Bow And Arrow Bill Approved By House

AUSTIN (AP)—The House decided today to allow bow and arrow hunters to chase deer, turkey and other wild game in less than half of Texas' 254 counties.

It approved by voice vote a bill to allow land owners in about 100 counties to permit Texas archers to hunt during October. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Who'dunnit? read a sign Rep. W. T. Oliver of Port Neches carried around his neck this morning. He also had an arrow strapped across the top of his head.

Rip Figures In 'Dry' Play At Okla. School

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Rip Van Winkle, a fictional sleepyhead, woke up in the center of a liquor controversy in dry Oklahoma yesterday.

As portrayed in an Oklahoma City elementary school drama by retired professional actor John Parsons, Rip was a ready man with the jug.

Parsons made this clear to Buchanan school children by wagging about the stage and wrapping up his performance with a question.

"Do you know what caused old Rip's troubles?" he asked the little ones. "Whisky" replied his audience in unison.

But some mothers weren't too sure and termed it "propaganda", in commenting on the performance. "A fine moral lesson," cheered the other side.

"The moral lesson is certainly there," says Parsons, who penned the script of his performance. "I meant for it to be, but we don't propound on it."

"I think it's a shame we have to bring poor old Rip into this thing," sighed Buchanan's PTA president, Mrs. H. F. Coyne, after further performances were cancelled.

Oklahoma votes April 7 to resolve "this thing" by voting for or against liquor prohibition. Parsons said he makes his living by touring the country and staging plays for school children.

Coahoma Water Rate Lowered

Water rates for customers at Coahoma will be a cent cheaper than quoted by the City Commission Tuesday.

The commission at its meeting Tuesday night set the rate for water to the Coahoma Water District at 32 1/2 cents per 1,000 gallons as compared with 30 cents the past year.

However, City Manager A. K. Steinheimer today said that a check of figures revealed an error in computing, and the cost should be 31 1/2 cents rather than 32 1/2. This change has been sent on to Coahoma officials, he said.

Cliburn Undergoes Surgery For Finger

NEW YORK (AP)—Pianist Van Cliburn underwent surgery today to drain an abscess on the middle finger of his right hand.

"The operation was satisfactory, and he is resting comfortably," said an announcement from the Hospital for Special Surgery.

Dirksen Asks Less Talk On Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill) underlined the potential gravity of the Berlin crisis today by pleading for less talk on Capitol Hill while President Eisenhower weighs "the hour-to-hour developments."

Dirksen, the Senate's Republican leader and chief administration spokesman, cautioned in an interview against headline-making speeches or any hasty action that might affect critical negotiations.

Renewed tension over the Berlin situation exploded in the Senate Thursday with Democratic demands for a stepped-up defense program and for alerting the people to any eventuality—including the possibility of a shooting war.

Adding to the apprehension were the uncompromising tone of recent speeches by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the apparent lack of any favorable results in Khrushchev's Moscow talks this week with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The House Liquor Regulations Committee discussed religion for several hours before sending to subcommittee proposals to close beer sales at 10 p.m. daily and prohibit sales on Sunday.

O. F. Dinger, executive secretary of the Texas Alcohol - Narcotics Education Inc., was accused by several members of saying Catholics were not Christians because some drink beer on Sunday.

He answered a question saying he thought "the wet and dry issue pretty well divides the Christians from the unsaved."

'Must Stem Tide Of Disillusionment'

Who will stick his finger in the dike and stem the tide of disillusionment members of the Big Spring Classroom Teachers Assn. were asked last night.

You must, Dr. Earl L. Koos, sociology professor at Texas Tech, told the teachers.

This is the time of decision—when we must develop the national character to withstand the ravages of change, Dr. Koos declared.

Approximately 130 teachers, school administrators and guests attended the annual BSCTA banquet. Dr. Koos was the principal speaker for the event in the high school cafeteria.

He stressed that Americans are living in an era of tremendous change, with one of every eight families now residing in different counties from their places of residence a year ago.

The change is taking in both technology and ideology, Dr. Koos said. Planned obsolescence—with automobiles, appliances and other material things deliberately being outmoded almost annually—is the principal reason for industrial expansion, he said. Ideological changes have "made the devil less important" as an instrument of fear, he said.

As an example, we are concerned with communism as a military threat rather than as an ideological enemy, he said.

The chief task of education is not the provision of new buildings and new learning, but to see that the persons who come out of schools are equipped to live in a world of technical and ideological change.

Most civilizations which have perished have done so because they lacked the national character to stand up in the face of change. Educators must take the lead in developing that kind of character for America, Dr. Koos declared.

British Round Up African Leaders

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—A steady stream of native politicians was rushed into confinement behind barbed wire today as the British rulers of Southern Rhodesia pushed a roundup of African nationalist leaders.

Despite the proclamation of a state of emergency in Southern Rhodesia and the banning of the African National party, both that territory and neighboring Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia were reported quiet.

The detention camp hurriedly set up at Bulawayo, 230 miles southwest of Salisbury, was rapidly filling. The government pressed a hunt for other leaders of Rhodesia's leading African nationalist organization, blamed for riots last week in Nyasaland.

Pamphlets in local dialects were being distributed, telling Africans the meaning of the state of emergency.

At the big Kariba hydroelectric project, where 6,000 African workers went on strike for higher pay Wednesday, 4,500 were reported back at work. The company raised the pay.

Reports that African nationalists continued to control some outlying airstrips in Nyasaland brought a request for a group of paratroop veterans to recapture the strips. The Africans had blocked the strips.

The previous disturbances and the threat of more trouble brought a 12-fold increase in riot insurance on homes in Nyasaland.

LIFE AS USUAL. In Salisbury, life went on much as usual. No troops were seen in the streets—and not even many policemen.

But some Africans warned that the arrests of between 250 and 500 African National party leaders in Southern Rhodesia were bound to have a bad effect on the two million blacks in this territory dominated by 176,000 whites.

One of those seized was Daniel Mazimabuto, a coproducer of the film "African Drum Rolls" which drew its usual packed audience here last night. He is director of the African Cultural Syndicate and a nationalist leader.

Salisbury is the capital of both this self-governing territory and the Central African Federation, which also includes the British protectorates of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

Southern Rhodesia Prime Minister Sir Edgar Whitehead said he proclaimed the emergency to save the federation—a member of the British Commonwealth—from extreme nationalism which, he said, "would be fatal." His aim obviously was to round up nationalist leaders.

The only violence in the federation so far has been in Nyasaland, not in Southern Rhodesia. But British colonial authorities, who have jurisdiction over the two protectorates, gave the impression they did not take such a serious view of the current flareups of African nationalism.

While officially describing the situation as tense, they have not declared any emergency in the protectorates. The African National party, fermenter of the anti-British wave, has not been banned in those areas and there has been no move to arrest its leaders.

Whitehead's authority as premier of Southern Rhodesia does not extend to the other two territories in the federation.

This left out of reach of his roundup Dr. Hastings Banda, 54, the fiery head of the National party in Nyasaland, who proudly calls himself "the extremist of the extremists."

Pacific Salute. The aircraft carrier USS Ranger, her flight deck jammed with planes, sails past the sunken hull of the USS Arizona, under right, on recent arrival at Pearl Harbor. 'Continental' Style Lifts Hopes Of U.S. Men's Wear Retailers

By WALTER BREEDE JR. AP Business News Analyst. NEW YORK (AP)—Men's wear retailers with an eye out for something new that will induce the hardy male to part with a few bucks are pinning their hopes on the "Continental."

Styled in sunny Italy, the continental suit is popping up in a few selected men's apparel shops this spring, vying for attention with the still popular Ivy.

Men, among the most conservative of this earth's creatures, are looking and comparing but they aren't buying next. At least, not many are buying.

Retailers hope the fad will start to catch on next fall. "If this thing works out, you'll see a rash of buying by October," says one. "By the spring of 1960 we'll be well into a fashion craze that should sweep the nation."

Leslie F. Vail, president of a men's apparel chain, sees a great future for the Continental suit among rising executives who he says have literally and figuratively outgrown Ivy.

"Ivy belongs in a special college department," says Vail. "Once the post-grad begins to get a little thick around the middle, the Ivy suit makes him look like a savage."

Several swank Fifth Avenue shops here are plugging Continental hard—at prices up to $150 for ready-to-wear suits. In the larger cities you can also find the Continental in factory-owned chain stores and at certain avant garde or "way out" shops that cater to extremists. Prices start at about $30.

In case you haven't seen one, the jacket is one to one-and-a-half inches shorter than that of the Ivy or conventional "American lounge." It has squared shoulders, narrow, peaked lapels, pockets that slant backwards, and a cut-away front. The most popular style has two front buttons and side vents.

Unlike the straight hanging Ivy or the bulky American lounge, the Continental follows the contours of the body—and the contours are those usually associated with business success, plenty of nourishing food and drink, not too much physical exercise, and middle age.

The jacket's lower half artfully conceals any incipient bay window. From that point down, the front is cut back sharply. The over-all effect is one of worldly sophistication and youthful slenderness. Pants are pleated, tapered and without cuffs.

Growing acceptance of the Continental will spur new fads in hats, shoes, shirts, sports jackets and topcoats, retail experts assert. You'll want a shirt with a pleated front, featherweight shoes of black grain leather, a short, double-breasted overcoat or topcoat and a derby. Maybe even spats.

Once the Continental craze gains momentum, say merchants, it won't be stopped for a long time.

Judge Performs First Marriage

Ed Carpenter, county judge, has made it his general practice since taking office to shunt all requests for his services in marriage ceremonies to one of the justices of the peace in the courthouse.

Thursday afternoon, however, a couple eager to get married showed up and neither JP seemed to be on hand.

So the new county judge took over. "I hope it works out," he said.

Convict Has 20-1 Chance Of Liberty

DALLAS (AP)—A convict who enters Huntsville prison has a 20-1 chance of walking the streets a free man again, the Dallas Times Herald reported in a recent series on Texas' parole system.

The important question, said the newspaper, is whether the convict leaves prison with no ties and full freedom to commit another crime, or whether he is closely supervised to keep him away from new felonies.

The author of the series, Bob Hollingsworth, called the parole system the "invisible prison."

He pointed out that convicts who leave prison under parole actually serve longer periods under state control than those who remain until their terms are finished.

Parolees get no "good time" off—they must serve their full time under supervision.

The Times Herald series also reported this: The 40 parole officers in the state have a greater work load than they can manage. The Amarillo parole officer, for instance, must supervise 20 counties spread over 20,000 square miles. And proper supervision should be in person, not by mail.

Records at the state prison at Huntsville show that two out of every three inmates have been there before. But general parole records show that only 15 out of every 100 parolees get into trouble again, and only 2 out of 100 commit a major crime.

Because of lack of manpower, said the newspaper, the Texas parole system is "on the brink of becoming theory."

The State Board of Pardons and Paroles asked for 30 additional parole supervisors. Gov. Price Daniel reduced the request to 25, while the Legislative Bureau Budget cut that figure to 5.

Midland Blonde Happy Trying To Stir Crowds At Bullfights

DALLAS (AP)—A small blonde from Midland, who within a few years graduated from the bassoon to bullfighting, is happy trying constantly to stir the imagination of bullring crowds below the border.

Miss Patricia Hayes, who has fought bulls on two continents, stopped briefly in Dallas yesterday. She said she was going to Midland for a rest, and that she will again resume her job as La Princesa Rubia de Toro, which means the Blonde Princess of the Bull Ring.

Miss Hayes, 27, got this title in Mexico City six years ago. She has been a bullfighter since, in her senior year at North Texas State College, she decided to fight bulls instead of just dreaming about it.

Since then, she has fought about 33 bulls in Mexico, Portugal and Ecuador. Several times, Miss Hayes been awarded the supreme trophies—both ears and tail of the bull. Even so, she and the other handful of women bullfighters in Mexico can't get into the powerful bullfighters union.

What does a lady bullfighter think about when more than 1,000 pounds of enraged animal hurls itself at you with the speed of a steam engine?

"I think about how to please the crowd," Miss Hayes said. "People expect more of you as your reputation grows. And in trying always to keep the crowd's imagination stirred up, you create your own danger. It works in sort of a circle—the more your reputation grows, the more people expect of you."

Consequently, Miss Hayes hasn't always been able to get out of the way of the bull.

"I've gotten lots of bruises, a few broken ribs and a brain concussion, but I've never been gored yet," Miss Hayes said.

It is difficult for her to remember the days in San Angelo High School when she wanted most of all to be a professional musician. Her instrument was the bassoon, and she knew nothing about bullfighting—couldn't tell a red bull from a chiquelina.

Now she knows the name and all the other fancy maneuvers of the cape, and her relative, not only have become reconciled to her profession, but they like to go to the bullfights.

"All of my family was violently opposed at first, especially my father," she said. "But they have discovered I'm serious about it and my father never misses one of my fights when he is in Mexico City."

Training for a lady bullfighter is rigorous. In the early morning, Miss Hayes runs for exercise in Mexico City's Chapultepec Park. Often she tries cape maneuvers in one of the famous squares, Plaza de Mexico. She has also studied ballet and fencing to quicken the reflexes. She enjoys walking and tennis.

With all this work and danger, a bullfighter's pay is good. Miss Hayes has no regrets about her profession.

"I believe I would do it again if I had to make the decision," she said. "I get some sort of artistic expression from it, and that, to me, is worth all the bruises."

Barbed Wire Pens For Nationalists

Russ Ship Passes Cable Cutting Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Navy team took the unusual step of boarding a Soviet trawler on the high seas Thursday, but found nothing to link the vessel with recent breaks in transatlantic cables.

"No indications of intentions other than fishing," was the findings. The quick negative report, issued by the Navy here a few hours after the boarding was announced, lessened the potential impact of the incident on already touchy U.S.-Soviet relations.

There was no immediate indication how Moscow might react. Nations jealous of their sovereignty often resent the boarding of their ships by men of another nation.

The Soviet vessel is the trawler Novorossisk, with a crew of 54 men and women. The Navy reported the captain was friendly and cooperative.

The United States acted under an international agreement which the Defense Department said "authorizes investigations by naval ships of official documents of other ships suspected of damaging and interfering with cables under the high seas." Both the United States and the U.S.S.R. are signers of the agreement.

Five transatlantic cables have been damaged since last Saturday in the area off Newfoundland. Fishing vessels of many nations operate in that area and accidental cable damage sometimes occurs in normal deep sea fishing operations.

But the Pentagon said that aerial reconnaissance by American planes "confirmed extended operations of Novorossisk in the area of the cable breaks at the time the breaks occurred."

Under orders from the commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, Adm. Jerauld Wright, five men from the antisubmarine-radar picket ship Roy O. Hale climbed aboard the Novorossisk at noon Thursday.

The trawler was about 120 miles off St. Johns, Newfoundland, in international waters. Wright ordered the boarding party to make the check under a provision of an 1888 treaty to protect cables. Although it was the czarist government of Russia which originally joined in the treaty, officials here said the Soviet government adhered to it in 1926.

In an initial report, Wright said that the skipper of the Hale, Lt. Cmdr. E. J. Korte, and his four men found that the Novorossisk was equipped for deep sea fishing and that all the ship's documents were in order.

"The master of the trawler was friendly and cooperative and there were no indications of intentions other than fishing," Wright said. The log of the trawler, the boarding party reported, showed it had been operating in the vicinity of the cable interruptions.

The presence of a Soviet fishing vessel in the area of the Grand Banks was not unusual. Since 1956 fishing craft of the Soviet Union have been seen there frequently. The size of the Soviet fishing fleet usually runs about a dozen vessels, ranging in size from 600-ton trawlers to 2,600-ton factory ships which process or refrigerate the catch.

There now are about 21 cables on the floor of the Atlantic linking North America and Europe. The cables leaving Newfoundland run along an ocean floor plateau that extends about 150 miles into the North Atlantic at a depth of 900 to 1,200 feet. In midocean the cables are as deep as two miles.

Britain and France operate three cables. The others, run by three American firms, link New York with Ireland, England, Scotland, and France—either via Newfoundland or the Azores.

Baptist School Ruling Delayed

DALLAS (AP)—The Texas Baptist Christian Education Commission closed its meeting yesterday without deciding whether an independent four-year Baptist college can be established here.

Whether the college should be built independent of Baylor University or as a part of the Waco school will be discussed here Tuesday by the Texas Baptist Executive Board.

Dallas Baptist Assn. officials sought the Education Commission's permission to build a college independent of Baylor. Baylor trustees have declined to take up the question until 1961.

The need for a four-year Baptist college in Dallas was stressed by Dr. Harold Haswell, coordinator of the Education Commission.

"After 1964, there will be 2,000 Baptist high school seniors graduated every year from Dallas County high schools," he said. Currently, only 300 Dallas County Baptist young people attend Baptist colleges, showing the need for a Baptist school in this area, Haswell said. He added that by 1965 there will be 60,000 college-age young people in Dallas County.

Tuesday's discussion by the Education Commission will iron out differences between Baylor's position and that of Dallas area Baptists interested in beginning a campaign for a new college, officials said.

House Retreats On Guard Tags

AUSTIN (AP)—The House decided it would not be a good idea to put jet planes and Minute Men on license plates for Texas National Guardsmen unless all service groups were included.

Rep. Bill Hollowell of Grand Saline sponsored the bill. He withdrew it after members voted 105-37 to give special plates also to the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Catholic War Veterans and Jewish War Veterans.

Hollowell said he wanted the plates issued "to give recognition to state troops for their patriotic services."

Rep. J. C. Zbrank of Daisetta offered the death-dealing amendment.

"I think patriotic service is a civic duty," Zbrank said. "I don't think we need this type of recognition but if we do, let's recognize them all."

"How about the Red Cross?" a member yelled from his chair. "Of course fix an amendment," Zbrank said.

"And the WACS and the WAVES," Rep. Obie Jones of Austin said. "I accept that amendment," Zbrank said.

"Zbrank has one aim and that's to kill the bill," Hollowell said. "I gave the committee my word that if any other group was tagged on for recognition, I would pull my bill down."

"If we pass this the Texas State Teachers Assn. will be down next week wanting license plates," said

Rep. Lloyd C. Martin of Norman. After the House adopted Zbrank's amendment, Hollowell asked his bill be set aside.

Doctor Describes Moon's Condition

HOUSTON (AP)—A psychiatrist testified yesterday that Nevel Moon, 18, who is charged with killing two men and a boy, considers himself a master criminal.

Dr. Robert Wagner said for the defense that Moon was acting the day he shot the three.

Moon is on trial for the murder of Steven Appleton, 11, Nov. 29. He also is charged with killing Steven's father, Bertram J. Appleton, 40, and a friend, Lee Hanson, 40.

Wagner testified tests indicate Moon wasn't insane at the time of the shootings near Addicks Dam. But he said Moon has a schizophrenic personality, a mental age of 9 or 10 and an emotional age of about 4 years.

The defense rested after Dr. Wagner's testimony.

DEAR ABBY: My son, 22, is making a trip across the country and he plans to take a couple of passengers along to help defray expenses. One woman, 24, who is a divorcee with a questionable reputation, wants to make the trip. Isn't transporting a woman from State to State illegal?

DEAR ASKING: Transporting a woman from State to State for IMMORAL purposes is illegal. Your son would be wise to take only passengers who were above suspicion. The Mann Act has come in handy for some women.

DEAR ABBY: I got into a little quarrel with my wife. I shoved her once and she tripped over a chair. Her son (my step-son) who is 19 and weighs 210 pounds, thinking I knocked her down, came in swinging and I had to show him who was boss. The wife called the cops and I was so mad at this kid of hers that I told the policeman that he was a deserter from the Army, which he was. They locked him up and it took three policemen and the desk sergeant to subdue my wife. I apologized, but now the wife won't have anything to do with me. She threw my clothes out the window and locked me out. What should I do?

DEAR LOCKED OUT: I think for the present you are probably "safer" locked out. Wait till she cools off and try for a "return engagement" at a later date.

DEAR ABBY: I have been corresponding with a brother of mine who lives several thousands of miles from me. I know his weaknesses well and have sent him literature on those subjects in hopes that it would straighten him out. I just received a belated Christmas gift from him. It was his personal check for $25.00 and enclosed was the message: "Please use this to have your friend read."

DEAR QUITE: I'd enjoy the gift and keep sending him literature.

DEAR ABBY: My husband keeps telling our kids that he met one on a corner when we were both waiting for a bus. It is true but it sounds terrible. How can I get him to either fib a little or shut his mouth?

DEAR MAJORIE: Ask his mother for a few baby pictures of him naked on a fur rug. Hold them for bargaining purposes.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE": If I had a dollar for every married man who told a girl he was unhappily married and she was the best thing that ever happened to him in his entire life, I'd have enough money to buy this newspaper. Do not buy his sad story, or yours will be a sadder one.

Stink Bombs Unsettle Strike

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Stink bombs and thrown bottles kept police busy yesterday as violence flared again at the struck Tex-Son, Inc., garment plant.

It was the second flareup in two days. The first of 100 workers crossed the International Ladies Garment Workers Union picket lines yesterday to enter taxis waiting to take them home.

About 150 strikers began jeering and a bottle was thrown at a cab. Fourteen policemen assigned to the area were kept busy for the next hour, quelling other clashes and keeping the crowd moving. Several stink bombs were thrown. No serious injuries were reported.

Five persons were arrested for disorderly conduct. Police broke up an egg-throwing, purse swinging melee at the plant Wednesday.

A union spokesman said the strike started Monday in a dispute over demands for a 10-cent raise from the present $1.15 hourly wage and other contract benefits.

Catholic Paper Rakes Kennedy On Church-State Stand

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A Catholic publication has criticized Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) for his recently stated position related to church and state.

The Providence Visitor, official weekly newspaper of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Providence, said Thursday that Sen. Kennedy "overstated his case" in answering questions on church-state relations.

The visitor's editorial said the senator was in error in saying that nothing takes precedence over an office-holder's oath to uphold the Constitution, whatever his religion.

"Man's highest allegiance is to God, to his conscience before God," the editorial said. "If anything in a constitution conflicts with what he knows to be his moral duty in conscience he must disregard it."

It would have been more courageous, the Visitor editorial said, if Kennedy had politely declined to take a religious test "to allay suspicions of Catholic-baiters."

cessions from the Soviet in his Moscow visit. Even newspapers of the Labor opposition conceded Macmillan had done his best.

Macmillan himself had promised only to return with information. He had warned he was going on a reconnaissance mission, "to try to break the ice and get some feeling of the general situation."

British spokesmen in Moscow admitted Thursday, after their chief flew to Kiev for the sight-seeing portion of his trip, that the "feeling" Macmillan got was that both the Soviets and the West so far were standing firm on the related issues of divided Germany and West Berlin.

Britons generally had hoped for more. As a result, Macmillan's trip was widely termed a failure. The papers agreed that Khrushchev's speech Tuesday, pouring cold water on the Western proposal for a foreign ministers' conference on Germany, had ruined the British-Soviet meeting. "It was Khrushchev's rough, rude speech — breaking confidences, abusing all and sundry, and beliving the fair words spoken to Mr. Macmillan's face — which ended hopes raised by his visit to the Soviet Union," commented the conservative Daily Mail.

The final insult came with Khrushchev's toothache — a "diplomatic toothache" many called it — which prevented him from accompanying Macmillan to the Ukrainian capital of Kiev.

"This looks very like a calculated rebuff to Mr. Macmillan," the Daily Mail said. The headlines reflected Britain's letdown.

"Khrushchev wrecks talks" — The Laborite Daily Herald. "Moscow mission negative" — Conservative Daily Telegraph.

"Unless there is a diplomatic miracle between now and Tuesday, the final communique will consist of empty words and platitudes," said the right-wing Daily Sketch.

The Times of London, which frequently reflects official government thinking, suggested, however, that success or failure of the mission could be judged only in the light of how far it accomplished what Macmillan set out to do.

At this stage Macmillan seemed to have lost little prestige at home by his failure to win concessions from the Soviets.

A Devotional For Today

If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself. (John 7:17)

PRAYER: Dear Father, we thank Thee for Thy holy Word. Help us to find in it inspiration, strength, and light for the living of this day. Give us the taste for Thy Word, so that we may be able to acquire strength and light from it. Use us to spread the light of Thy Word to others; through Christ, Thy dear Son. Amen.

Don't Err On The Short Side

Commenting on the nationwide television interview of Rep. George Mahon, chairman of the military subcommittee on military appropriations, the Washington Post had this to say:

"Apart from the possible military disadvantages if we sat by and counted our dollars while the Russians outproduced us in intercontinental missiles over the next three years, fruitful negotiations with the Soviet Union surely would be more difficult if the United States were dealing from what is apparent inferiority."

Time and time again, contemporary history has demonstrated that the one language the Russians respect is strength. We can expect their belligerence to increase in ratio to their apparent margin of power. Thus the Post makes the point that Mr. Mahon was making in his interview.

President Eisenhower, in his latest press conference, seemed to bristle a bit at questioning of his defense recommendations. He called attention to the fact that defense had been his life's work and that in this field he considered himself expert. We have no doubt of this, but as Mr. Eisenhower pointed out, human beings will always disagree on what is best. That being true, it is still possible for human beings to err. What we want to be certain is that we do not err to the detriment of our security or our ability to maintain our position of strength as the spokesman for the free world.

A Still Better Way To Do It

American railroads are apprehensive lest bids now before Congress impose upon them an additional $102,000,000 per annum. The railroads contend that ultimately this will cost them $228,000,000 more for retirement and unemployment benefits than they now must pay.

Their position is simply this: that railroad benefits are now substantially superior to those of social security; that where as the employe and employer equally share the payment of 5 per cent on the first $4,200 of each worker's annual pay for social security, the railroads and their employes now share equally 12 1/2 per cent of the first $4,200 annual wage.

This 7 1/2 per cent difference means that the railroad's share is 3 1/2 per cent more than businesses under social security. To that extent the carriers are placed under a competitive burden in securing sorely needed revenues. To increase it would swell this differential at a time railroads are having to look at their hole card in the unsubsidized transportation picture.

While we can sympathize with any person on or facing retirement, there is something to be said against adding financial burdens that could be the straw that would break the camel's back. Ultimately there is only one place for the carriers to obtain the difference, and that is in increased rates. If railroads are forced to price themselves out of the market, then the whole thing will come tumbling down.

Social security and railroad retirement may be taken as base for minimum retirement payment. They should not be meant to displace or supplant individual thrift and private provision for old age. Rather, the enrichment of these base plans ought to be held out as a worthy prerogative of the individual. Perhaps the soundest approach to social security, railroad retirement and all other such plans, public or private, would be for all of us to exercise dedication in combating inflationary pressures. If we can gradually bring back the dollar's purchasing power, all of our elderly citizens will benefit vastly more.

David Lawrence
Bar Association's Remedy For Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seldom in American history has there been such a scathing criticism of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States as has just come from the American Bar Association.

This has nothing to do with the decisions of the court on segregation or integration. Nor do the members of the bar—who by overwhelming vote approved at the Chicago convention this week a committee report on the subject of Supreme Court decisions—come from any one section of the country.

The action taken is a formal disapproval of several decisions of the Supreme Court not only in matters of law but in the misuse of the judicial power itself. The report, comprising about 20,000 words, does not criticize the Supreme Court as an institution nor recommend any limitation of its powers, but does say that Congress should act at once in the proper way, endeavor to correct the ill effects of the decisions. The report declares:

"Many cases have been decided in such a manner as to encourage an increase in Communist activity in the United States through invalidation of state sedition statutes, and limitation of state and federal investigating powers in the field of subversion although these cases might readily have been disposed of without so broadly limiting national and state security efforts."

"The paralysis of our internal security grows largely from construction and interpretation centering around technicalities emanating from our judicial process which the Communists seek to destroy, yet, use as a refuge to masquerade their diabolical objectives."

"This trend was treated fully in the conference of state chief justices last year when they called upon the United States Supreme Court to exercise the power of judicial self-restraint. The dissenting opinions of certain Supreme Court justices have been crystal clear in charting the effect of the failure of the majority to recognize the underground forces that are at work and to appreciate how these decisions affect our internal security."

The Bar Association's report says it is the duty of members of the bar "to defend the institutions of the judiciary from unfair and unjust attacks" and that proposals to limit the Court's jurisdiction should not be approved. But at the same time the committee report, as adopted by the convention, says that, where remedial legislation can be enacted by Congress to deal with Communists and other subversives, this should be given prompt attention. The report cites a long list of Supreme Court decisions in the internal-security field and points out exactly how they can be overcome by action of Congress.

Also, a chapter is devoted to "current fallacies about Communism." The report says: "It is just as false to measure the strength of Communism in the United States by comparing the small number of party members with the large number of non-Communists, as it would be to measure the seaworthiness of a ship by comparing the area of its holes with the area of its hull. A few strategically placed holes can sink the largest ship."

As one reads the report, there comes a feeling that its writers tried to be as tactful as possible in their references to the present membership of the Supreme Court but nevertheless reveal again and again their dismay at the abuse of power by the highest court.

"Our internal security," says the report, "has been weakened by a lackadaisical attitude on the part of the public and technicalities raised in judicial decisions which too frequently in the public mind have had the effect of putting on trial the machinery of the judicial process and free the subversive to go forth and further undermine our nation."

The indifference of the public may be due to the job performed by some of the opponents of the late Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin. Unfortunately, the period in which he struggled to direct attention to the Communist menace now is brushed off as merely one of "hysteria," and there is no effort nowadays to separate what was valid in the crusade from that which was due to overzealousness and emotionalism.

Since the famous battle took place in the Senate in 1954, moreover, it has been an open secret in Washington that the Democratic party leaders in both houses have been under pressure from its so-called "liberal" elements to soften the inquiries into Communism. Though two committees still do some work in this field, they are restrained by word from higher up in the party whenever they really want to expose some palpable manifestation of Communist effort inside the United States. Maybe the American Bar Association report will awaken American public opinion and help to overcome the timidity of the Democratic party leadership on these subjects.

The Mountain That Labored

James Marlow
Candidate For Noble Thoughts Shrine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many a man has looked at the national debt — big as a mountain in dollar bills — and asked himself: "How can we cut it down to pebble size?"

The latest to look and be appalled is Rep. James C. Wright Jr., 36, a Texas Democrat. He has an idea which might take 100 years to work out. But he thinks it's better than just sitting and looking.

Although Wright stuck a needle in the national conscience, and one House member after another arose to applaud him, nothing is likely to come of the idea except that it may be enshrined in a place set aside for noble thoughts.

The national debt now is 283 billion dollars. This year the government will have to pay $8,100,000,000 in interest on it, without knocking of a dime on the principal.

Wright, like others, hates to think of that going on indefinitely. He told the House that with interest rates going up, the government soon will probably be paying $9,800,000,000 a year in interest. If we just assume the total debt remains unchanged and does not get even higher than it is now, So Wright said: "This means that if things go along exactly as they have been going, without any more increases in the national debt and without still another jump in the interest rates, in 29 years we shall have paid the total amount of the debt and still owe every penny of it."

Wright suggests Congress tell the Treasury Department to set aside each year one per cent of the present national debt of 283 billion — or $2,830,000,000 a year — to pay off the principal.

This, Wright figures, would be cutting down not only on the size of the debt each year but on the interest, too.

Using a 283 billion dollar debt figure which is now the permanent debt ceiling — the temporary ceiling until July 1 is higher than that — Wright told the House: "In 100 years we could completely retire the debt by paying 495 billion in interest and 283 billion in principal, or a total of 778 billion."

Hal Boyle
Pass The Gravy, Pappy

NEW YORK (AP) — "Nobody loves a fat man." So says an American proverb. But Santa Claus still is mighty popular.

The truth is not that nobody loves a fat man. The truth is that most people secretly envy the fat man. To most of the world the fat man is still the symbol of wealth, plenty and security. In this country he has become a symbol of nonconformity and independence — a man with the courage to be different.

As a doctor observed recently, the campaign against fat in America is assuming the proportions of "a national neurosis." Show me a man who jeers at an overweight person and I'll show you a man who is discontented because being thin hasn't made him rich, famous or happy.

It just goes to show that a man whose only ambition is to become thin as a rail is likely to end up wooden-headed, too.

There are certain advantages in this civilization in having a well-rounded stomach, known in some admiring circles as "a corporation."

First and foremost, girls in the office may laugh at your paunch, but—bless the little dears!—they do love to reach out and pat it.

Anything else you buy on the installment plan—a house, a car, a refrigerator—can be taken from you if you don't meet the payments regularly. But there is no mortgage on a big tummy. It is yours alone—all yours—to have and to hold. You can take it with you, even unto the grave.

Skinny men who nap in their office swivel chairs wake up weary from having their arms dangle down like an ape's. But the fat man finds his stomach is a comfortable arm rest.

A fat man can be crowded. If somebody sits next to him in a bus seat, he merely takes a deep breath—and the other fellow falls off on the floor.

This world is full of people who stick their face into your face and try to peddle you something. The fat man is not at their mercy. He merely leans back, thrusts out his belly bumper—and pushes the fast talker out of hearing.

Bankers will lend more money on less collateral to a man with a tire around his waist. He looks like a bank vault to them—big and safe.

The fat man is more romantic—this may surprise the ladies!—and is the most attractive of lovers. As the old Scottish saying goes, "When the belly is full the mind is amongst the maids."

Some days I feel older than on others, and this is one of them. The head lady librarian of the sovereign state of Florida has consigned to "the trash pile" the wonderful "Wizard of Oz", Tom Swift, Horatio Alger, "Uncle Wiggly" and the Bobsey Twins as uncolored for small fry.

The librarian, Dorothy Dodd, says that "kids don't like that fanciful stuff." She wants to stock the children's shelves of Florida's libraries with good, hard, eye-witness accounts of space exploration, moon landings, missile-man adventures and atomic sub stories. It's factual stuff such as this vs. the fantasy of "The Wizard of Oz" or, for that matter, Walt Disney that children demand — she says.

Well, this is a stiff dose of medicine for us mature citizens who loved the Wizard and Uncle Wiggly. But who are we to argue with an expert? I shudder to think of the possible places to which Miss Dodd has consigned "The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew" and "The Little Colonel" series, which my grandmother read to me in the sweet, sweet long ago.

And last I receive a fatal blow, I dare not inquire how the lady librarian stands on Louisa May Alcott and "Little Women." "Little Men," "Eight Cousins" and "Rose in Bloom." Pretty dated stuff, too, I guess, with all that whooping and hollering when Jo — wasn't it Jo? — cut off her hair. Pooh! Everyone cuts her hair nowadays.

And — do I dare ask — what now is the literary rating of Hiawatha, the noblest of Trojans of them all? What a memorable winter that was when Papa read aloud the Longfellow saga, while Grand-mama knitted and Marna did the mending and I listened open-mouthed to the tales of derring-do among the red men.

Around The Rim
Pointless, Political Ghosts

A news item out of Austin tells of a small group of legislators who're going to stamp out teaching of atheism at The University of Texas, SMU, and other schools. The charge was a big surprise to educators.

The bill would require an annual oath from teachers that they believe in a supreme being. Those refusing to sign could be fined up to $1,000, and teachers would have to sign the oath to keep their jobs. (They're stuck both ways.)

In talking up the bill, spokesmen said "this goes back to the Constitution . . . teachers (should) take the same oath as state officials . . . an oath means nothing to an atheist . . . a great number are Communists . . ."

Now, I am not an atheist and never could be. But this bill looks an awful lot like similar ones that crop up in nearly every legislature in the South, and if it should accidentally pass, it's going to make Texas look as ridiculous as Tennessee looked with its monkey law.

It might seem at first glance to be a battle between academic freedom and the authority of the state, but it's not that at all. The state has no authority to support any religion, or religion in general; it does have the authority to keep professors in public schools from inserting their own partisan beliefs into factual courses. This prohibition, however, applies to everybody, not just to atheists.

The legislators' statement was, as is usual in such cases, pure misrepresentation. (Under pressure, they later admitted their charges were based on pure hearsay.) Yes, the issue certainly does go back to the Constitution, but not in the way they think; the Constitution goes no further than to recognize the existence of a supreme being; it does recognize freedom of conscience.

I know of no law requiring state, or any other public officials to take an oath regarding the existence of anything but the Constitution. And as for the hint that all atheists are, by definition, liars—history abounds with examples to the contrary. Jefferson, Paine and Franklin did not make the history books by being religious, but no one can honestly accuse them of being prevaricators. Voltaire, an avowed atheist, was also a great humanitarian and one of the pioneers of republicanism.

To top it off, the lawmakers are waving the same old Red flag, and using The University of Texas as a political football.

I doubt if these good gentlemen would know an atheist if they stumbled over one. Some people are likely to see atheism in another person's concept of a supreme universal law. If that concept happens to be different or too deep. And there lies the danger.

There is danger also in that some people will confuse the teaching of biology and other sciences with slaps at religion, which they certainly aren't.

All this reminds me of the old days (pre-war), when it was the custom of ignorant people to run down our state university on the grounds that "they teach atheism down there." Most of those people couldn't have told me the difference between an atheist and an agnostic or between an agnostic and evolution. Matter of fact, it was all this talk that decided me to attend Texas; I figured a school the ignorant folks were running down must be pretty good.

Was, too, and, as an old Teasipper, I must protest this attempt to raise an old, pointless political ghost from its grave.

A Librarian Takes Off In A Spin

Probably Hiawatha is pretty corny; but so is a family sitting around a black iron stove, listening enthralled while one of its members reads aloud.

And what of James Fenimore Cooper and the Leatherstocking series? I guess Natty Bumppo would cut a pretty sorry figure today, inspired frontiersman though he was, compared with any space cadet or atomic sub sailor. So good-bye, Natty, brave, resourceful Natty, based. Papa told me long ago, on the doings of a brave man close to my family, Dan'l Boone. Dan'l, too, is probably fit only for the scrap heap of today. Good-bye, Dan'l. You were GREAT while you had it, but you don't have it any more. Or so the authorities suspect. What kid knows or cares of The Wilderness today? To him, the wilderness is the stars or the ocean floor.

Or is it? And if today's young'un only wants to know "factual" stuff about space exploration, why are the teevee moguls of the nation wasting so much money, time and film on horse opera? Why can't you pry a kid loose from a teevee screen showing a Western, if all he really wants is atomic stuff?

Something is wrong somewhere, and far be it from me to point to the library authorities of Florida. If Dorothy Dodd is right then the 110 future spacemen chosen by the United States to be the first in orbit should be selected from writers of juvenile fiction. Such voyagers would come back with the facts for juvenile consumption.

Or what about putting D. Dodd in orbit? Or is she already in enough of a spin? Certainly, she's got a parcel of us adults off the pad and up in the air, screaming like dated Comanches. (Copyright 1959, United Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Negro Dominance Hits Sports Box Office

The day after Len Matthews, a young Negro lightweight boxer, took only two rounds to stop Ray Lancaster, a white man from South Carolina, Hugh Brown, a sports columnist of the Philadelphia Bulletin, received a letter which applies Gresham's Law in Economics to boxing.

"There was a time when I never missed a fight," the letter said, "but the puny effort of the white athlete against his colored adversary has taken the pleasure out of boxing. Look the field over. In physical condition, ring cunning, boxing skill, and punch, the Negro is superior, yet we whites dominate in population. We should be ashamed not to be able to condition ourselves mentally and physically to compete."

In all major divisions, from lightweight through heavyweight, Negro boxers hold the world's championships. Much as this lifts the ego of the Negroes, it's killing boxing. Watching sports is a form of hero worship. The onlooker identifies himself with a participant. Over the years, baseball fans identified themselves with Ty Cobb or Babe Ruth, or Joe DiMaggio, and latterly Negro fans with Jackie Robinson, or Roy Campanella. White boxing fans identify themselves with Gene Tunney, or Benny Leonard, or Rocky Marciano. Negroes identify with Sugar Ray Robinson or Joe Louis.

But white men won't indefinitely pay money to identify with falling heroes. Nor will they or Negroes buy seats to see Negro box Negro. Thus, Negro dominance hits the box office.

Why aren't there many white fighters around who excel? Why is Carmen Basilio an outstanding exception?

There's the story about the stranger in New York City, who harassedly rushed up to an elderly bearded Jew and said, "Please, sir, can you tell me how to get to Carnegie Hall?" The elderly man answered, "Prekiss, prekiss, prekiss." Training, training and more training is the only way to success in boxing.

To the average white boy, sports are a form of exercise, a recreation. They want to win in boxing, in tennis, swimming, in football, of course. But they have other roads to self-esteem, social acceptance, and economic security. The middle-income white youth expects to make his Joyce Meadows feels that trial and error and an open mind are the best ways to make the most of what you have.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Developing Yourself BY 'Trial-And-Error'

By LYDIA LANE. HOLLYWOOD—It used to be that vaudeville and the summer stock companies were the only training grounds for new talent, but today it's TV. One of the most personable newcomers who was discovered this way is Joyce Meadows. I met her on "The Californians" set just as she was leaving for lunch. "There are many ways to get started in Hollywood," Joyce told me, "but I wanted to travel the one called preparedness. I didn't come to the West Coast until I had acting experience. I got the first job for which I was interviewed. "Later I asked my agent why I had not won over the other girls—some were quite beautiful—and he told me that my confidence had impressed the producer. "I used to model," Joyce continued, "and this can teach a girl a great deal about how to dress and carry herself. It gave me poise I didn't have before. "When I was a teen-ager I used to overdress and use heavy makeup. I suppose using too much make-up is a stage most girls go through. It doesn't seem to help to have your parents object. "What made you reform?" I asked. "Seeing myself on TV," she answered quickly, "taught me how horrid I could look by using too much. And my hair, which I had dyed black because I thought it would be an interesting contrast to my blue eyes, looked like a wig. "I am much happier with my hair back to its natural color. After all there is something to that saying, 'You can't improve on nature.' But you have to learn by trial and error what needs changing. "I asked Joyce how she kept her slim figure. "I go to a girl's gym three times a week. I work out with weights, and I have a good steam-

'ROUND TOWN

With Lucille Pickle

Not that we can do anything about it, but you noticed the March dates are the same as February which will make us have another Friday 13th. Seeing how busy the little birds are with their nest building makes me feel ashamed to think about a new spring outfit. However, the birds and I will be on about an even keel... they are using bits of string, weeds, old feathers etc. and I shall be wearing leftovers. But dreaming is cheap.

Fashions Have Been Started By Some Most Unexpected Happenings

Fashion is a fickle goddess whose head has been turned by everything from bunions and bets to politics and even the winds of chance. A London dress designer, for example, recently attributed the popularity of the sack dress to a reaction against the curves of Jayne Mansfield and Marilyn Monroe. Queen Victoria reacted differently, however, when Albert cast admiring eyes on a Scottish peasant girl dressed in a red flannel petticoat. According to the research department of an encyclopedia company, the queen ordered a red flannel petticoat for herself and began the fashion typical of her reign.

Scientists Make Major Cancer Advance In Learning Of Genes

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Scientists in a major advance are learning how genes are made. And also how genes suddenly mutate or change for better or worse.

Genes control all inherited characteristics, including the color of your eyes and many chemical activities of the body. Mutations in genes are involved in making healthy cells turn cancerous. Learning how to prevent or alter this genetic process could be extremely important in controlling cancers.

They bathed bacteria in ultraviolet light, a step which usually causes many genetic mutations in the germs. The ultraviolet light apparently produces a quantity of damaged chemicals which the bacteria need for making RNA. The damaged RNA then produces altered DNA which means mutated or altered genes.

Kiwanians Look For Successful Pancake Supper

Kiwanis Club of Big Spring anticipates the most successful of its seven annual pancake suppers tonight at the high school cafeteria, the club members were told Thursday.

The pancake supper, starting at 5 p.m. and continuing through 9 p.m., will be at the high school cafeteria tonight.

The slogan of the supper is "All you can eat for 75 cents."

Tickets are on sale by Kiwanians or can be bought at the cafeteria door.

The price is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children.

The menu comprises pancakes, bacon, butter, syrup and coffee. Sherman Smith, president of the club, told the membership on Thursday at the regular meeting that all preparations were well in hand. The program for the meeting was devoted to committee reports.

Announcement was made that the club would meet at 12 p.m. next Thursday at the high school cafeteria where lunch would be served and the club would devote its meeting to observing Texas School Week.

Ira Schantz, Howard County Junior College music instructor, sang two songs without accompaniment as the musical portion of Thursday's program. He explained these songs, written years ago, are intended to be sung without instrumental accompaniment.

Regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club board of directors will be Monday night, Smith announced. All directors are asked to be present.

Cullen Leaves Large Estate

HOUSTON (AP)—The late Hugh Roy Cullen, an independent oil operator who estimated he had given away 93 per cent of his income, left a personal estate valued at $9,313,922.34.

Mrs. Cullen, as executrix, signed an appraisal filed in Harris County Court listing $4,379,405.40 as taxable under the state inheritance tax.

Cullen died July 4, 1957. In 1957 Cullen and his wife, Lillie, established the Cullen Foundation to which all properties estimated to be worth 100 million dollars were pledged.

Cullen said in a 1955 speech at the University of Houston he had given away 93 per cent of his worldly goods after caring for his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

The taxable amount represents Cullen's half of the gross community estate, minus $277,555.77 in obligations and administration costs.

Mrs. Cullen and 12 grandchildren named as beneficiaries will pay a total of $128,448.22 in state inheritance taxes. Actual market values of portions of the estate placed in trusts for each of the grandchildren range from $212,720.27 to $531,800.68.

The appraisal listed $6,679,082.66 in real property. This included the Cullens' River Oaks home, a 14,662-acre ranch in Colorado County, a Bayshore home in Galveston County, and oil and gas properties valued at $5,303,600.

Also listed were $2,361,430.06 in stocks, bonds, notes and cash, $104,940 in livestock at the Colorado County ranch, $78,475 in personal properties, and an $89,994.62 interest in a trust held in a New York bank.

Father Turns In Incurrable Sons

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Richard Paulsich, 41, a jeweler and the father of six, filed a complaint of "incurrables" against three of his sons in Juvenile Court Thursday.

He charged they ignored him, threatened him and threw stones at him. The boys are 13, 15 and 16.

"In the last couple of years," said Paulsich, "they've been getting worse and worse. I don't know why. They could be good boys. I want them to get straightened out before they get into serious trouble."

Paulsich accused his sons of having drinking and gambling parties in his home. He said they threatened him when he objected.

He and his wife Wilma, 46, have three other children, two girls, 12 and 14, and another boy, 6. Police said the three older boys were surly and bitter when taken to Juvenile Hall pending a hearing. One muttered: "We'll get even."

'Atheism' Foes Name Protest As Law Need

AUSTIN (AP)—A one-student demonstration near the University of Texas campus "indicates a need for this legislation," four Texas lawmakers say about their bill to require state-paid teachers to swear they believe in God.

The lawmakers also have charged atheists are teaching in the major state colleges and universities. One sponsor, Rep. Bill Hollowell of Grand Saline, said "All we've got is based on hearsay."

"If the four representatives have real evidence to offer, it should be given the light of day," the Austin Statesman said yesterday in an editorial. "The McCarthy technique has no place in Texas."

Rep. Ben Lewis of Dallas, one of the sponsors of the bill, said: "They (the sponsors) feel the public demonstration of a university student reportedly dressed in 'skimpy' cloth strips, wearing a crude crown of thorns and dragging a cross, together with another bearded student's statement that the Cuban Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has had 'quite an influence on this campus' indicates a need for this legislation."

Lewis referred to the demonstration staged by Eluid Martinez, 24, Austin art student.

"I'm doing this in protest against legislative control of values," Martinez said. Another student said the protest was sparked by the revolutionary spirit shown by Castro.

The Austin Statesman's editorial said that the four legislators were using "McCarthyism" tactics with only hearsay to back up their charges of atheism in the colleges.

Suspect To Face Extortion Charges

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Charles Edgar Eskridge, who gave officers a bad night here Tuesday when he barricaded himself in a hotel room, will be returned today to Gilmer, Tex., to face extortion charges.

The former Baptist minister, about 65, fired several shots in his hotel room to prove he had a pistol after he had threatened to kill anyone who tried to arrest him. Officers took a room next to his, and grabbed him when he tried to escape through a window.

City Judge J. W. Price of Gilmer said Eskridge had been working as a Bible salesman in Texas and had gone to Alexandria to seek the same kind of work.

The Parable of Jesus' Rejection

CHRIST FORESEES HIS ARREST AND DEATH

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

JESUS often taught by parables. Our lesson begins with one which He told on Tuesday of Holy week. "He answered many questions of the various groups opposing Him, the scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees and others." He also gave "His final and most penetrating exposure, with condemnation of Israel's unbelief, by direct statement as well as by parable." The quotation is from Peabody's Select Notes, edited by the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith.

The lesson begins with the parable of the Wicked Husbandmen. A man, Christ said, "planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen (tillers of the soil or farmers), and went into a far country."—Matthew 21:33.

When the fruit was ripe and ready for harvesting, the man sent his servants to the husbandmen that they might gather it.

In the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes? Therefore say I unto you, The Kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. And whosoever fall upon these stones shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder."—Matthew 21:42-44.

The chief priests and Pharisees who heard the parable knew He was speaking of them. They were furious and would have seized Him, but they were afraid of the people who loved Him and thought Him a prophet.

Briefly let us tell of the woman who loved Jesus and wanted to honor Him. As He was eating in the house of Simon, in Bethany, she came to Him with an alabaster box of precious ointment in her hand and poured the contents on His head.

Some said that she should not have done so, as the ointment but the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another."—Matthew 21:34-35. He sent other servants and they received the same cruel treatment.

"Last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, they will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance."—Matthew 21:37-38. So they slew the son too.

Jesus asked, "When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?" His listeners said: "He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their season."—Matthew 21:40-41.

"But Jesus answered: "Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of a corner?"

was expensive and might have been sold and the money given to the poor. Christ said, however, "Let her alone; why troublest thou her? she hath wrought a good work on Me. For ye have the poor with you always... but Me ye have not always. She hath done what she could; she is come aforehand to anoint My body to the burying."—Mark 14:3-8.

The younger classes might be introduced to the lesson, suggests Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, by what they like to do for those they love. They like to be near them; they like to give them gifts and to do other nice things for them. So should we love Jesus and try to be like Him.

In a world of strife, jealousy and often of crime, we should show our love by being kind, loving and courteous to all, whether we are in our own country or in a foreign land. If we do that, we are helping to bring peace to the world in a small but effectual way.

Feelings Ruffled As Smoke Clears From Liquor Hearing

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN (AP)—Nothing but ruffled feelings were left when the smoke cleared from a public hearing of the House Liquor Regulation Committee yesterday.

A bill which would prohibit beer sales on Sunday and after 10 p.m. on week days was sent to a subcommittee.

Also given the subcommittee route were bills that would put the state tax back on beer sold on military reservations and a bill setting a graduated scale of license fees for Texas breweries.

Although beer regulation was subject before the committee most of the heated argument was over religion.

"I think the wet and dry issue pretty well divides the Christians from the unsaved," said O. F. Dingler, professional prohibitionist and registered lobbyist for Texas Alcohol - Narcotics Education Inc. That started it.

After almost an hour of wrangling, several members of the committee accused Dingler of saying Catholics were not Christians because some drink beer on Sunday.

Dingler, who said he was a Baptist minister, claimed the committee wouldn't let him amplify his statement.

Several committee members also took issue with a special delivery letter Dingler sent each of them shortly before the meeting. The letter said that Dingler hoped the legislators would follow the wishes of home voters and approve the bill.

"That's a bald-faced lie when you say I don't know what my people want and you do," said Rep. R. A. Bartram of New Braunfels.

"This committee has been exposed to fraudulent statements by Dingler," Rep. James Bates of Edinburg said. "You go back to my home county, Mr. Dingler, and get an opponent to run against me and I'll beat him two-to-one."

"It is misinformation that people like Mr. Dingler has put out to the people of Texas that makes it very, very difficult for me to continue to vote dry," said Rep. Will Ehrle of Childress.

Rep. Reagan Huffman of Marshall said Dingler not only urged him to vote for the bill but gave him the names of three committee members to appoint on a subcommittee.

"Your voting record in the House indicated you might appoint a wet subcommittee," Dingler said. Huffman said information on the voting record was incorrect.

Homer Leonard, head of the Texas Brewers Institute, said the bill was typical of proposals presented each session by "professional prohibitionists who make money out of this sort of thing."

"In this bill you are trying to tell a man you are going to cut off his appetite," Leonard said. "You can't buy a bottle of whiskey at 10:30 in Austin tonight but you can in about every dry county in Texas. Let them clean up their dry counties first."

Rep. Truett Latimer of Abilene told Leonard he resented "the insidious attempt of your organization to control any group that tries to regulate your industry. I have heard rumors that other members of the House are being assured that they will never have to cast a vote on a liquor bill this session."

THE SECRET PLACE

"He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."—Psalms 91:1.

By CLYDE NICHOLS

You Can Change The World

On V-J Day in 1945 a gigantic rally was held in the municipal coliseum of Los Angeles to celebrate the end of World War II. On that evening over 100,000 people packed that great stadium for the observance.

The field was laid out like a veritable battle ground. There was the rumble of tanks, rifles cracked, machine guns blazed their deadly fire, heavy artillery flashed and roared.

Admist it all giant bombers came sweeping down with a deafening thunder which shook the whole earth as if to dwarf the entire crowd into further insignificance.

Then, suddenly, all was quiet, and from the press box, high above the stands, a voice spoke. "The war is over! By the grace of God, America and her allies have won the fight. Now we face the even bigger task of winning the peace."

"It is so easy," the speaker continued, "to feel that we have no part in the great undertaking, to say, 'I am only one person and don't count.' But we do count—every one of us. I want you to see this."

High in the stands, the speaker struck a match. Then, as it burned, he held it aloft and one hundred thousand people beheld its light.

"Do you see what one little light can do? Your life is like that. It may be small, and seemingly insignificant, but who knows how many thousands are looking on?"

"And suppose that one little light were multiplied. Suppose we each lighted a match?"

Then, in less time than it takes to tell it, matches were distributed to all present and at a given signal they were struck and held aloft. One great oh! came from the stands. Together they flooded the coliseum with light.

What a message it spoke! And what a message to each of us: "No man's life is insignificant. God created you for a purpose. Just one little light, yes, but you can change the world!"

Give God A Chance—God Will Open Doors For You!

BUILT ON SAND?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Matthew	26	31-46
Monday	Matthew	12	22-50
Tuesday	Matthew	13	1-23
Wednesday	Matthew	13	24-52
Thursday	Mark	5	1-20
Friday	Mark	5	21-43
Saturday	Mark	6	1-13

Is this lighthouse built on sand? Seemingly so! All you can see at its base is sand.

Actually this towering structure is built on rock. Underneath these dunes of sand is a rocky ledge, firm and enduring. The sand may be carried away by sea or wind, but this lighthouse will stand secure. There's a rock, a firm foundation, underneath!

Some people look at the Church and see only sand. They see the shifting sands—of custom—and fashion—and passing personalities pile up and wash away around the Church. "Why is it still standing?" they ask—for they see only sand.

The Church would have fallen long ago were it built on anything so fickle as fashion, so casual as custom, so impermanent as mere people. The Church is built on rock, firm and enduring. It will stand secure for all ages, shedding light and imparting strength to all who are guided by it. It stands on the "Rock of Ages," the divine personality of Jesus Christ and His message of hope for all mankind.
