Nixon Blames Candidates For Making Religion Issue

New Man On The Totem Pole

For a time last week it appeared there were some new men on the City Park totem pole. However, they turned out to be painters Charles Fannin, D. D. Johnson and Punch Reucker putting on new colors under the direction of Nat Shick, on the ladder at lower right. Shick carved the pole and gave it to the city nearly a score of years ago.

We hope none of our newer residents will let the natives feed them that line about Thursday night's wind being another gentle zephyr. Even in this country a mile-minute wind is a pretty respectable blow, especially when it goes to ripping off roofing, moving small structures and shattering show windows.

The Air Force announced last week that primary training bases are being closed at the end of this year and that the work will be absorbed by several advanced bases, among them Webb AFB. While this may not mean any great increase in personnel, it does help solidify the role of Webb in the Air Force's scheme of things.

Smart Pigs

WARRENS, Wis. (AP) — When the production of his dairy herd began to drop Ben Nemitz began to look for answers. But he had other problems, 30 recently arrived little pigs.

You'll have a chance to look over the newest in the city's school plants from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. today. Marcy School, on the old San Angelo highway, is having open house after brief ceremonies.

Speaking of new plants, it appears now that the YMCA will get to occupy its new home at 8th and Owens early in May. Work has progressed far enough that dedication and open house ceremonies have been set tentatively for May 15.

While we didn't get to take it in, we are informed that the spring flower show was a lovely success. The quality and variety of flowers grown is a constant course of surprise, and of course this is embellished by the artistry of arrangements.

Korea Opposition Leaders Adamant

SEOUL (AP)—Adamant opposition leaders insisted Sunday on new elections before even considering President Syngman Rhee's plan to yield some of his powers to a new premier.

Despite efforts of Rhee and his backers to find a way out of the crisis, opposition Democrats showed no signs of budging from their demands.

Rhee continued rounds of conferences with men in an out of the government before issuing a statement expected to divorce himself from all party politics.

Rhee also was reported ready to make other concessions to ease the crisis precipitated by last Tuesday's bloody uprisings in Korea's major cities in which at least 125 persons were killed and 777 wounded.

"He will sever his present relations with the Liberal party," said Y. C. Pyun, ex-premier who talked with Rhee Saturday for the second time in two days. "He wants to dissociate himself from the Liberal party."

Thus Rhee would serve as a nonpolitical chief of state with a premier as chief of the government. But skeptical political opponents wondered how much power Rhee would be willing to relinquish.

They wondered whether he would insist on the right of picking the premier and Cabinet or leave that to the National Assembly as in a true cabinet-responsibility system.

Home Minister Hong Chin-ki, who sat in on some of the Rhee conferences, said the government would submit constitutional amendments to the National Assembly soon proposing the cabinet-responsibility setup, discarded in 1954.

Regardless of what the plan finally contains, there was the problem of getting it approved in the chamber where Rhee's Liberals alone are four votes short of the two-thirds margin needed to approve constitutional changes. The chamber has 152 Liberals, 72 opposition Democrats, 7 independents and 2 vacancies.

In resigning as vice president of South Korea, Democratic leader John M. Chang served notice his party will resist the proposed changes without new Assembly elections first.

Pyun told newsmen the President also probably would promise to remove police and civil servants from party politics, thus replying to long-standing criticism that Rhee's Liberals have used police to further all ends.

A key visitor seeing Rhee was Lee Ki-poong, vice president-elect, who has said he plans to resign the office he won as Rhee's running mate in the disputed March 15 election.

Lee, Rhee's top underling in the Liberal party, had been under popular pressure to step down because antigovernment demonstrators blamed him for what they labeled as rigged voting.

Indications were however that rather than yield to popular demands to quit public life, Lee hoped to play a major role in helping Rhee revamp the government.

The board will meet again Monday evening to canvass returns from Saturday's bond assumption and tax rate vote.

Forsan Voters OK Bond, Tax Issues

Forsan County Line Independent School District patrons voted Saturday in favor of maintenance tax and bond assumption proposals.

The vote in favor of a maintenance tax was 57 to 3. The proposal for assumption of indebtedness and of levying a tax for its payment carried by a 55-3 vote.

Voting was done at Elbow and Forsan schools.

CAP HATIEU, Haiti (AP)—The second anchor recovered from Columbus' flagship Santa Maria is being sent to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington by the Haitian government. Edwin A. WISE GUYS, BEWARE — YOU CAN GET STUCK ON STICKUP

By AL CLINE

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Iron bars convinced six college students Saturday that nobody thinks bank robbery is funny — even if it is only simulated and is on "Character Day" when you're supposed to dress up and have fun.

The six — five Santa Rosa Junior College male students and a coed — learned the hard way Friday after authorities booked them on federal bank robbery charges.

Unable to make $5,000 bail each, Pat Marucci, 19, Heraldsburg; Frank Palmieri Jr., 20, Santa Rosa; Alan Sutter, 18, Petaluma; Bob Lindstein, 18, San Leandro; John Cabel, 19, Redwood City; and Frank Priori, 21, Los Gatos, stayed in the Santa Rosa jail.

They're to be transferred Monday to Sacramento for a hearing before a U.S. commissioner.

The six dressed in Roaring '20s style for the school's annual "Character Day." Pat, a brunette song leader, impersonated a flapper. The fellows wore oversized overcoats, derbies and caps and dark glasses.

They had an arsenal of toy guns — submachine gun, sawed-off shotgun, two BB guns and four pistols.

They invited a newspaper photographer to come along when they strolled into the downtown Bank of America branch Friday.

Pat, smoking a cigarette from a long holder, handed a note to a teller demanding change for $1. She got two 50-cent pieces.

A teller, reminded of her experience in a real bank holdup, screamed. A bank official called police.

An FBI agent had to be reassured the toy submachine gun was a plaything.

The photographer filmed the whole thing. Officers confiscated his film.

"Our reaction to their humor is very poor," said Scott O'Leary, bank manager.

"An act of utter stupidity," added college President Randolph Newman.

Brunette Patricia, stunned, asked the jail matron: "How long will I have to serve? When will I get out?"

Annual Art Show At HCJC Today

By BOB SMITH

Visiting painters and animals walked off with the honors at the annual Big Spring art exhibition which opens to the public today.

The show, sponsored by Las Artistas, local chapter of the Texas Fine Arts Association, will have its main showing beginning at 1:30 p.m. today. Nearly 100 early viewers took in the exhibition in Howard County Junior College gymnasium Saturday afternoon, but the big crowd is expected today.

Judging was accomplished Saturday morning by a panel including Anita Brooks, art supervisor of art for Odessa public schools, and Irene Holland and Mildred Wharton of Odessa College, who filled in for J. Brad Bodkins, who was unable to attend.

Marked "best in show" was a pastel by Lois Hogue Shaw of Sweetwater. The painting also won the "best in pastels" classification.

The painting is titled "Transparency," and depicts an arrangement of glass and glasses in a semi-abstract still life.

FROM WIDE AREA The winners were chosen from more than 220 entries, the largest number yet in any Big Spring exhibition. Artists from as far away as Amarillo participated.

There were several distinguished visitors, including Dr. J. B. Smith, head of the art department of Hardin-Simmons University.

Almost equal with the adult section was a special children's division, including many school-age entries that were surprisingly good for their class. Winner of the children's division was Berney Scud-dard of Forsan, with his pastel, "Super Market."

It was apparent from an analysis of the subject matter of winning paintings, either that the judges liked animal portraits or that West Texas painters do their best work with animals. A vast majority of the children winners used animals as subjects.

However, a viewing of all entries will show a wide range both of subject matter and of art mediums. Also, this year's offerings seem to lean away from so-called "modern" art, concentrating on subjects more interesting to citizens, more thoroughly versed in art. More realistic treatment of subjects was noticeable.

WINNERS TO AUSTIN Citation winners go to Austin for state-wide competition at the TFAA's Laguna Gloria exhibition. Mrs. Bill Unger won the "best in watercolor" spot with her "Girl in the Window."

The best oil was "Mountain Road," by Kathleen King of Sweetwater; and the best graphic was "Cedar Chopper," by Mrs. Lee Kenly of Kermit.

Citation winners included: "Ranch," by Mrs. Bismarck Scher; "Grandma's Favorite," pastel by Mrs. Mark Nichols of Sweetwater; "Oil in the Rough," oil by Mrs. Frank Shannon; "Turbulent Water," by Adele Josephson of Snyder; "Pleasant Dreams," oil by Madaen Blair; "Alert Repose," oil by George Womack of Colorado City; "Loud Mouth," oil by Mrs. Frank Murray of Sweetwater; "A Windy Day," oil by Mrs. Nichols; "Railroad Crossing," oil by Avery Faulkner; "Waiting for a Ride," oil by Hazel Georgan; and "Forms in the Night," oil by Eloise Hamm of Grandfalls.

Veep Addresses Editors Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon indicated Saturday he believes the candidates and their backers themselves have made religion an issue in the Democratic presidential campaign.

"Religion will be an issue exactly to the extent that the candidates and those who support them continue to make it an issue," Nixon told the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Much has been made in the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination, especially in the current West Virginia campaigning, over the Roman Catholic affiliation of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Kennedy and his West Virginia opponent, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, have said repeatedly religion should not be an issue. So have the other contenders for the Democratic nomination.

Nixon, in his speech to a luncheon session of the editors, also said there are good reasons to think that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wants an easing of tensions at next month's summit conference in Paris.

HARD FACTS "I think this may be his attitude," the vice president said, "not because he is motivated by what he scorns as sentimental idealism but because, realist that he is, he is concerned by some hard facts of international life."

The same editors two days ago heard Kennedy recite a long list of reasons why he said his Catholicism should not handicap his bid for the presidency. And Humphrey told them he doesn't want to be nominated by anti-Catholic votes and would rather not be president than see his party split over the issue. Humphrey is a Congregationalist.

Nixon, a Quaker, is without opposition for the Republican nomination.

"There is only one way that I can visualize religion being a legitimate issue in an American political campaign," he said. "That would be if one of the candidates for the presidency had no religious belief."

"While the candidates in this campaign have differences on other issues, they are all men who recognize and cherish both in their personal and public lives the religious and moral principles which are the very foundation of our American ideals."

NO EXCUSE "As far as I am concerned, this fact removes any excuse for continued discussion of a so-called religious issue in this campaign."

Turning to the Big Four summit meeting, Nixon said the Western Powers can anticipate it with full confidence that their leaders, rather than Khrushchev, represent the tide of history.

He said the West should look on the talks "as a chance to champion and achieve some affirmative fundamental objectives."

He said the conference provides an opportunity to make at least a beginning on practical arms control, and to take the heat out of the Berlin crisis, "laying the groundwork for negotiations which would lead to a formal and definitive solution of that problem."

Nixon said Khrushchev, in dealing with the Western leaders, is certain to be influenced by "the diabolical enmity of nuclear weapons" and by a desire not to risk destruction of progress which communism has made in the Soviet Union.

CONFIDENT OF FUTURE "It is because the hard facts of international life are on the side of peace and disarmament," Nixon continued, "that I believe that we can look to this conference and to the future, not with starry-eyed complacency but with justifiable confidence that responsible world leaders will slowly but inevitably develop more effective methods for settling differences between nations without war."

Before he spoke, Nixon received a unanimous vote from a group of the editors as the probable GOP presidential candidate. An informal poll taken at a breakfast also voted overwhelmingly that Adlai E. Stevenson would again be the Democratic nominee.

Asked which party they expect to win the White House, the editors favored the Republicans, 45-42.

Turner Catledge, managing editor of the New York Times, was elected president of the society to succeed J. R. Wiggins, executive editor of the Washington Post.

Felix R. McKnight, executive editor of the Dallas Times Herald, was chosen first vice president, putting him in line to become president next year under the society's custom.

Navy Facing Vista Of No More Carriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy may be facing the possibility that no more aircraft carriers ever will be built.

This was pointed up Saturday by reports that the latest effort to win congressional approval for a super-size flattop is running into trouble in the powerful House Appropriations Committee.

The subcommittee handling defense funds is expected to vote next week on the request for money to start work on a conventionally powered large carrier, capable of handling the heavy attack and interceptor jet planes now coming into use.

The Navy originally planned this ship as another atomic-powered carrier, like the now-building Enterprise. But, anxious to build a ship to replace one of the older carriers still in the active fleet, the Navy agreed to settle for conventional power at a cost of about 250 million dollars compared with 423 million dollars for nuclear power.

The Navy started out several years ago on a program to provide one new carrier a year. For two years, Congress has declined to provide carrier funds while urging a step-up in the Polaris submarine program. Questions have been raised by some Congress members about the need for carriers in the new missile and nuclear submarine era.

The Navy's contention is that carrier-based aviation is a prime requisite for a limited war, in addition to the carrier's role in all-out conflict. Carrier aircraft are essential for the support of ground troops in police action or limited war in areas beyond the easy reach of land-based tactical aircraft, the Navy says.

Brothers Survive Jet Collision

HONOLULU (AP)—Two brothers collided in jet planes 35,000 feet above Hawaii Saturday. Both escaped injury and landed their planes safely.

L. Richie K. Kunitchika of the Hawaii Air National Guard piloted an F86. Air Force Capt. Paul M. Kunitchika of Hickam AFB flew a T33 jet trainer, simulating an intruder in an air guard defense exercise.

The T33's vertical stabilizer and the afterburner section of the F86 were damaged slightly. The brothers live in Honolulu.

Castro's Latest Assault On U. S. Leaders Kills Hopes For Cuban-American Relations

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro's latest television pronouncements appeared Saturday to have wiped away any remaining hopes that critical Cuban-American differences can be settled.

Instead, Castro made the United States, its president and its secretary of state targets of new scorn that set the pattern for a fresh wave of criticism and demonstration.

Castro accused President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter of a "premeditated plan" to support an insurrection for the revolution.

Castro's tirade against the United States came at a time when swelling dissatisfaction with his policies and promises is apparent in many areas of Cuba.

He played heavily on the danger of an armed attack—obviously, in his view, from the United States—and called for support "from the people for whom this revolution was made."

The effect of Castro's continuing attacks on the United States is apparent in the number of American residents leaving Cuba. U.S. Embassy officials estimate that 10,000 American citizens lived here when Castro's forces took over the government in 1959. This number now is down to 6,500. Half of them are expected to leave after their children finish the school term in June.

Castro scoffed at reports of insurgent action against his own regime and called his pursuit of ex-Capt. Manuel Beston and his band in the Sierra Maestra "a police action."

ever, that active opposition to Castro's way of doing things is more widespread than he admits.

A Cuban businessman returning from a trip to Oriente Province reported seven freight trucks burned out on the highway near Manillo. Similar incidents have been reported on the central highway linking Havana with the provinces.

Officials have repeatedly insisted that the trucks were destroyed by accidents or fires caused by overheating.

"It looks like we are rapidly returning to conditions as they existed two years ago," said one American businessman who has watched several Cuban revolutions develop and burn out.

"I don't know," he continued, "how much real opposition Fidel Castro has. But it's definitely growing, although most of his opponents fear to express their opinions publicly just as the critics of (former President Fulgencio) Batista were silent."

New VA Chief

V. J. Belda, currently at the VA Hospital in San Francisco, will be here May 1 to assume his duties as manager of the VA Hospital in Big Spring. He will succeed Dr. Jackson Friedlander, who was assigned last month to Phoenix, Ariz. Mrs. Belda and her daughters, Diane, 15, and Bonnie, 14, will join him about the middle of June.

Disposal Plant Designed To Handle Half Of Load

By GLENN COOTES
"Your disposal plant was designed to handle only half of what it is now processing."
With this statement, Carl Simcik pointed to the urgent problem of doing something about the city's sewage disposal plant. He is engineer for the master plan firm of Forrest and Cotton.

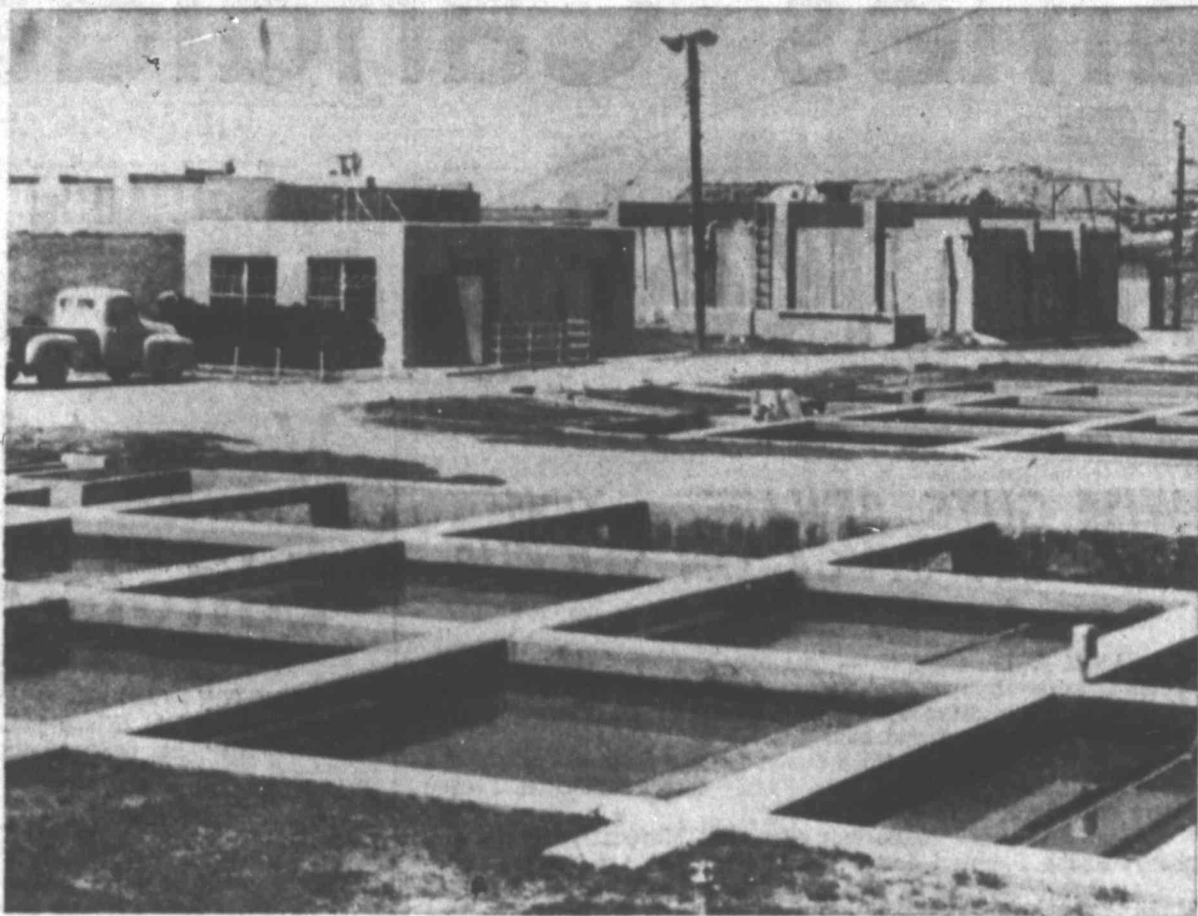

The Big Spring sewage disposal plant was originally built in 1930. In 1943, the process was changed and the plant enlarged to handle 1.4 million gallons per day. The present plant was constructed in 1952 with a bond issue of $187,000.

When work was completed during the last remodeling, the plant would handle 1.8 million gallons of raw sewage per day and give primary treatment to an additional 600,000 gallons per day. A. K. Steinheimer, city manager, reports that the plant was overloaded almost at the time it was opened.

TWICE AS MUCH
At present, the plant is handling about 2 1/2 million gallons of raw sewage per day, an overload of almost a million gallons per day. As a result, the city manager explains, sewage cannot be given adequate treatment.

Raw sewage enters the disposal plant through one large collector trunk pipe (out-fall line). A bar screen, which does not operate properly, is designed to filter out large objects such as sticks and rocks. This screen should keep these objects from damaging other equipment in the plant.

PROCESS STEPS
The sewage then flows to a settling basin where rocks and other grit are trapped in a grit remover. Then, it is channeled to one of

This view of the sewage disposal plant includes the primary settlement basins in the foreground, the laboratory in the center and the two huge digesters in the background. Hopefully overloaded two primary settling basins. The raw sewage is given an average of four hours in the primary settlement basin.

Thorny Problem

ed and needing repairs, the disposal plant will probably be moved for the plant is a thorny problem in master planning.

Most of the solids settle and floaters. The remaining liquids flow to the aeration tanks where they stay over two hours. Air is pumped through the liquids to reduce the bacteria count.

From here the liquids move on to the secondary settlement basin, where the remainder of the solids settle out. The effluent is discharged into Beal's Creek, a tributary of the Colorado River.

The solids, which were transferred to the digesters, stay in the huge tanks about three weeks. These solids decompose and are pumped out to one of many sand drying beds. The sun dries out the material which can be used as fertilizer.

The huge digesters give off a gas from the accumulated sludge which accounts for the bad odor from the plant. Bruce Dunn, director of public works, points out that the gas could be burned, if the plant were so equipped. This would reduce the odor coming from the plant.

There are two pump houses in the disposal plant, each housing three motors and pumps. These are used in aerating the liquids. Only three pumps are operational, the others have fallen into disuse to escape costly repairs.

STAFF
Jones Lamar is superintendent of the disposal plant. He has a Class B operator's certificate for water and sewer plant operation. M. C. Cervantes, J. P. Franco and C. M. Nunez are the other three operators and each hold Class C certificates. The operators work seven days per week.

Sewer Plant Cost Factor Weighed

How much is Big Spring willing to pay for an enlarged and more efficient sewage disposal system?

This is a question currently receiving considerable study and attention at city hall. The city's master planners, the city commission and the master plan steering committee have been discussing this problem for several months.

Representatives of Forrest and Cotton were in the city Thursday discussing preliminary plans for extending and improving water and sewer service. They presented a "dollar and cents" proposal for city commission consideration. This program, when the commission gives it the final nod, will probably be the launching step for putting the Master Plan into operation.

MONEY AND NEED

Money as balanced against need will largely determine what is to be done. Last fall, the city commission promised early attention to a pressing need for sewer service in several newly annexed areas, particularly the areas along West U.S. 89 and in the additions west of Watson Road.

These residents have requested on many occasions that the city furnish sewer service to their areas. In each instance, the commission has pointed to the work of the master planners, promising that an early bond issue would be proposed for building major trunk lines.

The master plan steering committed was told recently that an estimated 2 1/2 million dollars could be spent in expanding sewer lines and modernizing the disposal plant. Carl Shimcik, of Forrest and Cotton, exhibited a large map of the city with proposed sewer line extensions indicated. These lines consider an extensive growth for Big Spring and would serve more than 80,000 population.

QUESTION OF PLANT
The larger question concerns the sewage disposal plant. The first decision will be regarding the disposal plant's location. At present, it is on the east side of Marcy Drive, adjacent to the city dumping grounds. Marvin Springer, city planner, has said that these two facilities form a natural barrier to further residential development in the area.

However, builders continue to erect homes less than a half mile away. The steering committee discussed the possibility of moving the disposal plant farther away from the city, down Beal's Creek. Shimcik pointed out that there are two considerations for improving the plant.

One, remodel and add to the plant at the present site; the other, abandon the present site and build an entirely new plant at a new location. Preliminary estimates peg the cost at several hundred thousand dollars more to begin at a new location. But the present plant is hopelessly overloaded and much of its equipment is beyond repair.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Urges Trade At Home

To the Editor:

Ever since my children came home with a request to have their pictures taken in school, I have been wondering why an out of town photographer is given the exclusive franchise to take pictures in the Big Spring schools. I'm sure there is a reason, but it doesn't look right to me to give business to out of town people when we have photographers in Big Spring. I resent my business being solicited under pressure by an out of town concern.

Of course, we are all free Americans and practice free enterprise, but it doesn't seem cricket to tax our local business people, ask them to buy the calves our children raise, solicit them to support our scouts and YMCA, put the heat on them to buy an advertisement in the school publications, and then turn around and award the captive business to out of town people.

As long as Big Spring business people are providing my children an education, I plan to support them.

Sincerely,
G. W. Birrell

To the Editor:

Some people in the Northern states are under the impression that the Negro people want to abolish segregation and that it is the colored people who are pushing for integration.

After interviewing people of both the black and white race in 20 states, we can truthfully say that approximately 90 per cent of the colored people throughout the South want separate schools for their children.

Why shouldn't they? Most people like to be with their own kind. We see Negro schools which appear equal, and in many cities the Negro schools were better than those for Whites.

The two races have been living in harmony in the South for a long time, and they understand. Clever Communist organizers from New York have been agitating young Negroes in the South, using false promises, just as they did with the Hungarian workmen, to secure their support. I now state that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is positively a Communist-dominated, agitating group which has never had a Negro as head of the organization since.

Martin Chamber Has New Record

STANTON — The Martin County Chamber of Commerce has set a new record for membership and now has a total of 238 members. The number has much more than doubled since June of 1958 when M. H. McReynolds took over the job as acting secretary. The rolls carried about 90 names then, and delinquent dues were a common thing.

During the first half of April the organization put on a membership drive which has netted 12 new members. McReynolds says the chamber is the only one west of Stephenville which has not gone up on dues the last three years.

Membership fees at present are $12.00 for individuals and $25.00 minimum for business owners. This is much lower than most West Texas cities, because such towns as Andrews, Kermit, Seminole and Midland charge $36, for individuals and $60, for business owners.

McReynolds was not a trained secretary. He was and still is in real estate business, but agreed to take over the job until the directors could find some young man experienced in the work. After a few months they ceased to look and gave him the job.

For quite awhile the secretary's office was staffed by McReynolds alone, but in March of this year Miss Barbara Smith was employed to work part-time. She attends morning classes at Howard County Junior College and works in the Chamber of Commerce office in the afternoons.

Presidio Woman 'Mother Of Year'

ABILENE (AP)— Mrs. Manuel Franco, mother of eight, has been named "Mother of the Year" by the American Mothers' Committee, Inc.

She is a resident of Presidio. Mrs. Franco, whose husband is a farmer, completed only the seventh grade. Later she received a teaching certificate, taught 20 years, and now is working on her masters degree.

All eight of her children either graduated from college or are attending college. All of those graduates are teaching.

She will compete for the national title May 2-5 in New York.

Examination Time

A special check of The Herald's net paid circulation has just been completed by M. S. (Steve) Colleton, (pictured at right, with Herald Circulation Manager Jack Kimble). Colleton is a field auditor for the Audit Bureau of Circulation, an independent concern which checks and certifies the paid circulation of major publications through the country. Colleton's findings go to the Chicago office for final auditing, and then a certified circulation figure for The Herald will be released. It is expected to be the highest ever. Colleton spent two days in an exacting examination of all the Herald's circulation records and payments.

Building Rate Cools Business

Warm weather has come to town, but business activity remains at the same temperature, which is not exceedingly hot. Though some owners report a nice week, the soft spot is still in commercial building. A check with contractors revealed that few new structures had been started, though several are being completed.

Church Basement

One new project now under way is an addition to the Birdwell Lane Church of Christ. The church is digging a basement on the west side of the main building, and on top of the basement will build 10 new class rooms. The basement will also be used to take care of the overflow and will eventually have adjustable partitions for extra class rooms.

Glen Keating, who is supervising the work for the church, says the new rooms will be ready for occupancy in about 45 days. Pastor of the church is the Reverend Louis Garnett.

Planting Mood

Warm weather has put farmers in a mood for cotton-planting, but the soil is too dry in much of the county. There is some bottom moisture, but a good rain is needed. A few farmers who had started planting earlier are now waiting for a rain.

Irrigation farmers are going ahead, but have been forced to irrigate in order to get planting moisture. Planting in the irrigated sections of Martin County and in the St. Lawrence community of Glasscock County has been in full swing this past week.

No Cotton Lab

After several false starts the city of Stanton finally abandoned all plans to build a cotton classifying office and laboratory.

Main reason for this decision is a new invention which may someday do away with present classing methods. A new device which takes a picture of each cotton sample is being perfected. The agricultural committee of the Martin County Chamber of Commerce decided it would be unwise to go in debt for something which might be used only a short time.

Station Is Ready

Tarbox - Gossett will probably open their new Cosden Service Station on West Highway 80 this coming week. Ralph Gossett says everything is ready except the electricity. Texas Electric is having to bring in a heavier line of wire, and this will take several more days.

On the same land owned by the company will be located the Cactus Parts Company, which is a subsidiary of the main company. Manager of the service station will be Joe Martinez, who has been with Tarbox-Gossett for several years.

Falcons Down

Incidentally, Gossett says the Falcon sales have slowed down a bit. For awhile the Falcon was the hottest thing on the market and led all brands in sales. This might still be true; however, no recent figures have been released on national sales.

"Production is catching up with sales," said Gossett. "At first the Falcons were taking the business

Junior Historian Awards Presented

AUSTIN (AP)—Young specialists in Texas history and its writing were awarded $350 in prizes Saturday in the annual junior historian contest.

Lester Waggoner memorial awards went to Frances Preston, Boling High School, $100 first prize, Ginger Jones, Edinburg High School, $30 third prize; and Billy Green, San Angelo High School, $25 fourth prize. Honorable mention awards of $10 each went to Betty Bingham, San Angelo and John Broussard, Bishop Byrne High School, Port Arthur.

Cross-Country Road To Be Talked

AUSTIN (AP)—Completion of another east-west national highway system across Texas will be discussed at the Tuesday meeting of the Highway Commission. Robert Walker, manager of the Levelland Chamber of Commerce, will head a delegation to request extension of U.S. 82 from Lubbock westerly into New Mexico. State Highways 116 and 125 run due west from Lubbock to New Mexico. East of Lubbock U.S. 82 runs through Seymour, Wichita Falls, Gainesville, Sherman, Paris, Texas and into Louisiana.

Proxmire Lashes Lyndon, Slowness In Soviet Race

HOUSTON (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) said Saturday night Congress is likely to do "shamefully little" toward meeting the Soviet challenge in education and research, which he called the keys to the future.

In a speech to the state convention of the Texas Young Democrats, Proxmire renewed his criticism of the Senate leadership of Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.).

"Unless this overwhelmingly Democratic 86th Congress vastly steps up its passage of significant legislation in the closing 10 weeks before adjournment," Proxmire said, "Sen. Lyndon Johnson will have failed as the Senate majority leader."

"The Congress has pussyfooted forward with a pitifully inadequate civil rights bill. We have yet to make the effort on minimum wage, tax reform, health legislation."

Proxmire conceded that Congress historically has written much of its record in the closing weeks and even days of a session.

"If such a record is achieved this year," he said, "the nation as well as the Democratic party will have to take its hat off to the majority leader of the Senate. The next 10 weeks will tell."

Leading Clothing Manufacturer Recommends SANITONE Dry Cleaning

For the first time in dry cleaning history a major clothing manufacturer recommends a specific dry cleaning process for their garments.

All Weather suits, tailored by Handmacher-Vogel, Inc., world's largest maker of suits, will carry string tags, recommending that the suit be Sanitone Dry Cleaned "to keep the original shape, texture and freshness of the suit."

Mr. Handmacher, company president, said that he decided to use the tags "only after exhaustive tests proved to my complete satisfaction that the Sanitone Process did these things."

Our SANITONE dry cleaning keeps you looking wonderful all the time

Our Sanitone Soft-Set® Dry Cleaning does more than get garments thoroughly clean. It actually restores the original look and feel to the fabric. Colors glow. Patterns sparkle. And your clothes always come back as soft and fresh as the day you bought them.

We invite you to compare our Sanitone Service with any other dry cleaning to prove that you can really see and feel the difference.

Picnic On Dump Heap Cited Possibility Here Some Day

By GLENN COOTES

Would you take your children on a Sunday picnic to the city dump? Or build a home right on the peak of garbage mountain?

There is a good chance that future Big Springers will do both. This has happened in the past.

Marvin Springer, the city's consultant working on the master plan, has told the city commission that the sewage disposal plant and the city dump constitute a natural barrier to further eastward growth of the city. So there has been some discussion on moving the disposal plant farther down Beal's Creek.

If the disposal plant were moved, the city dump may also be moved. At any rate, it can be used on its present site a few more years.

It is estimated that the present dump grounds will be filled in about five years. Will a park be built on the present dump site? Or a subdivision? It has happened in Big Spring once before.

The first Big Spring garbage dump was located in the Circle Drive and Sixth Street areas. It was an open dump and was first used around 1920.

By 1938, the city had expanded and forced moving the dump farther out. Originally, the present dump was considered so far out that workmen carried their lunches with them in the mornings.

In 1938, city officials picked the site as adequate and far enough out so it would never be moved again. It was considered large enough to handle dumping needs indefinitely.

H. V. "Skeet" Foresyth, city sanitarian superintendent, estimates that the city will again be looking for a dump ground in five years when the present site is completely filled. He said the city trucks dump about 2,100 garbage cans—or 300 cubic yards—every day on the grounds.

Bruce Dunn, director of public works, has suggested that a sanitary fill be started at the dump when it is filled, to reclaim the land. He points to the previous site, which was successfully reclaimed, as an example. The former site is now one of the city's better subdivisions.

He said the present dump could be used for buildings or a park. It has highway frontage and might be suitable for industrial usage. He explained there are 25 foot fills on the grounds and a park area would be more suitable for the site. The fills rule out deep foundations.

Dunn explained that the dump grounds have probably the highest elevation, excluding Scenic Mountain and South Mountain, in the immediate area. It is ideally located for a park area, he said enthusiastically.

GARDEN TALK

You Can Have Grass By Trees, But Plant Vinca

A Mr. King wants to know how he can grow grass under his shade trees. Out here where the sun shines most of the time, we still need nearly full sun for best results with our main lawn grass, Bermuda. There are a lot of different shade trees, but the most common is the Chinese elm, and it is well known as a vigorous feeder. Its roots get under foundations, walks, and into the plumbing, and so it also competes with lawn grasses for available sun, moisture, and nutrients in the soil.

Better yet, plant a ground cover under the trees. We find vinca to be a wonderful plant for under our trees. It competes with any roots, and shading does not hurt it. It blooms beautifully in the spring, and is evergreen. What more could you hope for under any tree? Probably the best part of all is that you don't have to mow it either.

Vinca ground cover plants under trees make a dark green patch in your landscape, and it always seems to be a bit greener, and cooler wherever this type of planting is done. There are other ground covers that can be used, but this one is my personal favorite.

Write your garden questions to me in care of this paper.

Marcy School Has Open House Today

Big Spring citizens are invited to inspect the city's newest elementary school Sunday afternoon.

Marcy School, located on the old San Angelo highway, is to have an open house from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sponsored by the school officials and by the Marcy P-TA, the open house will give the public its first opportunity to inspect this addition to the school system of the city.

Marcy School, constructed in part with federal funds, was primarily designed to serve the boys and girls of Webb AFB personnel living in Webb Village. Webb Village is near the school. However, the development of other additions in the area made it imperative that the facilities be enlarged to accommodate other youngsters. City school money was put with federal funds and an additional wing of classrooms was made possible.

Floyd Parsons, superintendent of the schools, said that the Goliad Junior High School band will open the program at Marcy with a concert at 3 p.m.

Clyde McMahon, president of the school board, will speak briefly at exercises planned inside the building. He will formally present it to the community. Col. D. W. Eisenhart, commander of Webb Air Force Base, is to respond to the presentation.

Marcy P-TA will conduct a silver tea as a part of the afternoon's program.

Visitors will be given opportunity to inspect classrooms, the cafeteria, and all other of the school's facilities.

The school board expressed the hope that many citizens will make a special effort to familiarize themselves with the school on this occasion.

Hundreds Miss Tags Deadline

Through April 15, the Howard County Tax Assessor's office had issued plates for 17,354 motor vehicles of all types. First week after the expiration of the time to acquire 1960 plates, 300 were issued; last week, there were nearly 200 sold.

This week, according to the records, about as many motorists were applying for plates as did the second week of the month.

Most of the applicants are making affidavits that they have not operated their cars since the deadline.

Park Site?

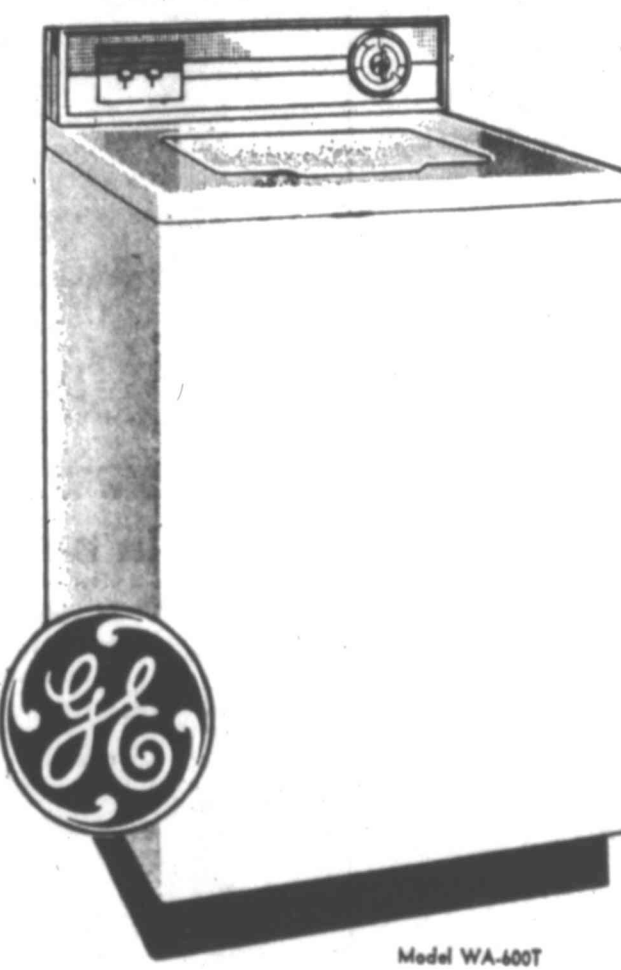

Estimates are that the present city dump, shown above, will be filled in five more years. Picked in 1938 as a site to last for all time, it is nearing capacity. Located at the juncture of Interstate 20 and Marcy Drive (FM 700), it is considered a barrier to city expansion to the east.

Chrane Chairman Of Posture Week

Dr. William T. Chrane has been named by the Texas Chiropractic Society to be the county chairman for Correct Posture Week, May 1-7.

Mechanical developments in recent years such as the TV, power steering, power mowers, etc. have lulled the public into "over-relaxing," said Dr. Chrane. Bad posture has been made easy with the result that it can adversely affect health.

During Correct Posture Week, rules of good posture will be stressed as they have for the past 10 years under the sponsorship of Texas chiropractors.

Gambling, Sex Swamping Local Police, Official Says

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a lurid tale of gambling and sex bubbling under the rural, suburban atmosphere of Long Island's Suffolk County.

Local police fighting to keep back professional big-city mobsters. Small-time bettors wined and dined to increase their wagers. And some respectable housewives turning to prostitution in the afternoon to pay off their bookies.

This was the picture Suffolk Police Commissioner Charles R. Thom painted for the State Investigation Commission Friday.

"Even otherwise respectable housewives have been led into unfortunate practices, and all the usual evils financed by gambling operations are ready to burst full grown into suburban and rural Suffolk County," he declared.

He told the commission's open hearing that outside syndicates had swarmed into the county in the last two years, forcing the local bookies to work for them and subjecting them to a racketeer board of mediation to settle disputes.

Thom admitted that his county-wide police department, consolidated last January, is unable to cope with "the professional mob from the metropolitan area and New Jersey."

State Hospital To Open Its Doors For Mental Health Week

Mental Health Week, starting next Sunday, will be highlighted by a series of programs at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Visitors will be encouraged to come all week, and there will be a series of special programs each day of the week.

Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent, is anxious that as many as possible visit the hospital to see first hand the work that is being done to restore patients to useful lives. At the hospital the regular morning church services under Chaplain Marvin Berkeland will be the first order on the week-long program. The same afternoon at 2 o'clock Dr. Harrison will give a brief lecture and demonstration, followed by a tour of the hospital at 2:45.

Monday (May 2) has been set aside as church day for ministers, laymen and ladies of the churches. Berkeland will discuss the role of the chaplain in a mental hospital at the 2 p.m. gatherings.

Tuesday (May 3) has been designated as Coahoma and Stanton day. At the 2 p.m. start, Charles Rich psychologist, is to explain the role of a psychologist in a mental hospital. Wednesday will be service club day, and the Big Spring Rotary, Downtown and Evening Lions, Kiwanis, American Business, Jaycees and Opticist Clubs have been invited to a joint luncheon meeting in the ward

W. A. Howard Dies In Stanton

STANTON — William Amos Howard, 90, died here Friday at the Physicians Hospital in Stanton after a brief illness.

Mr. Howard, a retired farmer, was born in Palmersville, Tenn. Nov. 20, 1869. He moved to Dallas in 1902 and then Jones County in 1906. In 1928 he established a home in Martin County.

He was married to Miss Almada Henderson in Palmersville in 1894. Survivors include his wife; four sons, C. L. Howard, Courtney, H. R. Howard, Tarzan, I. J. Howard, Midland, and Pat N. Howard, Winton, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. Tatt Lindsey, Stanton, and Mrs. J. W. Massey, Midland. He also leaves 31 grandchildren and 67 great-grandchildren. Grandsons will be pallbearers.

Services will be conducted at the Church of Christ in Stanton with Elmore Johnson, minister, officiating at 10 a.m. Monday. Burial will be in the Evergreen Cemetery under the direction of Arrington Funeral Home.

Afrikaaner Urges Ban On Marriage

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The Nationalist party's Sen. W. He contended: "Children from mixed marriages between blacks and coloreds absorb the weaker characteristics of both races (and) are virtually criminals at birth."

Damages Claimed As Result Of Hiway Mishap

L. E. Pierce, whose home is in Odessa, has filed a suit for $155,000 damages against A. A. Johnson, doing business as the A. A. Johnson Motor Co., and James Bryant. The suit was filed Friday in 118th District Court. Johnson lives in Mississippi.

Pierce relates that on Feb. 21, 1960, he was a passenger in a car traveling on U. S. 80, two miles west of Big Spring. He claims that this vehicle was struck from the rear by a truck, owned by Johnson and driven by Bryant, an employee. He claims he was injured in the accident and asks $155,000 to compensate him.

Taxes To Be Most Important Issue In Governor Election

By DAVE CHEAVENS
 Associated Press Staff Writer
 Taxes and especially the sales tax will be the paramount issue when Texas Democrats nominate a governor in the primary May 7 just two weeks hence. The people just cannot afford a sales tax, he added, because 90 per cent spend all they make in order to live. Kentucky's new sales tax "is already threatening to stifle industrial expansion," Daniel said.

Daniel was in Beaumont Saturday to attend the Neches River festival. He said there was no one confident that the state would win its first court test of the open beach bill, but that he would put on "another titelands battle to protect state ownership" if it is necessary.

ACTION CRITICIZED
 Daniel's action in naming a commission to study the state's tax problem was criticized by Rep. Johnson in his letter.

Calling the tax study group a "star chamber committee," Johnson said he had no quarrel with the individuals, but that he questioned "whether a man or a group of men, regardless of how experienced they may be, can collect, collate and study the tax data and solve our problems between now and the meeting of the next Legislature."

In the race for attorney general, House Speaker Waggoner, Carr campaigned Saturday in Pampa. He planned to attend the gridiron dinner in Lubbock, his home town, Saturday night.

The incumbent, Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, was honored at a barbecue near Hearne Saturday, and planned to address the State Young Democrat convention in Houston Sunday. He will work in East Texas next week.

These are the schedules of candidates for the next-to-last week of the campaign:

Daniel—Sunday, McAllen, for dedication of a new civic center. Monday, television talk and campaigning throughout Lower Rio Grande Valley. Tuesday, Corpus Christi.

Cox—Monday, Baytown, Freeport, Galveston, Texas City, Tuesday, Liberty, Beaumont, Fort Arthur, Orange, Wednesday, Dallas and Fort Worth. Thursday, Marshall, Longview, Kilgore, Tyler.

Wilson—Sunday, Houston and Galveston. Monday Austin and Lockhart. Tuesday, Dallas. Wednesday, Beaumont tentatively, Austin, Thursday, Wichita Falls, Colorado City, Friday, Amarillo, Saturday, Houston.

Carr—Sunday, American Legion convention, Dallas. Monday, College Station. Tuesday, Tyler and vicinity. Wednesday, Jasper and nearby. Thursday, Victoria, Corpus Christi, Alice, Friday and Saturday, Harlingen.

Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey—Tuesday, Amarillo. Wednesday, Lubbock. Thursday, Odessa - Midland. Friday, Fort Worth.

Texas Warm, Windy, Humid

By The Associated Press
 Texas was warm, windy and humid Saturday. A similar day was in store for Sunday.

A Pacific front was moving into West Texas, bringing with it a chance of scattered thunderstorms with much-needed moisture. Skies above Texas were alive with clouds, laden with Gulf moisture.

The invasion of the Pacific air was expected to have little effect on temperatures, which usually were in the high 70s or 80s Saturday afternoon.

The Weather Bureau said some showers might fall Saturday night, mainly in West Texas and that moisture should increase Sunday. Every section of the state, except the Lower Rio Grande Valley and some of the coastal plains, urgently need rain. Stock water was running low at an increasing number of points.

Pageant Helpers Listing Completed

Sgt. Dewey Magee, director of the recent Easter pageant, listed today several people and groups who were not credited for their help in the printed program.

Included were Joe F. Knapp, construction inspector at Webb AFB who furnished a horse and rode it as a Roman soldier during a Jerusalem scene; Mrs. C. H. Rainwater, who furnished an organ; T. Sgt. Richard M. Clark and his Boy Scout troops who served as ushers; the city employees who cleaned up the city park amphitheatre where the pageant was staged; city firemen who folded and stapled the programs; and city police who handled traffic.

Math May Help Solve Traffic Ills

By BEN PHELAGAR
 AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—A lane of cars suddenly grinds to a halt on a crowded metropolitan freeway for no apparent reason.

Cars running single file through a tunnel maintain a certain speed regardless of exhortations of guards to move faster.

A driver on a freeway slows down for a second or two while he brushes a fly from his face. The eighth car behind him plows into the rear of car No. 7.

Drivers who experience the perils of rush hour city traffic find all of these situations familiar.

Scientists are trying to find out why they happen. Dr. Robert Herman and his associates in the Department of Theoretical Physics at General Motors Research Laboratories are developing mathematical theories to predict the flow of traffic and to explain why traffic behaves as it does.

With such an understanding, highway planners and safety engineers will know better how to get the maximum number of cars from place to place in the safest and faster manner.

Traffic is a follow-the-leader game in Dr. Herman's view. As a driver you really have very little control over what you can do. You're highly dependent on the actions of the cars around, ahead and behind you.

Dr. Herman calls this "cooperative glue." You can stretch it a bit but you can't escape and your movement affects everybody else.

The poor driver, the lane-changer, the crawler and the speeder all cause you to get stuck.

Dr. Herman's team has found no simple solution to this and doesn't expect to. What they do hope is to be able to reduce given situations to formulas — starting points on the road to answers.

Two cars equipped with recording and measuring devices were sent into traffic to examine the follow-the-leader patterns.

In the tunnels under the Hudson River in New York, where heavy traffic averages about 17 miles an hour despite a 35-mile-an-hour limit, the researchers found the best speed for normal drivers would be about 20 miles an hour.

"Every driver is equipped with what amounts to an amazingly accurate computer in his head. This tells him how close he is willing to get to the car ahead and no amount of legislation or urging is going to change it."

The GM studies show a definite relationship between speed and spacing in heavy traffic.

"As speed is increased each driver tends to leave more space between his own car and the car ahead," Dr. Herman says. "Up to a certain point extra speed moves traffic faster. But at that point the gaps between cars become so large that fewer cars will pass a given spot than if the whole lane were moving more slowly."

Police Shift Rotation Gets Started Today

The first complete shift rotation takes place in the Big Spring police department today, with each of the three patrol units moving back to the previous work shift.

Chief C. L. Rogers said officers would stay with their regular shift of men this month. Later on, the officers will shift one direction while patrolmen shift the other. This system will give the commanding officers a new group of men each month.

Starting today, Capt. L. A. Hillbruner will command the 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. shift, Capt. Walter Eubanks, 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Capt. Lindy Oldfield, 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. The shifts will rotate on the last Sunday of each month, Chief Rogers said.

The new system of rotating shifts was started with the 1960-61 fiscal budget year on April 1.

Lyndon Still Silent About His Intentions

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—He didn't say yes and he didn't say no about the possibility of seeking the Democratic nomination for president.

But Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) did say Saturday his trip to the Western states "is not to see the flowers and the fields."

"My purpose here ought to be obvious," he told a Wyoming state Democratic central committee banquet.

Earlier, Johnson told reporters "I have no plans in that direction" when asked when he intended to announce his candidacy for the nomination.

"Somebody has to tend the store in Congress so we can write a program on which the Democrats can be elected from the courthouse to the White House," he said. "My first duty is to do a good job as Senate majority leader."

"There's been some speculation about the purpose of my trip," Johnson told the Democratic meeting. "Thomas Jefferson once took a leisurely journey across the country and told people he was going on a botanical excursion."

"He didn't pick a single leaf, but Jefferson got what he was looking for — a bushel full of votes."

"If you want to speculate about my trip, you can say it is not a botanical excursion... I'm trying to insure a Democratic victory in November."

He charged that the "promises of the Eisenhower administration ring hollow. He's failed the farmers. Business men are disillusioned. The West is forgotten. American labor didn't expect much anyway and their expectations were 100 per cent fulfilled." Johnson said the Democrats offer the country able leadership in the 1960 elections, adding:

"The Republicans have learned how to step on the brakes, but not operate the steering wheel. We're not going to get ahead that way. We've had a Sunday driver long enough."

Hospital Load Will Remain Level

AUSTIN (AP) — About 14,000 persons will be admitted this year to the 6 mental hospitals and three homes for the senile operated by the state.

About 14,000 will be discharged, holding the hospital population level near 16,000. This is about 2,000 under the peak period of several years ago.

If the patient is fairly young and in the early stages of any mental illness except schizophrenia (split personality), the chances are 7 in 10 he will leave for home within 60 days.

If he is schizophrenic or in the advanced stages of another mental illness, only time and treatment will determine the length of his hospital stay.

If he is old and has no one outside the hospital who can—or will—care for him, he may leave only in death.

UNDER PEAK
Today's patient load in the 100 million dollar mental hospital system is under the peak reached in the early 1950s, says Dr. C. J. Rullmann, director of mental health and hospitals.

With adequate staffs and treatment programs, Rullmann says, the number of patients could be reduced to 12,000—the number for which the system was designed.

"The great major problem is the scarcity of well-trained personnel and I see no hope that it will not continue to be true for some time," Rullmann said.

He said the Legislature must appropriate money for higher salaries. On-the-job training programs at the hospitals must be expanded and improved.

Texas spent around 43 million dollars from 1949-59 on new buildings for the hospital system, including 35 million raised by a special cigarette tax.

An estimated 7 million dollars worth of construction is under way and another 7 million is planned for 1961-62.

PROGRESS EVIDENT
The state remains in the lowest 10 per cent of the states in the amount spent per day for treatment of mental patients, but progress is evident.

From 1949 to 1954, discharges were increased by one-third, the average hospitalization period was reduced by 1½ years (not counting the aged, semi-permanent patients), living conditions were improved and treatment programs made more effective.

Use of so-called "wonder drugs," is a small but significant part of the reason for the drop in the patient population, Rullmann says.

"We were all highly skeptical when it all started," he said. "But the drugs have held up very well. And this is not the end of the line by any means. There appears to be a considerable future for additional drugs."

DRUGS HELP
Rullmann said tranquilizers derived from the chlorpromazine molecule are widely used in the system, accounting for 70 per cent of the hospitals' drug budget. Psychic energizers are widely used to relieve abnormal depression.

Insulin also is very useful in treating some forms of mental illness, Rullmann said. Electroshock treatments are used no more than one fifth as often as in past years and lobotomies—severing or removing sections of the brain—are very rare now.

Rullmann said a helpful factor is the gradual acceptance by the public of the fact that mental hospitals can aid those with mental illness. Many people still refuse to accept this, however, Rullmann said.

He said the situation often is comparable to a man with a broken leg. His friends and family don't expect him to win a track meet the day he comes home from the hospital. Yet, Rullmann said, if the same man is hospitalized for a mental disorder, his associates are quick to look for the slightest deviation from what they think is normal behavior.

Tennis Helps Study Of Age And Hearts

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The "old" man of 75 ran to a couch after the final point in a tennis tournament singles match.

There Dr. E. Sterling Nichol, Miami heart specialist, quickly recorded the electrical activity of his heart.

He took the before and after electrocardiograms on 26 men, all aged 60 to 81, who played in a special tennis tournament this year and last year.

Assistants performed the same readings on Dr. Nichol himself, who is a robust 65, and plays tennis every day. He played in the tournament but said: "I'm just gotten variety in skill and didn't get very far."

The unusual electrical studies add a new bit of evidence that a normal heart is not harmed by strenuous exercise if you are used to it, Nichol reported Saturday to the American College of Sports Medicine.

Only one player showed a really significant electrical change, but his heart has an irregular beat, Nichol said. This was worsened by playing.

"Had he been my patient, I wouldn't have advised him to play," Nichol said. "But his doctor in another state tells me the man hasn't been in to see him, but is seen frequently on the tennis court."

One of the 27 players had died since—of cancer.

Exercise and games played throughout life seem to safeguard the human heart, Nichol said.

"There is suggested evidence that exercise actually lowers blood cholesterol," he added. "It certainly reduces the need for tranquilizers because you get rid of tensions. It may forestall premature aging of the lungs as well as the heart and blood vessels."

Revenge Seen In Acid Attack

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—Acid was poured over the face of a man sleeping in his home Saturday. The father of a boy killed in a traffic accident was arrested.

Doctors said Merle Morgan, 46, may lose the sight of one eye.

Police arrested James N. Elliott, 54, at his home in neighboring Burbank and booked him on suspicion of assault with chemicals.

Elliott's son, James, 15, was killed in a collision last year north of Bakersfield, Calif. Morgan and the youth were in Morgan's car. Morgan said he had been absolved officially of blame in the crash but had received threats from Elliott and another son.

Elliott denied implication in the acid attack but admitted threatening Morgan, police said. Elliott also told officers that his former wife is now a girl friend of Morgan's.

Morgan said he saw no one following the attack.

LONDON (AP)—About a million and a half foreigners came to Britain last year, the government reports, and 21,000 or so stayed for long visits or settled.

Most short term visitors—471,360—came from the United States. Germany was second with 197,995.

San Angelo Girl Is Named Area Junior Y President

The annual district YMCA junior high school round-up was held in Big Spring Saturday with 88 young people attending. Election of officers and a track meet headed the slate of activities.

Paulette Vaughn, San Angelo, was elected district president; Sue Cook, Big Spring, vice president; Joyce Carter, San Angelo, secretary; Phyllis Brandon, Midland, treasurer; and Jan Anderson, Big Spring, chaplain.

Speakers during the meeting included Bobo Hardy, general secretary of the Big Spring YMCA, and Gerry Morse, area YMCA staff.

Gaming Highlights Pennsylvania Vote

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The question of parimutuel gambling on harness races, a presidential preference vote, and two special congressional elections highlight Pennsylvania's primary Tuesday.

This will be the state's first vote on legalization of gambling in any form. Actually, referenda will be held in only 14 counties, but they include almost half of the state's population.

Clergymen have sparked the opposition. Proponents say the state now loses 10 to 20 million dollars a year in tax revenue from horse-race betting to adjoining states.

The referenda will be held under a new state law which permits four corporations—to be selected by a State Harness Race Commission—to run 30 days of harness races with parimutuel betting, but only in counties which approve. Only 14 counties—which include Philadelphia and Allegheny with Pittsburgh—asked for a vote. A simple majority is needed to approve in any county.

The presidential preference is complicated by the fact that only Vice President Richard M. Nixon is on the ballot. Write-ins are allowed, however, and election boards plan to keep running tabulations of votes for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York on the GOP side and for Adlai E. Stevenson and Sens. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Stuart Symington of Missouri, and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota on the Democratic side.

Both congressional elections are in districts which have been Republican for decades. Both are predominantly rural and between them account for nearly a third of the state's land area. Registered Republicans outnumber Democrats by around 17,000 in each, but Democrats are hopeful of making inroads, particularly in the 17th.

Herman T. Schneebeli, 51, a Williamsport auto dealer, is the Republican candidate there. Gov. Rockefeller came into the state Wednesday to boost his campaign. They were roommates at Dartmouth.

Opposing Schneebeli is Dean Fisher, 37, a Williamsport attorney. He ran for Congress before, in 1956, when he lost by about 12,000 to Alvin R. Bush, who held the seat for 10 years until his recent death.

The late Richard M. Simpson, chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, was the 18th Dist. congressman for 22 years. State Sen. Douglas M. Elliott, 39, the Republican nominee, is vice president of Wilson College at Chambersburg. Robert M. Myers, 37, a Lewistown newspaper executive, was the Democratic choice once before, in 1954, when he shaved Simpson's margin to the smallest ever, around 12,000.

Melva Burton Goes To State

Melva Burton qualified for the state Interscholastic League meet Saturday by capturing second place in regional journalism contests.

She also joined with Teresa Smith for second place as a team. Jean Hammon barely missed a place on the state slate in short-hand, upping her rate to 90 words a minute but she had two errors. Her transcription rate was the fastest of all. The Amarillo entry had no errors and the Abilene contestant one.

Melva was first in headline writing, second in news writing, feature writing and third in copy reading. She finished behind the Midland entry in overall performance. Teresa took a fifth place in copyreading.

Boy Scout Circus Staff To Meet

All members of the Boy Scout Circus staff have been summoned to meet Tuesday at 7:15 p.m. Frosty Robinson and Jerry Caddell, announcers for the event, have asked all staff members, including ringmasters and event directors, to be present. The dates for the colorful parade of Scouts, Scouts and Explorers, is set for the old football stadium on the evenings of May 6, 7, Tuesday's meeting will be in the conference room of Cosden refinery on U. S. 80 east.

Glasscock Rabbit Drive Announced

A rabbit drive has been announced for Saturday at the St. Lawrence community in southern Glasscock County.

The drive will start at 8 a.m. at the community center at St. Lawrence and will be in the pastures around that area. There will be a free meal at noon for the hunters. St. Lawrence is located about 10 miles south and four miles west of Garden City. Residents are anxious for a large number of hunters to take part. As usual, only shotguns are permitted, and extra ammunition will be available at the drive.

Local Dentists At State Meeting

Several dentists from Big Spring are attending the Texas State Dental Association meeting in Fort Worth today through Wednesday.

Among them are Dr. E. O. Ellington, Dr. Lee O. Rogers, Dr. Dick R. Lane, and Dr. H. M. Jarrett. Among the dental hygienists attending are Fern Wells and Mrs. Everett Fern.

Easter Business Aids Retail Sales

AUSTIN (AP)—Easter business gave Texas retail sales in March a whopping 10 per cent increase over February, the Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

April sales will show a big rise over April, 1959 because of the Easter shopping, the report predicted.

Lone Mishap

Police reported one minor traffic accident in Big Spring Friday afternoon. Farris Hammond, 3204 Auburn, was involved in a collision with Danny J. Anderson, 1419 Eleventh Place, at 18th and Main streets.

Famed Flying Pioneer Takes His Own Life

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harold F. Pitcairn, famed aviation pioneer, took his life early Saturday with a single pistol shot. Only a few hours before he was the life of the party at a big celebration of his brother's 75th birthday.

Pitcairn, 62, whose life has been concerned chiefly with the perfection of flying, killed himself in the study of his medieval-style stone mansion, Cairncrest, in suburban Bryn Athyn.

His wife, Clara, found him slumped in his big desk chair moments after a shot awakened her. A seven-shot automatic pistol lay on the desk.

Pitcairn actually fired two shots. But one bullet went wild and hit the ceiling. The other drilled through his right eye.

In the house, besides the wife, was one of the eight Pitcairn children, John, and two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Asplundh, who had come for the party honoring the brother, Raymond, a conspicuous Eisenhower-Nixon supporter in 1952 and 1956. Asplundh is board chairman of the Pittsburgh Drive Glass Co.

Dr. John Simpson, Montgomery County coroner, said the death was suicide beyond a doubt. Authorities puzzled over the motive, however, since they found no explanatory note, and all Pitcairn's intimates said he had seemed in good health and spirits. All spoke of his gaiety at the party for 450 or more guests and remarked that his humor flowed with unusual facility.

Pitcairn was born in Bryn Athyn June 20, 1897. His father, was head of Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Harold became an airplane pilot at 18. Soon he was flying seaplanes at the Curtiss School in Buffalo. After his schooling he joined the staff of Pittsburgh Plate Glass, then became president of the Osososso Sugar Co. With America's entry into World War I he signed up as a flying cadet.

He stayed with aviation after the war. In partnership with Juan de la Cierva, Spanish inventor of the autogiro, he introduced that type of aircraft to this country. Later he founded and remained president of the Autogiro Co. of America. For a time it made the celebrated "flying windmills."

Clanton Wins In Road-E-O

Big Spring High School student Don Clanton topped the field of 22 contestants Saturday in the Jaycees annual Road-E-O held at Webb Air Base.

Clanton proved his superior driving skill in tests of backing, stopping and other judgment events, according to Bill Lucas, chairman of the local event.

Runners-up were Bill Bonner, second, and Tom Gentry, who won third place.

The three top drivers will be awarded plaques and Clanton will represent the city in the regional contest to be held next weekend. The regional winner goes on to the state meet. Certificates will be awarded the 19 other entrants.

Qualification for the driving test Saturday was based on a written examination given at the high school. Lucas said 110 students took the written test with 29 qualifying out of that number.

Four autos were used in the test, furnished by Jones Motor Company, Lone Star Motor Company, Tidwell Chevrolet and Tarbox-Gossett.

Assisting Lucas with the planning of the contest for the Jaycees were Walter Wheat, Phil Brown and Dick Brown, both of the Air Base.

Minor Mishap

A minor traffic accident shortly before noon Saturday at 21st and Gregg Street involved autos driven by Fannie Jeanette Wyatt, 1104 Eleventh Pl., and Clothilde T. Boeckle, 1003 Nolan.

The Aid Association of St. Paul Lutheran Church will have its annual business meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the church fellowship hall. There will be refreshments following the meeting, the officials announced.

Weather, Oil Production Drop Cut CRMWD Intake

A wet winter, cool spring and drastically curtailed oil production cut into revenues of the Colorado River Municipal Water District for the first quarter.

Water sales for the first three months stood at $419,507.76, of which $339,774 was from the member cities of Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder, and $79,773 from oil repressuring units using surplus water. For the same time last year, when the rate structure was slightly lower, gross water revenues stood at $401,125, of which $284,768 was in sales to the cities and $116,356 to the repressuring groups. For the first quarter in 1958 gross revenues had been $372,608.

French Chief Warns Against Berlin Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—French President Charles de Gaulle warned the Soviet Union Saturday that any sudden "brutal threat" against Berlin would wreck prospects that the summit conference can improve East-West relations.

In the midst of talks with President Eisenhower, De Gaulle said bluntly that a solution of the Berlin problem is impossible at the long-awaited summit parley three weeks hence.

The 69-year-old French leader expressed confidence however that the Big Four chiefs can find what he called a "practical start" toward world disarmament.

Ignoring American objections to the idea, he urged Western and Communist countries to join in a program of economic aid to the two billion people in underdeveloped lands.

De Gaulle, who talked confidentially with Premier Nikita Khrushchev a month ago, strongly hinted he really doesn't expect the Soviet leader to set off a new crisis over Berlin.

"It seems to me that had the Soviet Union wanted to keep on the pressure and the threat looming over the West because of Berlin, it would have done so," he said. "And the Soviet Union did not."

But, apparently with Khrushchev's unpredictable nature in mind, De Gaulle added this note of caution: "If the relations between East and West are to be improved there should not dawn on the conference the brutal threat of any question, and in particular of Berlin."

De Gaulle took a calm, unruffled view of the problems dividing the world as he moved through the second day of his four-day state visit. Friendly crowds applauded him whenever he appeared in public.

With President Eisenhower at his side, he took time out to lay a red, white and blue wreath at the statue of the Marquis de Lafayette, the French general who helped Americans win freedom from Britain in the Revolutionary War.

In an unusual gesture, Eisenhower walked across Pennsylvania Avenue with him for the ceremony in sun-dappled Lafayette Park. It marked the first time

2 Missing After B58 Hustler Crash

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP)—One of the three civilian crew members of a B58 Hustler jet was bailed out when the supersonic jet bomber got into trouble Friday and assumed his two companions did too.

But the 29-year-old flight engineer, Kenneth G. Timpson, of Fort Worth, Tex., and Alto, Mich., said he was not able to see any other parachutes.

He said he saw the 10-million-dollar plane go down into the Great Salt Lake west of this northern Utah base.

But searchers were not able to find the wreckage Saturday afternoon. Bad weather hampered efforts to scan the inland salt sea.

The base earlier reported that the wreckage had been discovered at the north end of the lake, not far from where Timpson was found safe Saturday morning. But no wreckage was found there later.

He said he did not know what had happened to his companions, Pilot Ray E. Tannahoff, 38, and another flight engineer, Walter Simpson, 30. All three are employees at Fort Worth for Convair.

Timpson said he saw the bomber hit the water after he abandoned it.

The big plane, which can fly twice the speed of sound, disappeared at 2:22 p.m. Friday after the pilot reported by radio to Salt Lake City that he was having unspecified trouble. The pilot called off a radar bombing run over a Salt Lake City check point and was not heard from again.

The plane was on a final check-out flight from Fort Worth to Salt Lake City and return, prior to being turned over to the Air Force.

Store For Young Marrieds Opens

Good Housekeeping is opening a new department devoted to young modern homemakers.

It will be entirely separate from the present furniture and will be located two doors north at 902 Johnson, said Jack Watkins, operator.

Merchandising in the department will cater to the needs of young married couples, but due to proximity to the main store a limitless line of furnishings will be available.

Wendell Stacey, in the furniture business for the past seven years and with Good Housekeeping for four years, will be manager of the new department. During this first week of operation, the department will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Mounted Patrol Fish Fry Guests

Members of the Big Spring Mounted Patrol feasted at a fish fry Friday evening in the Howard County Junior College Cafeteria.

Lloyd Murphy and Ed Cherry had provided 114 pounds of fish from a recent junket to Falcon Lake. Wesley Yater, Ray White, Horace Rankin and Cherry pitched in to prepare the meal which was enjoyed by some 65 people.

Dick Fielder, president, announced plans for the patrol to take part in the parade of the Tumbleweed Festival at Colorado City on Friday. Other events for the spring and early summer are shaping, he said.

You Never Stop Learning If You Read Your Newspaper

The newspaper has been called "America's greatest institution of adult education!"

The textbooks for Americans who do "post-graduate work" by reading newspapers are never out of date. They are revised daily, always filled with facts carefully authenticated.

Every day, newspapers provide new challenges to local citizens. Every day they provoke discussions and an exchange of viewpoints between readers, who are free to think as they please and to express their views in the newspaper itself.

The classbell rings when the "textbook" is laid at your doorstep or dropped in your mailbox, or delivered to the nearest newsstand.

Importantly, this educational function performed by your newspaper is tied to our survival and our well being. Facts gleaned from the newspaper give us a better understanding of life, our community, our nation and the world.

These facts help us to "belong," to fill our place in the community, to help make important decisions in our personal lives and in the judgments that affect others.

The individual, through enlightenment received from the newspaper, becomes a better citizen properly conditioned to life's stresses, aware of its problems and challenges.

Newspapers not alone educate. They stimulate action, promote an exchange of ideas, suggest changes and improvements . . . truly serve mankind.

Baby Is Bigger Hurdle Than Cost In Adoptions

By SAM BLACKBURN
 "My husband and I want to adopt a baby," said the woman. "We've dreamed about it for years. However, we are told that it costs a lot to adopt a baby—$500 or perhaps as much as $1,000. We can't afford to spend that much money."
 The lady has been misinformed. There were 45 adoptions approved in the 118th District Court in 1959. There have been eight such adoptions approved already in 1960. The average cost for the proceedings—attorney fees and all—has been around $150. In many instances, the costs have been even less.
 Adoption proceedings are common events in the district courts. Every month, one or more petitions are filed asking that some child be legally awarded to couples who want it. There is little or no "red tape" involved. There is no confusion and no uncertainty. Indeed, compared with other litigation in the courts, adoptions are about the simplest of all matters.
 Wade Choate, district court clerk, said that only three adoptions were dismissed in 1960. The reasons for these are not recalled but it was probable, Choate said, that the natural mother of the child changed her mind.

BARGAIN PRICE OF LIFE-TIME INVESTMENT

Charges not so heavy as most would-be parents imagine find a baby which is available for adoption.

 There are more of these than you might think. Family doctors sometimes offer leads. They may be called upon to care for some woman who is unwed and who is expecting a child. Many such youngsters are available for adoption. Sometimes babies available for adoption are heard about through conversation.
 Once you have located the baby, employ an attorney. This is vitally important. You have to have a legal adviser to handle the proper papers which will need to be prepared and filed.
SECURE CONSENT
 First step to be taken is to secure the written consent of the natural parent—usually the mother—to the adoption. On some occasions, there are children available for adoption in families where the parents are married. In such cases, consent of both parents must be obtained.
 When consent is obtained, the attorney will file a petition asking that the child be adopted. This application has to be prepared in proper form. When the petition is presented to the court, the judge appoints some competent person to investigate the persons seeking to make the adoption. This investigation covers a fairly wide field; it looks into the financial status of the petitioners; their environment, the home into which the child will be taken. It is worthy of note, however, that few if any applicants for an adopted child have been rejected by the investigator's report.
 The petition has to be on file in the court not less than 40 days nor more than 60 days. The investigator makes his or her report to the court. The court conducts a hearing to determine the qualification of the petitioners.
 Assuming that all is well, that the 40 to 60 days has expired, and that the proper consent to the adoption has been filed, that's it. The court issues an order of adoption and the petitioners are given the child.
LOCATING BABIES
 The general source of available babies, as stated, is in the case of unwed mothers. However, there are other sources, too. Assume a family has children and neglects them to the point where authorities have to intercede. Such children can be declared dependent and neglected. When such a declaration has been made by the court, they can be adopted by new parents.
 One such case in the courts a few years ago involved four children. A Big Spring attorney and his wife immediately filed a petition to adopt two of the youngsters. The application was approved and the two children are now leading happy lives with their new father and mother.
 Occasionally some woman whose husband may have deserted her and who is having a hard time making a living will offer one of her brood for adoption.
 The law specifies that in a case where a man and his wife are divorced and the father is ordered to pay child support, the mother can adopt a child out if the husband has failed to make the required child support payments for a period of at least two years. The mother is permitted, under the law, to adopt the child out without the father's consent.
NEGLECTED CHILDREN
 In cases of dependent and neglected children, the youngsters become wards of the court. The court issues the consent that they be adopted by petitioners.
 It is not often employed, but the law provides for the adoption of an adult. On occasions which this feature of the law is invoked, the principals are usually a mother, her adult son or daughter, and the mother's second husband. In cases where a woman with children remarries, it is not uncommon for the children to regard their stepfather with such deep affection that they want to be legally his children. Such a proceeding will enable them to take his name rather than their own.
OTHER FACTORS
 So there's no deep dark mystery to an adoption proceeding nor any great expense.
 Lawyers do point out that if there are instances where the costs in such matters are reportedly high, it could come from another operation which is apart from the adoption itself.
 This would be the case, they suggest, where a couple finds an unwed mother-to-be and enters into agreement with her that they will pay her expenses during pregnancy and delivery. Such an operation, the attorneys agree, could run the cost of an adoption high. However, this is not necessary nor is it the common history of adoptions.

KEEP IT SIMPLE
 Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, bends every facility at his command to make the adoption of some child in need of a home as simple as possible. Members of the bar show an eagerness to lend a hand that is seldom displayed in any other law business they handle.
 Recently the Howard County Bar Association agreed on what it calls a "minimum fee schedule" for the services that lawyers perform. Adoption proceedings are down on this list for $125. Most lawyers, however, agree that the cost of the attorney fees may vary. Until the minimum fee system was adopted, the average attorney charged from $75 to $100 for handling an adoption proceeding.
 Choate's office has a fixed fee for the filing of papers which are essential in the case and for incidental court actions which are involved. These fees range from $27.15 to not more than $30. Majority of cases call for the lesser fee.
 That's all involved—$125 for attorney costs; $27 to $28 for court costs.
 What are the steps to be pursued?
ADOPTION STEPS
 What are the steps to be pursued?
 Well, the first one is reminiscent of the Old English cookbook's classic recipe for rabbit: "First catch your rabbit."

DEAR ABBY PUT HER ON C.O.D.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 36, a Master Sgt. in the Air Force, stationed in Alaska. I haven't been home in eight months, but I'm due to get back in June.
 I have a lovely wife (35) and three wonderful children. My problem is that my wife is an habitual "charger," and she never pays her bills. My Commanding Officer gets letters from disgruntled merchants and I'm hauled on the carpet for it. I've had to do some fast talking, believe me.
 I send my wife plenty of money, but she charges anyway and then disregards the bills. What should I do, Abby? My parents tell me to divorce her, but I have to give up my children. What do you think?
EMBARRASSED
 DEAR EMBARRASSED: It's difficult to inform ALL the merchants back home while you are in Alaska, but make a stab at it. Write and tell them to close your wife's charge account. And when you get home, tell her she'll have to start buying things C.O.D. and P.D.Q.
 DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me how to get $27 before my mother finds out it is gone?
 My boy friend told me if he didn't get $27 right away, he would be in such serious trouble he might have to run away. I knew where my mother kept her savings, so I took the money, planning to put it back before she noticed it was gone. Now my boy friend can't pay me back like he said he would. I need help right away, Abby, and don't know where to turn. We are both 16.
MISS TROUBLES
 DEAR MISS TROUBLES: Don't wait for your mother to discover the money is missing. Tell her. Offer to earn the money and try to pay it back that way. And by the way, any boy who would involve a girl in a mess of this kind is selfish, inconsiderate and morally bankrupt. If you're wise, you'll drop him.
 DEAR ABBY: Please print this for people who are considering divorce: The biggest heartache of my life came when my parents parted. I loved my Daddy so much but never got to see him except for a few hours now and then. If my parents had been in business and the going got rough they would have worked extra hard to save that business. Yet they didn't save their marriage because they didn't really try. Because of that I grew up without a Daddy. I missed him especially at my confirmation, graduation and at my wedding.

 My parents are both nice people, but they didn't have the backbone to save our home. Why do parents bring children into the world and then willfully make half-orphan of them? I would make lots of sacrifices before I'd hurt my child the way I was hurt.

"HIS SHOES ARE HARD TO FILL..."

... "but we are sure going to try."

When Elmo Wasson opened his doors in 1927, he promised the people of Big Spring only the finest merchandise, thoughtful service and the last word in men's fashion. For over 33 years he has been one of our progressive city's most successful merchants. He has built not only a great store, but a tradition. A tradition that we would do well to follow.

Elmo has gathered together merchandise found only in the finest stores in the country. Society Brand, Baker, Countess Mara, Excello, Dobbs and Stetson are only a few of an honor roll of fine merchandise. He has given us a great foundation. We shall try to carry on. To Elmo's old customers, we intend to give you the same courteous service you have received in the past. If you are a newcomer to Big Spring, we would like you to make our store your store.

We are now in the process of moving to our beautiful new store at 3rd and Main. Watch for our opening. We will be glad to see you.

Bovines Yield Heartbreaker

SAN ANGELO (SC) — The San Angelo Bobcats defeated Big Spring, 1-0, in a District 2-AAAA baseball thriller here Saturday to retain their hold on first place in the standings.

The LeFevre twins, Jay and Zay, teamed up to set the Felines down with a solitary hit and the only run they surrendered was the unearned.

San Angelo won the game in the sixth after Roy Franklin had reached base on an infield bobbie.

San Angelo's best previous outdoor time this season was 4:16.1. But he had an indoor mile in 4:05.4 earlier this year. Last year, he won the mile in the U.S.-Russian meet, the AAU and Pan American Games.

Elliott holds the record for the best mile run in America, 3:57.8 in Los Angeles in May 1958. His previous best mile by an American was run by Don Bowden of the University of California. His time in a 1957 meet in Stockton, Calif., was 3:58.7.

D. Finsterwald Leads By Four

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dow Finsterwald, a big name golfer who believes in professional precision, drilled a 66 Saturday and moved into the lead at the end of the $27,000 Greater New Orleans Open's third round.

Sanders carded a 65 Saturday and had a 54-hole total of 70-70-65-205. Former collegiate star Johnny Pott of Shreveport furnished the day's big surprise when he broke the 6,589-yard city park course record with a 9-under-par 63.

Two Buffaloes Grab Firsts

LUBBOCK (SC) — Buzzy Brewer and Norman Donelson gathered in the only firsts for the Stanton Buffaloes here today in the regional track and field meet.

Stanton's sprint relay crew captured a second place in the meet to qualify for state competition in Austin, May 6-7. Donelson toured the track for a win in the quarter mile in 50.9 seconds.

Donelson tied the record for the lead at the halfway mark, settled for a 1-under-par 71 and a total of 68-67-71-209.

Sands Lassies Capture Meet At Forsan

FORSAN (SC) — Sands' girls gathered in 112 points here Saturday as they took high honors in the Howard County Belle Relays.

Aspermont finished in the runner-up position with 100 points and Ballinger took third with 35. Mary Rose, Wilson Junior High of Lubbock, was the high individual scorer for the meet as she scored all 27 points for her school.

Lasater Gets Pressed In 100-Yard Dash

Big Spring's R. L. Lasater crosses the finish line just ahead of Abilene's Carlton Stowers to win first in the event at the regional meet in Odessa Saturday. Berger's Bob Landess made the third spot in the race.

Big Spring Is Third In Regional Track

By DON RIDDLE ODESSA — Abilene's powerful Eagles gave West Texas track enthusiasts a preview of how they might walk off with the state AAAA track and field championship in Austin, May 6-7, as they tallied 41 points and captured the regional meet in easy style here Saturday.

The Eagles garnered three first places in the meet including the mile relay win with a meet record time of 3:20.7. Larry Rhodes won the half mile for Abilene and Jerry Franklin tied teammate Bob Beck for the high jump title.

Lasater pulled a muscle about midway during the 220-yard and nearly stopped. Hesitating for a moment, the junior speedster then decided to continue the race and hobbled across the finish in 21.6 seconds.

Murphy Winner In Regional

STEPHENVILLE (SC) — Frank Murphy of Garden City qualified for the State Track and Field meet by winning broad jump honors in the Region II-B Meet held here Saturday.

Murphy's leap was 21 feet 3/4 inches. A jump of 21-4 was won the event at Austin last year.

Murphy was the only qualifier from District 19-B. Denis Calverly of Garden City made the trip but didn't place in the high jump. Murphy qualified for the finals in the 100 but didn't place.

Benny Corley of Bronte was fourth in the high hurdles and sixth in the low hurdles.

Kenneth McCutchen of Bronte was sixth in the discus.

Lasater stepped the distance in 1:55.8. This mark broke Odessa's Don Dishong's old record by 2.5 seconds.

Beck and Franklin now hold the new high jump record at 6 feet, 3 inches. Amarillo's Robert Whidson set the old mark at 6 feet, 1 1/2 inches in 1950.

Midland's Bulldogs gave Abilene another good contest in scoring 67 points. Bob Penn won the pole vault event and Phil Barrett capped first in the mile to give the Bulldogs their only meet wins.

Big Spring finished third in the meet as District 2-AAAA hogged the glory. R. L. Lasater won the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dash and the Steers annexed the sprint relay to total 40 points. Lasater's 9.7 century tied the old meet mark.

Lasater pulled a muscle about midway during the 220-yard and nearly stopped. Hesitating for a moment, the junior speedster then decided to continue the race and hobbled across the finish in 21.6 seconds.

Freddy Brown started the sprint relay for Big Spring and Kenny

Keasterson and David Abreo ran the other two legs for the Steers as Lasater brought the baton home.

Snyder copped first in the AAA division with 116 points. Andrews, with its two speedy relay squads finished second with 106 points. Dumas scored 58 for third place in the meet.

Wink walked off with the Class B division, scoring 166 points. The nearest rival was Van Horn with 54 and Clint took third with 30.

Arm-Chair Fishermen On Lake Thomas

Anglers on Lake J. B. Thomas find things easy on Boyd's fishing dock. Fishermen enjoy practically all the comforts of home while indulging in what used to be called an outdoor sport. Mrs. Marsh, Snyder, causes little excitement with her catch here, because the crappie have been hitting fast and furious lately. Big Springers Marie Jennings and Barbara Waitis sit on Mrs. Marsh's right, and are frequent customers at the dock.

Young And Old Alike Catch Big Ones At Lake Thomas

By DON RIDDLE
Fishing on Lake J. B. Thomas has been unusually good the past week, according to various angling enthusiasts. Many big black bass have been taken lately as well as some nice sized channel cat. Good crappie fishing has been limited to only a few spots, but there the fishermen say they've been getting bigger crappie than any seen this year.

The continued warm weather has brought on the surge of bass catches. However, only a few of the big ones have been caught on artificial lures. Minnows still take the majority of bass, but in another week or so, the lures will be the best bait.

Most of the catfishing has been done via the trotline, and some of the channel cats have tipped the scales as high as 3 1/2 pounds.

BOYD'S LODGE
Most of the larger bass have been taken, as usual, from the southwest end of the lake. But Boyd's Lodge reports extremely good bass fishing on the north side, with most of the success coming from the yellow plastic jig.

The fishing dock is still the best bet for those who frequent the lodge, for the crappie and bass have been starting to hit early and continue through most of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Elrod, Big Spring, have had good luck with crappie as have N. B. Deel and J. D. Stewart, Coahoma. E. M. Scannel has also done nicely in the crappie department along with Marie Jennings, Barbara Waitis, J. H. Maetner and Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips. All are from Big Spring.

LAKE THOMAS LODGE
Guy Costen reports the bass fishing has been very good on his place. Six-year-old Karen Armstrong, Earh, gathered in a three pound black bass during the week and Bernie Grable, Colorado City, also caught a nice black that went better than three pounds. Grable has been one of the better bass fishermen to frequent the lake lately and Costen adds that Grable has displayed some other prize catches since the first of the year.

LEM'S BAIT SHOP
Lem Gresham says that the R. C. Hollens family from Snyder, has been continuing to take nice strings of crappie from around his place. The Hollens' caught their limit two or three days this week and some of the bigger ones edged close to two pounds.

Smokie Jaynes has taken several nice black bass from Lem's area. Some of Jaynes' catch went over four pounds. He was primarily using minnows.

Bill Collier, Canyon, has also been a consistent winner with the crappie catching lately.

JINKEN'S GROCERY
Jinkens Moreland says the crappie and cat fishing has been productive lately and the best catches were turned in by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Freeman, Lamesa. Mrs. Piper and Mrs. Addison, Lamesa, also caught their limit in extra big crappie, three days straight. They also captured some nice channel cat.

Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Murry, Brownfield, have had good luck recently with catches of large white bass and channel cat. Willie Bingham, Snyder, caught some nice blacks this week for four days straight.

BROWNE'S GROCERY
Halley Brown says that L. F. Brothers and his brother from Stanton caught a 4 pound blue cat and several large crappie. Clifton Morris, Lubbock, hauled in a 6 1/2 pound black bass. Morris took the big boy on a Heddon Sonar artificial lure. Browne says the bass fishing is certainly beginning to pick up on his portion of the lake.

SMITH'S GROCERY
Smith's Grocery reports nice catches made by V. W. Crump, Lamesa. The Crumps caught four black bass weighing up to five pounds.

Calvin Reed, Eunice, N. M., also took some nice blacks which went up to four pounds, and Eddie Simer, Vincent, brought in eight three-pounders.

SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE
Claude Hodnett says the crappie fishing has been good in his fishing dock and adds that some nice bass have been taken just west of his place. The Rev. B. R. Howze, Big Spring, has had good luck with the crappie fishing as have Big Springers W. F. Sides and Mrs. R. L. Underwood.

LAKEVIEW
Lakeview has seen good crappie and channel cats taken from the area. R. C. Harris, Brownfield, caught 30 crappie which weighed up to two pounds recently and G. L. Maroney, Vealmore, hooked some large channel cat. One went 2 1/2 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Burrow, Ackery, gathered in several large crappie and Arthur Blagrove, Ackery, nabbed a six pound blue cat. Big Springer O. C. Milam caught his limit in large crappie.

Green Tree Stable announced some time ago it would skip the Fore-runner for the Blue Grass as Weatherwise's next start. The colt showed brilliant stretch steam in winning a six furlong event here.

Venetian Way also is eligible for the Blue Grass.

Tompion's time in the Fore-runner was 1:21.45. He paid favorite's odds of 1-40, $2.60 and $2.20.

$70,000 Gate Expected For Harris-Liston Go

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Sonny Liston and Roy Harris match their heavy-duty talents against each other Monday night in a 10-rounder to be carried by television as the main event on live cards in 10 other cities in seven states.

Liston's power makes him the popular choice despite Harris' Houston popularity, which has boomed since his days as a barefooted Golden Gloves boxer.

A gate in excess of $70,000 is indicated for the Sam Houston Coliseum match. The bout has been billed as the final of an elimination tournament to select an unofficial challenger to go against the winner of the June title fight between champion Jimmy Johnsson and former champion Floyd Patterson.

The 10 p.m. EST bout will be carried by closed circuit television as the main event on live cards in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Baltimore, Atlanta, Miami Beach, New Orleans, Mobile, Ala., Dallas, San Antonio, and Odessa, Tex.

Live semifinals lined up for the 10 cities range from featherweights to heavyweights.

Both Liston and Harris will share in income from the 10 cities. Officials of the sponsoring Texas Boxing Enterprises Inc. of Houston and Giant View TV of Detroit, Mich., have not revealed the percentages.

Liston picked up $2,000 from closed circuit TV in a two-city experiment March 21 when he won on a second round technical knockout from big Cleveland Williams before a near capacity crowd here.

Liston's overall take for the brief Williams match was $13,000, largest of his career, and he promptly adopted Houston as his hometown.

When arrangements were being made for the Harris fight, Liston expressed concern over Harris having won 11 fights here by decision.

The big Philadelphia Negro laughed when reminded of this when he returned this week.

"This is my hometown," he said. "He's from Cut and Shoot, Tex." Except for one day of sparring in a downtown gym, Harris has done all his training at his home in the big thicket country 45 miles north of Houston.

Harris has refused to predict the outcome, Liston is confident of a knockout.

"I won't predict a round but I don't think it'll take very long," Liston said.

Ranked the No. 2 heavyweight contender, Liston has a 28-1 record that includes 19 knockouts. The lone loss was a 1954 split decision to Marty Marshall, with Liston going the last four rounds with a broken jaw.

Harris ranks No. 6. He has only eight knockouts but this 30-1 record includes only the title fight he lost to Patterson on a twelfth round technical knockout in Los Angeles in 1958.

Liston is expected to weigh 212, Harris about 192.

Tucker's B Jolly Entered In Arizona's Richest Race

B Jolly, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bud Tucker of Big Spring, is entered in the Arizona Paradise Futurity today, richest horse race in the history of Arizona.

The race will be run at Turf Paradise in Phoenix. Joe Sherman, formerly of Abilene and Big Spring, will be in the irons. B Jolly is an offspring of Jolly Kay, a Tucker horse that proved a consistent winner at such tracks as Ruidoso Downs.

The race will be over five furlongs. The owners will not be able to watch the events. However, Doyle Vaughn and Jess Wilbanks will represent Big Spring at the track today.

In all, 17 horses have been qualified for the event. For that reason, it will be run in two sections. Eight horses will be entered in one of the races while Jolly B and eight others will go to the post in the other race.

There were 131 horses originally nominated for the race.

Another Tucker horse, Maxelian, is on the grounds at Turf Paradise and has come home a winner. The three-year-old won her first out at Phoenix, as a matter of fact, a 5 1/2 furlong event, at which Jockey Demillo was up. She was raced again with four days and finished third.

The Tuckers plan to ship their horses to Ruidoso for the summer season there, after Turf Paradise closes.

Jerry Currie of Big Spring is another who shipped part of his stable to Phoenix.

Bantamweight Dies Following Fight

SALTILLO, Mex. (AP) — Young Santiago Perez made his debut as a bantamweight Wednesday night and died early Friday.

Perez, 17, suffered a brain concussion in the second round of his bout with Ramiro Garces.

Promoters are paying for Perez' burial and plan to stage a boxing card to benefit his relatives.

Tompion Triumphs In Derby Warmup

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Tompion's first Kentucky step toward the Derby was taken in a champion's stride. The next step, less than a week away, may prove much more difficult.

C. V. Whitney's colt proved Friday that he's top Derby material. He downed seven other hopefuls for the rosy race, but his next start, in the Blue Grass Stakes, probably will be against tougher competition.

The field he whipped in the seven-furlong Fore-runner Purse, his first race in Kentucky, were such stars as Victoria Park, Fied

White Bass Tagging Party Off, Commission Finding

AUSTIN, (SC) — White bass tagging on Lake Texoma is providing aquatic biologists of the Texas Game and Fish Commission with valuable information concerning the movements, spawning activities, and age and growth factors of the species.

During a 5-year period, some 3,253 white bass were tagged and released. Of this total, 330 tag returns were recorded. Information obtained from 1959 returns show that one bass was recaptured 177 days after it was released, while another was free for 494 days.

The average interval of freedom for fish was 287.9 days. This figure is higher than any reported in other years. None of the 1959 returns were tagged that same calendar year.

The distance traveled by fish between release and recapture varied from less than 50 yards to as much as 14.5 miles. The average direct line distance traveled was about 9 miles. One fish was recaptured at the same place it was released. However, according to the director of inland fisheries, it is impractical to believe this fish stayed in the same area the entire period of freedom. Previous fish returns have revealed that some fish move a minimum of three miles per day of freedom.

Once again a fish tagged in Lake Texoma was retaken in Red River below the dam. Records show that 50 other fish have made this unusual trip.

Once substantial information has been collected, it will be made available to fishermen through newspapers, radios and magazines. Persons catching tagged fish are asked to contact Commission personnel at the Commission offices on the Lake.

A Pat on the Back

For ROY ROGAN

A career as a professional musician beckoned at one time, but Roy Rogan turned this down for electrical engineering. This brought him to Big Spring in 1941 with Brown & Root, contracting firm on the old Bombardier School. When that job was completed, Rogan took a position with the City of Big Spring as city electrician and traffic engineer, and he's still on the job. His office has charge of installation and maintenance of all electrical equipment in the city, and design, installation and maintenance of traffic control equipment come under his jurisdiction.

Rogan's work doesn't stop at 5 p.m., though. Anyone who has ever had anything to do with a production staged at the city auditorium, whether as sponsor, performer or backstage worker, feels a little more confident when Roy is there — as he always is. They know that proper use and timing of light and sound can "make" a show. Roy has the technical skill — and the natural instinct for show business techniques — to do outstanding work that has brought him the gratitude of world famous performers who have appeared here.

Rogan hasn't deserted his music, but puts it to helpful use. The sounds of his saxophone and clarinet have been familiar to patients at the Big Spring State Hospital for many years. He plays with a group which donates their services there regularly.

With assistance from another local man whose hobby is electronics, Rogan has developed inventions for which patents have been applied. One is teletriggering equipment built and installed for the city six years ago. It is used to read water levels in all existing water storage reservoirs. The other is a three-phase motor protector — a relay arrangement which eliminates possibility of single-phase burnouts.

Roy and his wife, the former Alice Opal Dickson, have their home at 317 Lincoln and attend the First Baptist Church.

A Devotional For Today

"You shall be my witnesses... to the end of the earth." (Acts 1:8-RSV) PRAYER: Our Father, help us in this turbulent and divided world to know Christ as our own Redeemer. Help us to proclaim Him as the Redeemer of all men everywhere. Make us truer disciples and more effective witnesses for Christ. In His name. Amen. (From The 'Upper Room')

Webb Stabilized As Training Base

The concepts of warfare and of defense against surprise attack have been changing so rapidly as the missile age comes on that the status of any military installation is subject to change almost overnight. The reduced demand for trained pilots to handle aircraft, for instance, has put the entire Air Force training program under scrutiny. The future of Webb Air Force Base, as one of the basic training schools for jet pilots, could have been a subject of doubt. So it is that Big Spring receives with pleasure the news that, in a new organization of pilot training, Webb is one of the bases which will absorb pre-flight and primary training along with the basic phase. Air Force officials indicate that this change—due to occur in about a year—does not necessarily mean that Webb will become much larger, or require much more personnel. What it does mean is that Webb's status in the Air Training Command is made more firm and more stable, and that—barring entirely unforeseen developments—it will continue as one of the substantial bases which will be turning out skilled pilots. Webb's rating in the Training Command, taken by almost any yardstick, is right at the top. These yardsticks include efficiency and economy of performance, maintenance of training schedules, safety record, prestige as an Air Force installation—and good acceptance in the community. So its new assignment for broader training is an earned one. But Webb also has benefited by good support from our congressman, Rep. George Mahon. As chairman of the House subcommittee on military appropriations, George Mahon has kept himself informed in high degree on military affairs and military problems. He has worked closely with the Air Force for some months in devising a new training program that is best for the government, and best for efficiency of the Air Force. In this program, he has assisted in fitting Webb into the scheme of things. Big Spring owes Congressman Mahon another strong vote of thanks for services well performed. And Big Springs owe it to themselves to continue stressing good relations with our military citizens, so that there will never be cause for regret, in any quarter, that Webb continues as a key unit in Air Force training.

LET IT POUR!

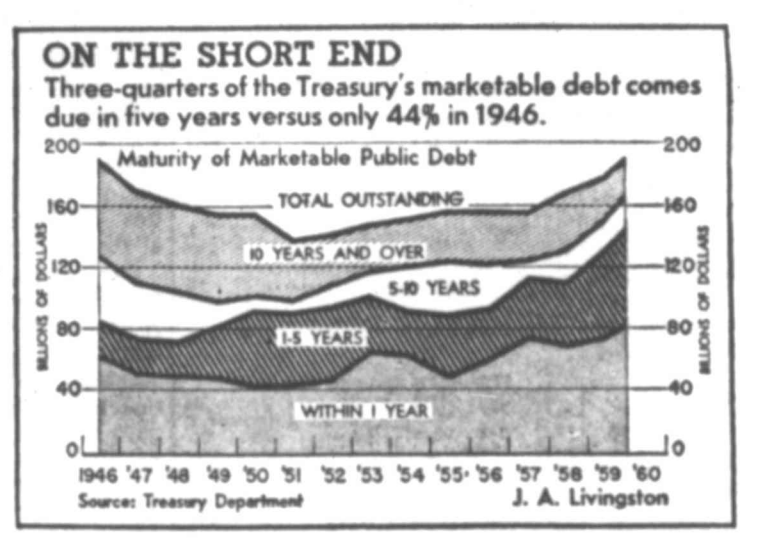

Keep Your Credit Good

If you read today's issue of the Herald you can hardly escape the fact that this is National Credit Week. This isn't the important thing, but the element of credit is. It is almost trite—but true—that our economy would be all but paralyzed without popularized credit. In fact, one of the most distinguishing features of what we call the free enterprise system is our unique employment of credit from the most humble individual to the biggest corporation. Our trading and our standard of living are products of faith in the individual and faith in the future. No doubt about it, credit is the economic elixir which stimulates and sustains a highly productive national machinery. But credit serves a marvelously useful purpose only when it is maintained in good standing. To be maintained, it must be soundly based and religiously regarded. Credit is a man's word, a man's reputation, a man's record in business. It should never be treated lightly, but always solemnly and prudently.

J. A. Livingston Business Situation No Help To Either Party

Presidentially speaking, this is a poor year economically. Business isn't bad enough for the Democrats to pour fourth voting vituperation at the Republicans. Nor is it boomish enough for the Republicans to whoop for joy over the financial benedictions they've conferred on America. A recession would dramatize Democratic criticisms of the Eisenhower administration — too much unemployment, low farm income, not enough federal aid to education, health, and welfare, excessively high interest rates, Budget Bureau control over the defense program, over-protective defense of the dollar (too much fear of inflation), and "slow growth" in the economy. BY THE SAME TOKEN, a strong upsurge in business activity would give the Republican candidate something to point with pride at: Record employment, and the highest standard of living yet known. A Republican candidate could say some of those things now. However, the current business setback deprives them of resonance. The economic shape-up for the political campaign is as follows: GROSS NATIONAL Product: This is the sum total of all goods and services. In the first quarter of 1960, it ran a $498,000,000,000-a-year rate, or nearly $15,000,000,000 above the final quarter of 1959. Unfortunately for the Republicans, that's not as expansionary as it looks. In December, the GNP probably ran at the half-trillion mark or even higher. So GNP has flattened out even as... INDUSTRIAL Production: The zip associated with spring is missing. The Federal Reserve Board index reached a high of 111 in January, then slipped to 109 in February and 109 in March. Judging from steel and autos, another decline is possible this month. EMPLOYMENT: In March, 64,300,000 persons were employed, highest ever for the month, 500,000 more than last year. But the decrease of 250,000 from February is cited by Democrats as proof of the economic lull—"slow growth". UNEMPLOYMENT: Fifty-four out of every thousand persons in the labor force don't have jobs. Unemployment in March increased 300,000 to 4,200,000. Not good for prosperity flag-waving. Democratic political oratory is most effective in unemployment-pocked coal states, such as West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and in industrial areas in which layoffs have been sporadic, such as Detroit. FARM INCOME: At the start of the year, economists for the Department of Agriculture expected net income to drop about 5 percent, on top of last year's decline of 17 percent. But prices of hogs, broilers, and eggs have been better of late. Winter moisture from heavy snows promises fine grazing land. Ranchers won't be forced to sell off cattle in a hurry. Effect: Good beef prices. As a result, gross income will run around $7,000,000,000, about the same as last year. And net, after expenses, may approach 1959's $11,800,000,000. However, farmers did better in '58, netting more than $14,200,000,000. Farm discontent is a two-party problem. Democrats focus their attack on Secretary of Agriculture Benson. But the malaise began before him. We're repeating the mistakes of the Federal Farm Board in the Hoover administration — buying surpluses, holding up prices, encouraging production, thereby building more surpluses to buy. INTEREST Rates: This battle follows classic Bryan-against-McKinley lines. The Democrats say the Eisenhower administration fos-

Around The Rim

There Ought To Be Profit In Mesquite

Now that the folks over at Colorado City have determined to realize some money from tumble weeds, there remains a couple of other sources of revenue available in uncommon quantity around West Texas. These are the bear grass and the mesquite tree. I never figured that a profitable market could be developed in mistletoe, but it has. It never dawned on me that reasonable human beings would plunk down hard-earned cash for anything in the tumbleweed family, but all of a sudden here's a new industry springing up, and with enthusiasm back of it. So I am not the man to be consulting about these other products of the far-flung prairies. If you can figure out what to produce from bear grass, let me know, because I can lead you to some of the natural plant, right in your yard. But, actually, one wonders on occasion, why some more determined effort has not been made to make marketable products out of the mesquite tree. The good old mesquite, some people have said, ought to be Texas' official tree, instead of the pecan. There are so many more of them. Oh, the mesquite has some bad points. It spreads over pastures and hampers the growth of good grass for cattle, and grows in such thickets that finding and herding livestock is almost an impossibility. It drinks so deeply for its water that it takes some moisture that should be going into underground reservoirs. But it has some good points, too. Since it is in the legume family (in producing beans) it enriches the soil with nitrogen. Nobody can question the beauty of this Southwestern tree, particularly at this time of year, when its tender lattice leaves are of the lightest, most delicate green, and against the sunlight, from a contrasting shade to darker greens so as to delight the eye. And as the trees get larger, these slender leaves are in enough profusion to create welcome shade. Oh, well, back to the finances. There may be a profitable market for mesquite beans. Certainly they have nourished cattle in Texas in many a dry summer. And some authorities say that human beings in Mexico have learned to prepare the mesquite bean pod in such a way that it serves as their food. It's the mesquite wood, though, that ought to be marketable. Few woods have such a fragrant, appealing odor, and I don't know how the hickory people ever were able to capitalize on a smoke-flavor that could be bettered, any time, with mesquite wood. Some smart Texans ought to be sacking up small cubes of mesquite wood and selling them for cooking purposes. There would come a new standard of flavor. The mesquite wood's drawback is that it is difficult to find pieces long enough and straight enough for milling. But it is strong and straight-grained, heavy, and very colorful. Mexicans have proved this in doing some handwork with mesquite wood. Few woods are more durable, and warping and shrinking are limited. But processing and finishing mesquite is difficult. And while you can't beat mesquite for fuel, the wood has to be sawed and split. This rather leaves me out. But if somebody wants to get smart enough to make something out of mesquite, there's plenty of the product around. BOB WHIPKEY

David Lawrence Our Meddling In Korean Election

WASHINGTON — A real crisis is developing in Korea. It is more serious than anything that has happened since the Korean War ended seven years ago. It could give the Communists the opportunity they have long sought—to involve the United States in a serious quarrel with its own allies in the Far East. What the Department of State has done in openly reprimanding the government of President Rhee is a bold step. It could prove disastrous for it establishes a precedent that will plague the diplomacy of the United States for years to come. FOR THE DEPARTMENT of State has undertaken to pass judgment on the activities of the incumbent party in a national presidential election in a country with which this government is at peace. Was the election of Rhee "rigged"? His only opposition candidate died while in Washington. The vice-presidential contest was bitterly fought but the Rhee party elected its candidate. Charges have been made that many illegalities occurred and that the government supporters actually produced ballots that were not marked by the voters themselves. Couldn't the American government have expressed its displeasure privately and called for a "redress of grievances" by plain-spoken words in the course of diplomatic conversations through the respective ambassadors here or in Seoul, Korea? The answer given is that the United States has tried this very tactic for several months but that its efforts were fruitless. The wide attention attracted throughout the world by the reported irregularities in the Korean elections finally convinced the Department of State that it had to do something publicly. IN THE FAR EAST, however, this will be construed as pulling the rug from beneath the Rhee government. The Washington "Evening Star" in an editorial made this comment: "If the State Department is trying to bring down the government of Syngman Rhee in its hour of crisis, the lecture which Mr. Herter has addressed to the South Korean ambassador makes a certain amount of sense. If this is not the case there is a notable out-of-world quality about the secretary's dissertation on what is and what is not suited to a 'free democracy'."

to encourage the mobs. This week, when the heavy loss of life occurred, the mobs were on the verge of taking over Seoul. Led by high school and college students, they stormed through the streets, stoning police, burning buildings and commandeering police cars. Some 500 students swarmed over a barbed-wire barricade in front of the official residence of President Rhee. At that point the police opened fire and many members of the mob were killed or wounded. "THIS WAS DEPLORABLE. But at that stage one of two choices was available—bow to mob rule or use force. We think it was necessary to use force and that force will continue to be necessary until order is restored. The alternative is for the Rhee government to abdicate, and we do not suppose this is what the State Department wants. Nevertheless, Mr. Herter's pronouncements will serve to encourage the rioters—a most unfortunate result, unless the State Department is in possession of justifying facts which it has not revealed." The right of revolution is traditional. If there is to be armed revolt, it would appear that the many Communist agents operating South Korea will assist substantially in that direction. Then what will happen on the armistice line as between North and South Korea? Today there are 600,000 South Korean troops and 30,000 American troops garrisoned the line. Does anybody believe a revolution could occur without involving the troops on the armistice line? And if that happens, does it not seem logical that Communist China, which controls the North Korean army, will find some excuse to start hostilities. Will this mean a reopening of the Korean War in the year 1960 when the Republican administration had expected to be telling the American voters that it had achieved peace in Korea and the Far East? MAYBE THE KOREAN crisis will be composed by the steady hand of Syngman Rhee. He is in his 80's and so is Adenauer, but nobody in the State Department interfered when the German leader said he wouldn't run for President but would stay on indefinitely as the chancellor. It's certainly a strange precedent for the United States to be intervening in the internal affairs of another country and particularly at a time when 30,000 American troops are facing an unscrupulous enemy who may not hesitate to take advantage of the disension among the Western allies in the Far East. Marquis Childs De Gaulle Carries Great Influence

WASHINGTON—If Napoleon or Lafayette or even the great King Louis XIV, were to walk onto the contemporary stage they could hardly be endowed with more of the grandeur of history than Charles de Gaulle. Yet, as De Gaulle proved just before his visit to America, he is still very much a figure in the march of events. He comes here against the background of talks with Premier Khrushchev and Prime Minister Macmillan that are believed to have set the pattern for the summit conference. IT WAS DE GAULLE, the realist, who talked with complete candor to the Soviet Premier about the German problems. First, he reaffirmed to Khrushchev his belief, expressed publicly before, that the Oder-Neisse line is the unalterable boundary between Poland and Germany. Second, he made it clear that he has no interest in the reunification of Germany. In other words, he expressed his willingness to accept the status quo in Germany. Of the De Gaulle frankness on the German problem there can be no doubt. According to a report which some knowledgeable diplomats accept, Khrushchev reciprocated by agreeing, in effect, to negotiate at the summit an interim settlement on Berlin. Proof of this is cited in the recent report in Pravda suggesting that such an interim agreement was possible, and even more significantly in the East German statement that there were other ways to settle the Berlin question besides forcing out the Western garrisons. THOSE WHO CREDIT this report and believe that Khrushchev left Paris willing to ratify the status quo foresee the following sequence of events: 1. Agreement in principle at the summit on an interim settlement for Berlin that would leave Western rights unimpaired. 2. The foreign ministers to meet at Geneva shortly after the summit to work out the terms under which, with some alterations, West Berlin would remain for a fixed period of years in the present relationship with West Germany. 3. Upon completion of the work of the foreign ministers, De Gaulle and Macmil-

To Your Good Health Skipped Heart Beats Not Necessarily Trouble

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D. There are three letters today with a common bond—each has to do about tachycardia — will it lead to angina? H. H. asks about "skipping pulse beat." Mrs. C. E. M. inquires about "heart flutter that is accompanied by a brief breathlessness. Is it serious? Does it mean heart disease?" All are types of heart irregularity. Tachycardia (tacky-CAR-dee-un) means rapid heart beat. The skips and flutters need no further description. Ordinarily, we are not aware of our own heart beat. The heart may pound because of exertion, or with an ear pressed to the pillow we may hear the steady thump-thump of the heart. But usually we don't notice the beat unless there is some change in the rhythm. This usually is alarming to the individual, although I must say that it doesn't necessarily mean that anything is wrong. Still, we may get panicky. It's natural to do so. Frankly, a lot of the skips and flutters and so on are self-induced. Some heart muscles are more sensitive, and excessive use of coffee or tobacco can cause skipped beats. This does not as a rule mean heart trouble. Tachycardia, or rapid heart beat, is seen fairly often in tense, apprehensive, nervous people. But it is still more common among those with an overactive thyroid. The thyroid activity may not be apparent as a goiter, yet examination discloses that a fullness in the gland exists. This condition (let's call it a subtle hyperthyroid condition) is a lot commoner in older people than is ordinarily known. Mrs. C.E.M.'s flutter with breathlessness could be what is known as paroxysmal tachycardia, a sudden paroxysm of quickened heart beat. It could also be a type of irregularity called fibrillation or a quivering rather than pumping tendency in the heart. And it is also common in menopause, part of the nervous instability of that phase of life. Now I can't with honesty say that all of these various irregularities are bound to be harmless. If they persist, they ought to be examined, including an electro-cardiogram which will go a long way toward determining the type of irregularity, so you can know for sure whether it is harmless or whether some treatment ought to be started. One thing is certain: You just make yourselves miserable by letting uncertainty harass you. Once you find that the flutters and flutters and hippety-hops are harmless, you can settle back and enjoy life. And sometimes the flutters and skips and flipflops start disappearing, too! "Dear Dr. Molner: Please state how long hot flashes and tense feelings last in a middle-aged woman—K.S." There is no fixed term for hot flashes, the time varying considerably. This trouble can be related to the basic nervous makeup of an individual, which is a most important thing for you to keep in mind. It isn't something that follows a relatively dependable schedule, like the time at which you expect a baby to get teeth. (And even this varies very widely!) Why suffer from sinus trouble? Much can be done to help you, as it is explained in my booklet, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble." To receive your copy, write to me in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling. Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Copyright, 1960, Field Enterprises, Inc.

Phoenix Expands

CHICAGO (AP) — Phoenix led cities last year in annexing territory into its limits with 57 square miles and 118,600 persons. The International City Managers' Assn., says in 1958 Phoenix added 16 square miles and 50,000 persons and already in 1960 another 75 square miles containing 60,000 residents have been annexed. More than half of Phoenix' 430,000 residents and 80 per cent of its 185 square miles have been brought under its jurisdiction within two years. Of the 533 municipalities over 5,000 population which annexed territory in 1959, 150 added one-half square miles or more and 15 extended their boundaries more than 10 square miles. Oilmen Set Studies Of Industry's Ails

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)—The nation's Independent oil operators begin Monday two major meetings for study of the industry's ailments.

Domestic crude production has dropped sharply. Depressed prices have shown further signs of weakness. New imports quotas for heavy fuel oils are drawing sharp criticism. Time is running short on the industry's hopes for congressional approval of a natural gas bill this year.

The 7,000-member Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPEA) opens a three-day mid-year meeting in Denver. The 5,000-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Assn. (TIPO) begins its annual meeting a week later at Tyler.

The Denver sessions will include the first meeting of a special IPEA committee organized for a comprehensive study of the causes of depressed conditions in the domestic oil industry.

Heading the 42-member group is Gordon Simpson, former member of the Texas Supreme Court and immediate past president of IPEA.

Other problems Simpson's group will study include rising production capacity, high inventories of both crude and products, excessive refinery runs, conservation practices, rising costs, well spacing, drilling rates, competition between fuels, and tight money policies.

An IPEA subcommittee has drafted a new congressional bill to relieve gas producers from federal utility-type controls and price regulations. A decision is expected at Denver on whether to push for quick action before Congress adjourns this summer.

John Hund, chairman of the TIPO gas committee, has endorsed the IPEA proposal. He also has recommended TIPO give the bill enthusiastic support should IPEA seek its introduction and enactment.

Domestic crude production has declined from 7,318,210 to 7,031,760 barrels a day since March 1. An even sharper drop is expected in May. Texas this week cut its May allowable by 257,488 barrels a day. Other states were considering cut-backs.

A&M Course For Engineers Begins Monday

COLLEGE STATION—The second session of the Advanced Drilling Engineering Course for personnel of the petroleum industry will be held April 25—May 6, at Texas A&M College. It will be a two-week course consisting of eight hours a day lecture, five days a week, conducted by the college's petroleum engineering department and sponsored by the American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors.

The lectures will be presented by members of the faculty of the department of petroleum engineering and will be supplemented by lectures presented by outstanding men of the oil industry itself, most of whom appeared in the first session of the course.

"In view of the fact that some of the curricula has been changed and revised," John R. Pedigo, associate professor of the PE Dept., said "it therefore will be presented by new invited personnel from the oil industry. The industry speakers selected to present particular subjects appearing in the course curricula, have been chosen because of their recognized ability and knowledge in specific areas of interest to the drilling engineer."

Instructors include Frank Singletary, Houston Oil Field Material Co., Inc., W. O. Van Dyke, Magnet Cove Barium Corp., James N. McAskill, Magnet Cove Barium Corp., W. M. Koch, Reed Roller Bit Co., Douglas Ragland, Humble Oil and Refining Co., all of Houston; H. G. (Hal) Benson, H. C. Smith Tool Co., Compton, Calif.

Pressure Spurs Rig Upgrading

Drilling contractors with the financial capacity to buy improved drilling equipment and supplies are increasing competitive pressures on drilling contractors less suitably financed. The forces at work are aptly demonstrated in a recent study by drilling magazine of 209 contractors—large and small—owning a total of 482 rotary rigs and 216 cable tool rigs throughout the United States.

Basically, the pattern favors the soundly-financed rig owner with an eye and the resources for newer and more modern rig gas well drilling equipment to maintain or surpass his existing competitive position. As a reflection of the growing necessity for upgrading present capital equipment, this sample of 209 contractors plans a general eight per cent increase in capital expenditures in 1960 over 1959—with still more increases in sight for 1961.

The attitude serves only to emphasize an upgrading program that has been building up for more than two years. Late in 1959, for example, another study showed rig owners contemplating the upgrading of 61 per cent of available rigs—less than one-fourth of which would be undertaken during conditions existing at the time. 93 per cent of the needed programs were seen as forthcoming after an improvement of domestic oil industry conditions.

True, the squeeze of 1957 and 1958 postponed rig upgrading programs to a large degree, but 1959 saw more pent-up plans at last taking shape. More aggressive rig owners began to reach for their "survival kits"—in terms of more depth capacity, horsepower, portability, pump capacity or other features found in improved capital equipment. A backward glance would indicate that the long period of rig attrition has not yet taken its full toll of casualties. But the contractor with the wherewithal to upgrade will benefit by the changes in the period just ahead.

Spraberry Flood Program Approved

The Railroad Commission of Texas has approved a request by Southland Royalty Co. and other operators for the first water flood project in the huge Spraberry Trend Area field.

Southland Royalty, operator of the 15,776-acre flood unit, announced in Midland actual work will start about July 1.

The water flood will be the largest ever attempted in a fractured sand formation.

Included in the secondary recovery program are 110 wells. Fifty-two operators and 310 royalty owners are participating in the program.

The water flood area is in Reagan County. It is about nine miles long, from north to south, and about three miles wide, with the south end three miles northwest of Stiles.

The flood program is expected to cost about $2,500,000 primary investment, or slightly less than $25,000 per well.

Operators expect to increase the final recovery from the 15,776 acres an additional 19,000,000 barrels of oil, giving the 110 wells a lifetime aggregate production of 29,000,000 barrels of oil.

Operators believe there are only 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 barrels of oil left in the Southland Royalty area which can be recovered by primary methods. The 110 wells to date have produced about 10,000,000 barrels of oil.

In addition to the Southland Royalty operation, four other flood projects have been announced for the Spraberry Trend, and as many more are in the planning stage.

Offshore Oil Activity Rises

A firm rise in drilling and production off Louisiana and California plus strong interest in under-water leases this year is launching U. S. offshore oil into a decade of solid expansion, declares Petroleum Week, McGraw-Hill publication, in a special report on the industry.

Off Louisiana, drilling activity will increase between 5 and 10 per cent in 1960. The number of drilling permits issued last December almost doubled to 80 from the 44 issued in December, 1958.

Drilling off California should increase 16 per cent as operators continue feeling their way across the more steeply pitched Pacific Continental Shelf. California offshore production has not climbed significantly over-all, but output from newer leases in 1959 showed a promising rise.

Production off Louisiana showed a sharp increase. Natural gas output in 1959 climbed 36.8 per cent above 1958 to 251.2 billion cubic feet, casinghead gas went up 35.9 per cent to 68.2 billion cubic feet and both crude and condensate output rose by more than one-fourth.

Offshore Texas prospects, however, are bleaker than ever, with 1960 drilling and production "no better than 1959," during which substantial declines occurred.

Of equal long term significance to current activities was the opening of oil lease bids on 1.6 million acres of submerged federal lands off Louisiana and Texas this week in New Orleans.

The acreage involved was considerably more than the combined total acreage of all previous Gulf sales and followed last year's lucrative Louisiana state lease sale.

The Bureau of Land Management had to have at least one request for each deepwater tract from a qualified company before it could put the tract up for bids.

Pressure on operators to test drill the Outer Continental Shelf leases will not be as great as it is to drill state-leased inshore tracts. Federal rents are lower and an operator often avoids validating such holdings until near the end of his five-year lease.

Zapata To Drill 15 Gas Explorers

Zapata Petroleum Co. of Midland will start by May 15 on a gas exploration program calling for the drilling of 15 wells on a 160,000-acre spread in Alberta, Canada.

The large block of leases is in the southwest part of the province. Zapata, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Zapata Canadian Petroleum Corp., secured the acreage in a farmout deal with British American Oil Co.

The 15 wells are to be drilled during a nine-month period. J. Hugh Liedtke, Zapata president said. The 160,000-acre spread is designated the Forrestburg-Donalds block.

There already are 17 shut in gas wells—either on or offsetting the acreage—he said. These producers create 30 direct or offset locations.

Two of the explorations scheduled in the program will go to approximately 6,000 feet to test the Blue Hills Lake zone—Devonian. The other 13 are projected to around 4,500 feet to a Paleozoic horizon similar to the Mississippi.

At its option, Zapata may drill an additional 15 wells on the Forrestburg-Donalds block during a second nine-month period, Liedtke revealed.

The Canadian government recently issued an order allowing natural gas to be exported to northern and western regions of the United States. As a result of that action, Zapata expects to have an outlet for its gas production no later than November 1.

Presently the nearest gas gathering system comes within 12 miles of the block, Liedtke said. During recent months, Zapata completed two gas discoveries on its 12,800-acre block in the Hussar area of Southeast Alberta. Another exploratory operation will be started on that property soon, the president reported.

Zapata's Canadian activities are directed from an office established during 1959 at Calgary.

Roy J. Winchester is manager of that office. He resigned as manager of land operations in Canada for Skelly Oil Company to join Zapata.

Cosden Completes Queen Project

Cosden Petroleum Corporation No. 27 University is a McFarland field completion in the Queen sand of Andrews County. Initial pumping potential is 96.05 barrels of 32 gravity oil per day, with 25 per cent water.

Operator set 5 1/2 inch casing at the total depth of 4,945 feet and fraced with 21,000 gallons. Top of pay is 4,901 feet with perforations between 4,901-11 feet and 4,915-25 feet. Gas-oil ratio was too small to measure. Elevation is 3,082 feet.

Well location is 660 feet from north and 1,986 feet from west lines of section 26, block 4, University Lands survey.

Conservation Group Will Request 'Fixed' Allowable

The Texas Conservation Group, comprised of a large number of major and independent oil operators who have been studying the problems of waterflood and pressure maintenance operations in the Texas proration picture, will urge the State Railroad Commission at a special statewide hearing on June 16 in Austin to adopt a relatively fixed allowable that will permit operators flexibility in production so that they may meet the varying conditions encountered in operations.

Announcement of the position the group will take at the special hearing was made by Kenneth L. Smith, vice president of Ambassador Oil Corporation and chairman of the group.

"Our group feels that waterflood and pressure maintenance operations are part of and not outside the general problem of proration," Smith declared in his announcement. "However, these operations have special problems in connection with input of fluids to increase the maximum efficient rate of oil recovery and to permit production of oil that otherwise would be left in the ground."

The group believes, Smith declared, "That operators of many pressure maintenance and waterflood programs need a relatively-fixed allowable which will permit planning of the programs."

However, Smith added, "Operators need flexibility in production of that allowable to meet the varying conditions encountered in operations. Our group recognizes the market demands and aims for a practical method of proration of waterflood and pressure maintenance operation."

The Texas Conservation Group is soliciting support from oil operators for its presentation before the Railroad Commission at the special hearing, Smith reported. He announced that area chairmen have been appointed and that they will contact operators throughout Texas on an individual basis and through area meetings.

Five Wildcats Staked In Basin

Five wildcat locations were staked in the Permian Basin Saturday, each in a different county.

The new probes include the counties of Andrews, Ector, Kimble, Pecos and Terrell.

Operators are Hunt Oil Company of Dallas, Pecos County; Texaco Inc., Andrews County; Anderson-Prichard Oil Corp., Ector County; Utex Exploration Company of Abilene, Kimble County, and Sinclair Oil and Gas Co., Terrell County.

'Economy' Engines May Cost Refiner

If the auto makers have their way, their "economy" engines could cost the oil industry one billion dollars in the next five years, declares Petroleum Week, McGraw-Hill publication.

They are asking oil refiners to step up octane ratings of their regular gasoline in order to satisfy the claims they have made for the economy engines. And they want the hike in octanes without any extra cost to the car owner—which would be very costly to the oil industry.

On the other hand, if the increased costs were passed on to the motorists, many motorists now using regular gasoline would be forced to pay for an extravagant waste of octane.

The oil industry's solution to the auto makers' problem is that premium grade gasoline should be recommended for those so-called economy engines that do not perform satisfactorily on regular grade.

The auto makers' problem, according to one oil company engineer, is that the economy engines in the standard-size cars, and the engines designed for the new compact automobiles, are not obtaining the performance and miles-per-gallon in all sections of the country that the auto maker claimed they would get.

"Even our own laboratory and road tests of these engines show that the mileage is well under the 25 miles per gallon that has been claimed for some of these engines," he says.

While economy engines were designed for regular grade in the 92 octane range, one engineer comments, some auto makers would like to see the rating boosted several numbers—with no increase in price to motorists.

Increasing regular grade octanes to the degree sought by the auto maker would pose a serious financial problem to the oil industry, some processors charge. Refiners' margins—already tight—would be subjected to further downward pressures, and many refiners, caught in the struggle to stay up with competition, could find their margins fading away entirely.

Each jump in octane number represents an additional industry outlay of about $100 million per year in increased operating costs, the magazine says. And unlike most quality improvements, this increase in octane number would be of no significance to the majority of regular grade users.

More important to processors than the cost of octane increases, however, is the revenue loss that will occur as customers switch from premium gasoline to the upgraded regular, the magazine states.

Such a loss of premium sales revenue can be more than twice as large as the cost of increasing the octane on regular," a processor reports.

Shell Wins Safety Award

For the sixth time in 12 years Shell Pipe Line Corporation has received the first place award for large pipeline companies in the annual National Safety Contest.

Shell Pipe Line's 1,200 employees in 12 states worked 2,597,745 man-hours in 1959 with only two disabling injuries. This represented an accident frequency rate of .77 injuries per million man hours worked—the best record in the corporation's history. Average frequency rate for the 21 oil and gas pipeline companies in the group A those operating more than one million man hours yearly) last year was 5.23.

Romac Project Flowing To Test

In Borden County, Champlin Oil Company No. 2-A Miller is flowing to test but operator has not set gauges.

This Romac field location, probing for the Strawn and Ellenburger, had slight shows of oil Friday from the Ellenburger open hole section between 8,571-81 feet. It flowed 74.24 barrels of oil through an 8-64 inch choke during an eight hour test.

270 BITS TURNING

Working Rotary Count Shows 3 Rig Increase

The Permian Basin counted 270 rotary rigs making hole at week's end, an increase of three over the preceding week.

The Basin area exploration and development program is running behind that of last year when 373 rigs were kept busy. The survey is made by Reed Roller Bit Co.

Lea County, N. M., continues to top all counties in the Basin in number of rigs operating with 42. Andrews County trailed with 37.

In the local eight county area, three counties had four rigs operating. They were Dawson, which last week had only one; Garza, which increased one rig, and Borden, Martin and Mitchell counties had three rigs going, Glasscock, two, and Sterling County, one.

A report by counties, with previous week's totals in parentheses, includes:

Andrews 37 (37), BORDEN 3

Texans Log 190 New Oil Wells

AUSTIN (AP)—The Railroad Commission reported 190 oil well completions last week making a total of 3,003 for the year. There were 3,633 completions for the period last year.

The commission reported 73 gas well completions and 103 dry holes for the week. Wildcats included 9 oil and 5 gas wells and 67 dusters.

A total of 144 wells were plugged including 28 oil and 2 gas.

Total average calendar day allowable was 2,814,830 barrels a day compared to 2,904,089 April 16.

COMING

What's ahead for America? Must economic growth dictate soaring inflation? Must stabilization mean stagnation? A resounding "no" on both counts is the answer of 64 well-informed representatives of business, labor and government. Meeting recently under the auspices of the American Assembly, they agreed by working hard together we can achieve both reasonably stable prices and growth, while reducing unemployment to the minimum. Key to these goals is steadily rising productivity.

Get the facts on this complex but crucial subject. Write for free booklet, "Prices, Growth and You," to American Assembly, Columbia University, New York 27, N. Y.

HIS LONG HOSPITAL STAY ENDED
Charles Edward Gipson with nurse Miss Elizabeth Hines, R.N.

It's Lonesome Around The Hospital, Charlie's Gone

By JACK RADER
Operation "Charlie" is over at Malone-Hogan Hospital. "The End" written to the story of the four-year old boy who stole the hearts of staff members and visitors alike. A faint air of sadness now shows on the faces of all at the hospital—Charlie is gone. Nothing happened to him, nothing except that he got well. But he went home—this is why the doctors and nurses and others who knew the little boy are in a mild state of bereavement. The story started back on Jan. 22 in an empty motel room. Charles Edward Gipson and some other youngsters were playing in the room which was heated by a small stove. It was too cold outside to play, and the room offered warmth. BADLY BURNED Charles got too close to the stove, brushed against it, and his clothes caught fire. Before help could be found and the flames extinguished, Charles was terribly burned on his abdomen and right leg. Taken first to the VA Hospital, Charles ended up at Malone-Hogan. It took a total of 10 operations, mostly skin grafts, before he was on the road to recovery. The burns on his abdomen healed first, his physician said, but the leg is still in the healing process. Charlie is not putting any weight on the leg yet, hence he will use his crutches until the skin grafts are secure. It may be the sight of a little boy hobbling around the hospital on crutches would be enough to cause a slight lump in the throats. It might be true, except that Charlie did anything but hobble. The crutches failed to slow him down at all. If he considered them a handicap, his bright-eyed alertness and continuous smile did not indicate it. REAL CHARMER His smile and obvious charm were enough to win the affections of all the nurses and doctors on the hospital staff. Visitors were not excluded, either, and Charles' room was a showcase of gifts, toys of all sorts which his friends showered on him. The entire hospital was his playground. He was permitted the run of the halls and bobbed back and forth from one end to the other

County Court Has Hung Jury

Nearly every thing possible happened during last week when the County Court was trying criminal cases. The week came to a close on Friday with a hung jury. Earlier in the week, a jury had convicted one defendant, acquitted another. One case had to be thrown out because the evidence had disappeared, and one of the defendants booked for trial chose to enter a plea of guilty. Friday afternoon a jury which was deliberating the guilt or innocence of Johnnie Leon Morrison, charged with DWI, could not agree on a verdict. After two hours, the jurors were excused and Judge Ed Carpenter entered a mistrial in the case. Judge Carpenter said the jury stood 4 to 2. The majority, he was informed, favored an acquittal. Wayne Burns, county attorney, said that despite the ups and downs which marked the week's activities, he was pleased with the results obtained. Since the docket was prepared, he said seven defendants listed on it have entered pleas of guilty. The results of the week of jury trials, he pointed out, has at least reduced the docket and made it more current.

French Killers

PARIS (AP) — Heart ailments, cancer and brain hemorrhages—in that order—were the main killers of half a million French last year, the government reports.

of the building, a bundle of four-year old fireball on crutches. He became a pet of the nurses. His doctor recalled warmly how well Charlie obeyed his orders and directions of the nurses. All the attention lavished on him failed to spoil him, the physician said. The doctor said that when instructed not to bear weight on his right leg, Charlie lived up to the order to the letter. LARGE FAMILY "Outsiders" were his only companions during his stay, except for the one or two times a month when his mother or father could come to see him. Charlie's father, Bill Gipson, is a mechanic who has to work where he can find a job. Shortly after his boy was admitted to the hospital Gipson had to move on to Odessa. With six other children to take care of the Gipsons' time in Big Spring was only a something. Now that the boy has rejoined his family and gone to Odessa, things just aren't the same at the hospital and aren't likely to be for a long time—Charlie is gone.

Spaciousness Is Word For Driver Home

By LUCILLE PICKLE

The spacious new home of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Driver on what is tentatively called Country Club Road has everything from decor established by a friend's gift to a section to take care of the men's roping hobby.

The red rug - textured brick house is located on 20 acres of land southeast of the city and covers 2,800 feet of living space in addition to a three-space carport.

Front entrance is gained through an oversized door which opens into an entry hall laid in quarry tile. The large area that is the living space for the family encompasses the den, dining area and kitchen. This floor is laid in tessera corian in beige tones. All paneling throughout the house is Philippine mahogany, which includes the cabinets and folding doors that open between the living room and den, making an unusually large entertaining area. When closed, the doors give the impression of a solid wall.

An oil painting, done for Mrs. Driver by Bo Bowen, served as the basis for the decor in the formal living room. The picture features a pale yellow vase holding magnolia blossoms against a dark background. The work has been matted in red velvet and the frame selected for it is a four-inch hand-carved Italian design. Drapes for the room bring out the champagne yellow of the picture and are patterned in a floral duotone. French provincial furniture will be used in this room.

The corner fireplace in the den has a heavy slab set in to form the mantel. Connecting with the fireplace to cover the wall is a shelf section that also houses the television. The lower section contains closed storage space which is more than adequate throughout the house.

At the opposite end of the room is the dining area. This is beautifully walled with the china storage doored in attractive sections fashioned from expanded metal painted black and framed with paneling. Beneath the china cabinet is a table top that can be used for serving; the other end has been designed as a desk. Here, set into the wall, is the control panel for the intercom in the house.

The U-shaped kitchen is brightened by the use of aqua Formica on the work areas of the cabinets which extend to the ceilings. Mrs. Driver has solved the problem of what to do with the mixer when it is not in use. . . . She had a little cabinet built just beneath the upper one in the corner and the mixer is its only occupant. Coppertone has been used in the range top and built-in oven.

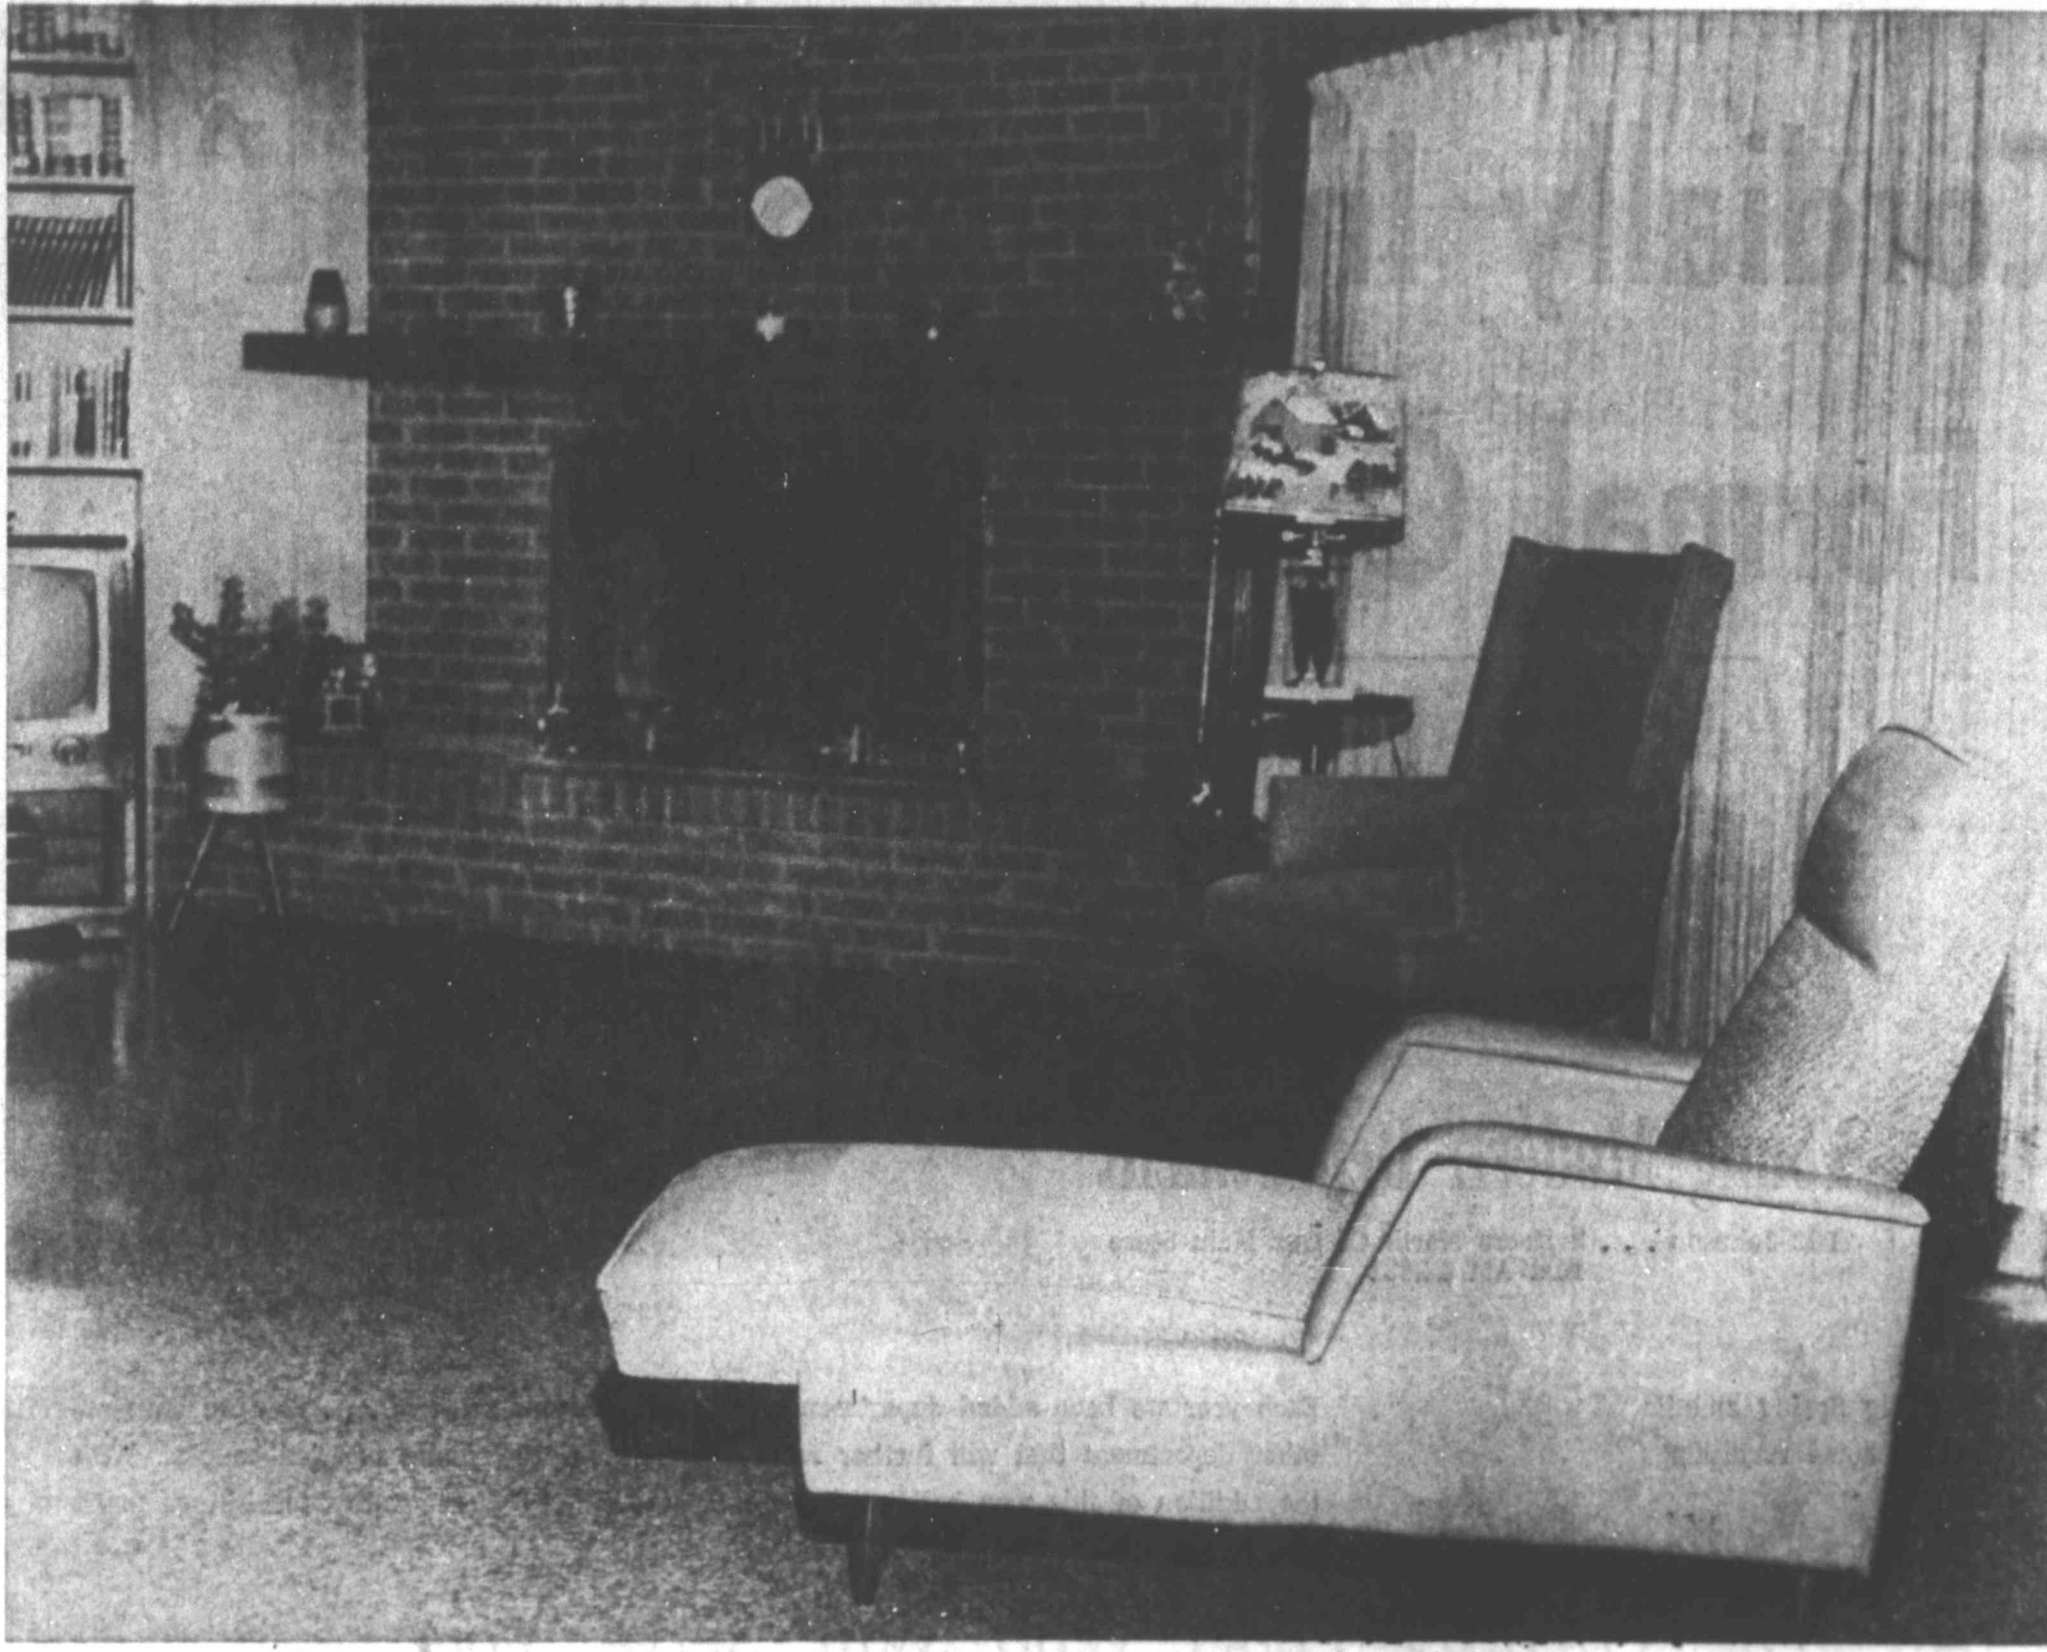

What the lady of the house describes as her office is a well equipped laundry room which also houses the deep freezer.

One of the most important parts of the house to Driver and son, Skipper, is the space that has been allotted to them. Right off the back entrance is a 'mud' closet. Here the men of the house deposit their muddy boots and soiled or wet clothing. The closet has a depressed floor with a drain in the center and a vent at the top. When the men come in from the roping arena at the rear of the lot, they can disrobe and then shower in the conveniently located third bath in the house. Just across the hall is the room which Mr. Driver plans to equip as an office. Here he has a cabinet which holds his gun collection. There is also additional bed space here.

Down the long hall, which leads to the bedroom and other baths, is the master bedroom; it is done in pale blue. Floral drapes that combine bright greens and blues form an especially pretty background for the king size bed which is covered with a spread of matching material. Large clothes closets are on either side of the short hall that leads from the sleeping room to the large dressing room and bath. This is done in blue tile and features a half wall mirror. A louvered door swings between the dressing area and bath.

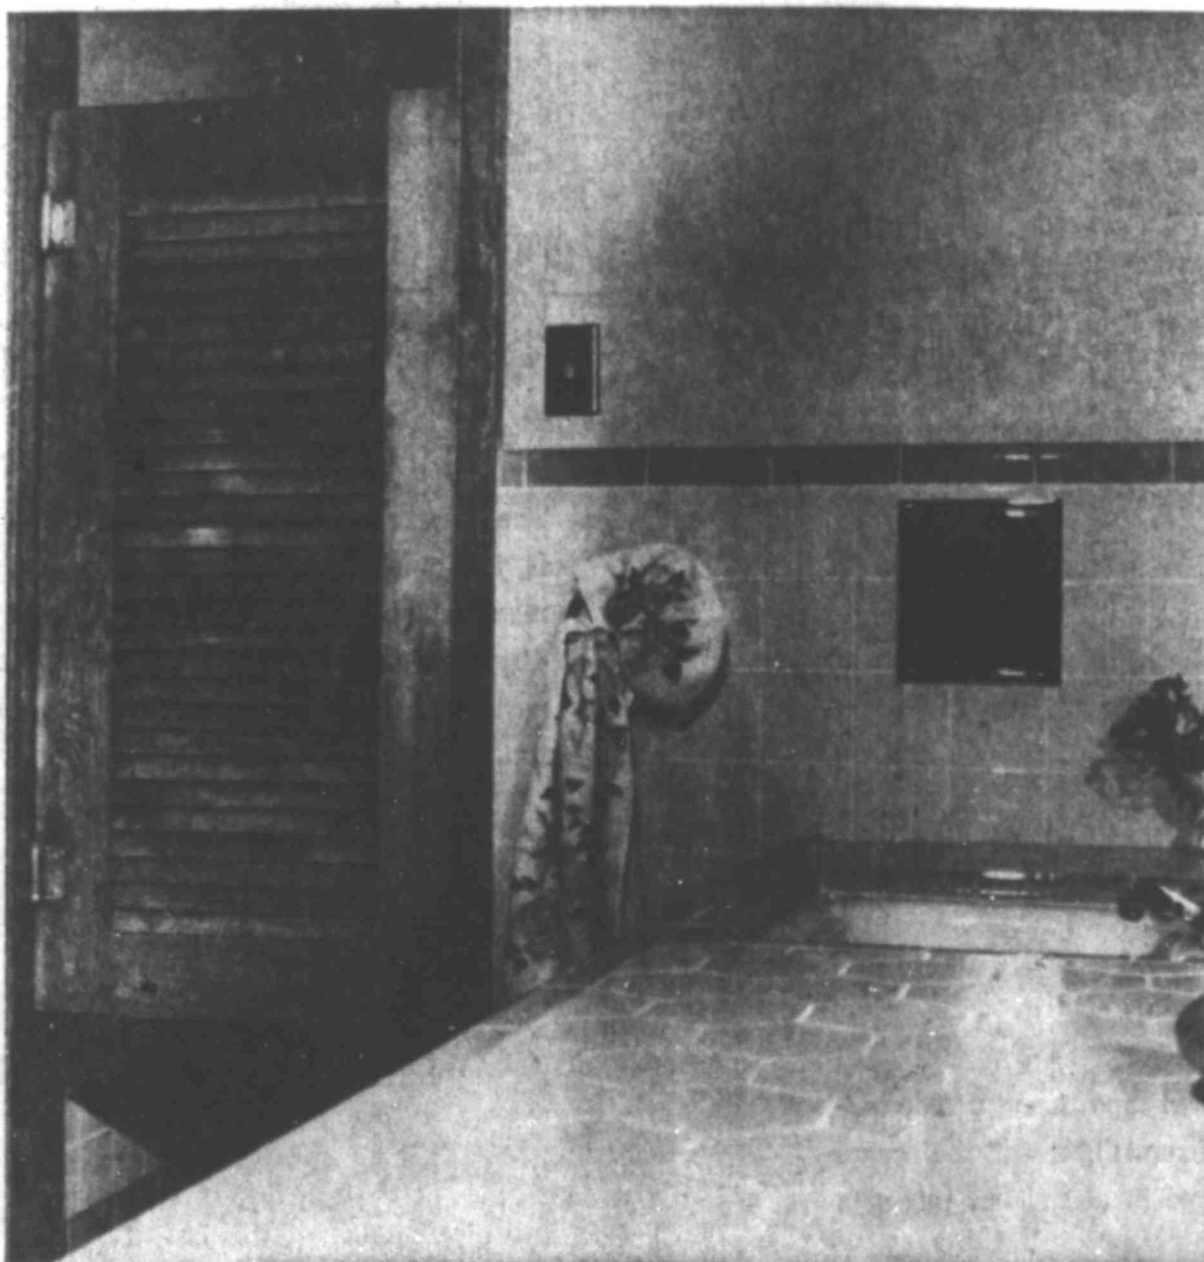

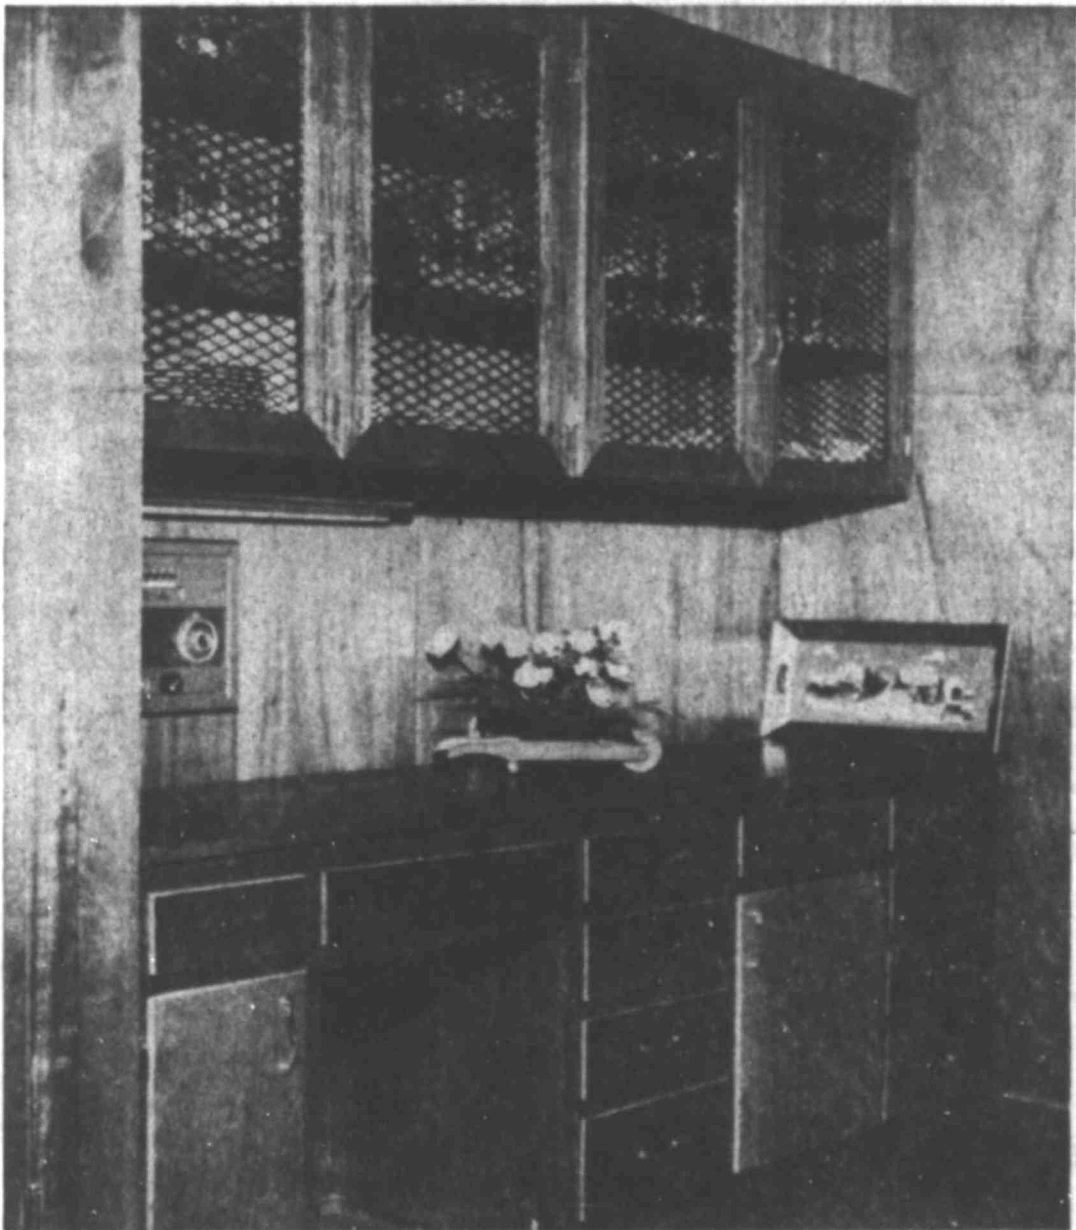

The living room and the hall leading to the sleeping area and bedrooms are carpeted in rose beige wool.

Skipper's room is typically young - man - with - roping on his mind. A three section screen holds all his numbers from roping competition and other memorabilia of a high school sophomore. Not only does young Driver rope, he has supplied the family with a number of very good oil paintings which his mother has used in decorating.

EXPANDED METAL PAINTED black adds a striking note to the china storage in the dining area of the Driver home shown below. There is no glass used in the doors, framed in Philippine mahogany which is also used in the wall paneling and in the cabinet and desk space below. On the wall is the control panel for the intercommunication system.

COMFORT IS THE KEYNOTE of the big family living area (pictured above) in the Driver home on 20 acres of land southeast of Big Spring. The fireplace of red rug-textured brick is set in the corner, flanked one side by a large shelf wall with storage space beneath, and on the other by large window expanse that overlooks the terrace.

WOMEN'S NEWS

THE BIG SPRING HERALD

SECTION C

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, APRIL 24, 1960

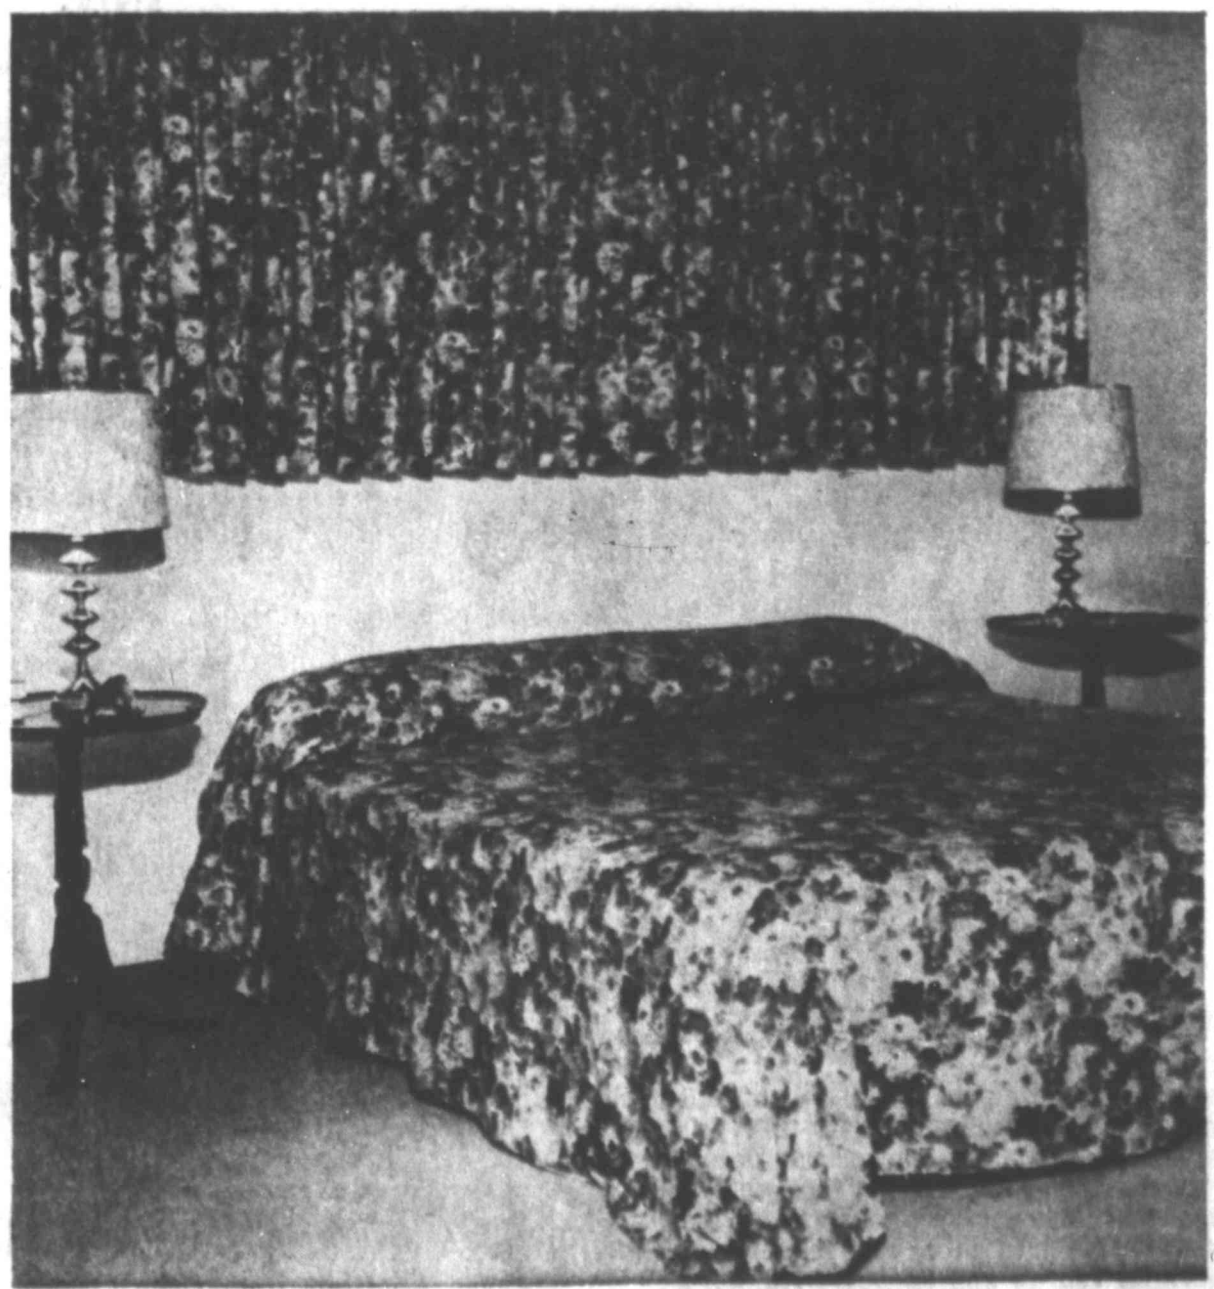

A SWINGING, LOUVERED door (picture above) separates the blue tile dressing room from the bath area in the master bath. This room also features a half wall mirror over the dressing table.

DECOR FOR THE FORMAL living room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Driver is taken from the soft champagne yellow of the vase in the oil painting shown at left and done for the Drivers by Bo Bowen. The mat is of red velvet and the hand-carved frame is Italian design. Here Mrs. Driver shows the picture by the drapes that are in duotone champagne color.

A MASSIVE BED FOR the master bedroom (picture at right) is the focal point of the room which has walls of pale blue. The draperies are in hues of bright green and blue. Mrs. Driver has extended the pattern by covering the bed in matching material.

'ROUND TOWN

With Lucille Pickle

"Fashions in Flowers," the spring show sponsored by the Council of Big Spring Garden Clubs was a delightful eye-opener to many out-of-state people who viewed the work of local amateurs here Friday.

However, not only people from other states were amazed; local people are always somewhat surprised to find such a variety of roses, iris, perennials, annuals and bulbs displayed. The parrot tulip interested me. Having managed to get some ordinary tulips out of the ground this year, even we may try something different in the next few years.

The judges and I never agree on what is the winner in arranging. Of course this is strictly to myself that I judge but never have they picked the same one I would have picked in this division. However, I did agree on the winner in "The Oriental Look" which appeared to have been an arrangement made from seeding onion or garlic plants. Anyway, it looked oriental.

Mrs. Overton Entertains Club

FORSAN — Mrs. Jesse Overton entertained the Pioneer Sewing Club in her home. Fourteen people were present, including Mrs. Nell Moore of Kermit, Mrs. J. L. Overton, and Mrs. Mac Robinson, guests.

Reunion Is Held By W. H. Padgett

FORSAN — A reunion of the W. H. Padgett family brought children and grandchildren to Forsan. Coming were the Dane Lee and Harry Wayland families of Jal, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Padgett Jr. and children of Lubbock; the Bill Bennetts of Big Spring, and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Padgett.

Mrs. Vera Harris made a trip to Robert Lee to visit her daughter's family, the James Craigs. The Ronnie Laniers have been visiting their parents in Sicksles and Hinton, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Starr were Dallas visitors with their daughter, Mrs. Don Davis, and family. Hobbs, N. M., was the destination of Mrs. Jim Miller, who was a guest in the home of the Vernon Cannons.

Attending funeral services for C. C. Kent were Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Wash and Mrs. Vera Harris. Mr. Kent was a former Forsan resident. An employee of Humble Oil Co., he retired about two years ago and was living in Snyder.

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Camp attended the funeral services of a friend in Sweetwater.

unusual gas light that stands by their front walk.

Mr. and Mrs. Nugent acquired the light from a gas company, who in turn had gotten it from the city of Boston. The lamp was once an old carbide lamp that lighted the streets of the famous old city. Marks made by the lamp lighter are still in evidence underneath the light, which was patented in 1899.

"We were told that the original posts weighed 700 pounds each because of so many coats of paint," says Margie Nugent. The original post, which stood 11 feet high, could not be shipped with the lamp.

This unusual family has moved here recently from Dallas, but they are no strangers to West Texas. Nugent worked for 23 years with the Magnolia Oil Co., and was stationed in Midland over eight years of that time.

"Once we counted that we had lived in 14 different states," recalls Mrs. Nugent. With her husband in geophysics and exploration, their work has taken them all over the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Nugent met while students at a college in Ruston, La. Nugent is a native of Louisiana, while his wife claims Carthage as her home.

The couple's only child, Rod, is a freshman at Rice University in Houston.

Hunting and fishing interest the entire family. The only golfer in the group is young Rod.

Gardening is Margie Nugent's special talent. While living in Midland she was a member of two garden clubs. "I've already discovered that gardening in Big Spring is going to be entirely different from gardening in Midland," says Mrs. Nugent. "The soil here isn't the same."

The active housewife is a member of the National Association of Parliamentarians and is making plans to attend the organization's state convention in Dallas May 6-7.

Nugent is active in the Society of Exploration Geophysicists. He is a member of the Permian Basin chapter that has its headquarters in Midland.

Antiques Good For Investment

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

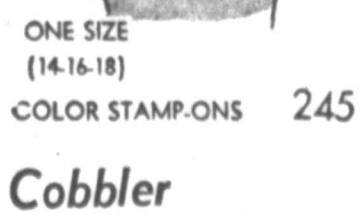

Time was when only well-heeled types could afford antiques. The new vogue in the use of old furnishings, however, make them good investments for all home-makers. If you make the right purchase, you can sell your antique for your original investment or more.

Take the current craze for decorating with shop signs — store symbols, trade marks or what-have-you. The fad has traveled from the walls, where such objects make interesting contributions to the decor, to coffee tables. One can build a table that is in fashion by appropriating a sign, putting legs on it, and the entire cost might be less than that of a modern table that depreciates in value when you move it into your living room.

You may find a sign that bears your own name. Or there could be one that strikes your fancy because it is unusual. Or maybe grandpa stashed away in the barn or attic an old shingle from his tavern, bakery, feed store or watch repair shop.

Popular signs at the New York Antiques Fair include those from bootery shops, banks, insurance offices, taverns. Materials needed to change a simple oblong sign into a coffee table, for instance, include four legs of brass, wrought iron or wood, four flanges, 16 screws, a screw driver and maybe a nail or two. The legs are the type that are available usually at local lumber shops.

Antique dealers suggest that an old sign should be left in its original state. Varnish and other methods of making the sign look chic will alter the feel and look of the wood, and defeat the purpose of displaying your coffee table or wall decoration. The table's surface could be protected with glass, however, if you are a stickler for modern innovations.

Gardeners Win Honors At State Convention

Mrs. A. C. Bass has returned from the convention of state garden clubs held during the week in Dallas.

With her she brought news of awards made to the Big Spring Garden Club, now scheduled in the advanced club status. The group won second place in the state on the scrapbook, which was compiled by Mrs. L. W. Harris.

Mrs. Obie Bristow, a member of the Big Spring Garden Club, made the district scrapbook, which was presented first place in the state. The local Junior Garden Club won an award for having the best programs, and the yearbook of the group was given honorable mention. About 400 visitors to the convention were entertained with a breakfast Wednesday morning followed by a tour of several Dallas homes and gardens.

A luncheon at the Dallas Country Club was also a highlight of the session, which included demonstrations of flower arranging.

Awards To Be Given Pupils By P-TA

Medals for outstanding students will be awarded by the Knot P-TA it was decided at a meeting Thursday evening at the school. Thirty-six of the medals will be ordered.

The third grade won the room count at the meeting, which was made up of a talent show; 16 ribbons were presented to winners in six categories. Music was furnished by Tom Castle, Arnold Lloyd and Jess Miles.

DR. AND MRS. H. M. JARRATT plan a visit to Jacksonville where they will visit his mother, Mrs. S. H. Jarratt, and then go to Waco where they will be the guests of her brother and his family, Dr. and Mrs. Joe Weldon Bailey. They will make the trip following the dental meeting this weekend in Dallas.

THE DOUGLASS WIEHES have spent the weekend in Midland where Mrs. Wiehe was pianist for the Midland Symphony at the children's concert Saturday and the formal concert in the evening. She has been the accompanist for this season.

The 20 little guests of RICKY RAY NEWTON were so fascinated by the birthday centerpiece at his party recently they were completely disinterested in playing out of doors. Ricky's mother, MRS. BOB NEWTON, had fashioned a 20-car train for her 5-year-old son. And what a train! The steam engine was made of chocolate cake, the wheels were of marshmallows, the cross bars were licorice sticks and the bell was a chocolate kiss. Gravel for the roadbed was of vari-colored shot. Each little guest was served a box car which was iced in pastel colors and topped with a blue candle. Denise Withers came over from Snyder to join the other guests.

Sue Brunson Bride Of Eddie Lamb

In an informal double ring ceremony, read Friday evening, Sue Brunson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Brunson, 809 W. 7th St., became the bride of A. E. C. Eddie Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude McCrary, Denver, Colo.

The service was read by the Rev. Cecil Rhodes in his home with members of the family and close friends present.

Mrs. Jerry Phillips was the bride's matron of honor and Jerry Richardson was best man.

For her wedding the bride wore a white lace dress with cap sleeves over taffeta. The narrow belt was of white satin. Her white hat held a short veil and her gloves were white. A shoulder corsage was of white feathered chrysanthemums.

The new Mrs. Lamb is a member of the junior class of Big Spring High School and is employed by C. R. Anthony Co. The bridegroom is stationed at Webb AFB. They will make their home at 1304 1/2 Nolan.

Following the rites a reception was held in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. H. Burchett, 1304 Nolan.

Aunts of the bride, Mrs. Robert Kinder of Abilene and Mrs. Willis Burchett, served refreshments from the bride's table, covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and daisies. White candles in single holders burned on either side of the floral piece.

BUTTONED IN

Jump Suit Fashioned For Beauty At Home

For the terrace, patio or living-room life, Tom Brigance does a lovely lounge suit.

Literally a jump suit, it has set-in pockets on each side and buttoned shoulders.

The wide boat neck and armholes are bound with contrast. A self belt cinches the waist and there are only four basic pieces for the whole outfit.

Try linen, denim, novelty cottons, shantung, plain or printed rayons or silks, oriental prints, brocades or silks, lightweight woolens. For the contrast: glazed cotton, satin or wool crepe.

From this size chart select the one size best for you. Our measurements are comparable to ready-to-wear sizes.

Size 12 requires 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for one-piece lounge suit and 1/2 yard of 30-inch material for contrast.

Spring Flowers May Be Gained By Variety Of Plants

Flowers on the property during the springtime are demanded by practically every home owner says the American Association of Nurserymen. The problem is not one of having flowers, as almost every property owner has some spring flowers, but rather: "What flowers will best serve the needs of the home owner?"

Some flowering shrubs almost could be called "prestige plants." Into this category fall azaleas, rhododendrons, camellias, roses, as well as a number of others. The star magnolia, or magnolia stellata, might be included, as well as some of the viburnums, for example, as well as many others.

Then there are shrubs which are more common, yet have considerable color and beauty like forsythia, abelia, philadelphus, weigela and similar plants. These always will be desirable.

Perhaps what you really need is a flowering tree to add height to the property, or to help frame the house with bloom. Spring flowering plants will look well anywhere after a drab winter season but they will be even more striking if properly placed on the property. Here your nurseryman will come in handy. Discuss with him the idea of having lovely spring flowers to ask for his suggestions. One thing you will want is a succession of bloom so you will have something in flower at all times. Your nurseryman can advise on this, too.

Pear, Cheese Are Pleasant Blend

New version of fresh pear and cheese salad.

PORT SALUT PEAR SALAD
Ingredients: 4 large ripe pears, 1/2-cup cream style cottage cheese, 1 cup loosely-packed coarsely-grated Port Salut cheese, 1/2-cup blanched toasted coarsely-chopped almonds, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise-type salad dressing, romaine or other salad greens.

Method: Pare pears; cut in half, remove stem structure. Mix cheeses, 1/2-cup of the almonds and the salad dressing, stuff pear cavities with mixture. Garnish tops with remaining almonds. Serve on romaine. Makes 4 servings.

Gay Decorations

Now that spring gardening season is upon us, you can use the bright pictures of flowers and vegetables on seed packets to answer the youngsters' age-old question, "What can I do now?" Let them cut out the gay pictures and decorate wooden bowls, trays, canisters—or even the garbage pail. Merely paste the decorations on and cover with a light coat of shellac to make them waterproof.

Superstitious? Here Are Some Hawaiian Beliefs

HONOLULU — Some expectant mothers in Hawaii still hold to superstitions on childbearing that were brought to the islands by their forbears three generations ago, the State Department of Health says.

For example, mothers-to-be often say "No thanks" when the squid — an oriental delicacy — is passed around.

They like squid, but a Chinese and Filipino belief that it may result in difficult delivery or an abnormal child says they shouldn't eat it.

Such strange superstitions showed up among mothers of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino and Polynesian ancestry.

Common to all four races is a belief that pregnant women should not loaf around or rest too much. If they do, their child will be lazy and fat.

A Filipino belief restricts the new mother's housework, travel and dancing for three months. She can't read or have a bedroom light immediately after delivery, to prevent blindness.

To some Japanese, the sex of the baby determines when the mother returns to her housework. If it's a boy, the time is 30 days. She waits 33 days if it's a girl.

The expectant Filipino mother may have many things to remember to keep evil spirits away and produce a healthy child:

She should avoid funerals and graveyards. It is ill-advised for her to go out at night.

She should satisfy her food cravings. Otherwise, her child may be birthmarked.

Plans Told

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Harris, 604 W. Seventh, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Annette, to A.E.C. Dale L. Mowery. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth C. Mowery Sr. of Austin. The wedding will take place June 25 in the East Fourth Baptist Church.

Modesty Quotient Calls For Blouse As Bikini Cover

The bare minimums of this year's swimsuits have given rise to ingenious cover-ups, dreamed up by modest girls.

Many suits come with matching beach robes, shirts or skirts, trip to and from beach or pool. It seems women enjoy the freedom of the bikini for swimming and sunning, but prefer adequate coverage while in view of the public.

This modesty quotient gives rise to a new use for gay blouses. Worn over a scanty swimsuit, it can double as a beach robe, also protecting the wearer from over-exposure to the sun.

Teen-agers were the first to discover the many uses of a wardrobe of gay blouses, and their mothers and big sisters are following their lead.

Sometimes the blouse or shirt is tied at the midriff, sometimes it is worn loose, like a coat.

With the many gay colors and patterns available today in inexpensive blouses, a girl can vary her beach wardrobe at will.

Laundry Service

During the Gold Rush of 1949, prices in San Francisco were so high that some laundry was sent to China and back by clipper ship.

Postpone Old Age By Using Three Tips

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

How can older women make the most of their looks? How can old age be postponed? How can it be enjoyed? These questions bother women who want to keep youthful mentally and physically, even though the calendar is against postponing the inevitable.

Many women manage to keep youthful, maintaining surprising vigor into the very late years. What is their secret? On the other hand, some women look older than their years? Why?

The secret of getting the most out of your age seems to lie in many things. But the formula boils down to:

1. Keep active at something you like.

2. Take the best possible care of your skin, hair and figure.

3. Get a moderate amount of exercise.

One 92-year-old woman attributed her longevity and spryness to the fact that she never got bored. She visits her three children and grandchildren regularly.

"When I get restless or feel I am beginning to get on their nerves, I move on," she says. "I go home and see my neighbors for a while, then I am off to visit another of my children's homes."

A 70-year-old woman is a playground recreation teacher all the year round. Says she:

"The only time I am lonesome is when I am on vacation. I miss the children, their mothers, the fun and gab connected with the group. It keeps me young."

A widowed 65-year-old woman says she loses herself in travel. "I always wanted to travel," she says, "and my husband made me agree that I would, even if he weren't around to enjoy it with me. It has helped me forget."

FOOD FOR YOUTH

Once the skin has begun to wrinkle there is not much you can do except use nourishing creams at night, and eat well. If the skin is just beginning to line, you may be able to postpone the inevitable by eating foods that nourish skin and hair.

Career women and other women who live alone are likely to feel it is a waste to cook vegetables for one person. They may settle for a sandwich for the main meal, whereas to maintain the health of vital attributes to beauty such as vitamins, vegetables as sweet potatoes, beet greens, spinach and broccoli are essential to the diet.

A little of this each day should keep one ahead of Father Time, as the body stores this vitamin.

Foil neck lines and vrowsteeft around the eyes at once by using a good cream in addition to eating proper foods.

HAIR CARE

An older woman's hair should be well groomed and gray hair should be coiffed properly to be charming.

Some older women like to dye their hair, having begun that practice when the hair turned gray. There is no reason why they shouldn't if they can afford the upkeep. Gray hair is beautiful though, and many older women learn to appreciate it.

Older women should learn to eat the right foods, but not over-eat to keep their figures well proportioned. Doctors are only too happy to suggest a good diet for your calorie requirements.

And when it comes to makeup, too little is better than too much. Put some color in your cheeks and at your lips, two places where it is necessary. Emphasize features that need to be played up or down.

Wear clothes that are more conservative than flamboyant, but not utterly old-ladyish.

Mrs. Bruce Frazier, at left, was the sweepstakes winner in the horticulture division of the Spring Flower Show, given Friday afternoon by the Council of the Big Spring Garden Clubs. Mrs. Bill Tubb won the sweepstakes in the artistic arrangement division and was awarded the tricolor. From left to right are the winning entries, the iris of Mrs. Frazier; the iris of Mrs. Norman Read, Blue Sapphire, which was best in the show; Dainty Bess, the rose entered by Mrs. J. L. Miller to take an award, and the columbine which won an award for Mrs. W. D. Caldwell. At far right is Mrs. Tubb's winning arrangement.

Flower Show Winners Announced By Council

Mrs. Bill Tubb was the winner of the sweepstakes and tricolor for artistic arrangements in the Spring Garden Clubs in Rannels Junior gymnasium.

Winner of the horticulture sweepstakes was Mrs. Bruce Frazier. Mrs. J. L. Miller took home the award of merit for her hybrid rose, while a similar award went to Mrs. Norman Read for an iris.

Presented an award for the best specimen in the bulbs, annuals and perennials was Mrs. W. D. Caldwell's columbine.

Clubs responsible for the staging. General chairmen were Mrs. J. T. Anderson and Mrs. W. B. Younger.

The educational exhibit, set up by Mrs. Jack Cook and her committee, included sprays, insecticides, fertilizers, tools and other gardening requirements.

Dress patterns, scissors and necessities for sewing a fine seam decorated the walls of the gym, while a tiny doll dressed in appropriate fashion, marked each of the tables holding artistic arrangements.

On the stage, a garden setting formed a background for mannequins displaying summer fashions.

Participating in the presentation were Hemphill Wells, Swartz, Margie, Bon-El, Alice's and Zack's. Accessories were furnished by R&H Hardware, White's, McCroxy's, Eason's Garden Center and John Quigley, Florist.

Orchid Fanciers Would Be Happy In Philippines

By TONY ESCODA
MANILA (AP) — Orchids for M'lady?

Come to the Philippines, botanists say, and take your pick from any one of a thousand native species.

They range from the common butterfly orchid (phalaenopsis), which can be found growing wild in many backyards here, to the silver-gray-and-purple schleriana or tiger orchid that blooms only once a year.

Red orchids are considered rare elsewhere, even in Hawaii and South America's lush tropics, but there are several varieties here. They're called renantheras or fire orchids with flame colored blossoms that live for days.

Not all the species are readily available to the corsage seeker. So far only 80 out of the thousand or so have been commercialized. But these include what is recognized as one of the more magnificent of the local breeds—the yanda sanderiana or waling-waling as the natives call it.

This specie, with white purple-and-maroon flowers that last as long as four weeks after cutting, are used here for hybridization purposes. Chances are some of the corsages you've bought had a strain of waling-waling in it.

Orchid hunters say, however, the real beauties are to be found deep in the Philippines' tropical rain forests and mangrove swamps where only the most fervent nature lovers dare tread.

There you find orchids with twisted petals and others with delicate dove-like shapes. There's also the giant orchid plant, grammatophyllum speciosum, stretching from 6 to 10 feet.

Members of the Philippine Orchid Society say as many as several dozen varieties of the parasitic plant may be found on a single tree in the midst of a swamp. Even experts have difficulty spelling out the various kinds.

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

SECTION D

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, APRIL 24, 1960

SECTION D

National Retail Credit Week Observance Planned

National Retail Credit Week will be observed here with several special events including a special Credit Clinic on Friday evening.

The entire activities are designed to focus attention upon the importance of consumer credit and upon the wisdom of using credit wisely and within proper limits.

Purpose of the special week is to encourage the broadest use of consumer credit consistent with sound business principles; to educate the public in the proper use of consumer credit; to encourage the prompt payment of all obligations; to counsel and protect consumers against the tragedy of going into debt beyond their ability to pay.

A major percentage of business in Big Spring, as it is in all parts of the nation, is done on a credit basis, either as 30-day accounts or on longer-term installment or deferred payment basis.

MAJOR ITEM

Credit has become so important that most stores have someone responsible for handling credit matters, and a number have separate credit departments.

The Retail Merchants Association also fits into the picture in that most Big Spring firms as RMA members report to the association and in turn receive credit reports from it. This facilitates the extension of credit to those who deserve it and alerts the merchant to those who may have been unduly slow or delinquent in the past. Even in the latter instances, this doesn't mean that the merchant will not grant credit, but when he does (and this is not unusual) it is done after counseling with the customer to arrange for payment on a basis that is consistent with his means and needs.

GOOD SUPPORT

Big Spring businessmen are joining whole-heartedly in the observance of the week, because they point out that the free flow of trade is dependent largely upon the exercise of good credit.

Among the features of the week will be the installation of officers for the Retail Credit Executives Club at 7 p.m. Tuesday with Kenneth Huff, out-going president, in charge. Earl Kerr, Lubbock, will be the speaker.

Then at noon Wednesday at Coker's, the Big Spring Credit Women's Club will have a special program, including an address by R. E. Hickson.

CREDIT CLINIC

The climaxing event will be Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Settles Hotel when a special credit clinic will be held. This is to be sponsored jointly by the Credit Executives, the Credit Women, the Retail Merchants Association.

All people interested in credit affairs, particularly retail merchants, are urged to attend this session.

Credit Groups Plan Special Week Program

Two credit organizations here will take special note of National Retail Credit week with programs beamed in that direction.

The Credit Executives Club has a special installation meeting Tuesday.

Earl Kerr, Lubbock, manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Lubbock and immediate past president of the Associated Credit Bureaus of Texas, will be speaker.

Mr. Kerr is an active civic and church worker in Lubbock, and he has more recently been performing a special service by serving as the district director of the decennial census in the 19th congressional district.

Russell Huckaby, Midland, past president of the West Texas regional organization of Retail Credit Executives and manager of the Grogan - Lord Finance Company, will be the installing officer for the new officials of the local club.

Huckaby is past president of his own club.

Kenneth Huff, who is the out-going president, will be in charge of the program which is set for 7 p.m. Tuesday at Coker's restaurant.

Kerr's subject will be "Today's Credit."

At noon Wednesday Pauline Sullivan will preside over the meeting of the Big Spring Credit Women's Club. R. E. (Bob) Hickson, credit manager at Hemphill-Wellis, will be the guest speaker for the program arranged especially in keeping with National Credit Week.

Most Phases Of Credit To Be Touched In Novel Clinic

Practically every phase of retail credit operation will be touched upon in a special Credit Clinic arranged for 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Settles Hotel.

This will top the events in observance of National Retail Credit Week and will feature a panel to discuss various topics and to answer questions which may be raised from the floor.

Some of the subjects to be covered will be the hot check law, bankruptcy law, credit to military personnel, general credit procedures, small claims bill, etc.

The clinic has been arranged by the Big Spring Credit Executives Club, the Big Spring Credit Women's Club and the Retail Merchants Association. The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce retail committee is urging attendance.

"Today," said Cliff Fisher, chamber president, "Credit is the backbone of our economy, and our success or failure in business depends on intelligent handling of credit. Friday will be an excellent chance to add to your knowledge of the function of credit."

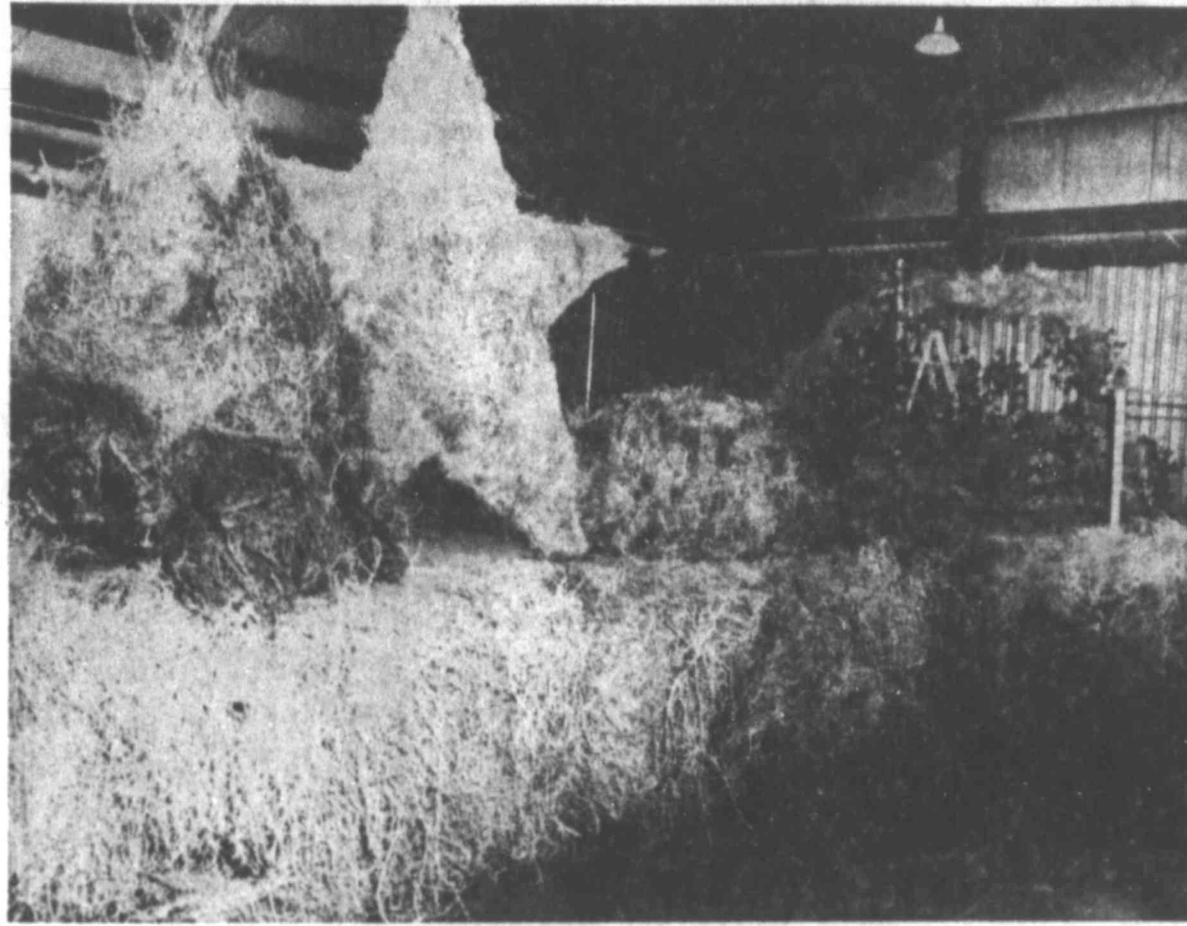

The local credit bureau also is urging large attendance.

"We urge all store owners and operators, together with all those connected with service establishments, to be at this meeting," said Mrs. J. B. Apple, in charge of the Retail Merchants Association.

Moderator of the clinic will be R. W. Whipkey, publisher of the Big Spring Herald. Panel members include W. O. Jim Green, Col. Glenn Stell and Maj. Edward J. Herschok of Webb AFB; Kenneth Huff, R. B. Reeder Co.; Galen Head, D&W Furniture & Appliance; R. E. Hickson, Hemphill-Wellis; Jack Davis, First National Bank; Truitt Thomas, Cowper Hospital & Clinic; Wayne Burns, Howard County attorney; Ruth Apple, Credit Bureau of Big Spring; J. O. Vinson, credit bureau of San Angelo.

Credit women members will be hosts at a refreshment period midway in the program.

TUMBLEWEED TAKES ON FAIRY SHAPES FOR FESTIVAL
Unusual celebration unfolds for Colorado City

Humble Tumbleweed Takes Spotlight In Big Festival

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Thirty young girls and 27 floats are now entering in Colorado City's Tumbleweed Festival parade which will highlight the city's festivities Friday at 2:30 p.m. The humble tumbleweed, being promoted as a decorative piece, takes the spotlight.

Gov. Price Daniel is slated for a 15-minute talk at the Governor's Luncheon which will be held in the Civic House at noon.

According to Eldon Mahon, general chairman of festival plans, the governor will also ride in the parade. Mahon said that four other governors had been invited but probably will not be able to appear. He said, however, the Gov. John Burroughs of New Mexico, a native of Coke County, will try to send a representative.

The Sons of the Pioneers, long time favorites in country and western style music, will also appear at the Tumbleweed Festival. They will perform both nights and will give a matinee performance on April 29th. With them will be comedian Pat Brady.

Judges for the queen contest will be Ellen Thomas, director of John Powers Modeling School of Dallas; Tony Slaughter, a specialty writer for the Fort Worth Star-

Telegram. The other judge will likely be Frank Tolbert, author and columnist for the Dallas Morning News.

Queen contestants will compete for a scholarship offered by the Powers Modeling School. The contest will be held in the high school gymnasium Thursday and Friday concerts by the Sons of the Pioneers.

Rex Felkner, parade marshal, said that several out-of-town bands are expected along with various riding clubs from the West Texas area.

CHEVROLET

YOU CAN'T BUY ANY CAR FOR LESS ... UNLESS IT'S A LOT LESS CAR!!!!

THERE'S NO BETTER CAR FOR TENDING YOUR DOLLARS THAN THIS NEW CHEVROLET. FOR RESOUNDING PROOF, LOOK AT ALL THESE FINE FEATURES YOU JUST DON'T GET ON ANY CAR NEAR CHEVY'S SIZE AND PRICE—EVEN ON SOME CARS THAT COST A WHOLE LOT MORE!

1 FULL COIL CUSHIONING
Chevy puts a deep coil spring at each rear wheel, too. Unlike old-style leaf springs, they don't have to anchor the rear axle or transmit the forces of braking and acceleration. Chevy's coils have nothing to do but tame the bumps—and what a gentle job they do!

2 WIDEST CHOICE OF POWER TEAMS
Seven engines, five transmissions, including satiny, shift-free Turboglide*. 24 combos in all!
*Optional at extra cost.

3 Body by Fisher
Those crank-operated vent windows, for example, will give you an idea of all the extra care you get.

4 HYDRAULIC VALVE LIFTERS
Oil-hushed hydraulic valve lifters in all popular Chevy engines (the six, too) lengthen valve life, never need adjustment.

5 MORE "EXTRAS" at no extra cost!
Single-key locking and starting ... anti-glare hoods for each instrument ... an enclosed steering column ... Safety Plate Glass all around ... precision-balanced wheels and tires. And a whole lot more besides!

6 SAFETY-GIRDER FRAME
Chevrolet's frame is X-built, not just X-braced, for greater torsional rigidity.

7 SHOCK CUSHIONED STEERING
No other car in Chevy's field keeps road shocks away from the steering wheel with a cushioned steering column.

8 HIGHER ENTRANCE HEIGHT
Up to 3.1 inches extra, in fact.

IF
you're considering a compact car, you couldn't do better than Corvair! Count up its advances: Remarkable rear-engine traction ... 4-wheel independent suspension ... a standard fold-down rear seat ... the economy of an air-cooled engine.

★ Use Your Credit Wisely!

★ It Is Your Servant—

If You Don't Abuse It!

Preserving a good credit record is not only a matter of convenience, but of personal prestige.

The files of the Credit Bureau show how you pay your bills. This record is available not only to the members of the Credit Bureau in your own community, but to the members of more than 2,000 other Credit Bureaus throughout the United States and Canada.

The Credit Bureau does not make your credit record. It merely keeps the record. If you buy more than you can afford — and don't pay promptly — these facts will be available to those from whom you may want to obtain further credit.

Your Credit Record is an open book — written by yourself in the way you meet your obligations. The only way to maintain it is by paying every bill on the date it is due.

The following members of the Big Spring Merchants Association have sponsored these newspaper pages so that the people of Big Spring may understand the advantages of credit, how it is granted and the dangers of its misuse through buying beyond a person's ability to pay — and pay promptly.

The Smiths Go Shopping ... They found what they wanted, and this is how they opened a Credit Account

It began one day - - -

WHEN A YOUNG NEWLYWED couple moved into Big Spring and began shopping for some household furnishings they needed. They found what they wanted, and then used the convenient means to get it—they opened a Credit Account. The pictures on this page are designed to show you some of the mechanics of employing this useful tool.

IN THIS PICTURE STORY, we will call them Bill and Betty Smith (actually they are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Gary, newlywed newcomers from Odessa). Bill had taken a new job, and Betty found work, too. Then when they settled in a new home, they found they needed some additional furnishings.

THEY FOUND WHAT they wanted all right, but here they are in a strange city and starting out. How do they go about it? Follow the pictures and see what happened.

DURING THEIR LUNCH hour, Bill and Betty went shopping, and they found exactly the matching colors and quality of bedspread that Betty wanted to put the final touches to their bedroom. Being good managers, they handle their affairs so as to budget normal needs on a 30-day open credit account, or larger more expensive items on an installment basis.

A CREDIT ACCOUNT, in any event, is the answer. So the clerk, eager to help, introduces Bill and Betty to the credit manager of the store. After exchanging pleasantries, the manager learns that the young couple wants to become credit customers of the business. Genuinely interested in them, he invites Bill and Betty to visit in his office.

CREDIT IS BASED on confidence, and Bill and Betty are pleased to furnish such personal information as is required in establishing a foundation for credit. The interview takes place in the privacy of the credit manager's office so that it is a confidential exchange of information about their background, employment, earnings, etc.

TO CONFIRM THAT the Smiths are indeed the sort of folks the company wants as customers, the credit manager — while Bill and Betty retire — contacts the Retail Merchants Association.

TRAINED REPORTERS—the term is apt because they only report what they find—consult their records and also those available in the city from which Bill and Betty have recently come. All of this is done quickly, accurately because the staff is skilled in this specialized work. The information is consolidated into a final report.

THE RMA MANAGER is happy to report their rating is excellent. Bill and Betty, even before their marriage, had been careful to protect their good credit by prompt attention to open accounts and meeting installments on time.

"WE'RE MIGHTY PROUD to have you as one of our customers," says the credit manager to Bill and Betty. "We want you to make this your headquarters when you go shopping and let us know if we can assist you in any way. By the way, I want to congratulate you both on having earned such a fine credit standing."

THEIR ACCOUNT OPENED, Bill and Betty return to the department where Betty had picked out the bedspreads which were just the kind she had dreamed about. The clerk, wrapping their purchase, asks if there aren't other things that they want. Bill and Betty say that they want some of the items the clerk has shown, but they will be back later.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS, they leave the store, looking forward to being at home that evening and seeing how their spreads round out the furnishings just as Betty had imagined. The story of Bill and Betty may vary in its details—in the surroundings and methods, but basically the mechanics of establishing credit is the same. Those who treasure their credit, always are welcomed as customers.

Elvis Draws Crowds And Comments

To many people a major event took place last week when Elvis Presley visited briefly in our city on Tuesday afternoon. A crowd of about 1000 people gathered around his special car to get a look at the famous ex-GI and to get his autograph. Here's a few remarks our roving reporter overheard at that gathering:

GIRL: Does he have a steady? Presley visited briefly in our city on Tuesday afternoon. A crowd of about 1000 people gathered around his special car to get a look at the famous ex-GI and to get his autograph. Here's a few remarks our roving reporter overheard at that gathering:

ANOTHER GIRL: No, he doesn't. I just came here out of curiosity. I just came here out of curiosity. I just came here out of curiosity.

BOY: Oh, no, I'm not a Presley fan. I just came here out of curiosity. I just came here out of curiosity. I just came here out of curiosity.

ANOTHER BOY: I'm not either. I just came here out of curiosity. I just came here out of curiosity. I just came here out of curiosity.

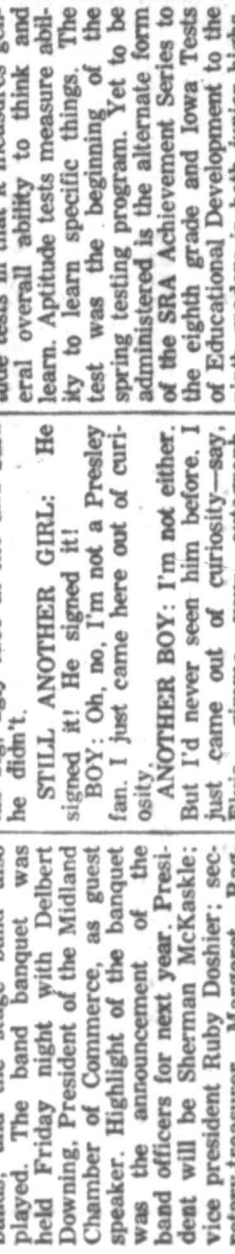

ELVIS: Well—thanks. I'll be back soon. I'll be back soon. I'll be back soon.

THE FRONT ROW

By Bob Smith

Honors Day at HCJC comes Wednesday. Among the many awards to be given are those of the drama department, selected by Fred Short, speech and drama instructor.

People who do backstage work are never seen by the audience, and about the only credit they get is having their names listed in the printed programs and in advance news stories. The Honors Day awards help make it up to the hard-working crews by giving them the limelight they have earned.

The winners will not know of their awards, however, until the formal announcement is made Wednesday.

And speaking of HCJC's drama department, Short has a new idea for helping to determine selection of plays for next year.

He has a list of potential productions all of which are excellent and standard stage works and from which the year's plays will be drawn. But Short also is concerned that the college selections be in line with public wishes; therefore, he's now making the rounds asking people he knows which of the list they prefer. Those who have a preference but do not know Short may call or write him at HCJC with their votes.

Here is a list of the plays on Short's list:

"Ladies in Retirement," by Reginald Denham; "The Little Foxes," by Lillian Hellman; a Shakespearean play ("Julius Caesar," "Twelfth Night" or "Taming of the Shrew"); "It Happened in Hawaii," by Fred Short; "Solid Gold Cadillac," by Howard Teichmann and George Kaufman; or "High Tor," by Maxwell Anderson.

Short likes to point out that selection of plays by a college drama department must emphasize education first and public entertainment second, although the entertainment factor must be considered for productions aimed at the general public.

There may be a summer production also in the works. Short said he is considering "Blythe Spirit" by Noel Coward, "The Torch Bearers" by George Kelly, or "The Male Animal" by James Thurber and Elliot Nugent.

Civic Labcock, Inc. has announced that mail orders are now being accepted for the "Hugh O'Brian Spectacular" to be presented at the Lubbock Auditorium May 11. There will be two showings of the stage show starring Hugh O'Brian, TV's Wyatt Earp, and featuring a cast of 30, including Alice Lon, famous Champagne Lady of the Lawrence Clark Shaw.

Six new shows, never before presented in the Southwest, have been announced for the 19th summer season of the State Fair Musicals in Dallas at the State Fair Music Hall.

The shows and dates they will play are as follows:

"West Side Story," June 13-26; Carol Channing's "Show Business," June 27-July 10; "Red-head," July 11-24; "Holiday in Japan," July 25-Aug. 7; "Fiorella," Aug. 8-21; and "The Marlene Dietrich Show," Aug. 22-Sept. 4.

Faron Young's taking a swing through West Texas this week. Coming in from Oklahoma, he'll appear Amarillo Monday, Lubbock Tuesday, Odessa Thursday, and El Paso Friday, going from there into New Mexico. Didn't say where he will be Wednesday.

That trend I took note of seems to be spreading.

The Sands Restaurant recently began a program of art exhibit on its walls, hanging paintings of local artists.

Now the Wagon Wheel has joined the movement. Anna Shannon has four oils hanging there, and John Findlater has one watercolor, with two more to be exhibited by Monday.

CINEMA COMMENT

By Bob Smith

"Home From the Hill," in theme, is somewhere between an adult Western and a Peyton Place or Deep South type epic.

The film again proves the old adage that a sensitive director working with an intelligent script and fine actors can make a drama out of most any old story, and can create depth in the story's characters.

The people in "Home From the Hill" are about as real as the screen can make them. They're ordinary people, caught up in the cross currents of life and not quite knowing what to do about it. Extraordinary people are the stuff of which stories are made, but it is quite an achievement to make ordinary screen characters seem real.

The story is based on the William Humphrey novel about a small town Texas tycoon whose philanderings are such that most every child born in the county wonders if said tycoon is not his father.

Robert Mitchum is a giant in his role, dynamically moving through the mess he has made of his family. He has a pampered son, who, nonetheless, has the makings of a man, and Mitchum sets out to make a man of him, to the embittered consternation of his wife.

There are many plots and subplots interwoven in this story. The hired hand, who is really an illegitimate child of Mitchum's, appears in the background and before the story is ended, he has taken over as the lead character, while the legitimate son fades away after having got a town girl with child.

Three young people carry a large share of the acting—George Peppard as the hired hand, George Hamilton as the pampered son, Luana Patten as the girl in trouble. They are only slightly short of magnificent. Only Eleanor Parker, as the cold and bitter wife, falls short.

"Home From the Hill" definitely is adult fare, and as such is tops in its class; but its adult theme has been expertly and sensitively handled, and there's nothing crass or crude about it. The only crudity would be in some of the characters, and which of us doesn't have a little of it?

Although primarily an engrossing emotional drama, "Home From the Hill" is lightened with both festive and amusing scenes, among them one early in the story, in which the seventeen-year-old Theron, too shy to ask Libby for a date, employs the more experienced Rafe as a substitute suitor. The scenes between the young lovers in their attic trying to hide away are delightful and there is a festive episode in the gala barbecue and dancing party held in celebration of the victorious boar hunt.

A Sol C. Siegel Production, "Home From the Hill" was produced by Edmund Grainger. The screen play is by Harriet Frank Jr., and Irving Ravetch.

30s and early 40s, and of the newer, "documentary" variety.

As such, it suffers the same faults and virtues.

The faults are, mainly, that the film is treated as melodrama, and that no attempt is made to show the meaning to present generations of the Legs Diamond story. The virtues include such points as accuracy in story line and atmosphere, and in creation of excitement.

Ray Danton, as the notorious Legs, is perfectly cast, and Karen Steele, as his wife, achieves a realistic insight into her characterization.

Scripting by Joseph Landon is in keeping with the subject matter, and Budd Boetticher's direction keeps the story moving at a fast pace.

I haven't seen or heard of "Scapegoat," but since it stars Alec Guinness, it must be a sleeper. Co-star is Bette Davis, which makes this film even more attractive. These two have never made a bad picture, so we know that "Scapegoat" will be worth seeing even if all other elements are tripe.

"Ulysses," returning for its second go-round, was one of the first Kirk Douglas starring productions, and one of his best. Douglas believes in re-creating the old legends, not only with colorful sets, but with that magic mood one finds as a child in story-telling sessions.

"Ulysses" is imbued with this magic, but it will be lost on you if you no longer get a kick out of (secretly) poring over some of those old fairy tales you read as a kid.

Ulysses, you will recall, was the Greek sailor who got lost at sea following the Trojan War, and had a heck of a time finding his way home.

We can say "bravo" to the British for "The Silent Enemy." Hollywood and TV both have tried their hands at frogman epics, with no notable results, but it took the British to make a marvelous movie of the subject.

"The Silent Enemy" is based on the exploits of the late, great Buster Crabbe, and was written and directed by William Fairchild with the blessing and all-out help of Her Majesty's Navy.

Lawrence Harvey, as Crabbe, is excellent both as a swimmer and as an actor.

The plot has Crabbe assigned to Gibraltar in 1941, at a time when Mussolini's frogmen, operating from a secret Spanish base, are harassing the famous British fortress. Crabbe cuts red tape and insults brass hats in forming a tough and well-trained crew of frogmen.

They discover the Italians are riding torpedo-like machines, and the excellent photography makes what was real in 1941 like something out of futuristic science fiction. The tension and suspense are built up during underwater battles between the frogmen, and reaches a climax when Crabbe and his aide reach the secret Italian base.

Leavy, who helped send Chessman to San Quentin Prison's death row a dozen years ago, charged in a civil suit Thursday that the film on the kidnap-rapist's criminal career distorts the facts. Leavy, who appears in the movie, said the film is humiliating and embarrassing to him.

'Home From Hill' Is Powerful Drama

"Home From the Hill" is a powerful drama of a divided family, of a youthful love affair and of the emotional conflict involved in the status of an illegitimate son.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, in CinemaScope and color, is based on the novel by William Humphrey. Its cast is headed by Robert Mitchum and Eleanor Parker, with co-starring roles by George Hamilton, Everett Sloane and former child actress Luana Patten.

"Home From the Hill" was directed by Vincente Minnelli. The new drama was filmed on an ambitious scale on locations in the picturesque hunting country of Texas and Mississippi.

It tells the story of Capt. Wade Hunnicutt (Robert Mitchum), his wife, Hannah (Eleanor Parker), their son, Theron (George Hamilton) and the backwoods boy, Rafe (George Peppard).

Leading landowner of a small Texan town, Hunnicutt's fame as a fearless hunter is exceeded only by his reputation as a chaser after women. Disillusioned soon after their marriage, Hannah has consented to remain in her husband's house only on condition that she be given sole charge of Theron's upbringing. But as the boy grows into manhood he comes to idolize his father, a devotion and respect furthered when the latter teaches him to shoot and encourages him to track down and kill a ferocious wild boar.

It is when the love affair between Theron and Libby Halstead (Luana Patten) is broken up by the girl's father that Theron is given an acute realization of Hunnicutt's notoriety. Following a family quarrel, he learns for the first time that his close friend, Rafe, is his half-brother, unacknowledged by Hunnicutt—an acknowledgment that Rafe yearns to hear.

The story is brought to a crisis when Libby tells her family that she is going to have Theron's baby. It is a crisis marked by murder and retribution, in which each of the drama's leading characters follows his and her destined course.

Although primarily an engrossing emotional drama, "Home From the Hill" is lightened with both festive and amusing scenes, among them one early in the story, in which the seventeen-year-old Theron, too shy to ask Libby for a date, employs the more experienced Rafe as a substitute suitor. The scenes between the young lovers in their attic trying to hide away are delightful and there is a festive episode in the gala barbecue and dancing party held in celebration of the victorious boar hunt.

'Legs Diamond' Brutal Story Of U.S. Gangster

"The Rise and Fall of Legs Diamond," starring Ray Danton, Karen Steele, and Elaine Stewart, is an explosive and highly dramatic picturization of the gangster influence in American life during the 1920's and early 1930's. It is also a story of the blind love of a good woman for a worthless man. This United States Productions picture for Warner Bros. plays at the Ritz Thursday through Saturday.

Producer Milton Sperling and director Budd Boetticher vividly depict the rise and degeneration of the notorious gangster, Legs Diamond, while at the same time faithfully reflecting a picturesque era.

Legs was born John Thomas Diamond in Philadelphia in 1899. His talent for dancing won him the nickname. As a youth he never held a job long and began a life of crime at an early age.

Diamond hit the so-called big-time as a bodyguard for an underworld leader. From there his rise to the upper ranks of gangdom was rapid. He was known as a ruthless man who would kill his closest friends to hold his power over gambling, bootlegging and other illicit operations. A myth grew up about his destructibility: During numerous gun battles he stopped 20 bullets and several times was critically wounded. Each time he recovered.

Ulysses

Ulysses ain't useless when it comes to bow-and-arrowing. This is Kirk Douglas the role of Ulysses in the film of that name returning to the State Wednesday through Saturday. The bow is that described by the ancient Greek poet, Homer, that only Ulysses could bend—the bow, not Homer. Anthony Quinn is co-starred in this spirited and unusual motion picture.

'Scapegoat' Sees Guinness Portraying 2 Characters

Alec Guinness and Bette Davis, together for the first time, form the striking star combination of "The Scapegoat," film version of the novel by Dauphne du Maurier, with Guinness playing one of the most remarkable dual roles of his career.

"The Scapegoat" is permeated with mystery and dramatic suspense in its story John Barratt, an English schoolmaster who, because of his extraordinary resemblance to Jacques de Gue, a French nobleman, is tricked into assuming the latter's identity and into taking the other man's place as head of his family. Guinness, of course, enacts both men who, although they look alike, are temperamental opposites.

The impersonation brings him face to face with both love and hatred in the relationships he is forced to assume with the members of the Frenchman's family. These comprise de Gue's mother (Bette Davis), the bedridden dowager cousin with a craving for drugs; his faded whining wife, Francoise; his embittered sister-in-law, Blanche, who blames him for the death of her fiancé; de Gue's young daughter, Marie-Noel; and the Frenchman's mistress, the beautiful Bela, who guesses Barratt's secret.

The manner in which John Barratt, the quiet, drollish bachelor, becomes the scapegoat for the rakish nobleman whose life he finds he has to live; the problems he encounters in respect to the varied members of the eccentric family; the status of his romantic attachment for Bela; and the dramatic denouement of de Gue's return with a demand to resume the identity he had relinquished make for a story of interest and suspense.

Playing prominent roles with Guinness and Miss Davis are Nicole Maurey as Bela, Irene Worth as Francoise, Pamela Brown as Blanche, Annabel Bartlett as Marie-Noel, Geoffrey Keen, Noel Howlett, Peter Bull and Leslie French.

Building Activity
Spurts For Week

Building permits issued during the past two weeks at City Hall revealed a large amount of new construction of both homes and business buildings in Big Spring.

Contractor Raymond Thomason Sr., took out permits to build five residences in the 3700 block on Connally. They are valued at $10,500 each.

Sun-Tex Homes, Inc., is building three $6,000 residences, two in the 2300 block of FM 700 and one in the 2300 block of Marshall Drive.

The R. B. Reeder Insurance and Loan Agency, currently located at 304 Scurry, will soon have new headquarters at 506 E. Fourth St. The building, under construction for $17,000 will be of one-story masonry construction.

A new G. F. Wacker's Variety store will soon be in operation at 1107 Eleventh Place, being built by C. D. McDonald, the one story building will cost $15,000. Walls are already up and the roof is soon to go on. A large parking area is to be provided in front of the store.

A $20,000 addition and full basement is being constructed at the Birdwell Lane Church of Christ, 1614 Eleventh Place. The addition will house 19 classrooms and two offices and will give the church a total of 35 classrooms. Completely air conditioned, the church will be a $130,000 facility with the final construction of the addition. An additional 30-vehicle parking area is also due at the church.

A new building to house the Welch Auto Supply is under construction at 511 W. 4th St. The company, now located at 700 Aylford, is building a concrete tile block building 50 feet square at the new location at a cost of $7,000.

Tidwell Chevrolet has under construction a new body shop to handle large commercial trucks. The $16,000 structure is located at 1406 E. Third St. and when completed will be 120 feet by 32 feet, made of concrete blocks.

County Dads
May Review
Road Program

Howard County Commissioners Court may have an opportunity on Monday to go over farm-to-market road problems of the county with Jake Roberts, district highway engineer for the Texas Highway Department.

Roberts told Ed Carpenter, county judge, he would endeavor to be in Big Spring on Monday for a conference with the commissioners. Roberts said he would call Carpenter and confirm if he could be in Big Spring Monday. Carpenter said at 5 p.m. that he had not heard anything further from the engineer.

Carpenter said the commissioners also plan to discuss the advisability of trading a road maintainer for two additional dump trucks. The county road and bridge department seems to have a surplus of maintainers and dearth of dump trucks.

The court plans to try for a deal where one of the maintainers can be replaced with two more trucks. Carpenter said it was felt that this arrangement would speed up road work materially.

The Big Spring City Commission faces a heavy agenda Tuesday. It will consider such diversified problems as annexing a 100-acre tract and leasing city property for oil well drilling. The council meets at 5:15 p.m. in City Hall.

The annexation ordinance covers the first phase in the Kentwood Addition. It joins the city limits at the Cedar Ridge Addition in the southeast section. The commission has also been asked

Jurors Instructed To Report Monday

A panel of 60 jurors has been instructed to report to 118th District Court at 1:30 p.m. Monday to hear civil cases docketed for this week.

Judge Ralph W. Caton will sound the docket at a morning session of the court and determine just how many matters are scheduled to come to trial.

Judge Caton said that he had a considerable number of cases on the docket but that until he has conferred with attorneys, he cannot say how many will be ready for trial.

More than 200 local cotton farmers and their families, owners of the Farmers Cooperative Gin and Supply here, met Friday night for their annual dinner meeting.

Members re-elected President Ross Hill. Others were Vice President Ellis Iden, and Directors Ralph Neill and B. M. Newton. Lindell Newton was named to the secretary post left vacant March 31 by the resignation of Alvin Botes.

Hill introduced special guests of the meeting, including R. L. McClung of the Mid-West Cooperative Oil Mill, Hamlin; Lynn Shaw, of the Texas Seed Breeders Association, Rule; John Gregg, of the National Cotton Council, Lubbock, and C. E. Bowles of the Cotton Cooperative Compress, Lubbock.

The meeting was held in the company's warehouse on North-east Third Street.

R Françoise De Beaufort (1616-1699) said:
"THE FUTURE OF SOCIETY IS IN THE HANDS OF THE MOTHERS"

Few people realize how much mothers influence our nation's future. Our instincts are changing to more tolerance, and greater belief in the "Golden Rule." These qualities we learn from our mothers.

But, mothers are also greatly responsible for the improved health of our nation. They follow their physician's advice, so they can have stronger, healthier children. With loving care, mothers make certain babies get the important vitamins and special baby diet their Doctors suggest. We can help by supplying these aids to baby's better health.
