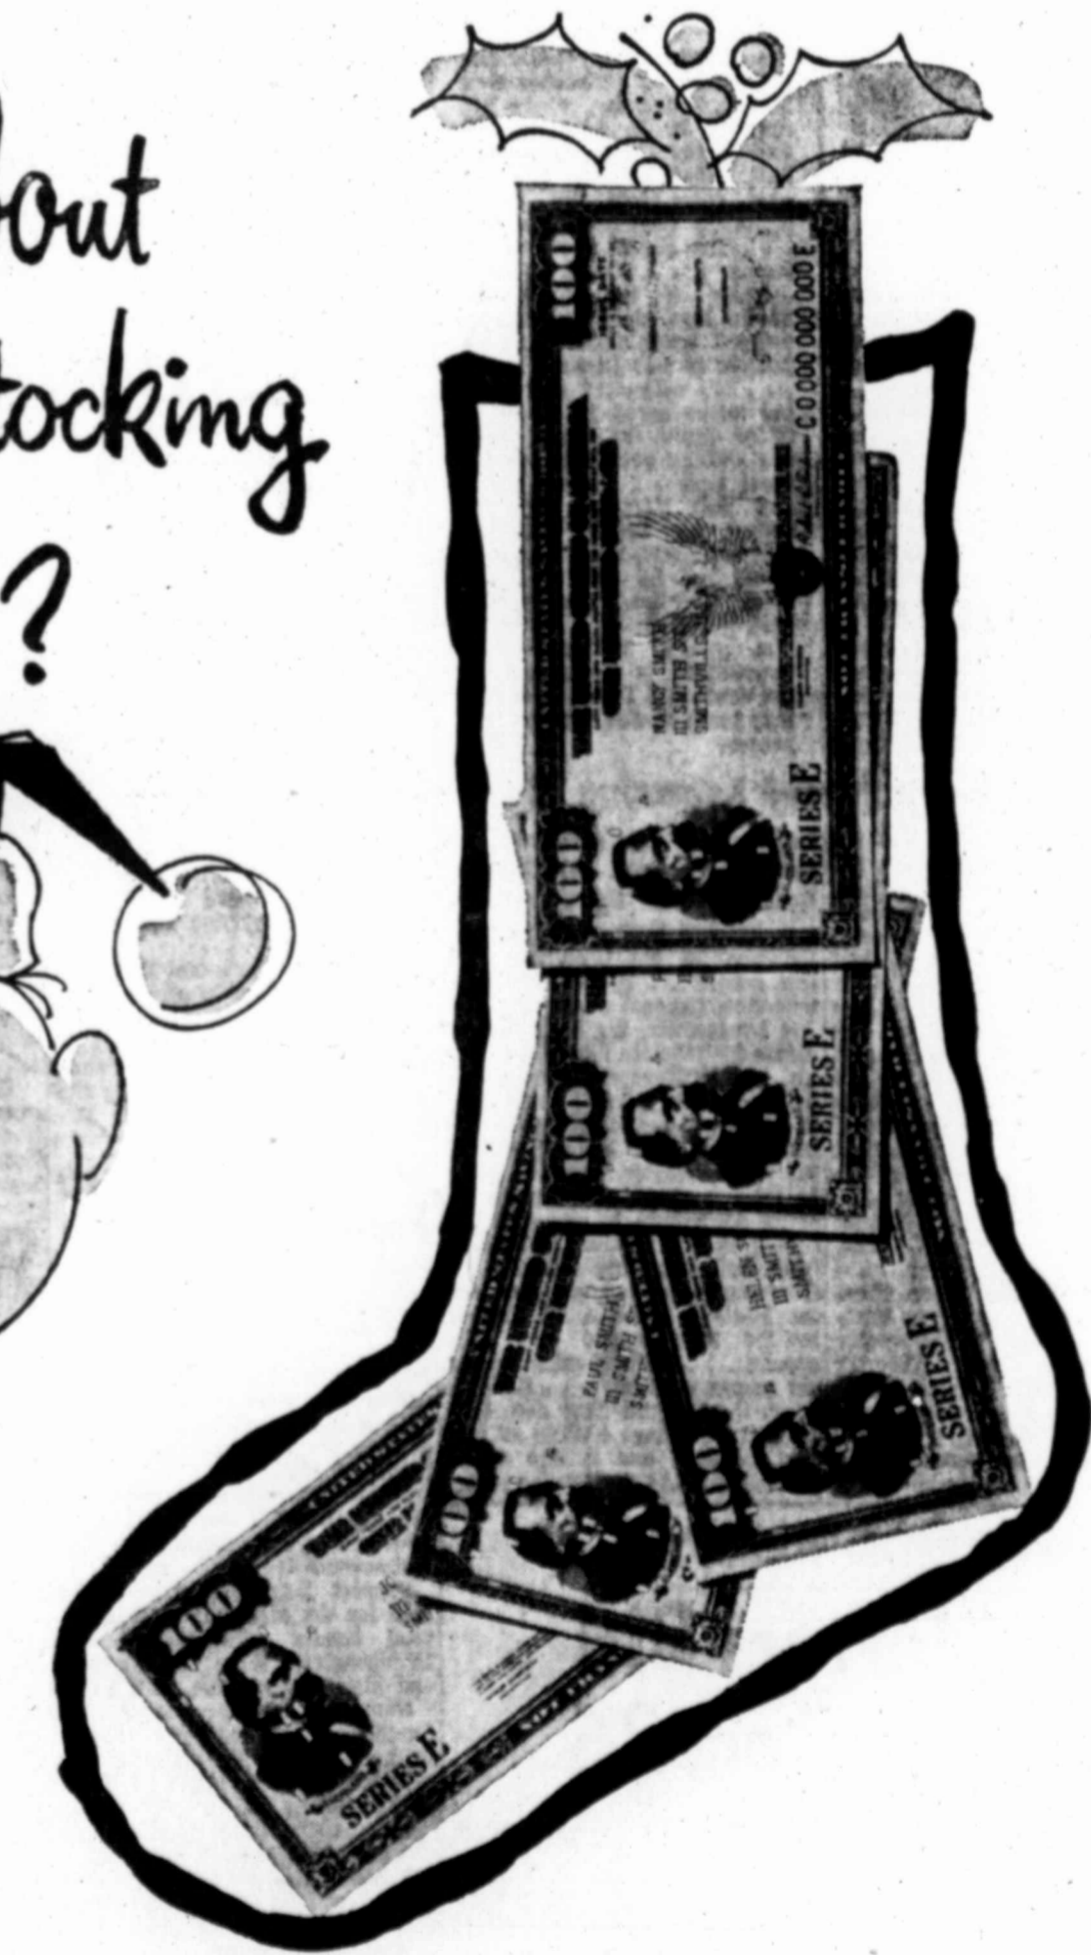

Wise fathers know that, next to love, the greatest gift they can give their families is security.

And financial security is built on systematic savings!

What's the easiest, safest way to save? As millions of Americans have discovered, it's the Payroll Savings Plan offered to you by your employer.

Through this plan your money is saved for you before you get a chance to spend it. All you do is sign the authorization card in the payroll office where you work. Sign up for the amount you want. Then, each payday, that money is put into your account. When there's enough, a Savings Bond is bought in your name and given to you.

And Savings Bonds now earn more interest than ever before. Every Series E Savings Bond purchased since February 1, 1957 earns 3¼% when held to maturity. It matures faster, too—in only eight years and 11 months. And it earns higher interest in the earlier years.

So why not give the whole family an extra Christmas gift this year? Sign up today for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work!

The piggy bank that can't be raided!

To see how fast small change can add up, put it into Savings Stamps. 10¢ and 25¢ denominations available at your post office along with handy albums to keep them in. How about putting an album with a few stamps in each Christmas stocking?

CHRISTMAS DAY PLUS BIRTHDAY!

THE ONE BIRTHDAY PARTY ever attempted for her turned out to be a complete failure, according to Mrs. Eugene Deaver, 1404 Runnels, who prepares to cut her cake ahead of her Christmas Day birthday. The party was given on Christmas Eve to mark her sixth birthday anniversary; everything went well, she remembers, for about half an hour, when one of the little guests decided he would go home and get in bed so Santa could hurry to see him. This gave ideas to all the other guests — and they followed suit; it was fun for just about an hour, but her mother never tried another party. Mrs. Deaver was born in St. Jo, Texas.

A SECOND BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY is in store for James Stephen Meador, (pictured right), son of Mr. and Mrs. James Meador, 1703 Morrison Drive, who is working hard to master the riding of a tricycle. Stevie was born at Medical Arts Hospital on Dec. 25, 1955. He has a cocker spaniel whose color matches her name, Ginger; this year he's looking forward to finding a rocking horse and a wagon beside his stocking on Christmas morning.

BLOW HARD! says Mrs. J. I. Balch, the "birthday child" to her four-year-old granddaughter, Pam Eubanks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Eubanks. Pam thought that one big candle would be better on her grandmother's birthday cake than smaller ones, and she anxiously awaited her turn to blow out the candles — which she did, in fact, before the photo above could be snapped. Mrs. Balch was a Christmas present to her parents in Bearden, Arkansas.

EXTRA ATTENTION is given to Grover Wiley on Christmas Day, since he is always cheated out of a birthday party. In the photo above, Mrs. Wiley practices bringing him his paper, while he gets comfortable with his pipe. Their daughter, 13-year-old Pat, demonstrates how nice it will be to have his house slippers ready to slip into after the long day of opening presents—both Christmas and birthday. His birthplace is Deming, N.M., but they have lived in Big Spring since 1943.

A COMBINATION CHRISTMAS TREE and holder of birthday gifts is the tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Tuckness, 1313 Stadium. Ira Gene, who will celebrate his fourth birthday anniversary Wednesday, examines one of his birthday gifts, which he has taken from underneath the beautifully decorated tree. He was born at Malone-Hogan Hospital on Christmas Day in 1953, and his birthday was marked with a party on Friday.

Should We Unwrap It Now?

S-Sgt. and Mrs. Thomas Schott appear to be asking each other the important question. Christmas will be merry enough for this young couple. But if the moving van with all their furniture will only arrive, it will be an even merrier one.

Young Couple, Newly Arrived, Make Welcome Addition To Choir

Although it has been a mere two weeks since they arrived here, S-Sgt. and Mrs. Thomas Schott have already been drafted into the choir for Catholic services at Webb Base Chapel. He is a baritone, she a soprano.

The two weeks have not been their most comfortable yet can remember. The furniture has not arrived and, in fact, might not reach here until after Christmas. So the apartment at 1210 Main is virtually bare, but the Schotts are not complaining. They are happy to have found a place.

Schott has just completed five years in the Navy; when his enlistment ended he decided to enter the Air Force and make it a career. They arrived in Big Spring on December 6 from St. Louis Naval Air Station, and he has assumed his duties in Hdqrs. Sec. of 3560th Pilot Training Wing.

'Texas Sets The Trends', Claims House And Garden In '58 Forecast

By HELEN HURT
There are those who somewhat caustically claim that Texans brag. Well, let them examine the January '58 issue of House and Garden and they will see brag galore about Texas—from non-Texans.
In their edition labeled "Texas Sets The Trends", House and Garden editors forecast for 1958 exciting new trends in living which have already gripped Texans—folk with rugged individuality—who refuse to be regimented into blind conformity.
The approach taken by this magazine is refreshingly free of the blatant accent on those few showoffs who would try to pass themselves off as the typical Texan they are not.
The trends, spotlighted and illustrated with Texas homes, total 25, and embrace architecture and design, cooking and entertaining.

For example, the House and Garden prophets foresee a tendency toward new distinction for front doors; oversized doors touched with carving and brass ornamentation. And they see a wave of popularity for the two-story livingroom. The feeling for a spaciousness finds expression, too, in the turn to courtyard living, when one can enjoy all the delight of the outdoors yet have complete privacy and protection.
Home builders will pay greater attention to planning storage space and there will be more indoor barbecues than ever before. What is termed "a living garage" will come into focus and become actual living quarters rather than mere car storage.
The homework room or what might now be more accurately termed the catch-all, will bloom into importance for its attractive decor as well as its utilitarian function. The kitchen will be larger because people realize it is a family room and an entertaining area with a friendly atmosphere.

The House and Garden people also note the development of divided houses; the general living area is entirely separate from the bedroom area, perhaps connected by glassed-in walkway. And glass is used everywhere to create the illusion of bringing the outdoors under the roof.
Decorating trends call for three-dimensional effects in wallpaper; fabric designs rich with the influence of faraway countries; the return of the Renaissance in royal colors and modifications of furniture in woods; graduated shades in one color family; a return to basic Shaker lines in furniture.
There will be an easier formality in entertaining, with guests in small enough number to be handled without strain. The cocktail supper will become a favorite with hostesses, who will prepare food and drink and serve buffet-style, so that guests may come and go, partaking of either food or drink, or of both or neither.
The hostess will find new excitement by using exotic menus which may now be prepared with time-saving devices and improved ingredients. These colorful specialties will prompt more imaginative table decorations. The electronic stove is seen for the sometime-hence, when meats and vegetables can be cooked in a matter of minutes. Out in the garden there will be profusion of flowers in the purple family, ranging from the deepest violet to the daintiest lavender.
These are but glimpses of trends House and Garden showcases in January, and Texans are instrumental in this forward look. There are also articles about literary Texas and her cultural life.

Use Sense When You Buy Scents

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor
If that girl in your life has her heart set on a fragrance, don't disappoint her. Some men think that perfume is a frivolous indulgence. But it isn't so. A woman who wants perfume thinks of it usually as an accessory to her wardrobe.
You probably can get her favorite scent in the quantity you can afford. If not, perhaps toilet water or cologne will solve your shopping problem. There are gimmick-type gifts too, that fall into the perfume category, that may do as surprise additions.
Tie to the tree a smart gold metal purse fiasco of a lavender floral scent. It has a coin dispenser at the base, and comes with a tiny refilling funnel. Or give her an atomizer that is especially designed to protect perfume from evaporation and change.
Perfume will give her more mileage than other fragrances, of course, although the initial investment sometimes seems overwhelming to the budget. A light, long-lingering scent, goes a long way. One available in a metered spray gives some 200 applications in the smallest bottle.

Seasonal Decorations Used For Riley - Meador Wedding Saturday

Holly and baskets of poinsettias banked the altar of the First Methodist Church in Coahoma Saturday evening for the wedding of Beverly Meador and J. B. Riley Jr. of Burkburnett.

Candelabra and palms filled in with the seasonal decorations, while the aisles of the church were fringed with flocked spruce branches and holly.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. H. L. Morris, pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Meador of Coahoma; parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Riley Sr. of Burkburnett.

Wearing a gown of tulle enhanced by bands of Chantilly lace, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bodice, fashioned of tulle, featured a portrait neckline outlined with the lace and bands of tulle. Lace also made the brief sleeves which were complemented with long white kid gloves.

Coming to a center point, the bodice was attached to a full floor length skirt of layers of tulle and net encircled with bands of scalloped lace.

A coronet of seed pearls held in place a tiered veil of imported silk illusion. Orchids and stephanotis showered with potted ribbons were shaped into a cascade arrangement which the bride carried.

BRIDAL TRADITION
For something old, there was a handmade handkerchief, which had been a gift to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. T. S. Alexander of Valley Mills, 68 years ago. The bridal attire was new; borrowed was a string of pearls belonging to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bob Meador of Lubbock, and the bride wore a blue garter. In her shoe was a penny for good luck.

Mrs. G. H. Willettis of Lubbock attended her sister as matron of honor; the maid of honor was Sue Garrett of Coahoma, and the bridesmaid was Martha Ligon of Abilene.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bob Meador and Mrs. Johnny McMillan of Santa Rosa, N. M. also accompanied Don Scargill, vocalist. "If Thou Be Near" was selected as the music for the ceremony, and the traditional wedding marches were played.

All feminine attendants were gowned in identical fashion in white length frocks of green velvet. Fashioned with scooped necklines and long bodices, the dresses were fronted with princess lines in made with pleated skirt. The taperlighters wore red dresses.

Christmas trees still have the same shape as always but that is about the only thing that resembles the old time green tree decorated with a variety of baubles and multi-colored lights. MRS. P. D. O'BRIEN used 45 yards of pastel green net to fashion a beautiful six foot tree for her family while MRS. TRAVIS CARLTON had her tree cut from pieces of plywood. Painted white and sprinkled with silver glitter it makes a very unusual and quite modern tree.

Weekend guests of MR. AND MRS. ARNOLD MARSHALL are Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wardell and Linda, who are en route to Lubbock to spend Christmas with Mrs. Wardell's parents. The Marshalls will spend the Christmas Day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Ford in Windham.

RAY SIMPSON with whom we had a pleasant visit before dinner. MR. AND MRS. ROY CRIMM are back in Stanton after spending several years in Louisiana. They are happy to be home in Texas, where they can get a good cup of coffee.

After years of trying to get by the Phil Berry house for a visit, we finally made it Friday night while in Stanton and ran into the J. A. Coffeys, the Sherman Smiths and the Horace Reagans. Also there were Mrs. Berry's mother, Mrs. Larry Layton, and Mr. Layton, of El Paso, who are to spend the holidays with the Berrys. Members of the Booster Band of East Fourth Baptist Church visited MRS. J. W. WOOTEEN Friday evening and sang carols for her. The serenade really brought the Christmas spirit to her, Mrs. Wooten said.

Add To Brightness Of Christmas With Color

White Christmases are traditional, but this year it looks like a bright Christmas, too. Gifts for the home are prettier, more colorful than ever before. Sunny colors and patterns add a festive air to sheets, towels, tablecloths, rugs, and other family presents. Long favored for their practical utility, household cottons now are seasoned with holiday charm as well. And, with gifts like these, Santa has less to worry about in finding the right size.

Plenty To Be Proud Of

Dolls Rehabilitated In Workshop Of FHA

Amidst the busy schedule at Big Spring High School, the FHA girls have found time to show the real Christmas spirit. The girls have turned the clothing lab into Santa's workshop. Subjects of the activities being carried on in the workshop are dolls which have been collected from various sources. These have been rehabilitated and will gladden the heart of some little girl on Christmas. In one corner of the workshop the girls have had a beauty center. Here they washed, brushed, cut and shaped the dolls' hair, in various styles, ranging from old-fashioned buns to modern shags. From here, the dolls went into the general cleaning and repairing center, where they were bathed and scrubbed until they shone. Then any part that needed mending was repaired. The dolls went next into the fashion center of the workshop. They received new clothing of all styles—pajamas, formals, dresses, or play clothes. They also got bright, shiny new shoes. This completed the trip around the workshop for the dolls. Some 80 dolls have traveled through this workshop, and are to be taken to the fire station and distributed to homes where they are needed.

HI--TALK

By Brenda Barr

The holiday season is in full swing with the traditional parties and dances. The happiest occasion for students at BSHS was Friday, the day holidays began.

Santa Claus visited BSHS Friday during the Christmas assembly. Following his appearance one of the most effective and well planned productions ever staged at BSHS was presented by the Bible Club. Wesley Deats, assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church, gave the annual Christmas message.

The Wagon Wheel Restaurant was the scene of a birthday dinner Sunday for Brenda Gordon and Sammie McComb. Attending were Lynn McMahan, Prissy Pond, Brenda Barr, Barbara Coffee, Carlene Coleman, and Susan Landers.

Tuesday night the Seba Tri-Hi-Y had a progressive supper. Some of the junior girls enjoying the food were Jo Ann Ebling, Sharon Creighton, Mary Jane Weaver, Peggy Isaacks, Darlene Williams, and Kathleen Thomas.

Beau Night for the Homemaking Girls was held Tuesday night, too. This is a traditional affair for the girls and their dates. Marilyn Bigham, Bill French; Sherry Lurking, Benny Edwards; Carol Ann Phillips, James Drake; Judy McCrary, Jerry Hutchins; Joyce York, Jimmie Holms; Barbara Dunham, Theo Brinson; Carolyn Wilson, Larry Morgan; Lynn Sneed, Don Cannon were just a few who went.

Bringing home a huge trophy, the Steers proudly returned from the Andrews Tournament last week. Out of some 200 boys, Jan Laudermilk was named outstanding player and each of the boys received a gold basketball.

Wednesday night Sandra Havens and Lane Edwards had a party at Sandra's house. Opal Hancock, Jean Fuqua, Lynn McMahan, Judy Cauble, Smoky Meeks, and Prissy

LANE EDWARDS

Pond were just a few who attended.

Malinda Crocker's home was the site of a party Wednesday night also. Exchanging gifts and enjoying the fun were Pat Johnson, Gloria Coker, Iva Nell Cole, Lana Wren, Mary Ella Bain, and Sue Brown.

Mrs. Erma Steward was hostess at the annual party for the El Rodeo and Corral staff and their dates before the formal Saturday night. Janice West and Jerry Fowler, Susan Landers and Bruce Moore, Lane Edwards and Lefty Reynolds, Brenda Gordon and Donald Lovelady, Karen Montgomery and Roy Hughes, Edith Freeman and George Peacock attended.

Several of the couples seen at the Christmas Formal were Marilyn Mann and Billy Bob Satterwhite, Toni Thomas and Lanny Hamby, Jean Fuqua and Jimmy Waits, Valjean LaCroix and Tommy Buckner, Mary Jane Weaver and Terry Stanley, Don Davidson and Gwyn McCollough, Linda Nichols and Bobby Overman.

The long awaited presentation of the best-all-around, favorites, and school beauty was given at the formal Diana Dawson was presented as this year's school beauty; the runners up were Janice West and Jo Ann Ebling.

Today's senior of the week, Mary Lane Edwards, has the enormous job of being editor of this year's annual. Besides that, Lane is a member of the Iota Tri-Hi-Y and the First Presbyterian Church. In her sophomore year, she was president of the Tri-Hi-Y and in the Spanish club; last year she was staff assistant of El Rodeo and a Who's Who representative. As for the future a person with Lane's talents will certainly make a success of anything she undertakes.

Birthday Celebrated Early With Party

An early birthday party was given for Ira Gene Tuckness Friday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Tuckness. He will celebrate his fourth birthday anniversary on Christmas Day.

A birthday cake with "Happy Birthday, Gene" written in red and green frosting, was served to 14, and games were played by the group. Favors were tiny snow men filled with candies.

Travels Of Pupils Add Interest To Geography

Project Work For Geography Students

Mrs. Kenneth Stormans, eighth grade Social Relations teacher, praises work done by Gerald Harrison and Sandra Carter. Gerald's map of the north half of the Western Hemisphere is made from flour, while Sandra colored the southern part of the U.S. to show early colonization.

By DON HENRY

Geography instruction in Big Spring public schools gets a valuable assist from Webb AFB — free of charge.

That assist comes in the form of a level for many of the youngsters who attend school here.

Teachers in grades where geography is taught agree that students who have traveled extensively—both in the United States and in foreign countries—add considerably to effective teaching of the subject.

Geography in Big Spring is limited to only six grades and it is taught only for a short time in three of these. At present eighth grade geography work is the last given at all in senior high.

But where students do have the course, the influence of students who have "been there" helps others learn and it also makes teaching easier.

Boys and girls get their first taste of geography without actually knowing it in the third grade. There, teachers begin bringing in community life, such as the fire department, police, and other community agencies. Frequently, students make trips to these places to gain first-hand information about them.

The need of people for shelter, clothing and food is also taught, and some study is given to people who help build our communities.

AROUND THE WORLD

Geography is added to the curriculum in the fourth, as students take up their neighbors around the world. They "visit" other lands, taking a trip around the world.

This trip doesn't take them to specific countries with surveyed boundaries, only natural areas, such as the cold lands, the desert lands, the lands of corn and wheat, the grasslands, and forest lands. They learn how these peoples live, the kinds of clothes they wear, and something about the boys and girls their age. They also pick up geographical terms and conquer the concept of a round world.

Fifth grade geography deals with the American continent and peoples of the New World. Two-thirds of this study is devoted to the United States and the remaining part to its neighbors, Canada and Mexico, principally.

Teachers stress the idea of man living in a changing world—not a static situation—to their students. The boys and girls are urged also to write students in other states to learn about their schools and communities. This, teachers claim, brings the study closer to the students. In this course also the Webb influence is strongly felt.

FIRST-HAND REPORTS

Students whose parents have been stationed in various parts of the nation relate their experiences, and other students pick up facts about geography more readily from these discussions. Teachers in all these courses use filmstrips and movies as much as possible in stressing natural resources and conservation.

Students return to world geography in the sixth grade, with emphasis on Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia. Here students take a close look at the economic and political relationships between nations.

Because of the present world situation, teachers are devoting more and more time to the study

'Christmas Star' To Shine Brilliantly This Dec. 24

By SAM BLACKBURN

There will be a real Christmas star this year.

On Dec. 24, the planet Venus, at the peak of its greatest brilliance, will hover in the western skies for a full three hours after sunset. To add to the picturesqueness of the occasion, the moon, a thin crescent three days old, will be just to the north of the glittering planet.

These two celestial objects will present a dramatic background for any carolers who may be out singing their traditional songs on the eve of Christmas.

Venus has been steadily growing brighter and brighter daily for the past several weeks. On Dec. 23, actually, it will reach maximum magnitude. The next brightest star in the heavens at that time will be Sirius, the dog star near the constellation Orion.

Astronomers use a scale to gauge the brightness of stars. On Dec. 23, Sirius will be magnitude 1.4 in that scale. To indicate the brilliance of Venus it is noted that on Dec. 23 and Dec. 24, Venus will be of magnitude 4.4 or 16 times as bright as Sirius.

Venus is moving steadily nearer the earth in its journey around its orbit. It is now about 40 million miles from earth. On Jan. 23 it will be only 26 million miles from us. The maximum distance it ever gets from earth is 160 million miles.

On Christmas eve, with Venus and the moon so near together, star gazers who employ a telescope to look at the planet will discover that the planet, like its satellite companion, is also a crescent. It will not be quite as thin as the slice of moon but it will be noted as definite arc rather than an orb.

This pleasant special Christmas decoration for the heavens occurs from time to time but it is rare that the combination of Venus and the moon near together falls so aptly on Christmas day.

According to legend the star which led the Wise Men to the manger was in the east. The Christmas star in the year 1957

Fraternity Runs Bus

AUSTIN (AP)—Members of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at the University of Texas here solved their portal-to-portal transportation problems by going into the bus business.

As owners, operators and customers of the Ivy League Bus Line, about 90 Phi Psi's ride to and from classes in a 1948 model former school bus.

Three members take turns driving the bus on an hourly schedule over the 10 blocks between the new fraternity house and campus. At the end of each month each of the 90 riders chips in his share of the upkeep for the bus.

Who Scrapped Town's Records?

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP)—The big question at the town hall is, who tore an entire section out of the newly bound copy of the 1952-55 town reports, and why?

The town has bound copies of all the reports from about 1850 on, available for inspection at the selectmen's office.

The loss was discovered when the town council attempted to look up something concerning the March 1952 town meeting.

Explanation Ready, But Not Logical

CLEVELAND (AP)—Victor Yonke, 28, of Cleveland had a ready explanation for officers who stopped him for speeding 100 miles-per-hour on Municipal Shoreway.

"I was trying to get to a gas station before I ran out of gas," Yonke said. He went to jail anyway.

A Bible Thought For Today

Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved. (Acts 4:12)

They Believe In Service

Frequently you notice in the news items about projects in which the Officers' Wives' Club participates. Some folk have the odd notion that the OWC is something purely social; actually it is exemplary in acceptance of civic responsibility.

Most of our women's organizations perform unselfish services which make our community happier and more liveable, and we are grateful. Our purpose in singling out the Webb AFB Officers' Wives' Club is that whereas it would be all too easy for such an organization to confine itself to the interest of those connected with the military, the OWC has dispelled the idea that there is some invisible line between the military and civilian.

By shouldering a generous portion of the civic and service load, these women have proven time and time again that they, too, are "home towners" of the purest sort. The quality of work they have done fortifies their record, for no little of it has been in helping the physically handicapped and mentally ill.

No sir, the OWC members aren't hot house plants. Their contribution is all the more appreciated because rotation means that many of them will not be around to witness all the fruits of their labors. The great good that all women do for our town is strengthened by the unselfishness of the Webb women folk.

Be Careful Not To Spoil Christmas

Christmas can be the most happy time of the year, and it can be a time for greatest sorrow when tragedy intervenes. In matters of health and heartbeats, perhaps none of us exercises immediate control, but we can avoid the needless pain and sorrow which go with needless tragedy.

If you are going somewhere on the highways for the holidays, please go just a little slower than you had planned. Just for once, try to be twice as alert and watchful for the other fellow. Don't get in an uproar if you're running a little behind schedule, your family and friend will be happy to see you only if you are alive. Please double check your wiring around the Christmas tree and clear away all the fluff paper and trimmings as soon as you can. And it probably would be wise to pull the plug on the Christmas tree lights if no one is to be home for awhile.

If you must shoot fireworks, show them the same respect that you would a gun. Blinded eyes and blasted fingers are too great a sacrifice to pay for a moment of daring.

Play Christmas safe and you can play it pleasantly again and again in your memory.

David Lawrence

Mood Of Americans Toward Allies

WASHINGTON—A Gallup Poll made in England says that the majority of people there don't want to permit American missile bases on their territory. Norway, Denmark and West Germany are doubtful, too. The NATO conference has agreed to go ahead "in principle" with the idea of putting missile bases and nuclear stockpiles in Western Europe, but to discuss details later. There is a noticeable hesitancy on the subject among some of our allies.

Is European public opinion really informed about the true feelings of the American people concerning all this doubt and hesitation? Most Washington correspondents of European newspapers look only in a few metropolitan papers in the East for quotes to send abroad. They do not seem to realize that there is a vast "hinterland" which is also a part of America and which influences Congress.

All Europeans might well read an editorial which appeared this week in "The Morning Tribune" of Tampa, Florida.

"Sitting here in a country which hasn't felt the invader's boot since 1812, perhaps an American is in a poor position to understand why some of our European allies seem to get the shakes when Russia warns them against agreeing to put NATO missile bases on their soil.

"But there is one thing the American understands quite clearly:

"He and his fellow taxpayers in the United States have been carrying the main part of the burden in the defense of the free world since the end of World War II.

"American billions perfected and maintained the atomic bomber force which, like a 24-hour cop on the corner, has kept the Soviet hand in check. American billions rebuilt and refueled the broken-down economy of every country which offered its friendship, even those who were against us in World War II. American dollars still pour out, at the rate of about $4 billion a year, to help sustain the armies and industries of our allies around the world.

"No nation in history ever has been so generous to its friends and former foes. Self-interest? Of course there was and is self-interest. Helping fight poverty in Italy, the United States thereby hopes to save an ally from the clutches of Communism. In giving millions to modernize the industries of a backward Spain, the United States strengthens a strategic military base. But no nation ever asked so little in return: The cooperation of the beneficiary in saving itself from Soviet slavery.

"There is, we suppose, no necessity for an immediate decision on the missile bases since the United States doesn't yet have the missiles ready. A few months of quiet consultation won't hurt.

"But there's something that our friends on the European continent ought to understand.

"That is that the American citizen is in no mood to watch his foreign partners

Regardless Of Name, Droop Getting Monotonous

F. W. Wert, of Harrisburg, Pa., isn't bothered by whether to call this a "recession" or a "readjustment." He suggests "readjustment."

Week after week it's droop, droop, droop. Sure, you can find yippee news—like the prospect of a 100 per cent increase in uranium production in 1958, like the promise by Chairman Gwilym A. Price that Westinghouse sales next year will top 1957, like the 2 1/2 per cent increase in the quarterly dividend of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.: "1958 will be good for business... another record year."

But you can't elude the observation of a high-up Washington official: "This is an orthodox readjustment, only perhaps a little more so." The "more so" means it is more precipitous than he had expected.

Knowing it's orthodox doesn't help the investor who watches his stocks plow to new lows, the business man faced with the painful necessity of curtailing production and handing out "Don't come back to work till..." notices, or the worker who gets the notices. These are the monotonous facts:

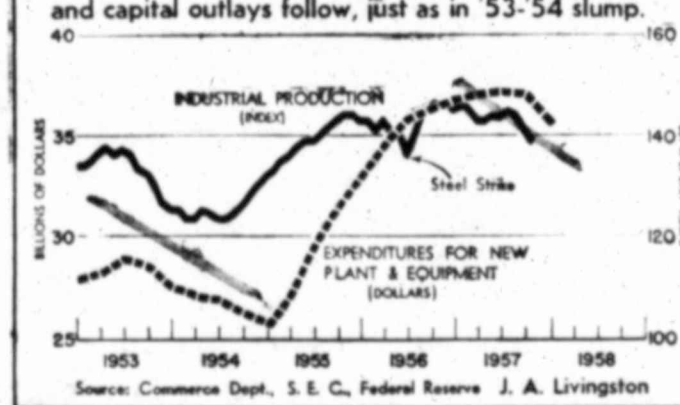

1. The Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production, the country's best measure of manufacturing and mining activity, dropped another two points in November. In the three months since August, production has declined 6 points. In the previous eight months, it had dropped only two points. You don't have to be a kinetic engineer to know that's acceleration. At 139, the index has fallen 5.5 per cent from its December all-time high of 147.

2. Plant and equipment expenditures have turned down sharply. The joint survey of the Department of Commerce and the Securities & Exchange Commission indicates that outlays, which ran at an annual rate of $37,500,000,000 during October, November and December will drop to $33,500,000,000 in the first quarter of 1958. This decline is in pattern. In 1953-54, plant and equipment outlays followed the turn-down in industrial production (see chart).

When business men cease getting orders, blue prints are filed for future reference. Their apprehensions will be a drag on the economy throughout 1958 and probably into 1959.

HISTORICAL PARALLEL

Industrial output falls in November to 16-month low and capital outlays follow, just as in '53-'54 slump.

Source: Commerce Dept., S. E. C., Federal Reserve, J. A. Livingston

3. Personal income in November—money available for spending and tax-paying—dropped for the third successive month:

Month	Annual Rate
August	$345,000,000,000
September	345,000,000,000
October	345,000,000,000
November	345,000,000,000

Unemployment news becomes discouraging. Frank Winn, public relations director of the United Auto Workers, wired newspapermen: "Unemployment in Detroit metropolitan area as of November 15 was 123,000, 8 per cent of total labor force." Radio Corp. of America announced substantial layoffs in its television operation. The danger is that the decline in personal income will cumulate. Lower personal income means lower consumer spending, which, in turn, signifies lower demand for goods and services and, therefore, still lower production and employment. The classical, dreaded down-spiral.

I'm still betting that the worst will be over in the first half of 1958. The second half may not launch another boom, but it will dissipate fear of a bust.

Meanwhile: More monotony.

Christmas Spirit

Appreciated In State Hospitals

TYLER, Dec. 7 (AP)—A spirit of Christmas is being taken into some Texas state hospitals this year and patients couldn't appreciate it more.

Instead of the usual appeal for presents, patients this year are giving presents—and having so much fun doing so that thoughts of pain and loneliness often are nearly being forgotten.

Bed-ridden patients of the big East Texas Tuberculosis Hospital near Tyler smiled as they watched carts laden with Christmas presents being rolled from bed to bed.

For days talk of what present would be just right for Tommy Mary or Aunt Ann dominated conversation in the long, rambling wards and now was the chance each had looked forward to—a chance to see how many and much each could purchase.

For these presents weren't gaily wrapped, as is the usual practice when the hospital's volunteer corps brings presents. The presents still had tags and were laid out on the cart according to price.

By the way each patient fondled, studied and compared prices, one would think they were buying the most expensive gifts available. Actually they were just trying to buy the best and most for $6.

Amulatory patients at the hospital also got their turn at Christmas shopping at a gift shop set up by the 26 volunteer workers.

"We're just delighted with the way this Christmas project has turned out," Mrs. Ina Goff said as she helped a patient select a toilet article for his son. "They (patients) are all so eager to send presents home."

The project—the most ambitious ever undertaken by the volunteer corps—began Sept. 1 when hospital executives got the idea of letting patients join in the spirit of giving that is often overshadowed in the meaning of Christmas, especially in state institutions.

Dangerous Curve Head

Around The Rim

Green Christmas Trees, From 'Way Back

With the established reputation of being an old crank, it will come as no surprise that I am a green-Christmas-tree man.

This is not the modern outlook, and very likely besmirches the higher esthetic values. Pink trees, blue trees, white trees—they're beautiful. Crinoline trees, trees of mink fur pieces, trees constructed of costume jewelry—they're dazzling.

I just sort of feel deep down, that a Christmas tree is a piece of greenery.

Doubtless this is a situation for a psychiatrist who, if he got me on his couch for questioning, would find that the green tree is a holdover from childhood days, when the tree in the household was either green or it wasn't there.

In days which seem very long ago, the idea of buying a tree was as preposterous as supposing that Santa Claus really was your Papa.

When the frosty days of early December arrived, it was a part of the monthly schedule in our family—and of neighbors in the block—to set aside a Saturday when the young hellions could be swathed in knit caps, mittens and assorted great coats, and sent—trailing a little wagon and a big axe—trailing out to the rocky hills overlooking the Colorado River to search out a Christmas tree. There was nothing to be considered except scrub cedar.

The idea of the day was to find the bush that most nearly resembled the stately Christmas tree as pictured in fancy magazines. This wasn't easy, particularly when the most attractive prospect was the one farthest on the horizon. By the time our gang of woodsmen would reach this particular tree, it would look as scraggly as the rest, and the hunt would go on.

Before a bunch of kids, distracted by rabbits and birds and urging on the younger stragglers in the group, could get around to chopping down some cedars, it would have turned out to be an all-day job. Lunch was carried along, of course, and usually was devoured by 10:30 a.m., so that by early afternoon everybody was looking forward to supper and deciding that the very closest cedar bush was a pretty good one, after all. Especially if some spare branches could be trimmed off and taken home, too, for patching purposes.

The kids in my block hauled in many a bedraggled bit of greenery in this way, always arriving in the darkening hours of a winter afternoon, starving to death, thoroughly chilled, and with noses running. What the older people in the family thought of the trees, they were usually kind enough not to say.

There wasn't any handy stand to put those cedar stumps in, either. We had to find a big can, fill it with dirt, and go through a planting process. The can of dirt usually got tipped over on the parlor floor, requiring a bit of extra janitorial duty, and in the end the tipsy tree usually had to be wired up in a corner where it would finally stand, precariously erect, and swaying not too much to bear the burdens of strings of cranberries and popcorn.

If the Santa Claus of the day had the same eye for beauty as he has today, he must have been agast to tumble into our parlor via the chimney and come across this modest bit of holiday arrangement, as created by grubby little hands. But the old fellow always left something, anyway, sometimes even the fulfillment of a fondest dream.

So I have concluded that if Santa is satisfied with an old-fashioned native tree of growing green, I could be too.

A Candle At Christmas

This is a story told by the late Queen Marie of Roumania and it comes from a small village where the people were so poor that the only church they could afford was a ramshackle wooden building from which all the paint had long since withered away.

The village stood at the edge of the forest and, on the other side of the forest was a town far richer than the poor little village. It boasted a beautiful new church with fine bells and a gold altar. And, somehow, the people of the village came to believe that prayers said in the church in town were much more likely to reach the ear of God than prayers said in their own poor little church.

But the path from the village to town was not an easy one and, even worse, halfway through the forest it passed the well which had the reputation of being haunted. No one passed it without throwing a coin into it as an offering; it was said that if you did not do this, a creature from the well would drag you down into it and you would never be seen again. One bitterly cold, dark night—a Christmas Eve—a little boy hurried along that path to town. He had no coins at all; he carried only a small taper and five matches. Back in the village, his widowed mother was dying and he hoped to light his taper on the altar of the beautiful church in town and pray that her life might be saved.

The boy had never gone to the town alone before, let alone at night. And there had always been a coin for the haunted well. Now, as he approached it, he hugged the trees on the other side. Perhaps he would not be noticed.

But as he passed the well, a moan came from it. He started to run but tripped on a root and was thrown to its very edge, looking down into its mysterious depths. A voice came up at him, a shrill child's voice: "Help me out! Help me out! If you throw me down your taper and matches I can see my way."

The boy gasped, wondering how the voice knew about his taper and matches, and replied: "I can't. The candle is for my mother. She is dying and I must light this on the altar of the big church so that she can get well."

"Who will miss your candle in that church?" the voice asked. "There are many burning there now. Give it to me instead."

"But I can't; it's the only one I have. If my mother dies, I'll be an orphan, all alone. I must take it to the church."

The voice from the well took on a pleading note: "This is the night of Christ's birth; in His name I ask you. Give me your taper. Can you refuse what I ask in His name on His night?"

The boy thought for a minute and was overcome with grief. He knew that he could not refuse, even if it meant that his mother might die. He threw the candle and matches into the well and fell weeping on his knees.

Suddenly the air was filled with music and light, and there, stepping out of the well before him, was the Christ Child holding the little taper in His hand. But from that little taper came a light that seemed great enough to light the whole world.

"Go back home," said the Child. "Your mother is waiting for you. I will take your candle to church."

The boy ran home as though he had wings on his feet. And there was his mother, up out of bed and waiting for him, as though she had never been ill. He fell into her arms and hugged her and they both cried.

Later, they went to the village church together to give thanks. The old building looked as decrepit as ever, but when they entered it was filled with light. Yet only one little taper burned at the altar and from it came a radiance that filled the church with beauty. And, as the boy stared at the little taper, he realized that it was his own.

For love is only a little taper, yet it lights the whole world. Never does it burn as bright as at Christmas when it reminds us of the words that celebrated the birth of the child Jesus: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Let this candle burn in your own heart and light it in the hearts of others and we can be sure that this Christmas—and all the Christmases to come—God will bless us, every one.

American Leadership In Paris

As the NATO meeting ends, it is harder than ever to understand what we expected to accomplish by inflating its importance. Our purpose, apparently, was to rally the Europeans to two ideas. One was that we should arm them with intermediate range missiles. The other was that they should steadfastly reject the notion of negotiating with the Russians.

As the missiles do not now exist, and will not be ready for at least a year, we were asking the Europeans to be highly provocative though they remained undefended. They were to provoke the Russians by agreeing to set up missile sites long before the missiles could be stationed at the sites. And they were to provoke the Russians further by refusing to talk seriously with them.

The Norwegians and the Danes have rejected the American military proposal. The British, the Dutch and the Turks have accepted it, though it is far from certain that the British government has the support of the country and is able to make an enduring commitment. The Continentals, most particularly the Germans, have not accepted and have not rejected the Dulles military proposals.

Not the least significant development in these last days is that the forthcoming negotiations with Russia are to be undertaken separately by various countries—particularly, it must be said again, by West Germany. What Mr. Dulles has accomplished by his loud and public protests against negotiation has been to disqualify himself as the negotiator in the negotiations which will nevertheless be carried on.

The decline of American leadership in NATO is due primarily, of course, to the strategic consequences of the presumed change in the balance of power. The balance, which has turned against us because the Russians are ahead of us in the big missiles, cannot be righted effectively by the medium range missiles which Mr. Dulles has offered the Europeans. Unless in Europe and Africa there were hundreds of missile sites, too many to be knocked out by the Russians, it is a great question whether a few missile sites have any serious deterrent power.

Our military leadership of NATO is bound to be very weak unless and until we have in active operation on our territory batteries of inter-continental missiles.

Mr. Dulles will find himself from now on in a very awkward position. He is the Foreign Minister of the strongest power of the NATO alliance. On the crucial question of negotiating with our great adversary, he is dogmatically at odds with the interests and the purposes of most, if not all, of our European allies.

The immediate effect, as we know, is that he is to sit on the sidelines while the Germans talk with Moscow. But what will be the effect in the future if, as might happen, the negotiations arrive at something which is attractive in Europe but requires the participation of the United States government?

Braceros Taking Earnings Home To Warm Climate

By JESS BLAIR

From a peak of about 6,000 braceros in a four-county area, the number has shrunk quickly the last two weeks. Many are leaving daily for their homes in Mexico.

The labor season reached its peak about three weeks ago, according to Leon Kinney of the Texas Employment Commission. His office authorized contracts for 4,000 workers in November. Many of those leaving have ended their contracts, while others are homesick for families left behind. As mechanical cotton strippers begin a harvest of the remaining crop, the bracero is left without a job.

A farmer can contract his own labor, but most of them get workers through some labor organization. The company gets a permit from the government, arranges for insurance, and furnishes transportation from one of the three reception centers along the border. These are located at El Paso, Eagle Pass and Hidalgo.

The farmer orders his workers from the labor association. When they arrive, he picks them up and carries them to the farm. There he has already provided living quarters that will meet the standards of the government.

The farmer not only furnishes a house for the bracero, but he must give him all utilities, beds, blankets, cooking utensils, cotton sacks and other working tools. The only thing the bracero must pay for is his groceries.

In addition to all this, the farmer must pay the transportation, contract expenses and insurance on the worker. All this comes to quite a sum.

Jack Buchanan, manager of the Howard County Farm Association, says it amounts to about $31.50 per worker. The worker is fully protected by insurance from the day he crosses the Rio Grande until he re-crosses it on his way home.

For loss of life in an accident, the bracero's family receives $2,000. If he dies a natural death, they get $1,000, and there are varying amounts paid for the loss of one limb, or two, or loss of an eye or other serious injury.

If he gets an injury, such as a broken finger, which requires treatment but not bed care, the insurance will still pay a certain amount.

Ordinarily, most workers send home a large sum of money each fall, or at least it is a sizable amount according to their standards. This fall the profits were smaller than usual.

Buchanan estimates that each bracero averaged about $100 above local expenditures. He said they spent very little in this country, though the first two weeks the expenses were heaviest.

The worker arrives broke, and the farmer advances him enough money to live on until the first pay check. He then pays the farmer and starts buying clothes. He often discards the ones he is wearing, as he buys new shoes, shirt, trousers and a coat. Almost immediately afterwards he gets a suit case. This is a fancy monogrammed leather bag, but a plain fiber suit case made only for carrying clothes and not for looks.

After he is comfortably clothed, he becomes a miser and will eat on $5 per week. He starts sending money home to his folks, and keeps it up till he leaves.

Some of them send gifts, but usually wait and carry the items home with them. Some of the main purchases, Buchanan said, were dolls for the children; house coats, bath robes, perfume and lipstick for their wives, and maybe a .22 pistol or rifle for themselves.

Another thing much in demand is the treadle sewing machine. Buchanan says that three workers took these old-fashioned sewing machines home with them this week.

Once back in Mexico the bracero finds his small savings have increased to quite a sum. At the rate of 12 and a half pesos to one dollar, he is a wealthy man—at least for awhile.

A skilled tradesman in Mexico can earn 10 pesos a day, as compared to over 100 that a worker can make here pulling bolls in the same time. The unskilled laborer below the border is one of the world's poorest paid workmen. His year's wages as a sheep herder would only be about $100 in American money.

Mexico realizes an enormous profit from lending its workers to the United States. But what of this four-county area, and particularly Howard and Martin where most of the workers come? What is the loss in money?

This year's transferral of money from these two counties to Mexico will reach nearly half a million dollars. This is money completely lost to our economy, critics of the program say.

Farmers admit the system is far from perfect. They don't like to spend money for equipping houses for a few months' use, in supplying bed clothes, cooking utensils, and paying $31.50 per worker besides the regular labor wage.

But until someone can devise equipment that will harvest the cotton crop better than human hands can do it, the bracero program will probably continue. When farmers do start using machinery for hoeing and picking, the bracero will overnight become a stranger to this part of the country.

Furr's Plans 16 New Stores During 1958

LUBBOCK, Dec. 21—Loss of its Furr's Super Market in Lamesa last week, when the building was destroyed by fire, will slow down but little the projected expansion of Furr's during 1958, Roy Furr, president of Furr's, Inc. announced.

Already plans are being laid for the rebuilding of a new market in Lamesa. The store was razed early Dec. 6. Whether the new building will go up on the present Furr's property or whether a new site will be chosen, remains to be determined.

Ahead in the plans for Furr's are possibly 16 new stores for 1958, a net gain of possibly 10 stores, with about a half dozen planned to replace present stores, Furr said.

Furr's closed 1957 openings with the newest addition of a store in Amarillo, in late November. This was a large unit, some 24,600 square feet in area. Just previous to this opening, the Big Spring super market opened in mid-November, a unit of some 22,000 square feet.

Under construction now are three stores: the Beverly Shopping Center store in Amarillo; the Venetian Village Shopping Center unit in Colorado Springs; and a store in Odessa, a 25,000 square foot store. Actually, another unit is being built in the Odessa Springdale Addition, a new cafeteria, the second in that city for Furr's. The Amarillo store will be ready for business in early January while Furr's will open the doors of the Colorado Springs store in February or March, Furr said.

"On the board" are stores in Las Cruces, N. M. (its first there); two more in Colorado Springs, replacement in Pampa, a new unit in Abilene, two in El

One Way To Beat The Wind

This is an example of how stubble may be retained as a protection against wind erosion even while "putting up" land for the winter. One of the methods recommended by the Soil Conservation Service, and the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District, is chisel and sweep type tillage after the lister has been used down the middles to leave the stubble on the ridges. Knife or sweep tillage of the beds will leave the stubble on the ridges until planting time next spring.

Paso and two in Denver. Possibilities are in Midland, Roswell and Lubbock. Sites are owned in the latter two towns with development a good bit away, Furr said. The addition of the 10 new stores in 1958 will throw the number to past the 60 mark. Just several weeks ago, Furr's sold the four Ft. Worth and one Wichita Falls stores to the Wyatt Food Stores of Dallas. Headquarters for Furr's is Lubbock, with seven stores, general warehouses, egg and creamery departments and packing plant.

Travel Promotes Geography Study

of Russia. Students hear their parents talk about Russia, and they develop a desire to know more about this country.

The world geography class is also improved by having students who have lived in other lands, and it is not out of the ordinary, either, teachers claim, to have students who have lived and gone to school overseas. Occasionally too, foreign students enroll here because their parents are stationed at Webb.

Going into junior high school, students find their geography combined with other related courses. These required courses here are called Social Relations—social studies in some schools—and combine history, geography, and some government.

TEXAS GEOGRAPHY

In the seventh, students take 18 weeks of Texas history, nine weeks of Texas government, and nine weeks of Texas geography in Social Relations. These phases are staggered among the three teachers' classes so one of the three courses is being taught at all times. This helps students who move in and have had one or more of them, claims Tom Ernest, junior high principal.

Because of the relation between the three, however, teachers frequently mix them in the year's study whether the students realize it or not. Maps, for instance, which are required by some teachers help students learn geographical areas at the same time they are studying historical situations.

As in the elementary grades, junior high instructors agree that students who have traveled either in the state or the nation grasp geography quicker and they also contribute greatly to the success of teaching the course.

Eighth grade Social Relations goes to American history and geography, usually divided three-fourths of history and one-fourth for geography. Here again the teachers mix the study. The geography takes up some geology in describing natural resources, but very little economics is brought in.

No geography is given in the ninth, because of lack of funds and classrooms, school officials said. World history is given in the ninth, and this year, the school wanted to have a corresponding world geography course, but it had to be canceled.

Generally, teachers observed that girls seemed to favor geography more than boys in junior high, while the boys favored government. Students evidently enjoy the course; records show fewer failures in geography than other courses such as English and mathematics.

'Don't Go Near The Water' Irreverent Navy Life Comedy

The funniest book of the year has been made into the funniest movie of the year.

It is "Don't Go Near The Water." Based on William Brinkley's best-seller novel, termed by the author himself as "an irreverent comedy about Navy life," the hilarious story stars Glenn Ford, Gia Scala, Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn and Jeff Richards, with Mickey Shaughnessy, comedy find of the year, also adding to the laughs.

The film tells the story of the members of a U. S. Navy public relations section based on a tropical island, Talara, during World War II, stopping-off place for jangling congressmen, temperamental correspondents and assorted VIPs. The p.r. men, armed only with typewriters and a vivid imagination, tell the world about the Navy but — don't go near the water.

Among them are: Ensign Max Siegel (Glenn Ford), the one man in the outfit who has actually had sea duty but who now is handed such assignments as supplying the natives with loin cloths to add "local color" to publicity newsreels. However, he takes on a private assignment when he meets Melora Alba (Gia Scala), beautiful, Spanish-educated daughter of one of the island's most distinguished residents, and proves an invaluable aid to her in running a school for native children.

Yeoman Adam Garrett (Earl Holliman), who acts as armed escort on the dates between handsome ladies-man Lt. Pendleton (Jeff Richards) and nurse Lt. Alice Tomlin (Anne Francis) and who falls desperately in love with the latter.

Gordon Ripwell (Keenan Wynn), arrogant correspondent of a big Chicago newspaper, who throws his weight around and demands all sorts of extra privileges, including that of being introduced to choice native femininity.

Out On A Hickory Limb

Glenn Ford and Gia Scala are two of the many lovers to be seen in "Don't Go Near the Water." Tuesday through Saturday at the Ritz. This hilarious yarn tells about a Navy public relations team who, like the "darling daughter" of folktales, weren't allowed to go near the water.

Ensign Tyson (Russ Tamblyn), who protests at having to supply Ripwell with fresh sheets daily.

Lt. Comdr. Clinton Nash (Fred Clark), self-inflicted head of the p.r. section.

Farragut Jones (Mickey Shaughnessy), a salty sea-dog who proves something less than an ideal choice when he is selected as the "Typical Young Navy Man."

And Debbie Aldrich (Eva Gabor), a dazzling correspondent from "Madame Magazine," who is as intrepid in the face of danger as she is bewitching.

Each of these principals becomes the center of hilarious episodes.

Lt. Comdr. Nash makes a fool of himself when he orders the officers to build their own clubhouse, an attempt which results in pandemonium until the Seabees take over. Later, he again finds himself in an embarrassing spot in the sequences in which the rough-edged Farragut Jones is taught to forego the use of his favorite seven letter word in preparing a speech he is to make on a good-will tour.

The love affair between the enlisted man, Adam Garrett, and the officer nurse has its ups and downs. Pendleton is gotten out of the way, but now the meetings between Adam and Alice are discovered and the yeoman is sent off to sea duty.

The overbearing Gordon Ripwell is not only put in his place in an uproarious episode with a "native girl," but also is blackmailed into contributing toward a fund for a new school.

Debbie Aldrich overrides all bans and intrigues her way aboard a fighting carrier, and all hands cheer when the ship emerges from battle flying her black lace panties.

Noah's Ark

This scene from "Noah's Ark," Friday and Saturday at the Jet, depicts the building of the infamous Tower of Babel. This film version of the story of the Deluge was made during the days of silent pictures, and now has vintage value. A musical score and narration have been added.

No Fake (It Says Here)

The caption on this picture sent out by the studio says this photo is no fake and judging from the girl's expression it probably is real enough. Anyway, that's Susan Stephens in the embrace of the python. They have the romantic leads in "White Hunter," Friday and Saturday at the State.

CINEMA COMMENT

By BOB SMITH

"Don't Go Near The Water." You all remember that old ditty we learned in our youth: Mother dear, oh Mother dear, may I go out to swim? Yes, my darling daughter; Hang your clothes on a hickory limb. But don't go near the water.

Well, this particular film substitutes the U. S. Navy for Mother and American sailors for darling daughter. All in all, it's one of the funniest spoofs on the wartime Navy ever to grace the motion picture screen.

Two prime examples of the comic possibilities: the carrier that comes out of battle flying, as an ensign, the black lace panties furnished by Eva Gabor; and the attempts of a Navy public relations officer to teach Seaman Farragut Jones to speak correct English. Farragut, it seems, uses a cuss word or two in every sentence and the movie's censor finds it necessary to substitute a Sputnik-type "beep" for the cuss words.

The story is plotted around a Naval public relations unit on a Pacific isle armed only with typewriters and whose duty it is to tell the world about the Navy. Trouble is, they seldom get near the water.

The stellar congregation includes Glenn Ford, Gia Scala, Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn, Jeff Richards and Mickey Shaughnessy. All ex-swabbies will get a big

TOPS ON TV

Lowell Thomas Tour Will Show Military Outposts

Lowell Thomas takes television for a first-hand look at our military outposts in the most desolate part of the world, on his "High Adventure" program, Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4. The special film shows Thomas and his band on their frigid trek from Alaska's Cape Lisburne, along the picket watches of the DEW line, to the Greenland ice cap where our Air Force attack bases stand at 24 hour readiness.

When the "Twentieth Century" bang out of "Don't Go Near the Water," and so will all others who have ever had a taste of the military life. Don't miss it.

"Song of the South" Walt Disney's charming version of the traditional Uncle Remus yarns. "Naked Africa." A Quentin Reynolds documentary that is unusual in its graphic portrayal of a continent wherein many isolated people still live as did their ancestors a thousand years ago. One of the better African documentaries. "Noah's Ark." A re-release of what was in its day, one of the crowning achievements of the film industry. A product of the days of silent films, the picture has had a dramatic musical score and narration added in telling the story of the Deluge.

"Interlude." June Allyson and Rossano Brazzi in a strictly adult romantic drama about illicit love. It goes above and beyond the usual treatment accorded such subjects by Hollywood.

CRITIQUE Of The Local Entertainment Scene

By BOB SMITH

Spirit Won't Be Disappointed

John Van Druen, 50-year-old playwright, won't be around to see any more productions of his latest, "Bell, Book and Candle." He died last week.

The Big Spring Civic Theatre will stage that production for three nights beginning next Jan. 9. And things seem to be shaping up with the local players so that their rendition of Van Druen's writing talent is not likely to be wasted.

"Bell, Book and Candle" will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 9-11, in the H.C.J. Auditorium. Director John Austin, a man who is not likely to make promises he can't keep, feels his production is "going good," and that patrons of the Civic Theatre will not be disappointed come curtain time.

The play concerns a family of witches in a modern setting, with Patsy Morton portraying the young witch who falls in love with a mortal and thus loses her powers. Dewey Magee plays the role of the mortal, with Betty Smith as Patsy's aunt, also a witch, and Jim Hennigar as the male witch of the family. Carl Moverman takes the role of a witch hunter who quails before a real witch.

If Van Druen's spirit is around at curtain time, he should not be disappointed.

Moose Lodge Gets Namesake

Local members of the Moose Lodge have a rather horny companion to remind them of their membership pledges. An ancient moosehead that once hung in the famed Buckhorn Saloon in San Antonio now looks out mournfully over its namesake lodge, in the ballroom of the old Skyliner Club building.

The moosehead was a prize trophy of the Buckhorn, recently purchased lock, stock and stuffings by the Lone Star Brewing Co. The moosehead was valued at around $1100. It was first bought in Denver, supposedly around 1917, for $500. It is known to be one of the largest and best mooseheads in existence, with a horns spread of 62 inches.

Representatives of the brewery made a formal presentation of the moosehead to the lodge recently.

Interlude

June Allyson and Rossano Brazzi are depicted in a scene from "Interlude." Sunday and Monday at the Ritz, an adult romantic drama about an illicit love affair.

B'r'er Rabbit

Depicted above is Walt Disney's conception of B'r'er Rabbit, one of the many Uncle Remus characters to be seen in "Song of the South." Tuesday at the State. The movie was based on the beloved Uncle Remus tales collected by Joel Chandler Harris.

THE MOOSE REIGNS SUPREME
Trophy hangs in ballroom of Moose Lodge

Naked Africa

Weird rituals and other cultural offerings of African tribesmen are depicted in "Naked Africa," Quentin Reynolds' documentary pictorial of a land that time forgot, showing Friday and Saturday at the State.

Princess Queried As Jazz Narrator

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Herald said today Princess Margaret has received a request from an American record firm to be narrator on a record album of jazz.

The 27-year-old Margaret, who has just been made an honorary doctor of music by London University, is a jazz enthusiast and a talented pianist — with emphasis on modern musical moods.

The Herald said a proposal that she make recordings came from the Tops Record Co. of New York which, it stated, is planning an all-nations record album of jazz.

Suburb's Going To Have Snow

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — It's going to snow in the Westbury section of Houston on Christmas Day no matter what the temperature is.

There have been so many Christmas days without snow that Mrs. Donald J. Joyce and the Westbury Civic Club decided Westbury children were missing something.

They got together, chipped in some money and now know for sure there will be snow for Christmas.

About breakfast time Wednesday, four pieces of mechanical equipment will pull into the community. Two of the trucks will be loaded with ice; two will be crushers that will turn the ice into snow and blow it over the terrain.

Snowfall time should begin by 9 a.m., Mrs. Joyce said.
