Appearing to stretch to the horizon are these bales of cotton stacked on the emergency yard of the Big Spring Compress Co. near the City Cemetery in northeast Big Spring. Jack Irons, compress manager, estimated there are 10,000 bales on the overflow yard. It will be there only briefly, however. The cotton will be processed at the compress and be sent on its way to the mills as rapidly as possible. The 10,000 bales represent about a fourth of Howard County's 1958 cotton crop.

U. S. TO FIRE BIG 'MOONS'

STARS ROUTED

Brush Fire Burns Hollywood Colony

MALIBU BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A wind-lashed fire has cut an eight-mile-wide swath from the mountains to the sea here but a massed battery of pumps, virtually one to a house, today checked a threat to the famed film colony.

Elsewhere, flames 100 feet high roared on unchecked. The blaze, driven by 50 m.p.h. winds, has destroyed an estimated 36 homes. Hundreds of residents have fled the area.

The fire, perhaps set by an arsonist, burst out Tuesday on the brush and oak-studded inland slopes of the Santa Monica Mountains. The winds quickly whipped it over the crest of the hills and down canyons to the sea.

The Malibu Beach film colony is on the ocean side of the highway. The flames jumped across the highway but the intensive efforts of firemen and their pumps here checked the threat.

Ford evacuated his flame-threatened ranch, trucking out several head of prize cattle with him. The famed film colony of Malibu Beach lay only a mile from the leaping flames and residents stood by through the night playing water on their homes. One of them was actor Jackie Coogan, who canceled a television appearance Tuesday night to watch over his house.

Fire officials said the blaze may be worse than the mammoth Malibu fire two years ago that burned for five days, blackening 42,000 acres and destroying 99 homes. Some of the same ground is being burned over now, but most of the fire is in the hills running down to the picturesque seashore about 20 miles from Los Angeles.

Eight firemen were burned when a sudden wind shift sent the blaze roaring back at them. They fought through to safety but were hospitalized with first-degree burns on their faces and hands. Evacuation centers were set up in three schools along the ocean side of the hills. More than 150 persons were bedded down in them.

About 1,000 head of cattle were brought out of the threatened areas and moved to safer pastures. Less fortunate were the deer that live in the hills. Their burned bodies littered roads in the area.

"This thing has gone crazy," said County Fire Chief Keith Klingler, who is directing more than 1,000 men on the fire lines.

Property on ranches owned by actors Ronald Reagan and Bob Hope was damaged. Actor Glen Ford was married on Feb. 24, 1958. Jones quoted Haggard as saying that on Tuesday morning Mrs. Haggard left the house to go to the post office about 9:30 a.m.

The child, according to the statement, began to cry. Haggard said he tried to make it stop crying and said he may have squeezed it. Later he left the house and went to Stanton and then to his father's place in Martin County.

The mother returned and became alarmed at the child's appearance. She took it to the hospital where it died. Jones and Burns pointed out that in view of the circumstances, a murder with malice charge could not be sustained and that the negligent homicide in the second degree was the logical complaint to file in the case. It is lodged in county court.

BOWLERS AID CHEER FUND

Members of the Ladies' Classic Bowling League showed they were good sports Tuesday night. All eight teams of the League "chipped in" for the Christmas Cheer Fund, and as a result there's a new donation of $9.50 to help destitute families have a brighter Christmas.

There were three other gifts today. But many, many more people must help, if the Christmas program reaches all who are in need. Please don't delay this holiday gesture. Just make your check to CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND, and mail it to The Herald for grateful acknowledgment.

The Fund today: Mrs. A. A. Marchant 25.00, Randall Polk 5.00, Anonymous 10.00, Ladies Classic Bowling League 9.50, Acknowledged 25.00, TOTAL $74.50

4,800 Children See Santa Here

Approximately 4,800 children 10 years of age and under visited Santa Claus during his all-day stand here Tuesday.

Don Richardson, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Christmas Activities Committee, said 4,800 packages of candy were distributed by Santa. Few, if any, youngsters received more than one package each.

Santa probably put in one of the hardest days he'll face between now and Christmas Eve. Long lines of children waited before his sleigh on the courthouse square throughout the day.

On the nominating panel are Clyde McMahon, chairman, R. H. Weaver, Dan Krause, Obie Bristow, Ed Fisher, Larson Lloyd, Ruth Apple, John Davis, Vic Alexander, Grover Cunningham Jr., Roy Cornelison, Dr. R. B. G. Cowper, John Currie, Roy Bruce and Tommy South.

1,300-Pound Device Set For Firing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States will begin firing a series of big satellites from the new Vandenberg Base in California in the next few weeks. Some of them will carry mice and monkeys.

The Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency announced today that the "Project Discoverer" program will try to put up a 1,300-pound device in its first launching attempt "late this year or early next year."

At least a dozen satellite launchings will be attempted, as fast as one a month. Roy Johnson, ARPA director, told newsmen.

Johnson also said that an attempt will be made next year to recover a capsule from a satellite, bringing it back through the atmosphere.

Johnson said mice will be used and, "We may, in one, use a primate."

He said that the program, for the present, does not include sending up a man.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army invented its huge moon rocket—June 11—Tuesday when the service tower was rolled back as part of the preparations for a launching expected within a week.

The powerful rocket, very similar in appearance to the Jupiter C that fired three Explorer satellites into orbit, will be used for the Army's first attempt to probe far into outer space.

When the tower was rolled away the base of the Army's highly touted Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile was seen. The top of the rocket was covered, however.

For the moon shot, the Jupiter will be used as a first-stage booster rocket in place of the smaller Redstone missile which gave the big lift to the Jupiter-C satellite vehicle.

The Army moon missile is expected to be a four-stage rocket using clusters of small, solid fuel Sergeant rockets in the upper stages. Its job will be to push a 30-pound satellite payload perhaps farther into space than any previous man-made object.

Its name will be June II. The first June was a Jupiter test vehicle fired more than a year ago in one of the early nose cone re-entry experiments with the 1,500-mile ballistic missile.

The rocket will be aimed toward the vicinity of the moon, but Dr. Werner von Braun, Army missile research chief, said recently the chances of hitting the moon or orbiting around it are slim.

Unlike the three Air Force lunar probes, June II will not have the necessary guidance in the upper stages to pick out so fine a target. If all goes well, however, the Army moon rocket might go beyond the moon and far out into space. One of its chief experiments will be to investigate the intense radiation field that rings the earth.

CHICAGO MOURNS

Investigators Still Plagued By Puzzle Of Blaze's Cause

CHICAGO (AP)—While anguished parents prepared to bury their 47 children who died in Chicago's worst school fire, the puzzling cause of the fire still plagued investigators.

That it started in the base of a stairwell in the northeast corner of the brick Our Lady of Angels School was generally agreed upon. The why and the how were theories.

One police arson expert theorized a cigarette flipped carelessly into a pile of trash, a wastebasket or papers may have sparked the blaze. A schoolboy sneaking a smoke was one possibility, he said.

Flames might have smoldered for an hour, said Sgt. Drew Brown, and then whooshed up the staircase with horrifying speed. He emphasized it only was theory.

Arson was discounted, but not ruled out. "We always suspect arson where there is a loss of life and we cannot establish the cause of the fire," Fire Commissioner Robert J. Quinn said.

Three nuns died in the fire along with the children. Three child victims, all girls, still lay unidentified in the Cook County Morgue.

proval for such a service and burial Friday. Families were told they can make separate funeral and burial arrangements if they wish.

While the causes of the blaze remained unknown, some fire experts came forth with explanations for the terrific speed of the blaze. So fast did it spread that dozens of children were trapped and killed in their classrooms.

Fire Commissioner Quinn said, "When a fire gets going it moves faster than you can run." In Boston, the National Fire Protection Assn., said open doors appeared to be the major cause of death. Association engineers reported heavy wooden doors on the second floor were open, permitting fire and hot gases to spread quickly.

First floor doors were closed, the investigators were quoted as saying, protecting classrooms there. Some 1,300 students were in the U-shaped building when the fire broke out.

FUND GROWS In other developments: A fund established by Mayor Richard Daley to aid financially the families of the injured and the dead reached $23,100. Two hundred dollars was collected in Jackson, Miss.

School officials in Chicago and other cities started checks on rules and regulations in school buildings hoping to eliminate any faults or weaknesses which might result in similar fires. Roman Catholic officials announced these plans for extraordinary final rites: Archbishop Albert Gregory Meyer will sing a Solemn Pontifical High Mass for the young victims in the Northwest Armory.

Airmen Hurt In Auto Collision

Two airmen remained in the Webb AFB Hospital today with slight injuries sustained in an accident on the east side of Big Spring Tuesday night.

In the hospital are A.S.C. Tommy L. Powell and A.S.C. Ronald E. Garner, both of 3561st Flight Line Maintenance. Powell had scratches and bruises while Garner was suffering from cuts.

The two were in a 1949 Ford which hit a car parked at 3305 Eleventh, the police said. The parked car, a 1953 Ford, belonged to Albert B. Stewart III, 1308 Pickens. Police officers said the two airmen were driving west on Eleventh at the time of the accident. Stewart's car was parked on the north side of the street. Both cars were severely damaged.

Negligence Alleged In Death Of Baby

An 18-year-old Howard County Junior College student has been charged with negligent homicide, second degree, in the death on Tuesday of his 9-month-old daughter, Wayne Burns, county attorney, said today.

Accused of squeezing the child while angered at it for crying and by so doing causing abdominal injuries which precipitated massive bleeding and death is Kenneth Haggard, 706 E. 13th St. Gil Jones, district attorney, said that Haggard had made a statement to Bobby West, investigator in the case.

The dead child is Tammy Diane. She was the daughter of Haggard and his 15-year-old wife, Wynona Sue Moore Haggard. The alleged injury occurred at 10 a.m. Tuesday. The child died at 1:30 p.m. at the Cowper Hospital and Clinic where the young mother had taken it shortly before noon.

An autopsy was performed and the cause of death was ascertained to have been an injury to the lower intestines which resulted in bleeding. Haggard, whose home is in Martin County, told Jones that he had been attending H.C.J.C. and working nights at the Big Spring State Hospital. He said he had recently quit the night job. He related that he and his wife

Murder Defendant Asks Venue Change

Ralph Leland Gilbert, scheduled to go on trial Monday for murder with malice, filed a motion for a change of venue in 118th District Court this morning.

Judge Charlie Sullivan said the motion would be heard at 10 a.m. Thursday. Gilbert, in his petition, alleges that prejudice exists to such an extent that a fair and impartial trial cannot be provided for him in Howard County. He attached an affidavit signed by two Howard County citizens in which they concur with his opinion. They assert that in their view a fair and impartial trial is not possible for the young San Angelo ranchhand.

The affidavit is signed by E. A. Williams, an engineer for the Texas and Pacific railroad, and Ralph Fox, who operates a pawn shop and who also is a fireman for the T&P. Gilbert is charged with murder with malice in the slaying last July 17 of Clayton Stewart, 87-year-old Forsan rancher. A special venire of 200 jurors has been notified to report to court on Monday morning for the trial. Gil Jones, district attorney, informed the court he would be ready to protest the venue motion at 10 a.m. Thursday. R. H. Weaver and Harvey Hoosier Jr., court-appointed defense lawyers, were in San Angelo today interviewing witnesses in the case but told the court they would be on hand to press their request that the case be sent to some other county for trial. Gilbert is in the county jail where he has been held since his arrest the day after Stewart was slain.

Convict Invades Home, Stays For Dinner (And 42 Days)

PARSONS, Kan. (AP)—"You just don't take chances with six kids depending on you," said Wilbur March. The 41-year-old Parsons laborer explained why he kept silent while an escaped convict shared his home as an unwelcome guest for 42 days.

Acting on a tip from Mrs. March police arrested Richard Lee Algaier, 28, a St. Louis robber who escaped Oct. 18 from the Missouri Penitentiary. Algaier was picked up while sipping beer in a Parsons tavern. He was unarmed and didn't resist. Police also charged March with harboring a criminal after he signed a statement saying Algaier made no direct threats to him. But the charge was dropped. March said Algaier did threaten him. "He told me that if he got picked up he would know what had happened and he had lots of friends," said March, an employee of a mausoleum firm. Why did he sign the statement? "There was just too many officers around asking questions and I didn't know what else to do." March and his wife sat in their drab little home beside the Katy Railroad tracks and told a newsmen: Algaier, who said he walked the 200-odd miles between the prison and Parsons, showed up at the March home Oct. 22, four days after he escaped.

"We first took him in because he was sick and hungry," said Mrs. March, prematurely gray at 33. "We have always helped people like that." A week later, Algaier told them he was a fugitive. "From then on he always had one of us with him," she said, weeping as she recalled the experience. "When my husband went to work (he didn't miss a day) Algaier was home with me and the children. If he went out he always had one of us with him." Mrs. March said Algaier once threatened to kill her husband. But he wasn't trying to frighten them into silence, she said. "He just didn't like Wilbur." Algaier, however, was a likable fellow, and there wasn't any trouble between the fugitive and her husband. She said Algaier often helped her with the children, ranging in age from 6 months to 12 years. Algaier decided to leave Parsons Monday night. He borrowed March's car and $15. A few miles out of town, the car plunged into a ditch. Back to Parsons and the March home came Algaier. That was enough for Mrs. March. When Algaier stepped out for a beer, she called police. Algaier will be returned to Missouri, where he still has two years to go on a three-year sentence for a St. Louis robbery.

Interviewed in jail, he said the Marches treated him well. He denied that he threatened them, saying: "They were just trying to help somebody out."

Vinsons Recall Humorous Preface To Their Wedding Fifty Years Ago

By HELEN HURT
The bride was present, the Baptist minister was in his place, and the wedding guests were gathered for the ceremony. But the bridegroom was missing.
After a suspenseful pause, however, in the last-minute confusion, which is customary at all weddings, he had forgotten to comb his hair. So he had dashed into the bride's brother's room to take care of this tontorial task.
At least, that is what Mrs. Samuel Duncan Vinson recalls about her wedding day Dec. 6, 1908. The pledge of vows took place before the Rev. Reid Rector on the porch of her parents' home near Travis in Falls County. The ceremony was set for high noon to accommodate the pastor, who conducted the morning worship service at the regular hour. A turkey dinner was served to members of the immediate family and a few friends afterward.
Vinson's bride, the former Addie Bozeman, was radiant in an ankle-length dress which she had made of cream-colored challis. Its skirt boasted 15 gores, and the trim was double ruching braid. The ceremony was the climax to a friendship which had blossomed after young Vinson, raised in a neighboring community, had met her through her brother. The newlyweds' first home was a farm six miles from her home, near Lott; there they remained until 1921.
The couple will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday with open house from 2 to 4:30 p.m. at their home in the South Haven Addition. It is the house to which they moved April 7, 1953, from Winters, where they had resided 32 years.
All their friends are invited to the anniversary affair, hosts for which will be the Vinsons' children: Herbert Vinson, Big Spring; Robert Vinson and Edgar Vinson of Hereford; and Floyd Vinson of Lovington, N. M., formerly of Big Spring. Another son, George Vinson of Milwaukee, Wis., will be unable to come.
Farming has been Vinson's occupational interest. A stroke forced his retirement 10 years ago, however, and eventually necessitated the move to Big Spring. Mrs. Vinson "put her foot down" on living in town, though, and they decided on the little green home south of town; then, it was about the only house in the area but there are plenty of neighbors now. Even so, the Vinsons have enough room to keep chickens, tend a garden, and grow flowers.

GRANDCHILDREN
Whereas the couple has five children, all boys, they have five grandchildren, all girls. Only one of them lives in Big Spring. There are no great-grandchildren.
Pete, the parakeet, is company for them, even though he is no talker. Television is a boon to them, and Mrs. Vinson does a lot of crocheting. She belongs to the Order of Eastern Star and the Rebekah Lodge in Winters. They are members of the Hillcrest Baptist Church.
Fifty years of wedded bliss, it has been, but it doesn't seem nearly that long to either Mr. or Mrs. Vinson, they say.

Special Programs Point To Foreign Missions

Mabe, Mrs. W. B. Jackson and Mrs. H. M. Jarratt gave the parts, which culminated in a prayer by Mrs. Otto Couch.
As the opening exercise in the observance, the WMS met Monday morning to study characteristics of the world's great religions. Mrs.

1955 Hyperion Program Made Of Dances, Prayers

A program of Christmas dances was combined with the reading of prayers by famous men for the meeting of the 1955 Hyperion Club Tuesday afternoon.

Horsepower In Several 1959 Cars Reduced

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Writer
DETROIT (AP)—Several auto makers have reduced horsepower ratings in 1959 model cars; practically all the new models are lower; a few are longer and several are wider than last year's models.

These are highlights of an exhaustive report on 1959 car engineering developments in the December issue of the Society of Automotive Engineers Journal. The report says the trend toward wider cars already has led to significant changes in suspensions and brakes. It may also go a long way toward a solution to the problem of improved underhood ventilation and engine accessibility, the study says.

Other findings include: More than a dozen of today's accessories are pushbutton actuated; four out of five new cars have automatic transmissions; more than 40 per cent have power steering; about one-third have power brakes; a large percentage have dual exhausts and air conditioning is climbing rapidly as an accessory. The report says changes in frame construction had to be made to accommodate today's lower cars. It details engineering changes in virtually every American-made automobile. Of car engines the study says many power plants have been tailored to bring peak performance within the normal driving range. It adds:

"Reduced compression ratios permit the use of lower priced, standard fuels. Refinements for 1959 include improved carburetion, reduced noise level, weight reduction and greater economy."

Alcorta Is Given A 30-Year Term

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Alvaro Alcorta of San Antonio, who admitted slaying his wife, was sentenced to serve 2 to 30 years in prison yesterday after he pleaded guilty.

Alcorta, previously convicted and sentenced to death, was saved from the electric chair by a U.S. Supreme Court finding that a witness had perjured himself. Five jurors had been selected before Alcorta changed his plea from innocent to guilty yesterday. The other seven jurors were chosen quickly.

Dist. Atty. Hubert Green of San Antonio said he felt extenuating circumstances made 30 years a just sentence. The trial was moved here from Bexar County on a change of venue.

Pardon Asked For O. Henry

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—President Eisenhower has been asked to write a happy ending to the life story of author O. Henry, who served a prison term for embezzlement.

The Texas Heritage Foundation appealed to the President Tuesday to grant a full pardon for the famed short story writer. O. Henry, whose real name was William Sydney Porter, served a five-year sentence after being convicted 60 years ago of embezzling $854.08 from an Austin bank. He died in 1910 at the age of 48.

Paul Wakefield, foundation president, said in a telegram to Eisenhower: "While he stands convicted under the records of federal court 60 years ago, there exists today abundant proof of his innocence and of his conviction purely on circumstantial evidence."

The author's widow, Mrs. Sara Coleman Porter, lives at Weaver-ville, N.C.

Postal Receipts $27,694 Ahead For 11 Months

Postal receipts for Big Spring for the year are $27,694.75 ahead of last year for the first 11 months, E. C. Boatler, postmaster, said.

November receipts this year totaled $24,516.88 as compared with $19,878.16 for the month in 1957. Some of the increase, Boatler pointed out has to be attributed to the increase in postal rates which were put in force earlier this year. However, this increase would not account for all of the gain.

Total receipts through Nov. 30, for the post office stood at $269,386.04. For the same date in 1957, the total was $241,691.29.

Boatler anticipates that December will be one of the biggest months the post office has ever enjoyed. Christmas mail is expected to reach a high mark. In addition, the increase in postal rates will make the income approximately 25 per cent above normal. He said that there is a marked evidence of accelerated mail from the Christmas season already showing in the office.

Iron Horse Gives Way To Buffalo

Firemen Still Need Toys For Christmas Distribution
The telephone drive for toys has been successful but the fire department still is in need of more toys. The fire chief said today.

Fire Chief H. V. Crocker said that he had collected between 10 and 15 bicycles this morning, but the firemen need many more. The toys are repaired, repainted, and then distributed to needy persons at Christmas. The department this year is collecting the toys if anyone will call AM 4-6083.

The toys can still be dropped off at any of the four fire stations at any Shell Service Station, Crocker said.

Although all types of toys are welcomed, the chief said that bicycles, tricycles, and wagons are needed the most. He said that the department had less than half as many bicycles as it would like to have to give away two weeks before Christmas.

The time is growing shorter, the chief said, in which the men must repair and repaint all the toys. Thus he urged citizens who plan to give toys to call immediately or bring them by the fire stations or Shell service stations.

The number to call for delivery is AM 4-6083, the chief emphasized.

Letter To The Editor
Community Lauded For Santa Claus Program
Dear Editor:
As one of hundreds of mothers whom I believe to feel as I do, I want to express my appreciation for the splendid program arranged for our children Tuesday.

First of all, the Chamber of Commerce and its committees, with support of the merchants, had made wonderful plans for Santa Claus to visit and greet our children.

Then the city policemen and the men from Webb AFB, as well as the school and Webb bus drivers, were marvelous.

I had worried some about whether mothers might not need to be on hand to watch out for their children in view of such large numbers. When I got there and saw how perfectly the police and the Webb volunteers were watching out for the children, I just stood back, relaxed and was thankful.

At every point those in charge were guarding against the possibility that any child could get hurt or lost. There were even police escorts for the buses to and from school.

I appreciate it because our businessmen, the Chamber of Commerce, the police, Webb AFB personnel and others went out of their way to do something for our children.

Sincerely,
MRS. J. R. PORTER

Policeman, Deputy Sheriff To Work On Night Patrol
C. L. Rogers, chief of police, has assigned a police officer from his force to ride with Bob Broughton, night deputy sheriff, in order that Miller Harris, sheriff, might bring Tommy Cole, the regular night deputy, into his office for day time duty.

Harris said that a heavy press of work on his office has overloaded the regular day staff and that Cole is needed to help with this routine.

Harris said that Rogers has agreed to assign a police officer to ride as a companion to Broughton on his night tours while Cole is employed on day time duties.

He expressed his appreciation to Rogers and the police department and pointed out that there was another example of the "cooperative spirit which prevails between the county and city law enforcement agencies."

Harris said that it was uncertain how long Cole would be on the day time assignment.

Tears And Pain

Escaped Killer Gives Up Meekly

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Tex. (AP)—An escaped Georgia killer who traded shots with a Texas trooper ended his foray across six Southern states in meek surrender last night.

Spence Edwards, 32, gave up in chill darkness as coyotes howled and a brush-beating posse closed around him.

Ten hours earlier he snapped two shots without warning at State Highway Patrolman Allan Kempf, 23, and fled as the officer peppered bullets around him.

The hunt by quickly mobilized peace officers followed near here in the Rio Grande Valley.

Sheriff Tom Brady said Edwards admitted his identity after first proffering papers of Hubert Turner of Dalton, Ga., whom he was accused of robbing after a Nov. 25 break from a Georgia prison work camp.

The sheriff held Edwards on a complaint charging assault with intent to kill Kempf. He also charged the prisoner with stealing two cars in this vicinity.

Brady said the slender, dark-haired fugitive admitted taking a car and $200 from Turner.

Kempf gave this account of his brief gun battle with the fugitive: He halted a car 5 miles north of here about midday for a routine check because it bore Mississippi license plates. After examining the driver's license, Kempf asked him to open the car trunk.

"It was a surprise to me when he came up with a .22 pistol and started shooting from about two feet away," the patrolman said. "The motorist fired twice, jumped into his car and fled as Kempf got off four bullets from his .38 service revolver."

"He told us later that the shots knocked glass down on his head but none hit him," Kempf related. "The coyotes were howling and I think he was scared," Kempf said. Edwards surrendered to August Leonard, a State Game Commission employe, as other officers closed in.

Highway patrolmen had found the car he was driving on the highway where the fugitive abandoned it and fled into heavy brush.

Nearly 30 peace officers joined to form the posse. It drew sheriff's deputies from three counties along with highway patrolmen and local police. A Border Patrol plane joined in the manhunt until darkness forced a halt.

The prisoner was taken to the county jail here.

Edwards, listed by the FBI as "extremely dangerous," was serving a life term for killing a Georgia Bureau of Investigation agent 11 years ago.

The FBI distributed 100,000 wanted posters in the effort to capture him. He had been believed en route to Murfreesboro, Tenn., where his brother Harry has been charged with killing his father-in-law.

After his escape from a North Georgia work gang, Edwards commandeered a car driven by Turner. A Tennessee state-trooper halted the car for a routine check a short time later.

The trooper noticed Turner was bleeding and ordered the two men into his patrol car. But Edwards pulled a gun and then handcuffed the trooper, Tom Moore, and Turner to a tree near Smithville, Tenn.

The desperado next forced three teen-agers to drive him to Birmingham, Ala. They told police that after their release they saw Edwards flag a passing car and force the driver to pick him up.

However, there has been no report of a kidnaping. Police said he apparently was met by prearrangement.

The teen-agers were released Wednesday night. Until his capture, there had been no further trace of him.

Police Probe Model's Death

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police are looking for the boy friend of a blonde, 19-year-old model whose body was apparently thrown off a steep mountain road.

The girl, Charlotte Trooper, was apparently stabbed before she was pushed off a precipice in the San Gabriel Mountains north of Los Angeles.

Her body was found Tuesday by a motorist on a ledge below a scenic parking area along the mountain highway.

She had been reported missing when she failed to show up at her modeling job at a photo studio Tuesday morning. Her employer Emmett Hubbarth went to her apartment and notified police when he found she wasn't there.

Hubbarth told the officers Miss Trooper had been having "difficulties" with a boy friend. Investigators learned that the boy friend had been at the apartment Monday night.

The girl's body was fully clothed except for shoes and stockings. One shoe was found along the road 50 feet from the parking area.

She had been stabbed in the chest and there were cuts on her hand—as if she had tried to ward off a knife blow, the police said.

Cliburn Admits A Liking For R&R At Hometown Fete

By MARSHALL COMERER KILGORE, Tex. (AP)—"Our product is rather different," pianist Van Cliburn grinned and said after somebody suggested he is a rival of rock 'n' roll singer Elvis Presley.

Cliburn said he isn't very good at rock 'n' roll but has "invested many nickels in juke boxes to listen to it."

This confession came after he received a long and loud ovation from an audience of children for his performance of the long Rachmaninov Third Piano Concerto yesterday.

Cliburn, now 24, said he inaugurated his concerts for children because he thought of himself as a boy.

"I wanted to play for my own contemporaries and convince them that my interpretation of classical music is good, too," he said.

Cliburn played two concerts, was acclaimed by speaker after speaker and honored by all and sundry at "Van Cliburn Day in Texas."

The lanky pianist was toasted in his home town here the first time formally since he won the Tchaikovsky piano competition in Moscow last April and became perhaps the most famous young musician of two continents.

Gov. Price Daniel, the main speaker, said:

"In this day and time when the eyes of the world are usually on material achievements, it is heartening to know that mankind can still be impressed by the cultural accomplishment of a young man who has devoted his life to making other people happy through great music."

Texas Has Many On Old Folks List

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas is among the top states with the highest per cent of old folks on public assistance lists, the Texas Public Welfare Department reported yesterday.

However, the state's payments to the needy aged, blind, handicapped and dependent children are below the national average, the report added.

DEAR ABBY

TALKING TURKEY!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas my husband asked me if I'd fix Christmas dinner for his family. His family includes a mother, his sister and her husband, two brothers and their wives and four teen-aged children. We asked them five weeks ahead of time, I started dinner at 7:30 a.m. Christmas Day and invited them to come at twelve o'clock noon. They showed up at 11:30 a.m. and his sister rushed me something terrible. My bread wasn't even out of the oven, but she insisted I serve dinner because everyone was starved. We sat down at twelve sharp, and by 12:45 everyone was through and out of the house. I was hurt, but didn't say anything. My husband said, "Let's go for a ride," so we drove around and stopped in to say hello to his brother's "in-laws" (the one who was at our house) and when we walked in at 2:00 p.m. there were all MY dinner guests eating another Christmas dinner! I told my husband right there that I would never fix them another. Was I wrong?

HURT

DEAR HURT: You were right! They deserve to eat crow. With humble pie for dessert.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know what some people have against HILLBILLIES? Just because they marry young is no reason for others to make fun of them. Why is it that you rarely hear of HILLBILLIES getting divorced?

FOR HILLBILLIES

DEAR FOR: Maybe it is because the kinfolk are such straight shooters.

DEAR ABBY: I was married too young and had a baby. The marriage didn't work out, so I got a divorce. I was looked down on because I was a divorcee, so I moved out of the State, and told everyone my husband was killed in the war. I know it was wrong, but I got tired of fighting off the men who thought a divorcee had nothing to lose. I'm going with a man who wants to marry me, but I am afraid if I tell him the truth he won't marry me. What should I do?

A DIVORCEE

DEAR DIVORCEE: Skeletons in the closet can become bones of contention. Tell him the truth.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown man of 33 and have a good job selling. I never write letters because I don't know how to spell, but no one would ever know it by talking to me because I have a good vocabulary (or maybe you'd call it a "gift of gab.") Here is my problem. I have honestly tried to look up words in the dictionary, but if you can't spell a word, how can you find it in the dictionary, and if you CAN spell it, why look it up? I hope this question won't be regarded as too stupid to answer.

POOR SPELLER

DEAR POOR: No question asked in sincerity is too "stupid" to answer. Look up the word the way you THINK it is spelled... and keep looking. If you still can't find it, look up a synonym (a word that means the same thing) and you can find it there. If you strike out, ask somebody.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHIRLEY: There is not much to SEE in a small town—but what you HEAR makes up for it. Stay where you are.

Bus Veers Off Highway, 11 Hurt

AURORA, Ore. (AP)—A Greyhound bus veered off a highway and ran into a power pole Tuesday night near this western Oregon town.

State police said 11 persons were injured. They were taken to Oregon City and Portland hospitals. None of them appeared seriously hurt, police said.

Police said the bus failed to negotiate a turn on Highway 99E, hit the pole and then came to rest against an embankment.

The bus was en route north to Portland.

Giles Says Past Is Past, Can't Be Changed

AUSTIN (AP)—J. Bascom Giles, former state land commissioner for 16 years and once considered a top prospect for governor, feels the "past is past and nothing can be changed," his son said yesterday.

"He's looking forward to getting out and returning to his family," said Rogan Giles, Austin lawyer.

The elder Giles will pass Saturday through the bright brass gates of the state prison at Huntsville, where he will have served 22 months and 22 days as the penitentiary's most publicized prisoner.

"Mother will go down Saturday and they'll leave together on a trip," the son said. "I don't think that they even know where they're going, but they'll be home for Christmas."

Bascom Giles, 58, went to prison, Jan. 16, 1957, to serve a six-year prison sentence on convictions for consenting to accept bribes ranging from $8,000 to $36,000 and being an accomplice to theft of $6,800. He has earned prison time for good behavior and by donating blood.

His prison sentences ran concurrently, mainly because Giles repaid the state money he allegedly took from the veterans' land program he administered.

The veterans' land scandals which rocked the state with legislative committee investigations saw about 20 others indicted from South to West Texas. Only Giles and T. J. McLarty of Cuero have been tried, convicted and sent to prison.

"When Dad comes out he will not be getting clemency or a pardon," Rogan said. "He has served every minute of the time assessed him by the court."

"He has served every minute," Rogan said. "He was eligible for release on parole Jan. 10, but he wasn't and hasn't been given any clemency."

He said the prison officials marked Giles as a model prisoner whose record was exemplary.

"The prison officials should be publicly commended for the impartial and fair manner and treatment they have given Dad," said Rogan.

Rogan said his father was in good health and would return to Austin to look after his personal affairs. Giles developed housing areas in Austin. Rogan said his father also plans to give special attention to a farm in Travis County which has been in the family for more than 100 years.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles denied Giles an early release because of "the nature of the offenses in the betrayal of the public trust by a high public official."

Giles had the necessary time for a controlled release (parole)

but the board said his case could not be considered favorable in light of a requirement that the community must be willing to accept a prisoner back into its society.

A Devotional For Today

I say unto you, Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist. (Luke 7:28.)

PRAYER: Dear Father, when we see the success of others remove from us all traces of envy and jealousy. May we be willing to decrease in order that Thy name may be praised and Thy will done. In the spirit of Christ we pray. Amen.

Take A Look At The Chairmen

A list of the 19 men who really run Congress—by heading committees that act on major legislative bills—is presented this week by U. S. News & World Report.

Noting that the country has got the impression that the new Congress will be dominated by "spendthrifts" and "liberals" who are "intent upon extreme courses of action," the magazine observes drily that the newcomers "will find that there really is not too much that they can do."

The reason? Power resides with the chairmen of the key committees that get major bills—a group of 19 veteran Democrats, working with the party leadership. Eleven of these 19 key men are from the Deep South and two others are from the border states of Kentucky and Missouri. Oddly enough, not one of them is a Texan, but it just so happens that the ringmasters of the congressional circus, without whose cooperation nobody would get very far, are both Texans—Lyndon B. Johnson, majority leader in the Senate, and Sam Rayburn, speaker of the House.

In the House, the speaker is Mr. Big—and that goes doubled in spades for Sam Rayburn.

In the Senate the vice president is the presiding officer, but his power and influence are nominal.

First big challenge offered by the "liberal" newcomers and their experienced colleagues in the Senate will be an attempt to tear down the Senate rule calling for unlimited debate. (The conservatives and moderates will be in a minority in both houses.)

In the Senate, a modification or elimination of the traditional rule of unlimited debate must come first before any of the "spendthrifts" and "liberals" can hope to have a clear field for their "welfare state" ambitions. In spite of their majority of friends in both houses, labor leaders will find their hopes of killing right-to-work statutes in 19 states by revising the Taft-Hartley act difficult if not impossible unless they first destroy the right-to-debate rule in the Senate.

So the first big fight in the Senate will revolve around the anti-filibuster question. That rule may be modified to some extent—perhaps to permit of a simple majority of the full membership to invoke cloture, rather than the two-thirds rule now required—but a total victory for the "liberals" is probably unlikely.

Doesn't Matter, But It's Du-kane

We hear that a good many people are puzzled over how to pronounce the name borne by a new four-cent postage stamp: "Fort Duquesne." Well, it's Du-kane, named for a French marquis.

The present-day Pittsburgh, Penn., stands on the site of Fort Duquesne. (Nearby Duquesne, Pa., was founded in 1683.) George Washington visited the point where the Monongahela and the Allegheny rivers come together to form the Ohio in 1753, and recommended that a fort be established there in view of the rival British and French claims for the trade of the area. Our George, of course, was then a wheel in the Virginia militia, units of which went along with the Ohio Company to set up the fort. That was February, 1754, and on April 17 a thousand French and Indians appeared and told the Virginians to skedaddle, which they prudently did. The French then built Fort Duquesne. In an attempt to capture this fort in 1755 the British took a country licking at Braddock, eight miles away. The British in 1758 finally sent a force of 7,000 to dislodge the French, and the defenders fled after burning the works.

The place was then named Pittsburgh in honor of the British prime minister. A small fort called Fort Pitt was set up and garrisoned for the winter, but in 1759 a new Fort Pitt was built and remained in existence until 1792. In 1783, during Pontiac's War, a strong force of Indians besieged the fort, but 500 British red coats and 200 frontiersmen successfully defended it.

We don't know just what phase of the history of Fort Duquesne earned the postage stamp, but it bears the date of 1758 and presumably it commemorates the taking over by the British after the French had fled.

Propaganda Opportunity Of A Lifetime

WASHINGTON—Berlin's crisis provides the opportunity of a lifetime. The Communists demand that Berlin be made a "free city." The key word is "free," but the idea back of that word is too good to be limited to just one city. Why not an "all-free Europe?"

To make only one city "free" is no solution. It only compounds existing problems.

The Communists sit up late at night thinking up schemes with which to worry the Western Allies. Mostly these are adventures in propaganda. The Soviets even boldly pose among their own people as "liberators" in other lands.

In America there still is a certain timidity about using the word "liberation." John Foster Dulles mentioned it in his speeches during the 1952 presidential campaign and has not been forgiven since by his critics. He insisted that he meant "peaceful liberation," but the Soviets managed, with considerable assistance from certain partisans in America, to make it appear that America planned to use military force to effect "liberation."

But notwithstanding the vicissitudes that the concept of "liberation" has experienced in circles where the word betrays a sense of fear, there is merit in urging the abandonment of the "status quo" in Eastern Europe. This theme has been championed in various pronouncements of policy by the United States government, but the secret of successful propaganda is iteration and reiteration, especially at the psychological moment.

Today, for instance, when the Soviets have so deliberately, even if hypocritically, put the accent on Berlin as a "free city," the time is opportune for a broad discussion of freedom for Eastern Europe. If a four-power conference can get the limelight on this issue, so much the better. It would be an impressive way to remind the people of the Soviet Union itself that freedom is still something they, too, may hope for some day.

Certainly the Western Allies are in a position to insist now that not only East Germany but Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania be given the status of "free cities." There could be a transition period during which, under United Nations auspices, a plan for withdrawal eventually of all foreign troops could be offered. The peoples of each country could be given the chance to conduct free elections and decide for themselves what military aid they need.

If countries which are truly free want foreign troops to remain on their soil, as the people of West Germany have chosen, this can be accepted as a basic principle. But everyone knows that not one of the "satellite" states has had uncoerced voting and that each country in the Soviet orbit has against its will been occupied by military forces commanded by Moscow.

The importance of Western ground troops in Central Europe to ward off an attack by the Soviets has lately been minimized by those who think long-range missiles will make land forces unnecessary anyhow. But with the emphasis coming nowadays from Moscow on avoiding the use of nuclear weapons altogether, ground troops take on added military value.

In recent months the Soviets, aided and abetted unwittingly by some erratic philosophers on the Western side, have been urging the withdrawal of all troops—Soviet and Western—from Europe and the abandonment of the air bases of the United States there. But from the Soviet viewpoint this is a cover-up for continued rule by the Communist apparatus. Each nation that is really free should have the right to determine for itself what military protection it needs and wants against a potential invader.

A crusade for freedom throughout Europe by liberating the eastern "satellite" countries is one that could well engage the attention of the United States and its allies. They stand for true freedom without any military domination whatsoever. The smaller nations know the Soviets would never take the initiative in giving them that freedom. The whole problem, if approached from the standpoint of extending the principle of a "free city" in Berlin to encompass all of Eastern Europe, would put the Soviets on the defensive in the propaganda battles of the day. Explanation Wasn't Sufficient

WASHINGTON (AP)—Today Meade Alcorn, chairman of the Republican National Committee, sought to explain why the Republicans lost the 1958 elections. It was a shallow analysis. He still doesn't seem to understand the disaster.

Or maybe he understands but doesn't want to be overly blunt about it.

His committee released here excerpts from the explanation he prepared for the National Assn. of Manufacturers in New York. Alcorn said: "There was a definite tide running for the opposition party from Maine to California."

He not only fell far short of explaining the full cause of the tide but skipped over the fact that this was not a new tide but a steady one which had crushed the Republicans three times in a row: in 1954, in 1956, and again this year.

Paul Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, followed Alcorn at the manufacturers' meeting with an explanation of why his party won. Butler was aggressive where Alcorn was defensive.

What Alcorn didn't explain was why the voters—in three successive elections—preferred to have the Democrats run Congress. He concentrated on his party's disaster this year, and listed these as reasons:

The big increase in unemployment in 1958; not enough campaign funds from business and professional people; lack of support from some Republicans who didn't like parts of the Republican program; injection of right-to-work proposals in several state programs, reviving the image of big business versus big labor; and tremendous financial and other help to the Democrats from organized labor.

But the most obvious possibility for the Republicans' defeat was the one Alcorn didn't mention: voters' dissatisfaction with the Republicans' performance and ideas in running the government.

Alcorn summed up: "The Republican party can never hope to recapture control of Congress until we match in money, in manpower and in organization work the efforts now being put forth by the opposition. . . . I know we have the better product to sell. But we lack the sales force."

This makes it seem as though all the Republicans have to do to win in 1960 is rake in enough campaign money and ring enough doorbells. He did not mention, in his excerpted speech, a primary requisite for any party to win an election:

A performance in deeds that will make it more attractive to the voters than the opposition.

Butler in effect said the Republican party still doesn't know what time it is. He accused the Republicans of still living in the 19th century in their "scare" approach to a political campaign.

He ridiculed them for their tactics in trying to make the voters think the Democrats were "radicals" and "Socialists" and "big spenders." He asked: "How often and how badly does the Republican party have to be beaten before it decides to give up those ridiculous tactics?"

He agreed with Alcorn that right-to-work proposals—in most of the states where they were an issue—helped down the Republicans. But the Democrats made a national sweep and Butler said the party won on national issues.

The Eternal Optimist

NEW YORK (AP)—"You have to be true to yourself," said Mickey Rooney, whose fourth divorce is in the mill.

"You have to learn to understand your own faults. You can't understand them—if you learn to understand yourself first."

It was 4:30 in the afternoon, and Mickey Rooney, who is in the middle of a four-week engagement at his first night club appearance here.

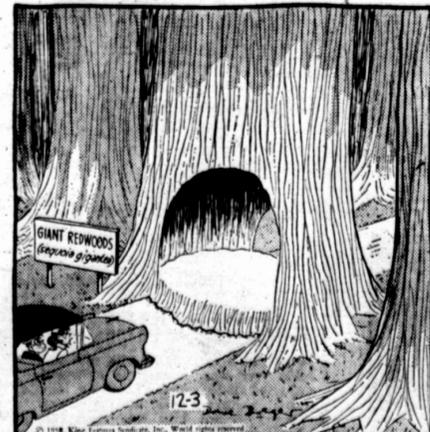

At 38, Hollywood's ageless Puck is as bouncy and full of self-confidence as ever, but an air of friendliness has replaced the conceit that annoyed his earlier critics.

Mickey really never has been offstage since he crawled out before the footlights and got his first laugh when he was less than a year old. At 4 he played his first adult role—a midge—and he was the nation's top-drawing film star before he could vote.

"I guess I've been in at least 150 pictures," said Mickey. "But I like all mediums—night clubs, radio, television, movies. They all come under one tent: Show business."

"I don't feel any limitations. I don't see anything I wouldn't love to play—if I was tall enough. But I never have felt my height"—he's 5 feet 3"—has been a handicap professionally."

MR. BREGER

"You'd think the Highway Department would REALIZE that these trees are still growing!"

Around The Rim

Looks Like They're Here To Stay

In this age of gadgets, something new looms on the horizon. It is an automatic device to rid the highways of the tipsy driver.

According to a prediction by Electronics magazine, this contraption will turn off the car's engine if the driver is intoxicated.

Invented by a gentleman in Denmark this is in reality an atmosphere sampler that shuts off the engine automatically if the driver is drunk or under the influence of narcotics. No details are available, but the detector is also said to shut off the motor and sound the horn if there is too much carbon monoxide present.

Now this poses the next question, namely how to get the car off the highway. The stalled car of the DWI easily could be a greater hazard than the lurching driver. An electronic "single-stick" steering system takes over the functions of the steering wheel. The car is taken slowly to right or left and stopped. Then by a process of rotation about a vertical axis, the car is put into reverse and an 80-degree turn parks it, presumably. Of course, it could put the car in the ditch, which would be all right, too.

The big difficulty is that the equipment will be optional—just like one more drink.

In this connection, another gadget built into the grillwork is supposed to alert the driver of approaching traffic or objects. If the rate of closure is too rapid, a signal will sound with increasing intensity. If the driver does not react, then the motor is shut off and the car stopped. This is probably for the sleepy driver. A similar gimmick on the tail light kicks up a flashing signal to warn following motorists that they should get their radiator caps out of your tailpipe.

What's the motoring world coming, too, anyhow? Used to be that all you needed to make the old model T go was a pair of pliers and a piece of baling wire. If the present trend keeps up, you'll have to get an electronic technician with every car.

About the time we think we have achieved the ultimate in motor travel, someone will come out with something still more astonishing through the air—jet anti-gravity copters that will fill us around like gnats. Or who knows, maybe a human pipeline system that will spurt us from city to city like a wet piece of macaroni.

Maybe it's safe to sell your horse and surrey.

Shadows Of Perons Curse Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—It is pretty obvious that the majority of Argentines would like to forget Juan and Evita Peron and be done with their evil regime forever.

In 1955, three years after Evita's death, when Juan Peron, her husband and co-dictator, was overthrown and forced into exile, their political enemies erased in this capital city every public plaque, statue or monument or both.

But the Perons could not permeate this city more thoroughly if there were a marble likeness of each on every street corner. This city is so overlaid with their legend that one cannot go for a stroll or a ride with an Argentinian friend without the native son unconsciously pointing out innumerable landmarks connected with the Perons.

He may point them out with scorn and contempt, but point them out he will. There is the shallow reflecting pool in Buenos Aires' lovely Palermo Park, for instance, to which my attention has been drawn a dozen times. On the site of the pool, at the time of Peron's exile in 1955, there was rising an enormous statue to Evita, one that would dominate the city.

Once Peron was gone, the uncompleted monument was destroyed, and the reflecting pool hastily built on its foundations. I have been driven past the Children's Village and hospital, built by Evita, at least six times, while Argentines poured out scorn for her but praise for the fact the hospital and village are now devoted to child victims of the 1955 polio epidemic.

Greater Buenos Aires, a city of some 5,000,000 persons, is wholly without traffic lights except one at either end of the Retiro railroad station. By this time, this city would have a fine system of traffic lights if it had not been for Peron, I am always being told.

A few traffic lights had been installed just before Peron came to power. But they were en route from his residence, which was torn down after his departure, to the presidential offices in the official Casa Rosada. So Peron ordered them removed, lest they interfere with his swift progress. As a result, Buenos Aires to this day is without a traffic control system. Ah, yes, one is also shown the spot where the residence of Juan and Evita was destroyed when their regime ended.

Goodness knows how many de luxe hideaways Peron had, and it is known that he had many rendezvous spots in Buenos Aires. But it seems to me that I cannot pass a beautiful or substantial building without my Argentinian friends saying that here the dictator had another nest of gilded splendor.

Legends flourish equally on hate and adulation. The Perons were the center of a fierce cauldron of both. Their legend is firmly fixed and obviously growing with the years. Yet the best-kept secret in the Argentine is the whereabouts of Evita's grave.

At the time of her death, there were elaborate plans for the preservation of her body and its eventual and perpetual display in a glass mausoleum such as Lenin's in Moscow.

With Peron's exile, plans for this final macabre adulation were instantly halted. It is presumed that her body was secretly transferred to her mother and sisters for burial. If so, all involved apparently were sworn to secrecy.

However, three other harsh legends persist. One insists that the body was dumped in the great Rio de la Plata which rolls past Buenos Aires to the Atlantic. A second says the body was buried in a pauper's field. A third rumor circulates that the body is interred beneath the Marine Parade ground.

Moon Rocket Chances Viewed Dimly

By GEORGE GALLUP, DIRECTOR, AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

PRINCETON, N. J.—If the next "moon shot" by the U. S. Army, scheduled for this week is successful, America will be among the most surprised people in the world.

This is one of the findings of a survey by the Gallup Poll and its affiliates in 12 other nations around the world.

Following the third failure to send a rocket to the moon, Gallup Poll reporters found in three key American cities (New York-Chicago-San Francisco) only one person in four who is hopeful of success within the next twelve months.

However, Americans are not the most pessimistic about the prospects of hitting the moon in the next year. Surveys in Toronto, Canada, and in the country of Finland reveal that people there are even less hopeful. And in the Netherlands only one person in five looks for success.

The most optimistic people of all about the prospect of reaching the moon by Rocket are the people living in West Berlin, followed by people in Vienna and Athens.

Following is the question asked and the results: "Do you think a rocket will reach the moon in the next year?"

A 1949 nationwide survey by the U. S. Gallup Poll found that fewer than one person in six thought that man would be able to reach the moon or the planet Mars in the next 50 years. In today's survey, one person in four—in New York, Chicago, and San Francisco—thinks man will reach the moon with the next five years.

The Dance Goes On

WALHALLA, S. C. (AP)—Six-year-old Richard Harper was plenty busy at a square dancing exhibition here.

On one vigorous go-round, his young lady partner apparently caught her finger in one of his belt loops.

That left Richard trying to: Disengage the offending finger; keep his pants in place; prevent his cowboy hat from jouncing off; maintain his place in the circle of dancers. He made it.

The Real McCoy

BALTIMORE (AP)—The U.S.S. Constellation, America's first fighting ship now moored in Baltimore harbor, is historic and authentic to the 8th degree.

Six warning signs around the deck, in presumably 19th Century spelling, proclaim: "Stand Away From Siding."

Lawmakers Undecided Over Freedom Of Information Bills

By GARTH JONES
AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' lawmakers probably will vote early next spring on further safeguards of the public's right to know what is happening in state and local governments.

However, there is presently a distinct hesitancy on the part of most senators and representatives to discuss the problem.

An extensive mail survey of the 181 members of the 56th Legislature meeting by The Associated Press showed only 20 members who would say they believe additional anti-secrecy laws are needed. Only 6 would say they did not think additional public information safeguards were needed. "No comment" said the others answering the poll.

Here are some answers: "No one is more opposed to anything of a secrecy nature when the taxpayers money is concerned than I am," said Rep. John Allen of Paris.

"The freedom of information (question) intrigues me," answered Sen. George Parkhouse. "What does it mean?"

"I thought we had it," said Rep. Scott McDonald of Fort Worth.

"I will gladly sponsor legislation to outlaw closed or secret meetings by state boards, agencies, commissions or by any public boards or agencies," said Rep. George Hinson of Mineola.

Between the time that the AP's questionnaires were sent out and the time that many legislators returned them, there were three widely publicized closed meetings of important state agencies—two meetings of the Legislative Budget Board and a meeting of the Texas Industrial Commission. All three secret sessions involved demands upon taxpayers' money during 1960-61.

Four Texas newspaper groups have been busy recently trying to convince the public that freedom of information is the people's business too.

"There are too many public officials in this country who feel that there are some things about the government the people shouldn't know," Ed Hunter, managing editor of the San Angelo Standard-Times, told a press group. The fight for freedom of information "is also the fight of the people and they should help the newspapers in their efforts to open the news sources that should be open," Hunter said.

"Secrecy creates the atmosphere in which abuses can develop," said Ed Wishcamper, managing editor of the Abilene Reporter-News and chairman of the joint committee on freedom of information. The committee is made up of representatives from the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Assn., Texas Press Assn., Texas Daily Newspaper Assn., and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

"The sunlight of publicity is a preventive of evils that breed in the darkness of news suppression," the Houston Post said editorially.

"If minor instances of suppression of news are permitted to go unrebuked, more serious and evil ones soon begin to flourish on all sides," said a Paris News editorial.

"Is there any connection between the bombing of a church and a secret meeting of a governmental agency?" asked a Sherman Democrat editorial, "yes, there is. Both are specific violations of your rights—as American citizens and as human beings."

Proposed legislative measures by the four journalistic associations call for open public records, opening meetings of all city, county and state agencies, and punishment for public officials who remove or alter public records.

Action by public agencies at "unofficial meetings" would be invalid. Another measure, calling for the removal of public officials who invoke the 5th Amendment, was approved by all of the groups except the State Assn. of Sigma Delta Chi.

"In none of the bills do newspapers have a selfish interest or can newspapers benefit a dime from their enactment," Wishcamper said.

"Only the public can profit," Wishcamper pointed out that newspapers are not for open meetings of government agencies in an effort to get more news.

"The news will always be there, whether the meetings are open or closed," he said, "and quite often news concerning the agencies takes on added significance by the very fact that a meeting is closed.

"The philosophy behind our support of these bills is simply that the public is entitled to know what goes on in the government's divisions which levy and spend taxes and whose decisions affect the lives of the people. We cannot see how there is room for argument on that point," he said.

"Public officials, no matter how conscientious, should not sit in judgment or a position where censorship can be exercised to say what the public is entitled to know and not entitled to know about the actions of those who govern them," Wishcamper said.

Stakes Winner Apparent Suicide

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — John Puterbaugh, 58, who won $70,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes last March, was found dead in his new luxury model car in his garage Tuesday.

Police said Puterbaugh, a boiler operator and bridegroom of four months, left a note indicating suicide but giving no explanation.

Friends said he had been ill. Homicide Detective William Clinton said that Puterbaugh's wife Dixie, 45, told of finding him in the car in the garage at 5 a.m. with the motor running.

She turned off the ignition and left the garage. Clinton said the woman told him. He said that when he talked to her she was intoxicated. She said both she and Puterbaugh had been drinking beforehand in their home.

Puterbaugh was found dead about 1:30 p.m. by a brother-in-law, Albert Dixon, 59. Dixon said Puterbaugh had called him the day before and threatened suicide.

THE JACK BUCHANAN HOME NEAR LUTHER Present owners purchased place in 1956

MYSTERY FARM

First Sorghum Alum In Area Produced On Buchanan Land

The Herald's Mystery Farm picture which was published on Nov. 5 was easily recognizable by persons who drive the Gail road frequently. It was the Jack Buchanan place which is only about half a mile north of the Luther post office.

Buchanan's place is about 17 miles northeast of Big Spring on the Gail road and the house and buildings pictured are in the southwest corner of the 320-acre farm. Jack purchased the farm from Mrs. Leona Smith in January of 1956. Mrs. Smith and the late Mr. Smith had owned the farm for about 17 years.

About 120 acres of the place are in sorghum alum grass. Buchanan also has 35 acres in cotton, 25 in maize and 28 in grain sorghums. The rest is pasture land.

At present, Buchanan doesn't have any cattle on the place although he grazes cattle and sheep on it at different times.

He transfers his 35 head of registered Herefords and the 650 head of sheep from another place for pasture.

The cotton this year should make about half a bale to the acre, Buchanan said. He picked about one-third of it and planned to strip the other two-thirds. The hail recently which cut across the northern part of the county hit this area and damaged his crop considerably.

The sorghum alum grass is one of the newer products for this country, and Jack was the first to bring it into this area. Jack planted 15 acres of it in 1956 but has since increased the acreage to

120. He also has 93 acres of sorghum alum on another place.

Only a small part of the place is irrigated; Jack has one small well and irrigated only 16 acres of the sorghum alum this year. He grazed all the 120 acres of sorghum alum this year.

The Buchanans, Jack and his wife and two girls, aged five and three, have lived in the four-room house on the place since living in it in '56. Prior to that they lived in Coahoma. The young pecan trees around the house have started bearing and Jack should gather between two and three bushels of papershell pecans from them this year.

Near the residence is a two-room tenant house plus a barn and two sheds. Not pictured but also on the place is a four-room tenant house.

Fog Cloaks East Texas

By The Associated Press
Soupy fog which occasionally reduced visibility to near zero cloaked much of East Texas and some coastal areas early Wednesday.

It was fair elsewhere and temperatures before dawn varied from 30 degrees at Lubbock to 54 at Brownsville.

Fog hovered around Lufkin, Houston, Corpus Christi, Tyler, Texarkana and Dallas before sunrise.

Clouds started disappearing as mild weather spread over the state Tuesday. Top temperatures Tuesday afternoon ranged from 74 at Big Spring to 60 at Fort Worth.

Forecasters looked for clear to partly cloudy skies through Thursday in all sections with cooler air moving into the Panhandle-Plains and the northwest part of North Central Texas Thursday.

Extended forecasts for the next five days promised temperatures several degrees below normal and colder weather by the weekend. Weather Bureau observers said occasional light rain along the coast was the only moisture in prospect.

CRITIQUE Of The Local Entertainment Scene

By Bob Smith

Anne's Diary Is A Tender Story

There once lived a young girl who wanted to be a writer. She hoped that, after her death, she would live on in her writings. Anne Frank got her wish, although not exactly as she had planned. The true story of the young Jewish girl from Amsterdam who fell victim to a madman's hatred will be told in City Auditorium this evening, in a dramatization that has been hailed by critics and public alike as one of the tenderest, most beautiful plays ever staged.

Anne Frank died young, not over 15 years of age, and she died uselessly. She is buried with those thousands of others who died of exposure, maltreatment, malnutrition, or just plain murder in a Nazi concentration camp.

But her story lives because of the diary she left behind. This story does not include the brutalizing events that came after her capture and imprisonment; it tells instead of the years Anne Frank spent with her family, the Van Daans and Mr. Dussel in an attic in Amsterdam.

"The Diary of Anne Frank" is a remarkable play because it has no heroes—the easiest of all acting; it is a story of everyday living, bickering, love, misunderstanding, happiness, longing and tears. Its monumental work, "The Messiah," and will conclude with the Hallelujah Chorus. The concert will be at 4 p.m. Dec. 14 in the city auditorium.

Soloists will be Joyce Howard and Betty Ware, sopranos; Carol Hastings of Odessa, contralto; Ira Schantz, tenor; and Louis Lovell of Odessa, baritone.

The community chorus was organized mainly out of the First Methodist and St. Paul's Presbyterian choirs, and drew on talent from other churches, the base, and the community in general, to expand membership. There are now about 60 voices, a bit short of the hoped-for 100-voice chorus.

Mrs. Ware holds weekly rehearsals at St. Paul's, and Schantz conducts practice sessions at the First Methodist, with the entire ensemble meeting Sunday afternoons for massed rehearsal.

The rehearsals have been held in the First Baptist Church, but have now been scheduled, along with the concert, for the city auditorium. The concert had first been planned for the auditorium, had been shifted to the First Baptist Church, and now again is scheduled for the auditorium.

The orchestra, for practice sessions, is being directed by Dr. Wiehe, high school band director, has been training local high school musicians for their part in "The Messiah," and Gambino has been bringing along his own violin and other string students from Odessa, for the massed rehearsal. The 20-piece orchestra is about evenly divided between Odessa and Big Spring teen-agers.

Jack Hendrix, H.C.J.C. music department chief, has been added as organist.

"The Messiah," in its entirety, follows the life of Jesus from the early prophecies, through His birth and into the Crucifixion and Resurrection. The local singers will attempt only the Christmas portion, plus the Hallelujah Chorus, mainly because rendering the entire composition would take the afternoon and most of the evening. As it is, the program will take between one and two hours.

Incidentally, it has for several hundred years been the tradition that the audience is to stand when over the Hallelujah Chorus is sung, out of deference to Handel. "The Messiah" is generally conceded to be the greatest musical composition of a spiritual nature ever written.

Because of the religious nature of the program, the audience should not applaud until the entire program is over. In fact, it is not a "concert" in the usual sense, as "The Messiah" has little to do with the theatre.

A little suggestion: Why don't the members of the present group get together after the final performance Dec. 14 and organize into a permanent organization?
