V. A. Gomez Named In New Indictments

The Howard County grand jury, summoned in secrecy after 5 p.m. Thursday, met for 45 minutes Friday morning and returned four indictments against V. A. Gomez, widely known property holder and former kingpin in northwest Big Spring.

who were in session only 40 minutes. The offenses involve what the state alleges was a wholesale theft of plumbing fixtures from the Saunders Co., Wholesale Plumbing Firm. The four new indictments deal with four separate pieces of merchandise.

Gomez, at the time of the original indictment in the case in October 1957 disappeared from the country a week before the grand jury reported. He showed up unexpectedly on July 18 after being sought by officers since 1957. He posted $15,000 bond and was released. He was at liberty on this bond when these new indictments were voted today.

SHORT SESSION

The grand jurors were notified after 5 p.m. Thursday by telephone to report to the court at 9 a.m. today. Judge Caton signed the order recalling the body at that hour. With no fanfare, the jurors were sent to their quarters and 40 minutes later marched into court to hand the judge the four indictments. They were thanked for their service and excused from further duty.

The grand jurors are: Jim Bob Little, foreman; Hezlie Read Jr., Neal E. Hatch; R. V. Foresyth, Rexie Cauble, Leslie Clawson, Ray Boren, V. R. Patton, John Brent and Milton Knowles.

He has been a fugitive from justice since October of 1957, the month he was charged with receiving and concealing stolen property. Last week, however, he walked into the sheriff's office and surrendered. Gomez then posted $15,000 bond.

GONE TO DALLAS

Today a warrant was issued for his arrest and sheriff's officers said they were told that Gomez left early today for Dallas. Gil Jones, district attorney, who asked Ralph Caton, judge of 118th District Court, to recall the grand jury, said that only two witnesses were heard by the jurors

Lodge Takes Place Beside Boss Nixon

CHICAGO (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, a blue-blooded diplomat from Boston, took his place beside Richard M. Nixon today in the fight to keep Republicans at the nation's helm.

Nominated without opposition Thursday night as the GOP vice presidential candidate, Lodge pledged to "expend every ounce of energy" to help the Republicans to victory.

Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, had picked Lodge as his running mate after a conference with party leaders. Lodge, the chief U.S. spokesman at the United Nations, arranged to go with Nixon to a meeting of the Republican-National Committee to lay out campaign plans and then to sit in on a news conference called by Nixon.

The latest word from Lodge was that he planned to resign his U.N. post next month, although White House press secretary James Hagerty said Thursday he saw no need for such action.

Lodge was presented to the final session of the Republican National Convention as a man who has been "tested and proved in the fires of today's world."

In accepting the vice-presidential nomination, he said the "life and death struggle" between the Communists and the free world gives this year's election "its compelling, overwhelming importance to us and the free world."

No one, he said, is so well fitted as Nixon to represent this country "in the turmoil of world politics."

In the platform adopted by the convention, he said, the Republicans have the program the country needs.

Lodge, 58, placed in nomination by Rep. Walter Judd of Minnesota, the convention keynoter, who was favored by many Midwesterners for Nixon's running mate. Judd emphasized Lodge's role as the U.S. ambassador to the U.N. in answering Soviet attacks on this country and said that Lodge has done as much as anyone, except President Eisenhower, in winning the confidence of other peoples of the world.

In 1952 it was Lodge who managed Eisenhower's successful campaign to win the GOP presidential nomination from the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

In the same year Lodge lost his seat in the U.S. Senate to John F. Kennedy, now the Democratic candidate for president.

The tall, handsome Lodge received a roaring ovation from convention delegates.

C City Road Awards Made

COLORADO CITY — Special commissioners, appointed to hear city road matters at Colorado City, handed down three awards Wednesday and Thursday. The hearings are in connection with land to be used by the state in building the bypass on Interstate 20 around Colorado City.

Commissioners Noble Walker, Preston Thompson and Dave Womack agreed on an award of $11,615 to Lewis Vowell for 20,026 acres and an easement for drainage purposes on 669 acres. Commissioners Thompson, Womack and Perry Bowles awarded R. B. Golden $3,319 for 5,647 acres of land on Thursday. On Wednesday, H. Wilson received an award of $654 for 1,772 acres of land. Commissioners were Jess Craddock, Thurston Smith and Womack.

County Judge Elmer Martin said that the state has appealed the awards in two earlier hearings and that the cases will be heard in county court in early autumn.

The appealed awards were one of $7,795 to Dick Hickman for 33,053 acres of land and an easement on 1,568 acres of land; and an award of $10,700 to Ara Heath and the Bohannon Estate for 28,918 acres of land.

July Exits Like Blast Furnace

July, probably embarrassed by its gentle and gentle meteorological performance earlier, was fighting back Thursday. Determined to go out of the picture like a blast furnace and in traditional summer fashion, it pushed the temperature up to a searing 104 degrees. It was the hottest day of the month.

The low never got under 88 degrees and provided citizens with one of the most uncomfortable evenings of the summer season. The temperature, as usual, reached its peak around 5 p.m. It had touched the 100 mark at noon.

The Atlas was to rocket the one-ton capsule 110 miles into space and 1,500 miles downrange to check on its ability to withstand a jarring plunge back through the earth's atmosphere.

The big missile with the Mercury capsule on its nose was launched in a driving wind and rainstorm at 9:13 a.m. and was immediately swallowed in low-hanging clouds.

Twenty minutes later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced: "Preliminary data indicates all radio contact with Mercury Atlas-1 was lost approximately 65 seconds after launch. Further data analysis is required before more positive test results information can be determined."

An official said that even if the Atlas failed during powered flight there is a chance the capsule may have fallen somewhere in the ocean between the Cape and the

Barbecue Meal Flushes Old Timers Out For Annual Meet

By SAM BLACKBURN

The old timers from Howard and Glasscock counties, liberally augmented by other long-time residents, were gathered under the broiling sun Friday in Big Spring park.

As they assembled for the 36th annual reunion of the Howard-Glasscock County Old Settlers Association, they were met by the pleasant odor of burning mesquite heavily perfumed with the savory smell of barbecue. Overhead, a small helicopter from Webb Air Force Base circled lazily, adding a straggler modern touch to what otherwise was a replica of an old-fashioned out-of-doors picnic.

Men with big hats and western clothes and wrinkled faces etched by decades of West Texas sunshine, and their wives, with the calm and placid expressions of those who have lived through many changes and still find life good, chatted together under the shade of the pavilion and beneath the leafy trees in the park.

MEAL A-COOKING To one side, the smoking barbecue pits, covered with sheet iron kept from view the ton of choice beef and the succulent goat which has been slow cooking since 11 p.m. last night.

Weary veterans, with bloodshot eyes and smoke grimed faces stood under the beating sun solemnly stirring washpots filled with bubbling beans. Others plodded slowly about spreading heavy paper on the cutting tables. Barrels of hot coffee and iced tea stood handily by.

Under the pavilion, registration moved slowly ahead. Officials of the association were gravely disappointed at the turnout as it stood at noon. Only 122 persons had registered at that time.

Harold Choate, who has been a leader at many of the reunions, however, was not disturbed:

"They'll be here at noon when we start eating," he said.

SPREAD PALLETES Many of the visitors brought quilts which they spread under the dark shade of the trees and spent the forenoon visiting with other old friends whom they had not seen since last reunion.

A Knappe, who was born in Stanton 75 years ago, and who came to Howard County in 1884 was the earliest settler on the registration books.

"I got to go to this reunion," he said, happily, "and I can go to the one in Martin County, too."

Other early day settlers who had already checked in with the committee included C. R. Johnson, who came to the area in 1896; J. E. Wasson, 1890; Alma Crenshaw, 1899. There many others dating back to 1900 and before.

ELDEST LADY Mrs. Nancy R. Beddell, who is 80-years-young, and who came here in 1900 probably has the distinction of being the oldest person in town on the grounds.

After the big barbecue dinner at noon, the picnicers will listen to the traditional old fiddlers contest. At 9 p.m. tonight a big dance at the Stampede on the Snyder Highway will bring the celebration to a close.

Who is to be the next president of the association? "Not me," said Morgan Martin, as he mopped the perspiration from his face, "this will sure be an open convention as far as I am concerned."

Erin Goes Blagh! Over Boycott Of Stout Spirits

DUBLIN (AP) — Two hundred angry Irishmen, stout drinkers all, today started fighting for a lost cause.

They want the whole of Dublin to boycott the bars.

The call for drastic action came after a week of tension in Dublin's booze belt.

The trouble started with a surprise government decision to let the bars stay open later at night.

Everybody wanted the move until it knocked half the fun out of life. The stuff tasted better when you broke the law to drink it.

The owners decided to pay the barmen more but to pass the wage raise on to the customers. A pint of stout went up from a shilling six pence—21 cents—to a shilling seven pence—22 cents.

The boycott started in Dublin's Stoneybatter district, along the River Liffey.

"If we do not," said Aidan Malone, the association chairman, "we will find that another increase will come into force, and after that another until we will not be able to buy it at all."

Publicans seemed little worried by the boycott.

"They'll give up breathing first," said Joe O'Dwyer from the other side of O'Dwyer's bar.

But he said people have increasingly tended to vote for the man and not vote a party ticket. "I believe we will win," he said.

Nixon conceded the GOP has suffered from erosion of support in the farm belt.

But he said he is delighted with the GOP platform stand on farm problems and hopes to spell out further proposals in a major farm speech rally in the campaign.

A Los Angeles reporter asked what the nominee plans to do about getting rest during this campaign.

"Nothing," Nixon said. "The nominee went on to say there won't be any time for vacation but that he doesn't plan to campaign on Sundays."

The next period starts now, with conferences this afternoon and a big farm meeting Saturday.

Nixon said he will fly back to Washington Saturday night and remain there Sunday.

After a strategy session there Monday with Lodge, Nixon will fly with his wife, Pat, to Reno, Nev. where a welcome home reception is planned for her. Then the Nixons will fly to Southern California for a welcome at Whitler College, which the vice president attended.

But Sees No Need For Hiking Taxes

CHICAGO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today he doesn't see any present need for raising taxes on national security requirements "must and will come first, above all other considerations."

Nixon, Republican presidential nominee, told a news conference that he was thinking of national security when he warned in his acceptance speech Thursday night that the people must be prepared for sacrifices.

"As we move into the 60's," he said, "we must not be inhibited by any consideration other than national security in determining what the government must spend, not only in the military field but in other activities as well."

COME FIRST "The national security requirements must and will come first above all other considerations in the next administration if I have anything to say about it," he said.

As to world repercussions from the U. S. political campaign, Nixon rejected the idea advanced by a newsman that foreign leaders might feel they could not negotiate at this time with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

Nixon said he doesn't think that is true at all.

In the political field, Nixon said one of the facts of the situation is that there are far more people registered as Democrats than there are registered as Republicans.

FIGHTING CHANCE In response to questions about his estimate of the chances for the Republicans to win control of the House, Nixon said he thinks there is "a fighting chance."

"There is one area in which we must make gains—if we are to win the House—and that is in the farm area," he continued.

Nixon went on to say there has been "erosion" of Republican support in the farm belt, and a program must be developed to win farm support.

As to GOP possibilities for the Senate, Nixon said "we have no chance" to get control in this election.

Many of the Senate seats figuring in this year's voting are in the South where Democrats are firmly entrenched.

He said he therefore believes the Democratic ticket of Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson "starts with an advantage."

FOR THE MAN But he said people have increasingly tended to vote for the man and not vote a party ticket. "I believe we will win," he said.

Nixon conceded the GOP has suffered from erosion of support in the farm belt.

But he said he is delighted with the GOP platform stand on farm problems and hopes to spell out further proposals in a major farm speech rally in the campaign.

A Los Angeles reporter asked what the nominee plans to do about getting rest during this campaign.

"Nothing," Nixon said. "The nominee went on to say there won't be any time for vacation but that he doesn't plan to campaign on Sundays."

Odessa Crash Is Fatal To 9

ODESSA (AP)—A 30-ton truck flattened an auto, killing two mothers and seven children Thursday. A baby was injured critically.

The victims were Mrs. Peggy Lee Roberts, 36, and Miss Bess Letterman, 49, neighbors at Odessa; Mrs. Roberts' son, Marice Lynn, 8; and six Letterman children—David, 16 months; Ramona, 3; Joy, 5; Susie, 7; Johnny, 9, and Mary, 10.

Mrs. Roberts' daughter, Connie, 17 months, was in critical condition.

The B. J. (oil) Well Service Co. truck driver, John Bostick, 28, of Odessa, was hospitalized with shock. There were no other witnesses, police said.

Highway Patrolman S. C. Merchant said the car driven by Mrs. Roberts had pulled from a stop sign on 27th St. into the path of the truck which knocked it into a small ditch and crushed it.

The two women and one child were thrown 50 feet. Two winch trucks were required to lift the truck off the car.

Hospital attendants said the surviving child's condition improved during the night.

The truck knocked the car into a shallow roadside ditch and then smashed over it.

Odessa authorities said the driver, John Bostick, stepped out of his truck — looked at the wreckage and collapsed.

The metal body of the car was so ripped that officers could remove the bodies without prying it apart.

The car was owned by the Roberts family.

Records of the Public Safety Department show the toll was the worst from a traffic accident in Texas since Feb. 15, 1959, when a crash in Hidalgo County took 10 lives.

State police said their preliminary investigation indicated the passenger automobile ran a stop sign at 27th Street and was struck by the truck, moving on Farm Road 1936.

Bill Leslie, Radio Station KOSA newsman, said at no place was the automobile wreckage taller than two feet after the truck smashed over it.

Springer To Review Plan

Marvin Springer, the city's master plan consultant, will present the final portion of his proposed zoning ordinance Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the classroom of the police building.

Springer has already covered regulations for residential and commercial zones and Monday will wind up with an explanation of definitions within the ordinance, zoning district boundaries, and authority of the board of adjustment.

The meeting will be attended by the master plan steering committee, city commission, planning and zoning commission and zoning board of adjustment.

Graddy Rites To Be In Florida

Services for William Blanchard Graddy, 55, of 604 NE 12th, who was killed Thursday afternoon in a derailment accident on the Texas and Pacific Railway near Monahans, will be in Jacksonville, Fla.

His body will be taken from the Barnes Funeral Home in Monahans to Jacksonville where services are to be conducted under direction of the McCabe Funeral Home.

Mr. Graddy, engineer on a west-bound local freight, was crushed to death when cars from an east-bound train derailed. Graddy's train was on the siding a mile west of Monahans to permit the other train to pass.

Twenty-two cars of the eastbound train were thrown off the tracks.

VETERAN ENGINEER Mr. Graddy, who had been with the T&P for 20 years, is survived by his wife, two step-sons, Dale Ray and Douglas Merrifield, both of Big Spring; his father, W. E. Graddy, Chattahoochee, Fla.; a brother, J. M. Graddy, Jacksonville, Fla., and sister Mrs. Mildred Buford, also of Jacksonville.

He was born on Aug. 15, 1905 in Columbus, Ga.

Friends of Mr. Graddy said today that his action in jumping from his idle diesel was probably impelled by memory of an earlier narrow escape he had from death on another occasion.

Gordon Hughes, secretary to the superintendent for the T&P and a long time friend of the engineer, said that Graddy's train was involved in an episode near Abilene about a year ago.

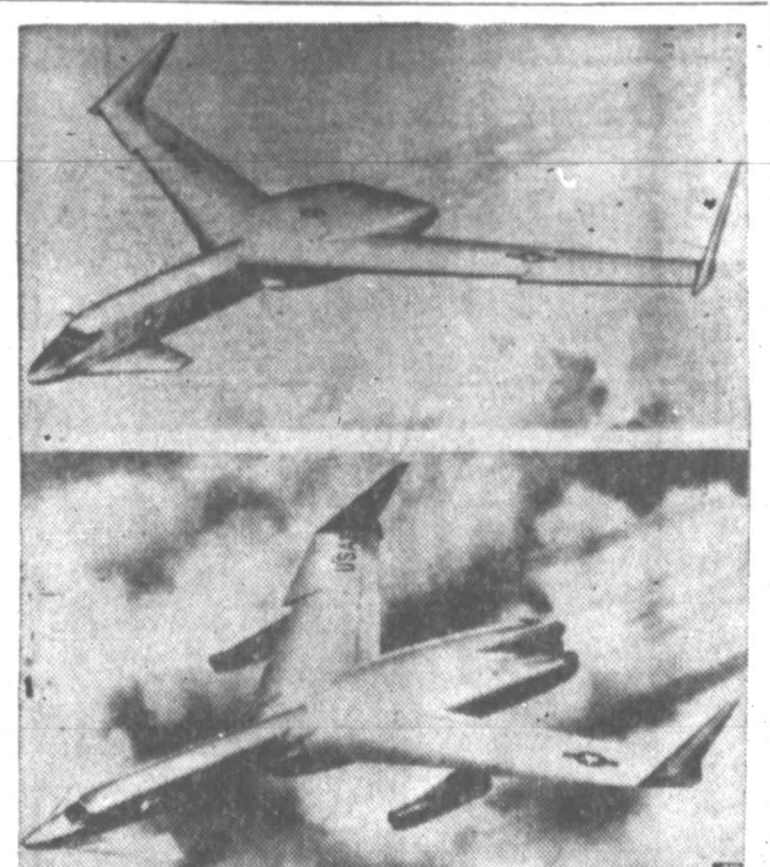

DEATH COMING "He told me," Hughes recalled, "that he stayed with his engine that time. However he added, 'Gordon, I sure saw death coming toward me that day. If this sort of thing ever happens to me again, I'm going to get out of that engine.'"

Perhaps he did. He leaped from the cab of his diesel only to be trapped under one of the crumbling cars.

B. J. Hutchison, who was Graddy's fireman, stayed with the engine. He was not injured. Graddy's train did not leave the tracks. No other person was hurt in the accident.

Railroad officials said that the 22 cars which were rolled, from the tracks in the derailment were at the rear of the east bound train.

EXTRA BOARD Graddy, Hughes said, was not regularly assigned to make the run on the train he was operating Thursday. He drew the assignment from the extra board.

Atomic-Powered Plane Designs

These drawings show two swept-wing designs for nuclear-powered aircraft, each with an assembly of jet-like engines mounted in the tail of the fuselage. This style is one of several configurations under study at the Convair plant of General Dynamics Corp., in Fort Worth, where nuclear plane research is conducted for the U.S. Air Force. Both designs lack conventional tails with a vertical stabilizer-rudder assembly on each wing tip. The horizontal stabilizer-elevator surfaces are placed far forward on the fuselage, like stubby wings. Upper drawing employs indirect cycle nuclear engines. Lower design is for direct air cycle nuclear engines, plus a pair of conventional jet engines mounted under the wings. It has not yet been determined which nuclear power plant will be used in the first plane.

Astronaut Missile Fails On Unmanned Test Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States launched an unmanned Project Mercury capsule for a severe test today, but lost radio contact with the Atlas booster 65 seconds after liftoff.

The Atlas was to rocket the one-ton capsule 110 miles into space and 1,500 miles downrange to check on its ability to withstand a jarring plunge back through the earth's atmosphere.

The big missile with the Mercury capsule on its nose was launched in a driving wind and rainstorm at 9:13 a.m. and was immediately swallowed in low-hanging clouds.

Twenty minutes later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced: "Preliminary data indicates all radio contact with Mercury Atlas-1 was lost approximately 65 seconds after launch. Further data analysis is required before more positive test results information can be determined."

An official said that even if the Atlas failed during powered flight there is a chance the capsule may have fallen somewhere in the ocean between the Cape and the intended landing area 300 miles northwest of the West Indies island of Antigua.

The flight was to subject the one-ton capsule to the worst re-entry conditions an astronaut might encounter if his space cab was suddenly jettisoned because of failure of the booster rocket shortly after launching.

It was an opening shot in a U.S. bid to send a man to the fringes of space by the end of this year and into orbit sometime in 1961.

All seven American astronauts were present today for this key test.

There was no living thing aboard the capsule today although monkeys have ridden in two earlier Mercury test units.

The giant Atlas thundered from its pad at 9:13 a.m. EST. Its mission was to push its capsule to an altitude of 110 miles and release it at a speed of 13,000 miles an hour.

If all had gone well, the space chamber would have streaked back to earth, slamming through the so-called "heat barrier" of the atmosphere with the force of a truck ramming a brick wall.

CUSSIN' GOLF

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been playing golf with another married couple lately. I have played golf with women, but never with men.

My husband never swears around the house or anywhere else, but the minute we start to play golf he swears a blue streak.

Not wanting to embarrass him in front of the other couple, I wait until we get home to call him on it. He says he will cut it out, but the next time we play golf, it's the same story all over again. Can you recommend a cure?

WIFE OF SWEARER
DEAR WIFE: Tell him to improve his game and he'll have less to swear about.

DEAR ABBY: We have neighbors who suffer from partial deafness. They can afford hearing aids but apparently don't have them.

We live in a row of brick houses and our porches are connected. These people will keep their front door wide open and blast their TV so loud that you can't hear yourself talk.

I am unable to go places as I am not well. I enjoy my swing on my front porch. It is the only pleasure I have. I know they read your column because I hear

THIS DAY IN TEXAS

By CURTIS BISHOP

The inhabitants of Galveston should have slept sounder than usual on this night in 1904.

For the last yard of concrete had been poured on its sea wall, and at last there was a stout barrier between Galveston homes and the devil sea.

Galveston had voted bonds in the amount of $1,500,000 to rebuild the sea wall after the disastrous hurricane of 1900. The Federal government came to the assistance of the determined citizens. The result was a wall which has withstood Gulf storms for 56 years.

The walls were built of reinforced concrete on cross-tied piling driven 40 feet into the sand. It stands 17 feet above mean low tide and a 27-foot breakerwater of granite blocks offers further protection.

The sea wall received its first severe test in August, 1915. Then waves beat against it so furiously that spray was thrown fifty feet into the air. The barrier stood, though the causeway was cracked in some places.

them screaming it to each other when the paper comes). Won't you print this? If you know a "roundabout" way to solve my problem, I would be willing to try it.

DISTURBED
DEAR DISTURBED: Why don't you pay them a friendly visit and tell them their TV is distressingly loud and disturbing? The shortest way around something is usually right through it. It will probably get results faster and with fewer hard feelings than the "roundabout" ways.

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem, but I want to express myself on a pet peeve I have harbored for almost 50 years. (I am approaching 75 summers.)

Why does a man think he is perfectly free to roam around the world and have all sorts of romantic adventures with anything in skirts, but he expects the girl he marries to be absolutely pure? What right has a man to expect chastity when he himself doesn't have it to offer?

OLD PHILOSOPHER
DEAR PHILOSOPHER: You do not have the exclusive on that pet peeve: It is shared by millions. If anyone can come up with a reasonable explanation, I'd like to have it.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "THE OTHER WOMAN" made me laugh. You probably won't print this, but here goes: You say, "When the flame dies, and it will..." Well, I have gone with a married man for 18 years and the flame hasn't died yet. I am 50 and he is 52 and I'll love him till the day I die. His wife gets all the money and I get all the love. And I wouldn't trade with her.

New Fangled Buttons, Fabrics Give Headaches To Cleaners

By ROB MARION

It's a case of "button, button, what happened to the button?" in the dry cleaning industry here and elsewhere.

Local cleaners are confronted with garment buttons that deteriorate and vanish under the cleaning process, chip in the dryer and crack or melt while being pressed.

To protect their customer and their business, the cleaners scan the clothing for buttons that have to be handled carefully. Many are clipped off and sewn back before the customer picks up his cleaning. Occasionally some are overlooked and these are replaced if ruined.

THE "GOO"
Plastic buttons are not the only problem children in the button family. Pearl buttons have always been bad because they chip easily.

Metal buttons with a tar-like interior are a menace to the cleaners' peace of mind, too. The heat from the clothes tumbler melts the interior and the presser mashes the "goo" out on the material. When the manufacturer forgets to put rust proof metal in his covered buttons, the results are likely to make both cleaner and customer unhappy. The buttons rust and ruin not only the cloth covering but possibly of the article as well.

However, some cleaners think the situation is improving. At least buttonwise. Many of the newer plastics can stand more heat and wear better than their predecessors.

TRICKY BLENDS.
New synthetic materials and blends have created problems unknown in the good old plain cotton, wool and silk days.

There are so many materials requiring a special process that it uses up the profits—some materials just can't be dry-cleaned decently," one cleaner complained.

The first blends of wool and dacron presented a sore point. Wool had a tendency to shrink while dacron did not. Under heat the material wrinkled badly. The blend is much better now, cleaners agree. Most of the cleaners think the situation is somewhat better now. For example, dacron and cotton blends do well, dacron is more stable and holds dye and press nicely, and dacron and rayon does well.

Orlon, because it tends to stretch, continues to be a problem. Once it stretches, it doesn't shrink again. Cleaners are careful not to hang orlon clothing up when it is wet and fold over hangers when dry.

AND DYES, TOO
While the synthetic material situation has gotten better, cleaners contend the dye used now fades more readily than in the past. This is particularly true in women's garments where the material is not dyed all the way through.

Another complaint is that some of the dyes give off an unpleasant odor when they are wet, that lingers after drying.

One cleaner cited navy blue and brown as being particularly unstable dyes. He recalled a customer who had spilled something on an expensive suit and tried to wipe it off with a wet napkin. The dye came out.

The dye used in men's wash and wear trousers is particularly susceptible to fading where the wearer perspires a great deal. In some cases, the wash and wear fabrics don't stand up too well.

Many cleaners encourage customers with problems to take them to the merchants in the hopes that the word will get back to the manufacturers.

NEED LABELING
Cleaners believe many of their problems could be solved if the buyers and manufacturers were more aware of the cleaning processes and the capabilities of their fabrics. However, they admit that they sometimes slip up, too.

Bomber Admits Using Airline

BELLEVILLE, N.J. (AP) — A 19-year-old youth charged with bombing a home has admitted carrying three eight-inch bombs with him on a transcontinental air flight, police said.

They said that Leggie W. Yates had told them he bought the bombs in San Francisco's Chinatown and brought them in his luggage to New York on an airliner last March. He did not name the airline.

Yates and two other youths, all Negroes, were charged Thursday with tossing a bomb against the home of 19-year-old Jolie Swin, for reasons undetermined by police. No one was injured.

What Radio Station Is most influential with the adult consumer audience?

The new facilities of KBST radio bring 80,000 individuals within its immediate coverage area.

KBST RADIO NOW IN ITS 24th YEAR

GIBSON Products Company

1837 Radio Blvd. Big Spring, Texas 5/2/60

Mr. Winston Winkles
Mr. Ted Snyder
Gentlemen:

Our recent store opening there in Big Spring, Texas was the most successful to date in our organization.

We certainly attribute much of this success to the outstanding "selling job" done by you and your staff there at KBST.

We were especially impressed with the enthusiasm, cooperation and personal interest shown by everyone connected with your station.

Of all the store openings we have had none have had during our Big Spring opening... and customers are still coming in.

We definitely feel, by reason of our sales figures, that we reached the majority of the adult consumer audience there in Big Spring by using KBST and we would highly recommend KBST to any sales conscious Big Spring businessmen who want sales results.

We also are convinced that out of all markets where we have used radio, we received more for our money spent on radio advertising by using KBST radio.

By continuing to tell the Big Spring people of our everyday low discount values over the air every week, we have found our investment in KBST radio is certainly paying off.

Sincerely yours,

Banks Cites Cost Of State's Crime

Crime in Texas costs the state an average of $128 per capita per year, yet Texas spends less than $1.50 per capita annually to combat crime.

A major crime occurs in Texas each three minutes. On an average 24-hour day, Texas chalks up three murders, three rape cases, eight armed robberies, 35 stolen cars, 108 burglaries and 240 instances of felony theft.

These are statistics compiled by a study of law violation by the state and were reviewed by Jay Banks, Big Spring police chief, in an address Thursday before the Big Spring Kiwanis Club.

Banks, a member of the club, used a part of his time to review the steps he is taking as head of the police department, to improve and upgrade law enforcement in Big Spring. He bespoke the cooperation of all citizens in his efforts and the efforts of the city administration and the members of the force to make conditions "safer and better in Big Spring."

Discussing the growing prevalence of crime and violence, he grimly reminded his audience that at least half, if not more, of all the crimes of violence in Texas are committed by individuals under the age of 17.

"The police are nearly helpless in dealing with these offenders. They are juveniles and the laws are such that police efforts to cope or regulate their actions are almost ineffective. There is no punishment for most of these young criminals."

He warned that society in Texas is menaced by the same threats which menace the nation as a whole—danger of rioting and violence stemming from disputes over integration, subversive actions by Communists and racketeer inspired violence in labor-industry relations.

Outlining the program he has initiated to improve the law enforcement facilities of the city, he listed seven steps. They include the adoption of the merit system in the police department; rigid recruit examination to select the best possible men for the force in second place, establishment of a complete and perpetual personnel record system on members of the force.

Adoption of a performance evaluation program; adoption of a code of conduct—the basic rules of the department; a constant and continuous training program in all phases of law enforcement work; and the need for the police to take an active part in civic enterprises and activities.

Banks had as his guest Leo Hull, assistant chief, and A. P. Hurley, recently of Fort Worth, who is to become a member of the department on Aug. 1.

Defense Sets In LBJ Suit

AUSTIN (AP)—Four Texas attorneys are preparing an answer to a suit filed Tuesday to keep Sen. Lyndon Johnson's name from appearing twice on the general election ballot.

The lawyers are Leon Jaworski of Houston; and Edward Clark, John Cofer, and Robert Sneed of Austin. They are representing three state Democratic Executive Committee officials who, together with Secretary of State Zolite Steakley, were named as defendants in the suit.

The committee members named are: chairman J. E. Connolly of Abilene, vice chairman Mrs. R. Max Brooks of Austin, and secretary Jake Jacobson of Austin.

A 24-year-old North Texas State College student, Michael Schwillie of Dallas, filed the suit in federal court here to test a 1959 state law permitting a man's name from appearing on the general election ballot as a candidate for two jobs.

"This lawsuit is an effort by Republicans to embarrass Texas. They do not want Texas to have strong leadership at any time... a careful reading of the petition convinces me there is no substantial federal question stated," Jacobson said in a statement Thursday.

Nixon Turned The Tide In The 'Fund' Episode

By SAUL PETT
CHICAGO (AP)—It was an extraordinary night in the history of politics and the performing arts.

It was Sept. 23, 1952 and, from a television studio in Los Angeles, the Republican candidate for vice president of the United States was, it seemed, baring his soul and emptying his pockets.

"I am going at this time to give this television and radio audience a complete financial history; everything I've earned; everything I've spent; everything I owe."

At the moment, Richard Milhous Nixon, only two years a senator and six years a politician, hung by his thumbs from a rope about to snap.

Would Richard Nixon be able to explain the $18,000 "Nixon fund" contributed by California supporters?

Would Richard Nixon, aged 39, who had come up high and fast, now be dropped into political darkness or would he be able to climb back to safety; would Richard Nixon, candidate of the party set to "clean up the mess in Washington," resign or be dumped off the ticket by Dwight D. Eisenhower?

About 50,000,000 people were tuned in for the unprecedented sight of a candidate putting himself under a microscope for a national audience.

Nixon stared earnestly at the camera as though it were an old friend, suddenly grown cold and suspicious, who was about to turn his back on him.

Nixon said he had never made personal use of the fund, that it had been used only to cover political expenses, that he, himself, had never received special consideration from his senator.

He described in painful detail his career, his finances, his family situation, the mortgages. The houses they bought. The borrowed money. His daughters' little cocker spaniel, Checkers, which he would never give up, no matter what.

And as the camera dwelled on his wife, he said: "Well, that's about it. That's what we have and that's what we owe. It isn't very much but Pat and I have the satisfaction that every dime that we've got is honestly ours. I should say this—that Pat doesn't have a mink coat. But she does have a respectable Republican cloth coat. And I always tell her that she'd look good in anything."

The telegrams poured in by the thousands. A change of heart came over Republican leaders and newspapers which had demanded his scalp. Dwight D. Eisenhower was convinced. Richard Nixon remained on the ticket.

The crisis was past although the nation divided itself, in unknown proportions, between those who thought they had just seen the greatest display of heart and candor and those who thought it was a new low in contrived soap opera.

The "Checkers speech" was more than just a passing crisis in the life of Richard Nixon. It probably helps to explain why even today the feeling that surrounds him is high, intense and sharply divided. He is a man who has been involved in many highly emotional moments recorded on the national cardigraph.

There were the campaigns of 1952 and 1954. Richard Nixon, the "man who had trapped Alger Hiss," was swinging wide and hard.

He repeatedly charged the Democrats with being "soft on communism." He said Secretary of State Dean Acheson suffered from "color blindness—a form of pink eye toward the Communist threat in the United States."

He called Adlai Stevenson "Adlai the appeaser—who got a Ph.D. from Dean Acheson's college of cowardly Communist containment."

In 1954, he said Harry Truman, Stevenson and Acheson were "traitors to the high principles in which many of the nation's Democrats believed." A coast to coast storm blew up over the use of the word, "traitor."

Nixon protested that he had said only that they were traitors to their party, not their country. But it was 1954 and the nation was still shaken by a divisive tremor called "McCarthyism" and the word "traitor" in any context had a special impact.

From the standpoint of his morale, 1954 was "the worst of Nixon's first 12 years in politics," wrote Earl Mazo, who apparently was given more time with the vice president than any other biographer. Nixon even talked about retiring from public life.

It had been a rough year, politically and personally. The Republicans lost seats in Congress. And there had been incidents.

In his home town, Whittier, Calif., a citizens group killed a move to name a street after the vice president. At his alma mater, Whittier College, where he was to deliver the commencement address, several seniors protested. A separate receiving line had to be created for those (it turned out to be two) students who preferred not to shake Nixon's hand.

At Duke University, where Nixon had received his law degree, a faculty meeting took the unusual step of vetoing an honorary degree voted by the trustees for the vice president of the United States.

Kidnaper Dies In Oklahoma

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)—Edward Leon (Pete) Williams was executed in the electric chair at state prison here Thursday night. His last word was "Jack," his final expression a wink.

Williams walked without hesitation to his electrocution. He took his seat in the oak chair and shook his head when Warden Robert Raines asked if he had anything to say.

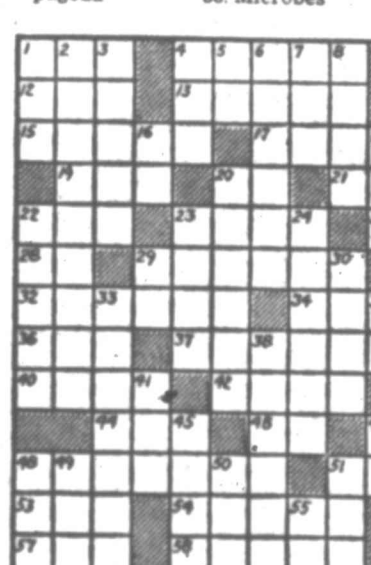

The 31-year-old kidnap-killer smiled as he looked into a crowd of witnesses. His eye caught Jack Kelley, a reporter for the Tulsa World, and winked. He called the reporter by name.

He was the first man to be electrocuted in Oklahoma for kidnaping.

The swift execution was the climax to three and a half years of life on death row. Thirteen times Williams avoided the end through stays of execution.

Boy Found Living Under A Bridge

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—A 15-year-old boy stayed in the Passaic County juvenile shelter today after he was found living in a concrete cubicle under a four-lane highway bridge.

Andrew Wilkie told police he had been living in the 4-foot-wide, 60-foot-long enclosure for 8 days. Youthful friends brought him food. He had a toothbrush, clothes and a makeshift mattress. Police said his aunt and guardian, Mrs. Rose Wilkie, was away on vacation and could not be located.

"I ran away because I'm too much a burden on my Aunt Rose," the boy said.

A Devotional For Today

He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. (Psalm 1:3)

PRAYER: Dear heavenly Father, we thank Thee that we are safe in the hands of Thy Son Jesus, our Saviour. Help us to be living trees that bear fruit worthy of Thy kingdom in this world of sin. In the name of Thy Son we pray. Amen.

More Roads For State Parks

Action important to the development and popularizing of the many fine state parks in Texas was taken this week by the Highway Commission.

Heretofore the state commission has assumed responsibility only for the maintenance of roads connecting state parks with the nearest state highway.

On the request of the State Parks Board, the Highway Commission will hereafter pay construction costs of such roads but the county and the parks board will furnish the right of way.

Immediate effect of this new policy will be to provide a third main route of ingress and egress to and from the Big Bend National Park from Brewster and Presidio counties. The matter of roads has been one of the sticking points in bringing that huge and magnificent attraction to anything near its full potential as a magnet for tourists. That and the lack of abundance of accommodations within the park.

Let us face it. Texas was slow getting started with its state parks system, and never has exploited it on the scale many other states, less blessed with scenery and abundance of wildlife, have achieved.

There is money in them that tourists, state and inland, and Texas should not neglect its latent opportunities to capitalize on the travel craze to the fullest extent. Peculiarly in this case it takes money to create money.

All In The Way You Say It

The dictionary defines the "Democratic Party" as one of the two major political parties in the United States since 1828. As far as we know the official name is "Democratic Party," not "Democrat Party," as opposition orators love to speak of it when in a particularly rabid mood.

There seems to be a virulent outbreak of the flat, unadorned term "Democrat" Party at the current Republican convention. Most of the speakers seem to have used the term at least once. There is a way of pronouncing its three-syllable form to make it sound as if one were getting shot of a peculiarly bad taste in the mouth, sort of halfway between a sneer and a snarl, that most speakers use. Democrats no little.

We don't recall that President Eisenhower, a Texan born — and indebted to Democratic representatives and senators for many helping hands down through the years, without which he could not have overcome the opposition of some of his own party members — spoke of the "Democrat Party" during his convention speech of Tuesday night, although he left no doubt what he thought of the opposition as a whole.

It is a minor matter, to be sure — a question of vanity on both sides. — The Democrats can get back at the Republicans by referring to them as the "Grand Old Party," or for short "the GOPsters." And a practiced ridiculer can get just as much of a sneer and a snarl into "Grand Old Party" as the Republicans can get into "Democrat Party." It is all a part of the give and take of politics.

Experience To Be GOP Theme

CHICAGO—The Republicans plan to offer the country a trisummary of experience to meet the crises of a troubled world.

If Richard Nixon is elected President and Henry Cabot Lodge is the vice president, they will confer and counsel often with Dwight Eisenhower. America's policies thus will be formulated on the basis of experience with all the controversies and personalities in international affairs gained in eight fateful years.

This is the meaning of what has been urged, in favor of the combination of Messrs. Nixon and Lodge, both of whom have been so closely associated with the administration of President Eisenhower.

THE 1930's, when the Supreme Court of the United States declared "sit-ins" strikes unlawful. Certainly in principle a non-violent occupation of a factory isn't any different from a non-violent occupation of a lunch counter.

THE REPUBLICANS didn't mention "sit-ins" as such at all in the platform and wisely confined themselves to this broad statement: "We reaffirm the constitutional right to peaceable assembly to protest discrimination in private business establishments. We applaud the action of the businessmen who have abandoned discriminatory practices in retail establishments, and we urge others to follow their example."

The reference to "peaceable assembly" means, of course, only outside the stores, where there is a legal right to protest or demonstrate.

THE WAY the delegates cheered Mr. Eisenhower and the enthusiastic reception given him by the people of Chicago would seem to indicate that folks generally would be glad to see Mr. Eisenhower continue to exert his influence through his successor, on the side of patience yet firmness in dealing with the Soviet Union.

Henry Cabot Lodge is well known to TV audiences and in the press because of his courageous and skillful handling of the Soviet tirades in the United Nations meetings in New York. Since the forthcoming political campaigns will raise the issue of experience versus inexperience in world affairs, the Republican leaders were wise to bring President Eisenhower here and to select Henry Cabot Lodge for the vice-presidential nomination. For the feeling is that international issues will be dominant in the campaign. Both Nixon and Lodge are good debaters and have a familiarity with the subject matter gained at first hand inside the United States government from day to day for the last seven years or more. Mr. Lodge has proved a masterful diplomat and speaks French fluently.

THE OTHER PIECE of political wisdom emerged as the Republicans took note that the Democrats had, by their platform, called for abolition of all literacy tests for voting. This would require a constitutional amendment.

The Republicans, on the other hand, pledged "legislation to provide that the completion of six primary grades in a state-accredited school is conclusive evidence of literacy for voting purposes."

ON BALANCE, the South could regard the Republican "civil rights" proposals as somewhat better for them than the Democratic plank. As for the Negro leaders in the North, they may well find, as they study it, more specific guarantees or proposals to achieve civil rights spelled out in the Republican than in the Democratic platform. Indeed, the Republicans had an advantage because they could read the planks of their opponents and be guided by public criticisms.

It used to be that the Republicans held their convention first, but the procedure was turned around this year and the Republicans certainly profited by the mistakes made by the other side at Los Angeles. At least the Republicans have conducted an orderly convention and the delegates have been in their seats virtually all the time during the sessions.

AS FOR THE platform controversies here, they appeared to fade away through "compromises." Phraseology that emphasizes in broad terms the desired objectives rather than specific formulas or legislative proposals was adroitly employed as usual to satisfy conflicting elements.

But the Republicans did two significant things in their "civil rights" plank which will win them considerable support. They didn't endorse "sit-ins." For to do so meant something the Democrats overlooked—that the word "sit-in" could be easily construed to include "sit-down" strikes in plants and factories as well as in business establishments. This particular issue was fought out in Michigan in

Fast Chance To Keep Promises

CHICAGO (AP)—The political year completes its work before the politicians start. This gives the politicians until the following January — when the next Congress takes over — to produce on the big campaign talk.

This year Congress did such a meager job between January and the time it recessed in July, it had to return. But this upcoming session will be doubly extraordinary.

Three of the two parties' four top candidates will be working in the Senate. Because the whole country will be watching their Senate activities will actually be part of their campaign.

President Eisenhower, anxious for a Republican victory, will have a hand in things which could range from holding conferences with congressional leaders to posing for pictures with Richard M. Nixon, the Republicans' presidential nominee.

Nixon, as vice president, will preside over the Senate, his usual role. Behind the scenes, of course, he'll be putting the heat on his fellow Republicans to see things his way.

Facing him all the while will be Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, who were given the No. 1 and No. 2 spots on the Democrats' ticket at their Los Angeles convention two weeks ago.

Congress must return Aug. 8 to complete its unfinished business. It took a vacation during the conventions. The unfinished business happens to involve some of the most important promises in both the Democratic and Republican platforms.

For instance: Aid to education and raising the minimum wage. If the advocates of civil rights, the most heated issue in both platforms, try to get action on that subject they may be scheduled to be a three-week session.

Mom Gets A Word In

Editor's Note — On July 18 Francis Boyle wrote a column telling how busy he was with his wife and household chores. Today his wife, Joy, puts in several words for the women.

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Before you spend any of your precious man-hours shedding tears over poor Pop's predicament, may I hasten to put in a word for the Moms?

This Mom, not wishing to waste any more moments than necessary on mathematical calculations, will take Daddy's word for it that there are 8,760 hours in a year.

The men, lucky fellows, sleep about 2,920 of these at the rate of eight hours a night. Ma, of course never gets more than six hours of sleep, what with seeing that the kids are bathed and bedded, the milk bottles and the cat put out and a path cleared through the day's debris so Daddy can make a quick getaway in the morning.

But even so, there are 2,130 hours gone already. Three meals a day to cook, seven days a week, minus two weeks' vacation and the one night Daddy takes Mommy out to dinner. At a conservative estimate of one hour per meal—really it's a fraction more, but the arithmetic would be impossible—that's 1,053. Half an hour for dishwashing each go-round adds 526 to the KP score.

Now, take clothes, for instance. There's a washing machine which Dad so reluctantly purchased after failing to convince Wiley that a woman's place is at the scrub board. But spring and soaking and starching and smoothing subtract a couple of hundred hours per annum. Still that leaves 4,791. Other housework takes a minimum of two hours a day and you have to take into account the times when the little housewife really gets ambitious or her mother-in-law is coming a visit. So withdraw another 1,000 to make the balance 3,691.

While it may be daddy who pays for the bacon, contrary to popular belief it is Mommy who brings it home. And in the process of trudging up and down miles of supermarket aisles another 260 hours are spent, as well as Dad's paycheck.

About 2,000 hours for miscellaneous activities.

Never mind. Mother still has 1,431 shining hours for herself. First, though, there are letters to write, checks to write, notes to the milkman to write and grocery lists to write. Clothes to be taken to the cleaners, shirts to be taken to the laundry, shoes to be fixed, socks to be bought for all the members of the family who coming go about with their shoes off.

There are still at least a thousand hours left. Making 950 of these are spent making sympathetic noises when Hubby complains about how hard he has to work—both at the office and at home.

Yippee! Still 50 hours to go. And how does Mommy spend these? Listening to Daddy say, when he comes home from work, "Well, what have you been doing all day? Loading?"

No Street Parking

RALSTON, Neb. (AP)—It's no longer legal to park automobiles on residential streets — day or night — in this Omaha suburb of 3,800.

Officials report the new ordinance is working out fine and Ralston residents are parking cars on their lawns or providing off-street parking.

The parking ban was inaugurated because many of Ralston's residential streets are too narrow to accommodate parking and two lanes of traffic.

To Lose Weight, Adjust Exercise And Appetite

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Not so many weeks ago I spoke at the national convention of the TOPS — meaning "Take Off Pounds Sensibly."

It's an organization of people who are doing just what the name of the group implies. Most are women, because, for whatever reasons, women are much more inclined to do things like reducing in public. That is, they are smart enough to be candid about it. They admit that they are overweight, and they admit that they are on reducing diets.

The unusual thing was the presence of one man, among some hundreds of women. Like others in this group, he was successful in whittling off some weight — he had weighed over 300 and had taken off more than 40 pounds without resorting to pills.

He did it by just making up his mind to eat less of everything. He also was smart enough to recognize one of the most basic things about controlling weight. He had been doing a job that involved hard physical labor. Then he changed to a sedentary one. He said he just kept on eating the way he always had — eating, he said, the more he wanted to eat. So that was where the pounds came from.

I know some people who are lucky enough to change their eating habits readily. I know people who gain weight when they work hard physically, and lose weight when they stop this heavy exertion. It's because their appetites change accordingly. But they are lucky.

Others have to change their eating habits deliberately, or cessation of exercise results in swift gain in weight. Once you make yourself form a new pattern of eating, then you have the battle won.

"Dear Dr. Molner: How can you tell the difference between phlebotomy and varicose veins? What can a person do about either?" — B. G.

Varicose veins are prominent, bulging veins of (for most practical purposes) the lower leg. They may exist without being inflamed, if they become inflamed, "phlebitis" exists. Then there is redness, pain or tenderness, and sometimes fever. To understand either (or both) you may want to read my booklet, "What To Do About Varicose Veins." If so, send 20 cents in coin and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Are you failing for the publicity the laundries are putting out to combat the loss of business on account of the drip-dry materials? I mean your article in regard to ironing clothes. The majority of articles worn next to the skin have not been ironed in the past. The advent of the clothes dryer certainly puts the heat on the subject and does a much better job than ironing. — R. O."

Well, ma'm, I see where YOU are trying to apply the heat! Despite your suspicions, I have no interest in laundries; my interest is in health, and in letting people know that heat kills germs.

Detergents and soaps are excellent sanitizing agents. Bleach also is very good. The fact remains that additional heat will serve to kill organisms which may have survived.

Far be it from me to encourage people to have phobias about germs. But let's not withhold the facts, either.

Whether a dryer exposes clothes to the same heat that ironing does, I cannot say, but I doubt it, for certainly fabrics can remain in a dryer for some length of time—but what happens if you leave a flatiron on one spot for the same length of time?

As to drip-dry fabrics, I have no quarrel with them, either. Nor any quarrel with you. I just want you to understand each other, and I hope we now do.

Is There A Destiny Of Direction?

In my travels, I have noted an oddity that might bear further investigation. In small towns, the "wrong side" of the tracks is always on the north side; in small cities and in fast-growing small cities, the wrong side of the tracks is usually on the south side.

Of course, there are exceptions, but each and every exception I have run across has a logical reason for departing from the norm. Such as ranges of hills, rivers, or other natural barriers.

All communities, whether giant cities or hamlets, started out small, yet some grew and some didn't. Of course, the rule breaks down in the larger cities, which end up with random and spotty divisions between the slums and the better parts of the community. Transportation problems alone would account for this break-up, although there are certainly other factors.

There may be an answer to the problem in human psychology. Some towns located in perfect sites do not grow, while others in seemingly bad locations grow in spite of their disadvantages. It may be that the man who wants an easy, gentle life looks toward the south, where tradition holds that life is free and easy; while the go-getter veers toward the north, where things are traditionally fast and active.

I have noted similar relationships between east and west, although these divisions are not as strong. It is a part of our psychology, also, that the active man "goes West." The more settled stays back East. There are exceptions here, too, but always for a logical reason. Sometimes the barriers are man-made, such as military bases, industrial or mining sites.

But the north-south rule seems to be universal, the east-west rule only slightly less so. Given no natural or man-made barriers, one could well expect the rules to hold. A community settled by people who take life as it comes will find its slums on the north side, and it will never grow until forced to do so by forces beyond its control; a town settled by go-getters will find its slums on the south side, and will just naturally grow, like Topsy.

It may be just a series of coincidences; yet, it may be something for a sociologist to research. If science does find what I think I have found, think what it would mean to chambers of commerce and planning commissions.

Nixon's Big Asset—His Wife Pat

CHICAGO — It's a fair question to ask what Richard M. Nixon has got that John F. Kennedy hasn't got.

One simple and obvious answer is Pat Nixon. In Washington, D. C., and many another political balliwicket, the wife of the Republican nominee is judged a shrewd and clever campaigner who outranks her husband as a gifted politician.

PAT NIXON earned not only "E" for Excellent in canny effort, but in smooth performance at the Republican National Convention that named her husband its 1960 standard bearer. Throughout the convention she said nothing and did nothing that did not subtly advance her husband's cause.

Slim, trim, always immaculately groomed and fresh as a daisy, Mrs. Nixon wowed the crowds and charmed more intimate gatherings. She was always cool, calm and collected, and so was her performance.

Even when Mrs. Nixon, whose wardrobe now includes a respectable amount of mink, was asked at a press conference what had ever become of her "Republican cloth coat" which played such a dramatic part in the 1952 campaign, she nimbly and smilingly sidestepped the pit by lightly saying:

"I KEEP my coats forever. I'm lucky. My size doesn't change." And reporters were left to figure out whether that famous "Republican cloth coat," after all these years, was still in her wardrobe.

Mrs. Nixon, a politician to her polished fingertips, had avoided answering "Yes" or "No," once more. And that's the way her press conference went. She fielded with utmost skill any and all questions, and—with an air of candid innocence—put in the deep freeze any questions, such as that about the cloth coat, that might prove politically embarrassing.

A PRETTY WOMAN, with the firmest, strongest jaw in the G.O.P., Mrs. Nixon in the last eight years has acquired a chic appearance and an assurance that will do credit to the White House if her husband makes it. She gives simultaneously an impression of fragility and stanchless steel. And she is no less the embodiment of the American dream than her husband.

No one can doubt that Pat Nixon has kept pace with her husband, or that she is even a step ahead. She presents the picture of the ideal wife, mother and candidate's consort.

The unhappy, frightened young woman whom millions of Americans saw eight years ago during Nixon's famous television speech that included the Republican cloth coat and Checkers, has disappeared. She has been replaced by a sophisticated woman, quietly but expensively dressed, whose makeup is perfection and whose hair is not only beautifully coiffed but a lighter shade of brown with reddish highlights. If Nixon is elected to the Presidency, she is a cinch for the best-dressed list.

AT HER PRESS conference, she is friendly and informal, perhaps "cozy" is the better word. She has been an effective campaigner in the past, and she will most certainly be in the months ahead. "I never make political speeches," she says firmly, "but I intend to campaign."

Asked what she considered her greatest contribution to her husband's success, she said, "It's important to be a team, and I think that's my contribution." Certainly, she's an important part of the Nixon team and, some observers believe, about 60 per cent of the steam.

Rockefeller Emerges As A Top Man

CHICAGO—As the Big Man of the Convention, you'd have to pass over the nomination winner, Richard Nixon, and call it a close finish between Barry Goldwater and Nelson Rockefeller.

My sentimental inclination would be to give the final nod to the Arizona senator, a warm friend of long standing and of the right political persuasion. With the governor of New York I have no more than a hand-clasp acquaintance, but it's plain to me, in spite of bias, that Rockefeller not only deserves the BMOC award but that he has a major quality which makes for statesmanship in our mid-century.

WHAT IS THIS prime qualification of leadership? It is the willingness of a public man to be unpopular. Nothing comes harder to a politician than this. Nothing is rarer, and nothing is more indispensable to contemporary statesmanship.

Vice President Nixon does not have any stomach at all for taking unpopular but veracious stands, either against public opinion or within the Republican party. Goldwater couldn't care less about people's reactions if he feels he's right—but Rockefeller goes both men one better. He is politically braver than Nixon, and he is more affirmative and more constructive than Goldwater in running against the popularity pressures—not just to be doing so, but in order to govern well.

THIS TRAIT in Rockefeller caused much irritation among the convention leaders and delegates. They are sore at him for his satiric attack on Nixon several weeks ago as a top-of-the-fence leader, and for the election-season criticism of President Eisenhower. Yet those who know him well admit that Rockefeller had to do these things—or be untrue to himself.

The governor infuriated many of the GOP platform committee members who had been working in the swelter of a 90-degree city for the better part of a week when he announced his high-level treaty with Nixon on 14 points of the platform. And the entire party, perhaps the entire nation, probably feels disappointed that Rockefeller didn't do the unselfish thing long ago and join Nixon in a dream ticket.

IT WILL BE NOTED that in every instance Rockefeller, who is ambitious and will presumably be seeking Republican good-will for the rest of his life, incurred the active dislike of people who could eventually be of help to him. He does not behave this way out of misanthropy of perversity, but because he puts other things ahead of being liked and appreciated by his fellows. The Rockefeller behavior pattern is not new in him. He has always been that way. In 1930, as a fledgling executive in Albany, he began his gubernatorial career by coming out for higher taxes. In 1960 he tried for a building program of bomb shelters, a measure which his advisers warned him would lead to rejection and even ridicule.

The most powerful impression which Nelson Rockefeller has made since he entered active politics less than two years ago is not his liberalism, or his personal charm, or his administrative ability—although all these are pronounced. It is his obstinance in a well-grounded position. The ordinary pressures of politics—friendship, opportunism, popularity—do not budgie him at all.

WHO CAN NAME a better leadership quality for the 1960's? It is unpopular—but how important!—to tell people that they cannot have welfare programs without paying for them. It is soothing for politicians to talk "peace," but it is vital for the people to be told that they need more arms—$3 billion a year more, says Rockefeller, speaking from an informed expensive, go-underground, passive disposition. Nobody can make fun of the fense in a shelter program. It sounds suspiciously like a public works boondoggle, or a war-scare panic.

YET IT IS ENTIRELY possible that we will exchange nuclear weapons with an enemy during the 1960's. Millions of Americans may have to die. The entire structure of our public life may be devastated. Some of the best minds in the country have accepted these dire possibilities, and have asked themselves how we can live through them as a nation. The answer is that we must begin again in each American community with the survivors. Bomb shelters and a home guard could be our last, best line of defense and of recovery.

Rockefeller believes this and, as with his other beliefs, has stuck it out. In small matters and in large ones he is the same—impervious to the seductress of democracy—popularity.

Ship For Sea, Not Sea

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP)—Alexander S. Law has worked on the creation of miniature historic ships since the early 1930s.

But the ships themselves are not the complete finished product.

Each of the 15 ships he has produced is housed in a homemade cabinet which has a velvet-lined drawer at the base.

And in the drawer, he keeps the first edition of a book or a historical document pertaining to the story of the original ship or an outstanding event in its career.

Happy Pair

Rory Calhoun and his wife, Lita Baron, who have been happily married for a dozen years, discuss what makes for marital bliss. Rory's "The Texan" is one of the most popular westerns on CBS.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Work At Marriage Is Stars' Advice

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—I sat on the set of "The Texan" with Lita Baron and watched her husband, Rory Calhoun, play a difficult scene. I thought to myself, this is a real romance. After 12 years of marriage they are still obviously in love. Later at lunch at CBS I asked Lita about this. "Happy marriages don't just happen," she said. "You have to work on them—at least a woman does. And if she is clever, her husband is not aware of this. When we married I was the bigger name and was making more money than Rory, but my love was deep enough that there was no conflict about which was the most important, my public or private life. My home came first, and Rory knew it."

woman's body can be when she wears a belt where her waist is and not around her shoulders or where she sits down. And all those balloon skirts. They look like open umbrellas. "I like a girl who is vivacious and enthusiastic—the real kind, not that phony gushing stuff. I think instead of trying to run the country with their clubs, a woman should devote herself to her children and her home. And if she really loves her husband this will be easy." Lita blew him a kiss and sipped her coffee quietly. KEEP TRIM, HAPPY There is no leaflet which will ensure the marital bliss enjoyed by Lita Baron and Rory Calhoun. But one which may help a woman enjoy life more—and make her husband more proud of her—is Harriet Nelson's exercise routine. "Fifteen Minutes for Youth." Leaflet M-25. Keep firm and attractive with this easy-to-do routine. For a copy of M-25, send 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lydia Lane, Hollywood Beauty, Big Spring Herald.

Lamesas Will Hold Open House

LAMESA—An open house from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday will honor Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wood on their Golden Wedding anniversary. The family and friends will gather at the home of Mrs. L. T. Middleton, 612 S. Houston Street. Wood claimed Sally Ann Duren as his bride on Sunday, July 31, 1910 at Zion, Ark. The bride wore a white organdy dress trimmed in lace, and after the ceremony, they rode to evening church services on horseback. The wedding followed two years of courtship which included horseback riding, candy-pulling and attending church services. Their first home was a farm in Stella, Ark.; they moved to Whitehead, Okla. in 1927 and came to Lamesa in 1943. At 71, Wood, an expert butcher, still operates a grocery store here. The children include Cecil Wood and Metta Thompson, both of North Bend, Wash.; T. L. Wood of Maysville, Okla.; and Emma Williams of Heber Springs, Ark. Golden punch and cake will be served at the anniversary.

Knits Make News In Women's Sportswear

In suits, dresses, sweaters and pants, knits are a natural medium for the translation of new fall styles. Their soft drapability lends itself admirably to the ultra easy, soft and often loose look which predominates. In knit suits, cropped jackets appear more often than not—usually collarless and combined with either pleated or slim skirts. In the skirt story, top honors are divided among sharp pleats, bias cuts and slim skirts with a rounded hipline. The omnipresent overblouse, worn loose or belted, is longer than last year, and its counterpart, the over-shirt appears with a plunge placket and midgy shape to wear outside pants. Sleeveless tunics, knitted or woven, top blouses or light fitting sweaters are available for casual wear.

role and sometimes include design features which add to the sweater's attractiveness. Colors are deliciously rich rather than bright. And gone, finally, are the murky shades. The middle range is most prominent, with emphasis on brick red with a russet cast, stone and brass greens, dull gold, bronze, smoky and teal blues and all the wine shades. Solid colors, aside from knits are often in diagonal weaves or have a three dimensional look. Surfaces are sometimes soft and brushed but not fuzzy.

Pink, Silver Tea Given For Colorado City Girl

A gift tea, Tuesday evening in the Vincent Baptist Church was a compliment to Pat Dunn of Colorado City, bride-elect of Frank Hardy, Shaw AFB, S. C.

Chosen colors of the bride, silver and pink were featured in the silver cloth and the arrangement of pink roses which centered the table. A parasol over the flowers was of pink satin with overlay of silver net, circled with pink roses.

Judy Harding and Nancy Hodnett served refreshments; flowers were miniature marriage licenses of pink paper printed in silver.

Billie Harding registered 45 guests, who were greeted by hostesses, Mrs. Pat Harding, Mrs. B. O. Brown, Mrs. R. T. Shafer, Mrs. J. M. Wilson, Mrs. J. C. Shepherd, Mrs. Loyd Hodnett, Mrs. Tollie Kennemur and Mrs. Henry Ernst.

The honored guest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Dunn of Colorado City, was presented with a corsage of pink carnations, tied with pink ribbon.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hardy of Snyder. The couple will be married Aug. 9 at 8 p.m. in the Vincent Baptist Church.

Follow These Tips And Make-Up Will Look Natural

Of all the make-up requisites available to modern woman, the one that is probably more often incorrectly applied than any other is cheek rouge. The most common fault in using this popular beauty essential is that the wearer leaves a tell-tale line of demarcation between the rouge color and the color of the foundation make-up. To avoid this, and to help you create a delicate, natural-looking blush tone, a famous make-up authority offers these suggestions: When applying cheek rouge, as with any other make-up requisite, be sure your face is flooded with light. Begin by placing the rouge on the high part of your cheek. Then, with a damp-dry sink sponge (or cream or fluid rouge), carefully blend the rouge outwardly from this center point, in a pattern best suited for your face, allowing the color to fade into your foundation make-up. For dry rouge, an ideal way to blend the color over your cheek is with the use of a face powder brush.

Pin Rite, Dinner Is For ESA

The Wagon Wheel Restaurant was the scene of a supper for members of Alpha Chi chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Thursday evening. The event marked the jewel pin ceremony for Mrs. W. G. Mitchell. Mrs. Bert Smith presented the pin. Mrs. Roy McMullen, president, gave the opening prayer, and Mrs. Randall Hamilton worded the closing prayer. The centerpiece of white gladioli and yellow carnations was won by Mrs. Tolford Durham. On August 25 the final, summer social will be held by the group. Details will be announced later.

Season's Hats Are High, Handsome

Hats are going high, wide and handsome this fall—especially high. New York's millinery designers are topping the new season's fashion with a variety of silhouettes: domes and shapes called bomb, ball, bubble. The most important trend is height, which should make short women feel important and tall women goddess-like. New luxury in fabrics, including fabulous furs and fake furs, brocades, feathers and jewels, is consistent with the over-all feeling of substance and elegance in fall fashions.

Nylon Mop

A newly-developed nylon mop head holds six times its weight in water. Dip this into a pail of hot soap or detergent just once, and it soaks up enough to wash an entire kitchen floor! It wrings out easily, is odor and mildew-free, and fits all standard mop holders.

Master Plan Explained At Altrusa Luncheon

The Master Plan for Big Spring was explained and discussed for members of the Altrusa Club at their luncheon Thursday at Masters Cafeteria. A. K. Steinheimer, city manager, was the speaker; he told the group of the advantages of having a plan for growth rather than letting the city develop in a helter-skelter fashion. The guide for the future will make a more attractive and convenient place in which to live, he stated. Several phases of the plan—parking facilities, schools and parks, water and sewage and public buildings—were explained by the speaker. He displayed a map showing the improvements to be made and the new highways to be added. Mrs. Loyd Woolen, chairman of the public affairs committee, introduced the guest speaker. Announcement was made of the salad supper to be given at the home of Mrs. A. C. Bass, 106 Washington Blvd., for the next meeting; date for the supper was set for 7 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 10, which is a change from the regular time of the club sessions.

Back Care Pays With Compliments

So that compliments instead of unflattering whispers will be yours when you wear the new backless daytime, evening and summer-sun-time dresses, take special beauty care of your back. Scrub it clean every time you bathe or shower, and lather it with hand and body lotion until it gleams with a silken sheen. Keep big, ginger-snap freckles from forming by taking all sunbathing in small doses. Protect this part of your anatomy with jackets, stoles and shade, after a few moments in the sun. If small blemishes or an uneven suntan keep you from having the back beautiful, camouflage them with a gossamer application of cake make-up, or a veil of creamy make-up base and powder which you puff on from your compact make-up. Be sure the color is in perfect harmony with your skin for an all-over, one-color effect.

In Aug. 11 the group will meet at the church for a royal service program.

Greek Designer Brings Interest To Fall Skirts

By NADEANE WALKER PARIS (AP)—Everything's in the bag in the new Jean Desse fashion collection shown today. Besides the longest skirts of the season—17 inches from the ground—the show is chiefly remarkable for deflated football skirts and baggy-backed jackets that stack up to a rather rejected look for next fall and winter. Desse calls his line "JD," the "D" shape being in the blouse-backed jacket and the "J" outlined by the long, bag-backed skirt. Everything in the collection is long torso, generally slack-waisted for daytime and fitted for evening. Not all the skirts take the bag shape, which is achieved with melon gores and a sloping band beginning above the knees and tapering in to a hemline several inches below the knees. The rest are tube skirts, often with trouser creases in front. Desse is the Greek designer who sold Princess Margaret a good part of her honeymoon trousseau and who dresses Queen Frederika of Greece. Grecian drapery in chiffon is his tour de force, and this time he goes in for long chiffon sheaths with tortured draping around the knees. For cocktail and dinner clothes he brings back an old length, about a foot from the floor or at the very bottom of the calf. There are also some long, train-backed tube sheaths. Nearly everything is bias cut, and here Desse is following a major trend of the season.

Revival Starts, VBS Ends, Guests Speak

As pastors go on vacation, guest speakers fill the pulpits. A revival is starting at the College Baptist Church.

The Rev. Al Seldon, pastor of St. Paul Presbyterian Church, is in Montreat, N. C., attending the annual world missions conference. He expects to be gone another week. Filling his pulpit this week is a Webb chaplain, the Rev. Lewis H. Dunlap.

Two lay ministers, Clint Wallace and Rupert Ricker, are filling the pulpit of Settles Baptist Church as the pastor, the Rev. Haskell Beck, holds a revival in East Texas.

At the First Assembly of God a youth revival with Bob Summers and Johnny Heydel of Houston will conclude Sunday.

The Rev. O. C. Curtis of Amarillo will be the evangelist for the summer revival at the College Baptist Church. The minister is the district missions secretary of District 10. He will be assisted by the Rev. Bill Burton, pastor of the O'Donnell Baptist Church, as song leader.

At the First Church of God the Vacation Bible school will be concluded with a special service Sunday night directed by Mrs. B. E. Hickson.

Candidates Find It Best To Join Church

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Candidates for president may not play an important part in presidential campaigns. But one thing is certain. They do well to belong to some church.

It has been a long time—nearly 80 years—since President Rutherford B. Hayes could cheerfully admit he belonged to no church although he attended Methodist services on occasion.

Thirty-three men have held the presidency, and only four listed themselves as churchless.

In addition to Hayes, they were Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson.

But Jefferson often attended Unitarian services. Lincoln went to a Presbyterian Church in Washington, and Johnson apparently shared his church-going with Methodists and Baptists.

Ten Presidents have been Episcopalians. Eight of the first 14 chief executives were Episcopalians, only 2 of the last 19.

There have been six Presbyterians, three Methodists, three Unitarians, two Baptists, two Dutch Reformed, and one each of Quakers, Congregationalists and Disciples of Christ.

In case it has passed unnoticed, a Baptist minister will be running for president alongside the Republican and Democratic nominees.

He is the Rev. Rutherford L. Decker, candidate of the Prohibition party.

"The fact that I am a minister, a Baptist minister, is simply incidental," says the Rev. Mr. Decker. "I am running as a private citizen. I represent neither Baptists nor Protestants."

The Rev. Mr. Decker concedes his chances are slim. The Prohibition party polled only 41,937 of the more than 62 million votes cast in the 1956 election.

One of the last acts of Congress before it adjourned for the political conventions was to settle an odd church-state relationship that has vexed the Virgin Islands for several years.

The action turned over to the United Lutheran Church in America's title to three churches and two parsonages which had been owned by the federal government for 43 years.

Luxury and Idolatry Ruin a Nation

HOW GOD'S JEALOUSY AND LOVE ARE REVEALED IN HIS DEALINGS WITH APOSTATE ISRAEL

Scripture—Hosea 2:1-5; 10:1-12; 12:1-6; 14:1, 4, 9.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
"WE HEAR very little today about the judgment of God, but the Old and New Testaments are filled with this theme," writes the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith in Peloubet's Select Notes. "Yet He is merciful, and in the midst of these stern warnings of the prophets of Christ and the apostles, we hear the wailing note of His inexhaustible love."

Hosea warned his people that disaster would befall them if they did not return to the God of their people. "Israel hath cast off the thing that is good; the enemy shall pursue him," he told them.

among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure."—Hosea 8:7-8. Thus prophesied Hosea, repeating God's words, many centuries ago. And Hosea said further, "The high places also of Aven, the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed; the thorn and the thistle shall come up on their altars; and they shall say to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall on us."—Hosea 10:1-8.

"O Israel, thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeath: there they stood; the battle in Gibeath against the children of iniquity did not overtake them."—Hosea, 10:9.

Golden Text

"The ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them."—Hosea 14:9.

"They have set up kings, but not by Me; they have made princes, and I know it not; of their silver and their gold they made them idols."

Their workmen had made a golden calf, which the people were worshipping instead of the God of their fathers. Hosea told them that it should be broken in pieces."—Hosea 8:6-8.

"For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind. It hath no stalk; the bud shall know no meal; if so be it yield, the strangers shall swallow it up. Israel is swallowed up; now shall they be based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. # Christians Are Urged To Pray For Khrushchev

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Prayer for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was urged today by an interdenominational publication and several church leaders. They said the same thing could happen to him that happened to Saul of Tarsus.

Saul, the violent persecutor of early Christians, was converted on the road to Damascus and became the great missionary apostle, Paul.

United Evangelical Action, official organ of the National Assn. of Evangelicals, said that just as God's grace had melted Saul's "determined heart," it could "do the same thing for Khrushchev."

"The man whose nation has spread communism through a third of the world's population could be used of God to teach Christianity instead of communism and to exalt Christ instead of Marx," the article said.

The NAE is a cooperative body of Evangelical Protestant churches with about 10 million members.

In an accompanying symposium, several churchmen also urged prayer for the Communist leader. Some said sufficient prayer would either reform him or destroy him.

"Khrushchev must yield to Christ or be hurled from his despotic pinnacle if we will but pray," said the Rev. Arthur L. Bray, president of the Illinois Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church.

He said Isaiah's prayers tumbled Sennacherib of Assyria from power and other tyrants also were deposed through prayer.

Armin R. Gesswein, chairman of the NAE's spiritual life commission, said that "it is right and God-pleasing to pray for Mr. Khrushchev," just as for other world leaders.

The prophet Daniel, he said, "surely prayed for the ruthless Nebuchadnezzar and all the anti-God rulers of that day, and God answered!"

Said the Rev. Frank Smith, a Des Moines, Iowa, pastor, "If our Lord prayed for his murderers, should not we also pray even for those who have designed our destruction?"

The article noted that 1st Timothy: 2 exhorts prayers for "all that are in authority" and adds that pagan leaders may "need our prayers more than any others."

However, it said that praying specifically for Khrushchev's destruction would "not necessarily honor God." It said the only worthy prayer to offer for him is "for the redemption of a lost soul."

"We should pray for the light of the gospel to illuminate his darkened mind and heart. We can forget that he is a dictator, an enemy of democracy, an avowed atheist. We can remember that he is a man for whom Christ died."

"If Khrushchev should become aware that his opponents in the cold war were constantly praying for him, he might follow in the path of Saul of Tarsus."

When you are eight years old, it is not difficult to transform yourself suddenly into an Indian scout and to see a procession of chiefs, with their brightly colored feathered headdresses, galloping across the horizon astride magnificent stallions.

Children are fired with imagination, just as they are filled with faith. The faith of a child is something so simple and so beautiful that many an adult, viewing it, finds himself crying a little, deep down inside, for his own lost childhood and the touching innocence that was once his.

Yet before God, all men are children, His children, and Faith is there to be accepted, if men will but take it as a gift. The Church has the answer, showing you how to live like a man, while still possessing the heart of a child... helping you to get the very most out of life. If you haven't been to church lately why not go this Sunday?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

U. S. Army missile firing batteries near Abilene will open to the public their two new Air Defense sites on Aug. 5-6. Capt. Keith B. Verburg commands the North Missile site located on FM Road 1193 on the west side of Fort Phantom Lake. Capt. Elgin L. Eskridge commands the south missile site located on the San Angelo Highway 277 some six miles south of View. The sites will be open for visitors on Friday, Aug. 5th, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Saturday, August 6, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Lt. Col. Joseph P. Guinn, commander of the 5th Missile Battalion (Nike-Hercules) 517th Artillery, said that these sites protect more than 20 Texas counties, covering 18,000 square miles, against airborne attack.

Visitors will be shown a film of missile firings against aerial targets and will spend about an hour touring the buildings and tactical equipment. On display will be Nike-Hercules missiles, radars, fire control equipment and sentry dogs used for guarding the equipment. Photographs will be permitted.

The two missile sites were built by the B. J. Browning Construction Co. of San Antonio at a cost of $3,500,000. Over 225 men and officers are stationed at the two sites to keep the missiles ready 24 hours a day.

VERSATILE MISSILE Over 250 U. S. Army Air Defense Command missile firing batteries protect the United States against air attack. The Nike-Hercules missile with a nuclear capability has been noted for its ability to defeat every airborne target it has fired upon and has a 65 per cent kill record. It has destroyed targets, flying over 100,000 feet, higher and traveling at speeds in excess of 2,100 m.p.h. Its fire control equipment commands the missile to change direction until it gets close to the target and then bursts the missile. The missile is traveling so fast yet is so maneuverable that it can out-maneuver any airborne craft or missile known today or known to be in the planning stage. It has destroyed supersonic ballistic missiles.

Negro Youth Gang Battle Leaves 1 Dead

CHICAGO (AP)—Two gangs of Negro teen-agers, some armed with guns, others with crude weapons, clashed on a West Side street corner Thursday night in what police called a vengeance fight. Before it was over one youth lay dead, another injured.

Negroes and white persons hurled rocks and insults at each other at a swimming pool and police routed up more members of a Negro gang said to be responsible for a series of rapes and robberies in Lincoln Park on the North Side.

About 25 members of the Egyptian Cobras and Vice Lords gangs participated in the street clash which was marked by gunfire.

Richard Parks, 18, died with a bullet in the chest, Sammy Mitchell, also 18, suffered a bullet wound in the shoulder. Both were members of the Vice Lords.

Police seized one of the Egyptian Cobras, Robert Lewis, 15, who was carrying a .22-caliber rifle. Lewis, police said, admitted the shootings which he said was in retaliation for Parks hurling a brick at two white men with baseball bats and raped their pregnant wives Tuesday night in Lincoln Park.

In another move, police hauled about 15 members of the Vandaleers gang in for a showup. Five members of the Vandaleers have been indicted for rape, robbery and assault after they allegedly beat two white men with baseball bats and raped their pregnant wives Tuesday night in Lincoln Park.

At the showup, several victims of recent robberies and assaults in the Lincoln Park area identified several youths as their assailants, police said. The youths were held for further questioning.

Dick Tells GOP Panel Weakness Must End

CHICAGO (AP)—Richard M. Nixon told the Republican National Committee today the party must end weaknesses in its precinct organization if it is to win the Nov. 8 election.

The party's presidential nominee gave a pep talk to the committee wheelhorses.

Nixon said a talk he had with a barber just an hour before he left his hotel for his acceptance speech Thursday night, to drive home the points he wanted to make before the committee.

Nixon said the barber, Don Rinalli, had some comments which contained lessons for Republicans.

He said Rinalli had nothing but praise for the party's vice presidential nominee, Henry Cabot Lodge, who appeared with Nixon at the committee meeting.

"Every time we see him defending our country in the United Nations, it makes us proud to be Americans," the vice president said the barber told him.

Rinalli then said "you two make a good ticket and I think you ought to win, but there's one thing that worries me."

"You know I've lived in my neighborhood there six years and not once have I ever seen a Republican precinct worker. The Democrats call on me every month."

"You ought to send some folks around. I think you'd pick up a few votes."

Nixon drew this moral: "Let's not let down the Rinalis of America in this campaign. Let's make sure that we call on every house in this country."

"Cabot and I can make speeches until our throats are raw, but it's the precinct worker who's going to make the difference between whether we win or lose."

Nixon repeated to the committee the assertion he has made frequently this week that this is going to be the closest election in this country.

The vice president was up early this morning, starting off with a series of appointments before some of his weary staff members were even out of bed.

Nixon said his conference on farm problems, originally set for Monday, had now been moved to Saturday.

He said he would then fly to Washington Saturday night and hold there on Monday a series of strategy conferences on campaign schedules for himself and Lodge which had been scheduled for Chicago Saturday.

An Hawaiian GOP official disclosed that Nixon would be in Honolulu next Wednesday, giving him almost a full month's jump on his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy. The Massachusetts senator had announced he would open his campaign in the 50th state about Sept. 1.

Nixon pledged to the convention he would carry his fight into every one of the 50 states before decision day, Nov. 8.

It was learned his plans now are to leave Chicago Tuesday and fly to Reno, Nev., native state of his wife, Pat, and then go on to Southern California where he was born.

The vice president has opened nearly all of his campaigns for public office close to his home of Whittier in the Los Angeles area.

His Hawaiian swing is to take two days. En route back to Washington for the opening of the Senate session Aug. 8, he plans a stop at Seattle, Wash.

Congo Chief Exits U.S. For Canada

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba leaves Washington today with pledges of U.S. economic aid but minus any backing for the idea of sending American troops to his revolt-torn country.

Amid full military honors, Lumumba takes off for Ottawa where he hopes to garner further promises of financial help.

The African got State Department assurance of economic assistance during his two-day stay. He also conferred with Eugene Black, President of the World Bank, U.S. authorities declined to name any specific amount pending further study.

The question of sending U.S. soldiers to the Congo was brought up by Lumumba at a news conference Thursday. He read dispatches from officials of his government portraying Belgian soldiers as wreaking havoc in the former Belgian colony. One message suggested calling in American troops.

Lumumba declined to specifically endorse this idea. "I am not opposed to the arrival of American or any other troops," he said.

"What I want is thousands of troops so that the Belgians can be evacuated immediately."

He said the United Nations troops dispatched to the Congo are disarming Congolese soldiers.

L. D. Harp Attends Nuclear Safety Orientation Class

Webb's Ground Safety Director, Lloyd D. Harp, has returned from a Nuclear Safety Orientation Course at Holloman AFB, Alamogordo.

Following the one-week study period, Harp went to LOWRY AFB, Colo., for the Air Training Command Ground Safety Conference.

The first civilian ground safety director to attend the Alamogordo course, Harp studied the storage and handling of various types of missiles. During his last three days there he had the opportunity to study "overtime" with technicians from Hughes Aircraft Corporation, breaking down and assembling missiles.

At the Lowry conference Harp presided over a ground safety seminar in which directors from 20 ATC bases took part. Harp came to Webb last November, after serving for 18 months at the U. S. Air Force Academy, Colo., as ground safety supervisor.

Local Clubs Win Softball Games

Two Big Spring teams, Charlie's Package Store and Cook Appliance Company, met at 9:30 o'clock this evening in the winner's bracket of the ASA District Softball tournament, which is being played at the City Park.

The title in the double elimination meet goes on the line Saturday night. Top two teams in the tournament become eligible to take part in the State meet at Brownwood in August.

Charlie's Package Store edged by Phil's Raiders, a Webb AFB team playing independently, by a score of 3-2 in eight innings in Thursday night's first game.

Danny Valdes scored the winning run on a fly ball hit to center field by J. B. Murphree. Valdes had walked.

Cook Appliance turned back Corner Drug Store of San Angelo, 9-6, in the second engagement.

Onkie Hagood and Ted Gross were the pitchers for the two teams.

Inept Indians Beaten Twice By The Yankees

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer Jimmy Piersall may be right, after all.

The Cleveland players threatened recently to hold a meeting to discuss what should be done about Piersall's scrapes with the umpires, the explosive outfielder remarked: "While they're discussing me, maybe they should also discuss the hitters who have been taking so many third strikes with men on bases and the pitchers who have been throwing so many home run balls."

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

A fellow who has to sandwich his golf games in between the duties of running a club that sometimes keeps him going night and day fired a record 29 on his way to an 18-hole score of 63 at the Country Club the other day.

He is W. E. Ramsey, manager of the Couden-Country Club, who placed together his seven-and-a-half 29 while playing with Earl Reynolds, Frog Koger and Sam Thurman.

On the Roger, Ramsey—recent winner of the club championship—dropped eagles on four and seven and accounted for birdies on one, eight and nine. He didn't have a bogie on the round.

On the 297-yard par four fourth hole, he drove the frog fair and then ran down the putt. He used a 25-foot putt to get his eagle three on the 560-yard seventh hole, longest on the course.

W. E. had a couple of bogies on the second nine of the 18 but still wound up with a 34 for an 18-hole score of 63, which is two strokes better than he's ever been able to score before. His best nine-hole score had been a 32.

Ramsey says his game is improved because his short game and his putting are so much better. "I've started using my arms when on the green, whereas before I was putting solely with my hands," he explains. A new glass-shafted putter he recently purchased also helped him.

He was putting for an eagle on the first hole, by the way, but missed it by a couple of inches and settled for a bird.

Ramsey, at one time, was considered one of the finest bowlers in these parts. He would like to find the time to bowl fairly regularly again.

That time may come, after the big, new addition to the Couden Country Club has been completed—and such work only recently began. Ramsey never bowled a perfect game but he once hit a 299 and missed the ten-pin that would have given him the coveted 300 by a whisker. He also has hit 293 and 297 in his time.

W. E. says that of all the sports he has played, and he has tried them all but cricket and polo, he got more enjoyment and felt more at home with a bowling ball or a golf stick in his hand.

At one time, Ramsey was a standout football back at Texas Tech. He later was recognized as quite a shortstop in baseball and has played softball in his time.

Although he's the reigning Country Club champion, Ramsey won't play in the Labor Day Invitational tournament here. He was a club pro at Ozona a few years ago, at which time he was affiliated with the PGA. There was talk at one time that the Couden people might build a small golf course. Had that come to pass, Ramsey would have served as club pro. That's the big reason he didn't try to regain his amateur status.

W. E.'s brother, Herschel (Red) Ramsey, is a club pro at Stephenville and formerly operated a course at San Angelo.

Red, of course, is one of the football immortals at Texas Tech. He was a Little All-American end and later played for the Philadelphia Eagles. He was active with the Eagles the only year TCU's Davey O'Brien tried his hand in pro ball.

East Defeats West, 70-53

ABILENE (SC) — The East sprang a mild upset in defeating the West, 70-53, in an All-Star basketball game played at McMurtry Gym here Thursday night.

Daryl Petty, a fine all-around performer from Highland, led the West in scoring with 16 points. Denis Calverley of Garden City wound up with 12. Another Garden City player, Jimmy Childress, counted ten while Don Faulkenberry of Arter scored five.

Travis Loperbury, 6-foot-3 boy from Howe, led the East in point-getting with 21 points.

Local Lakes Get Additional Fish

Two local lakes got a boost in their fish population Thursday. Luke Proctor of the Texas Game and Fish Commission hatched in San Angelo brought 1,000 channel cat and 1,200 bass for Couden's lake and 2,500 channel cat and 2,000 bass for Moss Creek Lake.

There were about 100 crappie in each of the lots. Proctor said that the cat were fingerlings but that the bass were substantially larger.

Cosby Is Named Stanton Aide

Buddie Ray Cosby, 23, one-time star linebacker of the Big Spring Steers (1953) and later captain of the Eastern New Mexico University Greyhounds, has been hired as an assistant football coach at Stanton High School.

Cosby, who graduated from ENMU in June, has been employed by the D&W Furniture store here.

Harlin Dauphin is head coach of the Stanton school, which is moving up to Class AA this season. Stanton begins fall training on Aug. 15.

Cosby's official title will be freshman coach but he will help with the varsity, Dauphin indicated.

When in high school here, Buddie Ray was a fullback and linebacker on a Steer team that went all the way to the state finals before losing to Port Neches in the championship game. He is regarded as perhaps the greatest linebacker the school ever had.

At ENMU, he switched to the line and was chosen as an NAIA District 7 all-star guard in 1959. He won three varsity letters there and could have returned this fall for another season of eligibility but elected to graduate in June. He is married to the former Pat Tidwell of Big Spring. They plan to

Littler Leads At Baltimore

By GEORGE BOWEN BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler, golfer with a seeming penchant for money and sky on prestige, is off and running again today in the race for the $3,500 first prize in the Eastern Open tournament.

The 20-year-old Singing Hills, Calif., pro started the second round with a two-stroke margin. Littler burst ahead Thursday by shooting a 65, seven under par, for the second straight time in the opening round of the Eastern.

Local All-Stars Earn Trip To Wichita Falls Tourney

ANDREWS (SC)—The American League All-Stars of Big Spring had their eyes trained on Sectional play at Wichita Falls after defeating the Andrews American League, 7-5, in the finals of the District Little League playoffs here Thursday night.

Larry Andrews pitched the victory for the Big Spring team. Big Spring collected a total of eight hits off Andrews hurling and scored twice in the first inning, twice in the second and three times in the fourth.

Mickey Wright Is Women's Leader

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A putting line from Betsy Rawls sent long-hitting Mickey Wright into the second round of the $7,500 American Women's Open Golf Tournament today with renewed confidence in a one-stroke lead.

Miss Wright, from San Diego, Calif., stroked a 4-under-par 35-35-71 in the opening round Thursday of the four-day, 72-hole event.

Marichal Posts 3rd Victory For Giants

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer It was rookie uprising day in the National League Thursday. Candidates for first-year honors popped up nearly everywhere. In San Francisco, pitching sensation Juan Marichal posted his third straight spectacular performance, a seven-hitter, as the Giants defeated the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 in 10 innings.

In Los Angeles, big Frank Howard drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single as the Dodgers outslug the Cincinnati Reds 8-6.

In Chicago, Pancho Herrera walloped his 17th home run and drove in two runs in Philadelphia's 3-2 decision over the Cubs.

Other first-year men who distinguished themselves were Philadelphia pitcher Dallas Green, who turned in a winning-six-hitter, the Cubs' Morris Thacker, who drove in his team's only run, and Chico Cardenas, who homered in a losing cause.

Pittsburgh, enjoying a day off with St. Louis, saw its first-place lead increased to two games over Milwaukee.

Marichal, the Giants' 21-year-old right-hander, continued the brilliant pitching that marked his debut when he turned in a spectacular one-hitter against Philadelphia. His second victory was a 4-hitter against Pittsburgh.

"He looked like Walter Johnson to me," said Hank Aaron, who was born in 1924, seven years after the 4mortal Washington pitcher hurled his last gaffe. "He throws strikes—makes you hit the ball."

Felipe Alou drove in the winning run in the 10th with a single off shortstop Johnny Logan's chest. The hit scored Joey Amalfitano who doubled with one out and moved to third when loser Warren Spahn walked Orlando Cepeda after purposely passing Willie Mays.

Howard, hailed as the "next Babe Ruth," hit his grand slammer in the first inning after a hit batter, a single and an error had filled the bases. The homer was his 16th of the season. Howard's single also came with the bases loaded, in the second.

Cincinnati and Los Angeles made only 12 hits between them, five of them home runs. Besides Howard, Coleman and Cardenas, Frank Robinson hit his 20th for the Reds and Chuck Essegian got his second for the Dodgers.

Bobby Del Greco and Phillie Phan Phan in their victory over the Cubs.

Malinda Crocker, Miss Big Spring, is in Beaumont competing against 41 other finalists for the Miss Texas title. The winner, to be crowned Saturday, will receive a $1,000 Pepsi-Cola Foundation Scholarship and a trip to Atlantic City in September to compete for the title of Miss America. Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Crocker accompanied their daughter to Beaumont.

Cousins Take First Places In 'Miss Texas' Pageant
BEAUMONT (AP)—Miss Dallas, who is Miss Mary Moore, took first place in the talent award of the 1960 Miss Texas pageant Thursday night. Her cousin, Miss Lucille Allan of San Antonio, was first in the bathing suit division. Miss Moore led in preliminary competition at the close of the second of four performances. She won the bathing suit division in the Wednesday night preliminary contest. Miss Fort Worth, Lynn Carpenter, was awarded first place in the talent division in the opening performance. Miss Dallas ranked first in points at the close of Thursday night's competition. Miss Texas of 1960 will be crowned at the close of the finals Saturday night.

Booklet Surveys Police Operation

AUSTIN—"Municipal Police Administration in Texas: A Survey," just published by the University of Texas Institute of Public Affairs, is the first such study undertaken since 1938. It was requested by the Texas Police Chiefs' Association, an affiliate of the Texas Municipal League. Information was sought from 277 Texas cities and towns of 5,000 or more inhabitants. Detailed and usable replies were received from 125 cities, including most of the medium-size and large municipalities. Individual chapters in the book are devoted to organization and staff, expenditures and compensation, personnel administration, records and reports, facilities and equipment, and public relations. Among appendices to the survey are organization charts of the police departments of Houston, Waco and Sweetwater. Institute staff members who worked on the study include Lynn F. Anderson, acting director; Wendell M. Bedichek, research assistant; John T. Thompson and James M. Cook. Copies of the publication are available at $2 each from the Institute of Public Affairs, University of Texas, Austin 12.

Sales Manager Named By Duncan

HOUSTON — The appointment of Lauren C. Dudley as sales manager of the grocery division of the Duncan Coffee Company has been announced by Charles W. Duncan Jr., president. Prior to joining Duncan, Dudley served as a district general manager for Continental Can Company. During World War II, he was a naval lieutenant in the Air Corps serving in the Pacific Theater. After graduating from the University of Wisconsin with a B.B.A. degree, Dudley was an instructor there until his employment by Continental Can in 1948.

TEXAS LAWYERS
Capt. John Coffee Hays, Ranger
"As a mounted soldier the Ranger has no counterpart in any age or country!"
The real Ranger—not the gun-fanning, hip-shooting tough guy of fiction—has been recorded in Texas history as a quiet, deliberate, gentle person who could gaze calmly into the eye of a murderer and with unshattered courage ride straight up to death. Such a man was John Coffee Hays. He was a frontier surveyor for the Republic of Texas at 21, a Captain of Rangers at 23, a famous Indian fighter with the Army and a Major at 25. The defeat of the Comanches at Enchanted Rock and Bandera Pass, the Plum Creek fight and the battle of Salado are a part of his record. During the war with Mexico, 1846-48, Hays commanded the 1st Reg. Texas Mounted Volunteers and distinguished himself at Monterey and Mexico City. Mustered out, a 31-year-old veteran with the rank of Colonel, Jack Hays next served as a commissioner to settle the boundary dispute between Texas and the United States over the New Mexico Territory. After that, it seems as if Texas became too quiet for this "quiet, deliberate, gentle person." During the Gold Rush days of '49, Col. Hays led a caravan to California to begin the second half of a kind of life that "has no counterpart in any age or country." The state honored his name with the creation of Hays County, in the Texas Hill Country.
Texas lawmen have always served their state well... as have Texas industry and commerce. Providing pearls and community revenues, one industry has also provided the refreshment of moderation. In Texas, the brewing industry "belongs." Brewers, wholesalers, retailers and the United States Brewers Foundation are working constantly in cooperation with today's lawmen, to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions.

Cuban Leader Sees Marxist Revolt
HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's left-wing economic czar, National Bank President Ernesto Guevara, today likened Cuba's struggle to a Marxist revolution. He denounced the government of his native Argentina for urging Fidel Castro's regime to reject Soviet meddling in the Western Hemisphere. Guevara, a soldier of fortune and confidant of Prime Minister Fidel Castro, spoke after midnight at the opening session of the Communist-accented Latin American Youth Congress.

Marge Truman On Music Program, But Won't Sing

By BERNARD GAVZER
 NEW YORK (AP)—Though she'll be surrounded by music, Margaret Truman will sing nary a note when she appears as special guest star of "Music For a Summer Night."

ON THE SHELF

BEFORE YOU GO. By Jerome Weidman. Random House. $4.95.

It begins over a barber shop in a slum tenement on New York's Lower East Side, it ends in the halls of the mighty, with a pretty girl from a wartime steno pool in London lending a hand to a young, handsome and mighty king; or it begins in the days of the New Deal and ends with America coming grandly to the aid of her Allies.

Benjamin Franklin Ivey, "Poison Ivey" as the unloving press sometimes dubs him, is the central figure in this long novel from a man who's a master at making his stuff readable; and the close comes when the Ivey enigma has been solved. Matched against him are two Italian sisters, Celia Sarno the elder, and Julie—Celia the little sister's idol to whom a terrible thing happened off in Portland, Ore., and Julie who has to wait, with you, for just 437 pages before she gets to the bottom of it.

There is a host of other characters—the drunken Gen. Crandall T. MacNeilson who never had it so good before the war came along, and the desperately infatuated Rita Martin; the elder Sarno with his get-rich-quick schemes that always end with him reaching for the bottle, and the mother with her prejudiced demands on her family; Probst the lawyer and Vinutti the rich suitor too good to be hurt; Ben's aide Vic; mysterious and half-legendary figures in the White House or in its awesome shadow. But above them all is the dynamic Ben with the ferocious drive which carries him to dizzy heights where, occasionally, he falters melodramatically.

If this isn't Weidman at his best, nevertheless second-best Weidman is heady reading.

Instead, she'll do the honors in introducing artists ranging from concert pianist Eugene List to jazz rhapsodist Don Elliott.

"I've done lots of narrating before on musical shows," she says, adding that it will be no chore for her to do so in the hour-long ABC show—7:30 p.m., EDT—August 10.

While her most publicized venture in entertainment came in the role of a classical singer, her current and future activities seem focused in a non-singing direction. In the TV show she'll be a hostess, and in September she'll have the lead in a play, "Goodbye, My Fancy," at the North Jersey Playhouse.

How does the fact of her being a former president's daughter affect her career?

Margaret burst out in a laugh. "You know," she said, "my father keeps coming up—in interviews. But not with the public. Years ago, letter writers used to mention him in writing to me, but now they comment on my appearance and something I did that they liked, or didn't like. The ones who write critical letters almost never sign them."

Her happiest and most rewarding hours in television, she says, came in the shows in which she worked with comedian Jimmy Durante. She has high praise for him.

"I like comedy and I would like to do more. I would really like to do everything—music and drama—but my work is secondary to my family. My husband and children come first."

Her eldest boy, Clifton, 3, has seen her on television just once, she reports.

"He wasn't impressed. It was an interview and he showed no interest whatsoever—that is, until he heard me mention his name. Then he perked up."

A more attentive viewer, without question, will be her daddy and Mrs. Truman. But she doesn't expect her father to call her after the performance, as he used to do in the past.

"I've been on television too much for that," she says.

Bus Driver Is Hero

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a few minutes' delay on the Brooklyn bus, but the 20 passengers did not complain. They just sat and marveled at the quiet heroism of the driver, Henry A. Hauske.

Hauske, 37, had stopped for a traffic light on Atlantic Avenue when he saw flames shoot out of windows of a four-story frame building. Appearing at a top-floor window were the faces of Charles Moore, 43, and his children, Linda, 7, and Charles Jr., 8.

Hauske darted out of the Transit Authority bus and climbed to a third-floor porch. He persuaded Moore to drop the children, one by one, and he got them down to the ground. Reclimbing to the porch, Hauske got Moore to jump, breaking the latter's fall with his arms.

Then Hauske got back into his bus and drove off. Firemen, arriving later, put out the blaze. There were no injuries.

Marshals Take Gold Art Object

SPARKS, Nev. (AP)—U.S. marshals seized a gambler's golden rooster Thursday because, the government says, it isn't art.

The 9-inch high 15-pound solid gold rooster was carried off under a court order.

"If that rooster isn't art I don't know what is," said Dick Graves, owner of the Nugget Casino.

The complaint said the rooster contains 206 ounces of gold, 156 more than an individual can keep for more than a month without permission unless the gold is used for art work.

The government contends the rooster was displayed for advertising purposes.

Graves said the rooster contains $12,500 worth of gold but its value as an art object is $40,000.

Skies Generally Clear Over State

Skies were generally clear over Texas Friday except in the upper Panhandle where a few showers were reported. Early morning temperatures were mostly in the high 70s. Showers cooled some areas of the state Thursday but it was another hot day in most sections. Temperature highs ranged up to 105 degrees at San Angelo.

Dr. Rogers Explains Why Millions Each Year Have Their Eyes Examined and Glasses Fitted by Optometrists

Dr. N. JAY ROGERS
 Optometrist and Director of TSO

"Each year twenty-five million Americans seek professional eye care and are fitted with glasses or contact lenses by Doctors of Optometry," according to Dr. N. Jay Rogers, Optometrist and Director of Texas State Optical.

"There are approximately 21,000 Optometrists in practice, and they perform three out of every four eye examinations—and for good reason," he said.

"Of most importance is the educational, training and licensing qualifications of the Optometrist. Before he may practice his profession," Dr. Rogers informed, "an Optometrist must complete five years of classroom and clinical studies in an accredited school of Optometry. Then, he must pass a comprehensive licensing examination which covers all the subjects he has studied. This education includes anatomy, physiology and pathology, and optical science subjects such as geometric and mechanical optics, psychology of vision, and others.

"As can be seen," Dr. Rogers explained, "the Optometrist is very well qualified in the examination and diagnosis of eye conditions. In any eye examination, there are two distinct and important aspects: One; the interior of each eye is carefully examined for evidence of disease or defect—and, two; the eyes are examined for nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism and muscle imbalance. If visual abnormalities are present, the amount of each is determined and glasses or contact lenses are prescribed according to the findings."

"In addition to the performance of thorough, scientific eye examinations, the Optometrist prescribes and fits glasses and contact lenses, and provides this complete service, all at the same location," Dr. Rogers further informed.

Throughout Texas each office of Texas State Optical is staffed with competent, conscientious Doctors of Optometry, especially trained in fulfilling their professional responsibility in accordance with TSO policy. Every day thousands go to these TSO offices, confident of receiving the very finest Optometric service. TSO assures a careful, scientific eye examination, the correct prescription, if needed, and a precision fitting of eyeglasses or contact lenses—all at most reasonable cost and on easy-to-pay credit terms. If you need eye care or eyewear, see a Doctor of Optometry at TSO.
