Chessman, Facing Death In 4 Days, Renews Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Caryl Chessman's latest appeal goes today before a three-man panel of the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, four days before his eighth date with death in the gas chamber.

The 35-year-old convict - author asked that the nine-member court sit en banc to overrule its chief judge, Justice Richard H. Chambers, who last Monday in Tucson, Ariz., turned down the same appeal, saying Chessman had "heckled his keeper long enough."

Chessman also has prepared another appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court—it would be his 15th—asking for certiorari and mandamus requiring the circuit court to grant a hearing and issue a stay of execution, said Davis.

Eleanor Back Home After Marooning

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to New York today, none the worse for being marooned several hours aboard a stranded bus on a snow-clogged Pennsylvania highway.

She arrived by train from Pittsburgh at 8:30 a.m. and sped by taxicab to her apartment after telling newsmen she was fine.

She had been caught Sunday night in southwestern Pennsylvania's worst snow storm in 10 years. The former first lady, weary but unfruffled, finished the last leg of an 11-hour, 200-mile trip from Columbus, Ohio, to Pittsburgh in a state police patrol car.

"There was nothing peculiar about the trip at all except I didn't get where I hoped to be," the 75-year-old world traveler said while buying a train ticket to New York.

Mrs. Roosevelt had hoped to be at an Israel bond rally, where she was slated as the principal speaker. The snowstorm, which dumped about 12 inches of snow, changed her plans.

A Trans World Airliner with Mrs. Roosevelt aboard bypassed the snowbound Greater Pittsburgh Airport Sunday morning and landed in Columbus. Mrs. Roosevelt and other passengers boarded a chartered bus for Pittsburgh.

The bus, however, bogged down in a three-mile traffic jam on snow-covered Route 40 about 45 miles west of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Roosevelt was taken from the bus at Claysville, Pa., near the Pennsylvania-West Virginia border, and brought to Pittsburgh in a state police patrol car. She went directly to the Pennsylvania Railroad station and boarded a New York-bound train.

She said she spent her time in the stranded bus "waiting to arrive."

Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania had a brief talk with Mrs. Roosevelt aboard the train.

"She was equal to the occasion and took it in stride," said Gov. Lawrence, "but she was upset because she didn't make the dinner."

Sgt. Karl Delbrook, driver of the patrol car, quoted Mrs. Roosevelt as saying she didn't like the "special treatment" and that if it hadn't been for a Monday morning appointment in New York she would have stayed aboard the bus with the other passengers.

Grand Jury Looks At Prof Death

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—A grand jury today will study new evidence involving a college dean charged with clubbing an attractive woman professor to death on a lonely rural lane.

Dr. George H. Mickey, 50-year-old dean of the Louisiana State University Graduate School, is being held in the death of his colleague, Dr. Margaret Rosamond McMillan, 38, biology professor at the university's New Orleans branch.

Mickey has been in jail since Jan. 14, four days after the body of Miss McMillan was found near the Baton Rouge campus.

Mickey denied killing her. Officers said blood stains of Miss McMillan's type were found on his car.

Officers said she was hit on the head 13 times with a heavy weapon. She was apparently attacked from behind.

Sheriff Bryan Clemmons indicated his office had uncovered more evidence but declined to elaborate except to say it was "very pertinent" and all the facts would be presented to the grand jury.

Mickey, father of two grown children, had known Miss McMillan since the 1950s when he was on the faculty and she was working on her doctorate at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Miss McMillan carried Mickey's picture in her wallet and named him one of the heirs to her estate, valued at about $3,000 plus some minor real estate holdings.

Senate Splits 3 Ways On 'Rights'

IN ARGENTINA

Frustrated Navy Pushes Sub Hunt

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's frustrated navy today pressed its attack on a mystery submarine with new deep-level U.S. depth charges, but the quarry evaded capture.

As the hunt went into its 17th day, naval officials said their ships were being harassed by a second sub which had slipped through the guarded entrance to Golfo Nuevo in an effort to divert the chase from its apparently damaged comrade.

All Argentina waited for "operation sinking" to produce some results after Navy Secretary Gaston Clement's boast Sunday that the search would reach a climax "in a matter of hours."

The navy proclaimed the "operation sinking" was in effect after it received the new powerful depth charges Saturday from the United States. The U.S. charges can reach down to 656 feet. Bombs previously used by the searching ships were effective down to only 302 feet.

The second sub confused the chased considerably. Red-faced officials said it would slip close to a warship, then pull away as the vessel tried to pinpoint it with underwater sound tracking equipment.

The navy believes the new submarine is trying to divert attention from the damaged craft which may be undergoing repairs in hopes of making a break out of the 40-by-20-mile gulf on Argentina's south coast.

Naval officials believe the first submarine's propellers have been damaged by depth charges, but it is still able to descend quickly to escape depth bombs.

Several pilots said they have picked up messages between the submarines and other friendly craft waiting somewhere out in the Atlantic. Some messages were in code, they said, the rest in poor Yankee slang.

The United States said it has no information of any of its subs in the area. The British deny the subs are theirs. The Soviets have said nothing.

Soviet Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan was asked about the chase Saturday in Newfoundland, where he had stopped en route home from a visit to Cuba. "The only thing they will kill is a lot of fish," he remarked.

One unconfirmed newspaper report Sunday said a dead frogman had been found on the Golfo Nuevo coast. The report said he appeared to have died about five days ago and showed marks of having been injured by depth charges.

Lyndon Seeks Middle Way In Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), the Democratic leader, indicated today he is shooting for a middle of the road civil rights bill in the Senate controversy over the issue.

"No conceivable bill can satisfy everybody," Johnson told newsmen.

"My objective is to achieve a bill which our consciences and our judgment tell us is right. We're going to do what's right."

At the outset of the Senate session Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (Ill.), the GOP leader, told his colleagues the debate is "a case of reasonable men trying to get together on a constructive bill."

He said he thinks the job can be done by orderly procedure. He described the administration's package bill as on the conservative side.

The Senate had other business to get out of the way before turning to the civil rights issue. The Senate was split into three camps on the issue.

Emballated Southerners, expecting the worst, were ready to spring any of several delaying traps against a move to bring a bill before the Senate.

Liberals of both political parties, advocating stronger legislation than even they say is likely to be passed, pushed for speedy action.

None of the three camps had a demonstrated majority as the long-planned starting date of the civil rights battle arrived.

The first test was scheduled late in the day on an effort to call up from the Senate calendar a bill previously passed by the House and attach civil rights proposals to it.

Many days of talk and possible round-the-clock sessions lay ahead. It seemed inevitable, however, that the liberals and the middle ground members eventually would join forces to overpower the little band of Southern dissenters.

If necessary, there apparently would be forthcoming the required approval of two-thirds of those voting to clamp a debate limitation on them and thus guarantee eventual passage of a bill.

What form that legislation might take remained wrapped in doubt as Democratic presidential hopefuls vied with Eisenhower administration leaders to share in the credit for federal aid to disfranchised minority voters.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois was ready with a seven-point plan endorsed by President Eisenhower. Among other things it would make it a federal crime for anyone to obstruct court orders in school integration cases or for school or church bombing suspects to flee across state lines. It also would amend the 1957 Civil Rights Act to provide for court-appointed federal voting referees.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) said this doesn't go far enough. He had in hand additional proposals to broaden the attorney general's authority to seek injunctions to enforce civil rights and to provide a discretionary death penalty in lynching cases.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) also is working on a plan he said would combine features of the referee proposal with those of the Civil Rights Commission calling for appointment of voting registrars by the President.

FINISHING TOUCHES Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo) was putting the finishing touches on a proposal he said was better than the administration's voting referee suggestion. He said that under it voters would be guaranteed the right to cast their ballots, but the states could contest such votes before they were finally counted.

Johnson had a set of much milder proposals which did not include the voting referee suggestion. His included a provision for setting up a voluntary conciliation service to help smooth the way for local civil rights action.

As a presidential hopeful, Johnson seemed likely to move toward a more advanced position where he could attract Northern Democratic support for the nomination. But he could not move so far away from the Southerners as to lose even their begrudging backing as the candidate least offensive to them.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) said the Dixie contingent is under no illusion that it can prevent the passage of a civil rights bill in an election year. He said all of the political trappings are at hand for what he called "a Roman circus" with Southerners as victims.

Hospital Board Okays Closing Of TB Wards

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Hospital Board authorized today deactivation of excess wards and buildings at the five state tuberculosis hospitals.

Dr. C. J. Ruhlmann, director of mental health and hospitals, told the board the number of patients in the state TB hospitals has dropped sharply in three years.

Ruhlmann cited three reasons for the decrease: Hospitalization has "interrupted the chain of infection" with families; improved treatment has shortened the average hospital stay; and a larger number of people who develop tuberculosis are being treated by their own private physicians.

Ruhlmann said that the state can safely deactivate one building or ward at each of the hospitals in Kerrville, San Angelo, Tyler, San Antonio and Harlingen.

Board members agreed to leave the exact amount of deactivation up to Ruhlmann and his staff. They directed Ruhlmann to make sure no facilities are closed if these might be needed later.

The board approved several construction and repair contracts and discussed the problem of care for aged patients in mental hospitals who are senile rather than requiring extensive hospitalization.

Bustamente Case Reset For Feb. 18

Sanity hearing for Rosa Bustamente, accused of murder with malice, was postponed in 118th District Court Monday morning.

It was reset for Thursday at 10 a.m. A jury panel was qualified and then excused from further duty until that time when the docket revealed no cases would be ready for trial today.

The delay in the sanity hearing was impelled by the illness of Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent of the Big Spring State Hospital.

Dr. Harrison is related to the court will be the principal witness in the sanity hearing for the young mother. She is charged with having caused the death in 1957 of her infant daughter. The child died in a hospital as result of a severe beating. Soon afterward the woman was admitted to the Big Spring Hospital as mentally ill. She was released from the hospital recently.

Gil Jones, district attorney, has asked that a jury weigh the issue of her present mental status before he proceeds with prosecution of the murder charge against her.

George Thomas, defense attorney, said that Dr. Harrison has been ill with the flu but that it was possible he would be able to come to court by Thursday.

Other cases tentatively docketed for trial were either terminated in announcements by the defendants of intention to enter pleas of guilty or were reset for later dates.

Three cases on the docket involve defendants who are represented by Clyde Thomas Sr., attorney Thomas is ill in the hospital and these cases were continued.

Andrew Wright, accused of DWI second offense, entered a plea of guilty before Judge Ralph Caton called the jury panel into the court room. Wright was fined $250 and ordered to spend three days in the county jail. He has already been in jail for two days and was credited with that time.

Other defendants who announced they would plead guilty included Cleveland Jackson, theft; George Rojo, forgery by endorsement; Mack Clifton Godwin, theft; Ester Ramirez, theft; and James Chisum, DWI second. Chisum is to plead on Tuesday. All of the other pleas were to be heard today.

Case of Farrell Hammill, charged with burglary, was reset for Feb. 29. A burglary case against Marion Clark was also set for trial on that date.

Of the jury panel of 60 called for service today, 41 reported.

Tell Likes, Dislikes

Cornel Wilde and Jean Wallace, one of Hollywood's most happily married couples, chat with columnist Lydia Lane about their likes and dislikes. They are starred in "Caves of Night" for Columbia Pictures.

Cornel Wildes Give Opinions In General

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — To express the sentiment of St. Valentine's Day I decided to visit one of the most romantic married couples in Hollywood, Cornel Wilde and Jean Wallace. I had seen them recently at a party and while they were not demonstrative, their devotion to each other was expressed in silent admiration as true happiness should be.

"Was it love at first sight?" I asked Cornel, as we chatted on the set of Columbia's "Caves of Night."

"You are a romanticist," he laughed. "I remember Jean was wearing a tight, low-cut dress and her blonde hair fell around her pretty face. I kept moving across that crowded room in her direction until I was standing next to her. That was almost eight years ago. We've been married seven."

"I liked Jean's complete naturalness, her lack of affectation, her basic honesty. Whether you can trust a woman is something that you can't find out right away."

"And I was attracted by her simple healthy attitude toward life — the way she could cook a wonderful dinner all by herself. And we like the same things — hunting, spear fishing, fencing."

Jean was fencing before I knew her."

Cornel won the inter-collegiate saber-fencing matches and was on the Olympic training squad.

"It's a wonderful conditioner for the body," he said. "You use every muscle. But what makes it so exciting is that you must make split-second decisions and have split-second reactions. It is one of the few sports that trains your brain as well as your body."

"What is Jean's biggest perfection?" I asked.

"I can tell you that," Jean said quickly. "I have a simply horrible temper."

"What do you do about this?" I asked her husband.

"First I try to reason with her and if that fails, I resort to 'Taming of the Shrew.' My temper tops hers."

"Any other flaws?"

"Sometimes she wears blue jeans and shorts when they are not appropriate." They both smiled at each other.

"It is always interesting to know what a discerning man dislikes about us," I continued. "What feminine traits do you find attractive or repelling?"

Cornel, with his eyes twinkling, pointed to Jean who was unwrapping a stick of chewing gum. "That habit of chewing. I do not enjoy seeing or hearing it."

"What else?" I asked him.

"I do not have patience with women who try to impress me. There is nothing on which to base a relationship. I dislike aggressive people. And if they are naturally shy, I understand, but when a woman is determined to be hard to know, I find that a boring affectation."

"A girl can be friendly and charming without being on the make. I dislike women who are flirtatious when they are married or know you are."

Compact Car Boom Becomes Revolution

By PEN PHELAGER
AP Automobile Writer

Detroit (AP)—The compact car boom has exploded into a full-scale revolution in the auto industry.

Falcon, Corvair and Valiant, plus their slightly older companions Rambler and Lark, accounted for almost 75 per cent of all domestic cars sold in January.

This figure has added significance since January was the only month in the entire first third of the 1960 model year in which supplies of all cars were reasonably good.

"Everything is changing," says Ben Mills, Ford vice president whose Lincoln-Mercury Division is introducing still another compact, the Comet, next month. "A revolution is underway. Nobody knows where it will end."

The 1960 model year was bound to be confusing with the entry of four new cars—the three new compacts and the Dodge Dart—right at the start. It became even more so as steel shortages curtailed production and compounded distribution problems.

Many of the long-range questions, such as who will be hurt and whether foreign cars will windle into oblivion, remain unanswered. The only thing definite so far is the new size cars are selling.

The five compact lines sold about 101,500 cars in January against an industry total of 453,000. Rambler's total of 34,949 put it third among all cars with Falcon fourth, only about 2,500 cars behind. Among the five compacts, Corvair ran a distant third with only about half as many sales as Falcon. Lark was fourth and Valiant fifth.

With the Falcon booming, sales of the standard Ford have slumped sharply from year-ago figures. Falcon has more than taken up the slack, however, so Ford Division sold more cars this January than last.

Standard Chevrolet sales, while down from a year ago, are considerably better than those of the regular Ford. Like Ford Division, over-all Chevrolet sales are up.

At Plymouth the situation is a little different. Combined Plymouth and Dodge sales are up.

mouth-Valiant sales are only slightly above last year's Plymouth total. The standard Plymouth appears to be suffering competition from the Dodge Dart, another new Chrysler car right in Plymouth's price range.

The only standard-size car line showing any appreciable sales increase in January was Dodge, which more than doubled its 1959 totals. The sole reason for the Dodge spurt is the lower priced Dart.

Last August Rambler's George Romney, who finally convinced the Big Three that compact cars were profitable, sized up 1960 as a year in which the industry would sell 1,750,000 smaller U.S. built cars, including 500,000 Ramblers.

Romney also predicted the medium-price lines would fall on their faces and the tide of imports would be stemmed. In January the medium-price lines dropped 5 per cent from year-ago sales totals while the low-price lines, even with the addition of Dart, were 10 per cent below last year.

One month doesn't make a year, however, and when the medium-price lines bring out their own compacts, such as the Comet, things are sure to change. Lincoln-Mercury expects the Comet to cut into Mercury sales but declines to estimate to what extent.

Compact cars from Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and probably Dodge will be along in the early fall.

Does all this mean standard-size cars are doomed? Nobody in Detroit thinks so, although Romney says compacts will make up 50 per cent of all car sales by 1963.

"There will always be a place for us," says James Roche, general manager of Cadillac. This sentiment is echoed by all the other makers.

Crippling Storm Lays White Blanket Over Eastern States

By The Associated Press

Winter's most violent weather, a two-ply combination of gale-whipped snow and sleet, staggered most of the Eastern quarter of the country over the weekend.

The crippling storm, which left a blanket of snow across the Southland, hammered more than a dozen Eastern states Sunday.

It diminished during the night but snow and strong winds continued to lash areas from the upper Ohio Valley into New York and New England. Winds of 40 m.p.h. pounded sections of New York causing considerable drifting of snow.

Deaths from the weekend of stormy weather, winter's worst in many areas, mounted to at least 26. Most of them were attributed to heart attacks while shoveling snow or in accidents on icy or snow-clogged highways.

Property damage was expected to run into the thousands of dollars. The roving storm, after plastering Dixie with as much as 16 inches of snow, rocked areas from eastern Ohio to the Atlantic Coast and into New England.

Travel-air, highway and train—was sharply curtailed. Thousands of autos and trucks were abandoned on snow-clogged highways, in rural areas and in cities. Scores of air flights were canceled.

Blizzard Slows Down, Eliminates Snow Threat

By The Associated Press

A fast moving blizzard that dropped up to three inches of snow in the Upper Texas Panhandle weakened as it moved into North Central Texas Monday and eliminated a threat of heavy snowfall for the rest of the state.

The storm hit the Panhandle with snow, strong winds and sleet Sunday making highways dangerous for motorists and dropping temperatures. The low in Texas Monday was 11 degrees at Dalhart.

Dalhart had 1 1/2 inches of snow. Borger, Pampa and Amarillo had about one inch and two inches fell at Texoma and Boise, Okla. Sunday.

Some snow hit the Panhandle early Monday and flurries fell from Lubbock northeastward to Childress.

The Weather Bureau at New Orleans issued a bulletin at 5 a.m. Monday which said: "The storm center over Texas has continued to weaken and no longer presents a threat of heavy snow to the Texas area. Snow amounts to three inches have been reported in the Upper Texas Panhandle and northern portions of Oklahoma."

"Two to four inches of snow are expected to fall in portions of central and northeastern Oklahoma today with only light amounts elsewhere in Oklahoma, northwestern Arkansas and along the Red River Valley of North Central Texas."

Winds of about 20 to 25 m.p.h.

TWO GUESTS AND AN OLD STUDENT
Boyce House, Dr. Norris Davis and Capt. Allen R. Robertson

News Official Decries Taking Humanity Out Of Front Page

COLORADO CITY—Newspapers—especially those serving the grass-roots population—have taken the people off the front page, West Texas Press Association members were told Sunday.

James Roberts, editor of the Andrews County News, lamented that "we don't bleed any more; we give too much attention to the mechanics of news and not enough of the color which pertains to people. We don't dissent because we've become so unemphatic with the grass that we don't have the nerve to tell the truth about them anymore. Too many of us are trying to run a popularity contest with our newspapers. We major news from the city council and chamber of commerce because it's the easiest to get."

Approximately 100 delegates spent the morning viewing various operational programs including those on political rate structures. The importance of circulation and how best to acquire and hold it was underlined by another panel, and finally various means of training, keeping and increasing productivity of back shop labor was discussed.

Dr. Norris Davis, associate professor of journalism at the University of Texas, speaking at the concluding luncheon, suggested that newspapermen needed to go to work at the high school level to recruit the best brains for the profession.

"Despite all the maligning our profession has taken in recent years," he said, "the kids have a pretty good image of us. In a survey of how they liked people, newspapermen ranked only behind the minister."

Dr. Davis said that too frequently high school counselors were using 1935 government handbooks which described journalism as a crowded field with long hours and low pay. If that was true then, it is no longer true today. For studies have shown journalism ranks well up in the pay schedule with most occupations and professions.

"We're in a keen competition for the best brains," he added, "and we've got to get them because we need these to develop leaders for tomorrow and to make our democratic society work."

Francis Berry, Ballinger, president of the Texas Press Association, said he was in charge of the meeting and the program was in charge of Joe Bell, Colorado City, and Cal Snyder, Denver City. Guests were feted at a reception Saturday evening and were welcomed by Mayor Crawford Trevor at the opening business session.

Panelists included Roy Craig, Stamford; Neil Van Zandt, Seagraves; Ed Harris Jr., Graham; Jimmy Gilentine, Jim Cornish, Post, Curtis Sterling, Brownfield, Jim Glasscock, Alpine; Troy Martin, Olton; Ed Eakin, Quanah; Dr. Davis was introduced by a former student of his, Capt. Allen R. Robertson, in charge of the Office of AFB.

Decisions May Affect Fate Of Candidates

The fate of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) on the Wisconsin battleground may be affected soon by two decisions.

The decisions will be made by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, conceded victory in his question of the Republican nomination, and Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), conceded little chance in his race for the Democratic nomination.

It was learned in Washington Sunday that Nixon probably would decide to let Republican leaders enter his name in Wisconsin's April 5 primary.

If he enters the primary, party officials would try to roll up an impressive vote for the unopposed vice president. They would pressure Republicans to mark the GOP ballot instead of crossing over to vote in the more interesting Democratic contest.

This would be good news for Humphrey, who has said he fears that Wisconsin Republicans, spurred on by Minnesota Republicans, will vote against him in the Democratic contest. Their motive: to give him a black eye while his nearby Minnesota constituents are watching.

The second decision also involves the Wisconsin primary. Sen. Morse, on a television show Sunday, said he would decide within a few days whether to enter the primary.

"At the present time I am having a little poll taken in Wisconsin," Morse said, "and if I become convinced that I can get a great many progressive Republicans to vote for me, I may go in."

Francis Berry, Ballinger, president of the Texas Press Association, said he was in charge of the meeting and the program was in charge of Joe Bell, Colorado City, and Cal Snyder, Denver City. Guests were feted at a reception Saturday evening and were welcomed by Mayor Crawford Trevor at the opening business session.

Quarrel Over Defense Money Spills Over Partisan Lines

Editor's Note: How much money is needed and for what purposes? Keep this country militarily safe? Herewith Elton C. Fay, long an AP writer on military affairs, wraps up the current debate.

WASHINGTON (AP)—With the debate on size and nature of the military program for next year barely begun, demands are being made to add up to three billion dollars to the defense budget proposed by President Eisenhower.

The military appropriation bill which Congress eventually passes could be influenced strongly by international trends in the interim.

Among other matters, the success or failure of the scheduled summit meeting of Soviet and Western chiefs of state in April and any developments in disarmament efforts could have their impact on what Congress, or indeed, the administration, finally does about the amount of money and the composition of defense forces.

Certainly, new adventures in limited aggression by the Communists and a realignment in the world could influence the program.

Construction work in the auditorium area of the Big Spring Civic Theatre playhouse is nearing the finish line. Sunday, when a small handful of workers laid down their tools, most of the skeletal framework had been completed.

The entire ceiling, above the stage area, has been removed, and rafters installed 18 inches higher. The risers for the seating were completed several weeks ago. With mostly finishing work to go, the auditorium is suitable for Easter Pageant rehearsal.

The small group of workers, (there were six sitting in the ceiling rafters Sunday) are pushing to complete as much as possible of the building before Easter Pageant rehearsal takes place.

The meeting scheduled tonight, to discuss revision of the by-laws, was called off due to a conflict with the appearance of Rosalind Nadel.

There has been considerable discussion regarding what courses this revision should take. And there are certain to be many sharp differences of opinion in future discussions of the matter.

There is at least one group that is pushing to get the BSCT better organized if this is to take place, it must be spelled out in the charter and by-laws. And few members of the group overlook the fact that reorganization is long overdue.

There is another group that prefers to leave things as they are. "Don't rock the boat and things are bound to get better."

Change always involves a certain amount of discussion and controversy. But the time has arrived when it may be necessary for the very life of the "theatre idea" in Big Spring.

At present, any important decisions of the group are made out of hand, rather than through the due process of the by-laws. This is the result of inadequate planning by the board of directors. As a board member, I know this is true.

Decisions normally made by the board have been forced onto single members who have, fortunately, accepted the responsibility.

Coordination of talents and abilities is rarely found. Who knows what hidden ability is available to the group, but now undiscovered?

I think it is safe to say that any group, planning no farther than several months ahead, is going into about that far. Crisis after crisis will eventually end in chaos.

A strong organization is necessary. It can only be found when members stand together and work out an organizational vehicle that will work, not just today, but next year too.

Princeton Men Get Stood Up

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A hundred Centenary College girls stood up a flock of Princeton men who came dateless but hopeful to a St. Valentine's dance.

The girls' school from the Hacketts-town school had been invited to the Saturday night ball. They declined at the last minute because the dance got publicly unflattering to the female ego.

Dance tickets were advertised at $4.75 a couple and $5 a stag. The group sponsoring the dance invited 100 girls from Centenary College for women for the stags.

The Princetonian, campus newspaper, said in a headline designed to help sell tickets, "100 dates to be sold for dance." The paper said a girl was included at 25 cents extra in the price of a stag ticket.

The girls' parents found out, complained, and the girls were ordered by Centenary officials not to attend.

The dateless Princeton men were offered apologies and refunds by the dance sponsors.

THIS DAY IN TEXAS

Organized on this day in 1877 was the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association.

Some 400 stockmen met at the small town of Graham, and the first meeting was called to order under a large tree in front of the Richards House.

S. N. Simpson of Parker County was temporary chairman while S. L. Carter of Palo Pinto was the first president. J. C. Loving was elected secretary.

The principal result of this first meeting was the division of Northwest Texas into six districts with members selected from each zone to look after stray cattle, return them to proper owners and otherwise protect the interests of the cattle business.

A marble monument at Graham commemorates this beginning of the cattlemen's organization.

Missile Kills Missile

The U.S. Army released these photographs in Washington, D.C., describing them as showing the first known kill of one supersonic missile by another missile. The action took place over White Sands, N.M., Jan. 23. At top left a Hawk anti-aircraft missile takes off, en route to intercept its target, an Honest John missile, top right. At lower left the Hawk leaves a trail of vapor as it changes course to make the interception. At lower right the two missiles explode as the Hawk finds its target.

Edie Finds Satire Hard For Kind-Hearted People

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie - TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Many an observer has lamented the decline of satire from the American scene. Edie Adams offers some reasons why. Edie and her husband, Ernie Kovacs, have been among the country's best satirists. Now making her film debut in "The Apartment," Edie disclosed that she can no longer do her devastating imitation of Marilyn Monroe. She has been asked to do it so many times on T. What she can't face it any more. "So I do an imitation of Jayne Mansfield, which is what she does anyway," Edie said. "But Mansfield has no distinguishing characteristics, so it just comes out a dumb blonde. And I can't put my heart in it, because I've found out from knowing her that Jayne is one of the smartest girls with a nickel." Edie tempered her Jeanette MacDonald act after learning that the soprano had viewed the impression of herself "with ice in her eyes." The entertainer dropped a June Allyson impression complete with tear-soaked towel, because of her friendship with June — "How can I satirize someone who's looking for a pony for my daughter?" "I had to take Kim Novak out of the act, too. I did a routine, complete with lavender wig, in which she was asked all kinds of questions and never said a word. Then I got to know her and found out she is a very frank, sincere girl who thinks for herself. Know anyone who wants to buy a lavender wig?" If Edie's satire has been blunted by kind-heartedness, Ernie has suffered a more violent fate. He battled the TV brass for a chance to more pointed material, finally gave up the struggle.

Month Of Mice Rough On Rats

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's Oriental calendar Year of the Mouse may be a bad one for rats. The Tokyo Health Bureau has made Feb. 29-March 5 Rat Extermination Week, hoping to wipe out many of the estimated 27 million rodents that gnaw away about $25 worth of goods yearly per head. Ratcatchers will be given tickets in a lottery offering prizes such as electric stoves and blankets.

Paar Says He Hopes To Leave Soon For S. American Trip

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Paar says he hopes to leave today or Tuesday for a long vacation in South America. When he gets back, he says, he'll meet with officials of the National Broadcasting Co. Announcer Hugh Downs will appear tonight as master of ceremonies of Paar's television show. The comedian walked out during the show Thursday night, furious because NBC had cut out of his jokes off the program the night before.

Paar said then he wouldn't return to the show, despite his contract with NBC. Sunday he said:

"I still hope I don't have to go back to the 'Tonight' show. But I don't want to be sued." NBC apologized to Paar for not notifying him in advance that the joke had been edited out of his taped program. But the network defended its right to make the deletion. NBC said the joke was in bad taste.

Disc Men To Tell Own Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record distributors, pictured in sworn testimony as among the leading beneficiaries of disc jockeys, get a chance today to tell their side of the story. Winding up a long Lincoln Day recess, the Legislative Oversight subcommittee arranged to begin the second week of hearings with testimony from officials of three Boston firms accused of payola practices.

The firms, all record distributors, were cited earlier this month in Federal Trade Commission complaints on charges of payola practices — undercover payments to disc jockeys to plug records. Witnesses summoned include: Cecil Steen, president-treasurer of Records, Inc.; Harry Carter, president-treasurer of Music Suppliers, Inc., and Gordon J. Dinerstein, the firm's treasurer, and Donald E. Dumont, president of Dumont Record Distributing Co. The three firms and a fourth, Mutual Distributors, were named in testimony before the subcommittee last week as having paid a total of $6,817 to Boston disc jockey David Maynard.

Maynard, one of the initial witnesses, readily acknowledged the payments. But he insisted they weren't payola.

Allen Finds Ticket Factor In Show Move

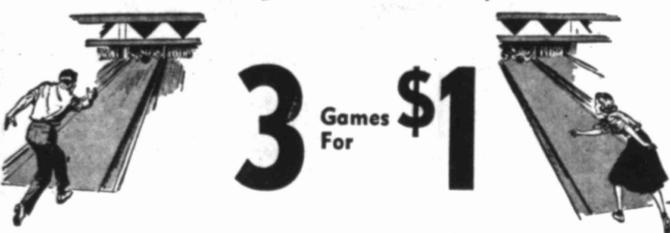

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television - Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It takes a heap of plane tickets to move a television show around. When Steve Allen flew to New York from Hollywood last week for two shows, he was accompanied by 35 people—writers, producers, cast members and others. Once here, they all jammed into crowded rehearsal quarters where in a welter of confusion, tonight's show was born.

Things got so mixed up Wednesday, for instance, that an afternoon rehearsal was called — and nobody remembered until the cast was assembled, that guest star Henry Fonda was missing because it was matinee day and he's appearing on Broadway in a play. Confusion, noise and cold coffee in cardboard containers, however, roll off the paid shoulders of Allen's sports jacket. What get under his skin, are such larger concerns as continued testing of nuclear weapons, America's lack of interest in good literature and NBC's recent refusal to let him insert a serious philosophical conversation spang in the middle of his weekly musical variety show. Allen insists that he isn't worried about his shows' ratings or what will happen to it next year. "I've already told the network that I will not be available for a weekly show next season," he says. "I'll do two out of three or three out of four, but not every week." "Getting out of the Sunday night spot was my own doing—NBC wanted me to do a 90-minute show there and I wouldn't. I said I'd just go to some other night—but one of our problems with Mondays is that we have a low-rated show right ahead of us."

Padre Island Gets Cold

According to the Lower Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce it has never been cold on South Padre Island in the Texas Gulf. But recently the mercury dropped to the upper 30's as steel gull in the area. So Linda Koessler, of San Juan, naturally had to put on her sweater to enjoy the beach.

Meador said the department made 34 calls during the month, four of them outside the city limits.

A Devotional For Today

"I came that they have life, and have it abundantly."
(John 10:10. RSV.)
PRAYER: O Lord and Father of mankind, help us in these days to be forgetful of self and strong to live for Thee. Help us first to know and do Thy holy will that we may be a blessing to all mankind and an honor to Thee. In our Redeemer's name. Amen.

Doubt From Another Quarter

By and large the Luce magazine empire—Time, Life and Fortune—has been in the Eisenhower-Nixon corner all the way, and occasionally rather rascally so.

So an editorial in this week's Life probably raised a good many eyebrows throughout the country, for that magazine comes pretty close to committing editorial lese majesty by saying baldly in the very first line of its lead editorial:

"President Eisenhower's defense budget is dangerously deficient."

The full-length headline is: "Needed: A Mightier Shield." It concedes, as most editorial writers, including us, would gladly concede—that Mr. Eisenhower "has great military experience and deep confidence his $11 billion is adequate. But harsh facts argue it isn't."

We would point out that other military men of experience approaching Mr. Eisenhower's own have asserted time after time that the budget is grievously deficient. Some have felt so to such a degree of certainty that they have separated themselves from the military service before their time, to be free to express their opinion without violating the rules of official etiquette, which say in effect that a man in uniform has no business criticizing or disagreeing with his commander-in-chief.

We respect Mr. Eisenhower, as most Americans do, and give him credit for the utmost sincerity. Also, we recognize that there is plenty of room for disagreement among military people regarding what's best to do and how to do it. Moreover, those charged with the direct responsibility of keeping our defenses primed and ready are understandably for everything they need or can get from Congress.

But it is equally true that an administration in power, in an election year, and particularly in a presidential election year, is inclined to put its best foot forward to please the public, and both major parties have habitually practiced the theory that economy and peace are essential election-year shibboleths.

Under Mr. Truman in the late 1940s, when the military people asked for a budget, as we recall, of more than $30 billion, the administration was instrumental in cutting it down to the bare bones—about $14 billion in round figures. "Economy" was felt essential to success at the polls.

Beyond the shadow of a doubt this wave of "economy" laid the predicate for the North Korean aggression under Chinese auspices.

Today world conditions are more perilous. For what unimaginable holocaust is the 1960-61 budget laying the predicate?

Not As Bad Off As Their Elders

A contemporary, the Houston Chronicle, was shocked that of 500 younger voters of the country quizzed on political affairs, fewer than 240 could identify Senator Hubert Humphrey and Senator Stuart Symington with the Democratic Party, while only 34 per cent expressed the belief that Adlai Stevenson was a "liberal."

The Chronicle opined "this ignorance is disconcerting." It is "indication of a mental lassitude which is unforgeable. These are the people who are going to vote for a new President in November."

According to the Chronicle, these and other evidences of political ignorance among young voters were developed by a nationally known magazine.

Well, of course, it is discouraging; but why pick on young voters? How about the oldsters? Are they, in general, any better informed about men and issues than the first-time voters?

If the youngsters are the only people who are misinformed, we are surprised to hear of it. It is our observation that it is more difficult to fool and bamboozle the kids than their elders.

If this be treason to our age-class, make the most of it.

Public Says Ho Hum To Population Explosion

PRINCETON, N. J. — The concern expressed by some authorities over the world's "population explosion" has yet to register with the American public.

Although most Americans have heard something about the predicted great increase in population, only about one person in five in a Gallup Poll says he is particularly worried about this fact.

The public, in short, has not yet come to share the fears of some population experts that over-population and its accompanying problems of poverty and hunger may provide Communism and revolution with a "ready-made market" in many important areas of the world.

Behind the public's view is often a belief that "it will all work out somehow."

has been a significant increase over the last three years in the percentage of Americans who believe that four or more children is the ideal number.

Here is the trend of thinking about large families over the last quarter-century as seen in a comparison of the vote of people saying "four or more children make up the ideal-sized family."

WHAT OTHERS SAY

A year after the bearded forces of Fidel Castro swept triumphantly into Havana, his revolutionary government retains firm control of Cuba. Its leader appears to be fervently and emotionally supported by a majority of his countrymen.

In any summary of the first year of this turbulent revolution, you can find both plus and minus signs. Most observers agree the Castro regime has brought an unusual degree of honesty to the Cuban federal government. The old system of graft and pay-offs, long entrenched in Cuba and many other Latin American lands, seems to have been wiped out.

The Cuban people, by and large, also give the impression of being more content under Castro. Such a statement presumably would not apply to those who property has been taken from them. But it would appear to cover millions of poorer individuals.

Castro remains a dictator — in many ways as tyrannical as his predecessor. He rules absolutely, without a parliament and with no prospect of elections.

The government views slowly closing on private enterprise — plus Castro's constant anti-American propaganda — has shaken the Cuban economy. Unemployment has mounted to 700,000 in a nation of 5 1/2 million, despite an ambitious public works program. Tourist trade has declined to practically nothing; Caribbean cruise ships have abandoned Havana. The government now has to support luxury hotels once jammed with foreign visitors.

Two specters of the revolution particularly disturb Americans: the apparently important leftist influence and the resumption of military justice, with its quick executions. Cubans protest that the present swing to the left is not communist, but simply "humanistic."

Direct Communist activities are hard to pin down. But at least strong Communist sympathies are attributed to some of the key people in the Castro regime.

Obsession with counter-revolutionists has become so extreme in Cuba that even mild expressions of disapproval of the government bring vitriolic denunciation. A few newspapers that courageously speak against the Castro excesses have been castigated by the dictator and his associates.

Castro's position does not appear strong enough to defy all restraints. The Roman Catholic Church remains a force that could turn against him, should Communist influence mount further. And labor, while supporting him, remains largely independent.

In the year ahead, Cuba will probably see additional turmoil, more command "reform" and continuing opposition.

Dose Of Own Medicine In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets shocked this country with their Sputniks and the moon shot. But they sent a first-class chill down the American spine with Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's trip to Cuba.

The United States doesn't like it. But what is it going to do about it? Not much right away, it seems. What the Soviets proved was that two can play at the one-sided game this country has been playing a long time.

WE HAVE BEEN rooting around in their back yard for years. Now they are rooting around in ours. Once they got nasty after the war we had no hesitation about lining up their neighbors on our side.

We got Turkey, Iran and Pakistan into military alliances, gave them arms and aid. Those who just wanted aid, like India and Afghanistan, got aid.

We spread our influence and help into Southeast Asia and North Africa. As for Latin America—we spread help there, too, although not as freely as elsewhere. That part of the world was under our wing. The Soviets were far away and it seemed safe.

We had the Monroe Doctrine for Latin America: no foreign intervention there. We were thinking of military intervention, of course. There were local Communists in Latin America but they did not control a government.

WITH EVERYTHING SO tidy close to home, we even extended a kind of Monroe Doctrine to Western Europe, called the Truman Doctrine. It told the Soviets American interests were worldwide and not to push our friends around.

All this was intended to put a ring around the Soviet Union to keep it in check. It worked for a while but not long. All the Soviets had to do was to fly over the ring or sail around it.

Egypt, for instance. The Egyptians got aid from us but when they wanted weapons, too, and help in building their Aswan Dam, we refused the arms and backed away from the dam.

The Soviets moved right in. Egypt got the arms and now the Soviets are building the dam. We gave Afghanistan aid, the Soviets gave more. We gave help to India. So did the Soviet Union.

Still, Latin America seemed a long way away from the Soviet Union. Then Mikoyan went to Mexico to get acquainted and followed up with last week's trip to Cuba where Fidel Castro's government has been snarling at the United States.

By last weekend he had promised to buy five million tons of Cuban sugar over the next five years, arranged for a Soviet loan to Cuba, and even offered Castro war planes if he wants them.

This country has been concerned that Cuban Communists, with or without Castro's leadership, would take over the government.

Now Mikoyan has gone a long way in a week's time to set a solid foundation for Soviet and Communist influence there.

At the least, Castro will probably try to play off the Soviet Union against this country. But Mikoyan's trip to Cuba is just a preliminary to other Soviet efforts to create friends and dependents in Latin America.

All this puts the United States in a kind of self-conscious fix, since the United States is anxious to avoid any action which would revive the memory of Uncle Sam hovering over Latin America with a big stick.

Pointers For Graduates

NEW YORK (AP)—So you're graduating from high school this year, and you're already worried about whether you'll be able to get into the college of your choice?

Hundreds of thousands of boys have this problem.

College heads now can hand-pick their students. How can you be sure you'll be among the chosen, particularly if your marks aren't too high?

Well, if old-fashioned elbow grease won't do it, use a little of the right kind of soft soap. Do a selling job.

YOUR BIG HURDLE is the dean of admissions. Once you're past him, you're usually in. So he's the one you have to snow-job. But how do you snow-job a college dean?

By being different. In age of dull conformity, colleges like to brag about turning out individual individuals—whether they really do or not.

Admission get weary of interviewing day after day clear-eyed, apple-cheeked young applicants from happy, unbroken homes—the wholesome kids who look like the boy next door in the magazine ads. Too many of them grow up and become trustees.

An alert dean wants the shock of something new that will add a quaint touch to the campus as proof that his college still has the unfettered dreamer, the incipient Van Gogh.

So don't wear your neat high school graduation suit to the interview. Blotch into his office in a beret, paint-stained jeans, an old Army fatigue jacket, and sockless sandals.

You should be carrying a coffee-stained volume of T. S. Eliot's "Ash Wednesday," a slide rule and an album of Bach's fugues.

"I see you're interested in mathematics," says the dean, eyeing your slide rule.

"I despise mathematics," you reply. "It is the last refuge of orthodoxy. Euclid was nothing but a self-righteous dogmatist."

"USE THE SLIDE rule to compose my sonnets—in fourth-dimensional verse, of course."

These offhand remarks should wipe out any prejudice on the part of the dean against your low grades in high school. The flame of your genius in his eyes will rise above the ashes of your past report cards.

But he has that final question with which he traps most candidates.

"Why did you pick this college?" he asks.

"Because I am a free spirit!" you answer, putting your hand on your heart. "I want to fly, to soar. And this college is to me what that lonely North Carolina sand dune was to the Wright brothers—a Kitty Hawk of the mind."

You have him now. The dean is in tears. He not only wants you in his college. He offers you a scholarship in any field you choose—from archery to Zen Buddhism.

If this act doesn't get you into the university, nothing will. May you'd better try the nearest barber college.

Most Kidney Problems Yield To Treatment

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My kidneys bother me when the weather is cold but not in the summer. What can be done about this?" — Mr. G. O.

Most likely "bother" means increasing frequency (or quantity) of urination. It doesn't necessarily follow that there is anything wrong with the kidneys.

Colder weather—if a person is outside a great deal—can account for this. You see, we take a considerable amount of fluid into the body each day, and we have to get rid of a certain amount. The "bother" is not the quantity of the how much is lost through two important methods. One is perspiration. The other is the breath. Breathe on your glasses to clean them, and one puff deposits a whole layer of moisture. Multiply this by 20,000 breaths a day, and you can see that this water loss is an impressive amount.

With perspiration, if you work hard for even 10 minutes on a hot summer day you can become dripping wet. It is easily possible to lose several pounds of water in a few hours. With less exertion, and lower temperature, the loss of water decreases, but even at moderate temperatures (around 70°) we constantly lose some, and in a day it adds up. The bowels, of course, discharge moisture to some degree.

What is left over is discharged as urine. The difference between hot weather and cold can be very marked, because the fluid lost by perspiration can be so very different. To a varying degree we compensate by drinking more or less fluid, according to the weather.

This could be the answer to G. O.'s bothersome kidneys in winter.

There are other causes of frequency, of course. Infection of the bladder or kidneys, for instance. In this case, there is burning and pain, as well as a cloudiness of the urine, indicating traces of pus or blood. Diabetes is another cause.

Others can be sagging of the bladder in women (called cystocele), or prostate enlargement in men, causing frequency in that there is an urge to urinate yet there is little volume. There can be, although this naturally is not so common, pressure from a tumor on the bladder, as in fibroid tumors or ovarian cysts.

It is most probably that steps can be taken to ease these conditions once you find out the cause. Kidney and bladder infections, if granted, are likely to be stubborn, so the sooner treatment is started, the better. The other problems (prostate, cystocele pressures) also can be treated effectively, sometimes without surgery and sometimes with it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What can be done to a child of five who tries to cross her eyes in fun? Would that indicate a certain weakness? Should she be punished, or taken to a doctor immediately?" — A. C.

If her eyes are straight otherwise, let her have her fun. She's just showing off. Some kids learn how to wiggle their ears or crack their knuckles instead. Leave her be!

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is a caruncle? I just had one removed from the bladder — M. M."

"Caruncle" is a general term for any small fleshy projection or outgrowth. It's a term that can apply either to normal or abnormal protuberances. It is not to be confused with a carbuncle, of course.

Want to lose weight? It can be done if you follow the advice given in my pamphlet, "The Lost Secret Of Reducing." For a copy, write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 5 cents in coin to cover handling. Copyright, 1950, Field Enterprises, Inc.

What Pattern Of Tie Do You Wear

One thing and another: Some London tailors, obviously intent upon increasing the sales of more expensive cravats, are going in for half-baked psychiatry.

They say a tie with a small pattern indicates a coward, a maroon tie a dull man, a tie with printed silk a tightwad. Why that haven't taken into consideration, in all probability, is the fact that many males wear the same ones else has picked out for them and which they have come into possession of at Christmas time and on birthdays.

Around our household in recent weeks, if we find our No. One daughter, Carol (age three), absorbing the contents of a book, a magazine or a newspaper, we ask her to identify the object in one of the pictures included therein:

If she doesn't recognize it immediately, her stock answer will be: "It's something else."

Latest statistics show that animal lovers spend more on pet foods from bird seeds to dog biscuits than the nation's school systems invest on textbooks.

Money poured into pet foods total 447 million dollars, compared to a textbook outlay of 280 million dollars.

In Russian diplomatic circles in London, they're jokingly explaining the difference between an optimist and a pessimist.

An optimist, they say, learns—Russians while the pessimist learns—Chinese.

Dr. Thomas G. Ward, professor of virology at the University of Notre Dame, says he believes a vaccine can be developed against "an acceptable proportion of the common colds."

Ward elaborated on his statement by predicting a shot that would prevent from 70 to 75 per cent of all colds, adding that it would probably be available within the next couple of years.

A man who comes home smelling from an alien perfume and who alibis by saying he picked it up while sitting next to someone in a bus, railroad car or a restaurant is inclined to be a bit loose with the truth.

So says a veteran perfume saleswoman. "You have to come in contact with the perfume oils," she contends.

Better to cover it with alcohol or tobacco smoke.

The Muscle Challenge May Stir Us

Nothing is so corny today as to be "hysterical" about such secondary matters as national safety, continued national existence and all that jazz. Hysteria is for creeps who don't dig the fact that personal prosperity and ease are what matter today. Walter, another bottle of the bubbly!

But I shouldn't be surprised if a certain number of my fellow citizens are riven with doom and gloom if the Russians run off with the Winter Olympics. We are accustomed and apparently quite content to trail the U.S.S.R. in the space challenge and in the missile competition.

BUT TO TRAIL THEM in the athletic world, well, that's a different and a serious matter. And I expect that there'll be a good bit of huffing and puffing—if the Russians clobber us—in 1960 as there was in 1956 when the Communist athletes did so well.

To be bested in a muscle match—that's serious business, a sort of blot on our national escutcheon. It calls for stern action. You can't fool around with this sort of muscle menace as you can with a Russian flag on the moon. And, besides, with that flag-business, you only have their word for it.

It wouldn't surprise me if all the hot, angry and indignant words spilled after the Olympics in 1956 aren't polished off and framed in even more purple rhetoric in 1960—unless, of course, we've grown accustomed to second place in the interim.

Four years ago there were wildly indignant accusations that Communist athletes aren't really amateurs, but 100 per cent professionals supported, trained and triggered by the Communist governments involved.

ON THIS ACCOUNT, there were strong intimations that the Communist athletes were no ladies and gentlemen, even if winners. Furthermore, there was bitter contempt in the charges that the Communists played to WIN, not just for the sake of the "how" or even for the game itself. Like it or lump it, the West certainly learned in 1956 that the Commies, at the Olympics as in everything else, play for keeps.

In 1956, there was some pretty hysterical American reaction to Russian and Communist prowess in the Olympics, and some of that corn may even pop up in '60. If the Iron Curtain katzenjammer repeat. In fact, it might not be a bad idea. Maybe if we again trail in the Olympics, enough citizens might be sufficiently alarmed to add two and two together.

IF WE COULD GET IT through our noggin that the Communists are playing only for first place and playing only for keeps in the Olympics, we might—with a little effort—be able to shift that conviction to space, missiles and world dominance. Hysteria or no hysteria, it might even encourage or alarm us Americans sufficiently to get our steam and our dander up, and prod us to make the efforts that would at least let us draw abreast of our challenger.

I can remember a time, not so very many years off, when we Americans would not have been content or have tolerated being in second place. But now, with a teevee in every room, two cars in every garage, stryion on every menu and free soothing syrup bottled in Washington, we are placid. We are so rich we can't afford adequate defense, schools, slum clearance or any other great programs for national betterment.

HYSTERIA IS CORN in the national idiom. And so is the old-fashioned Fourth of July oration that appealed to national pride and patriotism. Those were the corny old days when an Independence Day orator actually had the nerve, to quote, with a straight face:

Ill fares the land, to hast'ning ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay!"

But a nation willing to take second best doesn't have to put up with that kind of hysterical corn.

Sokaiya A La Pro Bono Publico

In Japan, they have a printable word for Lewis D. Gilbert, "sokaiya," which, according to the Associated Press, means "general meeting man."

The general meeting men of Japan use the annual stockholders' meeting of corporations as their stage, even as Gilbert. But to a different purpose. Sokaiya—the word is plural and singular—make a living out of harassing company officers, something Gilbert does for free and for glory, as the self-appointed Tom Paine of American stockholders. Lewis's efforts have won for him dash-dash-dash maledictions of many corporate officers.

IN THE BEGINNING, Japanese sokaiya were tough. They crashed meetings to disrupt them. They crashed Japanese executives, rather than call police and delay proceedings, would buy off the sokaiya.

Later, according to AP, instead of crashing meetings, sokaiya became stockholders. They would prepare a critique of the company and tell the officers they planned to raise questions at the annual meetings.

That is exactly what Lewis Gilbert and his brother, John, make a specialty of—asking questions at stockholder meetings. But the Gilberts operate pro bono publico. Sokaiya are pro bono sokaiya. They'll sell their stock to the company, at a handsome markup, of course, and refrain from submitting their critique to the "sokai"—the general meeting. Sometimes, instead of buying the stock, the company purchases silence.

LATER, JAPANESE executives coped with this blackmail by hiring their own general meeting men. Friendly sokaiya would be strategically deployed about the meeting room to applaud company speakers, shout down opposition. These company sokaiya, the AP notes, receive bonuses for "quelling especially turbulent" opposition. This claue technique is not exclusively Japanese.

The Gilberts, unlike their Japanese counterparts, pay for their participation. They have just published a 293-page annual report (their 20th) covering their activities in 1959. They're out of pocket $4,500, after receipts of $4,000 from stockholders to support the publication. In addition, the Gilberts pay their own traveling expenses to and from stockholder meetings, wherever they are.

OUT-OF-NEW-YORK stockholder meetings are the Gilberts when the locale is chosen to discourage stockholder attendance. Because Wilmington is the native head of the du Ponts, the Gilberts approve the du Pont meeting there. But they hide officers of Coty, Sterling Drug, Outboard Marine, Kelsey Hayes for using Wilmington. To the Gilberts, pro-forma stockholders' meetings in pro-forma places are an anachronistic insult to America's 12,000,000-or-so stockholders.

The Gilbert report consists largely of Lewis Gilbert's likes, dislikes, and observations. General Motors Corp. wouldn't allow stockholders to bring their own megaphones to the annual meeting. C. H. Percy, president of Bell & Howell, cannot "consider himself an authority on stockholder relations when a company engaged in the production and sale of photographic equipment fails to include photographs," in the report of its annual meeting.

Curtis Publishing puts out "an astonishingly unattractive report for a publishing company." Tsk, tsk, tsk on New York Central. It restored a 10 per cent salary cut without resuming dividends.

WARNER LAMBERT Pharmaceutical Co., headed by Alfred E. Driscoll, former New Jersey governor, showed itself to be "alert to shareholder desires" by providing that officers under a new compensation plan shall not receive extra income in any year in which a dividend is not paid. But the otherwise fine management of Bristol-Myers was not "open-minded" in tying executive bonuses to dividend policy.

Gilbert sometimes is wordy. He harps on cumulative voting and pre-emptive rights. Yet, you pay for only $2, a copy for his insights on how American corporation executives comport themselves.

Gilbert attended 107 stockholder meetings last year and will go to the same number this year. John is a 32-meeting man. This, indeed, is dedication and useful. As outspoken and militant general meeting men, they help executives to see themselves as uncorrupted sokaiya see them.

Just To Make Sure

ANSONIA, Conn. (AP)—The Board of Aldermen had approved nine of the mayor's appointments by the same 15-0 vote. Then, when the mayor's choice for membership in the Department of Welfare was put up for vote, it was 14-1.

The dissenting alderman quickly explained he had nothing against the appointment. "I just wanted to make sure they were really counting the ballots," he said.

Bank Reports
Good Vista
For Metals

The Dallas Federal Reserve Bank says the Southwest could support more metal fabricating industries which in turn would provide greater demand for primary metals.

The bank in a review of basic metal mining and manufacturing in Texas and parts of Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona, reports the primary metal manufacturing industry contributed 434 million dollars to the region's economy in 1957. Latest figures available.

The industry employed more than 41,000 workers. VALUE ADDED The bank reported that over the 1947-1957 decade, the value added in the Southwest by primary metals manufacturing increased 325 per cent—leading both total manufacturing in the region and in the nation's industry.

"Then the report adds, 'It should be noted, however, that this lead narrowed from 1945 to 1957, and the region's primary metals industry appears to have lagged behind the other manufacturing groups since 1957.'

"It appears that the region could support further expansion of its metals-fabricating industries and provide greater local demand for primary metals."

Manufactured in the district and the Southwest are copper, steel, aluminum, zinc, lead, magnesium, tin, cadmium, and antimony. But foremost in value are steel, copper, and aluminum.

BASIC INDUSTRY Copper smelting and refining continues to be the leading basic metal industry of the 11th (Dallas) Reserve Bank District, mainly because of installations in El Paso and farther west. Within the district are five copper smelters and one electrolytic refinery.

The smelter production is 424,000 tons per year, or roughly one-third of the new copper production in the nation. The refinery produces about 307,000 tons, or about one-fifth of the national refinery production.

Copper production is one of the oldest industries in the district, being started in 1880. The district has more than 100 copper mines.

The reserve bank reports that the supply of copper ores appears adequate for a number of years.

Two major and several lesser steel mills in Texas make up the steel production in the district. Most are tied into the oil industry. Production is still only about 2 per cent of the nation's but has been leading the nation in increase.

MAJOR PLANTS The major steel plants are at Houston, selected because of the availability of scrap iron and cheap water transportation, and at Lone Star, where the plant is near its own ore and near Oklahoma coal mines.

Importance of the oil industry to Texas steel plants is shown by the fact that during the oil decline in the first half of 1958, production was down to 50 per cent of capacity. Later, when oil business increased, the plants went to 90 per cent of production, says the bank's report.

Meanwhile, says the bank, a number of proposals for new iron and steel plants in the western areas of the district have been made.

One is for a $3,200,000, 48,000-ton per year plant near El Paso to utilize steel scrap.

BENEFICIAL EFFECT Another company has announced plans for a 15 million dollar, 500-ton-per day steel mill at Clarkdale, Ariz. While this town is outside the 11th district, the plant would have a beneficial effect on the economy since it would make steel from the iron in waste copper slag, some of which probably would be bought in the district.

In addition, there are other proposals for iron and steel plants in Arizona and New Mexico to use the magnetite iron ore of the area.

Primary aluminum production in Texas began in 1950, with the industry attracted by raw materials, power supplies and power cost considerations.

Three primary aluminum smelters make the state the second largest producer in the nation. These plants have a capacity of 375,000 tons, or about 15 per cent of the U. S. total.

DEAR ABBY

PASS MUSTER!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a sailor with a problem. The problem is my uniform. My girlfriend's mother won't allow her to go out with servicemen. How can I convince this girl's mother that I am not a bad guy just because I wear a uniform? Please answer this in the paper as there are about a million other guys who would like to know.

SAILOR

DEAR SAILOR: A man in uniform is usually "a stranger passing through." And most mothers are suspicious of ALL strangers passing through the "servicemen or traveling salesmen" because they have been known to play a beautiful tune when they are in town, but are seldom around to face the music later. Unless servicemen are given the chance to meet the parents and pass muster, they must suffer for the sins of wolves in military clothing.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it when a mother has lost a child, people will say to her, "Oh, I know what you are going through for I lost my mother or sister, etc." Any mother who has lost a child knows there is no comparison. Sincerely,

ONE WHO KNOWS

DEAR ONE: Those who express their sympathy in this way, THINK they know the depth of your sorrow. They are mistaken.

of course. But they mean well.

DEAR ABBY: I have 11 children (two sets of twins) and they all use toothbrushes. Abby, have you ever tried to find toothbrushes in 11 different colors? Well, I have. And there are not 11 different colors on the market.

All my kids fight for red or blue and nobody wants white. Sometimes they forget which color is theirs and they use the wrong one. Then I have to throw all the toothbrushes out and start over again with new ones. This runs into money. Why don't toothbrush manufacturers put out polka dot and striped toothbrushes for mothers with this problem?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Maybe after I print this letter they will. But in the meantime, try dabbing each child's name in nail polish on his toothbrush. If necessity is the mother of invention, the father is "Pat. Pending."

CONFIDENTIAL TO R. M. K. (Phila.), B. J. (San Diego) and F. F., J. D. and Barry S. of N.Y.C.: (You can find my book at any bookstore.

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply, write to Abby, Big Spring Herald, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Stuck In Capital Both Good And Bad

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The seven House Democrats who drew opponents for the May 7 Democratic primary election will find both an advantage and a disadvantage that they will have to be in Washington during most of the campaign.

While the remaining 14 Texas Democratic House members are virtually assured of re-election, the seven who are facing contests plan to get down to their home bailiwicks as often as possible in the next nine weeks.

Dallas' Republican Congressman Bruce Alger faces prospect of a battle with Joe Pool, Democrat.

Those with a race on their hands, and their opponents shown in parentheses, are:

Reps. Omar Burleson of Anson (Roy Skaggs and Robert Wagstaff, both of Abilene), John Dowdy of Athens (Rev. William H. Crook, Nacogdoches Baptist minister), Joe Kilgore of McAllen (Prof. John Westberg, Pan American College, Edinburg), Walter Rogers of Pampa (Arthur Glover, Amarillo), Olin Teague of Bryan (State Sen. William T. Moore, Bryan), Albert Thomas of Houston (J. M. Wren, Houston), and John Young of Corpus Christi (Dudley T. Dougherty, Beeville).

Typical of the reaction of all on hearing they had drawn opponents was that of Young, who said:

"Political campaigns are sometimes burdensome and always expensive, but they are one of the finest heritages of our American democratic process.

"Political opposition furnishes a wholesome means of examining the problems and re-evaluating the issues confronting our congressional district, our state and our nation. Likewise, the ballot box is an accurate method of testing the thinking of the citizens."

The expense of frequent flights to Texas during the campaign, not to mention the time lost in travel, is an obvious disadvantage. Many times a crucial vote or other duties of their office will keep them here.

An obvious advantage is the fact that as incumbent congressmen they will occasionally figure in the news which presumably will be to their credit.

AROUND THE CAPITAL:

There's frequent good-natured banter between Texans and Alaskans in Congress, and the latest reportedly went like this:

Alaska's Sen. E. L. (Bob Bartlett) was twitting Speaker Sam Rayburn about Texas having been reduced to second rank in size when Rayburn replied:

"If you don't keep quiet, a few Texans will come to your state and throw a cocktail party. When they get through using your ice, you'll be smaller than Rhode Island."

President Harmon Lowman of Sam Houston State Teachers College at Huntsville — which he proudly notes is the only state teachers college which still has "teachers" in its name, has had talks here with the Atomic Energy Commission.

He wants an AEC grant to set up a nuclear physics laboratory at the school which will provide a year's advance atomic studies for science teachers who already have bachelor degrees. Interested AEC officials said their answer would depend on what's in a forthcoming appropriation bill.

State Sen. Dorsey B. Hardeman of San Angelo wasn't upset by losing all his luggage.

Arriving here by plane from Dallas, he found his bags were left behind, or perhaps had been placed on another plane leaving Love Field about the same time for Los Angeles. He took a taxi to Rep. Clark Fisher's office.

"Well, I've seen the time when I had fewer clothes than I've got on right now," he told Fisher with a grin. "Anyway, maybe my luggage will get a trip to California free. I've never been out there myself."

Hardeman was here with others backing the proposed Amistad Dam on the Rio Grande near Del Rio. That's the project long known as Diablo Dam—after Devil's River which empties into the Rio Grande. President Eisenhower and Mexican President Lopez Mateos, in jointly endorsing the project, officially renamed it Amistad—Spanish for friendship.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

The third of the "American Creed" stamps will feature the statement by Thomas Jefferson, "I have sworn... Hostility against every form of TYRANNY over the mind of man."

It will be first placed on sale May 18 at Charlottesville, Va. The dedicatory ceremonies will be held in Jefferson's home, Monticello, that day and will be sponsored by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

This new stamp will closely follow the others in the set as far as design is concerned. In the center to the left of the statement will be a hand holding aloft a flaming torch. Below, to the right will be the signature of the third President.

The first of the "credo" stamps, honoring George Washington, was released Jan. 29. The second, honoring Benjamin Franklin's counsel, will be issued March 23 at Philadelphia.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 4-cent Jefferson stamp may send their addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Charlottesville, Va., prior to May 18.

In a housecleaning move, the U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing has cancelled 359 stamp printing plates during October. Some of these plates saw very small printings and it is certain some plate number blocks will be eagerly sought by collectors. Plates include commemorative issues of 1956, 1957 and 1958 (starting with the 3-cent Pure Food and Drug commemorative and concluding with the 3-cent International Geophysical Year issue.

Poland reports that it plans to issue a "Famous Scientists of the World" set. Depicted on the stamps will be portraits of these famous men of science: Charles Darwin, Dimitri Mendeleev, Albert Einstein, Louis Pasteur, Isaac Newton and Nicolaus Copernicus.

The Philatelic Magazine in London reports that Bulgaria has issued a 1-leva blue and pink stamp honoring the meeting between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev. It features a jet plane and the Statue of Liberty.

Hearings Slated

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP)—The first of four hearings on the Brazos River Watershed will be held at the Freeport Community House March 4 at 10 a.m. before the federal commission studying water needs of the state.

Side-Tracked

This train of trucks is a portion of more than 75 truckers who were stalled at the Triangle Truck Port on Highway 6 in Davenport, Ia., by a 12-inch snow that paralyzed traffic. When restaurant workers were unable to reach the Truck Port for work, some of the truckers pitched in and poured coffee, waited on tables and washed dishes. Because only 18 cots were available, most of the truckers were forced to sleep in their cabs.

Texans, Mexicans Prepare Fiesta

LAREDO (AP) — Residents of Texas and Mexico are getting set for another giant hands-across-the-border celebration of George Washington's Birthday Feb. 18-22. Although far removed from this country's colonial cradle, it's a gay event started in 1897. It draws thousands of visitors to this border area each year.

Annually it has been a time for political, military, financial and social leaders of Texas to gather with like leaders from Mexico on the banks of the Rio Grande and pay tribute to the North American exponent of freedom.

Elmore Borchers, president of the Washington Birthday Celebration Assn., and Mrs. Chester Wine, president of the Society of Martha Washington, have posted a full schedule of events. It's described as an exciting and exotic combination of the romantic Latin lands and colonial days of North America.

Activities start Friday, Feb. 19, with continuous band concerts in the plazas, strolling mariaches on the streets and in stores to welcome guests.

In the evening there will be a buffet supper in the Officers' Club at Laredo Air Force Base, followed by the annual Colonial Ball. Here the Society of Marthas presents debutantes of the two Laredos, and representatives of debutantes in surrounding cities, to the border's social set.

Saturday will be a day of international fellowship. Federal, state, county and city officials of both countries will exchange greetings at 9 a.m. on the international bridge joining the two countries.

Among those taking part will be Robert Hill, U.S. ambassador to Mexico; Manuel Tello, minister of foreign affairs for Mexico; Gov. Price Daniel of Texas; and governors of five states in Mexico.

Visiting dignitaries will lead a parade through the downtown streets of Laredo. In addition to lavish floats, beautiful girls in colonial costumes, bands and school children performing native dances, the procession will include soldiers of two countries.

Every branch of the U.S. military is to be represented along with marching troops from Mexico. They perform intricate drills, carry the colors and drive armored equipment—a joint display unlikely elsewhere in the world today.

San Augustin Plaza, where Laredo was founded in 1753, will be turned into a Mexican village and the streets around it cleared for dancing until midnight Saturday.

In a Laredo Air Force Base hangar stars of TV, radio and the movies will present a fast-paced stage review, the annual "Noche Mexicana."

Sunday's formal program will begin at 3 p.m. with an international folk dance festival in Shirley Stadium. A bullfight will begin at 4 p.m. in Nuevo Laredo. Sunday night a two-hour fireworks show will blaze across the border.

Monday brings a "peace fire" by the Girl Scouts of Laredo, who will light it with a log from the international peace fire in Colorado last summer.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Buddy Travis, the HCJC basketball mentor, plans to go to Odessa tonight to scout the Frank Phillips Plainsmen in their West Zone game with Larry McCulloch's OJC Wranglers.

Frank Phillips moves in here tomorrow night for all-important clash with Travis' Hawks.

Travis has done a splendid job with the Hawks in his first year on the job and he wants to climax the season by beating the Plainsmen and winning West Zone championship laurels.

The Hawks haven't been zone champions since 1955. If they should win it all this year, it will be their fifth championship in history.

The Hawks reason they have a score to settle for the Plainsmen tomorrow night. Frank Phillips has been the lone team to inflict a defeat on the locals in zone competition. The Plainsmen won, 74-72, in Borge the night of Jan. 25.

The locals figure that wasn't a fair test. Their five starters averaged only about 15 minutes of playing time each. All five fouled out. The fifth was gone seven minutes before the end of the game.

The game should pack the HCJC gym to the rafters.

Ted Battles reminds his Midland readers that Midland High School is in the market for its ninth coach since 1929.

Average tenure of a coach during that era has been 3.7 years. Cletus Fischer, who resigned the job last week, remained at the helm less than a year.

Cletus had his critics. There are those who landed feet first on the Midland superintendent of schools for insisting that Fischer be named head coach in the first place.

Some of the critics couldn't win with the material he had on hand last year, that he certainly wouldn't be able to stand the pace in future seasons.

Be that as it may, the fellow who moves in to replace him — and there is every indication it will be Harold King, presently an assistant on the Midland staff — will benefit from a fine B team.

There are reports filtering about here that Big Spring's new mentor, Emmett McKenzie, won't "allow a basketball to be blown up" until Nov. 1.

That would be a mistake. Basketball is being emphasized in District 2-AAAA as it never has been before.

Most of the schools start basketball training Sept. 1. If the Steers are penalized two months in the sport, they'll get their ears beat off every time they take the court in conference play.

Vernon Harton, the cage mentor here, has guided the Longhorns to 39 victories in two seasons. Few Class AAAA teams anywhere have done as well. He'll have his hands tied for sure, however, if restrictions are placed on practice.

Paul Anderson, "the strongest man in the world" who is turning to professional boxing, has a 58-inch chest, which is 16 inches larger than Jack Dempsey's. He has a 23 1/2-inch neck, which is 3 1/2 inches larger than Jess Willard's. And he has a 36-inch thigh, which figures out to 13 inches larger than Joe Louis'.

One veteran observer allowed as how an opponent would need an axe to knock Paul down.

Writing in Look magazine, Leonard Koppett of the New York Post suggests these ways to give the game of basketball back to the little men:

1. Run a thin piano wire across the court, at each foul line, at a height of 6 feet 2 inches above the floor.

Tourney Spots Up For Grabs

Cagey On Court

Pictured above are two boys who played outstanding basketball for Big Spring High School the past season. At left is Arlen Bryant, a senior who was regarded as the "sixth regular" on the squad. Arlen didn't score much but he was a fine floor man. At right is Jimmy Haynes, 6-4, who came along fast at the end of the season and who is being counted upon heavily to fill a regular spot in the lineup next season.

'60 Steers Average 60.7 Points In 29 Contests

The 1959-60 Big Spring High School Steers, who closed regular basketball play last week against Odessa, averaged only five points more a game than did the opposition but won 29 of 29 starts.

The Longhorns, who finished a try for second place in District 2-AAAA, averaged 60.7 points a start, compared to 55.7 for the opposition.

They counted a total of 1,742 points to 1,616 for the opposition. They ran up their greatest number of points against Odessa Permian in the Odessa tournament, at which time they won, 78-69.

Abilene succeeded in scoring the greatest number of points against them in any single game, tallying 70 in a contest unrecalled here.

In winning 29 games, they bettered their output in victories by one over the preceding season.

Hank, Matthews In Major Tests On Boxing Front

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Henry Hank, a Detroit middleweight with a good wallop, and Lennox Matthews, a stiff punching Philadelphia lightweight, promise to provide most of the week's boxing action.

Hank, forced to stray out of his weight class to get action, boxes Sixto Rodriguez of Mountain View, Calif., on the Wednesday show at Chicago Stadium. Hank stopped Rodriguez either No. 4 (National Boxing Ass'n.) or No. 5 (Ring) in his last three, the Puerto Rican boxer drew with Von Clay, lost to Mike Holt in Johannesburg, South Africa and whipped Orlando Deltoro.

The Hank-Rodriguez bout will be seen on ABC-TV.

Matthews, a one-round knockout winner over New York's Johnny Busso, Feb. 1, is ranked among the leading lightweights. Ring has him No. 6, the NBA No. 7. The Busso fight was his only 1959 start. Last year he won six of nine, losing to Willie Toward in his last appearance at Madison Square Garden.

Matthews' opponent Friday at the Garden will be Labouari Godih of France by way of Algeria. He took a Feb. 1 fight on short notice as a sub and won over Roger Harvey at the Academy of Music in New York.

able at-large spots in the National Collegiate Championships are open.

Informally, the teams who don't qualify by winning conference championships are battling for only a handful of places with many of them pegged for announcement to tournament places within the next week or so.

The NIT, for instance, is sure to name defending champion St. John's (NY) and streaking St. Bonaventure — perhaps today — as additions to a field that already includes Dayton, Villanova, Detroit, Memphis State and Providence.

It's also next to a clinch that the NIT is holding open two places for runners-up in the Skyline and Missouri Valley conferences, which send their league winners into the NCAA, and probably a spot for either St. Joseph's (Pa.) or La Salle, whichever loses out in the race to represent the Middle Atlantic Conference in the NCAA.

That means that only two or three berths actually are up for grabs.

In the sprawling NCAA field, 14 teams qualify as conference champions or representatives, leaving at-large selections to fill out the field of either 25 or 26 teams. NYU and Miami (Fla.) already have been named, and two other at-large places regularly are filled by the Rocky Mountain Conference winner and the Ivy League champion.

This year, since the Pacific Coast Conference has folded, the new Big Five champion will go into an at-large berth. That just happens to be California, the defending NCAA champion, so another at-large vacancy isn't really a vacancy at all.

What it means is that clubs like Holy Cross, with a 10-game winning streak, DePaul of Chicago, Notre Dame, Marquette, and even clubs like Xavier (Ohio), already are being eyed and a couple of good victories in the next two weeks could make them tournament-bound.

The conference races, which form the bulk of the strong NCAA line-up, have some lively activity coming up — with teams like Ohio State, Georgia Tech, Utah State, Toledo, and Texas A&M facing tough road challenges this week.

Ohio State, the unbeaten Big Ten leader, has four of its last five conference games on the road, starting at second-place Illinois tonight.

Georgia Tech has all four on the road in its bid to hold a one-game Southeastern Conference lead over challengers Auburn and Kentucky, including at Tennessee Tuesday and at Georgia Saturday.

Utah State, leading Utah by a game in the Skyline race, is at Colorado State U. on Friday and at Wyoming Saturday while Utah has home games with Denver Thursday and New Mexico Saturday.

Toledo and Ohio U., tied for the Mid-American Conference lead, have a showdown tonight at Ohio and a showdown tomorrow at U. and Texas A&M with a one-game Southwest Conference tie at Texas Tuesday night and home at Arkansas Saturday.

Cincinnati and Bradley, running one-two in the nation while sharing the Missouri Valley Conference lead, each have one league game this week — Cincinnati at Houston Saturday and Bradley at North Texas State the same night.

Some of tonight's other features put Missouri at Colorado and Kansas State at Iowa State in Big Eight features of a race now a tie between Colorado and K-State; Auburn at Tulane, St. Johns and its eight-game win streak against CCNY, and independents Marquette vs. Xavier at Cincinnati.

Two strokes back at 275 were Little Jerry Barber, Los Angeles, and Frank Stranahan, Crystal River, Fla. Each collected $1,475.

Ken Venturi of San Francisco, who teed off Sunday in a deadlock for first, slipped to a one-over-par 72 and finished at 276.

Doug Ford, one of professional golf's most persistent money winners, came in with an even par 71 to tie Venturi and Don Whit of Borrego Springs, Cal. The trio collected $1,100 each.

Fleck seemed to have the top money of $3,150 in his hip pocket after the 15th hole. He hit a bogey and a four 16th hole, took a bogey and was six under.
