Summit Meet Collapses Over Plane Incident

Khrushchev Attacked By U.S. Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas accused Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today of deliberately breaking up the summit conference.

Johnson took the position in a statement that the Soviet Premier had merely adopted the U2 American spy plane incident as a subterfuge to avoid "orderly negotiation."

Much the same line was taken by other Congress members in comment on the bellicose attitude which Khrushchev displayed at Paris.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas) commented that he "never was too hopeful about what would come out of the conference, but it looks now like nothing will come out of it."

"I'm afraid we'll have to acknowledge failure at the summit conference," Rayburn added.

The manner in which Khrushchev handled the U2 incident "was clearly an indication that he planned to make the summit either a shambles or a forum for Soviet propaganda," Johnson said.

"Now we are informed that his price for negotiating at all is one that is obviously unacceptable to the United States."

In other words, he is not going to discuss the issues upon which there might be some possibility of agreement unless issues are first discussed upon which there is no possibility of agreement.

Johnson said "this is a time not to give vent to our emotions but to remain calm in the face of the danger which confronts us."

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill), the minority leader, told the Senate it is clear that Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders were "quite alarmed" over the effect of the "warm personality of the President of the United States would have had on the Soviet Union and on the Russian people."

Some Congress members called the affair a diplomatic triumph for President Eisenhower.

In an extraordinary, marathon television interview that ran nearly four hours into the early morning, Nixon said the United States could not afford any gap in its intelligence.

As for the U2 flight timing, he observed: "There is never a right time to make one of these flights if you're going to get caught."

Apparently unruined and cool, Nixon sat under a wide-ranging barrage of penetrating questions while interviewer David Susskind smoked cigarettes and sipped coffee.

Nixon hardly moved in his chair as he discussed topics from the spy plane and his own definition of a conservative, to New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's view of the vice presidency.

Concerning the good in the U2 affair, Nixon said: "The plus is this. You realize that this flight clearly demonstrates the feasibility of the 'open skies' proposal of the President."

He noted that the proposal, suggested by Eisenhower at the Geneva summit meeting in 1955, was "to protect Russia, the United States and all other nations from a surprise attack."

"This flight demonstrates that unarmed planes can take photographs without causing any damage, any harm at all to commercial aviation or the national security of the country over which the flights are made," Nixon added.

In the 3 hours and 45 minutes of talk on WNTA-TV's "Open End" program, the vice president declined to answer only two questions and squirmed noticeably.

MANNED FLIGHT CLOSE

Russians Say Space Ship Is On Course

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets say their 4½-ton dummy-manned space ship—the biggest satellite ever launched—is whizzing around the earth on course.

"There soon will be a man in space," the Soviets said.

Hurled aloft by a superrocket, the giant ship was reported sending back signals confirming "the good agreement between its actual orbit and the calculated one" for its flight around the globe every 91 minutes.

Dr. Viktor Bazzeikin, director of the Moscow Planetarium, conceded there are still problems to be solved before sending up a live astronaut—the main one being how to get him back to earth safely.

The official news agency Tass said no attempt will be made to retrieve the dummy passenger riding in a pressurized cabinet with "all the necessary equipment for a future manned space flight."

Soviet scientists said the 2½-ton cabinet would be separated from the satellite after the "necessary information" is received.

but would burn up in the atmosphere as it drops.

The Soviets gave only skimpy details Sunday in announcing the launching of their latest space vehicle on the eve of the Paris summit conference.

I. I. Shvilyakov, head of the scientific methodological department of the Moscow Planetarium, said "the flight of this ship will go down in the annals of astronautics as one of the last steps before mankind's emergence into outer space."

Prof. Vladimir Dobronravov, a top space man, said the launching was linked with the "super-rocket test firings" into the Pacific last January. In London, a spokesman for the British Interplanetary society estimated the rocket propelling the Soviet ship was two or three times more powerful than the U.S. Atlas and Titan rockets.

The rocket went into orbit approximately 200 miles up and began sending back beeps that sounded like a distant train whistle. The Sputnik is visible to the naked eye in hours of darkness. It was first sighted in the United States at 4:10 a.m. by moonwatchers in Dayton, Ohio.

"Analysis of the initial data received from the satellite ship shows that the installed instrumentation and equipment are functioning normally," Tass said.

The satellite is fitted with special radio equipment to relay to ground stations data on the operations of its scientific and measuring instruments in the hermetically sealed cabin which are powered by chemical and solar batteries.

TIME, PLACE
The exact time and place of the launching were not disclosed.

"The launching was undertaken to perfect and check the satellite ship's system, insuring its safe flight and controls, its return to the earth and the necessary conditions for the space crew," the first official announcement said.

Astronomer Nikolai Barabashov asserted the success of the latest experiment means "manned flight to the planets of the solar system is not far distant."

The space ship is following a charted course—235 miles from the earth at its highest, 180½ at its lowest—that takes the satellite over such key cities as New York and Paris, where the Big Four are meeting.

Soviet scientists and propaganda broadcasts stressed that peaceful intentions only inspired the launching. But they emphasized, too, that its success showed the might of the Soviet Union.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda carried a page of letters from leading Soviet scientists and others who coupled praise of the space ship launching with a denunciation of American spy flights.

ACCLAIMED
Scientists the world over generally acclaimed the Soviet space ship.

American experts were divided, however, on whether it meant the Soviets are ahead of the United States in the race to put a man into space.

Ike Explains U2 Flights Suspended

PARIS (AP) — The summit conference collapsed in its first session today, with the Soviet Union and the United States accusing each other of torpedoing the historic session called in an effort to ease world tensions.

The meeting foundered over the U2 incident.

Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, bitterly attacking U.S. policy, called for a six-month delay and said a later U. S. administration may understand the situation if the present administration can't.

He withdrew his invitation for President Eisenhower to visit the Soviet Union next month.

President Eisenhower promised there will be no more U.S. spy flights over the Soviet Union but said:

"The only conclusion that can be drawn from his Khrushchev's behavior this morning was that he came all the way from Moscow to Paris with the sole intention of sabotaging the meeting on which so much of the hopes of the world have rested."

Today's 3-hour, 5-minute session may be the last for this summit conference.

Eisenhower challenged Khrushchev to private two-way talks to save the conference.

"We of the United States," the President said, "are here to consider in good faith the important problems before this conference. We are prepared either to carry this point no further or to undertake bilateral conversations between the United States and the U.S.S.R. while the main conference proceeds."

Aides said Eisenhower considered Khrushchev insulting in his charges—that negotiations were hopeless as long as, in the Soviet Premier's words, the United States was threatening the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev dwelt at length on the May 1 flight of Francis G. Powers, downed in the Soviet Union as he flew his U2 plane near Sverdlovsk in an effort to gain reconnaissance information.

But Eisenhower told Khrushchev U.S. spy flights over the Soviet Union have been suspended "and are not to be resumed."

The President offered to negotiate agreements that could "eliminate the necessity for all forms of espionage."

Khrushchev repeated his statement that the United States has overseas bases "the Soviet Union will take appropriate measures, including attacks against these bases."

The President proposed to take the issue of aerial security patrolling to the United Nations.

"Should it prove impossible, because of the Soviet attitude, to come to grips here in Paris with this problem and the other vital

Ike Approves Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has signed a bill authorizing a $4,096,300,000 foreign aid program and said he was gratified by congressional action on the measure, the White House announced today.

The total for the fiscal year starting July 1 is close to the figure he asked.

Eisenhower, in signing the bill before leaving Saturday for the summit meeting in Paris, said in a statement the act embodies essentially all of the request he had put forward as necessary for successful continuation of the mutual security program.

"With one regrettable exception—the Congress has resisted the addition of amendments which would adversely affect foreign relations or impair the administration of the program," Eisenhower said.

Acting White House press secretary Wayne Hawes said this was a reference to the freedom of navigation amendment. This takes a slap at United Arab Republic restrictions on shipping in the Suez Canal.

The bill Eisenhower signed merely puts a ceiling on the amount that may be appropriated for foreign aid. The actual appropriation still is to be made, and there has been much speculation that Congress may reduce the amount authorized below the amount authorized.

"The authorization is $68,780,000 less than Eisenhower had asked."

Thousands Take First Look At YMCA Building Sunday

Several thousand people thronged the new YMCA building Sunday at its formal opening and dedication.

Apparently they were impressed by what they saw, for Monday morning the building was busy as a beehive. YMCA members were making use of the swimming pool, and kept a parade of participants going to the exercise rooms and gymnasium. By evening, all of the plant will have been pressed into service, because the H-Y and Tri-H-Y clubs were due to use the meeting rooms.

Bob Hardy, general secretary, is expecting that the heavy traffic will continue throughout the week as others come to view the building and to take part in the orientation programs designed to acquaint members with the new facilities.

From the time the brief dedication ceremonies were held at 2:30 p.m. until the building was closed at 6 p.m., there was a constant and heavy flow of people through the plant.

So remarkable was the response that 38 insisted on taking out memberships and a great number of others took applications for membership and indicated they would return them shortly.

Someone, of course, had to fall into the swimming pool. One youngster was fished out, and his companion admitted that he gave him a little shove because "he wanted to go in." Another tyke managed to make use of the first aid room by falling and cutting himself slightly. Otherwise, the open house was without incident except for the crowds estimated at well over 4,000. Some thought the figure was nearer 6,000.

DEDICATION
Some 500 were on hand for the dedication ceremonies presided over by R. H. Weaver, immediate past president of the Y and under whose administration the building finance campaign was executed.

Clyde McMahon, the first man to serve two terms as Y president and under whom the decision was reached to undertake a new building, offered the invocation.

Recalling that a group of Big Spring adults had finally decided, 14 years ago, after long consideration, upon the YMCA as an institution to best serve the youth of the community, Joe Pickle, vice president, alluded to the growth of the Y as an institution.

He said that the new building was being dedicated not as a monument to an impressive past but rather as an instrument of service in the future.

"We dedicate this beautiful building to a ministry of Christian service," he said. "We pray that God will bless it, prosper it and justify it, and that all who enter it will go out from it strengthened in body, mind and soul."

Jane Cowper responded with an expression of gratitude from the youth of the community to every one who had contributed to the building fund.

Then, with the vice president, who was taking the place of Dan Krause, who was in Boston and unable to attend, she snipped the ribbon across the entrance, turned the key and stepped inside to officially open the $330,000 facility.

Weaver acknowledged the presence of Sam Schreiner, Dallas, executive secretary of the South-west YMCA Area Council, and of all former general secretaries including Bill Dawes, Big Spring, Grover C. Good, Grand Prairie, and Lee Milling, Lubbock. He also acknowledged the Y's appreciation for all support.

Delegations were present from the YMCAs at Plainview, Abilene, Lubbock and Midland.

There exists the possibility that liberal-labor groups will fight the Johnson forces at the state convention. If the state delegation to Los Angeles is pledged to Johnson, as is expected, the liberal group might take a contesting delegation to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Randolph failed to gain election to the Harris County Democratic convention which was controlled by conservatives.

But she told liberals "we are going all the way to Los Angeles."

He said prior to the conventions that Mrs. Randolph "has lost Houston."

He noted that the proposal, suggested by Eisenhower at the Geneva summit meeting in 1955, was "to protect Russia, the United States and all other nations from a surprise attack."

Bernstein Takes Challenging Task

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Philharmonic and its popular conductor Leonard Bernstein took on a challenging, and exhausting, task Sunday.

They played twice, the last subscription concert of the orchestra's 118th season in the afternoon, and the second and last of the year's pension fund benefits in the evening.

They played in Carnegie Hall, which threatened to chalk up a third "last." It could have been the orchestra's last appearance in the hall which has been its home since it was built in 1891.

With seats at a $25 top, the pension fund got a $30,000 boost from an audience attracted by a stout Beethoven program and by soloists with an exceptional box-office appeal.

Pianist Rudolf Serkin, soprano Eleanor Steber, mezzo Rosalind Elias, Tenor Brian Sullivan and Bass baritone Kenneth Smith, The Schola Cantorum was the chorus for the two numbers: Fantasy for Piano, chorus and orchestra, and the Ninth Symphony.

The program was on the side, and Bernstein, with 200 people under his baton, can't hear not to get the most and the loudest out of them. But the fantasy was delightfully performed; Smith's voice was outstanding for its warmth, fervor and clarity; and after all, Beethoven is infinitely better than Benny—Jack Benny, and Danny Kaye, too, have been featured performers at all too recent benefits.

Yet despite the insistent demands of the music, listeners must have kept wondering: is this the Philharmonic's Sunday night here? It has signed to play at Hunter College next season, preparatory to moving to Lincoln Center in the fall of 1961.

Manager John J. Totten said Carnegie Hall lights were going out, and no more concerts were booked. Robert E. Simon, Jr., in a program note bidding the public farewell as the corporation's president stated that the hall "will either be torn down this summer or become a public museum." In the same program a second note called this "a very sad and significant year for Carnegie Hall; it is apparently her last."

However, Totten admits he hasn't fired any staff members yet except for seasonal dismissals. The Philharmonic originally expected this to be its last appearance here, yet didn't announce it formally. The state has enabled the city to acquire the place, assessors have been at work there this week. A speaker in Town Hall Sunday afternoon told how Carnegie Hall had been "saved." And the Carnegie Hall Society, headed by Isaac Stern, obviously believes it's in business and ready to run the place on a nonprofit basis in the future.

Daniel Wants Tax Program With No Income, Sales Levies

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Price Daniel pleaded with his blue-ribbon tax hunting commission today to make a "serious effort" to lead Texas out of its financial troubles without a sales or income tax.

"That is all I ask," Daniel told the 34 members of the State Finance Advisory Commission at its initial meeting.

Daniel scheduled another speech later in the day detailing the five unrevealed tax plans that he promised during his recent campaign. Other speakers included the governor's budget director Jess Irwin and State Comptroller Robert Calvert.

The full membership of the commission was announced Saturday. Some sources have said at least 15 members are believed to favor sales taxes as a means of solving the deficit and paying for state commission is to make a study and recommendations which will assist your elected officials in providing a balanced budget with which to meet the essential needs of state government, not only for the present and the immediate future but a long-range basis—and in such a manner that will preserve in this state a good climate for business and individual citizens," Daniel said.

"I have asked that the commission search for every means of meeting our financial needs without a state income tax or a general sales tax. As stated in my letter to each of you: 'Regardless of your personal opinion concerning these taxes, I hope you would be willing to help this commission make a serious effort to find other means of taxation so as to avoid both of these last resort measures. That is all I ask.'"

Daniel added that "if for no other reason, practical considerations make the enactment of either of these measures impossible in the foreseeable future, since a great majority of the members of the Legislature, your lieutenant governor and governor are publicly committed against such measures."

Daniel said the purpose of the commission is not to consider taxes alone. He made five specific requests for study of financial affairs and policies in state government:

1. Overall economy "without neglecting essential services or delaying necessary improvements."
2. Recommendations of the fiscal structure of the 220 special funds containing 253 million dollars which cannot now be used for general appropriation purposes.
3. Ways and means of retiring the current deficit which Daniel estimated at 45 million dollars on May 12.
4. Immediate needs of state government for 1961-63 biennium, as well as long range needs for 10 years.
5. Revenue sources for the 1961-63 biennium and long range needs for 10 years.

Ross Hunter Has A Way With Women

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ross Hunter is a producer who has a way with women—but it's so expensive he had to borrow $20,000 to pay his income tax this year.

Hunter has produced such big grossing movies as "Imitation of Life" and "Pillow Talk." Feminine stars like working for him so well that some, like Doris Day, make it part of their contract in picture deals. Doris and Ross currently are making "Midnight Lace" with Rex Harrison.

In this day when casting is the biggest single problem of production, Hunter has a waiting list of top feminine stars wanting to be in his pictures.

How does he do it?

"It's very simple," he says. "I just treat an actress the way a man in love with her would. You know how expensive that can be with one woman. Imagine what it costs when you have a dozen or more working for you in a year."

That's why he had to borrow money to pay his taxes. He had spent most of his income on gifts for his stars.

For instance, before the start of "Pillow Talk," he found that Miss Day had a passion for candied fruit.

"I went over to the farmers market and bought out the candied fruit stall. Doris had candied fruit in her dressing room every day. She's probably sick of it now."

Deris is one of his most expensive stars. Martha Hyer, an old Hunter friend, posed a problem. Her passion is collecting original works of art by Picasso, Renoir and others.

"I'm trying to get her converted to candied fruit," says Ross, who won't say whether he helped Martha with her art collection, one of the biggest in town.

Hunter, 37, fortunately is a bachelor and doesn't get any nagging at home when he makes expensive gifts.

His technique is not new in the movie industry but it is not widely practiced. Hunter's idol was the late Irving Thalberg, who kept Joan Crawford, Jean Harlow, Greta Garbo and Norma Shearer from clawing each other during the days they reigned as queens of MGM.

Hunter, like Thalberg, believes that women want to see beautiful women on the screen dressed in beautiful clothes and in beautiful surroundings.

"I've never met a woman fan yet who enjoyed seeing dirty dishes in the sink on the screen. I let Tennessee Williams have the realism. I believe in glamorous escape," says Hunter.

What makes a successful producer?

"A gambling instinct," answers Hunter.

One big gamble was Rock Hudson as a comedian in "Pillow Talk."

Sniper Due Mental Exam

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A mental examination was the next step today for Howard Criswell, who blamed an "urge to kill" for nine separate sniping attacks police say he has admitted.

Criswell, 18, signed a statement admitting the shootings after he was arrested Saturday night, officers said. The thin, blond youth was jailed without bond under nine counts of assault with intent to murder.

He was quoted as saying that when he hit men at whom he aimed, "I felt so good I ran half way home. I had to have relief," he told investigating officers.

Sheriff Tom Cartwright said he believed Criswell's arrest cleared up the case of the mysterious sniper who terrorized an area of South Nashville for three weeks, wounding two men.

New Faces, New Places Mark Changes In Webb Personnel

Newcomers are replacing old-timers, and familiar faces are appearing in new places in a series of personnel changes now under way at Webb.

Col. James A. Johnson, Deputy Wing Commander since he came here from Paris, France, two years ago, will join the staff of the Technical Training Center, Amarillo AFB, sometime in July. The number two spot at Webb will then be filled by Col. August F. Taute, at present stationed at Lackland AFB, San Antonio.

Col. Charles H. Pierce, commander of 3560th Pilot Training Group since April 1957, will leave sometime next month for a tour of overseas duty in Korea. He will be succeeded at Webb by Lt. Col. Leland A. Younkin, now PT Group executive officer.

Col. Glenn A. Stell, commander of 3560th Air Base Group for the past year, has been named special assistant to the wing commander until his departure for Basic Instructors' School at Craig AFB, Selma, Ala. When he returns from school, in August, he will assume command of the Pilot Training Group.

Replacing Col. Stell as head of Air Base Group is Lt. Col. Jack P. Goode, who has been that group's Executive Officer for the past several years.

Maj. Wilmer E. Boyd, formerly personnel services officer, is now filling Col. Goode's former position as executive. Capt. Thomas W. Jones, formerly assistant personnel services officer, is now top man in that large section of Air Base Group. He will retire from the Air Force in July.

Capt. Roy E. Butz, assistant wing operations officer, has been named base exchange officer. He will take over about the end of this month from Capt. William C. Bristow Jr., BX Officer for the past two years, who departs from Tachikawa AB, Japan.

Two more overseas moves, in late summer and early fall, will send Webb's Catholic Chaplain, Capt. Eugene M. Clemens to Kyushu, Japan (August), and Capt. Glenn T. Clarke, head of the officers' division of wing personnel, to Okinawa (September).

Capt. Clarke has been here since 1957, and Chaplain Clemens since 1958, when he arrived from Chaumont AB, France.

The recent newcomer to Webb, Maj. John Z. Groves, has been named executive officer of 3560th Civil Engineering Group.

Scheduled for arrival at Webb in July is Lt. Col. Clifton L. Bray, currently stationed at Headquarters USAF, Washington, D. C. His assignment at Webb has yet to be announced.

Two well-known Webb "regulars" are scheduled to return soon from long periods of temporary duty: Col. Henry L. Weber, Commander of 3560th Maintenance and Supply Group, attending an Executives' Course at Harvard University; and Lt. Col. Donald W. Pendergrast, Wing Operations Officer, on six months' duty in Turkey.

Lt. Col. Leonard R. Einstein, M&S Group Executive Officer, has been filling in for Col. Weber, and Maj. Ford A. Ivey, wing communications staff officer, for Col. Pendergrast.

Western Governors Indicate Kennedy's Stock Is Rising

By MORRIE LANDSBERG
SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy's stock as a Democratic presidential contender showed a significant rise among governors of the far West today. Democratic governors, mostly uncommitted themselves, declared that Kennedy made "great strides" toward the nomination by his West Virginia victory.

Two of the governors, on a don't-ask-me-basis, indicated their personal preference for the Massachusetts senator.

MORSE BACKED
Oregon's Republican governor, Mark Hatfield, said that he is sticking to his prediction that Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) would win the state's Democratic, presidential primary Friday.

But he added he wouldn't be surprised to see Kennedy pull off an upset in the balloting for 17 delegates.

The governors, here for a Western conference, gave their views in an Associated Press survey.

Democratic delegates from the 13 Western states, including Hawaii and Alaska, will command 271 of the 761 votes needed to nominate at the Los Angeles convention.

Oregon is the only Western state with Democratic, presidential candidates on a primary ballot. All the others either choose delegates in party meetings or will send delegations uncommitted or pledged to a favorite son.

Hatfield told a reporter that Kennedy's prospects, in Oregon climbed to within striking distance of Morse when Kennedy defeated Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota in West Virginia.

He said some influential Democrats for Humphrey have either switched to Kennedy or are remaining neutral.

One Democratic governor commented privately that frankly he is looking for a winner and that he was impressed by Kennedy's recent vote-getting success.

Another Democrat, Grant Sawyer of Nevada, said "Kennedy that Humphrey is out of the running."

"If Kennedy should win in Oregon, too, it would give important impetus to the psychological effects of his victory in West Virginia."

Democratic Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska said he feels Kennedy made "great strides" toward the front of the crowd in West Virginia.

He predicts Adlai Stevenson, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Stuart Symington — would carry the 49th state.

WYOMING SPLIT
Democratic Gov. J. J. Hickey of Wyoming said his state's delegation (13 votes) is likely to be split among Kennedy, Johnson and Symington on the first ballot. Personally, he said he has great admiration for Stevenson.

"If Stevenson would come on the strongest," Hickey said, California's Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown remains publicly neutral. He is bidding to have the state's 51-convention votes pledged to him as a favorite-son candidate. However, he said recently that Kennedy gained some support among California delegates by his showing in West Virginia.

Mrs. Line President Of Music Study Club

Officers were installed and plans for the new year announced when members of the Music Study Club held their luncheon meeting Saturday at the Cosden Club.

Mrs. Jim Line was installed as president; Mrs. Douglas Wiehe first vice president; Mrs. J. R. Hensley, second vice president; Mrs. J. C. Douglass, Jr., secretary; Mrs. Carl Bradley, treasurer; Mrs. Carol Belton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Carl Marcum, parliamentarian; Mrs. Harrol Jones, reporter-historian.

Installing officers was Mrs. R. V. Middleton who likened her duty to a comparison of Schubert's Quartet, No. 10, Without Drums and Trumpets. Mrs. Middleton told the new officers they were to always consider their work as musicians with drums and trumpets, as their charge in life was to bring people closer to God and to bring happiness with their talent.

As each received her office she passed a lighted taper to the other officer. Mrs. Middleton presented each of the officers a corsage of yellow carnations.

Following the installation Mrs. Line appointed committees and Mrs. Wiehe announced the study for the new year as Dorian's "History of Music and Performance."

Mrs. Line was program leader for the afternoon the theme for which was "Realms of the Future." Mrs. Line talked on "American Hopes" dealing principally with jazz music. She played MacDowell's Praeludium as a piano solo and Mrs. Douglass sang Porter's "Wunderbar." Mrs. J. E. Hardesty, violinist, played "Adoration" by Brossky and "Traumerei" by Schumann. She was accompanied by Roberta Gay. Completing the program was a piano rendition of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" by Mrs. Robert Heinze.

Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. G. T. Hall, Mrs. H. M. Jarrett and Mrs. Harrol Jones. The latter presented Mrs. Marcum with a past president's pin; Mrs. Marcum gave Mrs. Line a guest book.

Members viewed awards made to the club at the state convention held in Lubbock recently by the National Federation of Music Clubs. The awards were for the National Music Week activities in 1959 and for the February Parade of American Music in 1960.

The group observed a moment of reverence for the late Mrs. Norman Furlong and pledged a donation to the Stillman Kelley Scholarship fund of the National Federation of Music Clubs in honor of Mrs. Furlong.

Speaker's table decorations were a profusion of vari-colored roses combined with columbine, dogwood and wandering Jew held in a large oblong copper bowl. A dogwood pattern decorated the place-cards.

Mrs. Bass Back From Convention

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Proper Breathing Should Be A Habit

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD—As I watched Cornelia Otis Skinner in that delightful play, "The Pleasure of His Company," I admired the erect way she sat and stood, and I thought how much posture contributes to her bearing.
 Later in her dressing room at the Biltmore Theater, I told her. She laughed and said, "I shot up to my full height when I was 14, and I was taller than any of the boys or girls in my class. I was so self-conscious about it that I tried to shrink myself by slumping."
 "Then one day I heard myself described as 'that Skinner girl with that awful posture,' and from that moment I began to stand and sit with as straight a spine as I could. At first it is difficult, but, if you stay with it, you will strengthen the back-muscles and it becomes a habit. And a good one because you don't cramp your lungs and rob your body of oxygen."
 "Breath has a great deal to do with our health, the sound of the voice and the color of the skin," Miss Skinner revealed.
 "When I'm overly tired, a few deep breaths by an open window revive me. And it's surprising how fast it brings color into my cheeks."

 "Your skin is lovely," I told her.
 "Come hell or high water!" Miss Skinner exclaimed, "I make sure all my make-up is off before I go to bed at night. I use a simple mineral oil that takes off the surface dirt. Then I use soap and water and a little moisture lotion afterward to keep my skin from getting dry."
 "I think, not trying to get tanned has helped, too," she confided. "I see my friends coming back from Florida in the winter with dark tans—and there is always a new crop of wrinkles. A little sun is attractive but I think too much of it does harm."
 "What do you feel is your most treasured beauty secret?" I asked.
 "Well, I'll have to think about it," Miss Skinner said and then mentioned her father, the famous actor Otis Skinner. "Dad was remarkably young when he died in his 80s, and he attributed his youth to the fact he never allowed anything to interfere with his daily siesta. I try to do the same. I think everyone needs to have a certain time to be still."

Cardwell No-Hitter Highlights Action

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Cardwell is a shining example of the old baseball cliché that a change of uniform is good for a man now and then.

Cardwell retired the first hitter, walked Alex Grammas on a 3-2 pitch and then set down St. Louis Cardinals in succession en route to his 4-0 victory.

It was the 4th encounter in the National League since Sal Maglie threw one against the Phillies in the waning days of the 1956 pennant race.

Pittsburgh's Harvey Haddix pitched 12 perfect innings last year only to give up a hit and lose the game to Milwaukee in the 12th.

The last American League no-hitter was pitched by Hoyt Wilhelm of Baltimore against New York, Sept. 30, 1953.

Cardwell's only previous 1950 win was in relief against Milwaukee. He had lost to Pittsburgh and Milwaukee and failed to go the route in four starts over the years he has had only four success in the majors, never getting up to the 300 mark for a full season.

In the ninth pinch hitter Carl Sawatski made a long drive to right field that George Altman caught against the wall. With two out and a 3-2 count on Joe Cunningham, the batter hit a liner to left which Walt Moryn grabbed for a shoestring catch.

Cardwell's dramatic performance in the second game came after St. Louis finally had won its first game on the road: The Cards' 6-1 decision in the opener with the help of two home runs by Ken Boyer broke a 12-game losing streak away from home.

Grando Cepeda's two-run triple in the eighth gave first-place San Francisco a 2-0 decision over Los Angeles. Johnny Antonelli allowed only six hits in his first complete game of the year, boosting the Pirates' lead over Pittsburgh to 1 1/2 games.

Pittsburgh had to be satisfied with a split at Milwaukee. The Pirates hopped on Warren Spahn for four runs in the first inning and took the opener 6-4 but bowed to the Braves in the second 4-2.

Pierre, St. Louis' ace, pitched off Benjie Daniels in the first inning. Cincinnati and Philadelphia players engaged in a free-for-all in the eighth inning of their first game after the Reds' Raul Sanchez hit three Philly batters with low pitches.

Manager Gene Mauch of the Phils charged the mound and players from both sides squared off. Billy Martin of the Reds went to the hospital from a punch on the jaw. The Phils won the first 14-3 for Gene Conley and the Reds got even 5-1 behind Don Newcombe.

VALDES WINS SECOND Tigers Slaughter Andrews, 29 To 1

The Big Spring Tigers won their fifth straight New Mex. Tex. Baseball League decision here Sunday afternoon, at which time they routed Andrews by a score of 29-1.

In their last two games, the Bengals have outscored the opposition, 61-2. The locals get a major test here next Sunday, however, at which time they oppose the Lamesa Red Sox, who also are unbeaten in the league.

Danny Valdes pitched the win for Big Spring Sunday. In five innings, he yielded only two hits, struck out seven and walked only one. Bobby Bell and Spot Cockrell also hurled for Big Spring.

Beall fanned five in his brief stint on the hill. Willy Rodriguez was the losing pitcher.

Marion Tredway clubbed a first inning home run with the bases empty for Big Spring while Billy Weatherall drove one out in the eighth with a mate aboard. Charles Boien and Bobby Suggs has tri- ples for the Tigers while Tito Arencibia, Pat Martinez and Sonny Dutchover came through with doubles.

Of Big Spring's 21 hits, Arencibia, Martinez, Preston, Daniel, Billy Paul Thomas, Weatherall and Jackie Thomas each had two.

The Bengals counted in every inning but the third and seventh and started off with a nine-run first.

Birdie Putt On 17 Wins At Colonial For Boros

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Julius Boros never will forget that 20-foot birdie putt he sank on the seventeenth green Sunday to win the $30,000 Colonial National invitational golf tournament.

It not only put $5,000 into his pants but continued his reputation as being the man most likely to win the big ones.

Boros, the stoical Hungarian who looks like an Indian chief, shot a par 70 on the final round to take the Colonial by a stroke over Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., and Kai Nagle, the Australian. Boros finished with 208 for 72 holes.

He called that putt as if it were the most precious shot of his tournament. He needed to sink it or he would be the lead by Nagle and Littler, who had both birdied the hole. It was a birdie putt and had to be birdie. Boros figured everything just right because it fell in to keep him a stroke ahead.

Youthful Orioles Tearing Up Loop

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

The "Baby Birds" from Baltimore threaten to put the accent on youth in the American League race. With the help of one 21-year-old and another of 22, the Orioles have flown into a first place tie with the venerable Chicago White Sox.

Steve Barber, a left-hander, is the 21-year-old. Vaulting from the low minors Barber won his second for the Orioles with a fine three-hitter against Boston in the 2-1 first game of a double header Sunday.

Chuck Estrada, 22, wasn't even on the Baltimore roster in the spring but when he showed up he was not sending him home. He walked in to relieve Hector Brown with the bases loaded and none out in the sixth inning of the second game at Boston and struck out five men in a four-inning workout.

Brown got credit for the victory because the Orioles were well on their way to a 7-4 victory when he left.

blanking Cleveland with five hits, 4-1, in his first complete game of the year. However, the Indians came back to beat Gerry Staley in the second game 6-3 on a three-run homer by Harvey Kuenn in the 10th inning.

New York rolled up five in the first inning, in which Elston Howard tripled with the bases loaded, and rolled to an 11-2 romp over Washington behind Art Ditmar.

Kansas City blasted Detroit's four-game winning streak by taking both ends of a doubleheader, 5-0 on Bud Daley's three-hitter and 5-4 on Harry Chitt's 10th inning clutch single.

Rookie Marv Breeding hit his first big league home run for Baltimore leading off in the first inning of the opener. Clint Courtney's sacrifice fly drove in the deciding run in the seventh. Baltimore chased Frank Sullivan in a six-run first inning in the second game.

Gil McDougald and Tony Kubek homered for the Yanks and Earl Batley and Jim Lemon for the Senators in the game at Washington.

Lost Monastery

High on a Hebronville hilltop is the lost monastery of the Franciscans, its windows staring like sightless eyes over the walled garden of tropical plants which replace mesquite.

'Lost' Monastery Still In Hebronville

HEBRONVILLE (AP) — There's a lost Franciscan monastery here standing high on a hill, its windows staring like sightless eyes over the walled garden where South Texas mesquite is replaced by the tropical lushness of bananas and palms.

Inside, the echoing halls are bare and deserted, except for three priests and three lay brothers, one of whom, a pianist, sometimes loses a flood of melody through corridors and down the marble stairs.

Scotus College, as it is called, had its beginning in 1926 when nuns and priests of various orders fled Mexico before the social revolution.

After brief stays at various locations, members of the great religious organizations founded by St. Francis of Assisi reached this brush country haven and started a novitiate for the Mexican province of the Franciscans.

It was named after one of the most profound scholars of the Middle Ages, Joannes Duns Scotus—John Dun of Scotland—a Franciscan and a professor of theology at Oxford.

In the school, which in the beginning was only a small cluster of frame classrooms, the friars once more began to train laymen for the priesthood and in the tenets of the Franciscan order, which has long been identified with great educational institutions.

The white masonry building—main structure of the college—was completed about 1940 with accommodations for nearly 40 students and priests, but only six remain. When the rigorous treatment of the clergy was relaxed in Mexico, novices once more began to study at another Franciscan college in Monterrey.

"But maybe next year—manana—the students will come," says Father Ramon Solano, one of the three priests in residence.

Several churches in the surrounding region are served by the padres and lay brothers, as well as two in Hebronville. One of these is a little yellow structure which crouches beside the huge pile of the monastery; the other, a new sanctuary for Our Lady of Guadalupe.

This last, with tiled domes and towering walls, may not be finished for years.

WHITE HOUSE

Next President Can Redecorate

WASHINGTON (AP) — How would you like to move into a 54-room apartment with 16 baths, extra kitchens, five elevators and a solarium, all rent free and fully staffed by servants?

And how would you like to be presented with $75,000 to redecorate it any way you wanted?

If this prospect pleases, you'd better start planning for president.

For this apartment is in the White House, and it will be the personal living quarters of the next chief executive.

A bill is pending in Congress providing $100,000 for refurbishing the mansion to the taste of the next incumbent. But $25,000 is for an exterior paint job, and there isn't much choice of color there.

The White House is 160 years old. The Patina of American history clings to it and tradition decrees that much of it must remain unchanged.

The main floor, restored in 1902 to early elegance, is sacrosanct. So is the bedroom of Abraham Lincoln and the Rose Room, where visiting royalty has slept.

But each president and his first lady are free to indulge their taste in the extensive second and third floor private quarters. Some of these passing moods and vagaries.

In President James Monroe's time, the classic designs of Adam, Sheraton, Hepplewhite, Louis XVI and French Empire were the thing. Some of these priceless antiques still grace the state rooms downstairs.

But Congress was suspicious of these foreign imports. In the 1820s it passed a law requiring the White House to buy American "as far as practicable."

With that loophole, you can imagine the result. Martin Van Buren was bitterly assailed for surrounding himself with "costly flippers of Europe."

Rough-hewn Andrew Jackson also felt the lash of the opposition for foreign elegance, even though he thriftily laid in 20 American-made cuspidors for only $2.

In the second half of the 19th century, the Victorian mode set in. The light, graceful lines of the early days gave way more and more to massive sideboards, wardrobes, marble-topped dressers, horsehair sofas, curlicues and gingerbread.

When Chester A. Arthur succeeded to office in 1881, upon the assassination of James Garfield, he swept out 24 cartloads of motley junk and ordered it sold at public auction.

He ordained a lavish decor of heavy gold wallpaper, plush draperies, and a much-admired opalescent glass screen for the entrance.

Energetic Teddy Roosevelt caused the next upheaval in 1902. He divided the White House into three areas — administrative, domestic and formal — and it remains so to the present day. The state rooms reverted to the early classic period.

In the private quarters succeeding presidents and their ladies sought to add a touch of individuality and home. Mrs. William H. Taft installed Oriental teakwood furniture and screens from the Philippines.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge raised the roof of the third floor to create the solarium, or family "sky parlor." Mrs. Herbert Hoover converted a wide corridor to a sitting room, and strewed it with bright Latin American rugs.

The Franklin Roosevelt clan took over with personal trophies and collections.

The White House was totally rebuilt inside—and Harry Truman added the famous back porch.

President Has Secret Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa) said today the nation's economic growth provides President Eisenhower with what he called "a secret weapon" for the summit conference opening in Paris.

Scott referred to the fact that the gross national product, the total of all goods and services, reached an annual rate of $500,200,000,000 for the first quarter of this year.

He said this was secret only in the sense that announcement of it last week had been obscured by recent explosive international developments.

He said in a prepared Senate speech that it was a weapon in the sense "that it helps our people to wage peace as it would help our nation to wage war."

Never before in history, said Scott, has a gross national product of half a trillion dollars been approached by any country. "No other nation has achieved even half this level," he said.

"Our president arrives in Paris as the leader of a nation which produces more goods and services than that of the Soviet Union and Western Europe combined," Scott said.

A Devotional For Today

Thy shoes shall be iron and brass; and as thy days, so shall thy strength be. (Deuteronomy 33:25.)
 PRAYER: O God, we thank Thee for Thy love and patience, for so many times we try to run from Thee, try to live in our own strength. We beseech Thee to forgive us for not waiting for Thy guidance. Accept the gratitude of our hearts, our humbleness of mind, and our love for Thee. May we ever be willing to be led by Thee. For Jesus' sake. Amen.
 (From The 'Upper Room')

Inate Modesty And Dedication

John D. Rockefeller Jr. who died at Tucson, Ariz., Wednesday at age 86, was a quiet one.
 The fact that most people couldn't have told you whether Mr. Rockefeller was still living up to Wednesday is a tribute to his modest, self-effacing ways. Here was the inheritor of great wealth, one of the world's great property owners, who had added enormously to the wealth he inherited, and in the course of his lifetime had given away an estimated half-billion dollars.
 There was practically no gingerbread, no giving-for-giving's sake, and certainly no giving at all for publicity purposes, in the Rockefeller benefactions. Like his father before him Mr. Rockefeller believed in putting his charity dollars to work. There was a practical as well as a philanthropic side to his giving.
 There is hardly a remote part of the world where Rockefeller millions didn't find their way sooner or later for the betterment of mankind. It was used to fight devastating diseases, to set up medical services, to advance science, and to undergird the Christian concept of man's responsibility to the less fortunate.

 For Mr. Rockefeller was a deeply religious man. He took his stewardship very seriously. He fathered five stalwart sons and one daughter, and he brought them up to view life as something to be respected and inculcated in them something of his own sense of responsibility. There was not an idler or a wastrel among them. Each, in his own way, by his own efforts, found something worth doing well—and doing it well.
 In spite of many decades of giving to good and useful purposes, the Rockefeller fortune is still enormous—just how enormous probably none of the Rockefeller knows.
 John D. Jr., for all his basic conservatism, was a daring enterpriser, as the skyline of New York City and other business centers mutely testify. None of the savage criticism that fell on his father's head in the older man's career touched him. His sincerity, his innate modesty and his philanthropic dedication won him the respect of his fellow-Americans.

The Facts Of Life

President Eisenhower was right, in his press conference last week, in briefing the American people on the facts of life regarding American espionage, which he called a "distasteful and vital necessity" to prevent massive surprise attack.
 It is "absolutely ridiculous" for the Soviet Union to accuse the U.S. of provocative acts, since "we are looking to our own security and defense and we have no idea of promoting any kind of conflict or war."
 Besides, he said in effect, look who's talking. The Soviet Union's policy of secreting everything left other nations no alternative than to gain such information as they can, in any way they can, as a safeguard against the building up in the deep recesses of the Soviet land mass a sneak attack. It is the only nation on earth that could hope to conceal such preparations. (The borders of most countries, especially that of the U.S., are an open sieve in comparison to that of Russia and her satellites.)
 Espionage has been a part of history, since Moses sent scouts ahead to spy out the land of Canaan. All nations engage in it to a greater or lesser extent—they wouldn't remain nations long if they didn't. The Soviet Union has perfected espionage to a fine art, and is absolutely ruthless in its pursuit—up to and including the sending of spy-planes over the territory of other nations, including our own.

 So the hissy Khrushchev, threw on discovery of a U.S. plane over the heartland of Russia was strictly for propaganda purposes. His indignation was phony. In short, look who's talking! We were simply giving him a dose of his own medicine. Perhaps he was a bit frightened to have proven that we had a plane capable of traversing his empire; there was small comfort for him in knowing that other U.S. planes had done the same thing on other occasions.
 The administration may have acted too hastily in acknowledging that we had been "spying" on Soviet territory. Subsequently developments have thrown more doubt on the wisdom of that "confession," for it is pretty well established that the photos Khrushchev used in implementing his charges were faked, and there is no way of telling as yet whether most of his details regarding the incident weren't faked too.
 A few more days of calm deliberation and investigation might have proved how flimsy most of K's story really was; but our public "confession" could not be recalled.

WASHINGTON—Analysis of traditional habits in politics and the habits of thought of organization leaders tells far more about who is going to be nominated at a political convention than do polls or primary elections.
 Based on just such an analysis, this correspondent writes on March 7, just before the New Hampshire primary, that Sen. Kennedy "is likely to win the Democratic nomination" and that, "if he is blocked, the compromise candidate will be Adlai Stevenson."
 On April 7, after the Wisconsin primary, this writer said in these dispatches:
 "THE WISCONSIN primary by all the rules of politics, should mean that Sen. Kennedy will be regarded as the front-runner from now on. This means that the other candidates will tend to combine against him. There are other primary contests to be sure, but Sen. Kennedy will gain ground in all of them, as he has the organization and the finances back of him to win the necessary delegate strength."
 What is really meant by "the organization and the finances"? Certainly there is not the slightest basis for any implication that votes are bought. Nor is it to be assumed that the word "organization" means the regular party machinery. In prevention campaigns, each candidate develops his own organization and, if he has money enough, he will engage precinct workers everywhere to get voters to the polls, transporting them in autos when necessary. More important still, the organization will know where to find the indifferent voters who can be persuaded by friends to vote for the candidate such friends favor.
 These "organization" workers carry sample ballots printed in advance, and in a state like West Virginia, where there are few precincts with voting machines, it means that the citizen takes the sample ballot into the voting booth and is not bewildered when confronted with a long list of state and local candidates. He is enabled to go right to the spot on the ballot and put his mark down.

 THIS IS AN OLD pattern in American politics, and it takes a lot of money to pay for a big organization that really gets out the vote. The total Kennedy vote in West Virginia was about 220,000 which is less than half of the Democratic vote cast for Adlai Stevenson in 1952, when he carried the state against Gen. Eisenhower. It isn't difficult to line up a minority bloc in any state primary if you have the money and the organization. The Kennedy forces can do it hereafter in every primary, and they will confront the Democratic national convention with the legitimate query: "Since we have won most of the primaries, how can you turn us down?"
 This correspondent believes that the West Virginia primary result not only has helped Sen. Kennedy toward the Democratic nomination but actually has helped toward the election of Vice President Nixon, who is certain to be the Republican nominee.
 ONCE THE SO-CALLED "religious issue" is out of the way—and it now will be so viewed by many politicians because West Virginia has a relatively small number of Catholics in its voting population—the tendency will be to appraise the Massachusetts senator on his merits.
 The Republican strategists, for instance, don't want to see the "religious issue" raised either. They would rather go before the country with the argument that, in these fateful times, "you don't elect a boy to be President of the United States."
 The biggest point the Republicans think they will have in either favor is that Vice President Nixon is trained in and intimately familiar with the tasks of the White House and that Sen. Kennedy would have to start from scratch to learn how to function in the presidency.
 But doesn't the voting in the primaries, it will be asked, indicate that Sen. Kennedy is popular and a good vote-getter? As against a less colorful and less known candidate, such as Sen. Humphrey, it has not been difficult for Sen. Kennedy to win the primaries thus far. But the real reason why the Massachusetts senator upset so many observers who were forecasting the outcome of the West Virginia primaries is that they paid more attention to hit-or-miss polls than to two key factors—"the organization and the finances."
 IN A NATIONAL election "the organization and the finances" tend to be balanced as between the parties. As of today, it seems very likely that the nation's voters will have to choose between Kennedy and Nixon next November. This writer believes that—on the basis of first, satisfactory economic conditions in the major part of the country next autumn, and, second, the argument as to the executive experience that the Republican nominee will offer to the public, and, third, the active support of President Eisenhower—the Republicans will win a decisive victory. "BUT YOU'RE BLACKER THAN ME"

James Marlow Soviet Demands Are Sore Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is an ABC on one of the sorest issues at today's summit meeting in Paris: the Soviet Union's demand that the Allies get their troops out of West Berlin. The Allies have refused.
 The 2,200,000 West Berliners consider themselves part of the pro-Western West German Republic even though their city is 110 miles inside Communist East Germany.
 Just because it is, supplies for the city from the West have to move by road, rail, water and air over Communist territory. Up until now, with one major exception, the Soviets have let the supplies through, under a wartime agreement.
 THE EXCEPTION was the year-long blockade started by Stalin in 1948. The Allies airlifted supplies into Berlin until he gave up.

 Now Premier Nikita Khrushchev has indicated the supplies may be shut off again unless Allied troops are withdrawn from the city.
 If the Allies try to smash their way through a new blockade, the result may be war. But if the Allies withdraw, they will suffer a gigantic moral and political defeat.
 The U.S.-British-French troops—only 10,000 of them—are not actually a fighting force, deep as they are in Communist territory. They are a symbol but an important one.
 They represent Western determination not to abandon the West Berliners to the Soviets. If the troops were withdrawn, the surrounded West Berliners would be absorbed by Communist East Germany.

 HOW DID the troops get there? What right do they have to be there?
 The roots go way back to World War II when the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France agreed to control Germany after its surrender until time for a peace treaty with a new Germany.
 They did by dividing Germany into four zones with each of the wartime partners occupying one zone. The same arrangement was made for Berlin, the capital city.
 The Soviet zone of Germany naturally had to be in the east, which was closest to the Soviet Union. Berlin, being in the eastern part, was in the Soviet zone.
 The wartime partnership did not last. The cold war began.
 HOPE of agreement with Stalin on a single new German government disappeared. The Allies set up a West German republic in their three zones of Germany and in time voluntarily ended their occupation.
 But they kept their troops in Berlin. This, they said, they had a right to do under the wartime agreement.
 In turn the Soviets, while gripping their East Berlin zone tight, set up in their zone of Germany a new Communist East German government. The West, including West Germany, considers this Communist regime a Soviet puppet, has never recognized it.
 The West and the Soviet Union still lack of creating a new, single government for all Germany. They are miles apart on how.

Hal Boyle Even Moses Had Spies

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:
 Military spying is as old as warfare. Ancient Egypt had a well-organized espionage service. The Bible tells how Moses sent a dozen spies into Canaan. The first famous spy was Deilah.
 Frightening fact: Motor vehicles now cause nearly half of all accidents in America. Spot checks show one of every five cars on the highway is unsafe. If you have two children, the odds are that one will sooner or later be hurt—perhaps killed—in a traffic accident.
 A clean sweep: When gypsies marry, they seal the bargain by jumping together over a broomstick.
 How it came about: The red and white pole, a familiar sight outside most barber shops, originated during the Middle Ages when barbers also were surgeons and blood-letters.
 What is your definition of a bore? Ambrose Bierce in "The Devil's Dictionary" said a bore is "a person who talks when you want him to listen."
 More light in government note: The Pentagon in the nation's capital has 68,000 light fixtures, and some 1,200 bulbs have to be replaced each day.

 How well are you eating? The average U.S. family of four persons now spends $1,548 a year on food. A third of all the food items now stocked by modern supermarkets didn't exist 10 years ago.
 Nature study note: Because of the air bubbles held in its feet, the tiny water shrew can run across the surface of a quiet pool without sinking.
 Bandleader Sammy Kaye would rather play golf than lead an orchestra. He as scored a hole-in-one twice.
 Sign at a church rummage sale: "Good chance to get rid of everything not worth keeping but too good to throw away. Bring your husband."
 It isn't the initial cost of kids—it's their upkeep. The average American family spends $35 a year on toys.
 Now that Elvis Presley has got his strutting hand back in condition, you might be interested to know America has more than five million guitar players.
 Wisecrack of the week: Adolescence is the period in life when a boy refuses to believe that some day he'll be as dumb as his father.

To Your Good Health Don't Give Reducing Pills

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
 "Dear Dr. Molner: I am sending 5 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope for a copy of your leaflet, 'Lost Secret of Reducing.' Would this help a nine-year-old boy who weighs 130 pounds? Would it hurt him or help him?" —Mrs. C. C.
 The leaflet might help, but not hurt him. You don't give his height but in any case, 120 pounds at the age of nine indicates overweight.
 It is possible for a glandular disturbance to be a factor in seriously overweight children, but this is rare. Most of the time the whole thing is found to depend on the child's habits. In that, the leaflet will be helpful, I feel certain.
 By "habits," I mean any of a number of things. A child may be pampered, or he may be over-protected, or may be too strongly dominated by a parent, most likely the mother. For instance, the child may be driven to school every day instead of walking. Such children as a result may become somewhat withdrawn from the ordinary activities of childhood. They don't exercise nearly enough. They enjoy sedentary pastimes—and oh, how they sometimes eat. Not just at mealtimes, but they often have big allowances and drink a lot of soft drinks, eat candy, sandwiches, ice cream, crackers, and so on between meals.

 There's also the emotional factor to consider in some cases. A child with some worry or problem (sometimes a feeling of "not being liked," or such) quite often eats too much as a compensation. (Adults do it, too.)
 I have seen youngsters snap but of this—especially when parents are understanding. Such children begin to realize that eating between meals and getting but little exercise is not good for them. I've seen them trim up into fine specimens.
 But there's another habit not so easy to break—eating large, rich meals. In such cases the whole family will be too heavy—and a child, growing up thinking it is natural to eat big meals with lots of starch, fat and sugar, is just about bound to be too heavy, too. It's also harder for him to get in the habit of eating meals that are really normal.
 Here is a word or two about glandular cases. Occasionally we find a child with low thyroid activity, or a pituitary gland which does not function in proper fashion. This can be identified by appropriate physical examination, and medical correction of the condition can work wonders. But all such cases require medical attention. You can't "do it yourself."
 A final word of caution—overweight children should not be given

"reducing pills." Get them to eat and to exercise correctly, and their weight will adjust. And if it happens to be a case involving glandular faults, they may require medication—but not "reducing pills." Rather, the treatment will be aimed at correcting the basic trouble.
 "Dear Dr. Molner: I have arthritis in the knees. I have been taking cod-liver oil for a long time. I also take my knees. Is either of any help?" —Mrs. H.Y.
 Cod-liver oil isn't going to help. As to "baking your knees," I don't know exactly what you mean, but application of heat usually helps to keep arthritic joints more comfortable and more flexible.
 Why suffer from sinus trouble? Much can be done to help you, and it is explained in my booklet, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble." To receive your copy, write to me in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.
 Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Back In The Dark Ages For Teachers

Like an insight on the hotel room you might be leasing a year or two or three from now?
 One was shown at the Midwest International Hotel Show in Chicago recently and it boasted these new items:
 A telephone which can be used when the gentleman occupant is shaving. You simply push a button into the wall and start talking. Speakers—without handsets—are wall mounted in the bathroom as well as the bedroom.
 AN IRONING BOARD and iron, hidden away behind the wall mirror.
 A coffee maker mounted in the storage wall. (More than one motel has such a facility now).
 Hi-fi music, a television set, both of which are operated from a centrally located table. A bathroom, with a mirror ringed with lights.
 All of the mentioned items are now in production.
 THE TEACHERS' lobby has been very vocal in recent years, hammering away at the theme that nothing would help like an uplift in income.
 The profession has taken off a lot of prestige in the past few decades, and rightly so. Time was when a person reasoned he could teach school when he couldn't do anything else.
 In 1923, out in Idaho, if a woman signed a contract to teach school, she was prohibited from (1) getting married, (2) keeping company with a man, (3) smoking, (4) drinking, (5) loitering in ice cream parlors, (6) being out after 8 o'clock at night and (7) dressing in bright colors.

 She also had to scrub the classroom floor at least once a week.
 THE AMERICAN Medical Association Journal reported recently that so-called "pep pills" may make you bolder and friendlier but can also increase anti-social behavior.
 Roy Rogers, the movie and television cowboy, suggests that taking youngsters fishing, hiking or participating in any of the many facets of outdoor life is the best way to keep them out of future trouble.
 "If you keep a fishing rod in a youngster's hands, you won't have to worry about him becoming a juvenile delinquent," says Rogers.
 PSYCHOLOGISTS from Oxford University have asked thousands of people throughout the British Isles into what animal they would like to change in case of metamorphosis.
 Ninety per cent of the men named the horse, whereas 97 per cent of the women voted for the cat.

Critics, Not The Eagle, Are Screaming

LONDON.—These are days, with the State Department hoist by its own petard, when man cannot be chided for wondering if he is long for this world—or any other.
 But now cometh Pollyanna to lighten the gloom. Two men believe there'll always be an England and a U. S. A. Or, at any rate, they believe both the United States and Britain are good for a millennium, minus one year.
 The two gentlemen who have gazed into the future and come to the comforting conclusion that America and England are good for another 999 years are Uncle Sam and the Duke of Westminster. They have signed and sealed a contract to this effect. Pravda, please copy.
 UNCLE SAM HAS taken a 999-year lease on the block framing the west side of Grosvenor Square. There the splendid new American Embassy is nearing completion. The Duke of Westminster—oh, man of iron faith—enters into this picture as proprietor of the land on which Uncle Sam has taken a long, leaping lease into the future.
 I understand the Duke is already interested and a bit testy as to the condition of the building when the lease is up sometime after 2957. And we haven't even moved in yet!
 As a matter of fact, I visited the present American Embassy, at No. 1 Grosvenor Square on the east side of the little park, in search of a far different story. But when I accidentally came across the tale of the 999-year lease, I deemed it my duty to spread my measure of sunshine, in these dark days, far and wide.

Granted that a bird with a 35-foot wingspread is a lot of bird to give any city, even one as big as London, still, I cannot believe that the British critics in and out of Parliament have seen the scale drawing of the bird in relation to the Embassy. It is the largest such building that Uncle Sam has built in any part of the world.
 THE BUILDING, AND I think it extremely handsome with its beautifully balanced use of Portland stone and glass, is 288 feet seven inches in length and rises to a height of 81 feet above the street.
 My only fear is that the 35-foot eagle, with wings outspread in both beneficent and peaceful mood, will, against such a massive building, look no larger than a mosquito peaking over the top ledge for a look at Grosvenor Square.
 In his beak and talons the eagle holds no weapon more dangerous than a golden ribbon. He looks about as menacing as a broody hen. And, by comparison, not nearly as proud, haughty and defiant as those outside, large, economy-type bronze lions that guard Trafalgar Square in the heart of London. They've been there for decades and haven't been there yet.
 AS FAR AS I CAN figure out, it isn't the bird that's screaming; just the critics.
 The eagle, the work of sculptor Theodore J. Roszak of New York, will arrive in London in June. His pale-gold hue will match a modicum of similar pale-gold-colored aluminum trim on the off-white stone building.
 The Canadian government has already purchased from Uncle Sam the Embassy he has occupied so long on the east side of Grosvenor Square. And before any home-grown critic gets up to denounce a fancy-pantsy penthouse on top of the new Embassy, let me point out that it is strictly for storage files and machinery needed to operate the new building.
 The target day to move into the new building beneath the golden eagle is August 15. (Copyright, 1960, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

How Investors Kid Themselves

An exploration of the complex and voluminous public record of Skiatron Electronics & Television Corp. could be called Gullible's Travels. More than 1,000,000 shares of a company which relied "almost entirely on the obviously speculative" success of pay TV were bought by investors. Let a normal registration with the Securities & Exchange Commission never had been filed.
 This is a double commentary: First, on the naive anxiety of people to buy any stock with "electronics" in the name.
 SECOND, on the difficulties of the SEC in stopping violations of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. Operating on a reduced budget, the SEC doesn't have the personnel a bull market demands. As stocks rise, investors become easy victims of their own lust and others' wiles.
 Trading in Skiatron stock on the American Stock Exchange has now been suspended—after most of the damage has been done. Originally, 150,000 shares were sold to raise capital of about $300,000. No registration was necessary for this small amount. Yet, this sale and listing on the American Stock Exchange made it possible for two "insiders" to dump stock at prices over $10 a share.
 ARTHUR LEVEY, president of Skiatron Electronics, took advantage of an exemption in the Securities Act which permits the sale of unregistered stock to large-scale bona fide investors. Congress wisely decided to exempt from registration sales of large blocks of securities not intended for resale. (Thus we have private placements with investment trusts and insurance companies, etc.) Levey, purportedly, sold his stock in blocks to bona fide investors. But, says the SEC complaint, it quickly found its way to market.
 Matthew M. Fox, a promoter, who formed Skiatron of America, Inc. to exploit pay TV through Skiatron Electronics, used a different technique. He pledged blocks of Skiatron Electronics with money lenders. When he didn't meet his payments, they sold the stock, and his unregistered stock got on the market. To make up for these oversights, Skiatron Electronics submitted a registration statement for 172,000 shares of stock in August, 1959. SEC attorneys contend the stock had actually been sold.
 THE SEC FORCED Skiatron Electronics and Fox to agree to a stipulation of facts, as follows: Skiatron Electronics is dependent almost entirely on Fox for funds to carry out its program of pay television. Fox and Skiatron of America "have at least $1,000,000" in judgments against them. One judgment is held by a company "whose assistance is critical to the operation of a contemplated subscription television system." Fox also owes "approximately $3,000,000 to various lending agencies and individuals." Maybe the name of the company should be "Blue Skiatron."

 THIS SORRY example of the barn door closed too late has its lessons:
 1. Purchasers of securities ought to inquire if a prospectus is available: Has the stock been formally registered with the SEC? Then, at least, they'll know that the company has met full-disclosure standards of the Securities Act.
 2. Investment information firms, such as Standard & Poor's Corp. and Moody's, should state in company write-ups whether stocks have been registered with the SEC. When a person examines a write-up of a company in a corporation manual, he can't tell the difference between a registered and an unregistered security.
 3. STOCK EXCHANGES, such as the American, should look to their members, who are specialists, to check on whether stocks have been registered before they are sold. Gerard F. and Jerry A. Re, floor brokers, handled large blocks of Skiatron sales. It is through brokers and, particularly, specialists that blocks of unregistered stocks go to market. If brokers are alert and honest, this type of transaction can be stopped in incipency.
 4. The courts would do well to hold money lenders who take unregistered stock as collateral violate the Securities Act if they sell such stock without first registering it with the SEC.

8,000 Turks Skirmish After Election Talk

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — About 8,000 opponents and supporters of Premier Adnan Menderes skirmished for nearly an hour in the streets of Izmir Sunday just after he promised to hold national elections.

About 4,000 youths shouting "Menderes resign" clashed with about the same number of supporters of the 61-year-old premier.

Police and troops dispersed the mob without serious casualties, but tension continued high.

Menderes arrived in Izmir on a tour of western Turkey to test local sentiment toward his sharp repression of the opposition People's Republican party.

In an arrival speech he promised election of a new parliament if the nation stays calm. It was his first public mention of voting since the student riots in Istanbul and Ankara April 28-29. He indicated no election date, but under the constitution he must call a vote by the spring of 1961.

The premier was eating at a restaurant some distance away when the fight broke out.

Menderes has put a ban on all political activity inside Turkey while a parliamentary committee carries out a probe of the opposition. The ban runs two more months.

Mexican Imports Rise Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mexican imports of U.S. meats and hides rose sharply in 1959, but imports of lard and tallow fell materially. The Agriculture Department said Mexican demand for meats has increased faster than its production.

Mexico has greatly increased imports of U.S. breeding hogs to encourage pork production. The country's trade policy is to protect domestic producers through tariffs and import controls.

Sukarno Plans Mexico Meeting

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Indonesian President Sukarno will arrive today on an official visit on his way to Acapulco.

Commie Refugee Assists Khrushchey

By MICHEL DOMINIK
PARIS (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchey went for a stroll today and ran into a refugee from communism who obligingly interpreted for him.

The Soviet Premier on his morning constitutional also advised a pretty French maiden to get herself a good husband, and made some personal on-the-spot investigations of French living standards and wine.

He popped out of his embassy at about 7:30 a.m. and strode through a prosperous middle-class area.

He darted into a grocery shop operated by Michele Pacquet. The astonished proprietor rushed to show him around.

MEETS YUGOSLAV
Then up came a Yugoslav employe, Bata Racic, who came to France last year as a language student and stayed as a political refugee from communism.

Racic has a brother named Milan, also a political refugee, living in Milwaukee, Wis.

Racic, who can speak Russian, translated for the shop proprietor. It obviously shook Khrushchey to hear the Russian. Racic didn't say what he told Khrushchey, however, and the Premier just asked a few questions about the number of employes in the shop, mumbled a few words, and left without shaking hands. He just said goodbye.

A few minutes before he had been considerably more animated.

Khrushchey was accompanied by the Soviet ambassador to France, Serge Vinogradov, an interpreter and a few aides.

Earlier on the spur of the moment he popped into a specialty food shop, and surprised manager Raymond Balade, and a clerk, Miss Jeanette du Pont.

"Good morning, ladies and gentlemen," boomed the beaming Khrushchey, as he stepped into the shop, which was named "Aux Douceurs de France"—The Sweetness of France.

He bobbed amiably about, looking closely at the wares and paying particular attention to the array of French wines.

Then he wheeled to the manager and asked: "How much does the shop make in a day?"

"About 100,000 francs—$200—a day," the manager replied.

"That's pretty good," said Khrushchey, nodding, "and how much do you, yourself, earn?"

"About 75,000 francs a month, with board and keep," Balade answered.

Khrushchey turned to Miss du Pont, and asked the girl her age. Jeanette said she was 17.

MARRIED?
"Are you married?" Khrushchey asked.

"No," she replied, smiling demurely.

"Choose a good husband," he counseled with a grandfatherly grin.

The little blue-eyed brunet blushed prettily.

Khrushchey looked around for a bit and then stomped out of the shop after shaking hands with both his hosts and saying goodbye.

In the 10 minutes Khrushchey was in the store, he didn't buy anything, didn't ask for anything, and wasn't given anything.

AT CONVENTION

Republicans, Too, May Feature July Contest

By The Associated Press
A faint hint from New York spurred speculation today that the Republicans, just like the Democrats, may feature a contest at their presidential nominating convention in July.

The hint came as Democrats entered their final week of primary tussling. Maryland votes Tuesday and Oregon on Friday.

GIVES HINT
L. Judson Morhouse, New York Republican chairman, provided the hint in a statement Sunday. He said Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York "should not be ruled out of consideration for the presidency."

Some political observers thought this meant New York intended to nominate Rockefeller as a favorite son candidate at the Republican convention in Chicago.

But Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the clear favorite now, seemed to have little doubt of the outcome, either at the Republican or the Democratic convention.

He reportedly predicted that he would be the Republican nominee and Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts the Democratic nominee.

STATEMENT
In his statement from Albany, Morhouse said Rockefeller was correct in resisting pressure to accept the vice presidential nomination.

"If we are honest with ourselves, we must recognize that the place for that broad appeal, reaching beyond party lines, is at the head of the ticket," Morhouse said. "Its absence there cannot find or claim compensation elsewhere."

Rockefeller, in a letter to Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton Saturday, had said he would not attend the national convention. He did not want the delegates to misconstrue his attendance as willingness to accept second place, Rockefeller said.

This emphatic resistance drew support from Nixon on a television program early today. He said Rockefeller's rejection "means the office is not downgraded by being resisted and then offered to a second man who is obviously second choice."

OREGON

paign trail to seek votes in Oregon. Nixon supporters also opened a radio and television drive to get out the vote for their man on the Republican ballot Friday.

Nixon is unopposed, but the Democratic ballot lists Kennedy, Morse, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota. Humphrey, however, withdrew from the race after his defeat by Kennedy in West Virginia last week.

Neither Symington nor Johnson, entered without their consent, have campaigned in Oregon. Symington, in fact, issued a statement in Washington Sunday boosting Morse.

Morse, as a favorite son, was entitled to Oregon's 17 votes at the national convention, Symington said. This drew a statement from Kennedy that he was not "quite clear as to the exact arrangements between Sen. Morse and Sen. Symington as to delegate trading."

STOCK RISES
In Seattle, where Western governors are meeting, an Associated Press survey of Democratic governors showed a significant rise in Kennedy's presidential stock.

The governors said Kennedy had made great strides toward nomination. Two governors, who would not be quoted by name, indicated that the Massachusetts senator was their choice.

Nixon's prediction of a Nixon vs. Kennedy race this fall came during an off-the-record talk to 100 industrialists at Hot Springs, Va., Friday night. Some of those present reported Nixon's remarks later.

They reported Nixon also said Kennedy would enter the Democratic convention "pretty much under the control of the labor bosses" and would be "pushed to the left of his party" by campaign pressures.

Polite Evidence
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — David Edwards, 23, politely removed his hat while being questioned by Tucson police officers.

A partially smoked marijuana cigarette rolled out of the hat band. Edwards was booked on suspicion of illegal possession of marijuana.

overcome this danger of surprise attack. In fact, the United States has not and does not shirk this responsibility.

At the time, State Department press officer Lincoln White did not seek to discourage newsmen from interpreting the Herter statement as notice that flights over the Soviet Union would continue until there is East-West agreement on steps to guard against surprise attack.

Through all the tempest about the plane incident, no high administration official has given a flat statement that the flights are continuing or have been stopped. Nor did Allen Sunday. He just said there had been a great misunderstanding about what Herter had said.

Allen said the downed pilot, Francis G. Powers, "told exactly what his mission was, exactly what he was expected to do. And he was under instructions to do that. He gave an honest report of what his mission was and I think that ought to be realized by everybody concerned."

Herter's Remarks On Spy Flights Clarified

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter has not declared that U.S. spy flights will continue over the Soviet Union, says George V. Allen.

Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency, said Sunday in a television interview "there has been a great misunderstanding that I would like to correct."

Allen said Herter had stated "that there is an obligation and responsibility on the part of the U.S. government and of the free world to try to obtain information to guard against surprise attack, but he has not said we are going to continue to fly."

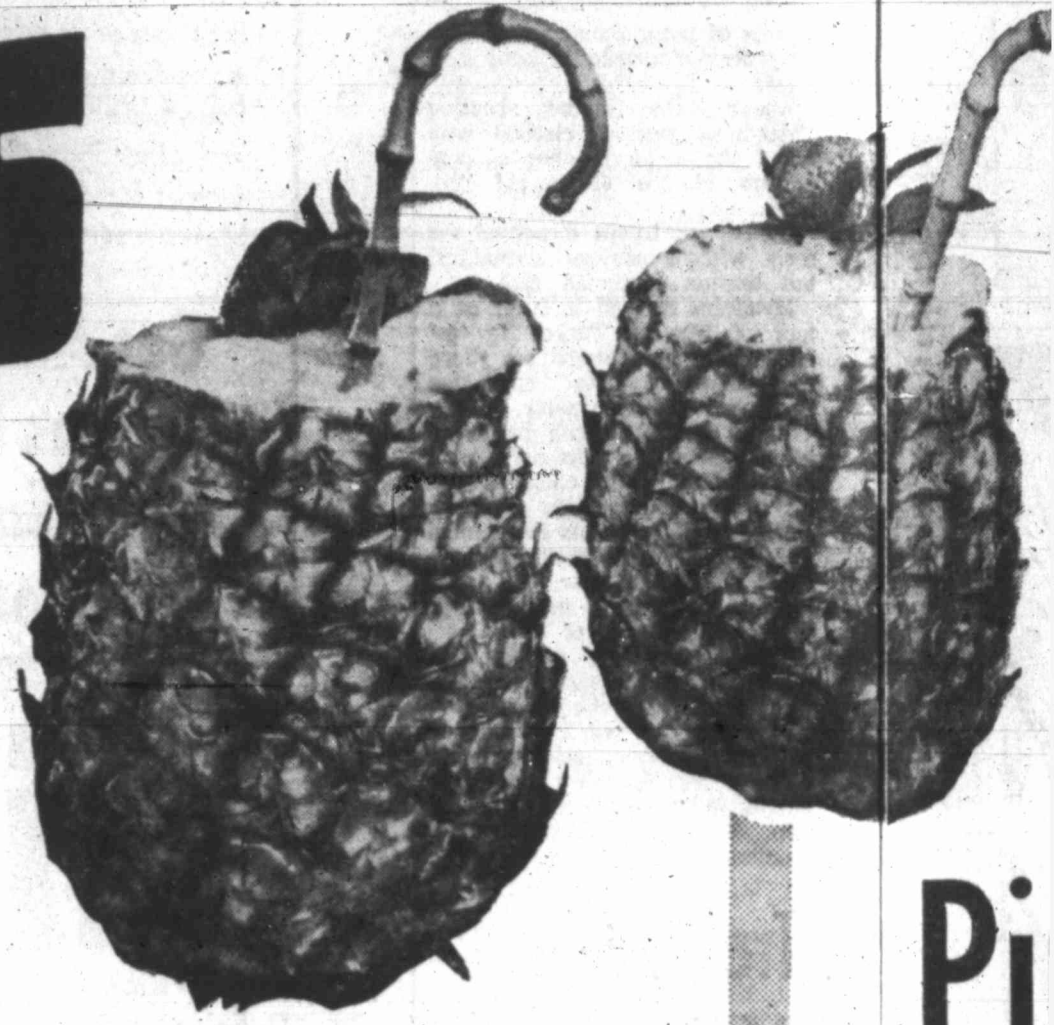

Commenting a week ago on the shooting down of an American plane inside Soviet territory, Herter said in a special statement:

"The government of the United States would be derelict to its responsibilities, not only to the American people but to free peoples everywhere if it did not, in the absence of Soviet cooperation, take such measures as are possible unilaterally to lessen and to

Garnish with mint and a strawberry or other berries in season and add a tray of crisp cookies and iced-fruit.

PINEAPPLE TROPICANA

Diced meat of 1 large ripe fresh pineapple
 1/4 cup flaked coconut
 1/4 cup sugar
 Dash rum flavoring
 Carbonated beverage

Combine ingredients (except carbonated beverage) and blend a few seconds until smooth and foamy. If no blender is available, put pineapple and coconut through the food grinder using the fine blade or mince very finely using a sharp knife. Spoon fruity puree into tall glasses or pineapple shells and add cold gingerale or other carbonated beverage to fill. Garnish with mint and berries. ## Revolutionary Is Now Bank President

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
 HAVANA (AP) — Ernesto Guevara has come a long way since serving his apprenticeship in revolutions in six years ago in Guatemala.

Today he is president of the National Bank of Cuba. He also is an important member of the triumvirate that rules the nation—considered by less influential nor less close to Fidel Castro than the third member, Castro's brother Raul, Cubans who still cling unreservedly to the Castro bandwagon appear inclined to silence where Guevara is concerned. In less-revolution-minded circles, there is open censure of the economic czar. There are hints that even within the official party, some view Guevara with the feeling reserved for the guest who stayed too long.

But there is no question as to Guevara's position in Castro's eyes. The prime minister has risen to Guevara's defense publicly on numerous occasions when the matter of communism has been brought up.

Why were the nation's financial fortunes placed in the hands of a man barely in his 30s lacking in banking experience?

Castro appointed Guevara to succeed Felipe Pazos, of hemisphere banking renown, as head of the National Bank last November. Castro praised Guevara for achievements as the economic genius behind the revolution. Rankled Cubans did not take long to manifest their feelings. Runs developed on several banks.

Guevara has told reporters he left Argentina July 4, 1953 and was in Guatemala at the time of the revolution that unseated the leftwing government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954. One source says Guevara worked as a physician in the Guatemalan capital but diplomatic sources here claim Guevara also was "specific counselor" to Arbenz.

In 1956, Guevara says, he met Fidel Castro in Mexico City and was impressed by the latter's revolutionary aims in Cuba. He joined the movement and was in the expedition that invaded Cuba late the same year.

Those close to him say Guevara does not make any effort to conceal his bitterness toward the United States. Guevara told reporters soon after the revolution triumphed that he was a leftist but not a Communist.

There is no question about Guevara's personal charm.

Born June 14, 1928, Guevara is dark and trim in his 5-8 frame. A sparse black beard and long hair sometimes give him the dashing air of one of D'Artagnan's musketeers wearing olive green.

He never has been seen here wearing anything but his olive green uniform, paratroop boots and a black beret.

Real Problem

HOME-ON-THE-RANGE, Wyo. (AP)—The six members of the Sweetwater Fashioners, a 4-H club of girls in the Sweetwater River ranch country, have given up holding meetings during the school year.

The reason: Dawn and Diane Wilson go to school at Saratoga, 110 miles southeast of here. Judy Perry attends classes in Rawlins, 65 miles southeast of here. Margala Parks goes to school in Casper, 95 miles northeast of here. Her sister, Sue Parks, goes to school at Jeffrey City, 12 miles east of here. And Jeannette Reid attends classes at Lander, 60 miles northwest of here.

The girls live with relatives or at boarding houses where they attend school.

Midland Sets Plans To Publicize Area Potential

MIDLAND (AP) — An organization that will attempt to publicize the potentials of Midland and the Permian Basin to the world has drawn support from a number of business, professional men and ranchers.

The temporary chairman of the group, James N. Allison, said more than 35 pledges have been received, including one for $10,000.

Allison said the non-profit alignment of citizens will operate independently of other civic organizations and will not be connected with political activities. The organization resulted from several conferences among community leaders, Allison said.

Child Discipline Explained Easy

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) — The Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States, Archbishop Egidio Vagnoni, recalls that in his childhood he "had a tendency to be somewhat wild."

As a result, he told a sodality meeting Sunday, he was frequently well spanked by his parents.

German Wreck

BERLIN (AP) — An East German express train and a local collided in Leipzig Sunday night, killing 59 persons and injuring 100, the East German news agency ADN reported.

We hope to attract industries which will build payrolls and manufacture and develop products from petroleum resources and other raw materials found in our area. Industries in the area which are anxious to expand will not be overlooked by the program. Other industries also will be contacted.

DEAR ABBY

DON'T BE SILLY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You said in your column that you thought it was wrong for a fellow and girl to kiss and make out in a show. I disagree with you.

Nowadays parents are too strict and old-fashioned. With the H-Bomb ready to go off in our faces any minute, we young people should get in all the fun and loving possible. It may be our last chance.

LIVE TODAY
DEAR LIVE: That theory is as old as the "heels." The "live today—for tomorrow may never come" philosophy is dandy only if tomorrow doesn't come. So far, "tomorrow" has arrived on schedule every day without fail. Better think of another excuse.

DEAR ABBY: In a confidential message you attempted to give comfort to a reader who felt neglected and ignored. "Remember Whistler's FATHER," you said.

For your information, you don't have to feel sorry for Whistler's father. He was Major George Washington Whistler, one of the greatest construction engineers of all time. He designed and built the Trans-Siberian Railway for the czar of Russia in 1843.

The old lady merely "sat."

Sincerely yours,
CASEY R.

DEAR ABBY: My father recently passed away after a lingering illness. We had the problem of explaining death to our little girl, who is eight. I told her in a nice way that Grandpa went to live with God in heaven. I explained that heaven is a beautiful place and we will all go there some day. I also told her that Grandpa was very sick and he is much happier where he is now. She accepted it and didn't cry a bit.

My husband and the rest of his family seem so surprised that I told her these things. They keep telling her that her Grandpa is "away" and will be back. If I am wrong, I'd like to know. If they are wrong, please tell them.

YOUNG MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: You are right. Children must be taught the facts of death (as well as life) and you explained it beautifully. It is foolish and unkind to tell a child that a person who has passed away will "be back." When the child learns the truth (as he surely will) he will lose confidence in the one who deceived him.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I gave birth to a child out of wedlock. I had to put my maiden name on his birth certificate. I have since married. Pretty soon my child will be going to school and I want him to carry his father's name. Can I have his name changed on his birth certificate, and if so, how, please?

NEED YOUR HELP
DEAR NEED: Get in touch with your Department of Public Health and they will change it for you. There is no publicity or red tape

In this type of name change and it costs about a dollar.

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of the Herald. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-Agers Want To Know," send 25c and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of the Herald.

Mobilization Alert Sounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States practiced mobilizing its emergency defense forces early today when the Pentagon called a communications readiness alert.

The alert, conducted at the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, affected all U.S. commands both in this country and overseas. Similar practice alerts are conducted periodically.

The alert was canceled several hours after it was called. In some cases, commercial radio and television stations were called on to notify bomber and fighter pilots off duty to report to their bases. A series of such announcements at Denver, Colo., for Lowry Air Force Base personnel, caused a flood of calls to newspaper and radio switchboards.

Offutt Air Force Base at Omaha, Neb., headquarters of the Strategic Air Command, went on what was described as an "alert posture." The operation was described as a command exercise and there was no estimate of the number of personnel directly involved, but Army, Navy and Air Force personnel were included at bases throughout the world.

U.S. elements of the North American Air Defense Command with headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., were among those participating.

Seven Year Old Takes A Drive

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Police say a seven-year-old boy spotted a car parked in a service station, its keys in the ignition. The boy, unidentified, decided to take a ride.

He drove the car 11 blocks without incident and quit only when he drove into a dead-end street. He didn't know how to turn the car around.

"What am I going to do with him?" asked his mother when police brought him home. "I don't know where he learned to drive."

Market Shaky Due To Early Summit Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were irregular early this afternoon as Wall Street turned cautious on news that the summit conference apparently had foundered.

Gains and losses of fractions to a point prevailed among most key stocks. The market was vigorous and higher at the start as it resumed Friday's sharp rally. There was an initial rush when a string of big blocks was traded, most of them at moderately higher prices. News that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had withdrawn his invitation to President Eisenhower for a visit to Russia was followed by precautionary selling among many of the "growth" stocks which have made big gains lately. Some of the aircraft-rocket stocks held gains; others dipped.

TWU Union Officers Relieved

FRONT ROYAL, Va. (AP) — The Textile Workers Union of America has cracked down on a local union that planned to buy $80,000 worth of bonds for construction of privately segregated high school facilities.

In what was described as an unprecedented action, TWU headquarters notified Local 571 Saturday that its assets had been frozen and its officers had been relieved. All powers were vested in an administrator, Will Davis, while the TWU holds a hearing on the case. The hearing is scheduled Thursday with Victor Canzano, general vice president, presiding. The executive committee of the local, whose 2,000 members are employed at the American Viscose Corp. plant in Front Royal, condemned the TWU action. In a statement, the local maintained "it has the right to invest the local union's funds without interference from the international union."

Local officials contended the national office had been misinformed as to the financial structure of the private school and said if necessary they would carry their fight all the way to the national convention of the TWU, which meets in Chicago late this month.

FORT WORTH (AP) — A corporation headed by singer Bing Crosby has bought television station KFJZ, Channel 11, here.

The corporation is called Nafi Telecasting, Inc. Crosby is chairman of the board. Golfer Ben Hogan is a director. The transaction was confirmed today by Fort Worth City Councilman Gene Cagle, president of Texas State Network, which owns KFJZ-TV. The company also owns and operates television station KPDA in Amarillo, and radio KRIO in McAllen. These properties are not affected by the contract with Nafi.

Braniff Aircraft Lands Safely

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Braniff International Airways plane with 32 passengers and five crew members landed safely with a blown-out tire Sunday.

Pilot R. W. Shields, 55, said the tire blew as the four-engine DC8 took off for a flight to New Orleans. Shields made five low passes over the Kansas City airport so mechanics on the ground could make sure the remaining tire on the dual wheels of the right landing gear was all right. Then he landed the plane gently and stopped it within 2,000 feet by reversing the propellers. The first passenger off, Miss Julia Logan of Des Moines said: "Nobody got excited. Didn't that pilot do a wonderful job?" The passengers transferred to another plane and departed again.

Verwoerd Released

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister Hendrick F. Verwoerd has been released from the hospital, where an assassin's bullets put him April 9, but it will be some weeks before he returns to full-time duty.

Holland Blaze Destroys Building

HOLLAND (AP) — The huge Holland Mercantile Co. building burned Sunday night sending up a red glare that could be seen 15 miles away.

Fire Chief Melvin Goodnight said an explosion was heard just before the fire was discovered in the building that occupied about one-half a block in the downtown section of this small city. He said paint stored in the building could have exploded.

There were no injuries and damage was estimated at about $110,000 by J. M. Stafford, President of the company. Telephone lines burned leaving the city without communications with other towns.

A red glow in the sky could be seen in Granger, about 15 miles south, and the Granger Fire Department sent firefighting equipment here. Equipment from Temple, Belton, Little River and Bartlett also was sent.

Flames from the building threatened the town's bank for a time but a thick brick wall between the flames and the bank kept the fire from spreading. The fire started about 9:30 and by 11:30 it was under control. Holland has about 700 residents.

Managing Editors Discuss Efforts To Serve Readers

DALLAS (AP)—Efforts of Texas' daily newspapers better to serve their readers and hold their interest was described at the spring meeting of The Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. Sunday.

The executive editor of the Waco News-Tribune and Times-Herald, Harry Provence, said the growing use of color in pictures and advertising was just one sign of the energy and imagination being used. He also cited new interview techniques with tape recorders, cooperation with schools of journalism to produce better reporters, and special training for newsmen in fields such as science writing and public affairs reports.

The meeting drew a record attendance for a spring session of the association.

William I. Latham, managing editor of the El Paso Times and president of the Texas APME presided.

The chairman of the Texas APME Continuing Study Committee is William E. Dozier Jr., editor of the Tyler Courier-Times and Telegraph.

Dozier's "committee members gave reports on studies of the AP news and newsphoto operation.

The association voted to make no changes in the population categories for annual contests until 1961.

Plane Crash Survivor Is Recuperating

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A woman who crash-landed a small plane after her pilot-husband died at the controls recuperated today at a Dallas hospital.

Mrs. Spencer F. Black, 39, of Dallas, who said she did not know how to fly a plane, brought the craft down at Dallas' Love Field Saturday night. She suffered severe cuts and bruises.

An autopsy report on her husband, a 50-year-old oilman, is expected this week. It is believed he died of a heart attack while flying his 4-place, single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza from Fort Worth to Dallas.

"He started gasping and threw back his head. His mouth fell open and he started breathing hard and slumped down in the seat. I couldn't feel any pulse," Mrs. Black said.

She had to reach past his body to grasp the wheel. As she flew over the airport she shouted "SOS" over and over into the radio.

Networks Planning Next Fall's Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The chilly statistics of public fancy have led television networks into the stock-piling business. All three do it, but the National Broadcasting Co. probably will have more shows warming up in TV's bullpen than any of the others next fall.

"One out of three new shows succeed—if you're lucky," says Alan Courtney, NBC vice president of program administration. "In television it has been the custom to put on the shelf shows that you're unsure about. But we are establishing an inventory of shows we think are tops, so that we are prepared to replace the failures by January."

Courtney, for instance, is pretty excited over a series called "The Barbarians," set in ancient times and produced in Rome. One of reasons it is on the shelf instead of the sales counter is because of production problems. These should be solved within a few months, and "The Barbarians" will be one of the replacement shows of the new TV season.

"It takes around 12 weeks to get a series ready," explains Courtney. "Even if you have the concept, you must get the script in shape, cast it and shoot it. In other years, we've had to rush things through. Next season, we'll be ready."

The most interesting television of the weekend was, unfortunately, unseen by those outside the New York area. Vice President Richard M. Nixon sat down with interviewer David Susskind on his "Open End" show telecast on New York station WNTA Sunday night and took on all questions—including some very rough ones. He talked for almost two hours about international espionage, disarmament, nuclear and foreign policy and even politics.

It was a highly informative, leisurely period in which to make the acquaintance of Nixon. "Open End" has no specific termination point and the program went on until Susskind felt he had covered the subjects.

It would be enlightening and helpful to viewers if the networks would present such programs. Surely Nixon was wise to choose to appear—live—on such a show. He had time to answer questions in full. It proved infinitely more satisfactory than those sharp-shooting, hit-and-run, question-and-answer sessions with a panel firing questions and a moderator trying to keep the answers short to fit in a half-hour show.

Recommended tonight—Steve Allen Show, NBC, 10-11—Ginger Rogers, Tony Bennett and Erroll Garner, guests.

All times Eastern Daylight

Shrimp Imports Pose Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. shrimp fishermen are facing more competition both among themselves and from imports, the Interior Department reported today.

The domestic competition stems from an increase in the number of shrimp boats in recent years with no corresponding change in production other than normal yearly fluctuations, a study showed.

The report was prepared at request of the National Shrimp Congress, an organization whose members produce more than 70 per cent of United States-caught shrimp.

A 1956 law authorizes such reports, upon request, that respect to any fishery product imported into the United States to determine whether there have been downward trends in prices, production or employment and whether imports have increased.

In addition to the increase in the number of shrimp boats, major findings of the report included: There has been a decrease in the gross earnings per boat; discovery of new shrimp areas has resulted in construction of larger, more seaworthy vessels which require larger crews; construction costs have increased; and shrimp imports have increased substantially.
