Big 3 Feel Out Gromyko

GENEVA (AP)—Foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France met with Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko today to find out whether he is willing to meet demands for a lower price for a Berlin truce.

Gromyko had indicated to the West before the latest session of the Big Four conference opened that he planned to make a long speech. It could decide the fate of the Big Four conference.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France held a brief strategy meeting at the Palace of Nations before going into the session with Gromyko.

Lloyd and Couve de Murville had just returned from Paris. Lloyd reported to the 15-nation North Atlantic Council there this morning that the future of the Geneva conference hinged on Soviet reaction to Western proposals on Berlin. Soviet refusal to consider Western ideas, he was reported to have said, would mean that the West might call off the meeting.

Couve de Murville attended a meeting of President Charles de Gaulle's cabinet.

MIGHT BACK DOWN
 Some Communist informants hinted that the Soviet foreign minister might back down slightly from his insistence that the West grant Communist East Germany equality with West Germany by creating an all-German committee to negotiate unification.

Alternatively, he might try to stave off a final showdown by suggesting some new approach to the whole problem and calling for a further study of the possibilities of a compromise.

Top Western officials said they had no indication that any Soviet concession was in the making. In a 90-minute secret talk Tuesday with the three Western foreign ministers, Gromyko refused to budge from the Soviet insistence on giving the East Germans equal status with the West Germans.

Herter, Lloyd and Maurice Couve de Murville pressed Gromyko repeatedly to discuss the Western counterproposal for a continuing Big Four conference on unification with East and West Germans sitting in as advisers.

They also tried to find out whether Gromyko would be willing to put his own committee proposal aside and give first priority to a Big Four deal to remove the Communist threat to West Berlin.

DODGES ANSWERS
 Western diplomats said Gromyko dodged and avoided direct answers, saying "You know my position." Lloyd reportedly denounced Gromyko's tactics in a brief angry clash.

All three Western ministers told Gromyko they intend to break off the conference soon unless they begin to make progress toward an agreement. Herter had given him a similar warning on Monday.

Western officials said if the Russian's reply in today's formal big four session was completely negative, the conference probably would collapse next week.

The Western move to break off talks probably would take the form of a proposal for a long recess. There also has been some talk of proposing negotiations be continued through a meeting of deputy foreign ministers or ambassadors.

Mission Accomplished
 Dr. Albert Schweitzer was a happy man as he received $400,000 worth of medicine presented him by Bobby Hill, 13, left, at Lambarene, French Equatorial Africa. Bobby is the son of Sgt. Henry Hill of Waycross, Ga., and stationed in Naples with the Allied Air Forces, Southern Europe. Last month the boy wrote his dad's commanding officer with the request that he would like to send a package of medicine to Schweitzer if he could obtain help in delivering it. The letter led to a campaign in Italy to raise money for medicine for the doctor and Bobby was flown to make the presentation.

OLD SETTLERS PICNIC Supplies Bought For Big Barbecue

Wood is being grubbed and chopped, 2,000 pounds of choice beef and goat have been bought, 100 pounds of beans have been donated and 12 pounds of coffee provided as preliminary preparation for the annual Howard-Glasscock County Old Settlers Reunion barbecue on July 31.

Harold Choate, president of the association, said that several hundred dollars have been donated by wellwishers to help finance the big picnic but that additional money will be needed.

He pointed out that the big feed of last July 31 cost more than $1,200. This year's party will cost more as prices are higher and there is a likelihood of an even larger attendance.

He said Purr's has donated 100 pounds of beans. On the night of July 29, a "bean picking" will get under way at the home of Melvin Choate, 2400 Golia. Committee members will be on hand to sort out the rocks from the beans in preparation for cooking on July 30.

The 2,000 pounds of meat will be cut up and fires started at the barbecue pits at the City Park on July 30. It takes 24 hours, Choate pointed out, to barbecue the meat and a crew of volunteers will be on hand to carry out this assignment starting on that date.

Piggly Wiggly has donated 12 pounds of coffee for the picnic—the same amount that was used last year. Meade Bakeries have donated the services of a sound truck for the party. The celebration will be in Big Spring City Park at the pavilions.

Any person who has been a resident of Howard or Glasscock County for 20 years or longer is welcome to take part in the celebration.

Contributions to help finance the party can either be turned in to Choate, or Joe Hayden, Temp Currie or other workers. Checks can also be mailed to Old Settlers Reunion, Post Office Box 1387, Big Spring.

Contributions not previously reported:

$25 gifts — C. L. Wasson, Medical Arts Hospital, and E. W. Lomax; $20—Howard County Hospital Assn.; $10—Charles Harwell, Co-Op Gin, Cecil Thixton, Nalley-Pickle, A. R. Collins, E. T. O'Daniel, $5 — Ralph White, Albert Knappe, Anonymous, Ernest Palmer, E. T. Tucker, Byron Neel, Big Spring Tractor, M. O. Hamby, Paul Bishop, Alvin Bates, Bud Flannigan, Jay Johnson, Dr. Otto Wolfe, Jess Slaughter, Morgan Coates, J. L. LeBleu, H. D. Reagan, Ted Phillips, Roy Barbee, Carl Marchbanks, L. A. Marchbanks, Frank Pool, Homer McKinney, Johnny Whitmore, Jack Wilcox, Charles Eberly, and A. L. Cooper; $3—Dr. H. F. Schwarzenbach, Doc Wilkerson; $2—Blake Feed & Seed, T. E. # Ike Asks National Debt Cut Before Tax Slice

LEGISLATURE

House Approves Tax Bill As Senate Okays High Spending

AUSTIN (AP)—House tax bill writers recommended 193 million dollars in new taxes today while the Senate approved a record-breaking spending bill.

With less than five minutes of debate senators gave voice approval of an appropriation bill calling for 139 million dollars from the state general revenue fund from 1960-61. The Senate then adjourned until 10:30 a.m. tomorrow.

A few minutes earlier the House Tax Committee recommended House approval of two revenue bills raising $193,489,000 in the next biennium.

The big tax bill (HB11) totals $177,289,000. It includes a 2 percent sales tax on all items costing more than $100 to bring in 50 million plus a corporation franchise tax to bring in $32,500,000.

Also included are the already much-discussed 2 cents per pack increase on cigarettes, new levies on cigars and other tobacco, liquor, motor vehicles, utilities, and a 3 percent hotel and motel tax. It also provides reductions on sulphur, theater admissions and the chain store taxes.

Matthew explained the subcommittee felt the gas tax should be handled separately. That was the reason for the two bills.

The Senate Finance Committee substituted its spending bill for the House appropriation bill and cleared the way for floor action. The bill is about 18 million dollars below the House budget.

Sen. George Moffett, Chillicothe, asked the committee how it was going to handle the Insurance Department controversy in view of the House vote to retain the board members and the commissioner at their present salaries.

The Senate appropriation bill slices Insurance Commissioner William A. Harrison's salary from $20,000 to $11,000 and the board members from $15,000 to $5,000.

"The way to get the conference committee off the hook is for the House to pass the Bradshaw bill. It's best to resolve it by law," said Chairman William S. Fly, Victoria.

He referred to a bill by Sen. Floyd Bradshaw, Weatherford, passed in the last session. It eliminates Harrison's position and requires the governor to appoint a 3-member board. One of the members would act as commissioner.

Sen. William S. Fly, Victoria, led his Senate Finance Committee through a quick look at the $2,415,255 appropriations bill approved yesterday for the fourth time by the House.

Representatives also approved 102-23 another dip into the state's cigarette tax fund to get $350,000 to pay for this 30-day special session. This brings the total cost of the Legislature since Jan. 13 to $2,050,000 with most coming from the smokers.

Most of the $57,275,721 increase over present spending in the House appropriations bill will go to higher education. It is boosted $23,825,739, with $6,629,760 recom-

INGENUITY, OR BIG FUEL BILL?

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—One Madison resident apparently has found a way to dispose of huge amounts of snow plugging his narrow driveway.

Neighbors saw him shoveling snow into his basement through an open window. It seems the snow melted on the basement floor and the water ran down the drain.

Ike Gives Legislation 'Must' List

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today put labor control, road construction and farm measures at the top of legislation he wants Congress to pass in this session.

Eisenhower was asked at his news conference if he has any "must" list of legislation.

The President replied that he has not gone to the trouble of making out such a list. But he said the first order of business in his earlier messages to Congress was a bill to provide machinery to curb all of the abuses brought out by the Senate Labor-Management Committee investigation.

Eisenhower went on to say that in his judgment one necessary measure would be the one to provide the revenue for continuing the interstate highway construction program.

The President said a decent farm bill is terribly important at this time in the session. The Senate has passed a labor control bill based in part on the disclosures made by the special investigating committee headed by Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark).

The House has not yet acted on a labor bill.

Eisenhower has asked an increase of 1½ cents per gallon in gasoline taxes to finance continued construction in the interstate road program. House Democrats have been talking of a compromise but the Ways and Means Committee has not yet acted finally on any measure in this field.

The two houses have been unable to agree on any general farm legislation. There seems little prospect that the Democratic-dominated Congress will act in this field.

Eisenhower was asked if he has any advice for wheat farmers who are voting Thursday on next year's program.

The President replied they face a hard choice because no satisfactory wheat legislation has been passed.

He said the farmers must choose between the program now in effect—which he said has produced tremendous surpluses that are detrimental to the country as a whole—or accept the alternative of having no program at all.

A reporter asked Eisenhower if he feels—as Woodrow Wilson did—that the veto is the strongest weapon possessed by the President. The reporter also asked how bad a bill has to be to warrant a veto.

Sees No Hope For Reduction In His Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today there must be some payment on the huge national debt before any tax reduction can be justified.

The President, at a news conference, identified himself as the source of news dispatches Tuesday saying, among other things, that he sees no real hope for any tax cut during his last 18 months in office.

Eisenhower, in those news dispatches, also said the chances for any summit meeting with the Russians had grown increasingly dim.

At his meeting with reporters today the President said substantially the same thing, but added that he still does have hope for progress at the foreign ministers' talks in Geneva.

William McGaffin of the Chicago Daily News called Eisenhower's attention to the series of news dispatches Tuesday which expressed Eisenhower's views on many subjects but did not name the source.

When McGaffin started to ask a question, Eisenhower interrupted and said that if McGaffin wanted to know whether he had had a group of newsmen to dinner, the answer was yes.

McGaffin then called it a good idea because, as he put it, the procedure increased the flow of news. Eisenhower thanked him but took exception when McGaffin protested that what he termed only a chosen few newsmen had been invited.

The President called the procedure an experiment, adding he probably will do it again.

On the point of taxes, Eisenhower was asked whether he believes a reduction is impossible.

He replied that the government should start to pay off the big national debt. Estimates are, he said, that interest on the debt in the fiscal year starting a year from now will total about $8,700,000,000.

When you have to pay out that much in interest alone, the President said, it is the better part of wisdom to start whittling the debt so a tax cut can be justified in the future.

And payment on the debt has not yet started, he observed.

The news conference ranged over these other topics:

POLITICS — Eisenhower declined to assess New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as a possibility for the presidency on the Republican ticket.

NIXON VISIT — As for Vice President Nixon's imminent visit to Russia — he leaves later in the day — Eisenhower said the vice president is not going to the Soviet Union in the role of negotiator of East-West differences.

The trip, the President went on, is a good-will gesture in connection with the opening of a U.S. exhibit in Moscow.

As for protest by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev regarding a presidential proclamation expressing hope Soviet-dominated countries will win their freedom, Eisenhower noted that Congress had passed a resolution instructing him to issue the proclamation.

BOHLEN — U.S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen is one of the one men in the State Department, Eisenhower said. He paid that tribute in attempting to clarify his remark at a news conference last week that Secretary of State Christian A. Herter had told him he has given no thought at this time to assigning Bohlen to serve as a key adviser on Soviet affairs.

The President said nothing as to whether Bohlen eventually will become a policy adviser on Soviet affairs.

CIVIL RIGHTS — Eisenhower said once again that progress in the field of civil rights cannot be made entirely through the enactment of laws. There must be much dependence, he added, on the education process and on acceptance of moral responsibility in that area.

He made that comment when told that Roy Wilkins, head of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, had said Negroes may have to support the Republicans because the Democrats in Congress have come up with a big fat zero in the civil rights legislation field.

Eisenhower replied he had not heard about the Wilkins remark, but that his administration always has stood for equal opportunity in the economic and political fields.

GERMANY — Eisenhower was asked what assurance he has that a rearmament of Germany will not turn against the United States and its other Western allies. A reporter wanted to know whether the risk in this case is justified.

Flood Waters Drop After Marooning Visitors in Canyon

Floodwaters also poured into Brownwood and Coleman in West Central Texas as heavy rain hit that area for the third straight day.

A 2.22 inch downpour caused Adams Branch to overflow into streets in Brownwood, but the water went down without forcing evacuation of homes.

Pecan Bayou and Lake Brownwood continued to rise as the water poured off the soaked earth, but the water is expected to flow into the Colorado River and on into Lake Buchanan without causing appreciable damage.

Street flooding but no major damage was also the report from the Coleman, where an estimated eight inches of rain has fallen in three days.

A funnel cloud was sighted in the sky over the Beaumont-Port Arthur airport Tuesday afternoon, but the twister vanished without touching the ground.

At Falls City 40 miles southeast of San Antonio, winds estimated at 70 miles per hour unroofed a small building near the high school. Residents said rain which accompanied the wind blowwashed their cars and blew them over a low water crossing.

Cowart said the visitors — an estimated four to each auto — had plenty of food and were in no danger.

Two youths waded the swollen stream to bring word of the autos and passengers to the park headquarters.

Bus Schedule Changes Here
 Two service changes in bus transportation were announced here Wednesday.

One involves the resumption of the Big Spring-Snyder service with one schedule each way daily. This calls for arrival of the bus from Snyder at 1:45 p.m. daily with departure for Snyder at 3 p.m.

Southwestern Greyhound also announced the addition of one daily schedule for through service between San Francisco and Dallas. On this schedule, passengers may board here with no change until they arrive in San Francisco, or they may board at other points on the eastbound trip with no change until they reach their destination or Dallas.

Cost Of Living Rises Again To Record Level During June

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living rose four-tenths of 1 per cent in June to a record high.

This was the largest monthly increase in 14 months.

Announcing the rise, as measured by its consumer price index, the Labor Department said today that all major items in the living costs of city families advanced.

However, Commissioner Ewan Clague of the Bureau of Labor Statistics told newsmen the upsurge of prices was "not a sign that the index is about to take off."

Food prices advanced 1 per cent in June, the BLS said, and this was the principal cause of the over-all increase since food represents the largest single item in the average family's budget.

Average take-home pay for the single man in factory employment was $73.66 a week, BLS reported, and for the worker with three dependents it was $81.21. The comparable figures last month were $73.49 and $81.03.

By comparison with a year ago, spendable earnings were up about 8 per cent as a result of higher hourly wage rates, more overtime work, and an increase in the number of hours worked at straight time pay.

Food prices advanced 1 per cent in June, the BLS said, and this was the principal cause of the over-all increase since food represents the largest single item in the average family's budget.

It Was 25 Years Ago That Law Finally Cornered Dillinger

Editor's Note—A quarter of a century ago the end came for a stocky, grim-faced hoodster who had terrified the entire Midwest. With him died a brief but bloody era that for sheer violence and drama has never been equaled in the history of American crime.

By DON REEDER
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Today the name Dillinger is nothing but a faint, bitter taste of memory for his family and the veteran policemen and reporters who were caught up in his sensational, bullet-pocked career.

But on that hot night 25 years ago—July 22, 1934—when John Dillinger was shot to death in front of a Chicago movie theater, he was perhaps the most notorious person in the country.

For nearly 30 of his 31 years, John Dillinger accomplished nothing to merit headlines. But by the time he was shot down, he had been blamed in one or another of at least 13 killings, had looted banks of at least $500,000, and had cost law enforcement agencies some two million dollars for the most intense police hunt this country had ever seen.

The Dillinger story actually began May 22, 1932, when he was released on parole from the Indiana State Prison after serving nearly nine years of a 10-21-year term for slugging and robbing a Mooresville grocer of $550.

Before his arrest, Dillinger had quit school, worked as a machinist, joined the Navy, and was dis-honorably discharged for desertion. He had married a 16-year-old girl. She divorced him while he was in prison.

Dillinger always called his one and only prison term "a bum rap" because his partner in the robbery turned state's evidence and got off with a light term.

"It was just an unfortunate boy," he solemnly told newsmen after one of his arrests.

Dillinger wasn't beyond prison walls for a month before he held up the manager of a thread factory in Monticello, Ill. Then he branched out to where the real money was—in the banks.

Dillinger—or the men he worked with—were blamed for dozens of bank robberies in subsequent months all over Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and South Dakota.

The Dillinger gang was a rather loosely organized outfit, and to this day there is a lot of doubt that Dillinger gave all the orders.

Operating with him were such seasoned gunmen as John Hamilton, George (Baby Face) Nelson, Alvin Karpis, and Fred and Arthur Barker.

On Sept. 26, 1933—four months after his parole from the same prison—10 convicts shot their way out of the Indiana State Prison.

Dillinger later admitted that he had engineered the escape by smuggling three revolvers inside some material being shipped to the prison shirt factory.

"In the prison I met a lot of good fellows," he explained. "I wanted to help them out. I stick to my friends, and they stick to me."

Stick to him they did. The day before the prison break Dillinger himself was captured by police in Dayton, Ohio. A little more than two weeks later three men walked into the jail at Lima, Ohio, and released him after killing the sheriff.

The Dillinger mob resumed its foray against Midwestern banks, arming for the raids by looting police station arsenals.

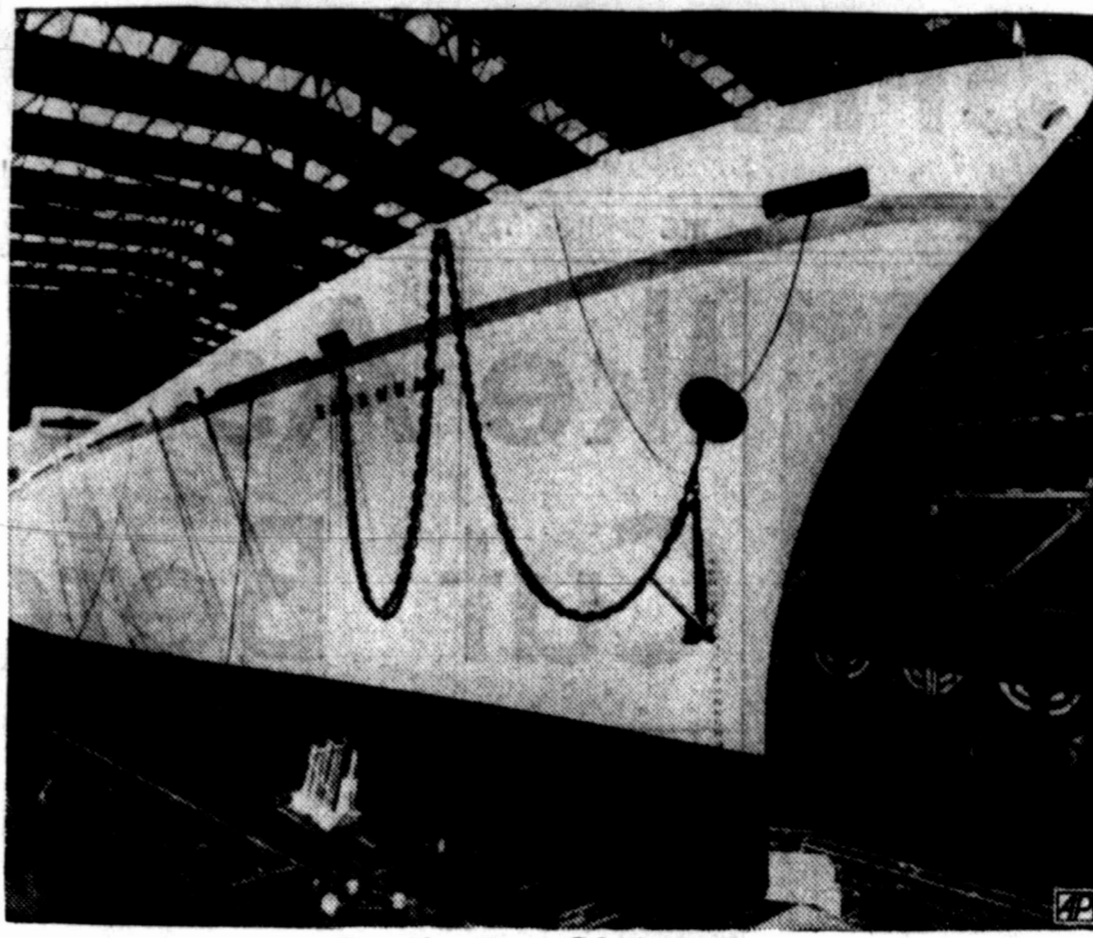

Finally on Jan. 25, 1934, Dillinger and three of his men were nabbed without a fight by law officers in Tucson, Ariz. Dillinger was flown to Crown Point, Ind.

Five weeks later he bluffed his way out of the "escape-proof" jail with a wooden gun he had carved in his cell.

Dillinger's luck held again as he shot his way out of a police trap a month later in St. Paul, Minn., with his French-Indian sweetheart, Evelyn Frechette.

With hordes of police hot on his trail, Dillinger headed for Chicago, his friends—and death.

For several years the curious tramped a well-marked path to Dillinger's grave. Some chipped his small granite headstone for keepsakes.

Ready For Christening

The N. S. Savannah, first nuclear-powered merchant ship, gleaming in a shiny coat of paint, stands on the ways ready for christening and launching. The ship, with a yacht-like bow, was christened by Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, at ceremonies in the New York Shipbuilding Corp., Camden, N. J. yard. It will go into service next year.

Town Slipping, Can't Blame Chamber Of Commerce

JACUMBA, Calif. (AP)—This town is goin' down. Not downhill or downtown—just plain down.

The 300 or so folks who live in this farming community two miles from the Mexican border figure they're in a hole. The mystery began a week ago when a small crack appeared in the ground near the town's emergency airfield.

It lengthened to 75 yards Monday and became a hole 150 yards long, 5 feet deep and 3 feet wide Tuesday.

It all but swallowed a tractor cutting across a field. A tow truck had to haul it out.

When rancher Hank Ketchum recovered his tractor, he noticed that water from his irrigation ditch was vanishing down two nearby holes. He had to dam up his irrigation ditch.

A 17-year-old girl who went to look at it was buried up to her knees when the ground gave way beneath her. She was pulled out unharmed.

Geologist Don Weaver has an explanation.

Jacumba is about 150 feet above an ancient lava shelf. Runoff water from a nearby Mexican mountain range has caused subterranean erosion. The result: the shelf is caving in and the earth is settling. There were cloudbursts and flash floods here two weeks ago. Weaver says the earth settling could continue for a week, 10 days or longer.

Victim's Mother Pleads For Slayer

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The mother of a boy who was strangled to death has asked Gov. Orval E. Fabus to spare her son's slayer.

Mrs. James R. King wired the governor yesterday from San Antonio where her Air Force husband is stationed. She said she hoped "you will change the sentence of Emmett Earl Leggett to life and not consider the death penalty."

Leggett, 22, faces death in the electric chair Friday for throttling Joe King, then 14, near here a few days before Christmas, 1955.

"I still feel this boy is insane and needs proper medical attention," Mrs. King wired. "May God be with you and guide you in making a just decision." Fabus made no immediate comment.

Mueller Named To Commerce Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Tuesday nominated Frederick Henry Mueller of Grand Rapids, Mich., for promotion to secretary of commerce.

Mueller has been under secretary of commerce since Dec. 3, 1958. For two years before that he was assistant secretary for domestic affairs.

He has been acting secretary since Rear Adm. Lewis S. Strauss stepped out of the commerce spot after the Senate rejected his nomination. Strauss had been serving under a recess appointment made while Congress was not in session.

A native of Grand Rapids, Mueller was born there Nov. 22, 1893. He was in the furniture manufacturing business before entering government service.

Judge Overrules 'Obscenity' Ban

NEW YORK (AP)—A U.S. District Court judge ruled today that the novel, "Lady Chatterley's Lover," is not obscene. He thus knocked out the government's latest attempt to bar it from the mails.

Judge Frederick Bryan ruled that the volume was entitled to "the protections guaranteed to freedoms of speech and the press by the First Amendment."

Said the judge: "To exclude this book from the mails on the grounds of obscenity would fashion a rule which could be applied to a substantial portion of the classics of our literature. Such a rule would be inimical to a free society."

Weevils Migrate

WESLACO (AP)—Boll weevils are migrating in most Lower Rio Grande Valley fields, Associate Hidalgo County Agent James Deer said yesterday.

Bollworm activity is slowing with the maturing of cotton, he added. There are a small number of brown cotton leafworms in the area.

Condemned Slayer Pleads For Life

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Board of Pardons and Paroles had under study today a plea that Billy Joe Houston be saved from his scheduled Aug. 4 execution.

Houston, 40, received the death sentence for the rape of a Dallas housewife in 1955. He has been in the death house at Huntsville since 1956 while the case was carried through the appeal courts. A Dallas jury in a sanity hearing decided last June 24 Houston is sane, clearing the way for the execution.

Steel Strike At A Glance

By The Associated Press
Idle—Half a million United Steelworkers and 45,500 workers in allied industries—coal, railroads, trucking, Great Lakes shipping, construction.

Negotiations—Joseph Finnegan, head of the Federal Mediation Service, continues to keep in touch with both sides in New York. But so far he has failed to bring them together for peace talks.

Washington Developments—In an unprecedented move, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell stepped into the week-old strike as a one-man fact-finding agency for President Eisenhower. His advice will help the President decide if and when to use the Taft-Hartley Act to get the steelworkers back on the job for an 80-day "cooling off" period. Mitchell said the White House will insist that both sides continue to bargain.

Production and Wage Losses—Each day of the strike means a loss of some 300,000 tons of ingot steel. This amounts to 300 million dollars worth of business a week. To steelworkers, the loss in wages totals nearly 70 million dollars weekly.

Issues—United Steelworkers want a wage increase plus fringe benefits; demands refused by the industry. The union contends wage hikes can be granted without increasing steel prices. The industry insists increased labor costs would hike steel prices and cause inflation.

Steel Strike Now In Its Second Week

By ART CIERVO
PITTSBURGH (AP) — The nationwide steel strike entered its second week today but most steelworkers have yet to feel any pinch in the pocketbook.
 Many draw full two-week paychecks Tuesday and others have similar pays coming. In another two weeks, most steelworkers will collect three or four more days' pay for work up to the strike July 15.
 Steelworkers also may draw two weeks vacation pay if they wish.
 Cars parked bumper-to-bumper Tuesday as U.S. Steel Corp. paid off some 10,000 employees at its nearby Homestead works.
 "This strike is silly. I sure hope it's over very soon," said Harry Chadwick, 39-year-old father of six. "Nobody worries about Harry, except Harry. Every day I lose money means a tremendous loss to my family."

Steelworker Edward Davis commented: "Nobody wanted to strike and very few men wanted a raise in pay. However, we are glad to strike if it means holding on to some of our benefits."

In addition to the 500,000 striking United Steelworkers, the shutdown has idled some 45,000 workers in allied industries. Hardest hit are railroads, coal mines, truckers and Great Lakes ship- pers.

In Cleveland, a spokesman for 18 trucking firms which haul steel said 500 more truck drivers were laid off Tuesday. That brought the total to 1,000. Some 100 truckers were idled in Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, an agreement was reached permitting some 1,000 supervisory and salaried employees of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. to come and go freely at the firm's Pittsburgh and Aliquippa, Pa., works without interference from pickets. The company agreed to drop court injunction proceedings.

In Detroit, the McLouth Steel Corp. charged striking pickets with keeping 15 maintenance men inside its plants. There was no comment from the union.

Meet On Steel Situation

R. Conrad Cooper, left, top negotiator for the steel industry, and Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, shake hands outside a conference room prior to their meeting in New York. Each headed a team of four men in the two-hour meeting to discuss a formula in an effort to solve the steel strike.

Ike Aide Is Fact-Finder In Steel Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell was expected to act as fact-finder for President Eisenhower, who reportedly is reluctant to intervene in the process of collective bargaining.

Mitchell's move is without precedent. He said he knows of no other secretary of labor who has acted in a similar manner.

It is expected that the White House will use the information he provides as a basis for deciding whether to invoke the national emergency provision of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Under Taft-Hartley, the federal government could issue an 80-day anti-strike injunction if necessary. But it was felt this would accomplish little at this time.

Both sides appear to be dug in for a long struggle. Eisenhower reportedly feels that the 80-day cooling-off period would not change their positions although he has not ruled out the possibility of invoking Taft-Hartley.

The United Steelworkers Union strike has idled a half million workers in basic steel and shut down nearly 90 per cent of the nation's steel production. Another 45,000 workers in such allied fields as coal, railroads and trucking also have been idled as a result of the strike.

Vital defense projects, however, have been assured of enough steel to last until September, federal officials reported Tuesday.

The union seeks a 15-cent-hourly annual package increase, claiming that the industry can afford it without raising the price of steel. The industry has refused, claiming that any increase in labor cost would force a price increase, and thus contribute to inflation. Pre-strike steel wages averaged $3.10 an hour.

Fire Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has proclaimed the week beginning Oct. 4 as Fire Prevention Week.

Mitchell Spotted In Presidential Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—His designation as a steel strike fact-finder puts Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell in the limelight for a possible 1960 vice presidential nomination bid.

Mitchell is obviously one of 10 Republicans President Eisenhower considers well qualified for future advancement in party affairs—even for the presidency itself.

Of the 10, Eisenhower has named only Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. He also has said that he will not choose between them if they contest for the presidential nomination next year.

While the President is keeping to himself the other eight names on his list, he is known to look with a pleased political eye on Mitchell.
 The labor secretary outlined his one-man fact-finding role Tuesday and told questioning newsmen that his reports to Eisenhower could form the basis for any decisions Eisenhower might make to act. He said he would consult with other government officials and even with the disputing parties if that seems desirable. He indicated, however, his studies will be informal.

Mitchell told a news conference he will be operating under a provision of the law creating the Labor Department which authorizes the secretary to investigate "the causes of, and facts relating to" all labor-management disputes that might affect the welfare of the people.

Mitchell said that so far as he knows, no other labor secretary has acted in a similar manner.

If the secretary can contribute to an acceptable settlement of the steel wage dispute, he will have gained political stature. If he fails, his hopes for the 1960 vice presidential nomination could nose-dive.

Because he is a Roman Catholic, Mitchell has figured in a great deal of GOP discussion for second place on the ticket. His chances evidently would be enhanced if the Democrats, meeting first next year, should put either Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) or California's Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown on either place on their ticket. Both are Catholics.

Politicians here speculate that along with Mitchell, Eisenhower's list of available Republicans includes U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton, Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, Undersecretary of the Treasury Fred C. Scribner Jr., special presidential consultant Arthur Larson, and civil and defense mobilizer Leo A. Hoegh.

Outside of the administration's executive department ranks, Eisenhower is said to regard as corner men such as Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, the Republican national chairman; Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, the House minority leader; and GOP Govs. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon and William G. Stratton of Illinois.

Moral Education Program Planned

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Quintanilla, director of the National Housing Institute, says the institute is preparing a moral education program to try to avoid some of the problems caused by promiscuity in which many parents live in the same bedroom with their children.
 He outlined government plans for extensive low cost housing projects.

THE ANSWER

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have read of nothing but trouble, fighting and misery between man and wife in your column which only confirms the wisdom of my decision 36 years ago, to remain a bachelor. I go where I please without asking the permission of a possessive woman. I am not subjected to "nagging" or bossing. I eat when I feel like it, and sleep when I am tired. I have no ungrateful children to support. I can get the companionship of a woman whenever I feel like it. It's cheaper in the long haul and I am happier. Who said that man couldn't live without a wife? SATISFIED

DEAR SATISFIED: God said so. (Genesis)

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is married to a man who is 23 years older than she is. She is expecting a baby in a month. Her husband tells her she has to give the baby away because it isn't his.

Abby, she is a good girl and always has been. The only place she has ever been without him was to church. He won't go. I am her mother and am two years younger than her husband. I want to keep the baby. My husband says if I take the baby he will leave me.

Should I break up my own marriage of 34 years to give my daughter's baby a home, or should I let her adopt it out? She wants to keep it but her husband won't let her.

SAD HEART

DEAR SAD: Don't take the baby. It belongs with its mother. If your daughter knows that her husband is the baby's father, she should keep it. Her husband should see a doctor about his mental condition. He is behaving like a very sick man.

DEAR ABBY: My father married a lady who was supposed to be a "mother" to me after my own mother died. She asked me to call her by her first name because she said she was too young to be my real mother (I am 13 and she is 33.) So I started calling her by her first name. Then she changed her mind and said it didn't sound respectful enough so I should call her "Mother." I can't call her "Mother" without getting a lump in my throat that won't swallow. What should I call her, please?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Make up a "pet" name such as "Mums" or something you have never called your real mother. If you feel that you are forcing yourself, just forget about a name until one comes naturally.

DEAR ABBY: I married a fine man who bears a fine old German family name. Whenever it is mentioned people snicker, and with good reason, because in English it suggests something not mentioned in polite company. If we shortened it, it would be worse. We have three little boys growing up, and all three they have become object of ridicule. My husband would go to court and change it, only we are afraid of what our friends might say. Should I encourage my husband to change it or not? MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: Yours is a perfectly legitimate reason for wanting to change your name. You need not be ashamed to do so.

Couple Killed

Humor Crops Up At Big 4 Parleys

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
GENEVA (AP)—Life is grim, life is earnest at the Big Four conference. But occasionally the stuffy, often tense sessions are lightened by sudden shafts of wit that pinpoint the rival East-West positions better than thousands of words of speeches.

A Western official was stressing to a Soviet representative the need for a "gentleman's agreement" that the Soviet Union would not seek to change the Allied position in Berlin.

"Yes," the Soviet interrupted testily, "but what is a 'gentleman's agreement?'"

"Why, any gentleman will tell you that," the Westerner retorted.

Last week Jacob A. Malik, the Soviet ambassador to Britain, was chatting with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd about the slow progress the Big Four were making toward new stopgap or temporary arrangements in Berlin.

Suddenly Malik sang out, "It's a long, long way to temporary," and Lloyd dissolved into laughter.

After demanding that East and West German delegates be allowed to join secret Big Four sessions, the Soviets Andrei Gromyko retorted last week. He agreed they could be excluded from "social occasions."

U. S. Reds Aim At Sabotage School

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) said today the Kremlin has sent orders to U. S. Communists to intensify training of key revolutionaries in sabotage, subversion and penetration.

Walter, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, made the statement in opening committee hearings on Communist training operations.

He added: "just put a bottle of whisky on the table and that'll make our meetings social."

The other day the conference air was full of reports of interallied differences. The French and West Germans were said to be at odds. The British reportedly opposed both. The Americans were trying to hold the Allied front.

One Soviet lounging with a group of reporters discussing these differences, commented: "this is a conference of the Western Allies, and we Russians are merely observers."

Then there's the story an American reporter told a Soviet diplomat about the time he was strolling through the Moscow zoo.

The American said at the lion's den he saw a banner announcing a perfect example of the sort of peaceful coexistence the Soviets preach. Beside the lion in the cage was a frolicking lamb.

The American said he asked the zoo keeper how the Soviets trained the lion to lie down with the lamb.

"We don't train them," the keeper explained. "We just put a new lamb in every day."

Dallas To Battle Fire Ant Invasion

DALLAS (AP)—Federal, state and local authorities planned action today to halt an invasion of fire ants reported in northwest Dallas.

Officials said yesterday colonies of the vicious insects have been found in sparsely settled areas near the city limits.

The ants have an unusually painful bite which sometimes is fatal to humans and is usually lethal to small animals.

They destroy crops, lawns, young trees and wildlife and have been blamed for the deaths of livestock.

Man Held After Sending Family In Car Over Cliff

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A husband who sent a car with his wife and mother-in-law in it over a 450-foot cliff was under psychiatric observation today in the prison ward of General Hospital.

"I can't understand why he would do this," his wife sobbed Monday as police tied up Robert J. Briggs, 39, a building contractor, at the scene. Officers reported he was muttering incoherently and had tried to beat the women over the head with rocks and a pickaxe when the car stopped part way down the lonely canyon dropoff.

Briggs was accused Tuesday of two counts of attempted murder.

The wife, Norma, 34, and her mother, Mary D. Nilson, 65, suffered only cuts and bruises. Police said the women reported no previous trouble with Briggs.

Mrs. Briggs said her husband offered to take them for a ride along rustic Canyon Road, a ride they had taken many times before.

At the cliff, she said her husband complained the engine was overheating. He got out, looked under the hood and then, without warning, reached inside and pushed the drive button in the automatic push-button transmission.

Cops Don't Believe Sleepwalker Story

CHICAGO (AP)—Ralph Goldberg told the officers he is a sleepwalker. In fact, Goldberg said, he is especially given to sleepwalking when he slumbers in hotels. But they didn't believe him.

Police Sgt. Charles Fitzgerald said, in the first place, Goldberg was wanted by immigration authorities for alleged illegal entry from Canada.

In the second place, Goldberg occupied a room rented in the Morrison Hotel Monday night to one Frank (Hot Dogs) Liscian-drello, 41, described by police as an ex-convict and a robbery specialist.

And, in the third place, a jewelry convention was being held at the Morrison.

So Fitzgerald Tuesday had Goldberg and Liscian-drello and his wife, Margaret, charged with conspiracy to commit a felony. But to get back to the sleepwalking, let's tell this tale the way Fitzgerald related it.

Fitzgerald was in the lobby when Liscian-drello and his wife checked in as Mr. and Mrs. F. Noto of Los Angeles. They received a key to Room 1242, gave it to Goldberg and then left the hotel.

A band of policemen was stationed in rooms about 1242. Goldberg was snoring through the night.

An alarm clock sounded at 4 a.m. in a nearby room occupied by one of the jewelry conventioners. Goldberg was heard to stir.

At 6:45 a.m. he strolled tranquilly from 1242 toward 1238. He tinkered with the lock a bit and then entered—into the arms of detective Raymond Clark.

He explained about the sleepwalking, how he is especially afflicted when slumbering near the long halls of hotels, but to no avail.

Felony court appearances were scheduled today for Goldberg and the Liscian-drellos.

Modern way to deal with CONSTIPATION

Years ago when folks were bothered with constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet, they fell back on harsh laxative drugs. They started a habit that was hard to break—and which did nothing to correct the cause of the trouble.

Today, millions of people have discovered a way to deal with irregularity that is safe, pleasant and effective. It's the Kellogg's All-Bran way.

This way is effective because Kellogg's All-Bran is a whole bran cereal. And bran is nature's best bulk-forming food. Just a small serving (half a cup with milk) each day provides all the good food bulk you need to regain youthful regularity.

Try this modern, economical good-food way. Enjoy Kellogg's All-Bran for just 10 days—let it work for you, too.

A Blue-Darter Of A Sensation

The current True Magazine contains a story by Irwin Porges that must stir memories among many Texans who are crowding the Biblical three score years and ten, or have passed that milestone.

It is called "Locomotives at 100 Feet" and it tells how a publicity-minded Missouri-Kansas-Texas ("Katy") Railroad staged a spectacular collision between two "passenger" trains between Waco and West in the mid-1890s that attracted nationwide attention.

The trains were made up of two elderly passenger engines, each with six semi-retired freight cars attached, painted a loud red and green from cowcatcher to what would have been the caboose. They backed off two miles apart and came together at mid-point doing 60 m.p.h. apiece. (The engineers, C. E. Stanton of old 999 and Charles Cain of old 1001, according to the True story, had tied down the throttles and whistle cords and jumped to safety before too much headway was gained.)

The road had run excursion trains at $2 a head, and these plus buggies, hacks, surreys and farm wagons for miles around had deposited 30,000 people alongside the tracks at the meeting point. Efforts were made to keep the crowds back at a safe distance, but as usual such good intentions failed, and many spectators crowded all most up to the rails.

On impact, both engines were shattered and fragments flew far and wide. A 19-year-old boy who had climbed a mesquite tree for a better view was killed by a link from a brake chain, and one other person was killed and many injured. (The story said the railroad was faced with many damage suits.) One woman on a country lane half a mile away was hurt.

The date was September 15, 1896. People talked about the spectacle for years afterward. To say it created a sensation would be an understatement: it was a blue-darter, as they used to say in those days. Those who witnessed it could talk of little else for years.

And yet many of the modern generation fancy the oldtimers never had any crazy stunts, and were totally lacking in imagination and enterprise when it came to providing public "entertainment." And a casual or reckless disregard of personal safety so often attributed to the rising generation was come by honestly. Human nature never changes.

Labor Reform Bill Chances Dim

After all the protracted and sensational McClellan inquiry into labor racketeering, will the present Congress adjourn without writing an effective labor reform bill?

Last year the Senate adopted a reform measure, but it died in the House.

This year the Senate passed a bill which would have gone a long way toward ending some of the practices which led to charges of racketeering, though it was stronger than labor leaders wanted and weaker than some management groups thought essential.

In a long session the other night the House Labor Committee all but completed drafting its own version of a labor-management control bill which, as dispatches pointed out, satisfies neither Republicans nor Democrats. Some Republicans denounced it as the "greatest victory" of Teamster President Jimmy Hoffa, who was reported some weeks ago to have acceded to some of its proposals.

Within the committee there were three factions—those opposing any bill, those favoring a qualified control measure and those favoring action on the measure worked out by the committee. The committee is regarded as pro-labor, and if the different attitudes reflected in the membership as a whole, there seems nothing ahead but endless wrangling when the House and Senate versions reach the conference committee.

The House version watered down some provisions of the Senate bill and accommodated the objections raised by organized labor. In particular, it relaxed checks relating to "blackmail" picketing, secondary boycotts and a "bill of rights" for labor's rank and file.

Both parties in Congress hope for an early adjournment of this session to clear the way for next year's national conventions, which come earlier than ever before. Republican spokesmen have named mid-August as the target date, now manifestly impossible to attain, and Senator Lyndon Johnson, the Senate majority leader, thinks mid-September would be about right.

The hope is that most controversial legislative matters can be disposed of before adjournment, leaving nothing but appropriations for the short session opening in January.

Labor reform is the most controversial of these legislative matters, and in view of the House Labor Committee's attitude and the short time between now and adjournment, it begins to look as though this Congress will give the labor reform issue another run-around, as in 1958. That would be unfortunate indeed.

Any hope of passing an effective bill at the upcoming short session with an election coming on would be in vain.

David Lawrence Nation In Midst Of Economic Crisis

WASHINGTON — The nation is in the midst of a serious crisis in the financial and economic sense. Here are some significant facts:

1. Five years ago the government could borrow money for one-year notes at an interest rate of one and one-eighth per cent. Last week it cost the government four and three-quarters per cent to borrow one-year money—the highest rate in 30 years for short-term money. Predictions among bankers are that it will go to an unprecedented five per cent rate before the end of the year.

2. Interest rates for commercial borrowing are rising. Also tax-exempt bonds of states and cities that just a few years ago used to bear interest at one and three-quarters per cent now pay more than twice as much to attract investors. The state of California borrowed four years ago at two per cent and last month had to pay 3.94 per cent.

3. Because U. S. savings bonds pay too low a rate of interest, many people are cashing them in and investing in something else. In June alone the public cashed in $470 million and bought only $323 million of the "E" and "H" bonds.

4. President Eisenhower is pleading with Congress to raise the ceiling established by law so that government bonds can compete with other interest rates, but the Democratic party politicians are blocking action. They are urging the Federal Reserve board to buy into the market and keep the price up artificially. This is called "printing press" money by the Federal Reserve board chairman. One wonders whether a catastrophe in the financial and government securities market will happen before the inflationists will be convinced of the wisdom of the President's request.

5. Mortgage money for house building now requires a high interest rate, and the end isn't in sight. This can squelch the building boom and result in unemployment. Interest rates for mortgages now are above six per cent in many parts of the country.

What's it all about? The truth is that inflation is in full swing. The government has been spending more than it has been taking in. The "spenders" are still fighting against the "savers" in Washington. Confidence is lacking. The public is being repeatedly told, moreover, that the Democratic party is going to win in the 1960 presidential and congressional elections, and that's less than 18 months away. So if there's going to be more and more spending and more inflation in the next few years, the investor feels he must turn now to the places where he can get a higher return on his money. Also the government later would have to pay higher prices for the same quantity of things it bought this year. This means more deficits and a further weakening of confidence in the dollar.

As for the economic situation generally, while there has been a business boom for the last few months, now the steel strike has produced a new climax. It could mean a turning point for the nation in both wages and prices. If the steel unions win, inflation will be encouraged because steel prices will rise. If the steel companies, however, can effect a stabilized settlement that saves money on "working rules," then prices can be held down despite a slight increase in wages next year. Every business and every union in America is watching steel for a clue to the future of the economy. It will do the worker little good to get a wage increase now and pay out more later for living costs. This really reduces his pay.

To illustrate the meaning of inflation, it is necessary to look back only a few years. Thus, in 1946 a new house priced at $10,000 required about $4,000 down and a 20-year mortgage at 4.6 per cent. The total cost amounted to $13,200. But today a similar house costs $17,600, and the total cost amounted to $32,250 and the interest rate is six per cent, so the total cost is $27,748.

Until the nation as a whole becomes aware of the unsound doctrines of the inflationists who steer the Democratic Advisory Committee and influence a substantial number of Democrats in Congress, there will be little accomplished toward developing a sound economy.

Ike Regime Directly Involved In Steel Fuss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration — now that Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell has become a one-man fact-finder—is directly involved in the steel dispute.

The administration seems still undecided whether it will get in deeper by making public the facts Mitchell finds. This is the latest development in one of the strangest series of events in American labor history.

Just a few hours before Mitchell stepped into the picture he was reluctant—and this is said on excellent authority — to make any move the steel industry or the steel union could consider government interference.

President Eisenhower, anxious to have the two sides settle the dispute through free collective bargaining, repeatedly has said he wanted to avoid anything which looked like government interference or pressure.

But his repeated warning to both sides to avoid an inflationary settlement—meaning one which resulted in an increase in steel prices—was in itself pressure and therefore intervention.

The industry rejected the union's wage demands on the ground that this added cost would compel the industry to raise prices, thus setting off an inflationary spiral. So the strike began last Wednesday.

At his June 17 news conference — when Eisenhower was asked if the government could bring out impartial figures on profits and wages, so the people could understand the issues—Eisenhower said this was the most intelligent suggestion he had heard of on the subject and he would have it studied. In the end he decided against pulling the figures together for the public to see.

At his July 15 news conference he not only dismissed the idea of setting up a fact-finding board but said: "I believe all the facts are pretty well known."

He said all the facts were contained in various government reports and statistics "so the facts are there and the public knows them, if they want to take the trouble to read them."

But the trouble was the public didn't know all the facts because they were scattered throughout the government and not brought together for comparison. Therefore the public isn't in a position to read them.

As it turned out, Eisenhower apparently didn't know all the facts, either, for otherwise Mitchell would hardly have thought it necessary to announce he would become a one-man fact-finder.

When he makes his investigation he will report to the President and after that, he said, it will be decided whether to make his findings public.

Mitchell is known to have expressed doubt that the collection of facts, as suggested by a reporter June 17, could be made public without certain segments of the figures being used to prove one side over the other in the steel case.

He also believed that any government action short of a genuine emergency would badly damage the process of free, collective bargaining.

Now is Mitchell going about gathering his facts? "From the seat of my pants," he said, he will have various government agencies give him their facts, and he will go anywhere necessary to find others, he said.

The administration has been under growing pressure, particularly in Congress, to do something. Mitchell's assumption of the one-man fact-finding role is apparently a compromise between two other steps that could be taken.

The President—if he considered the strike an emergency — could set up a fact-finding board under the Taft-Hartley Act and force postponement of the strike for 30 days. But, since he sees no emergency now, this kind of board is out.

Or Eisenhower could do what President Truman did in the 1949 steel dispute: not use T-H but set up a fact-finding board anyway. That board made recommendations which neither side had to accept but which both did accept generally in the end.

What has seemed obvious from the beginning in this case is an administration uncertainty on how to stay out but still get a settlement satisfactory to Eisenhower.

Hal Boyle Are You An Old-Timer?

NEW YORK (AP) — How can you tell whether you're an old-timer?

Well, you're an old-timer if you can remember when—

Mary Pickford wore curls. Hatchet girls suspected you were an international playboy if you left them a quarter.

People who had once met the heavyweight champion still bragged, "shake the hand that shook the hand of John L. Sullivan."

Teen-age girls not only knew what a mop was—they also knew how to use it.

Yale students actually dated chorus girls on weekends in New York City, instead of attending the Russian Ballet.

A man who went out without an elk's tooth showing on his vest was considered only half-dressed.

Showoffs wore lapel buttons that said, "Oh, You Kid."

The barber parted your hair exactly in the middle.

Every kid was sure there never would be another pitcher like Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants. (And they were right!)

Girls worried over whether to start smoking instead of how to stop smoking.

Men still had equal rights. Nobody knew what "It" was, because no one yet had heard of Clara Bow.

You cranked your telephone—and your car.

Two bits would take you to the movies, buy a sack of popcorn and leave you with a nickel change.

The height of juvenile delinquency was to smoke a cuber cigarette.

A full belly was a sign of prosperity instead of a neurosis.

A nation mourned when Jumbo, the famous circus elephant, died.

The biggest Sunday thrill was lining up in a cow pasture outside town for a ride in an airplane.

The only self-service customers in a grocery store were small kids stealing from the cookie tin.

Swimming was called bathing. Bombs were manufactured by anarchists, rather than scientists. Dogs were named Rover, Spot, Tighe and Bowser.

A family with more than six kids kept its own cow in the backyard.

A man's job was so close to his house he usually walked home for lunch.

It was regarded as a tribute to say of a man, "he's as sound as the dollar."

The only place you could see an uncovered bosom was in the National Geographic magazine.

And the only thing the country needed was a good five-cent cigar!

Retell Capt. Marcy's Dramatic Story

"Tell me about Captain Marcy."

This is getting to be the nightly request as we put our youngsters to bed. While this represents a progression from the Three Bears, with improvisations and embellishments, it fits into the pattern of endless repetition. You just have to have something to tell occasionally before the kiddies drop off to sleep.

Capt. Marcy's as good as any, perhaps a lot better than most. Which leads me to raise the question: Why doesn't someone write a story or some stories, in language and terms a child can understand, about the captain and his exploits through this portion of the Southwest?

I venture that our schools could use a booklet of this character to good advantage, for there is a constant request for information about the area. So much of what is passed on is couched in generalities and frequently rooted in fancy and misinformation.

Actually there is enough material to warrant the weaving of a series of stories of action and adventure in this area before the frontier days. What youngster wouldn't be aroused to dreams by the wagon trains, the settlers moving westward, the cavalry, Indian guides, the scalping of a young lieutenant by Indians, near disaster in the face of adverse weather, the conquest of sullen streams and vast stretches of sand dunes? Fortunately, Capt. R. B. Marcy left a marvelously detailed record of his explorations in War Department journals. Several historians, notably J. E. Haley, have unearthed a gold mine of information about not only the captain but of many other Army officers and other pre-pioneer explorers in this area. The need now is for someone to combine a lot of this historically correct information into a volume which youngsters could and would read and understand.

One other thought: Why not a field trip someday to retrace at least part of the route blazed by Capt. Marcy and his party exactly 110 years ago? He was getting started on it about this time of the year, and by Oct. 3, 1849 he had chronicled his historic "discovery" of the big spring for which this city eventually was named.

Maybe it wouldn't be a bad idea to mark some of the key spots along highways where the route once opened up a new trail to the West Coast. And maybe it wouldn't be remiss to mention once more the urgent need for some group or groups to take on a simulated restoration of the big spring as a major project.

East Berlin Still A Poor Area

EAST BERLIN — Since I was last in East Berlin four years ago, it is only too apparent that the Communist regime decided something had to be done to mitigate the gray squalor of their sector of Berlin. The contrast between it and burgeoning, bright West Berlin was simply too much.

Well, East Berlin has been spruced up. No doubt of it. But it is still colorless and lifeless by contrast with the flourishing, gay city that lies so tantalizingly just beyond the Brandenburg Gate.

The rubble, for example has disappeared from the center of the city. But not the ruins.

I saw only two or three horse-drawn wagons this time, whereas on my last visit, Dobbin was the principal means of truckage. But the traffic jams that snarl cars and trucks regularly on West Berlin's Kurfurstendamm are not duplicated on East Berlin's answer to Kurfurstendamm, which is Stalinallee. Among this tinsel Park Avenue, the most fraudulent and colossal "Potemkin Village" ever built by the Russians, a trickle of traffic moves at sedate pace.

On shabby neighboring streets and in the residential districts, only an occasional car shatters the empty calm.

There are no great crowds surging through Stalinallee; as on the Kurfurstendamm. No happy-looking mobs overflow the sidewalk cafes, as in West Berlin. Although there are far more kinds and quantities of consumer goods in the Stalinallee shops than there were four years ago, they are not crowded with mobs eager to get their hands on merchandise as, for example, the Russians in GUM, Moscow's big department store that I visited two months ago.

But I did notice in the big, state-owned department store on Stalinallee the same kind of oriental delegations fingering goods as I had seen in GUM.

When last here, I was distressed by the fact that one never heard any laughter in the streets and very little conversation, either. That situation has not changed.

Pedestrians move quietly along. And there are no throngs as in the Western sectors of the city.

There is no doubt that people are better dressed today. But East Berliners, if and when they dare, still try to get to West Berlin to buy their shoes. The quality is so much better that the East Berliners take the risk.

Many obliging West Berlin shoe shops still have a corner in the store where East Berliners can scuff the high gloss off the soles of new shoes. They also supply dust or mud, depending on the season, to give the new shoes a patina of age and usage before they are taken home to East Berlin.

Just for old times sake, I went back to the Warsaw Restaurant, one of two "chic" eating places on Stalinallee, where I had lunched four years ago. Then, it looked like a run-down Schrafft's. Even it has been spruced up. Today, it looks like an up-dated Schrafft's.

Under den Linden, once one of Europe's most magnificent and famous boulevards, is still a ghostly, deserted street in East Berlin. Only the lovely old State Opera House has been restored.

There is no word that Stalinallee is to be extended. There will be more apartments for party (Communist) faithfuls. In an attempted answer to the tremendous housing program in West Berlin, the Communists have been putting up some suburban apartment houses, cut from the same mold as the new apartment housing that seemed so flimsy when I saw it in Moscow in May.

At any rate the new housing in East Berlin cannot hold a candle to the West Berlin apartment developments by Corbusier, Walter Gropius, Pierre Vago, Alvar Aalto and a dozen other of the world's great architects.

Any way you slice it, East Berlin is still the distressingly poor country cousin of the rich and rosy city only a step away.

The Gallup Poll

Trial Heat: Stevenson-Kennedy Ahead

PRINCETON, N. J. — If an election were held today, a Democratic ticket of Adlai Stevenson for President and John Kennedy for Vice President would defeat a GOP ticket of Richard Nixon and Nelson Rockefeller.

Such a "makeup" in rival tickets for the 1960 Presidential race has been one of the many suggested by political strategists.

To find out how voters across the country might react in the event these were the opposing tickets, Gallup Poll reporters "rehearsed" such an election by asking voters this question:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If Nixon and Rockefeller were nominated for President and Vice President on the Republican ticket and Adlai Stevenson and John Kennedy on the Democratic ticket, which ticket would you like to see win—Nixon and Rockefeller or Stevenson and Kennedy?"

The vote nationwide:

	Rep. Dem. Ind.	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kennedy	10	91
Nixon-Rockefeller	90	9

The Stevenson-Kennedy ticket has a majority of the total vote in all four major regions of the country today. As might be expected, the Democratic ticket runs extremely well in the 13 states of the South.

Surprisingly, however, the next most heavily Democratic region is the traditional stronghold of the GOP — the Midwest.

Here is the vote by regions, again with the undecided vote eliminated:

	EAST	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kennedy	54
Nixon-Rockefeller	46

	MIDWEST	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kennedy	56
Nixon-Rockefeller	44

	SOUTH	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kennedy	63
Nixon-Rockefeller	37

	FAR WEST	Per Cent
Stevenson-Kennedy	54
Nixon-Rockefeller	46

The judge dismissed the over-parking charge and told Young to mind his own business.

Khrushy Takes Offense, Won't Visit North

By STANLEY JOHNSON
WARSAW (AP) — "When they spit in my face, a guest, why should I go?"
Thus Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev explained the sudden cancellation of his three-week August visit to Scandinavia.
"I only want to go to places where my message can be helpful," Khrushchev told newsmen at a Soviet Embassy reception Tuesday night celebrating his "friendship tour" of Poland.
"Maybe I will go later," he added.
"My visit to Scandinavia would not have been a step to peace, but would have led to sharpened tensions."
The Soviet government sent notes to Sweden, Norway, and Denmark Sunday calling off Khrushchev's visit because of what it termed an unfavorable atmosphere. It assailed Scandinavian politicians and editors.
"I think well of the Swedes," Khrushchev said at the reception. "They beat us and then Peter (the Great) beat them at Poltava. I consider we are quits. I have nothing against (Swedish Premier Tage) Erlander nor against Premier H. C. Hansen of Denmark."
"But when a government newspaper (which he did not identify) comes out against my visit, that is another pair of shoes."
Asked what he thought about the Geneva conference, Khrushchev replied:

"I think nothing. Why must I think? Ask a horse because a horse has a big head for thinking. We have our minister of foreign affairs. Let him think."
Commenting on U.S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union: "I don't understand one thing—what is his aim? I suppose he has good intentions."
On prospects for a summit conference: "Ask your leaders what they expect. I have had sincere talks with (British Prime Minister) MacMillan. I have the impression that he wanted summit talks. If it were just Macmillan and myself, we would have had summit talks long ago."
Asked whether he felt tired or ill, Khrushchev retorted:
"Only an idiot would feel ill when our plan is being fulfilled 105 per cent. Even the dead would stand up at such wonderful work."

Weatherman Was Right

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The weatherman was right when he said the mysterious moisture which has been falling on Charles Covall's backyard wasn't rain.
It was bug juice.
The phenomenon was explained by scientists Tuesday after Covall, meteorologist, engineers, newsmen and everybody else admitted they were puzzled.
Dr. Rudolph Preisendorfer, research physicist at the University of California, La Jolla, led the unofficial scientific expedition to Covall's backyard after reading about the mysterious sprinkles in newspapers.
He climbed a tree and found the rain-making insects.
Preisendorfer identified them as leafhoppers, commonly called sharpshooters, and scientifically known as homopyra cicadellidae homalodis.
They excrete a spray of fluid, which the scientist said is sometimes politely called "honey dew," especially when they are disturbed.

The leafhoppers had been keeping wet an area 20-foot square.
Covall, a missile plant engineer who has had more visitors than usual since the rain was discovered Sunday, said he was mighty glad the scientists had solved the mystery.

Fleet Of Ships Maps Ocean By Use Of Seismic Shooting

By LEONARD ENGEL
Copyright, 1959, by The Associated Press
ABOARD RESEARCH VESSEL VEMA (AP)—"Vema to Gibbs, Vema to Gibbs. This is shot V-493. Fifty-five pounds, 24-inch fuse, estimated burning time 50 seconds. One minute warning NOW."
"Gibbs back, Roger and out."
"Over the side, over the side. The charge is over the side."
During the past few weeks, the Atlantic Ocean north of Puerto Rico has resounded to the explosion of more than $100,000 worth of TNT dropped into the sea. Four U.S. research ships were conducting a seismic shoot—the biggest ocean seismic shoot on record.
In a seismic shoot king-size "firecrackers" are tossed into the sea. The explosive charges generate sound waves that travel to the ocean bottom. Some of the sound waves bounce off the bottom, some travel through the ocean floor before being bent back into the water. Listening ships pick up the traveling waves with hydrophones, which provide clues for mapping below-the-bottom rock strata.

Seismic shooting has long been utilized on land as an aid to finding oil. At sea, it's relatively new.
The record ocean shoot by Vema and three companion research ships was part of the first step toward one of the most ambitious adventures in deep-sea exploration in history—the Mohole project. Within a year or two, U.S. scientists hope to drill a mile-deep hole clear through the earth's crust to find out what the inside of the earth is made of. The mile-deep shaft will be drilled beneath the sea because the earth's crust is thinner below the oceans than on land.
We were searching an area of the Atlantic called the outer ridge for a drilling site.
The shooting began the morning after the four ships loaded ammunition at the U.S. Naval Base at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico. It went on day and night for 18 days, with interruptions only for other research work or movement of the ships to new stations.

Three ships—strung out on a line 40 to 60 miles long—listened. The fourth ship steamed down the line, dropping charges as it went. Three and nine-pound charges were fired for ships close at hand; 24 and 55-pounders for ships farther away; full-sized depth charges containing 300 pounds of TNT for the most distant vessel.
The end result was a pile of hydrophone records and other research data that all but blocked the cabin of Vema's chief scientist, Dr. John E. Nafe—and similar piles of records on the other ships. It will take six months to work through the data. When that job is done the survey scientists will not only know whether a suitable site for the history-making Mohole project has been found. They will have filled in an important area in the map of man's biggest and nearest unused frontier—the ocean floor.

7 Crewmen Die In Crash

ANDOVER, N.H. (AP)—An Air Force plane crashed in flames and all seven crewmen perished early today.
Officers at Pease Air Force Base from which the plane was flying on a routine training mission said all seven bodies were recovered.
The Air Force listed the victims as:
Capt. James H. White, Cambridge, Mass.; 1st Lt. Harold C. High, Duluth, Minn.; 1st Lt. Dean H. Holzworth, Worland, Wyo.; Sgt. Marion C. Ackerman, Vevay, Ind.; A.3.C. Phillips K. Daret, Norman, Okla.; T.Sgt. Owen Q. Combs, Bloomfield, Ind.; and T. Sgt. Jake Schmidt, Riverton, Wyo.
The craft was identified as a KC97 propeller-driven tanker plane.
The crewmen of a companion plane flying a mile to the rear and a state trooper on the ground said they saw the plane plummet in flames through an overcast.
The plane struck down near a saw mill on the farm of Bud Keyser about a mile and a half south of the village of Andover in southern New Hampshire.
State trooper Joseph Humphrey said he was checking cottages just before 2 a.m. about three miles away when he saw the burning plane come down through an overcast.
He rushed to the scene but found all personnel aboard dead.

Surgeon Blames Cancer On Tobacco

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Dr. Alton Ochsner, a New Orleans surgeon lecturing at the post-graduate medical assembly of Texas here, said Tuesday the advance of lung cancer is due entirely to cigarette smoking.
"Lung cancer since 1955 has become the most frequent of all cancers," he said.
"Until 1935 lung cancer occurred in the male and female in about the same number of cases. In that year males started gaining. Now 85 per cent of all lung cancer occurs in males."
"Smoking is a form of suicide," he said.
The tobacco industry, which has financed extensive research in the field, contends there has been no scientific proof of a connection between cigarette smoking and cancer.

BALE TO AN ACRE? Farmers Elated Crop Prospects

How's the rain affected the crops? — just made them better, says the county agent.

Jimmy Taylor, Howard County agent, said that whereas two weeks ago farmers had looked for half a bale to the acre on an average, the rate now may be increased to a bale. With no more rains, Taylor said the farms will have a good yield, but with a rain the middle of August, Taylor said the county could produce its best cotton crop since '49-50 or maybe better.

And the grain crop could be the best in history — on an acre basis. This is caused by a combination of rain and hybrid seeds, he added.

Taylor said that poisoning was not yet a general practice in the county but some areas have had boll worms show up. Fleashoppers have been prevalent but not in great quantities.

No rotting has resulted from the heavy rains last week, and very little other damage came from the rains. The washing was just in spots through fields, he said, and no large areas were washed out completely.

Probably the No. 1 problem coming out of the rainy week was a shortage of water.

Strange as it may seem for this time of the year, Taylor said the farmers could use sunshine and hot weather for a while and then hope for a good rain the middle of August.

Hereford Tour Is To Be On Aug. 29

Ten herds will be visited on this year's Hereford tour sponsored by the Howard County-South Plains Hereford Assn., the directors decided Tuesday night.

Jimmy Taylor, county agent, said that the date for this year's tour of registered herds will be held Aug. 29, a Saturday. It will be the first tour since 1957, he said.

The tour will give buyers and Hereford breeders a chance to look at the cattle which will be consigned to sales and shows in the area this winter.

Taylor said the trip will begin at the Charlie Creighton place. From there, it will go to the Rexie Cauble place and on to see cattle belonging to Sam Buchanan, Leland Wallace, C. A. Walker, Jack Buchanan, R. H. Odum at Snyder, Winston Bros. at Snyder, Whit Thompson at Snyder, and F. A. Youngblood & Sons at Lamesa. The stops will be made in that order.

The tour will be almost the same as in '57, except that no stops were made that year at the Cauble or Thompson places. Taylor said the directors of the association wished to include more stops, but time would not permit it in a one-day program.

Lunch will be served at Snyder, Taylor said, as has been the custom in the past.

Premium For First Bale Of 1959 Cotton

Anticipating that the first of the 1959 Howard County cotton crop will be ginned sometime next month, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has announced it is raising a $500 bonus for the producer of that important bale.

The Agriculture Committee is taking the lead in hustling up the money. Contributions are being solicited by the committee. These can be mailed to the Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 1391, Big Spring.

$20 Gift To Hospital Fund

Jimmy Greene, working with the group raising funds for air-conditioning portions of the Big Spring State Hospital, said today he has received a $20 donation to the fund from the Bykوتا Class of First Baptist Church.

It was also pointed out that in publicity relative to the campaign, credit was not properly given to one group which made a $5 contribution.

This gift came from the Fire Ma'ams which is an organization of wives of firemen of the Big Spring fire department. Greene asked that the gift be duly and properly credited to the organization.

Court Cancels All Action In Fist Fight

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Supreme Court cancelled today all legal action in a 2 1/2-year-old court controversy over a fist fight between a Negro employe and his white foreman.

However, the court held that the employe, Raymond W. Guidry, is entitled to have his case arbitrated again by the Pipe Fitters Union and Gulf Oil Corp.

Both Guidry and Gulf appealed decisions made by trial courts and the Beaumont Court of Appeals.

Records show that Guidry's promotion from the labor force to a pipe-fitter's helper started the controversy at Gulf's Port Arthur refinery. Guidry and J. L. McWilliams, pipe fitters department foreman, had a fight on Oct. 25, 1956. Gulf discharged Guidry and suspended McWilliams for 10 days.

A union-management arbitration panel said Guidry should be reinstated with back pay but demoted to the labor force. The trial court dismissed the case on the grounds the award exceeded the panel's authority. The court of Civil Appeals agreed there should be back pay and demotion but Guidry should be given his job

Inquiries have been coming to the county agent from Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma concerning the first annual Howard County Quarter Horse Show to be held Aug. 1, and the first entry has arrived.

The county agent, Jimmy Taylor, said that the number of inquiries indicate a large number of entries for the show. Initial entry came from a quarter horse breeder at Richland Springs. The trophies are on the way and Taylor was looking for some place to display them until time for the show.

Taylor said that the event will be free to spectators with the show to begin at 9 a.m.

Another Burglary Added To Reports

Burglars during the night hit Galloways Gun Shop, 809 E. 3rd, and Standard Oil, 711 E. 1st. Missing is a .38 caliber pistol from the gun store and a pair of mail clippers at the service station.

Entry to the gun shop was made by cutting or breaking a small hole in the glass front door, large enough to reach in and trip the lock. Officers said the yeags apparently left through the back door. The burglars took time to pick and choose among the revolvers in the store and finally selected the .38 caliber gun. Apparently, no shells were taken.

Officers are investigating the many other burglaries that have swept the city since the weekend. Due to the nature of the entries, juveniles are suspected in most of them. Chief C. L. Rogers said none of the burglaries had any signs of professional criminals.

5 Negro Boys Held In Sex Slaying Of White Youth

HOUSTON (AP)—Five Negro teenage boys were being held for questioning today in the sex slaying of a 12-year-old white boy.

Police said each of the Negroes maintains innocence but names the other four as having participated in the slaying.

The nude body of William Bodenheimer III was found yesterday in an icebox in an abandoned shack near his home.

Two of the boys being held are 17, two 15, and one 13.

An autopsy report said young Bodenheimer was sexually attacked in an unnatural manner, after a struggle, and that he was suffocated by some unknown means before his body was crammed into the icebox.

Police said two of the five boys being held have previous records for sex perversion.

The 13-year-old was arrested after residents of the area said he had been believed to have participated in recent petty robberies in the area. The boy made a statement implicating the other four. He said he stood guard while "an awful rumpus" took place in the shack after young Bodenheimer had been pulled off his bicycle.

Dr. Joseph Jachimozky, Harris County pathologist, said young Bodenheimer probably was dead when he was put into the icebox. A statement made by one of the 17-year-olds, however, said the boy "was fighting and screaming all the time but they got him in the icebox."

The 13-year-old contended he stood guard outside the shack. His pals, however, contended he was in the shack when the white boy was attacked.

City Managers Hold Meeting

Ten cities and 18 representatives attended the meeting Tuesday of the West Texas City Managers Association at Brownfield, according to A. K. Steinheimer, Big Spring city manager.

Steinheimer said the managers discussed common problems that face the various cities. The discussion pointed out that cities which require garbage can racks and chained lids have the least problems with garbage collection.

Steinheimer said, And Monahan was cited as a city with a strict ordinance regarding collections and with few problems.

Another problem discussed was water and water tap charges. It was revealed at the meeting Midland plans to increase its water rate 62 per cent and a large bond issue is being planned.

The managers also discussed the firemen's and policemen's wage and hour legislation recently approved by the state Legislature.

The managers had lunch in the Terry County Park Party House. Cities represented at the meeting, other than Midland and Big Spring were Brownfield, Lubbock, Levelland, Lamesa, Snyder, Monahan, Sweetwater and Stamford.

Hereford Sale To Be Dec. 12

Date for this winter's annual Hereford sale has been set by directors of the Howard County-South Plains Hereford Assn., but the date is different from the past.

This year's show will be held on Dec. 12, a Saturday, Jimmy Taylor, the county agent, said today. In the past the show has been held in January, usually on the first Wednesday of the month.

The December edition will be the 18th annual show sponsored by the local Hereford Breeders Association.

Taylor said already the association could predict a larger sale and show than last season, from interest shown and consignments already made.

To Take City Job

W. L. Lennon, deputy in the Howard County sheriff's department, has been interviewed for a position in the Big Spring police department, Chief C. L. Rogers said this morning.

Rogers said the application is under consideration and Lennon will probably start work in the department next week. He will probably go to work on the third shift, from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. However, Rogers said there is a vacancy in the traffic division.

Water Usage Lagging Badly

City residents continued slack usage of water Tuesday, opening up faucets to only 4,889,000 gallons. Last year, on the same day, 5,590,000 gallons were used.

The cool temperatures of July this year are credited for the low amount of water consumed. Tuesday was another record day in low temperatures. The low for the day was 57 setting a new record. The previous low reading for July 21 was 63, set in 1956.

Totals for the month show the city is running about 61,000,000 gallons behind last year. The total this year, through Tuesday, is 91,426,000 gallons. Last year, Big Spring used 152,529,000 gallons in the first 21 days of July.

Cockatoo Cocoo In Freedom Flight

Albert, he began to long for the warm security of his cage almost as soon as he was out.

But he couldn't seem to find the window. The lightning crashed around him, the thunder rattled the sky and rain poured in steady sheets. Albert huddled on a ledge.

Monday night there was another storm, and Albert took another beating from the elements. Wet and bedraggled, he struggled and fluttered through another night.

Tuesday afternoon on 23rd-floor window ledge of a Madison Avenue skyscraper, office workers spotted a white bird, somewhat grimy, with a wilted-looking golden crest. It was Albert.

They took him in. He offered no resistance. A newspaper lost and found ad led them to Miss Fisher.

Albert's fling had covered less than two blocks.

Miss Fisher joyfully took charge of a chastened Albert, and promptly locked him in his cage.

"He's not getting out of the cage again," she said. "A little freedom can be a dangerous thing."

Judges To Choose Miss U.S.A. Tonight

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A simple adding machine tabulates smiles or tears tonight for 15 American beauties in Miss USA finals in the Miss Universe pageant.

Tonight's winner mixes with 33 foreign lovelies Thursday in the international beauty contest. Fair-est of the fair will be selected Miss Universe on Friday.

The 46 American contestants Tuesday night were pared to this select 15:

Miss Alabama, Pat Sullivan; Miss Arkansas, Donna Sue Needham; Miss California, Terry Lynn Huntington; Miss Colorado, Diane Lee Gardner; Miss Florida, Nani-ta Greene; Miss Georgia, Dorothy Gladys Taylor; Miss Iowa, Kay

Nielson; Miss Louisiana, Mary Margaret La Bianco.

Miss Maine, Carolyn Komant; Miss Maryland, Diane White; Miss Missouri, Barbara Stell; Miss Nevada, Joy Blaine; Miss New York, Arlene Nesbitt; Miss Texas, Caroleen Douglas; and Miss West Virginia, Wilda Sue Estep.

Stern-faced judges and a crowd of 3,500 in Memorial Auditorium watched while the girls paraded in evening dresses and bathing suits. Then the girls nervously sat backstage while an adding machine decided the winners from judges tally sheets.

Announcement of the winners' names brought applause from the crowd, smiles from the victors, and tears from some of the losers—who had come from as far away as Alaska and Vermont.

While the finalists posed backstage for photographers, beating suit-clad losers, carrying their bundled evening dresses, tramped to the parking lot and were driven back to their hotel.

"I'm not going to cry now," said Miss Michigan, Susan Westergaard, 20, of Detroit. "But to tell the truth, I think I'll cry later."

"I just want to go home," said Miss Illinois, Arlene Kaye. "I don't feel like I'm part of the program any more." She was consoled by her roommate, Miss Japan, who is statuette Akiko Kajima, 22, a Tokyo fashion model.

Miss Wisconsin, blonde Charlene Krause of Milwaukee, agreed with Miss Illinois. "I feel homesick, all of a sudden," she said.

CRITIQUE

By Bob Smith

Would you good theatre-goers like to see "Brigadoon"? Or maybe "My Fair Lady," or "The King and I"? Or maybe "The Red Shoes"?

Maj. Vincent Brophy, the flying opera singer, is busily researching possible musicals for the Civic Theatre's fall or winter season. He agrees with most other members (and with this critic) that any musical the theatre puts on should be one with wide appeal. This, in spite of the fact that Brophy, some theatre members, and this critic also have a fondness for such things as Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, which aren't too popular in West Texas.

Nothing definite can be done beyond planning until the present season is over with. But we should be hearing from the board of governors by September.

It will be dress rehearsal every night for "The Four Poster."

Come Friday, the Civic Theatre will move into H.C.J. Auditorium for rehearsals. The three-act play will be staged in the auditorium July 30, 31 and Aug. 1.

It is the story of a married couple from their wedding night to the time that all their children are grown and married. It has all the humor, comedy and pathos that are found in life and in marriage.

"The Four Poster" gets its title from the fact that the action takes place in the couple's bedroom, which is dominated by a huge four poster bed. It is a magnificent comedy, built up by the growth of characters and situations.

Everything about the script is made to seem real—there are no artificial twists to either characters or situations.

There are only the two characters. They are portrayed by Dr. and Mrs. Bill Sandefur, with not so much as a walk-on part for anyone else. Capt. Sandefur is a dentist at the Webb hospital.

Because there are only two characters and such a long period of time, the problems of makeup and set changes are going to be tremendous. That's the reason for the unusual action director John Austin has taken in ordering more than the customary one dress rehearsal. Production crews must learn their parts as well as the Sandefurs, and must be able to make whatever changes are necessary between scenes in double time.

Some interesting glances at rehearsals for "The Four Poster" (until Friday, being held in the Sandefurs' living room):

Names of the characters are Agnes and Michael. Horrible thought: Opening night, Bill calls her "Jean," or Jean calls him "Bill."

Agnes finds a rival in her husband's book, and drives him to another woman. But love will always find, etc., and the way they find their way back to each other is touching, but is also humorous in its penetrating insight into human nature and married life.

Michael finds a bottle of bourbon in their son's bedroom, and Agnes comes to her baby's defense. Then it is discovered that, as often happens, the father favors the daughter, and the mother has a special feeling for the son.

And this "bourbon" scene has a lightly comic surprise for the audience.

Bar To Negro Called Error

HOUSTON (AP) — School officials who turned down a Negro girl when she tried to enroll in a white junior high school yesterday said the whole thing was a mistake.

Dr. John W. McFarland, superintendent of schools, said Carole Reynaud wanted to take a course at Lanier Junior High School which is not being offered there this summer.

"She was advised to register at K a s h m e r e Gardens Junior High," McFarland said, Kashmere Gardens is a Negro school.

Van Viebig, director of secondary education, who said the attempted enrollment was a mistake, said the girl and her mother left Lanier after the situation was explained to them.

The incident came several hours after the Houston School Board ordered its attorney, Joe Reynolds, to make an integration progress report to Federal Judge Ben C. Connally by Aug. 17.

Connally, who ordered the district integrated "with all deliberate speed" two years ago, set the Aug. 17 deadline for a report on steps taken to carry out the order.

Murder-Suicide Suspected In Deaths

Girl Blames It All On Love

ANAHUAC, Tex. (AP)—A 14-year-old schoolgirl told police yesterday she ran away with a married New Jersey man accused of kidnaping her because "I loved him too much to let him go."

Chambers County deputies arrested Thomas Carroo, 39, and Barbara Diane Plaisted at a drive-in grocery at nearby Winnie, where he had been working as a clerk four months.

The two left Old Ridge, N. J., Jan. 21 Carroo, who has three children, said he wanted to drop out of sight to escape his creditors.

"You know how love goes," the blonde girl told officers. "You can't help it."

Barbara was an eighth-grader at the Old Bridge School and a baby sitter for the Carroos. Carroo was a partner in a dairy business.

He was to have driven Barbara to school the day they disappeared.

Deputy C. C. Courtney, noting an expired New Jersey license plate on Carroo's automobile, said

Carroo is wanted for kidnaping in Middlesex County, N. J. He also faces charges of contributing to delinquency, desertion, non-support and abduction.
