Dying Embers

Portions of a $25,000 fire are shown here as firemen clean up debris and extinguish the last dying embers. The fire started in the building shown in the top photo, destroying the living quarters of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Matlock, their fruit and vegetable stand, and damaging their car. The Wooten warehouse, shown in the lower picture, caught fire when flames jumped from the Matlock's building. In addition to severe roof damage, many tires were destroyed in the warehouse. A third building Wooten's Transfer, also caught fire from the blaze, but was damaged only slightly.

$25,000 Damage When Flames Destroy 2 Downtown Structures

Fire gutted two adjacent buildings early this morning and burned part of a third structure, leaving an estimated $25,000 damage in its wake.
Falmes broke out at the Matlock Fruit and Vegetable Stand, 501 E. 2nd, about 6:46 a.m., apparently from a short in the compressor unit used in refrigeration. Fire Marshal A. D. Meador said.

and his wife and son were in the building when the fire started. A River ambulance carried Mrs. Matlock to Big Spring Hospital where she was given treatment for shock.
Meador estimated that total damage to the fruit stand and living quarters would run close to $14,000, in addition to the produce contaminated, the roof and ceiling were heavily damaged.

owned by Harvey Wooten who also owns the adjacent building to the east. Wooten's Transfer, damaged slightly by the fire.
Meador said he thought damage to both Wooten's buildings would amount to about $5,500. The contents stored by Cosden probably incurred about $6,000 damage, he said.

About 750 gallons of water were pumped on the blazing thinner with no effect. The firemen spent all morning at the fire scene watching the smoldering embers.
The devastating fire on the first day of July was viewed by a disheartened chief, H. V. Crocker, and fire marshal who have just completed one of the city's lightest fire loss months. During June, only $296.60 in damage was reported, Meador said.

Few Leads In Burglary

Police have failed to turn up any new tangible leads in the $366 safe burglary of the Budweiser Beer Distributors warehouse Wednesday night, although suspicion is aimed at professional yeggs working out of New Mexico.

The money was taken from a 500 pound safe which was carted from the warehouse office to a vacant lot about a block away. The expertness of the job marked it as professional, police said.

A cigarette package bearing a New Mexico state tax stamp was found near the safe.
That and similar modes of operation in the Hobbs, N. M., area are the only leads police have in connecting the case with out-of-state burglars.

NEW YORK (AP)—Rebel bus strikers went back to work today, ending a tieup that had disrupted transportation for a half million New Yorkers daily for four days.

Congress Slices Webb AFB Money

The Webb AFB appropriation for construction, currently before Congress, was sliced back to $731,000 in a compromise move by Senate and House conferees Thursday.
The House committee originally recommended $731,000 for Webb and the Senate committee recommended $917,000. But the conferees eliminated a flight simulator

Brazilian Baptists Laud Freedom

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Probably the largest Protestant gathering ever to meet in predominantly Roman Catholic South America voted Thursday night to oppose state-supported religion and reiterated its belief in the right of all men to choose their own way of worship.

The World Baptist Alliance, meeting 12,500 strong for its 10th Congress, unanimously adopted a "manifesto on religious liberty."

His committee drew a vote of thanks for its work. The budget was arrived at after a series of hearings with agency representatives. Taylor said the agencies had appeared before his group with "practical" budgets—the excess trimmed out of them—so that the committee had no major difficulties.

Agencies which draw their operating support from the United Fund are:
American Red Cross, YMCA, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Milk & Ice Fund, American Heart Assn., Texas Rehabilitation Center, (Gozales Warm Springs), Summer Recreation Program, Air Force Aid Society, West Side Youth Center, and the Texas United Fund.

Four Treated After Fights

Four Negroes were treated at Webb AFB Hospital Wednesday night as a result of injuries suffered in several disturbances in the Northside flats and surrounding area.

Sgt. Willie J. Ross, 210 NE 9th, was treated for a knife wound he suffered at the hands of a would-be robber, early in the evening, behind the Gomez ballroom, 510 NW 4th.

Sgt. Ross told police he was walking behind the building when two Negroes accosted him, demanding his money. When he struck one of the men, he was of the pair wielded.

Thomas E. Akin, Webb airman, was treated for a minor stab wound following a fracas at 613 NW 4th. His wife, Ruth Akin, was given treatment for minor bruises.

Airman Jessie Randolph, 711 Ohio, was given treatment for a head wound received when he was struck with a garden hoe during a disturbance.

San Angelo Phone Strike Tabulated

SAN ANGELO (AP)—A strike vote against the General Telephone Co. of the Southwest was tabulated here today by the Communications Workers Union.

Curtis Fletcher of the union said he believes the vote results will favor a strike.
Federal mediator Walter White of Dallas continued conferences with both the union and the phone company but reported little progress was being made.

The union represents 2,850 of the company's employees in Texas and four other states.
Neither side has publicly detailed the issues but both indicated wages are not the big issue.

House Overrides Like Wage Veto

Small Hike In Minimum Wage Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 15-cent increase in the minimum wage and a token extension of coverage have been approved by a conservative-minded House.
The victory of the Republican-Southern Democratic coalition Thursday night apparently fixed the limits for any minimum wage legislation in this session of Congress. Passage came on a 341-72 roll call vote.

By a 211-203 margin the coalition dumped a broader bill backed by liberal Democrats and left Senate liberals facing a dilemma today.

Any attempt to broaden the coverage in the House bill is certain to throw it back into the House Rules Committee where efforts to dislodge it face doubtful success.

Some proponents of a more generous bill expressed hope that the return of Congress after the nominating conventions might help ease that roadblock. But leaders obviously hope to keep that session short.

LATE ACTION

The Senate is unlikely even to consider the bill until it returns for the post-convention session. The political outlook at that time may help shape its course of action. The Senate Committee has approved a bill similar to that rejected by the House.

The same forces that last year put through the labor control bill were in evidence in the House debate Thursday.

Both Reps. Phil M. Landrum (D-Ga.) and Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.) co-authors of the labor bill, played key roles in the minimum wage fight. Only three Texas Democrats deserted the Southern ranks to vote for the liberal-backed bill introduced by Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif.).

On the key roll call vote 90 Democrats and 121 Republicans voted for the scaled-down version sponsored by Reps. A. Paul Kitchin (D-Ind.) and William H. Ayres (R-Ohio). Voting against it were 176 Democrats and 27 Republicans.

LOP-SIDED

On final passage, 225 Democrats and 116 Republicans voted for it and 40 Democrats and 32 Republicans against it.

The Kitchin-Ayres bill would raise the minimum wage from $1 an hour to $1.15, effective Jan. 1. It would extend coverage to 1,400,000 employees of retail chain or organizations operating in at least two states, but would not require overtime pay rates for the newly covered workers.

Roosevelt charged during debate that loopholes in the bill would cut the new coverage well below the estimated figure.

Roosevelt's bill would have boosted the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour in three annual steps and brought in 3,509,000 new workers in retail and service organizations doing at least one million dollars a year business.

SPARE ROD, SAYS U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A U.N. report said today that spanking and whipping do not stop juvenile delinquency and should never be used.

The report—"New Forms of Juvenile Delinquency: Their Origin, Prevention and Treatment"—was prepared by the U.N. Department of Economic and Social Affairs. It said that corporal punishment "should be excluded in any form" and "has practically no effect as a deterrent, especially for those juveniles who have already undergone it."

Corrective agencies, the report said, "should endeavor to develop the juvenile a sense of moral and social responsibility, through his participation in a world where adults and juveniles live together."

It recommended that young offenders be given as much freedom as possible through the use of open and semi-open institutions, and it said, they "react more favorably" when they know in advance how much time they must serve, rather than when they are confined indefinitely.

June Was Hot, Dry

June wound up with two questionable distinctions.

If it rates as the third driest June in the 60 years that rainfall records have been kept in Howard County.

It can claim the championship for being one of the most consistently hot months in the entire history of the city.

There were 12 days in the month when the temperature was above 100 degrees. Peak was the sizzling 109 scored on June 21. Other warm dates were 108 on June 15; 106 on June 18 and 20; 105 on June 14 and 23 and 104 on June 27.

The coolest maximum scored during the month was 89 on June 7.

For the entire month, the U. S. Experiment Station said the average maximum temperature was 99 degrees—six degrees higher than the average for all of the June in the past 44 years. The average minimum for the month was 69. The 44-year average minimum is 67.

Only .09 inch of rain fell at the station during the month.

State Taxes Dip

AUSTIN (AP)—State taxes on cigarettes, liquor and wine dipped slightly in June from May, the state treasurer's office reported Thursday.

Cigarette taxes brought in $7,175,548, liquor $928,828 and wine $87,716. A month ago the tax on cigarettes totaled $7,385,439, liquor $970,407 and wine, $131,470.

Lamesa Woman Is Killed In Martin County Crash

LAMESA — Mrs. Nellie Patty McKinley, 69, of Lamesa was apparently killed instantly about 4:13 p.m. Thursday in a two-car collision at the intersection of State Highways 349 and 176 in Martin County, about 32 miles south of Lamesa.

An Odessa man was seriously injured in the mishap.

Mrs. McKinley was driving toward Lamesa when her car collided broadside with one driven by Ray Harvey Hart, an oilfield worker headed for his home in Odessa. Hart received multiple injuries and was taken to the Midland Memorial Hospital for treatment of arm and leg fractures, possible internal injuries and numerous lacerations.

Highway patrolman George Winstead, Midland, said the crash occurred in the northeast portion of the intersection and that both vehicles appeared to be in their proper lanes.

After the crash, Mrs. McKinley's car smashed a highway sign, snapped a heavy steel post, overturned and rolled. Mrs. McKinley was thrown from the car and her body was pinned under the auto.

The Odessa car remained upright, crashed over a concrete divider island and rolled some sixty yards from the point of impact.

The McKinley car was virtually demolished and Hart's car was extensively damaged.

Funeral services for Mrs. McKinley, who was born in Stamford County for two years, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Higginbotham Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. J. Lloyd Maybaw, of the First Methodist Church in Lamesa and the Rev. Paris Barton, of the Midway Baptist Church, will officiate.

Burial will be in Odessa, and graveside rites will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon.
Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. N. H. Lake of Midway; two sisters, Mrs. Mag Macon of Leveland and Mrs. E. G. Gross of Corpus Christi; one brother, Earnest Patty of Plainview and three grandchildren.

Senate Expected To Follow Suit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today voted to override President Eisenhower's veto of a 7 1/2 per cent pay increase for 3 1/2 million federal employees.

The House action sent the bill on to the Senate where Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said he would seek a vote as quickly as possible.

Johnson expressed confidence the Senate would also vote to override.

The Democratic leader said he did not see how Eisenhower could condemn the measure so strongly. The President called it indefensible.

The vote was 345 to override the veto and 69 against overriding it. This was 89 votes more than the two-thirds majority needed to pass the bill over the President's disapproval.

ONE OTHER TIME Eisenhower had previously vetoed 168 bills since taking office and been overridden only once.

The vote was taken before galleries packed with postal employees and other federal workers. An entire section was filled with blue-uniformed mailmen who took their places a half-hour before Congress convened.

Only 56 Republicans stuck by the GOP House leadership to sustain the veto. Thirteen Democrats joined them. Voting to override the veto were 256 Democrats and 89 Republicans.

The bill affects 335,000 postal employees and one million white collar federal employees. It would fatten paychecks by from $350 a year to $1,500 a year, depending on present day scales. The bill would take effect on the first payday after it becomes law.

Shortly after 1 p.m. (EDT), Johnson got the Senate to accept the veto question as its pending business under an agreement to limit debate to a maximum of four hours.

It seemed doubtful the Senate would use the full four hours allowed for debate. Unless that is done, Rep. Charles B. Hoever (R-Iowa) told the House Thursday, Cuba could floor J. S. markets with 875,000 tons of sugar under its present quota within weeks.

In other action Thursday: 1. Congress completed action and sent to Eisenhower a $39,996,000,000 defense money bill containing $661,608,000 more than Eisenhower asked for the year starting today.

2. The Senate passed a $718,289,147 money bill to run the state and justice departments and related agencies. It postponed until today action on a request for $74,668,700 as the first U. S. contribution to the International Development Ass'n World Bank adjunct being set up to make easy-payment loans to underdeveloped countries.

3. Both Houses passed and sent to Eisenhower a bill to extend the GI housing program for two years beyond its scheduled July 23 expiration date. Senate action was by voice vote. The House passed it 391-1.

2,000 Have Ball At Getty Blowout

GUILDFORD, England (AP) — Some 2,000 guests guzzled champagne and danced until dawn today at a party pitched by J. Paul Getty, American oil magnate and perhaps the world's richest man.

But the caviar, lobster and duck ran out and late comers wined and dined on hot dogs.

The shindig was a dual purpose affair: to warm Getty's new house in Britain, 18th century Sutton Place mansion, and to bring out the 18-year-old debutante daughter of his friend, Capt. Ian Constable-Maxwell.

The hosts shared expenses. The party cost more than $30,000. While it was going on—from 10 p. m. to 4 a. m.—an aide estimated Getty's oil interests alone netted him about $37,000 profit.

The Tudor house, once the country home of a mistress of King Henry VIII, was like Grand Central Station at rush hour. Guests flew in from New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Paris, Rome, Bern and Madrid to don ball gowns or white tie and tails for the party.

All night long the crowd struggled eight abreast up and down the stairs to the ballroom, where four bands ground out music that could hardly be heard above the chatter.

People trying to leave got mixed up with people still on their way in. On the driveway some motor roared around trying to keep up with the commands of the public address system.

On the lawn outside a confused cow chomped on the expensive turf long past her usual bedtime. She had been planted there to boost a local industry campaign to persuade Britons to drink more milk.

At 3 a. m. some prankster threw the main electric switch and plunged the soiree into utter darkness.

Someone asked Getty what happened.

"Don't ask me," snapped the oil magnate. "I'm no electrical expert."

When one of his minions explained what happened, he ordered, "Well, don't let it happen again."

A newspaper photographer was pushed into the illuminated swimming pool. He climbed out dripping and full of fight. A debutante hit him over the head with her spike-heeled shoe and her husky male escort heaved the photographer back into the water.

Told that someone had been dunked in the pool, Getty permitted himself a wistful smile and said he hadn't expected anyone to go swimming.

"The pool's not all that warm," he said.

Then the magnate went back to dancing with Parisian model Madeleine Heger, to the strains of a West Indian steel drum and calypso band.

Told that someone had been dunked in the pool, Getty permitted himself a wistful smile and said he hadn't expected anyone to go swimming.

Damage Suit Now Pending

Billy Leon Williams, under indictment for murder by auto, now faces further legal difficulties.

He has been named as defendant in a damage suit for $209,000 filed Thursday afternoon in 11th District Court.

Ocey Mason, husband of Mrs. Doris Laverne Mason and father of Debra Mason, who were killed in the car accident for which Owens was indicted this week, filed the suit.

He filed in his own name and in the name of his other children. Mason alleges that on April 26, his wife, 28, Debra and Duanna, two of his daughters, were in their car on U.S. 9 south of town. Their car was involved in a collision with that driven by Owens. Mrs. Mason and Debra were instantly killed. Duanna was gravely injured but eventually recovered.

Hartman Hooser, attorney for the plaintiff, filed the suit.

VA Manager Dies Here

Funeral for Dr. Leo R. Tighe, manager of the Veterans Administration hospital in Augusta, Ga., will be held here Monday at 10 a. m. in the St. Thomas Catholic Church.

Father Francis Bessey will officiate and burial will be at the Arlington National Cemetery. River Funeral Home has charge of local arrangements.

Dr. Tighe died in a local hospital Thursday after being admitted June 22. He was on leave of absence from the Augusta hospital to visit a daughter at Hobbs, N. M.

He was born Aug. 13, 1890 in Cohoes, N. Y., and was a veteran of both World Wars, serving as a captain in the first and a major in the second, as a doctor. He was a member of the Catholic church.

Survivors include his wife, Katherine, and a daughter, Mrs. Ann Neely, Hobbs, N. M.

Copter Pilot Changes His Mind, Saves Stranded Pair

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A honey-mooning Berkeley, Calif. couple escaped possible death Thursday because an Air Force helicopter pilot changed his mind.

Donald, 23, and Evelyn Palmer, 21, married Sunday, were rescued from a remote section-north of Reno by Capt. Philip E. Maggart, a Stead, Nev. Air Force Base instructor.

The newlyweds had been hopelessly lost for 24 hours and were suffering from exhaustion and thirst in 100-plus degree heat. Mrs. Palmer had collapsed when her husband waved his shirt frantically at Maggart's copter.

"A lot of people wave at helicopters and we flew on," Maggart said. "But as we went along I began thinking—no many people wave clothing at you."

"So we flew back to have a second look. They were mighty glad to see us, but they were in such bad shape they didn't have much to say."

After treatment at the Stead hospital, the Palmers were released.

Donald said he and his wife started out in his sports car for isolated Pyramid Lake Wednesday, but the car got stuck on a narrow dirt road he wrongly thought was a shortcut.

Palmer said he waved the shirt frantically at one helicopter that passed over. But the pilot waved back and flew on.

Phone Co. Begins Selling Its New Model

Cliff Fisher, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., has announced that the local company began selling the new Princess telephone today. The Princess is an oval-shaped phone about one-third smaller and two pounds lighter than present desk models.

According to Fisher, the phone is a product of about five years research in developing the compact size and style of the Princess, which is two inches lower and five inches smaller from front to back than current models.

The Princess is made in five colors—white, pink, blue, beige and turquoise, and it has an illuminated dial so calls can be made in the dark.

At present the phones are on display at the telephone business office here.

Yeggs Take Dozer Ride

Vandals fired up a county-owned bulldozer on the Lovell's Lane road job, east of town drove it three times through a sheepwire fence on the south side of the road, last night, and then plunged it headon into a small creek which drains the area.

Workmen arriving on the job this morning found the dozer jammed in the creek.

Fern Cox and E. W. York, deputy sheriffs, were summoned, but found no clues to the identity of the joyriders.

It was pointed out that some mechanical knowledge is needed to operate a dozer such as the one used by the vandals. It is a diesel engine vehicle and has to be set in operation by a series of rather complicated procedures.

Damage resulting from the escapade will probably be high since the fence, broken down in the three places, is a costly one.

Forgery Added To Local Crime

A $153 check, identified as part of the loot taken in a major burglary at Borgor on June 16, was cashed at Anderson Music Co. Thursday, according to Fern Cox, deputy sheriff. The men who presented the check had forged an endorsement and bought a guitar.

The same men, he said, are also being sought in connection with the cashing of three forged checks, each for $30, cashed at the Furr's Food Store.

Deputy sheriffs were seeking identity of the men. A man, arrested in Andrews, was questioned at length last night. He was said to have provided some information to Washington, D. C. New York City, Raleigh, N. C., Miami, Fla., and New Orleans on the New Golden Eagle Bus, according to Frank Rice, Continental Trailways agent in Big Spring.

Rice said that in the near future, through service with the new bus would be available from Big Spring to Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle. New schedules are being planned to many points throughout the East, Southeast, West and Northwest, he added.

Continental Plans More Schedules

A new bus schedule for Continental Trailways went into effect Wednesday for buses traveling from Big Spring to Dallas. Through service is now provided to Washington, D. C., New York City, Raleigh, N. C., Miami, Fla., and New Orleans on the New Golden Eagle Bus, according to Frank Rice, Continental Trailways agent in Big Spring.

Rice said that in the near future, through service with the new bus would be available from Big Spring to Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle. New schedules are being planned to many points throughout the East, Southeast, West and Northwest, he added.

Mrs. Mitchell's Mother Dies

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Mitchell, 910 E. 13th, will leave tonight for Laneville, Tex., to attend the funeral services of Mrs. J. A. Bramman, mother of Mrs. Mitchell. Mrs. Bramman died Friday morning of a heart seizure. She had been in ill health for some time. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Mrs. Bramman is survived by her husband, who lives in Laneville; two daughters, Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Jackie McWhorter, Austin; and two sons, Dale Bramman, Lubbock and Glen Bramman, Roswell, N. M. There are a number of grandchildren.

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro today ordered seizure of Esso Standard and Shell Oil installations and refineries in Cuba, unless they refine and ship oil to the state-owned (Russian) crude oil.

Both companies already have declined to handle the Russian crude, obtained in a sugar-for-oil barter deal.

Seizure of Esso and Shell would put Cuba's whole petroleum industry, valued at nearly 150 million dollars, in the hands of Castro's revolutionary government.

Two days ago, Castro seized all Texaco Oil Co. property, including its Santiago refinery, in a similar step.

Castro acted through identical resolutions which accused both Esso and Shell of violating a 1958 Cuban law requiring refineries here to process state-owned oil. All companies have held that the law means oil produced in Cuba and not oil imported in competition with their own supplies.

The Cubans announced Thursday they had already begun refining the Soviet crude at the confiscated, 28-million-dollar Texaco plant in Santiago. Seizure of the refinery had followed company officials' refusal to take delivery on 25,000 barrels of Soviet oil for processing.

Shell has a 42 million dollar investment in Cuba. Esso's is estimated at 60 million and Texaco's at 50 million. The Cuban government owes the three foreign companies an estimated 60 million dollars in exchange for Venezuelan oil they have imported, refined and resold in Cuba.

The American oil companies, in refusing to handle the Soviet crude, said they had to continue using the usual sources of supply, namely Venezuela. Castro claimed he could get the Soviet oil — which he pays for with surplus Cuban sugar — for $1 a barrel less than Venezuela's cost.

Some American experts predicted a shortage of gasoline would result from Cuban seizure of the three refineries, claiming the Soviet Union does not have the tankers to send enough crude oil for Cuba's needs. But Revolution, the semi-official newspaper, said that many firms, including at least one unnamed American company, were negotiating to sell oil to Cuba. The island needs about 60,000 barrels a day.

Police Build Personnel Files

Complete personnel files and efficiency ratings are being effected in the Big Spring police department.

Police Chief E. J. Banks said the personnel records are in need of revision to bring them up to date. Also, many are incomplete.

"We want the files to include everything possible about the men's family background, police experience, education, previous employment and other pertinent information."

Coupled with a revision of the permanent records, the chief is inaugurating a system of rating the men's efficiency on the job.

Banks said the men will be rated twice a year. On those two occasions, supervisory officers will use an efficiency chart to show how the men have measured up as policemen during the previous six months. Each bi-annual rating will become a part of the men's permanent records.

"We don't have forms for this yet, but as of now, the men are being observed with rating in mind." Efficiency forms have been obtained from police departments in several other cities and will be used as guides to make up one for use here, the chief said.

Presbyterians Told Of Growth Needs

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Presbyterians must spend nine million dollars on churches in the next decade if they are to maintain their present rate of growth, a church leader says.

The Rev. Malcolm Purcell of Houston, executive secretary of the Presbytery of the Brazos, made the statement in a report released Thursday by the Synod of Texas.

Between 1950 and 1960, the denomination's Texas membership rose 51.3 per cent, compared with 23.3 for the state as a whole. Membership now is 115,324. In 1950 it was 76,209.

SW Royalty Co. Declares Dividend

Officers and directors of the Southwestern Royalty Company were re-elected and a 10 per cent dividend of par value stock was declared at the annual stockholders meeting held Thursday night at the Wagon Wheel restaurant.

B. F. Robbins, founder of the company, is president, Tom Brian, Abilene, is vice president, and G. W. Eason is secretary-treasurer. Directors are Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Fred Keaton.

Americans On Holiday

CHICAGO (AP) — Americans loaded their cars with resort gear, headed on their best vacations and headed out on the highways today for the long July 4 weekend.

This was the second of three Saturday-Sunday-Monday holidays of the tourist season. Memorial Day weekend was the first, Labor Day will be the last.

Danger lurked for travelers in the 73 million cars that are expected to be on the road sometime during the holiday.

The National Safety Council said accidents during the Independence Day weekend could take a toll of 370 traffic deaths, or 60 more than would be counted on a nonholiday weekend of the same length.

The estimate covered the period of 78 hours from 6 p. m. today to midnight Monday, July 4. For comparative purposes The Associated Press surveyed the 78-hour period from 6 p. m. Friday, June 17, to midnight Monday, June 20, and counted 348 nonholiday traffic deaths.

Years ago fireworks were the big killer and mainstay of the July 4 holiday but this hazard has dwindled to insignificance as state after state outlawed them. None was reported last year or in 1958. The largest recent fireworks toll was six in 1946.

Judge Rules Mine Deaths Negligent

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A magistrate ruled today the Jan. 21 Coalbrook mine disaster which took 437 lives was "due to negligence."

P. J. Van Heerden found the cave-in was due to "negligence and wrongful acts and omissions of the present consulting engineers, the general managers and managers employed at this colliery."

This negligence was attributed to these executives "personally and through their servants and agents."

Petty Thefts

Two petty thefts were reported to police during the past 24 hours, Kenneth Taylor, 304 State, told police two coats were taken from his residence, and Juan Longoria, 4906 E. 3rd, said someone entered his home and made off with a clock-radio.

Rice Institute Now University

HOUSTON (AP) — Thursday is the last day Rice Institute will be an institute.

Friday the school's name changes to Rice University.

When the privately endowed college was chartered in 1901, it was known as the William Marsh Rice Institute for the Advancement of Literature, Science and Art.

It became known more simply as Rice Institute.

But the board of governors decided institute has the wrong connotation now.

So it's Rice University.

Burdick A Winner In Two Campaigns

FARGO (AP) — A happy Rep. Quentin N. Burdick (D-ND) today proclaimed himself a winner in two campaigns.

He said results from all but three precincts in Tuesday's special U. S. Senate election in North Dakota, giving him a 953 vote lead, are conclusive. "I'm elected," he said.

And he happily announced in Washington that he plans to marry Jocelyn Birch Peterson in Fargo Thursday.

The 52-year-old Democrat drew standing cheers from his House colleagues when he stepped into the House chamber Thursday. He had flown back to Washington without positive assurance he had won the election over Republican Gov. John E. Davis.

Only precincts left were three in McKenzie County in which Burdick was well ahead. Associated Press tabulations had Burdick carrying 24 counties plus McKenzie while Davis carried 28.

The State Canvassing Board meets in mid-July for an official audit of the returns.

Burdick's wife and Mrs. Peterson's husband, Kenneth, each died in 1958. Burdick has three daughters and a son; Mrs. Peterson has a daughter Leslie, 9, and a son Birch, 5. Mrs. Peterson said they will make their home here.

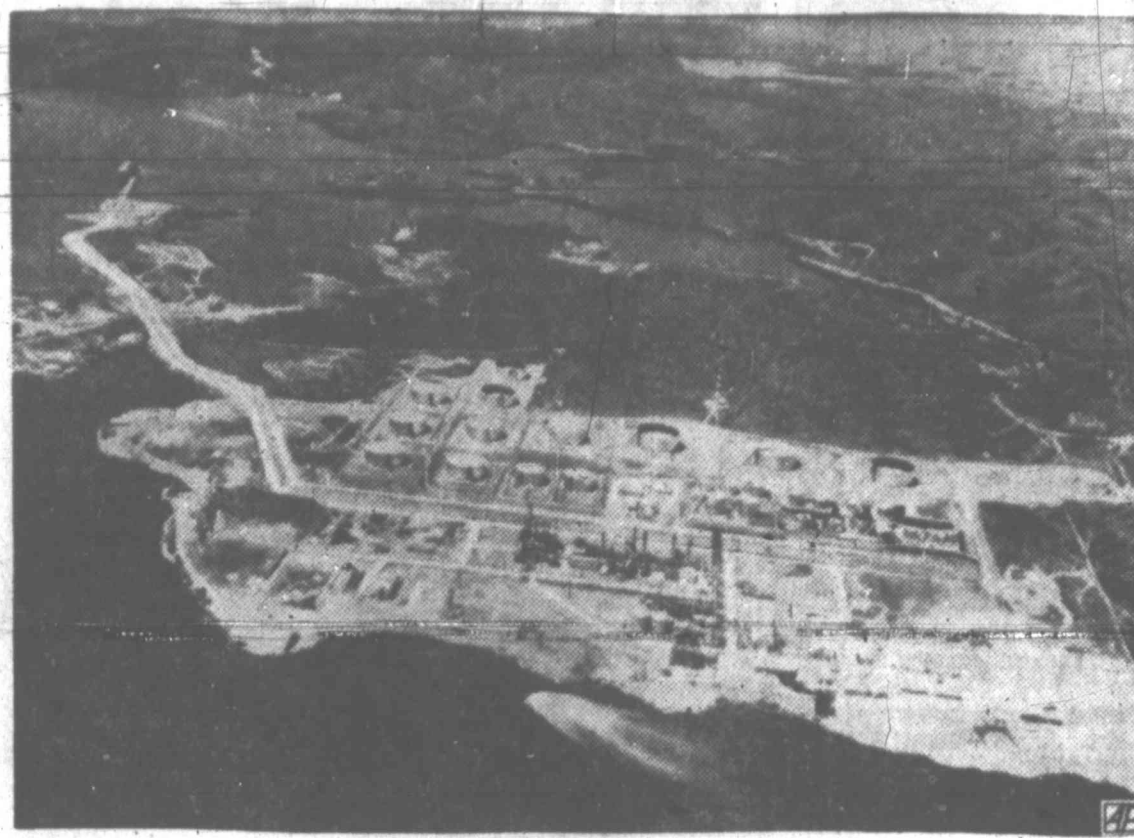

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who campaigned for Davis, said the tightness of the race pointed up his contention that the presidential campaign will be a tough one.

Davis said if official results bear out his defeat he will retire from politics. He was a banker and rancher at McLusky, N. D., and a state senator before being elected to his first term in 1956.

Beauty Queens Set For Pageant

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Beauty queens from Europe, Asia and the Middle East arrive today for the 1960 Miss Universe pageant to run through July 10.

Mid-East beauties are due in by chartered bus Saturday afternoon. Gladys Zender of Lima, Peru, the 1958 winner, arrived Thursday, along with seven contestants. A successor to the 1959 queen, Toshiko Kojima of Tokyo, will be chosen July 9.

AA's Tolerant, But Shun Bar At Meeting

By GENE HANDSAKER

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — About a score of men and women attended a press luncheon announcing details of today's opening of the 25th anniversary convention of Alcoholics Anonymous.

There was a bar set up in one corner of the room.

"How come?" asked a reporter who had accepted a highball.

"Oh, we don't mind others' drinking," explained one of the AA hosts at a Los Angeles hotel. "It's just that we can't. Some of us have more liquor now in our homes — for our guests — than when we were drinking. Then, we drank it all up."

Famous Prayer Meetings End

NEW YORK (AP) — The Fulton Street noon prayer meetings, held in the financial district every business day for 103 years, have ended.

As many as 1,800 persons once flocked to the services when they were held in the Old North Dutch Reformed Church.

But Thursday only 14 persons trudged up the stairs for the final meeting in a dingy loft building. They included a converted Jew, a former Catholic and a Negro deacon.

The Collegiate Reformed Church, the sponsor, said it was halting the meetings because in recent years they had been taken over by "self-perpetuating enthusiasts" and turned into trumpet-style evangelism.

Bill stood up. He's the convention chairman. Alcoholics Anonymous don't use full names. Allan B. — No. 2 man in a nationally known New York business organization, told why.

"It's an assurance to the newcomer that his anonymity will be protected outside our own group."

Then, introducing the main speaker, he said: "What do you say about a man to whom you feel you owe your life?" Then he added: "I think Bill is one of the really great figures of this century."

Bill W. — also tall, lean, graying and long-faced, with a thin gray mustache — was one of the two founders of Alcoholics Anonymous. Born in Vermont, 64 years old. Hasn't drunk a drop since he was 39.

"I had been drinking since World War I," he told a reporter later. Started drinking just before I went overseas as a heavy artillery officer. I was 21 when I had my first drink — a Bronx cocktail — orange juice and gin. After that, anything that had alcohol in it."

He told the luncheon of his reformation.

"In 1934 my wife was told by our doctor that I had a compulsion to drink that couldn't be broken by any known means."

6 Reasons Not Enough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Royce Parks offered a half-dozen reasons why he had fallen behind in $6-a-week support payments for his 8-year-old daughter by a previous marriage.

His daughter, Susan, 7 months, came next, and 2½-year-old months, son Kevin, 2½; son Randy, 4, and son Craig, 5, all by his second wife, Delores, 28.

"Why did you bring all your children?" asked Superior Court Commissioner Raymond Roberts in court Thursday.

"My wife wanted to come along," said Parks, as Delores rocked a bottle-sucking tot.

"If this was an attempt to get sympathy, it was misdirected," said Roberts.

Despite the house painter's plea that medical bills forced him into arrears on Donna's upkeep, Commissioner Roberts ordered him to spend Saturday and Sunday in jail for skipping the court-ordered support payments.

Post-Convention Congress Has Some Built-In Pains

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST WASHINGTON (AP) — The post-convention session of Congress is certain to put presidential and perhaps vice-presidential nominees on a political hot spot.

Some tough political issues will face the Congress when it goes back into session in August, and some of the top nominees likely will be actively involved in solving them.

While they may not be swayed by the voter appeal in these issues, they certainly will be aware of it.

Presiding over the Senate will be Vice President Richard M. Nixon, an apparent shoo-in for the top presidential nomination. Serving as majority leader will be Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, whose voice is dominant in shaping Senate decisions. Also on the Senate scene will be Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri, who, with Johnson, are the current top contenders for the Democratic presidential nominations.

In the House will be Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, who is spearheading Johnson's campaign and is in a strong position to put into effect any program the party's nominee, whoever he may be, decides to sponsor.

Helping hammer out the top program in the House will be the minority leader, Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who is available for the vice presidential nomination, as is one of his assistants, Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan.

In that kind of an atmosphere, politics is bound to be a dominant theme in the post-convention session.

Both political parties will have adopted their platforms when Congress returns, and the pressure will be strong to make the candidates and the congressmen translate into action the words they help write into the platforms.

Except for Nixon, the candidates can use the halls of the Senate and the House as political forums, and undoubtedly they will. As a non-voting presiding officer of the Senate, Nixon theoretically is a neutral referee. He cannot even address the Senate without its permission. His power is limited to settling parliamentary differences and to voting in cases of ties.

But as the party's presidential nominee, Nixon will have difficulty

CLYDE E. THOMAS, Attorney At-Law Phone AM 4-4621, AM 4-4622 First Nat'l Bank Building Big Spring, Texas avoiding statements of his views on such pending controversial matters as health care for the aged, housing, minimum wages, federal aid for education and other campaign topics on which Democrats and the Eisenhower administration are in sharp disagreement.

Until the time of his nomination, Nixon logically could sidestep direct statements on these issues and confine his position to following the lead of his President as a member of "the team."

Strictly For The Birds

Merry Lee Dibrell inspects the bird feeder which Mrs. J. I. Balch has made from a small nail keg. Miss Dibrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dibrell, 903 Dallas, is president of the Junior Garden Club. Giving the appearance of a thatched roof of a native bird house, the feeder is attached to a pole and spread over the shelter. Openings in the keg were cut with a small key saw, and shallow cans were fastened to the inside walls for grain and seeds.

Broom Makes Roof For Birds' Dining Room

A new broom may sweep clean, but the one bought recently by Mrs. J. I. Balch, Western Hills Addition, will never fill that destiny. The business end of this broom serves as a thatched roof for a cleverly contrived feeder for hungry birds. Placed on a pole in the garden, the feeder attracts the feathered creatures where they are sheltered from the weather and prowling cats.

Obtaining an ordinary small nail keg, Mrs. Balch cut out circles with a keyhole saw. These are large enough to admit nearly any size bird up to the girth of a mockingbird.

Inside the feeder are shallow cans in which the grain, crumbs or seeds may be placed. The containers are attached to the wall of the feeder directly under the round openings for ease in filling.

Several coats of varnish have waterproofed the shelter, and the broom, with its straws spread, gives an oriental air to the roof.

Garden Clubs, searching for do-it-yourself projects or ways in which birds might be attracted to the premises, would do well to erect such little thatched-roof huts.

George Simpson Weds Miss Powell Thursday

STANTON — The First Methodist Church was the scene of the marriage of Sandra Kay Powell and George Nolan Simpson Thursday evening, with the double ring service read by the Rev. Ellis Todd, pastor of the church.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Charles Powell, 605 Gray Street, and the late Mr. Powell, Mrs. Akin Simpson, of Big Spring and the late Mr. Simpson.

White tapers lighted the church windows and flanked an arch of emerald fern and daisies, to form the background for the wedding party.

Medical selections were played by Mrs. James Jones, who accompanied Joyce Anderson, soloist, as she sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Kovey Powell gave his sister in marriage.

Chantilly lace fashioned the fitted bodice, with scooped neckline, and extended below the waist to join a full skirt of chiffon. A bustle effect added back interest and swept into a chapel train.

The bridal veil was attached to a tiara type headdress. White rosebuds surrounded a white orchid to make the bridal bouquet.

Something old was a handkerchief which had belonged to the great-grandmother of the bride, the late Mrs. F. S. Miller; the wedding dress was new; she had borrowed the tiara, and she wore a blue garter. In the bridal slippers were birthdate pennies.

Mrs. Robert Alexander of Big Spring attended her cousin as matron of honor; the May Gray was maid of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Lella Quaid, Carolyn Manning, Linda Saunders, Mary Ferne Powell, sister of the bride.

The two last-named were junior bridesmaids.

Attendants, identically gowned, wore satin sheaths of orchid with overskirts of chiffon. Cumberbunds accented the waistlines, and headdresses were orchid satin with brief veils attached. They carried bouquets of white gladioli.

Robert Alexander of Big Spring, a cousin of the bride, served as best man. Guests were seated by Harold Simpson of Odessa, brother of the bridegroom; Jesse McCormick, Bill Crow and Ben Lockhart, all of Big Spring.

Lisa Bedford of Midland, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl and the rings were carried by Chris Simpson, a nephew of the bridegroom. Tapers were lighted by Billy Powell, a brother of the bride, and Gerald Alexander of Big Spring, her cousin. In the parlor of the church, the couple, their mothers and the feminine attendants formed a receiving line for guests, who were registered by Mrs. Jim Nelson of Big Spring.

An arrangement of gladioli and wedding bells centered the table, covered with white linen; napkins, inscribed in orchid, bore the couple's given names. Pink rosebuds decorated the three-tiered cake, which was scalloped on the lowest tier.

At the table were Nancy Johnson, Dianne Turner, Dorothy Lawrence and Mrs. H. G. Bedford of Midland.

Attending friends of town guests from Odessa, Big Spring, Monahan, San Angelo, Eldorado and Austin.

A piece of heirloom lace was the centerpiece of the bride's traveling dress, a beige linen sheath, with which she used beige accessories and wore a green hat. The couple went to Cloudcroft, N. M. on their wedding trip and will return to make a home at 1507 Austin, Big Spring.

Simpson, a graduate of Big Spring High School and Howard County Junior College, is now employed as a draftsman for the city. His bride attended Stanton High School, where she was a member of FHA and was band majorette.

On the way, they will spend time in New Orleans; as they return to Big Spring, the Grays will visit Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitney in Fort Worth; they are also former residents of Big Spring.

Zack Grays Leave For Florida Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Zack Gray, Linda and Robbie left today for Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., planning to stop in Austin for a visit with his cousin Mr. and Mrs. John McClendon. In Houston, they will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Horn, former Big Spring residents.

On the way, they will spend time in New Orleans; as they return to Big Spring, the Grays will visit Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitney in Fort Worth; they are also former residents of Big Spring.

Trees Like Good Long Drinks From Basins

It's perfectly permissible to drink out of a saucer—if the drinker happens to be a transplanted tree.

Earthen saucers, basins of soil and peat moss that form encircling disks around the root balls, are best for dispensing liquid refreshment to trees planted this year or last. The importance of proper watering for transplants struggling in a new environment is stressed by B. D. Stamp, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

Weekly waterings during the hot summer are essential. But method as well as amount has a lot to do with the trees' response. An old can, bucket or burlap bag is an aid in the basin method. Setting the end of the hose in the bucket avoids harmful washing; sticking the nozzle in a burlap bag is even better. Fill the basin enough to let water penetrate to the deepest roots.

The bucket-basin or bag dispensing procedure is not quite all in itself. Test holes should be made into the original root ball from time to time to find if the moisture is getting deep down.

When water is needed give a thorough soaking—a good one once each week rather than a daily once-over-lightly from the sprinkler.

Check too for moisture problems with evergreens. During drying heat, they have a tendency to shed old needles at an alarming rate. An occasional sprinkling of the foliage plus thorough soaking of the soil will help slow this down.

Miss Wilson Has Kitchen, Menu Party

Jaquelyn Wilson was the guest of honor Thursday evening at a bridal shower.

Guests, most of her mother's co-workers from Security State Bank, brought kitchen gadgets and favorite recipes. The group gave her an electric kitchen clock.

Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. Darwin Webb and Mrs. James Eubanks. The party was held at the Eubanks home.

Pink sweetheart roses centered the refreshment table. The pink and white decor was carried out in the refreshments by pink angel pie.

Miss Wilson will be married to Johnny Lee Zittercof tonight in the First Baptist Church at Coahoma. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wilson of Coahoma. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zittercof of Casper, Wyo.

New Webbing Is Used In Furniture

To the uninitiated, outdoor furniture this year has much the same appearance as in the past. Nevertheless, many changes and improvements have been made. One of the most significant is the use of a new material called propylene for webbing on aluminum frame chairs, settees, and chaise lounges. Stronger and longer-lasting than webbing made from previously popular materials, the propylene webbing also has better color retention and stain-resistance characteristics. It also resists the tendency to sag after a great deal of use.

To go along with this new material, a new plastic clip is an integral part of the webbing. This adds still greater strength and also eliminates the hazard of clothing or business snaggings as they sometimes did on metal clips.

Master Plan Group Meets

The water and sewerage system expansion phase of the master plan will be presented Tuesday by T. C. Forrest and Carl Shimek...

The master plan report outlines the basic water and sewer systems required to provide adequate service in the city...

City Manager A. K. Steinhilber said that Forrest and Shimek would hit the high spots in the report, discussing the more complicated phases at length.

The meeting is slated for 7 p.m. in the class room at the police building and will be attended by members of the master plan steering committee, planning and zoning commission and city commission.

ADULTS BLAMED

Juvenile Officer Defends Records

A. E. "Shorty" Long, long time juvenile officer in Big Spring, defended his and the county's juvenile record this morning.

"It is not the child that stands convicted before the bar of public opinion," he said. "It is the adult," Long referred to statements made by Police Chief E. J. Banks to the Big Spring City Commission Tuesday.

Banks said the city has a lack of adequate recreation centers and he cited this as the cause of a seemingly growing rate of juvenile delinquency.

Long pointed out that he has not been on vacation, in fact, he has not had a vacation in 10 years. "I was absent from duty four days due to the death of my Mother," he explained. He said the only other times he has been away from his post, during his long tenure, was when taking a boy or girl to the state schools.

He added that he also has taken special training at the Girl's State School at Gainesville, the Boy's State School at Gatesville and the Texas Youth-Council at Austin.

"I believe I can prove that I have had time to visit with Howard County boys and girls who have problems," he declared. He said during the month of June, only five cases were referred to him from the police department and each of them were for minor offenses.

He agreed with Chief Banks that more recreational centers are needed and he pointed to the new YMCA as a good example of a youth center.

Long added that "a child may be careless or thoughtless, but he believes what he hears and takes it seriously. Behind every delinquent child, there is a delinquent adult."

Police Exams Set Tuesday

Examinations for police patrolmen applying to the Big Spring Police Department will be held Tuesday in the police building. Written tests and interviews will be conducted that day.

The board of examiners will convene at 1:30 p.m. to interview the applicants, according to Police Chief E. J. Banks. The written aptitude tests will be given at 8 a.m.

Chief Banks said that there may be as many as 15 or 20 applicants taking the examinations. There are five openings.

After the written tests and oral examinations before the board, the chief and his supervisory officers will select the top men as patrolmen.

The chief said that in case more are qualified than jobs are available, an eligibility list will be made from which men can be drawn as other vacancies occur.

Optimists Install Slate Of Officers

The Optimist Club held their installation of officers party at the Sixty-Six Cafe Thursday evening. Lindsey Marchbanks was installed as president; James...

Cliff Torgeson, Midland, lieutenant governor, Zone 7, District 7, Optimist International, was the installing officer. Fifteen Optimists and wives attended the party.

Tri-Tones Visit Kiwanis Thursday

The Tri-Tones, a musical combo, entertained Kiwanis Club members with a musical interlude at the regular Thursday luncheon meeting of the club Thursday.

The Tri-Tones are Capt. Al Short, accordionist; Mrs. Sharon Short, clarinet and vocalist, and Don Carlisle, drums. Their renditions of selections from "Oklahoma" were well received. Mrs. Short's interpretation of "The Peanut Vendor" was also popular with the Kiwanians.

Ernest Welch, vice president, acted as program chairman and introduced the trio.

Announcement was made of a director's meeting on Tuesday evening at the Manhattan Cafe.

No Campaigning

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Pvt. Mary Owens couldn't get a leave from Camp Roberts, Calif., and thus made no campaign speeches, but still managed to win the Democratic nomination for Congress in Oregon's 1st district.

Says Owens: "I really can't explain where the votes came from."

THE FRONT ROW

By Bob Smith

Don't know how old Cactus Jack has turned out these last few years, but it should be interesting to find out.

Cactus Jack Pryor alternately titillated and outraged radio (and later TV) audiences in Austin many years ago with his family breakfast show, plus some fantastic concoctions like the radio drama "The Man With the Little Black Box."

It takes some doing to make a watchable show out of a family eating breakfast (and what a family it was), or to expand a lousy pun into a 15-minute radio drama.

Cactus Jack will be emcee of Odessa's beauty pageant this weekend. Maybe we can talk him into repeating one of his classics.

John Findlater's art stocks are going up.

He and his family are in Alpine for the summer, where Findlater is taking work at Sul Ross toward his master's in art.

The Sul Ross art department is featuring some of Findlater's watercolors and graphics in a one-man show through July 5. The show is in the Fine Arts Gallery, open from 3 to 6 P.M.

The Big Spring artist has sold three paintings already.

Also, the Midland library will hang some Findlater works beginning Aug. 1.

Wandering TV Show Not Too Unusual

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Somebody at CBS had an idea that a summer time variety show could be constructed by turning Phil Silvers, Carol Haney and Carol Lawrence loose on the streets, buildings and ferry boats of New York City.

The talented threesome sang and danced Thursday night all over town—from Wall Street to the top of the Empire State Building to the decks of a Staten Island ferry. But leave us face it, the result was neither particularly useful nor funny.

At any rate, it was better than a repeat and that's something because hot weather entertainment is upon us. By the way, you could easily spot hot weather entertainment: The fellows do a number in straw hats.

NBC starts a daily series of political convention briefings next Tuesday. The first two are apparently designed for the housewives who usually watch the adventures of Yancy Derringer in afternoons, although how the ladies will react to the pre-emption of Yancy's time is something else again. Thursday's information program takes the time spot of "Law of the Plainsman," and Friday's, "Play Your Hunch."

NBC's "Today" has signed up Kukla and Ollie to help out in its convention coverage.

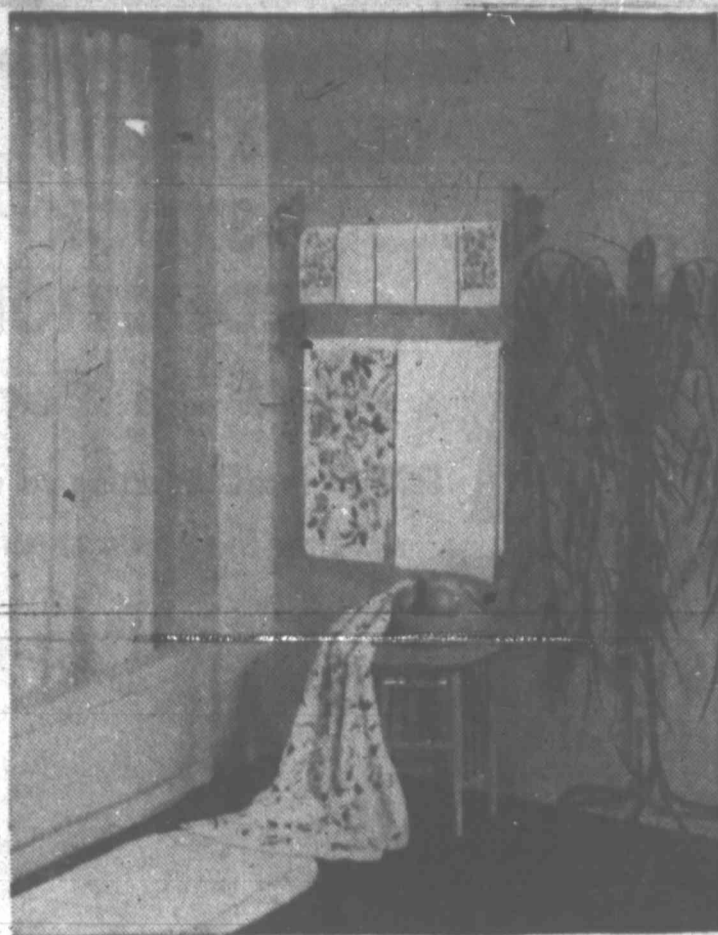

Charles Van Doren, of the quiz show headlines, is working as a magazine editor and article-writer of a magazine devoted to leisure-time activities. In the current issue, he philosophizes about African bushmen and the popularity of TV. Jinx Falkenburg, who took up golf a few months ago when convalescing from hepatitis, is already shooting in the low 90s.

In spite of all the excitement and headlines generated by Jack Paar during the past season, his audiences are about the same size they were last year—if anything, a bit smaller. According to A. C. Nielsen ratings, Paar's audience in May of last year consisted of about 3,700,000 homes. During May of 1960 it was 3,250,000. During the period of his walkout, it zoomed up to about 6½ million homes—and returned to normal as soon as the excitement died down.

Recommended tonight: "Video Village," CBS, 9-9:30 (Eastern Daylight Time) — premiere of a new audience participation show; "Moment of Fear," NBC, 10-11—premier of a new suspense series, the first show being "The Golden Deed," with Macdonald Carey.

Carl Sandburg Tries Hand At Film Business

FLAT ROCK, N. C. (AP)—Poet biographer, historian editor, lecturer, folk singer—that's Carl Sandburg and more. Now he's ready to have a fling at motion picture production. Listen to his comments:

"Why ain't I got a right to write for the movies? That's header, that's a high dive I haven't made. Why ain't I got a right to take a dive in the 20th Century-Fox lot?"

It's no dive, says 20th-Century-Fox producer-director George Stevens. He and Sandburg announced Thursday that they will collaborate in filming Fulton Ousler's best-seller, "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Stevens was emphatic that Sandburg will not merely be lending his name to the endeavor:

"He will make a complete contribution," Stevens said of Sandburg, "in all creative areas of the production and will devote his full time to working with us from the start to the finish of this dramatic undertaking."

Contract, salary? No word on that. "A handshake is all that's needed," Stevens said as the announcement was made at the 82-year-old poet and Lincoln biographer's home. Sandburg is due in Hollywood July 18 to start work on the movie, "The Life of Christ." Estimates of the cost of the picture have exceeded 15 million dollars.

Sex Already Issue For Finch Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—They don't even have a jury yet—but sex is already an issue in the retrial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff.

The doctor's attorney, Grant B. Cooper, warned a prospective juror that Finch's relationship with the red-haired ex-model was "admittedly an illicit love affair."

Prosecutor Joe Powers Thursday told a prospective juror: "We might use different words. Mr. Cooper used words like 'love affair' and 'lovers.' You won't hold it against me if I say 'adultery' and 'adulterers,' will you?"

The 42-year-old doctor and his 23-year-old mistress are accused of murdering his wife. Their first trial ended in a jury deadlock last March.

One of Carole's attorneys, Rex Eagan, quit Thursday because of ill health. She has two others.

Space Chickens

FARMINGDALE, N. J. (AP)—Ain't nobody in Julius Cohen's rocket but us chickens.

Cohen, a poultry farmer, put the rocket in his yard after buying it at an auction from a bankrupt roadside attraction. People used to sit inside the make believe rocket and take make believe space trips. Now the only passengers are Cohen's chickens who wander in and out.

Manhattan's Swing Street Is Passing Into Oblivion

By ARTHUR EVERETT
NEW YORK (AP)—The wrecking ball long ago knocked the swing out of 52nd Street. Today the State Liquor Authority seems bent on knocking the zing out of it as well.

The SLA earlier this week closed seven of 52nd Street's remaining night clubs, labeling them nothing but clip and strip joints. The license-lifting could mark the end of a New York era. Fifty-Second Street originally was a block of residential brownstones between Fifth and Sixth avenues, converted during prohibition into speakeasies.

"We made our own entertainment in those days," recalls entertainer Pat Harrington.

It was with the end of prohibition in 1933 that professional entertainers became the chief commodity of the block and 52nd Street became Manhattan's "Swing Street."

Long since vanished before encroaching construction is the Famous Door, where Louis Prima and his band held sway. Russ Sanjek, now of Broadcast Music Inc., recalls a wide-mouthed youngster who used to hang around, worshipping Prima and awaiting a chance to entertain between numbers. Her name was Martha Raye. And when they booked Count Basie's 20-piece band into the Famous Door, the quip along the block was that the musicians outnumbered the customers.

Gone, too, is the great old Club 18, on the downtown side of the block. There Harrington and Jack White ran through hilarious comedy routines, abetted from time to time by a young zany whose name was Jackie Gleason.

Across the street, there's a parking lot where Leon and Eddie's once stood. Eddie Davis used to direct the entertainment and a husky bouncer named Toots Shor kept an eye on things. Shor, incidentally, hopes to build his new restaurant on the site.

There's no longer any trace of the Onyx Club, which really started Swing Street on its way. It featured at various times Art Tatum, Eddie Condon, the Six Spirits of Rhythm, Cozy Cole, Jonah Jones, and a song team of Mike Riley and Ed Farley who's tune "The Music Goes Round" swept the nation in the mid-thirties.

From Harlem down to 52nd Street came the late, great Billie Holiday, she of the tortured soul with her blue notes as smoky as the cafe air around her.

Another who sang the blues in those nights of long ago on 52nd Street was the late Mildred Bailey.

Sam Weiss, who managed the Famous Door, recalls the street as a citadel of economic respectability in those days.

"There was no rough stuff, no clipping. Every place was well run," he said.

Milt Gabler, now with Decca records, ran a record shop on the old 52nd Street. He dates the invasion of strip teasers to about 1940 and thinks the closing of burlesque in 1942 hastened the evolution.

At any rate, after World War II, 52nd Street became pretty much of a pattern—one strip joint flanking another on both sides of the street. Most of them were closed out by the wrecking of the old buildings.

Some of the joints moved west to the next block between Sixth and Seventh avenues, elbowing their way in between respectable restaurants. But little of 52nd Street's one-time glamour went with them.

Rapidly vanishing from the street are its most colorful characters—the night club doormen. Raucous, persistent, in fair weather or foul, they competed nightly for customers, exhorting them:

"Come on in, the show's just starting. See it from the bar for the price of a single drink. Hottest show in town."

It seemed, sometimes, like the show was always just starting in the old days along 52nd Street. But how it may be ending.

Actress Tells Of Marital Rift

LONDON (AP)—Film actress Jean Simmons today described her marital rift with Stewart Granger as amicable—but saddening.

The English-born screen star shut herself up in a hotel suite with their daughter Tracy, 3, and refused all callers.

But she announced through a publicity agent that the statement issued in Hollywood that they intended to get a divorce was made with the "joint approval of myself and my husband."

Miss Simmons, 31, is in Britain to make a film. Granger, 47, who married Miss Simmons 10 years ago, is in Hollywood.

DEAR ABBY

TELL 'EM OFF

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a bunch of free-loading relatives who pile in on my poor old mother every Sunday to take some of the load off her. Cars with as many as eight of them drive up and they all stay for supper. Ma is in her eighties and that is a lot of work for an old woman to do all by herself. Nobody even stays to help her with the dishes.

Writer Finds Some Things Changed In Soviet Union

Editor's Note - When William L. Ryan visited the Soviet Union seven years ago the terror of Lavrenty Beria, Stalin's chief policeman, still was fresh in mind. Revisiting Moscow, Ryan found some changes - and some things not changed at all. This is the last of the articles.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN Associated Press News Analyst

"You were here seven years ago? Do you notice changes?" The young Muscovite waits anxiously for the reply. He seems fiercely proud of the changes.

One of the most striking is the apparent absence of the old fear, of the dread of nearby informers, of the suspicious shunning of foreigners - feelings that prevailed before Stalin died in 1953.

The relaxed attitude is most notable among young people who remember little of Stalin. They are giving old Moscow a new look.

Lyndon Leads Editors Poll

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Congressional Quarterly reported today that Sen. Lyndon Johnson was in first place in its June poll of newspaper editors asked to name the "strongest possible" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In a copyrighted story, the Quarterly said Johnson received 43 per cent of the votes; Adlai Stevenson 30 per cent and John Kennedy 21 per cent. The Quarterly is a privately published reference service.

In a similar poll last April, it reported 40 per cent of the editors chose Stevenson as the strongest candidate. Kennedy was second with 23 per cent and Johnson third with 17 per cent.

Most of the 467 correspondents answering the poll in June said they felt Kennedy would make the strongest vice presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket, the Quarterly said.

In a poll of members of Congress, the quarterly said Johnson received 54 per cent of the vote for strongest candidate; Kennedy 20 per cent and Stevenson 14 per cent.

Some 220 members of Congress answered the poll.

Many are far better dressed than the Muscovite of 1953. They display lively interest in the outside world. Many try to copy Western customs and manners.

To the Westerner, this emulation of his ways often seems awkward and self-conscious.

Saturday nights couples in crowded restaurants shuffle laboriously about the dance floor to old American tunes, as if grimly determined to have a good time.

Laughing, singing, groups of young people pour from the Moskva River excursion boats of a weekend evening, dressed in summer best, relaxed after a day in the sun. Many come from families of above-average income, or have well-paying jobs with little to do with their money but seek good times.

Some of the young women wear gay, lightweight frocks, much more fashionable than examples in stores. The dresses often are homemade, frequently from patterns copied from Western publications.

Constantly, visiting Americans are asked for copies of American newspapers or magazines. Young people love to look at the advertisements. They also are intensely interested in news from the West, and will go to extremes to get it.

A group of American students was strolling along a Leningrad street one night. Suddenly, a Russian bumped into an American girl, knocking her into the road. Apologetically, the Russian admitted he did it on purpose. He spoke English, and wanted to talk.

The conversation was lively. The Russian's cronies were particularly interested in American newspapers. They were first, said one, "of that junk they feed us in our papers." A New York newspaper shown him happened to carry a picture on the June 7 explosion of a Bomarc missile at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey. The Russians were astonished. Soviet papers would never hint at such an accident.

Still, said one, he didn't intend to be too critical about it. "We have a saying—stay out of politics, stay out of trouble," he said.

Another club member, the daughter of the poor, a coffin is placed in an open truck, surrounded by straight-backed chairs for the mourners. The truck usually is assigned by the department for which a member of the family works.

And another: The same old ladies with primitive brooms made of twigs constantly sweep the streets. The same starchy look, from too much bread and potatoes, still is a feature of many a Russian countenance.

The traffic has changed little. Perhaps there is a bit more of it, but much of it is made up of open trucks, many bearing cargoes of roughly dressed women on their way to employment at hard labor.

The regime may be more than a little worried about the young people. It has been imposing new rules of morality upon them. Kloths once dispensed fiery vodka to weary workmen. These are gone. Seldom does one see the spoiled young of better-off Communists staggering home from drunken parties.

A new decree threatens fines for public drunkenness or public singing after 11 p.m. It imposes early curfew on teenagers. Moscow's streets become practically deserted an hour before midnight. But much of Moscow remains the same as it was in the year of Stalin's death.

This Shirley Is Confusing

MEMPHIS (AP)—All is confusion in the Shirley O. Sisk residence when the telephone caller asks to speak with "Shirley."

And a letter addressed simply to "Shirley Sisk" is just as befuddling. Sisk's wife also is named Shirley. So is their 13-year-old daughter.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF ALL ADVERTISING STOPPED

Stores would begin cancelling orders. Very quickly, manufacturers would close down plants and lay off millions of employees. Volume production would be a thing of the past... and so, prices would rise fast.

Within a week most radio and television stations would close up shop for lack of revenue. The ability of many newspapers and magazines to perform their full, vital functions would be seriously impaired. And the cost per copy would zoom for those that tried to keep running only on circulation revenues.

This alternative to advertising can hardly be the goal of the critics of advertising. Without advertising our national economy, our national life, would be bleak indeed. In many ways, advertising is the power plant of our society.

MORE CUSTOMERS FOR MORE PRODUCTS—American creative genius and wonderful ability for organization have resulted in a tremendous flow of goods of all kinds. This creates a crucial need for masses of people anxious, willing and able to buy and consume these goods. Only a society with a constantly rising standard of living can provide the customers. These customers have to be sought, taught and often persuaded to move higher in the scale of living. This is the job of advertising.

Advertising not only gives people news about new products, but provides the urge for people to own and enjoy these products. The wider and deeper the penetration of our products into the life of America, the greater the need for more production. This means more jobs. More jobs mean more people able to enjoy what we make. More people buying means more, still more production. And so on and so on: The result is that more Americans can enjoy more of the fruits of their labor than people in any country anywhere in the world can enjoy theirs.

ADVERTISING LOWERS PRICES—Does advertising raise the cost of goods? Oh the contrary. Through newspapers, television, magazines, radio and billboards, an advertiser can talk to a prospect for a tiny fraction of a cent. Advertising is the quickest and cheapest way of reaching large numbers of people. It enables the advertiser to reach his market (customers) inexpensively and thus increase his total production, thereby reducing the cost of making and selling each unit.

THE CULTURAL EFFECTS OF ADVERTISING—It's because of advertising that our mass media of communication can afford to command the finest talent for bringing to the American people information, stimulation, entertainment and education which in other countries are available to just a very few people. Advertising makes its cultural contribution in another way. Advertising is in large measure responsible for better living, less drudgery, more leisure for more people. This creates opportunities for intellectual and spiritual activities equaled in few, if any, other countries. While millions and millions of dollars are being spent by Americans for cars, boats, sports equipment and the paraphernalia of leisure, there is a growing hunger for improvement of the mind and for aesthetic enjoyment.

WHAT ARE THE "NEEDS" OF THE PEOPLE?—Critics of advertising sometimes indict it for creating dissatisfaction in people's minds with what they have, and persuading and cajoling them into buying what they neither need nor want. But what are "needs?" The "needs" of people in undeveloped countries are not the same as our needs. Our needs of 50 years ago are not the same as they are today. We don't actually "need" electric razors, electric refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, television sets, shampoos, beauty treatments, packaged goods, or even automobiles. But would the critics of advertising stop encouraging people to want a better life? Would they have the millions of people who create, produce, and market the so-called "non-essentials" thrown out of jobs? Do they want us to go back to the more primitive living of other countries?

ADVERTISING—PUBLIC SERVANT—Frequently, the advertising industry is called on to direct public-service jobs—for the Government as well as for private public-service organizations. This it does through the Advertising Council, a non-profit organization supported by American business and advertising media. Here's what President Eisenhower said to the Advertising Council in Washington several months ago:

"For eighteen years you have been stimulating the nation's conscience in areas where the voluntary work of great numbers of people has been necessary in order to promote worthwhile causes. I know you have been in such fields as conservation, organized charities, safety, prevention of accidents, and more recently in giving your efforts to the job of pointing out to our people the need for self-discipline if we are to avoid debasement of our currency and prevent inflation.

"And I think no other body has done more in this regard in trying to inform America across the board of these things than The Advertising Council."

"Fold ya Mark IV would cool the back seat too, didn't I?"

Children Inspire Teacher With Their Warm Response

By SHERI WEBBER
 "Children are so inspiring." "A child watches your every move with great big eyes, and every facial expression shows his response," relates Mrs. Ray Neel. Mrs. Neel, who is now concluding a week-long Kids' Crusade at the First Assembly of God Church, started working with children while a junior in high school.

"My equipment then consisted of flash cards and flannel graphs," says the worker. Since that time, June Neel has added to her equipment until now she values it at over $1,000—this is not counting the thousands of hours she has spent preparing it.

Much of the credit for the worker's equipment goes to her husband Ray, foreman of the technical engineering department at Pantex Ordnance Plant in Amarillo. Ray is a handyman and has made most of his wife's easels, flannel boards and other gadgets. One of the more recent projects of the couple has been the "Bible Playhouse." This is a miniature stage—complete with bright red velvet curtains—that Mrs. Neel uses in depicting Bible stories. The stage is about 3 1/2 feet long and 30-inches high.

June Neel sets the "Playhouse" on a table well within the vantage point of the children. She makes the figures of the play's characters out of heavy cardboard and attaches them at a right angle to long strips of heavy cardboard. With these long strips of cardboard, Mrs. Neel is able to move the figures from behind the miniature stage as she tells the story.

This same playhouse can be converted into a shadow box theatre. Two rollers are attached to each side of the front of the playhouse. To these rollers Mrs. Neel attaches a long strip of tissue paper. On this paper are the characters in the story, and as she tells the story she rolls it across the front of the playhouse. Inside the little stage is a light, so that the children can see the outlines of the characters in the story as the light shines through the tissue paper.

"When I first started out I was always looking for a new idea," says June. "Now I have so many

Mrs. Ray Neel shows points won by a team during the Kids' Crusade held at the First Assembly of God Church this week. The worker who usually works with children only in her home church in Amarillo, has invested over $1,000 in equipment for children's services.

I don't have time to try them all!" Another successful technique in working with children is to tell the story using a magnetic play. Mrs. Neel makes the cardboard characters look the same on both sides. She attaches the little figures to a magnetized disc and places them on a large square of heavy corrugated cardboard. With a large magnet she moves the characters by placing her hand underneath the cardboard "floor."

One of the most unusual attractions Mrs. Neel uses is the "black light." This is an ultra-violet light that June attaches to the bottom of an easel. With luminous paints and chalks, the energetic lady draws the object lesson—much to the delight of her young audience.

"You don't have to be talented to be successful in children's work," declares Mrs. Neel. "You must have a will to work."

Not only has June had a will to work, but she has been willing to invest money into the Lord's work. Besides buying various lights and an abundance of materials, she has invested in a tape recorder and projector that has both slide and filmstrip attachments.

Children love tricks, Mrs. Neel has discovered, so she employs many of them in her programs. Quizzes always go over big with youngsters, for all of them get to take part.

Lately June has begun work on puppetry and ventriloquism. She hopes to master both of them enough to incorporate into her work.

"The Neels have one child, Lillian, who is now 14. She usually plays the piano for the children's songs and is with her mother in Big Spring.

Mrs. Neel had worked only in the church she was attending until two years ago. Now she takes two children's meetings a summer.

People often wonder if young children are capable of receiving benefits from religious instruction and ask June Neel if it is really worth all her time and effort.

"If children really understand the way of salvation when you explain it," Mrs. Neel contends, "there can be a definite change in their lives."

The experienced leader realizes that often children will raise their hands simply because a friend does. So to make an impression on each child of the decision he is making, June has the children kneel.

"Children are smarter than adults," explains Mrs. Neel. "They can see their need of Christ and are willing to admit it."

All the time and money Mrs. Neel has spent since entering children's work in 1949 is regarded as an investment by both her and her husband.

"For we are building for eternity."

Men Who Spoke for God

HOW A CONVICTION THAT ONE IS WHOLLY IN THE WILL OF GOD WILL GIVE COURAGE TO CONTINUE A TASK, NO MATTER HOW GREAT THE PRESSURE MIGHT BE.

Scripture—II Kings 14:23-29; Amos 7:7-17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
 IN THE lesson we study today we are beginning a series of three successive ones "taken from one short Old Testament book . . . for more accurate understanding of the ministry of the bold prophet, Amos." I quote from the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith's Peabody's Select Notes.

Amos was probably not an educated man. He was a herdsman and a gatherer of sycamore fruit. Yet God chose him to prophesy to his people of their sins and the fate that he saw in store for them, although at the time Israel was prospering under two reigns, those of Jeroboam and Zechariah.

Amos had a vision of the Lord God, who stood upon a wall made by a plumbline, with a plumbline in His hand. And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, a plumbline. Then said the Lord, I will set a plumbline in the midst of My people Israel; I will cast against them a plumbline more."—Amos 7:7-8.

"And the high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste; and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword."—Amos 7:8.

"Then Amaziah the priest of Bethel sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying, Amos hath conspired against thee in the midst of the house of Israel; the land is not able to bear all his words."—Amos 7:10.

"For thus Amos saith, Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel surely be led away captive out of their own land."—Amos 7:11-13.

"I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was an herdsman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit: And the Lord took me as I followed the flock, and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto My people Israel."—Amos 7:14-15.

"Thus boldly did Amos defend himself against the false accusations of his enemies. In his 'A Truth for the class' (see page 2), the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith writes: 'Is God applying a plumbline to nations today?' Yes, in certain countries men have died for their witnessing to Christ. Let all of us who profess to be Christians try to be like Him and practice our religion as well as professing it, as Amos did."

A Devotional For Today

When they had brought their boats to land, they left everything and followed him. (Luke 5:11, RSV.)
PRAYER: Father, we thank Thee for the words of the psalmist, "In thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore." Thou dost show us the path of life, and we thank Thee. May we ever follow Thee, joyfully obedient to Thy will, in the name of Thy Son who, when He lived in the flesh, taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Statute To Ban 'Rigged' Shows

By the lopsided vote of 208-15 the House this week approved a statute outlawing rigged TV shows, payola and other irregular practices the revelation of which shocked the country a year ago. The bill now goes to the Senate.
Under the law as sent to the Senate by the House anyone involved in the broadcast of fixed contests is subjected to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail. The same penalty would be set for dealing with payola, an undercover reward for plugging a song, product or service without identifying it as paid advertising.
Under the new law more flexible authority to crack down on stations that break broadcasting laws or regulations would be granted the Federal Communications Commission. The FCC is now confined to revoking licenses, but under the new law it could suspend a station for 10 days and fine it $1,000 a day.

An effort to regulate networks as well as individual stations bogged down insofar as this bill is concerned, since some of the congressmen felt it should be handled in a separate measure.
If the new bill survives the Senate in substantially its present form and becomes law, it should break up the rigged-show racket as well as payola, though in the case of the latter policing such a provision would be much more difficult.
For that matter it would be possible to get around the rigged-show ban by collusion, but a station that took a chance on it would be asking for trouble in large hunks, since collusion would open the door to blackmail, and blackmail is nothing trivial.

In Our Good Living, We've Gone Soft

Dr. Charles Malik, an Arab Christian, was once foreign minister of his native Lebanon, and last year served as president of the United Nations General Assembly. Educated in Lebanon and in philosophy at Dartmouth University, his qualities as statesman and educator are widely recognized.
Writing in this week's U. S. News & World Report Dr. Malik takes a rather dim view of the West's present posture vis-a-vis the menace of world communism.
"Perhaps the most distressing fact is the self-satisfaction and self-congratulation that prevails in the West; the softness, the lack of determination and decisiveness, the general decadence, and the unwillingness to settle for peaceful co-existence. Are we then face to face with some ineluctable judgment of fate or God?"
The West, he goes on, has suffered losses in the struggle with communism that were not inevitable but could have been prevented or reversed.
The West must stand firm at all costs against further Red expansion, Dr. Malik says. Let the West "face up to this advanced decay in its own soul."
As the biggest and strongest of the Western Nations, it is natural that the U. S. is thought of as the "decadence in the West" is mentioned.
But the U. S. has plenty of company among its friends and allies. Most of the Western world is living high off the hog, the U. S. the highest of all. Living standards in the West are pretty high, compared to those of a billion or more other people.

There is something about a high living standard that produces high living, and there is something about high living that produces degeneration and decay in people's morals and ethical standards.
They don't like to be reminded of unpleasant things.
It is much pleasanter to live in a fool's paradise.
Payment of taxes becomes onerous, for we'd much prefer to spend our money on our own pleasures, or to lay it up for a rainy day.
What is about "good times" that causes the fatty degeneration of selfishness and refusal to be bothered about unpleasant things to move in and occupy the soul?
There have been other occasions in our national past when we lost sight of practically everything but making money and enjoying the good times money made possible. We came near to disaster for these lapses, but a merciful God permitted us to rediscover our souls in time to avert disaster and ruin. Can we always depend on His merciful kindness, if we forget His very existence in our mad scramble to have a good time? If we do nothing to justify His concern for our souls?

President Reiterates Stand For Peace

WASHINGTON — It takes moral courage to make the kind of speech President Eisenhower delivered to the American people on Monday night. He might have displayed arrogance and resentment. He might have spoken with bluster. He might have traded insults with Nikita Khrushchev. For, indeed, there has been plenty of provocation, including the latest piece of deliberate sabotage by the Soviets at the Geneva disarmament conference.
Instead Mr. Eisenhower chose to "turn the other cheek," as the scriptures teach us. He thereby spoke from strength instead of from weakness, as befits the "boss" of a nation which has the power, the resources and the spirit to defend itself successfully against all enemies. The highlight of the speech was the outline Mr. Eisenhower gave of what he deems to be the proper course for the United States to follow in these troubled times. He said:

"WE MUST ACCEPT the risks of bold action with coolness and courage. We must always be strong but we must never forget that peace can never be won by arms alone; we will be firm but never truculent; we will be fair but never fearful; we will always extend friendship wherever friendship is offered honestly to us."

This is a legacy to future presidents. It's a passage that will live in history. For it expresses the American philosophy of peace with honor, and casts aside the doctrine of peace at any price.

MR. EISENHOWER'S address was couched in phrases of conciliation. He even gently reminded Nikita Khrushchev of a graceful way that the Soviet Premier might have cancelled the invitation for the President to visit the Soviet Union. This is often referred to in diplomacy as an "out." Mr. Eisenhower said: "In Paris last month they (the Communists) advanced false and elaborate excuses for cancelling my invitation to visit the Soviet Union, when all that was necessary to say was that they found it inconvenient to receive me."

Plenty Of Reason For Population Shifts

Analyze the 1960 Census and you get a feeling of purposeful logic. At a glance, the population shifts go this way and that. Yet, they make sense. People don't move in and out of cities by sheer happenstance. Note these diverse trends:

1. Middle-sized metropolitan areas — those between a half million and a million inhabitants — grew more rapidly in the 1950-60 decade than any other size communities in the United States.

2. Smaller metropolitan areas — those of less than 100,000 population — gained least.

3. INCREASES of the biggest metropolitan areas were in beween. There's an exciting arithmetical symmetry in the way the gains array themselves.

The gains are low for the very largest metropolitan areas, slightly higher for the next size areas, and highest for the middle-size areas. Then the reverse occurs.

THE CITY still is a magnet. It draws people, even as it repels them. As people move out of the city centers (downtown areas) to the suburbs, others move from rural sectors (the country) to suburbia to be near the cities.

The rings around cities widen and the population density of these rings increases. As supporting evidence: Suburbs grew faster in the metropolitan areas of 500,000-and-up, but the greatest gain was in the five 3,000,000-and-up cities.

Among major metropolises, New York showed a gain outside the center city of 73%; Chicago 71%; Detroit 79%; Philadelphia 46%; and Los Angeles, which has been annexing suburbs as well as expanding rapidly in population, 83%.

BUT THE CENTER cities in these areas, with the exception of Los Angeles, showed losses: New York 3%; Chicago 3.5%; Detroit 9.6% and Philadelphia 5%. Central Los Angeles gained 24%.

The smallest communities — areas of less than 100,000 population — showed the city-suburb pattern. Central city population grew faster than the outlying region — 9% against 4%.

Deduction: Most small towns are themselves suburbia; therefore, they aren't surrounded by small communities. Probability: They are not developing new industries rapidly, and when they do, they quickly push into the next metropolitan area bracket — above the 100,000-population level. Many of these smaller cities are agricultural distribution centers and the farm population has been declining relative to industrial population.

WHY DID the middle-size metropolitan areas — one-half million to a million — grow most consistently — up 19.4% in the center and 56% in the suburbs? Economically, probably because these cities are in rapidly industrializing areas. Such economic expansion is possible because of physical latitude. Competition in the central city area is not great enough to reject immigration. Undeveloped residential space is available within city limits. Moreover, as cities industrialize and grow, their suburban areas enlarge. Population density in the center induces greater population density on the perimeter.

Yes, these population trends — which seem to skew every which way — make sense. Kind of gives one confidence in human beings.

The Surprise Of Walking

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of New Yorkers had an unusual experience this week. Because of a wildcat bus strike they walked to work.

Many grumbled at the experience but found it tonic. They were probably surprised mildly to find the exertion made them feel better than they had for weeks.

One of the great living shames of the machine age is that so many of us have lost the great joy of walking.

Walking does more than merely get you from one place to another. Nature built man to be a mobile organism, and movement is essential to both his mental and his physical health.

The aimless melancholy that afflicts so many civilized people undoubtedly is a result of their prolonged sedentary posture. When man sits still, his mind turns inward and magnifies his troubles. When man is on his feet and moving, his mind must turn outward to a considerable extent, if only to protect him from the perils that menace the pedestrian.

Some people have found they can minimize their worries by getting into their cars and going for a long drive. Doing something — doing anything — makes them feel better. But if, instead of getting behind a wheel, they want for a long walk, they would feel better faster.

The sitting man is a sitting duck for self-pity. But it is more difficult to feel sorry for one's self when one is afoot. The piled-up resentments and hoarded wrongs melt magically with each passing block, and one feels himself less and less a passive victim of a ruinous world he never made.

You cannot think your troubles away, but you can walk them down to a size you can handle.

There are those who say the only place worth walking in is a green place, and there is no doubt that all of us get homesick at times for a forest feeling and the sensation of a firm footing on the yielding earth.

The best city in the world to walk in is undoubtedly London. But the most rewarding walking in America for the inveterate or even the amateur pavement pounder is right here in Manhattan. Elsewhere, in sprawling New

Spinal Tap Routine Is Safe And Useful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
"Dear Dr. Molner: Are spine punctures dangerous? What diagnostic information do they provide?—M.S."

Spinal puncture is done very often these days, and properly performed, it is not dangerous. In the infancy of this procedure, it carried a factor of danger. This has been true of ever so many medical techniques—long ago removal of an appendix was a perilous undertaking. Heart and brain surgery once was utterly impossible. But we have learned how.

So the spinal tap, or spinal puncture, is both safe and extremely useful in a good many ways. One very useful reason for spinal puncture is in the administration of an anesthetic. This prevents pain in certain parts of the body without affecting other areas, thus permitting the patient to cooperate in some instances. It also permits anesthesia where it is needed without the problems involved in respiration.

One basic fact disclosed by such a puncture is the pressure of fluid in the spinal column. Another is the question of whether the spinal fluid is clear, as is normally the case, or whether it has turned cloudy or contains blood.

The presence of red blood cells in the fluid indicates a hemorrhage somewhere in the central nervous system. The spinal cord is extension of the brain itself. The cord and brain together constitute the central nervous system. If white cells are found in the fluid, that indicates infection or inflammation somewhere in the central nervous system, and the type and number of cells are clues to the nature and severity of the condition. Thus cells of various types are counted when a spinal tap is made.

In addition laboratory tests are made to detect or measure germ organisms and the presence or quantity of proteins, salt and other components. The danger of polio, for example, appears when the virus affects the central nervous system. Tests for syphilis likewise are at times made with the spinal fluid, and by far the best thing with this disease is to eradicate it before it invades the body that far.

Strokes, brain tumors and other problems involving the brain itself will betray their presence by changes in pressure or by abnormal contents in the spinal fluid. Obviously a spinal tap is of inestimable value in identifying meningitis, and in very small children the pressure must be discovered (and corrected) in cases of hydrocephalus, the disease which results in the head becoming very much enlarged from the pressure within.

While I've given you a sketchy outline of the sort of information which can be derived from a spinal puncture, you can readily see that this type of test is very comparable to the blood counts and blood tests which are so universally used, the difference being that the spinal fluid, rather than the blood, is being examined.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Will you please settle a discussion? When a person undergoes surgery does the wound heal inside first and then outside, or just the opposite? Thank you.—M.C."

Healing occurs simultaneously at the inner and outer structures after surgery. One reason why the skin may not heal promptly is that some surface infection may be present. Or there may be irritation from a stitch.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard it said that anyone with high blood pressure should not take vitamins—Mrs. Q."

Their Causes and Cures," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

How To Handle Women

If moves me to tears, sometimes. With younger fellows it's understandable—they just don't have much experience; but I see it also in older men who should know better.

I speak, of course, of that mysterious subject about which there should be no mystery—the handling of women. Womankind has successfully fostered the notion that they are mysterious and can never be understood or mastered, which is a crock of baloney.

Hearken to my words, men; listen to the advice of a Past Master, and never again will you be left dangling by that infamous string women are supposed to hold.

Why is it that some men seem to draw the opposite sex as if through some mysterious magnetism, while other men are blithely ignored? Why are some successful flirts well-dressed, tall, handsome and muscular, whereas some unsuccessful men are also well-dressed, tall, handsome and muscular?

Men, it's discrimination. That's right. Be discriminating. And rule number two, be masterful. Women are attracted to men who like women, but are repelled by men who like all women. A man who is discriminating and choosy in his selection of lady friends, and who subtly lets the world know it, has already taken the first step in penetrating the womanly "mystery."

Women are all vainly, and they deeply appreciate little attentions from a man who obviously knows a right woman when he sees one. But don't flirt openly; be smooth and subtle.

Look masterful, and be masterful. This, gentlemen, is exceedingly difficult, particularly for men reared in a thoroughly womanized environment. But practice will develop your masterful personality.

Don't go asking me how—masterful qualities are indefinable: a positive sureness, a relaxed sophistication, an attitude that tells the world "I am master of my own fate." I wish the captain of my soul.

There is a pitfall, however, that must be avoided by the man who would pretend to be masterful — don't be bossy or egoistic. The moment you show either of these qualities, you're dead as far as womankind is concerned.
It all sums up to the ancient formula of manliness — and by that I don't mean bulging muscles and low-brow arrogance, nor impeccable attire and frosty manner. Just be sure of yourself and your future, be polite and civilized without being squeamish, admire the opposite sex but with discrimination — and women will melt in your presence.

We Need To Police Our Giving

It is with real sorrow, but no particular surprise, that I read that the Attorney General of Minnesota is looking into the financial affairs of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation.

More than half the money contributed by mail to this fund since 1952 has been used not to treat the victims of polio, to whom Sister Kenny devoted her life, but to pay for preparing and mailing a variety of letters and appeals to you, me and the folks next door.

OF THE $19,300,000, a whopping sum, sent to the fund by mail since 1952, the Attorney General says that some $11,000,000, likewise a whopping sum, was spent "in preparing and mailing the letters appealing to the public for funds."

But who, on the receiving end of this and many another charity, both local and national, has not been appalled by the number of letters, elaborate brochures and gimmicky appeals, received from each one within any given 12-month period?

GRANTED that Americans are soft touchers who give billions annually to charity, nonetheless some—viewing the mailed appeals and propaganda — must wonder occasionally how much of any given contribution actually gets to the needy in whose name the charity functions.

Since World War II, the proliferation of appeals has been astronomical. On more than one occasion I have written sharp letters to groups from whom I have received some kind of appeal as often as every fortnight. One doesn't have to have an abacus or an adding machine to figure out that (1) such heavy mailings consume a large portion of any gift to such a group and (2) that the professional staff has staked out a vested interest in that particular philanthropy.

IT GRIEVES me that Sister Kenny's name has been used to milk the American public. That is a shabby memorial to a woman who deserves much better and who, in her lifetime, helped so many men, women and children stricken with polio.

Sister Kenny and her treatment of polio may have been controversial. But no one could have gone through the Sister Kenny Institute in Minneapolis, as I did, when she was in command and come away doubting either the woman or her method.

Minneapolis gave Sister Kenny a haven and a hospital. Minneapolis was the result of her method, and seeing is believing. Its citizens believed in this stubborn, blunt woman who was, it seemed to me, one of the loneliest persons I have ever met.

VACCINES may eventually banish polio completely. But in her time Sister Kenny made a valuable contribution to the treatment of its victims. And malfeasance in connection with her name is a crime in more ways than one.

The moral of the Kenny Fund fiasco is that generous Americans should police their own giving. They should take the time to find out where their money goes, instead of dashing off checks willy-nilly.

During the past two years, The Seeing Eye, an old and honorable philanthropy dedicated to training guide dogs for the blind (as well as training the blind in the use and companionship of such dogs), has stunned the grab-school of charity solicitation.

IN JANUARY, 1959, the Seeing Eye directors wrote the charity's faithful supporters that for the time being it had sufficient funds, thanks to careful administration — and requests, to support its work. It has sought no new funds since. That unprecedented action is such a stunning tour de force in the ever-demanding charity field that at least one subscriber framed the communication.

But in the meantime, phony-baloney charities thrive because we, the givers, never investigate beyond the letterhead. (Copyright, 1960, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Goldwater Says What He Believes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sen. Barry Goldwater's book, "The Conscience of a Conservative," turned up on the best-seller list of the New York Times last Sunday. This is fairly remarkable because the book was published several months ago by an obscure house in Kentucky, and has sold up in the six figures with no help whatever from the New York Times or other arbiters of correct thinking and writing. In fact, the Times, which is as notable as the Nazis for book-burning when they disapprove, managed to ignore the Goldwater opus until it reached best-sellerdom, and then only reviewed it on page 14 in a single sarcastic column.

MEANWHILE, AS chairman of the GOP Senate group in charge of electing more GOP senators, Goldwater has been speaking virtually every weekend to Republican and civic groups around the nation. He must be the frankest political speaker who has ever gone the rounds, because his practice is not to dissemble at all, for any reason whatever. A year or so ago he made one of his typical speeches at the National Press Club and left his critics gaping with astonishment. He admitted his own mistakes. He laughed at himself, and kidded his party. He refused to vilify labor, although disapproving of the labor leader's "power complex." Goldwater even told how he'd publicly sought the endorsement of a Communist-led union because he knew the membership to be composed of loyal Americans. Was there ever such a politician as this?

GOLDWATER IS MAKING a big hit around the country. He will go to the Republican Convention with a small beachhead of presidential votes, and very possibly the largest single bloc for vice president. In May, a poll of Republican county chairmen showed him to be ahead of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for the second spot on the ticket. More recently, in June, Goldwater was first choice for vice president on a 25,000 sampling of the Young Republican National Federation. The senator got 37 per cent of the total. Lodge was the runner-up with a mere 11 per cent.

Barry Goldwater has retrieved the torch which fell from the hand of Robert Taft. Goldwater is the leader and spokesman of American conservatism. We all know where the conservatives are—mostly in the West and Mid, in the remnants of the Republican Old Guard and in the unbroken phalanx of the Democracy of the Confederacy. In addition to movements for a Nixon-Goldwater slate, there are suggestions of putting the Arizona man a ticket with Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. To the South, the association of any man with Sen. Byrd is the highest imaginable compliment. It is almost like knightening the man with the sword of Robert E. Lee.

WELL, HERE'S A Republican who could certainly win many Democratic votes in the West and South. And here's a Republican who is inspiring several elements of the Republican community—its practical politicians who run the county organizations, its Youth Movement and its Old Guard. It shouldn't be assumed that all this enthusiasm is a spontaneous combustion. Many persons, and much money, have gravitated toward Goldwater and have combined to push the man, his book and his ideas into a position where they could be seen and judged. The judgment is remarkably favorable for a man, and his philosophy, who so far has not made a single false move in order to seek popularity.

BUT THE ENDING of the 1960 installment of the Goldwater story has a twist to it. The Modern Republicans, who control the GOP, don't want Goldwater on the ticket, even though he would appeal to votes that Nixon would like to have. The Moderns don't want to hear what Goldwater has to say, even though it is what most Republicans believe.

But the only way the Moderns can hush Goldwater is to do exactly what they most dislike—to give him the second spot on the ticket, where he would be their captive. And the only way that Goldwater can keep on speaking his piece is to avoid the nomination for vice president which so many of his new-found followers would like him to have.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Galatians	5	13-14
Monday	Psalms	36	7-9
Tuesday	II Timothy	2	19
Wednesday	Psalms	107	28-31
Thursday	Ephesians	2	12-18
Friday	Luke	1	77-79
Saturday	Psalms	89	5-8

Everyone recognizes the great Lady standing in New York harbor holding her flaming torch. She welcomes the tired, the poor, the homeless, to this land of freedom. She symbolizes hope.

Back of the Lady, back of the welcome, stands the Church. The words on the statue do not mention the Church, and many of us do not realize the role it plays, but the Church inspired the principles on which our nation was built. It is the spirit of Christianity which extends the welcome to our shores and makes our nation a haven.

On the anniversary of our independence, we are proud of our freedom and opportunity and hope.

No statue with flaming torch stands at the door of the Church. But the Church is the real guardian of our heritage.

Strengthen your nation and yourself. Join the Church.

New Atom Sub To Be Launched

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP) — The submarine Thresher, lead ship of the world's most advanced class of nuclear attack subs, will be launched at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard July 9.

The Navy said today the 270-foot prototype sub, first to have a "built-in" silent quality, will be "one of the most effective anti-submarine warfare weapons in the Navy arsenal."

The Thresher will have the ability to operate deeper as well as more silently than her predecessors, making enemy detection extremely difficult. In addition, she will have the very latest in sonar and weapons, making her capable of maximum retaliation.

The vessel has a submerged displacement of 4,300 tons. Her crew will consist of eight officers and 80 enlisted men.

The ship's sponsor will be Mrs. Frederick B. Warder, wife of Rear Adm. Warder, commander of the 8th Naval District. She will break the traditional champagne bottle on the sub's stern rather than on her bow.

It will be launched bow first. The unusual christening procedure is necessary because of the Thresher's unique buoyancy distribution and hull design.

Population Up, But Post Offices Decline

By TEK EASLEY
AP Special Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas had 3,113 post offices in 1950 and a population of 3,948,710.

The state's population now has grown to 9,500,000 — by the 1960 census — but the number of

Monkeys Have Nice Manners

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Monkey business is good for the snowballs — Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Snowball, that is.

Snowball gets delinquent monkeys from the Miami Humane Society, tames them, trains them as pets and sells them to animal lovers.

"I sell them as fast as I can train them," says Snowball, a former circus animal trainer.

Under Snowball's tutelage, the monkeys become affectionate and learn tricks. He says his secret is treating them with care and kindness.

post offices, as shown by the latest Post Office Department figures, is down to 1,697.

It's a national trend. The number of post offices has been declining since 1900. There now are 35,408 post offices for a population of 179,500,000. In 1900 there were 76,688 post offices and a population of 75,994,575.

From 3,112 in 1950, the number of post offices in Texas had dropped to 2,261 in 1955 and to 1,697 in 1960.

Development of highways and growth of larger towns and cities are responsible for the trend, postal authorities say. Automobiles and good roads, along with the expansion of rural mail routes, thousands of cross-roads, country store post offices.

Of the present Texas post offices, 302 are rated as first class offices, 339 as second class, 589 third class and 567 as fourth class. The classification of the office and compensation of the postmaster are determined by the volume of business. There are 3,990 first class post offices in the whole country.

There were 31,377 Rural Free Delivery (RFD) routes in the nation as of June 1, extending a total of 1,752,801 miles. There were 1,584 of these routes in Texas, with 96,875 mileage.

The most isolated post office in Texas is Terlingua, in Brewster County's Big Bend country. It is 85 miles to the south of Alpine, close to the Rio Grande, and serves 32 families. Postal receipts run $350 a year. It is only 31 miles from the Big Bend National Park headquarters. And is served by

Army To Test Anti-Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has ordered the Army to test its weapons against intercontinental ballistic missiles instead of the slower intermediate-range rockets.

Here is the revised target plan announced Wednesday night: Atlases to be used as targets will be fired from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

As the target missile travels past the area of Kwajalein Island in the Marshall Island group — about 4,800 miles from Vandenberg — a Zeus will be shot aloft in an attempt to destroy it. The Army claims Zeus radars will detect incoming missiles while they are still several hundred miles away. Computers in the Zeus system, acting on radar information, automatically will launch and guide the Zeus to the interception point.

Live Civil War Shell Unearthed

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The FBI arrested an unemployed cook with a plaid cap Wednesday night and said he was one of the men photographed in the act of robbing the York Savings and Loan Assn.

John Andrew Mendlock, 37, was charged with robbery in the theft last Thursday of $2,704. A teller activated a hidden camera during the holdup and got a picture of the two bandits, one wearing a plaid cap. The FBI said the second man was still at large.

Going To Hell? Try Paradise, Too

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Montreal woman asking directions to Hell, Mich., was counseled today to visit Paradise as well.

Mrs. E. Cartmell wrote the State Highway Department, explaining she planned a visit to the Detroit area and "was thought it would be fun to be able to say we had been to Hell."

The department responded by mailing a marked map showing the location of Hell, a tiny unincorporated community.

"To complete your trip you might also visit Paradise in upper Michigan," suggested John Takacs in an accompanying message.

Relics Of Soddis Found In Panhandle

AMARILLO (AP) — Crumbling foundations and stone miles remain today as remnants of "soddis" that once dotted the Texas Panhandle.

"A 'soddis' is a house made from soil — often the only building material available to pioneers.

Transformation of the country began about 75 years ago when pioneers first began to arrive in great numbers. The period of sod houses lasted about 25 years.

A vanguard of hunters, cattlemen and nesters already had forged into the region when the state created the 54 Panhandle counties in 1876.

Shelter was the first problem that faced the pioneer and he used the material at hand — sod, rock, adobe and logs. The log houses were found only along wooded waterways.

Sod houses didn't cost much. One historian itemized expenditures on a two-room sod house and came up with a total of $2.76, not including labor. The same sized structure today would cost an estimated $3,000.

The soddy's life was from 7 to 10 years. An exception is in the museum at Beaver, Okla. Plastered over with concrete to prevent further erosion, it promises to be substantial for many years.

A sod strip was made to cut 15-inch strips of sod from the virgin soil. The long strips then were cut into 18-inch lengths and hauled to the building site and used somewhat like bricks.

Roofs varied. Rough lumber or picket poles overlaid with sod usually were used.

The average size of such a house was 12 feet by 20.

Pioneers sometimes built entire towns of sod.

Perhaps the most famous of these was Sod Town, a raucous little cowtown along the south edge of Coon Creek, about 10 miles northeast of Darrouzzett.

The town was started in 1886 and gained a notorious reputation in its three-year history.

The town listed 50 residents, but multiplied its population many times on payday when thirsty cowhands arrived to stake their thirst.

Even today, scattered bits of glassware remain at the site.

The arrival of the railroads at the turn of the century marked the doom of the sod houses. Every homesteader looked forward to the day when he could build a frame house, made easier because the railroads could transport lumber to the settlers.
