Biggest Show Of All

The big south screen of the Sahara Drive-In Theatre on U.S. 80 west had been rigged to advertise the opening of the film with a Texas setting, "Giant." But Monday afternoon a bigger show than that bore down on the screen and gusty winds gnawed away about a fourth of the towering structure. Ike Robb, manager, said Tuesday morning he feared that the entire structure may have to be ruined. Across the highway Halliburton Oilwell Cementing's terminal had some metal roof ripped away. South of town the same firm had a big truck literally blown upside down on U.S. 87. At Forsan, roof of a house was blown off and small frame structures were overturned.

SQUALL BRINGS DOWNPOURS

Storm Rips Through Area, Wind, Hail Damage Spotted

A summer squall ripped across this area Monday afternoon with both benefit and damage riding its crest. Boiling sand gave way to blinding rains, some hail and severe, gusty winds of 55 m.p.h. or more. Official rain gauges showed 1.16 inches, but observers were not certain but what a lot more blew past the receptacles. A heavy oil well servicing truck belonging to Halliburton was overturned 10 miles south on U.S. 87. The driver, Virgil Brown, Odessa, was only scratched and cut. As though picking on the company, capricious wind ripped three or four sheets of roofing from the plant on U.S. 80 west. Almost directly across the highway to the north, wind toppled about a fourth of the south screen of the Sahara Drive-In Theatre and possibly ruined the remaining portion structurally. Strangely, the north screen of the big outdoor theatre was unharmed. In town tree limbs snapped and TV antennae toppled here and there like straws, and in the 100 block on W. 1st Street bricks from the parapet over a building were dislodged. Texas Electric Service Co. felt the sting of the storm, losing four poles at separate points in the East-Howard oil field east of Coahoma and one in the Moore oil pool southwest of Big Spring. Conductors, knocked together by the wind, burned down at a couple of points near Otischalk in southeast Howard. Wind was so strong and erratic that while a TESCO worker called in about a blow-down pole, he had to correct himself. Even as he talked, wind blew the pole back up and over in the other direction.

Area Lakes Get Only Small Rises

Heaviest part of Monday's spasm-dic storm moved east of Lake J. B. Thomas and the big reservoir of the Colorado River Municipal Water District picked up only 13 of a foot. Elevation Tuesday had leveled off to 2,256.44, and the increase since Monday accounted for about 975 acre feet, or slightly over 300,000 gallons. The lake is 1.66 feet below spillway. The Texas Electric Service reservoir on Morgan Creek, southwest of Colorado City, was a 2,067.65, up by 2 of a foot. Moss Creek Lake, southeast of Big Spring, had an inch of rain and only raised its level about three inches. Powell Creek, three miles to the southeast of Moss, was almost full when an inch of rain fell and sent water over the spillway.

Forsan, 15 miles south of Big Spring, took a lashing when high winds unroofed the Charles Spurgeo home and overturned possibly half a dozen small frame garages and outbuildings. Mrs. J. D. Gilmore said that 90 of an inch of rain fell in about 15 minutes. Hail was rather severe around Vealmoor, on the north Howard County line, and the school roof was damaged. About an inch of rain fell, and there were reports of one spot which had as much as 3.50. Royce Satterwhite reported that a barn which had stood for 36 years on the home place in the Center Point Community of northeast Howard County was toppled. At Coahoma "fireworks" resulted from a power line touching a water tower. There hail also was intense enough to seriously peck up gardens and other foliage. Perhaps the brunt of the storm was in the territory immediately south and east of Coahoma where power poles were snapped. In Big Spring there were numerous, brief power interruptions as limbs fell across lines and high winds whipped conductors together, but there were no serious failures. At isolated points over the county hail did some damage, roughly up the cotton in the Elbow community. Mostly however, it was light and marble size. Bruce Frazier, busy gathering reports for his TV and radio programs, hurried to Howard County Junior College where he maintains and official weather station. The wind was so strong that it had toppled his observation equipment. Webb AFB had trouble with its distribution system in the wake (See WEATHER, Pg. 5-A, Col. 3)

Crop Benefits Outweigh Hail, Wind Damage

Howard County farmers today surveyed the wounds inflicted by Monday afternoon's brief and violent storm, but on the whole young cotton and feed were expected to recover and flourish.

"We needed a rain badly, but we didn't need one like yesterday's storm," declared County Agent Jimmy Taylor.

However, he conceded that most of the cotton will recover unless terminal buds were severely damaged. He had reports of hail damage from the Coahoma, Vealmoor and Elbow areas. Damage was spotted.

Cotton and feed were covered with water and silt in some sectors around Coahoma. Rain there varied from one to more than two inches.

Earl Hull, who farms northwest of Coahoma, said his young cotton was damaged by small hailstones, and his corn and maize were shredded. It appeared Tuesday that the crops will recover and benefit from the rain which he measured at 1.3 inches in one place and 1.9 in another.

Worst of the storm moved diagonally across the county from northeast to southwest, and the western edge of the county got little more than a sprinkle.

At Lomax there was some damage to small cotton according to Mrs. Cecil Long. Sand burned young cotton before a quarter of an inch of rain laid the dust.

At Vealmoor, M. H. Ulmer reported an inch with some fine hail. However crops were helped far more than hurt.

Along the north county line rain ranged from one to two inches and ranges were helped considerably despite rapid runoff.

Hail damage was heavier in the Elbow community southwest of Big Spring. C. V. Hewitt, Jack Wilcox, Curtis Woods, S. W. McElroy, Ed Brindley and Ted Fields reported damage. Jack McKinnon measured an inch of rain at Elbow, and there was an inch and a half southeast of there. One strip in west of Elbow had two inches, enough with hail to threaten a replant job.

In the main, reports from over the county indicated that the rain, despite its violent arrival helped a lot more than it hurt.

Inflationary Spiral May Be Levelling

Living Cost Index Gives Hopeful Sign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's living costs hit another new record in May but registered the smallest monthly rise since December.

The latest government reading on living costs, released today, held out hope that the two-year inflationary spiral has leveled out for the summer. Food items as a whole failed to increase in May for the first time since November.

House Delays Action On Aid Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today put off action on a compromise $3,675,400,000 foreign aid authorization bill until Wednesday.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) said the delay was for the convenience of the Foreign Affairs Committee which originally had planned to have the measure considered today.

The compromise measure is 266 1/2 million dollars less than Eisenhower requested. The Senate has yet to act on it.

Dropped from the compromise measure was a Senate amendment designed to curb spending of U.S.-owned foreign currencies by traveling senators, representatives and committee employees by requiring publication of individual itemized expense accounts.

The compromise bill would require committee members or employees to report spending to committee chairmen, who in turn would publish consolidated reports. There would be no public individual listing.

Also knocked out in the compromise was a Senate requirement aimed at halting use of foreign aid funds for the purchase abroad of Japanese textiles and other articles competing with American-made products.

The measure includes $1,605,000,000 for military assistance to friendly foreign countries and 810 million for defense support aid. The military aid figure is 195 million less than the President requested, while the support allotment falls 25 million short of what he wanted.

Americans Salt Away Record Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans in savings accounts, salted away in savings accounts, government bonds, and insurance equities than ever before in history.

The Federal Home Loan Bank board reported Monday that such savings totaled more than 268 billion dollars at the end of March. Additions to savings during the first three months of the year were $5,583,000,000, for an annual rate of about $22,300,000,000.

This annual rate topped actual savings in the record year 1944 by a few thousand dollars.

Beef And Ham Add Flavor To Texas Politics

By WHITEY SAWYER
The Associated Press

Four thousands pounds of beef and a number of entertainers popped up on the Texas political scene Tuesday as William Blakley's backers planned a huge rally at Longview.

Blakley was expected to address 5,000 persons at the Tuesday night rally with relay over 35 television and radio stations.

The U.S. Senate candidate will follow the East Texas rally with a barbecue at Dallas Thursday evening.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, the man Blakley wants to unseat, named Vernon Elledge his Harris County campaign manager Monday. Elledge is a Houston attorney.

Yarborough's wife and son, Richard, planned to campaign through 20 Central Texas towns Tuesday and Wednesday, shaking hands.

"Ralph will miss all the fun of campaigning," Mrs. Yarborough said, "but he has to stay in Washington and work for some badly needed water projects for Texas."

Gov. Daniel said he would officially open his campaign for re-election with a statewide radio address and rally at Austin Monday. Jake Jacobsen, campaign manager, said four weeks of extensive campaigning will follow.

State Sen. Henry Gonzalez, who wants Daniel's job, was to bring his campaign to Dallas for handshaking, a press conference, talks with labor leaders and a rally Tuesday.

George Nokes of Waco, who is running for lieutenant governor, was to speak at Corpus Christi Tuesday on the first day of a weeklong tour through South Texas. He planned stops in the Rio Grande Valley starting Wednesday.

The Austin manager for State Sen. Henry Gonzalez campaign for governor quit Tuesday and said the capital city headquarters is being closed.

Marie Halpeny, also said she understood that the San Antonio headquarters is being shut down. Mrs. Halpeny said, "we are disassociating ourselves from the campaign. My husband and I have been friends with Henry Gonzalez for years and years."

Robert Lishman, the counsel, said a thorough check of leads supplied by apparently reliable sources showed "little information useful to our investigation."

Lishman spoke up at a subcommittee hearing at which the SEC chairman, Edward N. Gadsby, hotly denied that SEC gave favored treatment to Goldfine, a Boston industrialist, after the commission got a White House call in 1956.

"The commission could hardly have done more if Mr. Adams were Mr. Goldfine's worst enemy," Gadsby said.

The White House inquiry was made by Gerald D. Morgan, the President's special counsel, and there is no indication on the record that the SEC ever knew it was prompted by Adams, top aide to the President.

Lishman told Gadsby the subcommittee recognizes that "the rank and file of the Securities and Exchange Commission have an outstanding reputation for uprightness and excellent performance of a difficult public service."

Lishman said it is regrettable that when committee investigators, as they must, check information given them, the impression often is given that someone is considered guilty.

Gadsby complained in a lengthy statement of what he termed slurs on the commission. He said: "I had thought that the era of trial by innuendo and inference had been disowned sometime ago. I dislike to see any members or persons connected with the commission, participate in a baseless attack reflecting on this agency's probity."

NEW PROBE AREA
Gadsby's testimony prepared for the House subcommittee checking Goldfine's relations with federal regulatory agencies marked the opening of another phase of the inquiry, this time dealing with the SEC.

Previously the group had inquired into Federal Trade Commission affairs involving Goldfine.

Subcommittee Chairman Orin Harris (D-Ark) has accused both the SEC and the FTC of giving preferred treatment to Goldfine.

The investigators have developed testimony that Adams got expensive favors from Goldfine. Adams has said, however, that he accepted gifts innocently from an old friend. He has said he sought no preferred treatment when he

Polaris Guidance System Tested

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A lightning swift Polaris experimental rocket roared skyward today in a strenuous test of its guidance and control systems.

Just as was planned, the trim rocket twisted crazily high in the sky until its fuel ran out and it broke apart.

After rising about 100 feet, the Polaris jerked sharply to the left and continued straight up. The Navy explained the vehicle was directed to follow a flight path involving abrupt upward and downward pitches.

The rocket, a forerunner of what probably will be the nation's most advanced intermediate range ballistic weapon, tumbled and then burst apart when fuel burnout occurred 25 seconds after takeoff.

The increase in transportation reflected higher prices for gasoline following the end of price wars in several cities, and for used cars. Prices of new cars and tires were lower.

Hersey E. Riley, chief of the Labor Department's price and cost of living division forecast continuing increases in cost of services, and said meat prices probably won't decline until fall. On this basis, he said he hesitated at forecasting whether the living cost index for June will be up or down.

The Labor Department said after-tax spendable earnings of factory production workers rose slightly between April and May. The rise amounted to about 35 cents per week, or one-half of 1 per cent, and was attributed to a slight increase in hours worked.

Fighting Expected
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Camille Chamoun said today he expects heavy attacks from the rebels—probably within the next 48 hours.

The Warren County Board of Education last night said the Indians were entitled to application forms for the grants, allowed under the law to parents who object to integrated classes.

To keep their 200 children out of the Negro schools where they had been going, the Haliwars last year financed their own school.

Indians Use Race Law To Advantage

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — Haliwar Indians, among the first to take advantage of a recent state pupil assignment law aimed at preserving racial segregation, have moved a step closer to getting state grants for their own school.

SEC Personnel Commended By Counsel In Adams Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personnel of the Securities and Exchange Commission got a commendation from the counsel of a House subcommittee investigating a Bernard Goldfine case in which Sherman Adams showed interest.

Robert Lishman, the counsel, said a thorough check of leads supplied by apparently reliable sources showed "little information useful to our investigation."

Lishman spoke up at a subcommittee hearing at which the SEC chairman, Edward N. Gadsby, hotly denied that SEC gave favored treatment to Goldfine, a Boston industrialist, after the commission got a White House call in 1956.

Pacifists Abandon Atom Protest Plan

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A pacifist committee has given up plans to put the ketch Golden Rule in the path of the atom.

A spokesman for the Committee for Nonviolent Action Against Nuclear Weapons announced that the 30-foot sailboat is up for sale. The price is $16,800 f.o.b. Honolulu.

Five crewmen who took the Golden Rule to sea are in jail in Honolulu for defying a court order against sailing for the U.S. Pacific testing grounds. The Coast Guard brought them back.

Moonwatchers To Get Briefing

Howard County's moonwatchers will get a first hand briefing this evening on what is expected of them.

Here from Cambridge, Mass., will be Walter Munn, field coordinator for the entire satellite tracking service under the Smithsonian Institute.

E. B. McCormick, director of the program here, said that the session had been called for 7:30 p.m. in S-8 at Howard County Junior College. He had notified all his captains and had suggested that they bring their key observers with them.

"I'm happy to have Mr. Munn come and inspect our facilities and to give us the latest direct word on what is expected of us," he said.

In the past several months a multiplicity of instructions have been received, some of them in conflict with each other.

McCormick said his observers would be urged to raise any questions they might have.

Confused, Or A Practical Joker

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—"I don't know how that fellow who picked me up got so all-fired confused," Henry Newson, 76, told police.

"I wondered why it took so long to get home. My house on Corpus Christi Street is just a few blocks from the pension office on Lyons Street."

And that's where he was headed—Corpus Christi Street in Houston—when a well-meaning motorist picked him up in downtown Houston and gave him a lift here, some 200 miles away.

Police contacted some of the elderly man's friends in Houston who agreed to drive here and pick him up.

Louisiana Senate Set To Act On Bill To Shut Down Schools

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana Senate was set today for final action on six bills setting up machinery to shut down public schools before obeying federal orders for racial integration.

The bills roused the heaviest opposition of any segregation measure since the 1954 Supreme Court segregation decision, but the speeches before committees apparently swayed few legislative votes.

The keystone of the program is a measure authorizing the governor to close any school ordered to integrate on a definite day, or which already has mixed the races.

The governor could reopen the school if it could be operated as a segregated one or he could close it permanently. He would also be authorized to close any nearby school, Negro or white "which he feels might be a source of friction or ill will."

3. Each local school board is given authority to assign pupils to schools on the basis of available room and teaching facilities, scholastic aptitude, effect of admission of pupils on academic progress of classmates, and possibility of disorder among pupils and others.

The measure provides for protection of teacher benefits and continuation of their salaries for the remainder of the school year. State funds will continue as if the school was in operation.

The school building and other equipment of a school indefinitely closed could be sold or leased to a private group which would operate the school.

4. Objections to assignments may be made and a system of hearings and appeal is provided.

5. No child shall be required to attend a school which is racially mixed.

Ship Abandoned After Blast, Fire

BOMBAY, India (AP) — A small Dutch freighter carrying 400 tons of American military explosives to Pakistan, Iraq and Iran has been abandoned off the Indian coast after an explosion and fire.

Reports received in Bombay said Capt. Ven Den and the 10 crewmen of the 469-Tonnage Tomogera swam ashore. One crew member was reported injured. The ship was said to be lying almost burn out offshore southeast of the Pakistan border and 140 miles from Karachi. Loss was estimated at between one and two million dollars.

New Test Eases Flash Flood Peril

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — B. R. Rafferty, University of Texas teaching assistant, was one of three agricultural scientists who described yesterday a method for anticipating when a flash flood will strike.

A pupil assignment bill, copied from the Alabama law recently upheld by a three-judge federal court, provides:

1. Repeal of a 1954 pupil assignment law—knocked out by federal courts.

2. A prohibition against general or blanket orders assigning pupils.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is now using the system in flood prevention programs throughout the Southwest. It was devised by USDA Researcher R. B. Keppel and former USDA scientists R. B. Hickok and Rafferty.

Their report, presented at the meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, described the system as a mathematical method of estimating the time between cloudbursts and resulting floods. They said the system worked well on small watershed areas in Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

Services Scheduled For SMU Pioneer

DALLAS (AP)—Services were scheduled tomorrow for Dr. Umphrey Lee, who guided Southern Methodist University through its greatest growth.

Dr. Lee, 65, died yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage.

A minister before he became a school administrator, he took office as SMU president in 1938 and served 16 years. He was the first ex-student to head the school.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stover, sales and production manager for the SMU press and a long-time friend, found Dr. Lee lying on a couch in his study in the Fondren Library.

He died before an ambulance could take him to a clinic.

"He was one of the greats of this generation," said Methodist Bishop Frank Smith of Houston, chairman of the SMU Board of Trustees.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Highland Park Methodist Church on the SMU campus, Bishop Smith and the Rev. William Dickinson, church pastor, will conduct the rites.

Survivors include his widow and son, Umphrey Lee Jr., of Raleigh, N.C.

Lee served as SMU president until 1954 and then as chancellor. SMU trustees named him chancellor emeritus last month.

After World War I service, he was pastor of the Methodist church at Cisco and from 1919 until 1921 he was director of the Wesley Bible Chair in Austin.

He served 13 years as pastor of the Highland Park Methodist Church, leaving in 1936 to become dean of the School of Religion at Vanderbilt University.

After two years as a Vanderbilt dean he returned to Dallas to become the fourth president of SMU, succeeding Bishop Charles Selecman, who died recently.

Lee was recognized as an authority on the life of John Wesley, founder of the Methodist Church, and on the church's history.

Seaton Claims Voluntary Oil Plan Working

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Interior Secretary Fred Seaton said today the government's voluntary program to limit all imports is succeeding despite charges it has failed because of non-compliance.

"The program today has 95 per cent compliance," Seaton said. "It has not failed. I am confident it will not fail. And I am confident that its alternative—mandatory controls—will not have to be imposed."

He said the program of import restrictions would pass and the United States would find itself required to use every drop of oil its domestic industry produces and all that can be imported.

To meet the increasing demands, Seaton said, techniques for getting oil out of the ground must be improved, petroleum research programs must be stepped up and oil lands in Alaska must be developed.

He made the comments in a speech read for him before the Interstate Oil Compact Commission by Undersecretary Hatfield Chilson.

"Seen in the light of the United States' growing demand for increased sources of energy, the discovery of oil in Alaska last year may prove to be one of the most important economic facts of our time," Seaton said.

He said the Bureau of Mines is currently investing 2 1/2 billion dollars for research on petroleum, natural gas, and oil shale.

"It is now important to step up private research on oil shale," Seaton said. "Our proved petroleum reserves amount to about 36 billion barrels, but the reserves of oil held in oil shale are over 950 billion barrels."

The bulk of the nation's oil shale deposits are in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

Seaton said to spur private research for ways to convert oil shale and coal into synthetic liquid fuels, the Interior Department has recommended this industry be given the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance now granted to the oil industry.

New Integration Skirmish Looms At Arkansas School

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Another skirmish over integration at Central High School loomed on the legal horizon today.

A motion to stay an order by U. S. Dist. Judge Harry J. Lemley which suspended integration here for 2 1/2 years was sent yesterday to an appellate court.

Wiley Branton, attorney for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, mailed the motion to the U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis.

He acted shortly after Lemley refused to stay the integration suspension ruling pending an appeal from it.

If the appellate court also turns down Branton's motion, the Negro attorney could seek a stay in the U. S. Supreme Court.

These motions for a stay are entirely separate from the appeal of Lemley's ruling suspending integration.

Lemley said at the hearing on the stay motion that if he granted it, his order allowing postponement of integration until early 1961 would be affected adversely.

Months would be needed to carry an appeal through the courts, he said. "And in the meantime the situation at Central High School, which we have found to be intolerable from an educational standpoint, would continue from the beginning of the approaching session to the final ruling of the Supreme Court on the merits of the case."

Amarillo Educator Gets Houston Post

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston School Board majority tapped an Amarillo educator, Dr. John McFarland, as Houston's new superintendent of schools last night.

McFarland, who holds that position with the Amarillo schools, accepted with two conditions.

He said he first must obtain his release from the Amarillo School Board and that he thought he could. He also asked that he be granted a meeting with the entire Houston School Board and be assured they have no "fundamental objections to me."

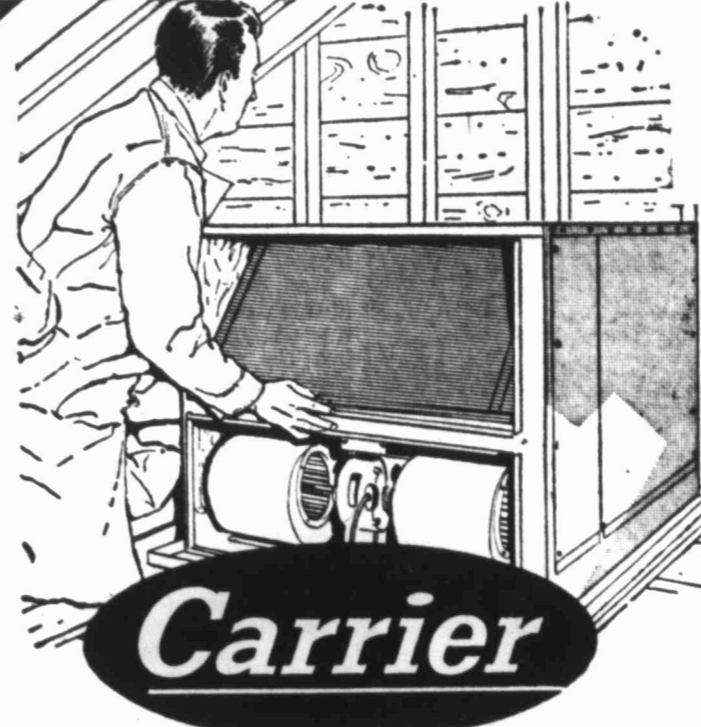

McFarland succeeds Dr. W. E. Moreland, who resigned last year. He will receive $25,000 a year. Acting Supt. G. C. Scarborough asked for and was granted retirement.

What To Teach Teacher Is Topic For School Research

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Reporter
BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Do prospective teachers spend too much time learning HOW to teach, and not enough learning about WHAT they're going to teach?

The question of what to teach the teacher has become one of the thorniest problems in American education. It's going to get a long, hard look-see from some 1,000 educators and education officials who gathered here today for the opening of a five-day convention on teacher education and professional standards.

A report issued earlier this week by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund put the problem this way: "In some states, the requirements for (teacher) certification are so technical and trivial as to make it unlikely that individuals with a first class liberal education would even apply—or be eligible if they did apply."

The nine sponsoring agencies hope some sort of agreement on teacher training and certification can be reached and put into effect nationwide.

The problem isn't strictly an American one. The Russians have been struggling with it too.

Dr. John B. Whitelaw of the U.S. Office of Education, who recently returned from a four-week tour of the Soviet Union, said the Soviets are trying to standardize teacher education and at the same time bring it up to a college or university degree level.

"If teachers were given the same status in this country as they are in Russia, we would have no teacher shortage," he said.

Earthquakes Shake Southern Italy

L'AQUILA, Italy (AP)—Earthquakes shook towns and hamlets in the Abruzzi region of southern Italy today, causing panic, cracking buildings and tumbling roof tiles.

No one was reported hurt. The shocks came in two waves, the second lasting about 16 seconds in some places.

Senate Passes Bill To Share Atomic Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, adding two restrictions of its own, has passed a bill to permit greater sharing of U.S. military atomic secrets with Allied nations.

The measure now goes to conference with the House, which rejected any amendments in passing the same measure overwhelmingly last week.

The two changes were proposed by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.). One would permit the President to transfer non-nuclear parts of atomic weapons only to Great Britain. The original bill would have authorized them to be sent to any friendly nation.

The other struck out a catch-all section allowing the President to give allies data on "other military applications of atomic energy." Anderson said this power was too broad and that it was not clear how it would be used.

This amendment did not disturb other authority along the same lines permitting sharing of data on specific items designed to improve training of NATO forces.

Anderson abandoned a third proposed amendment he could not get the sponsors to accept. He said it would have kept France from getting plans for U.S. atomic-powered submarines.

Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), one of the sponsors, insisted there were adequate safeguards in the bill, chiefly a provision to permit Congress to veto any agreement to send materials or information abroad.

The bill would allow transfer to Britain of designs for nuclear weapons, fissionable material to make them, and non-nuclear components of weapons.

To other allies, the United States could give data on sizes and effects of atomic weapons, reactor designs, and atomic fuels for nuclear-powered submarines and other types of military power plants.

The problem isn't strictly an American one. The Russians have been struggling with it too.

Dr. John B. Whitelaw of the U.S. Office of Education, who recently returned from a four-week tour of the Soviet Union, said the Soviets are trying to standardize teacher education and at the same time bring it up to a college or university degree level.

"If teachers were given the same status in this country as they are in Russia, we would have no teacher shortage," he said.

Soviet Censors Get Rougher

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Soviet censorship of dispatches by foreign correspondents in the Soviet Union has become increasingly severe in recent weeks, a State Department official said today.

Andrew Berding, assistant secretary of state for public affairs, said some recent news stories have been delayed, mutilated or completely deleted by the Moscow censor.

"We believe that secrecy can lead only to misunderstanding, to an increase in tensions," Berding said in a talk prepared for the annual convention of Civitan International.

Berding said that on the whole the Soviet Union does not have the complete initiative in the war of ideas.

"Within the Soviet Union," he said, "the biggest disaster of all is yet to come as an irreversible trend of questioning of the Communist ideology as the people become more educated."

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A 41-year-old Greek Cypriot was fatally shot while cycling to work today through the Turkish sector of Limassol.

The man, Panayis Kyriacou, was the 16th Greek Cypriot killed since communal battles began June 7 between Cypriots of Turkish and Greek descent. Two Turks have been killed.

Russians Beef Up Guard At Canadian Embassy In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government stationed two additional militiamen in front of the Canadian Embassy today but it appeared unlikely so far that a demonstration was in the offing in retaliation for the attack on the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa.

Nor was there any indication that the U.S. Embassy would be the target of a Soviet crowd, as the West German Embassy was yesterday and the Danish Embassy was Friday.

Demonstrators have attacked Soviet embassies in Copenhagen, Bonn, Ottawa and New York with stones and ink in protest against the execution of Imre Nagy and three other leaders of the 1956 Hungarian revolution.

Only the Copenhagen and Bonn incidents have been reported by the Soviet press and radio, however. It was unlikely that any spontaneous demonstration against the Canadian and American establishments would be ordered without first setting the stage by publicizing the cause for retaliation.

The extra guards brought the total outside the Canadian Embassy to four. Their presence aroused some suspicion, since similar extra guards had arrived at the Danish and West German buildings a few hours in advance of the demonstrators.

LITTLE EFFECT

The Canadians said they had not asked for the extra protection. The West German Embassy had, but the four guards there had little effect on the crowd of 1,500 which hurled sticks, stones and ink at the building for two hours. Police reinforcements finally dispersed the demonstrators after they broke all windows in the building.

West German Ambassador Hans Kroll said he delivered the "strongest possible protest" to Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister A. V. Zakharov. He asked an apology, damages and a guarantee that the attack would not be repeated.

The West German government had expressed its regrets promptly at the attack on the Soviet Embassy in Bonn and promised to repair the damage.

The continuing wave of recriminations in the wake of the Hungarian executions brought a strong protest from the Yugoslav government to Hungary and a charge by Pravda that the United States and Britain were whipping up an "hysterical hullabaloo" to renew the cold war and sabotage a summit conference.

Nagy, installed as premier by the Hungarian rebels, had taken refuge in the Yugoslav Embassy in Vienna after Soviet troops moved in to crush the revolt. The Russians arrested him when he left the embassy on a safe-conduct given by his successor, Premier Janos Kadar.

The Yugoslav note to the Hungarian Communist regime termed the executions a "gross and unprovoked attack" on President Tito's government.

The note called "untrue and fabricated from beginning to end" the Hungarian charge that Yugoslavia in effect had collaborated with Nagy in plotting to overthrow Kadar's government.

Pravda said protests to the executions have been made in the West "to complicate the international situation, rekindle the cold war, sabotage talks at the highest level and pass over to open military adventures as soon as this appears possible to them."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper's editorial said the West had adopted this policy as "salvation from its economic crisis."

Fireworks Blasts Kill 100 In Brazil

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP) — Two stores of fireworks for religious celebrations exploded Monday, killing more than 100 persons and injuring some 340 others.

The government of Bahia state took steps to ban all fireworks. They are traditionally set off on the June festival days of Saints John, Anthony and Peter.

The highest reported toll was at Santo Amaro, near Salvador. An electric power line broke and fell across a fireworks booth at a fairgrounds. The resulting fire touched off an explosion that killed about 100 persons and injured 300.

The second fireworks explosion, reportedly killing seven and injuring 40, occurred at Feira de Santana, northwest of Salvador.

Lawyer Claims Snags In Lana Turner Story

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney who represents John Stompanato's son says Cheryl Crane's latest version of Stompanato's death differs from a story told earlier by her mother Lana Turner.

"I think there are wide discrepancies between Lana's description of where the slaying happened and where Cheryl said she saw the body lying," William Jerome Pollack said yesterday. "I am encouraged."

Pollack represents the 10-year-old son John Jr., who seeks $750,000 damages for the alleged wrongful death of Lana's lover last April 4.

Cheryl, 14, has said she stabbed Stompanato with a butcher knife while he and her mother argued at Miss Turner's Beverly Hills home. Cheryl said Stompanato was threatening the movie star. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Cheryl gave a deposition at Pollack's office yesterday as Lana and a trio of her attorneys stood by. The hearing was closed. Pollack later told newsmen that the tall teen-ager said she couldn't remember the actual stabbing of Stompanato.

Pollack said the deposition brought out that "Cheryl and Lana and Johnny were all on the best of terms in the days preceding the killing."

He said he feels this contradicts Miss Turner's previous testimony that prolonged and violent arguments preceded the fatal stabbing.

Miss Turner herself is tentatively slated to testify in a similar deposition hearing tomorrow. Cheryl now lives with her maternal grandmother Mrs. Mildred Turner.

Receives Citation

Maj. (Wing Staff Chaplain) Henry C. Wolk, Webb AFB, "takes a brace" as his commander, Col. Kyle M. Riddle, pins on the "Commendation Medal" recently awarded Major Wolk by the Secretary of the Air Force. The recognition was for outstanding service in the field of research, particularly in the officer development program.

Chaplain Wolk Is Cited By AF Secretary

Maj. Henry C. Wolk, senior chaplain at Webb AFB, has been awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal by the Secretary of the Air Force.

Chaplain Wolk, a member of the Lutheran Synod and a native of New York, came to Webb from Bittburg, Germany, in October 1956.

The citation credited Wolk with increasing the chaplain section's effectiveness and bettering the morale of Webb personnel. His unceasing efforts resulted in the placing of a "manual of leadership" in the processing center at Lackland AFB.

Wolk, a fluent speaker, received the presentation from Col. Kyle Riddle, base commander, in a ceremony at Wing Headquarters.

The chaplain is a graduate of Harvard University, the Air Chaplain School, and the Chaplain's Training School. He has wife Paula, and four children reside at 1020 Bluebonnet.

Ordinances To Get Attention Of Commission

Ordinance matters will constitute most of the business at the regular City Commission meeting tonight.

The regular session, to be held in the commission chamber of the City Hall, is slated for 5:15 p.m., with at least five ordinances to be considered.

Three of the five concern annexation, and one of them will bring 278 acres of land on the southwest edge of town into the city limits. The fourth and final reading of an ordinance bringing in the Douglas Subdivision and the City Park will be heard.

Also, two ordinances will have their second readings, with these documents to bring in small segments of property south of Alabama and in the College Park Estates.

Another ordinance under consideration concerns the city's milk code. Dr. R. E. Johnson, director of the health unit, asked the commission to amend Big Spring's code to conform to the state regulations, and this matter will be discussed.

Second reading on an ordinance abolishing the four-party telephone service will be held. The telephone company asked for this change since it had only one four-party customer, and the service was not in demand.

A zoning change will also be submitted to the commission for action tonight. At a public hearing Monday night, the zoning board approved change of the half blocks on either side of Scurry between 17th and 18th from B (two-party residential) to an F (business) zone.

The final action must come from the commission on changing the zone.

City Manager H. W. Whitney also plans to report to the council on right-of-way needs for the sewer and water lines to Webb AFB's Capehart housing area and also results of talks with the government about additional funds to finance the projects. The city must find $30,000 more before it can let the contract.

Four Accidents Reported Monday

After a weekend with only three accidents, four mishaps were reported in Big Spring Monday.

At 5th and Lancaster, Sammie Hebrer of Los Angeles and Mark Lawrence, 711 Allison, were involved in a collision, Jack Bell of Snyder and Oleta Patterson, 717 Tulane, were in an accident at 15th and State.

An accident at 4th and Nolan involved cars driven by Albert Garcia, 505 NW 8th, and Jackie Rackley, Gall Rt. in the 1200 block of W. 3rd, Nell Randolph, Big Spring Courts, and Troy Nelson Jr., Rt. 1, were in collision.

Stanton Reports Housing Surplus

STANTON—For the first time in several months, there is a surplus of rental housing in Stanton. H. M. McReynolds, acting manager of the Chamber of Commerce, has a list of vacant units, which include 12 furnished houses and apartments and three unfurnished apartments.

Recently McReynolds started sending the lists to Webb Air Force Base, to Big Spring and Midland and this causes five families from Big Spring to rent apartments here.

McReynolds says that ordinarily there is a housing shortage in Stanton, and frequently people from Big Spring and Midland are in town seeking a place to live.

Two Derby Boys Win Early Awards

Two lads—one from Big Spring and one from Colorado City—are being rewarded for promptness and thoroughness in completing their racers for the 1958 Soap Box Derby.

The Big Spring event will be run Thursday night on the lighted track on Lancaster Street, beginning at 8 o'clock, and a winner will emerge to carry the local banner to the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio.

Preliminary inspections of racers were held last week, and prizes of $25 U. S. Savings Bonds were posted for boys who had the best-built racer at that particular time.

The winners were Darrell Mize of Colorado City (sponsored in the Derby by Radio Station KVMO) who will receive a bond from the Big Spring Optimist Club; and Ward Booth of Big Spring (sponsored by Texas Electric Service Co.) who receives a bond from the Big Spring Herald.

Inspectors said both boys' racers were in top shape, and ready for racing. They passed all construction and safety checkups.

Nearly 50 boys from 11 to 15 will be racing Thursday evening for several major merchandise prizes. And of course the winner receives a special gold trophy as well as the expense-paid trip to Akron. There he will compete for prizes topped by a $5,000 college scholarship.

The 60-member jury panel has been ordered to return to court Thursday morning for trial of a criminal case.

Small Boys Accused Of Stealing Gloves

Corrective action by the parents was ordered this morning in the case of two small boys accused of stealing baseball gloves from the Homan Auto Supply during the storm.

The boys, 9 and 10 years of age, were taken into custody this morning when they returned to the store. Juvenile Officer A. E. Long released them to their parents after a lecture and the warning to the adults.

Educational Program To Be Staged Tonight By TB Unit

A program centered around colored slides and a recording made especially for tuberculosis association by Dr. H. K. Hsu, well-known Chinese pediatrician, will be presented to the Howard County Tuberculosis Assn. tonight.

Executive director Evelyn Gray and president Jack Watkins encourage the public to listen and hear the educational presentation which will be in the Chamber of Commerce conference room at 7:30 p.m.

Approximately 23 members of the local TB association are expected to be on hand, plus visitors.

Other than the program, the association will carry on with regular business and the appointment of committees.

The color slides and recording reveals a method of tuberculosis detection which is used in Houston, where Dr. Hsu is a pediatrician for the Children's Clinic.

Once a case is discovered, the hospital seeks the original case by going through the family and friends of the patient, an effective procedure.

Dr. Hsu is an assistant professor of medicine at the Baylor University College of Medicine. She taught pediatrics in China, her native country, and is presently doing work under grants of Texas and national tuberculosis organizations and several local groups.

WEATHER

of the turbulence and was without power for a brief interval.

Southwestern Bell Telephone had its headsets, too. Although there were no line losses to speak of, driving rain and spray dampened some cables, knocking out telephones by the scores.

At the height of the storm, everyone apparently attempted to call someone with the result that the equipment boards were jammed momentarily. The dial tone also went out.

Downtown, anxious merchants watched water creep almost to their doors along points where the curb is relatively low. Here and there some threw up bulwarks and others manned boots to sweep back the surging water.

City streets took a beating, and on West 3rd young boulders were washed into the street by the surging torrent. Detention dams held back worst of the flash flood, however.

The U. S. Experiment Farm and Webb AFB each measured 1.16 inches, and over town the reports ran from .80 up to 1.2 inches.

At Coahoma Mrs. Lloyd Hair estimated three inches of rain fell and said that there had been extensive hail damage. Between Big Spring and Coahoma, Midway had only half an inch. Mrs. Eston Barbee measured Center Point rain at 1.10 and reported some hail. Above that point Sonny Shroyer had an inch and a half and at Luther Mrs. John Couch reported an inch with small hail.

On the northeast county line Wilson ranch had an inch and north in Borden County Mrs. John Whitmore measured two inches. Rain eased off west of Vealmoor and Kpott had about a quarter of an inch. Southward, Bill McVain reported .5 of an inch. Elbow had an inch with hail and at Lomax the rain dwindled to half an inch.

Alpine got 4.5 inches of rain within half an hour. Winds of up to 60 miles an hour battered Snyder, Colorado City, Big Spring and Midland.

A tornado was reported at Colorado City, but it did no damage. The deluge at Alpine, in usually dry far West Texas, caused widespread damage. It poured sheets of water down Alpine Hill in the southwest part of town, rolling rocks 18 inches in diameter into the streets.

A pickup truck carrying eight boys was tumbled down Alpine Creek, but the boys scrambled to safety.

Hail destroyed many gardens in the area.

Boy Scout Troop Has Court Of Honor

A Boy Scout court of honor was held at the St. Paul Presbyterian Church last night, at which time Troop 300 was in formal session.

Bill Clement received his first class award plus merit badges for work in Geology and Chemistry. George Williams was awarded his second class badge.

Jimmy Hayes was cited for his work and leadership in scout work. Guests present included Bill McCree, scout executive; and Melvin Coleman, leader of Troop 2. In all, about 20 persons were present.

New Electronic Device Noses Around For LaFitte Treasure

TATUM, Tex. (AP)—A search for storied gold and silver pirate Jean LaFitte was said to have pilaged from merchant ships years ago was under way near this little East Texas town today.

The scene is Hendricks Lake, three-quarters of a mile long and 300 yards wide.

Leading the search, the latest of many through the years, is Barney Waldrop of Carthage, who has the backing of Dallas oilman Tom Bolton and a Carthage capitalist whose name has not been disclosed.

Waldrop is hoping a newly created electronic device will find the treasure. He is working over the south end of the lake.

Another searching party will move in next week to search the north end of the lake. A. C. Sorelle Sr. of Houston and his two sons, A. C. Jr. and Henry, will conduct this search with a big dredge.

The two groups have leased the lake from its owners, George Snyder of Marshall and Corbett Atkins and C. W. Reeves of Carthage.

Hendricks Lake was an old overland route called Trammel's Trace, named for a trader who moved his wares from the Gulf Coast through East Texas and into St. Louis.

Trammel in his travels, according to tradition, Trammel fell into company with LaFitte who was then giving Spanish shipping a great deal of trouble.

After an exceptionally good season in the Gulf of Mexico, LaFitte had stockpiled a sizeable portion of Spanish gold. This he turned over to Trammel for shipment north in the early 1800's.

Trammel started out with the treasure but ran into trouble with a scouting party of Spanish soldiers who engaged the gold-ranger in quite a battle on the shores of Hendricks Lake.

Seeing his small band was outnumbered, Trammel reportedly ordered the treasure wagons pushed into the lake and his men to scatter.

According to tales prevalent through the years the value of the treasure was estimated anywhere from 2 to 60 million dollars.

Reprisal Intentions On Burke Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders said today President Eisenhower and Secretary of Defense McElroy never intended any threat of reprisal against Adm. Arleigh Burke for criticizing the administration's defense reorganization program.

The House-passed bill does not include three changes the President recommended.

At present, Knowland said, administration officials and members of the Senate Armed Services Committee are trying to work out mutually agreeable language with respect to the changes Eisenhower wants.

As for the McElroy-Burke incident, Knowland said both Eisenhower and McElroy hold Burke in the highest regard.

The senator said in reply to a question that Eisenhower feels the entire episode is a result of a misunderstanding.

Elroy took that position, too, at the White House meeting. McElroy has been in touch with Russell, Knowland said.

Knowland said Eisenhower believes it is highly important that a defense reorganization bill along the lines he recommended be passed by the Senate.

Reserve Leader Honored

Capt. William A. Hood, right, unit advisor, Lubbock Area Command, presents 1st Lt. Charles R. Hutchins, commanding officer of the 350th Engineering Detachment (Utilities), the Big Spring Army Reserve Unit, a Certificate of Achievement from Lt. Gen. J. H. Collier, commander of the Fourth U. S. Army. The Certificate of Achievement was in recognition of what Gen. Collier termed "outstanding achievement in attaining his authorized strength through the conduct of an energetic and effective recruiting program." Big Spring is the only city in the Lubbock Area Command to receive the award. Other cities in the area are Midland, Lubbock, Odessa and Snyder.

O'Daniel Promises Segregation Return

HOUSTON (AP) — W. Lee O'Daniel said today he will return segregation to school systems which have adopted integration if he is elected governor.

O'Daniel told reporters no constitutional amendment would be needed, that an act by the Legislature could accomplish such action.

The former governor and senator will speak over two Houston radio stations tonight.

O'Daniel said he favors establishment of a Texas Labor Relations Board similar to the NLRB. He said he also wants the state to have a law similar to the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

He also called for building vast water reservoirs throughout the state. He said he opposes a general sales tax.

DEAR ABBY

HE'LL LEARN!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 years old and am going with a boy who is 22 but he knows absolutely nothing about romance, especially how to kiss. He kisses me like he is kissing his grandmother (if you know what I mean.) He just finished his Army hitch and says I am the kind of girl he would like to marry, but I don't know if he would make a good husband if he doesn't even know how to kiss a girl. Should I teach him or do you think he would wonder where I learned?

DEAR ABBY: I have a little girl, age seven, who is both beautiful and above average in intelligence. I am mentally sick and cannot give her the love and attention she needs. My mind is filled with thoughts of suicide. My wife runs around with other men and doesn't wake up until the child goes to her room in the morning and says, "Mommie mornie, what dress should I wear?" My wife beats her and screams at her, "Leave me alone! I wish you were never born!" We are both unfit to raise this child. What must I do to save her?

DEAR ABBY: My wife had her third child yesterday and I am a nervous wreck. Why should a woman make such a howling fuss over a natural thing like giving birth? Dogs and cats go off and have their young without disturbing anyone. I remember my mother just laying down and another farm woman came in to take care of her while she had hers. Is the modern woman getting weaker or is she trying to get more attention than is her due?

DEAR ABBY: You advised a gentleman whose wife kept losing his important papers to keep them locked up in a box under his bed. Are you trying to put us bankers out of business? What's the matter with a safe deposit box?

DEAR ABBY: My sister is always asking me if I think she's getting big in the hips. She is getting pretty broad because she has a job that requires her to sit all day. She always says, "Tell me the truth now, do you think I am getting hippy?" I'm afraid if I do, it will hurt her feelings. What should I say when she asks me next time? LITTLE SISTER

DEAR ABBY: Tell her the truth but suggest that she get to the seat of the matter and combine diet with exercise.

Onassis Didn't Break Bank At Monte Carlo—Just Bought It

WASHINGTON (AP)—Aristotle Socrates Onassis didn't break the bank at Monte Carlo—he simply bought Monte Carlo. Reputedly one of the richest men in the world, this Greek-born shipping magnate attended his first U.S. congressional hearing last week wearing the same rumpled navy blue pin stripe suit for three days.

Youth's Friends Seek Release

HOUSTON (AP)—Attorneys for a Houston youth charged in the slaying of two of his close friends sought today a hearing to get the youth released on bond.

Howard Stickney, 20, spent his first night in Texas last night since he left town May 25, the day after Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Barnes were fatally beaten. Stickney was locked up in a Houston jail after leading officers on a beach search yesterday afternoon.

He told police and newsmen he had gone with the Barnes couple on a beach party at Galveston on May 24. Stickney said he drank several beers and went to sleep. He said when he awoke he found the couple dead.

Stickney picked out a beach site about four miles south of the Galveston city limits but said lack of landmarks made the site of the swimming party uncertain.

The youth said he became scared when he found the bodies, dumped them in the car and drove back to their Houston apartment.

There, he said, he deposited Mrs. Barnes' body on a bed. He said he left Barnes' body along a rural road near Sugar Land the next day.

Police say the two were beaten to death, possibly with a blood-stained automobile lug wrench found near Barnes' body. Stickney told of traveling aimlessly northward by auto for almost a month. He was arrested in eastern Canada last Friday.

19th Air Force To Leave Texas

LANGLEY AFB, Va. (AP)—Gen. O. P. Weyland, commander of the Tactical Air Command, said yesterday headquarters of the 19th Air Force will move from Texas to Seymour Johnson AFB at Goldsboro, N.C., in September.

The move follows an announcement some time ago that the headquarters base—Foster AFB, Victoria, Tex.—would be closed next January. The 45th Fighter Day Wing at Foster will be inactivated at the same time.

Today he returns to the House Merchant Marine subcommittee to try to explain—in his fluent but often fractured English—his involved tanker operations.

Now 52, with streaks of white in his wavy black hair, Onassis is a veteran commuter between continents. He was born in Greece and reared in Smyrna, went to Argentina almost penniless when he was 16 and was a millionaire tobacco importer when he was 25.

It was in early 1953 when Onassis, looking for office space on the Mediterranean where many of his ships were repaired, bought a controlling block of stock in Monte Carlo. He paid a million dollars in the transaction to get that office space.

He doesn't gamble at the tables. Those who know him say he's a dogged worker.

In 1946, after oil shipping had brought him millions, Onassis met and married Athina Livanos, the daughter of another Greek shipping executive. They have two children, Alexander and Christina.

Christina is the name of Onassis' yacht, a 300-foot floating palace with a marble swimming pool and a mosaic floor that can be raised for dancing.

Onassis maintains homes in

New York, Paris, Antibes, Athens and Montevideo. His ships fly the flags of Panama, Honduras, Costa Rica, Liberia and Saudi Arabia.

He told the confused congressmen to whom he was trying to explain his operations—"I am being more natural about this thing. Maybe I'll cut my throat by being so natural but that is life. You take a chance."

The Justice Department filed suit against Onassis this month in New York for alleged breach of contract to build three tankers in this country.

Onassis wants to cut the commitment to two, contending a drop in shipping has made it uneconomical to build all three.

Red Chinese Stage Another Pullout

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio today announced that the second stage of the withdrawal of Chinese troops from North Korea will start July 11. The broadcast said by Aug. 20 another 100,000 troops would be pulled back. This would leave an estimated 70,000 Chinese soldiers in North Korea.

Vanguard Flunks Its Latest Exam

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Navy's temperamental Vanguard rocket—America's No. 1 satellite launching vehicle—flunked another test today.

After hours of hard work, the Vanguard crew gave up at 1:34 a. m. on another heart-breaking effort to get the slender rocket with its "basketball moon" off the ground.

The Navy said heavy rains had caused an accumulation of moisture in the rocket's wiring system which led to electrical short circuiting.

It was the second time in four days that the crew had been stymied in its effort to get this particular Vanguard off its launching pad. It was scrubbed last Thursday night after a long countdown.

Russia May Allow Use Of Test Units

WASHINGTON (AP)—American officials said today Russia has indicated willingness to use its 70 seismograph stations in any international program to detect secret nuclear tests.

This, coupled with what they described as the impressive scientific background of the Soviet at Geneva July 1, gave heart to Western negotiators. The three U. S. experts and their two British, one French and one Canadian colleagues prepared to get to Geneva by next weekend.

These seven Western scientists have been cautioned by their governments to tend strictly to technical matters and avoid international political questions.

Officials said the task of the technical conference on detecting nuclear tests is two-fold:

1. To explore with Soviet bloc scientists the techniques, methods and instruments required to detect nuclear tests—especially those conducted thousands of feet underground or at altitudes of 100 miles or so.

2. To lay out systems of nuclear test detection.

The U. S. scientists are hopeful they can make progress on the first objective. When they move into the second one, if they get that far, tricky political questions—like whether Red China should be brought in and whether nuclear tests should be banned—will pop up.

Officials said the Soviet government has made no firm offer to use its 70 seismograph stations. But they said the Russians have indicated the stations may be available. They would be helpful, perhaps vital, in checking on test explosions behind the Iron Curtain.

Soviet diplomatic exchanges with the United States have carried a political complexion. As a result, the State Department is assigning a foreign service officer skilled in international politics to steer the scientists away from that field. The diplomat will be named in a few days.

Soviet scientists selected for the conference include a Nobel Prize winning chemist, a top flight Soviet theoretical physicist and knowledgeable Soviet geophysicists and seismologists.

Heading the West's delegation is Dr. James B. Flisk, vice president of Bell Telephone Laboratories. The other Americans are Dr. Robert F. Bacher of the California Institute of Technology, and Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence of the University of California.

The West's panel will draw from a pool of additional scientific brainpower while in Geneva including Dr. Hans Bethe, Cornell University physicist who is a nuclear adviser to President Eisenhower; Dr. Harold Brown and Dr. Carson Mark of the Atomic Energy Commission; and Dr. Anthony Turkevich of the University of Chicago.

A dozen U. S. seismologists also are on call.

Bollworms, Aphids Threat To Crops

WASHINGTON (AP)—The grasshopper may be getting the headlines with his crop depredations in the great plains, but other insects are worrying farmers.

The Agriculture Department said the bollworm is threatening to damage cotton in parts of Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. Aphids were reported to be increasing and damaging apples in several states. The spotted alfalfa aphid has appeared in rather heavy infestations in one New Mexico county and was said to be increasing in East Central Oklahoma.

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

SECTION B BIG SPRING, TEXAS, TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1958 SECTION B

They Mean Business

Flights of these F-86L fighter-interceptor planes may become familiar starting in August as the 331st Fighter-Interceptor Squadron sets up shop at Webb AFB. Equipped with radar and other electronic devices, they can be fired automatically on a target until their rockets destroy it. At least two of these planes, rated as supersonic, will be on alert constantly, capable of being airborne within five minutes. That they mean business is attested by the picture below which shows an airman seeding one of the rocket pods of the planes.

331st F-1 Unit To Maintain Constant Vigil At Webb AFB

The F-86 fighter is no stranger to these parts, but it's going to become a lot more familiar object in the skies around Big Spring within about another month. That is when the 331st Fighter-Interceptor Squadron will move its first element from Stewart AFB to Webb AFB. Almost from the time the first elements of the unit arrive, it will begin a vigil never to be relaxed in the foreseeable future.

This was part of the picture painted here Monday by Col. John T. Fitzwater, commander of the 33rd Division of the Air Defense Command. His division is one of 16 which fits into the North American Air Defense Command, and it is responsible for the greater Southwest area including all of Texas, most of Oklahoma, and Arkansas.

The development attending arrival of the squadron will be but a drop in the bucket compared to what appears in store for the base here, he said.

Mission of the modified version of the sonic fighters—the F-86L, will be to intercept enemy craft and destroy them. For that reason planes on alert here will be fully armed with rockets and other weapons, for they mean business. So far as they are concerned, there's a war going on.

Operations here will be directed from division headquarters in Oklahoma City. The 33rd is one of five joint air divisions of the Central Air Defense Force (CADF) at Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo. The area protected by the 33rd covers nearly 300,000 square miles containing some 11,000,000 inhabitants.

Potential air invasion routes from the south have become increasingly significant because of the jet stream which sweeps over this area at high altitudes. During certain times of the year, particularly in winter, a jet bomber could leave Siberia, fly over water until well off the California Coast and then utilize the jet stream to attain speeds as great as 1,000 miles per hour. Thus it could cut over Mexico and then come up from the south in less time than the same bomber would require to fly over water from northern Europe to New York.

Air defense is tied in closely with the radar network which will include 16 Aircraft Control and Warning squadrons, augmented by 10 unmanned, automatic auxiliary stations. This network, together with ground observers, constitute the eyes and ears of the defense command. Information gathered is transmitted instantly to Oklahoma City where it is posted and evaluated at the massive control center. Here the data on movement of planes is plotted on a giant plexiglass board (16 x 20 feet). Operations of the center are controlled from four daises, each with a different function—includ-

New Telephone Directories Will Be Mailed Next Week

One of the best read books in Big Spring will be circulated within the next week. That book is the 1958 telephone directory and it will be filled with approximately 11,150 alphabetical listings. Cliff Fisher, manager of the local Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. office, said the new directories would be mailed to subscribers next Tuesday. Fisher said the old books should be discarded as soon

KANSAS CITY (AP)—They've moved the coeds in with the men on the University of Kansas City campus, but it's strictly above board. Women students occupy the fourth floor of the men's dormitory, the men the lower three floors. Previously, out-of-town coeds lived in approved homes around the city. The men are separated from the women by special dormitory door locks which, when tampered with, trip an alarm system. It hasn't sounded yet.

Lackland Chief Involved In AF Battle Transferred

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—The Pentagon has ordered the reassignment of Maj. Gen. Herbert Grills, commander of Lackland AFB, to the Fifth Allied Tactical Air Force, a NATO unit, effective in September. Grills will be replaced in command of Lackland by Brig. Gen. Robert Stillman, now serving as commander of cadets at the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs. Grills has been commanding officer at the huge training base here since Nov. 1, 1956. The general became the center of a public controversy when he relieved Col. James Smyrl, Lackland training commander, for failure to support his training policies. Smyrl countered with the charge he had been ordered to induce trainees to patronize commercial horseback riding and roller skating facilities as a substitute for standard exercises. Two Air Force boards recommended Smyrl be dropped from active duty, but Air Force Secretary James Douglas overruled the boards last month.

Daily Average Oil Production Dips

TULSA (AP)—Daily average crude production dipped 13,325 barrels to 6,325,650 the week ended June 21, the Oil and Gas Journal said today. Oklahoma rose 4,900 barrels to 545,800. The Journal estimated 1958 production at 1,111,503,300 barrels compared to 1,293,124,013 a year ago. Colorado fell 1,925 barrels to 131,100; Louisiana, 1,900 to 814,475 and Arkansas, 800 to 75,300. Production was unchanged in Texas, 2,700,000 barrels, and New Mexico, unchanged from a revised figure for the previous week of 276,800 barrels.

A Bible Thought For Today

In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. (1 Thessalonians 5:18)

We've Got To Face This Problem

One of the questions asked of Col. John T. Fitzwater, commander of the 33rd Division of the Air Defense Command, at a press conference here Monday was this: "What can the community do to help you?" Col. Fitzwater, a genial and diplomatic man, replied: "Well, I would say off hand just do more of what I hear you have done for Webb."

owners are going to lumber yards and to contractors in an effort to upgrade these rental units and make them the sort of accommodations they would like to have. It is imperative that we have more and more of this if we are to make any dent in satisfying the housing demand by mid-summer. People needn't worry about whether the demand will be long-range. It will, in addition to the present program at Webb and the 331st as it is brought up to full strength, there will be the SAGE unit in time. And again the personnel required will number several hundred.

Give The Port More Utility

A proposal has been laid before the Commissioners Court for construction of a terminal building and possibly some hangars at the county airport. Jack Cook and Jack Gulley, representing the Chamber of Commerce aviation committee, said they believed the county would have some $125,000 available for such improvements after present contracts for runway, apron, lighting, contracts are satisfied. Both the terminal and the hangar facilities could be provided within that amount, he predicted.

for to possess its full utility the airport would most certainly have to have a terminal facility. If it is to serve the growing number of aircraft which will use the port and which would be domiciled here, then some sort of hangar space will need to be provided. It is difficult to give one of these priority over the other, for both are related closely with maximum utilization. Without terminal facilities, we cannot hope for commercial exploitation; without hangars, we cannot hope for private flying development commensurate with its potentials.

Marquis Childs Russia's Powerful Propaganda Exhibit

MOSCOW—At the permanent exhibition of agriculture and industry covering at least as much ground as the Brussels World's Fair on the outskirts of Moscow, the big attraction is a newly-installed display of the three sputniks that the Russians have orbited in outer space. It is the center of a visible national pride in the faces of the crowds that stream in and out of the building. The sputnik display is part of the exhibit of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, and the building it occupies, formerly given over to one of the 15 component republics, is close to the main entrance to the exhibition. In the entrance hall is a replica of sputnik No. 1 which was launched into space on October 4, 1957. In the adjoining hall is a model of a half section of sputnik No. 2, and at the end of the hall is the interior of the nose cone of No. 3, with all its complicated instrumentation.

of the Russian people, to stand briefly in the light of this new era. And throughout the crowd, among the most curious and the most eager, are young men in uniform—such a wide variety of uniforms and insignia. One would guess that perhaps as many as thousands through the sprawling exhibition grounds in groups of three or four and on escorted tours of 20 or 30. Among them are all the varied races of the Soviet Union, the Uzbeks and the Turkmens with their Oriental faces alongside Nordic-looking blondes. This huge exhibition that shows so much of the industrial and scientific achievement of the mid-20th Century offers still another contrast. The architecture is approximately that of the Chicago World's Fair of 1893 with a touch of Grouse Island, and the buildings and the grounds have, therefore, for the Western visitor a curiously old-fashioned look. But, as with everything in this grimly purposeful system, the objective is far more than entertainment. For the Russian people this is an education in what their government is doing for them, and on the simplest level in the agricultural pavilions it is to teach them how to improve their cattle, hogs and poultry. In the All-Union building, which is just beyond the main entrance of the exhibition, one wall is covered with a huge map of the U.S.S.R. illustrating with a series of colored lights the progress of electrification in the country. As the groups come through, the guide gives his lecture and the lights flash on, first those showing the dams and power stations built in the early decades, next those built after the war, and finally the big projects now under construction. A large illuminated graph shows the achievement for 1957 of 209 billion kilowatt hours, and projected for the next 15 years a total of 800 to 900 billion kilowatt hours. The Soviet citizen can hardly help but be impressed with this demonstration. But it is also designed to impress the numerous foreign visitors who come in a constant stream of delegations from all over but particularly from the uncommitted nations of Asia and Africa. Such a display as the illuminated map says to these people, "Look. We were undeveloped only a few decades ago and now see what we have achieved. What we have done you can do, too."

Speaking Their Minds Brought Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is a tale of how two men got into trouble by saying what they thought. Everybody agrees that in a democracy military commanders must be controlled by civilians. But it raises a nice question: What civilians? For instance: the military commanders are subordinate to their civilian superior, Secretary of Defense McElroy. But Congress is jealous of its right to question military commanders, even if it means they publicly disagree with McElroy and try to defeat his ideas. When President Eisenhower asked Congress to permit him to reorganize the Defense Department, the House passed a bill giving him pretty much what he asked. But it made a couple of exceptions. This was one: If McElroy wanted to abolish some functions of one branch of the service or transfer them to another branch, then the chief of staff of the Army, Navy or Air Force — all under McElroy — could protest to Congress. And, under the House-passed bill, Congress could repeal McElroy's order. Neither McElroy nor the Eisenhower administration liked this arrangement. So, when the bill moved over to the Senate, McElroy asked the Armed Services Committee to knock out this section of the House bill. But then the committee called on Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, for his views. They were contrary to McElroy's. He said, in effect, that if McElroy wanted to take away some function of the Navy, and Burke thought it bad for the country, he wanted to be free to tell Congress so. This opposition from Burke caused McElroy to tell reporters: "I am disappointed in him (Burke), regard it as regrettable." Would this end Burke's career? McElroy said "I have no plans to have his position changed" but "I am not the only one responsible for his future." This could be interpreted as meaning Eisenhower, the only one above McElroy responsible for Burke's future, might punish the admiral. McElroy hurried to deny the next day that he had any intention of rebuking Burke. "The secretary can be disappointed, and he can regret parts of an officer's testimony without it being anything more than that," he said. From far out in the Pacific, Vice Adm. Austin K. Doyle, commander at Formosa, backed up Burke, said he thought he was sticking his neck out for saying so, and announced he was shocked at McElroy's criticism of Burke. Then McElroy got hit by Sen. Richard B. Russell, Georgia Democrat, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and one of the most powerful men in Congress. He said a couple of things: 1. That McElroy's criticism of Burke for telling Congress what he thought was proof Congress must preserve the right to "receive the unbiased professional judgment" of this country's military leaders. 2. That "the clear implication in the secretary's statement that the Joint Chiefs must conform or be purged is more in keeping with the totalitarian concept of government than with our free government of divided powers." That wasn't all, Russell called off any more testimony by military men on Eisenhower's reorganization plan until he gets assurance from McElroy they won't be punished for saying what they think.

Waffle: A Non-Skid Pancake

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: That waffles were first introduced into this country by Thomas Jefferson, who bought a waffle iron in Holland. That, despite the bad reputation of Sunday drivers, Saturday is the deadliest day of the week in terms of traffic fatalities. That in 1964 there were 700 trucks in the United States. Today there are more than ten million. That the menu at the Cafe St.

Denis bears this bon mot: "The man who gives way when he knows he is wrong is wise. The man who gives way when he knows he is in the right is merely married." That here's a new tip for do-it-yourself fans: Drop a piece of charcoal in your tool box. It will absorb moisture and help keep your tools from rusting. That sea lions give off a sweet scent to let their cows know where they are. That Monique Von Vooren, the Belgian song writer, owes a great deal of her success to phone books. A gym teacher taught her breath control by having her lie on the floor, then breathe deeply with two heavy telephone directories on her tummy. That it was Benjamin Franklin who said, "If a man could have half his wishes, he would double his troubles."

Around The Rim Confusion Becomes Compounded

When you are very young, you sometimes have confused ideas on matters. When you get older, the odds or the confusion will become greater. I know a woman who as a tiny girl puzzled herself for hours over the meaning of a hymn she heard at Sunday church services. What, she wondered, did they mean "When the rose is called up yonder?" There was a phase in my boyhood when novels about the polar wastes were almost an obsession. I borrowed and begged every book I could about the north and the sturdy (fictional) characters and animals who dwelt there. Walking along a street one day I saw a book in a shop window. "The Clink of the Ice," was the title. I dashed home, looked in the piggy bank and raced back to the store. I bought the book without further examination than the title. Then I hastened home eager to become lost in the northland wastes. Imagine my distress when I opened the book. It was a volume of classical toasts drunk at celebrated banquets and dinners. Instead of the clash of shattering ice floes, the "clink" in the title was but the tinkle of ice in tubs to keep the champagne cold. I once wrote a column in which I berated the existence in the town where I lived of certain individuals whose power and influence were such they could destroy worthy enterprises and programs by verbal veto. Every town has such persons—often they are not really worthy of the power they wield. Their strength may stem from their worldly wealth, their place in the political picture. Sometimes it is simply because they are representatives of the "first families." Often such individuals are anything but progressive in their viewpoint; projects which could be of immeasurable help to the people as a whole may infringe in some way on their own personal comfort. So they kill such ideas. The common name for such people is "sacred cows." I wrote this particular article and belabored our excessive number of sacred cows and their narrow outlook. The next day a reader came to see me. He had read what I had written, he said. He approved of it wholeheartedly. I was perfectly right, he declared—"our town is too big and too much of a city to permit livestock to run at large." I made no effort to correct him. It just didn't seem worth while. Civic clubs the world over invariably open their programs with one verse (why just one verse?) of "America." The members warble away of "Land of THY Pilgrims' pride." The author wrote it "THE Pilgrims' Pride." No one ever bothers to look at the words. Yup—when you are very young there is much to confuse you. As you grow older, the confusion mounts but you sort of get used to it. —SAM BLACKBURN

Revolt Of The Males—Against Chemises

Honestly, American men are just plain wonderful. They believe, bless them, that there is nothing like a dame. They want to see her stacked, not sacked. And, in furtherance of this credo, they have just effected the biggest, wholesale delivery from bondage since Lincoln freed the slaves. Thanks largely to the revolt of these angels, women are getting their figures back from New York's Seventh Avenue. They—our splendid men folks—have refused to put up with or pay for the abominable sack and the silly chemise. They done freed us from a fashion nightmare. "You'll be able to tell that a girl is a girl at first glance by autumn and that she's not pregnant," says Sidney Blauener, regarded up and down Seventh Avenue as one of the shrewdest trend-setters in the business as well as president of Suzy Perette, one of the largest manufacturers in the medium-price dress range. The shapeless chemise is dead as a door nail. Blauener adds, and credits it largely to masculine rage at a fashion cover-up job that prevented them from viewin' what comes naturally. For the first time in the history of American merchandising, women from coast to coast bought a dress one week only to have it returned the next week by an infuriated husband. Husbands, following, "I don't want my wife to look like this," returned sacks and chemises to startled emporiums, Blauener reports. "Never lose sight of the female figure," he said as we kicked the chemise around the other day. "That's fatal. I know of no other country where women are built as nicely—as prettily—as in America. Men have refused to pay for concealing such rich natural resources. "At least the sack and the chemise have had this virtue—they have proved that men are vitally interested in women's clothing. For the first time in my experience, they've been up in arms against a current fashion. Blauener speaks from experience. A sadder but wiser man who had to be talked into chemisery after the Paris showings last summer and again last January, he discovered that stores ordered such dresses but did not reorder. It was part of the consumer revolt. "The cult of the ugly, no matter how fashionable, will never succeed in the United States," he said. "A manufacturer should never make a dress that, in turn, makes a woman look unappealing, a store shouldn't sell it and a woman shouldn't buy it. And a man won't pay for it." The early chemises were ugly and made women look unappealing. We have all discovered that the American woman is not impressed by the fact that this or that style originates in Paris or Rome. All she wants is to look good. Her ambition is a pretty dress that's becoming. The biggest sellers I have ever made have always been original designs by my American designer, Evelyn Dawson. "All up and down Seventh Avenue we're making pretty dresses this season, irrespective of any silhouette devised by Paris. We're making slim, trim dresses. I don't want to call them a chemise because they're not, really. It's an American dress, not quite so tight in the bodice as a few years ago but with a definite fit that is a showcase for the figure. "Girls will be girls—again." And boys, bless them, will continue to be boys, I hope. (1958 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

The Gallup Poll Americans Admit Basis For Criticism

PRINCETON, N. J.—In the wake of anti-American manifestations around the globe, many Americans today show a capacity for self-criticism in their feelings about how the U. S. rates in the eyes of the world. Of particular importance is the fact that a majority of the college-trained persons of the country—those probably most likely to have an awareness of the basis of our standing abroad—feel that there is cause for dislike of this country in other nations of the world. Chiefly, people who see cause for criticism believe that the U. S. attitude is often one of trying to "run" other countries. Linked with the foregoing is a feeling that many Americans who visit abroad—particularly tourists—serve to contribute to this attitude of "we know what's best." As to how the public would guess America rates in the eyes of the world, only that one person in five thinks the U. S. has a "very favorable" rating abroad. Only one college in 10 gives this country a very favorable rating on this score, while nearly one in five with college training believes the U. S. rates not at all favorably in the eyes of the world. Institute interviewers first put this question to a cross-section of adults from coast to coast: "Do you think there is good reason for people in other countries disliking the United States, or not?" The replies from across the country:

had example to other countries of the world. Also a possible target for foreign criticism was Secretary of State John Foster Dulles whose policies a number of voters felt were not clearly enough defined. Some persons felt criticism of the U. S. might stem from jealousy on the part of other nations over our general prosperity and way of life. Those Americans who feel there is little reason for others disliking the U. S. take an attitude of what might best be described as "injured innocence." To them countries receiving U. S. foreign aid have no right to criticize a benefactor. HOW U. S. RATES To get an overall rating from the American public on our status abroad, the Institute asked this question: "In general, how do you think the United States rates in the eyes of the world—very favorably, fairly favorably, or not at all favorably?" The answers of the general public, as well as those with college training line up as follows:

Table with columns: REASON TO DISLIKE U.S., Per Cent, COLLEGE-TRAINED PERSONS, Per Cent. Data points: Yes, there is reason... 37, No, is not... 52, No opinion... 11. For college-trained: Yes, there is reason... 54, No, is not... 40, No opinion... 6.

Table with columns: HOW U. S. RATES, All College-Adult trained, Per Cent. Data points: Very favorably... 19, Fairly favorably... 69, Not at all favorably... 14, No opinion... 8.

Fulbright Student Belies Her American Name Of Butterfly

By ANNE LOFEVER
She looks for all the world like a small life-size Japanese doll, does Choko Tsukamoto! But talk to her for just a short time, and you'll understand how she could have been awarded the Fulbright scholarship on which she is attending Columbia University in New York.

A custom of her family in naming the children resulted in her appellation, which, in English, means Butterfly. The first child was given a name beginning with an A; the second with a B; needless to say, Choko was the third of five children, only two of whom are still living.

Her parents, Prof. and Mrs. H. G. Tsukamoto live in Tokyo, Japan, where he is professor of chemistry in the university of that city.

Choko spent three years in a nursing school and one year in public health school before she came to the United States on the scholarship—as she explains it—"I don't have to pay".

Now that she has received her B. A. degree in nursing education, the university has given her scholarship in order that she can continue her studies toward a master's degree.

Already a registered nurse, she will be, at the time she returns to Japan, the only one of the profession with an M. A. She has completed all the training required in Japan for both a public health and a clinical nurse; both require different schooling.

The newcomer, who will serve as a nurse in Malone-Hogan Hospital during the summer months, speaks delightful English, and slyly makes little jokes in her adopted language. Her lovely brown eyes twinkle with refreshing humor as she tries out new words learned from an ever-widening acquaintance.

At one time she spoke German, but she hasn't used the language for some time; then again, she learned a bit of Chinese and Russian, when the family home was occupied by a Russian officer about 12 years ago. She was just entering her teens at that time.

Her education in the English language did not start until she was in senior high school. Quite extensive in her education in mathematics, which includes algebra, geometry, plane and solid, trigonometry and calculus, both differential and integral.

Food in the states is, in the main, quite pleasing to Choko, but she improves on our method of cooking and serving rice, she thinks. In her country, she is accustomed to more vegetables than are provided over here.

Sunday was her first opportunity to partake of a hamburger,

She Won't Find It There

For the want of a map, Choko Tsukamoto looks on a world globe to find the location of Big Spring. Arriving in the city from New York on Sunday evening, the young Japanese girl remarked that she was not "so very good to geography" and that she didn't know the location of Big Spring. At present, she is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Woodall and their daughter, Linda, 701 West 17th, whom she met recently in New York, where she has been attending Columbia University on a Fulbright scholarship.

Texas-style, and she was delighted, she has yet to taste Mexican food.

With pretty confusion, she answered a question as to the possibility of marriage in the future. She has two "just good friends" in Japan, she declared, and in New York—well, maybe, there might be one.

At any rate, Choko slept with a piece of wedding cake beneath her pillow Sunday—a tradition which is new to her—and was

'ROUND TOWN With Lucille Pickle

If the weather weren't such an interesting subject, we might run it straight into the ground from repetition but with happenings such as occurred Monday afternoon, it just doesn't border on the boring. Within a few minutes time, we had a blinding sandstorm, heavy rain that was blown by such forceful winds there appeared to be something solid mixed with it and then the rain ceased; the wind blew some more and suddenly the sky was clear blue and everything was peaceful and innocent looking.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Swedish Player Not A Slave To Fashion

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — After seeing "The Young Lions," everyone was talking about the sizzling love scenes between Marion Brandt and that Swedish bombshell May Britt. I wanted to meet this girl and went over to 20th Century-Fox to have lunch with her.

She looks very much the same off the screen as on, with her long straight blonde hair falling around her face.

"I don't look well in curls," she volunteered.

"How do you like California?" I asked after May ordered a salad.

"The climate and the fruit are wonderful, but the men are spoiled," she said with a cute little accent. "I've been living in Rome for the last few years and I like the attention the Latins pay a woman. They have a way of making you feel desirable and beautiful. It's no wonder the women are more feminine over there."

"The Swedes are much more matter of fact, like the American men," she added. "You know they call Sweden a little America."

May was wearing a chemise dress and I wanted to know what Swedish men thought of the new styles.

"It has a subtle kind of sex appeal," she replied. "It is loose but it moves with you, and some of the men like it."

May does not slavishly follow fashion. She said: "I don't wear uncomfortable shoes no matter how chic they are. I prefer beautiful feet and don't intend to ruin mine with too tight shoes. It always shows in your face if your shoes are too tight."

May has no explanation for the fact that the food in America is not as fattening as it is in Europe, yet she has gained weight here.

"I think some of it's mental. Americans know how many calories are in everything. I never saw anything like it. All this talk about reducing."

When you want to take off a few pounds, what do you do?" I asked.

She thought the answer rather obvious from the way she replied, "Why I eat less."

"For some people this is easier said than done," I explained.

"Again it's mental," she pointed out. "Occupy your mind. Be active and if you are concentrating on something else, you won't know whether you're hungry or not."

The Swedish Viewpoint

Exciting new Swedish star May Britt brings to readers some interesting views in today's Hollywood Beauty. May is currently appearing in "The Young Lions" for 20th Century-Fox.

All church members who wish to attend are asked to bring food for their own family and for the guests.

Plans were made for a salad luncheon which the women will give at 1 p.m. Saturday at the church in honor of Mary Frances Norman and her mother, Mrs. C. W. Norman, of Wichita Falls. Miss Norman will become the bride of James Leroy Covington July 3 in Wichita Falls. She is a former member of the local First Baptist choir, and her mother was for many years pianist-organist for the church.

Puffing Cancer Society Chided

DALLAS (AP)—While cigarette smoke wafted up from the audience, the American Cancer Society's Dallas unit was chided "for flaunting the million dollars spent on the study of lung cancer." "Nothing makes me angrier than to watch a person take a puff," said Dr. Robert J. Samp of the cancer research staff at the University of Wisconsin Medical Center, "and smile and say, 'Well, if I'm gonna go, it's a wonderful way to go.'" "He will go, all right, and there's an excellent possibility the way will not be wonderful," he said.

Ballerina Likes Modern Dance But Rates Own Period Higher

By MILTON MARMOR
LONDON (AP)—The most beautiful, the most courted, and in many eyes the greatest ballerina of the Russian Imperial Ballet was Tamara Karsavina.

Such was her fame and beauty that when Henry J. Bruce, handsome attaché at the British Embassy, married her in 1917 the diplomatic colony in St. Petersburg referred to his success as "the most envied international coup of the year."

That was the year Russian armies bled to death on the Eastern Front battlefields of World War I. It was one year before czarist Russia perished in violent revolution.

In the world of ballet they were the golden days. Most of the names of the period—Bakst, Pavlova, Nijinsky and Diaghilev—are gone.

But in a rambling house in the London district of Hampstead, Tamara Karsavina, now a white-haired lady of 73, lives to recall the splendor of those days in a soft, cultured voice, still touched with a slight Russian accent.

Mme. Karsavina is now a British subject. Her husband, with whom she fled Bolshevik Russia in 1919, died six years ago.

After almost a decade of dancing with Diaghilev's Ballet Russe in the western world, Mme. Kar-savina retired. She had made her debut in 1902.

She has never lost interest in her art. She lectures occasionally in ballet circles. In addition she is writing "a very personal book" on her life in the ballet.

Despite her interest in present day ballet—she has Margot Fonteyn, Britain's prime ballerina, as a part time pupil—Mme. Karsavina says "the czarist era of ballet was unparalleled."

"At that time we had such a number of wonderful dancers," she says. "It's only natural that I value the Russian school of dancing most of all. I belong to it myself."

"I found it extremely broad-minded and at the same time very pure."

Mme. Karsavina starred with Vaslav Nijinsky in the first performances of the Firebird, Petrouchka and Sacre du Printemps, which were considered revolutionary ballets at the time.

Yet she never lost her love for the great numbers of the classic ballet. Giselle, Sleeping Beauty and Swan Lake.

Of Pavlova, whom she succeeded as prima ballerina of the Russian Imperial Ballet, Mme. Karsavina said: "She was a beautiful dancer. She was very frail and charming."

Of Nijinsky, to whom legend now attributes almost superhuman talents, she added: "It is quite true. He was so wonderful. He had a wonderful feel of music, great elevation and he was an exceptional dancer. I never saw anyone like him. That was the strength of the Russian school."

30 YEARS AGO ... the toast of Russia

BALLET TODAY
How does present day ballet compare?

"In a way it has gone further," she replied. "It uses many more themes and subjects. I think it is now in a state of growth. It is still experimental, seeking new ways of expression."

To her the Russian Imperial Ballet in the days of Serge Diaghilev and his Ballet Russe shortly after the first World War were "very perfect—because they kept academic techniques very pure and introduced fresh ideas. They never remained stationary."

What does she think of today's Bolshoi Ballet, which performed in London two years ago?

"It is very good... but the Bolshoi has been away from influences of the times. Somehow, I think the Imperial Ballet of 1912 was more advanced."

She quickly said words of praise: "The Bolshoi has kept up the best academic technique."

The British Royal Ballet (formerly Sadler's Wells).

"They have every chance of becoming really a sound foundation in ballet. It is built on the right lines—own schools, uniformity of training, fresh cadres. It is creating a tradition of its own."

CLASSICISM BASIC
The Americans?

"I like immensely the American performances. They have vitality and vigor and they also use their own national themes as inspirations."

The American ballet, she added, is founded on classical lines. With that, she then summed up her views:

"When you have the foundation of classicism—which is the systematic way of training your body for difficult movements done with visible facility—ballet doesn't always have to be hidebound. You must remember I was one of the protagonists of the new movement."

"But you must never throw away classicism. For there is nothing better to me than classical ballet at its best."

Water Therapy For Crippled Children Starts On July 7

Water therapy for Big Spring's handicapped children will begin July 7 and last until August.

More than 25 will receive the water therapy twice weekly, on Mondays and Thursdays. An automobile donated to the Crippled Children's Society by the Rotary Club is used to transport to and from the pool children who could not otherwise attend.

The children normally go to Midland weekly for physio-therapy treatments, but while that specialist is on vacation, the water therapy will act as a substitute.

Letters were dispatched this week, asking for parental approval and giving various information. Children not contacted by mail should call Miss Bo Bowen at the City-County Health Unit.

The swimming pool at the Westward-Ho Motel is the site of the program for the youngsters.

Bo Bowen, city-county health unit, is in charge of the program and appeals to all parents of participating children to give their best of time and efforts for the treatments.

The group, she states, is short of volunteer workers, and all available help is going to be needed in getting the children in and out of the water, taking them to the cars, etc. Only five or six female workers have been contacted, which is an insufficient number.

Boys could help the women considerably with some of the heavier children.

'Eneri' President Takes Law Fling

HOUSTON (AP)—Mrs. Irene Cliett, who claims she's withdrawn her Waller County farm from the union and now calls it the independent nation of Eneri, took a fling at law practice yesterday.

Net results after an all-day study of a borrowed law book:

An answer on file to earlier litigation, discovery of an error, and a hastily filed amended answer.

The activity stemmed from a federal court judgment in which heirs of the late Jeff Scott were granted half of a 703-acre farm in Waller County. The heirs asked the court that Mrs. Cliett, who claims the land, be kept off.

She set up an armed camp and resisted attempts by the court to remove her.

Mrs. Cliett then asked the court for a jury trial but the Scott heirs claimed she had waited too long.

Yesterday Mrs. Cliett and her sister, Mrs. Lucy Mayberry, borrowed one of Judge Ingraham's law clerk's law books. They said they found what they were looking for—a paragraph saying the lateness of the jury trial appeal was due to "excusable neglect."

The judge said he would let them know.

Special Party Planned For ROTC Cadets

Big Spring will extend the handshake of hospitality with a special program for 194 Air Force ROTC cadets currently in special training at Webb Air Force Base.

A stag barbecue supper following a swim party, will be given for the ROTC group on July 7, at the Cosden Country Club. Members of the Chamber of Commerce military affairs committee set up details for the affair, at a meeting Monday afternoon.

The ROTC collegians come from 34 different colleges and universities throughout the country, spending four weeks here in special Air Force training indoctrination. Object of the C-C sponsored party will be to extend a West Texas welcome to the young visitors.

The Cosden club pool will be open for the affair at 5 p.m. on the 7th, and a barbecue supper will be served at 7 p.m. There will be no program formalities.

Panel Lays Plans For Peace Parley

TOKYO (AP)—A committee began making plans today for a meeting here Aug. 12-20 of the "Fourth World Conference Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs and for Disarmament."

Dr. Kaoru Yasui, director general of the Japan Council Against Atomic and H-Bombs and recent winner of a Lenin Peace Prize, said the conference will seek "concrete and actual solutions for the immediate and future of the nuclear weapons problem."

Pair's Precaution Comes To Naught

DETROIT (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John F. Schmuck of London, Ont., came to Detroit to see the Tigers play baseball.

The Schmucks said they were afraid to leave behind the $2,500 they had saved so they put it in a suitcase and brought it along. They left the suitcase in their car, which was parked on the street.

When they returned, the car had been broken into and the suitcase and money were gone.
