11 Men Disappear As Ship Capsizes

Wreckage Is Found; Search Made For Crew

HOUSTON (AP)—A ship loaded with obsolete but still dangerous military ammunition overturned in the Gulf of Mexico. Searchers looking in vain for the 11 men aboard Saturday found only a sea gull perched on the exposed bottom of the craft.

The ship "looked like a giant coffin afloat in the water," Houston Chronicle reporter Chester Rogers said.

A tugboat crewman climbed aboard the vessel and banged on the hull. He got no answer.

A plane found the bulk of the National Pride late Friday, but not until Saturday was it identified as the Houston-based craft.

Planes and ships which hurried to the area found debris scattered over a two-mile area.

But searchers found no sign of the two 30-man life rafts carried by the 125-foot motor ship.

Robert Lober, Houston representative of the National Boat Corp. of Houston which operated the ship, and said coast guardsmen found no evidence of an explosion.

MISSING NAMED

He identified those aboard the ship as:

Capt. Raymond Nowell, 50, Houston; Chief Mate J. A. Falch, Houston; Second Mate P. H. Brown, New Orleans; Chief Engineer J. J. Ocranman, Orange; and crewmen T. F. Burnett, Galveston; Walter Zane, Texas City; H. C. Moon, Houston; W. E. Masson, Houston; J. M. Gonzales, Galveston; Ray Coward, Corpus Christi; and an Army private first class who acted as government inspector. His name was withheld by Lober.

The ship became overdue Thursday and Lober asked for a Coast Guard search.

A plane found the bulk of the flatbottomed ship near dusk Friday. It was 61 miles south-southwest of Galveston.

The ship had been used since September under Army contract to dump obsolete ammunition into the Gulf. It carried 400 tons of 75 and 155 millimeter shells on its disastrous trip.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

Cosden, always a source of good news here, generated good tidings on a couple of scores last week. First of all Cosden directors turned down a merger offer from W. R. Grace & Co., and while the Grace people are certainly a fine group, folks here about have developed a sort of fierce pride in Cosden's independent progressiveness. On the second front, Cosden announced that gross revenues were up somewhat and net profits, reflecting sound management, climbed 32 per cent for the first half of the year.

Although the United Fund was slowing in the downstretch, optimism prevailed here Saturday that an United Fund Day on Wednesday will raise $6,000 and see the campaign over the top. Talk it up so everyone who hasn't given will do so before 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The city fathers last week settled on Marcy Drive as the name for FM 700 as a south loop from U. S. 80 east to west. From the park road intersection to the U. S. 80-east junction, the route is roughly that Capt. R. B. Marcy followed on Oct. 4, 1849 in leaving the spring he "discovered" the day before.

Christmas is creeping up incredibly fast. With passage of Thanksgiving, the downtown area is rapidly taking on a festive appearance. Monday the Christmas shopping season will be in high gear.

All the Fred Waring show needed here Thursday evening was more seats in the auditorium. Some few left understandably unhappy because it was SRO, but those who stayed even though they stood appeared to enjoy it as much as others. Bro. Waring is still a master showman, an obliging fellow and manages to keep a most refreshing troupe.

An announcement is due from the Texas Animal Commission on Tuesday confirming the establishment of a brucellosis control district (Type II) for Howard County. (See THE WEEK, Pg. 4A, Col. 4)

WILL YOU HELP?

Getting ready for Christmas? Most of us are, but a great many others can't do much planning. These are the people in destitute homes, where the head of the family is ill or has left youngsters to fend for themselves; where a working mother cannot provide extras for a brood of children; where sickness and poverty always prevail.

Wouldn't you want to remember these folks?

You can, through the traditional CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND. It officially opens today (already there have been some generous gifts to give the Fund a start of $115) and your gift will be received at The Herald from now until Christmas. It can be 25c, it can be $100; any help will be appreciated.

The CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND functions through the newspaper as a collector, and through the city's firemen, who repair toys, provide food baskets, and see to it that needy and worthy people are helped at Christmas. There is not one penny spent on administrative cost; the money goes to buy items for toy repair; to buy fruits and candies, and more substantial food; and—importantly—it is used through the year by the Health Nurse to provide medicine and necessities in cases of immediate and dire emergency. This is Christmas Cheer the year around.

The CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND operates right from the heart of Big Spring. Just make your check to CHRISTMAS CHEER FUND, and hand it to any fireman or send it to The Herald. Every gift will be gratefully acknowledged.

6 FROM 6 TO 6

Last Big Push Of UF Drive Monday

Six from six to six. This will be the rally cry Wednesday when Big Spring and Howard County observe United Fund Day—the final wrap-up of the 12-agency combined fund drive.

The United Fund needs about $6,000 in order to meet its goal and its commitments to the agencies depending on it for financial support.

All steps will be pulled in an effort to raise that amount between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Radio and television stations, the Herald and other media of communications are joining hands to inform the public of this all-out effort to end the campaign successfully.

And end it will promptly at 6 p.m. Horace Garrett, campaign chairman, said Saturday that when that hour is reached Wednesday, all formal solicitation will end.

D. M. McKinney is chairman of the whirlwind project, and headquarters for this special day will be the Chamber of Commerce.

Radio and TV stations will keep the public posted on minute-by-minute progress of the final appeal. At least one station plans to operate a remote line from the Chamber offices during the day, and another will operate a mobile unit.

George Creagh, president, and Daryl Hohertz, vice president, said that Jaycees again this year would have two cars with drivers standing by at all hours during the day.

"We want especially to appeal to people who will pledge a dollar or more a month, as well as to any who can give any amount great or small. This is our last chance to hold up our heads by doing the job simply by opening our hearts," he said.

Art Linkletter To Appear Here As YMCA Dinner Guest

Art Linkletter, whose television programs and books have made him a familiar national figure, will be the annual banquet speaker for the Big Spring YMCA.

Date of his appearance here will be Jan. 23, James M. (Bobo) Hardy, general secretary of the YMCA, said Saturday.

"I am always happy to do what I can for the YMCA," said Linkletter in a letter to Hardy. He does a lot more than give lip service, for he has served as a director in the Los Angeles, Calif. YMCA for a number of years. He has been closely identified with the national council's public information efforts and has been featured in a number of posters and special promotions of the YMCA. He makes it a point to visit his own YMCA at least once a week and utilizes its facilities to help maintain the physical condition needed to meet his gruelling schedule.

New Type Of Missile Gets AF Blessing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force is moving into high gear on development of the Minuteman, a solid fuel intercontinental missile with a range of close to 6,000 miles.

The Air Force calls the Minuteman a second generation missile. It means the Minuteman will be a great improvement on the first generation of intercontinental ballistic missiles. These are the liquid-fueled Titan and Atlas just now becoming operational.

Major production and assembly of the new missile will be done in Utah, the Air Force said Friday. It said the Thiokol Chemical Corp. will produce the powerful first stage booster of the three-stage rocket there. The Minuteman could be ready to use by 1963.

SECRET DATA

Many details of the Minuteman are secret, but this much is known:

It will be smaller than the Titan and Atlas, small enough in fact to cart around on a railroad car.

It won't require the agonizing count-down procedure needed to fire a liquid fuel rocket. It will be ready to go anytime, almost as fast as a kid's 4th of July sky-rocket.

It will cost plenty but it will be cheaper in the long run than present liquid rockets. Pentagon sources indicate each Minuteman will cost about 1 1/2 million dollars to produce.

It will not require a huge, complicated base such as is being readied for the Titan in California. The Minuteman can be stacked in a relatively cheap underground silo, or carried around from place to place.

It will keep. It can be stored, ready for instant use, for a year or more, with its fuel already molded into place. It should be more reliable.

This, perhaps, is the solid fuel missile's greatest advantage over the cumbersome, temperamental liquid rockets. The liquid fuels are dangerous to handle, and the rocket cannot be fueled until just before it is ready to fire. And the process is slow and painful, with many delays and setbacks.

The liquid rockets also are tremendously complicated. To get the liquid fuel to the right place at the right time, they are filled with hundreds of delicate turbines, pumps and electronic equipment. Any one of these gets out of whack, the rocket fizzles or explodes.

OWNER OF DOG SOUGHT AFTER CHILD BITTEN

Can anyone help Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Land, 605 E. 18th, locate a dog which bit their daughter, Jolene, 7, last week?

The dog was described as being relatively small, light brown hair (fairly long), un-bobbed tail. It appeared to resemble a cocker in some respects.

Jolene was bitten in the face by the dog near the College Heights school on Monday. Efforts to locate the dog for observation have been unsuccessful so far.

If anyone in the neighborhood has such a dog, or if they have a dog fitting the general description and which may have followed a child to College Heights, the Lands would deeply appreciate a call at AM 4-8710. All they want is to ask the owner to keep the dog up for a few days' observation until the possibility of rabies in it is past.

Plane Crashes On House Roof

COMPTON, Calif. (AP)—A small plane dived into the roof of a home occupied by a sleeping family of six last night, then burst into a metal skeleton.

The pilot, flying instructor Norman Thomas of nearby Torrance, was killed. But none of the occupants of the home was injured.

The pilot's body was found in the wreckage and investigators were searching the neighborhood for a second body. They thought Thomas might have had a passenger who jumped or fell out. A witness said he saw something fall from the plane before it crashed.

The plane stuck in the roof almost vertically, but penetrated only a few feet. The covering on the fuselage was burned away entirely, leaving a tower of metal framework visible above the roof. Firemen extinguished the flames quickly, but the home was heavily damaged.

Yuletide Wish Of Boy In Germany Fulfilled

By SAM BLACKBURN

Holger Bernitt, who is just 9 and who lives in a village on the outskirts of Munich, Germany may have some doubts now about the realism of St. Nicholas. If all goes well, those doubts will be completely resolved come Christmas this year.

Of course, in his case, St. Nicholas is a different sort of character from the one he has been accustomed to accept as Father Christmas. His Christmas benefactors are a West Texas sheriff and a co-owner of a Big Spring men's clothing store.

Their names are Miller Harris, sheriff, and Sam Mellinger, merchant. They have never been in Munich and until two days ago, they never heard of Holger. And Holger, certainly, never heard of them.

Holger, you see, is a typical boy, despite the fact that he lives in faraway Europe. He has seen movies and read stories of the wild west. To his young mind, the wildest part of the wild west is Texas. His hero is Buffalo Bill and he dreams of the glamour of being a cowboy.

For months on end, Holger has been pining for only one Christmas present—a real, honest-to-goodness cowboy hat. And over in Munich, his mother Frau Hilde Bernitt, has done everything that she could to make that dream come true. She has been to all the shops in Munich and when she asks for a cowboy hat the clerks just shake their heads.

The calendar shows that Christmas is very near and it seemed more and more likely that Holger's one big wish could not be realized.

Desperate causes require drastic ventures.

A few days ago, Frau Bernitt unfolded the map she has of the United States. She scanned it state by state until she found that area which was marked Texas.

She took pencil and closing her eyes thrust it point down on the map. Then she opened her eyes, she saw that the pencil had marked a town in the extreme west part of Texas—a town called Big Spring.

She wrote a letter. When it was finished, she addressed it to the "sheriff of Big Spring."

Harris got the letter last week. Since it was written in German, Harris was unable to read it. He hunted up Dr. Otto Wolf, who speaks German. He translated the letter.

Frau Bernitt explained that she was embarrassed to write as she impelled her to do so. She regretted she wrote in German but she had no English.

"DON'T BE MAD"

"I pray that you will excuse my writing to you under these circumstances," she wrote, "but this is the only way for me to help my boy to get his greatest Christmas wish. . . . Dear unknown sheriff of Big Spring maybe you can make this impossible looking wish a reality for my little boy. I hope you won't be mad for the way I'm writing to you. All my thanks and with a little hope."

Harris was not mad. Far from it. He consulted with Mellinger. The letter related that Holger wore a 56 centimeter hat. That was a puzzler until a hat salesman dropped in and explained that a 56 centimeter hat was the same as an American size 7.

The hat selected is a gen-u-wine for-sure cowboy hat. And it will be on its way with a letter from the sheriff and a special deputy sheriff's commission by the time this gets into print. With good luck it should reach Munich just about Christmas.

And the sheriff's letter added one request:

Would Holger have his picture made wearing the hat and send a print back to Sheriff Harris?

The way things look now, there is going to be a very proud and happy young German lad strutting the streets of Munich this Christmas. And the eyes of envious kids and pleased adults will be gazing at him and wondering where on earth he got that real cowboy hat.

Missing Boy's Skeleton Found; Murder Is Ruled

SOUTH ROXANA, Ill. (AP)—The broken skeleton of 11-year-old Paul Dean White, South Roxana boy who had been missing since July 31, was found in a bleak windswept cornfield by three rabbit hunters Saturday.

Identification was made from the clothing—blue dungarees, white socks and brown shoes with red rubber soles.

The boy's father, Athan E. White, was shown one of the shoes and said he was positive it was his son's. Mrs. White fainted when she saw the shoe.

Madison County Deputy Sheriff Eugene Kitzmiller said, "There is no doubt he was murdered."

Paul had been missing since his bicycle was found in a park in South Roxana the night of July 31. He was the object of a manhunt and the Roxana Dad's Club put up a $1,000 reward for information about his mysterious disappearance.

The skeleton was found about 200 yards east of Illinois Highway 111 near a big concrete viaduct about 1 1/2 miles south of South Roxana which is 27 miles north-east of St. Louis.

The skeleton was lying on its back, the skull resting on top of a furrow, the two legs spraddled on top of the next furrow.

The hunters are Harry Nelson, his son, Robert, 12, and Gene Woolsey, all of nearby Wood River, Ill.

Experts from the Illinois Crime Laboratory were summoned to the scene. They said the skull would be reconstructed in an effort to determine if there were any bullet holes in it.

The boy had gone to Dad's Club Park, where a weekend home-coming was being held, in order to earn money doing odd jobs. Police said he was an industrious lad and might have been lured away with the promise of a chance to earn some extra money.

3 Year Term For Little Rock School Dynamiter

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—An all-white Circuit Court jury Saturday convicted E. A. Lauderdale Sr., of complicity in the dynamiting of the Little Rock School Board headquarters and recommended three years imprisonment.

Counsel for the 48-year-old segregationist leader, described by prosecution witnesses as the mastermind of an anti-integration plot, vowed to appeal.

Lauderdale was the third man convicted in Little Rock's three integration-linked bombings on the night of Sept. 7. Explosives also were set off at the business office of Mayor Werner Knopp and under a station wagon at the home of Five Chief Gunn Nalley. Damage was heavy in all of the blasts but no one was injured.

In addition to the penitentiary sentence, the jury proposed a $500 fine for Lauderdale.

The others convicted, John Taylor Coggins, 39-year-old auto salesman, and Jesse Raymond Perry, 24, a truck driver, drew three-year prison sentences. Another man, J. D. Sims, 35-year-old truck driver, pleaded guilty to the school board dynamiting and got five years. A fifth man, Samuel Graydon Beavers, 49, a carpenter, will be tried Dec. 29.

India Warned To Find Facts About Incident

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States asked India today to make a full investigation of the Chinese Communist kidnaping Friday of a U.S. Marine sergeant and to "take appropriate action."

The phrase "take appropriate action" appeared to be a request for India to act against Red Chinese authorities responsible for the seizure and detention of Marine Sgt. Robert Armstrong, 31, of Martinez, Calif., a guard at the U.S. Consulate in Bombay.

The State Department said it understood that a strong protest had been made by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker to the Indian government. Bunker acted on his own initiative as ambassadors normally are expected to do in matters of this kind.

In New Delhi the U. S. Embassy said a note had been handed to the Chinese government charging Chinese Communists with "high-handed violation of personal rights."

An Embassy spokesman said the note protests strongly "the illegal and improper actions of representatives of the Communist Chinese Consulate in Bombay. He was released after Bombay police had intervened to obtain his freedom."

FACTS SOUGHT

A State Department spokesman said full information is being sought on the puzzling case, which also involves a Chinese Communist defector who did not defect.

In Los Angeles, Sgt. Robert Armstrong's father said "they must have really ganged up" on his son.

Lewis S. Armstrong said Friday that his Marine son usually would be able "to lick any 10 of them."

"I am surprised the Chinese were able to hold on to him," the father said.

The father described his son as "a Marine from the ground up" and said he has a chest full of ribbons, including the Purple Heart.

The elder Armstrong, an appraiser for the Federal Small Business Administration, said his son has been in the Marines since 1944, except for a period when he attended the University of California. Robert holds a degree in political science.

Armstrong had been placed in charge of a Chinese citizen, who, the Americans said, wanted U.S. asylum but later changed his mind and returned to the Chinese consulate general.

The Chinese Communists have not yet made public their version of the case but were said to have given a preliminary account to the Indian government Friday.

The Bombay state government was reported to have submitted a preliminary report of its own to New Delhi. The central government advised state authorities to refrain from issuing any statements until the Chinese version is received.

PULLED FROM TAXI

The U.S. consulate general charged Armstrong was pulled from a taxi in which he was riding with the Chinese citizen, dragged into the consulate grounds, bound and beaten.

The Free Press Journal said the taxi driver told police he witnessed a scuffle between Armstrong and his Chinese captors in the consulate grounds.

U.S. Consul William Turner declined further comment on the case and kept Armstrong away from reporters.

Reliable sources said the Red Chinese notified Bombay police about Armstrong's presence before the U.S. consulate informed police of the kidnaping.

These sources said the Chinese invited the police to remove Armstrong from the premises. State officials said privately all consular premises enjoy diplomatic immunity and police can only enter by invitation.

Bird's Eye View Of Christmas Glitter

Here's how the street decorations for Christmas look from a rooftop in the downtown area. Workmen were busy Saturday stringing the colorful streamers of glistening decorations across the street. The entire downtown area will be blossomed out in Yuletide gaiety early this week.

HOLIDAY SPIRIT

Early Christmas Shoppers Appear

Early birds among Christmas shoppers began their invasion of store counters Saturday.

All over town the amount of foot and car traffic stepped up, and most merchants reported an increase in the number examining and buying merchandise.

Decoration crews were working feverishly to get overhead street streamers of silver tinsel and stars in place, along with other trimmings. In all there will be 56 of these pretentious decorations over downtown and shopping area streets. The courthouse will be festooned with lights, added decorations and the traditional static display on the east side.

When shoppers appear Monday, most stores will greet them with specially decorated Christmas display windows. Late Saturday several store crews were re-inforcing stocks with new selections rushed up from storage just for vastly wider seasonal offerings.

To keep alive the real spirit of the season, the Salvation Army began ringing the bell to remind passersby to keep the pot of good cheer boiling for the less fortunate. The Salvation Army Christmas baskets are wholly dependent upon these offerings.

To add a cheery note in the residential areas, the Chamber of Commerce and Big Spring Garden Club Council underlined appeals for entries in the doorway, window or lawn decorations contests. Anyone may enter simply by calling the Chamber of Commerce. Deadline for entries is Dec. 16.

The visit of Santa Claus is set for Dec. 10 at the courthouse lawn during the day. On the evening of Dec. 16, the Christmas parade, with various churches entering floats, will be staged.

Pastor Selected For City Church

The Rev. Haskell D. Beck was selected pastor of the Settles Baptist Church at an organizational meeting Sunday afternoon. Forty-three charter members were listed.

Chaplain C. O. Hitt was the speaker; the Rev. A. R. Posey of the Baptist Temple was moderator; the Rev. W. A. James, pastor of Airport Baptist Church, presented the church covenant. The articles of faith were given to the group by Dr. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Missile Site Is Shifted One Mile

NAMA, Okinawa (AP) — The launching site for the U.S. Army's Nike-Hercules missiles has been moved a mile closer to the sea after inflammable particles fell on homes in the Yomitan area.

Col. Charles F. Heasty Jr. of the 97th Artillery Group said that the fallouts had caused no damage but it was decided to take further precautions to protect communities in the vicinity of the Bolo Point range.

It's Time To Dream Up Yule Gaiety For Homes

It's not too early to come up with an idea for Yuletide home decorations, and then do something about it. Saturday the Chamber of Commerce and the Big Spring Garden Council urged residents to join in the annual effort to dress up home exteriors.

The two groups are anxious to have as many who will enter the contest which offers cash prizes, in three divisions. Widespread participation, they pointed out, will add a cheery note to the season and contribute to the spirit of the holidays.

The rules are simple, and judging will be based on originality (10 points), distinction (25), color (20), design (25), and suitability (20).

There will be separate panels of judges for each division—one for doorways, another for lawns and still another for windows. There will be a $25 first place prize, a $15 second place, and a $10 third place prize in each division.

Then from all three divisions, the judges will select the most artistic decoration, and this will win a $50 cash prize.

Entries may be made to Dec. 16 at the Chamber of Commerce office (Phone AM 4-641). Judging will be the evening of Dec. 17. The entries must be the work of the residents entering, and no professional help is permitted.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Rail Dispute And Theft Report Clarification

To the Editor:

A great deal has been written and said about the impending contract negotiations between railway carriers and operating unions.

Scales, the so-called "feather-bedding" and many other issues can be settled by negotiation in good faith. The real sleeper in the rules notices served on operating employees is something so far unmentioned but which vitally affects our town.

Under Road Train and Engine Service Assignments, point B would establish a rule to provide that "the carrier shall have the right to establish, move, consolidate and abolish crew terminals, to merge and consolidate seniority districts and to establish interdivisional, inter-seniority districts, intra divisional and inter-seniority district runs in assigned and unassigned service with the right to operate any such run . . . on either a one way basis . . . and through established crew terminals. The right to operate such runs as may be established under the provision of this rule will be free of imposition of any restrictions as to class of traffic . . . or as to origin or destination of . . . cars."

This leaves to the caprice of management the right to uproot scores of people here who have saved and sacrificed to buy and pay out their homes, and by so doing to force them to sell at distress prices if the carrier decides to move terminal or crew points elsewhere.

Sincerely,
A. M. RIPPES

To the Editor:

The item carried on the front page of the Herald on Nov. 27 regarding the theft of monies from people on the north side could well be misleading to the public in that you failed to say whether Benjamin Franks Boston was white or colored.

For your information, and in hope that you will inform your readers of the facts, we rented a room to a white man who represented himself to be Mr. Boston and a woman whom he claimed was his wife. They spent the night at our motel but did not take the trouble to report any missing $120 as you stated in your paper. If there were any visitors to his room it was unknown to the management and is strictly against the rules of the motel.

Just to put the records straight, the Golden West Motel rents rooms to whites only. And to further straighten the records, the management does not solicit parties.

nor will they stand for them if they are aware of them.

In fairness to all concerned, I think you should print this in the very first issue possible of your fine paper.

The best of everything for you and your staff in the coming holiday season, we are Very truly yours,

TRUETT THOMAS

Odessans Assume Cafe Management

Management of the Wagon Wheel Restaurant has been assumed by Mr. and Mrs. T. D. (Doug) Price.

H. M. Rainbolt, founder of the popular eating establishment at Owens and Third, announced the leasing of the restaurant to Mr. and Mrs. Price, formerly restaurateurs at Odessa.

Both are experienced in food service. Reared at Alice, Mr. Price began his career in Corpus Christi where he worked for Christie's. Later he continued the association with them in San Antonio. After 3½ years in the Army Air Force, he moved to Abilene to enter business. It proved an astute move on at least one score, for there he met and eventually married Miss Marie Manly, a graduate practical nurse.

For a dozen years they have operated their own restaurant in Odessa. Mrs. Price, was active in the Knife and Fork Club and in the American Business Women's Club, which she served as banquet chairman. She is a member of the Baptist Church.

The Wagon Wheel will, of course, continue to operate under that name, and emphasis will be continued on quality, tasty food. A new barbecue pit has been installed for charcoal broiled steaks. Another feature will be a speciality on the "Merchant Blue Plate Special."

Hours are being extended also so that the Wagon Wheel now will open at 6 a.m. and continue open until 12 midnight. Besides the regular service, Mr. and Mrs. Price will cater to parties and special groups.

H. M. and Ruby Rainbolt established the Wagon Wheel nearly a score of years ago and steadily enlarged it and developed the thematic decor as their business grew. As a consequence, it has become one of the better known eating houses in West Texas.

"The people of Big Spring and area have been good to us all these years," said Rainbolt. "We deeply appreciate their confidence and support, and we want to assure them that Mr. and Mrs. Price are the kind of folks who will continue to give the best in food and service." The Rainbolts will continue their drive-in operations on U. S. 80 East and U. S. 87 South.

Search Pushed For Murderer

CEDEARTOWN, Ga. (AP)—A 57-year-old spinster was found stabbed to death early today, and officers with bloodhounds set out to track down the assailant.

Officers reported Miss Cleo Hackney had been stabbed seven times in the neck and back and said the slayer had attempted to burn her body by setting her bed on fire.

Bloodhounds led officers to an industrial plant nearby. Several men were picked up for questioning.

Miss Hackney, a jewelry store clerk, lived in the downstairs of a house occupied by her brother-in-law, Homer Hunt.

Officers reported the assailant apparently had entered the house through the basement. They added that the condition of the room indicated the victim had awakened and struggled with the slayer.

Channel Tunnel, Begun In 18th Century, Looks Hopeful Again

By COLIN FROST
DOVER, England (AP)—At the foot of the white cliffs of Dover, with only the screaming gulls for company, stands a rough wooden hut.

Forlorn and battered by the years, the hut is the symbol of one of mankind's greatest dreams—a 36-mile tunnel under the English Channel.

Here in the Victorian golden age men started digging to link England with France, to spread prosperity and foster peace.

They drove a shaft 700 feet deep into the chalk. The wooden hut conceals its entrance. From the bottom of the shaft they tunneled nearly a mile beneath the Channel.

The tunnel is still there, dank and abandoned, a useless monument to man's suspicion of his neighbor.

Now hope is rising again for the Channel tunnel, a project first thought of in the 18th century.

Powerful British, French and American interests will decide next year if it can be built.

The unlikely father of this hope is President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

In 1956 he nationalized the Suez Canal. The well-heeled Anglo-French Canal Co., deprived of its prize asset, looked around for other interests. A Channel tunnel seemed the obvious choice.

Today the canal company, 44 per cent owned by the British government, is equal partner in a study group which over the past two years has spent $670,000 investigating the tunnel's chances of success.

Its other partners are Technical Studies, Inc., a group of American financiers, and the British and French Channel Tunnel Cos., which started the digging back in 1881 and were forced to abandon it two years later.

By early next year the study group expects to answer these questions:

- Can a tunnel be built, and for what price?
- Can it attract enough traffic to pay its way?
- Right now the signs look hopeful.

To answer the first question, a survey ship drilled boreholes 200 feet into the Channel bed.

The surveyors found three layers of chalk and below that, clay. The bottom layer of chalk, they say, might have been designed by nature itself as the perfect medium for tunneling.

Economists look to Europe's ever increasing road traffic to give the tunnel healthy revenue. Nonetheless, it would not be a road tunnel.

Cars and trucks, they say, can be handled more speedily, safely and cheaply by running them on to railroad flatcars.

Autos driven through under their own power would create vast difficulties in ventilation. And tunnel driving is hazardous because some drivers get "tube dizziness," others get panicky from claustrophobia.

The best informed estimate of cost at the moment is $64 million dollars for a double rail tunnel of 36 miles, 22 of them under the sea.

Experts estimate the tunnel could quickly attract one million cars a year, six million passengers and 500,000 tons of fast freight to give an annual income of $30,000,000.

Pam Is Guest Champagne Lady

Pam Garner, who once made her home in Big Spring, appeared Saturday night as guest Champagne Lady on the Lawrence Welk Dodge dancing party. Miss Garner, who lived here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garner, before they moved to Amarillo, is competing along with others to be named as a regular in the weekly nationally televised show. Pam, who has won fame as a television and recording star, is fitted here for a new gown by Don Miguel, Los Angeles, who took his inspiration from the new Dodge Dart.

Small Car Effect Depends On Steel

By BEN PHILEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—"When the automobile industry quits changing," an observer once said, "it will die."

He probably had in mind the vast styling changes that are forever taking place in American cars. But the view could apply equally as well to the basic make-up of the industry.

The Automobile Club of Michigan estimates some 2,900 makes of cars from 2,500 companies have been offered since Charles and Frank Duryea turned out what is regarded as the first successful American gasoline-driven car in 1893.

Companies sprang up like weeds and by 1900 there were 93 manufacturing concerns. Production that year reached a grand total of 4,192 vehicles.

In 1925 the car buyer had a choice of 53 makes, only nine of which are still being built.

After World War II Kaiser, Frazer, Tucker, Crosley, Henry J. Allstate, Willys Aero were among the new nameplates. None remains in the passenger car business.

Then came the industry's biggest year—1955. The public bought seven million cars. Market research showed the buyers were interested in cars that were longer, lower, flashier. It was, the researchers concluded, an ideal time to market a new medium-price line of cars.

Acting on this advice, Ford speeded up plans on just such a car line. It spent more than $50 million dollars; and in the late summer of 1957, with hoopla seldom if ever equalled even in this normally boisterous industry, the Edsel was introduced.

The Edsel couldn't make it. Sales, never good, got steadily worse. Although thoroughly restyled for 1959, it still didn't sell. This month, after only two years on the market, it died.

From birth the Edsel was an indirect victim of the growing swing to small cars.

Along with the foreign cars Americans suddenly discovered the compact Rambler and breathed life into what seemed to be an unsuccessful merger of two dying lines, Hudson and Nash.

The shaky marriage of Studebaker and Packard found solid ground in late 1958 with the Lark, another compact smaller car.

The big three finally decided the public really wanted smaller cars. Came the 1960 model year and new names—the Corvair, the Falcon and the Valiant.

TROUBLE AHEAD

Abandoned Car's Owner May Be Hard To Locate

If the three Latin-Americans sighted in the vicinity of what a truck driver described as a stripped down truck (an understatement) want their vehicle back, all they have to do is settle with the justice of peace for nine separate traffic violations, convince the officials they have a right to the vehicle and explain how come it was where it was.

Jimmy Park, highway patrol officer, said that he was told by a truck driver Friday night that a "stripped down" car was parked in the middle of US 87 about 15 miles north. The car had no lights, the trucker said, and he added that he barely averted colliding with it.

When Parks reached the scene, the stripped down car was there but the three Latin-Americans were gone.

"It was stripped down," observed Parks. "It was an old 1950 Chevrolet pickup. The top, body, windshield, bed and fenders were all gone. About all it consisted of was the engine, part of the seat, and four wheels. It had no headlight and it didn't burn and the taillight didn't function. It had a flat on one wheel, and no spare was in sight."

The vehicle was pulled into town. When Parks located the owners, he will push prosecution of 9 complaints—parking on the road; no registration; no tail lights; no head lights; failure to display flares at night; no safety inspection tag, among others. He also expects the driver, when lo-ated, to have no driver's license. And he speculates that the wreck may have been stolen.

"DISEASES ARE THE PENALTIES WE PAY FOR OUR NEGLECT OF THE MEANS OF HEALTH"

Your own body is a wonderful manufacturer of medicines for the cure of disease. As soon as any invading germ or virus attacks you, your blood rushes its weapons of defense to the danger zone.

If your health and strength are good you win the fight and the attack is defeated. But, if your resistance is low, any disease can gain a dangerous foothold. Therefore it is wise to visit your physician for regular check-ups to make certain you have enough energy to fight off sickness. He can prescribe the proper needed medication.

10th Son Born But Dad's Still Looking For Gal

CHICAGO (AP)—J. Raymond O'Brien, 50, still hopes that one day he'll be the father of a baby girl. But Mrs. O'Brien may be satisfied with things the way they are.

Mrs. O'Brien, 40, presented O'Brien Friday with another son—her 10th.

Asked if he and his wife want any more children, O'Brien said: "Well, I do, but I don't know about my wife. This is a bad day to ask her."

New 8-Story Building Is Planned For Odessa Bank

ODESSA—Officials of the First National Bank of Odessa and Jack C. Vaughn, Dallas financier, announced here Saturday that they will build an eight-story office building and bank here, costing approximately $3,000,000.

The joint building venture includes a new 60,000 square-foot structure housing the city's largest bank connected with an eight-story office building, to be located in the 700 block of North Grant, facing west. It will cover two-thirds of the block. Included in the building plans is the construction of an ultra-modern six-window motor bank and parking garage to be located behind the bank, facing Texas Avenue.

The First National Bank of Odessa now occupies quarters in the 400 block of North Grant Street, where it has been located since 1949. It was organized in 1922.

The new office building tower, which will have approximately 86,000 square feet, will be connected with the bank on three levels. It will be owned and operated by the Vaughn Building Corp., which is owned by Jack Vaughn and his brother, Grady Vaughn Jr. of Dallas. Jack Vaughn is co-owner of KOSA-TV, Odessa-Midland, and is a widely known Dallas oil, insurance and business executive. He owns the Western Building in Mid-

Juvenile Plan To Be Carried Before County

The joint committee which has been conducting a study of juvenile programs will carry its recommendation of a juvenile board to the Howard County Commissioners Court Monday.

The committee is made up of representatives from the City of Big Spring, the Big Spring Independent School District, Howard County and the Chamber of Commerce.

Both the school district and the city have officially endorsed the plan of a juvenile board to supervise a program headed by a specially trained worker. If the county should approve the plan, efforts will be made to introduce a bill in the next session of the Legislature granting the right to create the board and operate the juvenile program under it. The program would be supported by the school, city and county.

Activity Up Across Nation

Increased rotary rig operations were noted during the week across the United States. The Hughes Tool Co. count lists 2,206 rigs in operation compared with 2,159 last week.

Perennial leader in the nation, Texas, fell in the count from 785 to 778. However, West Central Texas maintained the previous count with 239.

Workers in West Texas fell from 156 to 146 while gains were noted in the north, east and coastal areas of the state.

Arizona, Iowa, Maryland, New York, Ohio and Oregon are the only states reporting no rotary units in operation.

Canada, after a week's slump, climbed back to 172 in operation. Only 149 were reported last week.

Three Injured In Rash Of Accidents

Two children were injured, neither seriously, in two traffic accidents Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

Cecil Lynn Bingham, 3, whose home address is listed as 112 Mobile, suffered a cut on the head and bruises when he ran in the path of an oncoming automobile Friday afternoon. He was not seriously hurt.

Highway patrol officers who investigated the accident said the driver of the car was T. E. Hale Coahoma, who had as passengers W. C. Smith, Glenn Cornett and Weldon Rainey, all of Big Spring. They were in a 1955 Chevrolet and had left U.S. 80 on the semi-abandoned cutoff segment which leads to the Air Base Road.

The child managed to get out of his father's car and started across the street to a grocery store. Hale jammed on his brakes and had almost brought his car to a halt before it touched the child. The impact was enough to knock him down and inflict minor injuries. He was taken by Nalley-Pickle ambulance to Big Spring Hospital.

At 9 a.m. Saturday, Neida Kay Howard, 14, suffered head injuries which are not believed serious when her mother's car was rammed from the rear by another motor vehicle. The car jammed into a heavy truck Mrs. Truman Hazel Howard, Big Spring, had stopped back of a big truck-tractor, drive by Theo Larry Dedmon, Birmingham, Ala., at a stop light at intersection of U. S. 80 and FM 700. A Fred Falcon driven by Ramon Cidello, Yaleta, crashed into the rear of the Howard car, jamming it against the truck. Minor damage was caused to the cars and the girl had a head injury. She was taken to Big Spring Hospital by Nalley-Pickle ambulance. Cidello paid a fine in Justice of Peace Jess Slaughter court on pleading guilty to following too closely.

A number of other accidents were reported.

Verna Lois Draper was taken to Medical Arts hospital in a Nalley Pickle ambulance following a crash at 2nd and Benton. Attendants report she was still in the hospital Saturday morning, however her condition is considered good. She received several bruises.

Driver of the other car involved was Viola D. Nelson, Rt. 1.

Barbara Gay Meech, Stanton, was involved in a collision with John F. Schwarzenbach, Buchanan.

Funeral services for Mrs. N. F. Falcone will be held in Dallas Monday at 4 p.m. in the Lamar and Smith Funeral Home chapel.

Dr. Alsie Carlton, pastor of the University Park Methodist Church, will officiate and interment will be in Laurel Land Cemetery. The remains will be taken overland under the direction of Nalley Pickle Funeral Home.

Mrs. Falcone died Saturday at 5:30 p.m. in a local hospital. She has been ill for two years and was recently moved to the hospital from her sister's home. She was living with Mrs. J. C. Watts, Sr.

Survivors include a son, N. Z. Falcone, Ft. Worth; a brother, Smith L. Luton, Hugo, Okla.; and a sister, Mrs. Waits, Big Spring. She was a resident of Dallas until moving here two years ago.

Mayor Wins Bout With Pachyderm

MANILA (AP)—A year-old, 700-pound elephant presented to Manila's new City Zoo by Premier Sarit Thanarat of Thailand tried to toss Mayor Arsenio Lacson into a nearby moat during presentation ceremonies. Lacson, a former boxer who weighs in at 150 twice sidestepped and parried with a left before the elephant's trainer broke it up. "He must be long to the opposition," quipped the mayor.

He placed first in the boys solo competition both days. Pat placed third, Friday, and fourth, Saturday, in the girls solo competition. In duet competition, the brother and sister team took second place both days.

Dam. The wreck occurred at 15th and Scurry.

J. D. Carter reported someone hit his car, then left the scene. Mobile Hill Smith, 1113 N. Bell, reported another hit-and-run smash at NW 4th and Gregg.

Morris Garrett, Oklahoma City, was in collision with Wayne McNew, 921 Wright, at 4th and Benton.

Thomas W. Hammond, 1200 Lamar, was involved in a crash at College and North Monticello with Daniel Robinson, 1022 1/2 Goliad.

At 18th and Nolan, Chere Jan Stanley, Box 389, and Thomas J. Churchwell, 1304 Grafia, were in collision.

Over 65 scouts representing eight local troops participated in the winter district camporee at Camp Ed Murphy Friday and Saturday.

The youngsters braved the cold and had a good time, according to Scout Executive Bill McRee. "We arrived at the camp Friday morning and set up camp, preparing for the cold," he said.

Saturday morning, the youngsters played a game of Indians and 49ers, before packing up for the trek home. They were back in the city by 2 p.m. Saturday.

Attending were Troop 1, Carl Call; Troop 4, Bill Mims; Troop 5, Joe Newnam; Troop 7, Bert Andries; Coahoma Troop 8, Lenie Anderson; Garden City Troop 13, Glenn Kingston; Troop 16, Milton Arriola; and Troop 146, Capt. Earl R. Lothringer.

Dr. C. J. Ruilmann, director of the state hospitals and special schools, told the Permian Basin Medical Society here Tuesday that the big bridge in mental illness recovery now is for the public to accept patients back into their regular place in society. This needs to be proclaimed from the house tops until the public realizes that we can lick mental illness.

Local FFA teams did all right at the district contests in Odessa last week, winning the junior chapter conducting, junior farm quiz and farm radio events, as well as nominating the district queen, Katie Bess Morgan. Coahoma took first in the senior chapter conducting.

Al Milch resigned his post as athletic director and coach last week after three seasons. Search for a successor might not be an easy task except that Milch is leaving behind a mighty appetizing collection of material for next year.

Despite cold weather, the rabies threat is still present. Last week a cow, which had to be killed because of her unresponsiveness, checked positively for rabies. So did a skunk killed in southwest Big Spring incidentally. Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Land (AM 4-8710) are frantically trying to locate a little light brown dog which bit their daughter, Jolene, near College Heights school.

The Texas Electric Service Company Quarter Century Club had its annual party here last week. Goodness how that family has grown — which is another way of remembering that our city has grown, too.

Tindol Shows Up At County Jail Saturday

John Tindol, under indictment for murder with malice, whose bond was cancelled by his bailman several weeks ago, surrendered himself to Sheriff Miller Harris Saturday.

Tindol told Harris he had been in California and had just been informed that his bond had been set aside.

He immediately returned to Howard County and gave himself up.

Tindol and his brother James, now in the state penitentiary, are under indictment for the death last Valentine Day of Walter Gatlin. Gatlin was found unconscious in the yard of his home. He had been subjected to a terrific beating. He never regained consciousness although he lived for several weeks after the attack.

The two brothers were indicted for the crime. James, on parole from state prison, was sent back to continue serving a sentence already imposed on him for another conviction. John was freed on bond.

Several weeks ago, Clyde Thomas, attorney, surety on the bond, notified the sheriff that he wanted to be relieved of responsibility. A search for John has been under way since that time.

Burglary And Thefts Checked

Three thefts and a burglary were reported in the city Friday night. Police officers were investigating the incidents Saturday morning.

The First Methodist Church, 4th and First, was burglarized and the soft drink machine entered. About five dollars is missing. The police report notes that the building was not locked.

Paul Hagan, 404 NW 3rd, reported some clothes stolen. Baron's Apparel, 219 Main, told officers a crank handle for the awning had been taken.

The Auto Super Mart, 904 W. 4th, said a car radio was taken from a 1954 model vehicle.

BUMPER PRODUCTION

1959 Cotton Crop Topping TEC Early Season Estimate

Cotton production in West Texas Counties served by the Texas Employment Commission offices in Big Spring, Lamesa and Sweetwater will exceed by several thousand bales the crop estimates fixed by TEC at the beginning of the season.

Estimates in several of the counties—including Howard County—have been upped during the picking period. It seems highly probable that the crop in Howard County, for example, will come close to 34,000 bales. The latest estimate, subject to late revision, is 32,000.

Dawson County, with probably 99 per cent of its crop ginned, has already harvested 146,675 bales.

Pair Released On $5,000

Jessie Banks and Shirley Mae Williams have been released from county jail on $5,000 bonds set by Justice of the Peace Walter Grice.

The Negro couple are accused of taking $1,000 from Austin Poe, Kerville. Poe identified them from pictures in police files.

Officers recovered $600 of the missing money from Miss Williams when she was arrested. The balance of the money has not been found.

Poe told officers the robbery occurred in the Negro Park on the north side about 9:30 p.m. Thanksgiving Day.

Tarzan Place Is Burglarized

An area-wide alert was put out by the Stanton sheriff's office early Saturday for two men thought to have burglarized the Tarzan Marketing Association office.

The men took about $140, three radios and a large amount of cigarettes. Officers have several reports to check out regarding a strange car seen in the area.

THE WEEK

This is the type under which any cattle found with brucellosis will be slaughtered.

A Negro man was killed in a car mishap 12 miles south of Patricia in northern Martin County last Monday. This particular area appears plagued this autumn with at least three fatalities within the past month. We barely missed a tragedy southwest of here when a trailer loaded with cotton overturned. Several brauceros had covered themselves with cotton and were riding the trailer — and were almost buried alive.

Webb Village will be part of the city under annexation proceedings begun last week by the city commission. Presumably a few more readings it will become part of the city territory although operated as a federal establishment. Still the people and the market they represent will be reflected in official figures.

The Community Conference on Education made its final report last Tuesday. Among suggestions for finance (and most other suggestions pivoted on finances) were for a basic teacher pay raise at the state level, consideration of a countywide equalization district, possible raising of the percentage of assessment values actually assessed for taxes, and some show an expansion of the territorial base.

One thread which ran dominantly through all the reports was that — our schools are doing a good job in keeping with their resources.

Dr. C. J. Ruilmann, director of the state hospitals and special schools, told the Permian Basin Medical Society here Tuesday that the big bridge in mental illness recovery now is for the public to accept patients back into their regular place in society. The estimate for this county has been 145,000 bales.

OUTLOOK FOR CROP IN '60 LOOMS BRIGHT

This area is off to a good start agriculturally for the next crop year.

Rain summaries compiled by the Texas A&M Experiment Station, system show 4.11 inches for Big Spring since the beginning of the crop year on Sept. 1. This is 37 per cent above normal. Spur with 4.32 is below 14 per cent, and Lubbock with 2.16 was below 54 per cent, and Amarillo was 3.13 and down 16 per cent. Merger To Establish Largest Oil Company

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP) — Formalities will be completed Tuesday for formation of the nation's largest oil company.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) is placing all its domestic producing, refining, and marketing operations under one affiliate.

It will take months to complete the long series of complicated mergers but the huge new operating company becomes a reality Tuesday when Jersey Standard stockholders vote approval.

As a result, a name long familiar to Texas highways gradually will begin appearing throughout Jersey's marketing area that embraces about 30 states. Humble Oil & Refining Co. will become a nationwide operator, refiner, and marketer.

Humble stockholders approved Wednesday. The one-sided vote was not surprising in that Jersey held 98.27 per cent of the common stock of the Houston-based affiliate that only recently expanded its marketing operations into New Mexico and Arizona after confining such activities since 1917 to Texas.

Jersey obtained half interest in Humble in 1919 for 17 million dollars. Humble assets at the end of 1958 exceeded 1.3 billion dollars.

Under the reorganization plan, Humble of Texas is being replaced by a new Humble of Delaware. The new Humble Oil & Refining Co. was incorporated in Delaware Sept. 4, two days after Jersey officials announced the re-shuffling plans.

Four other affiliates will be merged into the new Humble. They are Carter Oil Co., producer-refiner-market in the Midwest and Rocky Mountain areas; Esso Standard Oil Co., refiner-market in Louisiana and along the East Coast; and Oklahoma and Fats oil companies, marketers in the Chicago-Milwaukee areas.

For the time being each of the five affiliates will operate under its present name as a division of the new Humble.

The new company will lead the nation in oil production and refining. It will own over 22,000 service stations and Jersey officials are confident the new nationwide operations will place Jersey in a stronger competitive position among other coast-to-coast marketers.

Humble and Carter last year produced over 406,000 barrels of oil daily. Texaco Inc. had a United States average of 386,000. The refining capacity of the new Humble will be 953,000 barrels a day. Among the leading rivals, Texaco's domestic refineries last year processed 596,651 barrels a day. Gulf 485,034.

Socoyn Mobil Oil Co. also is in the process of merging its domestic subsidiaries. The resulting Mobil Oil Co. has a refining capacity of 737,000 barrels a day. Its oil production last year was about 250,000 barrels daily.

Oil Market Climb Seen

TULSA (AP) — Texas in 1960 may reverse its trend of the past several years when its share of the domestic oil market declined steadily.

Economists, the Oil and Gas Journal reported Saturday, expect production in the nation's top producing state to climb faster than demand next year because of the excellent position of current inventories.

Texas accounted for 42.4 per cent of total U. S. crude production in 1955 but by 1959 this had dropped to 38.1 per cent, the Journal said.

The loss in recent years, the trade publication says, was not due to decline in producing capacity but instead an attempt to prevent economic waste and price chaos by holding national production near actual demand.

Crude oil production this year in the state is expected to average about 2,685,000 barrels daily. Total U. S. crude oil production should reach about 7,465,000 barrels this year.

The Journal said greater output in Texas already is showing up.

J. W. STARR
Starr Named New Basin Shell Jobber

J. W. Starr, Midland, has become the new Shell Oil Co. jobber for the Permian Basin. It was announced recently. He, as sole owner, has signed the contract under the name of the Fidelity Oil Co. and will handle all phases of the sales and distribution of Shell products for this territory.

Headquarters of the newly organized company are to be located in Odessa.

"I pledge the finest possible service to my customers," Starr said.

The Permian Basin count of working rotary units took another big jump upward this week. Friday the total stood at 355 operations making hole, 11 more than a week ago when 344 were working.

Borden County had the largest increase in the immediate eight county area, counting 16, six more than last week. The total for this area was 34, an increase of one over the previous tally.

Lea County, N. M. still tops the Basin survey with 49 rigs in operation.

Martin County fell out of the count, losing the three operations reported before. Sterling still has no rotary operation projects.

Howard, Dawson, and Garza counties each had five rigs making hole Friday. Two were reported in Mitchell County and one in Glasscock County.

Depletion Called 'Evil', 'Essential'

By CHARLES HASLET
WASHINGTON (AP) — "Fraught with evil" — "essential to encourage drilling" — and so on.

Thousands of such words on both sides of the oil industry's tax depletion allowance have gone into the files of the House Ways and Means Committee in its current study of the nation's tax structure.

The committee has prepared and made public a summary of the statements filed with it for and against the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance which oil and gas producers have enjoyed for years.

The tax benefit is "fraught with so much evil and is so devoid of merit" that it should be eliminated, Horace Gray, University of Illinois professor, told the committee.

"This is not to deny that there exist many practical problems of serious public import in connection with the discovery, development and scientific utilization of mineral resources.

"It does deny, however, that the depletion allowance is an effective or socially desirable means for solving these problems. Within the broad latitude of private ingenuity and governmental powers, many alternative arrangements are possible for evolving practical solutions which would be both effective and socially beneficial."

Richard Gonzalez of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., who said the depletion allowance is essential to encourage drilling, attacked various taxes now imposed on ore and gas producers.

The principal producing states, he said in his paper, levy substantial special taxes. He mentioned, as examples, Texas and Louisiana, where he said these taxes amount to about 23 cents on a barrel of oil.

Higher excise taxes are imposed on gasoline than on other essential products and on many luxury items, Gonzalez continued.

331st FIGHTER INTERCEPTOR SQUADRON ENTERTAINS VISITING 15th Lt. Col. Dick Crowell greets Capt. W. F. Truitt, Lt. Col. Wm. D. McVay

Arizona Pilots Guests Of Webb's 331st FIS Pilots

The 331st Fighter Interceptor Squadron played host to the 15th FIS from Davis-Monthan AFB here last week while the Arizona based unit was en route home.

Lt. Col. Dick M. Crowell, commander of the 331st FIS at Webb AFB, greeted Lt. Col. William D. McVay, commander of the Davis-Monthan group when the 24 two-man interceptor F-89 Scorpion planes put down here. The 15th had been in MacDill AFB, Fla. for weapons training. The 15th is part of the 34th Air Division at Albuquerque. The 331st is currently under the 33rd air division at Oklahoma City but will become part of the 34th division after the first of the year. The 34th is programmed to yield responsibility for Arizona and will add the 331st and some radar stations in Texas.

The 331st pilots turned out in full force to greet the visiting 15th officers and entertained them at a party in the Webb officers club. Lt. Col. Ted Timbers and his 93rd FIS were scheduled here as part of their routine operations for the same time but these plans fell through.

At any rate, the pilots didn't lack anything to talk about, for the 331st this year completed its rocketry mission at Brookley AFB, Alabama.

Fun In Florida

Joe Willmon and his wife are pictured at the Pier 66 Motor Hotel in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they spent the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. Willmon were guests of Phillips Oil Company at the plush, new hotel which was formally opened Nov. 17. They were entertained at parties complete with watershow, deep-sea fishing in the Gulfstream and a sightseeing boat cruise up New River into the Everglades. Willmon was winner of a Phillips 66 contest in this area.

17th Skunk Rabid, Test Has Revealed

Residents of the 2200 block on Alabama are warned by Dr. Akin Simpson, veterinarian, a skunk killed in that neighborhood last Wednesday afternoon was infected with rabies.

The skunk, according to Dr. Simpson, was in the neighborhood for three hours and could possibly have bitten dogs or cats in the area.

The head was sent to the state laboratory and tests showed the animal was rabid.

This is the 17th skunk to be sent to the laboratory from this county this year and the 17th skunk to be found suffering from rabies.

Three other animals have also been tested and found rabid—a cow, a housecat and a fox.

The skunks, Dr. Simpson pointed out, seem to be principal victims of the disease—100 per cent of all those sent to the laboratory having been found to be infected.

International Rocket Pool Is Under Study

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The secretary of the Swedish Space Research Committee said today 10 European countries may pool their resources for launching satellites and space rockets.

Dr. Ernst Brunberg said the idea for the project was originated by Prof. Eduardo Amaldi, an Italian physicist and former associate of a Nobel Prize winner and nuclear pioneer, Enrico Fermi.

Brunberg said his committee would certainly welcome a joint European space research effort.

The committee is composed of several of Sweden's top space experts, headed by Prof. Lamek Hult.

Brunberg declined to name the nine other countries that might participate in the project. He added, however, that they might include members of the Joint European Nuclear Research Center in Geneva, Switzerland.

Heads Fall In Two Satellites

MOSCOW (AP)—A shakeup in the governments of two Soviet republics—Latvia and Azerbaijan—has cost several top officials their jobs.

Leadership changes in Latvia came in the wake of accusations that some Latvian Communists placed local interests ahead of the Soviet Union's.

Communist party secretary Janis Kalberzin was kicked upstairs to the honorary post of president of the republic.

Arvid Pelze, a critic of what he called "bourgeois nationalists" in Latvia, took over as the new party leader.

Vilis Latsis, premier of Latvia since 1941, was replaced by scientist Jan Peive. Stepping down from the presidency for what were called reasons of health was Karl Ozolin.

In the oil-rich Republic of Azerbaijan, I. K. Abdalayeve was removed as premier after holding the post since January 1958.

He was replaced by S. M. Djafarov. No reason was announced for the change.

Austria Is Torn By 'War Of Pants'

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Vienna's "war of the pants" has reached the Austrian Parliament. A group of Socialist deputies asked the Conservative minister of education, Heinrich Drimmel, whether there's any legal basis for banning blue jeans and baby doll skirts in two Vienna high schools.

A Pat on the Back

VERNON HARTON

Winning isn't a new experience to Vernon Harton, who is starting his second season as head basketball coach of the Big Spring Steers.

In eight seasons as a mentor, Harton has seen his teams win a total of 212 games, compared to only 80 losses.

A native of Malakoff, Harton began his coaching career at Frankston in East Texas in 1951-52 and remained there for five seasons. He moved to Jacksonville for two years, starting with the 1956-57 campaign.

After his teams there won 38 games while losing 34, he gave serious thought to leaving the profession for the business world but he found the urge to coach too strong and made a successful application for the Big Spring job, when it opened.

He's never had a losing season as a coach. At Frankston, his teams won the district title one year and ruled as co-champion with Cayuga on another occasion.

Harton attended Henderson County Junior College and East Texas Baptist College after graduating from Cross Roads High School at Malakoff.

He was married to Miss Peggy Hall of Corsicana and to that union have been born three children: Janelle, age 12; Vernon Jr., 6; and Cathey, 2.

During the past summer, Harton was employed by the local YMCA, at which time he helped with the Fun Club projects in the mornings, conducted a basketball program in the afternoons and supervised a north side playground at night.

Construction Hits Billion

DALLAS (AP) — Construction contracts in Texas passed the billion dollar mark in November, the Texas Contractor, a trade publication, said Saturday.

The magazine reported the 11-month total at $1,048,321,371, or 62 million dollars ahead of last year.

Non-residential awards took up the slack caused by lower highway awards.

Engineering awards, usually highways, were down to 17 million dollars in November, compared with 24 1/2 million October. But other non-residential awards were more than 55 million, compared with 42 million the previous year.

Men's Wear Of Character

DEAR ABBY

OFFER TO HELP

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How can you tell your sister-in-law it is time she and her husband gave a party? When they moved to our town three years ago, they didn't know a soul. We introduced them to all of our friends and now our friends are their friends. They never refuse an invitation to go anywhere but they have never invited any of these people back. They moved into a new home almost two years ago and all my friends keep asking me, "Is your sister-in-law settled yet?" I am so embarrassed I don't know what to say.

My brother is a doll. I don't know how he ever married a pill like her. If you were I, how would you handle this? I can hardly hold my head up.

SISTER-IN-LAW DEAR SIS: You don't have to stick your neck out in order to hold your head up. Perhaps your sister-in-law hesitates to entertain because she's afraid she won't do it properly and would be criticized for her efforts. Offer to help her with any entertaining she might care to do. If you suggest it in a friendly way, she can't be offended.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know anything about Japanese women, but I know plenty about American women and in this country it's the MAN who is the slave, not the woman.

I am a real estate salesman and I can testify that in almost every case what the wife says goes. When I try to sell a home to a married couple (young or old) the poor boob of a husband says "Yes, Dear, Yes, Dear, Yes, Dear." And he is the one who is paying for it. If she says NO, believe me, he puts his tail between his legs and walks out behind her and says, "Where to now, Mamma, Darling!"

FREEDOM LOVER

DEAR ABBY: My husband left me five months ago for another woman. I have two daughters, one 14 and one 18. My eldest daughter is getting married soon. If her father is not back by that time, we do not intend to invite him to the wedding. My girls and myself are very bitter towards him for what he has done.

I want to know if it would be proper to have my older brother give my daughter away? Another thing — when I make up the invitations, do they have to read that "Mr. and Mrs. So and So" are marrying off a daughter? Or can I just have "Mrs. So and So"? I would rather leave his name off the invitation.

MRS. SO AND SO DEAR MRS. SO AND SO: You had better ask your clergyman his opinion of dropping "Mr. So and So's" name from your wedding invitations. I'd say that unless your separation is permanent, his name belongs with yours. Under the present circumstances, it would be proper to have your brother give your daughter away.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE WITH A PICTURE": For goodness sake, meet her first. Who wants to marry a paper doll?

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mounted Patrol Members To See Quarterhorse Film

Horse fanciers will get a refresher on quarterhorses at the meeting of the Big Spring Mounted Patrol at the Chamber of Commerce conference Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Dick Feider, president of the patrol, said that motion pictures on quarterhorse breeding and showing will be projected through the courtesy of the American Quarterhorse Association.

The patrol also will reach a decision of whether to participate in a parade set for Dec. 5 in Colorado City. Recently members voted a change in uniforms, shifting from white to a gray western shirt with red trimmings. Levis and red chaps will remain as part of the official garb, said Feider.

Marlene Is Wow In Paris Theater

PARIS (AP)—Marlene Dietrich strolled on the stage of the Etoile Theater Friday night and brought the house down with a song she first sang almost 30 years ago.

She drew her biggest ovation when she whispered in the off-key but haunting Dietrich manner "Falling in Love Again" from the old German movie "The Blue Angel."

French Premier Scores Victory In Policy Test

PARIS (AP)—The first attempt to oust a French government under the new Fifth Republic fell flat early today in the National Assembly.

Premier Michel Debre won easily against a motion seeking to censure his government for its economic policies, especially in reducing war veterans' pensions. A bloc of Socialists and Radical Socialists who sponsored the motion could muster only 110 votes, far short of the 277 required for approval.

Miss Cole Says Her Statements Were Misquoted

An account of Tuesday's city commission meeting did not quote her correctly, Miss Pearl Cole said in a statement to the Herald Saturday.

"I met with the city commission last Tuesday night to discuss the annexation of our acreage on which we live, and not that we could not pay our taxes for we have paid them on most of this acreage for more than 30 years and without any city benefits whatsoever," she said.

"I was present only to protest the annexation of this small piece of acreage which has only one house on it — our home — and it would not benefit the city too much. None of this acreage has ever been subdivided as Cedar Ridge east of us has.

"I was only asking for the same consideration of this acreage that was extended to others owning acreage south of us, but we were refused the same privilege granted to them."

Stallings Home From Conference Company Council

Louis E. Stallings, member of the local agency of the Great Southern Life Insurance Company, has returned from a conference at the company's home office in Houston.

The occasion was the 12th annual meeting of the agents' advisory council composed of 11 representative field men. Stallings, appointed in 1959, is one of the eight members who serve by appointment for two-year terms.

Organized in 1948 the council meets each November to discuss general agency sales problems and company practices as they relate to agents. Recommendations are presented to management for its consideration. Recently the company approved a recommendation which grants the privilege to full-time life underwriters to continue carrying personal hospital and surgical benefits after reaching age 65. The continuance applies to the agent, wife and their dependent children.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two small children suffocated in a smoke-filled house Friday night. They were Steve Fitzpatrick, 1, and his sister, Sherry, 3, children of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Fitzpatrick.

The parents left the children alone while they visited neighbors next door. When the mother returned an hour later the house was filled with smoke. Firemen said a cigarette left on a couch may have caused the smoke.

Clemson Tigers Decision Furman, Get Bowl Offer

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Clemson's Tigers smashed Furman 56-3 Saturday then accepted an offer to play TCU in the Dec. 19 Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston. Clemson finished with an 8-3 record.
Clemson, last year's Sugar Bowl team, used both breaks and power to run up the score against Furman, an ancient neighborhood rival.
A 20-yard field goal by halfback Shelly Sutton that gave Furman a 3-0 lead in the early moments apparently roused the Tigers. They went to work immediately and before the final whistle nine Tigers figured in the scoring.
Furman fumbles set up two touchdowns. Clemson halfback Doug Daigneault pounced on a Hurricane bobble at the Furman 19 to set up his own scoring run from the 9 three plays later. Quarterback Lowndes Shinger got a second touchdown four plays after. Clemson recovered another Furman bobble at the Hurricane 36.
Quarterback Harvey White's passing was a mainstay of much of the Clemson offense. A 79-yard drive for the first Clemson touch-

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—David Winkles, Abilene quarterback, returned the opening kickoff 99 yards for one touchdown and threw for two more as the Eagles whipped Ysleta 45-0 in a Class AAAA district game Saturday.
Winkles, the No. 2 offensive quarterback, hit Steve Newton with both scoring passes, one for 10 yards and one for 23.
The first-string quarterback, Charles McCook, scored twice himself, once on a nine-yard run and once on an eight-yarder.
End David Parks picked off an Ysleta pass and returned it 60

Season Ducats Still Available

Decatur Baptist College, which has never beaten HCJC in history, is afforded a good chance of turning the trick when the two teams clash here Monday night.
Tipoff time is 8 p.m. Those who haven't purchased season tickets for the Hawk games can take care of that chore at the gate. Adult tickets sell for $2.50 each and are good for 11 home games. Student pasteborders retail for $1 each.
The season tickets will remain on sale through Dec. 15, it has been announced. Those who wait that long can still see eight games for the prescribed price.
Coach Buddy Travis, who will be making his debut as coach of the Jayhawks, took his team to Lubbock Friday night and although the locals won he was far from pleased with what he saw.
The Hawks trailed at half time and it took some fancy shooting by Larry Cruise and Harold Henson to pull the Hawks out of their doldrums.
Decatur, which also has a new coach, Dennis W. Walling, has a formidable lineup.
Billy Piemons, 6-1, of Midway, is a freshman who was named to the Class B All-State team last year.
Darryl Ammons, 6-1, Pampa; Charles Strickland, 6-1, Decatur; Wilson Whitmire, 6-4, Silldell; and Jerry Janek, 6-6, West, are other starters for Decatur while David Robinson, 6-0, who hails from Atlantic City, N. J., will see a lot of action.
There'll be a B game, starting at 6:15 p.m. Dyess AFB of Abilene will form the opposition for the locals.

Bobcats Defeated

KILLEEN, (SC)—Killeen nosed out San Angelo, 71-69, in a basketball game played here Saturday night. The Bobcats lost three starters via the foul route in the final period.
The TCU line stymied everything the Methodists tried and although Meredith, the famed SMU passer, managed to complete 14 throws for more than 100 yards, he was rushed badly, mostly by the raging Spikes. Seven times Meredith was thrown for losses.
The charging Frog line blocked two SMU kicks, one setting up a touchdown.
Bob Lilly, the great TCU tackle, blocked Don Stewart's punt in the second period and knocked the ball outside on the SMU 17. Spikes and Lasater crashed to the touchdown, Lasater making the last nine yards. R. E. Dodson missed his first try for point in 19—his last miss was against SMU a year ago.
Shortly afterward, when Jimmy Gilmore's punt that went out on the SMU one put the Methodists in a hole, TCU scored again. A pass interference penalty that put the ball on the SMU 47 helped. From here the fleet Moreland raced through the line for a touchdown. Moreland failed to run over the conversion.
With only 35 seconds left TCU scored its last touchdown. It was on a 15-yard pass from Larry Dawson to Lasater in the end zone. Dodson converted.

Florida Defeats Miami, 23 To 14

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Florida's Dick Allen turned out to be the quarterback wizard in place of Miami's Fran Curci Saturday and led Florida to a 23-14 upset that knocked Miami out of an Orange Bowl bid.
The loss left Miami with a final record of 6-4 and moved Georgia (9-1) into the Orange Bowl game, at Miami New Year's Day, against previously named Missouri.
The Florida Gators played their best game after a mediocre season and Allen was at the best of his long college career that was interrupted three years by military service.
Allen's passes kept Florida on the move early and produced a 7-0 lead in the first half. Then after Miami went ahead 14-13, it was Allen's field goal that regained the lead 16-14.
Florida intercepted five Curci passes, two of which led to touchdowns and one to the field goal, turning the 152-pound magician into a goat in his final collegiate game.

Joe Bellino Shines In Win Over Cadets

By JACK HANB
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Flashy Joe Bellino's three touchdowns led Navy to a 43-12 rout of favored Army Saturday, the highest point total by any team in the 60 games of this bitter football rivalry.

Another Thriller Herd Wins, 53-52, In Extra Period

Down nine points to El Paso Cathedral at one stage in the third period, the Big Spring Steers came fighting back to force the visitors into an overtime and then win a cliff-hanger, 53-52, here Saturday night.
The win was the second in two starts over the Irish for the young, green Steers and no team ever had a closer escape.
All seemed lost when the Longhorns fell behind, 38-29, not long after the halftime intermission but the locals cut their disadvantage to five points at the end of the period and then proceeded to outscore the invaders, 12-7, in the fourth round.
A free toss by Bobby Evans, leading scorer for Big Spring, with ten seconds left to play deadlocked the tally.
In the three-minute overtime, Zay LeFevre tossed in two field goals, and Ronnie Hamby one while Evans responded with another Annie Oakley to offset a field goal by Cathedral's Richard Garcia. Tony Aranda and Rudy Boeta.

Odessans Lead In Fem Meet

Thelma Winn of the Big Spring Clover Bowl and Lee Harris, representing the Colonial Shutters of Lubbock, forged into the lead in individual play after the first shift had wound up play in the annual Women's Invitational Bowling tournament here Saturday evening.
Thelma had a scratch game of 212 and Lee a scratch series of 561.
Colonial Shutters dominated team play after the first round, posting 655-3477.
Here's the way the teams stood (handicaps included) immediately prior to the 3 p.m. shift:
Roy Ellingson's Pro Shop, Odessa; 2. Colonial Shutters, Lubbock; 3. Clover Bowl, Big Spring; 4. Gerald's Tigers, Andrews; 5. Coor's, Big Spring; 6. Leach Oil Company, Big Spring; 7. Hospital Night Owls, San Marcus; 8. Andrews Ramblers, Andrews; 9. Artios Advertising Co., Midland; 10. Bell Telephone, Big Spring.
Lots Childrens of Cecil's Liquor Store, Odessa, proceeded to bowl a 225 in the first game of the second shift and won a steak dinner from the Sands' Restaurant, Ellingson's Pro Shop's score, with handicap, was 2777. Members of the team are Chris Wilson, Marlene Long, Bernice Muckleroy, Doris Leverich and LaVerne Sturdivant.
A total of 63 teams entered. San Marcus received a gift from Fisher's for having come the farthest distance.
The tournament will continue on through today and be concluded next weekend.

Breckenridge Bucs Trounce Lamesa In Playoffs, 32-0

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (AP)—Breckenridge, the defending Class AAAA champion, smashed Lamesa's Golden Tornados 32-0 in a bi-district game Saturday before 5,000 fans.
Breckenridge will play Andrews Saturday afternoon at Andrews in the quarter-finals.
The issue here was never in doubt. Lamesa fullback Howard Westmoreland fumbled on the first play from scrimmage and Genn Dixon, Breckenridge's great lineman, recovered on Lamesa's 39. Eight plays later fullback Dickie Rogers crashed left tackle for one yard and the score.
Breckenridge scored twice in the second quarter. Billy West got one

Coyotes Move In 2nd Half

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—After being held to a 6-6 halftime deadlock, Wichita Falls out loose for a 34-6 triumph over Amarillo Saturday in the Class AAAA schoolboy football playoffs.
The victory sends Wichita Falls against Abilene here next Saturday in the quarterfinals.
The Wichita Falls Coyotes marched 92 yards in 19 plays to score in the first quarter, with fullback Larry Shields plowing over from the 1-yard line.
Amarillo's Sandies got back into the game in the second period when quarterback Currie Bechtel passed to halfback Bill Reid on a 62-yard scoring play.
Ball control told the story thereafter. Amarillo had possession for only 14 plays in the first half and 11 more the rest of the game.
Wichita Falls gained 430 yards on the ground, 28 in the air and registered 29 first downs. Amarillo rushed for 59 yards, passed for 68 and had 4 firsts.

Mustang Play Ends With TCU Contest

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Southern Methodist withdrew itself from consideration, if any, for the Liberty Bowl Saturday.
George Kerrigan, vice-president of the Liberty Bowl, called Lester Jordan, Southern Methodist sports publicity director, from Atlanta after SMU had lost to Texas Christian 19-0.
He asked Jordan what he thought about it. Jordan replied that on the basis of Saturday's showing he didn't think SMU deserved consideration for the game. Jordan thanked Kerrigan for his interest.
SMU wound up with a season record of 5-4-1.

Lamarque Ussets Nederland, 20-14

NEDERLAND, Tex. (AP)—The Lamarque Tigers grabbed a 20-0 halftime lead and held on to stun the favored Nederland Bulldogs, 20-14, here Saturday and advance into the second round of Class AAA bi-district playoffs.
Quarterback Lynn Etheredge, who engineered a brilliant game, punched over the first touchdown with a one-yard keep, topping a 90-yard sustained drive, early in the second quarter.
Nederland fumbled on the first play of the ensuing kickoff, and fullback Bobby Barker punched over the other two Lamarque TD's, from one-hard-yard and a two-yard smash.

 Sundown ran up a 46-6 lead at half time and then had to scrap like all get-out to discourage a fired-up Menard outfit in winning a Class A Regional championship football game here Friday afternoon, 60-24.

There was never any doubt about the outcome, although Menard switched tactics following the intermission and ground out a lot of yardage. The Yellow Jackets outscored the Roughnecks in the final two periods, 18-14.

The victory qualified the District 3-A power for a game next week-end with Stinson, which beat Idaho Thursday. The triumph was the 11th in 12 starts for the Roughies. Menard ended its season with a 10-2 record.

Fullback Lewis Sessums scored for Sundown the first time the Big Red had the ball, going 51 yards up the middle after finding a huge hole in the Menard line. Only 1:55 minutes of play had elapsed, Haskell (Butch) Davis bruised across for the two extra points and Sundown led, 8-0.

With 4:30 to go in the opening period, quarterback Robert Foster climaxed a 48-yard Sundown drive by scoring from the one on a fourth down play and halfback David McInturff added two points on a run to make it 16-0.

With 2:55 to go in Round One, Sundown counted again when Davis bolted 59 yards up the middle following recovery of a Menard bobble and McInturff powered across for the two points to make it 24-0.

Davis intercepted a Menard pass a short time later and Sundown beat the first period clock to score again. Davis had traveled 20 yards to the Jackets' 27 after picking off the aerial, after which Foster counted on a keeper play. McInturff again came through with the double conversion on a run and Sundown led, 32-0.

Ronny Evans, sub quarterback, made it 38-0, Sundown, early in the second when he passed to end Ron Strader, good for nine yards. The march covered 31 yards. The try for point was no good.

Halfback Sie Rhea Ellis, a stellar performer for Menard all afternoon, finally broke the ice for Menard when he scored from six yards away on a pitchout from Curtis Leggett, at the end of a 58-yard offense. The try for point failed and Menard trailed, 38-6.

A 15-yard pass from Foster to McInturff clicked for another Sun-dow score, shortly before the half and Sessums added two extra points on a run to make it 46-6, Sundown. The TD drive covered 58 yards.

The tide turned somewhat in the third when Menard began to take the ball away from Sundown but the Jackets had too far to go. Menard, after Clayburne Powell had recovered the first of two bobbles out on the Roughies' 34, scored when fullback Bill Castleberry boomed four yards across the double stripes.

It took Menard about four minutes to score again after Powell had recovered his second bobble on Sundown's 46. This time, Ellis raced five yards to the payoff window. That left the score at 41-14, Sundown.

Sessums broke loose on a 46-yard scoring run up the middle before the third quarter ended at the end of an 80-yard march and Davis whizzed around left end to make it 54-18.

Each team scored once in the fourth period.

Joe Caddell, a Sundown guard, pounced on a fumble by a team mate in the Menard end zone after Foster had intercepted a Menard aerial and returned to the Jackets' 17. The touchdown play itself covered only two yards.

Joe Speck, converted from a guard to a halfback during the game, went one yard with 13 seconds left in the game for Menard's final touchdown. The drive carried 36 yards.

The crowd, which sat in 48-degree weather on a sunlight afternoon, was estimated at 2,000.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—George Vollmar, 20, an end on the North Carolina State football team, was one of six youths injured Saturday in a highway collision. Vollmar, home for the Thanksgiving holiday, was in good condition in a hospital with a possible elbow fracture and a knee injury.

Yankees To Play 22 Night Games

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees have scheduled 22 night games at home, the same as last season, for the 1960 American League season. Their home schedule, which opens April 22 against Baltimore, includes eight Sunday and two holiday double-headers. The holiday twinnings will be against Washington, Memorial Day, and Boston, Labor Day.

Billy Hunter Wins Over Alex Miteff

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Hunter, a split decision winner over Argentina's Alex Miteff, moves on to a Dec. 18 match with Eddie Machen if things go according to schedule.

Teddy Brenner, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, said he had a wire from Machen's manager agreeing to let his heavyweight meet the winner of Friday night's Garden 10-round match.

George Gairford, who handles Hunter's affairs, will leap at a match with Machen. The Redding, Calif. scrapper is ranked No. 4 among the contenders for Ingemar Johansson's crown. Hunter is No. 7.

cover the deep cut over his left eye, didn't agree with the split decision for Hunter.

"He run away. He no fight," Miteff said. "I thought I was winning easy to the seventh round. I knocked him down in the ninth. So, I didn't win the last round but I thought I won the fight."

Judge Charlie Rosen agreed. He had Miteff ahead 6-4. But Referee Ruby Goldstein (5-4-1) and Judge Leo Birnbaum (6-4) made Hunter the winner. The AP card was 5-1 for Hunter, who got off fast in each round except the first when he was confused by Miteff's switch to a southpaw style.

Bowl Gold Harvest To Be Tremendous

Nearly 2½ million dollars awaits the schools and conferences involved in college football's seven major bowl games, an Associated Press survey showed Sunday.

Based on last year's take at the Rose, Cotton, Sugar, Orange and Gator bowls plus estimated receipts and guarantees at the two new big ones—Houston's Bluebonnet and Philadelphia's Liberty—the total carry-away sum will be about $2,450,000. It could approximate 2½ millions if the Houston and Philadelphia bowls are sell-outs.

The amounts include receipts for radio and television.

Last Jan. 1, California of the now-dissolved Pacific Coast Conference and Iowa of the Big Ten each carted off about $410,000 from the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. Cal's cut of the total was two shares while the other PCC teams got one share each. Iowa, on the other hand, kept a third of the $410,000, while a third went to the Big Ten commissioner's office, and a third to the other conference teams.

The same sort of split remains in effect on the coast this year, even though the PCC has broken up.

The Cotton Bowl teams combined for $355,000, the Sugar Bowl clubs for $320,000, the Orange Bowl teams for $370,000 and the Gator Bowl teams for $180,000 the last time the bowls were played and similar income is anticipated this time.

Here's a brief rundown on each: Cotton Bowl—$177,000 to each team. The Southwest Conference representative gets about $77,000 of this sum, plus expenses, and the other SWC schools share in the remainder. If the visiting team is an independent, it keeps the $177,000. If it happens to be a Southeastern Conference team or an Atlantic Coast Conference team, there are qualifications. The SEC, for instance, permits a team to keep no more than $85,000 from a bowl appearance. What's left goes to the conference.

Sugar Bowl—Last Jan. 1, LSU got $85,000—The SEC limit—and the other $75,000 from its share went to the commissioner's office and the 11 other conference schools. Clemson of the ACC took $80,000 and another $80,000 went to the conference office and the seven other conference members.

Orange Bowl—Oklahoma of the Big Eight and Independent Syracuse each received $185,000. Oklahoma kept half and the other half went to the other conference members.

Gator Bowl—Mississippi and Florida each received $89,000 and kept $85,000 since both are SEC members. Remainder went to the SEC.

Both the Bluebonnet and Liberty bowls have guaranteed competing teams $100,000 apiece. The Bluebonnet says that amount would increase to over $150,000 each with a 78,000-seat sellout. The Liberty Bowl's $100,000 guarantee is based on a minimum crowd of 40,000 or so at the 100,000-seat Philadelphia Municipal Stadium. A sellout would mean a team take of $200,000 or more apiece.

OVER CATHEDRAL

Jay LeFevre Leads Herd To 62-60 Win

The Big Spring Steers got their 1959-60 season off on the right foot Friday night when they edged El Paso Cathedral in an overtime here, 62-60.

The Longhorns apparently had the contest won in regulation time but the Irish staged a strong rally to tie up the engagement just before the final gun at 56-56.

At one stage early in the third period, Big Spring boasted a 36-23 advantage.

The shorter visitors were out-rebounding the locals, however and Richard Garcia led an uprising that all but blew the Steers off the court.

In the overtime, Jay LeFevre scored on a tipin that put the Longhorns ahead, 58-56, but Manuel Carrasco scored a two-pointer for Cathedral to tie it up again.

Garcia committed a foul on Jay LeFevre, however, and the local lad made both his free shot offerings to send the Longhorns back out in front, 60-58. Arlen Brayton all but put the game out of reach when he hit a bucket from the side for Big Spring. Garcia got a two-pointer for the Irish shortly before the end came.

Jay LeFevre had a big night in scoring for Big Spring, hitting for 31 points. Garcia wound up with 25 for the visitors.

Cathedral never led during the game and actually never was very close until the last three minutes of the regulation game.

San Angelo Loses To Killeen Five

KILLEEN (SC)—The Killeen Kangaroos defeated the San Angelo Bobcats, 66-50, in a practice basketball game here Friday night.

David Warner led San Angelo in scoring with 15 points while Gary McBride had 24 for the winners.

Thomson Winner Of Links Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Australia's Peter Thomson fired a final round of 67 and 69 Saturday and won the $3,600 Melbourne Pro Golf Tournament with a 94-hole total of 339.

Thomson, who wound up 26 under par for five rounds on the par 72 course, won by seven strokes from his winning Canada Cup partner, Kel Nagle. Wales' David Thomas and Angel Miguel of Spain tied for third with 348.

4 TEAMS IN RUNNING FOR SWC CAGE TITLE

By The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference basketball campaign opens this week with every team in action, Southern Methodist on an important midwestern tour.

Arkansas, one of the championship favorites, gets going Tuesday night against the always powerful Bartlesville, Okla., Oilers but six other teams play less noteworthy opponents.

Southern Methodist launches its drive for national attention Thursday night, clashing with Minnesota at Minneapolis. Saturday night the Minnetonka meet Iowa at Iowa City.

SMU has all of its starting team of last winter back except Bobby James, who was the tragic victim of a fire at his Louisiana home. Max Williams and Wilbur Marsh, who scored 825 points between them, lead the Mustangs. There also are Kim Nash, the giant Steve Strange and Carter Crech, plus a bright sophomore, Jan Loudermilk.

Loudermilk hails from Big Spring, Texas.

SMU, Arkansas, Texas and Texas A&M are expected to fight it out for the championship, with Arkansas rated the best bet in some quarters. There are six lettermen back in the Ozarks and they include the brilliant Clyde Rhoden, who flipped in 350 points last season.

Texas has the most lettermen—10—but has the farthest to go. The Longhorns won only four out of 24 games last season. Texas will have more height than the others with 6-11 Wayne Clark, 6-8 Albert Almanza and 13 others who tower over six feet. Harold Bradley, late of Duke, is the new coach of the Longhorns.

Texas A&M has five lettermen, featuring 6-7 Wayne Lawrence, and a couple of junior college transfer stars, Pat and Don Stanley, plus bright sophomore prospect Carroll Broussard.

Baylor has five lettermen and so do Texas Christian and Texas Tech but those teams appear to lack the proper talent to fight it all over for sure. There is only one letterman for new coach Johnny Frankie to start rebuilding with.

Tuesday night Texas A&M hosts Centenary while Arkansas plays the Oilers at Bartlesville. Baylor entertains Howard Payne, Rice meets Trinity at San Antonio, Texas Christian plays Stephen F. Austin at Fort Worth, Texas takes on McMurry at Austin and Texas Tech gets New Mexico at Lubbock.

Friday night Texas Christian invades Oklahoma to play Oklahoma City University, Texas A&M hosts Trinity. Baylor clashes with Oklahoma State at Stillwater and Arkansas meets Missouri at Fayetteville.

Saturday night Baylor plays at Tulsa, Rice and Centenary get together at Houston, Arkansas plays Oklahoma State at Fayetteville, Texas plays Trinity at Austin and Texas Tech goes to Boulder to joust with Colorado.

Elmer Tarbox, local automobile dealer, who developed a set of weights for athletes' legs and arms and found them in great demand around the country, shows Mrs. Alpha Morrison the Kick-Gage, which shows track runners and gridlers the correct way to place their feet in order to insure explosive starts. The Kick-Gage was perfected by the ACC coaching staff and is being sold by Tarbox's concern around the country.

Charnley And Brown Vie On Wednesday

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Joe Brown, busiest champion of them all, risks his world's lightweight boxing title an eighth time in 39 months Wednesday night against Dave Charnley, the muscular British Empire champion.

The scheduled 15-round match in the Houston Coliseum between the 135-pounders will be a repeat of most of Brown's defenses—age against youth.

Houston's fourth title fight in less than two years is expected to draw a crowd of about 10,000 and a gate in excess of $50,000. The fight will be televised nationally, starting at 10 p. m., EST, with the Houston area blacked out.

Like most of the other challengers, Charnley began his first visit to the United States two weeks ago by reminding everyone Brown is rather old.

Brown is 34, Charnley 24. But the Negro champion from Baton Rouge, La., and Houston insists he will keep right on winning until he is ready to retire. Charnley will be his 104th opponent as a pro.

The champion is a bit concerned, however, about one of Charnley's trademarks. Charnley is a left-hander. Brown has never lost to a southpaw but has run into trouble.

The last left-hander Brown met was Kenny Lane. He was pushed the full 15 rounds last year before taking a decision over the young Michigan battler, whose style and features resemble Charnley's.

Like Lane, Charnley also gets his first chance at the title while never having been knocked off his feet. A boilermaker by trade, Charnley began boxing at the age of 14 and has won 35 fights, lost 40 and fought one draw. He has 20 knockouts.

The champion and challenger will split the gate 40-20, and Charnley may return to London with the largest check he has ever collected. Brown's three previous defenses here drew gates of $68,740, $69,303 and $61,155.

Charnley's largest check so far was the $12,000 for the match in which he won the British crown from Willie Towel on May 12. Charnley also took a decision from Don Jordan shortly before Jordan won the world welterweight title. The boyish-faced Briton has been impressive since he established a training camp here. Towel himself added to the possibilities of a Houston upset by defeating Len Matthews, the No. 5 lightweight challenger, in New York last week.

Charnley is the No. 3 challenger and hopes to return the lightweight crown to England for the first time since Freddie Welsh defeated Willie Ritchie 44 years ago. Great Britain has not owned a world title since Randy Turpin held the middleweight crown for only 90 days after beating Sugar Ray Robinson in 1951.

Brown and Charnley have not seen each other box.

Brown won the title Aug. 24, 1956, from Wallace (Bud) Smith in 15 rounds in New Orleans. He has defended against Smith, Orlando Zuleta, Joey Lopez, Ralph Dupas, Lane, Johnny Busso and Paolo Rossi.

Brown's 75-16-12 record includes 35 knockouts.

The Charnley contract calls for a rematch within 90 days should the Briton win. Promoters from Los Angeles and Miami will be here Wednesday, hoping to land the rematch for Brown's next title defense.

Boston College Tips Crusaders

By BOB GREEN

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Boston College, turned an intercepted pass and a recovered fumble into four quarter touchdowns Saturday and beat old rival Holy Cross 14-0 in the 56th meeting of the two Jesuit institutions.

Vin Hogan, a sure footed 180-pound halfback, scurried through the mud and rain for both touchdowns, one on a three-yard swoop of end and another on a 35-yard pass play from Johnny Amabile.

BC fullback Frank Robotti, who saw only limited service because of a leg injury, pounced on a Holy Cross fumble on the Crusaders' 40 to set up the first touchdown.

Eagle linebacker Jim Connolly pulled a bit of larceny to provide the second.

Holy Cross quarterback Ken Komodzinski passed to end Bernie Buzynski, but Connolly stole the ball from his arms, ripping it out of his grasp, on the Boston College 49.

Two plays later Amabile hit Hogan with short pass, the halfback outran one defender, ran over another, then outran still a third down the sidelines for the final touchdown.

Boston College Coach Mike Holovac, whose contract expires this season and has been under some fire for the Eagles' 5-4 record, was carried off the field after the game.

A crowd of about 23,000 sat through a steady drizzle and watched the teams resort to a punting duel through three mud-spattered quarters.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

One of the big names in West Texas track next spring is sure to be a Negro youth named Maurice Burnett, who will be wearing the colors of HCJC. Burnett attended West Oso High School near Corpus Christi and was recommended to coach Red Lewis and was recommended to coach Red Lewis of the Jayhawks by the Corpus Christi Miller track mentor, John Neely, who formerly ran for Victoria Junior College.

Burnett has been giving another HCJC sprinter, Jim Bob Thomas, a fit in the practice sprints and already has a 9.9 clocking to his credit. Thomas, of course, is the great Fort Worth North Side youngster who once ran a wind-aided 9.4 hundred. Right now, it appears that Jim Bob will prevail in the hundred but Burnett will reign supreme in the 220 and the quarter. Lewis put the watch on Maurice in a 300-yard sprint and instructed the boy to run about 7.8ths full speed. Burnett was timed in 32 seconds. The great Bobby Morrow's best time at that distance was 29 flat. Lewis has no worries about Burnett making his grades. He was the fourth highest in his West Oso graduating class.

West Oso is an integrated school. Eugene Franklin, Abilene hurdler; Neely Wolfarth, Seminole half-miler; and Franklin Snow of Pampa, who also runs the 880, are others Hawks who have been showing to advantage. Both Wolfarth and Snow have been clocked in 1:57 in the half mile. The Hawks will probably open their season in a practice meet with some of the Abilene schools in February. In three varsity games against Baylor, SMU's fabulous Don Meredith completed 33 of 55 passes, gained 541 yards, threw for four touchdowns and scored two more himself. He hurled touchdown aerials on first plays from scrimmage in each of the last two games against the Bears. Baylor should give him an honorary degree to make sure that he gets out of school. That free-top tall Midland High School basketball team opened its 1959-60 season with an 82-36 victory over Odessa Ector the other night. Mike Marsh, 6-foot-8, led the way with 17 points.

'Handicaps' Being Sold In Europe

That Deater Baptist College basketball team will have played eight games by the time it arrives here Monday night to oppose HCJC. The Baptists recently beat Lon Morris, 77-75, and own two wins over Tartleton. Elmer Tarbox, the local automobile dealer, says those weights he developed to help athletes' legs and arms. He invested in a new leather stitching machine and took an extra help to speed up production. Jon Markham, the sophomore from Odessa, was promoted to the first team at Baylor shortly before the Bears' football game yesterday with Elce Institute. A center at Odessa, Markham was switched to left tackle by John Bridgers, the Bruin mentor. The Sophomore League recently added El Paso and Albuquerque, although neither city yet has a working agreement. In addition, the Roswell club was transferred to Hobbs. Odessa, Plainview and Alpine are the three Texas cities which now have franchises in the Soph circuit. They say Bob Harrell definitely will not be back as the San Angelo coach and wouldn't have returned, even had his team won district. School boards have been known to change their minds before, however, and the trustees might decide they can't do better. Ronnie Clanton, the Big Spring back who scored 13 or 4 touchdowns against Odessa Permian recently, wasn't eligible for varsity ball here as a sophomore because he had lived in Lubbock the year before. However, he has spent practically all of his life in Big Spring and is born here. Ronnie said he thought he was dreaming when he began to enjoy such outstanding success against Permian.

Attorney Played For Winning Teams

John Burgess, the city attorney here, was quarterback on the Huntsville High School football team that won 30 and lost only six games over a period of three seasons. He played the same position on the Del Mar Junior College team which appeared in a bowl game and won 20 games while losing two during his stay there. He wound up his football career at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls. Maxie Beer, the former boxing champion who died recently, had been lined up to serve as the third man in the ring for the Dave Charney-Joe Brown, Lightweight championship fight in Houston Wednesday night. Vince DiFrancesca, the former Iowa State grid mentor, coached the Carroll (Wisc.) College team to a 5-2-1 season this year. DiFrancesca was with a hospital supply firm and then served as dean of men at Ferris Institute in Wisconsin for a while, after leaving Iowa State. Camillo Pascual, the former Big Spring hurler who made good in the big leagues, probably would have been a better choice for the Most Valuable Player award than the recipient, Nellie Fox. Pascual led the league in shutouts with six and most complete games with 17. He was second to Jim Bunning in strikeouts with 184 and second to Hoyt Wilhelm in low earned run averages, 2.63 to Wilhelm's 2.20. He won 17 games with a team that had the worst won-lost mark in the majors and which was dead last in team hitting and fielding. It's estimated that the defunct AAC, the National Football League's rival for several years, dropped $5 million, about half of which was absorbed by the Chicago Rockets alone. Los Angeles, San Francisco and the Cleveland clubs were the only league teams to show a profit and the latter two teams merged with the NFL when peace was forged in 1949. Spec Gammon, the Odessa scribe, says Lacy Turner loves football coaching and, no doubt, will remain as head mentor of the Odessa Branch. Norm Cash, the Post-Tex. youth who reaped some of the World Series gold while performing for Chicago in the last classic, is leading the Occidental league in hitting (.406) in Venezuela.

Soph Leads Irish Past USC, 16-6

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Eighteen-year-old sophomore full-back Gerry Gray accounted for 14 points Saturday in leading Notre Dame to a 16 to 6 victory over seventh-ranked Southern California. Playing before a crowd of 48,682 in 29-degree weather, Notre Dame used a perfect blend of sophomores and seniors in handling the Trojans their second loss of the season. Southern Cal has won eight straight. The victory helped the Irish turn in a 50-30 season of 5-5. Gray, of Baltimore, set up Notre Dame's first touchdown with a 36-yard run followed by a plunge into the end zone from the two-yard line. He scored Notre Dame's second touchdown in the third quarter on another plunge. Seconds later he gave the Irish two more points by nailing Angelo Coia in the Southern Cal end zone for a safety. Gray's performance was helped

Deadline Is Near For League Entry

Those desiring to enter teams in the YMCA Church Basketball league must notify the Y of their intentions by Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. Thus far, only three teams have entered into competition and prospects for the league operating are considered none too good.

Woolpert To Quit For One Campaign

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — What happens when a basketball coach decides he's not doing as well as he should? When he finds himself becoming irritable and sleepless? Phil Woolpert, at 43 one of the nation's most successful coaches, decided to take a one-year leave of absence from the University of San Francisco to "Stash back and take a good healthy look at the whole situation."

The reason: "Tension, pure and simple. Here we are, three days before the season even begins and I can't sleep. I talked to the people at USF and to my doctor Wednesday. The doctor said I would get away from the whole thing for a year."

Woolpert's announcement came late Friday.

The young defensive strategist produced two national championship teams during his nine years as head coach at USF. At one stretch, from Dec. 15, 1954, to Dec. 17, 1956, Woolpert's green-jerseyed Dons won 60 straight games — the intercollegiate record.

Woolpert, a perfectionist, has been having trouble letting off steam. "Up to five years ago," he said, "I would rant and rave on the bench. Then our league, the West Coast Athletic Conference, put in a rule that the coaches should behave themselves on the bench."

LOOK AT ALL THOSE WONDERFUL THINGS says five-year-old Phyllis Wynn as she presses her nose against a showcase in one of the local shops. Phyllis was doing some early Christmas shopping with her grandmother, Mrs. S. F. Buchanan, when the Herald photographer caught the wistful expression on her face. Nice thing about being an early bird in shopping or looking is that you can stand and gaze at the enticing gifts as Phyllis did; she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wynn of Coahoma.

DO YOU LIKE THIS PUPPY asks Mrs. Carl Bates of Coahoma as she shows the stuffed animal to her granddaughter, Carla Bates. Carla is the 13-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bates of Coahoma. With such a menagerie to choose from, the youngster was having a hard time making up her mind when she accompanied her grandmother on the shopping trip. Seems as if she is rather partial to the panda.

WHAT IN THE WORLD SHALL I BUY HIM? ponders Mrs. John P. Greenwalt of 1505 Lexington. Sidney Mellinger tries to help her decide as she looks at new-fangled pajamas, countless shirts, sweaters, gloves, and ties searching for that just-right Christmas present for her husband. Women are always confused when trying to decide on sizes and styles in men's clothing, so, husbands, please be patient. You can always exchange the articles, you know!

ZZZ-ZZZ . . . AND UP IT GOES! Billy Owens tells Randy Jacoby who gives the count down. Pop-eye, Mickey Mouse and musical instruments have taken a back seat, this Christmas, to missiles as the younger generation gets more scientific-minded. The two boys are both third grade pupils in Cedar Crest School. Billy is the eight-year-old son Mr. and Mrs. Billy J. Owen, 1106 Pennsylvania; Randy, who is nine, is the son of Mrs. Juanita Jacoby, 305 East 11th Street.

Started Your Yule Shopping Yet?

Now is the time for all good Christmas shoppers to get busy.

With the end of the Thanksgiving holidays, it's just a hop, skip and jump into the Yule celebration, with its excitement of hidden packages, delightfully wrapped, fragrant odor of fruit cakes baking, cookie and candy making.

Add to all the culinary preparations the joyful task of decorating every part of the house and the setting up of a Christmas tree; then there's more work as well as fun.

And do you think that's all? Then think again, because there's always someone who's inspired by the glamour and glitter of the festive season to hold open house, give a tea, gather a group for a dance or otherwise entertain. You don't want to be forced to refuse an invitation just because you "have to stay at home and work" do you?

Right now, as these far-sighted folks on this page have found, stocks are fresh and rather complete; clerks are not worn to a frazzle with work and their own question of "What shall I give Aunt Mary?" Browsing around in the stores, which at this time are not overly crowded, will perhaps help with the answer of what to give. It's fun, besides.

Another point in favor of shopping early is that the Texas weather is "pixilated" at this time of the year, and it's wise to take advantage of a day when you are not blown and buffeted about by a stiff north wind or maybe when Jack Frost has swooped down during the night with an icy blanket over the streets and walks.

And does this reminder make your blood run cold—"Only 22 more shopping days 'til Christmas". Probably does.

Happy Shopping!

MM-MMM-MM, THAT SMELLS GOOD decides West Texan B. R. Busby as he tries to make up his Christmas-present-filled mind. Mrs. Granville Glenn assists Busby, a deputy sheriff, who has lived in Big Spring for 32 years. Perfumes and colognes are favorites with men when they choose Christmas gifts, and lucky the girl who receives her chosen fragrance. One way to insure that is a subtle mention of the name in a casual conversation—but make it soon, since early shopping is the best kind.

Make Frock's Style

No fuss, no feathers, not a sequin in sight, just the most useful dress you ever owned, this Herbert Sondheim.

Perfect for straight-from-the-office social life, it has a scoop neck, neither low nor high, trimmed in contrast (either fabric or color) that matches the piping along the skirt panel.

Four buttons decorate the wide waist band.

After-Dark
Jewelry
Adds Sparkle

There's a sharp new line between night and day in fashions this holiday season. After-dark fashions have an entirely new feeling — of quiet elegance, of a more dressy approach.

The most beautiful expression of this new feeling is in a new group of important jewelry intended to shine after dark.

This type of jewelry often uses gold settings accented with a profusion of glowing stones — or stones in new settings with a deep, dimensional look. It gives elegance, beauty and glamour to the simplest cocktail or dinner dress. It is a beautiful new look for American women this season, a look important in itself and designed to share this importance with the woman who wears it.

This big trend to "important" dressy jewelry is seen in both precious and costume, each filling its own special place in the fashion picture.

Miss Anderson
Tells Stanton Club
Of Trip To Sweden

STANTON—Joyce Anderson was guest speaker at a meeting of the Stanton Rotary Club Wednesday at Belvue Restaurant. Miss Anderson, who was introduced by Rev. W. C. Wright, discussed the trip she made during the past summer to Sweden.

Stanley Wheeler, president, was in charge of the meeting. The invocation was given by G. E. Sheldene. A song was led by the Rev. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graves spent several days recently on the Rio Grande, fishing. Granville Graves was an El Paso visitor recently.

Stanton High School Band members have made plans to march in the annual Jaycee Christmas parade Dec. 1, in Midland.

The parade is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Stanton Elementary and High School students will receive their report cards for the second six weeks of school on Monday.

Mrs. Fannie Graves has returned to Stanton after spending a year in Phoenix, Ariz., with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Art Lind and daughters. A sister of Mrs. Graves is making her home with her, following an accident two months ago in which she broke her leg.

Clean Hands

Never let a child sit down to a meal without first washing his hands with soap and water — nor let him leave the bathroom before sudsing hands carefully.

Paul Attaway, 501 Main, is the bride-elect of Delmar Hartin, son of Mrs. E. E. Hartin, 203 N. Nolan. The couple will be married in the church on Dec. 27.

A hostess, Mrs. J. W. Arnett, greeted guests and introduced Mrs. Attaway, who presented the betrothed couple. Arlene Hartin, sister of the prospective bridegroom, was also a member of the receiving line.

Another hostess, Mrs. E. E. Bryant, was at the guest book table, enhanced with an arrangement of red and white carnations, colors chosen by the bride-elect.

White lace over white linen covered the tea table, where a runner of red ribbon was caught at each end with a cluster of bells and bows. Red and white flowers on a reflector centered the table, with red tapers at each side.

Serving was done by hostesses, Mrs. George Hill and Mrs. Sage Johnson; assisting at the table were Mrs. T. H. McCann, Mrs. Leroy Hollingshead, Mrs. B. T. Faulkner, Mrs. Johnnie Winham, Mrs. James Johnson and Mrs. R. B. Murray, other hostesses.

Glen Biffar, a nephew of the honoree, assisted with the display of gifts. The hostess gift was an electric skillet.

Joining in the hostess group were Mrs. Earl Davis, Mrs. H. H. Davie, Mrs. Roy Cook, Mrs. Eck McClure, Mrs. Ray Weathers, Mrs. J. P. Gordon and Mrs. C. T. Clay.

Earrings Are Tops In New Jewelry Gifts

Since the days of Cleopatra, says the Fashion Coordination Institute, earrings have been among the most cherished and thoughtful gifts a woman can receive. A wardrobe of earrings is a must for every well-dressed woman, and the gift of them is always an implied compliment.

Because they are worn close to the face, earrings accent the beauty of complexion tone, intensify the color of eyes, and dramatize facial contours. The gift of earrings implies that someone has noticed these charms and found them worthy of adornment. For Christmas, 1959, earrings are both a warmly personal and a soundly practical gift.

Besides their power as "vanity fare," these important bits of jewelry have enormous fashion impact in this year of background colors. As a case in point, there is nothing more attractive than a pair of rich-colored earrings in emerald or ruby—precious or costume—with the season's sharply unrelieved black.

In textured gold, pearls or colorful jewels, the new earrings offer a stunning array of shapes, sizes and designs for the coming season. Round button earrings are significant for daytime wear, says the institute, and the new-looking upswept earring that follows the line of the ear is increasingly important for both daytime and after-dark. The upswept frequently intermingles diamonds with pearls; textured gold with brilliants and color.

An important trend in earrings for this winter calls for mixing and matching to achieve a new and fashion-fresh look. This is seen in gold earrings worn with pearls, and colored stones in a gold necklace. The traditional matched look of necklace and earrings continues strong, and has been elaborated to include the pairing of earrings with pin or bracelet.

Hicks-Weltmer Vows Are Taken In Big Lake

LAMESA — A double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Robert M. Hinkleman in First Methodist Church of Big Lake at 4 p.m. Saturday for Sandra Lee Weltmer and Pershing Hicks Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Weltmer of Lamesa, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pershing Hicks, Oil Field Route, Big Lake.

Mrs. Henry Schooler, organist, and Mrs. Leonard Hough, vocalist, presented the traditional program of wedding music.

Baskets of giant white mums and greenery flanked seven branched candelabra at either side of the altar to form the background for the exchange of wedding vows.

Weltmer escorted his daughter and gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of peau de soie combined with Alencon lace with scoop neckline of re-embroidered lace encrusted with seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered to petal points over the hands, and a billowing skirt was highlighted by a flat panel front embellished with scattered motifs of lace and enhanced by panel puffs which flowed to a chapel train.

Her tiered shoulder length veil of French imported silk illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of pale pink roses, white carnations and lily-of-the-valley showered with satin streamers atop a white Bible.

The bride's cousin, Karen Kay Wilson of Lubbock, was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's sister, Eva Jo Hicks, bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of shrimp colored nylon over net and taffeta with cinched waistlines of embroidered lace interlaced with matching velvet ribbon. Their headpieces were of shrimp color, and they carried Colonial bouquets of white mums.

James Whitehead of Texon was best man, and the bride's cousin, Dwayne Wilson of Lubbock, ushered.

'ROUND TOWN

With Lucille Pickle

What a wonderful Thanksgiving holiday Big Spring has had. Even if the sand kicked up a bit, the day ended clear and the rest of the days were just nippy enough to be interesting. The good old sun kept right on shining.

Today most of the visitors will be returning to their homes and those of us who were away will be coming home. We ardently pray the good Lord will bless and keep us and see us all safely to our destination.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD WOOD and their family are here from Kermit visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Rasberry.

MR. AND MRS. E. J. HEADLEE and MR. AND MRS. DEATS BEARD, all of Denton, will return to their home today after spending the weekend with Mrs. C. L. Rowe and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Beard. The Headlees were delighted with the Waring concert and just being in Big Spring when he heard the wonderful music has further endeared our town to Mr. Headlee who is a pretty good booster for Big Spring anyway.

Mr. Headlee is Mrs. Rowe's father and still circulates his newsy letter that amounts to a small paper. He started it when he was attempting to correspond with his children and made a master copy, then sent copies to members of the family. It was so popular that others asked to be put on his list. The list has grown long through the years. He says he hopes to keep it up for at least another year.

MR. AND MRS. J. W. FORRESTER were in Fort Worth Saturday to see the TCU-SMU game.

My goose bumps have finally receded and left my skin reasonably smooth after hearing the impromptu farewell song of the Pennsylvanians Thursday night. The Thanksgiving Song has been a particular favorite for years, but to have this busy troupe stand before the home of friends and sing so beautifully gave a fitting reverence to the day's ending.

The FRITZ WEHNERS were here from Colorado Springs for a visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Williamson. The visit was made merrier by the arrival of their daughter, Linda, who is a sophomore student in San Marcos College. Linda took her freshman college work at the University of Colorado.

DOYLE PHILLIPS spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Phillips. He is studying at Baylor.

SALLY COWPER, RODNEY SHEPPARD, BILL PARSONS, LYN ANDERSON, and MIKE JARRETT will be on their way back to Austin and TU today.

MRS. C. B. ARNOLD received a telephone call from her son Charles, Friday, and his excitement was great. Hunting on a ranch near Pearsall with his father, C. B. Arnold, Charles had shot two bucks and a bobcat and his father hadn't shot a thing.

TIM WILLIAMSON and GARY PICKLE will return today from the Williamson ranch near Kerrville where they have spent the weekend.

The B. T. FAULKNERS hosted a family gathering over the holidays. MR. AND MRS. J. V. FAULKNER and their children, Donnie, David and Dannie, came from Marshall and will return today accompanied by Kirk Faulkner who is attending LeTourneau College in Longview. MR. AND MRS. RAY FAULKNER, Johnnie Faye and Jeannie Raye, were also here from Marshall but returned Friday. Ben Faulkner, a Tech student, will return to Lubbock today.

Dr. and Mrs. Neal Quimby of Alamogordo, N. M., were guests of their son, Bill Quimby, and family during Thanksgiving.

Among students back for the holidays were Robert Stripling Jr. and Steve Baird from SMU.

Troubled Family

TULSA, Okla. — The Lee Huddleston family could be excused for believing it had the lion's share of trouble. First, daughter Rhonda, 2, contracted polio; Larry, 5, stuck his eye with a knife; three days later he cut his foot and under went surgery; sister, Cheryl, 4, was bitten by a dog; Larry developed tonsillitis. So did sisters Connie, 8, Rhonda and brother, Dickey, 7.

'Number Please' Is Trademark Begun By Operator in 1913

STANFORD, Ky. — Miss Jennie wasn't trying to be high falutin' like the other telephone gals thought. Just polite.

That's why she coined the phrase "Number, please."

"I like that," said a Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. official who was visiting Stanford's 73-line exchange.

A few days later a company directive notified all operators to say "Number, please," when answering the phone, and soon it became a nationwide practice.

That was on Oct. 15, 1913, when Jennie Wrenn ("I've been called Miss Jennie since I was 12") took a $4 a week job with the telephone company.

T. P. McDonald, company division manager, said Southern Bell had investigated the origin of the phrase and decided it was, sure enough, Miss Jennie who started it.

Little did she realize at the time it would become such a celebrated phrase.

Miss Jennie continued with the telephone company 45 years. Once she manned the switchboard four days and nights during a flu epidemic.

"In those days," she recalls, "a telephone operator was everything to her customers. You shared their sorrows and their joys. I felt like I was helping someone, more than you can now."

Miss Jennie said before she added "please," operators used to just say "number" when a caller picked up the phone.

Miss Jennie is not dismayed over the impersonal dial tone which has replaced the phrase. In her trim bungalow she has three telephones — red, white and blue.

Stay With Your Type

Liberty records star, Julie London, puts the accent on individuality above high fashion. She feels once you work out a type you should stay with it. She is soon to be seen in "The Voice" for 20th Century-Fox.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Julie London Says 'Be An Individual'

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — I was given Julie London's new liberty album, "Your Number, Please," as a present. After listening to it several times, I decided it was time we got together.

"I have a strong feeling about not letting yourself go," Julie told me. "I don't feel that caring for your appearance should be the determining force in your life but you should try to keep ahead of yourself."

"It is not to be dismissed as vanity. This is a very competitive world, and it is common sense to take pride in the way you look. I feel caring for yourself is not something you do for others—it gives you a lift, too."

"During the time I was married I was not career hungry," Julie confided. "Running a house well and having children was a job I enjoyed. There was a time when I thought I'd never face a camera again, but I set standards for myself. I think you have to have goals—you have to want something and be willing to work for it."

As we were chatting at 20th Century-Fox on the set of "The Voice," Julie was wearing a form revealing white evening sheath.

"I play the type of girl who picks up men," she explained.

"You look so beautiful you should have no trouble," I commented.

Julie was wearing her hair in a French twist. Her stand-in joined us. "Don't you like Julie with her hair up?" she asked. "I have been after her to wear it this way."

When the stand-in left Julie told me, "Caroline and I went to school together and have been friends ever since. I like her because I can trust her to tell me what she thinks."

"I try to stay away from dishonesty in any form. I like straight answers and I try to give them. I want to know what a person is thinking even if it is not flattering. A man once told me that he liked the emphasis I put on honest thinking. 'Women rarely do,' he said. I don't know whether this is true or not but his was a compliment I enjoyed."

"Another trait I like," Julie continued, "is tolerance. To me this means not setting yourself up to pass judgment on others. Some people don't realize that being good is easy when you are not exposed to temptation."

I noticed a lot of bottles and jars on Julie's dressing table. "I think we build up an immunity to shampoos, tooth paste and cosmetics when you use the same products constantly," Julie explained. "So I'm always changing. I must have hundreds of creams, but I never know what I am going to like until I try it."

"I like to keep a tan but my skin is dry so I am very careful about protecting it before and after sun bathing."

Julie has fair skin and blue eyes. "Were you ever a blonde?" I asked.

"I was once, for a week, but I think healthy hair is hard to beat, and I didn't like the way bleaching made mine feel," she replied.

We talked about fashion. "Don Loper is my favorite designer. I like the way his clothes make me feel," Julie declared. "They are simple, elegant and comfortable."

"I don't change easily, as I am not one for following the fashion swings. I have to go along with trends but when the hemline changed, my skirts went up only so far," Julie indicated the center of the calf.

"I am not the suit type, so I never wear them."

"I like sweaters and skirts, blue jeans and blouses, and the other extreme, formal gowns or cocktail dresses. I adore luxury but nothing overpowering. You have to form some idea of yourself or how can you have individuality?" Julie asked.

While we were talking, I was enjoying Julie's scent, which is made by one of the royal families of perfume.

"I tried to find something that was not too popular, that men liked and that would stay with you. I like perfume," Julie said, "and I always wear it."

Entertainers Have 6700 Attend Public Wedding

So you think you had a big wedding . . . A couple who recently moved to Big Spring had 6,700 in attendance at theirs.

"We would have had more, but it rained," said Jack Williams.

Helen and Jack Williams were married in Golden Oaks Park at Rogersville, Pa., Aug. 24, 1957. The bride wore a doekin riding habit and boots, and the bridegroom wore a Western-style suit, cowboy boots, and white Stetson.

"This was a show business wedding," says attractive Mrs. Williams.

Both Helen and Happy Jack, as he is known to radio and television audiences, entered show business at an early age.

"When I was 6 I started playing the guitar in my family's band. My father was the champion fiddler of West Virginia for years, and he taught all of his three sons to play," relates Jack.

When Jack first became interested in the guitar he wasn't large enough to hold one. His brothers would leave their prop up in a corner of their room and the little boy would crawl behind it and plunk the strings.

He now plays the guitar, fiddle, bass fiddle, mandolin, and "all the other stringed instruments."

When Williams was 14 years old, he began entertaining in the field of country music without his family. Eventually he had a band of his own.

Helen, who is the daughter of a North Carolina preacher, started singing when she was 4 years old. At 14 she turned professional, and all during high school made her spending money singing with various bands. She began working for Jack's brother's band, and it was here that she met her future husband.

After the Williams' spectacular wedding in Pennsylvania, they lived in Arkansas, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Louisiana, New York, Kentucky and North Carolina.

Their four children, 11-year-old Bobby Ralph, 9-year-old twins Ricky and Randy, and 6-year-old Johnny, are an immense source of pride to the parents.

"In as many schools as they have been in all over the country," says Helen Williams, "they have made nothing but As and Bs on their report cards."

Of all the places the family has been, they are the happiest in Texas, Jack Williams declares.

"We hope we can get enough people out here to enjoy country music so that we can live here permanently, the entertainer says.

Dresses For Toddler, Doll Can Be Matched

DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

The life-size doll is a headliner in Santa's toy pack this year—and it will be even more prized if doll and real-life playmate are dressed alike.

You can make a life-size doll, using a standard pattern which gives detailed instructions for cutting, stitching and stuffing a 34-inch doll, just the size of a two-year-old child.

A smart mother will make the doll and then make look-alike dresses for doll and little girl, using a regular size two pattern.

Experts advise that you use an automatic zigzag stitch in the body construction of the doll, to prevent ripping. For best results, first straight-stitch the seam on the wrong side, then use a narrow zigzag stitch next to the line of straight stitching to reinforce the seam. The flexibility and additional "give" in the zigzag stitch prevent dolly from coming apart at the seams.

Charming Christmas outfits for doll and little girl are little cotton-print dresses with color-coordinated corduroy jumper. The doll pattern includes panties, slip and shoes.

Look-Alikes

The life-size doll and the matching dresses are easily made from standard patterns. Doll is about 34 inches tall; the dresses are made from a size two pattern.

Night Lights

Good night vision is important to avoid driving accidents. The driver should be able to adapt rapidly to darkness after exposure to light. Glare resistance decreases with age. Other nighttime hindrances, are flashing signs, reflections, dirty windshields, lights inside the car and dark glasses. Physiological ability to see at night is reduced by alcohol, carbon monoxide, excess smoking and lack of oxygen. Remember always to lower or dim headlights for approaching cars and also for cars you approach from the rear.

Sun And Sight

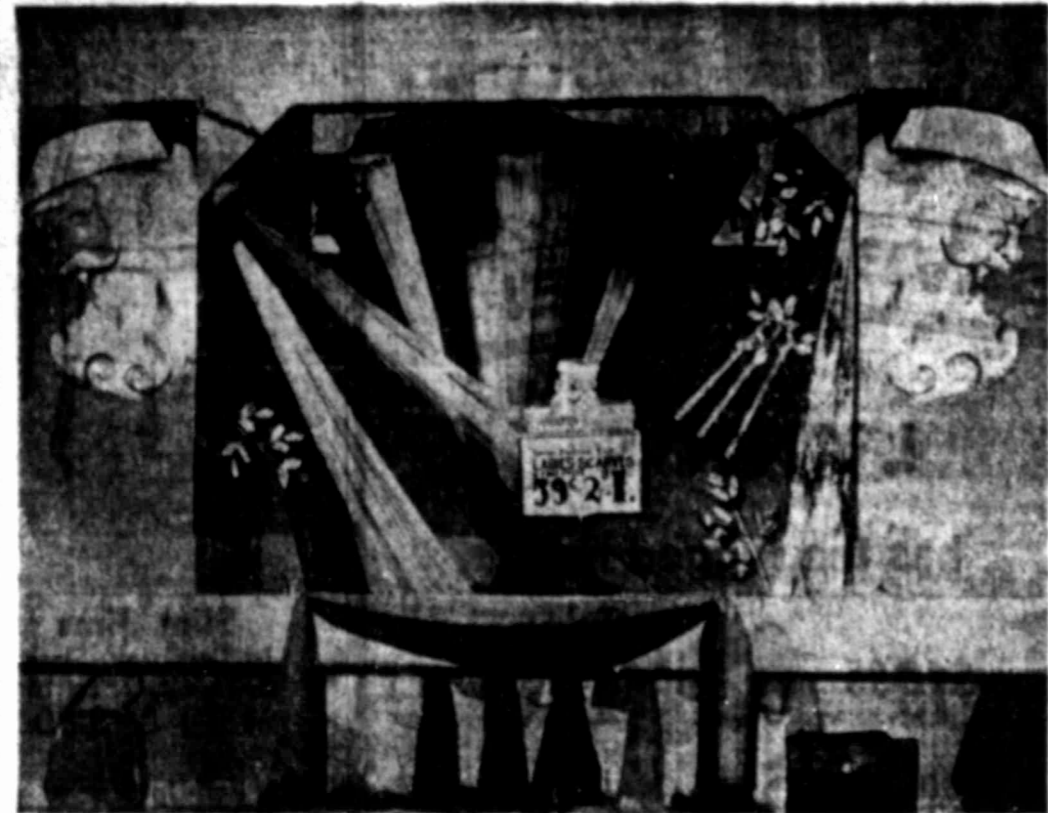

Failure to protect the eyes in bright sunlight leads to a possible loss of night vision. You can't see sufficiently to drive safely. The bright sunlight uses up "visual purple," a chemical on the retina of the eye. When the retina is exposed to excessive sunlight, normal seeing power is reduced, say researchers.

Delinquency Clue

Defective eyesight may contribute to juvenile delinquency. It is estimated that 75 per cent of our delinquents have some reading dificulties. Poor vision is a major cause of poor reading; the frustration of below-standard reading ability, as compared with school-mates, may cause a great sense of inferiority. When this sense of inferiority causes a child to withdraw from competition with others with a longing for attention, you have the basis for trouble.

Anthony's purchased thousands of these beautiful scarves to bring them to you at this low, low price.

MRS. GILBERT SEAY BROWN

Miss Schermerhorn Is Bride Of Gilbert Brown

Of widespread interest in Big Spring and the West Texas area is the wedding of Linda Schermerhorn to Ens. Gilbert Seay Brown, Saturday evening in the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, Dallas.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Franklin Schermerhorn, member of an oldtime Big Spring family, and the late R. F. Schermerhorn. Former residents of this city, the Schermerhorns now live in Dallas.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Prather Brown of Dallas.

DOUBLE RING RITES

The double ring ceremony was read by Dr. Arthur V. Brand, pastor of the church, as the bridal party stood before a background of cathedral tapers banked in greenery, with the center of interest a silver cross on the altar.

Nuptial music was by Sam Parker, organist, and Frin Shiffer, soloist, who sang O Perfect Love.

Mrs. Schermerhorn gave her daughter in marriage.

Silk satin of pearl white fashioned the bridal gown, with a circle neckline, elbow sleeves, accented with winged cuffs and narrow bows, were complemented with short white gloves. The smooth lines of the princess skirt swept into a cathedral train.

Mounted on French silk illusion, the veil, a panel of heriotom duchesse and rosepoint lace, extended the length of the train. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, white camellias and lilies of the valley.

Susan Schermerhorn was her sister's maid of honor; she chose a formal gown of gold taffeta and carried a cascade of red baccara roses.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. R. G. Gomez Jr.; Diana Hawn, Gertrude Jackson, all of Dallas; Mrs. S. Clay Elliott of Austin, and Mrs. H. G. Chilton Jr. of Baltimore, Md.

Jack Brown Jr. of Dallas served as his brother's best man; groomsmen were James T. Elliott Jr., Harold J. Griffith, Jeda Hallman, J. L. Martin and Thomas L. Peeler III, all of Dallas. Guests were seated by Stuart D. Kershner of Houston; S. Clay Elliott of Austin; John B. Brown of Chicago, Ill., a cousin of the bridegroom.

Cynthia Skiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Skiles of Dallas, was the flower girl, and rings were carried by the bride's cousin, Scott Merrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Merrick of Cottonport, La.

RECEPTION

During the reception, held at Brook Hollow Country Club, the bridal couple was assisted by Mrs. Schermerhorn in receiving guests; also extending greetings were Robert Ryer Schermerhorn, brother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Prather Brown.

At the bride's book was Mrs. George C. Dunlap of Dallas. Other members of the house party were Mrs. Peter A. Rush, Mrs. Bruce M. Dougherty Jr., Casoline Jolliff of Palestine, Tex., and Kathleen Hamilton of Mesquite.

Guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hill and Mrs. Granville T. Hall of Big Spring; others were present from San Angelo, Austin, Tulsa, Okla., and Cottonport, La.

The new Mrs. Brown, who attended the University of Texas and Southern Methodist University, is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, in which she is a pan-hellenic officer.

Ens. Brown, a graduate of the University of Texas, with a degree in petroleum engineering, is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha having served as its president.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco and Mexico City, the couple will be at home in San Diego, Calif.

Little Gifts Can Be Stocking Stuffers

The little gift can make the big difference! And, often, it is a wonderful table favor or stocking stuffer.

A cosmetic house offers these Christmas delights:

A group of colognes in fluted glass bottles, each clasped by a curly-haired, gold-winged angel.

Fragrances are Nosegay, Figuring and White Liane.

An eye make-up set, combining automatic mascara, iridescent eye-shadow stick and golden eye-duo pencil (an eyebrow pencil at one end and a finer lead for eye liner at the other). All three are tucked into a soft golden purse.

A golden compact for pressed powder, refillable, along with a brushed silver, refillable lipstick, in a new make-up set. Also available separately.

A deluxe, refillable lipstick, in gold and silver, vertically-ribbed case. A deluxe, refillable vanity, in gold and silver, for pressed powder, lipstick and vanity are packaged in gold and white boxes, singly, and in a set.

To coax gleaming and healthy hair, a natural-bristle hairbrush with handsome satinwood handle, in gold gift box with clear plastic top, tied with blue ribbon. In a variety of shapes and sizes, for long or short hair; there's also one for men.

Advent Of December Brings Plans For Festivities Of Clubs

A flip of the calendar to make the date December seems to be the signal for clubs to gather for yuletide programs and parties.

Climax of the festive affairs for organizations will probably be the Christmas party scheduled for the Big Spring State Hospital patients on the evening of Dec. 22, when members of the groups will assist with entertainment, distribution of gifts and refreshments.

Previous to that time, clubs will gather at their regular sessions or have special occasions for holiday activities.

Scheduled for Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Travis Carlton, 1701 Harvard is the 1959 Hyperion Club's Christmas party, when Ira D. Schantz of the Howard County Junior College music department, is slated to present a program.

Christmas in Foreign Lands will be discussed by Mrs. Joseph Riley for members of the 1953 Hyperion Club Wednesday afternoon when they meet in the home of Mrs. Hayes Stripling, 613 Edwards.

Wednesday is also the date set by the Big Spring Garden Club for the Christmas program which will be given in the home of Mrs. John Davis, 601 Edwards Circle. Mrs. Robert Stripling will show slides of famous Christmas trees, and members will give new ideas for decorations on Christmas trees.

HOLIDAY TEA

A Christmas tea is planned by the Forsan Study Club for Thursday evening at 7:30. Members and guests will gather at the school for the party.

December 9 will be a busy day for clubs with the party for all units in the Home Demonstration Council to take place in the afternoon at HJC in the old student union building; Mrs. Rex Baggett, 1507 Aylford, will be hostess for the Oasis Garden Club's Christmas party on that day, and The Music Study Club will entertain with a program of sacred music.

Gathering at St. Paul Presbyterian Church, the musicians and their guests will hear Christmas music and will then go to the home of Mrs. H. M. Jarratt, 429 Edwards, for a tea hour.

Mrs. Clyde Thomas Jr. is to present a book review for members of the Woman's Forum, according to an announcement made of the holiday party for that group. Mrs. Merrill Creighton, 208 Washington Blvd., will be hostess for the unit on Dec. 11.

A Christmas luncheon will entertain members of the Modern Woman's Forum on Dec. 11, when they meet in the home of Mrs. J. D. Leonard, Roberts Drive. Mrs. Hugh Duncan and Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas are to be hostesses.

Another holiday luncheon will be the one on Dec. 13 for the Altrusa Club. Members will be guests in the home of Mrs. J. B. Apple, 419 Westover, for the luncheon and a gift exchange.

CAROLING PARTY

Caroling will take the spotlight at the party slated by the Junior Woman's Forum on Dec. 15. The group will assemble at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Draper, 1808 Benton, at 7 p.m. and will return there for the conclusion of the evening activities.

December 15 is also the date on which the members of the After-Five Garden Club will have their yule observance. Christmas arrangements made by members are to be brought for judging at the meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. J. E. Smith, Western Hills.

Other groups have announced plans for celebration of the season, but definite dates and places have not been selected in many cases.

For Swiss Steak

Want good Swiss steak? Choose chuck or round beef that is one or two inches thick. For extra flavor use stewed tomatoes instead of regular canned tomatoes for the liquid needed during the braising.

Foil Spuds

Wrapping potatoes in foil before baking has come into fashion because cooks have discovered that the foil keeps the potatoes hot and moist should there be a short wait before the meal is served.

Clean Toothbrush Is Important For Health
Toothbrushes grow on trees in some parts of the world! Buddhaists use a fresh brush each time they clean their teeth — because they simply pluck soft, fibrous twigs from a bush or tree, and throw these away after use!
Each of us would do well to emulate them to a certain extent — that is, by making sure our toothbrushes are in good condition.
Every toothbrush should be replaced as soon as it becomes matted, bent, or worn — even though we can't just pluck a new one from a nearby branch.

Useful Sieve
Try to get a sieve whose wire is an extremely fine mesh for your kitchen. It will come in handy many times—to strain the seeds from frozen raspberries, for example, when you want to use them for a sauce for Peach Melba.

Journalist Students At Tech Workers

LUBBOCK—Texas Tech journalism students are making their writing talents pay a long time before graduation, a survey of J-student employment reveals.

Prof. Wallace E. Garets, head of Tech's journalism department, said 21 of 76 Tech journalism majors currently enrolled are working in news writing positions this semester while 38 of the same group held full-time jobs in journalism this past summer.

All of this experience is being acquired outside the Tech journalism department. Many of the same students gain additional experience as reporters and editors on student publications such as the Foreador, tri-weekly campus newspaper, and La Ventana, Tech yearbook, Garets said.

Tech students working in the journalism field this past summer included 12 of 14 seniors who will be graduated in June 1960 and 14 of 24 Tech journalism students with junior standing this academic year. The group of 38 held positions on 18 daily papers, seven weeklies, three radio-TV stations and three magazines. One worked in a public information office, another worked in a news wire service, while others held positions in photography and advertising.

During this fall semester, seven Tech J-students are on a daily paper, one is a reporter for a weekly in the Lubbock area and two are working for radio-TV stations. Four others are in magazine writing work, three are working in public information office, two are in photo studios and two others are working in print shops.

26 Attorneys Vote On District Judge Choice

Twenty-six of the 30 members of the Howard County Bar Assn. have voted their preference for an appointee to the bench of the 118th District Court.

The bar authorized the secret ballot at a meeting ten days ago. The result of the vote will be sent to Governor Price Daniel to advise him of the bar's sentiment in regard to the appointment.

Governor Daniel is to appoint a successor to Charlie Sullivan, veteran jurist, who leaves the post effective Jan. 1.

Two possible appointees are on the ballot laid before the members of the bar. They are Ralph W. Caton and Clyde Thomas. Bar members have the privilege of writing in additional names if they choose.

The ballots are locked up in the vault of the district court clerk's office and will not be counted until Wednesday of this week.

Governor Daniel, meanwhile, has been advised the bar is conducting the poll and that its results will be dispatched to him.

The appointment which Governor Daniel will make will be for the period from Jan. 1 through the date of the next general election in November. If the appointee selected by the governor wishes to continue in office after that time, he must announce his candidacy and campaign for election at the November voting. Filing date for candidates will be early in February.

Judge Sullivan, who has served 10 years and is the only judge to sit on the 118th District Court bench since the district was created in 1949, notified the governor of his plan to resign in October.

He has received a letter from the executive accepting his resignation.

He will continue to preside in the court until Jan. 1. Members of the bar anticipate that Daniel will make his choice very soon after he receives the report of the secret ballot taken here.

Construction Takes Jump

AUSTIN (AP)—An unusual October spurt in non-residential city building construction was reported by the Bureau of Business Research.

A gain in non-residential permits balanced a decline in home building, the University of Texas business research agency said.

The estimated $11,405,000 in urban construction authorized in October was 10 per cent above the September figure and 10 per cent above the October, 1958, permit level, said research associate Robert Drenner in an article for the Texas Business Review.

Total urban building authorized in Texas through the first 10 months of 1959 was seven per cent above the comparable 1958 figure. Permits for new building (excluding additions, alterations and repairs) authorized in that period were six per cent above 1958.

"It is not expected that either of these figures will be much changed when 12 month totals are in," Drenner said.

"A declining trend in permits for new homes should be roughly balanced by growing strength in the non-residential category as was the case in October, for example, when all of the improvement from the preceding month was due to a remarkable 66 per cent increase in non-residential authorizations," he said.

Favorites To Be Elected This Week

By KAY LOVELAND

Well, looks as if our first holiday of the school year is just about over and it will be back to the old grind on Monday. Hope you enjoyed your Thanksgiving and won't be too unhappy with having to go back to school.

Since it was a short week there's not a whole lot of news around the campus. The Thanksgiving Assembly given on Wednesday morning consisted of a movie called "Giving Thanks Always." It was narrated by Jerome Crumpton. Afterward, it was announced that Mrs. Kenneth Seewald will become the new director of the SUB starting Dec. 1. The basketball boys were also introduced.

Speaking of basketball, the season opens Monday night with the Jayhawks playing Decatur Jr. College in the gym. A pep rally for the game will be held Monday morning during activity period in the gymnasium, of course. Hope you'll get out and really support the team.

Last Monday an assembly was held for the purpose of nominating class and school favorites. Nominated for all-school favorites were Jo Ann Howard and LaVern Carter and Buddy Barnes and Bob Shirley. The freshmen nominated Mary Oliphant, Dee Maberry, Ken Clearman and Joe Bob Cleaden. The sophomore nominees are Jo Ann Howard, Lena Zeiler, Noel Orr and Harold Henson. Election will be held Wednesday and Thursday.

Rocca Rocca Harmon has begun planning for the Christmas Formal to be held in the SUB on Dec. 17 from 8 to 11 p.m. Jeanne Cagle is in charge of refreshments; Dickie Madison is entertainment chairman; Kay Loveland (that's me) is the head of the decoration committee. Randy Hensley has consented to draw some posters to advertise the dance; and if possible, the Hi Fi's will be hired for the occasion. Why not make your plans to attend now? The club has some good ideas.

Marie Nichols and Jo Dell Shelburne became official members of Phi Theta Kappa Tuesday night. They went through the formal initiation ceremony of the organization. Congratulations to both of them for having those high averages.

On Monday those members of

52 On Goliad Honor Roll

Fifty-two students made the first nine-weeks honor roll at Goliad Junior High School. To attain the honor roll it was necessary to have an "A" average in every subject.

Ninth graders on the roll were Claude Terrazas, Sandra Crawford, Brenda Cowper, Bobby Dawes, Tommy Gentry, Cinderella Mason, June Merworth, Arlene Nixon, Sheryl Whiteside, Mary Wilson, Louis Jackson, Karen Kee, Martha Gilmore, George Rice and Donna McDonald.

Eighth graders were Beth Whitely, John Polich, Kathy Mason, Arlene Schneider, Louie Schneider, Jon Burnett, Kenny Chraze, Tommy Earhardt, Judy Marsh, Susan McNary, Jody Thompson, Janine Watts, Bill Worley, Lloyd Curley, Yolanda Garrett, Martha Glickman, Molly Goodman, Priscilla Grizzard, Baxter Moore, Betty Hamilton and Jane McElrath.

Seventh graders with straight "A's" were Gary Anderson, Douglas Brandon, Jacquelin Buchanan, Terry Cagle, Mary Lee Dibrell, Ann Howard, Linda Lehr, Sarah McWhorter, Cynthia Pond, Tricia Statser, Nancy Thomas, Barbara Wilson, Judith Schotts, Alan Stanfield, Gary Smith and Nancy Lynch.

Retire - When?

NEW YORK (AP) - An actor and an actress usually find they can never retire, although they sometimes think of it when they appear in a play which is not to their audience's liking. Give them a fresh script next day, and they are all enthusiasm again.

This was aptly expressed by Theater Guild star Alfred Lunt when he and his wife, Lynn Fontanne, were recently co-starring in one of their scores of hits.

He told the late Clarence Derwent, president of Actor's Equity, "The day that Lynn and I cease to find fun in the theatre, that day we will retire."

Marie Nichols and Jo Dell Shelburne are congratulated by Malcolm Roberts, president of the Phi Theta Kappa, upon their initiation into the group. Phi Theta Kappa is the HCJC honor society. All members must have at least a 2.0 average to be eligible for initiation.

Congratulations!

Banquet Held For Ball Teams

By PAT LOUDAMY

Wednesday morning an inspirational Thanksgiving assembly was given. Bobby Williams, the master of ceremonies, introduced Judy Jones, who gave a prayer. The theme of the program, "The Memories of Thanksgiving," was presented in song and reading by the seventh and eighth grade choirs under the direction of Mrs. Gill Griese and Mrs. Forrest Gambill. The reading was done by a group of choral readers directed by Miss Velma Blagrove. Mr. Ernest introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Frank Pollard.

Monday night from 7 to 7:30 p.m. a buffet supper was held for the football players of the ninth grade and their dates. The party was sponsored by the ninth grade teachers and coaches; several parents also helped. Approximately 65 were present. After the supper, there was dancing and coaches Ted Kirby and Dan Bustamente were given gift certificates by the boys.

The Runnels Chapter of the FFA elected Bill Horton their Dream Boy on Monday.

The first basketball game of the season will be held Monday. The team will meet Edison of San Angelo. Be sure to support our team.

That's it for now. I hope you had an enjoyable Thanksgiving.

Ninth Grade Party Is Termed Success

By DE MASON

Although this was a short school week it was certainly a busy one around Goliad.

The freshman class party was held Friday night. Many ninth graders attended and enjoyed playing games and dancing as well as eating and drinking the refreshments served.

Wednesday a sockhop was held in the gym for the ninth graders. Many attended the event during the noon hour.

A skating party was held by the eighth grade on Monday. It was termed a success by everyone who went.

On Monday school was dismissed at 3 p.m. in order that the teachers might attend a general faculty meeting.

Wednesday during each period the regular monthly meeting of each homemaking class was held. Each class brought forth the program, a panel discussion on Family Problems. Hostesses served refreshments. According to Mrs. Jack Alexander, homemaking teacher, the girls taking sewing are to start their blouses this coming week.

Fifty-two pupils made the honor roll for the first nine weeks. The 8th grade came in first with 21 students; the seventh with second with 16; and the 9th was last with 12.

Basketball season starts Monday with the 8th and 9th grade teams playing Lee of San Angelo and the 7th grade playing Runnels.

Remember, 7th graders, that your skating party is being held Monday. Every seventh grader is urged to attend.

Hope you had an enjoyable Thanksgiving. See you Monday.

No, not Brigitte Bardot, France's celebrated sex kitten, but her sister—Mijanou.

Mijanou, 21, arrived Thursday, for the film, "Teacher vs. Sexpot."

"Wot ees 'sexpot'?" asked Mijanou, who speaks little English. Albert Zugsmith, the movie's producer, who met Mijanou at the airport, explained that it's a woman with an excessive amount of sex appeal.

"Oui, I understand," said Mijanou.

BULLDOG BARK

FFA Boys Win First, Third In Leadership

By ROSALIE DeVANEY

It surely was nice to have a long weekend, wasn't it? I hope everyone had as much fun as I did and observed Thanksgiving in the way that it should be. I ate too much turkey and dressing—but NO—cranberries! What about you?

Our well behaved FFA boys won first place in Senior Leadership at the El Rancho District meet in Odessa Tuesday. They also won third place in Junior Leadership and third place in Farm Skill. We are especially proud of these boys, for this was the first time in the history of the chapter they have won district. They will go to Big Spring for area competition in the spring. Good luck, boys!

The girls' basketball game proved to be a victory over Sands, Tuesday night. The score was 57 to 56. This was really an exciting game, which our girls were determined to win. The "B" team girls also played but lost. The "A" team plays again next Tuesday night and are entered in the Ira Tournament, Dec. 3, 4 and 5. Let's bring home a championship, girls!

The boys' basketball team went to Garden City for a game Tuesday night but lost by three points, with a score of 42 to 39. The "B" team won their game to one point.

The Band Booster Club is sponsoring a 42-party next Saturday, Dec. 5, at 7:30, in the grade school cafeteria. The tickets are on sale for 50 cents per person. You can get your tickets from any band member or band booster. Hurry and get yours and enjoy a night of fun with the band. Every one is very proud of the Conhoma High School band this year. It consists of almost 60 members.

The seniors took an exciting step this week when they ordered their graduation invitations. It was said that more and more they are feeling like real seniors. It's great!

Two of our football players were named for the all-district team. These fine honors were given to George Turner and Doyle Warren. Doyle also made honorable mention on the all-district offensive team. Honorable mention went to Ellis Smith, Harold Abergege and William Tyler.

By the way, what's this about a missing warm-up jacket out of the dressing room? It seems to me with all the detectives (the entire football team) on the case, it should be found immediately—if not sooner.

With only three days of school this week the activities were very limited, therefore there wasn't too much news for the BARK. Reporters, don't forget to turn your news in next week.

We're starting a new six weeks period, so let's all really get after those books and make straight A's.

BSHS In Whirl Of Varied Activities

By TERESA SMITH

The long awaited holidays finally dawned in a burst of activities. All of the mighty college kids poured into Big Spring for the weekend. Parties, turkey and reunions all contributed to the festivities!

In the midst of the turkey dinners, everyone went to see Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians Thursday night, which proved to be a magnificent performance. On Friday the big events were the pep rally in the gym and then the basketball game against Cathedral High of El Paso. The game marked the first for Coach Vernon Horton's Longhorns.

Kay McGibbon's house was the site of a "get-together" Friday morning for a group of girls who have been away to college.

I want to make a correction in the list of names of new National Honor Society inductees. Through error, there were two names left off the list in last week's column—Annette Parrish and Edna Lee Howard, both of whom are juniors.

The teachers of the Big Spring school system have started discussions and recommendations of the local schools. Last Monday afternoon the first meeting of this type was held. One of the things discussed was the 13 month school year.

This week the Needy Drive ended quite successfully. There were enough cans to have twenty boxes of food—it was estimated that there were over 1,400 cans. The Student Council supplied each box with a chicken and bread. The boxes were distributed Wednesday by council members.

In the Thanksgiving assembly Wednesday afternoon, Mary Jane Engstrom and Ilameta Carr read stories showing the meaning of Thanksgiving and the ways the holiday is celebrated in other countries. Then Dr. Jordan Grooms addressed the student body and faculty. The main thought in his speech was that Thanksgiving is a holy day as well as a holiday.

Wednesday night the Thanksgiving Semi-Formal was held in the high school cafeteria. This began the royal welcome for the college students, as many were home and could attend. It was sponsored by the Big Spring Student Council.

Many of the students went out of town for the holidays. One of the main attractions was the Texas-A&M football game. What a thriller that was!

Enjoy this sleeping late, kids, because there will be plenty of work to do between now and Christmas. Many students are already busily writing research themes which are due next week.

Speaking of research, the library has really been utilized lately. Several new books have been put on the shelves for the use of students, and if you haven't checked them, be sure to do so before long.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Milch have planned to go to Houston to live. The student body wants to thank the Milch family for their contribution to our school, and to wish them good luck in their new undertaking.

Come back Monday rested, fatter, and ready to work.

See you in church.

Bobby Sale At 4-H National Meeting

Bobby Sale, Stanton High School junior, left Stanton Thursday night to attend the 4-H National Congress in Chicago. He will go to Dallas to meet other state winners, and they will continue from there to Chicago. The national meeting opens Nov. 29 and will close Dec. 3.

Sale received the all-expense paid trip as an award for being the state 4-H Beef Feeder for 1959. His records have been submitted to the national congress and the winner will be announced at the meeting.

Completing his eighth year of 4-H Club work, Sale's major demonstration has been beef cattle. During the past eight years he has fed 84 steers and he presently has 15 head of breeding animals. He has collected 23 grand and reserve champions and is a Gold Star boy.

Actor-Painter

NEW YORK (AP)—Statts Cotsworth, Broadway actor, is also distinguished as a painter. He will play a starring role in the touring stage production of "Mary Stuart."

For his paintings, he has been elected a Life Fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters at Zurich.

Six Football Boys Named To All-District Team

By MARSHA BRISTOW

This week has been a short, busy one around school. We finished six weeks exams and then got out on Wednesday for Thanksgiving.

The Student Council sponsored a special Thanksgiving Assembly Wednesday morning. The program included a Thanksgiving speech by Rev. Wallace Kirby, pastor of the First Methodist Church; a speech by Mr. Bickley, principal; and a skit. Master of ceremonies ring of Thanksgiving, Jan Rhodes, Jean Midl and Marilyn Sale were in the skit. Master of ceremonies was Carl Wright, president of the Student Council.

The basketball season began this week with the girls' team participating in a basketball clinic in Odessa on Nov. 21. They played an exhibition game with Imperial and won. Monday night the girls traveled to Rankin where they played the Rankin Red Devils. The first team won 73 to 39; the second team also won. Tuesday night the girls played Sands' second team. The score of this thriller was 48-47.

The boys' teams also played Tuesday night. Both teams beat Sands. The first team won 46 to 23, and the second team came out on top 34 to 23. This marked the fourteenth consecutive win for the boys.

The district football team has been announced and we're proud of our six Buffaloes who made the team and also of the four who got honorable mention. Those on the district team were Norman Donelson, Buzzy Brewer, Arvil Fincher, Don Pollock, Jerry Polson and A. L. Watts. Honorable mention was given to Dwayne Thompson, Jerry Baugh, Alton Robertson and Jerry Polson. The football squad also received their jackets this week. They are dark gray with red letters. The boys presented Mr. Bickley with a jacket.

Tuesday the members of the Future Farmers of America attended the El Rancho district contests in Odessa. The senior chapter conducting team composed of Ronny George, Darrel Hamby, Arnold and Arvil Fincher, A. L. Watts, Lee Standefer and Kenneth Hale, with Bobby Graves, Gerald Mattingly and Jerry Hildreth placed fifth. The junior chapter, conducting team composed of Lynch Hightower, Ted Stewart, Bud Glaspey, Jerry Overby, Buzzy Brewer, David Owen, Ulen North, Gary Doshier and Jimmy Barnhill placed sixth. The FFA Quiz composed of Glen Wren, Laman Lanford, Benny Womack and Lendon Huckaby placed fourth.

A Devotional For Today

Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him. (Matthew 2:2.)
PRAYER: Our Father, we are deeply grateful for every manifestation of Thy love and guidance. May we so reflect the light of the star that others may see the glow and want to find the blessed Saviour. In His name we pray. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

Dealing Forthrightly With A Problem

Last week a newspaperman on a New York paper admitted that he had made out of whole cloth a story that he had been offered a bribe to squelch a series on urban renewal. He claimed he had been offered a bribe by a public official to do this.

He was fired promptly by his paper, and so was one of his colleagues who swindled the story and carried the ball for it.

This is exactly what should have happened. None of this suspension or leave-of-absence business. They were guilty of a breach of confidence and of ethics. We believe that virtually all newspapermen will applaud the forthrightness with which the management of the newspaper dealt with this prostitution of journalistic trust.

All decent newspapermen are pained that such characters ever got into the profession. But there can be some small pride that newspapers in New York wouldn't touch the phony bribe story because it was unsubstantiated, and hence the lying reporter had to go to another media to spread the tale.

Sound Out The People On Taxes

Governor Price Daniel, at last reports, was supposedly awaiting "reaction of legislators" to the proposition of calling a special session of the Texas Legislature in January to vote a new school program providing pay raises for teachers.

Perhaps the governor was presuming that legislators, in turn, would sound out their constituents as to how the public really feels about a special session.

As is so often the case, our fear is that the public at large has not made its opinions known. Certainly the school groups, through the voice of the Texas State Teachers Association, have vocalized their desires, and it is entirely possible that the special session proposal has been heard from only one side. It is still true, in politics, that the "squeaking wheel gets the grease."

There have been many evidences here and over Texas in recent months that the people are becoming quite conscious and even very weary of their tax load and are hardly in a mood to see it made heavier.

Governor Price Daniel ought to be sounding out the people of Texas on this score, and so ought the members of the Legislature. A clear voice from the people could add substance to grounds for an emergency session, but what is infinitely more probable is that it would curb this haste for new taxes.

David Lawrence Presidential Primary Best Way

WASHINGTON—Sen. Taft's legacy to the politicians is just made public, is an unwitting indictment of the convention system of choosing presidential candidates.

The late senator from Ohio really intended his lengthy memorandum as an explanation of why he lost the nomination in 1952. He absolved his lieutenants and placed the blame on the tactics of the opposition—an alignment, as he saw it, of certain financial interests in the East and a large section of the press throughout the country.

But 1952 is too recent to be forgotten. When Bob Taft attributed his defeat to the pressures on various delegations, he put his finger on a vital point—namely, that a majority of the then-serving Republican governors, with their political influence on delegates, favored the nomination of Gen. Eisenhower?

because he is a Catholic is producing some hesitation by some as well as resentment by others in the ranks of the Democrats. Sen. Kennedy, therefore, is going into as many primaries as possible to disprove the can't win thesis.

BUT WHO IS TO TELL ahead of time whether a proposed candidate can win the final election? Why should it be left to the delegates, who are usually hand-picked by political organizations? Surely the presidency of the United States is too important to the American people to see the choice narrowed to two rival candidates—both chosen by the convention system. This is but another way of saying that the selection is made by the practical politicians of both sides who guess at what the popular reaction will be.

THIS, TO BE SURE, HAS a meaning for the 1960 presidential contest. In fact, some of the reasons why the Taft memorandum is getting public attention now are related to the possibility of a similar situation arising in the race between Nixon and Rockefeller. While the circumstances today are altogether different in the main, there can be no denying the existence of an analogous belief among the supporters of Gov. Rockefeller of New York that maybe he would be the better vote-getter.

This theory, however, has lately been given a solar plexus blow in the form of Gallup Poll results. The latest poll shows Nixon not only way ahead of Rockefeller but also way ahead of Stevenson and any other Democrat being mentioned for the presidential nomination.

Sen. Taft lost because many of his opponents used the slogan: "Taft can't win." They knew no more about it than the folks who a year or so ago were saying "Nixon can't win," but it is nevertheless a factor in swinging delegates. Whether it's so or not, the argument, for instance, that "Kennedy can't win"

But why should nominations be made by conventions? A law requiring presidential preference primaries in all states is more logical. On this point, Woodrow Wilson, as president-elect, wrote a letter in February 1913 to the majority leader of the House of Representatives, A. Mitchell Palmer, Democrat, in which he said:

"THERE OUGHT NEVER to be another presidential nominating convention; and there need never be another. Several of the states have successfully solved the difficulty with regard to the choice of their governors, and federal law can solve it in the same way with regard to the choice of presidents. The nominations should be made directly by the people at the polls.

"Conventions should determine nothing but party platforms and should be made up of the men who would be expected, if elected, to carry those platforms into effect."

J. A. Livingston Steel Output High Now; What About January?

A pleasant surprise that proves you never can be sure how human beings will act: Steel production is now at 88 per cent of capacity.

Before the Taft-Hartley injunction, steel executives privately estimated that it would take at least seven weeks to get operations that high.

Yet, less than three weeks after the Supreme Court decision on Saturday, Nov. 7, it has become clear that workers aren't dragging their feet.

That's another pleasant surprise. During negotiations, union spokesmen frequently warned that free men wouldn't work their best under a "slave-labor law" injunction. Yet, steel executives report no mischief, no sloppy work, and no slow-downing. How come?

Four factors are at work. First, steelworkers are craftsmen. They want to do a good job. They'd lose their self-respect deliberately scanting.

Second, the men were tired of idleness. Work felt good.

Third, much of the work in steel mills has been technologized. Once the process gets going, it controls the speed of production.

Fourth, about 70 per cent of the workers are on incentive pay. The greater the tonnage, the more they'll pile up in take-home pay for Christmas and as a back-up against a new walkout.

There has been a third surprise: The continued high level of consumer confidence. Only a great shortage of automobiles could stop retail trade from making a new high in December.

So far, people have reacted to this steel strike, despite its great length — 116 days — with the same optimism as to the 1956 walkout (see chart). They consider the strike an interruption, not an impairment, of prosperity. The steel lost will be made up through overtime work.

This time, however, there's a difference. The injunction expires January 26. What then?

Steel executives feel that the workers won't resume the strike. They tell themselves that the workers never wanted this strike; that union president David J. McDonald is using the work-rule issue as a "cause" to unify the membership behind him. They insist that the last offer made to McDonald is attractive, and that the workers have too much common sense to reject it on a Taft-Hartley secret ballot.

To prepare workers for a vote in January, steel companies are distributing to supervisors and foremen printed leaflets outlining the three-year contract recently offered. It covers:

1. Improved insurance benefits;
2. Improved pensions;
3. Two wage increases (one starting October 1, 1960, the second October 1, 1961);
4. No change in seniority;
5. Cost-of-living protection;
6. A committee to review past practices. (This last is the controversial work-rule issue.)

Later, the leaflet may be mailed to workers at their homes.

Executive reliance on the last offer isn't justified by experience. Out of 10 such Taft-Hartley elections, the workers heeded their union leaders in nine. Moreover, during the war, when workers had to vote on company proposals before going on strike, almost invariably — 99 per cent of the time — they did what union officers directed. Nevertheless, McDonald can't look forward to a vote tonight.

The workers won't relish going out again. They're in debt — most of them want to get back to regular work and pay. Some may defect at the ballot box. But I think most will feel as my dif-

THIS DAY IN TEXAS

By CURTIS BISHOP

The Texan chosen to speak at Philadelphia's Centennial Exposition on this day in 1876 weighed over 400 pounds and could be heard for miles.

He was Richard B. Hubbard, governor of Texas from 1876-1879. Beyond doubt he was the biggest of the state's chief executives, requiring a specially built bathtub in the gubernatorial mansion. His voice was of the same proportion: this 19th century orator did very well without public address systems.

The Philadelphia Centennial featured a symposium of famous speakers. Orators from all parts of the country took part. Hubbard acquitted himself well in choice of words as well as volume.

He was Georgia-born and descended of Welsh stock. He graduated from Mercer University and Harvard Law School. In 1852 he opened a law office in Tyler. A U. S. district attorney at 24, Hubbard quickly established himself as a political corner.

Despite his weight he became an infantry cadet in the Civil War. With peacetime he joined the fight against carpetbag government. He served as lieutenant governor under Richard Coke, then became chief executive when Coke resigned to enter the U. S. Senate.

In 1885 Hubbard went to Japan as minister and negotiated the first treaty between the two countries. He died July 12, 1901 and was buried in Tyler.

Away He Goes

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP) — Donald Griffin's car stalled in a supermarket parking lot.

Griffin, alone, figured he could fix it if he could work at the engine while having the gas pedal depressed. He put a heavy box on the accelerator, lifted the hood and started tinkering. The car, left in reverse gear, suddenly roared backward, made several wide circles in the parking lot, broke off a parking meter post and came to a stop in the street.

Griffin, arrested for failure to have his auto under control, was fined $50.

MR. BREGER

Sobering Ride

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — County police have found a new way to sober a drunken driver.

Moments after officers put a drunk motorist in the back seat of their car another auto sped past. The patrolman gave chase, stopped the second car, and arrested an escaped convict.

The officers reported they "released the drunk we had in the back of the car since the chase completely sobered him."

Around The Rim That Blender Feller Made A Real Mix

Dear Rufe:

You remember this feller that invented the food blender? You know, that gadget you used to make fancy drinks and I used for mush when I lost my teeth?

Well you know what? That feller ain't only an inventor, he's a sort of carnival man too. Ted, I believe his first name is, or something like that, was pulled into our local culture business, on which I have been keeping you posted whether you wanted to be or not.

Yep, we had another culture night, and you never saw and heard such a razzle-dazzle bunch of music. No wonder this feller invented the blender, he put enough different ingredients into his musical program.

What he had was about 40 people helping him, and they all seemed awfully happy to have the chance. First time in a long time you would get to see an outfit like this that has just about as many pretty girls as they do men dressed up like penguins. Them girls help a lot.

First off, I ought to tell you that they were busy all the time changing dresses, and nearly every dress looked a little bit better than the one they had on before, if you see what I mean. There was rainbow colors and then there was white. The girls stood up on stairsteps, too, so you could see 'em better than if they was all just on the floor. And they kept moving around, sort of like a flag drill, so that they and the fella standing with them was in different kind of formations, if you see what I mean.

It wasn't only their dresses, them girls was pretty, and they could sing. One of 'em was sort of operatic, and a couple of others was sort of jazzy. You have to hear all this together to see what I mean.

The fella, too, changed their coats a couple of times. They weren't near as pretty as the girls, but they could sing and act up. There was one feller with a voice that got so high I thought he was going off into a Swiss yodel, and he pretty nearly did. There was another one that was sort of Nelson Eddy like, and maybe nearly as old, too.

It wasn't all singers, you understand. There was quite an orchestra on both sides of the singers, and they came up with quite a few tricks themselves. There was one young feller who practically laid all over a little ole electric organ; another one who waved Confederate flags while he was a'beatin' the drum — although nobody ever gets surprised at a drummer any more. But the mainest one you would have gone for, Rufe, was this feller who had one fiddle no bigger than your two hands, and another one no bigger than just one hand. He played 'em both, too; a little squeaky, but what can you expect from a little fiddle?

This head man, the blender, was out in front most of the time, making witty remarks to the crowd, and threatening to sing himself later on. Thank goodness he never did. All he really is an old banjo-player who worked his way through school playing music and never hardly got over it.

You could tell at any minute, though, that this mixture-stuff is the kind of culture they been looking for around here. I don't suppose a soul sat on his hands. This blender feller figured he would get on our good side by having a pretty girl sing "Dixie." This set everybody up real happy, you see; and what half of us never realized was that this smart guy ran in a Yankee tune on us to wind up the program. Even had everybody singing, too. That may not be culture, but it's good.

Come on over when you feel like yo-delin' or fiddlin'.

Your friend,
 ZEKKE

Norman Vincent Peale Many Things Can Be Done By Hope

Not long ago a man stopped me on the street.

"You don't know me, Dr. Peale," he said, "but I have been reading your new book, 'The Amazing Results of Positive Thinking.' You write about how wonderful life can be for those who live by certain techniques. What you say certainly sounds good, and it may be true of some people. But there is no possibility of life being anything like that for me."

"How come?" I asked. "You're a human being like everyone else. Why don't these things apply to you? Something must be wrong either with you or me or with both of us if the simple principles of effective living won't work with you."

"Listen," he exclaimed with a note of pathos in his voice, "please tell me how life can be any better for me, in the face of all the troubles and failures I have."

I asked him what these could be that were so unique they couldn't be overcome. And he told me about them for 15 minutes or more of impassioned negativity. Actually I never heard anything like this eager acceptance of failure. Finally, he sadly concluded, "Well, that's it. I haven't anything left but hope."

"That's wonderful," I told him excitedly. "That's great! Congratulations!"

"What are you congratulating me about?" he asked in surprise.

"I'm congratulating you on the fact that you have hope, that you're down to hope. You've finally cleared everything else away and you're down to that dynamic, vital, tremendous force called Hope. But do you really know how to hope? If you do and can make hope work for you, you can go on to some real success in life."

I asked this man if he had ever had any success at all. "Sure," he answered. "years ago, I was quite successful." And he began to tell me about his past achievements. When he got on this subject and he warmed up to it he showed evidence of marked enthusiasm. As he spoke, I broke in with comments such as: "That was wonderful the way you did that!" — "Why don't you do something like that now?" I tried to make him see that he had ample sources of know-how. At least I gave him some hope, and that in itself is creative. In fact hope is vitally important.

Well, I'm glad to say that later on he got hold of himself and did a better job. In a passage in the Bible St. Paul says, "For we are saved by hope." And how true that is. Hope is such good medicine for discouragement that when people are indeed saved by hope. We should all read and re-read that passage, and let it sink into our conscious minds until it ultimately permeates the subconscious and becomes a basic part of our thinking.

And so we must keep hope alive. Hope, of course, is only a word. But words are dynamite; they can destroy and create. They can make or break you. Words are really you, so take that great word, hope, brighten your mind with it, refurbish your soul with it, live with it, build your future with it... bright, shining, resplendent, optimistic hope! "We are saved by hope." (Copyright 1959, The Hall Syndicate Inc.)

William S. White Southerner May Soften DAC Voice

WASHINGTON — Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler has at long last persuaded a real, live Dixie politician to join his heretofore all-Yankee Democratic Advisory Committee. But there is great question as to who has won over whom.

The DAC for years has been boycotted not only by all powerful Southerners but also by all the principal Democratic leaders in Congress, Northern and Southern.

Mainly this has been due to the resentment of Congressional figures, whether liberal or not, at DAC's efforts to say what ought to be done on legislative issues. Congress figures legislation is Congress' business and not the business of an unelected body like DAC. DAC is, after all, the creation of the Democratic National Committee. And no national committee has either responsibility or power as such. It is essentially only a partisan drum-beating organization.

THE REPUBLICANS HAVE never thought otherwise. They, too, have a kind of "advisory committee" of earnest non-professional people. But they keep their advisory committee well up in the stratosphere. There, it proclaims vast and cloudy goals that annoy no faction of the party.

Any thought of having the GOP advisory committee criticize the Republican party in Congress, as the DAC regularly criticizes the Democratic party there, would be treated as madness.

In short, the official, professional GOP campaign organization, the Republican National Committee, is and certainly will remain the absolute boss. But the Democratic Advisory Committee is another thing altogether. It numbers the great prima donnas of the party. It has infinitely more influence, through such figures as Harry S. Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt, than its parent, the Democratic National Committee itself. These and other stars, like former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, just use the Democratic National Committee for a hall to meet in, so to speak.

THEY HAVE TRIED to make of themselves—and to a point they have succeeded — a force in the Democratic party on terms of competitive equality with the elected Congressional wing. Gov. LeRoy Collins' belated decision to join this team, therefore, has significance far beyond what meets the eye.

First, it means this: The moderate Southerners, of whom Collins is representative, have decided to let Butler have a free run no longer with one of his favorite complaints of persecution. His cry has been that the Southerners would not join the DAC simply because of hostility to his strong pro-civil rights stand. Thus, he has long presented himself as a kind of political Eliza fleeing the Southern bloodhounds. It will be difficult for him to resume this role now that Collins has signed on.

Second: The Congressional wing of the party has to a degree, and indirectly through Collins, now joined what it could not altogether lick. The Congressional leaders, who are moderate to conservative in view, will have on the DAC a new spokesman in Collins—and an elected politician at that. It won't necessarily follow that the DAC hereafter will be less displeased with the Democratic Congress. But it is a good bet that it will be less vocally displeased, through the efforts of this Floridian bridge.

THIRD: THE DAC WILL now have as a member a Southerner who really wants to see progress in civil rights for Negroes—and has taken plenty of risks at home to prove it. Collins' moderate approach will not, of course, ever suit Butler, who wants extreme measures to be applied to the South.

It is at least possible, however, that other members of the DAC will heed the governor's counsel. The point might even be reached where a compromise solution of the divisive issue of civil rights would have some chance of prevailing in the Democratic National Convention next summer.

Pat Baker Started Her Career Early

By KAY LOVELAND
 Patricia Ann Baker is not an exactly uncommon name, and the fact that Pat is 13 and an eighth grader in Goliad Junior High School is not uncommon either. But the fact that Pat has sung and danced in such plays as "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma" is rather uncommon.

Now to set you straight, let me explain that Pat was born in Portland, Ore., and it was there that she worked in those and other plays. The Portland Theatre Workshop specializes in doing Broadway and motion picture musicals.

With several years of voice and dance training behind her, Pat was able to obtain parts in several of the workshop's productions. She sang "Dite-Moi" in "South Pacific" four times before she outgrew the part and was forced to become a nurse in the musical sequence "I'm Gonna Wash that Man Right Outta My Hair." "South Pacific" was performed by the company six times in outdoor theaters and twice on television. One TV production was local; the other was on a national hookup.

In "Oklahoma" Pat did background dancing, and she did regular stage work in "Paint Your Wagon" and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers."

Pat and her family, which consists of her parents, T-Sgt. and Mrs. Walter G. Baker, and brother Billy Joe, moved to Big Spring for the first time in November of last year. They left a few months later and returned again on Sept. 8 of this year. Her father is a member of the ground crew at Webb. Billy Joe, who is 18, works at the base commissary.

Pat has already had seven years of voice training and is now taking from Mrs. F. C. Gambill. She has also taken three years of ballet and two years of modern jazz.

She comes by her musical talent and interests naturally. Mrs. Baker has a degree in music and once taught piano, something she hopes to do again someday. Billy Joe also likes to sing and he enjoys doing impersonations of popular singers.

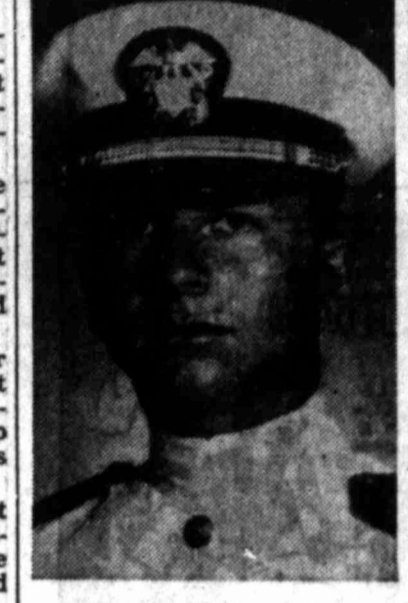

Has moving to Big Spring stopped Pat's participation in the theater? Not on your life. She is working with the Goliad drama group in their production of "Christmas Rose." She is to sing the title song.

As for the future, Pat has big plans. She is striving to keep her school grades high in order to apply for a scholarship to the Juillard School of Music when she graduates from high school. From there, well, who knows?

'A Summer Place' Book's Film Version

"A Summer Place," the popular novel by Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," has been brought to the screen starring Richard Egan, Dorothy McGuire, Sandra Dee, Arthur Kennedy and Troy Donahue and featuring Constance Ford and Beulah Bondi.

The direction of the motion picture, Wednesday through Saturday at the Ritz, was entrusted to Delmer Daves, who also wrote the screen adaptation.

DONAHUE & DEE They're teen-age lovers

"A Summer Place" is a present-day story with a Maine background. Millionaire Ken Jorgenson, with his wife, Helen and daughter Molly, returns to the Pine Island mansion where he once worked as a life guard. The owner, Bart Hunter, has dissipated the family fortune and is now operating the summer place with his wife Sylvia and son Johnny, as an inn for paying guests.

Ken and Sylvia face their old love, determine on divorce. The scandal causes difficult problems for Molly and Johnny, who forget their loneliness in each other. Like their parents 20 years ago they have an illicit love affair. The problems are solved and greater understanding between the parents and children is established.

Richard Egan portrays the self-made millionaire, Ken Jorgenson. Dorothy McGuire is cast as Sylvia Hunter, trapped into marriage to a man she never really loved.

Young Sandra Dee plays Molly Jorgenson, the voluptuous teenager with a love of giving and a great capacity to love. Five-time Academy Award nominee Arthur Kennedy plays Bart Hunter, a cultured gentleman with a wicked sense of humor and a love of the bottle.

Troy Donahue, a handsome young New Yorker, is seen as Johnny Hunter, the scion of a distinguished New England family. After a long search for the right actor for this role Warner Bros. signed the talented newcomer to a long term contract as well as the picture.

Broadway actress Constance Ford is cast in the role of Helen Hunter, the domineering wife and mother. Famed character actress Beulah Bondi portrays Mrs. Hamble, an independent dowager and long-time friend of the Hunter family.

Judy Garland is recovering from a liver ailment, is reported "coming along well" at Doctors Hospital. A hospital spokesman said Thursday Miss Garland probably would remain in the hospital another two weeks. Miss Garland, 37, was admitted Nov. 19.

Freed Says He'll Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Disc jockey Alan Freed says he will comply with a subpoena to appear Monday before a Manhattan grand jury investigating payola in television and radio.

Freed was served with the subpoena a last week. Detectives searched for hours after he failed to show up at Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan's office.

Asked by newsmen why he had not appeared at Hogan's office, as requested, Freed replied: "I will not volunteer for anybody. My grandmother once told me, 'Never volunteer for anything!'"

Freed, who has lost both his television and radio outlets here, has denied several times that he ever took payola — undercover payments to plug tunes on the air. He has declined to tell newsmen what was discussed when he was questioned by representatives of a Senate subcommittee investigating payola.

'Career' Is Story Of Ruthless Actor

It isn't often that one motion picture story boasts the four equally important, equally colorful characters through in "Career," Sunday through Tuesday at the Ritz.

The characters are brought to life by four of Hollywood's most talented and most popular performers — Dean Martin, Anthony Franciosa, Shirley MacLaine and Carolyn Jones.

"Career," adapted by James Lee from the author's own New York play, tells the story of a dedicated actor's determination to get to the top, regardless of the price to himself or to the people whose paths cross his. Franciosa plays the actor; Martin will be seen in another off-beat role, that of an opportunistic director whose influence on the actor boomerangs in a great big way.

Miss MacLaine portrays a rich and dissolute woman whom both men use to further their careers; and Miss Jones is the agent who backstops Franciosa above and beyond her duties.

The four stars are supported by Joan Blackman, a comparative newcomer to the screen, and Robert Middleton as Shirley MacLaine's producer-father.

ing Palmyrans and their Roman masters, horsemen using spears, bows and arrows, and catapults hurling fireballs. But the greatest spectacle of all is the Palmyran princess—Anita Eckberg.

Did you spot Stewart Granger in the background in the latest Tarran picture? Seems some film cuttings were used from "King Solomon's Mines," the jungle classic of several years back.

The latest Jules Verne novel to get the screen treatment is "Journey to the Center of the Earth," with James Mason. Advance reports indicate Flimstone did a much better translation of the immortal Verne than with his previous novels.

George Pal talked too much about "Destination Moon" before its release. As a result, the movie was beaten to the starting gate by "Rocket X-M," a cheap imitation. Pal says never again — his latest film, still in the works, is referred to (if at all) as "Project 46." Title comes later.

Burt Lancaster thinks he has 1960's most controversial film in "Elmer Gantry," the Sinclair Lewis novel about a man who made a racket out of preaching. John Wayne, not content with fighting the battle of the Alamo all over again, is planning next to film the story of Sam Houston. It, too, will be filmed in Texas.

And speaking of the grand old manner-of-movie-making: The battle scenes in "Sign of the Gladiator" are like something out of an early De Mille epic.

But the English is poorly dubbed (the story was filmed in Italy and Yugoslavia) and the general acting and direction are not what they should have been.

Still, it's quite a spectacle—a gigantic battle between the rebellious

Story Of Jet Airliner Tests Told In Film

"Here Comes the Jets," based on the exploits of test pilots who stake their own lives against the most advanced product of the machine age—the jet transport plane—plays Sunday through Tuesday at the State.

American Airlines famed '707,' Jet Flagship built by Boeing and now in regularly scheduled flights from coast-to-coast, provides the background for the story.

Steve Brodie, Lynn Thomas, Mark Dana, John Doucette and Jean Carson head the cast.

Produced by Richard Einfield and directed by Gene Fowler, Jr., from a screenplay by Lou Vitte, "Here Comes the Jets," is the story of an American fighter pilot of the Korean War who is tormented by a failure complex resulting from a ditching crash which left him with a deep resentment against the world. He finds a job as test pilot of the new jet passenger planes but has trouble conquering his own misgivings. A beautiful blonde psychologist, Lynn Thomas, who works for the aircraft builders, recognizes that Brodie is a defective individual and needs help. She gradually changes his feeling of insecurity to one of confidence.

Pre-flight and in-flight tests of the 600 mile-an-hour Boeing '707,' are shown on the screen for the first time in "Here Comes the Jets." Wind tunnels, hydraulic jacks, automatic door openers, laboratory rigs for landing gear tests, and a huge airplane bathtub are involved in the testing footage.

And there's a clincher at the end of the plot, involving the angel.

By BOB SMITH

A locally-authored one-act play is shaping up for the Christmas season.

It is aimed primarily at civic groups who are sorely in need of programs at their official functions. The Lions get first view of the play on Dec. 14. Any suitable civic organization is eligible.

The play, "Sam Geebey's Christmas Angel," was penned by Dr. Bill Sandefur, and was double-cast by the Civic Theatre's workshop meeting Tuesday. Reason for the double-casting is to cover roles vacated by theatre members who might be leaving early for the Christmas holidays.

Sandefur will direct. Cast members include Jerry McMillan, John Findlater, Fay Bodin, Shirley Bailey, Mollie Henson and Marjorie Havins.

Sandefur's play is not an orthodox Christmas story, but it has a modern moral theme. It is a comedy farce in which a bachelor wolf, through intervention of his own personal angel (a fellow with a slightly tarnished, but workable, halo) finds the road to happiness.

The Civic Theatre makes no charge to local organizations for its programs, but donations to the theatre building fund are always appreciated. Interested folks can contact Dr. Sandefur.

Sign Of The Gladiator

Here are 10,000 Italian extras, who portray 10,000 Roman horsemen, in a scene from "Sign of the Gladiator," Wednesday through Saturday at the State. The film was produced by the American International studio.

Shower's Over, Fred's Happy

It didn't look safe, and it wasn't safe, but Fred MacMurray fortunately emerged unscathed from the filming of a movie sequence during which broken glass flew all about him. The scene was for "Day of the Badman," outdoor drama in which Fred co-stars with Joan Weldon and John Ericson. The picture shows Thursday through Saturday at the Jet.

In the scene MacMurray is trapped in the living room of a small cottage and tries to fight off four badmen who are firing at him.

The sequence called for bullets to shatter the glass window panes convincingly, as well as a glass lamp hanging from the ceiling of the room. The only departure from realism was that real bullets were not used. The window panes were shattered by pellets from compressed air guns and the lamp by a pellet propelled from a sling shot.

The glass in both window panes and lamp was real, however, and could have inflicted a serious wound on Fred if any hit him. While the scene was carefully worked out and timed so that the star would not be in range of the flying glass as each pellet struck, the range could be only estimated, not computed.

MacMurray stood his post manfully, but he was relieved when the scene was over and Director Harry Keller said, "That was fine. We won't do it again."

The plot's obvious now — Egan and Miss McGuire striking up an old acquaintance, with help from their unhappy situations; the son and daughter doing what comes naturally—but Delmer Daves' direction keeps the plot confused until the end, when the problems are worked out.

NBC said it expects to announce the names of the advisory committee members this week.

American Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting System said they would not adopt such a plan.

Advertising executive Sigurd S. Larmon, who had suggested a citizens committee to review television standards, conceded that the plan appeared doomed because of its rejection by ABC and CBS.

Larmon, chairman of the Young & Rubicam, Inc., advertising agency, said his plan could not function without unanimous industry approval.

CINEMA COMMENT

By BOB SMITH

"A Summer Place," first a novel by Sloan Wilson, now comes to the screen as an entertaining (albeit slow-moving) motion picture.

Arthur Kennedy, a bottle baby, has taken over an inn on an island off the cold coast of Maine.

He is literate and humorous, but an alcoholic. He established the inn as a means of providing money for his booze.

His wife, Dorothy McGuire, is understandably unhappy. And his daughter, Sandra Dee, is a logical push-over for the first romantic-minded young man to come along.

The first boarder is Richard Egan, former life guard on the island who, it seems, once had an affair with Miss McGuire. But with him comes his family, domineering wife Constance Ford and romantic-minded son Troy Donahue.

The plot's obvious now — Egan and Miss McGuire striking up an old acquaintance, with help from their unhappy situations; the son and daughter doing what comes naturally—but Delmer Daves' direction keeps the plot confused until the end, when the problems are worked out.

Says 'Gringo' To Be Rough

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Western television programs that make Hollywood's products look like child's play were promised by producer Ron Gorton who is filming his series in Mexico. Gorton's first television film, "Gringo," will be premiered at a special showing in San Antonio Dec. 10. A flock of movie and TV personalities will be here for the event. They include Robert Ryan, Sonny Tufts, Lee Van Cleef, Jose Torvey, Jaime Fernandez, Dabbs Greer, George Givot and Elsa Cardenas. All but Ryan appear in "Gringo." Gorton, at 36 considered to be one of the youngest producers in the television business, said of his first program: "We have one 2 1/2 minute saloon brawl between Tufts and Van Cleef that will out-shine the now historic gory grapple in "Shane." The pilot film was produced in cooperation with La Prensa Publishing Co. It will be seen by television network officials and representatives of several sponsors from New York.

Two Weeks Jury Docket Slated In County Court

County Judge Ed Carpenter is opening a two week's jury docket for disposition of pending criminal matters in Howard County Court on Tuesday morning.

The docket will be continued through Dec. 11. Carpenter and Wayne Burns, county attorney, hope to clear away as many of the pending criminal matters as possible.

There is promise a considerable number of the cases will terminate in guilty pleas. It is not possible to try more than one jury case a day during the time docket is operating. Thus, it was pointed out, not more than 9 cases can be handled by juries in the two weeks.

Thirty-six cases have been set down for trial by Burns.

DWI complaints lead the list with 17 to be tried. There are four cases alleging aggravated assault; two worthless check cases; two cases of carrying illegal arms. Eight illegal liquor transportation charges are on the list. One defendant is accused of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle. Two defendants are accused of driving motor vehicles with suspended licenses.

The docket: DWI cases: Fred D. Null, Henry Clinton Mayes, Pedro Mendez Ramirez, Walter Allen Loving, Don Elmo McKinnon, Edgar A. Wilson, Francisco Alcantar, Melicio G. Sarmiento, Kenneth Waddell, Mary Bell, Alvin Knapp, Coleman Pinkerton, Morris Lee King, Conroe H. Upton, Timothy D. Stafford, Charles J. Baker and Bryan R. Shafer.

Aggravated assault cases: Epifanio Ramirez, Charles Harper, Mario Espinosa, Joe Torres.

Worthless checks: Dick Bohannon, Mary Schooling. Driving with license suspended: Richard Matthews, Eugene Peach.

Carrying arms: James LaBrew and Pedro Mendez Ramirez.

Booklet On Control Of Mesquite Brush Listed

COLLEGE STATION—Mesquite is an aggressive, deep-rooted, undesirable woody, sprouting shrub that occurs on approximately 55 million acres of grazing lands in Texas. Where this pest thrives, no single method or practice will give effective and economical control under widely varying conditions.

Economical control of mesquite on grazing lands depends largely on selection of methods that will provide the greatest sustained benefits for the money expended. Good range and livestock management are essential to obtain maximum benefits from the control. The chief value of controlling mesquite is to increase the density, vigor and production of palatable range forage species.

"Control of Mesquite on Grazing Lands" is the title of a new bulletin released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Some of the factors influencing the effectiveness and cost of controlling individual plants, in thin, open stands by hand or power grubbing, oiling with kerosene and diesel fuel and basal application of 2,4,5-T and soil application of monuron are discussed in the bulletin. Factors that influence the effectiveness and cost of controlling moderate to dense stands by chaining and cabling, use of heavy-duty brush cutters, root plowing and aerial application of 2,4,5-T are also discussed in detail. The benefits of mesquite control include increased carrying capacity of grazing lands, reduced cost of handling livestock and more efficient use of other range improvement practices.

For a copy of this bulletin, write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. Ask for B-935.

FTC Chairman Gives TV Warning

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl E. Kentner, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission says the public and Congress are fed up with bad taste over commercialization on television programs.

Kintner warned the Assn. of National Advertisers that failure to clean up the situation eventually would result in harm to both advertisers and the national economy. The association represents most of the major sponsors of TV programs.

The association said Kintner voiced his views in an unpublished meeting in Washington Nov. 16. The organization released the story last week after notifying its members by mail of what went on at the session.
