

Wildcat Locations Announced For Martin, Garza Counties

Two new wildcats have been struck in Garza County — one deep, one shallow—and a new Devonian exploration has been announced in Martin.

In Garza, one new site is Bergman & Minchen No. 1 Roy about five miles northeast of Justiceburg and it will test to 3,000 feet in the Permian. The Shell (Anderson) No. 1 Bud Aldridge is an 8,000-foot Ellenburger try about 11 miles southeast of Post.

The Martin project is Gordon Street No. 1 White, and it will penetrate to 11,500 feet about three miles southeast of Stanton.

Borden
Plymouth No. 1 Johnson was taking a drillstem test this morning from 9,680-726 feet in an unidentified lime formation. The site is 12 miles north of Vealmoor, C SE SE, 44-32-5n, T&P Survey.

Dawson
Forest No. 1 Harris drilled in lime and chert at 10,350 feet. It is 3,400 feet from south and 460 from east lines. League 267, Moore Park No. 1 Fitch, C NW SE, 2-3, D. L. Cunningham Survey, made hole in lime at 4,799 feet.

The Garrett No. 1 Wright Estate penetrated to 8,851 feet in shale and lime. The wildcat is C NE NE, 19-1, Poitevent Survey, and eight miles southeast of O'Donnell.

Garza
Humble No. 3 Slaughter drilled in lime and shale at 8,358 feet today after coring from 8,119-222 feet in the Pennsylvanian. Recovery included 102 feet of lime with shows of water but no oil or gas. The site is C SE NW, 12-1, Hays Survey.

Begman & Minchen No. 1 Roy is located 330 feet from north and 2,310 from east lines, 119-5, H&G Survey, five miles northeast of Justiceburg. Drilling depth is 3,500 feet.

The Shell No. 2-CD Slaughter has been completed from the Ellenburger in the Happy field, flowing 284 barrels of 40.2-degree oil through an 8-64-inch choke in 24 hours. The well, which will also be completed from the Strawn, is 660 feet from north and 1,960 from west lines, 432, T&NO Survey. It produced from open hole below 8,272 feet. Total depth is 8,300.

Howard
Union of Louisiana No. 1 Quinn, a wildcat nine miles southwest of Big Spring, penetrated to 5,596 feet in lime today. The site is two miles west of production in the Moore field, 660 from north and west lines, 27-34-1s, T&P Survey. It is contracted to 7,500 feet seeking Spraberry production.

Location of the Phillips No. 2 Gillihan, in the Big Spring (Fusselman) field, has been corrected. The site is 760 from north and 660 from west lines, 18-31-n, T&P Survey.

Martin
Street No. 1 White is located three miles southeast of Stanton, in an unreported section of Block 35-1s, T&P Survey. Drilling depth is 11,500 feet.

Cities Service No. 1 Glass, C SE SE, 29-38-in, T&P Survey, drilled in lime at 7,838 feet. It is 10 miles northeast of Midland.

CUBA

Three policemen and 10 looters were reported killed.

There was no indication that any of the 12,000 Americans in Havana had been harmed. The State Department said in Washington it had no plans for evacuating U.S. citizens.

With the Havana International Airport closed and cruise ships avoiding the city, however, the U. S. Embassy announced a ship was on the way from Key West to take home stranded tourists.

Batista gave up the presidency and fled to the Dominican Republic early Thursday. His family and scores of his top officials departed hastily with him in planes and boats for the United States.

Batista said he was quitting to save Cuba from further bloodshed. Castro sought to restore order as soon as possible, both to stop bloodshed and to protect Cuba's normally prosperous economy.

Sugar and sugar products make up 75 per cent of national exports and the cane grinding season is at hand.

To head the armed forces, Castro appointed Col. Ramon Barquin, who had just been released from a Batista prison with 700 other political prisoners.

There was no indication of continued fighting anywhere in Cuba between Batista's 37,000 troops and the rebels.

The sudden collapse of Batista apparently resulted from the first major battle of the rebellion. Three columns of rebels who previously had risked only hit-and-run raids and small battles launched an attack last weekend on Santa Clara. Batista had to hold this vital road and rail center in the middle of Cuba to maintain ground contact with the eastern end of the island.

The president threw tanks, warplanes, artillery and reinforced infantrymen into the battle against rebel foot soldiers. By New Year's Eve rebel casualties were estimated by Batista's regime at 3,000 dead and wounded. The government said it had suffered 1,000 or more casualties.

These losses caused Batista to decide to give up. He was in danger of having the army turn on him rather than continue to suffer such casualties.

While continuing to claim publicly that the rebels were losing and would be stamped out, Batista had a plan standing by.

The dictator, gathered his top henchmen around him at Camp Columbia on New Year's Eve. He broke off a toast to peace and prosperity to announce that he was giving up the presidency and leaving.

About 3:30 a. m. he flew off in his personal DC-3 to Ciudad Trujillo, capital of friendly fellow dictator Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic. Batista's wife, three of his children and a number of top aides accompanied him.

They included Prime Minister Gonzalo Guel and the man Batista had picked to succeed him on Feb. 24, Andres Rivero Aguero, who was named president on Nov. 3 in an election that Castro called fraudulent.

Other top Batista supporters fanned out from the island. Planes of them landed at six U. S. airports from New York to New Orleans. Small boats sailed for Key West.

Before departing, Batista willed whatever authority he had to a three-man military junta headed by Cantillo.

Cantillo immediately followed the constitution by ordering the senior member of the Supreme Court to take over as provisional president.

Rebel spokesmen promptly declared Piedra unacceptable and said the general strike would continue until Urrutia was installed in the presidential palace.

Because of Castro's stand, the Supreme Court refused to swear in Piedra. Piedra and Cantillo, who was to have been his chief of armed forces, gave up their effort. That left the government open to any orders from Castro.

Officials Studying Thick Court Docket

However, they said at the end of their conference, they had reached no definite decision on what could be done to cope with the problem.

Case Of The Missing Coats May Prove To Be Mix-Up

Sheriff's deputies are beginning to wonder how many women's coats — if any — were actually stolen from the cloak room at the Cosden Country Club on New Year's Eve.

GI Shot By Five Thugs

HOUSTON (AP)—An Army private on furlough told police today he was shot by one of five thugs who forced his car off the road last night.

Pvt. Ivan Preslar Jr., 17, a paratrooper with Ft. Chaffin, Ark., was shot in the left side. He was reported in fair condition.

A brother, Lonnie, 14, was treated for bruises. The brother said they were en route home when several youths in an old model vehicle pulled alongside his car and began shouting insults.

"They then forced our car off the road," Lonnie said. "I got out one side and Ivan got out on the other side. We didn't know any of the boys and we didn't know what to expect."

"Lonnie said two of the five knocked him down twice. "Then I heard a shot and they all ran off," he said.

Ivan said one of the three who attacked him "shoved a rifle against my stomach and pulled the trigger."

STINKENBRUNN, Austria (AP)—This is the last time the name Stinkenbrunn, which means stinking well, correctly appears in a newspaper dateline.

It's now just Brunn. Stinkenbrunn dates back to the 13th century. A local well's waters had a bad odor and a sour taste from nearby lignite deposits. Now the coal is gone and the water's pure.

MOSCOW (AP)—The possibility that the Soviet Union might establish diplomatic relations with the regime of Cuban rebel chief Fidel Castro emerged today. The Soviets had no relations with deposed President Fulgencia Batista.

Texas Banks May Have Record Funds

By The Associated Press Preliminary reports from several cities indicated Friday that Texas banks may have record amounts of money on deposit.

The reports came when the federal comptroller of currency and the Texas Banking Department ordered banks to report their condition as of the end of business Dec. 31.

Midland, a West Texas oil center, reported deposits skyrocketed to a record $113,334,396 over $92,666 from the same date a year ago.

Abilene, also in West Texas, reported deposits of $95,004,044, an increase of $8,139,904 over a year ago.

In Taylor County, of which Abilene is the county seat, deposits went over the 100-million mark for the first time. The totals included the Abilene banks. They now total $102,128,857, compared with $93,021,061 a year ago.

Sherman and the surrounding county of Grayson both showed increased deposits. Sherman's figure was $32,974,281, compared with $31,615,832 a year ago.

In Grayson County, the latest total was $70,642,193, compared with $66,531,298 at the end of 1957.

Bank deposits in metropolitan Houston (Harris County) set a record, exceeding $2,295,000,000.

Deposits from 46 of the 54 banks totaled a record $2,215,459,955. The other eight were expected to add another $1 million dollars. The previous record of $2,126,959,381 was set Dec. 31, 1957.

Marvin Collier, president of the National Bank of Commerce, said the record deposits indicate recovery from the recession.

"Houston is in an excellent financial position to embark on a real good business year and the first six months are bound to be excellent from all business standpoints," he said.

Collier said the record deposits also reflect increases in oil production allowances and Harris County's strong agricultural business.

Gainesville also reported record deposits of $19,021,863. This compares with $18,552,395 at the close of 1957.

Time To Take A Look At Some Business, Government Pledges

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Since this is the day we start breaking New Year's resolutions let's look at some that have been made by business and government officials — ones that affect our pocket-books.

President Eisenhower has resolved to stand firm for a balanced federal budget in the fiscal year coming up. If he can make this resolution stick there will be no new inflationary pressure from another Treasury deficit — and no need for a general tax increase.

Various congressional leaders have promised to keep the spending urge in bounds so that tax collections will have a chance to keep Uncle Sam out of the red — or at least not too far in it.

This resolution survives the upcoming session of congress tax-payers will have at least a breather if not relief.

The Federal Reserve Board has resolved to see that the business recovery will be backed by enough money and credit to keep it rolling along at a sensible pace — but not enough to stimulate speculation and thus threaten a boom and bust.

Various lending institutions are promising there will be enough money for mortgages — unless a new inflation makes building costs too high or a return to a tight money policy makes funds scarce.

The U. S. Savings & Loan League says 1,175,000 new housing units can be built this year, or 5 per cent more than in 1958.

A number of corporations have resolved to put out large surpluses this year on new plants or equipment. If this adds up, as now expected, to a slight increase in business spending over 1958 the business recovery will have attained an important ally.

Some industries are promising to hold the line on prices and many think the price line generally will be held pretty stable. This resolution, however, is threatened from many angles — monetary inflation, or rising labor and distribution costs. The National Assn. of Credit Management flatly predicts that the government's wholesale price index for all commodities will rise to a record high by mid year.

Consumers — that's all of us — have promised in several polls sampling our intentions, to spend a little more this year than in 1958. This will be a big help to those industries whose products win favor. The consumers, however, have indicated they'll continue to be choosy in their spending and intend to look closely at price tags.

Their extra money to spend is expected to come from increased personal income — wage boosts already won or promised to workers by their union leaders as sure to be won, higher earnings by their union leaders as sure to be won, higher earnings by those in business for themselves or who charge fees, fatter dividends that are hinted by corporate officials who predict larger profits.

Quite a number of industries have resolved that this is to be a more profitable year for them. For example, the textile industry. Sick for 18 months, it now feels much better. The American Cotton Manufacturers Institute says optimism is widespread. The Assn. of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York sees a genuine recovery in the industry and its markets under way.

But before you get too cheered up by all the goodies being promised as the year starts, remember this: the federal government is taking a bigger slice out of your paycheck now. It's withholding more for social security tax payments. If you make $4,800 or more a year, Uncle Sam will keep $129 of it this year, compared with $94.50 in 1958. You'll have less with which to pay those Christmas bills just around the corner.

Machine Puts Bite On Barkeep
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Bar-tender Gene Bruce started to fix the cash register and got into a fix instead.

The cash drawer stuck. Bruce put his hand inside a door on the side of the register to open the drawer.

Some of the cogs grabbed his hand and held on — for three hours.

County police tried a cutting torch. When that got too hot for Bruce, they used a crowbar.

Bruce is all right, but the register is in bad shape.

Sugar Futures Fall Along With Batista

NEW YORK (AP)—World sugar futures dropped sharply today in heavy trading following the collapse of the Batista government in Cuba.

March delivery was quoted in early dealings at 3.19 to 3.30 cents a pound, down between 26 and 47 cents from the daily limit of change is 50 of a cent.

January delivery, for which no daily limit applies, was quoted at 2.99 bid, off .67 of a cent.

Sugar industry sources reported that if the Cuban civil war is nearing an end, prospects are that Cuba will produce most of the 5,900,000 Spanish long tons of sugar, as recommended last week by the Cuban Sugar Institute.

Wall Street traders said they doubted the decline in futures would have any effect on the price which consumers pay for sugar in the grocery store.

Some said futures would have to be down sharply for an extended period before having any impact on the spot price.

In preparing for the 1959 sugar production, Cuba has about one month in which to get back to normal. In that time, all of the off-season repairs to mills, machines and equipment for harvesting and grinding the cane must be made.

In recent weeks, world sugar advanced 30 to 40 of a cent a pound on the prospect that if fighting continued, Cuba would not be able to make more than 4,600,000 tons of sugar.

Traders said today's selling was based on the assumption that the two-year Cuban revolt is coming to an end. So the bulk of Cuban crop will be coming to market, thus increasing the world supply.

A large crop would mean lower prices.

Other major sugar suppliers to the United States are the Philippines, Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

Castro's Platform Indicates He Would Take Over U. S. Interests

HAVANA (AP) — Rebel leader Fidel Castro's last announced platform calls for the nationalization of American utilities and sugar estates in Cuba.

The bearded guerrilla chieftain published his program in 1955, while in exile in Mexico. It called for:

1. Nationalization of U.S. financed and operated utilities in Cuba and division of American-owned sugar estates among Cuban peasants.
2. Confiscation of all properties acquired through "corrupt government."
3. Distribution of 30 per cent of all industrial and utility enterprises to Cuban workers.
4. A public housing and rural electrification program.
5. Liberation of Cuba "from the egotistical interests of half a dozen businessmen."
6. A speed up of industrialization and increased social security.

Castro never doubted he would win the victory over strongman Fulgencio Batista.

Now 32, the husky, 6-foot 2-inch leader is a professional rebel who has been in the front most of his life. He has been involved in revolutionary movements in the Dominican Republic, where Batista took refuge, and in Colombia.

In 1947 he joined an expedition to the Dominican Republic aimed at overthrowing the dictatorship of Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo. It was a failure and Castro escaped by sea.

In 1949 Castro appeared in Colombia before the ninth International Conference of American States protesting what he termed the non-Latin influence in Latin America. He joined with a group of Colombian rebels and was captured. He gained his freedom, reportedly largely through the influence of the U.S. delegate to the conference, Gen. George C. Marshall.

On July 26, 1953, he led a bloody but unsuccessful attack on an army barracks in Santiago de Cuba, capital of Oriente province at the eastern end of Cuba. For this attack he was sentenced to 15 years in prison. Freed when Congress granted a political amnesty to political prisoners, Castro later fled to Mexico. There he began plotting the campaign which resulted in Batista's flight to the Dominican Republic New Year's Day.

He returned to Cuba in December 1956 in a leaky Mexican yacht with 81 armed followers, landing on the coast of Oriente.

In the first few days after his arrival Batista announced that most of his force had been killed or captured, but Castro escaped to a hideout in the mountains of Oriente and began his guerrilla war.

He struck when and where he could, disrupting communications, burning fields of sugar cane, ambushing small army units, kidnapping, sabotaging transportation and carrying on a propaganda war.

Despite defeat after defeat, Castro kept up the fight. Many times the government announced extermination of the rebels was imminent.

But the size of his ragged army continued to grow. Arms and equipment reached him from sympathizers in the United States and other countries.

Operating in the rugged country around his mountain headquarters, he successfully headed government troops sent after him. Castro's movement continued to gain momentum in spite of repeated losses and the opposition of government-dominated labor unions.

The kidnapping of world champion race driver Juan Fangio from a hotel in downtown Havana convinced many Cubans that Batista could not deal with Castro's hit and run tactics. Fangio was released the next day and praised the rebels for their treatment of him.

DENIES RED LEANINGS

Batista called Castro a Communist and a criminal. Communists around the world hailed Castro and Cuban Reds supported the rebel cause. But the rebel chief denied he was a Communist. He pointed out that most of his followers were members of the Roman Catholic Church, which strongly opposes communism.

Castro, son of a wealthy sugar planter, describes himself as a moderate. Friends say he is a man with driving political ambitions whose rebel movement is basically middle class.

Born at Colonia Biran on Aug. 14, 1926, Castro went to a Catholic boarding school and later high school at Belen. He attended law school at Havana University and was a politically active student leader.

Following graduation from the university, he set himself up in private law practice and married Mirtha Diaz Balart, sister of a government official. They have one son.

Castro does not drink but smokes 8 to 10 cigars a day. He gets by with 2 to 3 hours' sleep a night, according to associates. His diet is simple, mostly dried beef, rice, beans and bananas. He reads a great deal of poetry.

His father, who disapproved of Castro's revolutionary activities, cut off his son's allowance when he was in school. He died in 1956, leaving a half million dollars. Fidel received $80,000.

An older brother, Ramon, takes care of the family plantation with his mother. A younger brother, Raul, is one of the rebel chieftains' aides. The family also includes two sisters, a step-sister and a stepbrother.

Argentina Should Be Wealthy, But Nation Nears Bankruptcy

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — This should be one of the richest small nations in the world. Yet today Argentina is almost bankrupt.

Its internal government deficit for 1958 was around 50 billion pesos — 835 million dollars. The foreign trade deficit is 25 million dollars a month. Gold reserves have shrunk to 150 million dollars. The government has flooded the country with unbacked printing press pesos to pay salaries.

The cost of living has gone up 1,500 per cent in 15 years — 35 per cent in eight months.

The tragedy is that this need not have happened. Argentina is not a one-product nation. It suffered no crippling war — in fact Argentina was neutral and made millions selling to warring nations in the '40s. There is enough oil in the ground to make Argentina a big producer. There are coal fields, iron ore, enough of almost all the basic minerals needed — but undeveloped.

Tropical flowers bloom in Buenos Aires. Many farmers reap two crops a year because of an ideal climate. There is adequate rain. Five great river systems flow through some of the world's most fertile land.

Argentina is one third the size of the United States, but only 21 million people live in it. They have the highest literacy rate in South America. A mixture of Latin and North European races helped settle the nation. There is a thriving middle class.

"Twenty years ago this country was a paradise," you hear often.

What happened? How did the country slip toward financial ruin? Much, but not all, of Argentina's troubles can be traced to Juan Peron.

Perhaps the worst thing Peron did was to foster the idea that a person does not have to work hard, or do a good job, to earn his bread and butter.

There are many hard working Argentines but the mass of people, spoon-fed by Peron policies which won him the workers' allegiance, are reluctant to give a day's work for a day's pay. Many have little pride in their work. Manufactured goods are often shoddy.

Labor laws still on the books make it almost impossible to fire a completely incompetent man. Peron instigated the still popular measure of decreasing nationwide wage increases. There has been little incentive for a man to do a good job — he got a raise anyway.

Government employees and their dependents make up a third of the population. This bureaucracy stifles the economy.

Peron squandered Argentina's exchange reserves on mass imports of vehicles, equipment to start factories, luxury items for his favorites. Graft claimed a huge share.

Peron tried to swing Argentina from its money-making agricultural economy to an industrial economy. It was a case of too much too soon. Farm workers by the thousands were lured from the plains to factories. Big ranches which produced thousands of cattle were broken up into smaller holdings for peasants.

Peron set up government agencies to handle farm exports. Slipshod management gave the farmer less and less for his grain or cattle, reduced his incentive.

Peron nationalized utilities and kept rates low. Now deficits pile up yearly and the service is terrible. Crops rot on sidings waiting for freight cars that never arrive.

Peron was overthrown in 1955 but the country has taken few constructive steps toward recovery. This week some hope came.

The nation arranged for $29 million in credit, mainly from the United States. President Arturo Frondizi freed the peso to find its own level. He ordered a 2-year regime of austerity, with gasoline tripled in price, train fares increased and prices in general due to rise. He said state-run utilities must pay their way. He has signed agreements with foreign firms to develop oil.

The problems are still legion. The beef surplus for export, which supply 230 million dollars a year in foreign exchange, is slacking off. Barring drastic measures to cut internal consumption, Argentina will have no beef to export in five years.

The foreign loans are only a temporary measure. The government will have to provide stern leadership and the people hard work if Argentina is to recover. If the government cuts expenses, there will be unemployment. There will be unrest, loud complaints, unhappiness. The government will be urged to sweeten the bitter medicine.

The years 1959 and 1960 seem likely to determine whether this beautiful land of beef and beauty will be the successful nation it can be.

Sen. Russell To Push Bill For Race Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.) said today he will "push for all it's worth" his bill to encourage the migration of Southern Negroes to Northern states, and Northern whites to the South.

Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) said "I will gladly support it." Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) hailed it as a proposal "to more evenly balance the racial distribution and stabilize the economy."

Russell said he will introduce the bill after Congress convenes Wednesday. It would authorize grants and loans to help finance the voluntary migration of Negroes from the South to resettle in Northern areas, and of white families from the North to Southern states.

None of the money, however, could be issued to assist the relocation of Negroes in the South, or of whites in Northern areas.

The bill's terms would require evidence that the resettlement would promise of improving the social or economic conditions in the migrants. Russell has not estimated its cost, but said it would not be prohibitive and certainly not more than the cost of the foreign aid program.

The current foreign aid program has a price tag in excess of four billion dollars.

Russell's bill would set up an agency known as the voluntary racial relocation commission to run the program. The bill's objective, Russell said, is "a more balanced racial distribution" in the United States. He said he will argue that it would tend to ease racial tensions in the South.

Sparkman and Stennis said they thought so, too.

All three senators said they wanted to emphasize that under the bill's terms no one could be forced to migrate unwillingly.

Sparkman said he recalls that "at the height of the New Deal" a House subcommittee studied the problem of moving persons for their economic improvement, although nothing came of this.

A bill introduced by Sen. William Langer (R-ND) in 1957 sought to provide federal aid for Americans desiring to migrate to Liberia. Organizations of Negroes of Liberian descent endorsed the measure, but it died in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Social Security Is Ruled In Good Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special advisory council has completed a year-long study of the nation's Social Security program and found it in good financial shape.

A new schedule of taxes voted by Congress last year "makes adequate provision for meeting both short-range and long-range costs," the 13-member group said in a report made public Thursday.

The tax on both employers and employees provides insurance benefits for elderly persons, survivors of workers and disabled employees. Effective Thursday, both the tax rate and the amount of salary on which it is paid were increased.

Other increases already in the law provide for further tax increases in 1960, 1963, 1966 and 1969. The council said that under present conditions, the scheduled 1969 increase may not be needed.

The advisory group was composed of business and union leaders and experts in the fields of finance, insurance and economics. Congress directed that it be named to study the soundness of the Social Security system.

Although the fund is financially able to meet the scheduled payments to recipients, the group cautioned that excessive inflation could make the present level of payments unsatisfactory.

The report was made to the secretaries of the Treasury, Labor and Welfare, who are trustees for the fund. They are expected to add their own comments in reporting to Congress before March 1.

The advisory council said no fundamental changes in financing Social Security are needed now. But it said an increase may be needed later in the new $4,800 salary level to which the tax applies.

The system was started 21 years ago with a tax only on the first $3,000 of salary. The report said few workers then made more than that. Even the new $4,800 level, however, taxes the full salary of only about half of all regularly employed men, the group said.

Infant Makes Scene As New Year Begins

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Gerald Smith came into this world just after the stroke of midnight as the new year began Thursday.

Death Of A Traitor

After signing a confession—his own death warrant—that he was a traitor and that he had caused the death of many Cuban rebels, this follower of Fidel Castro meets death at the hands of a firing squad. Refusing to be blindfolded, the traitor faces the squad with his hands tied behind a tree, top photo, the firing squad aims at emotionless appearing traitor, center, and his body is next seen slumped at the base of the tree. NBC News made this dramatic sequence available from clips of a reel it showed on television. The reel was made by Pat Fairley, staff photographer for Miami's station WCKT-TV, aided by a Cuban rebel photographer.

Catholics To Renew Pledges On Decency

WASHINGTON (AP)—At a mid-December Sunday Mass, Roman Catholics across the country were asked to renew a pledge of the National Legion of Decency, a church agency which evaluates motion pictures. The pledge states in part: "I condemn indecent and immoral motion pictures and those which glorify crime or criminals. I promise, further, to stay away altogether from places of amusement which show them as a matter of policy."

Nobody Practices Christ

A number of years ago, Dr. George Mecklenberg visited in Russia, and while in Moscow made a tour of the Leo Tolstoy Museum. The guide was far above average. He spoke excellent English and was quite eloquent as he endeavored to interpret the soul of Tolstoy to the group.

The tour was over at last and the party was dismissed. They thanked him profusely and were on their way to the main gate when they heard him calling them back as if he had forgotten something.

"I had to call you back. I am afraid I have misled you. You may have gotten the impression that I think that Leo Tolstoy is the greatest man who has ever lived, and that is not true."

The Russian guide continued, "Three great men have lived upon this earth — Nikolai Lenin, Leo Tolstoy, and Jesus Christ. The greatest of the three was Nikolai Lenin."

The Christian group from America immediately challenged the guide as to why he placed Lenin above Christ. With unwavering conviction the guide answered, "Lenin is greater because people follow him and obey his teachings. One hundred and sixty million Russians practice the teachings of Lenin." Here he paused, and then added, "But nobody practices Christ."

Was the Russian guide right? Is it true that nobody practices Christ? Let us look at some of the things he taught.

Jesus said, "Lay not up treasures on earth where moth and rust corrupt." We vie with one another in the accumulation of material things of the world.

Jesus said, "Love your enemies and do good to them that hate you." We believe such a philosophy to be impractical, to say the least. It just won't work.

Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." Through the ages, and especially in the present century, our mission work has been too little and too late. We have not been going with the one thing which holds out hope for our world.

I believe the guide was right. We do not practice Christ. When we do we will change the world. We need to go back to the New Testament and read again the things he taught. Will you join with me in a New Year's resolution: To try, at least, to practice what He preached.

Jesus Calls Forth Faith TO THE BELIEVER CHRIST SAYS ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE

Scripture—Mark 9:23-29; Matthew 17:14-18.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
FAITH is the subject of today's lesson. Today, in a world shaken by fear and uncertainty of both present and future, we need faith in God and in our fellow men and women of every country, in their truth and fidelity, to keep us from worrying too much. Faith, the dictionary tells us, is belief, trust and loyalty.

In our lesson we learn of Christ's faith and what He said about it. It should help all of us, from the primary grades of the class to the older ones, to "realize that Jesus had a loving concern for all who were sick or in need." The teachers can illustrate this in events taking place every day by Jesus' followers who are helping to meet the needs of the handicapped—nurses, doctors, institutions, special classes, etc. I have quoted these lines from "The Usiform Series of Lessons, which suggests that "Children may be helped to develop a sympathetic understanding of the handicapped and to seek ways of giving practical help."

Briefly we mention Christ's transfiguration on the top of a high mountain to which He had taken Peter, James and John. "And His raiment became shining, exceeding white as snow. . . . And there appeared unto them Elias with Moses. . . . talking with Jesus. . . . And there was a cloud that overshadowed them; and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is My beloved Son; hear Him."—Mark 9:2-7.

When they came down from the mountain, they found a great multitude about them whom the scribes were questioning. Then a man from the crowd said: "Master, I have brought Thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit; and wheresoever he taketh him, he tearh him; and he foameth, and gnaweth with his teeth, and pineth away."—Mark 9:14-18.

The man also said that he had begged the disciples to cure him, based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate

Utility Has Never Been The Chief Idea Of Women In Choosing Hats

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ladies with husbands who take a dim view of women's hats in general and their wives' hat in particular are hereby advised of the publication of a book called "A Pageant of Hats, Ancient and Modern."

A copy may not change his conviction that hats are for keeping heads warm, but it is a strong argument that historically warmth has been one of a head covering's lesser purposes.

Author Ruth Edward Kilgour has collected hats for 22 years, has traveled 160,000 miles in quest of hats and spent $100,000 buying hats. Her book shows and describes the crowning glories of her collection and demonstrates incidentally that historically hats for both men and women have been used as good luck pieces; insignia of sex, race, religion, marital status and rank; revealed customs, architecture, weather conditions, financial condition, hopes and fears.

SYMBOLIC HATS

And, lest men think hats are particularly a concern of women, Mrs. Kilgour points out, for instance, that the high, white, starched chef's hat — hardly a woman's chapeau and rarely used for warmth—can be traced back to Assyrian kings who permitted the shape of royal headresses to be copied by their culinary chiefs, whose prime job was to make sure the ruler was not poisoned. And the 100 pleats which heavily starched, make the hat stand up, are symbols of an old requirement that a good chef be able to cook an egg in 100 different ways.

The brush, which comes sewn on America's popular Tyrolean felt hats, in Europe signifies what best the hat-wearing hunter has killed: Boar, deer or mountain goat. The spike on a World War I German officer's helmet was put there originally to ward off sword blows, and the Scots' bluebonnet was designed for protecting the head against blows, for cooking oat-meal, for identifying the clan and rank of the wearer.

WOMEN'S CHAPEAUX

Now then, about women and their hats:

Some Mexican women wear a headress fashioned in the shape of a child's dress, complete with sleeves. Traditional headgear of a remote region, the custom began when a child was saved from a shipwreck, and the Indian woman who saved her, wore the child's dress thereafter as a sort of lucky piece.

High beaver hats, which look like those affected by Halloween witches, were worn until fairly recently by women of Wales. The style, in truth, has its roots in sorcery, dating back to the days of the Druids.

From Buckleburg, near Hanover,

Germany, comes a bizarre headress with enormous loops on either side—a memento of an occasion when a 14th Century king set up three tents in a field in Bohemia and invited all the nobles who had been given land grants.

He invited them into the center tent, asked them to relinquish their lands. Those who did, went to a feast in one tent. Those who refused went into the other—to be beheaded. The loops in the traditional headress represent the executioner's tent and the feast tent.

FOR PROTECTION

And chic Frenchwomen are credited with developing the "bretot," a curious hat consisting of a stiff circular brim with a horn-shaped ornament atop. From the brim falls a body-enveloping mantle called a haik.

Despite the symbolism of the ornament, the bretot is a functional headress, designed primarily to protect the wearer from swarms of flies which were prevalent in days before inside plumbing and DDT.

If Father remains unconvinced about Mother's cloche with the mink trim, Mother would do well to ask him just what he's proving to his new derby. After all, it was developed by William Bowler, English hatter, in 1850, to keep gentlemen jumpers from bashing out their brains in steeplechase riding. How long, for goodness sake, since Father rode his horse to the office?

Milady's Evening Make-Up Is Due For Changes In Style

Important evening hair styles are as high as meringue and eye-ferrescent as champagne. Not as heavy as last season's heavy wig-do, these champagne bubble styles refine the features with their round, gentle shaping and disciplined lines that softly pile high into controlled crested waves at the crown of the head, or are caught up into feathery, airy ringlets.

More often than not, the forehead is covered with low swept, graceful bangs that soften the expression of the eyes. Ribbons and brilliant hair ornaments are embroidered through the hair as a fashion accessory to these evening coiffures.

Hair coloring also plays an important part in the preparation of these romantic styles. Tender, soft shades are chosen for an all-over shimmering effect.

Tones of evening make-up that are light and clear are applied so that lips and eyes appear more round. Eyes are given a wide-open look by shaping brows into a high crescent arch so as not to crowd the round saucy eyes which wear artificial eyelashes, liner and shadow.

This year the liner is not elongated, but instead stops short of the outer corners in a heavy stroke.

The mouth, too, comes in for more rounding by forming the upper lip into a cherry shaped point and extending the line of the lower lip beyond the upper curve. To set all this brilliant party make-up in place, a lavish dusting of face powder is applied all over in an opal shade chosen for evening's artificial lights to accent your new, fair champagne look.

Add Time For Growing; Plant Annual Seed Now

You can add six to eight weeks to the garden's growing season by sowing annual flower and vegetable seeds in hotbeds, coldframes or indoors.

For a wide variety of annuals and vegetables, a hotbed will probably prove most satisfactory. This may be built in front of a south basement window and warmed simply by opening the window.

Otherwise, heat may be provided by a special electrical element or by horse manure. The hotbed is essential for advance sowing of tender varieties.

The coldframe is similar to the hotbed, except that no heat source is provided, and it is used for hardy varieties or to harden off seedlings which have been started indoors.

Both hotbed and coldframe may be made from window sash placed on old box frames. In the case of the hotbed, a 2-ft. pit should be dug and filled with manure and garden soil. Temperature is controlled by raising or lowering the top sash.

Good results can sometimes be achieved by starting seed indoors, in pots placed on a convenient window sill.

Important to remember is that seeds should be germinated at temperature ranging from 70 degrees to 90 degrees F., and that seedlings require lower temperatures, 60 degrees to 65 degrees F., as they become strong.

A few of the annual flowers which may be started in a coldframe or in pots and transplanted to the open when danger of frost is passed are:

Ageratum, baby's breath, cosmos, calendula, dahlias, marigold, petunia, scarlet sage, snapdragon, stock, strawflower, tithonia verbena and vinca.

Tender annuals which require a hotbed until the weather is consistently warm include African daisy, cornflower, poppy, portulaca, sweet alyssum, sweet pea and zinnia.

To enjoy the longest growing season possible plan your garden well in advance from seed catalogs and seed displays in retail stores.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

For Good Grooming: Hair, Nails First

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—The weather in California is so unpredictable that we must be prepared for a heat wave in any month. There was Christmas in the air but July in the sun when I was invited to lunch by Frances Langford and her husband, Ralph Evinrude. Their yacht, the Chandiceer, was anchored off Santa Monica Pier, and as I went on board I heard the hi-fi playing one of Frances' records. These two love the sea and they spend more time on water than on land.

"I've learned to do everything for myself out of necessity," Frances began. "I even do my own hair now. Since my hair is bleached I keep it cut short, so I have constant new growth all year. Trimming the ends often prevents breakage."

"When I was visiting the troops during the war I used to sleep with bleach on my hair because I had so little time between shows. This was so hard on it that it has never been as strong since. But the hair lighteners today are a big improvement over what we had then."

"I just don't feel right," Frances confided. "If my hair and nails are neglected, I suppose at heart I'm a do-it-yourself girl. I have a weekly time for my hair, facial, manicure and pedicure."

"I formed the habit of keeping well-groomed when I was doing one-night stands with a band. I had to make use of every spare moment, because I often came into a town with hardly enough time to press a dress and comb my hair before going on stage."

We chatted about life on the yacht, and Frances admitted it was hard to keep from overeating while at sea.

"We have a wonderful cook, and it is such a temptation to eat all those rich dishes he prepares. The sea air peeps up our appetites, and we don't exercise enough to work off extra calories."

"But we have worked out a plan. Ralph and I sleep late and have a late breakfast and dinner. With two meals a day and no snacks we balance our calorie budget."

"During the holidays there are so many parties that I'm dieting in earnest these days," she explained. "Tonight I'll have steak with the fat cut off and green salad without dressing. You know, lettuce has a pleasant and delicate flavor once you learn to eat it plain."

Miss Langford has Fashion Designer Edith Head of Paramount studios designing the gowns for her new hour-long TV show.

"Over the years I've learned what I can and cannot wear. I hope my fashion mistakes are in the past. It is just a matter of allowing my failures to be my teachers. I find that sheathes are great stand-bys in my wardrobe. I avoid high-neck gowns or any dress that is too fancy or frilly."

"One rule I follow is to dress down anything I wear. I ask myself, 'What accessory can I remove?' rather than 'What more can I add?'"

"Sometimes a woman will overdress from having a sense of insecurity. She wants her clothes to be important because she feels unimportant, but if she has that problem she should train herself to appreciate simplicity. I have many pieces of beautiful jewelry. I'd love to wear more of it but every time I try, I feel overdressed."

Frances has such beautiful skin which is so evenly suntanned that I asked how she kept it this way while being constantly exposed to sun and wind.

"I take extra care of my skin each night with a facial," she explained. "I try to restore the oils and moisture to my skin that I know it is losing during the day. Cosmetics are so perfected now that giving yourself a beauty treatment before going to bed is more effective than leaving heavy creams on all night."

Shower Mother-To-Be With Personal Gifts

Every one likes to share the happiness of mother-to-be. A personal shower of gifts that she can use while in the hospital, including gowns, good books, bedroom slippers, a bottle of good perfume, talcum powder and even a perky lipstick, could be presented her in a large pasteboard box, designed as an overnight case.

To add humor to this type of shower, why not give her some things for her husband while she is away from home? Say a dish cloth and dish towel to make dish-washing easier; a bottle of window cleaner so that he can have her windows sparkling clean when she returns home, and even a pair of comfortable slippers to walk the floor in while he is awaiting baby's delivery.

A Devotional For Today

Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive. (Acts 20:35.)

PRAYER: Thrill us anew, our Father, with the great message of Christmas. May this blessed season be a time of joy for us as we love and share in the spirit of Christ, to whom we owe so much because of His unselfish giving. In His name. Amen.

The Budget And Other Factors

Usually the President's budget is not announced until he makes his presentation in what is one of two major addresses to the new Congress. Probably for psychological as well as political reasons, the President has pegged a budget at about $77 billion. Somewhere around this figure expenditures and receipts can be balanced, according to Mr. Eisenhower. Balance is certainly to be desired, but it is a toss up whether it can be achieved. For one thing the President assumes that the rate of recovery for business will continue to be vigorous. He also assumes that Congress will not re-instate certain programs which are expiring. Still another assumption is that Congress will be willing to up the first class postal rate to five cents while memory is still fresh of the hike to four cents.

Aside from national defense, which should be scrutinized microscopically but not stunted, there will be pressures to increase aid in housing, highways, education, urban redevelopment, etc. In this area the crucial test may be in achieving realistic compromise and in the exercising of courage to let some dying subsidies stay dead. Still the whole picture is not colored by the government alone. The Christian Science Monitor aptly points out that "on the whole it (the effect of the budget on business) should be encouraging. But unless restraint is shown in some other fields such as consumer credit, extravagant wage demands, and political group pressures for subsidies, even administrative economy in government cannot wholly prevent inflation."

Action And Not Temporizing

Big Spring's new city manager, A. K. Steinheimer, will be on hand Monday to assume his duties. This will end a vacancy which has obtained for a month and a half, but happily the word has been vacancy rather than vacuum. In this respect, the city commission and City Engineer Jack Bellamy, who has been serving as acting city manager, have performed admirably. The temptation always is great to let matters slide when a major administrative change is impending. Bellamy has not followed this easy course. On the contrary, he has tackled some thorny problems with forthrightness and vigor. For instance, the garbage collection fees have been brought into current adjustment. Some street programs have been attacked. Cooperative enterprises with the county have been agreed upon even though the city certainly went the second mile on at least one of them. Bellamy's philosophy seems to have been that the word "acting" meant action and not temporizing. Thus the entire city machinery has been kept well oiled and moving. There should be a minimum of lost motion when Mr. Steinheimer takes over Monday.

Franc Devaluation Meets Soviet Threat

CHICAGO — The big headlines in the newspapers did not make the principal talk in the corridors of the Palmer House here at the 71st annual meeting of the American Economic Association. "We don't know enough about it yet." That was the way most economists responded to the question, "What does devaluation of the franc mean?" They were more immediately concerned with the "propaganda bonus" the Russians seem to reap from promises of foreign aid to a few underdeveloped countries in Asia. This was natural. The theme of the meeting was "The United States Economy in a World of Competitive Coexistence."

Nevertheless, the verdict on franc devaluation was, "Good—an overdue step in the right direction. But only a step. Premier de Gaulle must now carry through plans to increase and collect taxes, do away with costly subsidies and balance the budget. Otherwise, inflation will steal away all the benefits." One economist whipped out a pad and pencil for some quick calculations. If a French manufacturer got 600,000 francs for an auto, a U. S. dealer would have to pay under the old rate about $1,428 (excluding shipping costs). Now that the American dealer can buy 493 francs for his dollar instead of 420, he'll have to pay only $1,217 for the car. Thus the price of French Simcas or Renaults presumably could be reduced to increase sales in competition with U. S. and other cars in this and other world markets.

Presumably the French will be able to export more because prices of French goods to foreigners will be lowered by about 15 per cent. On the other hand, Frenchmen will have to pay about 17 per cent more for foreign products and therefore imports should tend to decline. As an example, a Frenchman importing $10 of an American product will now have to pay 4,990 francs as against 4,200 formerly.

Increased exports and decreased imports would contribute toward the stability of the franc. The French will cut down the need for foreign currencies—dollars for example—and increase their "take" of foreign currencies. Hence, the devaluation is regarded by the economists as a step in "straightening out economic imbalance" in Western Europe and in the western world. But only if the French can stop their inflation.

The penetration of the Soviet Union was regarded as equally as critical as the battle to save the franc. Professor Joseph S. Berliner, of Syracuse University, made four observations on Soviet economic competition with the U. S.

First, by concentrating aid to a comparatively few underdeveloped countries, notably Afghanistan, India, Indonesia, Syria and Egypt, the Soviet Union was able to put on a vast display of goodness and generosity even though U. S. aid, world-wide, is far greater. Second, by stressing credits, Soviet leaders have presented their program as business-like contracting "among sovereign equals," whereas free grants of the U. S. have been represented as American attempts to dominate politically weaker nations. Third, Soviet shipments are usually visual. American shipments are often consumption goods which quickly disappear. "A dollar's worth of our surplus wheat does not have the same psychological impact as a dollar's worth of Aswan Dam in Egypt or a Russian-built steel mill in India."

Fourth, most U. S. trade is for an economic purpose. We buy what we need. The Russians say to underdeveloped countries, "Just tell us what you want and we will sell it to you, and we will accept in repayment whatever commodities you normally export."

The economic competition today, Berliner said, is not the competition of two nations competing for goods they need. Rather it is a "political competition waged with the new weapon of economic aid."

However, it's a long-run competition. Short-run advantages of Soviet seduction ought not short-change U. S. perspective. Ultimately the beneficiaries of Russian aid may discover that it isn't always as advertised. It remains to be tested—as does ours.

President Eisenhower has approved a pointless, niggling, weak-kneed compromise that permits the Army to preserve some of its dignity and half of its space-missile program. The compromise leaves the Army program weak, pleases neither Army missile workers nor sister-service rivals, and does nothing toward ending the duplication, waste and competition in our over-all missile effort. Recently Secretary of Defense McElroy proposed a raid on the Army missile program which would have handed over to the National Aeronautics and Space Agency the Army's Pasadena research laboratory, Redstone, Alabama, Arsenal and most of its missile scientists, including the noted Werner von Braun and his corps of specialists who developed the successful Jupiter rocket.

The Army cried bloody murder, and with justification. For the McElroy order hit only the Army, while sparing the less successful missile programs of the Navy and Air Force. There was about the affair a small strongly reminiscent of the Nickerson episode, when Army supporters protested that the Army, which does its own missile development, was being discriminated against inside the Administration in favor of the private laboratories and aircraft firms which develop and produce missiles for the Navy and Air Force.

Congressional Strike Attitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rash of 1958's year-end strikes overshadowed the fact that the overwhelming majority of labor-management negotiations last year ended peacefully.

But those strikes which immediately and directly affect the public, such as those against airlines and New York newspapers, raise questions.

Can the public be protected against a repetition? Can such strikes be banned? What will Congress do?

No federal law forbids such strikes. Congress rejected the principle of a strike ban when it fashioned the Taft-Hartley Act in 1947. It's unlikely to change its mind in 1959 as a result of what happened in 1958.

Public inconvenience — last year only small segments of the public were affected — has to be balanced against the freedom of workers to strike and of employers to shut their plants and freedom for both to settle their own problems.

A change in congressional thinking would appear more probable if the time came when a strike damaged the nation as a whole so badly that it seemed necessary to prevent a repetition in order to avoid disaster. Even then Congress almost certainly would not forbid strikes generally but aim, instead, at key industries broadly affecting the public. Likely targets: such public utilities as railroads, airlines, telephones, buses, electric power.

But how could there be a fair settlement in those fields if labor, to enforce its demands, could not strike and management, to put pressure on a union, could not shut down its plant?

To try to be fair to both sides, Congress probably would require compulsory arbitration. An outsider would be appointed to listen to both sides and then give a decision binding on both.

Organized labor as a whole, treasuring its freedom to strike for what it demands, is against compulsory arbitration which could force it to accept what it did not want. Management probably would oppose compulsory arbitration, too.

Congress itself turned down the idea of compulsory arbitration when it was passing the Taft-Hartley Act. So did one of the law's authors, the late Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio.

There are two major labor laws: the Railway Labor Act, covering railroads and airlines; and Taft-Hartley, covering most other interstate business and industry. MORE The Railway Act does not forbid a strike but has built-in machinery for delaying one while efforts are made to get a settlement. It's the same with Taft-Hartley.

Under T-H when the President thinks a walk-out might damage the national welfare, he can prevent a strike for 90 days. But under both acts, when all tries at a settlement fail, the strike can start.

At year's end no one seemed more pleased at the way labor and management got along in 1958 than Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

His department put out a statement this week which said in 1958 was one of the best years on record. The number of man-days lost through strike idleness was lower than any postwar year except 1957.

Mitchell praised what he called the "statesmanship" and maturity of labor and management for their record in collective bargaining in 1958.

A number of states have laws whose purpose is to prevent or forbid strikes in public utilities. But the constitutionality of these laws has been questionable ever since 1951.

That year the Supreme Court knocked down a Wisconsin law aimed at preventing a public utility strike. What the court said in effect was that the Taft-Hartley Act does not forbid such a strike; therefore, the Wisconsin law was in conflict with federal law and could not stand.

Every year since 1951 proposals have been made in Congress to ban strikes in public utilities. They got nowhere. They will be offered again this year and appear likely to face the same fate.

Around The Rim

A New Commandment

The Eleventh Commandment: Thou shalt not criticize the FBI.

That's the way it seems, from J. Edgar Hoover's recent blast at his critics. Taking umbrage with the refusal of some people to accept his organization at face value, Hoover loosed a blast at his critics, charging them en masse with being either Communists or Communist sympathizers.

He should know better. Undoubtedly, some critics are red or pink in their political coloration, but certainly not the majority. His most devastating critics have been reporters, and their criticism stems mainly from the newshound's traditional irreverence for holy cows.

It is a fact of life that after a man has been in office long enough, he begins to believe himself and his organization to be indispensable. Not even the best of men are immune.

No one denies that, on an overall basis, Hoover and his FBI have done a job that is more than just commendable. But few would assent to the theory that the FBI can do no wrong.

Come off it, Edgar; you're beginning to show your years.

A critic of another kind faced jail this week. She is Maria Torres, entertainment critic for a New York newspaper who refused to divulge her sources of information. The judge gave her a choice of exposing her informant or going to jail, and sugar-coated his decision with a this-hurts-more-etc. line of malarky.

The case had to do with a libel suit resulting from a statement by an entertainment executive that Judy Garland was known to have an inferiority complex. The judges action had nothing to do with alleged libel, of which there is obviously little or none, but with Mrs. Torres' refusal to identify the executive. As it turns out, the executive's identity was important only to the plaintiff's lawyers as a courtroom weapon, not to the case itself.

There is an important Constitutional question involved here: whether freedom of the press includes the reporter's right to secret contacts, without which no exposes could ever be made. Exposes such as the land scandals that sent Bascom Giles to prison, or that destroyed the feudal power of George Parr.

The Supreme Court refused to rule on the Torres case, and it has consistently ducked similar issues in the past. Perhaps the justices are afraid of finding themselves in the dilemma of (1) slapping down their fellow judges or (2) muzzling the press. A ruling on such a case would involve one or the other, so the court apparently backs off and delays the day of reckoning.

Appellate judges are notoriously loathe to reverse their fellow jurists, except on technicalities. It seems legalism has become more important than justice.

Inez Robb

That Gift From The Unknown Giver

There is a Christmas conspiracy abroad to ruin my peace of mind. It is a conspiracy of full 20 years' duration, with the result that I am developing a pitiful persecution complex. Don't be surprised if, in another year or two, you see soothing, reassuring editorials in the newspapers reading: "Yes, Inez, There Is a Santa Claus, Crazy Mixed-Up but Still S. Claus."

It isn't that I lack faith—oh, I have loved Christmas and everything connected with it beyond reason all my life—but that my faith has been sorely tested over two decades.

Not one year in these 20 or more has there failed to arrive at Chez Robb a Christmas package addressed to me but completely and wholly without any clue to the giver. "The gift without the giver is bare," said the poet, in one of literature's 10 strikes.

It's more than bare; it's maddening. From the moment you open the package and scramble through the tissue, the excelsior and the festive wrappings to find the card and from the bleak second you realize that said card is nonexistent, the shine begins to come out of Christmas and unquestioning faith out of Santa.

If you do not acknowledge the gift—and how can you when even Sherlock Holmes would wash his hands of the job?—you are haunted by the fear that you are mortally offending one of your dearest friends who is too proud to ask if you received this particular piece of lagniappe. And how in the world can you thank the lout if he doesn't have sufficient buttons to include his her card with the fruit cake or the antimacassar or the planter hand-crafted from an abandoned dovecot?

Every year I pray that this burden will be lifted from me, but every year that unidentified package slips by the household guard. This season it arrived in the form of a Lalique glass cigarette container; obviously the perfect gift for the woman who has everything, including a husband, who is a human chimney.

If such a gift is sent from a store or a gift shoppe, it is sometimes impossible to take the offending item back and be the emporium, reluctant though it be, to try to trace the identity of the missing giver.

But this is not always sure-fire. Once, 10 years ago, I carried a beautiful handkerchief to a famous Fifth Avenue store and asked if it could trace the giver who had failed to include his card.

The salesgirl at the handkerchief counter said casually, "It won't be easy. That handkerchief is in the $20 range."

Holy smoke, I thought, $20 for a handkerchief! I never knew they could cost so much. Surely, something so expensive and rare in handkerchiefs would be easily traced to the profligate buyer, I said. "Not in this stor-ah," the languid salesgirl said haughtily, and that was that.

This year's gift of Lalique apparently arrived via carrier pigeon while my back was turned, and I haven't the foggiest notion where to start the bloodhounds and the private eye.

And somewhere out yonder, someone is getting madder by the minute because he has had no acknowledgement of the gift. But his head of steam isn't a patch on mine. My stack is going, going, GONE.

'Equal Protection Under The Law'

WASHINGTON—If you are a labor leader and violate a court order, you may have to pay a fine but the Department of Justice asks the court not to send you to prison.

If you are a businessman and violate a court order, or if you are the businessman's secretary merely carrying out his instructions, the Department of Justice says nothing one way or the other, and the court sentences you both to jail.

This is certainly not "equal protection of the laws," and yet it's what has just happened in a criminal contempt case in Boston where, without benefit of a jury trial, an arbitrary and unusual punishment has been inflicted upon Bernard Goldfine and his secretary, Miss Mildred Paperman. They complied with the court order but were just a few days late.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, was convicted of criminal contempt in 1946, and Judge Goldsborough of the U.S. District Court fined him $10,000 but, at the request of the Department of Justice, no prison sentence was imposed. The offense was the violation of a court order demanding that there be no interference with the operations of the coal mines which the government had seized.

The whole subject of criminal contempt presents a shocking record of special privilege and favoritism. Congress, by law, has given labor unions certain immunities in criminal contempt cases. For one thing, jury trials are now required whenever there is disobedience of an injunction in a labor dispute.

The Constitution is explicit on the matter of jury trials. It says in two different articles:

"The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury . . .

"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury . . .

"Why is the Constitution being violated? Largely because most American lawyers and judges have accepted the English common law practice on criminal contempt as an unwritten part of the American Constitution.

Justice Warren and Justice Douglas, wrote:

"The power of a judge to inflict punishment for criminal contempt by means of a summary proceeding stands as an anomaly in the law. In my judgment the time has come for a fundamental and searching reconsideration of the validity of this power which has aptly been characterized by a state supreme court as, 'perhaps, nearest akin to despotic power of any power existing under our form of government.'

"Even though this extraordinary authority first slipped into the law as a very limited and insignificant thing, it has relentlessly swollen, at the hands of not unwilling judges, until it has become a drastic and pervasive mode of administering criminal justice usurping our regular constitutional methods of trying those charged with offenses against society . . .

"No official, regardless of his position or the purity and nobleness of his character, should be granted such autocratic omnipotence . . .

"Judges are not essentially different from other government officials. Fortunately they remain human even after assuming their judicial duties. Like all the rest of mankind they may be affected from time to time by pride and passion, by pettiness and bruised feelings, by improper understanding or by excessive zeal . . .

"When the responsibilities of lawmaker, prosecutor, judge, jury and disciplinarian are thrust upon a judge he is obviously incapable of holding the scales of justice perfectly fair and true and reflecting impartially on the guilt or innocence of the accused. He truly becomes the judge of his own cause. The defendant charged with criminal contempt is thus denied what I had always thought to be an indispensable element of due process of law — an objective, scrupulously impartial tribunal to determine whether he is guilty or innocent of the charges filed against him."

No more persuasive statement in favor of jury trials in criminal contempt cases has come from anyone else on the Supreme Court, and it may mark a turning point, in nearly 150 years of disregard of the basic command of the Constitution that "in all criminal prosecutions" there should be the right to trial by jury.

REBELS NIP JAYHAWKS IN TOURNEY THRILLER

Arlington State, white-hot from the field, blistered HCJC's Jayhawks with consistent shooting and unerring ball control for three-fourths of the ball game, and stopped a Big Spring rally in the final moments for a first-round 76-75 victory in the seventh annual Howard County Invitational Tournament.

The Rebels thus advanced to the semi-finals against tall and talented Wharton, which sported a 37-point firing ace, Jerry Spence, in its 79-66 triumph over Schreiner yesterday.

In a 1 p.m. game yesterday San Angelo was at ease in pelting short, quick Temple, 76-54, while Amarillo had to play cold, deadly basketball in ousting tournament dark horse Odessa, 78-62, from championship consideration.

In its win over HCJC, Arlington State riddled the basket for 38 per cent in the first half and 59 per cent the last 20 minutes. Shaky Howard County, which played ball sufficient only to stay in the game during the first half, had 37 per cent to begin with and connected on 45 per cent the last half.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:
The late BILL CORUM, top New York sports writer and president of Churchill Downs:

"There was, of course, no real golden age of sports. The memories of our own happiest and most vivid age are what makes golden ages in anything."

AL LOPEZ, Chicago White Sox manager:
"Detroit offered us Billy Hoelt in a trade. If I thought Hoelt's arm was all right, I might have made it. But the Tigers wouldn't tell me yes or no."

LOU SMITH, Cincinnati sports writer:
"Terry Brennan helped post his own number at Notre Dame when he said, 'if they think somebody can do a better job as head coach, they can put him in.' You don't make statements like that to the good press at N. D., and come out smelling like a rose."

DOC HAYES, SMU basketball coach:
"Kim Nash is as fine a guard as I've ever had and I've never had a boy with such diversified talents as Max Williams."

HERB ELLIOTT, the great Australian runner, on why he ran 33 miles in four hours recently while training in his home country:
"Those long, hard road runs teach one to fight against pain. That's what keeps me going faster during a mile run when I feel I want to stop."

RANDY DUNCAN, Iowa's All-American, commenting on the behavior of California's Joe Kapp when both were in New York recently for a football party:
"Every time I turned around, Kapp was looking at me real hard. That boy sure wants to beat us bad."

SHUG JORDAN, Auburn coach:
"I think Bear Bryant has, in his first year at Alabama, done the best coaching job I have ever heard of."

LSU's Paul Dietzel, on why he wouldn't consider coaching offers from Notre Dame or Southern California:
"The prestige wouldn't be worth the aggravation."

JOE GORDON, manager of the Cleveland Indians:
"I honestly believe we have an outside chance to win the pennant next year but I'm not going around predicting anything like that. I think if everything goes right we'll be in the race. I think Billy Martin is a fine second baseman and I think he'll give the club the leadership it needs. But I think our real strength is pitching. In my opinion, we have the best pitching staff in the league. I wouldn't trade our top ten pitchers for the Yankees' top ten."

FRANK HOWARD, Clemson's football coach:
"Maybe LSU has the Chinese Bandits but we have the 'One-Armed Bandit.' I mean by that we have the slot-machine type of play."

DR. JOSEPH B. WOLFFE, in an address delivered before the International Congress of Sports Medicine in Moscow:
"Golf has a beneficial effect on heart and blood vessels, provided the objective in playing is not competitive. If golfers have to bet on every hole they play, they are safer in a poker game than on the golf course."

IN ODESSA MEET Steers To Oppose Lamesa Tornados

ODESSA (SC) — The Big Spring Steers and the Golden Tornados of Lamesa open play in the Odessa Invitational Basketball Tournament here today, squaring off at 2 p.m.

The Longhorns are slightly favored to finish in front but Lamesa, boasting a fine shot and play-maker in Kenneth Barr, is dangerous and appears capable of upsetting the Longhorns.

Odessa, which meets a comparative weak Kermit outfit in a 9 o'clock engagement tonight, is the overwhelming favorite to replace Big Spring as the champion. Johnny Malaise's Red Hoses, little but fast, have recited off 17 straight wins and earlier this week breezed to the championship in the Dallas Cotton Bowl Tournament.

Should Big Spring get by Lamesa, it will meet the winner in the Odessa-Kermit game.

In other first round action, Monahans takes on Ysleta at 5:30 p.m. while Midland, the second-rated team, challenges Odessa Ector at 7 p.m.

Monahans and Midland are clear-cut favorites. If both win, they clash in the second round Friday. Midland has a 10-1 won-lost record, having lost only to Seminole early in the season. The Bulldogs have the tallest team in the tournament.

Big Spring goes into the tournament with a 10-5 won-lost mark. The Steers were to have played Plainview earlier this week but that engagement was weathered out.

Two of the clubs which defeated Big Spring were defeated decisively by Odessa. They were Seminole and El Paso Jefferson.

The closest game may be the one between Ysleta and Monahans. Both teams boast identical 6-3 records. Ysleta lost to Midland, Las Cruces, N.M.; and Lamesa but defeated the latter in a second game.

Monahans dropped games to San Angelo, Eunice and El Paso High. The Lobos also hold a win over Lamesa.

Kermit and Odessa Ector have the poorest records of any of the tournament teams. Kermit has won only one of nine starts. Ector has yet to win in nine games.

Big Spring nosed out Odessa in the finals of last year's meet, 58-56.

All eight places in the tournament will be determined, so Big Spring is assured of playing three games. Championship finals are Saturday night.

Probable Steer starters against Lamesa today are Benny McCrary, Joe Bob Clenderin, Zay LeFevre, Bill Thompson and Preston Hollis.

Moyer Seeking 19th Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—Fight fans start the New Year with a look at something brand new in Denny Moyer, a 19-year-old welterweight from Portland, Ore. who has won all of his 18 pro fights.

Young Moyer, of French-Irish parentage, appears before a net-wire NBC television camera for the first time tonight when he boxes sardonic Gaspar Ortega of Mexicali, Mexico in Madison Square Garden. The 10-round match also will be carried on NBC radio, starting at 10 p.m. (EST).

It may be that Moyer, a former AAU champion, will open and close in one. On the other hand, it may be the first of many appearances in the big arenas.

Boxing certainly needs new faces badly. It can't afford to wait. However, the expert opinion that has made Ortega an 8 to 5 favorite thinks the youngster is being rushed when he is pitted against an experienced opponent who has had 62 pro fights.

Moyer has a brother, Phil, who is campaigning as a middleweight. Their father, Harry, also was a pro fighter and an uncle, Tommy, is the promoter in Portland where the boys have had most of their fights.

Under New York rules a 19-year-old isn't permitted to box 10 rounds unless special permission is granted. The special permission was forthcoming for Denny, who has fought six 10-rounders in other arenas. The better-known boxers he has beaten while compiling his 18-0 record (four knockouts) have been Al Andrews, Johnny Saxton and Tony Dupas. He outpointed all three.

Iowans Compel New Respect After Win

Louisiana State the national football champion probably will get a strong argument over the honor from second place Iowa today in the wake of the Sugar and Rose Bowl games.

Both teams were heavily favored—LSU by 15 points over Clemson in the Sugar Bowl and Iowa by 18 over California, in the Rose Bowl. Only Iowa proved the oddsmakers correct.

The Hawkeyes scored in every period to overwhelm California, the Pacific Coast Conference king, 38-12. LSU had to call on Coach Paul Dietzel to call the play that defeated Clemson 7-0.

Oklahoma did as expected and defeated dogged Syracuse 21-6 in the Orange Bowl. Air Force pulled a mild upset in playing Southwest Conference champion Texas Christian to a 0-0 tie in a battle of fumbles and mistakes in the Cotton Bowl. Prairie View A&M wallopped Langston 34-8 in the Prairie View Bowl.

Iowa was runner-up to the Bayou Bengals in the final Associated Press poll that settled the national championship. But the Big Ten champs were not expected to have as easy a time as they did against an outweighed, outmaneuvered Cal team.

On the other hand, LSU, with its White, Go and Chinese Bandits three-team varsity specialists, was expected to have some trouble from a hefty Clemson line, but by sheer weight of numbers, were supposed to have things their way in the end.

The Clemson line didn't weaken. A broken right hand by LSU quarterback Warren Rabb on the third play of the game put him out for the second half. These two factors weighed heavily in forcing Dietzel to revamp his offensive plans—and hope.

The wisp of hope came in the third period when Clemson center Paul Snyder got a firmer grip on some turf than on the ball on a snap-back to punter Bill Mathis. The ball sailed widely and bounced off the knee of blocker Doug Cline. It was recovered by LSU tackle Duane Leopold on the Clemson 11.

Two plays gained only one yard and on third down All America halfback Billy Cannon, the game's most valuable player, started wide, spotted end Mickey Mangham and hit him with a pass for the score. Cannon kicked the extra point.

Iowa never had a worry in the Rose Bowl, although they fumbled at the start. Led by Bob (Jet) Jester, the Hawkeyes, winning their second Rose Bowl, rolled up 516 yards overall, 25 more than former recordholder Michigan in 1948 against Southern Cal.

Jester ran 81 yards for one score, breaking Northwestern's Frank Aschenbrenner's record of 71 against Cal in 1949. He also gained 194 yards overall, 45 more than Bobby Grayson of Stanford against Columbia in 1934, the previous record.

Iowa scored the second time it had the ball, and managed at least one TD per quarter against a Cal line outweighed an average of 18 pounds per man.

Jack Hart scored both Cal TDs, one on a yard plunge, the other on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Joe Kapp.

Oklahoma used its blinding speed to build up a 14-0 first period lead, added another score in the third and then got pushed around for the rest of the game by a Syracuse line that didn't melt in the 78 degree heat.

Fullback Prentice Gault raced 42 yards on the second play of the game for the first Sooner score. Brewster Hobby combined with end Russ Coyle for a 79-yard pass play for the second TD—a new Orange Bowl record for distance, and Hobby took a punt 40 yards for the third score.

Mike Weber's 15-yard plunge in the final quarter got Syracuse, which won the battle of statistics, its TD.

The four major games were on national television and a total live audience of 331,082 sat in on 1959's first taste of college football. The largest turnout was 98,297 at the Rose, followed by the 82,000 at the Sugar, 75,504 at the Cotton and 75,281 at the Orange.

BOBBLES HARMFUL Frogs And Falcons In Scoreless Tie

Frogs, no doubt, would be licking their wounds today.

Jack Spikes, the big junior from Snyder, was voted the game's most outstanding back. He rode the defense of Joe Robb and Don Floyd for a number of nice gains in the second half after being fairly well contained during the first two periods.

His sophomore team-mate and fellow townsmen, Milton Ham, blocked well and was rugged on defense what time he was in action. And Bubba Meyer, an end who used to play for Sweetwater, was on the receiving end of the longest pass of the day, a 37-yarder from San Angeloan Marvin Laster that carried all the way to Air Force's 35 in the third period.

For a fleeting instant it appeared that Bubba would hook up and go all the way but he made the mistake of cutting back in an effort to pick up blockers, bobbled as he was tackled and Jimmy Gilmore of Ennis made the recovery for TCU.

The Falcons bruised TCU's eight-yard line in the second period but a five-yard penalty cost them at that point and they had to settle for a fruitless field goal try.

Spikes, who gained 108 yards in 17 thrusts for the Frogs, tried both of the Texans' field goals. Both were short.

The Frogs carried all the way to the Academy, looked able following Meyer's catch, their deepest penetration, but Dave Phillips, a tackle from Burbank, Calif., fell on Spikes' fumble on the 14 on a critical play and TCU had blown its golden opportunity.

Rich Mayo, the Falcon's celebrated quarterback, looked able at the net, although John Kuenzel and Eddie Rosane spelled him often. Mayo, a 170-pounder, is only a sophomore, so he has a lot of time to develop.

Oddly enough, this was only the second shutout in the 23-year history of the bowl and, as in the other year in '47, both sides were frustrated.

The Falcons became the sentimental favorites of the 75,504 present early in the game. From then on, they could do no wrong. Their big failing, however, was the fact that they did little right when it really counted.

South Gridders Favorites In Senior Bowl Battle

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A proven scoring combination helped establish the South as a touchdown favorite in Saturday's Senior Bowl football game.

In giving Coach Paul Brown's squad the edge, the oddsmakers favored the South in the Shrine Bowl game at Miami when Buddy Humphrey of Baylor threw three scoring passes to Mississippi State's Billy Stacy.

Humphrey also tossed two other touchdowns in the South's 49-20 victory in that game. He was the nation's top collegiate passer this season with 1,316 yards on 112 completions in 195 attempts.

Humphrey and Stacy will be in Brown's offensive backfield Saturday and it'll be a big surprise if they don't try to make plenty of yardage through the air.

The other South backs are Georgia's 200-pound fullback plunger, Thomas Sapp, and another husky runner, 195-pound Don Brown of Houston.

Joe Kuharich's North squad is not lacking in passers or runners either.

He plans to start Boston College's Don Allard at quarterback. Allard, first round draft choice of the Washington Redskins, threw for seven touchdowns during the season. He passed for 691 yards.

To spell him is the No. 1 quarterback of 1957, Lee Grosscup of Utah. Grosscup, first draft choice of the New York Giants, led the nation in passing yardage a year ago with 1,398.

Other backs in the North offensive backfield will be Joe Morrison, Cincinnati; Alan Miller, a Boston College teammate of Allard and Norm Odyniec, Notre Dame.

About 38,000 are expected for the game, which will be nationally televised by NBC with a black-out within a 100-mile radius of Mobile.

Kickoff is at 2 p.m. (CST).

Forsan Blasts Toyah, 57-36

FORSAN (SC)—The Sterling City and Garden City girls teams and Stanton and Forsan boys teams reached the semi-finals of the Forsan High School Tournament last night, and four other first-round games come off today.

In the feature game last night, Forsan toyed with Toyah, 57-36, in a boys game while Stanton's men ran off from Sterling City, 48-22.

In the girls bracket, Forsan B lost to Garden City, 40-27, and Stanton bowed to Sterling City, 55-52, in a thriller.

In four other first-set games today are: Water Valley-Coahoma girls, 4:15 p.m.; Water Valley-Coahoma boys, 6:30 p.m.; Forsan-Rankin girls, 8 p.m.; and Ackerly-Garden City boys at 9:15 in the feature game.

Top game last night was the Sterling City-Stanton girls battle. Stanton led by four points, 28-24 at halftime, but Sterling plowed back in front and repelled a late rally.

Linda Glaze, stellar Stanton forward, had two free shots with two seconds left and the Sterling team in front, 53-51. She ripped the cords with her first, but the second bounded away, barely averting an overtime period.

Garden City romped to a 23-13 halftime lead over Forsan B in their 40-27 triumph. Wanda Williams scored 23 for the winners; Wilma Banks had 15 for the losers.

Norman Donaldson tallied 18 in Stanton's easy win over Sterling. No player hit in double figures for the losers, who trailed 17-6 at the half.

These maps, prepared from information supplied by the U.S. Weather Bureau, show the precipitation and temperature outlook for the nation for the next 30 days.

Thirty-Day Forecast

No one in this part of West Texas will quarrel with the U. S. Weather Bureau if it can make its 30-day forecast for January pan out. The weather map just released by the Bureau indicates this part of the nation should have what the Bureau calls above normal precipitation — the past month has definitely been subnormal — and the temperatures will be much below normal.

The Januaries in which less than a quarter inch of rain was received are more common than those where as much as an inch fell.

U.S. Keeps Eye On Safety Of Citizens In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. government kept watch today on the safety of its citizens in Cuba and waited cautiously for the formation of a new government there. Both the White House and the State Department discounted the possibility of major danger to U.S. citizens despite some rioting and uncertainty which followed collapse of the regime of Cuba's President Fulgencio Batista.

Duval Sheriff Sits Tight In Face Of Parr Faction

SAN DIEGO, Tex. (AP)—Duval County Sheriff J. P. Stockwell sat tight in his office today, and said a successor named by county commissioners will need a court order to unseat him. With followers of political boss George B. Parr now holding a majority, the commissioners appointed Vidal Garcia sheriff yesterday. Stockwell said Garcia, accompanied by a lawyer, showed up at the sheriff's office in the afternoon and indicated he was ready to take charge. "I turned him down," Stockwell said, "and told him in my opinion of pending litigation over the office. The Duval commissioners convened promptly at midnight Wednesday, when the terms of new office holders began, and appointed Garcia to the office. Rumors had circulated that the commissioners again would try to certify Parr, and Stockwell stood by with half a dozen of his deputies to resist any effort to take over the sheriff's office. Tension subsided after the appointment of Garcia was announced. Stockwell closed his office for the night as usual. He said his deputies needed sleep after the long vigil. U.S. Payroll Drops WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) reported today the number of federal employees dropped 765 in November from the October total of 2,355,482.

Naval Intelligence Off To Poor Start

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The year started badly for the local branch of the U. S. Navy Department of Counter-Intelligence. It was notified on New Year's Day that one of its sedans had been stolen by a 14-year-old boy. "The Navy made it easy for me. They left the key in the ignition," he told authorities.

Rose Parade Thugs Make A Big Haul

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The sun smiled on Pasadena's Rose Parade Thursday and on the busy band of pickpockets working the big crowd. Thirty-five wallets containing a total of $2,000 were lifted by light-fingered operators, police said. It was the biggest haul in years.

Atom Victim Ruled Dead By Nerve Damage

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP)—A medical expert says a technician killed by radiation in a Los Alamos atomic laboratory died from damage to his central nervous system. He also says it may have been the first death of that type outside of war. Dr. Thomas Shipman, head of the health division of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, says it was more than damage to the bone marrow-blood forming system that caused the death. Cecil W. Kelley, 38, who had worked in the atomic laboratory about 11 years, died Thursday, 36 hours after the accident.

He was preparing a process to extract plutonium and said all he recalled was a flash as he started a stir operation in a tank. Dr. Shipman said there are three types of fatal radiation injuries. He used the three radiation deaths which have occurred at Los Alamos in 13 as examples. The first was that of Harry K. Dahlgren in September 1945. Shipman said Dahlgren received "something like" 800 to 900 roentgens and died in 26 days. Shipman called it a "blood forming system, bone marrow death." A roentgen is the international unit quantity of roentgen, or X-rays. The second death was that of Dr. Louis B. Slotin in 1946. Shipman said Slotin received a radiation dose of about 1,900 roentgens and died in nine days of damage to the gastro-intestinal tract. As for Kelley's death, Shipman said, "when a person gets a dose of 4,000 to 5,000 roentgens, then the victim dies in from one to six days from damage to the central nervous system."

Shipman said he believes that "outside of warfare, this may be the first death" of this type. "I think it is, other than the bomb casualties in Japan," he said. Those were the deaths caused by the atomic bombing of Nagasaki and Hiroshima, which ended World War II.

DEAR ABBY

STILL A BABY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter married without our consent but because we loved her we accepted this boy with an open heart. He is selfish, inconsiderate and stubborn. Two months after their marriage she became pregnant. She is expecting in May. Our son-in-law came to us yesterday and told us they decided to give the child up for adoption. He said he didn't want the responsibility of a baby as he is too young (he's 19) and he wants our daughter to continue working and a baby would be in the way. We pleaded with him but got nowhere. My daughter wants the baby but her husband says if she keeps it he will leave her. (We'd gladly take her and the baby.) She doesn't know which way to turn. Please advise her through me to make a wise decision. JUST MOM

DEAR MOM: Your son-in-law wants none of the responsibility of marriage. He bought himself a bed-parter for the price of the marriage license. Tell your daughter to keep her baby and if her "husband" leaves, he leaves. A legal separation with provisions for the baby's support might be just what the boy needs to help him grow up.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 16-year-old boy who takes out an 18-year-old and gives her instructions not to order anything on the menu that costs over 70 cents? Then for a tip he puts down 20 pennies? I have never been so humiliated in all my life. ANGIE

DEAR ANGIE: When you play with Little Leaguers you have to go by their rules.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I invite a few couples in for a sociable evening, my husband always starts the conversation with, "How's business?" The men start talking about business and we women sit there like dummies or we have to start our own conversation about clothes or children. I want everybody to have a good time, but no matter how many times I try to change the conversation to include the women, they always end up talking about business.

DEAR ABBY: Your child is spoiled because you can't spank two grandmothers.

DEAR ABBY: For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of The Big Spring Herald. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mexico's Envoy To Protest Air Attack

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico's ambassador to Guatemala has been ordered to protest orally against an attack on Mexican fishing boats by Guatemalan planes. A crisis between the two countries appeared to be building up. The Guatemalan government announced Wednesday its planes had gunned three fishing boats trespassing in Guatemala's territorial waters.

Ike Urges 'Peace' For Berlin In 1959

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower has told Russian leaders their professed desire for peace should be applied to their handling of the Berlin crisis. He made a pointed reply in an exchange of New Year's greetings with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Klementi E. Voroshilov. Their message, delivered to Eisenhower's farm home near here, expressed hope that 1959 would see an end to "fears of the dangers of a new world war." Eisenhower — watching a football game on television when the message came in — fired back a cablegram saying he shared the Russians' hopes. He agreed that "genuine efforts" might well be fruitful. He went on to say: "As of this moment it seems to us critically important to apply the sentiments expressed in your message to the Berlin situation. In this connection, I cannot fail to recall your government's declaration toward the people of Berlin." He referred to the Russians' announced intention to make Berlin a free city — which would mean Western withdrawal from a key city that, in this country's view, would then inevitably come under Communist rule. Eisenhower said the Russians' moves to take over Berlin "are not in accord with your expressed aspirations and hopes for peaceful coexistence." Then Eisenhower reiterated the stand taken by the United States, Britain and France in formal notes delivered only Wednesday to the Kremlin. Those notes, rejecting Russia's demand that they leave within six months to leave Berlin, suggested a general conference on German problems. "The United States government," Eisenhower said, "repeats that, in an atmosphere devoid of any kind of coercion and threat, it would welcome discussion on the question of Berlin in the wider framework of the whole German problem and European security. Positive progress in this specific problem would, I deeply believe, give real substance to the hope that 1959 would witness great advances toward the goal of a just and lasting peace." "The Russians' note was much like one they sent last year — by commercial cable and telegram directly to the President rather than through diplomatic channels. This one came the same way. Khrushchev and Voroshilov told the President: "We would like to express the hope that in the coming year our countries will unite their efforts in the search for a way toward the settlement of international problems, for the cessation of the cold war which is hated by the people, with the aim of reducing international tensions. "The development of friendly cooperation on the basis of principles of peaceful coexistence between states would permit the deliverance of mankind from feelings of alarm for the future, from fears of the dangers of a new war."
