FTC Chairman Says Bureau Helpless To Halt TV Frauds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Trade Commission said today deceptive entertainment such as rigged TV shows is not something his agency can regulate.

Earl W. Kintner, the FTC head, told House investigators his agency has never gone beyond control of advertisements which results in unfair business practices.

The House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight has heard testimony that questions and answers were supplied in advance to some contestants on such programs as "Twenty-One" and "Tic Tac Dough."

In reply to questions, Kintner conceded that this constitutes "a gray area in the law."

He said Congress could enact a law making it a criminal offense to rig a TV show. "It would have a salutary effect," he said.

Kintner also suggested broadening the rules of the Federal Communications Commission, which is the federal regulatory body for television and radio.

Kintner said the courts have held that where no misrepresentation of products is involved, the commission has no jurisdiction.

But he said the commission staff in 1956 conducted a preliminary investigation of a complaint involving the TV quiz program, "The Big Surprise." The program went off the air, Kintner said, and the investigation never got to the question of the commission authority to act.

He described the complaint as having come from a woman contestant. She alleged that the quiz show's producer questioned her in advance on her knowledge of certain subjects, purportedly "choke her off" the program.

There still was no word on whether Charles Van Doren, a big winner on the "Twenty-One" show, would accept an invitation to testify before the House Legislative Oversight subcommittee.

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) declined to comment on whether a subpoena would be issued for Van Doren, who won $129,000 on the quiz show three years ago.

Van Doren consistently has disclaimed any knowledge of the show's being rigged.

Other "Twenty-One" contestants have testified that they were given answers in advance.

As the hearing moved into the home stretch, a Presbyterian Church official said the television industry had sacrificed "ethics, morality and honor" for high audience ratings on the quiz shows.

The Rev. Lawrence McMaster Jr. of New York, executive director of the Department of Radio and Television of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., said in an open letter to the networks and the Federal Communications Commission:

"The only criterion of right and wrong was last night's rating. All was geared to this. The one thing the show had to be was popular. Morality and truth were completely sacrificed to popularity."

A spokesman for the Mutual Broadcasting System replied that the integrity of Mutual's former quiz shows has never been questioned. Other networks have said they did not know some shows were being rigged by individual producers.

Testimony by FCC chairman John Doerfer was attacked Sunday by Robert W. Lishman, chief counsel for the subcommittee.

Doerfer said Saturday the rigging of quiz shows is a fraudulent and deceptive practice. He added "neither the prosecuting attorney in New York nor I have been able to pinpoint any violation of the law."

UNITED FUND

Salvation Army Is Helpless; Job Grows

"Uno the least of one of these, my brethren" is the prime mission of the Salvation Army, one of the agencies of your United Fund.

Perhaps too few realize the increasing demands upon the Salvation Army in helping the helpless. Actually this agency has been going in the red because of the mounting welfare load. Last year 3,141 transients who had no other place to turn were aided with overnight lodgings. They received 7,179 meals, 4,195 items of garments or shoes. And so it went in other realms.

But this was not all the picture. For in family services here the Salvation Army issued 117 grocery orders, supplied 37,571 garments (collected mainly from generous local people), put out 2,264 pairs of new and used shoes, took care of orders for medicine, cash, furniture. At Christmas it issued 253 boxes of necessities and distributed toys (prepared by city firemen) to 2,941 individuals.

Economic changes, strikes and other dislocations have put more people wandering homelessly across the nation and added a burden which only the Salvation Army can begin to approach.

Like the YMCA, the Salvation Army seeks to give these it helps more than mere substance. Apart from this, and financed through its own contributions, the Salvation Army carries on a noble spiritual program.

It also stands ready to help in other agencies.

The work of the Salvation Army here is made more effective by reason of the transient dormitory given last year by the Dora Roberts Foundation. Your United Fund gifts help support the work.

Board Begins Hearings On Steel Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fact-finding board opened hearings today on the nation's longest steel strike, hoping to produce a settlement rather than just some advice for President Eisenhower.

Acting under the Taft-Hartley law, the President appointed the three-man board to recommend whether he should seek a federal court injunction to stop the walk-out for 80 days.

The Steelworkers Union plans to fight issuance of such an injunction.

Board chairman George W. Taylor, who does not think much of the Taft-Hartley law, said Sunday that he and his colleagues would use the hearings to try to help management and labor reach a voluntary agreement in the 90-day-old strike.

"I think it's our responsibility to do everything within the limits of our authority to settle this dispute," said Taylor, known as a skilled arbiter of labor-management disputes. He is professor of business at the University of Pennsylvania and was chairman of the National Labor Board during World War II.

Help from the panel was welcomed by David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers Union. If the panel can help achieve an agreement, he said, "we will be most happy."

Officially the board must determine whether continuation of the strike would cause a national emergency. In the open hearings, the steel companies were expected to argue that it would. The union was expected to argue the opposite.

The union argument apparently would follow these lines:

1. The non-union plants, 15 percent of the industry, have continued to operate and can supply the nation's defense needs.
2. Although the strike has caused unemployment of 800,000 national unemployment still is below five million, a total that the President has not considered an emergency in the past.
3. McDonald said Sunday the union would show "that there is absolutely no need for an injunction and that if one is issued it will only serve to prolong the unnecessary conflict brought about by the greed and selfish economic amorality of the steel industry."

The board is to file its report with the President by Friday. Taylor, however, hinted that the panel might seek an extension of the deadline if it felt time would help mediate the dispute. Under the law, the President would not be bound by the board's recommendation.

Newest Round May Be Decisive

Court Agrees To Review Union Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a decision that compulsory union membership is unconstitutional if dues money is used for political purposes without the consent of union members.

The decision was given by the Georgia Supreme Court in a suit by six employees of the Southern Railway System.

It was appealed to the highest tribunal by 15 unions, among them railroad brotherhoods at whose insistence union shop contracts have been signed by many railroads.

Under union shop contracts, employees are required to join unions within a specified time. In the Georgia case this was 60 days.

The six Southern Railway System employees said they did not want to join unions and should not be forced to pay dues when part of the money was used to support political candidates and doctrines they opposed.

A time for argument will be set later.

The issue is one of far-reaching import. If the Supreme Court agrees with the Georgia court, unions could not use any general funds for political activities, or else they would have to give up the union shop.

The Georgia Supreme Court affirmed a decision by Judge O. L. Long in Superior Court in Macon, Ga., that a section of the Railway Labor Act is unconstitutional to the extent that it permits union shop agreements under which dues money may be spent in part for political purposes.

Engaged

Marie-Luce Jamagne, 21-year-old Belgian, is engaged to former Group Capt. Peter Townsend, whose romance with Britain's Princess Margaret ended in 1955. The engagement was announced by her mother, who said no wedding date had been set.

Religion Still Snags Townsend

BRASSCHAAT, Belgium (AP) — Religious troubles still plague the romantic life of Peter Townsend, former suitor of Princess Margaret. He now plans to wed a Belgian heiress.

The romance with Princess Margaret foundered because he is divorced. Now it appears unlikely the handsome 44-year-old British air ace will be able to wed his fiancée, a Roman Catholic, within the church. But he says they will be wed soon, regardless.

Townsend presented newsmen to his fiancée, Marie-Luce Jamagne, 20, Sunday.

"I am not sure when exactly we will get married, but I hope it will be within the next three months or so," he said.

Townsend was asked whether he planned to marry the dark-haired daughter of a wealthy Belgian tobacco executive in a religious ceremony.

"I would rather not discuss that point," he replied. "It is too delicate a question."

Townsend is an Anglican and was married in the Church of England. The wife he divorced in 1952 is still living and has remarried.

A Belgian priest said today it was unlikely Townsend could marry in the Roman Catholic Church.

Marie-Luce, who toured the world with Townsend as his secretary-photographer after his broken romance with Princess Margaret, proudly displayed a sizable diamond engagement ring.

Ira Scott Will Conduct Class

Popular Ira Scott will be in Big Spring this week conducting a basic police course for Big Spring patrolmen. He is an instructor with the Texas A&M engineering extension service.

The classroom sessions will be held each day this week, with two hour classes scheduled in the mornings and afternoons. Scott said the instruction would cover laws, arrests, searches and seizures.

Scott recently held a supervisor's school here and is considered one of the more interesting instructors of classes by Big Spring patrolmen.

Poland Leads Vote For Council Seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist Poland gradually pulled ahead of Western-backed Turkey today in a deadlock contest for a seat in the U.N. Security Council.

After eight secret ballots in the 82-nation General Assembly, Poland was only seven votes short of the required two-thirds majority of those present and voting.

The vote on the eighth ballot was 47 for Poland and 34 for Turkey. Israel was absent throughout today's voting because of the Jewish holiday.

Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki said Poland was in the contest to stay. Western supporters of Turkey also said they were standing firm.

There was a possibility the deadlock might continue for weeks.

Ecuador and Ceylon were elected without opposition to fill two other vacant seats.

On the first ballot Poland received 46 votes to 36 for Turkey. On the second Poland got 43 and Turkey 38.

A U.S. spokesman said the United States would stick to Turkey indefinitely. Chief U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge said he was optimistic that Turkey would win eventually.

Poland and Turkey are contesting to succeed Japan, whose two-year term on the Security Council ends Jan. 1.

Ceylon was unopposed to succeed Canada as a British Commonwealth member, and Ecuador was the sole candidate for the Latin-American seat now held by Panama.

One contest also was listed for the Economic and Social Council, between India and Japan to take the seat held by Pakistan. Unopposed candidates were Brazil, to succeed Mexico; Denmark, to succeed Finland; and Britain, Poland and the Soviet Union for re-election. The ECOSCO terms, also starting Jan. 1, are for three years.

The rival Security Council aspirants were outwardly optimistic, but both expected considerable balloting.

Polish delegate Jerzy Michalowski said he hoped his country would lead from the first ballot onward and "get in, but we don't know after how many votes."

Seyfulah Esin of Turkey said he thought his country had "a fair lead" and certainly would win, though some balloting might be necessary.

Other delegates predicted neither would get the necessary two-thirds majority in the 82-nation Assembly and that after five or six fruitless ballots, the Assembly would postpone further voting to next week.

In 1955, the Philippines and Yugoslavia went through 25 inconclusive ballots spread over two months before they finally agreed to split the two-year term. This time both Poland and Turkey served notice they would not split.

A deadlock could persist indefinitely if hard-core backers of the two rivals held firm. This might result in a compromise dark horse.

Youth Admits Strangling Girl, 10, Shooting Father

L'ANSE, Mich. (AP) — A 10-year-old girl was strangled and her father shot to death Sunday night. Authorities said a 16-year-old boy left two sisters of the girl sitting in church while he killed the child and her father at home.

Held is Eugene Paquet of L'Anse.

The victims were Edward Frosland, 44, and his daughter, Lila Lynn. Frosland was shot in the back of the head. His daughter was clubbed unconscious and then strangled.

William G. Konstenius, Baraga County prosecutor, said Paquet orally admitted both slayings. Konstenius said the youth told him: "I did it. But I don't know why. That family has been awful good to me."

The prosecutor said Paquet had dated Shirley Frosland, 16, for about two years.

Konstenius said the boy told him he took Shirley and her sister, Sally, 14, to church in L'Anse, stayed with them for a while and then left abruptly, pleading illness.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Paquet, and the mother of the girls, Lila Frosland, 38, spent the weekend in Chicago with friends and returned together later in the evening.

The prosecutor said that after Paquet left the church he went home and got a rope, an iron bar and his father's .22 caliber pistol. Then he drove to the Frosland home where Lila Lynn was watching television and her father was asleep.

Konstenius said Paquet told him he joined Lila in watching TV, then invited her out to his car to see a present he had brought for her. Konstenius said that when the girl went out the youth knocked her unconscious with the bar, slipped a rope around her neck, strangled her and left her body on the front lawn.

The prosecutor said the boy then went to a bedroom where the father was asleep. A bullet was fired into the back of his skull, killing him instantly.

Paquet, according to Konstenius, then went into the living room and watched television until Mrs. Frosland, who had met her daughters at church, and the girls returned home.

He said Paquet told the women what he had done and they called police.

Ex-Sheriff Trial Delayed At Lamesa

LAMESA — Scheduled trial of J. T. Harrington on former Crosby County Sheriff was today continued to Wednesday at 1 p.m. Harrington is to be tried in 10th District Court here on an indictment alleging misapplication and theft of public funds. The case was transferred from Crosby County Lamesa on a change of venue.

Judge Truett Smith ordered the case delayed to 1 p.m. Wednesday after the defense attorney, Carroll Cobb, Lubbock, made a motion for a continuance. Cobb pleaded that basic records on which the indictment against his client had been returned had been denied to the defense.

Judge Smith declined to continue the case the time that Cobb asked but did agree to the delay to Wednesday afternoon. The court said the defense had displayed a lack of diligence in the matter and that no request for the records had been made until last Thursday.

There were still 43 jurors in the court room of a special panel of 91 which had been summoned to deal with the case.

Appearing for the state will be George Gilkerson, Lubbock, 72nd district attorney, George Hansard, 106th district attorney, and Harold Jung, Crosby County attorney.

Depletion Warning

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Loss of tax incentives would severely affect the oil industry's 2½-billion-dollar-a-year drilling program, President Ed Warren of Cities Service Co. said today.

He told the American Assn. of Oilwell Drilling Contractors that drillers must get together and fight to preserve the 27½ percent depletion allowance and the right to charge off intangible drilling expense.

7-Inch Extension Posing Problem

The Big Spring Zoning Board of Adjustment is meeting this afternoon at City Hall to consider an exception to the city zoning ordinance.

C. M. Wilkerson, 509 E. 18th, has asked to build an addition to his house. It will extend seven inches beyond his property line on public property.

The board will be asked to approve the construction.

Two Cosden Refinery Men Gravely Burned In Mishap

Two Cosden Refinery workers were gravely burned at 10 a.m. today when a slurry oil line atop a catalytic cracking plant tower ruptured.

The victims are: BILLY RAY WARD, 30, 1608 E. 15th, cracker plant stillman. JAMES R. (PETE) SHANNON, 27, Cosboma, cat cracking plant helper.

The two men are at the Big Spring Hospital. Full extent of their injuries had not been ascertained Monday noon.

Hot oil, spraying from the ruptured line struck the two men.

Most of their injuries were restricted to the face and legs, it was said. It is believed, according to reports, that Shannon is the more seriously injured of the pair.

Jack Y. Smith, personal director for Cosden, said that the 6-inch line was atop a catalytic cracking tower. It conveyed slurry oil at a high pressure and high temperature from one operation to another. A leak was noted on the line.

Shannon and Ward climbed to the tower top to check the leakage and make repairs. First task was to remove insulation material which surrounded the pipe. Apparently, Smith said, the insulation was retaining the oil at the point where the line ruptured. When the men removed this material, the fluid sprayed outward and trapped them.

Immediately afterward, the spraying oil ignited.

Refinery crews put the fire under control within 15 minutes and Smith said no serious damage to the plant stemmed from the blaze.

Ward has been with the refinery for 10 years.

Shannon went to work at the refinery Aug. 11, 1955.

DEAR ABBY

DON'T HAVE TO GO

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please state your opinion of an office party given at the home of a divorced woman employe on the occasion of her leaving the firm.

Four married men were invited. Their wives were excluded. Their dinner partners were single office girls. (It's a large office, but this was the entire guest list.) When I expressed surprise that wives were not invited, I was told that it would be too much work to include the wives. We wives would have been happy to fix the dinner and clean up afterwards.

Do you think a married man has to attend this kind of affair unless he wants to? All the men were fat and forty, three were fifty! When in business business, and when is fun fun?

UNINVITED WIFE
DEAR UNINVITED: Don't call this an office party. This was simply a party including some of the office help. No married man has to attend a social function without his wife unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the woman whose problem was a husband who cussed all the time. You suggested she fine him 25 cents every time he used a swear word. That might work with some husbands, but it wouldn't work with mine. If I told my husband that I was fining him 25 cents every time he swore, he'd tell me where to go, and he'd owe me 25 cents immediately. HULDA

DEAR ABBY: I saw your sure cure for a swearing husband and I tried it on my own. I kept track of every violation and charged him a quarter for each one. Since September first he ran up a bill of $56.75. Now, how do I get him to pay me? Please don't tell me to see a lawyer because my husband is one. Thank you, MRS. E.

DEAR ABBY: My nephew came home from college with a very smart-alecky attitude. When I introduced him to an attractive young lady at our Club, he said: "Boy, you're the kind of girl I'd like to take home to mother—if I could trust my father." Everyone laughed.

I told my husband later that I felt this was a reflection on my BROTHER, who is the boy's father, because the boy implied that his own father couldn't be trusted with a young girl.

My husband said he felt it was a reflection on the GIRL because she appeared to be the type who might encourage an older man's attentions. Please settle this argument for us. AUNT AND UNCLE
DEAR A and U: This is a reflection on (a) the boy himself for assuming that everyone within hearing distance had a sense of humor, (b) On you, for having none. Forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MAXINE: Get that wonderful book "FIRST LOVE, TRUE LOVE by Anne Emery at your public (school) library. It will introduce you to "Pat," another high school junior who feels left out of things because her "steady" is away at college.

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

U.S. Space Race Kept Slow By Fund Lack, Experts Aver

By REM PRICE
HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Project Saturn, key to the United States' big leap into space, has been barely rocking along on a 40-hour, keep-down-the-overtime week.

If Saturn's progress at Redstone Arsenal here is any test, interviews with its top missilemen indicate the United States seems to be making little extra effort to overtake the Soviets in the space race.

A decision is expected this week on whether the Saturn project will be transferred to the National Aeronautical and Space Administration. Earlier there had been indications the space program would be turned over to the Air Force.

Under whatever auspices the Saturn development is expected to continue, informed Washington sources say. But the pace so far hardly has been breakneck.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ordnance Missile Command here, says: "At present, plans based on the present budget plus what appears to be the probable budget for next year do not support the Saturn program at the speed at which it could be developed. We are not talking billions of dollars, either. We are talking millions."

COULDN'T REPEAT
Medaris' command put the nation's first satellite, the 31-pound Explorer I, into orbit Jan. 31, 1958, and thereby regained some of the scientific prestige lost to the pioneering Soviets. Today, as against the Soviet moonshots, the general says the performance could not be repeated.

"There is no hardware now in existence in the United States which could put that much weight (the Soviets' 850 pounds) on the moon," he says.

Making no bones that he's boiling over what he considers the lag in the nation's space program, Medaris says: "The basic problem is simple. There must be a positive decision. Are we or are we not going to compete with the Russians? If we are, there has to be a solid, well-financed program. Right now we are straddling the issue."

Wernher von Braun, German-born pioneer in military missiles and now director of the Development and Operations Division of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency appeared equally dissatisfied.

"We are given almost exactly half of what we asked for to build Saturn," he told this reporter. "We are losing time and that is one thing we can't buy back."

"WAY BEHIND
In relation to the Soviet Union, Von Braun said, "I am convinced that if they stopped today, it would take us one to two years to catch up."

These facts were gleaned in a series of interviews with Redstone Arsenal sources.

Project Saturn funds suffered an unannounced cut of nearly 48 per cent this year by the Defense Department — from 135 million dollars to 70 million. The cutback already has resulted in a seven-month to one-year stretch-out in the original development program.

The announced objective of Project Saturn was to provide an "efficient and reliable system for lifting multi-ton loads into high orbit around the earth and deep into space" by 1962-3.

No scientist or military man interviewed here was willing to predict the United States would meet that schedule.

The initial impetus for Saturn stemmed directly from Soviet space achievements.

The project was announced in Washington Sept. 12, 1958. It proposed construction of a 1½ million pound thrust rocket engine, or booster.

STAGE PRINCIPLE
By mounting two, perhaps three, additional stages atop the big booster, the United States planned to have a missile capable of putting 15 tons of equipment or men, or both, into a 300-mile high orbit.

This huge missile, which would stand 200 to 230 feet high upon completion, also could be used to put a ton of instruments into a soft landing on the moon, or hurl a multi-ton communications satellite into a fixed-position equatorial orbit 22,200 miles out.

Under present plans the communications satellite probably will be the missile's first job. But the question of when is something else again.

On Feb. 12, 1959, the Advanced Research Projects Agency said in a news release the "Saturn program is progressing at an accelerated rate. The booster is expected to be test flown in 1960."

In July, the Defense Department announced, "The Saturn test vehicle will be delivered to the test lab (at Huntsville) in November of the first static testing is due in December."

The July announcement said the test tower would be completed by Sept. 1. It wasn't. It won't be ready for weeks.

TANKS NOT READY
While the engines for the 1½-million-pound thrust rocket have been delivered, the fuel tanks for the super booster have not been completed. In fact, the fabrication laboratory schedule does not even call for the assembly of the large

Surgeon Puts Man To Sleep, Then Kills Him

MONTERREY, Mex. (AP) — The district attorney's office says a young surgeon confessed he put a male friend to sleep in his office, slew him, dismembered the body and buried the pieces.

Asst. Atty. Alejandro Garza Delgado said Sunday night that he is filing murder charges against the surgeon, Dr. Alfredo Balli Trevino, 28. The victim was Jesus Castillo Ranjel, 26.

Officials said the doctor confessed Sunday.

Investigating officers said they uncovered these details: Castillo Ranjel went to the surgeon's office Thursday afternoon, said he was not feeling well, told the doctor he was moving to Mexico City, and asked him for money.

The men had been friends on the homosexual level, police said. The doctor was angry at the demand for money. He told Castillo Ranjel he would give him an injection for grippe.

Instead, he injected a powerful dose of medicine that put the victim to sleep almost immediately. The surgeon then pulled the sleeping man into the bathroom, held him over the tub and slit his throat.

He then carried the body to the operating table. There, the surgeon cut the body into eight pieces and packed them into a big cardboard box with blankets.

The surgeon called a taxi driver friend and said he wanted to get rid of waste from operations. They took the box into the country and buried it.

But officials said a shepherd happened to see the burial. Friday, he dug up the box and found the gruesome remains.

Adding to the problems which bedevil Saturn, the ARPA, which has been in charge of the project to date, announced Sept. 23 it was getting out of the space business. Dr. Herbert C. York, Defense Department director of research and engineering, told a news conference that responsibility for development of Saturn "eventually will go to the Air Force."

A spokesman for the Army Ordnance Missile Command was asked whether he thought the administrative changeover would delay the Saturn program and whether, since the Air Force had its own space program the project itself be endangered.

He merely raised his hands skyward, palms up, rolled his eyes, and shrugged.

Victims Of Ransom Plot Back Home, Lead Dog's Life

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Ten tiny, four-legged victims of a $3,000 ransom plot were back home today, leading a dog's life.

Underweight, ragged and weary the prize toy poodles—dogsnapped from their owner Sept. 15—devoured bound-sliced portions of beef, biscuits, dried milk and wheat germ.

The little canine puffballs are valued at a total of $25,000, accounts for their theft from the kennels of Mrs. Leicester Harrison, a dog breeder at nearby Massachusetts.

Four women, including a former employe at the kennels, are charged with the dogsnapping. Mrs. Harrison said the dogs were taken while she was ill at a hospital. She reported she got a telephone call a few days ago demanding ransom. She said she recognized the voice as that of Belle D. Joseph, 28, who formerly worked as a groom for the dogs at dog shows.

The poodles were rounded up over the weekend, some from homes of relatives or friends. The last was picked up as he limped forlornly along a Long Island expressway.

That was tiny Snowboots, off his feed and down from his normal fighting weight of 3½ pounds to a mere 2½. He is worth $3,500.

Lanza Fought To Top, Then Feuding Began

Editor's Note — Mario Lanza's unexpected death in Rome erased from the entertainment scene one of its most unorthodox characters. Alternately cocky and afraid, one day an idol, the next all but forgotten, he was a study in contrasts. Columnist Bob Thomas writes extensively of Lanza's career in two columns, the first of which follows.

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mario Lanza had an enormous appetite for fame and the pleasures of life. It appears they were too much for him.

When Mario came to Hollywood, he was a wonder to see—handsome, muscular, charged with electric energy. He knew he was possessor of a great voice, and he was determined to share it with the world.

He could have sold anything, so enthusiastic was he. But he didn't have to sell his voice. All he had to do was open his mouth with a glass-shattering note, and producers agreed that his voice was a gift of God.

Mario was wheeling freely in his early MGM days. He sang for parties and benefits; he loved having people discover his voice for the first time.

He lived and talked as he pleased. His language was tinged with the explicit words of Philadelphia streets and Army barracks, and this caused pain for his leading ladies, Kathryn Grayson and Ann Blyth. But no one could discipline Mario. His animal spirits were high, and so was his popularity.

Lanza hit his zenith with "The Great Caruso." It was a tremendous success, breaking all records at the Radio City Music Hall. Then what happened to him? Nobody really knows. Mario fought all his life to get to the top, and when he got there he didn't know what to do with himself.

He started feuding with the studio. He was assigned an Army picture, "Because You're Mine." Mario refused, arguing that the public was sick of war. He finally agreed to the film. It was a flop.

He made recordings for "The Student Prince," but failed to appear for filming. MGM put Edmund Purdom in the role and slapped a five-million-dollar suit on Lanza.

The rest was a sorry tale of unkept engagements and withdrawals from public view and even the company of his closest friends.

At any time during his troubles, Mario could have gone on the road and earned a million dollars with his voice. But he no longer had the nerve or the desire to face an audience.

Now he is tragically gone, dead of a heart attack at 38. Hollywood is deprived of a colorful figure, and the gift of his voice is lost, appetite.

Tomorrow: Lanza's fantastic appetite.

Samba Dancers Celebrate Election Victory Of Rhino

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Samba dancers have gotten into the act in this provincial capital's strange election ruckus over Skinny-the-rhinoceros polling the most votes.

Skinny wasn't around to see the parade of dancers who tied up downtown traffic Friday and sang their victory song to the tune of bongos drums.

The half-ton female rhino had been sent back to the zoo in Rio de Janeiro in a dispute over her ownership just before the Municipal election in which she led the ticket with more than 100,000 write-in votes.

In the Brazilian Congress, a leftist nationalist deputy charged Skinny was a plot of "foreign trusts that want to demoralize the regime." The press called the surprise support for Skinny—with the help of jesting university students—a protest against corruption.

Skinny will never serve. Her election and all the votes cast for her have been invalidated.

Comfortable Weather Seen

By The Associated Press

Skies only partly cloudy and temperatures in comfortable ranges were in the outlook for Texas weather during the next few days.

Clouds covered Northwest Texas and the north portion of Central Texas from the Waco-San Angelo-Midland line Monday but were expected to dissipate during the day.

Scattered clouds were over east and central portions and some high, scattered clouds over Southwest Texas at the same time. A stationary front, lying along a line from Lufkin to Austin to Salt Flat, separated two groups of mild temperatures. Early morning temperatures were in the 70s to the south of the line and in the 60s and 50s to the north.

The northwestern Panhandle had temperatures in the 40s with the state's extremes represented by a 45 reading at Dalhart and a 78 at Brownsville.

An extended forecast for the next five days indicated little or no precipitation except in East Texas where moderate rainfall in scattered showers and thunderstorms was expected.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

By TOMMY HART

Sunland Park race track, just outside El Paso—which this writer visited last weekend—can't help but succeed, its operators will tell you.

At the same time, they are more than a little apprehensive, after totaling up the weekend receipts.

The opening day pari-mutuel handle—$164,000—wasn't what was expected and the brass can't be forgiven for shuddering a little bit when they try and figure out what future Friday racing programs will bring.

El Paso is a laboring man's town and few of the working stiffs among the half million in the area can beg off from their regular chores to patronize the place on that day of the week. After all, a man can't claim he is attending the funeral of a dearly departed aunt or grandmother every Friday.

The Border City has long exploited the motto, "where sunshine spends the winter" but the Sunland people wonder what the reaction of the people will be when a chill begins to hang in the air. They will know that some of the patrons will feel inclined to risk their scratch with a bookie in some steam heated bar down town, rather than risk frostbite at the track.

Sunland's season—running as it does from October into January—is suspect, too—because it has to buck football during part of that time. New Mexico politics being what they are, it was the best the wheels could do with the racing commission at Santa Fe.

Ruidoso Downs is still the No. 1 track in New Mexico and threatens to remain for some time to come. For one thing, it is hidden away in a vacation retreat where the horse player can take his brood on the pretense of spending a carefree weekend.

Ruidoso is popular with both the $2 bettor and those prepared to risk 25 times that on a single race. A patron of the sport who studies such things says the ratio of Cadillac parked at Ruidoso Downs far outnumber those found at Sunland the first week.

Owners of the El Paso racing plant poured some $3 million into the push layout. They also did a mansized job of selling the idea of a horse track to such one-time critics as the Chamber of Commerce and the clergy, some of whom cling to the belief that El Paso attracts enough characters of dubious reputation and no visible means of support, as it is. (Horse tracks are notorious for same).

The clergy agreed to button its collective lip, though, and the Chamber of Commerce—proselytized by good, gray merchants who like for their customers to swear their first oath of allegiance to their creditors and not to the people who toil in the pari-mutuel cubicles at the horse tracks—adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

Promoters at Sunland lent a great deal of study to the type and income of the people who bet. The results at El Paso weren't encouraging. The population is overwhelmingly Latin-American, many of whom have to hustle to make ends meet.

Sunland's people are also disturbed by the thought that (1) the New Mexico legislature, hard pressed for money, will take an increased bite of the betting handle (which it is almost certain to do) and (2) the possibility that pari-mutuel betting will be given the green light in Texas.

All tracks must depend largely on tourists to stay in business (at least that's one of the selling points made by the Sunland people) and El Paso, even with Juarez not ten minutes away, hasn't the allure to keep the vacationers coming back.

If those factors worry the track's promoters, they have any number of things going for them, too—a handsome track in a beautiful setting, a location close enough to a city where you probably won't have to be making hotel reservations in advance and assurance of good racing stock.

All that, with a staff of employees whose zeal and determination to succeed is refreshing and admirable.

The operators reason they need $125,000 in betting handle daily to pay all the bills. To insure that they remain in business, they're getting two prices for their cuisine—food that is ordinary at best. They operate on the theory that the better—if he's on a good streak—doesn't care what his nourishment costs him and—if he's losing—is usually too sick to care.

Sunland people like to focus attention on the fact that their opening day handle was bigger than was Santa Anita's in its inaugural show.

They could have added that a dollar in those days was worth considerably more and was much harder to come by. As I recall, no one lighted cigarettes with the paper buck in those days and if they did foolish things like throwing silver cartwheels across the Potomac or Hudson rivers, just to test their throwing skills, they made it a point to row across and retrieve same.

Ex-Hurler Dies

WILSON, N. C. (AP) — Bunn Hearn, 68, former major league pitcher who was baseball coach at the University of North Carolina for 27 years, will be buried here Tuesday. "Big Steam" and "Old Leaguer," as he was known among other nicknames in North Carolina, saw many of his players reach the majors.

Driving Deep Into Texas Territory

Oklahoma's left halfback Jackie Holt, No. 34, returns a Texas punt 27 yards to put the ball on Texas' 23-yard line in the second quarter of the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. The Longhorns, however, stopped the Sooners threat and scored two touchdowns to forge into a 13-12 halftime lead. (AP Wirephoto).

New Regime Takes Over In Football

Four short weeks ago, teams like Auburn, Oklahoma, Southern Methodist, Army, Ohio State and North Carolina couldn't wait for the college football season to get under way. They were loaded, ready for bear. Today, they are lagging among

Claimants To SWC Title Face Moments Of Truth

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

The Southwest Conference gets down to the real business of deciding a champion this week and a little fracas in the Ozarks matching unbeaten Texas and Arkansas might furnish an immediate answer. The Longhorns and Razorbacks, each winners of four straight games, get together at Little Rock Saturday night. This one game cannot settle the title, of course, but the winner will become an outstanding favorite.

Texas became the choice when it wound up a great inter-sectional schedule with a 19-12 victory over Oklahoma Saturday. The Longhorns had beaten Nebraska, Maryland and California previously. However, Arkansas was winning its eighth straight game when it trounced Baylor 23-7 in a conference tussle at Waco. The Razorbacks were carrying a winning streak over 1958.

General opinion is that Texas has its hands full against the tough, versatile Razorbacks. Southern Methodist, still considered a strong title threat although losing its opening game of the season to Georgia Tech, and winless Rice clash at Houston. Texas A&M, driving back from an opening loss to Texas Tech, and Texas Christian, which has failed to live up to its pre-season reputation, get together at Fort Worth.

Seven Elevens Stand Out In Schoolboy Grid Race

Seven teams stand out as the Texas schoolboy football race whirls past the halfway mark but at least one of them will take a tumble this week. Four teams—Abilene, Wichita Falls, Highland Park and Corpus Christi Ray—are given the top rankings of Class AAAA where the undefeated, untied list has shrunk to 11. Highland Park and

Eric Monti Wins Hesperia Open

HESPERIA, Calif. (AP) — Eric Monti, a 40-year-old club professional, bested a field of touring golf stars to win the $20,000 Hesperia Open Sunday with a 17-under-par 72-hole total of 271. Monti's only previous major win was the 1955 Miami Beach Open. His total was four strokes ahead of a trio consisting of former U.S. Open champ Jack Fleck, of Tarzana, Calif.; Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla.; and Bob Duden, Portland, Ore., at 275.

Monti's rounds were 70-68-64-69 on the par 72 Hesperia Country Club course. The event attracted a final-day gallery of 4,000. It was sunny and warm on the desert course—the mercury reached 85.

Porkers' Call Leaves Enemy With A Chill

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas' peppy cry of a hog-calling "So-oo-eee" has a chilling ring in the Southwest Conference this year.

The swift and steady Razorbacks, who caught fire after a miserable start last year, have trounced four straight opponents and stretched their winning streak to eight games. They lead in league play with two victories, over Texas Christian and Baylor, and meet mighty Texas Saturday. The Longhorns are the only other undefeated team in the conference and the game could decide the title.

What happened to Arkansas? Coach Frank Broyles, in his second year at the university, modestly attributes much of the success to "breaks."

"I'm happy we've come this far," he said. "We kind of have to pinch ourselves to believe it." The Hogs have been helping the "breaks" along—such as prompting a few opposition fumbles with hammering tackles—and when the fumbles come, look out. They get that ball.

And they have speed, one of the fastest backfields in the nation, led by all-Southwest Conference halfback Jim Mooty. Pass interceptions? Baylor—who fell before Arkansas 23-7 last Saturday—has experience on this line. The Hogs grabbed three Bear passes and ran them back for 128 yards.

For good measure, Broyles sent in Little Freddie Akers, who kicked a field goal. The same Akers beat TCU, 3-0, with a 28-yard field goal the previous week.

Besides Mooty, the backfield unit include quarterback Jim Monroe; sophomore halfback Lance Alworth, a speedy Mississippian who also punts over the 50-yard distance consistently; sophomore standout fullback Curtis Cox, and twins Jarrell and Darrell Williams, halfbacks.

Wayne Harris is a rock 'em-sock 'em type linebacker. The Razorbacks run what Broyles calls a "belly wing" offense, not too different from the T series of wing and belly plays Coach Darrell Royal installed at Texas.

Arkansas lost its first six games in 1958, including the conference opener. Then the Porkers woke up and whipped their next foe, Texas A&M, 21-8. Hardin-Simmons, Southern Methodist and Texas Tech were defeated in order.

So what about Texas? Broyles, a 34-year-old who came to Arkansas after one year at the University of Missouri, watched the televised Texas-Oklahoma game Saturday and Texas' 19-12 triumph.

"They looked good," he said, "but we haven't had time to think much about them."

Longden In Front

EL PASO (AP) — Johnny Longden won his 5,372nd race Saturday when he piloted Spice, a 4-year-old filly, to first place in the $5,000 El Paso Handicap at Sunland Park.

Auburn showed signs of snapping out of the doldrums by whacking Kentucky, 33-0. This week, the Tigers face another formidable foe in Georgia Tech, No. 3 in the current Associated Press weekly poll. Tech spilled Tennessee 14-7.

Southern Methodist goes against Rice, while Army, beaten 17-11 by unbeaten Penn State, takes on Duke. Ohio State, which has scored only two touchdowns in three games, has the unenviable task of facing Purdue. The Boilermakers sat on Wisconsin, which had been making threatening gestures in the Big Ten, 21-0, last Saturday. Ohio State lost to Illinois 9-0, its second straight shutout.

North Carolina, which had been regarded as the heir apparent to the Atlantic Coast Conference throne, has broken even in four games and tangles with Maryland Saturday.

Two teams that have lived up to their preseason estimates are Louisiana State and Mississippi, both of the Southeastern Conference. LSU, riding atop the AP poll, whipped Miami, 27-3, last week for its fourth victory without defeat. The Bengals from the bayou should have no trouble against Kentucky this week.

Mississippi boasts a 3-0 record and furthermore, hasn't been scored on. Ole Miss' latest victim was Vanderbilt, 33-0, with Tulane next in line.

Among the upstarts, Northwest-ern perhaps has provided the biggest surprise. The Wildcats have spent many a year in or near the Big Ten basement, but now are baring their fangs and look as though they mean it. Despite the loss of Dick Thornton, they topped tough Minnesota, 6-0, Saturday with Bob Eickhoff, a pee-wee scrub, spearheading the drive for the touchdown. This week, Michigan.

Southern Cal likewise has produced unexpected power and shows a 3-0 mark. Syracuse, also 3-0, rates now as perhaps the best of the East — by a shade over Penn State — after crushing Navy 32-6.

While no dollar-lined bowl bids hinge on the outcome, even the laid Ivy League has produced a surprise. Penn, shoved from pillar to post in recent years, finally has asserted itself, and not only is undefeated but unscored on. The Quakers handed Princeton, usually the powerhouse of the league, an 18-0 lacing Saturday.

Nancy Richey Wins

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Nancy Richey of San Angelo easily won the women's championship of the Southwest Tennis Tournament Sunday. She beat Emma Flores of Tempe, Ariz., 6-1, 6-2 in the finals.

GREEN BAY'S STOCK BOOMS IN PRO BALL

By MIKE RATHET

The Green Bay Packers, long dormant in the National Football League, have catapulted to the top of the heap on the shoulder of a hand-me-down quarterback and a shrewd new coach. Suddenly the only stable element in the upset-prone circuit, the Packers won their third straight Sunday, edging the San Francisco 49ers 21-20, in a battle of the league's only undefeated clubs.

The main offensive threat for the Packers—who haven't won a division title since 1944—was Lamar McHan, picked up without fanfare from the Chicago Cardinals on a trial basis. The former Arkansas star clicked on a 21-yard scoring pass to Gary Knefel early in the fourth quarter for the deciding touchdown.

BERT BELL WAS 65

NF League Czar Is Death Victim

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell, 65, whose boundless energy and aggressive spirit won the National Football League to its greatest success, died Sunday of a heart attack. Bell, who had suffered a heart attack in February, collapsed while watching the Pittsburgh Steelers-Philadelphia Eagles game in Franklin Field.

He was rushed to the nearby University of Pennsylvania Hospital where Dr. Paul Schrode pronounced him dead after oxygen and adrenalin failed to revive him. "Oh, no! Oh, no!" cried his daughter, Jane, 17, when told he was dead. Also at his side were his two sons, Bert Jr., 23, and Upton, 21. Both were weeping. All had been at the game.

Mrs. Bell, the former Frances Upton, a one-time musical comedy star when he married in 1934, was informed of her husband's death by Bert Jr. and Upton. The Bells live in suburban Narberth, Pa. Two Catholic priests, the Rev. John Walsh of St. James Roman Catholic Church here, and the Rev. Joseph Marron of the Princeton, N.J., seminary, administered the last rites of absolution and extreme unction.

Officials said Bell never regained consciousness. Bert Jr. said that since the heart attack his father had complained of no serious ailments except a few head aches. Sports figures around the world paid homage to the man who took over the league in 1946 and boosted it from a muddle of confusion and red ink to a well-organized money-making organization.

Bell entered the NFL in 1933 when he and Lud Wray, a former football teammate at the University of Pennsylvania, took over the franchise of the Frankford Yellowjackets. In 1940 Bell bought half interest in the Eagles.

Bell came from a socially prominent family on Philadelphia's Main Line. He attended Episcopal and Delancy academies and Haverford Preparatory School before entering Penn in 1915.

He was an outstanding quarterback on the varsity football teams of 1916 and 1917. At the outbreak of World War I he left school to serve with the Army in France. Upon his return to Penn in 1919 he was elected captain of the football team.

After his graduation in 1920, Bell joined the Penn coaching staff headed by the late John Heisman. He served as backfield coach until 1928.

In 1930 and 1931 Bell served as backfield coach at Temple University. Bell ruled the NFL with an iron hand and had been criticized by some as being domineering and self-opinionated. But under his rule, player salaries doubled, attendance increased 100 per cent and television beamed the popular sport into millions of homes.

Bell weathered many storms. He won out in his fight with the All-America Conference which developed into a five-million-dollar player war. He was victorious in another player battle with Canadian football interests.

Joseph Labrum, his assistant and friend for 43 years, said: "He gave his life to the National Football League."

Pro Grid Men Pay Homage To Their Departed Czar

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League died of a heart attack Sunday, leaving a void the men he served say they never really can fill. The 65-year-old Bell collapsed in the seats of the very stadium in which he started his rise from college player to czar of professional football. He was watching a league game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Pittsburgh Steelers, teams he once owned and coached.

He was pronounced dead 10 minutes later in University Hospital, a stone's throw from Franklin Field where thousands once cheered him as Penn football captain.

Around the league, owners and coaches paid homage to the man whose guidance the league prospered beyond anyone's wildest dreams. Professional football under Bell became respected as a major sport.

George Hallas, a pioneer of the pro game, probably summed up best the feeling of his colleagues when he commented: "Bell was a great leader, a genius in fact."

"All his contributions to pro football will never be forgotten. He brought pro football to its present heights and we will all miss him."

Bell's three children, Bert Jr., 23, Upton, 21, and Jane, 17, were with their father when he died. They attended the game with him. The commissioner also is survived by his widow, the former Frances Upton, a one-time musical comedy star.

Bell suffered a mild heart attack last February. He had been under a physician's care ever since. His travel had been limited, and a great deal of the league work he did at his suburban Narberth home.

The opener features Stefan Redl, Pasaic, N.J., welterweight, in a 10-rounder with Eddie Lynch of New York. Another 10 matches lightweights Chico Rollins of New York and John Melendez of Puerto Rico.

Local Team Leads In Bowling Meet

The Big Spring Clover Bowl team maintained the lead in the first week of the Lamesa tournament. The local contingent posted a team score of 3084. Members of the squad are J. T. McCullough, Harry Heise, Doyle Campbell, J. D. Hawkins and T. K. Price. McCullough and Price combined to lead the doubles competition, with a score of 1255 while Hawkins led singles competition, with a 649 and was first in all events, with 193. The tournament will be concluded next weekend.

Garton Relieved Of Scholarship

COMMERCIE (AP) — Track star Sidney Garton was relieved of his scholarship following a disagreement during a practice session last week. The coach wouldn't give the reason but hinted that the disagreement hinged around training regulations.

Garton, the former state schoolboy sprint champion who went to Texas Christian but transferred to East Texas State last year, could not be reached for comment although he apparently still was in school.

Garton ran the 220 in 19.7—fastest in history—and the 100 in 9.3 last spring. Both were wind-aided times, however.

Brown said: "I don't want to jeopardize the boy's future. Basically he is a fine boy. It just seems to us that in the past he hasn't shown us that he wants to pay the price to be a champion."

Please Yourself

Mary Murphy believes that if you try to please everyone you will end up pleasing no one. She is soon to be seen in "Crime and Punishment, U.S.A." for Allied Artists.

HOLLYWOOD — When I first met Mary Murphy, she was the Cinderella girl of the year, having just won a Paramount contract. A talent scout had been impressed with her beauty as she wrapped a package for him in a Beverly Hills store.

That was seven years ago, and Mary is infinitely more attractive than she was then. I told her so after seeing her in "Crime and Punishment, U.S.A."

"It was dull then," Mary agreed. "It takes time to acquire experience, taste and the individuality that comes with knowing who you are and what you want."

"When I got my contract I was so eager to cooperate," Mary reminisced. "That I took everyone's advice. I went blond, then became a redhead, but I found out the truth of the old saying that if you try to please everyone you end up pleasing no one — not even yourself."

"In the past two years, I've traveled a lot and I think living in foreign countries and getting to know how other people think and live is the best education you can get."

"I've always had a problem relaxing, but when I looked back on how I lived in Hollywood I realized I had left no time for silence. 'Still your mind when you take a steam bath,' I was told in Baden Baden, 'and you'll get much more out of it.'"

"I do this when I go to the gym here. I try to pick a time that is not popular so that I can have my steam bath without chitchat."

Mary is quite thin and when I mentioned this to her she said: "It is not how much you weigh but how it's distributed. I believe in precaution and I know I could get hippy without exercise."

In parting I asked Mary some of the best advice she had ever received.

"There is a fine line between planning for the future and living in the future. I think my most helpful advice was being told, 'Don't think too far ahead and forget to live today,'" she said in reply.

Make Your Coat For This Winter

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There's nothing that gives the home seamstress such a sense of achievement as making her own winter coat. This is a project worth while, and one worthy of a professional.

It's not so hard to do as it seems. The experienced seamstress can turn out a handsome coat if she follows pattern directions for cutting, sewing, lining and interlining, and is careful about fit and finishing details.

Perfect for this fall is a pattern designed by Pierre Cardin, talented young French designer. It is a handsome reefer coat incorporating the top fashion details of the season — giant collar, wrinkle-resistant fabric, important buttons and new shorter sleeve. Local sewing center experts recommended using a new nubby-textured fabric in 50-inch width, with a choice of 16 solid colors or five print designs each in five colors. This is an acetate blend with locked-in color which never fades.

The printed pattern gives detailed directions for each step of construction. Lining and interlining may be cut at the same time and stitched together. For a professional touch, choose thread a shade darker than the coat fabric.

Use the zigzag stitch on your automatic machine or zigzag attachment for reinforcing interfacing in the collar. For the over-edges seam an automatic blind stitch makes a durable, bulkless finish. This is particularly good for straight-grain lengthwise seams that have a tendency to ravel. To reinforce collar interfacing, mark the seam allowance and fold lines of the collar on the interfacing. Then stitch across the back of the neck, filling in the area from the fold line to the neck edge with rows of zigzag stitching, but do not stitch into the seam allowance.

WHAT MAKES BUICK DRIVE SO SMOOTHLY?

Buick's Exclusive Turbine Drive is Jet-Smooth...

No Mechanical Gears Ever Shift!

In a day when so many cars are alike, we believe you should know how basically different and how basically better a Buick is built.

For instance, no car at Buick's price, nor any car at a higher price, offers you so smooth, so dependable, so trouble-free an automatic transmission as Buick's Turbine Drive.

In ordinary automatic transmissions, gears are shifted automatically. But the shift is there! You feel it shift or hear it shift. And with each shift, the engine must adjust to a change in load, the wheels must handle a change in traction.

With today's Buick in "Drive"—the flow of power from toe to wheels is jet-smooth, faster than ever and uninterrupted. The only thing that shifts is the pitch of stator blades in a swift, powerful current of oil... high angle for superb performance in starting or passing... low angle for best economy at cruising speeds.

Turbine Drive Transmission is available in every Buick. If you choose the LeSabre — the lowest-priced Buick — it is a modestly priced option. If your choice is Invicta — the high-performance Buick — or Electra — the finest Buick of all... it is yours as standard equipment. But the only sure way to get this quality Buick feature is to buy a Buick. And this is the year. This is Buick at its all-time best!

Nothing shifts but the pitch of the stator blades in a jet-smooth flow of oil. High angle for quick starts and passing. Low angle for economical cruising.

Turks Impressed By Reason Khrushchev Visited America

By HOUSTON HARTE
ISTANBUL (By Mail) — The newspapers here are giving great prominence to Khrushchev's tour of the United States. Among Americans who are available to discuss world politics here the sentiment is often expressed that a global atomic war is impossible, that the Soviets have a more deadly weapon, industrial production, which will give them the same victory through the cold war.

The Soviets believe, these people say, communism can get results where free enterprise can't in industrializing backward, have-not nations. The Soviets point to their own success in industrializing Russia in a few years. They feel China has made remarkable strides in the 11 years since we turned China over to the "agrarian reformers."

People who deal with the Russians at close range have the feeling Russia is confident it can out-produce us in any backward nation and that production is the way to win most of the uncommitted world. It is a new idea to me and it may be the new weapon of the next decade.

Turkey and Greece are providing a backdrop where the Middle East and Europe join. It is of great importance to us that we have such allies. Our only ally is keeping these two NATO allies and our good friends from getting into any more family squabbles.

Greeks established the Byzantium, the city which afterwards became Constantinople, more than 2000 years before Christ. Greeks were the big financial people in Turkey and all Asia Minor for hundreds of years. Even though the Ottoman Empire ruled Greece for 450 years, the Greeks were the top businessmen of the area.

GREAT OLD HOUSES
In a boat trip up the European side and down the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus, you are impressed with the number of great old houses. They were made almost exclusively of wood. They did not look as though they ever had a coat of paint.

The explanation is that for hundreds of years the Sultans had decreed all houses owned by Greeks should be one color, Armenians another and Jews another. These were the people who controlled the business of Turkey and the Turks wanted even the residences of these nationalities marked.

Even today those Greeks who remain in Turkey and who have joined the Moslem faith and to all purposes are Turks are called "dunme." This means that although they have been Turks for several hundred years, the Turks still do not consider them Turks, but a variety of Greeks.

In those Crimean cities where the Turko-Greeks made up more than 50 per cent of the population, there was little support for Ataturk against the Sultan. In Ataturk's investigation, some Greeks testified one of the reasons was the people of these communities were Greeks. Ataturk took them at their word. He said, "O.K. you are Greeks, so we will just send you back to Greece."

In 1923-25, there was an "exchange" of populations between Greece and Turkey. The political exiles from the Sultans came back to Turkey and the Greeks were sent home. But the Greeks were not allowed to take their property with them. The assets of the Greeks were used to pay the price of the exchange and help the Turks who came home.

TURKS HANDICAPPED
Recently the newspapers had a story here about the richest man in Turkey. It was found this man had net assets of not more than two million dollars. This is no fortune to be sneezed at, but it gives you a pretty good picture of the financial condition of the Turks. Literally no one in the country has any real money. This is the great handicap which prevents the Turkish economy from becoming or remaining self-sustaining.

LONG TERMS SCARCE

In Turkey there is little long term money. The government has no citizens with surplus money who will buy government bonds. No other country will buy them. The people who do not understand the workings of government finance do not distinguish the difference between their situation and that of Western nations with credit. If a conservative government in power will not provide these facilities, the people will elect a liberal government which will promise to give them what they feel they deserve and which they want. This is what keeps our men on the ground trying to keep the best qualified people in power even if we have to do some things we know are not sound.

The Bosphorus is a little over a half mile wide in downtown Istanbul. Although it has been fought over down through the ages it never has been bridged. It is deep — 68 to 90 feet. A bridge would cost millions. The Asiatic side is sparsely populated.

HILLS BEAUTIFUL
There are beautiful rolling hills that would make a series of the most beautiful subdivisions in the world. Every dwelling or apartment house would have a magnificent view of this great waterway from any of the thousands of acres of land that face the 14 miles of Bosphorus. But Turkey does not have the money to build the bridge and the people who would use it do not have the money to pay a toll which would repay the cost.

The people of Istanbul want the bridge and a party which would run on building it would have a real campaign advantage. Our government has said we can't put up the money. But what happens if the government of Turkey says we are a sovereign power and we make our own decisions. You say the Turks could not to

Fair Attendance

DALLAS (AP)—State Fair of Texas attendance surged to 484,892 for its first three days Sunday when 186,740 passed through the gates.

At the same time last year, only 426,178 persons had seen the big fair, often billed as the nation's largest, but the fair opened a day earlier this year. For the 16-day run in 1958, attendance at the big exposition reached 2,737,734.

GET BACK ON SCHEDULE

Millions of people have found a safe way to correct constipation caused by lack of bulk. It's the Kellogg's All-Bran way—and it works even when harsh laxative drugs have failed.

You see, laxative drugs contain no bulk and can do nothing to correct the cause of the trouble. Kellogg's All-Bran, on the other hand, is a whole bran cereal and bran is nature's best bulk-forming food. A half-cup serving of Kellogg's All-Bran with milk gives you all the good food bulk needed for consistent daily regularity.

Try eating good-tasting Kellogg's All-Bran for 10 days and see if it doesn't work for you, too.

Romance Is Blamed In Knife Death Of Star

BRACKETTVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Investigators today blamed a tottering romance for the knife slaying of a personable young actress here on location to make a movie.

Blonde LaJean Ethridge, 26, from Hollywood, Calif., died with a hunting knife in her heart early Sunday. She had just packed to leave a house she shared with five men in her summer theater troupe.

Witnesses told County Atty. John J. Tobin she gasped "I love you" to the man who stabbed her before collapsing on the living room floor.

Sheriff John Sheedy jailed Chester Harvey Smith, 32, a slight 140-pounder from Hollywood on a murder charge. He was working as an extra in the film "The Alamo."

"She was getting a better part in the movie," Sheedy said, "and she was moving out on Smith and the others. He thought he was going to lose her."

Smith told questioners his memory was blank for several hours before and after the slaying, Sheedy said.

Miss Ethridge, known professionally as LaJean Guye, and her company rented a house at Spoford, nine miles south of here, after landing jobs in the film being produced by actor John Wayne.

A spokesman said Wayne liked the work of Miss Ethridge and cast her as the wife of one of the soldiers of Gen. Sam Houston, leader in the war which liberated Texas from Mexico.

Sheedy and Tobin said that the actress, accompanied by a waitress from a Brackettville cafe and two other men, went to her quarters about 2 a.m. Most of the other tenants were asleep. Several in the group had been drinking but none appeared to be drunk.

Smith angrily declared she could not leave. As she emerged from her bedroom, he met her in a hallway. Her companions said Smith, apparently unarmed, suddenly drew Miss Ethridge toward him and thrust a five-inch hunting knife into her chest.

It was then that she stared fixedly at Smith and cried, "I love you." She died a few minutes later. Smith was sitting on the floor beside the body when the sheriff arrived 15 minutes later.

Justice of the Peace Albert Postell ordered Smith held without bond pending grand jury action on the murder charge.

The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory. (Psalms 97:6.)

Post Poll Shock From 1948

In this week's Newsweek magazine Prof. Raymond Moley, one of our own (evening edition) columnists, who was visiting in England to observe the election, deplores the use of public opinion polls as calculated to create overconfidence among party leaders, pro or con.

Assorted polls in Britain indicated sentiment running strongly for the Conservatives right up to the final rounds, and the Professor viewed this with alarm as likely to create overconfidence in the Tory leaders and to lull the Tory voters into staying away from the election booths.

(The Professor, one of FDR's original brain-trusters, has leaned just as far the other way for 25 years.)

We take no great stock in polls ourselves, but it so happens that they err in the direction of over-caution in the British Parliamentary elections this week. Actually, there was a big turnout of voters and the Tories won an overwhelming victory — far bigger than the most optimistic party-leaders and poll-takers expected.

Perhaps Dr. Moley, like a good many others, still suffers from the shock of '48 when the polls showed Dewey so far out front that the "little man" from Missouri hadn't the ghost of a chance. The polls, GOP leaders have been saying ever since, resulted in over-confidence in the Dewey ranks and a stay-at-home attitude among normally normal voters. It was a legitimate one. It just happened to be a Democratic year. Just as this happened to be a Conservative year in Britain.

So, the polls were right this year in Britain—as right as they had been wrong in this country in 1948 and in 1936, when the late Literary Digest's famous telephone poll showed Alired M. Landon a shoo-in winner.

Thus the record of the polls as accurate assayers of real public sentiment is so-so. If it is ever established that polls actually influence political leaders and voters to any measurable extent, we'd say the time has come to place them under some sort of public regulation in the interest of justice and fair play; for obviously the polls would have become a powerful influence on public sentiment, in position to manipulate it in either direction, pro or con, and therefore a potentially evil mechanism in the conduct of elections in a democracy.

As it stands we doubt if the polls are capable of molding public opinion, and there is no indisputable proof that they even reflect it beyond peradventure of a doubt.

They're Giveaway, After All

All this bullabalo over "fixed" quiz shows on TV started the rusty wheels in our head to rolling and we thought, What an opportunity this is for us to cash in on the deal—in a perfectly legitimate, aboveboard way, of course.

Basically, all quiz shows are giveaway shows, and based ostensibly on acts of celebration. There are no giveaways in what we have in mind, so we don't expect our system to attract a great deal of attention.

It consists in asking your friends simple questions which sound easy but aren't, such as:

Close your eyes and guess as near as you can when five seconds have elapsed before opening them.

How long would you say a four-inch hand tie is in inches, like the one you have on? Or a bow tie, for that matter?

How many cups of coffee of potable quality should one get from a pound? (No, wait; let us answer that: no more than 55.)

It is our belief that 99 persons out of 100 would underestimate the length of ties and the passage of 60 seconds, and grossly overestimate the number of cups of coffee of good quality that a pound would yield. (With a good grade of coffee, the ideal is from 46 to 55 cups; with a poor grade the ratio would go down, down, down. With the poorest grade, in our opinion, it should go into the slop bucket.)

The possibility of asking and answering questions is limitless where two or more persons are gathered together, and if the networks—having ridden a good horse to death—are forced to abandon that field of "entertainment," people will have to look to themselves to pose the questions and provide the answers.

Government Issues On Private Market

WASHINGTON — Few people are noticing it — largely because it's difficult for them to get the facts — but the taxpayers of America are suffering a huge financial loss. More of their tax money will have to be used as a result of the failure of the politicians of the Democratic party in the last session of Congress to permit the government to sell its long-term bonds at a higher rate of interest than 4 1/2 per cent.

This is one of the catastrophes of the century. Nothing like it has ever been perpetrated before by the politicians of either party. It's a deliberate interference with the financing of the national debt by the government.

The Democratic National Committee, anticipating the criticism that is bound to ensue, has issued through its advisory committee a statement declaring that the latest offering by the treasury of 4-year-10-month notes at an interest rate of 5 per cent is a "bankers' bonus" and that the notes would be bought largely by bankers. But it turns out that the general public and business outside of financial houses came flocking to the treasury to buy the new issue. The non-institutional buyers gobbled up the bonds and asked for more. They recognized that it was a good purchase, and lots of the buyers sold other things in order to obtain the money to get in on a good investment.

But the tragic fact is that the treasury could have sold a 10-year bond for a 4 1/2 per cent interest rate if the Congress had only authorized the treasury to use its own discretion in meeting the market.

What the politicians have done by their blundering interference with the treasury is to compel the government to concentrate on issues of securities that are to mature in less than five years. This means that the government will have to pay higher and higher rates to refund or refinance in the next 12 months some $76 billion of short-term securities outstanding.

Certainly this is going to cost the government more and more. The Democratic party's advisory committee is right in claiming that this will in turn influence other interest rates on house purchases and other long-term buying. But this wouldn't have happened if the government had been allowed to finance its debt in a natural way.

Actually, the treasury is being forced to interfere in the realm of borrowing where consumers and small businessmen need credit. The government thus absorbs short-term funds that otherwise would be available to private borrowers at lower interest rates.

The handling of the treasury's problem of refunding indebtedness as it matures is a stupendous task and always requires disinterested and non-political persons to determine the prices at which securities will be offered so as to attract buyers. But their hands are tied now.

The moment the politicians step in, the risks can be great and the consequences to the credit structure can be serious.

If the Congress had not yielded to the unsound doctrines of a few of its low-interest zealots, who thought they saw an advantageous issue politically in putting a ceiling on interest rates, the treasury could gradually have reduced the amount of short-term debt that has been growing in quantity in recent years and could have put much of the borrowing on a longer and longer-term basis. This would have stabilized the entire structure of interest rates in the United States and held inflation in check. It would have strengthened the dollar in world markets.

The crisis in interest rates is not confined to America. The Canadian government is selling securities at 6 per cent, and recently England had a 7 per cent borrowing rate at the banks. With such conditions internationally, it was a grave mistake for Congress to put the treasury of the United States in a straitjacket.

There has been some talk about a special session of Congress being called to remedy the mistake made by the Democrats in refusing to accede to President Eisenhower's request for the power to set the interest above 4 1/2 per cent on long-term bonds. But certainly in January the American people will have a clearer idea of the damage that has been done and will then demand action.

It will do the Democrats no good to cry out that the administration is boosting interest rates to help the bankers. For the impression building up now is that the Democrats are irresponsible and cannot be entrusted with the reins of government in 1961. The bungling of the interest-rate problem has done more to hurt the prestige of the Democratic party than being charged with excessive spending and an unbalanced budget. For the voters don't like to see politicians imposing their will without regard to what interest rate would or would not attract the average man to buy government bonds.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — City officials were surprised when Dalton Carroll called and said he had found a sidewalk. There wasn't one where he said it was, the city officials objected. Then they started digging, and under a thin layer of dirt and a healthy growth of weeds, they found it. Crews went to work to clear it for use again.

Red China Admits Kremlin Boss

Moscow, say the Red Chinese loudly and clearly, is the big boss. Peiping's Communist party has gone out of its way to emphasize that the Soviet Union is the undisputed leader of the world Communist movement.

The remarkable performance more than justifies the expressed conviction of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter that the Kremlin is responsible for the actions of China and the whole Red bloc. It underscores Undersecretary Douglas Dillon's contention that the U.S.S.R. should be held responsible for any Peiping aggression.

If there are differences on the ideological or the strategy level between Moscow and Peiping, the Chinese party seems to have buried them in an extravagant bow to Moscow's unquestioned leadership.

As if to dispel any notions among the world's Communists of a Kremlin-Peiping rift, the most important Red Chinese newspaper, the Peiping People's Daily, has just published an editorial important enough to be churused by the whole country's provincial press. Its theme also was broadcast in foreign languages.

It was not a long editorial. But no less than eight times it stated unequivocally that in matters of the world revolution and the strategy of the revolution, the Soviet leaders were the bosses.

Here are pertinent excerpts: "China has become a component of the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union."

"The entire Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, has grown in strength and closer unity with each passing day."

"In the past 10 years, the great unity of the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, has made tremendous contributions to safeguarding world peace and in socialist (by which the Reds mean Communist) undertakings."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's recent disarmament proposal "clearly illustrates that the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, is the strong pillar of peace."

"The Chinese people have always regarded it as their sacred international duty continuously to consolidate and develop the solidarity of the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union."

"Today the Socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union, is more united and stronger than ever."

Red China will "promote the unity of the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union."

And the last line of the editorial: Long live the great solidarity of Socialist countries headed by the Soviet Union!"

The Chinese Communists hardly could make their meaning clearer.

No Wonder We're Overweight

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

No wonder so many Americans have to fight a weight problem... The average individual in this country eats 1,380 pounds of food a year.

Voltaire was one of the greatest coffee drinkers of all time. At the age of 80 he drank up to 50 cups daily.

What countries lead the world in earthquakes? Japan and Italy hold this reluctant honor.

Signs of the times: This one was on a garage door: "Invite us to your next blowout."

Labor in the home: A study by the Bon Ami Institute disclosed that you expend more energy mopping a floor than you do in bricklaying... Something housewives have been claiming all along.

Our quotable notables: "At the wedding a bride puts her hand out for the ring," says actor Walter Slezak, "and she keeps her hand out from then on!"

Friends of the cow: Children who aren't allowed soft drinks consume about 20 per cent more milk daily.

They're branding chickens now as well as cattle in Canada. In Ontario big chicken farmers, plagued by wholesale thefts, foiled the fowl rustlers by mass tattooing of identifying marks on their birds.

How many children would you like to have?...The ideal family, in the opinion of most American women, is one with three kids.

Animal crackers: "A man has to have a bit of fox in him," says comic George DeWitt, "to be a successful wolf."

Two million musical amateurs play brass instruments in America...And most of them seem to live in our neighborhood.

Young drivers often complain their auto liability insurance costs are too high. Here's the big reason: Car drivers under 25 are involved in 27 per cent of all fatal accidents and more than 20 per cent of all nonfatal crashes.

Grass widows make hay pretty fast. The average divorcee in the United States now remarries within three years.

Real estate news: "I have houses in California, but do not regard them as my homes," says film star Cary Grant. "My home is inside me."

It was Abraham Lincoln who gave this eternally timely advice: "We must not promise what we ought not, lest we be called upon to perform what we cannot."

Untapped Sources For Taxes

I disagree with those people who insist that the government bodies have exhausted sources for taxation.

True, the poor, old property owner takes a beating every time some tax body reasons it needs a new levy to finance a whaling vessel or a Cadillac for some visiting dignitary but think what the tax experts are overlooking. Why not tax:

—Left turns motorists make.
—Flower growers for each bud that blooms in the spring.
—Pet fanciers for each word their parrots learn.
—Neon signs that are partially on the blink.

—Owners of dogs who bark every night. A meter around each one's neck could meter each bark.
—Sports enthusiasts who utter complaints about (1) "dumb plays," (2) "stupid coaches" and (3) "losing seasons."
—Automotive battery water.

—Telephone conversations that run over 30 seconds.

—Hard luck stories.

—Extra hole matches in golf tournaments.

—The holes in doughnuts.

—Pencils that have to be resharpened.

—Roosters that signal the approaching sunrise by crowing.

—Roosters that can't lay eggs.

—Air in automobile tires.

—Blackened eyes.

—Freckles.

—Peanut hulls. Peanuts, of course, are already taxed but someone might have overlooked the shells.

—Wrong answers in school classes.

—Right answers in school classes.

—High blood pressure.

—Gopher holes.

—Practical jokers.

The taxing agencies simply haven't put on their thinking caps and worked on the problem. The revenue is there, if they'll work on it.

Cheers! Alabama Meets The Challenge

For those Americans like myself who are vitally interested in improving the quality and depth of American secondary school education, there is splendid news and a ray of hope out of Alabama.

The University of Alabama has just concluded a two-day "Clinic for High School Cheerleaders," a coeducational clinic attended by 1,600 intellectually ambitious, hard-working high school students from all corners of the state.

When the university first initiated this clinic six years ago, only 250 students attended. However, such is the intellectual ferment generated in the interim by the nation's admitted educational crisis, that more than six times as many eager-beaver students attended the 1959 conference.

The worthy purpose of the clinic, sponsored by the Alabama High School Athletic Assn., is "to show the youngsters the art of crowd control, with a positive approach to cheering."

Without doubt, cheer-leading is a science, and it is in the realm of science that the honest critics of American secondary education have pointed the finger of despair. So it is gratifying to learn that science departments, at least in Alabama, are being fortified by the inclusion of cheer-leading.

As instructors in this new science, the university's own cheerleaders, together with some of the outstanding high school cheerleaders from other parts of the country, have been drafted. Such a program certainly faces up to the plea of the nation for beefing up science curriculum and instruction.

How are "outstanding high school cheerleaders" spotted in the first place? Well, I have a hunch that a new burden has been placed on the shoulders of the University of Alabama's scouts who check high school football material for players worthy of athletic scholarships or direct aid from some generous old grad.

Scouts are probably told to keep their eyes open for the best scientific material available for training in "The Power of Positive Cheering." And who pays for the two-day cram course in "the art of crowd control?" I wonder — the parents? The high school? Or some home-town civic organization that also gives a helping hand in the delicate financing of the local football team?

One thing is certain, and it should be a great consolation to the U.S.A. Russia may annually be turning out two or three times as many excellently trained scientists and technicians in the race against time as we are. But, by golly, she isn't producing any cheerleaders "with a positive approach" to the job! No, sir-ee; we're leading the world in this field.

We also lead and lap the field in drum-majoring, or the scholastically sanctified strip-tease, which has made burlesque as obsolete as vaudeville. Who is going to pay to see a burlesque when the autumnal price of a football ticket entitles the holder to witness not only the power of positive cheering but the delights of educational flesh-peddling?

We need better education in this country and fewer trills, such as foreign languages and mathematics. Let us have less of such "sand box" activities as instruction in the mother tongue and in stuff as history. Come on, all together now:

"SISS — BOOM — AH-H-H! Erudition! Erudition! Ha, Ha, Ha!"

The Ghostly And The Unghostly

If you happen to be one of the 230,000 stockholders of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., you're in a strange never-never land of law. You've become a court-created ghost.

The opinion of U. S. District Judge Walter H. LaBuy in the du Pont-General Motors anti-trust case makes you the "pass-through" owner of 1.38 shares of GM for each of your shares of du Pont.

But du Pont continues to hold your stock! And du Pont will receive the GM dividends and decide how much of these dividends are to be paid out to you.

However, du Pont can't vote GM stock. The proxy "passes through" to you and the unghostly you signs the proxy.

This legal ghosthood is a product of Judge LaBuy's opinion prohibiting du Pont from exercising influence over GM, despite its ownership of 63,000,000 GM shares, worth $3,500,000,000 at today's prices.

Judge LaBuy sought to safeguard du Pont shareholders from harsh tax consequences. If du Pont distributed its GM stock as a dividend, stockholders would have to pay income taxes on it—as much as 91 per cent if they were in the top-most tax bracket. Many of them would be forced to sell their GM stock dividend to realize cash, which would tend to create a long-term bear market in GM stock.

The Department of Justice also was aware of this tax hardship, and urged Congress to exempt stock distributed under an anti-trust ruling from income taxes. A bill has been introduced by Sen. J. Allen Frear (D-Del) to this purpose.

To cushion the tax impact, the Department of Justice proposed that du Pont distribute its GM stock in lieu of cash dividends over 10 years. This, however, would create separate problems. What would du Pont stockholders use for money to pay taxes or to live on? And what would the du Pont corporation do with the cash it didn't distribute—become an investment trust?

The problem was complicated by interlocking relations of Christiana Securities Co. and Delaware Realty & Investment Corp., two du Pont holding companies. Christiana owns 12,199,200 shares of du Pont and 535,000 shares of General Motors; Delaware owns 1,217,920 shares of du Pont and 40,000 shares of Christiana. The Justice Department recommended that these shares be gradually sold over the years also.

Judge LaBuy refused to accept Justice Department recommendations to order du Pont to dispose of its GM stock. Instead, he set forth rules to insulate GM from du Pont. As a corporation, du Pont mustn't vote GM stock. Neither may an officer or director of du Pont, Christiana, or Delaware vote GM stock even though, through personal ownership of du Pont, he derives "pass-through" voting rights. Du Pont and GM must not have any preferential trade arrangements or joint ventures.

The judge's intent is to prevent an association of du Pont and GM which could be construed in any way as violative of the anti-trust laws.

But the effect is to impose on du Pont shareholders a neither-here-nor-there stock ownership. They can't sell their stock. They can't vote it directly. And they can't rely on the du Pont corporation, as heretofore, to guard their rights in GM.

Judge LaBuy is aware of the artificial status of du Pont-owner GM stock. He will reconsider the judgment "in the event of an administrative or legislative change in tax policy which would significantly alter the consequence of a distribution of General Motors stock owned by du Pont."

Meanwhile, it seems to me that Congress should grant tax relief so that Judge LaBuy can change fiction into reality.

To freeze 63,000,000 GM shares in a never-never land is impractical and inequitable. To expect du Pont officers and directors (so long as they are possessors of 23 per cent of GM shares) to be indifferent to the policies and practices of GM is unrealistic and contrary to good sense. Du Pont officials are trustees, regardless of a court opinion. They ought to be deeply interested in GM affairs; about one third of du Pont income comes from General Motors dividends.

Moreover, as long as this fiction prevails, business relations between GM and du Pont are bound to be strained and unreal.

You can't remove a person's vest by keeping your hands in his pockets.

IN TEXAS

By CURTIS BISHOP

On this day in 1873 a talkative salesman of fencing material satisfied dubious Texas cattlemen that barbed wire barricades would contain their "ornest" longhorn cattle.

He was John Warne Gates, and he enclosed the Alamo Plaza in San Antonio with his new "devil wire." Several Texas cattlemen turned longhorns into the makeshift corral and the barbed enclosure resisted their efforts to break free.

From then on the future of barbed wire was assured.

This enterprising salesman went on to bigger things. He became famous as "Bet-a-Million" Gates, and stories of his bold wagers have become part of the Texas legend. On the more substantial side, he invested some of his barbed wire profits in two other "gamblers"—the Spindletop Oil Field at Beaumont and the Texas Company.

He was born in Illinois in 1855. Barbed wire was invented in the Middle West and Gates became its most famous salesman at the tender age of 18. Later he organized three wire manufacturing firms of his own, then participated in the formation of the Republic Steel and Iron Company.

He was instrumental in developing the city of Port Arthur. He died in Paris, France, on August 9, 1911.

His most famous bet was supposedly with Isaac L. Ellwood, on the progress of two big raindrops down a train window. Some sources claim the wager a million dollars, others say a thousand.

Lyndon Reports Economy Pleas

DALLAS (AP)—The taxpayer must get his dollar's worth, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said Sunday in his weekly broadcast over Texas radio stations.

The Senate Majority Leader read letters sent to him after he had sent out questionnaires. He said a number of the letters stressed economy.

"The Congress cut where it had control—in appropriations—about $1,800,000,000 from the President's budget. In so-called 'back-door' spending, we slashed another 800 million dollars," Johnson said.

"The majority of the people voiced about the same idea. They said it's necessary to spend more money to assure the security of our nation—then we're ready to spend it. But they want to know the taxpayer is getting his dollar's worth from every dollar that's spent. That's not only right and proper, it's essential."

In answer to one letter written him, Johnson said he believed the test of time will determine "pretty quickly" whether the labor bill passed in the last session of Congress is "still inadequate" as his correspondent stated.

"If this bill is inadequate or unjust or unfair, there will be opportunity to strengthen or correct it," he said.
