Types Of Planes In Air Crash

These two types of planes, a United Airlines DC7 (top) and an F100 Super Sabre over Las Vegas, Nev., killing all 47 persons aboard the transport. The jet fliers also were killed.

CAB Discusses Air Controls Following Airliner Smashup

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—In Washington, D.C., the Civil Aeronautics Board discussed the problem of air space control. At the same time, on the Nevada desert, the wreckage of an airliner gave dramatic evidence of the problem.

The United Air Lines DC7, carrying 47 persons, collided with an Air Force F100 on an instrument training mission near Las Vegas yesterday at 21,000 feet. It was a clear day.

Two men were in the F100. All aboard both planes perished.

On the airliner were a number of prominent businessmen. Also aboard was an inventor whose creation was designed to help prevent the thing that killed him.

The CAB, in an effort to avoid such collisions as yesterday's, proposed an experiment in which it would set aside part of the air space from which would be barred all planes lacking specific clearance to enter it. All aircraft operating in the designated space would have to be equipped for instrument flight operations.

The airliner was bound from Los Angeles to New York.

The F100 was on a 1½-hour mission out of Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas. Aboard the dual-control plane were an instructor and a student pilot, the latter sitting toward the rear under a hood, where he could fly the craft by instruments with no outside vision. The instructor was not hooded.

The F100 was given permission by Nellis to make its descent on instruments.

About two minutes later, at 8:30 a.m., the planes met.

Just after the collision, Nellis picked up the aviator's distress call—"mayday."

A frantic call also was received from the stricken airliner. The pilot said: "United Air Lines 736 (flight number). Mayday. Mid-air collision over Las Vegas, 736." No more was heard.

Brig. Gen. James C. McGehee, commander of Nellis, said investigation revealed one pilot of the F100 ejected, "apparently too low for the chute to open."

McGehee said: "The type of training penetration (letdown) being initiated by F100s is the same penetration that is initiated every day out of Nellis and has been coordinated and approved by the CAB."

Will such flights now be stopped?

"Investigation will determine that," the general said.

The pilot of the jet was Capt. Tom Coryell, who was from Indianapolis but lived here with his wife. The student pilot was Lt. Gerald Moran, Rapid City, S.D.

Aboard the airliner were 5 crew members, including Flight Capt. Duane M. Ward, 7 military personnel and 35 civilian passengers. Among the latter was Jack R. Fedrick, 37, vice president of the Los Angeles electronics firm of Fenske, Fedrick & Miller. Fedrick was the inventor of an air traffic control device designed to enable control centers to see positions of all aircraft in their control areas on a display panel.

He was en route to Colorado Springs, Colo., to present his idea to the Air Force. His firm said the CAB also had the device under consideration.

Commission To Meet Tonight

The regular bi-weekly meeting of the City Commission is expected to be short today.

The commission will meet at the city hall at 5:15 p.m. and only a few items are expected to be discussed.

Cecil McDonald, local housing developer, is expected to confront the commission again tonight about getting the Douglas Subdivision annexed to the city. McDonald has appeared at the past two meetings to present the request, but nothing has been done about it yet.

McDonald said he planned to develop the addition and he would be able to build a better and larger type house if it were in the city. He is going to develop the addition whether it is brought in to the city or not, he said at the last meeting of the commission.

Also, the city manager, H. W. Whitney, will ask for authority to purchase a new car for the police department. The additional car was authorized when the budget was established.

Russian Praises Texan's Talent

NEW YORK (AP)—A former Russian soldier, commenting on the Moscow success of a Texas pianist, said yesterday "over here you have great talent."

Uri Volski, 37, said he was one of the audience who cheered Van Cliburn, 23, of Kilgore who recently won the Tchaikovsky contest at the Moscow concert competitions.

Old School Sold

WESTBROOK—The old school building here has been sold to R. W. McQuatters of Midland for $760. The Midland contractor was high bidder for the structure. Bids were opened Friday night. Demolition work is to be started after school is dismissed for the summer.

Demos Toss Peace, Prosperity Slogans Back At The Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats went gunning for the Eisenhower administration today with accusations that it is claiming credit for peace where there is no peace and robbing the citizen to pay off the financier.

Harry S. Truman hurled the robbery charge last night. The jaunty former President said the recession is no accident, an administration high-interest policy is its basic cause, and "Shylock was a gentleman compared to our Republican interest-happy government."

A 1958 campaign conference of Democratic women from over the nation, 2,000 strong, assembled for three days of speeches and workshop sessions to whip up pep and strategy for this fall's congressional elections.

In the same forum, Sen. Mansfield of Montana, assistant Democratic leader in the Senate, said Americans would be fighting in Red China now if Democrats hadn't restrained Republican enthusiasm for it, yet the administration is trying to sell the people the idea there is peace in the Far East.

In the Middle East, the Senator said, the administration has "toyed with autocratic and dictatorial movements and nations, while it overlooks with almost snobbish disdain countries like Lebanon and Israel which are struggling to keep the concept of freedom alive."

Truman said the administration has been "misusing its power over the money supply" to redistribute the national income in the wrong direction.

"The Treasury has juggled around its short-term and long-term issues, and its types of issues, so as to rob the ordinary citizen to pay off political obligations to the gigantic financiers," Truman said.

Interest rates have been raised least, he said, on such things as Savings Bonds "bought or held by average American families."

Along with a high interest policy, he contended, administration tax, budgetary, farm and other policies "have put the squeeze on the people for the benefit of the privileged few."

Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, urged the Democratic women to help pile up so big a Democratic majority in Congress this fall "it can put an end to government by veto."

Under Eisenhower, he continued, there are vetoes almost every week of bills Democrats are bringing through to try to help the economic situation.

In the midst of the Democratic outpouring, Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn put out a statement saying the Democrats were trying to revive the New Deal by what he called a "road-to-bankruptcy program."

In the Senate alone, he said, Democratic bills have proposed 77 billion dollars of new federal spending over the next five years, along with tax cuts totaling more than 10 billions.

"In contrast," Alcorn added, "the antirecession actions of the administration stand out as responsible government at its level-headed best."

Sec. McElroy Argues For Ike Defense Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense McElroy argued today that modern weapons and war techniques require the Pentagon organization changes proposed by President Eisenhower.

Carrying the fight for the administration Defense Department proposals to a House committee whose leaders are openly opposed to it, McElroy said in prepared testimony.

"It would be tragic indeed if in the moment of crisis we should be found wanting because of an attempt to graft the weapons of modern warfare onto an outmoded organization structure."

McElroy repeatedly invoked the name of Eisenhower in urging the House Armed Services Committee to accept the reorganization plan. He told the group that "we believe that most of the concerns that have been expressed about the President's proposals will disappear when we have together studied the specific legislation and its adequacy to meet these needs."

In advance of McElroy's appearance Chairman W. P. (D-Ga.) pledged that the committee will consider the proposals "seriously, objectively and in detail."

Vinson is one of the leading opponents of the general proposal.

"This committee has always given careful consideration to recommendations of the President," Vinson said. "In this instance, as in the past, the committee will consider the President's recommendations seriously, objectively and in detail and with full awareness of the constitutional responsibility of the Congress."

In general, Eisenhower's proposals would give the defense secretary more authority over the individual services—a move Vinson and other members of the committee have criticized sharply in the past.

There appeared little likelihood the House committee would approve Eisenhower's plan without major changes.

White Flies To Labor Hearing

Ralph White, president of the Howard chapter of the Farm Bureau, departed by airplane this morning for Washington, D. C.

He is to join Tuesday with representatives from several other county chapters in the West Texas area in seeking to obtain a clarification and relaxation of regulations pertaining to admission of Mexican national agricultural workers.

Producers here last week, at a meeting sponsored by the agriculture department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, expressed dissatisfaction with the Department of Labor ruling that recruitment efforts must be carried on outside of Texas in an effort to locate domestic agricultural workers.

Prospects for a bumper cotton crop are the best in years, hence added emphasis in seeking adequate help to cultivate and harvest the crop.

White was to arrive in Washington this afternoon and will testify in hearings set for Wednesday, returning home on Thursday. Several cotton firms and buyers made possible the trip, including E. H. Hatch, John Dillard, the Cooperative Gin, Farmers Gin, Planters Gin of Big Spring and the Fairview Gin and Guitler Gin of Big Spring.

Rebel Capital In Sumatra Changed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—The Sumatran rebel regime has fled from its mountain capital of Bukittinggi 28 miles southeastward to the village of Batusangkar high in the Barisan Mountain Range, a government army spokesman said today.

Five rebel companies totaling about 1,000 men were reported deployed about Batusangkar to protect insurgent Premier Sjafrudin Prawiranegara, his ministers and communications equipment which has been moved to the new capital.

Another 800 rebels under Col. Achmad Hussein, military leader of the two-month-old revolt, were said to have dug in at Solok, 23 miles east of the captured port of Padang and about 40 miles south of Bukittinggi.

Lt. Col. Rudy Pirngadie, army information service chief, said Solok is the chief objective now of the 6,000-man force that took Padang Thursday. The army said last night its forces had captured the town of Indarung, eight miles from Padang, in the drive toward Solok. But he conceded that the town would be difficult to take because of its location in the mountains.

The Indonesian air force said its planes had bombed Solok but a spokesman gave no details.

Pirngadie denied rebel charges that the Jakarta government had used either the recently purchased Soviet ships or their crews in the Padang landing. He said the ships used were mostly those of the Indonesian Pelni Shipping Co.

SINGAPORE (AP)—Indonesian rebel planes raided Morotai and Djailolo Airfields in the Molucca Islands yesterday, usually well-informed sources reported.

Big Springer Sees Fireball

The blazing object that shot across Southern skies Sunday night may have been spotted from Big Spring.

J. T. Gilmore, 709 Aylford, T&P Railway Co. brakeman, said he spotted the fireball—or one like it—shortly after midnight as he pulled out of Big Spring on a train.

"It gave off a tremendous light and had a small tail," Gilmore said. "It seemed to explode and after the explosion there was a thin spark for a moment. Then it went out."

A flaming object which some speculated may have been a satellite rocket casing returning to earth was seen over five Atlantic and Gulf Coast states at approximately the same time Gilmore made his sighting. The local man said the fireball was west of Big Spring, about 45 degrees above the horizon, going toward the north.

Thundershowers Are Forecast For Big Spring Area

Slightly cooler weather, with chances of scattered thundershowers and strong local winds tonight, was the forecast for Big Spring and vicinity at noon Tuesday.

The temperature today will be 10 degrees under Monday's sizzling 88 degrees, it was predicted, and tonight will see the low reach 48 degrees.

The thundershowers and the strong winds are on tap for the evening and early morning hours, the U. S. Weather Bureau asserted.

Midland Schools Set Science Show

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP)—Midland High students will present what their teachers claim is one of the biggest science shows in public school education anywhere.

The science students this week will exhibit more than 250 projects.

Chemistry teacher Henry Hooper said some students have been working on the voluntary projects since fall, when the science show was scheduled.

"They do all of this work outside of class," he said.

Twister Rips Through Texas Town, Hurts 18 Boy Hurled 50 Yards, Is Uninjured

MIDLOTHIAN, Tex. (AP)—An erratic tornado ripped through this area, injured 18 persons, smashed farm houses and snatched a small boy from his mother's arms late yesterday.

The Red Cross reported 18 persons received hospital treatment, but only two remained for further care today.

Gary Froning, a chubby 2-year-old, was sucked from his collapsing home and whirled 50 yards into a pasture as the twister slashed back and forth across an area a dozen miles square.

Although debris fell all around him, the youngster suffered only a cut chin.

The tornado, which swept across the farm area south and east of this central Texas town, apparently scored a direct hit on the four-room frame home of George Froning, six miles southeast of Midlothian.

Another tornado struck about two hours later near Martin, about 90 miles south of here. It tore up barns and uprooted trees. Damage was heaviest on the J. E. Roberson, Richard Liecke and Danny Shook farms.

"It was raining so hard you couldn't see, but we didn't know anything about a tornado coming because of the noise from hail pounding on the tin roof of our sun room," Froning said.

"Then a window blew in, and my wife and I grabbed the children."

Mrs. Froning pushed the little boy to the floor and lay across his body protectively.

"All I could think of was that little baby in my arms," she said. "Then I felt the wind lifting us, and I couldn't hold onto him any longer."

Froning and his daughter Gloria, 7, were in the kitchen. She crawled under a table, and that saved her life.

Twister Rips Through Texas Town, Hurts 18 Boy Hurled 50 Yards, Is Uninjured

MIDLOTHIAN, Tex. (AP)—An erratic tornado ripped through this area, injured 18 persons, smashed farm houses and snatched a small boy from his mother's arms late yesterday.

The Red Cross reported 18 persons received hospital treatment, but only two remained for further care today.

Gary Froning, a chubby 2-year-old, was sucked from his collapsing home and whirled 50 yards into a pasture as the twister slashed back and forth across an area a dozen miles square.

Although debris fell all around him, the youngster suffered only a cut chin.

The tornado, which swept across the farm area south and east of this central Texas town, apparently scored a direct hit on the four-room frame home of George Froning, six miles southeast of Midlothian.

Another tornado struck about two hours later near Martin, about 90 miles south of here. It tore up barns and uprooted trees. Damage was heaviest on the J. E. Roberson, Richard Liecke and Danny Shook farms.

"It was raining so hard you couldn't see, but we didn't know anything about a tornado coming because of the noise from hail pounding on the tin roof of our sun room," Froning said.

"Then a window blew in, and my wife and I grabbed the children."

Mrs. Froning pushed the little boy to the floor and lay across his body protectively.

"All I could think of was that little baby in my arms," she said. "Then I felt the wind lifting us, and I couldn't hold onto him any longer."

Froning and his daughter Gloria, 7, were in the kitchen. She crawled under a table, and that saved her life.

Soviet Changes Reflected In Embassy's Social Revolution

By MAX HARRELSON
UNITED NATIONS (U.N.)—The Soviet Union's diplomatic colony in New York is undergoing a quiet social revolution.

The change is readily apparent in the smiles that have cracked once-frozen Russian faces. It's evident in subtle ways, like the phone call to the Soviet U.N. delegation that gets your party instead of a brushoff.

But it goes deeper than that. The new look in Russian diplomats is a transformation in their whole way of life. They now enjoy a degree of personal freedom unknown during the reign of Josef Stalin, the harsh disciplinarian who set the stolid pace for lesser Russians to follow.

One of the biggest changes is in family life. The cloistered bachelor existence has all but disappeared. Almost every Soviet diplomat now has his wife with him. If he has small children, they are with him, too.

Soviet diplomats now live in apartments scattered around the city. They attend the theater, visit friends, even take college courses. They're no longer afraid of being denounced for mixing with Westerners.

Even their dress has changed.

Only a rank newcomer wears the Soviet-style suit with wide bottomed trousers and finger-length sleeves. The rule is now smartly tailored western clothes, including the standard dinner jacket for formal affairs.

The once-isolationist Russians have become ardent party-givers and party-goers. They go all out to be jolly good hosts at their own parties.

SMARTLY DRESSED
Soviet wives appear more often at social affairs and are more smartly dressed.

But in spite of all these changes, the Soviet delegation remains unique in many respects. The smiles cannot blot out the fact that a basic hostility still exists between Moscow and the West.

Travel is a touchy subject. Members of the Soviet delegation may not travel more than 25 miles from U.N. headquarters without special permission. They frequently needle Americans about it.

Mystery continues to surround the six-story brick and stone building on Park Avenue which is the nerve center of Soviet activities in New York and home of the delegation head, owlish Arkady A. Sobolev.

Few Westerners have been beyond the entrance hall and the three spacious second floor reception rooms where Soviet parties are held.

The delegation headquarters also houses a clinic, presided over by a Russian doctor, which provides medical care for the entire Soviet colony.

Only two members of the colony are known to have been hospitalized and treated by American doctors in the past 12 years. In both cases, unusual circumstances were involved.

In 1946 a Ukrainian delegate named Gregory Stadnik was shot in the right thigh when he entered a delicatessen during a holdup. He was in a hospital for some months.

Two years later Oksana Kasenkina, a teacher, jumped from a third-floor window of the Soviet consulate rather than return to Russia. She was seriously injured but recovered and was granted asylum in this country.

Announce Way To Help Drain All 8 Sinus Cavities Without Discomfort

New decongestant tablet for sinus congestion sufferers acts both to drain clogged sinus cavities and relieve distressing head pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) Announcement has been made of a new tablet development which has the remarkable ability to help drain clogged sinus cavities and thus relieve congestion and pressure. The headaches, pressure pains, stuffed-up head, nasal drip, clogged breathing—all the unrelenting symptoms the sinus sufferer knows so well—are attacked directly by improving drainage of the sinus areas.

Most remarkable of all is the fact that this is accomplished with extraordinary speed and without discomfort of any kind. This new tablet does its remarkable work internally, through the blood stream. It deposits into every drop of blood plasma a new medication which is carried to the sinus area, where it shrinks the swollen doors to the sinus cavities and helps drain away the pain-causing pressure and congestion.

The shrinking substance in this new tablet has been so successful topically in promoting drainage of the sinus cavities that it is now prescribed more widely by doctors than any material for this purpose. This new medication is now available at drug counters without the need for a prescription under the name, Dristan® Tablets. Dristan Tablets cost only 98¢ for a bottle of 24 tablets. Buy and use Dristan Tablets with the absolute guarantee that they will drain away pain-causing pressure and congestion of the sinus cavities, relieve the pain and distress, or purchase price will be refunded.

Recession Not So Hard For Farmers

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
CHICAGO (U.N.)—The recession seems to be hitting farms less seriously than cities.

A nationwide survey by The Associated Press shows that farmers in many sections see 1958 as largely unchanged from 1957—a year of industrial prosperity.

This does not mean things are extremely good on the farm. They're simply not getting worse.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson said in a speech earlier this month at Preston, Idaho: "One of the basic concerns of all Americans is that farmers are not participating equitably in the national well-being they have helped to create. There has been some real hardship among farm families. You know it and I know it, and I would be less than honest with you if I told you that I have a simple cure-all for all farm problems."

True, per capita farm income in 1957 set a new record high of $993. But this still was far below the nonfarm per capita average of $2,045.

Even so, many farmers are seeing their world through rosy glasses.

There are some exceptions, notably in parts of the South. Cold, wet weather has delayed planting preparations and farm operations there and a poor 1957 crop left many farmers with more debts and lower cash reserves.

But in the Southwest, where the long drought has been broken, spring sales of farm equipment have reached a six-year peak and enthusiasm is running high.

An Illinois livestock farmer:

"We had our recession two years ago and are doing all right now."

A farm spokesman in Nebraska: "Nebraska farmers had their recession in 1955 and 1956. The current national recession finds them with a bumper crop year behind them and good prospects for another bumper year ahead."

An Iowa agriculture spokesman: "Farmers are pretty well satisfied with their economic prospects due to good livestock prices and good 1957 crops."

A New Mexico cattleman: "Cattle ranchers and bankers can now meet and smile at each other for the first time in years."

SEVERAL FACTORS
Farm spokesmen cite several factors for their view that the recession isn't heading toward the farms:

Food sales nationally have been running about 8 per cent ahead of last year although other retail sales declined slightly. Traditionally, consumers cutting expenditures usually economize last on food.

The end of the long drought put a prop under the farm economy in the Southwest last year and crop prospects in the area are excellent again for 1958. Growing conditions also are favorable in most other major crop areas.

The mild winter on western ranches was kind to cattle. Losses were nil.

Cattle prices are up some 20 per cent over a year ago and hog prices are ahead 15 per cent. No sharp decline has been forecast. Prices also are somewhat higher on poultry and eggs, and some fruits and vegetables.

Farm prices in mid-March reached 87 per cent of parity, the highest level since April, 1955. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices in relation to costs of things the farmer buys.

But there still are some clouds on the farm horizon. Freezes caused severe crop losses in Florida and parts of the Rio Grande Valley, leaving some growers with big debts.

Despite bullish 1958 prospects, sales of new farm equipment the first two months of this year ran from 6 to 10 per cent below the comparable 1957 period.

"I've never seen so much optimism reflected in such few sales," said a spokesman for a Chicago farm equipment manufacturer. "Maybe the pickup will come in April and May."

In Louisiana, Dr. M. D. Woodin, head of agricultural economics at Louisiana State University, said unfavorable weather cut the value of farm production 12 per cent in his state in 1957.

"This year's income will do well to remain at the 1957 level," he said. "Farmers are beginning the 1958 crop year with more debts and lower cash reserves than usual."

But from Maine to California, most farmers, state farm representatives and university spokesmen who were contacted look upon 1958 as a year of promising potential for the farmer.

The economic end result will depend a great deal on how the weather behaves during the growing season and how well farm prices hold up in relation to the cost of things the farmer buys.

U.S. To Reveal Details Of Plan For Cotton Export

WASHINGTON (U.N.)—Agriculture Department officials said today they hope to announce details of the government's new cotton export sales program later this year or early next.

Under the plan, the Department will offer subsidies in the form of surplus cotton to exporters. The latter would get the bulk of their export supplies in the open market. The subsidies would be designed to make up the difference between the higher domestic price and the lower world price.

At the present time, export supplies move almost wholly from government surplus stocks under a competitive bid system.

Officials said they were rushing to get the new program out because there has been a slowdown in foreign buying. They said most foreign buyers were awaiting terms of the new program before making further extensive commitments. The new program will cover cotton sold for export after Aug. 1.

Exports between now and then will consist mostly of cotton already sold by the government.

It was the longest, toughest route of all Mobilgas Economy Runs, a total of 1,883 miles. Temperatures ranged from desert heat to mountain cold with altitudes from 22 feet below sea level to 7,540 feet above sea level, through 141 towns and cities en route. Yet these 1958 stock cars established amazing mileage records. This is not a race, but a performance test to measure the efficiency of American stock cars in utilizing gasoline. Traveling many of the same highways you use, with the same gasoline you use, these cars proved again that you're miles ahead with Mobil. You, too, can get better mileage in your car. Just practice the same rules observed by these expert drivers: 1. Drive safely. High speeds and jack rabbit starts waste gasoline. 2. Let a Mobil Dealer give your car careful, expert maintenance. 3. ## Midlander Gets Army Promotion

AUSTIN (U.N.)—James Lindsey, managing editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, has been presented his oak leaves emblem signifying his direct appointment as a major in the Army Reserves.

Maj. Lindsey, vice chairman of the Board of Directors at Texas Tech, had his oak leaves pinned on by Maj. Gen. Earl Rudder in special ceremonies here last night.

Rudder, former land commissioner and now vice president of Texas A&M College, is the commanding general of Texas' 90th Infantry Division.

Lindsey was assigned to Rudder's staff. He said he will be attached to the Army Reserve Center which has jurisdiction in the Midland area and will be a public information officer.

The 43-year-old newspaperman was sworn in at Lubbock April 11 after the Department of the Army approved his application earlier that week. He served from January 1945 to March 1946 as an enlisted man in the Army in the European Theater.

He has been with the Reporter-Telegram since 1936.

Lindsey is active in Chamber of Commerce work, the Salvation Army, the Baptist Church and is a member of the Associated Press Managing Editors' Assn. and the West Texas Press Assn.

They Have Sputniks In Brussels

Crowds in the Russian pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair in Belgium mill around a replica of a Sputnik in the hall of the exhibition building opening day. People entering the hall pass between statues representing Russian workmen and are confronted by a huge statue of Lenin at the far end. Another model of a Russian sputnik hangs from the ceiling.

No Word On Soviet Rockets: So What Are They Up To?

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP) — Is a secret Sputnik III circling the earth, painted black, beeping out its message only over the Soviet Union?
Is a rocket made in the Soviet Union all set to land on the moon?
Or has the U.S.S.R. been having rocket launching troubles?
These are some of the questions asked in a sweepstakes of speculation, all rising from the fact it has been almost six months since Sputnik II rose Nov. 3.
Why the six months delay in Sputniks? Is the Soviet Union preparing some spectacular new step in our young new space age?
A secret Sputnik is possible, says one prominent U.S. rocket scientist.
"The Russians might have been shocked and awed by our reactions when they were first with their Sputniks," he says. "Maybe they don't want to stir us up any more, so they're waiting awhile."
"Maybe they even set up a secret sputnik to continue their scientific work. Paint it black instead of polishing it up, and it would be very hard ever to see. Fix it so it broadcasts only on command signal from the ground in Russia, and radio stations elsewhere could miss it entirely."
Dr. Werner von Braun, U.S. Army rocket specialist, expressed a different view.
The Soviets apparently used powerful ocean leaping military rockets, their ICBMs, to send up Sputniks I and II, he says.

Production of ICBMs could well be limited, he said. The military has had the call on the subsequent ones, and been testing them. The scientists have had to wait their turn for the rockets for more or better Sputniks.
Another publicly voiced suggestion is the Soviets have been shooting for the moon, but missing.
Or even that rockets sending up bigger and heavier Sputniks have crashed and failed. Since no prior announcement is made of an intention to launch, no explanations of any failures need be given.
At the other end is speculation the Soviets are saving a big shoot, or a big announcement of an accomplished fact, for its greatest propaganda value. This could be during the May Day celebrations, the visit of Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser late this month, or the time of a summit meeting.
Something is apparently brewing.
A Hungarian Communist youth newspaper recently quoted a Soviet scientist, Nikolai Varvarov, as saying the U.S.S.R. would soon launch a satellite weighing more than five tons — 10,000 pounds — carrying complex instruments.

Academician Ivan Bardin, a Soviet leader in the International Geophysical Year, was quoted early this month as saying a Sputnik launching was due soon. He did not specify what kind.
Academician Anatoli Blagonravov, a rocket specialist, was quoted in a Soviet radio broadcast as saying the Soviets are close to sending a man up in a rocket with safe return. A one-stage rocket carrying 1 1/2 tons of equipment soared up 295 miles and landed at the planned location, he said.
Some Soviet officials have hinted that it is repetitious and a waste of time just to send up satellites—that after a couple have gone up, the next step is something bigger and bolder. This could be the shot for the moon.
Soviet scientists and officials know the plan and the answer. Meanwhile, they just let the speculation run.

Salon Bandits Force Women To Disrobe

DALLAS (AP) — A couple of bandits in Ivy League clothes forced some 20 women to strip and reduced the take at a reducing salon by $150 last night.
"It was awful," complained manager Esther Ragland.
"They walked in like they owned the place, herding two or three women ahead of them from the entrance hall."
Mrs. Ragland said one of the men "told us this was a holdup and started pushing everybody toward the back of the studio." "He hit one woman attendant in the face with a pistol."
She said the gunman, snarling death threats, forced the women into a steam room, shut the door and stood outside. He ordered everyone to disrobe and throw out the clothing.
He then ordered Mrs. Ragland, still dressed, to the front office and made her hand over all the money.
"Then he marched me back to the steam room, opened the door and shoved me inside. He came right in with me and made me take off my clothes."
"It was terrible. All the ladies were sitting on the benches without a stitch on. Everyone of them was scared to death."
"He told us he'd kill the first woman who opened the door. He told us to stay inside 15 minutes."
"We did."
She said they came out, retrieved their clothes and one woman ran across the street to call police.
Mrs. Ragland said the second bandit stood around with a pistol in his hand, but said little.

Surgery Advised For Many Women

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Reporter
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of American women over 40 years of age should undergo hysterectomy for their own well-being, says a group of specialists in the treatment of diseases associated with child bearing.
This operation, in which the womb is removed, often is the only effective way of dealing with organic disease and other troubles, but it is being criticized because of ignorance and misinformation, they assert.
"The afternoon tea table is the chief source of opposition to this procedure," said Dr. Allan C. Barnes, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Western Reserve University Medical School at Cleveland.
"The typical tea table," he added, "is made up of the pregnant woman, the married but never pregnant one, the unmarried woman and the one who has one child. The talk goes around the table to the left. Each woman scares the other."
Dr. Barnes took part in a panel discussion before the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists yesterday. Other panelists were Dr. Waverly R. Payne, Newport News, Va., and Dr. Frederick Zuspan, McDowell, Ky.
Dr. Barnes said there are no firm statistics on the matter but that probably 5 to 10 out of every 100 women over 40 have fibroid tumors of the womb and about 20 per cent of those so affected should have the operation because of the growths. In addition, he said, there is an undetermined number of women who would benefit by the operation because of other conditions.
Chief objection to this surgery, he continued, is that it makes the patient no longer a woman; that she cannot enjoy sex relations afterward. This, he said, is not true.
Dr. Payne reported many of his hysterectomy patients noted improvement in their sex life afterward, probably because they had become free from pain and their general health had improved.

Youth Terrorizes Class In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A knife-wielding youth was arrested after terrorizing a seventh grade class at a Negro school yesterday.
Mrs. Gertrude Robertson, the teacher, said she taught the youth in third grade several years ago.
She said one of her students told her the youth, 18, was at the glass door behind her.
"The students told me he was holding a switch blade knife and signalling for them to keep quiet by holding his forefinger to his lips," she said. "Then he came in and sat down and told me he was going to study reading, too."
Mrs. Robertson said the youth cursed her and threatened to kill her. She went for help and when she returned, she said, the youth was chasing students around the room with a knife.
Police soon came and arrested the youth. No charges were filed immediately.

A Bible Thought For Today

For David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption: But he, whom God raised again, saw no corruption. (Acts 13:36-37)

Outstanding Achievement

There's certainly nothing wrong with fine athletic performances, whether by teams or individuals, and thus the play we give them is in keeping with the public's interest in the subject. But too often we recognize these achievements to the exclusion of some other merits which reflect an even more commendable scholastic accomplishment. It would be a mistake, therefore, to let the record of two fine young men and a young lady at the regional meet in Lubbock go without proper recognition. We refer to Stephen Baird and Julius Glickman, who won first place in the boys' debate division, and Sandra Tally, who took first place in ready writing. We could go on to mention others, such as Betty Guthrie, who missed going to the state meet only by the thinnest of margins. Sandra won easily on the district level and went right on to take the regional title, exhibiting a special talent for expression. While she will be pitted against some brilliant boys and girls at the state meet, she needn't experience any qualms for she has equal if not exceptional ability. The record of 40 decisions against five losses speaks eloquently of the record of Stephen Baird and Julius Glickman. The quality of competition they have faced brings the record into even bolder relief. Our school has produced some exceptional debate teams, but we would be inclined to concur with many others who regard this as the sharpest and best balanced to date. When we can produce champions in the field of vocal and written expression, we are giving better evidence of scholastic solidarity than when we produce a winner in athletics.

There'll Be Enough For Us

It is with disappointment that we noted in Jess Blair's column Sunday that Martin County producers are not going to undertake a sizable cantaloupe project this year. The reason is understandable, for marketing of the crop last year was less than ideal. However, undertakings such as these are developed to a practical status through continued experience. Last year's efforts did establish one fact, namely that Martin County can produce cantaloupes which are on a par with any produced anywhere when it comes to quality. Without prior experience and even including many mistakes seasoned commercial growers likely would have avoided. Martin County producers came to market with melons which had the firmness and sweetness made famous by such areas as Pecos, Presidio, etc. Several farmers have indicated that they will raise more than a substantial acreage of cantaloupes, so perhaps there will be more than enough for the local market.

French Crisis Creates U.S. Dilemma

WASHINGTON—With the critical May meeting of the NATO Council of Foreign Ministers scarcely more than two weeks away, France is without a government and likely to be without one for an indefinite period in which almost anything can happen. A crisis of 37 days preceded the formation of the 25th French government since the end of the war headed by youthful Felix Gaillard. However, here we predict that it will be at least that long before a new coalition is found. Gaillard was a prisoner caught in the trap of the National Assembly between the Communist left and the Fascist or near-Fascist right. He could do little or nothing to resolve the conflict in Algeria, which is the immediate source of political friction. No government put together from the unstable elements of the center, with the grudging backing of the right, could do much more. It is here that the void begins. The danger in this interval is so great that it is hardly even whispered aloud in the State Department. The actual fact, rarely admitted by anyone in authority either in Washington or in Paris, is that Gaillard and his government had no real control over the French military in Algeria or over Robert LaCoste, supposedly the agent of the French government in Algiers. Now, without a government, the military commanders may take matters into their own hands again as they did in the bombing of the Tunisian border village, Sakiet-Sidi-Youssef. Another incident, perhaps a small border war, would present Washington with a hideous choice. If the United States failed to stand on the side of Tunisia in the face of such an attack, then what is left of the Western—this is to say American—position in the Middle East and North Africa would be gone. On the other hand, by taking the side of Tunisia this government would trigger an explosion in France. The French, according to recently returned visitors, simply refuse to listen to reason or moderation on Algeria. They are determined to find a villain on whom they can unload their emotions and the United States is the most conspicuous target. Even without another "incident" Tunisia's President Habib Bourguiba means to take the dispute with France to the United Nations. He has said that while out of regard for France he will not move at once, he cannot wait for four or five weeks. He confronts internal pressures that make his own position precarious. Small wonder that American officials at whatever level are keeping unhappy silent. They are denied the luxury of President Eisenhower's dismissal of the crisis as of little consequence, a gimmick, since they must try to cope with what happens next. The irony is that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who is blamed for so many things, had made a resolute effort to find a way out after the Tunisian bombing. Dulles sent one of this country's ablest diplomats, Robert Murphy, to join Harold Beeley of the British Foreign Office in a mission to try to reconcile Tunisian demands for immediate removal of French forces in Tunisia with the French determination to have some kind of patrol established on the Tunisian-Algerian border. On a vote of confidence on the recommendations of the Murphy-Beeley mission, the Gaillard government fell. Through the long French crisis the promise of salvation has contended closely with the threat of damnation. French production has reached an all-time high, with the French claiming that their productivity per man-hour is at least equal to, if not greater, than that in West Germany. The unification of Europe through such devices as the common market is just ahead. In the present situation the frail hope is for a government above party made up of former Premiers—Guy Mollet, Rene Pleven, Edgar Faure, Antoine Pinay, perhaps Gaillard, Robert Schuman and one or two other "elder statesmen." Whether they could achieve anything in the face of the implacable hostility of left and right is doubtful. The very fact that this is discussed as a possible temporary way out is a measure of the desperation of the plight of France and the West. (1958, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

WHAT OTHERS SAY

It is no secret that the nation's postal employees have long been one of the most neglected groups in the entire federal employment structure. Since July, 1951, they have received only one salary increase and that was a modest one. They have amply earned another increase at this time. But they are now being deprived of their long-overdue pay boost because of a parliamentary snarl in Congress. As far back as last August, the House passed a postal rate increase bill without tying in any postal pay provisions. Meanwhile, the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee has reported an independent postal pay increase bill which is now on the calendar awaiting action. The postal pay raises in the Senate bill run from 7 1/2 to 12 1/2 per cent whereas the House pay bill provides raises from 10 to 14 per cent. The bills as passed by both the Senate and House are now in conference. They also differ radically in the scale of higher charges for carrying all four classes of the mail. As a matter of simple justice to the inadequately paid postal workers, we strongly recommend that the congressional conferees divorce the pay raises from the bill and pass them independently. —SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER

Building Report

CHICAGO—The American Assn. of Fund-Raising Counsel says new religious construction, including new buildings and remodeling old, reached an all-time high value of 868 million dollars in 1957, an increase of 13 per cent over the previous year. New hospital construction in 1957 was valued at 505 million dollars, or 54 per cent above the previous year. Educational building, while at a high level of 519 million dollars, was 3 per cent under the previous year. The increased construction brings the total assets of gift-supported institutions in the United States to nearly 44 billion dollars.

What's Right Answer To Tax Cut?

WASHINGTON—Right now we're having one of the greatest guessing games in history: Should taxes be cut now to fight the recession? Our future is involved in the right answer. Answers are coming from members of both political parties, economists, individuals, private groups, businessmen, labor. Since everyone can't be right, someone's guessing. The variety of their response gives an emphatic "no" to any idea that economics in the year 1958 is an exact science. The Eisenhower administration and the Democratic leaders in Congress are both playing cautious: they're waiting to see if the recession gets worse before going for a tax cut. Secretary of the Treasury Anderson and the Democratic leader of the House, Speaker Rayburn of Texas, have a gentlemen's agreement to consult with each other before either takes the initiative on a cut. But the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Assn. of Manufacturers and the AFL-CIO are for a reduction now, although they differ on the kind of cuts they want. Former President Truman, an amateur economist, wants fast action. So does Sen. Douglas, Illinois Democrat, a professional economist of national standing before his election to Congress. Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to presidents from Wilson to Eisenhower, considers a tax reduction unthinkable. Not so Murriner S. Eccles, who headed the Federal Reserve Board under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. He's for a cut.

That Sack Rumor's False

NEW YORK—The average husband, thumbing through his wife's style gazettes, is convinced that most fashion models are human beanpoles in need of a blood transfusion. One of his constant fears is that his wife, wearing the same clothes, will come home looking that way, too—that is, rather like a basketball center in skirts. Somehow word got around recently that the new sack look would change all this. The rumor spread that fashion models now would look less like a vertical clothes line and more like, well, Marilyn Monroe. We have checked this rumor with Mrs. Roz O'Rourke Foy, an authority in such matters, and she says she can't understand how such a falsehood ever got started. "A fashion model definitely still must be slim," said Mrs. Foy, with her husband, Bill Foy, a former photographer, operates a model agency that stocks 50 of the town's leading gossames. "She can't be voluptuous—along Marilyn Monroe's lines. Marilyn Monroe indeed! Why, she'd definitely flop as a fashion model. There's simply too much of her. No doubt of it! "Marilyn is too abundant. So is Anita Eckberg. So is Jayne Mansfield. In the world of fashion, they're regarded as freaks of nature."

Pretender

MADISON, Wis.—Harry A. Deadman was fined $15 after he pretended to be dead drunk. The 19-year-old youth was lifted into a squad car when he was found on the street, apparently helpless. Deadman sobbed immediately and explained he merely was amusing himself by pretending to be drunk. Police were not amused. They changed their complaint from drunkenness to disorderly conduct, and the court fined him $15.

On Top Of The World Again

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK—"I'll never say never again," said Red Buttons. He and another man were walking through Manhattan's lower East Side from the hall where Buttons is rehearsing for the lead in "Hansel and Gretel," which will come to the home screen via NBC-TV next Sunday. "Wait a minute," Buttons paused on 2nd Avenue and pointed east to the crowded tenements which line 8th Street. "I was born down that street. Sometimes, when I was at my lowest ebb a couple of years ago, I used to drive down here from uptown late at night and tell myself, 'At least I'm not here.'"

At that time Buttons had plummeted after a television comedian. Today Buttons is widely sought after. The turning point came last performance of the year by a supporting actor for his role in "Sayonara."

The man walking to lunch with Buttons remarked that he was a far more relaxed fellow than when they had talked two years ago. "You have what happened to me happen to you and you'll be relaxed too," Buttons replied. "The fuzz is out. I've grown up a lot. I've had a lot of time to think and I know more about myself and the world than I ever did before." What are his plans after "Hansel and Gretel"? "I'm playing by ear," he said. "You don't make plans in this business. If I have a chance at a good movie, I'll do it. Or a good television show, I'll do it. I'm batting from four sides of the plate."

Ah, Romance

NEW YORK—Romance is making the restaurant business rough for Harry Bloomfield. The woe is the matrimonial allure for men guests of the Hawaiian wahnins (girls) who have been installed as the restaurant's hostesses. Bloomfield's restaurant, the Luau 400, opened only recently, but three of the original seven girls have already departed for wedlock, two more are altar-bound, and another was kept on the job only after the harried host found her husband an assignment in the dining room. "I never thought marriage would be one of my biggest operating problems," says Bloomfield,

Habits Easy To Get, Hard To Lose

My commanding officer has a habit of feeding the birds who sojourn in our neighborhood. In the winter time, she puts out scraps and stuff for the little feathered friends to eat. Even when spring has sprung and the countryside teams with burgeoning growth and flourishes with armies of bugs and worms, she still sees to it that nourishment is placed for the birds.

Back where we used to live there was a mess of birds. Our residence was out at the edge of town and throngs of sparrows, robins, bluejays, starlings, and other birds congregated in the trees and shrubs around the house.

As a result of the missus' practice of providing feed, these fellows developed into professional bums. They put forth no effort at all on their own part to hustle any grub. They just sat on the fences or hovered in the trees waiting for the free meals to arrive.

They did this in the winter, when the countryside was barren and when snow and ice covered the ground. When spring came and life returned to the plants and shrubs, they saw no reason to change their habits. They just continued to sit and wait for lunch to be served.

A neighbor to the pack of our place went in for chickens. He fed his hens grain and mash. Our birds, waiting for their free food, would watch as this neighbor scattered the feed for his fowls. Then they would all swoop down, grab up the entire lot, and be back on their perches before you could say whipper-will. The hens suffered, they lost weight and began to sort of droop around. The owner, in desperation, was forced to feed his flock inside the henhouse. Some of the bolder birds would powerdrive through the door, grab up a mouthful of the feed even then.

I used to get pretty disgusted with those birds.

Now, however, I understand a little better their psychology.

Recently, both myself and the wife fell ill at the same time. Neither of us was quite able to do the ordinary things about the house.

Things would have become pretty salty, I think, if it hadn't been for the neighbors.

They—bless 'em!—took over the task of providing us invalids with food. They brought in ready-cooked meals at the proper hours. Good food, too, full of flavor, nourishment and the like.

This kept on like clock-work all through the days when we were hors de combat. We kept protesting that the neighbors didn't have to do that but we gradually diminished our protests.

When the time came that we were able to drag our bodies out from under the crazyquills, naturally the inflow of free food came to a halt.

And I realized, for the first time, exactly the way that the birds looked at the matter. It's no trouble at all to get in the habit of accepting such things; it is a little more difficult to get out of the habit. —SAM BLACKBURN

'No Recession' In Some Parts

NEW YORK—The present industrial slump has had many names—an inventory recession, a capital goods recession, an industrial readjustment. But in large sections of the nation today it goes by the name of "no recession."

The regional nature of the slump and the fact that some industries and most services have been affected very little if at all becomes more apparent with each new set of figures released in Washington.

The over-all industrial slowdown is serious and no one tries to minimize that. But many sections today report business as usual and wonder what all the shouting is about.

For example, most of the Southwestern fourth of the nation is enjoying general good times without letup.

Parts of this vast area—especially those where the aircraft industry concentrates—had their own private recession almost a year ago when the Congress was economizing. Employment rolls are now high again.

Other sections had their private recession over recent years when drought was taking a heavy toll. But abundant rains have reversed that picture.

Areas that produce lumber and other home building materials had a rough time when housing construction dipped, but hope now for better days ahead because of the new piles of cheaper money in the banks.

Mining towns feel the cutback in work weeks. Although this Southwestern quarter of the nation now stoutly maintains that for most citizens times are good and seem likely to stay that way, nervousness does show through in the questioning about what is happening to the more heavily industrialized sectors in the East and Middle West. People just ask how had the slump is elsewhere and what signs it shows of spreading.

In all sections of this varied land two phenomena of this recession are shared. One is the falloff in new car sales and to some extent in the larger household appliances. The other is the high cost of living. From coast to coast there are screams of pain about rising prices, fares and fees.

There is more pain in the factory towns where jobs have disappeared or paychecks shrunk.

But no matter how good times seem along the West Coast and through the mountain states and the southern Great Plains, there is constant grumbling about the steadily rising cost of doing business and the increasing pinch on the family budget from mounting prices and professional fees.

Communities depend on other things than concentrated heavy industry may be feeling this recession little so far. But the price boosts that may have got their start in the factory towns are hitting pocketbooks everywhere.

Picture Of A Master Designer At Work

WORLD'S FAIR, Brussels—This fair is full of avant garde architecture and usually, after a second look, I like it fine. The French pavilion, for instance, is going to be a dilly when it's done.

But there is a building here that stumps me, and it is by the man long hailed as the mentor, prophet and granddaddy of modern architecture, Frances Le Corbusier. This Gallic Frank Lloyd Wright has designed for the staid Philips Electronic Company of The Netherlands a building that looks like an unsolved problem in plane—or do I mean solid?—geometry. Every time I go past it I want to exclaim, "Dig that crazy Euclid!"

It's hard to explain what the building looks like, because it doesn't look like any other building I've ever seen—or you, either. It's a series of cones and triangles glued together at odd angles so that the apex of the cones (Does a cone have an apex? I flunked math) and triangles all stick out hither and yon in space.

But if I don't understand the building, I am privy to a briefing on the master and how he works that may make a footnote for history, since Le Corbusier is certain of a niche. When the Phillips firm decided to go all out and hire the legendary Le Corbusier (he had a hand in planning the United Nations buildings in New York), it hired a Belgian builder and sent him to France to consult with the architect.

"Well, we might as well begin with a circle," Le Corbusier said, according to my informant who carried a spear in this scene. Thereupon, Le Corbusier drew a circle. "Then we shall have to let the people in," he continued, and drew a door. "Next we shall have to let them out," he added, and drew another door in the circle, opposite the first.

At that critical moment, Le Corbusier's maid came into the room. The woman wore her hair in a chignon, pinned up with old-fashioned bone hairpins. These, apparently, were just the building material the master was looking for. He stopped the woman and took the pins out of her hair, first trying a pin this way, and then that, on the circle. After thrusting a pin through the paper at one angle, Le Corbusier would study it for a moment before deciding to move it or let it remain.

Eventually, he pulled the last hairpin from the chignon and hair cascaded over the woman's shoulders. The master regarded the pin thoughtfully, made a final thrust and handed the astounded Belgian builder the piece of paper studded with bone hairpins.

"Here is your building," said Le Corbusier.

And there indeed it was. The builder returned to Brussels, guarding the paper and the hairpins as if they were jewels, and set to work. The result is the most unique building in a fair distinguished by the architecture of tomorrow.

In fact, the building belongs in that category of objects that people, buffed for a better descriptive phrase, call "a conversation piece." It certainly is making conversation at the fair. And I am thinking of letting my hair grow and laying in a gross of hairpins, just in case. (1958, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

WHAT OTHERS SAY

Many an American is troubled in his conscience about Cuba. He knows that the island is closely tied to and greatly influenced by the United States. He earnestly wishes to see the Cuban people freed from misrule and violence. But he finds it exceedingly difficult to help. There are a few Americans who support the Batista dictatorship because they do not wish to see their own positions disturbed. But the average citizen deplores that regime's tyranny. Yet he hears almost daily of measures taken by his government to cut off aid to the Cuban rebels. This, of course, is diplomatically correct. But the sentiment of many folk was well put by one warm-hearted woman: "Maybe we have to be 'hearted,' but do we have to be so completely efficient? We weren't in the case of Guatemala." In Guatemala the tyranny had a distinct Red tinge which aroused special alarm in Washington.

Of course most of what has to be done must be done by Cubans themselves. But the Cubans have made much progress and the forces of enlightenment and freedom are growing. They deserve more effective appreciation in the United States. —CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Cook, excellent junior; Mrs. Roland Jones, excellent senior; Mrs. Johnny Underwood, treasurer and Mrs. Herbert Johnson Jr., past chief. Mrs. H. M. Rainbolt was elected third year trustee Monday night. The group also named Mrs. Robert Hill and Mrs. Dick Rigby second- and first-year trustees respectively. As the summer project, the women plan to provide swim togs and towels for the orphans home at Weatherford. Hostesses for the session were Mrs. W. T. Chrane and Mrs. L. D. Chrane. Fourteen attended and Mrs. Rainbolt was awarded the silver drill.

Mu Zeta Chapter Votes Select State Projects

At a meeting of the Mu Zeta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, Monday evening, the group made the selection of a state project. The vote was for the Southwestern Diabetic Association, Camp Sweeney, Gainesville. Mrs. Gordon Links was hostess for the meeting. Plans were discussed for the ritual of jewels to be held May 3, with the place to be announced. Members voted to send $25 to national headquarters for the international endowment fund. Some of the projects included in the assistance are Girls' Town at Whiteface and the Cystic Fibrosis Fund. Leader of the program was Mrs. Melvin Witter, whose subject was "The Good." She discussed the lives and work of Abraham Lincoln and Charles A. Lindbergh. A ballot was taken on the chapter's Girl of the Year, who will be named at the Founders Day banquet, slated for some time in May. Mrs. Darel Highley, 600 Main, was announced as the next hostess.

Could Be A Hint Is All That's Necessary - - Eh

Working gals, take notice. Don't complain to your boss about time for the coffee break or the cigarette break unless you have shown him that you're always ready for the "work break," also. According to Ray E. Wright, vice president of Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., "Employers are paying out billions of dollars every year for time not worked—billions for completely unproductive time." In a speech delivered at the 30th Institute on Industrial Relations, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers, Wright said some measure of control without reducing wages and without taking a single benefit from employees. The more than 22 million women now in the work force, from clerks to the executive "gals in the grey flannel suits," may wish to pay heed to the New Jersey executive's reminder that, "If every employee did give a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, many companies would be able to avoid price increases that now seem inevitable. Other companies might even be able to reduce prices in some cases. "I'm not talking about pay for

Presbyterian Groups Meet At Church

Two meetings took place at the First Presbyterian Church, Monday. One was the luncheon of the Elizabeth McDowell Sunday School Class; the other, the general meeting of the Women of the Church. Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Lucian Jones and Mrs. J. D. Leonard. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Gage Lloyd for 18 members and three guests. Because of the family party scheduled in May for the entire church membership, the class will dispense with the May luncheon. Hostesses for the June meeting will be Mrs. T. S. Currie and Mrs. W. G. Take Up Ballet Or Just Plain Weed Chopping

By RAY SHAW OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Bothered about that extra weight here and there? If you're a woman, Mme. Alexandra Danilova, one of the world's top prima ballerinas, suggests that you take up ballet. If not, get out in the yard and do some gardening. The classical ballet movements, in the dancer's opinion, "are the best exercise for a woman's body." She says she believes every ballet theater should have special classes for women who want to keep slender, if not to learn the ballet. She adds: "I do my classical and physical exercises daily. I believe in both. "A woman may go to the studio once a week, but she must also do her exercises daily. Every woman who really looks well, exercises. It is boring, but one must do it. "Very seldom is a woman born a goddess—and she can always improve herself. Mme. Danilova, although retired from the stage, retains her 110-pound weight and a firm,

Coahomans Wed In Informal Ceremony

COAHOMA — Sherry Lane Kennedy became the bride of Joseph Patrick Nixon, Saturday evening in the sanctuary of Coahoma Presbyterian Church. The Rev. C. P. Owen, pastor, read the double ring ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nixon, all of Coahoma. Only members of the family and intimate friends were present for the exchange of vows. The couple was attended by the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Myers, Andrews. Mrs. Owen, organist, played the nuptial music. After a brief wedding trip, the couple will make a home in Coahoma where she will continue her study at the high school, Nixon. Mrs. Bohannon Hosts Mary-Martha Circle

Nine members of the Mary Martha Circle, First Christian Church, gathered Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. L. Bohannon for the regular meeting. Mrs. F. C. Robinson opened the hour with prayer and Mrs. W. B. Martin, brought the lesson on famous pairs of the Bible. Mrs. J. T. Allen presided for the session and announced that the local church will be host to the district meeting May 11. She named Mrs. R. J. Michael, Mrs. Shelby Hall and Mrs. A. C. Savage as the nominating committee. The next meeting will be a luncheon at 1 p.m. May 19, at the home of Mrs. Allen, 114 Lincoln.

Diane Cheatham Is Given Birthday Party

KNOTT — Diane Cheatham was honored with a party for her seventh birthday anniversary Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cheatham. Games were played, and each guest was given a bag of popcorn with prizes of balloons, bubble gum and suckers. A birthday cake was decorated with pink roses and candles; individual cupcakes were served from a table covered in a pink cloth. Favors for the 18 guests were made of the numeral, seven, atop a shiny penny with the advice, "Keep this and you'll never be broke." Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ulmer and Ann spent the weekend with her parents in Coleman.

Essay Winners Attend ALA Session

Winners of the Americanism Essay Contest sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary were guests of honor at the Auxiliary meeting Monday night at the Legion Hut. Union Men Slap Automation Promise

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two labor union officials contended today that automated factories have not produced the expanded employment and lower prices they said experts had promised.

Albert Whitehouse, director of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department, and Elmer J. Maloy, industrial engineering chief of the United Steelworkers, said automation so far has proved to be the bane rather than the boon of the American worker.

Youth, Father, Deputy Slain In Gun Battle

DANA POINT, Calif. (AP)—A 10-year-old boy, his father and a deputy sheriff died in a strange gun duel last night.

Another deputy and a 14-year-old boy were wounded.

Authorities said the sheriff's office had received a telephone warning that a deranged man was driving a battered old school bus — converted for family travel — through this picturesque resort city and that he had threatened to harm his children.

Sheriff's Lt. Clarence A. Double gave this account of the events which followed:

Deputies Edward C. Johnson, 31, and Robert L. Shultz, 37, overtook the bus on the Street of the Blue Lantern.

As Johnson and Shultz approached Charles Arthur Seyfert, 39-year-old Tucson, Ariz., carpenter, and his older son Charles, 14, opened fire from the bus — father with a .22-caliber pistol and the son with a rifle.

Spectators heard Seyfert order his sons: "Shoot anybody who tries to stop the bus. Don't let them take you."

Lt. Double said the yellow bus had more than 30 bullet holes in it when the shooting ended. Seyfert and his youngest son Tommy, 10, were killed almost instantly.

Both deputies had fallen to the pavement wounded. Deputy Shultz died before reaching a hospital.

The older Seyfert boy and Deputy Johnson were taken to Hoag Memorial Hospital, where attendants said the boy's condition was critical. Johnson, shot twice in the side, was expected to recover.

Lt. Double said the warning telephone call came from Mrs. Seyfert's sister, who lives in nearby San Juan Capistrano. He said the family had stopped at the sister's home briefly and that Mrs. Seyfert had confided to her that she was concerned about her husband's mental condition.

Mrs. Seyfert, 34, told investigators that she fled the bus with her daughter, Roberta, 4, several blocks before it reached the scene of the shooting when she became alarmed by her husband's actions and his talk about guns.

She said the family left Arizona Saturday, intending to go to Alaska.

Tobacco Chanters Ending Hibernation

By BRYAN HAILIP
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)— Rustles of spring, stirring nature in the vast Southeastern tobacco country, are bringing back the chant of the tobacco auctioneer.

Like a migratory bird, the tobacco chanter is a seasonal singer who heralds the approach of warm weather. His cry is the delight of farmers and the wonder of tourists all summer and autumn long at leaf sales from Florida north to Maryland and west to Kentucky.

During the winter months, the auctioneer turns to ordinary pursuits. He becomes a salesman or farmer or, if he is in the top pay bracket, simply loafs at golf, fishing and hunting.

Salt water gargles and bathtub solos prepare the chanters for the strain of singsonging a full sales day, usually 5 to 5 1/2 hours.

Tough veterans like W. L. Curran, 30-year-old, return to the grind without practice trials.

"It'll take a day or two for me to get broke in," says Curran, settled in the panelled den of his home near Durham, "you get used to it, just like singing."

Curran picked up the chant as a boy around his brother's Louisville warehouse. Today, he's a top man in the auctioneering fraternity and has warehouses and farming interests besides.

Those who master the art belong to a select group. Perhaps not more than 125 are active in the flue-cured and burley tobacco areas.

Many are natives of North Carolina, the leading state in leaf production.

The best command $15,000 and up for six months work. The pay scales down to about $6,000 to $7,500 for talented beginners.

Korea A Bright Spot In U.S. Aid Program

By RELMAN MORIN
SEOUL (AP)—The Republic of Korea, once the bloody battleground of a hot war on communism, has become one of the bright spots in the American aid effort in the Far East.

The United States has poured billions of dollars into South Korea in the last four years. Wherever you look, from whatever angle, it shows.

But an immense amount remains to be done. The problem—not of prosperity but of sheer existence—still is of staggering dimensions.

Politically, South Korea is one of the most fervently anti-Communist nations in the world. It is also strongly pro-American, although the leaders of the two governments do not see eye to eye on every problem.

Economically, virtually every indicator points to progress. Industrial, mining and electric power production is up. The wholesale price index has been held level for 15 months. Savings accounts in the banks—reflecting confidence in the currency—are 40 per cent above the 1956 figures.

Militarily, the total armed force is estimated as being the fourth largest in the free world. More important, American officers unambiguously tell you, "they're tough, well trained and well equipped. They've got top bracket officers and their morale is terrific. The ROKs have a real fighting force now."

pride in their individual chants. "You won't find any two exactly alike," says W. Phil Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist with the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Basically, this chant is a repetition of bids signaled by buyers. It would go something like this, "50-dollar bid, 51-dollar bid, 52-dollar bid, sold to X tobacco company."

The difference is in the style of the auctioneer. One throws in a freight train's whistle. Another spaces the bids with a shout of "hey-hey," or calls out a favored word or phrase.

The rhythm is paced to knock out sales at the rate of six or seven per minute, and the auctioneer keeps the beat with his hand or by shuffling his foot.

As he moves down the row between piles of tobacco, the auctioneer is followed by 10 to 12 buyers. The warehouseman calls out an opening price for each pile. Every buyer has his own signal to raise the bid — a wave of the hand, tweak of an ear, wink or nod of the head.

Movie Wives Work Hard On Charity Project

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD — Nomination for Hollywood's prettiest press agent — Janet Leigh.

And few press agents work as hard as does Janet. She has contacted me at least six times in the last six months — never about her own or husband Tony Curtis' careers. Janet is selling Share, Inc.

Share is a group of young Hollywood wives who banded together in 1953 to work for charity. Their pet project is the Exceptional Children's Foundation which helps the mentally retarded child.

It was a neglected field, mostly because parents of such children often want to keep them in the house. The battle was half won when Share started an education program for parents so that children could be taken out of attics, so to speak.

The wives of Share then put their famous husbands' talents to work for a series of annual parties and shows. Among the wives are Mrs. Jeff Chandler, Mrs. Dean Martin, Mrs. Gordon MacRae, Mrs. Sammy Cahn, Mrs. Jay Kanter, whose father heads Paramount and whose husband is an MCA executive; Mrs. William T. Orr, whose husband runs Warner's TV wing; and Mrs. Martin Melcher who is Doris Day.

"We raised enough money in five years to build and support the Child Guidance Center, the only clinic for mentally retarded children west of Chicago," says Janet. "Many of these children can, with expert instruction, be taught to take their place in society. Our center has done wonders."

Tito Strikes Back At His Red Critics

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia — President Tito struck back at his critics in the Soviet bloc today, accusing them of "shortsightedness and tactlessness toward our country."

In obvious reply to the Moscow-ordered boycott of the Yugoslav Communist Party Congress, Tito called on "these comrades to abandon finally such absurd tendencies which are only harmful and which prevent proper development of our relations."

The 1700 delegates to the first Party Congress since 1952 gave Tito a roaring, 10-minute ovation as he strode to the rostrum for the opening of the six-day meeting. Wearing a dark blue suit, the Yugoslav chief stood beneath huge portraits of Lenin, Marx and Engels.

Tito made no specific mention of the boycott by all East European and most West European Communist parties. But there was no doubt his criticism was directed at the newest Soviet snub, which stirred speculation that Yugoslav-Soviet relations might be heading for a new nosedive like the 1948 one.

Moscow ordered that only observers be sent to Ljubljana—not official delegations—in retaliation for Tito's maintaining that communism must develop independently according to local conditions

U.S. Wheat Export Total Decreases

WASHINGTON — Exports of U.S. wheat are running nearly 30 per cent below a year ago. Larger supplies in some importing areas and increased competition in world markets were major factors.

The Agriculture Department said today exports in the first nine months of the current marketing season ending July 1 totaled 285 million bushels, or 112 million bushels less than in the corresponding period last season.

Boy, 15, Gets 35-Year Term For Slaying Of His Mother

REXBURG, Idaho — Troubled Tommy Brophy, 15, a poetry-writing youth who had 20 neighbors marked for murder, sat in a cell today awaiting perhaps the security he has never known. The high school sophomore was given 32 years in prison yesterday for killing his mother last February. He must serve at least a third of it.

"It is difficult to understand you," said Judge Willard Burton as Tommy wept quietly during the sentencing. "You are a quiet, nice-looking boy, but beneath the surface there is a storm raging. . . . You have become a menace to society, and this society which you have not trusted cannot trust you."

Tommy twice blasted Mrs. Nellie Mae Hinkley, 36, with a shotgun, then fired a rifle bullet into her head. He was convicted of second-degree murder despite his plea of temporary insanity.

The bright, brooding youth—he has an IQ of 128—was described by psychiatrists at his trial as an impulse-ridden boy with a persecution complex, caused partly by his troubled home life.

After his parents divorced when he was 3, Tommy lived in three foster homes, a school, then with two stepmothers, his father, and finally—starting in 1956—with his mother and stepfather here.

The doctors said Tommy now sleeps under the cot in his cell, a blanket draped over the side of the cot, the cell light burning. They said he has always been afraid. Psychologist David Eichorn said Tommy "feared father images and felt rejected by mother images."

Among Tommy's effects police found papers detailing plots to kill 20 neighbors. Other items told how Tommy shot cats at night and once left a cat's paws on a neighbor's doorstep.

Other papers were poems—one written to 13-year-old Barbara Weatherston, Tommy's girl friend who testified he once tried to strangle her.

General Medics Upheld In Right To Clinic Facilities

HOUSTON — General practitioners should be allowed to do any kind of operating work in hospitals they can handle, the president of the American Medical Assn. said yesterday.

Dr. David Allman of Atlantic City, N.J., said the AMA was backing the general practitioner in his squabble with the specialist over the use of hospital operating facilities.

Allman spoke today at a meeting of the Texas Medical Assn. convention. The doctor said the age of specialization was tapering off in medical schools and that the AMA was encouraging men to become "good old-fashioned family doctors."

Dr. Denton Kerr of Houston, outgoing president of the State Medical Assn., said doctors must teach their patients how to spend their spare time and how "to organize their daily routine so they will get the most done with the least effort."

TV Story Written In Commie Prison

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK — What would you do to preserve your sanity if you were locked in a Communist prison cell for five years with never a glimpse of daylight? To keep from going mad, Hermann Field, an American architect who confronted these conditions in Poland from 1949 to 1954, joined with a Polish cellmate, Stanislaw Mierzenski, in narrating and finally writing novels. One of their joint works, "Angry Harvest," has now been published to widespread critical acclaim.

Tonight Kraft Theatre (NBC-TV) presents a television dramatization of that novel by David Davidson. It concerns the dilemma of a prosperous Polish farmer who shelters a young Jewish girl fleeing from the Germans in World War II.

"You go downhill quickly," Field said in describing the conditions under which he began creating novels. "That, of course, is what you want you to do. I think survival depends on your finding a 'think world.'"

One night, after a long period of passing time thinking about everyone and everything he ever had known, Field awakened to find that he had a cellmate. For weeks neither spoke, each fearing that the other was a stool pigeon.

As they gradually gained confidence and talked, Field learned that the other prisoner was a Polish journalist named Mierzenski. Field knew no Polish and Mierzenski no English, but both spoke German. In that language they whispered for months (since their jailers forbade their speaking aloud), exhausting everything they knew.

"Finally we took to fantasy," said Field. "We began making up stories, dramatic situations which the other would try to resolve. Growing more ambitious, we whispered and committed to memory a novel. Altogether we whispered seven books."

One of the best of these, they felt, was "Angry Harvest." Field went on a hunger strike to obtain notebooks and pencils to write the book.

"Mierzenski had to do the narrating and I the writing because he wasn't allowed to touch the paper. He thought in Polish, whispered in German, and I thought in German and wrote in English." Each night the notebooks were taken away and the two did not know whether they ever would see them again. When Field finally was released in 1954 with apologies that he was the wrong man, the return of the notebooks was one of the concessions he obtained from the authorities.

Mierzenski was released later and now is a free man living in Poland, where "Angry Harvest" was recently published and critically praised.

Field believes he was imprisoned as the result of a wave of preventive liquidation in the Iron Curtain countries after Tito split with Stalin. He returned to Poland seeking his missing brother Noel after having done relief work there for the British government in 1939. He knew many highly placed Poles who were the objects of Moscow-inspired liquidation in 1949. He was seized on trumped-up charges of being an American intelligence officer.

In that language they whispered for months (since their jailers forbade their speaking aloud), exhausting everything they knew.

"Finally we took to fantasy," said Field. "We began making up stories, dramatic situations which the other would try to resolve. Growing more ambitious, we whispered and committed to memory a novel. Altogether we whispered seven books."

One of the best of these, they felt, was "Angry Harvest." Field went on a hunger strike to obtain notebooks and pencils to write the book.

"Mierzenski had to do the narrating and I the writing because he wasn't allowed to touch the paper. He thought in Polish, whispered in German, and I thought in German and wrote in English." Each night the notebooks were taken away and the two did not know whether they ever would see them again. When Field finally was released in 1954 with apologies that he was the wrong man, the return of the notebooks was one of the concessions he obtained from the authorities.

Mierzenski was released later and now is a free man living in Poland, where "Angry Harvest" was recently published and critically praised.

Field believes he was imprisoned as the result of a wave of preventive liquidation in the Iron Curtain countries after Tito split with Stalin. He returned to Poland seeking his missing brother Noel after having done relief work there for the British government in 1939. He knew many highly placed Poles who were the objects of Moscow-inspired liquidation in 1949. He was seized on trumped-up charges of being an American intelligence officer.

Field said in describing the conditions under which he began creating novels. "That, of course, is what you want you to do. I think survival depends on your finding a 'think world.'"

One night, after a long period of passing time thinking about everyone and everything he ever had known, Field awakened to find that he had a cellmate. For weeks neither spoke, each fearing that the other was a stool pigeon.

As they gradually gained confidence and talked, Field learned that the other prisoner was a Polish journalist named Mierzenski. Field knew no Polish and Mierzenski no English, but both spoke German. In that language they whispered for months (since their jailers forbade their speaking aloud), exhausting everything they knew.

"Finally we took to fantasy," said Field. "We began making up stories, dramatic situations which the other would try to resolve. Growing more ambitious, we whispered and committed to memory a novel. Altogether we whispered seven books."

Stop Under The Humble Sign

Relerice Jones Service Station at the corner of 4th and Scurry gives complete Humble service with a smile. You will always find courteous employes waiting on you when you stop under the Relerice Jones Humble sign. They offer complete lubrication service, and with the station located downtown, why not leave your car with them for a wash and grease job, and do your shopping at the same time.

Grady Harland Station Open 7 Days A Week

Gound Pharmacy Has New Home

Does your automobile need a radiator flush? A grease job? A change of crankcase oil? A new battery? A new set of tires? A tankful of premium gasoline.

You can get any or all of those things at the Grady Harland Magnolia Service Station, located at 1000 Lamesa Highway in Big Spring.

Harland, owner and operator of the concern bearing his name, keeps the station open seven days a week to cater to the automotive needs of his customers.

From Monday through Saturday, the station opens at 7 a. m. and closes at 7 p. m. Sundays, the concern operates on a somewhat curtailed schedule—from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Harland is now offering one of the greatest deals it has ever offered in Mobil tires and tubes and has in stock plenty of any kind you prefer, whether it be white sidewall or heavy duty casings.

By trading in your old casings, you get a liberal allowance toward the purchase of new tires, which are priced reasonably.

Harland and his employes take pride in the automotive service jobs they do. If a vehicle is washed and cleaned, the customers can rest assured the car is vacuum-cleaned on the inside, as well as washed on the outside.

If you're planning that vacation in the next few weeks, don't leave without tracing your route on a free map made available at Harland's. Too, have that windshield cleaned, your battery water checked and your tires inflated to the correct poundage.

A drug store founded in the early days of Big Spring and which maintains a tradition of providing the area with first rate pharmaceutical services is operating this week in a new home.

It is the Gound Pharmacy, which last weekend moved into modern and commodious new quarters in the former Herald building at 9th and Main.

Wayne A. Gound, owner, said the move was made in order to enable the firm to execute its policy of providing continuously improving service to residents of the Big Spring area.

Much more space has been provided in every department—prescription service, manufacturing, display and storage.

The new home of the firm is centrally located among the city's four private hospitals. And it is surrounded by adequate parking space—away from meters—for the convenience of patrons.

Gound has invited the public to drop by the store and inspect the new facilities of Gound Pharmacy. Interior of the former newspaper plant has been completely remodeled and decorated in pleasing colors with all modern fixtures.

Considerable exterior remodeling already has been completed, and the outside work will continue until the exterior is entirely refinished. Gound decided to move into the new home after completing the interior work, rather than delay the move until all exterior work is finished. However, remodeling work on the outside will cause no inconvenience to customers.

Gound acquired the pioneer drug firm from Cecil Westerman in 1946. Westerman had been successor to B. B. Fox, early-day operator of the concern, in 1932.

EASY WAY TO KILL ROACHES AND ANTS

Scientists recommend that you control roaches and ants the modern way — with Johnston's No-Roach. Brushed just where you want it (table legs, cabinets, sills, asphalt tile, etc.) The colorless coating kills these pests. It's effective for months, sanitary, and easy to use.

Fiveash Ready To Put Cooler In Good Order

Nothing is more uncomfortable than a house with an air conditioner sitting outside the window that won't work.

Although the temperatures are pleasant now, the time is almost here when air conditioners will be needed. And it is awfully uncomfortable to look out the window and see an air conditioner which would remedy the heat—except that it isn't hooked up.

E. A. Fiveash, at Fiveash Plumbing Co., 321 E. 3rd, reminded Big Springers that the present is the best time to get that air conditioner serviced and readied for the summer season—now while temperatures are still moderate.

"There are people who wait until they need their air conditioner before they call us," said Fiveash, "and naturally we have delays when the calls pile up."

Fiveash Plumbing has complete air conditioning service. This includes painting the old machine, inserting new pads, oiling the motor, and hooking it up. Maybe the old copper tubing is worn out; Fiveash will replace it, too.

Should the pump or float—or both—be in need of replacement, that worry is also removed when Fiveash services your unit.

While the firm is readying that air conditioner, why not have a water softener installed. A water softener will take many of the impurities out of the water which hinder operation of your air conditioner.

You never miss the water until the air conditioner goes dry, so remove that worry as well as the heat problem by contacting Fiveash Plumbing—call AM 4-6111—for a complete air conditioner service.

And do it now before hot weather arrives.

Rain Covers Broad Areas

By The Associated Press
Showers and cooler weather extended across broad areas in the Eastern half of the nation today. More rain fell in the Far Northwest.

Thunderstorms and showers hit the Atlantic Coast states during the night in the wake of 80-degree temperatures from Florida and Gulf Coast into southern New England.

Nearly an inch of rain splashed Washington, D.C., and Binghamton, N.Y., in a six-hour period.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue: JACK DEMPSEY, in reply to a fight fan who asked him how he might have fared against Joe Louis in his prime:

"Listen, pal, I had trouble enough licking guys who were around when I was fighting, so why try to match me with Louis?"

TERRY MOORE, St. Louis Cardinal coach: "I demonstrated to our outfielders the other day how far they have to go to be ready to lay their best ball. Stan Hack was hitting flies and I was there with the outfielders. I told them they wouldn't be ready until they could start at the crack of the bat and go to the point where the ball was going to fall, without any wasted or false motions. Well, each and every one started back when they should have moved in, or the other way around. Until you get rid of that dissatisfied false motion, you're not ready to play big league outfield."

REV. BOB RICHARDS, the pole vaulter: "There's nothing wrong with professional boxing that some protective padding won't cure. I think boxing is one of our greatest sports and Golden Gloves is great. I think professional boxing is great, too, as a sport from a competitive standpoint. But I hate to see guys lose because they get cut up. Another thing, I hate to see fighters cut each other to win. That's why I urge some protective covering for the area around the eyes. You don't have to call it a helmet. All I propose is a protective gear for eye area. Make all fighters wear this—amateurs and pros."

CHARLES P. POND, Illinois gymnastics coach, after calling the typical American youth flabby, soft and weak: "It's not the fault of the youngsters. It's just that there's not enough emphasis in our school programs on physical fitness. I've seen football players come to my classes who couldn't even chin themselves once."

DON OSBORN, former Miami baseball manager: "If my life depended on retiring one batter, I'd want Satchel Paige to be the pitcher to do the job. He admitted to me last year he was 50 and if he admits to 50, you can imagine how old he really is. He's been pitching so long and in so many parts of the country that I would imagine he's pitched to fathers of boys he's getting out now. Satch didn't like to be anywhere on time. When we flew to Toronto or Montreal on the 80-passenger coach planes, Satch would miss our flight and meet us later. Said he'd come on a smaller plane. Somehow, he always felt there was more chance of accident with 80 people than, say, 40. It was an event when he got to the ball park on time. Usually, he'd show up about the third or fourth inning, knowing he wouldn't be used until the seventh or eighth. I fined him time and again but how can you take money from a man who wins games for you and simply wants to train his own way?"

RALPH HIGGINS, Oklahoma State University track coach: "Every season marks tumble that seemed almost out of reach the 60-foot shot put, the 4-minute mile, the 500-foot discus throw, the 15-foot pole vault. Who knows the calling? The kids are better than ever. Our school records are good but they'll keep right on smashing them."

DR. PHILLIP TRENTSCH, New York physician: "I've spent years analyzing Willie Mays. He never went to bat in his life worrying about whether he was going to get a hit or not. If he did, it would throw too much adrenaline into his system and cause him to lose perfect muscular co-ordination. That is because he doesn't let his cerebrum get mixed up with his cerebellum. The lower part of the brain is the cerebrum. That's the thinking part—the gray matter. The upper part is the cerebellum. It's the part you don't think with, but act with. That's the part Willie uses. Perfect muscular co-ordination—Ted Williams, Joe Louis, Paavo Nurmi, Mays—they all have it. Because of it, Willie could be a champion at anything he tried in sports—heavyweight boxing, basketball, football."

Porkers Build Lead In Golf

Arkansas stretched its hold on first place in Southwest Conference golf Monday while SMU was tied for the top in tennis by Rice. Arkansas whipped Baylor 6-0. TCU shamed Texas A&M 4-2 and Texas Tech licked Rice 5-1 in other golf matches. SMU was tied by Baylor, 3-3, in the tennis struggle. It dropped SMU into a tie for second with idle Rice. Each has a 14-4 record. Jerry Breckenridge shot a 3-under-par 67 to lead Arkansas in its one-sided triumph over Baylor and knock the latter out of second place. Tom Driscoll was the only Rice player able to win against Texas Tech. He beat Gene Boyd 1-up. John Cain, Don Kaplan and Johnny Farquhar won other singles matches for Tech while Cain and Kaplan and Farquhar and Boyd took doubles victories. Jerry Johnson shot a 1-under-par 71 to pace TCU in its triumph over Texas A&M. He beat Al Jones 1-up. Don Massengale, Charles Coody and Massengale and Johnson won other matches for TCU. Buck Prewitt won a singles match and teamed with Binky Mitchell to take a doubles match for A&M. John Skogstad and Tommy Goforth won singles and Goforth teamed with Don Gill to win doubles for Baylor in the tennis match with SMU. Bill Wright and Hayden Schilling won singles and Bill Dixon and Bill Wright took their doubles match for SMU.

GLYNN GREGORY Probation Cause?

PONY COACHES STILL MIFFED OVER DECREE

DALLAS (AP) — SMU won't be hampered in its athletic competition but the school's athletic officials still termed an NCAA 1-year probation for giving an athlete an oil field job "ridiculous" and "absurd."

The NCAA handed down the penalty yesterday charging that Glynn Gregory, now a freshman at SMU, was given a "tailor made" job for which he had no experience last summer. It also held that the job was not filled when the athlete returned to school in the fall.

SMU will be on probation until Sept. 1, 1959, but will be able to play in all tournaments or bowl games sponsored by the NCAA.

The NCAA did not name Gregory, the former Abilene High all-state football and baseball player, but SMU officials said he was the one involved. Gregory worked for the Harlan Ray Oil Company in Abilene after he had signed a letter of intent to enroll at SMU. Ray is an SMU supporter residing in Dallas.

Coach Bill Meek said he went to Kansas City voluntarily last week to discuss Gregory's job with the NCAA. Gregory's case was previously investigated by the Southwest Conference and SMU representatives.

The NCAA admitted Gregory was not paid an exorbitant salary when he worked for the oil company.

Gregory, who played on the freshman football team last fall and now is on the freshman baseball team, said he didn't know what kind of a job he would have during the summer when he signed with SMU but he added "I assumed I would get one; everybody does that."

He said he scouted oil wells—"as many in the area as I could each day"—gathering information on which the company might decide whether it wanted to lease land in the vicinity of the drilling. He said he was paid $300 a month and that he was not paid while absent to play in all-star games at Dallas, Wichita Falls and Memphis.

Meek declared, "If we're on probation, then every other school I know of ought to be on probation. For what the NCAA seems to be saying is that you shouldn't get a summer job for an athlete. All of our schools get summer jobs for their athletes, and because they are athletes."

Matty Bell, SMU athletic director, called the probation "absurd."

WOMEN QUALIFY TODAY IN BIG SPRING COUNTRY CLUB MEET

Upwards to 23 women are due to qualify today for the annual Big Spring Country Club Ladies Golf tournament.

Billie Dillon is regarded as the favorite to cop the crown, last won in 1956 by Mrs. Bill French. No meet was staged last year.

A long driving contest will be held today. First round play will begin tomorrow, with finals on tap Friday.

Luncheon will be served at the club from 1 to 3 p. m. tomorrow for all members of the club.

Since this tournament is being held to determine a club champion, no handicap will be imposed upon any of the players. Trophies are to be awarded to winners, runners-up and consolation round winners in each flight. Prizes are also in the offing for winners in the long driving and putting tournaments, as well as for the medalist.

Fifteen of the eligible entries played in the Scotch foursome held at the club Sunday and most of those planning to play have been honing their games for a week now.

Matches in all flights are down for 18 holes. Competition will begin tomorrow at about 10 a. m.

Awards will be made at a Friday evening cocktail party.

Steers Seek 11th Victory In Game With Snyder Nine

Snyder, baseball foe of the Big Spring Steers here this afternoon, brings an 8-10 won-lost record to town.

The resident Steers will be seeking their 11th win in 16 starts. Coach Roy Baird may make liberal use of his subs today, not because he doesn't have a lot of respect for the opposition but because he wants to give his regulars a rest.

The Steers have forged a 2-2 won-lost record in conference standings and Baird wants them to be ready Saturday, at which time they visit San Angelo and seek their second straight win over the Bobcats.

In addition to conference wins over San Angelo and Midland, the Steers have defeated Fort Worth Poly three times, Andrews twice, Pecos, Plainview and Lubbock Monterey this season. They have lost to Tom S. Lubbock, Andrews, Levelland, Abilene and Odessa.

Snyder warmed up for its game with the Steers by defeating Rotan Monday 6-3. Last Saturday, the Tigers split two games with Abilene, winning the first, 5-4, but dropping the second, 6-4.

Milton (Speedy) Moffett, the Snyder mentor, probably will send either Tim Roberts or Norman Glascock to the mound against the Steers today.

Baird could counter with Terry Stanley, Kenny (Rock) Johnson or Jay LeFevre.

Midland goes to San Angelo and Odessa visits Abilene in conference games today. Abilene, Odessa and Midland are now tied for first place in the standings, one game ahead of Big Spring.

Chicago Mound Corps Shaky

The Chicago White Sox may have the best pitching in the American League with a staff that has seven starters, but that Manager Al Lopez could use at the moment is a starter who can finish.

The staff that led the AL in complete games with 59 last season, behind Billy Pierce (16), Dick Donovan (15) and Jim Wilson (12), and picked up strong-armed Early Wynn over the winter, has not been able to get a complete game in six starts this season. Pierce, Donovan, Wilson, Wynn and young Bill Fischer all have tried.

What's worse, they've won only two of the six, with a whopping 5.01 earned run average that has cost them three of four games decided by one run.

Donovan blew a four-hit shutout in the last two innings for a 2-Detroit victory yesterday.

The New York Yankees won their fifth straight, defeating Boston 4-1. Kansas City, in second place 1 1/2 games back of the Yanks, collected eight runs on two hits in the eighth and beat Cleveland 9-4.

Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 4-2 in 14 innings last night in the only National League game played.

White Sox hitters were no help to Donovan. They got just three hits off Frank Lary in his eighth inning, scoring without a hit when he walked two and hit two in the sixth. Vito Valentini won in relief.

The Red Sox lost their fourth straight, although getting 10 hits and six walks. Don Larsen, who hit a two-run homer in the second off loser Willard Nixon, won his second. Ted Williams, who singled for his first hit in 10 at-bats this season in the fifth, hit his 457th home run in the seventh off Bob Grim. Whitey Ford wrapped it up with clutch relief.

Five walks, a single and Frank House's grand-slam homer gave the A's their eighth against rookie (Jim Mudcat) Grant and losing reliever Steve Ridzik.

Houston Wins 10-6 Decision

Weather knocked out two Texas League games, but Houston made hay while the sun didn't shine Monday—the Buffs whipped Victoria 10-6.

Rain kept Fort Worth from playing at Tulsa and Austin at Dallas. Corpus Christi and San Antonio didn't play because of a fiesta.

Texas League officials hoped the bad weather didn't indicate a repetition of last season when more games were postponed in the first month than any other year in league history.

Houston slugged 15 hits, including three home runs, to whip Victoria and move within a half-game of the top. But the Buffs had to come from behind twice to do it. Victoria went ahead early on a brace of 2-run homers by Larry Novak, the Rosebud right fielder. But Houston got three runs in the fifth on a rally started by pinch-hitter Jim McKnight's homer and went out front in the seventh on hits by Lloyd Jenney, Russ Rac, Dic Czekaj and Ellis Burton.

Victoria regained the lead with two in the seventh but Houston went back ahead in the eighth with a 3-run spruce on Fred McAlister's homer and hits by Jenney and Bob Thrope. Burton put the finishing touches to it with a 2-run homer in the ninth.

Maybe Player Can Revive The Club

PARIS, Tex. (AP)—Baltimore has assigned Kenneth Jenkins to the Paris club, but the chances are he'll never play a game here.

Former Business Manager Jim Bell received Jenkins' contract and information that Paris had purchased the player from Portland for $100.

Only trouble is that Paris doesn't have a team this year. The Sooner State League, of which Paris was a member, folded.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR Coach Thanks Supporters For Basketball Patronage

Dear Tommy, I'd like to use this medium of communication to say thanks to all the basketball fans for the wonderful support given the Steers this past season, and for the gifts presented to the coaches at the Basketball banquet last week.

I will not attempt to name the individuals and organizations that have helped for fear of leaving some out. You fans will never know how much it helps and means to an athlete and the coaching staff to have the school and town behind you like we did this year.

So on behalf of the boys and the coaches again we say—thank you.

Sincerely,
 JOHNNY JOHNSON

Auburn Faces Bleak Future In Wake Of NCAA Action

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Stunned Auburn, shackled with another three-year probation sentence for football recruiting violations, today faced prospects of a bleak athletic future with teams all dressed up in success and nowhere to go.

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. slapped the three-year ban—one of the severest in the groups history—at a meeting yesterday and dealt Seattle University and Southern Methodist lesser penalties. Seattle drew probation for two years and Southern Methodist was given a less stringent one-year term.

Auburn, No. 1 football team in the nation last year and rated a prime contender for national honors again this fall, was about to complete a three-year probationary period when the hammer fell. The action yesterday covers all Auburn athletic teams and rendered them ineligible for NCAA title events as well as mid-season and post-season tournaments until Sept. 1, 1961.

Seattle's basketball teams are ineligible for NCAA events, mid-season and post-season games until Sept. 1, 1960. The probation given SMU does not bar the Mustangs from bowl games and other tournaments, but the school's athletic program and practices will be under close scrutiny until Sept. 1, 1959.

John Castellani, Seattle basketball coach and athletic director, resigned after the NCAA action was announced, but he denied any pressure was applied on him to quit because of the probation.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, said the discipline given Auburn was the third toughest penalty ever administered by the group. Only the four-

Eastern Teams Head For LA

The Chicago Cubs, on their usual fast spring run, lead the National League tour into the promised land that lies behind the short screen in the Los Angeles Coliseum tonight.

Thus far, three games have been played in the PUNCH BOWL with the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants producing an average of four homers a game. Eight of the 12 have fallen behind the 42-foot-high, 140-foot-long screen jokingly referred to as a barrier.

Now come the other six clubs, the outsiders, to have at it with Ernie Banks, the Cubs' right-handed power man, all warmed up after hitting his first two home runs of the season over the weekend in Chicago.

As a lull before the storm, the only game played last night in the National League was Lamerless. The Cincinnati Redlegs beat Philadelphia 4-2 in a rain-interrupted 14 innings.

A walk and singles by Don Hoak and pinchhitter Bob Thurman broke up a 2-3 tie for the Redlegs in the 14th and they added a cushion run on a pair of errors by Philly shortstop Roy Smalley.

Hal Jeffcoat won his first in relief of rookie Bob Kelly and Tom Acker. Kelly faced only four men and gave up a run. Acker then allowed just one run on four hits and six walks, while striking out six, before giving way to Jeffcoat in the 11th.

Jim Hearn was the loser as the third of four Phillie pitchers who gave up 13 hits and eight walks. Hoak had three hits, one a double.

Cosden Plays Midland In 2

The Cosden Oilers 4angle with Midland in a softball doubleheader at the City Park here tonight. The first game starts at 7:30 p. m.

In previous meetings with Midland, Cosden succeeded in winning one game of two.

Manager Ted Gross has announced that Troy Wetzel will probably hurl the first game for the locals, Speck Franklin the afterpiece.

The Oilers are also scheduled to visit Silver for a game Thursday and will clash with a Big Spring club managed by Cotton Mize here Friday.

Dusters To Play Midland Friday

Webb AFB's Dusters host Midland National Bank in a softball doubleheader at Webb Friday night, with the first game scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m.

In their only start to date, the Dusters lost a nine-inning decision to Cosden, 2-1.

Jack Long and Airman Falls will probably pitch the games Friday for Webb.

Bill Bell Wins Bowling Laurels

After two weekends of bowling, the Big Spring seventh annual Bowling Championship tournament was concluded Sunday.

Winning team was Wilson Brothers, with a 3034 team score. Runner-up was Madewell Humble, with 3020.

Doubles winners were Connally and Meeks, with 1301; followed by Kelly and Vogelsang, with 1296.

Singles winner was Underwood with 679 and second place saw Bill Bell and David John tie with 670.

High man for the nine game event and Big Spring's All Event Champion was also Bell, with a 1982.

Runner-up was Henderson, with a 1908. High scratch game and series was won by Meeks, with a 266 game and 640 series.

Trophies were won by all first place and runner-up positions. In addition, prize money will be distributed to the top five teams, six places in doubles, 10 places in singles, two places in all events, and for high scratch game and series.

All prizes, trophies, and ABC Awards will be presented at the Moose Club, East Highway 80, Monday May 5 at 8:00 p. m.

All City Association members are cordially invited and winners must be present for awarding.

LEICESTER, England (AP)—Willie Pastrano, American heavyweight, used a sharp left hand to outpoint Jamaica's Joe Bygraves in a 10-round fight last night.

We Give U.S. Postage Stamps

It seems that everyone is giving away stamps of some kind, so beginning April 21st, we will give with each $1.00 purchase one 3-cent Postage Stamp.

Now it is a known fact that the U.S. Post Office is a losing business, so when I give you a 3-cent Postage Stamp I would say you could get at least 4 or 5 cents worth of mail delivery out of it.

I just decided if I was gonig to give back 3% of my gross business in stamps, why not give you something that you can get my money's worth out of, and also I will be buying from the Post Office Department, who, according to their figures, can use the money from the sale of the stamps I give away.

Now this is not just a way to get your attention. Come on down to my Mobil Service Station at 601 East 3rd and let us fill your car, change the oil, lubricate, wash, fix flats, tires, etc. Just anything you may need for your car.

I am sure you need to write to someone, so come on by and get your Postage Stamps today.

'Grace Kelly Type' Best For TV Sales

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — To commercial television the most beautiful girl in the world is the girl who sells products. And what is the perfect type of girl to sell commercial products.

"She's the Grace Kelly type," says Harry Conover, who makes a business of selecting the fairest of the fair sex. "She's wholesome and she has a certain dignity that make both a man and woman believe in her. She is not the Marilyn Monroe type."

As head of the Conover television agency, he analyzes the prototype of the perfect girl for those television commercials as follows: She is between 5 feet 3 and 5 feet 7 inches tall, with maximum measurements of 34-24-34, widely spaced eyes, a regular nose, generous mouth, small hands and feet, good posture, and speech devoid of local accent. It's preferable that she have a college education, but it's not essential.

It would seem that plenty of young women fit these qualifications, so it's rather astonishing to learn that from about 5,000 aspirants a year the Conover agency can find only about 25 who pass the test.

"Being a performer for television commercials takes much more than being a model," Conover says. "Most of those who fail to make the grade are turned down not because they aren't attractive enough but because they don't speak well enough. It's amazing how many have local accents — Western or Southern or Brooklyn or whatever — the preclude them."

The top TV commercial performers earn $50,000 a year or better and spend days in pleasant resorts to film two-minute commercials.

Many also have advanced from the anonymity in which they began. For somehow it seems easier to go on to being an actress instead of a straight model after a few seasons as a commercial performer.

Joan Caulfield, Martha Hyer, Julia Meade, Joanne Dru, Nina Foch, Phyllis Kirk and Jinx Falkenberg are among the dozens who began their TV careers as commercial performers.

There are a few hazards, of course. There was, for instance, the actress with "the best hands in the business" who was put out of business for a month because a manicurist filed her nails too thin and cut them too short. There was, too, the girl who ate so much bread during the filming of a bread commercial that she was sick for days afterwards.

Airman's Fine To Be Refunded

Franklin Smith, an airman at Webb Air Force base, will be restored the $100 fine and $28.85 costs which he paid into the sheriff's office on March 17 on a plea of guilty to being an accessory to an aggravated assault case.

The repayment was ordered Monday by the commissioners court when it was pointed out to the county board by Judge R. H. Weaver that the penalty assessed against the airman had been held invalid in the county court.

Smith, according to the report made on the case, had first pleaded guilty to being an accessory to an aggravated assault. He paid the fine and costs assessed.

A short time later, his attorney, George Thomas, brought up the issue that the state law does not recognize any such offense as being an accessory to an aggravated assault. The county attorney joined with Thomas and advised Judge Weaver of the situation, asking that the judgment be set aside. The court ordered the judgment invalidated.

However, Smith had already paid the fine and costs to the sheriff who in due process had transferred the money to the proper officials.

This made it necessary for the commissioners to issue an order to the county treasurer to refund the illegally assessed fine and costs to the airman.

The Hard Way

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The 2,400 Marines of the 5th regiment marched 100 miles with field pack to prove that they weren't getting soft in this age of mechanized and airborne armies. It took four days for the hike to San Diego and back. The regiment's mascot Mongolian pony, Sgt. Reckless, rode in a truck.

Two DWI Charges Are Filed Monday

Raleigh Zundell, accused of illegal transportation of liquor, pleaded guilty in Howard County court Monday. He was fined $100 and costs. His was the only case before the court at its Monday session.

Harold W. Danford, arrested by city police after he had been involved in a car accident at Fourth and San Antonio, was placed in the Howard County jail on a charge of DWI Bond was set at $500 in his case and he was freed on posting bail. Officers said Danford was involved in a collision with his car with a pickup owned by Bill Cartwright.

MEN IN SERVICE

Navy Lt. (jg) Gerald B. Zodin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Zodin of 1705 Yale, Big Spring, has arrived in San Diego, Calif., with the staff of the commander of Carrier Division Five aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Kearsarge after a tour of duty in the Western Pacific.

The division, boarding the carrier in Yokosuka, Japan, last October, took part in cold weather operations off the northern coast of Japan, operated with Chinese Nationalists off the coast of Taiwan (Formosa), and participated in a U. S. Seventh Fleet amphibious landing exercises in the Philippine Islands.

Throughout her Far Eastern travels, the Kearsarge visited Yokosuka, Yokohama, Iwakuni, Kobe, Tokyo, and Horshima, Japan; Subic Bay, Philippine Islands; Guam; Buckner Bay, Okinawa; and Hong Kong. En route homeward the ship stopped in Pearl Harbor, T. H.

Suggestions On Theatre Election

The Big Spring Civic Theatre, Inc., must soon go it alone. Sgt. Dewey Magee, president of the organization, has been its driving force for the main part of its two-year existence. But Magee, being in the Air Force, is about due for re-assignment. He could get his orders tomorrow, or a year from now.

Re-assignment or not, Magee has resigned the presidency previous to the elections to be held Thursday evening. He says he's tired and needs a rest. It may be simply the reaction that follows a major production (in this case, the Easter Pageant), in which case Magee will probably be raring to go in a short time.

In any event, the Civic Theatre stands at a crossroads. The time has come, in my opinion, when the organization must enter a period of growth and development or wither away. It has remained at approximately its present strength since the beginning, and it was Magee's aggressiveness (for better or for worse) that held the organization together.

Thus, whether now or later, the Civic Theatre must go it alone. On the basis of observations and analyses I have been able to make in the last six months, I would like to make some constructive suggestions for the theatre's membership to consider between now and election time (Thursday, 8 p.m., in the old museum building in City Park.)

The main issue seems to be whether to retain strength of leadership in Magee (or whoever succeeds to the presidency) as in the past, or to place that leadership in the board of governors, or in a vote of the membership. Whatever decision is made should leave the group organized along efficient lines.

There are many factors to consider: The cornerstone analogy, for example: if a building's walls are not shored up before the cornerstone is removed, the structure will fall. Similarly, if an organization has been built around one man's leadership and that man is suddenly removed without preparation for his disappearance, the organization is thrown into a confused state. In the case of the Civic Theatre, it might be wise to reshape the leadership structure so that it can carry on without a hitch, no matter who should leave. This could be done best, in my opinion, by election of a board of governors which will make decisions and stick by them, leaving out those people who will go along with everyone else's ideas just to keep the peace.

It is a fact of life that only a small percentage in any organization is the leader type. Thus, out of an organization the size of the Civic Theatre, a board of governors numbering about five would be logical. There can be no real leadership out of a board of governors which includes a third of the active membership.

Leaving all decisions to a vote of the entire membership is a false interpretation of the democratic process. America's voters do not have a direct voice in passage of legislation, only in electing those who do. A system which leaves everything up to an organization's membership is unwieldy; if nothing can be done except by a vote of the entire membership, nothing will be done.

Another idea falsely labeled democratic, and common to all civic organizations, is that all members should be given a chance to serve in a leadership capacity. This, actually, is a communistic idea.

The Civic Theatre's system of government should be patterned after the U. S. system, with a division of authority between the membership, the president and the board of governors. A strong and cooperative regime can come only from this system.

There also is a need in any civic group for a judicial board to interpret the constitution and by-laws, and to determine jurisdiction and authority between membership, board and president. Such a board could be made up of disinterested individuals, such as a panel of businessmen or representatives of other civic groups. Or, the Civic Theatre could appoint one of its own members with no objective to the office of Texas' attorney general, whose legal opinions are binding unless and until changed by court action.

I would like to repeat another suggestion: that the Thursday meeting be used for nominations only, with the actual voting a week later. This would give theatre members time to discuss candidates and choose wisely.

Also, it might help to have nominations for each seat on the board of governors, with two or more candidates vying for each particular seat, instead of the present system in which the seats are filled by an equal number of those candidates with the most votes.

Election of a governor at a time would assure that each candidate was a majority representative. Also, election of governors thus could be scattered over the year, rather than electing a whole new panel at once. Newer members with valuable qualifications could be elected to the board without having to await the annual elections.

Magee has said several times that he would like to return to Big Spring about 10 years from now and find a thriving Civic Theatre even bigger and better than it is now. What happens Thursday evening may well determine whether Magee gets his wish.

Daniel Reactivates The 'Texas Navy'

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Price Daniel reactivated today the Texas Navy "open to all Texans willing to use every legal means to protect the rights and boundaries of our state."

He signed his Navy proclamation after speaking at ceremonies commemorating the 10th anniversary of the enshrining of the battleship Texas near here on the San Jacinto Battleground.

Daniel said the Navy's main objective is to retain Texas' oil rich tidelands, whose boundaries remain in dispute.

Daniel said the Texas Navy would be a patriotic organization and an arm of the civil defense of the state. He said the battleship Texas — grounded in concrete — will still be the flagship of the Navy.

Midland, Odessa Men Win 'Shoot'

Barnes Cauble of Midland and K. L. Beck of Odessa emerged as winners in the registered shotgun shoot held at the Western Sportsman Club's shooting range here Sunday afternoon.

Cauble finished first in singles by breaking 93 of 100 targets. He also wound up second in handicap shooting, back of Beck. Beck finished just back of Cauble in singles.

A similar shoot will be held here Sunday, May 11, if local officials can get proper sanctioning. Sunday's meet was to have been held April 13, but was moved back due to bad weather.
