Enlargement Of Post Office Is Under Study

The U. S. Post Office Department is reported as giving "serious consideration" to a proposal to enlarge the Big Spring post office building, E. C. Boatler, postmaster, learned Monday.

Boatler said he had been pressing for enlargement of the building for several years but each time he has been rebuffed by the statement that no funds are available. He said that he was somewhat astounded at the new indication the department seems to have changed its attitude.

His tip on the reported plans of the department came in a round-about fashion.

He has recently made a request that the grassed area to the west of the building be paved as an all-weather parking area. This request, with offers to do the work, he had submitted to the General Services Administration office in Lubbock.

Monday he received a letter from John H. Morgan, assistant manager of that office, advising him the request for the paving would be set aside.

Morgan went on to say that he had been informed the department plans "extension of the post office building" and added that if this is done, the paving of parking areas would be included in the project.

Boatler said that several alternative plans for enlarging the building have been advanced. It could be extended to the west; widened to the north or changed from its present form into a two- or three-story building.

He said the building was constructed in 1937. A year or two later, the basement of the building, which had been left in a half-finished state, was completed in order to provide office space for several federal agencies.

Since that time no major changes have been made. The area allotted to the post office proper is the same today as it was in 1937.

In 1937, the postal receipts for the post office were only $69,436.93.

Last year, the post office receipts were $223,117.83.

VOICE TROUBLE?

Air Force Thinks Satellite May Have Gone Into Orbit

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force believes its Discoverer I rocket may have gone into some kind of orbit—and is simply having trouble raising its voice enough to let the world know for sure.

Authorities say tracking stations have picked up "sporadic signals" tending to confirm that an orbit has been attained. Further checks will be made.

Discoverer I, the first space vehicle aimed into an orbit which would carry it over both the North and South poles, was launched Saturday from Vandenberg Air Force Base, 170 miles north of Los Angeles.

A Navy ship 900 miles south of the base received faint signals from the bullet-shaped missile shortly after it was fired. Then, for hours, there was nothing.

Officials speculated something may have gone wrong with the radio equipment in the 1,300-pound projectile.

Sunday night the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division reported: "Additional study of data received for a nine-minute period after lift-off supports the accuracy of preliminary information about launch trajectory and orbit injection. Tracking stations have since picked up random signals on the frequency of the Discoverer's radio beacon, which approximates the predicted position of the satellite."

All this, the Air Force said, tends to confirm that an orbit has been attained.

"Attempts to track the satellite are continuing," the announcement said. "Additional contacts should assist in defining the precise orbit."

Of the random signals received so far, authorities said, the most reliable were picked up by tracking stations at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., Annette, Alaska, and Vandenberg.

The Air Force said the information at hand suggests Discoverer may be circling the earth about once every 96 minutes. It said the preliminary data indicate the rocket is about 146 miles from the earth at the point of its closest approach and 558 miles away at the farthest point.

The frequency at which Discoverer's radio was supposed to broadcast has been kept secret. This prompted criticism from some scientists, who say that withholding such information may have prevented trackers from locating the rocket.

Dr. J. Allen Hynck, associate director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., said: "Secrecy is fine but should not be extended so far as not to have tracking agencies notified in advance."

The observatory has been the hub for optical tracking of some previous satellites.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today gave grudging acceptance to a foreign ministers' conference on Germany.

In notes to the Western Powers, the Soviet Union said it prefers a summit meeting of heads of government, but is prepared to agree to a foreign ministers' meeting.

Moscow suggested Vienna or Geneva as a site for a foreign ministers' session starting in April, and said it should not last longer than two or three months.

The notes suggested that Poland and Czechoslovakia and East and West Germany attend, along with representatives of Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

The full text of the notes has not yet been formally released. But informants disclosed its highlights while British Prime Minister Macmillan and Soviet Premier Khrushchev were meeting in the Kremlin. They talked for almost two hours.

The Russians did not make a foreign ministers' meeting conditional on any subsequent summit meeting.

This was made clear by a full examination of the note in the original Russian.

The Soviet note replied to a Western proposal for a foreign ministers' conference on Germany.

IT WAS EXPECTED

Soviet insistence on a summit conference had been expected ever since the West made its proposal Khrushchev in his speech last Tuesday made clear he did not think a foreign ministers' conference on Germany would serve any useful purpose, and that the issue of West Berlin must be discussed by the heads of government.

The Foreign Ministry told the ambassadors it would publish the note Tuesday.

The U. S. government has been the chief opponent of a summit conference. The American position is that unless the foreign ministers work out an agreement beforehand, a summit meeting will unduly raise public hopes but will come to nothing.

But Prime Minister Macmillan was reported determined, in his visits later this month to President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle, to insist that a parley with Khrushchev himself was the only way that might lift the Soviet threat to Berlin.

The Soviets had originally proposed, on Jan. 10, that a 28-nation conference be held to conclude separate peace treaties with West and East Germany as part of the Soviet plan to end the Allied occupation of West Berlin.

MOVE REJECTED

The West on Feb. 16 rejected the peace conference proposal and suggested instead a foreign ministers' meeting to discuss the whole issue of German reunification. The West also restated its determination not to be driven out of Berlin, saying it could not accept the Soviet's unilateral ending of the World War II occupation.

Khrushchev in his speech last week also stuck to the long-standing Soviet position on German reunification, that it must be negotiated by the two German governments and not by the Big Four—West Germany, with full Allied backing, refuses to recognize the East German regime to the extent of holding political negotiations with it.

Macmillan told Soviet leaders in Leningrad Sunday night that his talks with Khrushchev, while yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiations," Macmillan declared.

NOT PESSIMISTIC

A foreign ambassador in Moscow said Khrushchev had told him he is not pessimistic about the talks with Macmillan. But he said the Soviet premier still insists there must be a peace treaty with both East and West Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin.

The envoy said Khrushchev seemed surprised at the West's shock at his speech in the Kremlin last week in which the Soviet premier brushed aside the Western proposal for a foreign ministers' conference and once more insisted the occupation of West Berlin must end.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the ambassador quoted Khrushchev. "I know it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left."

Measure To Save Taxpayers Dollars Tops State Agenda

AUSTIN (AP)—A measure billed as one that could save the taxpayers half a million dollars a year topped the House calendar today as the Legislature neared the halfway mark.

Heading the pending business agenda in the House was the bill to allow counties with less than 100 students in common school districts to vote on abolishing the office of county school superintendent.

The House also might get a bill to advance Arlington State College to full four-year status, and a similar measure for John Tarleton at Stephenville.

Facing committee hearings today were measures on how to settle party squabbles, protect historic buildings and streamline criminal laws.

Rep. George Truett Wilson of Newcastle said passage of his bill on county superintendents could save the state a half million dollars per year. The measure passed on second reading Friday, but needed another favorable vote to go to the Senate.

The press of business on the floor and in committee meetings was such that only a handful of senators and representatives found time to attend the Washington-on-the-Brazos ceremonies marking Texas Independence Day.

Rep. B. H. Dewey Jr. of Bryan planned to outline to the House Elections Committee his bill which would require election of state committee members of political parties. The practice of naming committee members in district caucuses has led to strife within the Democratic party for years.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee scheduled its third hearing on the 86-page codification of tax laws which Rep. Frances Seeley of San Antonio says would raise 22 million dollars in two years.

Seeley was also due to present his proposal to tax cigars, snuff and smoking and chewing tobacco. He said this would raise 4 1/2 million per year. A third bill due for hearings by the committee was Rep. Jamie Clements' plan for an end to the state cigarette tax exemption for military posts.

A bill allowing cities to adopt zoning rules for protection of historic buildings and areas was scheduled for a hearing before the House Municipal and Private Corporation Committee.

porations Committee.

The Senate Jurisprudence Committee, which last week considered five new laws suggested by the Texas Law Enforcement Study Commission, had nine more proposals today. All dealt with revisions in the Criminal Code for punishment, courtroom procedures and juries.

The final week of hearings by the Senate Finance Committee was due to begin this afternoon. The committee begins to start writing its version of the appropriations bill later in the week.

Big Crowds Attend School 'Open House'

Big crowds flocked to the new Goliad Junior High School and Howard County Junior College Sunday afternoon as the two institutions held open house in connection with Big Spring's observance of Texas Public Schools Week.

Brief dedication services were held at Goliad, the local system's newest school plant. The building has been in service all this year, but formal acceptance from the contractor was held up by hearing difficulties. Consequently, the formal dedication program had been delayed much longer than school officials had hoped.

It was estimated that more than 1,000 persons toured the new junior high. About 300 were present when students, parents, and school officials dedicated the building "to the youth of our community, and the growth and development they will experience here."

There was no estimate of attendance at the HCJC open house, where the new Dora Roberts Student Union Building and other facilities were put on display. However, Dr. W. A. Hunt, college president, said he was extremely well pleased with the turnout.

Participating in the candlelighting ceremony dedicating Goliad Junior High were Martha Hardy, a student in the school; Mrs. Kyle Riddle, president of the Goliad P-TA; Mrs. Cornelia Gary, teacher; S. A. Walker, principal; Clyde Angel, president of the school board; and Floyd Parsons, school superintendent.

Prior to the ceremony, Almer Atkinson, one of the architects, and Bill Warner, construction contractor, praised each other and school officials for close cooperation during planning and construction of the school.

The high school band played prior to the program. Invocation was led by Dr. P. D. O'Brien, president of the Big Spring Pastors Assn., and benediction was by the Rev. Royce Womack, treasurer of the ministers' organization.

Postal Receipts Ahead By $9,000

Postal receipts for February were $9,000 ahead of the same month in 1958, according to E. C. Boatler, postmaster.

Receipts this past month were $27,848.68 as compared with $18,333.22 last year.

The year's receipts for the first two months stand at $54,849.96 as compared with $40,716.69 for the same two months in 1958—a gain of $14,123.27.

Right-To-Know Hearings Set By Legislators

AUSTIN (AP)—Those who believe Texas reporters have the right to gather information from public records and government agencies without interference will outline their views this week.

House and Senate committees have scheduled hearings tomorrow and Wednesday on bills to put into effect two of the freedom of information recommendations supported by Texas press groups.

Backers of the proposals hope the bills will get a better reception than the first measure introduced, Senate Bill 26 by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas, which would require government boards and agencies to open their records to the public, was sent a Senate Jurisprudence subcommittee without instructions for the group to report back. Its chances of passage are considered slim.

The same committee will meet Wednesday to consider Senate Bill 97 by Sen. David Raliff of Stamford which would make it unlawful willfully to remove or destroy any public records.

The House version of that bill, (HB 147) by Rep. Carl Conley of Raymondville, still is considered tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. by the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee.

A proposal to require boards, councils and agencies at all levels of state and local government to hold open meetings will be aired before the House and Senate State Affairs Committees.

The Senate group will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday to consider the Senate version of the bill (SB 66) by Sen. Preston Smith of Lubbock.

The House bill (HB 79) by Rep. Truett Latimer of Abilene will have a public hearing before the House State Affairs Committee Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. The measure would set up penalties for violators including removal from office, and would make invalid any action taken at secret meetings or sessions. Exemptions would be made for groups specifically guaranteed secrecy by law, such as grand juries.

The Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Assn., Texas Press Assn., Texas Daily Newspaper Assn., and Sigma Delta Chi journalists fraternity are backing the freedom of information campaign.

Basden Resigning As City Attorney

Wayne Basden, city attorney since June of 1957, has submitted his resignation. He plans to go into the general practice of law.

He said this morning that after his resignation April 1 he will be associated with George Thomas here.

The 27-year-old attorney is the first full-time counsel the city has had; previously, the position was held by a lawyer on a part-time basis. Walton Morrison was city attorney before Basden, and he is still retained in an advisory capacity.

Basden joined the city in June of 1957 immediately after obtaining his law degree from the University of Texas. He had gotten his bachelor's degree from Texas Western College in El Paso and attended public schools at Pecos. He was hired as an assistant to Morrison but last April he was promoted to city attorney when Morrison was appointed legal advisor.

During his time with the city Basden has been kept busy revising and updating a host of city ordinances. Also, he has been actively directing a campaign to collect delinquent taxes for the city and school district.

Basden said he felt regrets at having to leave the city, but he felt that the step into general practice was a promotion and one he couldn't pass. He said he had enjoyed being associated with both past city manager H. W. Whitney and the current manager, A. K. Steinheimer. His associations with all commissioners also have been good, he added.

Since the commissioners have not been notified officially, there has been no plan of action on hiring a successor. It is understood, however, that there will be no delay in trying to find someone to take the position.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Salaries of the office staffs of Texas congressmen vary widely, but many range up to $16,300 for a senator's administrative assistant, records showed today.

The Senate permits its payroll records to be made public. The Senate long has had a policy of not disclosing individual salary figures.

First Rabbit Drive Slated

Hunters had the signal Monday to oil up their shotguns for the first major rabbit hunt of the season.

Farmers and ranchers in the Lomax community of Howard County are planning a drive for all day Saturday. Everyone is invited to bring his shotgun and have a try at thinning the burgeoning rabbit population.

The drive will get under way at 8 a. m. from the Neil Fryar (Robb headquarters) place. Hunting will be in the Quinn, Robb, Stone, Peetree and other pastures.

Women of the Lomax Home Demonstration Club will serve luncheon as a neighborly gesture to the hunters.

Shotgun shells of all sizes may be purchased on the ground.

The jackrabbits are large as usual and more numerous than ever, according to reports from the Lomax area. They constitute a real hazard for pastures and later for crops.

Extension Of Road Asked

A petition signed by 14 property owners, in which they agreed to provide free right-of-way for the project, was filed with the county commissioners today. It was asked that a road eastward from the rodeo grounds to the city limits be opened. An 80-foot right-of-way was set up as needed.

Such a road would be partially in the county and partially inside the city limits. Walter Parks, county engineer, was instructed to contact the city officials and secure their cooperation on building the road which in essence, it was said, would be an extension of 11th Street.

Woman Tells Of Assault
A San Angelo woman informed the police here this morning that she was criminally assaulted Sunday night, but the matter is being turned over to Tom Green County officials.

The woman was treated at Malone & Hogan Hospital. She told police officers that she had been at a dance in San Angelo Sunday night with her sister. As they left, a man she had danced with several times asked her to go with him, and they drove away.

She said that he assaulted her three times and then brought her to Big Spring and left her near the hospital.

Lyndon Emerging As Demo Threat
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas appears to be emerging as one of those most likely to influence the choice of the 1960 Democratic presidential nominee—if he isn't himself the standard-bearer.

Democrats who rallied at a $100-a-plate victory dinner during the weekend heard a great deal of praise for the skill of Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader.

The dinner drew 2,479 and raised about $185,000. Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) delivered the principal addresses, and numerous other Democrats spoke.

Behind the festive scenes there was a measure of agreement among party strategists that Johnson and his supporters may come close to having the deciding voice in the selection of the party's presidential nominee at the July 1960 convention in Los Angeles.

Collie Dog Is Hero

Lady helped save the life of the Abels' 3-year-old son, Tommy, after the boy had become mired up to his waist in muddy clay. The boy's cries were unheard but Lady's barking brought a repair crew to the rescue.

County Medical Plan Accepted

Permian Basin Medical Society has approved the offer tendered by the Howard County Commissioners Court relative to hospitalization for indigent patients, subject to clarification of county policy on admittance of emergency cases.

A letter to Judge Ed Carpenter informed the court the proposed plan would cost to pay $25 for first day hospitalization and $15 for each succeeding day per patient was satisfactory.

It had been set up by the court that admittance to the hospital of an indigent patient had to be with the approval of Mary Cantrell, county welfare officer.

The medical society merely asked that some arrangement be worked out where an emergency case where Miss Cantrell could not be located.

The Commissioners suggested that such emergencies be dealt with as appeared necessary and that on the following day, Miss Cantrell make an investigation and issue the formal admittance approval where such cases merit.

2 California Boys Kidnaped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Southern California mothers had reason to cry today.

The son of each was kidnaped. The sons of Mrs. Wayne Murray of Venice, were joyful. Her boy, Wayne Jr., 7, was rescued by officers from a former mental patient.

But the second mother, Ruth Flores, collapsed in a "hysterical condition" from anxiety and weariness. Her infant son, kidnaped early Saturday, is still missing.

Police in Bishop, Calif., acting on a tip from a Los Angeles bus ticket seller, found young Wayne Murray in a cheap hotel room with William Harris Elwell, Venice, 28, was held for police on a kidnaping charge.

Mrs. Murray had been under sedatives to relieve hysteria since her son was missing Saturday. She is expecting another child.

Meanwhile, hundreds of police and sheriff's officers pressed a search for the twin tot of the widowed Mrs. Flores, 35, of Ontario.

The baby, Eric Leon Flores, eight weeks old, has been missing since early Saturday when he and Mrs. Flores' other five children were left with a babysitter known to Mrs. Flores only as Ann Williams.

Mrs. Flores said the short, stocky woman came to her home, said she was a social worker, and offered to sit Saturday night while the widow went out with a friend.

When Mrs. Flores returned the woman was missing—and so was the tot.

U.S. Airmen Gets His Girl

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — An American airmen and his Faroese island sweetheart arrived here today en route to Iceland where they hope to wed.

Respected Walter Baldwin, 28, of Cleveland, Ohio, told reporters he and Kirsten Anthonussen, 28, of Cleveland, Ohio, had been in the U. S. Keflavik Air Force Base by Friday.

The next plane for Reykjavik leaves Tuesday.

Baldwin's tour of duty expires April 2.

He could only hope that Icelandic authorities would have to wink at complicated marriage laws under which Kirsten should have set foot on Iceland's soil before the end of February. He also must get the approval of his commanding officer, Baldwin neglected to give him the required month's notice of intent to wed.

DEAR ABBY
IN THE GAME

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine has had four husbands and she isn't even 40 yet. She has a boyfriend for everything. One pays her rent. Another one lets her drive his car. Another painted and papered her house (material and labor) and she bragged that all she had to give him was lunch and a few daughterly kisses. She sees the rent-payer during the daytime and she has a bus driver, (she calls him her "roomer") staying there nights. I don't know how she gets away with it. Don't you think somebody ought to tell those suckers the score? NEIGHBOR DEAR NEIGHBOR: Don't waste any sympathy on the "suckers." Some men don't care about the score as long as they're in the game.

DEAR ABBY: How do you find out a boy's religion without embarrassing either of us? I am not allowed to go with boys of a different religion and I have a terrible time finding out sometimes whether I should even start to like him. PUZZLED DEAR PUZZLED: If you are interested in a boy there is nothing wrong with asking him what church he goes to.

DEAR ABBY: I am 69 years old and my wife is 65. Over a year ago my accountant advised me to apply for Social Security. I took his advice and draw $103 per month. I advised my wife to do the same, but she refuses. Her reason is that we have enough income to keep us and it is not honest to take this money from the government when we do not need it. We are honest, God fearing people and do not want to do wrong. Please advise us in your column.

GEORGE DEAR GEORGE: There's nothing dishonest in accepting Social Security. Eligibility depends on one's age, not one's degree of necessity. If it's George with Uncle Sam, it should be George with George's wife.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I went over to my mother's house. While we were there my sister and her fiancé and my wife and I started a card game. My sister and her fiancé got into a little argument and he slapped her face. I didn't rough him up, I just told him what I thought of him and he left. My wife and I have had lots of fights over this. She thinks I was wrong for butting in. But I felt as long as he wasn't her husband yet, he had no right to slap her face. Who was right? ERNIE DEAR ERNIE: You were right to voice your disapproval—and by the way, a slap in the face between lawful-wedded mates is no more acceptable than a slap in the face between lovers. (These are lovers?)

CONFIDENTIAL TO PEARL: Kill her with kindness and don't let your conscience bother you. A cat has nine lives. For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of The Big Spring Herald. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Atom Chief's Knees Haven't Bent Yet

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When John Alex McCone became chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission last summer, he vowed to follow the advice of a priest: "When your knees begin to buckle just kneel."

Looking back at his first half-year in one of the nation's toughest jobs, McCone, 56, says his knees have yet to buckle. Modestly, he gives the credit to his fellow commissioners. "A close and friendly relationship" with Sen. Clinton Anderson (D-NM) and other members of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, and to his embattled predecessor, Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, who "left things in remarkably good shape."

As boss of the AEC, McCone runs an agency that has offices and laboratories scattered from Brooklyn to Japan. It budgets two billion dollars a year, maintains facilities worth seven billion, and employs 105,000. It builds bombs, prospects for uranium, probes the secrets of cancer, builds power plants, operates cyclotrons, studies mice and men, and conducts research literally from the depths of the earth to the far reaches of space.

"The problems have been perplexing and difficult," says McCone, "but they haven't caused my knees to shake." He came to the AEC from a distinguished career that included liberal doses of business, industry and government. Though a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, he won his public servant spurs as a Truman appointee. Public criticism of the AEC in the past has been partly justified, says McCone. "There has been criticism because actions by the AEC have taken too long. The ordinarily quiet-spoken McCone adds with vigor: "But there's one thing on which there has been no criticism—and that's the nuclear weapons field."

As a nation we've wrung our hands over lack of planes, lack of missiles and even, in the case of the Korean War, lack of conventional ammunition. But never has there been a time when we were worried about a lack of nuclear weapons capability. But he says there has been altogether too much ruckus over whether economical nuclear power could best be developed by public utilities or private enterprise. "I believe the public-versus-private power issue in the nuclear field has been unnecessarily and erroneously emphasized by industry, by public and private power groups and their Washington spokesmen, and by people within government," he says. "To some extent it has delayed development."

With nuclear power still more expensive than conventional power, the important thing is to find a way to cut costs, McCone says. "If we continue to follow a policy in the AEC of making research information available to all, then it shouldn't make a great deal of difference who does the development work."

McCone, who reportedly was an unofficial advisor to President Eisenhower on missiles before he took the AEC job, says he thinks the missiles program is progressing very well. "I think we are going to see spectacular progress—in fact, we're seeing it right now."

McCone is a handsome, silver-gray man of medium build. He plays golf in the low 80s

Troops Blunt Drive Of African Party

BLANTYRE, Nyasaland (AP)—Troops rushed into Nyasaland from Southern Rhodesia appear to have blunted the African National party campaign against the British rulers of the Central African Federation.

Police broke up party meetings at outlying Mzuzu and Fort Manning Saturday, arrested a total of 13 Africans, but otherwise the weekend was peaceful.

White families living in isolated areas began moving into town. Special security measures remained in force, with squads of riot police patrolling Blantyre.

While the rebellious spirit may have been dampened, there was no disposition in Blantyre to minimize the ominous potentialities of the situation. Dr. Hastings Banda, president of the African National party, has not retreated an inch from his demand that Nyasaland must become an independent state outside the federation.

In Salisbury, capital of Southern Rhodesia and the federation, where a state of emergency was proclaimed three days ago, 400 party leaders have been arrested and an even more serious view is taken of the situation.

The drastic action in Southern Rhodesia obviously was taken with the expectation that Sir Robert Armitage, governor of Nyasaland, would follow through with similar measures.

Sir Robert, however, has made no move to declare a state of emergency or arrest party leaders.

Sir Robert was governor in Cyprus in 1955 when the EOKA campaign started there. He has been criticized sharply by papers in Southern Rhodesia for not taking more drastic action in Nyasaland. But he also is under pressure from African leaders to get Rhodesian troops out of Nyasaland.

Wellington Chirwa, African member of the Nyasaland Parliament, in a letter to the governor, said: "There is no liking in this country for Rhodesian troops, and their presence makes the position worse."

In a letter to British Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd, Chirwa asked that Nyasaland be allowed to secede peacefully from the federation. He asked also for self-government and higher posts for Africans in civil, educational and economic development in Nyasaland, whose 3½ million Negroes are dominated by the 7,000 white settlers.

"The government in Southern Rhodesia meanwhile ordered the expulsion of John Stonehouse, a Laborite member of the British Parliament whose speeches on human rights to meetings of the African party aroused white settlers.

Army Working On Lunar Probe Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Army missilemen went back to work on their lunar probe rocket today after failing Sunday night to launch a satellite past the moon and into a solar orbit.

The 76-foot rocket, Juno II, stood poised in floodlights for a half hour and the firing crew had progressed to within minutes of target time when the shot was postponed. No reason was given officially, but it was learned that a power failure caused the decision to scrub.

Another effort could be made tonight, Tuesday or Wednesday while the moon is in favorable proximity to earth, 221,000 miles away. After that, a month's delay would be necessary until the moon again swings into the correct position.

All that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would say about the postponement was that it was due to "technical difficulties."

The launching — similar to the first Army space probe Dec. 6 — will be another attempt to fire a gold-plated payload more than a half million miles above the earth to become an artificial planet of the sun. The Soviets say they turned the trick with a 1 1/2 ton Lunik satellite Jan. 4.

As in the first flight, the cone-shaped Pioneer probe will carry special instruments to measure two radiation bands that hang over the earth starting at about 1,000 miles.

The Army crewmen, working on a precise timetable, missed their first chance to fire within a 10-minute deadline Sunday night when trouble developed during the countdown. Before they could make another attempt, the azimuth direction ring at the base of the missile had to be readjusted to compensate for the rotation of the earth and moon during the time lag.

Foul weather has blanketed the Cape for the past four days. A steady rain fell for hours Sunday night, but the skies began to clear shortly before launch time.

This is the fifth and last space probe authorized as part of the International Geophysical Year program. However, many more daring space ventures are expected during 1959.

Mild Weather May Continue

The mild weather that ushered March into Texas was expected to continue most of this week.

Slightly lower temperatures were predicted for Monday and Tuesday but the five-day forecasts called for a warming trend by mid-week. Little or no precipitation was expected.

Warm southerly winds early Monday kept the temperature readings above freezing throughout the state. The lowest overnight reading was a 37 degrees at Dalhart. The lowest was a 54 reported at Abilene and Brownsville.

No rain was reported. Skies were generally clear with some partly cloudiness reported in central and west portions of the state.

Afternoon high temperatures Sunday ranged from 62 degrees at Sherman to 81 at Presidio.

Ft. Worth Lounge Hit By Explosion

FORT WORTH (AP)—A bomb shattered the interior of the Jungle Lounge here early yesterday.

Delbert Montgomery, a co-owner, estimated the loss at $15,000.

He said there had been a minor scuffle at the tavern Saturday night and that two men had been put out of the building, but did not know if the incident was connected with the bombing.

The tavern was closed when the explosion occurred. No one was injured.

New Way Found to Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

Houston, Texas: The new Loesch method of treatment is not only stopping hair loss . . . BUT IS REALLY GROWING HAIR!

We don't ask you to take our word for it, we invite you to try this new treatment for 32 days at our risk, and see for yourself.

We offer this treatment at our risk, because we know it works. However, it is impossible to satisfy everyone, as the great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of MALE PATTERN BALDNESS AND CANNOT BE HELPED.

But how can you be sure what is actually causing YOUR hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss. It may well be that YOUR hair loss and most or all of the baldness in your family was caused by the excessive discharge of sebum from the scalp.

We have found that many cases of hair loss are caused or affected by this excessive discharge of sebum and CAN BE HELPED by Loesch treatment. It would certainly be very foolish for you to give up your hair for lost without first finding out if your condition can be helped.

A Devotional For Today

If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small. (Proverbs 24:10.)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, grant us the strength to bear cheerfully the days of affliction and endure our trials. Give us grace to seek Thy help when our burdens seem too heavy for us. Grant us cheerfulness of heart. In Christ's name. Amen.

Miss Robb's Heresy

In her column one day last week Inez Robb spoke with feeling of the magnificence of Missouri ham and cream gravy, with hot bread on the side. She even intimated Missouri ham was superior to that of Virginia and one or two other special ham states, but then she was a guest of the University of Missouri School of Journalism and was therefore under a bread-and-butter obligation.

In its place rich cream gravy is out of this world, but we consider its association with ham as sheer heresy.

As all us ham devotees well know, there is only one gravy suitable to serve with ham, and that's red-eye gravy.

Cream gravy goes with fried chicken as Romeo goes with Juliet and by the same token red-eye gravy goes with fried ham at Mt. Olympus with the gods.

Now meat isn't meat without some kind of gravy; fried chicken isn't fried chicken without cream or milk gravy; and ham isn't ham without red-eye gravy.

We are astonished at Miss Robb's deduction to cream instead of red-eye gravy with ham. Perhaps it is accounted for by the fact she was born in California, attended the University of Idaho, and took only a B.A. at the University of Missouri. Virtually an outlander, as far as real Southern cookery is concerned, she means well, no doubt.

A Scoutmaster Gets His Badge

The folks up in Lamesa did a mighty fine thing Saturday evening when they honored Joe Spikes.

Since he wasn't a man of wealth, he hadn't endowed any institutions, nor had he led any crusades or served as head of numerous boards. But in a sense he had endowed the whole of Lamesa and Dawson County because he had put in 30 years of service as scoutmaster of troop No. 22.

From somewhere there, in the background, the shadow of Joe Spikes had fallen across many of the wholesome things being brought about in Lamesa by his boys. As leading citizens paraded to the rostrum to say a sincere word of appreciation for their scoutmaster of bygone days, he had the rare privilege of living to see himself living in others.

And that's one of the best things about the recognition Lamesans paid to Joe Spikes. He could still sense the fragrance of verbal bouquets from men who are better men because of his long and unselfish service.

All the pay he ever wanted out of his three decades as head of the troop was for his boys to make good, he said. A roll call of community leadership at Lamesa reveals just how rich Joe Spikes must feel. No amount of money could have bought what he has done.

New Tax Ruling On Political Activity

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court of the United States has just handed down a decision which could point the way to the removal of the tax exemption now granted labor unions. So also do many charitable foundations appear to be in danger of losing that same exemption.

For the first time in 40 years, the Supreme Court dealt specifically with those Treasury regulations which deny corporations or individuals the right to deduct from their gross income for tax purposes any expenses in promoting the passage or defeat of legislation, federal, state, or city. The ruling is an affirmation of the law of Congress which says that lobbying, the distribution of propaganda and other such activities by individuals or organizations are constitutionally protected, but that they must be given no tax favors.

The Supreme Court declares: "Nondiscriminatory denial of deduction from gross income to sums expended to promote or defeat legislation is plainly not aimed at the suppression of dangerous ideas." Rather, it appears to us to express a determination by Congress that since purchasing publicity can influence the fate of legislation which will affect, directly or indirectly, all in the community, everyone in the community should stand on the same footing as regards its purchase so far as the Treasury of the United States is concerned."

But what is a "nondiscriminatory denial of deduction"? This means that every individual and every organization of individuals must be treated alike. The Court, in support of its argument, pointed to the way private organizations are given tax exemptions provided they do not engage in propaganda activity. While it did not mention labor unions which today indirectly finance political activities and so-called "educational" propaganda, the following paragraphs in the latest decision are significant:

"The statutory policy is further evidenced by the treatment given by Congress to the tax status of organizations, otherwise qualified for exemption as organized exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes," which engage in activities designed to promote or defeat legislation. "As early as 1924 Congress amended the (internal revenue) code expressly to provide that no tax exemption should be given to organizations, otherwise qualifying, a substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and that deductibility should be denied contributions by individuals to such organizations. And a year thereafter, when the code was for the first time amended to permit corporations to deduct certain contributions not qualifying as ordinary and necessary business expenses, an identical limitation was imposed."

The current case dealt with the expenses

He's Game

James Marlow Mac's A Waste Of Red Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a simpler view than some of the guesses on why Premier Nikita Khrushchev gave British Prime Minister Macmillan a rude, fast brushoff when he went to Moscow to discuss the Berlin crisis.

The guesses range from thinking Khrushchev was making one more effort to intimidate the West to saying he was impatient with Macmillan for not bringing solid solutions with him to Moscow.

The simpler view is that the realistic Khrushchev thinks strictly in terms of power and who has the muscle. He has shown he understands what power means by getting rid of all his rivals in the U.S.S.R. until now he stands supreme.

In this world the two most powerful forces are the Soviet Union and the United States. They dominate. Compared with them every other nation is a second-rate force, according to this view.

The two leaders of the two dominant powers are Khrushchev and President Eisenhower. Therefore, any talks except directly between Khrushchev and Eisenhower are a gum beating waste of time.

If this view is accepted, then that would explain why Khrushchev treated Macmillan like a messenger boy, dismissed the idea of a foreign ministers' meeting as time-wasting, and aimed at what he has sought more than a year: a summit meeting with Eisenhower.

His meeting with Macmillan was in a way a kind of junior summit. He showed what he thought of Macmillan's importance by the way he treated the British prime minister, who was his guest.

Khrushchev has given the United States, Britain and France until May 27 to get their troops out of Berlin. If they don't, he has threatened to let the East German Communists block any supplies the Big Three attempt to send their Berlin troops.

Since this situation could lead to war, the Western Big Three proposed to seek a peaceful solution by talking. But their idea of who talks and Khrushchev's idea are not the same.

The Big Three—following what has become a kind of reflex action any time trouble arises—suggested that their three foreign ministers get together with the Soviet foreign minister to talk things over.

In the past, as Khrushchev later emphasized, can be time-consuming. They can be and often have been, unproductive.

Before the Soviets could give an official answer to the proposal about foreign ministers, Macmillan decided to go to Moscow, see Khrushchev and try to lay the groundwork for peaceful solutions.

But, since the Big Three were not yet willing to go beyond the idea of a ministers' meeting, Macmillan couldn't carry with him to Moscow any proposals that went further than that.

Khrushchev—during a recess in his conversations with Macmillan—made a farce of the talks by delivering, in a manner that seemed completely contemptuous of the prime minister, a speech on the very subject they were discussing.

He warned that Western efforts to push military supplies through to West Berlin after May 27 could mean war; he mocked the idea of a foreign ministers' meeting; and said only the heads of government have sufficient power to negotiate on the German problem.

Then Sunday, just before Macmillan set out for home, British sources said he was coming back determined to urge the United States and France into a summit meeting with Khrushchev. Macmillan long has favored such a meeting, but the official Allied stand has been for adequate advance preparation.

So Khrushchev moved one step closer to what he has wanted all along — a meeting with Eisenhower.

The Little Things Add Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

By the time he is 70, the average American has spent 20 years in sleeping, 20 years at work, and 5 1/2 years in eating, smoking and chewing gum.

Babies should be born with pocketbooks. It now costs about $18 worth of soaps and powders to keep an infant sweet and clean the first year of its life.

Quick quip: Dan Frohman, the veteran producer, once consented to listen to a young stage-struck girl sing. After she had finished she asked Frohman: "What do you think I should do now?" Frohman replied: "Get married!"

Do you ever wonder how your wife spends her time? A survey by the Bon Ami Institute disclosed wives devote 23 per cent of their working day to preparing meals, 13 per cent to dishwashing.

The ordinary U.S. family now uses 888 cans of food a year. What is home without a can opener?

Nature note: A wild elk lives to be about 10 years old, a zoo elk to 25. And a lodge elk, if he does not graze too long at the bar, to 70 or more.

The United States, growing ever more crowded, is already worried about a water shortage. But more than half of all the fresh water in the world lies in neighboring Canada.

Parental advice: We like this observation by Homer Phillips: "The time to start correcting the children is before they start correcting you!"

King Henry VII, one of the sternest of British monarchs, was generous in some ways. The ale allowance of the maids of honor at his court was fixed at eight gallons a day. But if the girls were still thirsty, they could draw an extra gallon.

The mobile family: A million or more trailers now serve as year-round homes for some three million Americans.

Household hint: Paint a ring of luminous paint around your flashlight, and it will be easy for you to locate it in the dark.

Benjamin Franklin was ahead of his time in a hundred ways. Did you know that in Philadelphia he organized America's first real street cleaning service?

Quotable notables: "A person seldom gets his head above the crowd," says chanteuse Rosina Pagan, "without sticking his neck out!"

In Iowa 96.8 per cent of the population is native-born. Born to the corn, and proud of it.

Easter is March 29, and if you think this seems a bit early, you are right. It's the earliest Easter in eight years.

Darius, ancient Persian king, believed in dining in comfort. During a long banquet he would have his slaves lift him in his golden chair, dip him in perfumed bath water, then return him still in his chair to the table for the next course. Try this on your guests at your next dinner.

They'll never forget your thoughtfulness.

The first railroad in America was built on a Georgia plantation in 1820. The cars were horse-drawn, and the railroad operated 46 years.

It was William Lyon Phelps, famous Yale critic, who remarked: "There is a very simple test by which... we can tell good people from bad. If a smile improves a man's face, he is a good man."

SAFE DRIVING TIP

Backing into a curbside parking space on a busy street requires a sharp look-out through the rear window for approaching traffic.

Often in crowded districts the driver following you does not know you are going to park, the Chicago Motor Club points out, so be sure to signal him.

Don't forget that when backing into a parking place, the left front fender of your car will slip into the adjoining traffic lane. Wait for an opening before starting the rearward swing.

Around The Rim Tax On Everything But Tranquilizers?

One of these days, it'll cost you $1.02 to mail a letter. It would be cheaper to deliver the message in person, perhaps, if you went barefooted. The cost of shoe leather will be prohibitive, thanks to the tax bite.

If you venture out at night, chances are you'll have some member of the family proceeding you on foot, lantern in hand, leading the way. There'll be a tax to pay everytime you turn on the headlights.

There'll be a tax for lying in bed, but people will be inclined to tarry there. There'll be an even heavier tax bite for planting the feet beside the bed.

There'll be no argument in educational circles about which came first, the chicken or the egg. The chicken will be taxed infinitely more, because there's more of it. Besides, there'll be a tax on arguments.

You'll be hoping for an extended dry spell, because there'll be a tax on rain. But if a downpour does come, you'll turn your head the other way — there'll be a tax for watching it.

There'll be taxing turnstiles in front of every store. It would be cheaper to order your supplies via telephone, save for the fact that there'll be a 99 cent levy against each phone call you make. And, besides, there'd be a tax on the delivery service. You could, of course, send your orders via smoke signals but there'll be a tax on that, too.

There'll be a tax on saving accounts and charge accounts. On across-the-fence chats between neighbors. On measles and headaches. There'll be taxes if you do wear glasses, and taxes if you don't.

A traveling man will be in a position to retire at the age of 30 and live off the money he has saved from his expense account, except for one thing. He'll have no money with which to pay for past tax levies against his pay check and his dividends.

Schools will have a discipline problem. School masters will be taxed every time they wield the hickory limb across the lower back of some misbehaving youngster.

It'll come to pass that the working stiff will be trying to screw up enough courage to go in and try to talk the boss out of that promised raise. He can't afford it, in view of the new taxes he would have to pay on the bigger check.

There'll be tax analysts hired to check on the tax experts appointed to audit the reports of the tax collectors and agencies hired to think up new ways to tax and taxes collected to pay for publicists who write pleasing treacle about the taxing agencies.

There'll be no tax payers' meetings to protest the hike in taxes, however, because there'll be a tax on all such conclaves.

Inter-planetary travel will largely be one way. Visitors from other planets will steer clear of our own particular star after learning they'll be taxed if they land here.

There's one ray of hope, however. The tax on happiness pills will be small. The people possessing all the grey matter who think up all the taxes will go along with the theory that a people on the Milltown diet will be much more inclined to pay their taxes without grumbling, on the promise there'll be a plentiful supply of pills.

Smelly Business Of The National Flower

By ED KOTERBA
(Writing for Inez Robb, who is on vacation.)

WASHINGTON — Wonder if Senator Gordon Allott (R., Colo.) knew what he was bringing onto himself when he turned in his resolution to make the carnation our national flower?

What he did was like stepping into a garden packed with angry bees. I would say he committed a grave political error. He shoulda stayed neutral.

A couple of weeks back I made the tactical mistake of not staying neutral in a piece about an earlier flower feud between the rose and the corn tassel. Gently, I had cast my vote for the tassel as our national floral emblem. And the things that the housewives wrote did not sound much like flowery phrases.

The ladies swung everything from backyard brickbats to garden clubs. They claimed other blossoms as their absolute favorites, and this included everything from the yellow dandelion to the purple wisteria.

Maybe the carnation is the grandest floral symbol of all. But that's beside the point. No Senator in his right mind would take the chance of losing an election by voting for anything other than his state's choice. Housewives may not understand ponderous legislation, but they know their flowers.

Allott must have scented that his flower cause was going to pot less than two hours after he presented his bill. A half dozen Senators, wearing in their lapels the Senator's free carnations, jumped up on the Senate floor to protest the resolution.

Allott's first error, of course, was when he referred to the flower feud as a "weedy situation." I'd say he was trading on somebody's grass, namely Senator Thurston Morton's (R., Ky.), who's plugging grass. In fact, he expects to introduce a grass bill presently.

Detroit In Turbulence Over Small Cars

The turbulent fashion in which American Motors Corp. stock has moved up and down on the New York Stock Exchange in the last six months—some $17 a share to more than $40 and then down to less than $30—indicates the turmoil and uncertainty in the entire automobile industry. The run-up and down in America is a Detroit distress signal transferred to Wall Street.

For at least a year, it has been known that General Motors and Ford, alerted by the success of foreign cars and American Motors' Rambler, have been experimenting with a small car. Detroit's relentless market researchers had failed to note a slow change in consumer buying habits. Enough people wanted cars for transportation (in preference to feathering their egos) to make a worthwhile market for compact, economy vehicles.

Newspaper and magazine articles had told a story going into small-car development at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. But Big Three spokesmen, in response to queries, were always ceremoniously noncommittal. L. L. Colbert, of Chrysler, said that if Chrysler were to bring out a small car, it would have a front-end engine. General Motors let it be known that its small car, if such there ever will be, will be made and marketed by Chevrolet. Ford said it wouldn't be left in left field if GM or Chrysler entered this market.

Then, last week, the New York Times published a story saying that the Ford Motor Co. would debut its small car this fall. American Motors stock sank as this was fresh news in Wall Street. Henry Ford II promptly issued an ambiguous denial. He said what was already known: A small car was being tested. Frederick G. Donner, chairman of General Motors Corp., said the same about GM's plans.

The only high-up executive in Detroit who's talking positively is George Romney, American Motors' president. He has said all along that the Big Three will bring out a small car in the fall of '59, that they can't afford not to, and that he's not the least bit afraid of the competing traffic lane. Wait for an opening before starting the rearward swing.

public in on their secret so that prospective purchasers of small cars will hold off buying Romney's Ramblers, Studebaker-Packard's Lariks, and foreign cars.

The answer is 1959 sales. They're not so bad that a small car is an absolute must. If, in the next six weeks or so, the public were to start buying '59 splashily, the companies could decide to postpone a decision for another year or perhaps indefinitely.

GM, Ford, and Chrysler have every incentive to put off a final decision. They go into small cars as followers, not as innovators. They reluctantly unsold themselves on the idea that Americans wanted bigger and bigger cars—the closer in size, shape, and swish to the Cadillac the better. Investment in plant and equipment, styling concepts, horsepower, dealership training and display, and advertising policies had been shaped to bond to undermine habits of thought and action, and, even worse, perhaps the comfortable and comforting status quo.

If the industry goes small car, what will happen to Pontiac, Olds, and Buick in the GM line, to the Edsel and Mercury in Ford, and to the Dodge, DeSoto, and smaller Chryslers in Chrysler? GM, Ford, and Chrysler, as corporations, have as much or more at stake in their own small car decision as has American Motors or Studebaker-Packard. GM, Ford, and Chrysler keep their places in the industry—one, two and three. A small car scramble for position will endanger those places, produce a new battle for survival—not in 1960 or '61, but over the years. So they'd like to avoid the cold plunge into uncertainty.

There's another reason for secrecy. When Nieman-Maffuc, or Bergdorf Goodman, or Bonwit Teller, or Gimbel's decides to have a close-out sale of women's dresses, they don't advertise: "New Styles Tomorrow—Special Sale on Obsolete Styles Today."

Donner, Ford and Colbert have merchandised to sell. While 1959 models are still in production, still going out to dealers, they're not going to suggest to potential buyers: "Better hold off, what you buy now will be outdated in 1960."

For their part, they're only one absolute point of no return—the day one company makes its announcement.

Uncle Sam Has Trouble Raking In Public Loan

Editor's Note: There is growing concern in Washington about the Treasury's difficulties in managing a record national debt of 286 billion dollars. This is the first of four articles assessing the situation.

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is having trouble borrowing the billions he needs to stay in business.

No one doubts he'll get the money he requires, one way or another. The question is: what price will he have to pay — in terms of dollars, economic difficulty and possible inflation?

If the price gets high enough, a financial crisis could develop. Treasury officials say they're optimistic but their concern is apparent.

The government's plight was dramatized last month when nine billion dollars of loans supplied by private lenders came due. Like any harried debtor, Uncle Sam asked his creditors to renew the loans. As encouragement, he offered them new and more generous terms.

The lenders — banks, corporations and individuals — had a choice. They could renew their loans for one year and collect 3 1/2 per cent interest or renew for three years and get 4 per cent.

Historically, these interest rates are very high. In some cases, they were more than double the rate paid on the original loans.

Nevertheless, two billion dollars of loans were not renewed. The lenders wanted their money back.

NOT THIS MUCH
Uncle Sam had expected a sizable demand for cash — but not this much. He didn't have the funds to pay off the maturing loans and was forced to make an emergency borrowing.

This meant he was able to get all the credit he needed only on the second attempt. He had expected to get enough the first time. It was a sobering experience for the world's best credit risk.

What went wrong?
There can be no precise answer since the result represented decisions by scores of lenders who didn't put their reasons in writing.

Treasury officials are inclined to blame "technical factors." However, they concede some of the responsibility belongs to these other — more ominous — factors:

1. Fear of rising interest rates in a period of economic recovery.

2. Fear of inflation.

If an investor believes inflation is the "wave of the future," he doesn't want to tie up his money in a government I.O.U. — a Treasury security — that would depreciate in value. He's more apt to invest in common stocks or real estate, hoping their value will keep pace with inflation.

INFLATION EVIL
Bonds and similar debt securities are vulnerable to inflation. As living costs rise, the market price of a bond drops because the dollars it represents are losing value.

All interest rates tend to rise in periods of inflation. Lenders need more incentive to make a loan since they'll be paid back in dollars of diminishing value.

You don't have to have rising prices, however, to get rising interest rates. Prices have held virtually steady since last June. Still, in that time, the interest demanded on three-month loans to the government has virtually tripled.

Such a rise in rates is due to market factors. If the supply of money available for lending decreases, or the demand for loans increases, interest rates rise.

Since last summer, the demand for loans by the Treasury — the world's biggest borrower — has mounted because of a 13-billion-dollar budget deficit.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve Board has been restricting credit — in effect, holding down the supply of money available for lending. The board has done this in hopes of preventing an inflation of credit which could inflate the whole economy.

Both these developments have put upward pressure on interest rates.

Adding to that pressure, many investors have decided inflation is coming and so have declined to lend.

It is in this environment that the Treasury is financing a record national debt of 286 billion dollars. That it is having problems is not surprising.

Violent Deaths Claim 28 Lives

By The Associated Press
Violent deaths claimed at least 28 lives in Texas over the weekend with traffic mishaps accounting for more than half of the fatalities. At least 17 persons died in highway accidents, seven by gunfire, two from home fires, and one each by a fall and an accidental electrocution.

Faith In Congress

HONOLULU (AP) — Federal Judge J. Frank McLaughlin is so confident of statehood for Hawaii soon that he has shaved off his beard. Back in August, 1957 McLaughlin grew a beard and vowed to keep it until the territory is granted statehood.

But he showed up in court clean-shaven recently and announced:

"I have every confidence that this Congress will provide statehood for Hawaii."

Kilgore Youth Has Big Future As Bullfighter

KILGORE, Tex. (AP)—A youth whose tutor predicts he soon may rival the fabulous Manolete is headed for Mexico and his second public date in a bull ring.

Baron Clement Jr., 20, and his mentor—Sidney Franklin, the bull fighter from Brooklyn—were visiting the youth's parents here today.

"Nobody in Mexico has his style and manner in fighting," Franklin said in an interview. "And only one—Antonio Ordinez—can match him in Spain."

Franklin said Clement may become as great as Spain's revered torero, the late Manolete.

And how did a boy from an East Texas oil town become such a promising bull fighter?

It started, Clement said, with a burning desire instilled by reading the tales of Ernest Hemingway. Having a father who could put up $25,000 expense money helped.

Clements began writing fan letters as a boy to Franklin's ranch near Seville, Spain, and his place near San Antonio, Tex.

The youth was graduated at Kilgore High School in June, 1956. As quarterback on the football team, he was offered scholarships in several Southwest Conference schools. But he was on a plane for Spain next day.

Franklin had agreed to teach him how to fight bulls. Now Franklin is his manager.

"The $25,000 came out of poppa's hip pocket," his father said. "If a person as deeply dedicated as he is want's bull fighting, he'll go," added the 43-year-old father who owns a welding concern.

The son carefully explains that he is a torero, one who fights on foot, rather than a torero, who fights from horseback.

Baron fights in the "rodondo," or classical style—motionless most of the time, controlling the bull's motion and speed with motions of his wrist and waist.

"He pays absolutely no attention to the horns, and yet he has never been scratched in the ring," Franklin said.

Franklin said Clement could make back the $25,000 spent on his schooling "in one fight."

"In fact, if he hits the top ranks there is no limit."

Powerful Bomb Shatters Lounge

HOUSTON (AP)—A bomb described as powerful enough to wreck a building shattered the back entrance to a lounge last night but the occupants escaped injury.

"It's just fortunate that whoever placed the bomb was afraid to put it inside," detective A. E. Rockwell said. He said the explosion could "have collapsed this building."

Nina Turner, who was in charge, said the owner of the place, the Zebra Lounge, was Jack Snyder. She could give no reason for the bombing. Three customers were in the lounge.

Theatre Considered A 'Force Of Light'

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)—Playwright Maxwell Anderson saw the theater as a great force spreading light into the dark corners of human experience. He took to writing plays late in life and then plunged into it as a "religious experience." He worked at it meticulously until a few days before he died. Only a stroke stopped the flow from his pen. He was 79 when he died in Stamford hospital Saturday. Anderson the man was interested in all the vital aspects of life. His eyes caught everything happening around him. His plays were a testimony to his breadth of knowledge. Anderson the newspaperman playwright spotlighted congressional log rolling in "Both Your Houses," which won him the Pulitzer Prize in 1933. Anderson, the poet playwright, wrote 11 successful plays in verse. Anderson, the realist playwright wrote the first American play, "What Price Glory?" with Lawrence Stallings in 1924, to show war as something beyond a setting for heroic deeds. Anderson, the social-conscious playwright, wrote "Winterset." He called it a "serious indictment of the hysterical justice meted out in the Sacco-Vanzetti trial." Anderson, the romantic playwright, wrote the tender lyrics to the popular "September Song" written 20 years ago for "Knickerbocker Holiday." Anderson began as a teacher, drifted to newspaper writing, and came upon the theater quietly in 1923 with a play called "The White Desert." No one was enthusiastic. A year later "What Price Glory?" thundered onto Broadway and Anderson was able to devote full time to writing plays. Anderson said he was grateful to the newspaper business because it taught him discipline. "I never completed a thing I wrote until I learned to meet the newspaper deadline," he said. Anderson was married to Margaret Haskett in 1911. They had three sons — Alan, Terence and Quentin. Mrs. Anderson died in 1931 and he married Gertrude Maynard—mother of a daughter, Hesper, by a former marriage—two years later. She died in 1952. Anderson married Gilda Oakland in 1954. She and the sons survive. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at St. Paul's Chapel of Columbia University in New York City. Eulogies will be delivered by author Mark Van Doren and playwright Robert Anderson, no relation.
