Senators Take Up School Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate today takes up a new Democratic proposal to boost the size matic night session in which Vice acts of aggression in the zone helped kill one such increase.

The newest proposal, by Sen. A. S. Mike Monropey (D-Okla) would provide 880 million dollars a year for four years in federal grants for both school construction and teacher salary aid.

The defeated plan, by Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa), would have provided $1,100,000,000 a year indefinitely for those purposes. Senate leaders expressed hope

Mid-East Violence Renews

JERUSALEM (AP)-Border violence between the Syrians and Israelis shifted north of the Sea of Galilee today, when a new exchange of fire developed between units of both countries.

An Israeli military spokesman announced: "At 12:30 p. m. fire opened from Syrian strongholds on an Israeli patrol near the Shaar Yashuv settlement. The fire was returned. One of the patrol was slightly wounded.

It was understood the wounded man was a border policeman. He was the second Israeli wounded in frontier strife today.

Earlier the Israelis claimed one of their policemen was wounded by Syrian gunfire 25 miles to the south in the demilitarized zone near the south shore of the Sea of Galilee. He said the fire was not returned and there was no further shooting in that area, where the border crisis of the past week has been centered.

The Syrians claimed earlier all was quiet.

In Jerusalem, a U. N. spokesman was optimistic that Syria and Israel would meet in the Mixed Armistice Commission, dormant since 1957 when the Israelis refused to participate.

"It seems we're on the way to such a meeting," said U. N. spokesman Albert Grand. Damascus newspapers said Arab villagers in the Tawafik area, who fled artillery and tank fighting there Monday, had moved back to resume their farming.

Israel charged that Syrian troops armed with automatic rifles and mortars fired on an Israeli settlement southeast of the Sea of Galilee Wednesday night and wounded a guardsman. There was no immediate confirmation of the report.

MUTUAL CHARGES

(Both the United Arab Republic. and Israel accused each other of aggression in complaints filed with the U.N. Security Council in New York Wednesday night. Neither requested immediate council action, however.

The U.A.R. said Israeli troops were massing in a move to occuof the school aid bill after a dra- py the zone. Israel said "Syrian Richard M. Nixon were aimed at giving Syria control over the area and represented another step in a U.A.R. "policy of active belligerency towards Israel.")

A member of the Israeli-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission in Jerusalem said neither the U.A.R. nor Israel has responded to Tuesday's withdrawal requests. An Israeli spokesman Wednes-

Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army head, expressed belief today that the Soviet Union will have military superiority starting next year 'unless we take heroic measures now."

Taylor, who stepped out as Army chief of staff last June, told a Senate defense investigation that 'the trend of military strength is against us.

"Our manned bomber force is dwindling military asset," the former four-star general said. "Our long range missile force is limited in size, uncertain in reliability, and immobile upon exposed bases.

Atoms For Allies May Be Topic Of Congress Request

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Eisenhower probably will send Congress a special message later this session asking authority to supply some U.S. allies with atomic weapons.

A final administration decision on taking this step has yet to be made. It may be influenced by congressional reaction to the idea of sharing the weapons as well as by the impact on world opinion. Present law permits limited sharing of some types of nuclear nformation, but requires that this country keep full control of nuclear weapons it produces.

Distribution of atomic weapons to nations which do not have them has long been a controversial issue. The present atomic powers are the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union. France has been reported at the point of exploding ts first atomic test device. The President told a news conerence Wednesday that he had always believed "that we should not deny to our allies what the enemies, what your potential enemy already has.'

"We do want allies to be treated as partners and allies, and not as junior members of a firm who are to be seen but not heard.

LAW MORE LEGAL

"So I would think that it would United States, to make our law more legal." Later his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, indicated the administration was actively exploring the desirability of seeking amendment to the present law. In addition, administration officials said privately that it is entirely probable the President will ask Congress to change the law so that in some cases at least the United States can provide its allies with the most modern atomic weapons suitable to their military requirements.

France particularly has rejected exclusive U.S. control of atomic weapons at French bases. A change in the law, officials said, could strengthen both diplomatic and military ties with the allies.

On the diplomatic side, officials said the ban on transfer of atomic weapons has been a cause of serious trouble in U.S. relations with France. France has been unwilling to agree to the establish-ment of IRBM bases on French territory unless it could have some control over the warheads as well as the missiles.

Officials believe that if the United States could share control of nuclear warheads with France the problem of getting the De Gaulle government to accept missiles bases might be resolved.

THIS DAY IN TEXAS

By CURTIS BISHOP

The first important pipe line Texas was completed in 1902, a six-inch line from the Spindletop field to El Vista.

For the city of Beaumont the pipe line meant the beginning of financial recovery after the price of oil had dropped to three cents a barrel (while water cost a nickel). By January, 1902 three other pipe lines had been started, two to Port Arthur and one to bine. The maze of underground conveyors spread out rapidly.

The Spindletop discovery well, roaring in with a production of 75,000 to 100,000 barrels daily, began Beaumont's great boom. Within a year the population increased from 10,000 to 30,000, and, after temporary slump, Beaumont enjoyed great prosperity. 'We are independent of every body and everything," boomed the editor of the "Enterprise." "We are wealthy beyond our calcula-

The first pipe line in Texas was near Nacogdoches, but led only to an iron shipping tank about 14 miles away. It was three inches in size and was in operation as early as 1869. That field also saw the first use of storage tanks and the first refinery in Texas.

State Employe Unit To Meet

Texas state employes in Howard and Martin Counties are reorganizing a chapter of the Texas Public Employes Association. An organizational meeting, to which all state workers in the two counties are invited, will be held at 7 p.m. tonight in the dining room at the Big Spring State Hospital. W. P. Watt, executive director of the TPEA in Austin, will be guest speaker and will help in organization problems,

Dr. Preston Harrison, hospital director, said any employe of the state is eligible for membership and stressed that all such workers, not just hospital personnel, are invited to the meeting

"We feel this is a good organi-" Harrison stated. state hospital employes have expressed interest in re-organizing the old chapter. Now, after preliminary work over the last few months, we are ready."

No new charter is necessary, Harrison said, since a chapter of the TPEA existed here until about

Insurance Law Month Old

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas' controversial auto insurance rating plan completed its first month of existence this week with no indication when or if any changes in it will be made.

"We have no announcement to make at this time." State Insurance Board Chairman Penn Jackson said. "We might have something in a day or two."

The program, designed to reward safe drivers and penalize those with accidents and moving traffic violations, became effective Jan. 1 over the protests of some policy holders and insur-ancemen. More than 40 witnesses appeared at a two-day hearing Jan. 14 and 15. Others appeared last week to discuss specific phases of the plan.

Wet Month Cuts CRMWD Deliveries

An unusually wet January dulled demands on the Colorado River Municipal Water District by 5 per cent, O. H. Ivie, assistant general manager-production, said today.

Moisture averaged two inches over most of the territory served by the district, holding water usage to domestic and industrial requirements. At the same time, the restricted production picture for oil producers cut the monthly consumption by oil repressuring

The three member cities -Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder used 323,143,000 gallons of water, or 28,000,000 less than for January a year ago. Oil companies took 203,505,000 million or 70,000,000 less than for last January.

Ivie said that the decline was expected and that warmer weather likely would contribute to stepped up demands during February.

Bulk of the production for the month was from Lake J. B. Thomas, which has an elevation of 2,251.53, approximately 61/2 feet below spillway level. This is about normal for this time of the year.

Permits For Ten Homes Are Issued

Building permits for 10 new homes were issued during January, according to Building Inspector Tom Newton.

The residences were listed as costing from $1,000 up to $21,000 each. Total value of the houses is Newton said 52 permits were issued during the month for a value of $156,921. Although only 39 permits were issued in January of last year, the construction total night. was valued at $747,901.

Permits for four commercial buildings totaled $38,000. The rest ly suffered a stroke. the permits were lumped into one category, most of them being for remodeling or additions. They totaled $27,921 for 38 permits.

Mrs. Jones Enjoys Life Of AF Wife

"I've enjoyed every minute of | being an Air Force wife," declares Mrs. Thomas Jones.

Mrs. Jones isn't new at the position, either, for her husband has been in the service for 22 years. When they first met in Shreveport, La., he was a corporal. He rose through the ranks to the position he now holds as captain.

Thomas and Maxine Jones will be out of the service in June, as rumor has it. Mrs. Jones isn't looking forward to leaving the many friends that she has made as a service wife, but takes comfort in the thought that as a retired officer's family, they will be able to attend Air Force affairs and renew old acquaintances.

Maxine met her husband on a blind date. The young Air Force man had just returned from the Panama Canal Zone, and one of his friends was anxious to get him introduced to people in Shreveport, La., where Maxine was working. "I was unhappy with my date, remembers Mrs. Jones with a smile, "but he kind of grows on The couple went together

It was in Japan that Maxine got the unusual furniture that stands in the Jones home on Albrook. Heavy solid oak in a distinctive silver fox finish is used in coffee tables, bookcases, a bar, and a massive gun cabinet that houses her husband's collection.

Another oriental piece that claims attention in the Jones household is a large, hand-carved camphor chest. Maxine uses it to store clothing in. Japanese camphor chests are the equivalent of our cedar chests, and are ideal storage places for winter clothing. Three sons keep Mrs. Jones

Keeps His Head And Wins A Victory

Aside from any other tactical blunder they might have committed, the Algerian insurrectionists made one that was irremediably fatal: They gave the other Algerians and the people of France itself no choice between themselves and President De Gaulle.

That obviously was placing a higher value on themselves and their cause than their strength and their cause justified. In spite of the provocation, however, President De Gaulle exercised restraint and good judgment in dealing with the crisis. A single false move would have sent tens of thousands of new supporters into the rebels' camp, and alienated large segments of the population of metropolitan France.

Any one of half a dozen of the old man's predecessors might have lost his temper and struck out in all directions, but not Gen. De Gaulle. Where they lacked the power they might have tried bluff. De Gaulle has the power to an extent greater than any ruler since the third Napoleon. He does not need to bluff and bluster.

So he kept his head and let the storm spend itself on public indifference in Algeria and in France. It was the rebels who lost their nerve, chiefly because, perhaps, Le Grand Charles kept his.

The rebels' attempt to destroy President De Gaulle's own plan for a measure of liberty to the native population of Algeria through commonwealth status failed miserably, and because it failed - because the old general waited the rebels out - his program for the integration of Algeria into the commonwealth rather than letting it go its separate way has been strengthened.

It is quite possible that the insurgent 'colons' who want to keep things the way they are will become more amenable to reason in consequence of their defeat, and equally possible that the native Algerians will be willing to yield some points in their militant stand against any compromise.

Regardless of the merit, or lack of merit of the totalitarian regime of Gen. De Gaulle, his victory in this case has a strong bearing on the East-West situation. Now when the summiteers sit down in Paris to talk things over, Khrushchev won't be meeting a divided and strifetorn West with one of its principals, France, prostrate from civil strife, but a fully functioning ailliance with no question marks showing.

That Lamentable Unsung Gap

Recently Mr. Ira Schantz, head of the voice program in the Howard County Junior College Music Department, observed that the college vocal program was being boxed in by an absence of one in the Big Spring High School.

He wasn't being critical; rather he was being realistic. It is only logical to assume that the biggest single source of enrollment in HCJC will be from our own high school. It is equally certain then that the number and quality of voices for a choral program in the college will be in ratio to the product of the high school.

To be sure, other fine young voices in the area can be brought into the college, but the basic elements-the bulk and volume-of a top choir will have to come from this vicinity.

There is a great potential for a fine college-level vocal training effort and it is lamentable that the source of recruits is being pinched off.

But this is not one half as lamentable as the fact that we are denying boys and girls in high school of an activity sorely needed to balance an over-all offering Perhaps one reason that the choral program has been so weak is that it has not been popularized. However, it can be, for it has been in other places. There is a most commendable system of choirs in Runnels Junior High, and here is a source of material for the high school. It's not logical to start out soundly in junior high, then ignore it in high school. But that is virtually what we are doing.

Intelligence And Impressions

WASHINGTON - The United States is: having a hard time fighting the "cold war" nowadays because, when it does gather secret information as to a potential enemy's intentions or planning, there are members of Congress who insist on having it revealed in some form.

Allen W. Dulles, who is director of the Central Intelligence Agency, is repeatedly called before Congress to tell what his agents and representatives behind the Iron Curtain have found out. Naturally. the Soviets are interested. For it has an important bearing on their own plans - to learn how much America knows about them.

What Mr. Dulles says behind the closed doors of the congressional committees is, of course, not made public, but as the members go forth they are met by the press. The members then give their "impressions" of the testimony. These might be partisan interpretations designed to discredit the administration as not being efficient in its planning, but the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency is unable to point out in rebuttal wherein wrong inferences are being drawn. To do so is to tell the Soviets exactly what the Central In-

SO THERE IS RESORT TO generalities, and it is in this area that the politically-minded take advantage of the necessarily vague statements that have been made. Allen Dulles, emphasizing some of the difficulties, said in a speech in New York last week:

"In our estimates we generally stress capabilities in the early stages of Soviet weapons development, and then, as more hard facts are available, we estimate their probable programming, sometimes referred to as intentions. . .

"The fact that in the later years of development we can crank into our estimates more of the elements of programming and future intentions than we can at the beginning does not indicate any change in the intelligence approach to the problem. . .

"There is no tendency in the intelligence community to underestimate Soviet sophistication in any phase of the missile field, or the progress they have been making in developing their long-range missile

"HOWEVER, IT WOULD BE just as wrong to let the Soviets talk the world into believing that the ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile), powerful as it is, constitutes the only armament with which a country should equip itself. I believe that the Soviets are trying to take advantage of the publicity they have achieved with respect to both missile and space programs in order to make the unsophisticated believe that these achievements mean over-all superiority in the military field. Such superiority, in the opinion of more qualified experts than I, does not

Yet the newspapers are filled with partisan claims which are designed for the American audience, but which nevertheless tell the Soviets that they are superior, that they can destroy us and we can't retaliate effectively, and that telligence Agency really knows of Soviet, the gap is a matter of grave danger to our safety today

> THE SECRETARY OF defense. Thornas S. Gates, on the other hand, keeps on giving assurances to the country that the United States has effective power to deter a war, but this is promptly called rosy by Democratic leaders. Day after day Mr. Gates testifies before different committees and repeats in explicit terms the basis of America's confidence in her deterrent power, but all this is brushed aside as senators or representatives emerge from committee sessions telling the world what they have heard "confirms" their "impressions." Mr. Gates, in his latest statements to the Senate subcommittee on appropriations on Monday, said:

"Our retaliatory forces are capable of carrying out their assigned missions. Manned bombers are still, for both ourselves and the U.S.S.R., the primary means of delivering heavy nuclear weapons in the volume and with the accuracy needed to strike a decisive blow. In this category the United States far excels the U.S.S.R.

"On the basis of all present indications, however, the advantage they (the Soviets) might attain in numbers of longrange missiles would fall far short of providing rational support for a decision to attack. He would simply be inviting his own destruction

"IN SHORT, BECAUSE OF the versatility and strength of our over-all retaliatory capability, the numerical advantage that the Soviet Union may attain in longrange missiles - which is likely to be greatest in 1962 - will not produce a gap in our deterrent power. This is not my view only: it is the view of our principal military and scientific advisers."

Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also told the same committee that our military chiefs "do not do strategic planning in an intelligence vacuum.

But how effective can such statements be as long as the partisans think they can gain votes by scaring the American people into a belief that our defenses have been bungled? It means, to be sure, telling the Soviets that we are weaker than we really are. Partisan politics has reached a new low in American history. (Copyright, 1960, New York Herald Tribune Inc.)

"Does this whole state smell like pigs?" In many ways that question summed up the attitude of many visitors to Ohio. Wayland Yates put that question to me when he visited us late one summer.

Around The Rim

Together Like Corn And Pigs

"Ever since we crossed the state line, I've smelled pigs," he said. And, of course, he was right. At that time of year, the brisk air is sometimes overwhelming with the odor of pigs.
"I smell hogs," my father-in-law said to me the first day he arrived at our house. We were taking the family on a cook's tour of the area and the wind caught us just right.

THE WORD "OHIO" IS AN Indian word meaning-and Ohio is a strikingly beautiful state, once the tourist gets off the main roadways. Many other visitors carried away this sole memory of Ohio, the odor of pigs, as the case may be. The fact that corn is a principal crop encourages almost every farmer to keep a pen of hogs. And invariably, the hog pen is built along the road so that the motorist is given every benefit of the breeze and its passenger. I recall when we first arrived in Ohio, the same thing struck us. In a full day of driving, practically all we could see of Ohio was through the rails of various hog pens, all the while risking each waft of the wind. Toward the end of the harvest, that pig odor is too pronounced for

ANOTHER THING THAT probably helps make the odor more prevalent is the large number of farms. The average farm rarely runs more than 80 acres. Many families are quite comfortable on 40 acres. The land is rich enough to give an abundant crop every year, primarily corn or soy Even with one pig pen to each farm, and there are usually more, the number of these animals probably number in the thousands per county. And, most of them are kept for home consumption, that is, they are not marketed in large numbers.

GETTING OFF THE PIG subject for a moment, the average farmer, working 80 acres, makes enough to spend most every winter in Florida. Escape from the hard winters, when it is almost impossible to do anything in the ground, is almost always sought in Florida. It amounts to an exodus right after the first snow flies.

Just as water is a problem to West Texas farmers, so it is with Ohio farmers, but in reverse. Too much water plagues the Ohioan. In 21/2 years near Toledo, it either rained or snowed at least once every week. The ground was thoroughly

FARMERS HAVE TURNED TO tile, imbedded in the fields to get rid of water. And this is more expensive than irrigation canals. All successful farmers have resorted to tile.

But few of them are worried about the pig problem. As a matter of fact, they never notice it. I grew accustomed to West Texas dust long ago, but I threw in the towel on the battle of the pigs. -V. GLENN COOTES

Adulation From An Idaho Girl

Dear Fritz Kreisler:

Undoubtedly you have become accustomed through the years to love letters from ladies of indeterminate age. So one more, on the occasion of your 85th birthday anniversary, will not matter much one way or the other. For what I am writing you is a love letter. I fell in love with you when I was 12. My deep affection and gratitude for your superb artistry has never wavered.

What a great event it was, during my childhood in Idaho, when we acquired a Victrola and, gradually, a collection of Red Seal records. Your recording of your own "Caprice Viennois" was the first of our Red Seals. I cannot tell you how its beauty ravaged my young soul,

THEN IN THE EARLY twenties," during my first year at the University of Missouri, you came to Kansas City to play your initial post-World War I concert. By scrimping and a little tutoring, I managed to scrape together enough money for a round trip ticket to Kansas City and a balcony seat to hear you play,

There was considerable speculation that perhaps you would be ill-received because you had been an officer in the Austrian army during the war. I felt, with the intensity of youth, that if anyone in the audience hissed or booed you I would simply die

But from the moment you appeared on the stage, it was obvious that I was not going to have to die. Everyone in the huge audience loved you as much as I did. It gave you an ovation.

THAT CONCERT AND OUR first Red Seal record are great landmarks in my life. So is another of your concerts, this time played in Carnegie Hall a few weeks after my marriage.

As a surprise, my bridegroom took me to hear you play. I was enraptured until I realized that my bridegroom, the man with whom I was pledged to spend the rest of my life, was sound asleep and rather audibly so! My life collapsed under the realization that I was married to a boor! You, dear Mr. Kreisler, were the occasion of the first and only bitter quarrel of a marrage that now has lasted slightly more than 30 years!

I WONDER IF YOU remember the first performance of Alban Berg's Opera, "Wozzeck," at the Metropolitan, about 25 years ago? It was produced by a Philadelphia group and conducted by Leopold Stokow-

For the occasion, Vincent Lopez asked Add and me to sit in his box in the Diamond Horseshoe. As if that were not sufficiently exciting, you had the next box on the left.

My cup raneth over until Vincent's other lady guest turned out to be allergic to music, especially Berg's. Beyond that, she was in satin, and everything slipped off her lap - gloves, handkerchief, opera glasses, fan, evening bag and ermine cape. I don't think Vincent saw half the opera - he was always on his hands and knees, retrieving madam's knickknacks.

IN ADDITION, SHE TALKED incessantly. I was in agony lest she disturb you. I gave considerable thought to strangling the opera's final scen drums and cymbals at crescendo, she was still equal to the challenge. "My God, what's that noise?" she yelled above the tumult on stage. You turned to look at us, perhaps to annihilate us with a word. Maybe you saw the woe in my face, because you smiled at me as the lights went up and the opera ended. In the years since, I have seen you only at a distance. And

I have never exchanged a word with you. You wouldn't know me from Adam's off ox. But you introduced me to a world of great beauty, and I have been indebted to you all my life. I have loved you for many years. It is high time I told you so, as I wish you many, many more happy returns of the day in a world you have so generously enriched with your quotation of a potted character in Sean O' Casey's "Juno and the Paycock," is in a state of chassis.

Cars 'In A State Of Chassis' The automobile industry, to misapply

No one can foretell which chassis will emerge victorious--the Rambler, Lark, Corvair, Valiant, Dart, Comet, or the longer standard chasses which for so long have dominated the American road, Chevrolet, Ford, and Plymouth on up to the Cadillac, Lincoln-Continental and Chrysler Imperial. Perhaps that explains why General Motors and Ford stocks have been off about 12 per cent since the first of the year, as against a drop of only 8 per cent for industrial stocks generally

WHAT ONCE WAS a stable Big Three order has become a pushy scramble for position-General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler fighting with themselves and with American Motors, Studebaker-Packard, and the foreign makes to continue as the Big Three.

So far in the new-model year, the domestic compact cars have picked up about 25 per cent of the business; the foreign cars have taken another 10 per cent. So, it's quite possible that George Romney, already a successful prophet on the Rambler, may prove right again. The American Motors' president has said that compacts will take half the market. Is it possible that the compacts will intensify the push of Chevrolet, Ford, and Plymouth dealers upward to middle-bracket customers? And will this, in turn, intensify the squeeze among GM's Pontiac Olds, and Buick dealers, and Chrysler's Dodge, DeSoto, and Chrysler dealers?

IS IT POSSIBLE, TOO, that this revolution will compel the Big Three to restructure down to four basic cars-GM to Corvair, Chevrolet, a middle car, and the Cadillac? Chrysler to the Valiant, Plymouth, a middle car, and the big Chrysler? Ford is already stripped to four basics-the Falcon, Ford, Mercury, and Lincoln, having dumped the Edsel. However, Ford's introducing the Comet; Dodge has its Dart; General Motors is working on a model nicknamed the "BOP" for Buick-Olds and Pontiac dealers. So, any assumption is a presumption. Robert M. Finlay, who does the "Dealer Forum" column in the Automotive News, recently noted the persistence with which James O. Wright, chief of the Ford Division, referred to Rambler sales as a Falcon target. Wright was asked why Ford was so concerned with Rambler A few years ago, Ford executives would have cheered Romney on with the Rambler, generously hoping he'd bring American Motors out alive. Wright replied: 'Anyone that sells as many cars as American Motors is big competition."

THUS HAVE THE mighty altered their outlook. You can see why in the percentages. In four years, Romney has tripled American Motors' percentage in the industry and GM has lost nine and Chrysler five points:

Non-Big 3
x-Hudson and Nash totals

y-Studebaker and Packard totals Out of Detroit's "state of chassis" have emerged three new millionaires and the "reinforcement" of another. Stock option on 77,000 shares of American Motors stock, at recent prices near $80, would yield Romney gross profit of close to $4,000,000. After capital gains taxes, he'd still be able to count on about $3,000,000.

OPTIONS ON 25,250 shares each to Bernard A. Chapman and Roy D. Chapin, Jr., both executive vice presidents, would yield profits above $1,300,000, and the potential gain of Roy Abernethy, vice president in charge of sales, on options on 20,200 shares would exceed a million. Chapin was well-to-do before the upsurge of Rambler. His father was a founder of Hudson Motor Car Co. in 1909. When Romney persuaded American Motors directors to limit executive compensation to $225,000, he sacrificed $100,-000 of the bonus due him last year. That would have been fully taxable income and is trifling compared to his potential in capital gains in Wall Street if he continues to make Rambler a success in Detroit's "compact" free-for-all.
