Faith In Life Kept Crippled Man Going

By BOB BARNES

That's why Kenneth Byllesby, 36, never quit, though dealt one of life's cruelest blows.

Within months after he got home, he was making speeches before service clubs and school children. Usually he taped his talk, lay in front of the group while his speech was delivered, then answered questions. His purpose: To widen interest in the plight of others similarly afflicted.

Skeptical Congress Calls On Ike To Show Practical Surplus

WASHINGTON (AP)—A skeptical Democratic Congress called on the Eisenhower administration today to demonstrate it can produce a budget surplus without weakening America's defenses.

Chairman Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) of the Senate-House Economic Committee said Eisenhower was "extremely optimistic in forecasting the tremendous increase" in the economy that would be necessary to produce 84 billion dollars in revenues.

Several of the disappointed ones threatened to file as delegate candidates seeking election as "favorable" to Kennedy's candidacy.

At the same time, several Nixon backers filed as candidates for seats at the Republican nominating convention. Their names will be listed in the GOP delegate contest as "favorable to Nixon."

Europe Sees Ike's Foreign Aid Urging

LONDON (AP) — Many West European newspapers today recognized President Eisenhower's State of the Union message as a call for America's Allies to join in aiding underdeveloped areas of the world.

The U. S. has reserved the right to continue nuclear bomb tests.

Several editorial writers said the speech indicated the United States is ready to negotiate a just peace with the Soviet Union.

The first Communist comment came from Radio Budapest, which said Eisenhower had "contradicted himself by attempting to prove the United States must maintain its armaments while continuing the Geneva disarmament negotiations."

The London Times, Rome's Il Popolo, West Berlin's Tagesspiegel, Stockholm's Liberal, Dagens Nyheter and Norway's Socialist government organ, Arbeider-Bladet, were among those giving special attention to the President's call for concerted Allied aid to the underdeveloped nations.

'Sloganeer Without Peer' Prospered With Buttons

NEW YORK (AP) — He dubs himself the "sloganeer without peer" and he doesn't care who the next U. S. president will be, because his business is buttons — campaign buttons.

Richard M. Nixon's campaign. "Nixon Man of Steel," it reads. "I really like that and so do the vice president's campaign people," said Res. He said he offered the slogan to the Nixon camp after he learned of the vice president's participation in setting the steel industry dispute.

A presidential election year is always a busy time for Res and his slogan-makers. Here are some of his latest offerings: "We need Adlai Bedy" or "Two strikes are not out—I'm for Adlai" (Stevenson); "I'm for Stu, are you?" (Sen. Stuart Symington); "Who But Hubert?" (Sen. Humphrey); "Back Jack" (Sen. John F. Kennedy); "LBJ All the Way" (Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson); "Nothing Finer than Meyer" (New Jersey Gov. Robert B. Meyner).

Move Is Viewed As Russ Showoff

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets are invading America's favorite testing ground in the Central Pacific to try out a powerful new rocket, built for launching heavy earth satellites and space flights to the planets.

But the Soviet Government through Tass asked "governments of nations whose ships or aircraft may find themselves during this period in the vicinity of the area where the rockets might fall" to instruct the ship masters and aircraft captains to refrain from entering the aquatorium (water area and air space of the Pacific designated).

The conference, sponsored by the Texas Education Agency, closes today following a series of group discussions. The meetings are planned to bring school officials up to date on educational developments and regulations and for evaluation of current educational programs.

Foreign ships and aircraft were warned to steer clear of the target zone — roughly a rectangle 200 miles long and 100 miles wide — during the tests. There was no indication how long they would continue.

The range for the Soviet test firings could approximate that for the U. S. Atlas missile.

Gov. Price Daniel and Mrs. Mary Alexander of Palestine, presidents of the Texas State Teachers Assn., also addressed Thursday general session.

Soviet missiles have been sighted coming into the North Pacific in recent months. Shifting the target south into the region of American interest was viewed in some Washington circles as a deliberate move to impress the West with the reliability and accuracy of the Soviet Union's new missile weapons.

The U. S. rocket test ranges have stretched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., to Eniwetok and Bikini islands in the Central Pacific and from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to Ascension Island in the South Atlantic.

"We can't have the college professors in a huddle on one side and the public school teachers off to themselves on the other side," Rudder told delegates.

The Moscow announcement came less than six hours after President Eisenhower told Congress American intercontinental ballistic missiles have been hitting within a two-mile area from a launching point 3,000 away.

The Soviet test ranges have stretched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., to Eniwetok and Bikini islands in the Central Pacific and from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to Ascension Island in the South Atlantic.

"And, at the same time, we hear high school teachers complaining that college professors may be specialists in their field but they don't really know how to teach," Rudder said.

The Soviets did not specify the firing site for their new project. The announcement by the official Soviet news agency Tass said only that the tests will be to develop "a more powerful rocket to launch heavy earth satellites and undertake space flights to planets of the solar system."

U. S. government legal authorities said there are many precedents for use of the high seas for such experiments as long as they do not interfere unreasonably with activities of other nations and advance notice is given of the danger zones.

Mrs. Alexander told the conference Daniel must call a special session of the Legislature soon if any progress is to be made on the Hale - Aikin proposals for school improvement.

"With a view to perfecting this rocket with a high accuracy of flight, its launchings without the last stage will be made within the coming months of 1960 into the central part of the Pacific Ocean, removed from places of intensive shipping, air lines and fisheries," it added.

However, the zone marked by the Soviets is one used by Japanese tuna fishermen. Leaders of the industry declined comment for the time being, but one spokesman indicated a strong protest would be forthcoming.

She said "children will pay the penalty" if elected officials "fail to take the initiative in providing an improved foundation program, which would include better salaries for teachers."

The Marshall Islands group, the big U. S. nuclear weapon testing grounds, is about 1,000 miles to the west.

The nearest lands to the testing space are two American-owned islands—Palmyra about 250 miles to the east and Johnston Island 400 miles to the north.

Waiting until the regular legislative session in 1961 will be a mistake, Mrs. Alexander said, because under the constitution, "no new appropriations will be considered until all other financial problems of the state have been solved."

The Air Force said it believed there were about 25 men at the camp. Radio transmissions were so garbled that it wasn't known here exactly how many. Some of the civilians were believed to have returned recently to the University of Washington in Seattle.

Two men were flown here from the camp Thursday night by a twin-engine C123J cargo plane from Ladd. The Air Force said the rest would be brought out in a series of flights over the next five to seven days.

Air Force Calm As Ice Floe Break Endangers Station

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—The Air Force went calmly about the task today of airlifting a group of scientists and servicemen from a research camp on a shrinking ice floe in the Arctic Ocean.

"There's always a potential that when you are on an ice floe like that it could break up," said Maj. Phillip Peacock, public information officer at Ladd Air Force Base here.

The camp, established last May, is 400 miles northwest of Barrow, Alaska, and some 600 from the North Pole. The scientists were studying the depth of the ocean and the earth's magnetic currents.

Search Resumed For Odessa Man

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP)—The search for James Edward Williams, 31, missing Odessa salesman, was resumed today when boatmen start dragging North Cocho Lake.

"An operations plan was devised some time ago. We are putting into effect one phase of it."

The buildings at the camp remained firm.

Since the Texas Safe Driver's Insurance Code went into effect the Drivers License Division at Austin has been swamped with requests for copies of individual driving records of the past three years. Before the code went into effect, the department handled approximately 4,000 such requests a month, now they are receiving that many requests in a single day.

Financiers See Long-Range Changes In U. S. Tight Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—The $4,200,000,000 budget surplus which President Eisenhower foresees for the next fiscal year portends important long-range changes in the "tight money" situation worrying Wall Street and Main Street.

Officials of financial agencies said today a surplus of that size probably would have one of two effects: Bring about a drop in interest rates—now at the highest level in a generation—or make it possible for more Americans to obtain the loans they want.

Thus the budget secret which Eisenhower Thursday slipped into his State of the Union Message to Congress holds important implications for all borrowers and lenders, and for the economy as a whole.

But that would be in the future. Meantime his call for a continuing battle against inflation indicates no immediate easing of the credit situation.

Eisenhower estimated record peace-time spending of $79,000,000,000 in the 1961 fiscal year which begins July 1. However, he said revenues will exceed that figure by $4,200,000,000 to produce the biggest budget surplus in 13 years.

What's more, the President said the current fiscal year will show a 200 million dollar surplus despite revenue losses caused by the steel strike.

In looking to two balanced budgets in a row, Eisenhower told Congress to use the surpluses to reduce the national debt—not to cut taxes.

Once debt reduction becomes a normal practice, he continued, "We can profitably make improvements in our tax structure and thereby truly reduce the heavy burdens of taxation."

The surplus would depend not only on high revenues but also on willingness in Congress to forego either tax cuts or heavy new spending programs.

Some Democrats and a few Republicans expressed doubt that the $4,200,000,000 surplus can be achieved. If it does become a reality, however, here's how it will affect the credit situation:

Scientists Hit Space Program

DALLAS (AP)—Two prominent scientists Thursday criticized the nation's space program—one urging the elimination of "sitting duck" missile launching sites in the country and the other charging that congressional investigators "gain nothing."

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, atomic physicist and author, said this nation should rely on mobile launching systems such as the submarine-based Polaris missile instead of fixed sites in the continental United States, most of them close to large population centers.

Dr. J. M. Levitt, director of the Fels Planetarium in Philadelphia, said that Sen. Lyndon Johnson's investigation of the U. S. space program will only "take valuable men off their jobs so they can wait around in cloakrooms to testify. Two weeks after the hearings are over everybody will forget all about them."

The two scientists made their statements in interviews here. "What our programs need is strong leadership from the top—from the President. They have not had that leadership," Dr. Levitt said.

"The Russians are ahead of us mainly because of their high-thrust rockets," Dr. Levitt said. "With Saturn we could catch up with them in propulsion. Once we do, they can't stop us."

Saturn is the United States' hope for catching up to Russia in space, Dr. Levitt said. Saturn is a planned rocket with 1½ million pounds of thrust—nearly five times the power of today's Atlas rocket.

But unless the Saturn project receives enough funds and manpower the Russians will keep their space lead, he warned.

Nixon Aides Deny Post-Vote Pricing

By JOE F. KANE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon's office discounted as politics a Democratic charge that Nixon persuaded the steel industry to hold off any price increases until after the November elections.

The charge was made Thursday by Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler. The denial came from Nixon's press aide, Herbert G. Klein. Nixon himself could not be reached for comment.

Butler told the Women's National Democratic Club that "Nixon secured the agreement to hold off price boosts until after the election." He added "the sky is the limit if they elect Nixon."

Butler said the steel executives swapped less than a year of "slightly reduced excess steel profits for what they hope will be eight years of security to raise prices under a Republican administration."

Klein said Butler's remarks about a price deal "were totally absurd. It sounds like talk by someone who was more interested in politics than having the strike settled."

Butler refused to credit Nixon, as some have done, with quarter-backing Monday's settlement of the 116-day steel strike. Butler said the industry was "defeated and forced into a settlement by the steel workers."

David J. McDonald, Steelworkers Union president, Thursday credited financier Joseph P. Kennedy with helping to end the steel dispute. McDonald said he understood Kennedy, father of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), helped encourage the view in Wall Street that the long strike ought to be settled.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, also widely credited with engineering the settlement, said he didn't see Kennedy around "any time while I was negotiating."

Sen. Kennedy said he knew his father had urged a settlement, but added he was not familiar with the details of the elder Kennedy's activities.

Skeleton Found Chained To Wall

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—A skeleton found chained to the wall of a sewage inspection pit may be the remains of an American.

Police said this was among theories they were working on after discovering a pair of brown shoes with the pile of human bones.

The shoes were labeled with the trade mark of an American company. They also are manufactured in Britain but only for export. A farmer, grazing his cattle through the crumbling remains of an abandoned World War II naval base near here, discovered the skeleton Monday.

Installation Of New Staff By Kiwanians

Big Spring Kiwanians Thursday night were urged to remain unsatisfied with conditions as they are but never to become merely dissatisfied. The speaker was Dr. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of First Baptist Church, and the occasion was the annual installation dinner for new officers of the club.

Dr. O'Brien pointed out that every progressive achievement in the world stemmed from the basic fact that someone was not satisfied with the conditions of his time and set about to improve them. He warned that there is a vast difference between being "unsatisfied" and "dissatisfied," however. The unsatisfied person, he said, sets about remedying a condition whereas the dissatisfied person merely grumbles and complains and does nothing constructive toward improving the situation.

Dr. O'Brien's talk climaxed the ladies night meeting of the Kiwanians in the Settles Hotel, Delegations from Colorado City, Midland and one of the Odessa clubs (Permians) were in attendance.

H. I. Berman, Colorado City, recently elected as lieutenant governor for the 22nd Kiwanis District, was installing officer, Marvin Baker was installed as president; Ernest Welch and J. C. Pickle as vice presidents, and Clyde Hollingsworth as secretary-treasurer.

Arnold Marshall was presented in two vocal selections.

Sherman Smith, retiring president, was presented with a plaque in appreciation of his services to the club. About 90 Kiwanians, their wives and guests were in attendance.

Sam Blackburn was master of ceremonies.

DEAR ABBY

TELL HIM TO QUIT

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about a situation like this? My husband gives a birthday party every year for his first wife who has been dead for nine years. He invites all their old friends. Everyone knows what the celebration is. It includes a trip to the cemetery.

I have no objections to my husband visiting his first wife's grave

if he wants to. But this birthday party really gets me. Do you think I have to go? SECOND WIFE

DEAR SECOND: You don't have to go. And neither does anyone else. Your husband is digging pretty deep for an excuse to throw a party. Tell him to discontinue this foolishness.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and Howie is 25. We had two dates and got along just fine together. After the second date he said he thought we'd better not see any more of each other because I was "too nice." How can a girl be too nice, Abby? What do you think he meant by this?

TOO NICE

DEAR TOO: A girl can't be "too nice." What he meant was that he wasn't nice enough. Believe him.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two children. For the past eight years I have been fed up to the teeth with youngsters calling me by my first name. I teach my children to call the parents of their friends, "Mr. and Mrs. So and So." But their friends do not return this courtesy.

My husband doesn't like it either. He is a professional man and he is called "Mister" at the office. But when he comes home he is greeted by some little 5-year-old punk with, "Hi ya, Max!" This lack of respect is disgusting. What do other adults think of this?

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Not all adults resent children calling them by their first names. Some even prefer it. But if this irritates you and your husband, please remember that this is no indication of their respect, or lack of it. They simply haven't been taught otherwise. I suggest that you ask these children in a kind and loving way, to call you and your husband "Mr. and Mrs. So and So." Children want to please, and usually respond beautifully to kindness.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from Old Timer provoked me. He said, "There ought to be a law forcing married women to stay home and not work until all their children reach 18."

I am a working mother and let me tell Old Timer that among my acquaintances the women who work are better mothers and have better behaved children than the mothers who don't work.

Plenty of mothers who don't work spend all their time gadding around and drinking coffee with the neighbors, completely ignoring their children. Although I am a working mother, I give my children more time and attention than many mothers who boast that they stay home and take care of their families. WORKING MOTHER

Daniel To Speak At Press Meeting

DALLAS (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel will be the principal speaker for the Texas Press Assn.'s 18th annual mid-winter meeting which opens here tonight.

Daniel has also announced that he will hold a special press conference here Saturday morning.

Dr. Louis M. Orr of Orlando, Fla., president of the American Medical Assn., will speak on "The Physician and the Press" at the opening session of the convention which is expected to attract about 150 persons.

Miss Mary Alice Cretsering of Texas Tech will appear on a forum discussion of the TAP's college intern program.

The Howard County grand jury adjourned without taking any action against Bell, who is free on $7,500 bond on an affidavit charging assault and battery with intent to gratify sexual desires.

Officials said four girls subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury had left the state.

Bell's attorney filed a motion to quash the criminal affidavit and also a motion for a change of venue.

Otha Pitner, a local farmer who identified himself as a minister of the Church of God of the Union Assembly, told newsmen Bell was dismissed during the Christmas holidays.

Goldwater Calls Nixon A Good Conservative

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said today he thinks Vice President Richard M. Nixon will prove himself a "satisfactory conservative" in campaigning.

Goldwater, who heads the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, disagreed with some of his GOP senatorial colleagues who say Nixon needs to identify himself as something of a liberal to win the presidency over a Democratic nominee.

Sens. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) and Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) have made such suggestions while denying that Nixon is the choice of the GOP "Old Guard." Nixon had no current opposition for the Republican nomination.

"I think the majority of the people of the country want a conservative for president," Goldwater said. "That is the impression I get after having visited 43 states in the last few months."

"I believe Nixon will prove himself a satisfactory conservative after he is able to cut loose from the White House apron strings. Now he is tied to the Eisenhower administration policies but he will be free to go on his own if he is nominated."

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) said in a separate interview he fears Nixon's chances to win in November may be damaged somewhat if an inflationary spiral results from wage increases granted in the steel strike settlement engineered by the vice president and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell.

Finch's Stepchild Tells Of Death Day

LOS ANGELES (AP)—First there was her mother's voice, screaming for help, and then her stepfather's—"mad and angry and loud."

Patti Daugherty, 12, her eyes filled with tears, was telling the jury at the Finch murder trial of her mother's last moments alive. Socialite Barbara Jean Finch, 36, was beaten and shot to death July 18 near her luxurious home in suburban West Covina. Patti's stepfather, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 42, and his red-haired mistress, Carole Tregoff, 23, are charged with the murder.

"I heard screams for help," Patti told the jury Thursday. "It was mother's voice. She said 'help, Marie Anne, come!'" Marie Anne Lidholm, 19, was the Finches' housemaid.

Patti burst into tears before and after she took the witness stand, but she testified in a clear if tremulous voice. Long, dark curls spilled over her round white collar.

Patti said she and the maid retired after watching television, then heard screams from the garage. She followed the maid outside.

"By the time I was to the garage, the door was closed and Marie Anne was screaming for me to get in the house and lock the door."

"I heard footsteps—it sounded like something hitting the wall. I heard Dr. Finch's voice. It sounded mad and angry and loud."

She said she ran back to the house and locked herself in.

"I heard a shot," she said. "Then I saw Marie Anne come running to the house, and I unlocked the door and let her in. 'I could hardly move. I was so petrified.'"

Patti, Mrs. Finch's daughter by a former marriage, left the courtroom leaning heavily on the shoulder of her father, Lyle Daugherty, in the hall she burst into sobs.

Earlier, she fled the packed courtroom in tears while Miss Lidholm was giving her account of the night of the killing.

Miss Lidholm herself had tears in her eyes when she completed almost two days of grueling testimony—much of it under searching cross-examination. The doctor's attorney, Grant B. Cooper, quizzed her about inconsistencies in different statements she has given about the death night.

She told police after the incident that when she ran into the garage Dr. Finch smashed her head against the garage wall, breaking a hole in the plasterboard and knocking her out. But she testified at the trial that she was stunned but conscious. She said she saw Mrs. Finch run out of the garage, the doctor in pursuit. Mrs. Finch's body was found on the ground of an adjacent home.

"Were not the fact clearer in your mind then than now, Marie Anne?" Cooper asked.

"I think I was pretty confused that night," said the girl, a slim blonde who came here from Sweden in 1958. "My English is much better now after half a year—I've studied and I know the more proper words now."

Missing Prof, Wife, Return

BEAUMONT (AP)—Dr. and Mrs. Benham M. Ingersoll arrived at the Jefferson County Airport Thursday, abruptly ending a 13-hour search for the couple who were reported missing Wednesday night.

Dr. Ingersoll is mathematics professor at Lamar Tech College in Beaumont.

Dr. Ingersoll said his three-day delay in reporting back to his post at the college was caused by illness. He reported he had a stomach ailment while on a holiday vacation on the Isle of Pines, 30 miles south of Cuba.

Doctors advised him not to fly until he had recovered, he said. He said he sent a cable to the college informing them of the delay but college officials said the message did not arrive.

A Devotional For Today

"Whatever you ask in prayer, you will receive it, if you have faith." (Matthew 21:22, RSV.)
PRAYER: Our Father, we thank Thee for those persons who are persistent in prayer. Grant us faith to believe that Thou dost still answer prayer. Help us to pray without ceasing, that we may be strengthened as we labor among men for the sake of Christ and His Kingdom on earth. In His name we pray. Amen.

Same Tragic Dirge, Another Verse

Another one of those dreadful stories of a lone motorist giving a ride to a hitchhiker and being murdered in cold-blood for his generosity has made the public prints.
The details are familiar, with one variation: an arrest was made within twelve hours of the finding of the victim's body by the roadside. The 19-year-old hitchhiker said he had shot his host four times in the head, about 50 miles northwest of Phoenix having been given a ride from near Banning, Calif.
No motorist is under any sort of moral or legal obligation to give any hitchhiker a ride anywhere, at any time. In fact, some states make it a misdemeanor to pick up a hiker. The friendly host may get away with it an indefinite number of times without incident, and millions of them have.

But there is always the chance there may be one time too many.
How can you tell whom to trust?
It is not always easy to refuse a request for a ride. One may feel like a grade-A jerk to pass up a friendly looking stranger who lifts a thumb.
But it is the only safe way. You are taking a chance if you do relent. Even if your rider is perfectly harmless and in every way respectable and aboveboard, if you had an accident and he was seriously injured, you'd feel a moral obligation to do all you could for him—and you might have a legal obligation as well.

Ugliness Which Cannot Be Ignored

The "ugly recrudescence" of anti-Semitism in Western Germany and in other parts of the world is something not to be ignored in the vain hope that it will go away.
Two categories of movements—the antis and the isms—almost always are suspect of being symptoms of mass psychosis. They have two tools as stock in trade—hate and hysteria.
There is nothing wrong in being against something or somebody if the basis of a conclusion is sound and intellectual. Such stands are based on positive conclusions. But when being against is purely negative and is based on prejudice (which simply means pre-judgment), suspicion, or a deliberate attempt at diversion, then it is deadly wrong.

Too often this attitude is one of uncertainty superiority. One's own weaknesses and failures are defended or glossed over by ranting against something or someone else. Any difficulties can be blamed, not so much openly as by insinuation, on the object of prejudice.
Gradually a harvest of hate is reaped in the form of cancerous and blind generalizations, and the mob instinct is aroused and encouraged. Malice, murdering and murder are given a cloak of righteousness.
There is no end to the devilment that can be brought about and since there is no end, it will ultimately weaken or destroy those who indulge in it. It is a poisonous opiate to which no nation can afford to become addicted.

The Gallup Poll Rocket Achievements Highlight 1959

PRINCETON—The year 1959 will be remembered by people the world over as a year of historic milestones in the race to conquer space.

This is the major finding from a recent survey conducted by Gallup-affiliated research organizations in the following 11 nations: Austria, Canada, France, Great Britain, Greece, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, the United States, Uruguay, and West Germany.

Representative nationwide samples of the people of each country were asked the following question:
"Of all the things that have happened anywhere in the world during 1959, which is the most outstanding?"

THE CONSENSUS OF THE choices of the thousands of people interviewed shows that two events easily dominate all others:

1. Space activity (the "moon shot," rocket achievements), and
2. The exchange of visits between Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

In seven of the 11 countries, "space activity" was selected most often as the "outstanding event" of the last year.

In the short span of 12 months, several "firsts" can be chalked up in the area of space activity, with the Russians being able to boast the most dramatic achievements:

1. Russia put the first artificial planet into orbit. A U. S. moon rocket sent up later in the year became the second man-made planet;
2. THE "MOON SHOT"—A Russian rocket was the first man-made object to reach the moon;
3. The far side of the moon was photographed by a Russian rocket;
4. The U. S. sent up a series of "earth satellites" to collect scientific data; two monkeys were used to measure the effects of space.

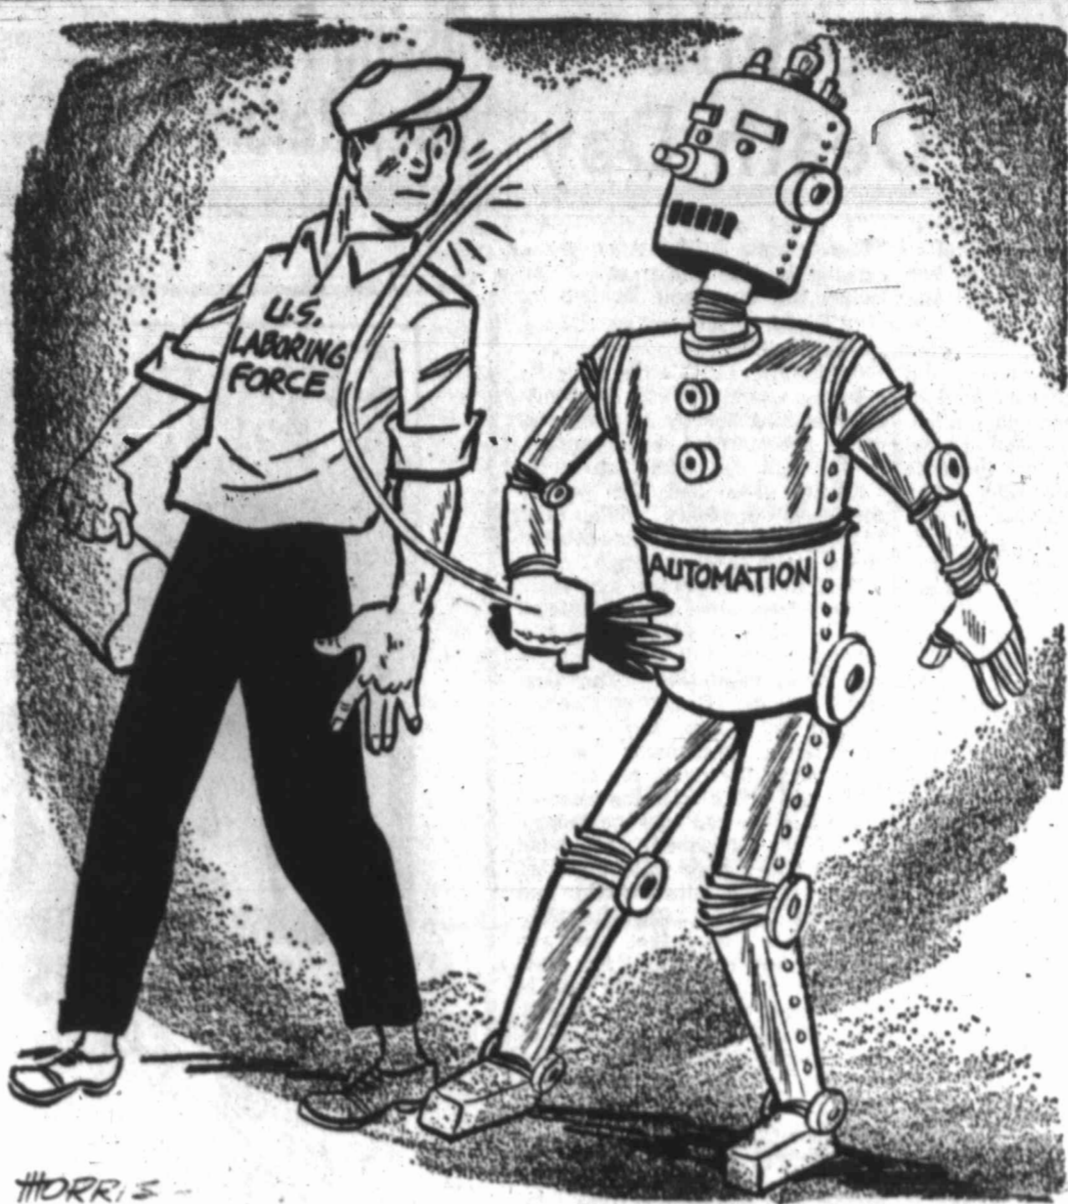

Representative samples of the publics in four of the 11 nations—Holland, Sweden, West Germany and the U. S.—indicate that in these countries most people name the Eisenhower-Khrushchev visits as the "most outstanding thing that has happened in the world in 1959."

A world Gallup Poll in September, 1959, conducted in the capitals of 14 major nations, found large majorities in favor of the forthcoming exchange of visits between Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

ON THIS OCCASION, THE first sampling of public opinion in the Soviet capital ever made in conjunction with polling efforts in other nations found that the man-in-the-street in Moscow was as highly enthusiastic about the visits as was his counterpart in the capitals of the 11

MORRIS
CHALLENGE OF THE 60'S

James Marlow Another Year Of Politeness

WASHINGTON (AP)—It was a quiet statement, without sparks. Read President Eisenhower's State of the Union Message in Congress Thursday and you'll find no indication he expects an angry or even unusual year. On the contrary.

Peace and prosperity were central points in what he said. They are expected to provide the Republicans' political theme for 1960 and their main selling point to the voters in the presidential election.

THESE WILL, OF course, be some struggles in Congress between Democrats and Republicans, and between Southern Democrats and Northern Democrats, between conservative Republicans and liberal Republicans.

And there will probably be some tiffs between Eisenhower and the Democrats, but mild. All this would be par for the course in any year. But nothing more than that is indicated by congressional reaction to the message.

With some exceptions, it was a sort of "yes, indeed, it's a very nice message" reaction. There was more criticism of what it didn't say than of what it did.

Eisenhower spoke pretty much in generalities. He touched on a number of issues but the key question is how far he intends to go on any of them, to push them, to fight for them. That won't be answered until and unless he follows up with specific proposals.

One of those proposals called for federal officials to register voters in cases where local registrars discriminated against them. This week word came from the administration that it does not intend to support this part of the commission's proposals.

Hal Boyle The Trees Come Down

NEW YORK (AP) — There's something missing in our house. Two corners of our living room look awfully empty. They are where our Christmas trees stood.

Perhaps it is now a little too late or far too early to talk about Christmas. Most people get a bit surfeited with the holiday season, the hysteria of giving and receiving, the repetition of the carols and expressions of good cheer, the sometimes-forced atmosphere of gaiety.

They are a bit glad to say goodbye to it and to get down to the bedrock effort and resumption of routine that comes with the New Year.

But somehow Christmas never hits me harder than when the time comes to take down the tree. There is something so irrevocably final about defrocking this woodland Cinderella, center for so brief a time of health and heart, and tossing her into the nearest ashcan. It makes me feel almost like a traitor to my better nature. It seems like an act of disloyalty. This year for the first time we had two Christmas trees, and both were perfect. One was a tall, elegantly spare spruce. The other was of shimmering aluminum.

The evergreen tree was for ourselves and our 6-year-old daughter Tracy Ann. You can't beat a real tree for people. Nothing else quite satisfies them.

The metal tree was for our 15-month-old cat, Lady Dottie. Last year she kept overturning our pine Christmas tree by climbing it and trying to snatch the baubles off its boughs.

We figured this year that if we gave her a tree of her own she would behave better. And, sure enough, she did. She understood very quickly that the aluminum tree was her very own. Our only problem was that she kept gnawing at the metal leaves until I was afraid her ribs would turn silver.

MR. BREGER

Around The Rim Waiting For Word From Out There

We note in the news that astronomers are going to use their radio telescopes to pick up where Percival Lowell left off. Lowell, a wealthy businessman turned scientist, established Lowell Observatory in Arizona years ago for the specific purpose of proving the existence of a superior Martian culture. It has since been pretty well established that no higher order of creatures could exist on the barren Red Planet, much less establish a civilization.

But out of the countless trillions of suns in the universe, there are bound to be some planets that support life. And out of these, it seems probable that at least a few have developed intelligent, and therefore civilized, beings.

It would seem logical that a highly developed civilization would discover the principles of radio. Some of their messages, if there are any, have leaked out into space, just as ours are bound to have done. The new radio telescopes certainly are capable of picking up such signals, and our scientists will be more than able to translate them.

How? It's simple, really. It's a matter of gaining a sufficient quantity of intercepts and applying already-existing mathematical methods which work equally well on human language, insect communications and wave propagation.

And won't we have fun writing the banner headlines when the first alien voice is recorded.

The virus has the highest rate of mutation of all creatures—and in this fact lies a shuddery thought.

Body chemistry in human beings covers the full range of possible variation, so that no two people are exactly alike in their biochemical makeup. This accounts for the fact that some people die of some diseases while others are susceptible to other diseases.

The Salk vaccine knocks out the polio virus, but no medicine is perfect, and there is no way completely to eradicate the virus. Some polio bugs are always around, somewhere.

Most people today are fairly well protected—either by taking Salk shots or through natural immunity. Thus, the virus is forced into a slightly different environment, in which the resistance of the human system is greater.

But, because of their high mutation rate, viruses quickly adapt. People cannot adapt so quickly, because their generations take so much more time.

Already, polio viruses show signs of attacking more successfully over a wider range, and many may be becoming immune to the Salk vaccine. Other organisms, bacteria and viruses, have proved adaptability to other wonder drugs.

How long before our protection wears off?
—BOB SMITH

Inez Robb Billy Rose In Another Unusual Role

The Bantam Barnum of Broadway has become the Midget Medici of the Midway.

Billy Rose, showman de luxe, has graduated from Barnum to Medici with the munificent gift of his valuable collection of splendid modern sculpture to the National Museum of Israel. The new-minted Medici's million-dollar gift includes the financing and landscaping of a five-acre garden, in the heart of Jerusalem, in which his collection will be shown.

"Why not?" asked Billy, a trifle belittlingly, as he showed me through his town house, something of a museum itself, where Rodin, Bourdelle, Maillols, Daumiers, Epstein, Archipenko, de Crefts, Nadelmann, Robesse, Zorachs and Lipchitzes, to name only a few, feast the eye.

"FOR THREE-QUARTERS of my life, I've been chasing the elusive buck," he said, in answer to his own question. "Now, while I'm still around to bow from the waist and enjoy the sensation, I'm going to give it away."

"I've been a shorthand speed-writer, a song writer, a night-club proprietor, a Broadway producer, a World's Fair impresario, a theatre owner, a newspaper columnist, and a stock market speculator. And now I'm a patron of the arts! What you might call a Sixth Avenue Medici."

"I began collecting art about twenty-five years ago when I bought my first town house. It had a lot of vacant walls that needed a lot of pictures. I considered railroad calendars and theatrical three-sheets. And then I decided on paintings—originals."

"MY FIRST INTEREST in paintings grew out of my friendship with Billy Brice, the son of Fanny Brice, my first wife. Billy's a modern artist, one of the finest in America. I started going to galleries and museums with Billy. And before I knew it, I was a collector.

"And now, why am I giving all the sculpture away? Because at a dinner party a year ago, I met Nahum Goldmann, head of the Jewish Agency for Israel. Right out of nowhere, he asked me to give the collection to Israel. But I wasn't sold until Karl Katz, curator and director of the National Museum of Israel, flew to New York to see me.

"Even then I didn't get any bubbles in my blood until he said the collection would be displayed in a garden, not a museum. That sold me. I said, 'Fine, if it can be designed and landscaped, at my expense, by Isamu Noguchi.' You know Noguchi? He's the Japanese-American sculptor who designed the UNESCO gardens in Paris."

"Well, Noguchi and I are leaving for Israel early in February to get the garden under way. It overlooks the Valley of the Cross, with its 1,500-year-old Byzantine Monastery. And the National Parliament, the new Hebrew University and the small museum to house the Dead Sea Scrolls are adjacent.

"THE FIFTY PIECES I am giving will form the nucleus of an excellent collection of modern sculpture." Mr. Rose continued. "I hope it will always be kept current."

"Sure, I'll miss the sculptures," the Midget Medici said. "Who doesn't miss his children when they leave home?"

But he has a dozen other projects up his sleeve to keep him busy. He is considering a green house in the rear of his home, where his own private sculpture garden has been. To grow orchids, match. And also, the Billy Rose Foundation for Cosmetic Rehabilitation of Persons in the Performing Arts. Eventually, this means that the actor or actress who needs, say, a face lift, will get it free, compliments of the Barnum Medici.

David Lawrence Steel Settlement Purely Political

WASHINGTON — A "political" settlement—the kind that solves no basic problems but merely postpones indefinitely their solution—has emerged from the steel controversy. Economic issues, particularly the inflationary effects which can diminish further the purchasing power of the dollar, were disregarded. Already there is talk that the administration has given up its fight for labor-reform legislation at the coming session of Congress and prefers to put it off for the time being.

This fateful turn of events has come about because the union leaders knew how to play their politics. They found their opportunity in catering to the political ambition of Republican leaders. For weeks and weeks artificial pressure was built up on the Democratic side through governors, senators and representatives. But this was a case where the Democrats were not in charge of the executive branch of the government and could do little to bring about a settlement. So finally it was rightly assumed that the political benefits of a possible settlement had to be dangled alluringly before the Republican leaders, and that strategy worked.

ON DECEMBER 24 last, this correspondent, discussing the possible success of the union strategy, wrote in these dispatches:

"The future procedure is plainly marked out. The union leaders did not say so, but actually they want a 'political' settlement. By this is meant a governmentally-imposed agreement. The union strategists think that in the end the steel managers will be compelled to accept it."

"This is what has happened many times before. The companies will not, of course, accept responsibility for an inflationary settlement. If, however, the government puts them in a situation where they cannot do anything but yield, they will have to agree to such a settlement and then later raise prices."

"This has been the history in major strikes, and the unions feel that their influence is such that the administration in power, whether it be Republican or Democratic, must conform to the pattern."

THERE WERE TWO men "inside the official family" who were fair targets for the union strategists—Vice President Nixon and Secretary of Labor Mitchell. Both could see political benefits arising from playing a conspicuous part in settling the steel strike.

But logical though this may seem to the politically minded—and Democrats under the same circumstances would have done the same thing—the fact remains that the country has suffered a severe setback. The momentum developed in recent months for a change in existing laws governing monopolies has been slowed down perceptibly.

Just why should a small group of men representing management and labor unions be permitted to shut down a whole industry? The American system has hitherto called for competition, as contrasted with the Khrushchev system of state control of management and labor unions. The 11 steel companies bargained as a unit only because all their workers were combined in a single union against them.

Uniform rules and contract provisions have been insisted upon by the union, and this is a means of fixing labor costs and, indirectly, prices throughout a whole industry.

IS CONGRESS NOW to forget all about these monopolies and, as is reported, just because it is an election year, look the other way and avoid what is called a ticklish subject? Why has the administration weakened on the fundamental principle involved? Who is to pay the bill for the enormous economic loss suffered by the American people during the 116-day steel strike? Can a loss like that be ignored and a billion-dollar increase in wage costs now be imposed, which must necessarily encourage other unions to make similar wage demands?

The steel companies put up an unprecedented battle, but had to capitulate in the end. They couldn't stand up against threats of hostile legislation and pressure exerted by the incumbent administration in Washington. The labor unions acceded to the terms of the settlement because they got nearly everything they wanted and also preserved their own solidarity. Small wonder that the steelworkers' wage policy committee of 171 cheered Secretary of Labor Mitchell at his meeting with them after the steel settlement was announced.

Big business and big unionism constitute today rival forces which, when they agree, can injure the 'party of the third part'—the consumer. Government, which is supposed to represent all the people, unapologetically beholds to big business and to both political parties. Some day men in high places must summon up the courage to awaken the public to the damage being done to the competitive system by economic monopolies, but leadership in that direction has not yet emerged.

Prettiest

Pretty, Too

Funniest

Got Laughs

Mrs. Thomas Seeb, 4-A Albrook, was awarded the prize for the prettiest chapeau in the Crazy Hat Contest held Thursday by the Officers Wives Club at their monthly luncheon. Her creation was made of poppies, roses, carnations and violets secured to a large veil-draped hat.

Flowers also trimmed the second prettiest hat, which was made by Mrs. Robert Steffy, 23 Albrook. Roses and pink geraniums were enhanced with a pair of earbuds, while pearls were entwined in the openings of a broad server; the basket was edged with ball fringe.

You can't see them, but there are jelly bean eggs in the bird nest atop the hat of Mrs. Howard D. Below, 49-A Chanute Drive. The colorful nest is of green packing paper, and perched on the side is a tiny blue bird. Green waxed paper over a lampshade is topped with a branch of pyracantha as a base for the nest.

An animal from the zoo of Dr. Seuss munches grapes on the headpiece of Mrs. Raymond Powell, 203 Elm Drive, who was winner of second place in the Crazy Hat Contest. The improvised birdcage is topped with beads used as toys, while more grapes at the sides give a jaunty air.

A rock and a roll on a record were worn by Mrs. Charles Pierce, 7 Albrook, to cop the prize in the most original category in the Crazy Hat Contest. Bobby Sox made appropriate streamers on the side of the hat, held in place with an elastic band under the chin.

Pineapple, cherries and other fruit cake mix were used by Mrs. M. E. Lindeman, 1508 Kentucky Way, for an original model—and quite pretty, too. A circle of green pineapple and red cherries made the crown of the hat—the top filled in with tiny cubes of fruit.

Crazy Hats Highlight Luncheon For OWC

Hat trees, created from thornbushes, with little straw hats hanging on them formed the centerpiece for tables at the Crazy Hat luncheon of the Officers Wives Club Thursday at 1:30 p.m. On the head table the hat tree was set among violet irises and yellow gladioli. For individual tables the thornbushes were potted. The occasion was sponsored by the wing wives, and hostesses were Mrs. James B. Greene, Mrs. Robert F. Steffy, Mrs. John T. Williams, and Mrs. Frank Greene. Mrs. Leonard Einstein, program chairman for the club, presided.

Mrs. Ralph Simpson who directed the crazy hat contest. Judges for the competition were Mrs. K. H. McGibbon and Mrs. Arch Carson. Winners in the three categories included Mrs. Thomas C. Seeb, first, and Mrs. Robert F. Steffy, second, for the most beautiful hats. Funniest hats in the contest belonged to Mrs. Howard D. Below, first, and Mrs. Raymond Powell, second. Judged the most original were the hats of Mrs. Charles H. Pierce, first, and Mrs. Marvin E. Lindeman, second.

Shower Is Honor For Bridal Pair

LAMESA — Aubrey Kiefer, a native of the Klondike community, and his bride, who visited early this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Kiefer, were honored with a linen and kitchen shower in the Klondike School homemaking department Monday evening. Kiefer will leave this month for duty with the U. S. Army, and his bride, whose home is in Athens, Texas, will join him in about three months. Joan Robinson, Judy Koehler, Sharon Vogler and Linda Kay Harris alternated at the serving table which was laid with white linen and featured a centerpiece of tall red tapers banked in white tulle and pearls. Streamers extending from the centerpiece bore the couple's names. Lillian Vogler presided at the bride's book when approximately 30 guests were registered.

Elbow HD Club To Have Benefit Party At School

A benefit 42 and canasta party was planned by members of the Elbow Home Demonstration Club Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Earl Bell. Date for the affair was set for Jan. 16 at 7 p.m. in the gym of the Elbow School. Tickets are priced at 25 cents. Twelve attended the meeting, during which the club yearbooks were completed, and the standing rules read. Mrs. W. F. Harrell reported on the recent meeting of the HD Council. After a roll call in which each member named her favorite radio or television program, Mrs. Russell Christensen gave the thought for the new year better than the thought that the old year was successful.

Music Group Has Election

LAMESA — Continuing their efforts to re-activate Gamma Iota chapter of Pi Mu, national music society, an officer election and initiation were staged by the group at a meeting Tuesday night in the home of Barbara Hill.

Judy Hancock was elected president; other officers named were Denise Patterson, vice president; Ricky Hamilton, secretary-treasurer; David Riker, reporter; Cynthia Cope, historian; Wanza Allen, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Lorine Groves, who with Miss Hall acts as chapter advisor, conducted the initiation ceremony. Vicky Crowell, Ricky Hamilton and Lynn Gray were the members initiated.

Others present were the newly elected officers, Pat Tune and Ruth May.

Spaders First To Plan March Of Dimes Coffee

First in the series of March of Dimes coffees to be announced is the one slated by members of the Spaders Garden Club for Jan. 15. Mrs. Earl Burnett, 1227 E. 17th, will open her home for the affair.

This was announced at a meeting of the group Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. H. B. Perry.

In an officer election, Mrs. Kyle

Cable was placed in office as president; Mrs. Dave Dorchester will serve as vice president, and Mrs. J. R. Bizzell, secretary. Mrs. F. D. Williams will be treasurer; Mrs. Don Grantham, parliamentarian, and Mrs. Dale Smith, librarian-reporter.

Mrs. Zack Gray will represent the club in the meetings of the Council of Big Spring Garden Clubs.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. D. S. Riley, a member of the Big Spring Garden Club, who discussed the preparation of dried materials and flower arrangements.

Mrs. Riley recommended a mixture of borax and sand for use in drying flowers, and she displayed hydrangea blossoms, blue salvia, cotton burrs and magnolia leaves which she had prepared. A mixture of one-half shellac and one-half wood alcohol may be used as a spray for brittle materials, she told the club. Drops of glue, applied with a toothpick at the base of a rose or cypress, thornum and similar flowers will hold the petals in place in the drying process, she said.

When leaves are soaked in glycerine, as magnolias are prepared, Mrs. Riley suggested crushing the stems so the absorption will be hastened.

A dark, dry place, such as a closet for the water heater, is best for drying materials, the speaker remarked, and she told members that a small wire inserted up the stems of flowers would enable them to be dried in the desired shape.

Names of prospects for the class were submitted by class president Mrs. E. F. Henderson, who suggested ways of reaching them. The February meeting of the group will be hosted by Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Noel Marsallis.

'Have Faith' Anderson Justified His Belief

During World War II Lt. Col. Holly Anderson, commander of a squadron of the 89th Bomb Group in Korea, gained a nickname for his faith in God. Others razzed him, calling him "Have-faith."

On June 1941 he led four B-29s toward Japan rail bridges at Kwansan and before the group could release their bombs, they were attacked by 30 MIGs. They caught the last plane and it blazed up in fire, the crew falling out under Lt. Col. Anderson's heart-sick eyes. The MIGs tried to drive the rest of the planes into the sun, blinding them, so they could be downed, one by one. Sharp insight caused the colonel to order sharp, unexpected turns. Could he save the other three planes?

Nevertheless, the MIGs came close, their fire found target. Commander Anderson's plane was hit in the tail. They lost their cabin pressure and watching the instruments with anxious eyes, he saw them all begin reading zero.

SALT LAKE CITY — Former Rep. Brooks Hays (D. Ark.) has warned his fellow Southerners that they should not "seal the lips of their ministers" on racial integration.

"When the good people of the South — God-fearing, Bible-reading, and reared in a cultural atmosphere — become aware of things being out of harmony with their ideals, progress can be made," he said.

"But they have to permit their spokesmen — both political and religious — speak bravely and to point out that segregation is not a way of life, but a product of an unhappy political situation after the Civil War."

Hays, a former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, spoke before a meeting of the Utah Educational Assn.

Baptists Move

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Eleven Southern Baptist state offices either have or are planning to move into new quarters.

North Carolina and Kentucky Baptists already occupy their new buildings. Florida and Louisiana offices are scheduled to move early next year.

Plans for new buildings are under way in Arkansas, South Carolina, Virginia, Kansas, Alabama, Colorado, and Mississippi.

New Titles

CHICAGO — District leaders in the 30 synods that make up the new Lutheran Evangelical Church in America are going to be known as "deacons."

The Joint Committee on Lutheran Unity chose "dean" over "president" in order "to weight the scale in the direction of more ecclesiastical language."

The JCU is negotiating the four-way merger of the United, Augustana, Finnish Evangelical and Lutheran Churches into the new three million-member LECA.

Integration

SALT LAKE CITY — Former Rep. Brooks Hays (D. Ark.) has warned his fellow Southerners that they should not "seal the lips of their ministers" on racial integration.

"When the good people of the South — God-fearing, Bible-reading, and reared in a cultural atmosphere — become aware of things being out of harmony with their ideals, progress can be made," he said.

SUCCESS AND OPPOSITION IN THE LABORS OF THE GREAT MISSIONARY, ST. PAUL

Scripture—Acts 14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

PAUL OF TARSUS, whose life we study today, was a man who, because of his abilities, "could have had a position in the university there; he could have become a famous rabbi with a good income, or a successful business man. He abandoned all this, and toiled, endured hardship, suffered rebukes—all for the sake of the gospel." I quote from Peloubet's Select Notes, written by the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith, whose comments on the lesson are so helpful.

Last week's lesson ended with Paul and Barnabas shaking the dust of Antioch from their feet and making their way to Iconium, 85 miles away.

"And it came to pass in Iconium, that they went together with the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude both of the Jews and also of the Greeks believed. But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil affected against the brethren. Long time therefore abode they speaking boldly in the Lord, which gave testimony unto the Word of His grace, and granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands."—Acts 14:1-3.

The multitude of the city was divided, however, part holding with the Jews and part with the apostles. When the apostles, enemies, both Gentiles and Jews, sought to stone them, they learned of it and fled to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and the region round about, and preached the gospel there.—Acts 14:4-6.

In Lystra they found a man crippled from birth, who had never walked. He heard Paul speak, and Paul "beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed, said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked."

When the people saw this miracle, they thought Paul and his companions were gods come down to earth. When the apostles, Barnabas and Paul, heard this they "rent their clothes, and ran in among the people crying out . . . Sir, why do ye these things? America is a land of bells!
Wedding bells, door bells, dinner bells, school bells, sleigh bells. . . .
all speak of a country where Freedom from tyranny exists.

Radio chimes keynote freedom of speech as commentators broadcast the news. Typewriter bells ring out freedom of the press. And church bells, whether they be the musical chimes from a cathedral's spire, or the ding dong from the steeple of a village chapel, typify freedom of religion.

Churches throughout the land are open to all. Inside their doors, we cast aside the fetters of worry that shackle our hearts in this atomic age. We find strength and courage to face the unknown future. Our faith, hope and trust in God, who says, "Fear not; for I am with thee," is renewed and peace fills our anxious souls.

Let us accept the invitation of the bells to "Come and worship," and go to church regularly.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Leaking Gas Line May Have Caused Blast

Another suspect has been named as the cause of the explosion at Guy's Lounge, West Highway 80, Wednesday afternoon.

A. D. Meador, fire marshal, said this morning that a leaking natural gas line was discovered in the alley behind the building. The leak is about 10 feet from the site of the explosion.

Mrs. Vivian Bissey, Lamesa, was reported in good condition this morning at Malone and Hogan Hospital. She was seriously burned in the explosion that apparently was set off when she attempted to light a cigarette in the rest room of the cafe.

Attendees said she had second and third degree burns over 36 per cent of her body.

A perfume dispenser in the rest room was originally blamed for the explosion as a result of preliminary investigation. The leaking gas line was later discovered.

C. L. Rogers, police chief, said a Department of Safety investigator was coming here today from Midland to check the explosion scene. The exact cause of the accident may be determined during his investigation.

Fire Destroys Stock Barns

Huge clouds of black smoke swirl up from fire that destroyed three large stock barns and threatened other buildings and stock pens at a cattle feeding area in Emporia, Kansas. The feed elevator and a metal building in the center of the picture were the only two structures saved. Lost in the blaze besides buildings were about 200 animals including sheep and cattle. The estimated damage to the property, owned by Bluestem Feed Lots, Inc., was estimated at more than $300,000.

W. German President Predicts Difficulties From Swastikas

The Israeli government in Jerusalem announced Thursday that similar notes would be sent to countries wherever anti-Semitic acts are discovered.

Austrian newspapers of all political complexions also denounced the wave of anti-Semitism.

Fred Borth, 32, a self-styled Austrian fuhrer and leader of the neo-Nazi Legion Europe, was picked up by police in Vienna because of a pamphlet he wrote attacking authorities for the arrest of another prominent neo-Nazi in Austria, Leopold Windsch.

Swastikas appeared near Salzburg, Austria, in a residential district where Jews live in Hamburg, Germany; and in Berlin's Kreuzberg district, a working class area.

Sixteen days after the outbursts began with the desecration of a synagogue in Cologne, government officials, Jewish leaders and school workers still disagreed in trying to place the blame for the continuing situation.

West Germany's Minister of Interior Gerhard Schroeder told British radio listeners Thursday night that anti-Semitism "represents no political power in Germany today."

In our opinion, the anti-Semitic outrages primarily involve questions of moral attitudes and humanity," he said.

Many Jewish leaders and groups from other churches blamed left-overs from Hitler's fascism. There have also been suggestions that the Communists inspired the outrages to discredit Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

Police in Milan, Italy, seized eight men, ranging in age from 17 to 28, and charged them with reviving fascism by anti-Semitic acts.

Police said the eight were members of a group calling itself "the new European order." Propaganda documents were found in the organization's headquarters suggesting it was in touch with similar movements abroad.

In the United States, the FBI is investigating two threatening letters sent Jewish congregations in Jacksonville, Fla., where a synagogue was daubed with the Nazi symbol.

Walls of two of New York City's largest Protestant churches—the Cathedral of St. John the Divine (Episcopal) and the Riverside Church—were splashed with Jewish religious symbols and the old testament phrase, "an eye for an eye."

New York City Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy assigned extra policemen to guard churches and synagogues.

Water Usage High In Lamesa

LAMESA—Residents here used more than 30,000,000 gallons of water monthly during 1959 to set an all time record for water usage over a year's period, W. E. Sealy, water superintendent, reported.

The actual monthly average was 50,453,383 gallons which was derived from the annual total of 600,544,600 gallons used in the past 12 months.

Top month during the year was August when 81,795,000 gallons of water was used, a record all-time monthly average.

Charges Pending For Marijuana

Two Latin-Americans were arrested last night and will be charged with possession of marijuana, according to Fern Cox, chief deputy, Howard County Sheriff's office.

The pair had some loose material in their pockets, identified by the officers as marijuana, when apprehended.

Neither had any cigarettes in his possession at the time.

Stork Busy In Dawson County

LAMESA — Dawson County births greatly exceeded the number of deaths in the county during 1959, Earl Goen, justice of the peace, reported Thursday.

Goen indicated that 604 births were recorded during the year, just passed as compared to 160 deaths. In December births were more than five times greater than the number of deaths.

Forty-eight births went on record, and only 12 deaths, two of which were attributed to accidental causes by a plane crash.

Houston Mayor Says Area Needs Water Of 2 Rivers

AUSTIN (AP)—Houston Mayor Lewis Cutrer says he thinks his booming industrial area needs both Trinity and San Jacinto River water for future growth.

Cutrer appeared Thursday before the State Board of Water Engineers in support of applications by Houston and the Trinity River Authority to build new reservoirs on the Lower Trinity at Livingston and Wallisville. The San Jacinto River Authority opposes the plans.

The hearing recessed Thursday until 10 a.m. Tuesday. It began Nov. 2.

"Our commitment on Trinity River water is not the limit of our financial plans for water," Cutrer told the board. "It would be a tight squeeze but we might work out something with the San Jacinto River Authority."

Houston plans to take 70 per cent of the water available at Livingston and Wallisville for industrial and irrigation use. The city has a current contract with the SJRA for water from Lake Houston on the San Jacinto.

Cutrer said negotiations with SJRA on proposed dams at Conroe, Honea and Cleveland have produced no agreement. "I don't feel we have reached an impasse," he said. "Another dam or two on the San Jacinto River is not going to solve our long range water problem and take care of our expected growth."

He predicted Houston will need additional domestic water from the San Jacinto within three to five years, even if authority is given to the industrial water from the Trinity.

The proponents of the applications rested their case Wednesday and Cutrer was recalled for cross examination. The opponents will begin presentation of their direct testimony and exhibits on Tuesday.

Watershed Control Plan Is Approved

Application for watershed control action under Public Law 866 will be made under the joint sponsorship of the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District and the City of Big Spring.

The conservation district supervisors approved the action Thursday evening in a meeting with representatives from the City of Big Spring, together with work unit leaders Ben Day in Big Spring and Jake Hodges in Stanton. Jack Buchanan, Luther, is chairman of the board.

Representing Big Spring at the meeting were City Manager Buster Steinheimer, Commissioner George Zachariah and Director of Public Works Bruce Dunn.

Materials are now being gathered for completion of an application. Object of the watershed control program is to prevent flooding through prevention of siltation by detention dams and by practices which will tend to hold soil and prevent fertility of the farms and ranches in the shed areas. The program will be explained more in detail in Sunday's Herald.

City Officials Pleased With Stanton Talks

"It was a very satisfactory meeting," A. K. Steinheimer, city manager, said this morning regarding Thursday's meeting in Stanton with Soil Conservation Service officials.

The meeting was set up to discuss drainage problems and possible SCS participation in the major Big Spring drainage area.

Edms Killingsworth arrived in Stanton from Big Spring to make a study of several Big Spring drainage problems. He is working with Forrest and Cotton, master plan consultants. He plans to stay through Saturday gathering drainage data.

The man was turned over to juvenile officer E. Long this morning and the man was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The incident was reported by the girl's mother.

Two Car Mishaps Are Investigated

Two minor automobile accidents were reported in the city during the last 24 hours.

Two 17-year-old youths were arrested by officers Patrolman Tiny Ellison late Thursday and are being held for hub cap theft. The boys were arrested in the 400 block of W. 4th. They have signed statements admitting two hub cap thefts. City police have begun a crack-down program on rounding up hub cap thieves during the last week.

A considerable number of these petty thefts have been cropping up throughout the city.

North, West Senators Seek Bigger Voice

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of northern and western Democratic senators today expect to have a bigger voice in party strategy and legislation this session.

But Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said he does not consider as a challenge to his leadership the demands made by the liberal group at a meeting of Democratic senators Thursday.

"I don't think it has anything to do with it one way or another," he told newsmen after the two-hour meeting.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), spokesman for the protesting group, said Johnson had agreed to call more meetings of all Democratic senators—a point on which he was challenged last year. A motion to require more meetings was not put to a vote.

Action was delayed on another motion—to require election by the senators rather than appointment by Johnson of new members of the potent Democratic Policy Committee.

The nine-member policy group, now headed by Johnson, hold a stop and go control over business that comes before the Senate.

Johnson, Assistant Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Sen. Thomas C. Hennings (D-Mo.), Sen. retary of the Democratic conference, are ex-officio members.

Of the six other members, Johnson said he has named two while the other four are holdovers on the continuing body.

Thursday's closed-door meeting renewed the complaints last year by Sens. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and a few others that Johnson was doing too much leading without consulting them and other Democrats.

Renewal of the complaints could affect Johnson's leadership in a year when he is considered an aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination.

They also could have some bearing on his continued cooperation with Johnson of new members of the administration, another subject of criticism by the group last year.

40 Scouts At Meeting

Approximately 40 men attended the first meeting of the year for the 1000 from this district and mapped plans for stepping up service to more boys.

R. L. Tollett, district chairman, introduced members of this district committee, including Joe Moss, vice chairman and also chairman of organization and extension; Carl Campbell, camping and activities; Champ Rainwater; finance; Dr. Jack Zinn, health and training; Ben Johnson, leadership; Elmer Tarbox, advancement; and Jack Alexander, district commissioner.

Tollett urged an attendance of at least 200 from this district at the Buffalo Trail Council meeting in the Dor Roberts Student Union Building at HCJC on Jan. 28. Dr. Robert Payne, once an Eagle Scout from Midland and now head of the Atlas missile project at Cape Canaveral, Fla., is to be the speaker.

Bob Perrin, from the Boy Scouts of America training staff, is to be here Jan. 19 for a special training session with Cubbers, it was announced. Some plans were developed for observation of the 50th anniversary of the chartering of Scouting in February.

Much of the evening's work was devoted to stepping up enrollment, recruiting of new sponsors, and holding boys in the program.

The meeting was held at the Cosden Country Club, and a coffee was held for wives of the Scouts.

Businessman, Artist Friends Again After Financial Tussle

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP)—The businessman and the artist were back on good terms today. The artist promised to be a little more businesslike, and the businessman said he still loves art.

"There are no hard feelings," said industrial equipment executive Eugene Gones. "I like the fellow."

Said sculptor Jacob Lipkin: "He has a soul, after all. It's time we relax and bury the hatchet."

Their trouble arose because Gones thinks that even artists, much as he likes them, should pay their bills eventually, and because Lipkin doesn't like to deal in such a crass medium as money.

"I never have anything to do with money if I can help it," the 51-year-old sculptor said. "I want to give him something beautiful instead."

Gones 63, says he tried to understand, but: "What could I do with a two-ton stone camel in my apartment? I'd have no room to live there."

About two years ago, Lipkin obtained some dolly wheels from Gones' moving-equipment sales company. He wanted them to move heavy stone blocks around his studio. Gones, who patronizes the arts as a hobby, agreed to let him have the wheels on credit.

Ultimately, however, account ledger and art temperament collided.

Lipkin wanted to pay by barter—with a piece of artwork.

"That's the way I get along," he said.

"I made my dentist a lovely rooster in wood and he made me a beautiful bridge in porcelain. Another time I carved a squirrel in stone for my veterinary, who altered one of my Siamese cats. A fair exchange."

Gones, founding president of the Mahopac, N.Y., art league, and a friend of artists, said, "I tried to deal very gently with him." Gones went to the artists' studio, looked over the graven statutory.

"He had nothing that interested me, or that would be practical," he said. "He's a very good sculptor, for what he does. But he does these massive things, that are fit only for a building lobby, a museum, or outdoors. It's not fashionable. I like modern art."

At last, Gones turned the matter over to a lawyer, who got a court judgment for $153.33, with a marshal assigned to collect or force auctioning of Lipkin's works to pay the debt.

Lipkin rushed to the legal aid society, and after a parley between the lawyers, he agreed to pay the debt at the rate of $5 a week.

"I really hadn't intended for my lawyer to do that far," Gones said. "I like the art world, and I have great sympathy for artists, but I don't like to be taken advantage of. Even personal friends, if they buy, have to pay—some time. I was as reasonable as possible."

Said Lipkin: "It was dreadful. But I forgive him. There's enough hate in the world. We've got to live and let live."

He added that Gones was simply suffering from a modern ailment of preferring abstract art to the real thing. "I feel sorry for him," Lipkin said. "I still think I might give him a piece—something actually good."

Gulf To Sell Properties

WASHINGTON (AP)—To settle a government complaint, the Gulf Oil Co. has agreed to sell 35 million dollars worth of properties. The Federal Trade Commission calls it the largest antitrust settlement in its history.

The agreement involves about 30 per cent of the properties Gulf acquired in 1956 through purchase of the Warren Petroleum Corp. of Tulsa.

At the time of this merger, the FTC filed a complaint saying it tended to endanger competition and create a monopoly in production and sale of liquefied petroleum gas and natural gasoline. Warren is the largest independent marketer of these products.

The FTC originally demanded that Gulf sell all of Warren's assets, so the settlement represents a compromise.

Sedden Talks Of Old Mexico

Better relations with Mexico are not so much desirable from a political point as from the point of Christian attitudes, the Rev. Al Sedden told the Downtown Lions on Wednesday.

The Rev. Sedden, now pastor of the St. Paul Presbyterian Church and a former missionary to Mexico, said that the greatest step toward understanding is for citizens of each country to attempt to put themselves in the other's position.

A stumbling block to understanding, he continued, has been the attitudes and disregard for customs by United States tourists. In this connection, he pleaded with U. S. women not to wear shorts in Mexico because this is not done in Mexico and is an affront to both the men and women.

At the other end of the spectrum, the unlearned bracero may contribute to misunderstanding when U. S. citizens seek to generalize on the basis of their knowledge of the migrant worker, the Rev. Sedden said.

Mexico is a land rich in history, a land of contrasts and a land of great potential, he added.

Re-Trial For Damage Case Looms Likely

A suit for damages stemming from a collision between a city police car and another vehicle on March 16, 1956, will probably be back in the local courts for re-trial sometime in the next few weeks.

The Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday remanded the case for a new trial on an appeal. A jury verdict in the 118th District Court had awarded Colbert $8,000 damages against Eubanks. The case was appealed by Eubanks to the 11th Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland. The appeals court reversed the trial court's holdings that Eubanks did not have the car he was driving at the time under control and was driving at excessive speed. The appeals court ruled that policemen, firemen and doctors are exempt from the normal speed laws when acting in the line of duty or when on call.

Eubanks had contended in the trial that at the time of the collision he was pursuing a "suspicious" car.

Colbert, in his turn appealed the ruling of the appeals court. Now that the ruling of the appeals court has been taken to the supreme court, the holding has been that the case be remanded for re-trial.

Hartman Hooser, attorney for Colbert, said he would file a motion for rehearing before the supreme court. If this hearing is denied, the case would be reset on the 118th District Court docket for trial.

Jimmy Little represents Eubanks.

LAMESA — Allen R. Beckwith, 22, of Midland, has been charged with the rape of an ailing 47-year-old woman.

Beckwith waived preliminary hearing Thursday in justice court, and Justice of the Peace Earl Goetz set his bond at $2,000.

Beckwith was arrested at a local hotel at midnight Wednesday, after the alleged rape of his aunt earlier in the day. He was registered at the hotel under the assumed name of Allen R. Smith.

Police Chief Morris Zimmerman said Beckwith had signed a statement admitting the assault on the woman, who weighs 110 pounds and is in ill health. Beckwith also admitted having been in similar trouble in the past, but previous charges had been dropped, Zimmerman added.

Beckwith was still in jail this morning, and had not attempted to contact members of his family or a lawyer, and had made no attempt to make bond.

Rape Charge Filed on Man

LAMESA — One candidate has announced and two officially filed for places on the May 7 ballot in Lamesa but four offices still do not have candidates.

Alton Addison, incumbent county commissioner of Precinct 3 announced his candidacy for re-election and S. A. Debnam and Frank Liddell filed in city hall for Places 1 and 3, respectively, on the city council. The positions are currently held by Clarence Parks and Tom Branon.

Parks and Branon both declared today that they did not intend to seek re-election to their posts.

Debnam, a farmer and manager of the Oaks Irrigation Co. has lived in the county for some 50 years. He is a former county agent of Dawson County (1933) and also of Hockley and Midland counties. Liddell came to Dawson County with his parents in 1924 and moved away for a short time but returned in 1940. He now operates a restaurant here.

There have been no candidates file or announce for the offices of district attorney, county attorney, county constable and one position on the city council, and two impending vacancies on the Lamesa School Board.

Incumbent Dawson County Sheriff Henry C. Mayfield and Earl Calhoun both have officially filed for that post and Leland C. Miller has announced candidacy for re-election to the position of county tax-assessor-collector.

Dawson Politics Begin To Simmer

During 1959, for the first time in its history, the Texas & Pacific Railway Company went through an entire year without a single employee having been killed in active service.

Moreover, during the past year, not one person employed by T&P suffered the loss of an arm, hand, foot or leg. For the most part injuries to employees were of a great tribute to the safety record of Johnny Williams, safety director, in Dallas.

The achievement is underlined by a contrast to the 7-year period from 1945-51 when 29 men lost their lives in active service; and the 7-year period of 1952-58 when 16 employees lost their lives. This 50 per cent reduction paid besides the record of no fatalities in 1959.

During the past 14 years there were numerous cases of lost arms or legs. To go through an entire year without any such loss is a great tribute to the safety record of Johnny Williams, safety director, in Dallas.

Robbery Attempt Case Cleared Up

An unsuccessful attempt by three men to rob John Nutt, Big Spring cafe operator, last Oct. 22, was reported solved today by Fern Cox, chief deputy sheriff.

Cox said that robbery by assault charges have been filed on Charles Read, now held in the Sweetwater jail. He said that similar charges will be filed against Robert J. Ward, held in jail here on a burglary charge, and that a 16-year-old youth, classified as a juvenile, is in jail as the third man in the attempted robbery.

Nutt was able to fight off the trio when he was attacked by the trio on the night of Oct. 22.

Cox said that Ward made a detailed statement about the case and implicated Read and the juvenile as his companions.

The boy in the case had been held in jail earlier this week on another case but had been released before Ward made the statement. A pickup order was immediately issued for him and he came to the jail Friday morning and surrendered himself.

A hold order has been lodged in Sweetwater to gain custody of Read when he is released by the officers there or when some disposition is made of the case pending against him. Ward has been unable to post $3,500 bond set in the burglary case already filed. No new bond has been set for any of the defendants.

Lorraine Westbrook and Colorado City Future Farmers and the Mitchell County 4H group will supply the competition for the show. FFA instructors are James Trammel, Colorado City; John Hines of Westbrook and Raymond Holt of Lorraine Burkhalter is the advisor for the 4H group.

L. M. Hartgraves of Texas Tech will judge the show. Pigs will be judged Friday at 1:30 p.m. Lambs will be judged Saturday at 10 a.m., and steers Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Alfred Hackfeld of Lorraine is superintendent of the show and Bob Fee Jr. is president of the association.

Veteran Pension Requirements Are Same As Before

The new pension law effective next July 1 in no way changes the basic eligibility for a veteran seeking a pension. Ray Boren, contact representative at the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital, said today.

The veteran still must be totally and permanently disabled from causes not traceable to his service, must have 90 days or more of honorable wartime service, and an income below prescribed limits.

Extending the present income limits of $1,400 a year for a single veteran and $2,700 a year for a veteran with wife or child to $1,800 and $3,000 respectively, the new pension law attempts to relate the amount of pension to need. Veterans with higher income will receive lower pension payments and will receive larger pensions when the law becomes effective.

But the basic eligibility requirements remain unchanged. Boren reiterated, in contrast to the requirements for veterans' widows and children.

Widows of World War II and Korean conflict veterans under the new law will no longer be required to show that the deceased veteran had a service-connected disability. Like widows of World War I veterans, they will have to show only that the veteran had 90 days or more of honorable wartime service. Widows must also come within the income limitations.

Kids Do Well With 'Bad Seed'

"The Bad Seed" proved two things: (1) Big Spring High School is a good training ground for thespians, and (2) a Big Spring High School audience is not the best bet for pure drama.

First production of the season for the Court Jesters, "The Bad Seed" is an emotionally charged drama written around the controversial theory that environment cannot account for all evil in the human heart; that some criminals are born that way.

The plot centers on a young girl who is one of these theoretical born criminals, and the effects on the people around her of her inevitable murders; especially, the fated doom of the little killer's mother.

NO LAUGHING

Such a situation is ready-made for creation of a charged atmosphere; indeed, Broadway audiences who first viewed "The Bad Seed" were deeply moved. They did not laugh at the drunken, staggering mother driven to alcohol after her son had been killed by the "bad seed"; they did not consider it humorous when the little killer's mother went into hysterics upon discovering her child had set fire to the janitor's clothing.

But then, the Broadway audience was adult. The audience at Thursday night's production of "The Bad Seed" was largely teenager.

Youngsters of high school age, as this critic well remembers from his own youth, cannot stand a show of emotion, and feel the need to laugh it off. Any time a kid gets choked up about something, he feels embarrassed and begins laughing to cover up, to release the tension.

NERVOUS LAUGHING
Performances by their comrades onstage must really have shaken last night's audience, for they laughed nervously at the emotional scenes, and tittered at the pitifully drunken mother whose son had been slain.

Ordinarily, one would think such a reaction was a panning of the performances (and cast members gained the impression that they had failed miserably), but the immense applause and excited, squirming talking between scenes was evidence enough that the audience had been affected deeply.

Indeed, actress Lida Fivash, in her portrayal of the drunken, crazed mother of the murdered boy, set a new record—she received a burst of spontaneous applause before her first big scene was over, the first time this has happened in Big Spring to this writer's knowledge.

All of which leads us to believe that selection of pure drama like "The Bad Seed" might be less preferable to comedy or human interest type plays, at least until Big Spring's younger audience becomes more accustomed to emotional drama.

Yet, from the standpoint of the actors themselves, drama of the sort to be had in "The Bad Seed" is the best possible training for the young thespians.

Acting honors for "The Bad Seed" must be split three ways.

Jill Mason, with her tiny size, little girl's voice, and innocence, was perfect casting for the child psychopath. She often spoke deliberately in a flat monotone, whenever her true nature began to darken her halo, adding dramatic effect to her characterization. She succeeded in making her audience hate her, which was no mean accomplishment.

BRILLIANT MOMENT

Inmeta Carr gave a realistic impression as the stricken mother who discovers that her child is a murderer. She held her emotion in check, letting it grow only slowly as the character she portrayed gradually came to a realization of the truth. Miss Carr's moment of brilliance came when, looking out the window at the burning janitor, she saw with her own eyes what her own bad seed had grown into—her interpretation of a mother driven berserk by shock made the audience quite literally squirm.

Miss Fivash continued to show the growing talent she has displayed in previous performances, and leads this critic to believe she should aim for the professional stage. Hers was a moving and pitiable creation of an aging woman who has lost her only son and who turns to the bottle as a crutch. Her characterization was real even in view of the fact that her interpretation of drunkenness itself was imperfect, with too much staggering and too little deliberateness of movement.

COMIC BUT CHILLING
Nelson Clemow, except for too much walking about onstage, gave a comic but sometimes chilling picture of the evil-minded janitor who stuck his neck too far into the little killer's business.

Lack of space prevents analyses of others in the cast, but they ranged from good to adequate to poor. They include Everette Sproules, Dorothy Wheeler, Kenneth Lawrence, Mary-Jane Engstrom, Tammy Wilkinson, Edward Day and Gary Pickle.

"The Bad Seed" will have its final performance at 8:15 p.m. today in the high school auditorium, under direction of drama instructor Bedford Forrest.

'Mrs. Miniver' Average On TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Movie - TV Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—"Mrs. Miniver" is one of the things most of us associate with World War II—a warm, gentle story about good and brave people during the Battle of Britain.

And perhaps it would have been a good idea to have left us with our Memories — of Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon as the lovable Minivers.

As adaptations go, however, CBS' 90-minute version Thursday night wasn't bad. But it wasn't extraordinarily good, either, which it just had to be to get by. Maureen O'Hara, who is beautiful to look at, was perfectly adequate in the Greer Garson role, although she did look a little on the young side. Leo Genn did well as Mr. Miniver and Cathleen Nesbitt was up to her usual high standards as the aristocratic old rose fancier.

But even so, "Mrs. Miniver" never really took off satisfactorily—even in the bombing scenes.

Recommended tonight: Art Carney Show, NBC, 8-9 p.m. "The Man in the Dog Suit," a comedy with Celeste Holm.
