State To Rest In Bowles Case

KOUNTZE, Tex. (AP) - The state said it expected to present its final evidence and rest its case today in the murder trial of Mrs. Elma Bowles, 29.

She is charged in the May 4 killing at Loeb, Tex., of James Harvey, her sister's husband. William Bowles, segregationist leader, was convicted in the slaying Aug. 5 and sentenced to life. He has appealed.

The state said it expects to show that Mrs. Bowles knew her husband was going to kill Harvey and made no effort to stop him. Defense attorney Joe Goodwin said he will seek to prove Mrs. Bowles had no such knowledge and thought her husband only planned to beat Harvey. Testimony yesterday covered an argument between Harvey and Mrs. Bowles prior to the slaying. It also covered details of slaying. Witnesses said Bowles killed Harvey with a shotgun after threatening to whip him.

Projecting Boundaries Ahead

Whether as part of any long range planning which might be undertaken or as an independent action, some advance thinking needs to be done toward projecting the city's corporate boundaries for

This is for a very obvious reason. The decennial census comes up in the spring of 1960 and the die then will be cast population-wise for the next 10 years. No matter what the growth might attain during the decade, the base to which a majority of inquirers will go will be the U.S. census.

We do not advocate indiscriminate extension of municipal borders for the purpose of potentially padding census figures.

Such a course offers far more peril than promise

But if there are areas which, by sound reason hold strong potentiality as new and logical territory for cities, then due consideration should be given to annexation. The rule of thumb should be thisif the territory seems almost sure to become part of the city within the space of a very few years, then why not before

If the city, county and other agencies should go into long range planning, this might throw some significant light on the subject. If the joint study should fail to materialize or if it were to be too long delayed in its final report, then the city might need to face the issue independently sometime within the next year.

Big Switch To Demos In Northwest

PORTLAND, Ore. — "Forget the party label. Forget that you're a Republican or a Democrat. We've got to unite all the people of Oregon.'

The speaker is 36-year-old Mark Hatfield, the Republican candidate for governor and his words are a measure of the extraordinary transformation that has come over the Pacific Northwest. What has happened here should be a grisly lesson to Republicans everywhere looking to 1960 and contemplating the decay of the

This was one Republican territory almost as rockbound as Maine. Winning the Republican nomination for office in the primary you were virtually guaranteed election. Only in rare years of deep economic trouble did the Democrats come out of the woodwork to benefit from a national tide.

Today all that is changed. The Democrats have 53,000 more registered voters than the Republicans out of a total of more than 800,000, a margin undreamed of 20 years ago. With an extensive organization of which union labor is perhaps the most important element they are conducting a grassroots get-out-the-vote drive.

Democratic incumbents are rated as almost certain to hold the three Congressional seats they now have. Walter Norblad, the Republican in the fourth of Oregon's House seats is in danger. Neither of the two Senators, Richard Neuberger and Wayne Morse, both Democrats, is up this year.

In the neighboring State of Washington the forecasts show that Senator Henry M. Jackson will win by something like a landslide. His Republican opponent, William Bantz, a former United States District Attorney, is said to be running merely a trial heat in preparation for a later effort. Of Washington's seven House seats, the Democrats now hold one and they are given a fair to good chance to pick up two more. It is not to be wondered at. then, that Hatfield is making a strong non-party appeal. A former political science professor and dean of students who looks like the all-American egghead, Hatfield is pushing a resourceful campaign. He says the polls show him leading Governor Robert D. Holmes, and he is confident that he will win even though he readily concedes that the Democratic majorities in the State Legislature will be larger than ever. Elected to fill an unexpired two-year term, Holmes has been having familiar difficulties with the demand for more schools and highways and at the same time lower taxes. His backers believe that with the Democratic tide he will be narrowly pulled in along with the others on his ticket

Why should this transformation have occurred in what was once safe Republican territory? There are many answers, but two-one immediate and one long rangeseem to be most relevant.

There can be satisfaction, too, that Dependent on lumber, agriculture and this was an American triumph after a minerals and, in Washington, the aircraft year of limited achievements and many industry, the Pacific Northwest felt only disappointments. One can take this pride, a faint breath of the Eisenhower prospertoo, without going to the extent that ity. The recession hit hard and there are Rep. Fulton (R-Pa) did in declaring that still pockets of unemployment. The Demo-"the Soviet sputniks are mere horseflies compared to this."

crats blame the Eisenhower Administration for stopping the New Deal public power program which they insist is essential to a state still in the first phases of industrial development. Governor Holmes has wired the Federal Reserve Board protesting the newest hike in interest rates as likely to damp down the housing industry again, and housing is vital to Oregon, with 65 per cent of payrolls in forest products. But what has long-term significance is the fact that there is virtually no Republican grassroots organization. As it is put by Hatfield, a realist in the style of Richard Nixon with whom his Republican admirers compare him, the big boys in the party thought you could buy a victory with billboards and television time.

In 1956, pitting Douglas McKay against Wayne Morse, the "fat cats" went all out and more money was spent in Oregon than in any of the states except California and New York. McKay was decisively defeated, and this year the rich Republicans are sitting on their pocketbooks while Hatfield conducts a do-it-yourself cam-

If the Pacific Northwest were an isolated example, it might not be too important and it could be written off to special circumstances. But in state after state the GOP is dying at the top and for all of Vice President Nixon's personal popularity in his party this has profound meaning for the election just two years

Warns, Don't Trust A Horse

By BOB THOMAS AP Motion Picture Writer ST. GEORGE, Utah, (AP) "The horse is a highly overrated animal. They're dumb as hell, and you can't trust them one bit." Heresy, you say? Perhaps, but our authority is none other than Gary Cooper, one of the few stars with an authentic Western back-

It's Robbery, Regardless Of Amount

A few days ago, two men were found guilty of robbery and were sentenced to long terms in the state penitentiary. As I recall it, the sentences were 30 or 40

The testimony in the trial revealed the entire loot taken from their victim was a part of a pack of cigarettes.

This aspect of the crime fascinated many persons. Imagine, they said, so severe a penalty for stealing a few cig-

The case is not unusual. I have encountered similar reactions in many cases where defendants were convicted of robbery. The public somehow seems to judge the enormity of the crime by the value of whatever was stolen from the

The true way to look at such cases ignores the loot itself. The offense is in the theft; the assault on the person and the violation of the rules of social con-Look at it this way:

In the instance cited, all the thieves took from their victim was a part of an opened package of cigarettes. Cash value perhaps 15 cents.

But, just for the sake of argument, and again emphasizing that what was stolen is not the real issue, suppose this victim had had $10,000 on his person. Will anyone assume that two hijackers, who have overpowered another person and plan to rob him, would have contented themselves with the theft of a few cigarettes? Would they have left the $10,-000? Of course not.

When you hear of a robbery where the thieves get only a dollar two, you can be sure the reason is that small amount was all their victim had on him. There may be examples where a thief contented himself with taking a small amount of money and leaving the bulk with the man he robbed, but such examples are rare indeed. If you fall victim to robbers, you can rest assured of one thing: The amount you will lose will be determined by the amount you happen to have on your person. Further, there is danger, in the event that you have only a few dollars, that your life may be endangered because of the very fact that you had so little.

The crime of robbery is not a matter of how much is stolen. The crime is in the violence to the victim. A hijacker puts his victim in peril of his life and the lives of many are taken in robberies each year. The thief has no right to take from you what is yours; he has no right to endanger your life to get what he wants and to which he has no claim. That is the crime he commits.

These men who stole the broken pack of cigarettes and were sentenced to long prison terms were punished for their action in overpowering their victim, putting him in fear of his life. They were not punished for stealing 15 cents worth of cigarettes.

And you may rest well assured had this victim been luckless enough to have had on his person anything of real value. the assailants would not have hesitated to take it.

What a burglar gets when he loots your home or what a holdup man takes when he sticks a gun or knife in your ribs is not the real issue.

Courts do not try a man on a basis that all he stole from the victim was a few cents. They try him for the act that he committed.

That a thief does not make a rich haul when he robs a person is not because the thief did not want to do so. It is simply that the victim he selected happened not to have more for him to

Jet Travel The Same, Only Faster

PARIS-Friends keep asking me what it is like to fly in a jet plane, since my flight to London in the jet Comet 4 and now to Paris in the Boeing 707. And no one seems very happy or satisfied with my answer, "You just get there faster."

People seem to feel that flying in a jet ought to be sensational, like going over Niagara Falls in a barrel or shooting the rapids on a raft in Hell's Canyon. It has taken me a little time to figure out just why people think jet flight should not only be faster but also different.

It is my hunch that the public has confused those young Air Force fliers in frog suits and outsize football helmets with subsonic jets as well as supersonic jets. Now, Hazel, a passenger in a commercial jet doesn't wear a frog suit or a fishbowl on his head. That's for fliers going through the sound barrier in, natch, supersonic planes. But a passenger in a commercial jet doesn't go through the sound barrier and he wears anything the Sears Roebuck catalogue offers. To me, one of the most fascinating parts of the technical equipment or gadgets in the cockpit of the Boeing 707, in which Pan American World Airways flew me here, is a "mach meter." Such a meter indicates the jet plane's speed relative to the sped of sound.

If a commercial jet, with a fast tail wind as an assist, ever got within spitting distance of mach point, or the point at which a plane would bust through the sound barrier, the pilot would instantly slow the plane down to a walk, or 500

The passenger plane-or the passengers - haven't been built yet that can go through the sound barrier.

To go through the sound barrier not only separates the men from the boys, but, I am reliably told, separates the eye teeth and the back hair from pilot and passengers.

Oh, there will undoubtedly be supersonic passenger planes in my time, and I'll be fool enough to go along on the first flight. But not till 1970, the optimists predict.

In the meantime, the jet takes off and lands just like a propeller plane, maybe a bit faster, but the non-technical passenger such as myself doesn't observe any noticeable difference. Certainly it climbs like an eagle with its tail feathers afire, and at a sharp angle. But the passenger isn't particularly aware of that angle of climb. One doesn't feel he is in a reclining chair, sitting on his shoulders, or in a Morris chair with all the stops out. To attain an altitude of more than five and one-half miles in 29 minutes, as we did after takeoff at Idlewild, is reaching for the sky.

But the chief pilot made this announcement over the Boeing's intercom system or the passengers wouldn't have known

We came down rapidly to land at Le Bourget, too, but I didn't even feel any buzzing in my ears, as I had anticipated. In short, the jet passenger needn't fear the bends either going up or coming down. He doesn't need to be put into a decompression chamber at the end of his

There is absolutely no vibration, as advertised, in a jet. But to be honest, there is more noise than I had expected. I thought the plane would be noiseless. Well. it is less noisy than a propeller plane, but there is a nice steady hum to keep you company in a jet.

To sum it all up, traveling in a jet is just like traveling in a prop plane, only you get there faster. Pan Am boasts that the jet will shrink the world by 45 per cent. But the pre-shrunk passenger arrives as is, all wool and a yard wide. (Copyright 1958, United Feature Syndicate Inc.)

The Gallup Poll

Forecasters See Demo Landslide

PRINCETON, N. J. - The Democratic tide which has been running strong for the last year and a half has not yet been stemmed by recent campaign efforts of Vice President Nixon and other GOP stalwarts.

As things stand today, the only way to describe the Congressional race is a 'Democratic landslide."

"If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican party or the Democratic party?" VOTE FOR CONGRESS NATIONWIDE

Democratic ...... 58 Republican The lack of headway that has marked

GOP efforts in this campaign is demonstrated in the following trend of voting sentiment since early September when the campaign "fireworks" first started: VOTE FOR CONGRESS

1958 CAMPAIGN Dem. Rep. Per Cent September ..... 56 Early October ..... 57 TODAY ..... 58

If the Democrats maintain their present lead through Election Day a week from Tuesday, their victory margin will approach the one that they rolled up in their big year of 1936-a year when Democratic candidates for Congress got 59 per cent of the vote, the highest Democratic Congressional margin in this century.

Just what effect President Eisenhower's last-minute campaigning will have on Republican chances remains to be seen. As any last-minute shifts of public opinion.

But all indications are that any effort by GOP leaders to win control of Congress at this stage of the game, no matter how valiant the effort, comes a year and half too late.

Since the spring of 1957, Gallup Poll surveys on the race for Congress have indicated a growing tide of Democratic strength

The first slackening off of the Democratic trend came early in the campaign proper this fall when the Republicans picked up slightly from the low point recorded last spring.

Since early September, however, GOP strength has slipped back to what it was in the spring.

Some of the most vital support that President Eisenhower had both in 1952 and in 1956, when he swept to landslide victories, came from the all-important Independent voters-a highly volatile voting group which either party must usually win to know victory in an election.

The extent to which the Independents do swing back and forth can be seen in the fact that only 35 per cent voted for the Democratic Presidential ticket in 1956 while 56 per cent of the Independents indicate they prefer the Democrats today. In the last off-year election four years ago, 54 per cent of Independent voterswho make up more than one-fifth of the total electorate - voted for Democratic Congressional candidates.

This moved one step nearer to-ward setting a bid date for the $600,000 project to be financed solely out of revenues from a long-term federal loan.

Olen Puckett and Bill French, of Puckett & French, architect-engineers, said that the plans would be taken at once to Fort Worth in an effort to gain formal clearance by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. As soon as this is obtained, a bid date may be fixed, they said.

Besides adopting a resolution approving the plans and specifications, the board also passed a resolution adopting the current prevailing wage rates for the project.

The FHHA has authorized a loan of $600,000 to HCJC, to be repaid out of revenues from the operation of the dormitories. Dr. W. A. Hunt, president, indicated that machinery would be put in motion at once for issuance of the revenue bonds for the project. Both the buildings will be fireproof construction of brick and tile, and concrete slab. The women's unit, to be located north of the Dora Roberts Student Union Building will accommodate 52 women. The dormitory to house 104 men students will be located east of the greenhouse.

Virtually all furniture for the dormitories will be built-in, and heating apparatus will serve units of four. Wardrobes and drawers are all built in, and all beds, when made up, can serve as settees. Women's units open to an inside hallway, while in the case of the men's dormitory the units open to an outside passage. Both struc-

Master Plan Meet Proposed Here Nov. 6

The State Department of Health has proposed a meeting here on Nov. 6 for discussion of federal cooperation in financing a master plan for Big Spring and Howard County, City Manager H. Whitney said today

The city, county, and school board asked Whitney to contact the Health Department about the federal participation in the project, and the state agency replied it could send a representative here on that date to discuss the

The federal government aids cities in such programs on a 50-50 basis. The program is open to cities with less than 25,000 population based on the 1950 census Under that plan, Big Spring is eligible for the federal aid.

Whitney said he received the let ter about the date on Monday, and he planned to try to contact representatives of the interested groups, plus the Chamber of Commerce, to see if the Nov. 6 date is acceptable. The state actually has no part in the program except to administer it: all funds come from the federal

Investigating Jailbreak Try

Howard County grand jurors this morning were investigating the jailbreak attempt made by three prisoners last Thursday.

As a result of the jailbreak, charges of robbery were filed against the trio involved in the episode. They are accused of stealing nearly $300 from George Bogard, county jailer, after they had beaten him into submission with crude blackjacks made of bars of hard soap tied in the toes of socks.

Fred Markham, Fred Kemper and C. F. Grothe were the three prisoners involved in the escape attempt. They were apprehended the grand canal to St. Marcus of in the courthouse within 30 minutes of the time they had made their patriarchate. break for freedom.

How far along the grand jury was with its work was not certain. A long list of witnesses remained to be interrogated.

Several of the witnesses waiting their turn to go before the grand jury were persons who were in the Texana bar on the night of Oct. 4 when three persons died in a gun battle. Two defendants, Joe Villa and Alfonso Rodriguez, are accused of murder with malice as a result of this fatal affray. It had been prediced that all of today and Wednesday will be required for the grand jury to complete its work on the 26 criminal matters Gil Jones, district attorney, had ready to lay before it.

By LELORD KORDEL Installment Twenty-One In planning your Eat-and-Grow-Younger program of high-protein foods. I have tried to keep in mind the only important nutritional ta-boos which have a basis in scientific fact: 1. Never combine high proteins (red meats, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk) with highstarches (rice, macaroni, spaghetti, white bread, rich desserts) at the same meal. And if, for some valid reason, you are forced to eat more high-starch meals than high-protein, then by all means take liberal amounts of concentrated B-vitamins, since the more starch you eat, the more your body is depleted of the B-complex factors that have the specific task of postponing the day when you must take your final farewell of

2. Avoid combining pure fats with high starches in the same meal. For instance bacon (almost 100 per cent fat, and of the wrong kind, too), fried potatoes, cream, white sugar, white bread and jelly menu in some homes, yet nothing could be worse nutrition.

It's absolutely impossible to plan a meal that doesn't include some carbohydrate with its proteins. or some fat with its carbohydrate. But the thing to keep in mind is this: A meal should be predominantly either protein or carbohydrate. When it is predominantly protein, it should include only unrefined raw sugar. This means, as one example, omitting a rice or macaroni dish and pie with your steak, substituting the carbohydrates to be found in a and a fruit or custard dessert. LOWLY POTATO MALIGNED This is a good place to clear the lowly white potato of the many unfounded dietary crimes charged against it. Potatoes, either baked or steamed in the skin, are a good food and do not come under the heading of the starches to be omitted from a protein meal. It's not the potato that adds the calories, but the grease it's fried in, or the gravies poured over it. There are several ways to stimulate your stomach cells into secreting digestive juices that are strongly acid. Pleasant ways, I might add-ways that have been largely overlooked in our eat-on-the-run meals STIMULATE DIGESTION Start your meals with fruit, a cup of vegetable soup, a bouillion or meat broth. Why? Because fresh fruits, together with meat extracts or the bouillon made by simmering meats and vegetables together, are rich in certain extractive substances.

When these foods reach the stomach before a meal, their excounts, what? tractive substances cause certain groups of cells in your lower stomglands in the upper section of the ordered his deportation. stomach. Here the secretin hormone excites the gastric glands inacid which is absolutely essential for thorough digestion of a protein meal. HOW TO CHEW This is a timely spot to bring up the subject of chewing. A lot of false information and erroneous advice has been handed out to the public for years on the subject of 'proper mastication of food." Once and for all. I would like to clear up these mistaken ideas, and present the facts. In brief, here is your "chewing chart": 1. All vegetables, fruits and sugar-starch foods should be chewed thoroughly. Carbohydrates are digested in an alkaline base, as I've explained before. The saliva n your mouth in an alkali, and is secreted by the salivary glands as the first step in the long and complicated digestion of carbohydrates. Therefore, if you bolt your carbohydrate foods, you cause them to miss this preliminary digestive processing, with the result that they reach the upper intestinal tract (where the processng is completed) inadequately prepared for the final steps. 2. All protein foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and cheese require little chewing for good digestion. No doubt this comes as a surprise to you-a complete reare a rather common breakfast versal of everything you've ever been taught about mastication. Meat has been conscientiously and laboriously ground for the person with poor, or no teeth; while eggs have heen boiled only enough to set the white for the person with a "weak digestion." All of which has been a serious digestive and nutritional mistake!

CITRUS JUICE POOR This is a good time to pass on those natural starches found in to you a bit of wisdom regardvegetables, fruits, milk and honey ing whole fruit versus fruit juice. I deplore the custom of serving squeezed citrus juices instead of the whole fruit. All fruits (vegetables, too) are carbohydrates. That means their digestion begins green salad, a cooked vegetable in the mouth. With that fact in mind, will someone please tell me how you can chew a glass of orange juice? The answer, of course is that you can't. The juice, with its naturally high sugar content, passes immediately through the mouth and stomach, reaching the upper intestine without any pre-digestion whatsoever. Colitis patients have been advised for years to "eat only whole fruits and vegetables." The fermentation gases from incompletely digested fruit and vegetable juices are simply that much added torture to the already irritated intestinal tract of a colitis patient.

Canned, frozen or home-squeezed orange juice may be a very "convenient" way of introducing fruit into the breakfast menu, but it's most assuredly not a nutritionally correct way of introducing an orange into your digestive tract.

SERVE SMALLER MEALS A final word on "home" digestive aids: The kindest thing you can do for your stomach is not to overload it.

Moreover, if food gives you a real taste thrill, you actually eat less, are better nourished and avoid the dangers of overeating. But when food is not tasty, your unsatisfied sense of taste drives you on to eat more than you should of highly flavored, starchy desserts and sweets in an effort to satisfy a nagging hunger. Such craving for more and more food after you've already eaten is really a taste-hunger rather than an actual emptiness of the stomach. #### Pete Runnels Wins Award For Comeback-Of-Year

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Pistol Pete Runnels of the Boston Red Sox, who moved up from a .230 batting average to shoot a near bull's-eye for the batting title, made the American League Comeback-ofthe-Year in 1958.

This was the majority opinion of the 103 members of the Baseball Writers' Assn. of America who participated in the annual Associated Press poll.

Runnels collected 61 votes. Bob Cerv of Kansas City was next with 20, followed by Cal McLish of Cleveland with 9, Arnie Portocarrero of Baltimore 8, Yogi Berra of New York 2 and Jack Harshman and Hoyt Wilhelm of Baltimore and Mickey Vernon of Cleveand, 1 each.

Runnels, 30, with a .322 batting mark, finished second to teammate Ted Williams in a torrid race that was not decided until the final day. Williams wound up

In 134 games with Washington in 1957, Runnels collected only 109 hits and had his poorest of seven years in the majors. He was traded to Boston last Jan. 23 for Albie Pearson and Norm Zauchin. Cerv batted .305 with 38 homers and 104 runs batted in the past season. His hefty hitting kept the Athletics in the first division over the initial half of the season. In county records missing. Once, he said, he located 600 Duval County checks but they disappeared from the vault of the county auditor one A former accountant for Part testified earlier he once advised his client that he wouldn't have to report $662,000 received from Duval County if it was a loan. W. M. Benson, the accountant added he made that recommenda tion on information from Parr that the money was in the form of loans. Benson said he once asked Parr if the County Commission had approved the loan. Parr told him it had not but that he believed he could get such approval, Benson continued

The government claims the money Parr received wasn't a loan. He maintains it was. Parr claimed at the time he filed for voluntary bankruptcy in 1957 that his assets were $532,106, not including exempt property valued at $74,569. Liabilities were listed at $1,925,093, including a contested government income tax claim of $600,000. Since then the government increased its claim to $1,300,-

Thompson Urges Immediate Action To Curb Imports

AUSTIN (AP)-Immediate achompson, veteran member of the Texas Railroad Commission. Thompson said:

"Any plan adopted must operate to reduce imports of petroleum, unfinished gasoline and all petroleum products.

'The entire area of the United States must be included in the restrictive plan. The plan must be made effective at once-before Nov. 10—because oil and products imported into the United States continue to mount and absorb more of our domestic market de-

"This restricts domestic explonation and development, and continues to make the United States constantly more and more dependent on foreign oil, Foreign oil cannot be counted as available in case of war.

"The Congress has given ample authority to check and control these oil imports to a point where a healthy domestic oil industry can thrive and build up our oil reserves. The opposite is happening

"It takes years to hunt out likely prospects for oil and to test them. Much time has been lost in the United States while imports of oil and products have mounted. Drilling rigs are stacked and idle to the extent of 20 per cent.'

No Survivors In Crash Of Bomber

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - No survivors were found in the wreckage of a twin-engine bomber which crashed Friday night in the mountains northeast of here. Bodies of a man and a woman killed in another air crash were recovered

A ground party from Nellis AFB arrived at the wreckage last night and reported all four airmen aboard the B25 apparently died in

The plane slammed into the side of a steep cliff about 200 feet from the top of a peak in the Sheep Mountain Range during a heavy Bodies of Airman Charles Jacobs, Shamrock, Tex:, and Mrs. Dorothy Bailey, Las Vegas, mother of five, were taken from wreckage of a single-engine private plane in the foothills of Mount Charleston, six miles west of here. The plane crashed Saturday. Jacobs, stationed at Nellis, had rented it at a local airport for a sight-
