DISCIPLINE

NOTED HISTORIAN WRITES OF CIVIL WAR'S CAUSES

What brought about the Civil-War? Did democracy fail? Or was the machinery of democracy simply not used to avert the bloody conflict?

These questions and many others are considered by Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Bruce Catton in a series of articles to appear through Sunday, when the Civil War Centennial will officially begin. The first article appears on Page 3 of today's Herald.

Catton at 61 is perhaps the most famous living student of the Civil War. A master of the subject, he calls it "The thing that makes America different."

A native of Petoskey, Mich., the author-editor began his professional life as a newspaper reporter, working on the Cleveland News, Boston American, Cleveland Plain Dealer, and finally as Washington correspondent for a feature service.

In the World War II years, he was associate director and then director of information of the War Production Board; director of information for the Department of Commerce, and special assistant to the Secretary of Commerce. A dozen colleges and universities have bestowed honorary de-grees upon him. In 1954, he received the Pulitzer Prize for history and the national book award for "A Stillness at Appomattox." Other books include "This Hallowed Ground." "Grant Moves South" and many other histories of the Civil War period.

THE NEEDLESS WAR

Democracy Wasn't Used To Halt Conflict

Editor's Note — Next Sunday Amer-ticans begin the commemoration of the great war that rent the Union a cen-try ago. Was this actually an "irre-pressible conflict" or a tragedy of er-rors that could have been avoided? In the first of a four-part series adapt-ed from an address delivered before The Associated Press Managing Editors convention, one of the nation's leading Civil War historians discusses that guestion and its meaning for Americana today. today.

Texas Weather Clear And Cold

By The Associated Press Clear and cold weather prevailed over most of Texas Tues-day with only the lower coast and Lower Rio Grande Valley areas reporting cloudy skies.

A light drizzle fell at Brownsville shortly before, dawn. It was the only precipitation reported in the state.

The freeze line extended from south of Texarkana on the Louisiana border through Lufkin and Waco to Junction and into the Big Bend Country.

Dalhart had a pre-dawn low of 18 degrees. Amarillo and Lubbock had 20 degrees readings.

Maximum temperatures Monday afternoon ranged from 41 at Amarillo to 62 at Brownsville. The U.S. Weather Bureau said that the only predicted change in the state's weather picture would be a slight warming trend in the northern part of the state Wednes-

Charles Le Maire designed this costume for Gail Patrick, executive producer of the "Perry Mason" television show, talented actress and long-time motion picture favorite, who models it here. Made of a lacy, almost transparent, tissue-light wool tweed in navy and white, the dress is simply but skillfully shaped for flattery. The set-in belt curves upward in front, widens and dips downward in the back and holds easy shirring over the hips of the slim skirt. A handsome accessory is the self stole, self-fringed on all edges. Three-quarter sleeves are unmounted, bustline is intricately

Laundry Aid

If you find it difficult to select the proper washing conditions for the variety of fabrics you have to launder, you'll find the 1961 combination washer and gas clothes dryer a great improvement. According to the manufacturers, the best washing conditions for every type of load are locked into computer-type timer controls. At the touch of a single button the machine will select the correct washing and drying condition. All your have to do is to sort the laundry load the machine, add the right amount of soap or detergent and push the button

A Resolution We Can Make

There was a time when our record of non-fatalities inside the city limits stretched past two years and well toward a third. Contrast that to last year when three fatalities-one-fourth of the total in the county-occurred within the city limits

Call it what you will, but luck figures a lot in these records, for during the long stretch without fatalities, there were several which occurred just outside the limits. The point got to be such a fine one that arguments arose about where the city limit lines actually were.

But you can't attribute all of it to luck. plays just as much a part of a safe driving record as it does in the county. Caution-or careful driving-is not just a matter of concern for the police. We don't recall a policeman ever having been on the list of fatalities. Caution is a matter of concern for every driver, for his life or that of his family, may be in peril. Even if hr may escape serious injury or death in a collision, he may still reap the results of higher insurance rates. Honeste demands that we recognize that each of us is paying a penalty on our collision and liability insurance because of an altogether unreasonable rate of accidents. A good resolution for all of us is for caution inside the corporate limits to do something about it this year-to drive carefully and safely.

Job With Urgency

Wet and cold weather once more has taken its toll on certain of the city's paved streets. Most of the difficulty is on the hot-top areas which were not serviced in last year's seal coating program. At any rate, there are major chug holes developing on many of the streets. and they are going to get worse until repairs are made. Crews doubtless will be hacking away at the accumulation of repair assignments, but this may not be fast enough to stay abreast of the problem

If it takes extra crews to attend to this pressing problem, it seems to us that it would be an entirely warranted expense. The holes in many places are deep enough and big enough to actually constitute a menace to traffic, at least to car springs

Nixon Is Resolutely Running For '64

WASHINGTON-Whatever 1961 may bring to the nation and the world, and this is the season of the slightly cracked crystal ball, the future of one man who figured so prominently in the annals of the year just ended seems unmistakably clear.

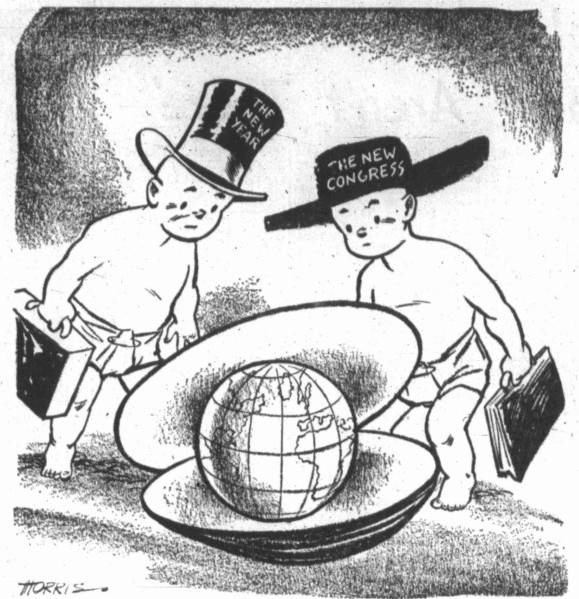

The visitors whom Vice President Richard Nixon has been seeing since his Southern vacation have left with few doubts. He means with all the resolute disciplined intensity that is central to his character to run for President in 1964. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that he began to run for a second time on the day after the returns showed he had lost by such a heartbreakingly narrow margin.

In the immediate aftermath of the election the speculation was that Nixon, upon primary contests in which in '64 Nixon will put his standing to the test.

WHAT MADE THE California victory the more remarkable was the shambles in which the Republican party was left after the disaster of 1958. Pat Brown won by a majority of more than a million votes over Sen. William F. Knowland who had insisted on running for the governorship. He had rudely pushed Gov. Goodwin Knight aside, and Goody had therefore by default made a faint-hearted race for the Senate seat. The hostility between these two was far greater than anything they generated against their Democratic opponents. That cloud no bigger than a man's hand on the California horizon today is the intimation from Knight that he may decide to run for Governor again next year.

Around The Rim The Musical (Haw!) Mr. Cootes

Many years ago I took up music and to any great forward steps in the musical enjoyed it immensely. But for one reason and another, I gave up a musical career and sold my saxophone.

But Santa Claus smiled on our house and left two musical instruments, a guitar and an electronic organ. I realize this is an unlikely combination and our neighbors are even more sure of it.

My good wife Joyce can handle the organ rather easily and music comes out good. You wouldn't expect me to say anything else, I'm sure, but nonetheless it is true. But after spending many hours plucking away at the guitar, I've about decided my forte is the musical comb. At any rate, it isn't the guitar.

I HAD HOPES of developing into a concert guitarist after seeing the fellow who displayed such mastery with Jose Greco's troupe. It looked easy enough. But all I have been able to develop is sore fingers

After my first few hours of practice, one neighbor asked politely if we had taken up strangling cats at our house. I seriously considered the action proper, but I would have picked a more handy subject at the time.

But I have determined to stick with it and if my present progress continues, 1 should be able to get it in tune in another two or three weeks. I feel this is a great step forward, but doubt that it will lead

ONE UPSETTING thing is my good wife's habit of racing into the room with a worried look with the question, "Are you hurt?" everytime I blend my vocal talents to the guitar. Apparently, my dulcet tones do not find favor in the household. Even the dogs begin to howl and the fish swim a bit deeper in their tanks.

They never seem to mind when I bellow forth from the shower with "O Sole Mio," but in the quiet of the living room. the same demonstration of vocal strength invariably brings the house down on my head.

That bit about "a man's home is his castle" does not extend into the musical world, I have found. "You can leave your slippers on the living room floor, but that talent must be tempered with moderation," she says. "Low moderation."

AS A RESULT, I confine my vocal talents to the shower with the sound of falling water as accompaniment, Admittedthe guitar wood warps a bit and it ly. gets heavy when it fills up with water. But I can't tell much difference. Joyce says she can't either as it is about as bad one way as the other.

I'll let you know when the Concert Association books my first performance. I don't know how we will get a shower piped onto the city auditorium stage. -V. GLENN COOTES

Inez Robb Doesn't Enjoyment Count?

Should contemporary poetry be protected from young people? T. S. Eliot, whose poetry won him a Nobel Prixe in 1948, believes it should. The American-born poet, now a British subject, would bar the study of contemporary poetry in the classroom.

In his ideal school only the poetic classics would be studied. Eliot's reasoning is both novel and personal. When he had to study "The Merchant of Venice" and "Julius Caesar" in the classroom, he developed a lasting dislike for both. Ergo: forced familiarity with poetry in the classroom breeds long-term contempt.

Apparently, if I follow Eliot's thesis, it is all right for kids to develop a hate on classic poetry, because classic poetry is here to stay. So, sooner or later, if such students wish to become hepcats, culture-wise, they will be forced to read "Paradise Lost" and "Canterbury Tales," if only to keep up with the J. Alfred Prufrocks, who have also moved to Exurbia

BUT CONTEMPORARY poetry must be kept in the incubator, in the view of Eliot down in "The Teachers College Record," a publication of Teachers College of Columbia University. Either that, or modern poetry should be exposed in the classroom "only for enjoyment." It may be naive, but isn't the enjoyment of poetry, no matter what its age, the aim of classroom instruction? And isn't it possible that Eliot's classroom experience is less than universal and that all students do not, of necessity, hate what they study? How long does poetry have to age in the wood before it is safe for students to tipple? Eliot's "Prufrock" may have been strange and strong stuff for students when it was first published in 1917.

both were landmarks then and now, and though classicists may once have been stumped by them, time has dulled their novelty if not their genius. The classroom is safe for them. Perhaps Eliot does not realize it, but they are classics in an age of beatnik bards and thus qualify for student scrutiny

It is odd that Eliot's tender concern for modern poetry should come at a time when poetry itself, and modern poetry at that, is about to receive the accolade of public respectability and approval. For the first time, an American poet and a distinguished figure in the world of literature has been asked to read one of his superb poems at the inaugural of an American President, Robert Frost, who will be 86 on March 26, has been asked to "say" "The Gift Outright," a lyric outpouring to our land written 30 years ago.

CAN IT BE THAT Frost's age makes his poetry classic and, therefore, safe for the classroom? Yet there must be something more to it than this. Despite Eliot's belief that study of poetry turns students against it, Frost is the most popular visiting professor in America. His annual round of America's foremost colleges is limited only by his time and strength. Wherever he lectures, his classrooms are crowded. Furthermore, when Frost "says" his poems in public, there is never an auditorium quite large enough to hold the men, women and children who come to hear him. It is quite possible that this poet, so long overdue for the Nobel prize. attracts thousands because of the lucidity as well as the beauty of his work. There is a great hunger in all ages for poetry, and this age is no exception. Somehow, Shakespeare, Dante, Milton, Keats, Robinson, Masters, Amy Lowell, Cummings, et al, have escaped the classroom blight, and so, too, will Eliot. By putting a two-term limit on the presidency, the nation has shown it wants a limit on the guidance of any one man. Further, an ex-president may be, and probably is, miles apart from the new president's think returning to California, would prepare to run for Governor against Edmund G. (Pat) Brown in 1962. But those closest to him doubt this is even a possibility.

HE SEES NO REASON why, having run for President and been defeated by a teacupful of votes out of an overflowing 66,000,000 cast, he should turn around and run for Governor of California, California Republicans believe the odds would be in his favor. Brown has had to take some hard knocks, including the violent repercussions over the Caryl Chessman case. As was demonstrated during the campaign. Nixon's personal organization in the state is highly effective.

With a Democratic registration margin of 3 to 2, the Republicans carried the state in November by a small margin. It took the absentee ballots to do it. While the outcome was still in doubt during that cliff-hanging night, Nixon's press secretary, Herbert Klein, made the confident prediction that California would end up in the Nixon column. How much religious prejudice was a factor in the vote in Southern California no one can say.

BUT HOWEVER long the odds in Nixon's favor in a state which has almost always gone Republican in spite of a preponderant Democratic registration in recent years he might lose in a gubernational race. And that would certainly put a period to the Vice President's political future. The belief is that Nixon does not need public office to stay in the public eye.

Practicing law with a Los Angeles firm he will speak, write and travel widely. This was what Adlai Stevenson did between his defeat in 1952 and his renomination in 1956. Nixon will not lack for plat-, forms either for speaking or writing, and with a judicious sense of timing he can get almost as much mileage as though his words were those of a successful office holder.

He has what Stevenson did not have and that is a political task force personally loyal to him in every corner of the country. These men and women including those who went through the campaign at his side, will be working in season and out to advance Nixon's fortunes. They will, in effect, be preparing for the

This would touch off the old feud in full fury. And one of the early Nixon maneuvers must be Operation Knight.

As seen from the Nixon camp, the national picture is even more promising than the outlook in California. Essentially it comes down to this: the two extremes in the party, the Goldwater followers on the right and the Rockefeller marchers on the left, will kill each other off. And this leaves the broad middle road of Republicanism open to none other than Richard Milhous Nixon.

THAT. IN ANY EVENT, is how the script presently reads. A great deal canhappen in four years. Governor Rockefeller can be re-elected in 1962 with so impressive a showing that the wil inevitably be the candidate. Or Kennedy may so triumph over the mountain of obstacles now in his path that the Republican nomination for '64 will not seem to be worth very much.

In the past hundred years no Republican, except President Eisenhower has ever served two full terms in the Presidency. On the Democratic side Grover Cleveland was defeated at the end of one term and then after an interval of four years won a second term. So on past performance the odds favor the Democrats as against the Republicans. But that is to take a long look indeed into a troubled future.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

Everyope, we think, has a right to expect that the investigations launched into the two recent disasters - the plane crashes in New, York and the burning of the Navy's new carrier - will be prompt, unsparing and thorough. For the public interest is very much involved in both cases.

But we rather doubt that this public interest is served by having so many people involved popping off in public with thier own conclusions about what happened, long before the evidence is in. Certainly it was not all in when Federal Aviation Agency chairman Quesada had his own version of what happened in the airline collision: the Civil Aeronautics Board, which has direct responsibility for investigating air crashes, had not yet completed its study. And the questions raised by United Air Lines, while thoroughly appropriate, implied things at that time inproved.

New York's Fire Commissioner is a key man to be heard in the Court of Inquiry on the carrier fire, but any testimony about Navy carelessness would have been better heard first at that inquiry rather than in an advance outburst. And how, pray, could the Secretary of the Navy, in advance of that inquiry, be so sure that no Navy carelessness or poor housekeeping contributed to that disaster? We confidently expect that in time the public will have the answers as to what happened and why. But it would be better not to draw its conclusions from the headlines, even though some of the principals are quick to make them there. -WALL STREET JOURNAL

Chinese Science Crude-And Can Stay Crude

NEW YORK CITY-Our knowledge of nese policy. It consists of accompanying science in Red China in 1960 is about what our knowledge of Russian science was in 1950

This could be cause for alarm if we allow the same errors to flow from our ignorance. Working behind the Iron Curtain, while we laughed at their periodic boasts of superiority, the Russians gave us one shocker after another-from swift nuclear development to pioneering Space shots. The two-day Symposium on Science in Red China held last week gave abundant evidence that Asian Communism is capable of springing equal surprises-unless we stay abreast of developments.

This will be difficult-but not impossible. It is worth doing-but not worth doing at all costs. Some of the President-elect's New Frontiersmen want us to "accept" the Chinese Revolution, which inevitably means to aid and promote by our approval.

BUT THIS IS AN EXAMPLE of paying too much. There are other ways, better and cheaper, of keeping ourselves informed, One way, already undertaken, is for public and private scientific institutions to increase the amount of Chinese-into-English translations. Another is to hold frequent gatherings such as the one just finished. Indirect and remote methods are not as good as on-the-spot examinations. but in this case they seem adequate. There is no basic research of much account in continental China. We have little to learn from the Chinese in fundamentals. The application and development of scientific principles are what should be watched, both to guard against surprise and to learn for our own uses. It was the closest bowl game of the day and, picking it to play here. in ways, the most stirring battle. But, when the blue chips were showing it was Duke and not Arkansas that showed the championship poise. CAGE RESULTS

Lance Alworth of Arkansas was declared the most outstanding back of the game. Actually, the scribes had trouble making up their minds about the top back because the lines dominated play most of the afternoon. Alworth was spectacular in his 49-yard touchdown run on a punt return in the third quarter. He also cost the Razorbacks dearly on a couple of occasions. In the fourth period, when Duke was pressing Princeton 53 Competition 75 couple of occasions. In the fourth period, when Duke was pressing for its score, Lance raced over to foul up a pass from Don Altman (my choice of the best back of the game) to Tee Moorman.

Alworth could and should have intercepted the ball. Had he been able to come down with it, he would have had at least three strides on the closest Blue Devil to him and almost no one can catch Lance in an open field. The Porker star, however, dropped the ball and Duke retained possession and drove on in.

Fact is, the Blue Devils were hammering away inside Arkansas' one-yard line when the game ended.

For three quarters, Duke's All America Tee Moorman looked like the nation's most over-rated player but Altman began to zero in on him in the fourth and the fans' appreciation of his talents grew by leaps and bounds.

Arkansas knew his passes from Altman were coming but there was little the Hogs could do about it. He was all by himself in the end zone when he caught the Devils' TD toss.

When Alworth broke loose on his touchdown run, a Texan-Leslie Boss Of A's Leftsinger (Big Sandy)-threw the key block that sprung him loose. Even coach Bill Murray of Duke seemed to wince at the impact.

Taxicabs Use New Meter Plan

LAMESA (SC) - Lamesa taxicabs are operating with meters in compliance with the new ordinance ing hole below 6,502 feet. Drillsite adopted by Lamesa City Council late last year. The meter mandate is the last portion of the sweepng measure to be instituted. maximum of 35 cents for the rst half mile or fraction therewas set by the council. The cabs, however, may set their own ates below that figure. Each additional one-third mile will cost 10 cents and another time may be charged for each additional passenger beyond the first. The new ordinance also pro-ides $4 an hour waiting charge and a 25-fee for handling pieces of terms luggage the size of a footlocker or larger.

Arrested

Gerald Marini of Houston talks with reporters after he was arrested for robbing two restaurants, holding six persons captive and entering the home of the restaurant owner. Marini, father of two children, said he planned the robbery because he needed the money. He said he decided to rob the restaurants and the owner after looking through the criss-cross telephone directory to find a wealthy man.

Tempest puts safety-minded performance in a gas-saving 4!

(Range of horsepower choices from 110 to 155)

Take a Tempest out on the highway and put it through its paces. This car is a whiz at moving into fast-stepping company on an expressway. Takes you from a standing start to a safe operating speed in seconds . . . gets you up a steep hill in high gear.

Run the Tempest over the roughest road you can find. It rides like the big ones because it's balanced! The engine's up front-the transmission's in the rear. And it's got independent suspension at all four wheels. Tires dig in firm on curves and turns. Full 15-inch wheels make car look big. Tires last. Brakes run cooler.

Before it hit the market, Tempest had 3,000,000 miles of testing by engineers, pro drivers and a team of teenagers. Its reliability checked out 100%. Owners have rolled up millions more. The only kick is the one it puts back in driving. Try it!
