Jaycees Cite 3 For Local Service On Bosses Night

Big Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce members Saturday night honored their employers, and gave recognition to three persons in the field of community service, at the annual Bosses Night Banquet. And, they had a lot of fun listening to Louie Throgmorton of Dallas, who had anecdotes in profusion and in wit, as he combined humor and inspirational points to stress the advantages of what he called AWOL—The American Way of Life.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

One bit of good news came out of Austin last week when the railroad commission pped the number of production days from 8 to 10. Whether it holds or not remains to be seen, but for the beleaguered independent it did remind that "into every life a little rain must fall." And in this country "rain" is welcome.

County commissioners last week closed a trade for the first bit of right of way on the US 87 project south from Fairview to Big Spring. They reached terms with Edgar Phillips, and since his was one of the most damaging cases on the route, the agreement is doubly important.

Springlike weather of the past week produced some political buds as well as popping of blossoms on shrubs. Maurey Maverick, San Antonio, brought his U.S. Senate campaign here, and John Tower, Wichita Falls, announced he would be here Monday. With 33 in the field, the volume will step up from here on out.

Locally, Paul Kasch filed for reelection to the city commission. There are two places to be filled. Dr. Floyd Mays and O. S. Womack filed for re-election to the Big Spring school board. In the case of the city, it was decided to establish three new boxes for convenience of voters. A complication of this April 4 balloting is that it is on the same day as the U.S. Senate election.

Jaycees celebrated their 15th birthday in Big Spring on Saturday evening by observing their annual Bosses' Banquet. The adage that "in the bright lexicon of youth, there is no such word as fail" applies to these young men with a civic conscience and willing hands.

Parents of scholastics who are not in school got some sobering reminders last week that the law says the youngsters should be in school. Seven cases have been filed in court, and Curtis Kelly, visiting teacher, warned more are to come unless parents comply with the law.

City May Save $100,000 On Improvement Bonds

There is a good chance that the city of Big Spring will realize a savings estimated at $100,000 when the bonds are issued on the $4.3 million dollar bond improvement program.

This comes from A. K. Steinhilber, city manager, who returned late Friday from New York City, where he talked with bond companies. The key to the savings is the city's bond rating, similar to an individual's credit rating.

This rating currently is BAA. The next step up is a rating of A, which would be as high as a city of Big Spring's size could obtain. Steinhilber and Commissioners John Taylor and George Zachariah met with members of Standard and Poor's and Moody's last week.

The former company gave the city the high rating, but the latter is the important one.

The city manager explained that the difference between the two ratings could mean as much as $100,000 to the improvement program and maybe more. The higher rated bond could earn a lower interest rate, he said.

participate in such programs, and who allow them time to serve.

Throgmorton, a past master on the after-dinner platform, kept his audience in laughter with a variety of quips and stories. But he made some serious points, too, as he took his AWOL theme, and said it was made up of ambition, work, opportunity and love.

Our free enterprise system, he said, means that we are "free to enter for the prize," but this takes ambition. There is no want of opportunity in America, and in this nation are the workmen people in the world. But men also need to have love and loyalty, "to be men who will grow and glow."

The dinner affair was held at the Big Spring Country Club. About 75 attended.

Honored as the Jaycee of the year was Jimmie Taylor, Howard County's agricultural agent who for six years has been active in organization projects, particularly as chairman of the annual livestock and pig shows. He was lauded by Jaycee President Winston Wrinkle for his "willingness to volunteer for the hard jobs when others are reluctant."

TEACHER OF YEAR
Recognition as outstanding teacher of the year went to Mrs. Floy Hobbs, a teacher of mentally retarded children at the Bauer Elementary School. Mrs. Hobbs was cited for her exceptional ability in dealing with children of less than normal ability, for her enthusiasm in her work and for her outstanding cooperation with the school administration, other teachers and parents. Mrs. Hobbs, a graduate of West Texas State College, has 22 years experience in teaching. Four of them in Big Spring.

Recognized as the city's outstanding policeman for the year was Patrolman Frederick W. Pace, who has been on the force only nine months, but who has received many letters from citizens commending the manner in which he handles various situations coming before him. His citation noted his firmness in law enforcement, and also his understanding of others' rights. Pace is widely known as one of the department's good humor men.

Mrs. Hobbs, Taylor and Pace all received special plaques.

The club also presented certificates of appreciation to local radio stations, the TV station and The Herald for cooperation in publicizing Jaycee projects.

GUESTS
John Burgess was master of ceremonies for the program, and recognized, among others, Dan Bustamante, who recently was presented with the Jaycee distinguished service award; Ernest Spears of Snyder, a state vice president of the Jaycees; and three guests who were charter members of the club: Champ Rainwater and Lloyd Wooten, and Bill Cox of Odessa.

Burgess reviewed the organization's civic endeavors, and voiced appreciation to employers who encourage their younger workers to

C-City Votes 5-3 For Bond Issues

COLORADO CITY — Colorado City voters, in a breezy turnout, Saturday voted approximately 5 to 3 in favor of two bond issues to give the city more water and better streets.

The water bonds carried $27 to $31, and the paving assessment program carried $19 to $31, with 878 qualified voters turning out.

The $385,000 in water improvement bonds will be used to modernize and amplify the pumping and distribution system by providing additional lines from the lake to the outskirts of Colorado City. It will also provide for a million gallons of storage at the filter plant. Heavier and larger lines will be laid in part of the business section and the residential section to improve distribution and pressure.

No raise in taxes will be necessary to pay for the water bonds as a raise in water rates will provide the needed funds.

A $50,000 paving bond issue will provide for sealing some of the streets already paved and for paving an additional 50 blocks of streets. The program will be of the assessment type whereby the city pays for intersections and the property owner will be assessed $4.50 per curb foot for curb, gutter, and half the street.

The paving bonds will be paid from revenues with no increase in taxes necessary.

It's Official Jaycee Week

Mayor Lee Rogers has proclaimed this as Jaycee Week in Big Spring. His statement said: "Not only have the Jaycees applied the enthusiasm, energy and vision of youth to their many fine projects, but they have gained valuable lessons in community leadership. Without this any community cannot hope to sustain its pace or go forward. For their city, these young men believe in action today and dividends tomorrow. I urge the citizens of Big Spring to encourage them in every way in their undertakings."

Right now the Jaycees are making contacts for support of the annual livestock show, one of their annual major projects.

They also are completing arrangements for the regular monthly party for patients at the Big Spring State Hospital. There will be a respite from the regular meetings this week, due to the annual Bosses' Banquet held Saturday night, but the schedule will be back in force Feb. 27, said Winston Wrinkle, president.

Cool Weather Enters State

By The Associated Press

A mild cold front spread crisp air over the bulk of Texas Saturday. By dawn, all the state except the extreme south will have seasonable temperatures, the Weather Bureau said.

Temperatures down to 18 degrees were forecast for the upper Panhandle during the night.

Skies cleared behind the northern, which weakened as it shared the coastal regions. Temperatures ranged up to 82 degrees at Victoria early in the afternoon, 39 degrees warmer than Dalhart in the Panhandle.

Clouds were expected to thicken Sunday under influence of a trough in southwest Colorado.

The northern routed the warm, muggy air that provoked the first severe weather forecasts for the state Friday. The warnings passed without damage in Texas, but central Oklahoma towns suffered severe damage in a rash of rare winter tornadoes.

Light drizzle fell during the morning in South Texas and some showers spotted East Texas.

DAR Favors State Sales Tax

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution favors a state sales tax on all items, except foods and drugs, and it wants the Legislature to eliminate every unnecessary expenditure by the state and its agencies.

These and other resolutions were adopted Friday.

Those nominated for office during the coming year included Mrs. J. Eated Hall of Wichita Falls, regent; Mrs. James Sterling Crumpler of Lubbock, chaplain; and Mrs. James Barnhill of Amarillo, librarian.

President

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Francisco Hugo Aguilar Friday was elected president of the federal district division of the International Good Neighbor Commission.

Students Make Good Showing In H-SU Debate

Big Spring students made a good showing in Hardin-Simmons University's fifth annual high school speech tournament Friday and Saturday at Abilene.

Ilameta Carr won first place in girls' declamation, and second in girls' poetry reading. Linda Morton took third place in the latter category.

Miss Carr made the finals in all events she entered, including Bible reading, poetry and declamation. Steve Blair and Emmett Kent Morgan won four out of five debates, and placed 7th in the tournament among a field of 50 teams in boys' debates. It was their first debate as partners; also, Blair's first contest debate and Morgan's second.

The team of Johnny Cone and Dick Meacham placed 12th.

There were 12 students from Big Spring at the tourney. They were guided by drama instructor Bedford Forrest. Leaving here Thursday evening, they returned late Saturday after having participated in the day-long events Friday and Saturday. Mrs. Dora Jones, sponsor, also accompanied the group.

Miss Carr's victory in declamation and making the finals in all fields entered was described as "a pretty good feat" by Forrest.

More than 300 students from West Texas and Oklahoma participated in the tournament. Dr. DeWitt Holland of H-SU was director.

BUILDING PERMITS SHOW SHARP RISE IN ALL PHASES

Building permits issued during the past week show a sharp rise in new residences, business buildings, remodelings, additions, and other types, when the total ran to $240,375. There are seven days to go in February but the month's permits through Friday run to $324,431, passing last February's entire total of $148,340, and the combined total of January and February 1960, of $305,661.

The major portion of the permits has been issued for new residences. Twenty-five have been issued totaling $287,500. One new business building, a service station on Wasson Drive, by Standard Oil Co. of Texas, was listed at $20,000.

The 1961 building permits, for all types of construction, including demolishing old buildings, ran over last year's full January and February total by $259,070.

Most of the residence permits call for buildings in the $11,000 to $14,000 class, but three of them fall in the $20,000, $25,000, and $26,000 range.

Hints of a couple of major business buildings for Big Spring in 1961, if they materialize, may run the year's permits well over last year's total of $3,127,741—in fact it could be doubled.

String Of Crashes Results In Death

Donald Wells Needham, 29, of Lubbock, was dead on arrival at Big Spring by a Nalley-Pickle ambulance, following a one-car accident nine miles south of Big Spring on U. S. 87 about 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Three other men were injured in the same accident and are in Big Spring hospitals.

This was the third mishap reported Saturday afternoon, and all were one-car accidents. It was also the third traffic fatality in Howard County for 1961.

Don Sharp, driver of the wrecked car, was not seriously injured. Paul Hanson received a broken leg and cuts and bruises. The two men are in Malone and Hogan Hospital Foundation.

Cloyd E. Rappe, Lubbock, the fourth man in the car, was admitted to Cowper Clinic and Hospital and was reported to be in critical condition late Saturday.

The men told Highway Patrolman Kel Davis that they were on their way from Lubbock to Big Lake, when the accident occurred. Sharp apparently lost control of the vehicle and it rolled over several times.

Funeral arrangements are pending for Needham at the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home. Nalley-Pickle ambulances brought the four men to the hospitals. Needham's parents live in Ranger and he has two sisters, one in California, and the other in Ranger.

William Harrison Kay, 1209 E. 16th, was involved in a wreck at Sand Springs, caused by a mechanical failure. When the steering mechanism failed on his car, the vehicle swerved into a row of mailboxes. He was not injured in the accident which occurred about 7:15 p.m. Saturday.

Soviets Announce Contact Course For Venus Probe

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced Saturday night the 1,148-pound station it fired aloft last Sunday will pass Venus "at a distance of not more than 180,000 kilometers (about 112,000 miles) from the center of Venus."

This was the first word from Soviet authorities on what would happen to the device when it reached the orbit of the bright planet.

The previous Soviet statements merely had said it was aimed toward Venus and would reach the area in the latter half of May.

The prediction of the rocket's passage by Venus was based on a radio report which was received from the station Friday.

At that time the station was 1,180,625 miles from the earth and speeding away at 2.4 miles per second.

The announcement, released by Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the station is traveling on a course "close to the calculated one." There was no other indication just how close or how far off.

There was no hint as to whether Soviet scientists had attempted to alter the course of the station.

Tass said, however, that in the contact Friday "commands from the earth were received and carried out by the apparatus on board the station."

The apparatus, including solar batteries, was reported functioning normally. The temperature within the station was said to vary between 82 and 96 degrees (F) above zero.

Tass said the device is to make its closest approach to Venus at a point about 43 million miles from the earth, though it will have traveled some 168 million miles along its own orbit since the launching.

The possibility of radio contact "with sensible creatures in other worlds" was suggested by V. I. Soforov, a corresponding member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, in an Irestvia interview.

Soforov said the interval between now and the relatively close approach to Venus will be used for further tests of apparatus for "superlong-distance radio transmission."

It is likely that electronics will be developed to permit much longer radio transmission and reception than at present, he said, adding: "With that we can establish contact with sensible creatures in other worlds and make discoveries whose importance will be beyond the brightest fantasies of our day."

Heat-Sensitive Devices Carried

BULLETIN
VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Discoverer XXI shot into orbit Saturday, then by restarting his engine on a signal from the ground—showing how currently passive spy spies can be converted into maneuverable military space craft.

The Air Force said this was the first time an Agena B satellite vehicle had been restarted in orbit.

The Agena engine was ignited on the satellite's first pass around the earth's poles.

Maj. Gen. O. J. Rittland, commander of the Air Force Missile Division, said that Saturday's attempt was only to test the re-start system.

"It is another successful experiment to perfect the system for satellite stabilization and control in orbit," the general said.

No attempt to recover any part of the satellite will be made.

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The second Discoverer in 27 hours rocketed into orbit Saturday with heat-sensitive devices needed to perfect upcoming Midas missile-detection satellites.

The launchings Friday and Saturday — an obvious speedup in American satellite research — set a record in the lagging Discoverer series.

These workhorse satellites were originally scheduled to be fired at a rate of one a month. Some have been launched as much as two months apart. No two have been closer than six days.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) A Project Mercury man-in-space capsule is about to receive its most severe test on a crucial flight which it must survive if a U. S. astronaut is to be rocketed into orbit late this year.

CRITICAL TEST
The test also is a critical one for the Atlas booster rocket, which exploded on a similar flight last July.

Within a few days, a 110-ton Atlas is scheduled to fling the one-ton space chamber aloft to qualify it under the worst re-entry conditions imaginable.

If all works right, the capsule will hurtle to an altitude of 115 miles, then streak back through the atmosphere on a jolting, super-hot trip, landing in the Atlantic 1,400 miles down range.

"The spacecraft will be buffeted, scorched and squeezed aerodynamically as never before, and hopefully never again," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced Saturday.

"The object is to qualify the design and structure of the capsule under the worst possible re-entry conditions. To do this we have picked flight curves which will duplicate the most severe re-entry path the spacecraft could take after an emergency abort on an orbital flight."

TOUGH ANGLE
When the Atlas burns out four minutes after launch, the missile will be aimed slightly downward, at a 3 degree angle, compared with a normal re-entry angle of 1 1/2 degrees.

The slight change in angle will subject the bell-shaped chamber to these stresses:
—Re-entry heat of 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit on the upper section instead of the normal 1,500 degrees.
—Re-entry airload of 890 pounds per square inch, three times that expected on the manned orbital flight.
—Forces 16 times the pull of gravity, instead of eight times.
—An attempt will be made to recover the capsule if it lands as planned some 400 miles northeast of Puerto Rico after an 18-minute flight.

Quimby Quitting Chamber Post For Ft. Worth Job

Bill Quimby Saturday announced his resignation as manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, to accept a post as assistant general manager of the Fort Worth Chamber.

He submitted his resignation to President Horace Garrett, after receipt of word from Fort Worth that he had been accepted for the position there.

Quimby, among others, has been interviewed a short time ago at Fort Worth. The position represents a considerable increase in salary, as well as opportunity to function in a metropolitan organization. He will be first assistant to Fort Worth C-C Manager W. O. Jones, in directing a staff of 17.

MARCH 18
He is to assume the Fort Worth job from March 18 to 20.

Garrett said his board is accepting the resignation "with sincere regret, and I know that I speak for all Chamber members and citizens of the city when I say it is a real loss to Big Spring to have Bill leave us. He has done an outstanding job here, and selfishly, we would like to keep him. We do, however, acknowledge that a young man of his talents must accept his opportunities for advancement."

Plans for filling the vacancy likely will be discussed at a meeting of the C-C board Monday. Presumably, Garrett will name a committee to receive and screen applications.

Quimby came here the first of February, 1958, after a two-year tenure as manager at Colorado City. In his three years here he has greatly increased the scope of the Chamber work, and built up its membership and its budget.

He has been a worker in many other activities, too, and year before last was honored as the Big Spring Jaycees "Outstanding Young Man."

ACTIVE
Quimby is immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce Managers Association of West Texas, and during his term that organization doubled its membership. He is chairman of the Community Services Division of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; a member of the directorate of the Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers Association; a member of the Education Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce Executives, and a member of the Southern Association of C-C Executives.

Locally, he has been a member of the YMCA board of directors, and on the board of the Lions Club; a district vice chairman and executive board member in the Boy Scouts organization, and a member of the executive committee of the United Fund. Quimby, in addition to his Chamber duties, directed the organizational phase of the UF campaign last fall.

He and Mrs. Quimby, the former Betty Ann Fulmer, are members of the First Baptist Church. They have two daughters, Cynthia S. and Nancy. Mrs. Quimby has been a teacher in the Big Spring schools.

BEGAN CAREER
A native of New Hampshire, Quimby attended elementary and junior high schools in Philadelphia, then was graduated from high school with honors at Almgord, N. M. where his late father, Dr. Neal F. Quimby, had been superintendent of the New Mexico School for the Blind. The younger Quimby then attended Stanford University, and served a year in the Army. He then went to Fort Stockton, where he started his chamber of commerce career before moving to Colorado City.

Wade Howell Gets Engineer's Award

Permian Basin Engineers climaxed their annual meeting last night in the Scharbauer Hotel Ballroom in Midland by naming an Odessa man, Wade Howell, as the Basin's "engineer of the year."

Howell, chief engineer of the Odessa consulting firm of Kenneth E. Esmond & Associates, was honored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers when he was awarded a large bronze plaque "in recognition of his services and professional achievement." He resides in Odessa with his wife, Kathryn, and three children, Sam, 10, Susan, 7 and Sarah, 4.

The annual banquet is held to celebrate the beginning of National Engineers Week. G. W. McCullough, vice president of Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla., was guest speaker.

The 39-year-old Odessa man is a native of Tahoka, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Howell who reside there. He is a graduate of Tahoka High School and received his engineering degree from Texas Tech.

He served in the Armed Forces in World War II as an Air Force maintenance officer, put in two years in the European theatre of operations, taking part in combat operations in the Rhineland, Northern France, Normandy and Central Europe campaigns. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for "able leadership, high technical skill, superior planning ability and devotion to duty" during operations in Northern France. He was promoted to the rank of major and released from active duty in November of 1945.

Following his release from military duty, Howell served as a construction supervisor during the construction of the Odessa High School in 1946, joining a Lubbock engineering firm in 1947. He supervised construction work on the Ector County Airport and numerous highway building projects. He served as field engineer for the Texas Company from 1948 through 1950, and joined Muldrow Aerial Surveys in 1951 where he served as Midland manager.

He began work with Esmond & Associates in 1952, where he served as chief of the project-design section on municipal engineering projects. In 1959 he was promoted to the position of chief engineer of the consulting engineering firm.

He is a member of the First Methodist Church, Chamber of Commerce, Optimist Club and other organizations. He is a past president of the Permian Basin Chapter, and is currently serving his second term as a state director of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

Howell did the engineering on the Coronado Hills development project on the former Country Club site in Big Spring. He also participated on a local panel which spent nearly three months studying subdivision ordinances and in recommending such a policy for Big Spring.

Delbert Downing Selected Speaker For Rotary Club Meeting Here Tuesday

Delbert Downing, Midland, will be the speaker Tuesday evening at the Rotary Club ladies' night affair.

The occasion will mark the 32nd anniversary of the local club which was chartered here Feb. 23, 1929 under auspices of the Sweetwater club. W. C. Blankenship, one of the charter members, is currently serving as president.

A musical program has been arranged, said Charles Weeg, program chairman, and there will be favors for the Rotary Anns.

Downing, manager of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, is a past president of the C-C Managers Association of West Texas and has held several offices in the Texas Chamber Managers Association. He addresses scores of audiences annually, ranging from high school and college commencements to teacher gatherings, chamber banquets and service club affairs.

An unassuming sort of individual, Downing is rated a philosopher-humorist and he has a reputation of following a credo he once inadvertently stated: "Insofar as possible I try to do everything anybody asks me to do."

At Midland he teaches one of the largest Sunday school classes in the city. His eldest son is an Air Force chaplain, his youngest son is a student at TCU, and his daughter teaches in Lubbock while her husband is in Tech.

Northside Church Plans To Build A New Building

Members of the Northside Baptist Church plan to begin construction in a new church which will be called, Crestview Baptist, in about 30 days.

Three acres were purchased by the congregation from J. I. Balch on Hilltop Road, and is adjacent to the 12 acres in that addition which belongs to the Big Spring Public Schools, on Gatesville Street.

A revival will begin Sunday at the Northside Baptist Church. The Rev. C. R. Matthis of the Lenora Baptist Church will be the speaker. Orville Bryant, College Baptist Church, will direct the music. Services daily at 7:30 a.m. and 8 p.m. The pastor, the Rev. R. W. Murray will speak at the morning service using "The How of a Revival" as his topic.

Speaker

Rev. W. M. Dorrough, minister of the Church of the Nazarene, was speaker for the Ft. Worth Zone Youth Rally Friday. Youth from 16 churches in the Ft. Worth area participated in the annual "Sweetheart Banquet."

Rev. Dorrough is serving his ninth year as president of the Nazarene Young People's Society for the Abilene District.

DEAR ABBY

LISTEN TO MAMA

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Cold wives" are often the subject of discussion in your column, but I don't recall having seen any mention of "cold husbands." I am interested in this subject because I am married to one.

My husband was very affectionate when we were first married. Now, only three years later, he pulls away from me the moment I make a gesture of affection. He says I am still very attractive and there is nothing wrong with me. (I know this is true.) I am certain other wives must be faced with this problem. What do you advise?

into the habit of stealing elsewhere. What should we do?

SHOCKED
DEAR SHOCKED: Tell her parents!

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped, envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Who pays for what? For Abby's pamphlet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

"WARM WIFE"

DEAR "WARM": If, by your husband's own admission, there is nothing wrong with YOU, then there is obviously something wrong with HIM. Send him to a physician to find out why you don't "send him" any more.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that is very serious to me. I am ten years old and I am cute, and I mean real cute. My mother won't let me date and I am asked out by 7th and 8th graders all the time. Don't you think if the boys think I am old enough to date, my mother should let me?

MATURE TEN
DEAR MATURE: Trust your mother's judgment. Honey. Little girls who start dating at 10 have nothing to look forward to at 15 but a rocking chair and a game of gin rummy.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter has a friend (her age) who makes a practice of stealing money from her father's wallet. She has stolen $20, $40 and even $50 at a time. Her father is well-to-do and apparently doesn't miss it because she has been getting away with it for a long time.

This girl admits to her friends where she gets the money. She squanders it on sweaters, jewelry and lunches for her friends. They all think it is a big joke.

We know the girl's parents, and they are the kind of people who criticize everyone else's children but think their own are perfect, so if we told them about their daughter they probably wouldn't believe us. We are afraid this girl will get

January Indicates Better Year For Oil

Martin County came out of the shadows in January and produced almost twice as much as any of the seven other immediate counties with four completions for a total initial production of 1,292.05 barrels of oil per day. One well in the Breedlove field accounted for 549.12 barrels, the largest producer of the month.

The eight counties represented are Borden, Dawson, Garza, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Mitchell, and Sterling.

Howard County led in both new locations and completions with 12 and 11 respectively. However, it only could muster 586.67 barrels of oil per day to place third behind Mitchell County with 674.74 barrels on potential.

Borden County, leader at this time last year, dropped to seventh place with two producers which finished at a combined initial potential of 201.23 barrels per day. Total potential for the month was 4,143.57 barrels of oil per day, up 795.47 barrels from January of last year. This is the highest month for potential since the June, 1960, December, 1960 had slumped to 2,312.71 barrels.

Operators staked nine new wildcat locations and 24 new locations in established fields. The Howard-Glasscock field had seven of the 24.

Exploratory wells were not a total loss. One of four produced. The oiler, in Mitchell County, produced 63 barrels of oil per day. Only five holes were plugged and abandoned, three of these being wildcats.

Although the total of 4,143.57 barrels is not spectacular, it is enough to make a hump in an initial potential production curve which has declined since November, 1959. Since then only four months have produced more than 4,000 barrels. These were Nov. 1959 with 5,975.51 barrels, Dec. 1959 with 5,800.82, March 1960 with 6,186.33, and June 1960 with 4,662.75.

January, 1960 was the beginning of a year-long tailspin which

February Oil Activity Holds More Promise

The first fifteen days of February have been active in the eight surrounding counties with 27 new locations, nine holes plugged and abandoned, and 23 completions.

Production is already trying to catch up with last month. The 23 completions have totaled for 2,261.85 barrels of oil on initial potential. Two wildcats brought in 402.30 barrels of this figure.

made 1960 the lowest production year of the decade. If last month is any indication, production should improve to reach the higher levels of previous years.

And, it would seem to be. New locations staked this month have almost caught up with the number for January 1961. As of Feb. 15, 1961 27 locations have been staked.

Operators are remaining cautious, however. Moderate exploratory drilling in January continued into February as only one of the 27 locations is a wildcat.

Forest and Champlin No. 1 Schmidt, a Wolfcamp reef discovery, in Borden County, had an official initial flowing potential of 216 barrels of 38.7 gravity oil, no water, through a quarter inch choke. Flow was from perforations between 9,381-99 feet from a pay which was topped at 9,381 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 230-1, and the well had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Total depth drilled was 9,390 feet and 5 1/2 inch casing was set at 9,380 feet. Tubing pressure was 175-170 and the operator used a casing pressure packer. Elevation is 3,033 feet.

The wildcat, which was drilled tight, took three drillstem tests, gauging the reef. A two-hour test at 9,326-61 feet recovered 30 feet of heavily oil and gas-cut mud and five feet of mud-cut oil from below the sub. Gas surfaced in 95 minutes, with the volume too small to measure, during a three-hour test at 9,326-61 feet. Recovery was 120 feet of oil and gas-cut mud, 340 feet of oil-cut mud (50 per cent oil), 365 feet of free 38 gravity oil and five feet of oil from below the sub.

Gas came to the top in 26 minutes, with the volume too small to measure, during a three-hour test—between 3,334-90 feet. Recovery was 3,420 feet of free oil, 180 feet of mud-cut oil and five feet of oil below the sub.

The discovery is five miles northwest of Lamesa, one mile southwest of the East Mungerville (Pennsylvanian) field and 660 feet from the north and 1,380 feet from the east lines of section 3-2, D. L. Cunningham survey.

Wildcatters Find 11 More Wells

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas wildcatters struck eight oil and three gas wells last week, the Railroad Commission said Saturday.

Completions for the week totaled 185 oil and 24 gas wells. Completions for the year include 1,223 oil wells, down from the 1,334 last year, and 315 gas wells, a 50 per cent increase over the 206 drilled in 1960.

which have held the price far below the market value."

He said these contracts permit Texas gas to "leave the state at prices far below the world market price without much benefit for the state."

Under the present production tax, the 7 per cent tax applies to gas averaging about 12 cents a 1,000 cubic feet in Texas and about 19 cents.

Where there is a dedicated contract, a tax of 1.505 cents per 1,000 cubic feet shall apply with the cost to be split between the producer and the buyer depending on the price. His bill defines a dedicated reserve producer as one who has a prior right to take title to all gas from a particular lease and imposes on another the obligation to deliver the gas.

B. M. Brittain of Amarillo and F. L. Kuykendall of Austin, who represented Lone Star Gas Co., told the committee that the increased production tax under Hinson's bill could not be passed on to Texas consumers without possibly years of delay in petitioning city councils and the railroad commission for relief. They said the tax could not be passed on to out-of-state consumers.

The bill went to a subcommittee at 11:30 p.m. It will hold another hearing on the bill Monday.

The committee also sent to a subcommittee another tax bill introduced by Gov. Price Daniel and introduced by Rep. George Hinson. It would raise the natural gas production tax from 7 to 10 per cent of field value for 12 months.

Hinson's temporary deficit-reduction measure would bring in about $22.5 million.

"The impact of this tax," Eckhardt asserted, "would be wholly on the dedicated reserve holders of the gas, those reserves held by various companies through the years through dedicated contracts

Glasscock County Gains Clear Fork Discoverer

Another wildcat discoverer was reported in the area Saturday. It is R. S. Anderson and Angle Oil Co. No. 1 Cole, explorer project about 10 miles east of Garden City in Glasscock County and three-quarters of a mile northwest of the Clyde Reynolds field.

Operator found the Clear Fork between 2,814-17 feet for discovery potential, which was 38 barrels of 30 gravity oil on initial tests. Operator treated with 500 gallons of mud-acid and 1,000 gallons of regular acid during testing operations.

An old well workover, the hole was originally made by Hamilton Brothers as No. 1-16 Cole. They abandoned it at total depth of 4,763 feet. Present operators plugged back to 2,882 feet for the fresh look at the Clear Fork.

On a 400 acre lease, the well site is 800 from north and 700 from east lines of section 16-32-45, T&P survey.

In other area operations, TXL No. 1 Clark, also in Glasscock County is drilling in shale below 9,310 feet. A Pennsylvanian drillstem test between 9,197-222 feet had the tool open two hours. Operator recovered 810 feet of gas in the drillpipe and 90 feet of gas-cut mud. Location is 660 from north and 670 from west lines of section 1-33-45, T&P survey.

In Garza County, Threeway No. 1 Connell is making hole in chert below 5,049 feet. Drillsite is 990 from south and west lines of section 130-5-H&GN survey.

Ralph Lowe No. 1 Florence Reed, a Howard County prospector, is making hole below 8,902 feet. It is 335 from south and 1,980 from east lines of section 5-30-1N, T&P survey.

Husky No. 1-A Hill, Martin County explorer, is testing. With the tool open, 1 1/2 hours, perforations in the Dean Sand between 8,450-820 feet yielded 180 feet of heavily oil-and-gas-cut mud. This project is 660 from north and 1,980 from west lines of section 62-A Bauer and Cokrell survey.

The Southwest Region, with headquarters in Houston, is one of four operating regions established after Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) last year placed all its domestic exploration, production, refining, and marketing operations under Humble.

Other regional headquarters are in New Orleans, Tulsa, and New York.

Ray Horton, Southwest Region vice president, said the new area managers will be W. E. Dougherty, Corpus Christi; J. S. Bell, Houston; H. E. Potter, Dallas; and J. S. Posgate, Midland.

$40 MILLION

New Tax Aimed At Gas Producers

By ED OVERHOLSER
AUSTIN (AP)—A new attempt to increase the tax take from gas producers holding dedicated, long term contracts for gas underground was presented to the House Revenue and Taxation Committee Friday night.

Courts have held two previous efforts by the legislature to tax the "severance beneficiary" unconstitutional.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston said his bill removes the courts' objections to such a tax, and would produce $40 million a year if passed.

A sliding tax scale would be placed on the producers so that pipelines or other companies buying low-price gas would pay the greater tax burden. Eckhardt's bill places the burden on the first purchaser of gas instead of the last purchaser as defined in the "severance beneficiary" tax recently, voided by the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals here.

The bill went to a subcommittee at 11:30 p.m. It will hold another hearing on the bill Monday.

The committee also sent to a subcommittee another tax bill advocated by Gov. Price Daniel and introduced by Rep. George Hinson. It would raise the natural gas production tax from 7 to 10 per cent of field value for 12 months.

Hinson's temporary deficit-reduction measure would bring in about $22.5 million.

"The impact of this tax," Eckhardt asserted, "would be wholly on the dedicated reserve holders of the gas, those reserves held by various companies through the years through dedicated contracts study issues, write letters to congressmen, and check closely the performance and voting records of elected officials.

The number of companies adopting such programs is growing. Late additions include Humble Oil, the huge domestic affiliate of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey).

Two days after the Nov. 6 election Humble directors adopted a policy designed to encourage participation in local, state, and national political affairs.

Humble employees were advised of the action by circular letter but there was no public announcement. Details were published this week in a new edition of an employee magazine, the Humble Way.

"The company will not discriminate against any employee because of his identification with any lawful political party or activity," the Humble policy reads.

Phillips Petroleum and Gulf Oil are among those continuing programs announced as early as 1958.

Gulf was among the first to encourage its employees to participate in politics, even to the extent of running for public office. "Our program is continuing at the same pace as before the election," a Gulf spokesman said this week. "We feel it is gradually accelerating, particularly in so far as our employees being interested in all types of community enterprise, whether it be P.T.A. school boards, or politics."

Phillips' public affairs division is preparing a special packet for distribution to interested employees. The packet will include the names and addresses of all members of Congress, their committee assignments, information on how to write to legislators, and "other material basic to a better understanding of the affairs and processes of government."

February Oil Activity Holds More Promise

The first fifteen days of February have been active in the eight surrounding counties with 27 new locations, nine holes plugged and abandoned, and 23 completions.

Production is already trying to catch up with last month. The 23 completions have totaled for 2,261.85 barrels of oil on initial potential. Two wildcats brought in 402.30 barrels of this figure.

Two big producers in the Breedlove (Devonian) field have given Martin County the lead with 1,120.89 barrels. Howard County, as usual, had the most completions with seven. Sterling County has yet to break into the production column.

Wildcats accounted for four of the nine dusters. Glasscock County had half of the four.

A Dawson County Wolfcamp Reef Discoverer, Forest Exploration Corp. & Champlin Oil Co. No. 1 Darward Schmidt initially flowed 216.00 barrels to lead in that department.

Leader in field completions production is Pan American Petroleum Corp. No. 13-B F. D. Breedlove, which flowed 487.47 barrels on initial potential.

Employees Urged To Take Part In Public Affairs

HOUSTON (AP)—Efforts by several major oil companies to encourage employees to take part in politics and public affairs did not end with the presidential election.

Programs adopted prior to the general election are receiving renewed emphasis.

U.S., Small Nations Try To Quell Congo Turmoil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration has decided that United Nations forces on the Congo should be empowered to block outside arms or intervention, as threatened by the Soviet Union.

Under this decision the use of force in an effort to isolate the Congo from outside interference is being strongly supported, along with other measures aimed at stopping the civil war raging there.

President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk attached the highest priority to evolving measures for meeting the Congo crisis with all possible speed.

They are reported fearful that a breakdown of the U.N. peace-making mission in the face of heavy attack by the Soviet Union would prove to be a disaster plunging most of Africa into the cold war and endangering world peace.

into final operation. Apparently, the system is working beautifully, and it could be the means of avoiding or reducing serious accidents at that point.

The proposed new zoning ordinance, with some minor changes, will go to the city commission on Feb. 28. Last week, having digested testimony at a public hearing and also hearing additional requests, the planning and zoning committee voted to refer the proposal to the city commission. This is one of the ingredients of the master plan.

Seventeen cases were sliced off the 118th District Court docket last week when no one appeared when they were called. The docket was further thinned by a large number of guilty pleas. The county court also was busy, too, with a couple of trials and several guilty pleas.

Webb AFB is getting into the movie. Crews from the AFB were here during the week to take photos for a 23-minute color production showing how the Air Force prepares a man as a pilot. The ground and flying sequences will be taken from Webb.

M. O. (Jack) Griffith, veteran driver for Eagle Transport, has returned from Austin where he won the top driver service award for the year, the Hobbs Knight of the Road state title. His help in saving the life of young Luther Ruff following a mishap north of Sterling City last year contributed to his selection over five other regional winners. Equally impressive is his 25 years of accident-free driving.

Speaking of safe driving, there were two cases last week where children were struck by cars, but luckily no serious injuries resulted. So whatever else you may watch for when you drive, always watch for kiddies.

Ranger Robbed, Pair Abducted

DALLAS (AP)—A pistol-shooting Texan who took a car and a gun from a Texas Ranger forced a man and woman to drive him here Saturday night.

The gunman, identified as Tom Gene Scott, stole Ranger B. O. Current's revolver and car in Wichita Falls about noon when the officer tried to arrest him.

First Lt. Donald Hansen, 26, and his fiancée, 2nd Lt. Loraine Gibbings, 23, both of Sheppard Air Force Base at Wichita Falls, said they were forced at gunpoint to drive a man who fit Scott's description to Dallas.

U.S. Rediscovered Its Lost Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — A temporarily lost polka dot balloon satellite has been detected sailing serenely through space.

The Civilian Space Agency marked the satellite's rediscovery Friday by naming it Explorer IX.

The 12-foot sphere began playing hide and seek with trackers soon after it was hurled aloft from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's station at Wallops Island, Va., Thursday morning.

Radio signals were heard as it soared that morning over Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. Then there was silence.

Thursday afternoon, volunteer moonwatch teams in Pretoria, South Africa, and the Baker-Nunn photographic tracking station near Johannesburg, made the first visual sightings.

The space agency did not consider the orbit confirmed until early Friday when the photographic tracking stations at West

With the two great powers thus squared off over the huge, primitive and mineral-rich land in the heart of Africa, other nations at U.N. headquarters in New York suddenly began to strive harder for a diplomatic solution.

Forsan Slates City Election For March 25

FORSAN — Forsan residents will go to the polls on Saturday, March 25 to elect a mayor, five councilmen and a city marshal to serve Howard County's newest incorporated town.

Big Spring Man Gets 3-Year Term

City, Senate Voting Scheduled April 4

Voters will be scratching ballots April 4th, when two elections are scheduled for Big Spring. The citizens will vote for two city commissioners, and for a U.S. senator to fill the place vacated by Vice President Lyndon Johnson.

For state and county elections there are seven boxes in the city. The city is planning to set up three new boxes for the convenience of voters in city elections. Only one box has been used in the past.

For state and county elections the boxes are at the North Side Fire Station, Washington Place School, Main Street Fire Station, Central Fire Station, West Ward School, Rummels Junior High School, and Park Hill School.

The city commission proposes new boxes, in addition to the Central Fire Station, at North Side Fire Station, 18th and Main Fire Station (these are three being used by county and state election judges) and 11th and Birdwell Fire Station.

All this means that voters in at least three boxes could vote in both elections at the same location although separate voting boxes would be used. At Washington place they would move from the Washington school over to the 11th and Birdwell Fire Station for city candidates. Those voting in other places would have to go to a second place to vote for city commissioners.

The holding of two different kinds of election on the same date happens once in about every blue moon, so voters may find some confusion in knowing where to go to vote.

The city commission, in setting up the proposed three extra boxes, had only convenience in mind. Voters in the city election can vote in any one of the four boxes, regardless of where they live in the city. But in the Senate voting,

Tower Due Monday In Campaign Bid

John G. Tower, making his second bid for U. S. Senate in recent months, will bring his campaign here Monday.

JOHN TOWER

Hurrying to cover the state before the April 4 election, he will fly here from Houston, and then hasten on to Colorado City, Sweetwater, Abilene and Lamesa for other engagements before the day is out.

Tower will speak at 12 noon at the Osden Country Club, said Ralph Hughes, county Republican chairman, and everyone is invited.

The son of the executive secretary of the Texas Conference of the Methodist Church, Tower is a former professor of political science at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls.

In his own community he has been on the board of stewards and a teacher in his (First Methodist) church, active in civic affairs and the Kiwanis Club, a director of the Wichita Falls symphony. He is married to the former Joza Lou Bullington, Wichita Falls, and they have three daughters. In the last general election, running on the Republican ticket, he polled 41 1/2 per cent of the major vote.

B CERTIFICATE

T. C. Richardson Awarded THD Proficiency Citation

T. C. Richardson, superintendent of the east end of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, has been awarded a citation for proficiency in plant management by the State Health Department.

The certificate of competency, a Place "B" Certificate in Surface Production and Management, credits Richardson with having demonstrated "skill and knowledge" of water treatment plant management and an understanding of the public health importance of his work.

Richardson has been with the water district for six years and has been a resident of Big Spring since September, 1955. He is responsible for production and maintenance of pumping stations at the Big Spring-Odessa intake, Snyder intake, Morgan Creek booster station, Big Spring booster station, and the Lamesa and Say-der pipelines. He also has maintenance of Lake Thomas.

Under the State Health Department's operator certification program, operators are carefully examined on their technical ability and knowledge of their work's influence on community health.

The Texas general sanitation law requires that at least one plant operator per shift be certified by the state health agency.

Points toward certification are earned through actual work experience and by attendance at annual district and state short schools sponsored and conducted by the Texas State Department of Health, the engineering extension service of Texas A&M College, and the Texas Water and Sewerage Works Association. Richardson has about 100 hours credit from such schools.

Prior to joining the Colorado River Municipal Water District, he was a consultant with a Fort Worth Engineering Firm which inspected water works.

Flood Rates To Be Discussed

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will discuss rates for water flooding projects when they convene in Big Spring on Thursday.

A report on long-range studies will be made by S. W. Freese, Fort Worth, consulting engineer for the district, said E. V. Spence, general manager of the CRMWD.

The board may also take initial steps toward plans for a headquarters building in Big Spring, it was indicated. A site for a permanent office structure has been secured a block and a half west of the Howard County courthouse.

Several inquiries about the possibility of supplies for water flooding in oil fields have been received, said Spence. The district's water rate committee will meet an hour prior to the board meeting which is set for 10 a.m. in the Settles Hotel. Several routine matters are also on the agenda for the meeting.

Hawkins Outlines History Of IRS

Ben Hawkins, administrative officer of the local Internal Revenue Office, reviewed the history of his agency in a talk made before members of the American Business Club at their regular luncheon Friday in the Settles Hotel.

An income collection agency for the government first came into being as long ago as 1791, Hawkins stated, at which time the commissioner of the department was paid the princely sum of $1,900 annually.

At that time and up to 1801, various inspectors bid on the jobs of collecting revenue, half of which they retained as their pay.

In 1801, however, the office of the commissioner of Internal Revenue was abolished. Instead, the government depended upon tariffs for its needed revenue.

The department was reactivated in 1812 with the coming of war, however, only to be abolished again in 1817. A new plan for the collection of income taxes was adopted in 1861, the first year of the Civil War, at which time any wage earner earning over $800 a year was taxed three per cent of his income. The minimum exempted figure was later dropped to $600.

The system for collection of income taxes went into limbo again in 1872 but was renewed during each war period. In 1913, Hawkins said, a greater percentage of taxpayers were on the rolls than was the case in 1933, principally because the tax base was broader.

In 1866, according to the speaker, revenue collected through income taxes amounted to an average of $8.27 per person, whereas collection costs came to a rather surprising 24.7 cents. In 1960, in resorting to a comparison, Hawkins said income payments averaged out to $508.37, whereas collection costs dropped to one-fourth of one cent.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue now has 5,199 employees on its payroll in Washington, D. C., and the nation's 50 states.

Of the nation's income through taxes, Hawkins said that 57 per cent went toward national defense, 11 per cent for debt interest, six per cent for veterans, six per cent for agriculture, six per cent for labor and welfare, four per cent for commerce, housing and space technology, three per cent for foreign aid, three per cent for natural resources, two per cent for operating the government and two per cent for debt retirement.

The United States is now divided into nine IR regions embracing 70 districts. Each state has at least one district.

Hawkins then identified each member of the IR staff assigned here by name and by assignment and wound up answering questions asked by the gathering.

Guests present for the luncheon include Glenn Hancock, Bill Lucas and Jerry Mancill.

Jayhawks First Following Win

LEVELLAND — HCJC swatted South Plains JC of Levelland here Friday night, 60-66, and assumed the lead in the tight Western Conference basketball race. Amarillo helped the Jayhawk cause by flattening Lubbock Christian College.

The scramble appears headed toward a bottle neck. HCJC, Lubbock Christian and NMMI of Roswell have each lost two

LOOKING 'EM OVER With TOMMY HART

R. L. Lasater, the Big Spring speedster, may visit the University of Wisconsin campus after the current track season ends. As has been stated here before, Houston finances its annual PGA golf tournament through the sale of $100 sponsorships. It hopes to sell 1,100 of them this year. A sponsorship entitles the buyer to 21 tournament buttons, each of which is good for a daily admission to the meet. An adopted Texan, Mickey Mantle, and a transplanted Texan, Eddie Mathews, now living in Milwaukee, must be given some chance at Babe Ruth's all-time big league home run record. Mathews (age 29) now has 338 round trippers — he hit 39 last season. If he averaged 40 a year for ten seasons (highly unlikely) he could surpass Ruth's all-time total of 714. Mantle (age 29) currently boasts 320 four masted and could also top the Babe's record by averaging 40 homers in each of the next ten seasons (also highly unlikely). Mathews is now 12th on the all-time home run list while Mantle is 14th. Mathews has played one less season in the big time (only nine) than Mantle but Milwaukee County Stadium, where Ed plays half his games, is generally conceded to be more of a home run hitter's paradise than is Yankee Stadium, where Mantle roams the pastures. A former Loughran League pitching standout was recently caught flogging from his employer and fired on the spot. The Los Angeles Dodgers were the only major league team last year not to suffer a doubleheader defeat. They swept four twin bills and split three. Les Perrin, the Lubbock Christian College big mentor, blames his team's defeat by Odessa the other night on the fact that Odessa had lost Dave Kaminski, its chief gunner. He said his boys concluded that the Wranglers posed no threat without Kaminski and he couldn't snap them out of their doldrums. Even though LCC lost, Larry Rogers of the Pioneers used that game to set a new all-time scoring record for an LCC, getting 20 points to run his season's total to 334. The old mark of 325 was set last year by Jay Sherrard.

Bill Valentine Will Work On Coast

Larry Cruise, the HCJC cage ex now performing for North Texas State College, averaged 3.9 points a game in the Eagles' first 16 starts this year. The University of Iowa has the student reporter who flashed the news to one of the wire services the fact that four of the school's five basketball starters flunked out at midterm. The school's sports public information director tried to justify the action of his department against the young reporter by calling it a "conflict of interest." Odessa High loses six boys off that basketball team which performed against Big Spring here the other night. They are Larry Wade, Bill Moore, Ronnie White, Bill Combest, Cliff Harris and Sterling Jeter. They scored a combined total of 15 points in that final outing against the Steers. Coach Johnny Marjale of the Bronchos will have a fine nucleus for a team back, what with his son, Dubby, Stanley Heaps, Larry Jernigan and Kenneth Vaughn all returning. Two boys named Poe and Rich perform for the Howard Payne College basketball team this season. One is Gerald Poe of Evans, the other

Poss Planning To See State Meet

Delnor Poss, the local high school basketball mentor who is making plans to attend the state tournament next month, sees South San Antonio as the chief threat to Lamesa at Austin. Delnor sees the Alamo City team has a boy who can rebound with Bruce Ashton of the Tornados, as well as a bunch of gunners. Poss plans now to stage spring basketball drills for the Steers shortly before spring football workouts begin here in May. Emmett McKenzie, the high school football mentor here, says there may be "four or five" Lakeview boys who can help the 1961 Steers, when the two schools are merged next September. McKenzie is planning now to take some of his coaches on a tour of the Southwest Conference spring camps at the University of Texas and Baylor before going on to the Feb. 24-25 Coach of the Year Clinic in Dallas, where such well known football personalities as Duff Daugherty (Michigan State), Chuck Moser (Abilene High), Warren Woodson (New Mexico State), Murray Warmath (Minnesota), Frank Broyles (Arkansas) and Bud Wilkinson (Oklahoma U) will speak. Of that group, incidentally, Don Robbins, the BSHS assistant, says Broyles is the best and most entertaining speaker. The Minnesota Twins, who debut in the American (baseball) League this year, had hoped to sell 10,000 to 12,000 season tickets. If they reach 6,000, though, they'll be lucky. As of Feb. 1, they had sold only 2,700. Minneapolis' new entry in the National Football League has sold 23,000 season duceats already. American League officials are secretly dubious that big league baseball in the Minnesota metropolis will succeed over a long period of time. Bill Thompson, the Big Spring boy at Rice University, is being held out of the Owls' basketball action this season, which means he'll still have three years of eligibility starting with the 1961-62 school year. Bill, who'll come home for a short visit March 2, passed all of his school work. He hasn't made up his mind what he wants to major in but says he doesn't want to coach.

Two Texas teams, including HCJC of Big Spring, are listed in the top team junior college basketball teams in the nation by the National Juco Athletic Association.

Frick Is Handed Aparicio Case

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, has been asked to support a 3-year suspension from Caribbean play and $10,000 fine levied against shortstop Luis Aparicio of the Chicago White Sox for leaving his Maracaibo team in the inter-American winter series. Aparicio was penalized Friday by Guillermo Angulo Lopez, president of the Western League, for leaving the Rapinos team of Maracaibo before its final game against Valencia, Valencia won the game, 2-1, and took the inter-American series. Lopez said he has asked Frick to take the "one out of Aparicio's White Sox salary and has urged that Aparicio also be prevented from playing in Puerto Rico.

Loughran Sees Easy Win For Patterson

NEW YORK — Ingemar Johansson doesn't have a ghost of a chance of regaining the world's heavyweight boxing championship from Floyd Patterson, so says Tommy Loughran.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN

Why Loughran for an expert opinion? Well, Tommy is regarded as one of the few clean cut men ever to come out of boxing, is a former world's light heavyweight champion, is a student of the game and at 58 has all his cookies.

Patterson and Johansson meet March 13 in Convention Hall at Miami Beach for the third time. In their first meeting, June 26, 1959, Johansson won the title when he knocked out Patterson in the third round. Patterson acted like a rank amateur in that first fight. Last June Patterson flattened Johansson in five rounds. Johansson looked like a rank amateur on that occasion.

after 10 rounds. I don't remember finishing the 15th round. But the thought never occurred to me to quit. I guess it was just instinct that kept me going. I remember being on the ropes at the end and being able to move my head, but I couldn't move my feet."

That fight was held in Flamingo Park, a baseball stadium. It was postponed three times because of rain. Loughran believes 15,000 fans turned out, although only 8,624 paid receipts of $44,598.

Although a natural light heavy, Loughran fought in most of the heavyweights of his day, including Gene Tunney, Johnny Risio, Ernie Schaaf, Jimmy Braddock, Max Baer, Jack Sharkey and Tommy Farr.

In 1927 he won the light heavy title from Mike, McGuire. Two years later after beating Braddock, in his sixth defense, Tommy vacated the 175-pound rank to campaign as a heavyweight.

Loughran retired in 1937 and in 1942 at age 40, joined the Marines. He is still a firm believer in staying in condition and often can be seen doing calisthenics, shadow boxing or punching the heavy bag at the New York Athletic Club.

"No," says Loughran, "I don't expect to take in the coming fight. Johansson doesn't have a ghost of a chance."

Baylor Cinder Stars Are Facing A Busy Campaign

WACO (AP)—Baylor's defending Southwest Conference track and field champions appear top caliber again as the Golden Bears prepare for a dozen meets.

The Bears will be competing for the second time this season when they enter the Southwest Recreation meet at Fort Worth March 3-4, the first meet of the regular season. They appeared in the Fort Worth indoor meet where John Fry, the big Baylor shot-putter, pitched the steel ball 56 feet 6 1/2 inches.

The Border Olympics, West Texas Relays, San Angelo Relays, Texas Relays, Dallas invitational, Kansas Relays, Drake Relays, Southwest Conference meet, NCAA championships and the National AAU are on the Baylor schedule in addition to some triangular meets.

Baylor lost Billy Hollis, the conference 220-yard co-champion; conference javelin champ Gary Wisener and sprinter Ray Knauth from the 1960 team. This means that half of the 440 and mile relay teams also were being lost.

But back are 10 lettermen, including broad jump champion Tommy Minter, ace quarter-miler Roy Smalley, weight men Fry and Buddy Tyrner, who got 14 1/2 points in the conference shot and discus throws; Eddie Curtis, runner-up in the high jump who can do 6 feet 7 inches; David Bennet, point-winner in the hurdles, and Bob Melgren, distance ace.

Footballers Ronnie Bull, Bill McMillen and Larry Harbour will add depth to the dashes, relays and hurdles and from the freshmen comes spring star Bill Kemp, Kemp, Glynn Fields, Don Adams and Jerry Nason set a national freshman 440-yard relay record of 40.7, Kemp, Fields, Nason and Darwin Starling set a conference freshman mile relay record of 2:15.3. Kemp set a freshman 100-yard dash record of 9.5. Fields a 440 mark of 47.8.

Lakeview Fems Down S'water

Big Spring Lakeview's girls got off on the right foot in their basketball playoff with Booker T, Washington of Sweetwater here Saturday night, winning a 41-40 decision. The game was decided in an overtime. The series determines the District 1-A champion.

Mavis Newton hit a jump shot from close in with the bucket that enabled the Rockettes to prevail. The locals had trailed most of the way but Lakeview tied the count at 39-39 just before the end came.

Newton wound up with 25 points for Big Spring while Lalale Attaway paced the visitors with 19. The win was the tenth in 15 starts this season for the Rockettes.

Harris Matched With Dave Rent

HOUSTON (AP)—Roy Harris, seeking a comeback after three straight losses, meets Dave Rent, the British heavyweight, here Feb. 28.

The 10-round match will be held in the 3,000-seat City Auditorium. The 12,000-seat Sam Houston Coliseum will be occupied by the Houston Fat Stock Show.

Lon Viscusi, manager of Harris, and Al Weill, manager of Rent, agreed to terms Saturday with Don Milheim, matchmaker for Texas Boxing Enterprises.

Harris holds a 30-4 record. His first loss was to Floyd Patterson in a 1958 title match in Los Angeles.

"I want to get back on the winning track and work my way up to another championship fight," the Cut and Shoot schoolteacher said today.

Harris' losses the past year were to Sonny Liston, Bob Clerous of Canada, and Henry Cooper of Britain.

To see the point one must place the (D) in the right place . . . Here you see Sig Rogers, owner of Rogers Sign and Neon Service, 404 Douglas Street, placing the (D) right where it belongs to spell out his business of SIGNS. (D) has been in SIGNS for hundreds of years. Sig says that he has not been in the sign business that long but he does remember that he made signs before he could talk. Sig used to help his father paint and letter large pictorial sign boards in the National League ball parks in the East. Sig says that his main job was to stay out of the hot sun and sit in the shade of the billboard.

There was once a man by the name of Bill who owned some Billboards. Bill also owed some Boardbills, business was not too good for Bill as his Billboards were not bringing in enough money to pay Bill's Boardbill, so Bill sold his Billboards to pay his Boardbill.

The first signs I painted in Big Spring with my dad was about 35 years ago. I have been calling on Big Spring merchants ever since on, off and on basis. In 1950 I was asked to make some signs for a Big Spring merchant, and I had to rent a building to do the work, someone else saw me working and brought in a sign, then some more came . . . they have not stopped, and I have never been able to catch up. Sosoocome I'm still in Big Spring to my delight.

We own our property at 404 Douglas (if I don't miss a payment) and now converting it all into working space. We are painting it yellow (but we are not). We have hardtopped all around the building for your parking convenience in front, and it affords us a place to letter signs on the large transports or little scooters, or names on cars, etc. . . . We believe that we have the most and best equipped all around commercial sign and neon sign electric shop in Big Spring. We are able to take care of anything in the sign advertising field . . . We encourage the small business man to bring us his sign work, or call us, we are as near as the telephone, and we have two (2) phones. If one is busy try the other. It is just natural that with our years of experience we could save you money on your sign advertising needs.

It may be Godlike signs for your windows or doors, or just good old paint, or Special Silk screen process signs for real estate signs, or duplicates of signs or just good old board signs, we can furnish the board or you can pull one off the old barn, bring it to us, and we'll sure put a sign on it in a jiffy, whatever pleases you makes us happy.

If you have a busy pickup truck and you want signs on the doors, bring it down to us, we can always run it in for you, we don't tie up your truck all day just to letter a couple of doors, some truck drivers wait while our men work, sure we'll buy the coffee while you wait. . . . or take you home if you wish.

We have a commercial art department for our cartoon and pictorial work when needed, in fact anything in sign work, we do it here at Sig Rogers Sign and Neon Shop. . . . From a desk name plate to a highway billboard. . . . For the last 10 years we have enjoyed our work and association with Big Spring merchants, it has been 10 good years. We enjoy growing with Big Spring. We as a sign business need the cooperation of the Big Spring merchants if we are to grow with it like other businesses. . . . We don't want all the business in Big Spring, all we want is YOURS.

And of course our Neon electric sign department can make a layout to fit any need whether it is for border tubing or a complete neon sign.

Our neon repair service, we have been told it is of the best, for our service, fast and dependable, in most cases we can fix it the same day you call us. We think you lose business with your sign half out and not burning for several days. Think of it. Call us the next time your neon acts up. The crane you see in the picture is our strong arm, we couldn't do without it, we call him "Sampson." We use him for lifting heavy poles into place, and signs, and getting to high places, now and then we are called to lift an air conditioner to the roof for some home-owner, etc., lot easier you know. When it is not in use, we walk up and down the ladder for our exercise.

One fellow once said he didn't have any quarrel with those who sold for less, they knew what their stuff was worth . . .

Call Sig Rogers for your next sign job.

A Devotional For Today

Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. (Matthew 6:12.)
PRAYER: O Lord of steadfast love, we beseech Thee that we may have Thy mind and spirit, for only so can we forgive others. Thou hast forgiven and dost ever forgive us. Help us that we render to no man evil for evil, but teach and help us to overcome evil with good. In Thy name. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

Get With It—Now

Time is running out for those who dream of lovely shrubs and growing trees next summer. Early-blooming shrubs are hard to come by, and although we might have some cold snaps, the worst of our winter is likely past. A few more days of weather like we had last week, and nothing can hold back spring.

Hence, if you're intending to transplant trees or get rose bushes in the ground, or arrange foundation plants for your landscaping, it's high time you get it. Never mind the flower beds and the lawns just now; there will be time for them later on. Procrastinate and you'll run the risk of losing not a mouth but a whole year on your slower-growing but permanent plants.

Enjoyable, But Not Warranted

An effort is being made again in the Texas legislature to legalize racetrack betting.

The difficulty is that the great sport of racing cannot exist if itself hence it has to have its betting crutch to flourish. Thus, the sport of kings has become infested with knives.

There is much to be said for it as entertainment as an outlet for men and women whose hobby is the breeding and training of game horses. In some of the racing may even be a drawing card.

It will be argued pro and con that wagering is all right, or it is all wrong—generally.

It will be argued that a certain amount of betting goes on regardless, so why not let the state out in for its share?

The bill as introduced is discriminatory in that it spots certain localities as potential track sites. If the practice were to be legalized, the option ought to rest with any county.

A compelling reason against legalized racetrack operations in Texas is that it is a siphon on established business operations.

Several places after the war and it is estimated is dependent upon volume wagering, and we are convinced that this would become a drain on the economy of many communities and areas. The vain hope of sudden riches among the masses opens up a potential Pandora's box of mischief.

THE EXECUTOR READS THE WILL

J. A. Livingston

Would Layoffs Change Executives' Outlook?

"The snow's off the ground, the sun's out. We'll see how." That's how the economist for a major automobile company greeted my question, "How's business?"

When I asked, "What does that mean?" he responded, "Well, things can't get any worse than they have been."

Unintentionally the secretary to another automobile economist answered the same question. Her boss wanted in. Could she reverse the charge on the long-distance call when he returned? She wanted to know "It's charged to our department," she explained. Thus, have hard times hit a mighty industry?

Edward N. Cole, general manager of General Motors' Chevrolet division, is still an optimist. He estimates this year's passenger-car sales at between 5,500,000 and 7,000,000. This brackets 1963's 6,600,000, including 500,000 foreign cars.

However, Cole has tempered GM's earlier forecasts, which were around 7,000,000, including 400,000 foreign cars. Still, sales of 6,100,000 to 6,600,000 domestic cars right now look very, very good.

MR. KENNEDY, TOO! One Detroit economist explains the current slump this way: "First, recession. Auto sales follow the business trend, you know. They seldom make it."

"Second, snow and cold weather. People just won't buy new cars when they don't feel like using 'em."

"Third, Mr. Kennedy. I don't think the President realizes how depressing his constant emphasis on poor business—on high unemployment—can be. It has hurt our sales, I'm sure."

He didn't mention a fourth factor, though when I mentioned it, he allowed it as a possibility: The changed position of the automobile in American society. Not too long ago, the person who sought to differentiate himself from his neighbor wanted a big, new, shiny car every year or every other year. Now, the automobile for most persons has become a means of transportation, and only incidentally a badge of position. It has ceased to be the status symbol it was.

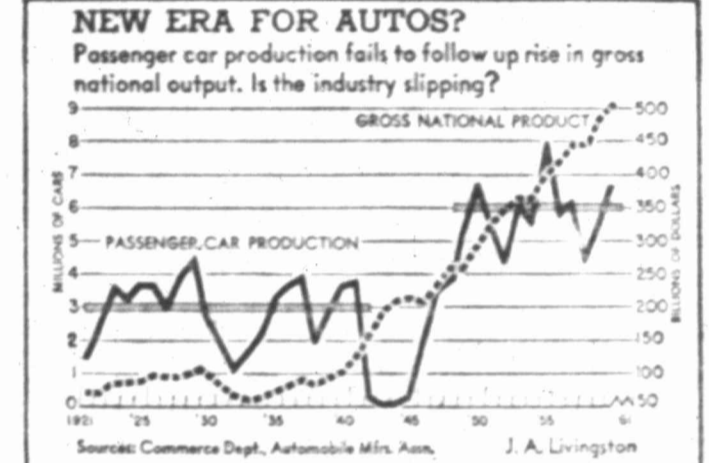

Inference: Turn-ins will be less frequent. First purchasers will hold on to cars longer.

NEW SEQUENCE During the twenties and early thirties, automobiles sales ran in a three-year sequence—poor year, better year, best year. This pattern fitted 1921, '22, and '23 perfectly; it wasn't quite perfect in the next three years, and then in '27, '28, and '29 it returned.

The Great Depression intervened. The poor-better-best sequence did not resume until 1935 and lasted through 1940, when World War II intervened. Now, take a look at the production figures in the last three years:

Year No. of Cars
1958 4,337,000
1959 5,590,000
1960 6,700,000

Is the sequence back? Sales during the first six weeks suggest that another poor-better-best cycle could be starting.

Department of Commerce data confirm de-emphasis of the car as a status symbol. From 1953 through 1957, 5.2 per cent of people's consumption outlays went for new and used cars. Only in 1954 did the percentage drop below 5 per cent—4.7 per cent.

The percentage has been under 5 per cent in each of the last three years—3.9 per cent in 1958, 4.8 per cent in 1959, and 4.7 per cent in 1960. Statistically, Americans are not "investing" as large a part of their egos in new cars (relative to other things) as they used to (see chart).

CAR INDUSTRY'S GUILT The automobile industry can't escape condemnation for its own and the nation's economic plight. The new-model madness which seizes General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, and to a lesser extent, American Motors every midsummer doesn't make economic sense. The companies close down old-model runs, start up new-model production, swing into overtime, extra shifts and Saturday work, then, having built up inventories of dealers, unwind with slowdowns, shutdowns, and layoffs.

Surely the executives who have won their way to the top of America's outstanding industry can figure how to smooth out month-to-month production schedules. If the executives, themselves, faced periodic layoffs and pay cuts traceable to the fast-up-fast-down production cycle, they'd be more concerned about erratic production and employment.

Governor J. L. Robertson of the Federal Reserve Board raised this pertinent question in a socially significant speech in San Francisco recently: "Why shouldn't blue collar workers have tenure, income security, status, and protection from recessions similar to that provided white collar workers?"

Meanwhile, it's possible that the rise is past. As of February 1, stocks of used cars in dealers' hands were down to a 30-day supply, the lowest level since October. A pick up in used-car demand usually presages improvement in new-car sales. In March, instead of adding to unemployment, auto companies should be relieving it.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss. — On its outside billboard a movie theater recently advised its patrons: "Movie no good tonight. Save your money and come Saturday."

Uncommon Footnotes To History

(Footnotes of history, for this Washington's Birthday season which, if they had been true, might have changed the course of an empire.)

I
The scene is the home of Augustine and Mary Washington. August comes in late in the evening after a busy day at the shoppe.

"Ah, good evening, Wyle," he says.

"DON'T USE that old English tone with me," she snaps at him. "We're in the new colonies, didn't you know? And besides, that son of yours has driven me distracted all day. He's been into one thing and then another. And I've taken that hatchet away from him a half-dozen times. There's no telling how much damage he's done with it, August, you simply have got to talk to that boy."

"Yes, m'dear. I know there must be trouble when you say he's my son. But I'll talk to him."

THE ELDER WASHINGTON goes out into the yard and is shocked beyond belief to see one of his fine cherry trees cut down. He calls for young George and eventually the lad shows up.

"Yes, Pappa?" says the kid.

"Don't try the old English on me, son," says the old man. "Let's get down to facts. What's happened to that cherry tree?"

"Cherry tree? Which one do you mean, Pop? Oh, that one. Gee whiz, I didn't know it had been chopped down. Now, what do you know?"

LOOK ME SQUARE in the eye, son, and tell me whether or not you chopped down the tree," says August.

"On my honor as a colonial, Pappa, the boy comes right back. 'I did not do it. It could have been Thomas or James. They were over here today, and there're pretty mean kids. But not me.'"

So, August pinks the kid up and whales the breath out of him, not only for chopping down the tree, but also for lying.

IT'S A COLD WINTER'S night, and General George Washington is ready to slip up on the enemy while they are resting. The only way he can get to them is by boat, across the Delaware. "All right, men," cries the General. "Let this be a night for history. All the press correspondents here? Somebody see that those boys get in a boat close to mine. You will have no trouble recognizing my boat. I will be standing up in the prow, and there will be banners all around me."

"NOW LET'S SLIP into the water quietly. Everybody stay together. We don't want to lose any wing men."

The valiant army sets out across the icy waters. The oars dip quietly in the water. The news men are delighted to see the fine figure of the general, standing alert, peering into the darkness, as if ready to spring at the foe. They are eager to hear the General make a historic remark, like "Nuts" or "Damn the Torpedoes."

"Yes, m'dear. I know there must be trouble when you say he's my son. But I'll talk to him."

"Yes, Pappa?" says the kid.

"Don't try the old English on me, son," says the old man. "Let's get down to facts. What's happened to that cherry tree?"

"Cherry tree? Which one do you mean, Pop? Oh, that one. Gee whiz, I didn't know it had been chopped down. Now, what do you know?"

LOOK ME SQUARE in the eye, son, and tell me whether or not you chopped down the tree," says August.

"On my honor as a colonial, Pappa, the boy comes right back. 'I did not do it. It could have been Thomas or James. They were over here today, and there're pretty mean kids. But not me.'"

So, August pinks the kid up and whales the breath out of him, not only for chopping down the tree, but also for lying.

IT'S A COLD WINTER'S night, and General George Washington is ready to slip up on the enemy while they are resting. The only way he can get to them is by boat, across the Delaware. "All right, men," cries the General. "Let this be a night for history. All the press correspondents here? Somebody see that those boys get in a boat close to mine. You will have no trouble recognizing my boat. I will be standing up in the prow, and there will be banners all around me."

"NOW LET'S SLIP into the water quietly. Everybody stay together. We don't want to lose any wing men."

The valiant army sets out across the icy waters. The oars dip quietly in the water. The news men are delighted to see the fine figure of the general, standing alert, peering into the darkness, as if ready to spring at the foe. They are eager to hear the General make a historic remark, like "Nuts" or "Damn the Torpedoes."

"Yes, m'dear. I know there must be trouble when you say he's my son. But I'll talk to him."

The Importance Of Liking Yourself

Do you like yourself? Such a question may seem strange and you may ask, "Doesn't everyone like himself?" Of course, the answer to that is no. And it is important to like yourself if you wish to be happy and effective.

No doubt you are acquainted with some people who seem to like themselves very well indeed. You may wonder why anyone in his right mind would want to encourage such self-assured people in their super opinions of themselves. I assure you it is not my purpose to promote self-adulation, self-love or a narcissistic variety, smug satisfaction or anything of that sort.

I THINK IT is safe to assume that most people are afflicted not with over-abundant egotism but with the opposite condition. They are troubled with self-doubt. They suffer from self-depreciation. Their self-esteem is very weak. They find no pleasure in their own selves and in some extreme cases even hate themselves.

Much mental illness stems from inferiority feelings, inadequacy feelings, self-dislike—even self-disgust. To be well adjusted, happy and effective you have to have normally high self-esteem.

A YOUNG MINISTER told me about his first experience in pastoral counseling. He had only recently been graduated from the theological seminary. The church where he was pastor, his first church, was a very small one. There was no office for the minister in the church itself. Anybody wanting to talk with him simply called at the parsonage.

One day there came to his door a man who appeared to be around 40 years old, intelligent looking, well dressed, obviously well educated, and this man said to him, "I have got to have help. I am completely discouraged. So far as I can see, there is no hope for me at all. I am sick and tired of myself. Everything I do goes wrong. I hate myself. And if I can't find somebody who can help me, I am going to get rid of myself."

QUITE A COMPLEX problem, wasn't it, to throw at a young pastor fresh from school. This young minister frankly admits it was very nearly floored him. But he did a wise thing. He said to the man, "You sit here for a few minutes and think it over. I've got a consultation in the back room. I'll be back in just a few minutes." And he went to another room, shut the door and prayed. "Lord," he said, "you will have to tell me what to tell him."

Apparently the Lord liked his prayer, for there came to his mind three prayers; he presented these points to the discouraged man who accepted them and began to change by means of them, and is now getting along very well. He learned from these simple ideas how to like and handle himself.

THE FIRST POINT was: "Practice loving God and then you will learn to love yourself." It is indeed true that as you learn to love God, you start developing the normal self-esteem of a child of God.

The second point, "Learn to esteem your character." When we commit sins and do wrong things, we wound or hurt our self-esteem. As self-esteem declines self-dislike increases.

THE THIRD POINT was this: "Put your life confidently in God's hands and let Him run it."

It was good sound advice. With the aid of these three points anyone can learn to like himself. Then living with yourself will become an enjoyable experience.

Improving The Press Conference

WASHINGTON — The presidential press conference is not quite what it could be and still preserve the dignity of the presidency while giving the American people the information to which they are entitled.

President or someone on his staff, the audience would hear every word and know just what was being discussed.

THIS WHOLE PROBLEM has been up in previous administrations, but it hasn't been as important before because press conferences had not been presented "live" on television or radio. In this administration came into office on January 20, the impression which the nation gets of its press is as important as the impression it gets of the President who is being interviewed.

Nothing like the presidential press conference takes place regularly anywhere else in the world. The nearest thing to it are the debates held in the parliaments of Europe where opposition members formally submit written questions several days in advance. Once these are answered by the government's spokesmen, there is full discussion by those present.

IF QUESTIONS had to be handed in at the White House a few hours ahead of the President's press conferences—and news-men could be encouraged to file some of them even a day in advance—there could be more preparation than now is possible. Certainly there would be a better chance to get a comprehensive answer from the President—and, after all, that is the main purpose of the news conference. It is not intended to be a theatrical performance or a vehicle for political oratory or for impromptu comments by the reporters.

For there is no reason why the President should find it necessary to discuss subjects that are being thoroughly explored by the heads of government departments and agencies who themselves hold press conferences regularly and can give answers more fully to the reporters.

THE PRESIDENT, of course, could bring up topics of his own and make comments on them. This would naturally open the conference to questions on any statements that he himself has introduced.

Answers To Child Behavior Problems

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
"Dear Dr. Molner: I need your advice. I have three children, aged 5, 4 and 3. The girl, 5, is very well adjusted to life and takes everything in stride, but the boy, 4, is a nervous type. Try as I may, I cannot overcome the very serious problem of his getting up in the morning before anyone else, and emptying the medicine cabinets, cupboards, etc. The younger girl, 3, is beginning to do the same."

"The boy is not neglected in any way by my knowledge, and is happy when he is praised. Anything you could tell me would be appreciated.—B. A. P."

"Jeepers, why don't people ask me easy questions? I know, I know! If the questions are easy, they don't have to ask."

Let's get down to bedrock on this question. Whether it's emptying the medicine cabinets and cupboards, or something else, we have to try our best to figure out WHY he does it.

Adults, I've found, are sometimes, perhaps usually, baffled by the utter simplicity of the things that activate children. While, naturally, I am wholly in accord with the things that the child psychologist and psychiatrists are gradually teaching us, I think we sometimes are too apt to hunt for complex answers when we ought to stick to simple ones.

In the above case, I DON'T think that the four-year-old was frightened by a medicine cabinet when he was two weeks old.

Before we go on, let's insert this: I'm thoroughly worried about kids getting into medicine cabinets. A handful of "candy" from an aspirin bottle can be dangerous, even deadly. A sip of "cherry pop" from an antiseptic bottle can be serious. A hook at the very top of cabinet or a turnbuckle, or such, can be good insurance. It's also wise, as I've said before, to keep only the simplest, most harmless things in a medicine cabinet. But even corn plasters, nail files and mouth wash can be perils. So keep the kids out, and keep dangerous things out.

Now what about the four-year-old explorer who gets up and prowls while everyone else is asleep? He's obviously an energetic, enterprising young one. But is his problem cabinets and cupboards, or something else, we have to try our best to figure out WHY he does it.

This, it seems to me, comes down to a simpler answer: If, day after day, he gets up before anyone else, then maybe he needs less sleep. Maybe keeping him up another 30 minutes or an hour at night might solve the whole thing.

But with or without that, I think he also needs discipline. By "discipline," I don't mean "punishment." Those are two different things. But he does need to learn that, at his age, he is supposed to stay in bed until parents say, "Get up!"

The problem isn't cupboards. The problem is an energetic little boy who has to learn, and be helped, to stay in bed until it's time to get up.

Simplify the problem!
"Dear Dr. Molner: Please answer this question for my friends and me: What foods contain copper?—N. T. P."

Copper is what we call a trace element—very small amounts are needed by the body, and the major purpose has to do with blood (hemoglobin) formation. Rich sources are oysters, peas, beans, liver, cereals, eggs. But in any balanced diet you get all the copper you need or can use, so who's worrying about it?

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Herald requesting a copy of this booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Four Criminal Cases Slated For Trial In County Court

Four criminal cases are docketed for jury trial in Howard County Court this week. First case to be called for trial will be that against Bishop D. Johnson, charged with DWI. Johnson is slated to be tried starting at 10 a.m. Tuesday. A jury panel of 50 has been summoned to serve the court this week.

Second case slated for trial will be a DWI charge against Thomas F. Conway. He is to be tried on Feb. 22.

James Marvin Brown, DWI, will go on trial on Feb. 23 and R. D. Matthews, charged with writing a worthless check, goes on trial Feb. 24. His case will terminate the two week's jury docket which has been in progress before County Judge Ed Carpenter.

Only two jury cases were tried last week although one had been set down for each day, Tuesday through Friday. Both of the verdicts returned by the jurors were victories for the defendants—acquittals being voted.

So far, of the 40 criminal matters set down on the docket, 12 of the defendants have pleaded guilty; eight others are to plead guilty this week and five cases have been dismissed. Six of the cases have been passed for the term. Four remain to be tried and two defendants have been tried and found not guilty.

Pleas of guilty already entered: Archie Jones, transporting liquor; Lee V. Vinson, DWI; Jacinto Hilario, DWI; James G. Freeman, DWI; William E. Patterson, DWI; Roy D. Rose, transporting liquor; Eusebio Ramirez, DWI; Wayne Barber, DWI; Daniel Munoz, DWI; Perry W. Miles, DWI; and Edward R. Iken, DWI; Billy Dee Clark, DWI. Cases ordered dismissed: Geraldine Bush, theft; Geraldine Bush, shoplifting; Cleo Lowery, DWI; John Milton Hall, driving with suspended drivers license; and Loreine K. James, transportation of liquor.

Cases passed for the term: Robert P. Woods, DWI; Robert P. Woods, carrying arms; Joe Sherman Jr., driving with suspended drivers license; Guillermo Serna, DWI; Warren S. Christie, DWI; and Ernest C. Meeks, DWI.

Defendants acquitted by jury verdict: Jesus M. Flores, DWI; James Nathaniel Nelson, DWI.

Defendants who announced at the sounding of the docket their intention to enter pleas of guilty: James O. Cochran, DWI; Cleo Lowery, DWI; Dennis L. Vaughn, DWI; Chuck Jones, aggravated assault; J. C. Garrett, DWI; Elwin Carl Haley, DWI; Franklin Dee Bownds, transporting liquor; and Hamilton Kirbo Jr., DWI.

GARDEN TALK

There Is No All-Purpose Fertilizer For Flowers

The other day I answered a question about wood ashes used around plants and trees. Mrs. Ida Harrison on Birdwell Lane also wanted to know what fertilizers were best in flower beds.

To recommend one fertilizer for all flower beds would be like telling someone what sort of cake was best or what sort of pie was better than all others. After all fertilizers are plant foods and plants, like people, prefer different foods. There are several rose foods on the market that are designed especially for feeding roses and nothing else. The Peal Rose Food is quite good; there are others on the market and all have their special qualities.

Our alkaline soils are just perfect for certain plants while they cause chlorosis in others. Chlorosis just means yellowing, and in this case yellowing because of excess alkali. Plants like pyracantha are most likely to become yellow from this cause. To remedy this we add acid fertilizers to the soils. Sulphur is a good source of acid, and it is not too expensive. Peat moss also provides some acid to the soil. Compost and well rotted manures help balance the acid alkali ratio, but no matter what acid materials one uses they must be repeated for acid loving plants, because our water and soil are all alkaline to such a degree that the acid treatments need to be repeated regularly.

Plants like azaleas can be grown in nothing but peat moss, and several plants are blooming at Howard County Junior College that have been treated in this manner for the past several years. They are planted in concrete urns and grow in the front entrance of the Dora Roberts Student Union Building. Because the room is heated they usually bloom a little early each year and are the first of a series of plants that follow each other with blooming periods all spring on the campus.

While still on the subject of fertilizers, it is hard to beat compost (rotted vegetation) and manures for general soil conditioning and plant feeding, but if a chemical plant food is indicated most of the chemical fertilizers have their place in our gardens. High nitrate plant foods and high phosphate foods seem to give very good results in most places, but some other plants respond to a complete nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash combination. All these are available at your local nursery or seed store. I should mention iron as another plant food for our use here, too.

Write your garden questions to Bruce Frazier in care of the Herald.

Jones To Build Fallout Shelter

Contract for construction of a demonstration fallout shelter has been awarded to Jimmy Jones of Big Spring. W. D. Berry, Civil Defense coordinator, announced Saturday.

Berry said he had been advised by the engineer for region No. 5 of Civil Defense that Jones' bid of $1,425 was the lowest of several submitted. The purchase order contract is being forwarded for completion.

Plans call for construction of the emergency shelter on the west side of the Main Street fire station. It will be available to show individuals what is recommended in an emergency shelter that would provide safety from both blast and radiation fallout as well as from natural disasters such as tornadoes.

Cutting Horse Show Saturday

The West Texas Cutting Horse Association, Inc. announced the first show of 1961 will be held at the fair ground in Midland on Feb. 25, with the Novice - Novice Class starting at 10 a.m. and registration beginning at 9 a.m.

Judges will be C. E. Boyd, president of West Central Texas Cutting Horse Association, and Homer Bennett, president of New Mexico Cutting Horse Association.

Fresh cattle have been donated by several individuals in this area. Girl Scouts are to have food and beverages available.

Suit Settled For $13,500

Jim Ferguson King and Mrs. King, acting in behalf of their minor son, Carey Dewain King, have settled a $20,000 damage suit brought by them in 118th District Court against Tom Conway, Big Spring filling station operator.

The agreed judgment was approved Friday afternoon by Judge Ralph W. Caton. Under its terms, the Kings are to be paid $10,000 in cash and $3,500 in promissory notes to be paid in 60 equal monthly installments by Conway.

The suit developed as result of a traffic accident on Dec. 10, 1960. In this accident, young King was so seriously injured that his right leg had to be amputated between the ankle and the knee.

Balance

One of Cadillac's greatest attributes is its innate balance. Under any driving condition, the car's poise is a constant source of satisfaction. Threading your way through traffic or leisurely cruising along back roads, your Cadillac rides you smoothly and steadily—so that road irregularities are almost imperceptible. Balance is the key to its precise and effortless control, as well—and to the wondrous silence of its great engine. Your Cadillac dealer will be happy to let you prove with a ride these, and the many other virtues of the Cadillac for 1961.

An early start at morning tasks in comfortable working togs of brown whipcord slacks and cotton shirt in tones of brown and beige.

Casual dropper-inners for morning coffee might find Mrs. Joe Gunning, 815 W. 18th., looking fresher than the proverbial daisy in this crisp black and white checked cotton frock.

Slim skirt, cropped jacket of off-white raw silk complete three-piece ensemble which takes her to tea or to luncheon.

Lunching at the club—possibly to play bridge afterwards? Or maybe an informal luncheon at home for friends? The black and white raw silk frock, full-skirted over crinoline, fills the bill.

Around The Clock, Spring 1961

Even after a busy day, a dance is fun when there's such a lovely gown as the strapless formal of champagne nylon tulle sprinkled with iridescent sequins.

Off to church in a two-piece suit in navy and white . . . perennially favorite colors for spring.

Member of the house party or guest at a cocktail party, she is never lovelier than in the all-silk frock with fitted midriff and flattering shawl collar. The delightful shade is April flame — (you'll know it as orange).

Nubby linen makes up into a season-spanner when the color is pale beige, which can be combined with any color accessories and dressed up or down.

Mrs. Gunning carries her garden with her: her new cotton casual with machine embroidered panels of gay flowers in yellow, green and coral.

Sorority Sweetheart

Mrs. Jerry Spence, Valentine Sweetheart of the Beta Omicron Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, was one of the 40 finalists in the international sweetheart contest in which Dorothy Young of Flagstaff, Ariz., was chosen queen. Doris Huffaker of Wichita Falls was named princess; all sweethearts become part of the queen's court. Robert Cummings, star of movies and television programs, was the judge of the contest.

Mental Illness Forum Subject

"The Basic Facts of Mental Illness," was the topic of a talk by Tom Porter for The Woman's Forum when the club met Friday at the home of Mrs. Clarence Percy.

Mr. Porter, trained in psychology, is presently working with the Rehabilitation Service of the Texas Education Agency. He pointed out that mental disorders could come about from congenital malformation or with the mistreatment of the normal body, such as overwork or lack of it, from excesses of various kinds and disease.

The two types of mental disturbances he described as neurosis and psychosis and stated that the milder form, neurosis, if treatment was begun at an early stage, could be handled easily. The treatment of the psychotic, which has many phases, is more difficult to treat and usually takes much longer and more exacting treatment.

One type of psychosis is schizophrenia which is found mostly in the age group of 16 to 30 years.

The speaker noted that many of this type had become chronic sufferers due to the antiquated methods of care and treatment during the early stages of the disorder.

Mrs. Dewitt Seago was a guest of the club.

During the business session Mrs. Clyde Thomas Jr., president, announced a nominating committee composed of Mrs. Buel Fox, Mrs. E. B. Compton and Mrs. Charles Harwell. The club voted to dispense with a proposed book review during the spring.

Mrs. D. D. Dyer, cohostess, assisted Mrs. Percy in serving refreshments to the guest and 18 members.

Wide Choice For Spring Attire Can Be Found In Local Shops

By ANNE LEFEVER

On a recent tour of local stores, Mrs. Joe Gunning, 815 W. 18th, was caught by the Herald photographer as she assembled a wardrobe which would carry her through busy days of an exciting season, which is just around the next flip of the calendar.

At the present time, Mrs. Gunning is redecorating the home which the couple has recently purchased, and what could be better to work in than the slim pants of brown wmpcord with its cotton blouse of beige, brown and just a dash of red. The pants are well-fitting, but still give freedom for bending and stooping. The blouse, which may be worn in or out, is generous enough to allow for all the reach a painter needs.

Jet buttons glitter on the midriff of a black and white checked cotton, which is just right for morning shopping or perhaps informal entertaining with a pot of coffee and interesting chat.

Perhaps the hospitality is a bit more on the dignified side or there's a luncheon in prospect. The black and white print raw silk will be just the right thing to wear. The full skirt is set off with a net underskirt, and white cuffs show off black shiny buttons which go with the patent belt. The high bal-eau neckline dips low in the back for an unusual touch.

Appearing as a two-piece suit, the ensemble of raw silk is really most deceiving. Remove the cropped jacket and underneath is an overblouse which can be worn with the slim skirt as days grow warmer. The neutral tone of the suit enables the wearer to use a variety of accessories; Mrs. Gunning chose black patent—always a favorite for spring.

She'd be a bright spot in any house party or at a cocktail gathering in the all-silk frock with a most flattering shawl collar and molded bodice. Two panels grace the side front and end in fringe to add the only trimming to the dress of April flame shade—in other words, a pleasing orange hue.

Embroidered flowers on combed cotton were machine made in Switzerland and sent to a manufacturer in the United States; so finely executed is the work that it appears to be handmade. The simple round-necked two-piece is coral and white striped, with a garden border of green, yellow and coral.

What woman ever had enough

"always-ready frocks"? The nub-by linen-like fabric, which made a casual selected by Mrs. Gunning, is in a pale beige which lends itself to any color harmony or contrasts. An upstanding band lifts the neckline from the ordinary run of cowl necklines, and pockets mark each side of the straight skirt. It's a dress one can wear and enjoy, especially at the change of seasons.

Navy and white, always a sign of spring in fashion circles, is the combination of the jacket piped in white with full skirt, permanently pleated. A little sailor, perched atop her head, follows through with the same shades and shortie gloves complete Mrs. Gunning's attire.

A perfect ending for any day would be an occasion for wearing the strapless formal of nylon tulle in champagne shade. The extremely full underskirt is topped with two folds of tulle sparkling with iridescent sequins; above the tightly fitted midriff of tiny tucks is a scattering of sequins. The elbow length gloves are of gold metallic to blend with the glitter of sequins.

PETITE FASHION

Sheath Is Made In Long Line Effect

Ben Barrack moulds a posy-splashed print into a delightful fashion, its simplicity and subtle touches promising longer lines for petite figures.

Everything about this wide necked sheath is soft and easy. To wit, the moderately blouson bodice with its gentle collar-bow, the slender skirt eased with released pleating below the sashed waist, and, equally important to the busy girl who makes her own clothes, the effortless way the design goes together in double-quick time!

For a dress that buds in spring and blossoms all summer, choose the prettiest silk, rayon or cotton print that you can find. And we're sure that you'll like the results equally well when you make a second edition in plain fabrics such as linen, shantung or pongee.

From these corresponding body measurements select the one size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to ready-to-wear.

Size 12 requires 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch fabric for dress.

Lloyds To Make Home In Plainview

Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Lloyd will make their home in Plainview following their marriage here Saturday at 5 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Robert Piner.

The bride is the former Mrs. Ira Thurman, who, until her marriage, was coordinator of volunteer services at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Dr. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist Church, read the vows as the couple stood before an improvised altar; they were unattended.

Mrs. Nell Frazier, pianist, played a prelude of nuptial music and throughout the ceremony furnished a background of wedding selections.

For her wedding, the bride chose a two-piece suit of meadow brown, with which she used black accessories.

Supper was served to relatives and close friends who attended the wedding, and later, members of the First Baptist Bykota Class called for an informal reception. Mrs. Lloyd has been the class teacher for several years; she was a member of the 1930 Hyperion Club and the New Idea Sewing Club. For the past year, Mrs. Lloyd has served on the board of the Salvation Army.

Coming from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Peterson of Fort Worth; Mrs. Frank Burns of Cuero, sister of the bride; and Mrs. R. L. Davis of San Antonio, sister of the bridegroom. Friends also attended from San Angelo, Lubbock and Plainview.

Centerpiece For Shower Is Original

An unusual note was introduced into the centerpiece for the serving table when Mrs. W. A. Hunt and Mrs. J. A. Coffey entertained at a coffee for Fan Barber Saturday morning in the Hunt home.

Into a large milkglass footed bowl, the two placed kitchen linens, dish rags and pot holders, all rolled as colorful blossoms. Tiny fresh flowers were combined with the linens to form a bouquet, and ribbons in the honoree's chosen color, strawberry, laced the bowl in a beading effect.

At the conclusion of the party, the bowl and its contents, were presented to Miss Barber as the hostess gift.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Barber, Rt. 1, the honoree is the bride-elect of Donald R. Cloud of Austin. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cloud of Kerens. The couple will be married March 4 in the First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Obie Bristow and Mrs. Tommy Hutto served refreshments for about 30, while Mrs. C. H. Hall of Terrell, aunt of the bride-elect, was at the guest register.

Betrothed

The engagement and approaching marriage of Dianne Childress and Jerry Richardson has been announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Childress, 1514 E. 17th. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Richardson, 1003 Lancaster. The couple plans an April 14 wedding.

Walker-Timmings Vows Repeated In Home Rites

Single ring vows, repeated Friday evening in the home of the bride's parents, united in marriage Billie Sue Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Walker, 111 Lincoln Blvd. and Frank Basil Timmings Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Timmings, 310 Galveston.

The Rev. Cecil Rhodes, pastor of the West Side Baptist Church, read the vows as the couple stood before a large sunburst arrangement of white stock and gladioli flanked with emerald fern trees. Satin bows accented the arrangement.

Linda Gilstrap, organist, played "I Love You Truly," "O, Promise Me" and the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz length gown fashioned with white lace over a fitted satin bodice. The bouffant skirt was of chiffon over satin. A fitted jacket of matching lace highlighted her attire. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was attached to a ring of miniature orange blossoms.

The bride carried an arrangement of white French chrysanthemums on a white Bible.

Patsy Peach, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of blue chiffon and lace and carried a nosegay of pink gladioli.

Leroy Grandstaff served as best man. For a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride chose a dress of white broadcloth accented with blue accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School where she was a member of the Latin Club and Bible Club. At the present time she is taking vocational nurses training at Medical Arts Clinic-Hospital.

Following the ceremony a reception was given in the home of the bride's parents.

Members of the houseparty were Mrs. Jean Cross, Mrs. D. R. Buzbee and Joy Peach.

Mrs. B. J. Edens was in charge of the guest register.

The bridegroom is a graduate of an El Paso High School and is employed by W. D. Caldwell. The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white lace cloth and decorated with a three tiered wedding cake, holding a miniature bridal couple on the tier.

Home Ceremony Unites Miss Sneed, Roy Tully

Cleta Sneed became the bride of Roy Tully in a double ring ceremony performed Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eckler, 621 State. T. E. Tudd, minister of the 14th and Main Church of Christ, read the vows.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mrs. Mary Sneed, 1801 Donley, and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Tully of Galveston.

Jack Price read a poem with a musical background. A recording of "I Love You Truly," which was sung by an uncle of Mrs. Eckler, was played.

The bride chose a dress of white brocade featuring a fitted bodice and rounding neckline attached to a skirt of gathers. The brief veil of illusion was held by a bandeau, and she wore a corsage of white carnations tied with blue ribbons.

Leonard Sneed, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

The couple will make their home at 307 E. 7th.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard County Junior College; she is employed by Hester's Office Supply.

The bridegroom is stationed at Webb Air Force Base.

Following the ceremony the Ecklers were hosts for a reception in their home.

The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth over blue. Centering the table was a wedding cake iced in white and decorated in blue. Cut glass candle holders held white tapers.

Members of the houseparty included Melba Burton, Jane McElroy, Mrs. Price and Mrs. Ronnie Phillips.

Oh, the joy of knowledge! This year I can say with complete confidence the jasmine is beautiful as it puts forth its yellow bloom all about the city. Never again will I stir the gardeners' hearts by announcing the forsythia is in bloom at this early stage. Last year I had a conference with a person who didn't know forsythia any better than I did and we came up with the wrong answer. But now I know, and it is jasmine that's in bloom now.

MRS. VERNON SMITH and MRS. VANCE LEIBKOWSKY are expected to return from Fort Worth today after spending the weekend with Mrs. Smith's daughter, MRS. RAY ABEL, and her family.

This idea was not presented to the committee for the Garden Club Tasting Tea in time for the affair for this year but I think it a good one. . . . one of the members had suggested a table of low calorie foods for those who must diet for health's sake and also for those who diet for beauty's sake.

The tea this year will be at the

CAN RHEUMATIC FEVER BE PREVENTED?

Unfortunately its cause is not yet clear. We do know that about half of all cases have had tonsillitis or a sore throat from one to four weeks before.

It must be recognized before the heart is seriously injured. Only a physician can diagnose it. Protect your children. Always consult your Doctor when they have a fever or sore throat. If the diagnosis is early, rheumatic fever is not dangerous.

MRS BOBY JACK BARNES

Nina York, B. J. Barnes Wed Saturday Evening

Nina Frances York became the bride of Bobby Jack Barnes in a double ring ritual performed Saturday evening in the home of the bride's mother.

Mrs. E. W. York, 1512 Sunset, and the late Mr. York are the bride's parents; Roy N. Barnes, Old San Angelo Highway, and the late Mrs. Barnes are the parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Jack Strickland, pastor of the East Fourth Baptist Church, read the double ring vows before an improvised altar of a large pastel arrangement of stock and gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Joe C. Rountree, was attired in a dress, designed and made by her mother, of white brocade satin and fashioned along princess lines. A sweetheart neckline accented the fitted bodice and back interest was a grouping of unpressed pleats. A fitted jacket was accented with a Queen Anne collar and sleeves which tapered into points over the hands.

Her shoulder length veil of illusion extended from a handmade hat of white lace and seed pearls. Carrying out the traditional bridal customs, the bride wore a pearl necklace, belonging to her mother, as something old; she named her wedding attire as something new. Her veil was borrowed from Mrs. Art Dodds, and she wore a blue garter belonging to her aunt, Mrs. R. L. Lebkowsky.

She carried a cascade bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Margaret Ann York, sister of the bride, was maid of honor; she chose a dress of aqua satin brocade with a wrap-around effect and scooped neckline accented by buttons in the front. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Robert Gene Bronaugh was the bridegroom's best man.

For a wedding trip to El Paso the bride chose a suit of blue and gray and her accessories were of black.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School where she was a member of the FHA and ICT. She is presently employed as a nurse at Big Spring Clinic.

The bridegroom attended Egan Schools and is employed with

Father Of Bridegroom Reads Twin Ring Rites

LAMESA (SC) — Penelope McNabb and James Lloyd Mayhew Jr. were married in a ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in First Methodist Church here.

The bridegroom's father officiated for the double ring vows after a program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Jake Lipard, organist, and Wayne Storch of Abilene, vocalist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest McNabb, 1307 N. Llano Dr., Hobbs, N. M., and Mayhew is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Lloyd Mayhew, 203 S. 3rd St., Lamesa.

Southern smilax was draped to form a background for emerald palms, fern and smilax along the chancel rail of the altar, and white cathedral tapers were in pedestaled candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace designed with fitted basque bodice featuring a sabrina neckline delicately traced with sequins and seed pearls and long tapering sleeves ending in points over her hands. Highlighting the back of the scalloped floor length gown was a double bow of lace sprinkled with sequins.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls; a traditional wedding bouquet was centered with an orchid.

The bride's sister, Mrs. J. V. Walzel of Houston, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Bunny Stromberg of Hobbs, N. M., and Mrs. Buddy Fornes of Seminole, sister of the bridegroom.

The attendants were identically gowned in street length dresses of coral satin fashioned with scoop necklines, tiny cap sleeves and bell skirts enhanced with draped fronts. Their headpieces were coral satin bandeaux, and they carried nosegays of white split carnations with edges tinted in coral.

MRS. JAMES LLOYD MAYHEW

groom, was best man. Ushering were the bride's brother-in-law, J. V. Walzel of Houston, and Eddie Teeter of Odessa. Groomsman were Easil Foy of Sweetwater and Charles Bailey.

Members of the houseparty for the wedding reception, held in the church parlor, were Mrs. Durelle Dyer of Hobbs, Joan Tarter, Julia Durham and Martha Ranson.

and their guests were entertained Friday evening.

Girls were each presented a red rose and their escorts received boutonnières as they were greeted and shown to foursome tables by Linda Smith, Pamela Dyer, and Karen Miller.

Chandeliers of pink tulle-weeds were suspended from the ceiling and hung with hearts, while pink cloths were combined with red napkins on the tables, centered with floating candles.

Jerry Henderson, master of ceremonies, presented a dramatic reading, and two solos by James Thurmond completed the program. Speaker for the evening was the Rev. Horace Whitesides, whose subject was "Winning Hearts for Jesus."

LaPrecia Brown was crowned queen, with C. E. Woodson named as king. The coronation took place beneath a white arch decorated with blossoms and greenery.

Special guests were the Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Bingham, Mrs. H. C. Spivey, Mrs. Dick Beard, Mrs. J. L. Berryhill and Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hendrick, sponsors of the group.

THE FAMILY OF THE REV. J. E. WHISENANT

Missionary Evangelist, Family To Establish Baptist Mission

"We are here to build a mission," says newcomer, missionary evangelist J. E. Whisenant, 3902 Hamilton.

The Whisenants recently moved to Big Spring from Brownsville, where they had made their home for almost three years. They also established a mission church in that city.

The Whisenant family consists of one son, Mike, who is 12 years of age and a sixth grade student in Marcy school, and a puppy called Lady.

The mission which Rev. Whisenant will be ministering is the Trinity Baptist Mission, soon to be built in the Lockhart Addition. For three years, he was minister of the South Side Baptist Church in Colorado City, a church which the couple also established. They have also founded churches in Crane, Dublin, Grants, N. M., and Fort Stockton.

Rev. Whisenant is a graduate of Bible Baptist Seminary, now located in Arlington, and holds a bachelor of divinity degree from that school. His work is with the World Baptist Fellowship.

The Rev. Whisenant was saved while serving on the battlefield in Germany. One of the most treasured possessions of the family is a small steel-covered New Testament which has a hole through the front cover and on into the book of Mark. The hole was caused by a piece of shrapnel, which was fired on the battlefield; the Bible probably helped save the life of the mission worker. Inscribed on the front cover of the Bible is "May This Keep You

From Harm." The small book was sent to Rev. Whisenant by his wife shortly after his departure for Germany.

For his great service, he was awarded the Purple Heart and the Oak Leaf Cluster.

Other than working with missions and churches, Rev. Whisenant enjoys rebuilding mechanical machines. Mrs. Whisenant spends her spare time sewing, and Mike is a builder of model airplanes and cars.

Pioneer Volunteer Leader Leaves Post

By JOE PICKLE
Three and a half years ago Mrs. Ira Thurman embarked upon an experience that was entirely new for her and the Big Spring State Hospital.

At the urging of Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent, and other friends, she took the new post of coordinator of volunteer services at the Big Spring State Hospital. There had been some volunteer work here, though not on a coordinated basis. There was a general timidity on the part of lay people about intruding into the hospitals, and an almost equal timidity on the part of staff members about volunteers.

HAPPY CHOICE
Doris Thurman didn't know beans about the job, and it was with utmost reticence that she took it. However, it proved a happy choice, for she soon had a training program going right along with volunteer recruitment.

After one week spent with Helen Colburn, director of volunteer services for the state hospital system, at the Terrell and Austin mental hospitals, Mrs. Thurman took up her post on July 15, 1957.

Few knew that volunteers were wanted or needed, so Mrs. Thurman launched a public relations campaign to acquaint local clubs with the need. By August, there was sufficient interest that a meeting was called to organize a volunteer's council.

Response to the invitation was so surprising that the meeting had to be switched from the administrative offices to ward 10-A.

Mrs. Allen, a veteran volunteer leader at Terrell, came to explain opportunities. Others taking leading roles in the project were Mrs. Leland Croft, Odessa, president of the State Mental Hospital Development Association, which had headed up much of the previous organized volunteer work; Rep. Cotton Kirklind of Odessa; Dr. P. D. O'Brien, who presided; and R. W. Whipkey, who served as chairman of the organization committee which got the council going.

FIRST CHAIRMAN
Jack Y. Smith became first chairman of the panel. He later was succeeded by the Rev. Bill Boyd, but then took the presidency over again when Rev. Boyd moved away.

At first Mrs. Thurman was kept busy finding places for the volunteers to work, for there were few department heads on the staff then. Later, she succeeded in organizing an orientation for volunteers and four sessions have been held. The first one drew 125 volunteers and others over 60. Something like 500 to 600 volunteers have worked at the hospital during Mrs. Thurman's tenure.

JOIN COUNCIL
Approximately four score local organizations have accepted membership on the council. Midland ladies have a group that comes to the hospital twice a week, and Odessa women participate regularly. Club women at Stanton, Colorado City, Lees and Coahoma have joined on regular projects.

During the Christmas season, participation by clubs had been broadened over a much wider area, and the Christmas party for hospital patients has become the biggest party in the region.

Through the council, sound system used for inter-com or musical therapy has been installed, several buildings air conditioned, and now some buildings partially sound-proofed. Best of all, the volunteers have set up a program of regular visits and activities that have drawn practically all the community into contact with the hospitals.

CONTRIBUTION
Dr. Harrison many times expressed appreciation for the response of volunteers, declaring that they contributed more than they could ever know to the recovery of patients. He gives much credit of this work to the hospital's record of being able now to release about as many patients as it receives.

Mrs. Thurman sort of broke the ice while she was away on a long period of special training at Menninger's at Topeka, Kans. Later Mrs. Thurman was chosen as the only hospital coordinator in Texas to attend a two-week clinic for volunteer coordinators at Menninger's.

Mrs. Thurman, who Saturday was wed to Dr. W. J. Lloyd, is moving from the city, and Mrs. Lou Boning was due to arrive today to succeed her as coordinator. Mrs. Haskell Beck, assisting coordinator, has been serving in an acting capacity since last Dec. 1.

TCU Instructor

Keith C. Odum, 30, former instructor at Big Spring High School from 1952-55, has been named to the Texas Christian University faculty as an instructor in English. He will receive his Ph. D. degree from the University of Wisconsin this summer, and his work at TCU will begin in September. Odum is a native of Healdton, Okla., and he took his BA degree from East Central (Okla.) State College, and his MA from Oklahoma State. He left Big Spring to take a teaching assistantship at Oklahoma State and then at Wisconsin. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Modern Language Association of America and the Christian Church. His parents reside in Midland.

Real Realism

Director John Huston's insistence on realism paid off handsomely. In Reno, lensing "The Misfits," Huston used himself as an extra at the blackjack table, but shunned the house's offer to use their chips. Instead, he used his own money—"I want this character to show true agony," he explained. The scene was shot in four takes, with Huston walking away with a perfect "take"—and $250 of the house's money.

Commissioners Consider New Building Bids Monday

Howard County Commissioners Court will consider bids for enlarging the North building of the county fair grounds at its Monday morning meeting.

The commissioners have asked for bids to make the present building equal in size to the south building. It is estimated that the extension will cost somewhere around $10,000.

No bids had been received by the county court for the job through Saturday. However, it is common practice for the contractors to bring bids with them to the meeting.

The commissioners hope that the building can be remodeled in time to be put into service for the annual Howard County FFA and 4-H Club Fat Stock show which will be staged the middle of March.

Extension to be added to the building will be 60 feet by 60 feet. The buildings at the fairground are of steel and corrugated iron on concrete foundations with concrete floors.

Money for enlarging the building will be provided from the permanent improvement fund of the county.

Last night the Coahoma Country Club was the scene of the Key Club's annual Sweetheart Dance. The highlight of the event was the presentation of Doylene Wadkins as the club sweetheart.

Yesterday about eighteen student council members journeyed to Ozona to participate in a West Texas Forum. Kay Crowover and Jamie Harrington, Ross Reagan, and Steve Blair are the council members who attended. Mr. and Mrs. Don Green accompanied the group as sponsors.

Several speech students left Big Spring Thursday to attend a speech tournament in Abilene. Those on that trip are Wimora Riburg, Norma Jones, Emmett Kent Morgan, Dick Mischen, Johnny Comer, Linda Morton, Danna Smith, Denniece Nicholson, Ilmetta Carr, Joddell Higgins, Nelson Clemow and Sharon Homberg.

Next weekend the BSHS Steerettes will host their sixteenth annual volleyball tournament. The first game is Thursday morning at 11. The volleyball girls have selected a Volleyball Dreamboy and the winner will be revealed in the school paper which comes out Thursday. The girls have gone to Denver City to participate in a tournament this weekend.

Last Monday night at the FHA banquet Carey King was presented as FHA Dreamboy. Congratulations, Carey!

The band returned from the Mardi Gras last week with some exciting stories. Everyone seems to have had a grand time.

Tomorrow is the last day the sophomores may turn in their applications to work on the annual staff next year.

Friday the juniors and the band started their magazine sale. Everyone wishing to subscribe or renew a subscription of a magazine will find plenty of juniors and band members who are willing to help them.

Friday afternoon students had a holiday when teachers participated in an in-service training day. About 30 BSHSers spent the afternoon taking orientation at the state hospital. They are to form a new group of Junior Volunteers. Along with these 30 there are about 20 who have already had orientation.

These 50 students will give as much time as they can doing volunteer work with the patients of the hospital.

He Did Go From 'Rags To Riches'

By KENNETH NORRIS

I keep hearing so much about climbs from "rags to riches" and I wondered if this really happens, to whom and how. Much to my surprise I discovered that it actually does happen.

Last week I talked to a man who told me that as a boy of eight he went into business for himself. On the streets of New York he diligently shined the shoes of passers-by to help supplement the income of a struggling family. Of course, cities and towns all across America boast of similar enterprising shoeshine boys, but few of them will put their experience to work for them in later years, as did this man. Today he shines more shoes than anyone in the world.

The man I spoke to is Mr. I. J. Bottner, president of Knomark Corporation, manufacturers of Esquire Boot Polish—one of America's old firms. And, he still shines shoes (in a manner of speaking).

I caught up with Mr. Bottner in a film studio where his company was making a filmed commercial for their products. Mr. Bottner was watching the proceedings carefully. A stagehand was polishing a pair of shoes to be worn by one of the models. "No, not like that," said Mr. Bottner, "here, let me show you." Taking the shoes from the man, he proceeded to energetically dress and shine the shoes until they emerged with a beautiful, high gloss. "Here, now they're really shined," beamed Mr. Bottner.

I asked Mr. Bottner about shining shoes in New York over thirty years ago. "I used to carry two boxes," he said. "One in which I carried the polish, brushes and rags, and another for my customers to sit on. In those days a shine cost three cents if the customer stood, and five cents if he sat down. I always tried to set up shop in a spot where the customer would want to sit down. In the summer I'd find a cool, shady spot and in the winter a warm place in the sun. I always tried to find a location where there was something interesting to watch. I did many more sitting shines than standing shines," he said smiling.

By the time Mr. Bottner reached college age his father was able to give him one year's tuition, with the admonition, "That's all I can give you. From now on, you are on your own."

Shoes again became a means to an end. Mr. Bottner got a part time job as a shoe salesman near the university. "Each pair of shoes I sold I personally took into the back of the store and shined to protect the leather. People used to like this extra service and I developed some good, steady customers," he recalls.

After college his first job was for a firm in the frozen food business, as a bookkeeper in a warehouse. "I always tried to think of the business as my own," he said. "In the evenings I used to go to grocers to make a study of their problems in handling frozen food. In the course of this I not only found out a great deal, but I learned much that every business man needs to know."

But, somehow, there always seemed to be shoes in my future. After three years with the makers of Esquire Boot Polish, I was asked to become president of the firm. So, he concluded with a smile. "After many years of hard work I'm back where I started from—shining shoes."

Even today spare time jobs are quite common among Under Twenties as a help in picking up some extra spending money. Who knows, one of these jobs may lead to being the president of a large corporation. (Copyright Columbia Features, Inc.)

'Calcutta' Takes Top

By JEANNE HARRISON

The instrumental version of "Calcutta" by Lawrence Welk moved solidly into first place last week in the nation's top ten record hits. The Shirales with "Will You Love Me Tomorrow" held second place, followed closely by Ferrante and Teicher's version of the theme from "Exodus."

Brenda Lee's "Emotions" was moving solidly, going from the number eight spot to sixth. "Wings of a Dove" featuring Ferlin Husky was a newcomer reaching into the number ten position. Here's the rundown:

1. "Calcutta," Lawrence Welk
2. "Will You Love Me Tomorrow," Shirales
3. "Exodus," Ferrante & Teicher
4. "Stop Around," Miracles
5. "Calendar Girl," Neil Sedaka
6. "Emotions," Brenda Lee
7. "Wonderland by Night," Bert Kaempfert
8. "Rubber Ball," Bobby Vee
9. "Angel Baby," Rosie
10. "Wings of a Dove," Ferlin Husky

For those who dig the blues and Jaye P. Morgan, there's a new release aimed at their listening tastes. It's "Close Your Eyes," backed by "Catch Me a Kiss." Jaye gives the "Eyes" number a top ranking vocal treatment, backed by a great instrumental accompaniment.

Eydie Gorme is featured on a new release well worth hearing. It's "What Happened to Our Love." The "Yours Tonight" number is a thrilling ballad, delivered in Eydie's outstanding style, and the flip supports it with another good number.

For the Frankie Avalon fans there's "Call Me Anything," a real rock 'n' roller, backed by a well presented ballad, "All of Everything." (Copyright Columbia Features, Inc.)

Reality Is Change

DES MOINES (AP) — Declaring that some people fear change and new ideas, regard "modern life as degenerate" and want "things the way they used to be," Methodist Bishop F. Gerald Ensley said at a church meeting here.

"This desire to keep things just as they are is futile. There is no way you can prevent life from changing... God does not resist change—God initiates it. Far from approving reaction, God actually punishes those who won't change."

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Church of the Nazarene has adopted a record budget of $3,281,885 for the fiscal year starting May 1, an increase of $104,352 over the previous year's budget.

Shyness Can Be Overcome

By JOAN KETCHUM

The time has come to stop doing a fast fade-out when a member of the opposite sex comes your way, to get over those nothing-to-say blues with guys and gals of your own sex. The cure is a project, but it does work, so how about giving it a try?

1. Build up your ego. Think of some of the worthwhile things you've accomplished—at home, in school, anywhere at all. Didn't you do something you're proud of today? Give yourself a few pats on the back even if only for things that might seem trivial. Get the pitch? The first step in overcoming shyness is to build up a little self-confidence.

2. Be a good listener. If it's hard for you to carry on a sparkling, witty conversation, no one will notice if you seem fascinated by what the other fellow has to say. And really listen—don't just pretend to if you actually become interested in what the other person is saying, you'll forget about your own shyness.

3. Be considerate. Remember that the other person may be a little self-conscious, too—perhaps even more so than you. Or even if the other person is the life-of-the-party type, he probably has some self-doubts as well. Try to help him be more at ease.

4. Ask questions. Don't be like a district attorney, but you can ask the person you're with questions he's sure to be interested in like, "What's your favorite subject at school?" "What do you want to do when you graduate that people aren't as anxious to find fault with you as you may think they are. People aren't watching you. They're usually interested in projects of their own."

5. Remember that people aren't as anxious to find fault with you as you may think they are. People aren't watching you. They're usually interested in projects of their own.

6. Be patient. You won't get over your shyness all at once, but if you follow this prescription and find that some of it is working, you're on your way.

Religion, Health

NEW YORK (AP)—A relation between religion and mental health "is self-evident"—but it can be either positive or negative — Hans Hofmann says in a new book, "The Ministry and Mental Health," published by Association Press. He writes:

"Since religion constitutes a profound and ultimate commitment, it provides either an orientation which channels the expressions and activities of the person positively or one which curtails the self-realization of the person when his religious tents are contradicted."

Biplane Is Star

One of the rarest of biplanes—a 1939 Meyers—has a "leading role" in "The Mists." In the film the plane is owned by Eli Wallach, who scouts the Nevada foothills looking for herds of wild horses. The plane was piloted by Ken Slater, a 22-year-old Air Force and fighter pilot veteran who holds the rank of Colonel in the Air National Guard. Slater, a former test pilot, has handled the controls on such well-known planes as the F-51 "Mustang," the F-86 "Sabrejet," and the F-105 "Super Sabrejet."

DIANE BOYER, CAROLYN ROBINSON WIN RECORDS

Winner of this week's free album, "Connie Francis at the Copa," is Diane Boyer, student at Goliad Junior High. The bonus record, "Close Your Eyes," backed by "Catch Me A Kiss," by Jaye P. Morgan, will be given to Carolyn Robinson, Coahoma High School student. Records may be picked up at the Herald.

MAILBAG

Don't Try To Be A Psychoanalyst

By BESSIE LITTLE

DEAR BESSIE: I am very serious about a boy I met seven months ago. He is very shy and withdrawn, because when he was younger he was with a boy who drowned. He seems to feel guilty about it. He is very nice to me most of the time but he is very moody. He says he feels the same as I do but he doesn't tell me—he tells my girl friend. I am wondering what I can do to help him to be more outgoing.

—WONDERING DEAR WONDERING: You appear to be very analytical. In your relationship with people it is well not to try to over-analyze them. Leave that for the professionals. Undoubtedly the tragedy in his early years has had some affect on the boy, but it is also quite possible that his nature is to be quiet. The best way to draw him out is to show him that he can trust you as an individual. Gradually he will show more of his nature to you.

It isn't always easy for people to tell others how they feel about them. Don't press for him to tell you. Be aware of it from the attention he pays you and the way he treats you.

DEAR BESSIE: I have just moved to a new city and started to go to a new high school. Where I used to live I had loads of friends and knew almost everybody in the school. Now I don't know anybody. I just go to school in the morning and come home in the afternoon. I miss my old friends and my old school. What can I do?

—LONELY LIL DEAR LONELY LIL: It isn't easy for anyone to pull up roots and start in a fresh place—whether it is a new school or a new job. The first thing you must do is make sure that your not getting to know new friends is not your own fault. Sometimes we exclude ourselves and feel that others are ignoring us. Try to find fellow students in your neighborhood and simply introduce yourself to them as the "new girl" who has just moved into the neighborhood. After you have seen them a few times, invite them to your house. Chances are they'll even invite you if you give them the opportunity to get to know you. Don't just go home after school. Whatever your interest is, get involved on some after-school activity. That's a sure fire way to get to know new friends who have the same interests you do.

Daydreaming Is Normal

By JOAN KETCHUM

"Mary, aren't you even listening to what I'm saying?... Johnny, you don't seem to be with us." Sound familiar? Do your parents or teachers notice that faraway look in your eyes every so often and fear you're under the influence of occult powers or that you're a lazy good-for-nothing who hasn't got the strength of character to concentrate on a single subject for more than three minutes?

If you're a normal teen-ager, chances are you've been overcome by daydreams at some time or another. You may be sitting in a classroom while the teacher is discussing the American Revolution and find that you're no longer in school at all, but on a baseball field hitting a home run when the bases are loaded, or in a court of law saving an innocent man from execution, or the most envied dancer at a formal whirling around the floor in a bouffant white organdy gown.

The same thing can happen at the dinner table while your mother is telling the family about the wonderful new butcher she's found. High school teachers have seen so much daydreaming in their careers that they usually don't think it's worth more concern than a sarcastic remark, but parents are a different breed.

If you're the only child or the first in your family to reach the teen years, it's not unlikely that your parents have forgotten they went in for daydreaming at your age too. They often fear that the teen-ager who isn't completely with the topic under discussion has something drastically wrong with him or her.

Don't you believe it. Your wide-awake dream world is as much a part of your normal life as seeing a movie or going out on a date. But you can make life a little easier for all concerned if you try to confine your daydreaming to times and places when you're by yourself.

Your daydreaming, of course, is a wonderful way to live the ideal life you envision for yourself, or to be the momentarily ordinary person you'd like to be. But daydreams can be more than an escape from reality for you. After the pleasure of imagining the glorified you, spend a little time figuring out if there's a possibility of making that image of yourself a reality. If you imagine yourself as the school's star basketball player, find out if you have any talent for the game. See if you can make yourself good enough to make the team. If you're on the team already, what can you do to improve your playing?

If you're just not the athletic type, how about picking out a new subject to daydream about? You're definitely not abnormal for indulging in fantasy. But you'll find life much more exciting if you make one of your daydreams actually come true.

Tired, Aching But Happy— Band Returns From N. Orleans

It was a tired and aching but happy bunch of kids who piled off a couple of public school buses at 6:30 a.m. Thursday. They had been a memorable trip to the Mardi Gras celebration in New Orleans.

The students, all members of the advanced band of Big Spring High School, left for New Orleans Saturday a week ago, stopping in Dallas where they attended the annual concert of the All-State Band, Orchestra and chorus.

Wayne Griffith and Edward Lovelace played in the All-State Band, have worked their way to the state-level honors through some tough competition.

The Big Springers arrived in Baton Rouge Sunday morning and, after church services and lunch, visited the Louisiana State Capitol. They arrived in New Orleans Sunday evening, spending all day Monday generally sightseeing. Bandmaster Doug Wiehe said the night-time touring was done in chaperoned groups, particularly a visit to fabled Bourbon Street. A group of students, 18 years of age or older, took in one of the night clubs where they saw the Louis Prima show.

The band took part in two parades Monday and Tuesday evenings.

"We were thankful they took place at night," Wiehe said, in describing the trip. "It was beautiful weather, but hot, and it was much cooler at night. Those parades were six or seven miles long. We didn't lose any (students) from physical exhaustion) but there were three or four who were pretty pooped after all that marching."

The local musicians got on television once, although the program apparently was a not nationally broadcast. Wiehe said a holdup in the parade put the Big Spring band square in front of a TV camera while the students were blasting away with a march and marking time.

Wiehe summed up the experience by describing the color and atmosphere of the Mardi Gras as "fantastic."

"And the kids were real good," he added. "There wasn't a bit of mischief going on."

The band left at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, and drove straight through to Big Spring.

There were 54 out of 62 students in the advanced band who made the trip. It is only members of the advanced band who are allowed to go on annual jaunts of this nature.

Wiehe said possibly the Corpus Christi band festival would be the trip target for next year. He tries to take his advanced students on one "extra" journey per year, aside from the regular contests.

Other adults making the New Orleans trip included Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Turner, Mrs. E. A. Fiveash, Mrs. Robert Harden and Mrs. Rex Bishop.

ON THE SHELF

RESISTANCE, REBELLION, AND DEATH. By Albert Camus. Translated by Justin O'Brien, Knopf, $4.

In the two years before his death in an auto accident in 1960, Camus, we are told, selected the articles in this volume because "they represented the sum total of his life."

It is an impressive testament by a major writer whose commitment to human dignity and freedom never faltered.

The articles cover a broad range, from Camus' period of service in the French underground to the tragedy of his native Algeria, the Hungarian rebellion, and questions of art and attitudes in a time of travail. One piece, "Reflections on the Guillotine," is a singularly powerful indictment of capital punishment.

Whether he arraigns the Nazi barbarities of the occupation, excesses in North Africa, the dictatorship in Spain, or Communist oppression in Hungary, his plea is always for justice, tolerance, and liberty. But there is nothing ponderous or rhetorical about this lucid collection.

In one of several sharp attacks on Communist rule in Hungary, Nobel Prize winner Camus states his fundamental credo:

"I believe... that the indispensable conditions for intellectual creation and historical justice are liberty and the free confronting of differences. Without freedom, no art; art lives only on the restraints it imposes on itself, and dies of all others. But without freedom, no socialism either, except the socialism of the galleys."

Like other French intellectuals of the Left, Camus believes in the writer's duty to speak out on world issues. Unlike some of them, he never pretends that virtue is the monopoly of one ideological camp alone.

Writing about Algeria's agony, he observes:

"The period of colonialism is over; we simply have to draw the conclusion. And the West, which within ten years has granted autonomy to a dozen countries, deserves more respect in this regard and, above all, more patience than Russia, which in the same period has colonized or put under harsh protectorate a dozen countries of great and ancient civilization."

Independence of thought and a balancing intelligence characterize a book which underscores afresh the tragedy of Camus' untimely death in an era where such spokesmen are needed.

Marilyn Likes Olive Oil Eggs

Marilyn Monroe prefers her eggs fried in olive oil. That was the gourmet report from the Reno, Nevada, location near Pyramid Lake, where "The Misfits," Pulitzer Prize-winning Arthur Miller's first Hollywood screenplay, was filmed.

Miss Monroe wolfed down 24 fried eggs—count 'em, as her fellow workers did on the set—in a breakfast scene with Clark Gable before director Huston said, "Okay—that's it."

But when the first egg was being prepared by the property department chef, Miss Monroe sent word: "Use olive oil. It's tastier that way." She got her wish.

Reunion Warmed Hearts Of Fans

When matinee idol Richard Barthelme starred in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" in the Roaring Twenties, he shared a reunion which warmed the hearts of sentimental moviegoers the world over.

Co-starred with him was Molly O'Day, who had been his 17-year-old leading lady in the silent cinema "The Patent Leather Kid." The couple was billed as a romantic team, in a picture that became a milestone in the annals of early-day Hollywood.

In The Limelight

Molly O'Day, the original Melissa Turner in the 1928 version of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," was one of the first film stars to be given the full publicity treatment. She was a Wampus "baby" and widely publicized by the early press agents of a high-faloot era in the history of motion pictures.

Light Musical, Serious Drama Lead Film Fare

The week's movie fare is led off by a serious drama and a light-hearted musical, both of which have drawn praise from the nation's critics.

"The Misfits" stars Clark Gable as an untamed wild horse wrangler who sells the equines to a dog food factory; Marilyn Monroe as the divorcee pickup who begins to object to his style of making a living; and Thelma Ritter.

The characters of the movie are misfits, socially and otherwise, and have a hard time finding their places in normal society. "Can-Can" is a naughty-but-nice musical that has drawn critical praise, but was described as "immoral" by a visiting Russian named Khrushchev.

"Desire in the Dust" stars Martha Hyer and "Perry Mason" star Raymond Burr, in a yarn about hot passions in warm Southern climes.

Jimmie Rodgers, popular singing star, and Luana Patten are seen with Chill Wills in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," a story backgrounded by the Civil War.

Or, Shining Star?

As Marilyn Monroe's about-to-be husband in "The Misfits," Kevin McCarthy, leading young Broadway actor, wore a silk suit with silver threads.

Several days later, McCarthy viewed the "ruined" of his work. His suit under the glare of the Nevada sun shone a bright silver.

McCarthy looked at himself for a minute and then nudged Montgomery Clift, seated next to him. "That's what I call a polished actor," he whispered.

Play Postponed

"Teahouse of the August Moon," next scheduled high school play, has been postponed until April 15 because of a conflict of dates. It had been set for March 30-April 1, but these dates conflicted with the Easter holidays and with an Interscholastic League meeting April 7 and 8.

Disaster Practice Scheduled Friday

Whistles will blow Friday and patients will begin pouring into the VA Hospital from all over the city. However, it will only be pre-tending injury.

The community is collaborating with the VA Hospital in a test of its disaster plans. W. D. Berry, Civil Defense coordinator, said that the plan has been proposed as a community disaster plan, since the VA Hospital was picked by CD officials as the hospital disaster center.

At 1 p.m. Friday, three 30-second whistles, 10 seconds apart, will sound the disaster.

About 75 simulated casualties—explorer scouts, service club members, and other volunteers—dispersed over the city will then be brought to the hospital. To better meet circumstances which would be present if the disaster were real, there will be no prearranged pattern or route for the patients to use.

They will be brought to the hospitals in vehicles from the Post Office, Webb AFB, the VA, and ambulances from River and Nalley-Pickie Funeral Homes.

Patients marked with an allment will arrive and be screened by doctors for broken legs, skull fractures, dead on arrivals, and a host of other ailments. They will then be dispatched to the emergency room, wards, the morgue, or other appropriate places.

Auxiliary police will help with traffic and a MARS unit furnished by Webb AFB and the CD will supply emergency communication.

The plans call for a normal state of preparation prior to the drill, to simulate as nearly as possible problems which might arise in the event of a real disaster.

Present for the drill will be W. D. Berry, coordinator; Roy Black, assistant; Mayor Lee Rogers and city commissioners; County Judge Ed Carpenter and county commissioners; and observers from the Midland, Odessa, and local medical profession.

61 Dependents Complete Course

Sixty-one Air Force dependents successfully completed the Family Services Orientation Course at Webb AFB last week.

Accorded special honors during the graduation program at the

John H. Lees service club were Mrs. Anna Kemp and Mrs. Irene Groves, out-going casualty committee chairman, and assistant family services coordinator, respectively. Mrs. Groves received a silver-piece award, and both were given Letters of Appreciation by Col. Donald W. Eisenhart, Wing commander.

Col. Eisenhart also handed out diplomas to the 61 graduates.

Civil Docket Ready In District Court

Judge Ralph W. Caton, 118th District Court, has set down a civil jury docket to be tried in his court starting Monday.

He placed 15 cases on the docket but he has already been advised that four of the 15 will have to be passed for the term; and three have already been settled. One has been dismissed.

This leaves seven matters which may come to trial.

The court will sound the docket at 10 a.m. Monday. All attorneys and litigants have been advised of the docket.

At 1:30 p.m., a jury panel of 90 members has been notified to report to the court for duty. If any of the seven cases still on the docket are announced ready, trial will be started Monday afternoon.

Cases which are to be called Monday morning:

Lewis G. Grantham versus Big Spring Bonded Warehouse, damages; S. E. Clackum et al versus Jerry L. Davis et al, damages; C. C. Calbert et ux versus Alfred Collins et al, damages; R. E. McClure et al versus Furr's, Inc., damages; Herbert Vinson versus Gerald Paul Liner, damages; H. A. Porter versus Texas & Pacific Railroad, damages; Louis Jean Thompson versus Akin M. Simpson, debt.

Cases on the docket which have been settled are:

Mrs. L. V. C. Mitchell versus Texas and Pacific Railroad, damages; H. D. Lee et al versus Robert B. Pender, damages; J. C. Gilbert versus Tommy Wilkerson, et al, damages.

Case of Erna Phillips versus John Tibbetts et al, damages, has been dismissed.

Cases on the docket which have been passed for the term:

Charles O. Stricklin et al versus R. R. Kennedy Trucking Inc., damages; Carlus B. Barber versus Cynthia Gilbert, damages; E. B. Smith et al versus Medical Arts Hospital, damages; and Eula McDonald versus Bickerstaff and Tibbetts, damages.

Schedules Visit

Senior Chief Aviation Ordnance-man J. D. Morton, chief recruiter for the Albuquerque recruiting area, will be at the U. S. Navy recruiting station in Big Spring, from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday. Chief Morton will be available for consultation on any of the high school graduate programs for men and women, and the college officer programs.

University Plans $400,000 Expansion

GEORGETOWN—The executive committee of the Southwestern University board of trustees last week authorized the letting of contracts totalling $400,000 for the construction of a new women's dormitory to be named Ernest L. Kurth Hall, the addition of a reception room for the University Commons, and the painting of Laura Kuykendall Hall to match the new structure.

Work is expected to begin within 10 days and to be completed by Sept. 1.

This three-story structure of Texas limestone will be a tribute from the trustees and friends of the university to the late Ernest L. Kurth who was a long-time member of the board of trustees and a 1905 graduate of Southwestern.

it's worth repeating...

That we are affiliated with the Order of the Golden Rule is a fact worth repeating, because it is an interesting and significant fact.

Membership in the Order is not a once-a-member-always-a-member sort of thing; members must make application for reaffiliation each year, and each application must be carefully reviewed before it can be accepted.

Accordingly, we feel it is worth mentioning, worth repeating, that we have just received notice that our application for reaffiliation has been accepted, and that we start at this time another year of service to the community as the only local member of the Order.

As in the past, you may depend on us for service which is truly "... measured not by gold, but by the Golden Rule."
