Powers Family In Final Visit

MOSCOW (AP)—Barbara Powers had her last visit today with her husband, Francis Gary Powers, before he is transferred to a new prison outside Moscow and she returns home.

The meeting was calmer than the last one, said her attorney, Frank Rodgers of Roanoke, Va. The previous meeting was a tearful reunion at the end of the trial at which the U2 pilot was sentenced to 10 years for espionage. Three years must be served in prison, the balance in a prison colony.

Barbara wore a bright yellow dress for her farewell talk with her husband.

A little earlier, his parents, Oliver W. and Ida Ford Powers, spent a last sad hour with their son who has been sentenced to 10 years' detention for espionage.

Neither parents nor wife were able to speak with newsmen when they emerged. They were all obviously overcome with emotion.

When Barbara came out she shielded her face with her hand. Her mother, Mrs. Monteon Brown of Milledgeville, Ga., ran interference for her as she dashed to a limousine for the drive back to the hotel.

This was the first time since her arrival in Moscow that Barbara had worn a bright color. She did so today because her husband likes her in yellow.

Powers sent word to his father last meeting, so that the filer can buy cigarettes and other small items in jail. Powers also said he could use a watch. His own watch was forfeited to the Soviet state treasury under the terms of his sentence along with other valuables he had when captured.

"My watch only cost $49.50," the elder Powers told newsmen, "but it's a good watch. It cannot compare with the one he had, but I am mighty proud to give it to him."

Barbara waited anxiously for a reply to a three-page, handwritten letter she dispatched to Nikita Khrushchev Monday, asking the Soviet premier to see her so she could appeal for clemency for her husband.

Khrushchev is vacationing at Yalta, on the Black Sea, and there is no word when he will be back in Moscow.

Alexander Parker, one of the Virginia lawyers who came with the family for Powers' trial, said Barbara will leave for New York Saturday if the Soviet premier refuses to see her or turns down her request for clemency.

Cost of the equipment, valued at about $10,000, is $3,000. Byron's Storage and Transfer is going to Houston Wednesday to pick up the equipment. Cost of the trip is being donated to the organization.

The society has set Sept. 18 for formal open house and dedication of the new building. It is located in the YMCA area.

HOLD TALKS

19 Indicted By Grand Jury

Howard County grand jury, in session since Monday, returned 19 indictments in its final report to Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, at 11:30 a.m. today.

The grand jurors held lengthy talks with Jay Banks, city police chief, John Burgess, city attorney, and other officials, Tuesday morning. It was said they were discussing ordinances which they felt would be of benefit to law enforcement in the community. No special report or recommendation was submitted with their final report, however.

The grand jurors returned indictments against: Rudy Balderas and Ismael Valdez, burglary; Henry M. Alvarez, statutory rape; J. H. Trammel, worthless check; W. E. Harris, forgery, two counts; Wade Overcash, forgery and worthless check; Buster Roberson, worthless check; Horace Thomas, worthless check; Elmer J. Strobel, DWI, second offense; Felix Dominguez, habitual burglary; Joe Ramirez, burglary of a coin operated machine and burglary of a box car; Albino Ortega, ex-convict in possession of a pistol; Ronda J. Reid, car theft; Juan Lopez, DWI, second; Elvin E. Jackson, DWI, second; Howard D. McSpadden, DWI, second and Virgil J. Willis, forgery.

The grand jury investigated a number of other complaints but failed to return indictments. Not indicted were: Mary Wratislav, forgery; George Cleveland, worthless check; Clifton Johnson, worthless check; Charles J. Baker, worthless check; Jose Moreno, burglary; and Albino Ranteria, ex-convict in possession of a pistol. Gil Jones, district attorney, and Judge Caton are discussing a date, possibly later this week, when any pleas of guilty stemming from the current indictments will be heard in court.

Fast New Salt Filter Invented

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two university engineers have developed a new desalting filter which they say can produce drinkable water 100 times faster than previous methods.

Sidney Loeb and Dr. Srinivasa Sourirajan of the University of California at Los Angeles said Monday that their synthetic film yields consumable water at the rate of eight gallons a day for each square foot of membrane area.

Membranes have been used before to desalt water, but the engineers say that so far such filters are too slow for commercial purposes.

Their membrane is produced by mixing cellulose acetate with a water solution of magnesium perchlorate and acetone. This sticky mixture is spread on a glass plate and, when dry, is stripped away in a film four one-thousandths of an inch thick.

It is cheap, durable and can be used 24 hours a day without maintenance or power, the engineers said. They say they have made potable water from brine containing 5.25 per cent salt concentration, which is much saltier than ordinary ocean water.

Judge Caton excused the grand jurors from further duty at this time but told them they were subject to recall during the term if circumstances required.

Majority of the indicted persons are either in jail or have been released on bail. Bond was set by the judge in cases where the defendants are still in jail. Only one of those indicted has not been apprehended.

Lonnie Smith was a happy man this morning as he walked out of the Chamber of Commerce office.

He has just been awarded a $500 check for bringing in the first 1960 bale of cotton. Bill Quimby, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, made the presentation in behalf of the agriculture committee.

Smith rolled into the Guitars Gin, 200 NE 2nd, Monday with between 23 and 24 hundred pounds of raw cotton. The weight of the first bale was 550 pounds, 100 pounds over the qualifying weight.

Smith was followed by T. C. Proctor 17 minutes later. Proctor's bale weighed 400 pounds.

The Smith farm is located 14 miles northwest of Big Spring.

Work on the two Big Spring High School parking lots should be far enough along for students to use by the first day of school, but the surface is not expected until after school starts.

Monday night's rain means a delay in the final stages of the parking lot construction, as well as other city projects, as street crews today started cleaning up after the rain.

Cleanup crews were working on 3rd and 4th in the North Side today clearing sand and debris washed by the rain, according to R. V. (Skeet) Forestry, superintendent of public works.

Forestry said that the East Side parking lot, the larger of the two high school lots, is almost filled in the low spots and a bulldozer began filling on the smaller lot today.

After bulldozer grading, a blade will be used to smooth the ground, then an oil treatment will be given both lots.

Registration at Gay Hill school is set for the morning of Aug. 29, at Archer, principal, announced Tuesday.

The district's four buses will run that morning, arriving at the school in time for opening at 8:40 a.m. Children will be returned home after registration.

Classes will not start until the morning of Aug. 30, and the cafeteria will begin operations that day, Archer added.

Sept. 5, Labor Day, will be observed as a holiday. Teachers announced by Archer include Mrs. Milfred Harr, first grade; Mrs. J. H. Fryar, second grade; Mrs. A. J. Beckmeyer, third grade; Mrs. Jack Buchanan, fourth grade; Mrs. George Archer, fifth grade; Murphy Woodson, sixth grade; Delmer Turner, seventh grade; and Robert Van Meter, eighth grade.

The city's paving assessment program continued to move along rapidly today, the rain of Monday night proving no obstacle. Curb and gutter has now been installed on 6th from Golland to State.

The rough grading has been completed on 6th and that work has now been moved to Donley, between 4th and 6th.

She and a daughter, Barbara Alice, 16, died when the car fell into Blanket Creek, 11 miles east of here Monday night.

Another daughter, Shirley, 15, told of her mother's statement.

Exhausted

Weary firefighters rest while their foreman tells a newsman the grim battle to hold the fire line at the south edge of the Sierra mountains community of Foresthill, Calif. The hamlet's 225 residents walked under evacuation orders over the weekend while some 1,400 firefighters fought the forest blaze near the area.

Fires Taper, Power Back On

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Electricity returned to western Nevada Monday night after shifting winds slowed forest fires that weary men were unable to hold.

The winds also cooled debris enough to allow repairmen to restore disabled power lines, re-lighting Reno and the Lake Tahoe resort area.

Reno and 14 other Nevada cities had been without power since Sunday afternoon when spectacular blazes that crackled over 70,000 acres melted power lines.

Despite the restoration of power, rangers warned today that the same shifting winds could push the fires to new heights.

At Reno and lake front gambling houses featured roulette and blackjack by light from auxiliary generators.

During the 28 powerless hours, more than 30,000 persons were without electricity. A Sierra Pacific Power Co. crew worked its way through miles of ankle-deep ashes Monday to patch collapsed lines.

By 8:15 p.m. power was humming over the 120,000-volt line to the 15,000 square miles that were blacked out.

The biggest of the three major Sierra blazes—the one that knocked out Nevada electricity, was 21 miles long and 3 miles across. It was north and west of Lake Tahoe, near the California town of Truckee.

It covered some 34,000 acres of timber on private and federal lands. About 2,000 men, including 650 Navy and Marine volunteers flown in from Alameda on the San Francisco Bay, fought the blaze.

The second major fire blackened 30,000 acres about 30 miles west of Lake Tahoe. It threatened Sunday the town of Foresthill in Placer County, Calif. but was staved off. A total of 32 structures were lost from other hamlets in the area.

Grimy, red-eyed crews bedded down in the Foresthill Memorial Hall before facing another day under the 9,000-foot column of smoke marking a fire front that had been racing to U.S. Highway 40 so fast fire fighters weren't even sure where it was.

Wind-whipped embers touched off minor blazes near Emigrant Gap and Blue-Canyon on the highway. On a third front, 5,800 acres were blackened around the tiny town of North San Juan in Nevada County.

O'DONNELL — The O'Donnell Independent School Board has approved a $244,365 budget for the 1960-61 school year, a slight increase over last year's original plan.

The new budget is $2,861 higher than the 1959-60 budget, with the bulk of finances going to instruction, $147,467, according to Supt. John H. Criner.

Debt service will get $24,731 and transportation requirements are tabbed at $23,990. Administration needs were listed at $16,757 and plant operation is expected to cost about $14,850.

For the third time in five years, Continental Airlines is increasing the base pay of its non-contract personnel. The raises, effective Sept. 1, will go to almost half the company's 2,700 employees.

President Robert F. Six said today that 1,294 employees will receive the raises which will average 5.7 per cent.

The Hi-Y Council, the coordinating body for all Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs, will meet Monday noon in the YMCA to elect officers for the coming year and to plan joint actions for all clubs.

Reporters Gain Data By 'Leak'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain's Winston Churchill warned Harry S. Truman about Soviet expansion plans before the U.S. president went to Potsdam in 1945, it was reported today.

And after Truman got to the wartime parley with Churchill and Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin, he found the Reds defending their land grabs in Eastern Europe and reaching for more.

This was reported by the Minneapolis Tribune and the Des Moines Register & Tribune in the third of a series of four articles by Fletcher Knebel and Charles W. Bailey on the still-unpublished Potsdam papers.

The State Department, which periodically publishes state documents of historical interest, has so far refused to remove secrecy from the Potsdam papers.

An inquiry is under way on how they were "leaked" to the press. The July 17-Aug. 2, 1945, meeting at Potsdam, near Berlin, was the last of the big World War II conferences among the major allies. It made postwar plans including provisions for democratic processes in Eastern Europe— which the Soviets never lived up to.

The Knebel-Bailey account said the Potsdam papers show the Western foreign ministers, James F. Byrnes for the United States and Anthony Eden for Britain, argued daily in vain with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov over Communist activities in Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia, Italy, Greece and Poland, and "there was no solution to be found."

Churchill voiced his concern over the Soviet takeovers in a May 11, 1945, cable to Truman, two months in advance of the Potsdam gathering. Just a month earlier, on April 12, Truman had become president upon the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

An earlier Knebel-Bailey article said that Stalin, with the approval of Truman, stalled a Japanese peace feeler three weeks before Hiroshima.

After the feeler reportedly was made through Moscow, the Japanese were formally asked to surrender and formally rejected the ultimatum before the bomb was dropped.

The same published reports say the documents relate that Stalin once praised Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as an "honest man" for turning over the Soviets 135,000 German troops who had tried to surrender to the Americans.

Truman has not commented on the articles. The Potsdam meeting was held July 17-Aug. 2, 1945, and was the last big wartime conference of the major allies.

The State Department still has a secrecy lid on the Potsdam papers. Press officer Lincoln White said the documents probably will be ready for publication early next year.

The department is making an inquiry to find out who leaked the documents to the press, and for what purposes. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter reportedly had ordered publication of the documents withheld until after the November elections.

Knebel and Bailey said the documents prepared by State Department historians total more than 2,000 pages and that some of the material came from notes made by Charles E. Bohlen, now a special adviser to Herter on Soviet affairs. Bohlen served as interpreter for Truman at Potsdam.

LAMESA — Dawson County Commissioner's Court approved another payment toward construction of the new county fair barn and also okayed several additions to existing plans this week.

Added to the barn plans were two rest rooms and a larger concrete apron for county equipment repairs and maintenance. Additions to the original plans have boosted the total cost to $33,700.

County tax assessor-collector Leland C. Miller presented the tax roll for 1960 and the court readily approved the document. The roll showed a slight increase despite an eight per cent reduction for oil company inventories. This was made because of the oil allowable in the state.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department acknowledged today it agreed to offer funds to transport African students to this country after intercession by a political aide to Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

William B. Macomber Jr., assistant secretary of state, said the department's approval, reversing decisions dating back to August 1959, was communicated directly to Nixon campaign aide James Shepley last week.

Macomber's letter was made public by Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) who called it "a sorry performance" in a Senate speech deploring "a department which is so susceptible to outside pressures."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Shepley and the State Department "entered the project on a crash basis" after learning that the family of Sen. John F. Kennedy—Nixon's rival for the presidency—had agreed to put up $100,000 to transport the students here.

City Gets Rain Up To 1.20 Inches

With a prelude of artillery like thunder and accompanied by gusts of wind, storm clouds centered over Big Spring Monday evening and dropped an official .75 inch of moisture.

Webb Air Force Base gauged the rainfall at .50 of an inch and Texas Electric Company Big Spring plant, measured 1.20 inches. The switching station had .50 inch. About a half inch fell over south Big Spring.

The rainfall was mostly in Big Spring with surrounding areas reporting little or no rain. Colorado City and Lomax had no precipitation. Vincent reported .10. Fairview had a small shower and Gay Hill reported no rain.

In Big Spring the sudden down-pour, which lasted less than an hour, swept down city streets as storm sewers failed to carry the water off fast enough. Gusts of wind up to 28 m.p.h. tore branches from trees and overturned signs in some parts of town. Then, almost as abruptly as it began, the rain and wind ceased and a few hours later the streets were dry again.

The forecast for today and Wednesday calls for clear to partly cloudy skies through Wednesday with widely scattered late or afternoon thundershowers in the area.

U. S. Must Set School Standards At Least At Soviet Union Level

Editor's Note—Vice Adm. Herman Block, the father of the atomic submarine, has long been noted as a leading critic of U.S. educational trends. In the following article, he sums up his viewpoint and philosophy.

By VICE ADM. H.G. RICKOVER
WASHINGTON (AP)—We and we alone among all modern democracies have devalued our educational currency.

We have down-graded the high school diploma to a point where it does not even promise competence in elementary subjects. Witness the many college freshmen who have to take remedial courses in reading, writing and arithmetic. Abroad these courses are mastered in the first eight years of schooling.

Russia's real threat to us will come through their educational and not through their military processes. Military systems and techniques are transitory—they now change every few years. An intelligent and well-educated body of citizens is something you will have forever.

This is where the Russians are smarter than we. They have recognized the full value of a good education and they are hellbent on giving it to as many of their youngsters as they can coax into taking it.

STANDARDS
This is about the best comparison I can make: Almost half of Russia's children, graduating at 17 after but 10 years of schooling, do as well by the record—as many of our children after 14 years of schooling, two of them in college.

Neither I nor other critics have ever recommended that we take over the Russian educational system. We do urge that we consider Russian educational achievements as the minimum standard for our own educational objectives.

We warn it would be suicidal if we allowed scholastic levels in our schools permanently to drop below this minimum standard. We flatly reject the claim that since ours is mass education it must, therefore, be mediocre, or that democratic education can never be as good as education in an authoritarian state.

What I have said about Russia applies even more so to the Western European nations. Abroad, a liberal education comparing favorably with what Americans acquire in 16 years of school and college takes from 12 to 13 years. Europeans are by that much ahead of Americans when they begin to study for a "learned" profession, such as medicine or law.

I find it personally humiliating that most European universities demand a bachelor of arts degree of Americans wishing to matriculate, while they admit all Europeans with a "maturity" certificate which is obtained at the end of the higher secondary school. This school achieves these superior results through better teaching, better curriculum, much tougher classroom work and homework, and early separating of the talented child from the average.

We seem bemused by the claims of the educationists that it is "undemocratic" for other Western nations to separate their children after elementary school, and to put them into different types of secondary schools according to their mental abilities and vocational aims.

OTHER SCHOOLS
We do not say it is "undemocratic" that nurses go to nursing school and doctors to medical school, and that each obtains a different diploma. Nor do we send enlisted personnel to the same schools as officers.

Why do we get angry at Europeans for weeding out the dullards from the talented children and sending them to separate secondary schools? What good would it do the dullards to be admitted to a school where they would just sit around and understand nothing?

It may be beguiling in theory to think of all our children going to school together. But will it really serve their best interests to send them to schools where the child with an IQ of 70 sits beside one with an IQ of 170, and where the morally weak child freely associates with the child who has been carefully raised to distinguish right from wrong and to conduct himself responsibly?

NO SENSE
This makes no sense to me. Obviously, no child will receive an education best suited to his abilities and vocational aims in such a school; nor will the bright child develop admiration and respect for the dullard, or the potential young delinquent profit from associating with well-brought-up children.

It is far more likely that the dullard will be frustrated, the bright child bored, the average child never challenged mentally, the good child corrupted by the young ne'er-do-well, and everyone's manners and mores down-graded to a dead level of mediocrity.

Improving our schools will be no easy matter. But the dollars you spend on education are the cheapest dollars you can spend, even if some of them are wasted. They are by far the cheapest dollars, and they give the greatest return.

LESS FOR MONEY
There is much evidence, however, that the education dollar buys less really good schooling in the United States than in any other country in the world. I am sure we could make great improvements simply by spending more wisely and efficiently the funds we now have. But money alone won't do it. It will also require much thought and effort.

As an engineer would say the first thing we must do is set up specifications: what we want our high school graduates to know when they finish at the age of 18. The minute you do that, you begin to see that perhaps you ought not to pay an athletic coach a higher salary than a teacher of trigonometry.

We allow ourselves to be frightened by arguments that setting national standards would mean federal tyranny over education. In view of our professed fear of the federal government, we could not at the present time set up compulsory national standards.

But there is nothing in our form of government to prevent Congress from setting up some sort of commission or council and giving it the task of working out different sets of educational goals for our public schools.

Isn't the honest labeling of educational diplomas as important as the honest labeling of drugs? We regulate what goes into people's mouths, why can't we even recommend what goes into their heads?

This would give an enormous advantage to parents who are really interested in having their children "educated" in contrast to having them merely "trained."

The distinction between education and training is not thoroughly understood. When you teach a boy how to operate a lathe you are training him, you are not educating him. Training does not develop the mind. Education is a process by which the mind is developed.

ABILITY TO THINK
It is in education—that is, in transmitting the fundamentals of knowledge, in developing the ability to think—that we fall down. Too much of our so-called education is mere training in various kinds of know-how.

In the United States it is quite possible that, left to his own devices, a potentially talented child may squander his best learning years on easy know-how courses which require no homework but which earn him the same credit toward a high school diploma as academic subjects. But in Russia, since all children tackle academic subjects, anyone who shows promise in one or another area of knowledge will be discovered early.

DEAR ABBY

BIG RUSH

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I found a note under the windshield wiper of my car this morning. It said, "OK, Miss Hard-To-Get, let's get acquainted. How about dinner next Saturday night?"

It was written by my downstairs neighbor. He's an attractive bachelor who moved into this building recently. My landlord said he was interested in meeting me. (I am 26 and single.) Is it proper to accept an invitation of this kind?

"MISS HARD TO MEET"
DEAR MISS: If you want to meet him (and apparently you do) ask your landlord to introduce you. But don't accept a dinner invitation with him via your windshield wiper. He could be just a big drip who goes off the deep end for anything in skirts.

DEAR ABBY: Can you settle an argument for us? I had a form to fill out in which many questions were asked. One was "NATIONALITY?" Since I was born in New York, I put down "AMERICAN."

A friend said they were AMERICANS were the AMERICAN INDIANS. He asked where my parents were born. I told him Poland. Then he said my nationality was POLISH! I told him the question was not "DESCENT" but "NATIONALITY." He said what they really wanted to know was, "were my people Japanese, Italian, Russian, and so forth," and no matter where an Italian or Japanese was born, he is still Italian or Japanese. Who was right?

CONFUSED
DEAR CONFUSED: One belongs to a nation by "birth" or "naturalization," according to Webster's definition. So having been born in America, you are an American. According to law, if a CAT HAS KITTENS IN AN OVEN, they are biscuits.

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked to read in your column a letter signed "THROUGH THE MILL" which read, "I am not the sort of person who gives her baby away— even an animal wouldn't do that."

I went "through the mill" when I was 16. I gave my baby away because I had nothing to offer her. I was unwed and alone. An adoption agency found my baby a good home with fine parents. I was a young girl who made a bad mistake, but I knew I had my life before me. Any mother who has given her baby away knows that it is harder to give up a child than to keep it. And far less selfish.

I know in my heart that I did the right thing and I have never been sorry. And every girl who has been "through the mill" knows I speak the truth.

ALSO THROUGH THE MILL
DEAR ABBY: I love your column, but PLEASE don't advise unwed mothers to keep their babies. As a social worker I see the resentment vent upon unwanted children that would break the hearts of women who are waiting to adopt the little ones. My opinion, based on years of observation is this: unwed mothers should tell their relatives and neighbors that their babies died at birth; then put them out for adoption. Then thank God their babies are having a better fate than the one they would have given them.

City Goes All Out For Melvin Miller

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Melvin Miller, Peoria's Pride today was the man of the hour in this seaside resort.

"All kinds of offers to entertain Mel during his week here are coming in — many from Hollywood," said Capt. Joe Gestson, crew-cut Marine whose million-to-one long distance telephone call led to "Melvin Miller Week."

But movie stars will have to drive the 60 miles from Hollywood if they want to see Melvin, 40, a tractor factory foreman in the Illinois city. He'll be too busy having fun in the Laguna sun to visit them.

The saga of Melvin Miller began last fall when Gestson and a few of his cronies from the nearby Camp Pendleton and El Toro Marine bases decided to live on a dull Labor Day with a practical joke or two.

Gestson, 32, a Korea war veteran, loves jokes, especially when they involve a telephone. So just for a gag, he put in a call to Peoria and wound up talking to Melvin Miller—a name he picked out of the air.

Melvin thought he was being kidded by a Peoria prankster, but he and Gestson chatted amiably. Gestson called Melvin several times after that and they became long distance buddies. Then Gestson "thought up" Melvin Miller Week.

The joke caught on among Gestson's fun-loving friends. Soon close to $300 in contributions had rolled in—and Melvin was California-bound.

Cards, calls and offers poured in after The Associated Press carried the story last Saturday. From South Bend, Ind., came an offer to supply all the autos for the motorcade to meet Melvin at Los Angeles Airport Aug. 31.

From Florida, Joe Younce telephoned Gestson to bring Melvin to Tallahassee to show that "Florida will outdo anything California can do."

Florida may have to go some. Melvin will be put up in an ocean-front hotel suite and wine and dined in a style fitting a Marine general.

A Devotional For Today

"Do not sparrows sell two for a cent? And yet not one of them can fall to the ground against your Father's will" (Matthew 10:29, Goodspeed.)

PRAYER: Eternal God, grant us that calm, serene sense that comes to us when through faith in Thee we cast aside all fear and worry. Teach us to acknowledge Thee as the guide and sustainer of life; as Thou dost guide and sustain the sparrow in his flight. We pray in Christ's name. Amen.

Mr. Baruch And The Tax Bite

Bernard Baruch, who wears the affectionate title of "elder statesman" gave out last week with some of the views he has accumulated over the years. Now that he has reached his 90th birthday, his gems of advice are worth savoring all the more.

One of his appraisals was that inflation "is the single greatest peril to our national health." He hastened to add that the country must remain strong economically as well as militarily and spiritually to overcome the dangers of uncertain times.

About the time he was reaffirming some of his beliefs about this time, the United States Census Bureau disclosed that with this bit of inflation: Taxes took 100 billion dollars in 1959—an average of $267.04 for every man, woman and child in the nation.

Now this was all taxes—state, school, local, district, etc. as well as federal. But it was still 100 billion dollars, and it was still between 20 and 25 per cent of the gross national product.

This means that we are diverting at least a fifth of our national wealth into relatively non-productive enterprises. This is not totally true, but in a large measure governmental activities are consumptive in that they do not of themselves originate productive gain. This ratio of taxes to national productivity is within itself inflationary, and we need to give heed to what Mr. Baruch says. Barring a confiscatory emergency, the ratio of 1959 is about as high as we can go without risking chaotic results.

Close-Mouth Commonsense

During the years when development of the "U-2 plane" was in progress, stringent secrecy surrounded the program. Clarence L. Johnson, vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., told the Veterans of Foreign Wars national convention at Detroit.

"I would like to say that it would be a splendid idea if we could carry out this tactic in a large number of other defense fields," he added.

At first blush, Mr. Johnson's proposal seems to be logical. From the point of view of the military, secrecy is a must. But from the point of view of the economy, there is need for a vast difference between what is a genuine military secret and what some would like to hide under that category. Few reputable publications would want to reveal information which would imperil the security of this nation to the least degree. On the other hand, they bristle at the idea that hangings, delays, asserted blunders, indecision and other failures and muddlings could be shielded under the cloak of classified information.

We can, if the occasion demands, be a tight-mouthed nation. Extending this to the point of not mentioning the location of military bases and missile bases as Mr. Johnson suggests, is going to the extreme. Does he seriously think that the enemy's intelligence system is founded on a subscription to newspapers and magazines?

Marquis Childs Air Of Confidence In Nixon Camp

WASHINGTON.—The Gallup poll showing Vice President Richard Nixon six points ahead of Sen. John F. Kennedy was not so much a pleasant surprise to the Nixon camp as confirmation of private tests already made.

Nixon, whose professional knowledge of the great game of politics is never underestimated, had read all the signs and concluded that his campaign was off to a favorable start. There is in fact an air of subdued but none the less real confidence among the shrewd men working at the Vice President's side and under his personal and ceaseless direction.

PARTLY THIS can be put down to a desire to create the psychology of victory at the outset. But it is also a hard-headed appraisal of the reaction to every move made thus far and in particular to the Nixon acceptance speech at Chicago. So overwhelming was the response to it that for the Republican Presidential candidate it is to be the formula—the touchstone — of his entire campaign. And strategists in the Kennedy camp, while they put it down as demagogic, readily concede that as a performance it was terrific with a terrific impact.

Here are some of the important aspects of the coming campaign as candidate Nixon sees them. The belief is strong that the ticket will carry not fewer than 300 electoral votes. Nixon's campaign Florida, Texas, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New Mexico, Nevada, California, and Alaska make two — perhaps three — campaign sorties into Texas where private samplings show that, despite the presence of Sen. Lyndon Johnson on the Democratic ticket, the Republicans have perhaps a better than even chance to win.

IF SEN. HARRY F. BYRD keeps quiet, falling to endorse either candidate, then Virginia will go for Nixon. The sample polls from Florida are said to be highly encouraging. The Vice President's reception in Greensboro, N. C., was greater and more enthusiastic than he had hoped.

California is conceded to be extremely close, and Nixon will devote a lot of time and attention to his native state. As to New York — and he knows that he must carry one if not both of these electoral prizes in order to win—the Nixon strategy counts heavily on Democratic divisions there.

THERE IS confidence in the Midwest, with Wisconsin the state considered presently most doubtful and Minnesota second in this category. As Nixon sees it, he has successfully begun to detach himself from the millstone of Extra Tact Benson. In the major farm states, the belief is Nixon will not be blamed for the drop in farm prices and farm income and the vast surpluses towering over the market.

By any reckoning of Nixon's assets, President Eisenhower is at the top of the list. The candidate's shrewd use of "we" and "our" — his identification of himself and his candidacy with the President's popularity, as in the acceptance speech — shows how this can be exploited.

RELATED TO this asset is the fact that a large proportion of the press ranges from friendly to all-out support in both news and editorial columns for Nixon. It is a fact that baffles and frustrates the Democrats. What, they say, if a Democrat were in the White House and Cuba were "lost" to a pro-Communist regime, with the rest of the Caribbean and even Latin America threatened; if under a Democratic President the U-2 disaster had occurred and a young American was pleading for his life in a Soviet court; if a Democratic President had been kept out of a friendly country, Japan, to which he very much wanted to go, by hostile mobs?

Yet with the charmed life Eisenhower has led during his eight years in politics, the damage done in recent months by the assassin against him. Even to criticize is, as Nixon sought to establish in the acceptance speech, helping communism and downgrading the United States at a moment when every citizen's duty is to uphold the President. For Democrats recalling the savage chant of "Who lost China?" in 1952 and after, this is infuriating.

IT IS FROM under the glittering Eisenhower umbrella that Nixon will conduct his campaign as the partner, the heir, the deputy, the successor tapped by destiny to carry on as the President puts down his burden and to build for the future on an even broader base. As his own canny campaign director, the Vice President will, whenever he can, give this a nonpolitical sound, echoing the theme of national unity and purpose with built-in Nixon improvements.

Home Grown Bananas

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Take it from Robert J. Grady, Virginia is a fine place to grow bananas. He has nursed a tree for 16 years, taking it into his basement in the winter, and now some 60 bananas are ripening.

Painful Proof

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Policemen who suspected a man of stealing a guitar asked if he could play a few bars to demonstrate ownership.

The officers concluded he was the owner of the instrument, but added: "It was evident he will never be a musician."

Sporting Thief

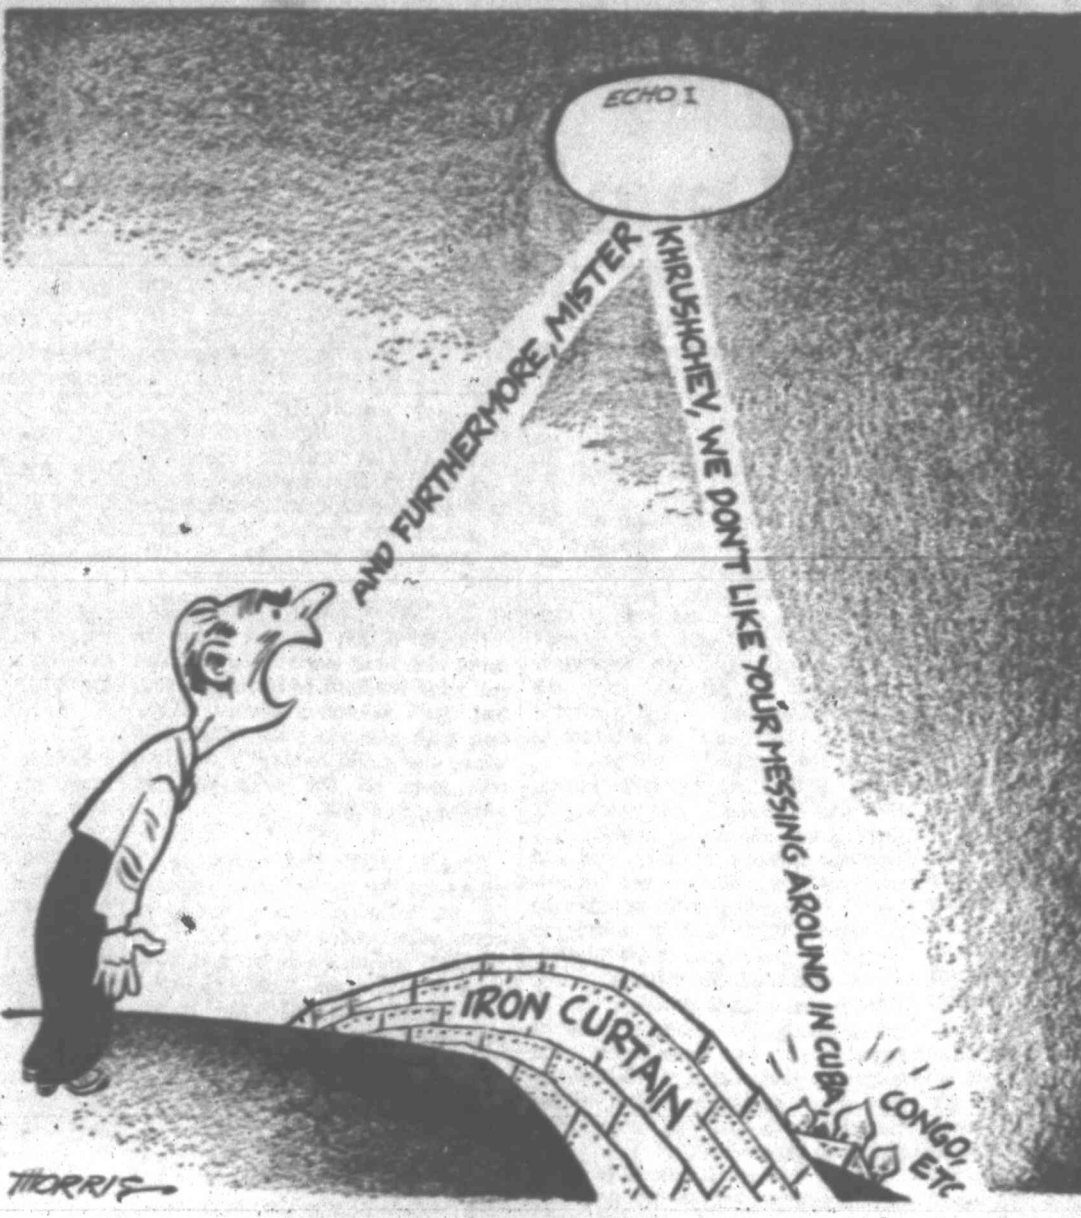

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — The burglar who broke into the Lakeview Park refreshment stand apparently had recreation in mind, police think. He carried off candy gum, three pairs of sun glasses, sun tan oil, potato chips, toy golf clubs and six pairs of men's swim trunks.

A Brand New One

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A woman told Dan G. Moore, Tucson brand inspector, she wanted to register a brand.

He asked where it would be placed on the cow—shoulder, side or hip.

"Oh," she said, "I don't own a cow. I want to use the brand on my stationary — a sort of coat-of-arms."

James Marlow Dulles Reveals Khrushchev's Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of America's super-spy outfit doesn't expect the Soviets to make any more gains in the United States any time soon. But he does expect them to give this country trouble in other ways for a long time.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, made a plea Monday night for more courses in American schools on Communist theory and practice.

Talking to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Detroit, Dulles refused to believe any soft talk from Russia's Premier Nikita Khrushchev whose intentions, he said, are the same as those of Lenin and Stalin, world communism.

The only difference between Khrushchev and his predecessors, Dulles said, is a difference in technique in trying to reach the same goal.

"DURING THE years immediately ahead it seems more likely that the immediate danger we will be facing and on a worldwide basis, will be Communist political, economic and subversive action and penetration; not a hot or nuclear war," Dulles said.

He listed seven points he said are basic elements of Khrushchev's policy:

1. Build up Soviet military might based on ballistic missiles which would give him an effective weapon for direct attack on the United States.
2. Build up Soviet industry at the same time to satisfy some of the needs of the Russian people — but still devote a greater share of it to military aims than the United States is likely to do with its industry.

3. SUPPORT ALL elements of extreme, rabid nationalism in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Dulles said: "He is working for chaos in countries from Cuba to the Congo, and chaos breeds communism."
4. Aim economic and technical aid at certain critical countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America where "the Communists believe they can make the most headway."

5. Keep in high gear Russia's worldwide subversive apparatus in countries from Cuba to Central Africa and to Southeast Asia and indeed throughout the world.
6. Build Russia's formidable military weapons in secrecy and even exploit spy scares to preserve that secrecy while refusing any meaningful inspection system which would make disarmament workable.

Propaganda, Dulles said, Khrushchev is directing "the greatest propaganda machine the world has ever known."

Thus the immediate future, as Dulles sees it, will bring not war but tremendous Soviet efforts at Communist subversion all over the world for years to come.

Hal Boyle That First Childhood Never Goes

NEW YORK (AP) — Curbsome comments of a Pavement Plato: Are you grown up? If you really are, you are a rarity. Perhaps you belong in the Smithsonian Institution.

One of the most shocking discoveries that can come to a person in middle age — if he is honest with himself — is the realization that he has changed little from the person he was as a child.

The only thing that consoles him, as he peers more closely at his middle-aged neighbors, is the discovery that they too aren't really grown up — they are merely enlarged children.

When young, we years desperately to be grown up, figuring that mere size and time will magically make us able to solve all our problems and get everything we want from life.

Well, it doesn't often work out that way.

As adults we are indeed bigger and older. But we have grown up only physically; emotionally we are still back in kindergarten — and there most of us stubbornly stay most of our days.

What is the most outstanding characteristic of the ordinary child — even the most angelic? Surely it is his determination to have his own way. To bend the whole vast world he was born into to his own imperious will.

Frustrated, he howls and shakes his tiny fists in anger.

He is an outrageous capitalist and show-off from the moment he takes his first step. He wants to own everything that catches his eye, and he wants to be admired for everything he does.

If he loses at a game and weeps and is told he should be "a good sport," he asks practically,

"Why?" His theory is that if the other kids won't play his way, he'll pick up his marbles and go home. He tends, by human nature, to be vain, arrogant and full of self-pity.

Life is full of one disappointment after another as it curbs his behavior and forces him to be more social. But inwardly his desires rage and riot as strong as ever.

As a youth he is confident that when he is an adult he will at last be free to have his own way and live his own life. He is optimistically certain that the petty restrictions will end, that he will find the perfect friend, meet and marry the perfect wife, seek and land the perfect job.

We find as the years roll on that our friends are as rattled with faults as we are, our wives are little better, than those of our neighbors, and the perfect job is always beyond our reach.

True maturity consists in making the best of what life brings us, in realizing there is always a necessary compromise between dream and reality. If you can do that, you have truly grown up.

But who among us wants to be this mature? Secretly in our heart of hearts, we still want what we can't have. We remain vain, selfish, arrogant, envious and full of self-pity.

We learn to camouflage our actions because we have to. But now and again the rebel breaks through, and you see grownup people behaving as childish as they really are.

Then we say in surprise, "Why, he acts like he's in his second childhood." This isn't accurate.

The truth is most of us never have a second childhood because we never leave the first one.

Around The Rim Is Change Of Law Needed?

I saw a story in a metropolitan newspaper the other day which pointed up, I think, the need to take a new hard look at our general attitude toward so-called juvenile delinquents.

The item told how a resident of the city had been awakened late one night by a noise on his front lawn. He went outside to investigate.

Three juveniles in a car were in his front yard. They had driven a car off the street up on the grass and were using it as a battering ram to beat down a beautiful shade tree the resident had planted and nurtured.

BEFORE THE indignant victim could prevent it, the vandals had succeeded. They broke the valuable tree off at the roots and it toppled to the earth. However, the lawn was soft from rains and the car stalled as the young miscreants sought to leave the scene. They abandoned the car and fled on foot.

The citizen reported the matter to police. Check of the car plates led to identification of one of the youths and to the arrest of the other two. The parents of one of the boys agreed to replace the tree and repair the damage to the lawn. The law, with that velvet glove touch which society seems to demand be employed in dealing with young criminals, sternly scolded the irresponsible brats and told them to go home and be good boys.

The three thugs were just under 17 years of age. What they had perpetrated was utterly criminal, devoid of any mitigating circumstances and completely beyond justification by any warping of reason.

But, because these unprincipled young brats were still juveniles under the law, they were cloaked with the cotton padding always used in such cases.

THEIR NAMES were not made public.

The news report protected their anonymity. They were not punished for their offense. There was no effective effort made to force them to change their viewpoint. My guess is the same three will do something just as reprehensible again. That their offense was their first is an unfounded assumption. It was the first where they were apprehended. They may continue to engage in vandalistic enterprises indefinitely, assuming they are lucky enough to avoid being caught at it.

In my opinion, when a person has reached the age of 17 years he should be old enough and have sufficient sense to know elementary difference between right and wrong. He should know what is against the law.

There is no reason why he should be treated with any more consideration or tenderness than any other criminal. And I think it is high time the newspapers of the country abandon the policy of keeping the names of these miscreants secret. The public is entitled to protection just as much as the so-called "juveniles" are entitled to mollycoddling. And the public should be told the identities of these wolves who are a menace to its welfare and safety.

THE CAREFUL screening of juvenile criminals has resulted in the young hoodlums imposing on its provisions to continue their misdeeds.

I have been in police stations when officers have picked up juvenile thugs. And I have heard these cocky young thugs snarl at the officers:

"So what? You've picked me up but you can't do a thing to me. I'm a juvenile." And the way things are handled now, they're as right as they can be.

Holmes Alexander Days Of Retribution—And Solution

PARIS — "There is thy gold," said Romeo to the apothecary who sold him poison, "worse poison to man's souls."

It makes an apt epitaph on the last days of the Belgian colonialism which has thrown the whole civilized world into convulsions. As the privately-owned and plundered province of the Belgian Congo and his financial advisers, the Congo mulcted in cruelty and greed. The last stages of the Belgian withdrawal are not inappropriate. Blood will have blood.

IT HAPPENS that I once knew a family — three brothers and a sister — who inherited $12 million apiece from a former bear's Congo investments, the profits drawn from shameless exploitation of mineral and human resources. Well, two of the brothers actively took their own lives, another passively killed himself with alcohol, the sister (never knowing if she was loved for herself or her money) became a recluse in an insane asylum. The toxic results of ill-gotten gains never had a clearer example.

THE END is not yet. With 12 new African republics joining the family of nations this August, there are infinite combinations of disaster. How many ancient fortunes will collapse? How many whites will die in expiation of former wrongs? All Europe, it seems, is watching the well-intended but uncertain actions of the United Nations. Over here, every U.N. move is regarded as establishing a precedent which may have unhappy repercussions. If the Blue Helmets side with the unstable native governments in one instance, does every unstable government have the call upon these forces? If self-determination is upheld in the Congo, what about French Algeria?

THE UNITED STATES is not excluded. In their bitterness, Europeans (Jean-Paul Sartre, the Frenchman of letters is one) pretend to find parallels between their exploitation in Africa and our own in Cuba. Never mind if the comparison is illogical. This is emotion speaking, not logic. The USA could become involved as has happened before, through entangling military alliances. Many Europeans see NATO as a standing Armed Force which ought to be defending the overseas "community," as indeed the French contingents in NATO have been doing in North Africa. The arrival of Russian, or even Red Chinese, "volunteers" might take the question — "What's NATO for?" — out of the academic category.

IN ALL THIS, the United States finds itself approaching a Hamlet-like soliloquy of indecision. Do we support our European allies, as the Eisenhower Administration has done? Or do we sympathize with the African aspirants for freedom, as Democratic Candidate Kennedy proposed a while ago in his speech on Algeria? Or do we, as a third choice, procrastinate and do neither?

The third choice is not so weak and sickly as it may seem at first. There is strength and rightness, I think, in a proposition set forth by Assistant Labor Secretary George Lodge who for some time has been our representative in that Department's international affairs. Lodge, son of the U.N. Ambassador and Republican nominee for Vice President, proposes that we work much more closely than we do with the Labor leaders of the newly developed countries.

THE LABOR UNIONS in Africa and Asia, Lodge reports from personal observation and study, are developed from rural cooperatives, social welfare groups, semi-fraternal organizations. A small number of union leaders, many of whom have been recent visitors to the United States, are our access to millions of natives. These people are politically uncommitted and mainly interested in a better bread than their colonial masters ever allowed.

The solution in Africa and Asia, according to Lodge, is American enterprise — not as our enemies describe it, but as it really is. American enterprise is composed of these three things: corporations owned by millions of individuals; unions which have equality with management; and the bargaining table; and government which intervenes (too much, rather than too little) for the public interest. This is the real America, the America few foreigners know. It is the antithesis of the kind of colonialism for which so much terrible retribution now seems to be due.

Some Samples Every Home Needs

"Gypsy," the musical version of Gypsy Rose Lee's autobiography, there is a stirring ballad, titled "You Gotta Have a Gimmick," in which a trio of strip-teasers try to instruct a neophyte in the biz.

What is true for strip-teasers is equally imperative for politicians. Sometimes the public is apt to believe the gimmick is glandular in both. Be that as it may, there is a Republican candidate in the Second Congressional District of Connecticut who has, in one woman's opinion, a wholly admirable gimmick.

HORACE SEELY-BROWN JR. — and him with a fancy hyphen in his Anglo-Saxon name, too — is tramping over his district a la Johnny Appleseed. Only Seely-Brown, who is former mathematics teacher and now an apple-grower, is not giving away apple seeds, apples or apple saplings.

Instead, this Republican candidate for the House is giving away potoholders, a basic ingredient — nay, a MUST — in any adequately stocked kitchen. In his house-to-house campaign, Seely-Brown figures to give away 25,000 to 30,000 potoholders to grateful housewives.

WHAT YOU MAY ASK, perhaps cynically, are the chances for success in the potoholder campaign? The only answer, in view of the fact that Seely-Brown has won five out of the last seven Congressional elections in his district, is "excellent." Seely-Brown is a very good gimmick. Indeed, a potoholder is a potoholder is a necessity that, for some obscure reason, is eternally evaporating in even the best-stocked and best-run kitchens. Potoholders have a snide life of their own, disappearing at will, and always when most urgently needed.

SO A CANDIDATE who knocks on the door and proffers a potoholder just when the jelly is about to boil over or a roast has to be snaked from the oven, isn't likely to be forgotten on Election Day. Furthermore, potoholders cost money. Once upon a time they were something that grandma knit of coarse wool or twine, or children, on a rainy day, wove on a small frame out of strips of old rags. But today they are a money item. And if father is a barbecue addict, a good asbestos mitt, the ne plus ultra in potoholders, can cost up to $5.95.

PROBABLY as a candidate-gimmick, Seely-Brown has a patent on the potoholder. But I think I have hit upon a gimmick fully as good for his opponent, if any. The answer to the potoholder is the kind of small sink or scrub brush that the Fuller Brush man used to leave at our house when I was a child.

This small brush is another indispensable household aide, and like the potoholder, it goes its own independent way. I suspect, it is tossed out with the potato peels and the orange rinds when the sink strainer is emptied into the garbage pail.

AT ALL ODDS, the little sink brush that the Fuller Brush man used to give away now costs anywhere from 29 to 89 cents, depending on how much the housewife is willing to spend on such an elusive article, whether she wants it in colors to match her kitchen, etc.

Come to think of it, a small sample bottle of vanilla, almond or lemon extract would do, too. Extracts once were sold door-to-door when I was young, and a sample bottle of this or that flavor usually was everyday lagniappe. These are only a few hints on how to counter the potoholder campaign. Far be it from me to interfere with the race in Connecticut's Second District. But on the other hand, there's no reason for Seely-Brown's opponent to campaign bare-handed or the housewife not to win in either case.

Designer Gives Tips

Werie's rise to fame as a fashion designer has brought buyers to Hollywood from all parts of the U.S. He is the favorite of many stars, including Barbara Stanwyck with whom he is shown here. In an exclusive interview with Lydia Lane, he tells how to avoid mistakes and stretch the budget fashion-wise.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Designer Reveals Aids In Good Dress

HOLLYWOOD—It has been said that the beautiful clothes worn by Loretta Young are one of the reasons for the popularity of her TV show, and for years these fashions were designed by Hollywood's Werie. This personable young man is also Barbara Stanwyck's favorite, and she has chosen him to design the wardrobe for her new drama series which debuts this fall on NBC.

Believing that every woman would like to be as soignée as a movie star, I visited Werie to find out what he could tell readers about being well dressed. I explained that fashion mistakes were costly—either we had to give them away and it hurt our pride, or for no one feels her best knowing that her dress is not becoming.

"How can one avoid this?" I asked. "I think the average woman makes a mistake because she is more concerned with what is fashionable than what is wearable," he replied. "Your first aim should be good lines. Don't allow yourself to be diverted by anything else."

"Think ahead," Mr. Werie advised. "Choose something that will serve well for many occasions and can be carried from season to season. With good clothes you can build a foundation to your wardrobe with seasonal replacements."

"It's every woman's dream to be able to choose good clothes," I reminded him. "Price is not always a deciding factor. What should a woman look for?" "How to describe something I know so well," Mr. Werie murmured as he lit a cigarette. "Proportions are fundamental. They are responsible for fit, for freedom of movement and for flattery. Construction of a dress is inside. Inspect the seams, the hem, the arm holes and of course the fabric. Don't judge by your eyes alone. Feel the grain of the cloth. A well-constructed dress of good fabric will come back from the cleaner holding shape and looking like new."

"Your proportions begin at the waistline," he continued. "You lose the whole feeling of a dress if the waistline doesn't break in the proper place. A well-made dress moves with you. Be sure you can raise your arms without pulling the rest of the dress out of shape. And be sure there is sufficient fullness in the back."

I had asked Miss Stanwyck why she was so fond of Mr. Werie and she said that he was very talented but that she liked him "because he never allowed a dress to dominate a personality."

When I repeated this to Mr. Werie, he enthused, "I enjoy designing for Barbara because she knows to the minutest detail what is right for her, so I don't have to spend time trying to convince her. Recently at a party, she was photographed in a gown of mine which had been made eight years ago, but it is dateless."

I asked him to describe it. "It was a cocktail dress, black V-neck, made of silk and wool—a sheath but over this a billowy black organza skirt could be worn," he explained.

"What are some of your pet peeves?" "I have an extreme dislike for fancy dresses in the daytime," he confessed. "Some of the costumes worn to ladies' luncheons should never be seen before five."

"Color is important but I don't like matching too many things," he replied. "And I don't like too much jewelry. I think the most common mistake is over-dressing. Simplicity is an acquired taste. Begin by asking yourself, what can be eliminated? What can be taken off?"

"Be analytical about accessories. Try to choose shoes, bags and hats that can be interchanged. Pay attention to details. White gloves should be spotless. Seams should be straight. Heels should be inspected frequently. Otherwise your impression is ruined."

In parting I wanted to know if Mr. Werie had any rules for short and tall girls.

"I don't believe in taboos," Mr. Werie declared. "If the proportions are right, the size doesn't matter. CORRECT FIGURE FAULTS

Most people with perfect figures weren't born with them. Sometimes they've exercised many months to attain the exact proportions desired. Yes, too, can have a better figure by following the exercises in Leaflet M-8, "Exercises to Correct Figure Faults." Contained in this leaflet are exercises for: 1-The bust, shoulder, and arm area 2-The mid-section, consisting of the abdomen, diaphragm and rib cage 3-The hips, buttocks and thighs. For your copy of the vital leaflet, send only 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lydia Lane, Hollywood Beauty Big Spring Herald.

At the council meeting the resignation of the county chairman, Mrs. Ted Turner, was accepted. Mrs. Lynn Corbin presided for the meeting. The women voted to hold a rummage sale in September in which all clubs in the county will participate.

Miss Baker Is Honoree

A blue and white theme was featured at the miscellaneous show given Monday afternoon in Ackerly for Dorothy Baker. The honoree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Baker of Ackerly, is to be married Sept. 3 to Jerry Rogers of Wichita, Kan. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rogers, Knott Route.

The home of Mrs. Curtis White was the setting for the shower at which about 60 guests called during the afternoon. Mrs. Bill Hambrick, a hostess, was at the bride's book.

On a white linen cutwork cloth over blue, a streamer of white satin bore the names of the couple and the date set for their wedding. Centering the ribbon was a miniature bridal couple and scattered on the runner were a tiny Bible, a bridal veil and a blue garter. A corsage was presented to the honoree by the hostess group, which included several of her friends.

Pleats For Fashion

Pleats galore are fashion-right this fall. A wool plaid hip-stitched, knife pleated skirt is blue and green with a touch of white—and reversible. Also comes in green, brass and gold; teal, brown and camel; and a grey plaid. A medium blue sweater has a spread collar evolving into a sailor collar at the back. Full fashioned in lambs' wool, angora and nylon.

Jelly Test

Jelly tests done when a couple of drops of the syrup run together and flow off as one drop from the side of a spoon.

The figure flattery of the bias cut skirt makes fashion news this fall. In a one piece wool dress, the rust and green plaid bias skirt is cut full and flared. The black top of sheer wool has deep armholes, plaid peter pan collar and large flat, black silk bow at the neck. Three quarter sleeves and black patent belt complete the outfit.

LAMESA—Plans for the activities of the Women's Division for the Dawson County Fair Sept. 22-24 are taking shape this week. Jones.

The committee was named at the regular meeting of the Dawson County Home Demonstration Council in the Chamber of Commerce Director's Room Friday, after 12 women had attended a covered dish luncheon and demonstration in the home of Mrs. C. V. Ball.

During the morning hours, Jo Crabtree, HD agent, gave a demonstration on the preparation of various Mexican foods, and these, along with covered dishes brought by the women, were served during the noon hour.

During the afternoon, the district agent, Mrs. H. B. Russell of Lubbock, demonstrated the preparation of educational booths for fairs.

At the council meeting the resignation of the county chairman, Mrs. Ted Turner, was accepted. Mrs. Lynn Corbin presided for the meeting. The women voted to hold a rummage sale in September in which all clubs in the county will participate.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

Events that shape the course of history usually find themselves depicted and publicized on postage stamps. The latest occurrences in the Congo are the basis for a new set of stamps issued by Belgium. The stamps publicize the plight of the Belgians who were forced to flee amid the riots and confusion. The 40 centimes plus 10 c depicts plans bearing the fleeing Belgians. An airport is in the background. The 3 franc plus 1.50 fr. shows a mother with child in her arms. In the background are three airplanes. The 6 fr plus 3 fr illustrates a map of Africa and Europe with a plane superimposed over the design. Each stamp has a rainbow as a symbol of the exodus.

The designer of the stamps was Jean Van Noten who claims that his rainbow has special significance. Says he: "According to the Bible, the rainbow is also the symbol of reconciliation given by the Lord to Noah after the deluge."

Recently this column announced that a likeness of Ignacy Jan Paderewski would appear on the 4-cent and 8-cent "Champion of Liberty" stamps to be released at Washington, D. C. on Oct. 8. Now we can tell a little more about the stamp.

The main design featuring Paderewski is from a painting by Tave Styka. The 4-cent will be blue and the 8-cent in red, blue and other.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their self-addressed envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C., with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed. Each envelope must be marked, in pencil, in the upper right corner indicating the denomination to be affixed prior to Oct. 8. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be clearly marked "First Day Covers Paderewski Stamp."

The British Crown Agents report that the Republic of Cyprus is overprinting a pictorial series of 15 stamps to honor the constitution of Cyprus as an independent republic. These will be used until such time as a new definitive issue of postage stamps of the Cyprus Republic is introduced.

The Danish General Post Office has issued three special stamps with agricultural designs marking the introduction of a new size of stamps for that country. The stamps also are the first by Denmark to have occupational designs.

Ecuador has issued a set of nine stamps commemorating the 11th Inter-American Conference. Each stamp depicts a building where the conference takes place. Shown are Palace of the Government, Airport Terminal, Palace of Legislation, Security Bank, Hotel Quito, Student Residences at Central University, Student Residence at Catholic University, Chancellery, Road to Desnivel.

Another nation to honor the Fifth World Forestry Congress to be held in Seattle, Wash., is Sudan. The three Sudanese stamps are 15 millimes, 30 m, and 55 m. Depicted on each is a Tebedli tree and a Delieb forest.

Texas Highway Foreign Ban Is Criticized

AUSTIN (AP)—A Texas Highway Commission order banning foreign goods in building Texas roads has been criticized as an "ill conceived action" which will bring about criticism abroad to the U. S. State Department.

The Washington attorney for the U.S.-Japan council, Nelson Stitt, said it violates the spirit of the treaty between the two nations in 1953.

A public hearing was called Monday by the commission to hear both sides in the issue. A decision is not expected until late next month.

In 1958, the commission issued the order but it was kept pending until the Bureau of Roads issued a policy decision. In June 1960 the bureau said it was a matter the state should decide so the commission re-issued the order about a month ago, Chairman Herb Peery, Carrizo Springs, said.

This order again is being held in abeyance until a final decision is made.

Representatives of the domestic steel industry praised the order as a "forward step for Texas." They argued such a policy would insure a uniformity of materials, provide salaries for workers and taxes which otherwise would be lost to foreign countries.

E. B. Germany, Dallas, president of Lone Star Steel, blamed a scheduled layoff of 1,500 workers later this week solely on imported products. He said unless something happens the total layoff may reach 3,000.

Walter Leo, Houston, Sheffield Division of Arco, said 100,000 persons in Texas draw all or part of their earnings from the steel industry. He said such an order will help "keep us in business."

Wayne L. Johnson, Port Worth attorney representing Texas Steel Co., questioned the "use of taxpayers money to force domestic businesses out of business."

Opponents of the order said foreign steel companies would benefit Texas taxpayers by permitting state departments to get the most for their dollars.

"This is discrimination in favor of a minority group," argued Robert Horlander, speaking for the Houston World Trade Assn. Stitt said the order violates the spirit of the 1953 Japanese-American Treaty.

He said taxpayers will benefit by foreign competition because price competition is non-existent in the U.S. steel industry. "It would seem to me to be regrettable if the State of Texas frustrates national policy with such an order," he said.

Representatives of the Texas International Trade Assn., said their group had adopted a resolution stating such a ban would "embarrass and harass" the U.S. State Department and would foster national criticism abroad.

Herter To Warn Of Kremlin Danger

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter will warn the Latin American nations today that they are not the United States—are most menaced by communism's attempt to infiltrate the Western Hemisphere via Cuba.

Herter, laying down a hard U.S. line toward prime minister Fidel Castro's regime, was expected to urge the foreign ministers' conference of the Organization of American States to condemn Red Chinese-Soviet threats to the hemisphere. It was not known whether he would back Argentina's plan for a special conference to chart plans for a democratic counter-offensive.

Herter's speech late this afternoon follows a new U.S. memorandum to the conference accusing Cuba of training spies and guerrillas to spread Communist revolution throughout the hemisphere.

The tough U.S. stand chilled hopes of some Latin American delegates that they could arrange some procedure to mediate differences between the United States and Fidel Castro's regime.

to the OAS Peace Committee supplemented an earlier 78-page report. Besides charging that international brigades are being trained in Cuba to carry the Red message to other Latin American nations, the new memo noted recent Cuban moves to suppress "the remaining vestige of individual liberty in Cuba — religious freedom."

Cuba's OAS ambassador, Carlos Lechuaga, termed the report "totally false." Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa was expected to demand sanctions against the United States, charging economic aggression against Cuba.

Argentina's proposal called for another conference within 90 days to prepare a draft treaty of methods "for prevention and eradication of the Communist movement in the hemisphere." Initial reaction to the proposal was cool.

The United States was considered likely to get a good response to its request for a strong stand against Soviet infiltration in view of the U.S. agreement to take political and economic sanctions against the Trujillo regime in the Dominican Republic.

Has Interesting Story - And True

FORT WORTH (AP)—Thomas Jones, 23, had the perfect answer Saturday for friends who asked about his bandaged hand:

"I got bit by a crocodile."

It happened Friday night as Jones and other Forest Park Zoo employees moved 600 reptiles from temporary quarters into the zoo's new reptile house, which opens Sunday.

Jones leaped into the crocodile pit and grabbed a six-foot resident. He hopped back out with a bitten thumb.

He was treated for two crocodile tooth marks. The crocodile was still in its pit.

Texans Of 90th Division To Mark 43rd Anniversary

AUSTIN (AP)—About 7,500 Texans of the 90th Division, an Army reserve unit, will mark its 43rd anniversary Thursday.

The division was formed Aug. 25, 1917, in San Antonio during World War I.

Originally called the Alamo Division, the 90th drew almost all of its strength from Texas and Oklahoma. It also was tagged the Texas-Oklahoma Division.

The division slogged across France, winning high tribute from Gen. John J. Pershing and earning three campaign ribbons: St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne and Lorraine.

"Every objective was taken; not an inch of territory was yielded to the enemy. The 90th is one of the very best divisions sent over here," said Pershing, commander of American Expeditionary Forces.

In mid-1919, the 90th became a paper division, and stayed so until March 1942.

The 90th men then came from all 48 states, and the "Texas-Oklahoma" became the "Tough Ombres."

Again the 90th went to Europe. Leading elements of the division scrambled ashore in Normandy on

D-Day in 1944 and the rest of the 90th arrived a few days later.

For almost a year, the division slogged across France and Germany and into Czechoslovakia. It was part of Gen. George Patton's 3rd Army.

In April 1945 when one of the 90th's units found the last of the German gold reserves worth about 100 million dollars in an abandoned salt mine 2,100 feet below the surface.

Eight months later the 90th retired again. Gen. Omar Bradley said that the 90th had become "one of the most outstanding in the European theater."

Almost two years later—in August 1947—the division was reactivated, this time in the Army Reserve. Now the 90th became "Texas' own."

Larry Sherry Wins Again For Dodgers

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
As a would-be starting pitcher, Larry Sherry is a loser everytime he wins.
The young right-hander simply has proved too valuable in relief for the Los Angeles Dodgers to get a real shot as a starter. At the moment, he is their top winner, collecting his 13th victory with 7 1-3 innings of three-hit relief Monday night as the Dodgers came from behind to beat San Francisco 5-4.

It was Sherry's fifth straight success, all in relief. With two saves, he has accounted for seven of the Dodgers' last 11 victories in their bid to get rolling in the National League race.
With the top three clubs idle, the fourth-place Dodgers picked up a half-game, but still trail first-place Pittsburgh by 8 1/2. They are 603 percentage points behind third-place St. Louis.

CUBS BEAT REDS
In the only other game Monday the Chicago Cubs whipped Cincinnati 6-3. The Cubs also handed Billy Martin, the Reds' second baseman, a $1,040,000 damage suit in the August 4 fracas that sidelined pitcher Jim Brewer with a broken cheek.
The Dodgers, trailing 4-2 after the Giants got rid of starter Don Drysdale in the second inning, took over with three runs in the third against loser Stu Miller, then counted the winning run in the fourth as Norm Larker singled for his third RBI. Larker, 3-for-4 in the Dodgers' 10-hit attack, padded his league leading average to .349.

All-Stars Drop Opening Game

The Big Spring All Stars lost their first outing in tournament play in Fort Hood last night 7-6 to Killien in an extra inning of play.
The Big Spring team led 6-4 in the bottom half of the ninth inning, but two runs were walked in and another came in on a base hit reversing the situation in favor of the Killien team.
Now in the losers bracket, the Big Springers will take the field again tonight.

HODGES AGAIN
Gil Hodges homered for the final Dodger run in the seventh. It was his seventh of the season, the 32nd of his career. That broke a tie with Ralph Kiner as the NL's all-time champ among right-handed hitters.
Felipe Alou drove in three runs with a pair of singles for San Francisco, but Sherry, who has lost eight, shut off the Giants on one run the rest of the way. Willie Mays, second to Larker at .330 brought it in with a sixth-inning home run, his 20th.
Sherry is 12-6 in relief after a brief early season shot as a starter.

Brawling Billy Slapped With Bulky Damage Suit

CHICAGO (AP) — Brawling Billy Martin, the scrappy Cincinnati second-baseman who Monday was sued for $1,040,000 by the Chicago Cubs and rookie pitcher Jim Brewer, could be contemplating a counter-suit.

BILLY MARTIN

Martin indicated there was the possibility of a counter-suit after he was served with a notice shortly before Monday's game between the Redlegs and the Cubs at Wrigley Field.
The action stems from a brawl Aug. 4 in which Martin slugged Brewer, charging that the Cub pitcher was throwing at his head.
The Cubs and Brewer, who has been hospitalized since being punched, are asking $200,000 each in actual damages and an additional $800,000 each in punitive damages.

baseball and therefore lost great earning power, has suffered bodily harm requiring hospitalization, operations and other extensive medical expense.
The club charges it has lost the services of the pitcher for an indeterminate length of time and has suffered loss in his training, development and future services.
Following the battle in which other players were involved, Martin was suspended five days and fined $500 by National League President Warren Giles.

Brewer, a 23-year-old from Broken Arrow, Okla., has had two operations involving the orbital bone of his right eye. Physicians say he's out for this year and that he is to stay away from all athletic activity during the winter which also means he cannot referee basketball this year.
Martin's first remark after being served with the notice was: "I wonder if they want this in cash or by check."
Later he indicated the possibility of a counter-suit, claiming that Brewer and the Cubs had endangered his career "because Brewer was throwing at my head. I have no doubt of that."
The complaint, filed in circuit court of Cook County, said Brewer suffered a loss in the opportunity to engage in professional

Tarbox Going To Olympics

Elmer Tarbox is all set to take off this week for the Olympics in Rome, Italy.
The Big Spring manufacturer (Elmer's Handicaps) will have a special interest in the games this year, for several of the members of the team have used his weights in training.
Tarbox will leave Thursday by train for Houston and board the KLM (Dutch) airline for Ontario and Amsterdam. From that point he will catch another plane to Rome. From the time he leaves Houston until he lands in Rome, less than a day's time will have elapsed.
He plans to be gone about two weeks. During the time he is in Europe, Tarbox hopes to visit several military bases where his weight handicaps are in use in the physical conditioning program.

AGELESS VETS

Talbert, Mulloy Seek Title, Praise Juniors

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Ageless wonders Bill Talbert and Gardner Mulloy, optimistic about the U.S. tennis youth team again today to seek their men's title in the National Doubles Championships at Longwood.
Talbert, 41, and Mulloy, 46, beat young Californians Dale Junta of San Leandro and John Lesch of Coronado 6-1, 6-2, 6-1 Monday in their first round test. The losers are both Navy Lieutenants (jg).
"The margin of edge held by the Australians is so small it could disappear overnight," Mulloy said of the international competition with an emphasis on the Davis Cup. "Our juniors are terrific and I believe happy days are just around the corner for Uncle Sam."
"Time and experience are all our top players need to put America back on top," Mulloy added.

"Bill and I may be able to speed their progress by resuming our partnership."
The last time Talbert and Mulloy appeared here as a tandem they lost in the 1953 finals to Myrvyn Rose and Rex Hartwig of Australia. The Talbert-Mulloy combine won here in 1942, 1945, 1946 and 1948 and twice were paired for the Davis Cup doubles.
While defending champions Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson remain idle, Australians Rod Laver and Bob Mark eliminated the Venezuelan Davis Cup pair of Marcos Gamboa and Ivo Pimental, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4 Monday. Laver and Mark are the second seeded foreigners.
Top seeded Americans, Earl Bohnholt of St. Louis and Chuck McKinley of St. Ann., Mo., ousted Malcolm Roach and Mike Woolven of England, 6-4, 6-4, 8-6.

FRANTIC FRANK

Lane Blames Indians' Poor Showing On Injury, Pitching

By HARRY JONES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP)—The tendency among disappointed Cleveland Indians fans is to pin the blame on General Manager Frank Lane. Maybe frantic Frank is at fault—and then again, maybe he isn't.
The Indians, in second place 1 1/2 games behind league-leading New York on July 16, have tumbled to fifth place, 11 games out. During that span, the team has lost 25 of 36 games.
Before a man is condemned he usually is given the right to defend himself. Even a lynching party allows a prisoner a chance to speak his mind.
So, these questions were put to Lane Monday in Boston.
Q. Frank, what's wrong with the Indians?
A. Before we begin this, let me say one thing: I never alibi. I simply try to speak the truth as I see it. Right now, just about everything is the matter with the Indians. If I were to single out the one thing that hurt us most I'd have to say it was (shortstop) Woodie Held's injury.

Here was the one man on the club we could ill afford to lose. What ever chance we had to win the pennant—and in my mind it was a good chance—it went out the window when he got hurt.
When we lost Held we lost a good bit of our power. Little Mike do la Hoz has done a good job filling in, but we really didn't appreciate Held until we lost him.
Q. What else is wrong with the Indians?
A. I heard Bob Feller on the air the other day and he said he was disappointed in the failure of our young pitchers to improve. So am I. We depended quite a lot on (Gary) Bell and (Jim) Grant and they just haven't come through.
Q. Was the pressure too great on these young pitchers?
A. I'll answer that this way: was the pressure of any greater on our young pitchers than it was on Baltimore's?
You never know how kids react to pressure. Actually, our pitching staff is younger in years, but it is far more experienced than Baltimore's. To tell the truth, I wouldn't trade the potential of our staff for any other in the league. I still think the kids will be good pitchers.

Q. People in Cleveland are saying you made too many deals. How do you feel about that?
A. Well, it started to be seen. If we had returned off had this season I'd be inclined to think that way. But we had played 89 games and were only a game and a half from first place. That was when Held got hurt. I definitely felt we had a pennant, contender.
Q. Do you think you'd now have a better ball club if you had made more deals at all?
A. Absolutely not. We needed a third baseman and we needed improved catching. As for the Minnie Minoza deal, it looks bad for us now. Very bad. Lopsided. But you can't figure this deal on one year alone.
I still think John Romano will be one of the best hitting catchers in the league for a number of years. And who could figure the year (Bubba) Phillips is having? If he had been hitting his lifetime average, which is .264, and playing third every day, we'd have won.

United States Teams Arrive In Rome For The Olympics

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
ROME (AP)—Two of America's potential world-beating teams — track and basketball — arrive today on an Olympic Games scene churning with concern and expectancy.
Uncle Sam's tracksters and basketballers came belatedly from impressive exhibitions in Switzerland to join a powerful United States squad which hopes to spill the Soviet Union in the run for Olympic gold medals.
On two fronts, United States stock was sent booming.
On a third front, Nationalist China continued to object against its terminology as Taiwan in the games starting Thursday.

The IOC Monday decided to elect its president for a four-year term instead of the usual eight-year term, eliminating any restriction on the number of terms a man may serve. This paved the way for re-election of Brundage, Otto Mayer, Swiss chancellor of the IOC said the American's selection was "a certainty."
The IOC decided after a day-long debate — that Nationalist China may enter an Olympic entry under the name of the "Olympic Committee of the Republic of China" but must compete as "Taiwan," its geographical location.
In other action, the IOC: Added judo to its program of recognized sports.
Set a minimum of 18 sports on an Olympic program.
Tabled a motion by the Soviet Union that seven new women's sports be added to the Olympic program, specifically volleyball, archery, basketball, cycling, handball, rowing and shooting.
Accepted a proposal by the Soviet Union that no slogan or political matter of any kind may be permitted on Olympic uniforms or banners.

Representing Houston were Craig Cullinan, chairman of the Houston Sports Association's executive committee, and George Kirksey, executive secretary.
Webb is chairman of the American League's Expansion Committee, O'Malley of the National League's.

Crucial Series Opening Today

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
If the Chicago White Sox are going to nail their second straight American League pennant, the time is now, starting with tonight's opener of a two-game series in New York against the first place Yankees.
The White Sox are tied with Baltimore for second place, 1 1/2 games behind the Yankees—who have nothing but a week of worries ahead.
With the western clubs making their last swing through the East, forgotten rain outs now come back to haunt the Yankees. The pitching-wreck leaders play eight games in six days, with three consecutive doubleheaders looming ahead.

After a run-in with southpaw Billy Pierce and right-hander Early Wynn, two old pros running hot for the White Sox, the Yankees have a day off Thursday, then play a two-night pair with Cleveland Friday, an afternoon doubleheader with the Indians on Saturday and a Sunday twinbill with Detroit.
While the Yankees are seeing double, the White Sox have a chance to go-go. After their two sweeps at New York, the Sox go to Boston for two, then play two at Baltimore. The Orioles have three games with Detroit and two with Kansas City before the White Sox play at Baltimore Sunday and Monday.
The AL had a day off Monday. In the National League Los Angeles defeated San Francisco 8-5, and the Chicago Cubs rapped Cincinnati 6-3 in the only games scheduled.
Manager Al Lopez of the White Sox hasn't decided between Pierce (12-7) and Wynn (9-8) for tonight's opener against the Yankees, who have a 10-8 season edge over the champs. Both Pierce and Wynn have won two in a row. Each has won five of his last six decisions.
Casey Stengel, looking for pitching help for his Yankees, but only able to pick up a pinch-hitter in Dale Long, has tabbed right-hander Eli Grba (3-1) to face the White Sox tonight. Right-hander Art Ditmar (18-24), the Yanks' top winner, goes in Wednesday's afternoon game.

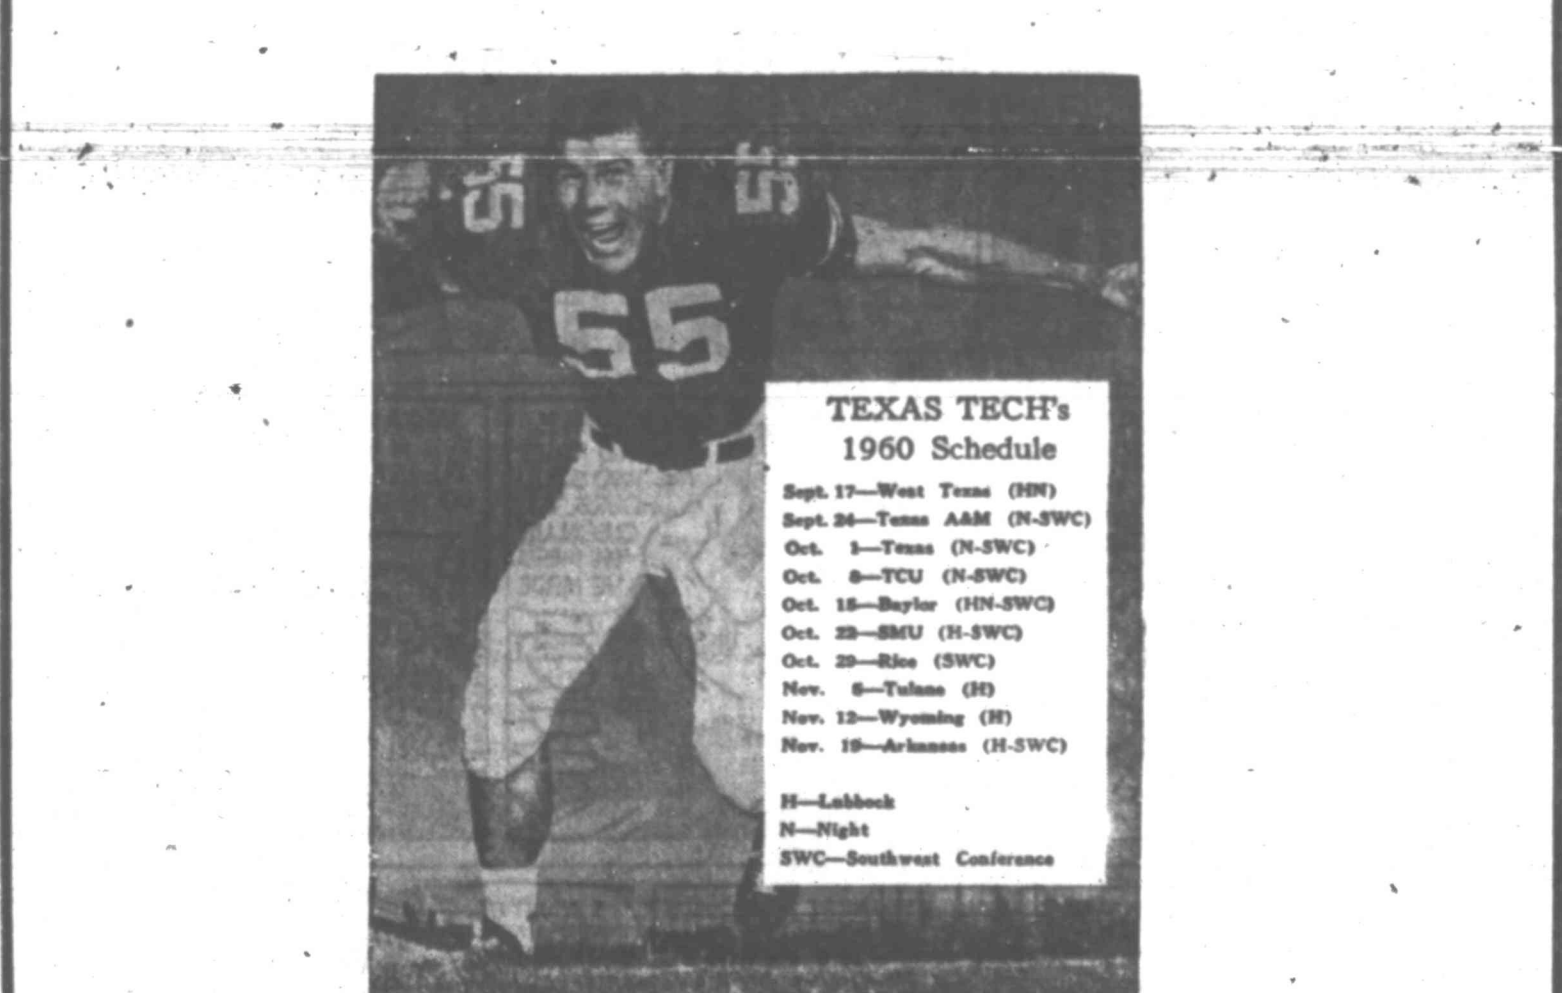

Tech Man Due With Stadium Seat Offer

Citizens in the Big Spring area will have their most convenient opportunity to purchase Texas Tech stadium seat-options Wednesday.

Polk Robison, Tech's assistant athletic director, will be in the Settles Hotel from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with all the necessary details for selecting and purchasing a specific seat option.
Seat options in newly expanded Jones Stadium will assure a good location in the stadium for all of Tech's home football games from this fall through the fall of 1974. By buying an option, a person will actually pay less for his seat than will a non-option holder in the same location. A non-option holder will pay a special premium on a seat in option areas with no assurance as to where his location will be until he makes his purchase.
Options may be purchased for $100, $200 or $300 in the open stands, depending on the location.
An option in an especially enclosed section of the press box may be bought for $1,250.
Jones Stadium will be enlarged to 41,500 seats this fall, when the Red Raiders begin competing for the Southwest Conference football championship.
Funds from option sales are being used to finance the expansion.
Option purchasers may arrange time payments without interest or carrying charges. Option payments are tax deductible, Tech officials reminded.

Evaluations, Tax Roll Take Jump In Dawson County

LAMESA—Increases in personal and real property offset a corresponding decrease in oil assets as the 1960 Dawson County tax evaluations soared to $24,379,350 and the total tax roll jumped to $393,418, according to Leland C. Miller, assessor-collector.

The new tax roll was approved this week during a regular meeting of the county commissioner's court. It indicated that total evaluations increased $37,830 and taxes $4,190.

The 1959 evaluation was listed at $24,021,520 and the tax figure was $389,228, slight increases despite a reduction in oil property so far this year.

The primary cause of the depletion of oil assets and tax sources was attributed to an eight-day producing pattern throughout the state. The industry paid almost 46 per cent of the taxes in the county during 1959.

Oil property still accounted for the bulk of rendered valuations, $7,769,490, and city property was listed at $5,925,010. Personal property, including 8,800 assessed vehicles, totalled $3,884,920 and other city and personal property amounted to $73,600.

'Hell' Wants Post Office

WASHINGTON (AP)—Now even the people in Hell want a post office.

This right Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain (R-Mich.) told Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield today that his constituents from Hell, Mich., say they could use a postal substation.

It's a just a small place as Chamberlain pictures it—a restaurant, a service station and a number of summer cottages. But, it draws large numbers of tourists.

"One young man from Illinois by the name of Mr. Satan insisted on bringing his bride to the resort area so that they could be married there," he wrote Summerfield.

"During the tourist season, it is visited by a very large number of people, most of whom are greatly disappointed that they are not able to communicate with the folks at home from Hell."

Dental Care For Children

Here are some tips that may help you save your children's teeth and also save exorbitant dental bills.

Be sure that children brush their teeth regularly and thoroughly. Make sure that their toothbrushes are in good condition, that they are not injurious to the youngsters' gums yet do a good job of cleaning.

Remember, that sugars and starches in the mouth activate acid-forming bacteria capable of destroying tooth enamel.

Eliminate as much sweetened carbonated drinks, candy, cake and cookies from daily diets as is possible.

Choose a mouth wash not only for its pleasant taste, but look for a wash that contains recognized anti-bacterial ingredients.

And don't forget that an important asset to dental health is a well-balanced diet of dairy foods, vegetables, fruit, protein-rich fish and meats, as well as cereal grains.

The youngster should see the dentist regularly for a dental check-up and teeth cleaning. Don't wait for Junior or Jane to say, "Mom, I've got a toothache."

HAMILTON OPTOMETRIC CLINIC

Announces the association of Dr. Harold G. Smith OPTOMETRIST 106-108 West Third Dial AM 3-2501

The Intestines Are Important

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.
If we are asked which organ of the body was the most important — our answer would almost certainly include the heart and brain, but how many would say the intestines?

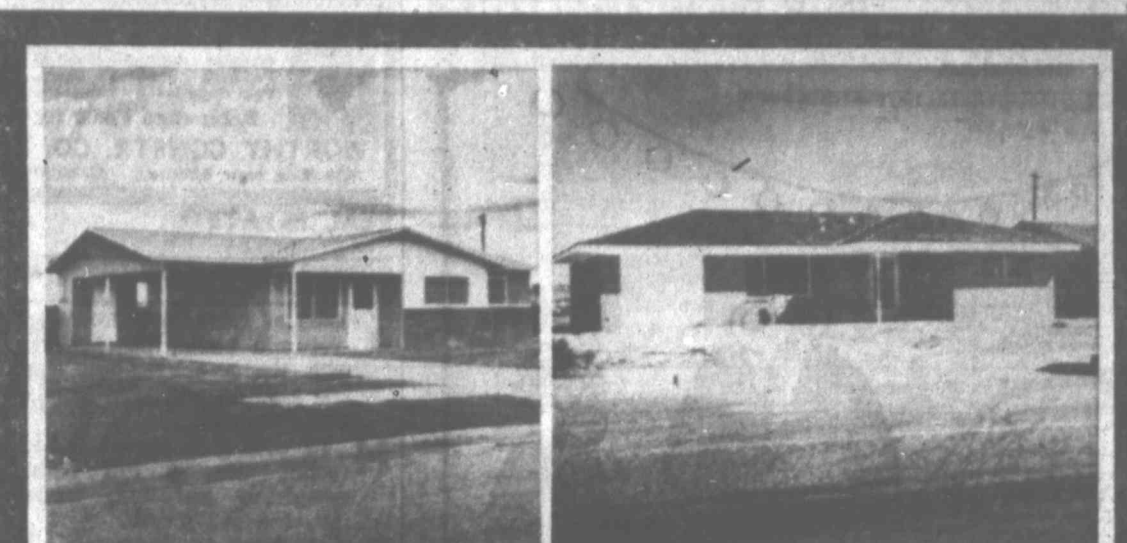

We could not live without them, although some do seem to get by after several inches or even a foot or more has been removed.

The intestines do the work that most of us mistakenly give the stomach credit for — that is, the actual digestion and assimilation of the food we eat. The stomach churns and mixes in some digestive juices during the first four or five hours the food is in the stomach. However, the intestines continue to churn and knead the food back and forth for many hours longer, while special fermentation processes liberate basic nutritional elements that are eventually absorbed as food, providing us energy for vital processes and physical activity.

The constantly changing and rhythmic motions of the intestinal muscles require constantly surging "nerve-wave" impulses from the brain over a perfectly functioning nerve system. Any interference with the normal co-ordination of this organic integrity such as pressure upon, contraction, stretching or stimulation of the nerve lines will affect a change or actually block the nerve-wave pattern. When such disturbances are present as in this actual clinic case from our files, there may be many abdominal symptoms to make life miserable until the nerve lines are cleared of such interference and made free to work normally again.

This discouraged forty-nine year old man came to the Hansen Chiropractic Clinic complaining of chronic constipation, abdominal gas, bloating, dizziness and persistent daily headaches. Reason for his discouragement — he had suffered for twenty-five years — his life was miserable — other doctors had given him hope and failed him — but once again chiropractic normalized a badly disorganized network of nerves and Nature repaired her short circuit. Result — it gave him a new lease on life. We simply searched out his nerve interferences with X or spinal analysis and spinal X-Rays — we removed these disturbances by re-aligning the offending vertebrae and this gentleman was amazed to see his chronic constipation vanish along with his other symptoms. No. 523. The above case proves that delay makes any condition grow worse. If you are still suffering in spite of your past treatments, why not investigate before reaching that point of no return. Besides, what have you to lose except bad health? India's First Super Movie Hits U. S.

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The first "super" production of India's movie history opened this month in 150 theaters across the country. It could bring "super" changes in the world's second busiest motion picture industry.

"Mughal-e-Azam"—The Great Mogul—has more than a little of everything. It is both black and white and color. It has a cast of more than 4,000 people and 4,000 horses. There were 2,000 camels, too, but they disappeared when the film was edited down to 3 hours and 15 minutes.

Director Karim Asif claims to have spent more than 12,500,000 rupees—$3,636,000—a sum unheard of before in the Indian movie industry. Many Indian films, including the international prize winner "Father Pantalu," are low-budget jobs, shot on weekends so the directors and players can hold down other regular jobs.

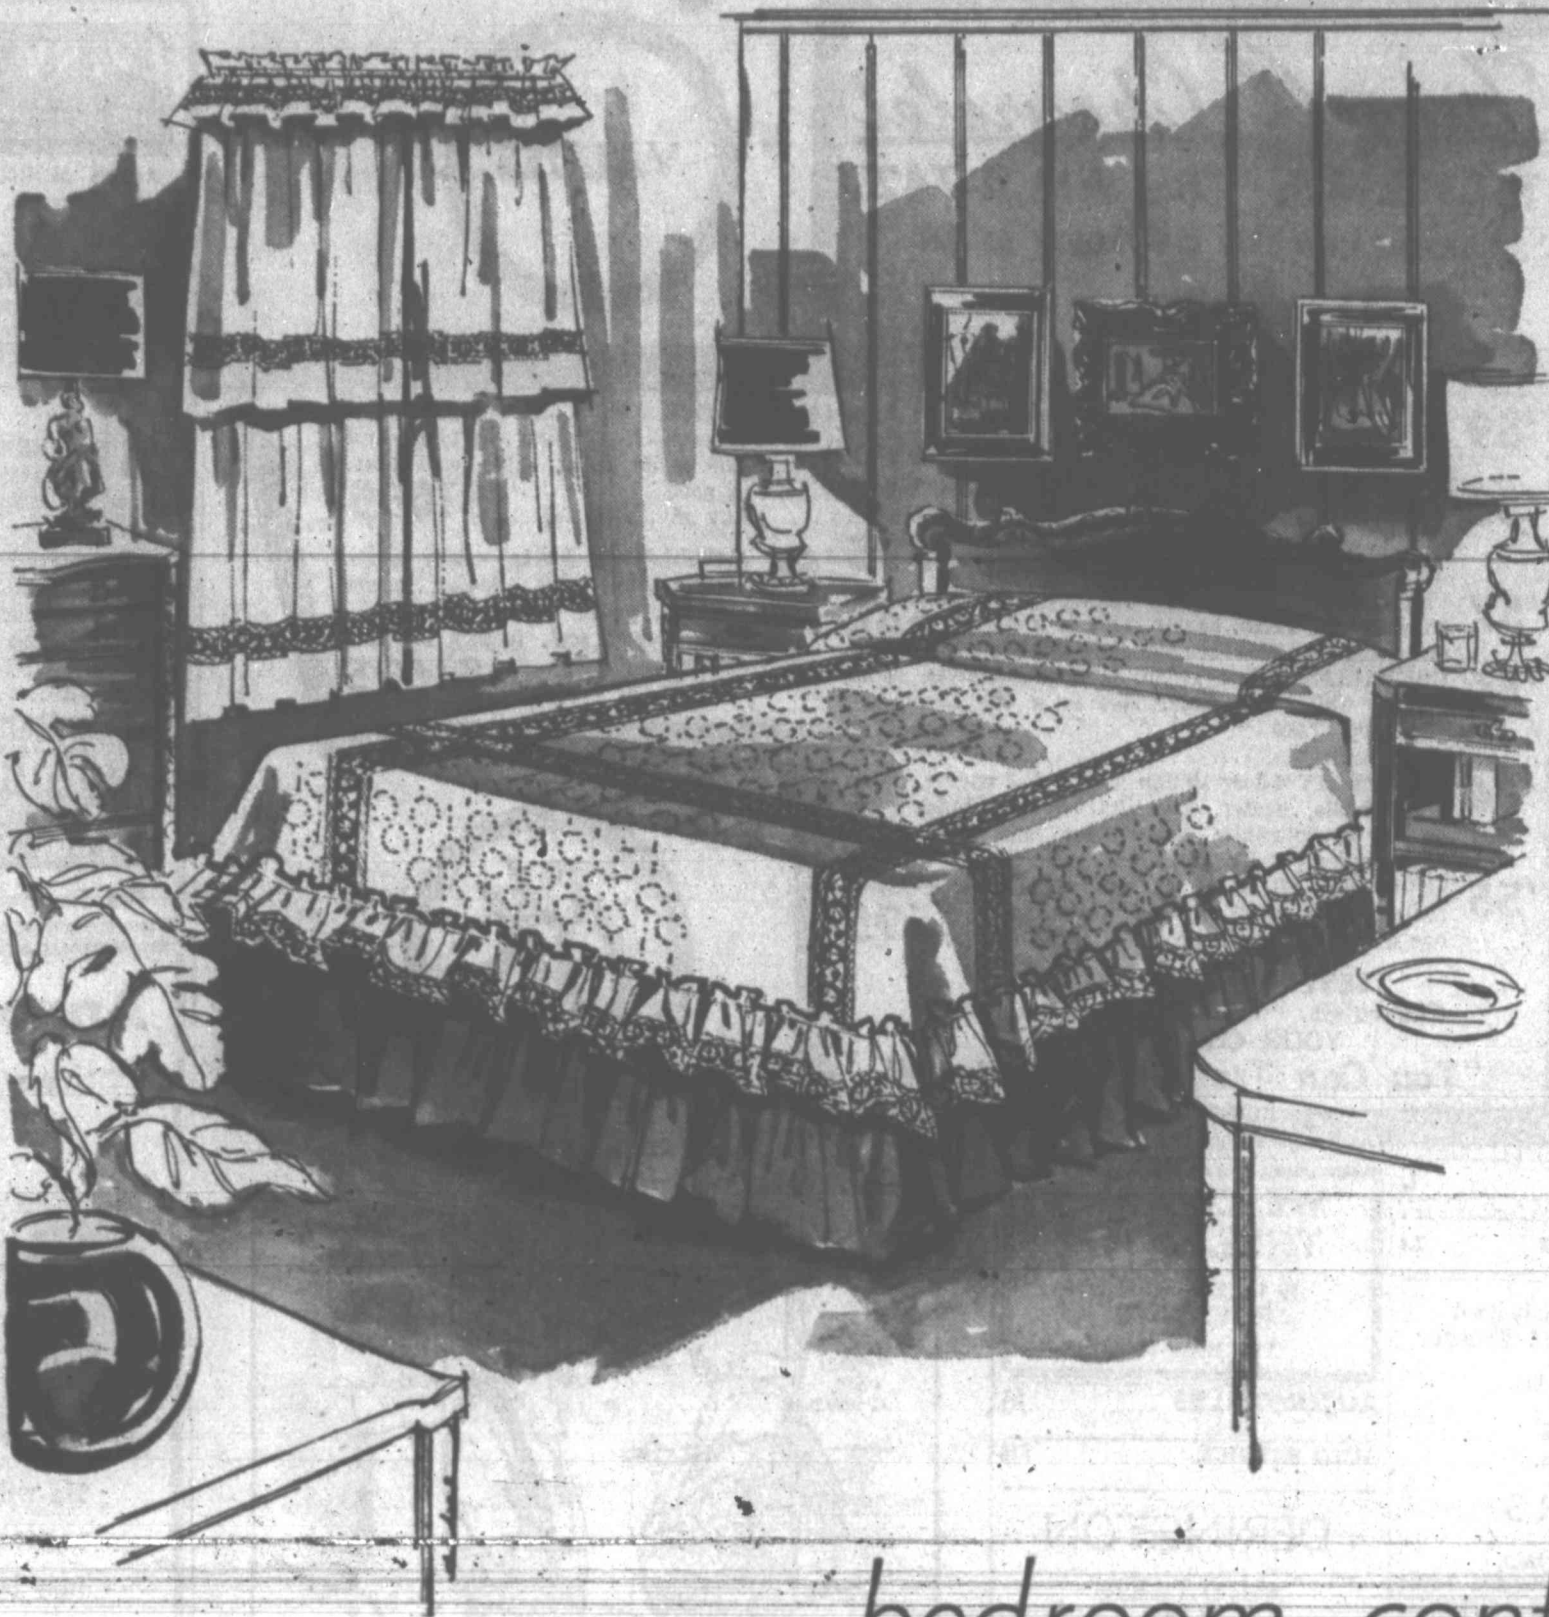

If Asif and his backers show they can spend huge amounts on a movie and get it all back, the result could be big changes for an industry that annually turns out about 300 feature-length films.

Asif began "Mughal" in 1944 but had to give up after four reels because of a shortage of money. It took him eight years to find another angel in the person of Shapoorji Pallonji Mistry, 72, a Bombay millionaire. It took another eight years to complete the picture.

One whopping expense was constructing a set showing a Mogul period building, the Sheesh Mahal—House of Mirrors. It took 1 1/2 million rupees and two years of work.

Asif spent more than a million rupees to boom "Mughal" in newspaper advertisements across the country.

The central theme of "Mughal" has been filmed three times since the talkies came to India, and all three versions were successful. The story has an abundance of the tears, thunder and sex needed to captivate the average Indian movie audience.

Nilsson, Warren, Callas Discs Fill Void For Opera Fan

By L. J. KRAMP
AP News-Feature Writer

Some of the most sumptuous stereo sound on record and the richly glowing voices of Birgit Nilsson, Leonard Warren and Maria Callas are new albums of "Turandot," "Il Trovatore," and "La Gioconda."

Along with new imported albums of Haydn's "St. Cecilia" Mass and Dvorak's "Requiem," and three recital singles by Eileen Farrell, these discs should keep the opera buff's hi-fi rig busy until the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts in the late fall.

"Turandot" has been acclaimed as the best on records. It is Puccini's last, introduced in 1926, and his most lavish in orchestral and choral sound. It taxes its soloists, but here Birgit Nilsson in the title role, Jussi Bjorling as Calaf, and Renata Tebaldi as Liu, are up to the challenge. RCA Victor's engineers have outdone their lush opera sound of 1959 with this fine new stereo disc.

Leonard Warren's tragic, passionate voice surges throughout the three-disc album of "Il Trovatore," with Leontyne Price, Richard Tucker, Georgio Tozzi and Rosalind Elias (RCA Victor). Verdi's dark and melancholy music was a favorite vehicle for Warren before his recent death on the Met stage. This performance, sung a year ago, is convincing proof that Warren was not only a great Count di Luna, but also the world's greatest baritone.

Maria Callas rocketed to prominence a decade ago with her Cetra recording of "La Gioconda." Now she sings the same opera in a splendid stereo sound in a three-disc set. An Italian supporting cast sings with the Orchestra and Chorus of La Scala, Milan (Angel).

The imported Dvorak's "Requiem" mass has been selling well since Deutsche Grammophon issued it through Decca in this coun-

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If the full season of television fulfills its late August promise, many of its faithful viewers will soon be approaching our sets with the joyous anticipation usually reserved for looking at a neighbor's movies of this vacation trip.

After three weeks of visiting sets, talking with producers and performers, and swimming through seas of enthusiastic adjectives in press releases, it seems obvious to me that television during the coming season will consist largely of a lot of tired old themes and stories dressed up with new, young faces.

The networks, having overworked the "special" show last season until it was no longer special, are relaxing this year. A few big names will occasionally put on a one-night show—Danny Kaye, Harry Belafonte, Fred Astaire and some others. But most of our viewing will consist of old filmed stuff remodeled slightly. Of course, I haven't seen any of that, because I've been so busy with my own work. I've been hired to tell the public how marvelous are the wonders in store for them, they're mighty careful not to let anyone get an advance peek at the product.

ic lyrics have brought laughter and tears to Americans for 40 years, died of stomach cancer today at the age of 65.

His death at his beloved country home of Highland Farms, far from the glitter of Broadway, ended one of the brightest careers in theatrical history.

The big gentle man who penned the words of such songs as "Ol' Man River," "Who?" "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," "Only Make Believe," "Some Enchanted Evening" and "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," died shortly after midnight.

His lyrical gift helped fashion a brilliant string of musical shows that have become popular classics, from "Rose Marie," "The Desert Song," and "Show Boat," down through "Oklahoma," "South Pacific," "The King and I," and currently the Broadway smash "The Sound of Music."

Since his collaboration with composer Richard Rodgers in 1942, the names of the two men have become a theatrical tradition.

The poetry that poured from him for more than a thousand songs touched the core of Americans. Hammerstein was an unabashed sentimentalist and made no bones about it.

"I know the world is filled with trouble and many injustices," he once said. "But reality is as beautiful as it is ugly. I think it is just as important to sing about beautiful mornings as it is to talk about slums. I just couldn't write anything without hope in it."
