More People To Have Tax Forms Checked

WASHINGTON (AP)-For three million Americans, tonight's mid-night deadline for filing tax re-turns will mark only the start of their dealings with the Internal Revenue Service.

To discourage tax cheats, IRS Commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin wants to increase the number of returns which get a thorough test for accuracy.

The goal is to check, or audit about 3 million of the estimated 61 million returns to be filed. In 1960 the number of audits was 2.8

ONE IN TEN

Caplin hopes for further increases in the years ahead. Whereas IRS now checks about one return in every 20, he wants to approach a one to 10 ratio.

The 1961 filing deadline was extended two days because the usual April 15 date fell on the weekend. IRS will accept any return postmarked by midnight

Caplin told a reporter he hopes all taxpayers will understand "there is nothing wrong with being andited."

"One whose conscience is clear has no cause for alarm. We are not implying that he is dishonest. M. L. Cashion, a member of the It may be a mere random audit which we think should be ex-

Many bowlers practice "spot" bowling. Instead of watching the pins themselves and trying to hit that target 60 feet away, they pick a closer target that's on the same line, a spot on the lane. This trick is easy to pick up. Choose a spot that seems right for your strike angle, and roll toward it. Being closer, that spot is easier to hit than a distant target.

Watch what happens. If your ball hits the head pin too far to the right, try a new "spot" a little to the left. Keep trying until you find the spot that sends your ball into the strike pocket. Then just keep bowling for that same spot on each strike throw. The more you try it, the easier it gets . and the more fun it becomes! That's the story of bowling. Even if you've never tried it before, you'll catch on fast. It's easy to get in on bowling enjoy-BOBBY LAYNE'S

Commendable Cutting Of Underbrush

The perspective of history undoubtedly will accord various aspects of greatness to Dwight D. Eisenhower. But it seems improbable that even his most ardent admirers should expect that he would ever become known in retrospect as The Great Administrator

A superior touch for administrative skill, it should be conceded, has not been the forte of many American presidents. Whether President Kennedy has it or not is yet to be demonstrated, but one decisive action in the early months of his initial term is promising. That is the hacking away at the underbrush of interagency committees that proliferated during the Eisenhower years. So far 58 have fallen; but there are literally hundreds more, many of which have outlived whatever usefulness they ever had. These interagency committees have come into being in a variety of ways-as a pigeonhole for a dispute, a vehicle for compromise, an attempt at "cross-fertilization" of compartmentalized policy-making, or clearinghouse for some type of specialized information. The result is too often meaningless business or, worse, the delay and dilution of the policy-making process. The Senate (Jackson) committee's study of the decision-making process in the executive branch earlier denounced this committee clutter that has snarled and dimmed lines of authority and diffused responsibility to the point of dissipation. Kennedy's March 10 order to all agencies and departments to apply the pruning knife now appears to be getting long-de-

Answer Basic Question First

No one seriously contends that the United States has an effective program of civil defense ready to swing into action in case of nuclear attack. Even among those who know most about the program because they spend full time in its development, there appears to be widespread agreement that civil defense is embryon-

This feeling was made clear in a recent statement by Frank B. Ellis, head of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization. After reviewing the various civil defense undertakings, he declared that a national program of the known life-saving measures is still far from operational readiness."

Some critics are inclined to be more blunt. Notable among these is Senator Butler of Maryland, who thinks that civil defense is not embryonic but stillborn. He has urged, in a letter to President Kennedy, that headquarters of civil defense be returned to Washington from Battle Creek; Mich., as "the fisst move toward the attainment of an adequate civil defense program."

One may question whether there are compelling reasons to move the central OCDM office back to the nation's capital. But there is no question that the civil defense effort must be greatly increased before it even approaches being adequate,

There is another matter, the most fundamental of all. That is whether it is even sensible to think of civil defense as a deterrent to attack and a practical means of minimizing loss of life in case of attack. The feebleness of the program thus far gives reason for thinking that the American people have not yet arrived at a clear answer to this question. It should be deeply considered in the light of modern conditions. And if the consensus is "yes," then we had better push our civil defense preparations a lot harder than they have been pushed up to now.

Achievements To Help Mankind

WASHINGTON-Not by any means the space before any other nation could do greatest "feat" in world history, but in many respects the biggest disgrace-this is another way to look at the successful launching of a man into outer space by Millions of human beings in Russia live six to a room in slums and in hovels, while millions of others work in slavelabor camps. Billions of dollars that should be expended to lift the living standards of a nation are spent instead for one of the most spectacular propaganda stunts of all times.

FOR WHAT ELSE is it? Is human life improved because a small vehicle travels in the sky at about the same distance from the earth as New York is from Wilmington or Baltimore? Was human life any further advanced because in 1957 the first "sputnik" sped around the earth in an hour and a half? Today the United States continues to have 22 "sputniks" in orbit around the globe and the Russians have one. Has any human being felt any benefit from such stunts? President Kennedy stated, in a nutshell, at his Wednesday press conference the simple truth about the Soviet's cruel disregard of human welfare as it concentrates on propaganda stunts. He said:

"A DICTATORSHIP enjoys advantages in this kind of competition over a short period, by its ability to mobilize its.resources for a specific purpose."

This is the real reason for the Soviet achievement in sending the first man into outer space. The United States could have done it even earlier if it had decided to take away from other necessary things the money to spend on space research. As it is, the people of the Soviet Union are deprived of the benefits of better living. It is significant that one of the big rewards to the new "hero of the Soviet Union" is that he will be permitted to have a four-room apartment for himself, wife and two children, instead of the two rooms he has heretofore been allotted,

ALSO, THIS SAME dictatorship, by concentrating so much money annually on military weapons, has caused the United States likewise to spend large sums. In the end, people everywhere suffer. Can it be said that a dictatorship which is responsible for such deprivation and such disregard of what is truly human welfare now deserves the plaudits of the world for having sent a man high into

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVE—Texas Harte Hanks Newspapers, 927 National City Bldg., Dallas 1, Texas 2-B Big Spring, Tex., Mon., April 17, 1961

President Kennedy put his finger on what ought really to be giving concern to the world-inventions that will help human beings to a better life. He rightly said at

"I'VE SAID THAT I thought that if we could ever competitively at a cheap rate get fresh water from salt water, that it would be, in the long-range interests of humanity which would really dwarf any other scientific accomplishment."

The President gave credit to the Russian scientists, but he emphasized also the truly sinister aspects of the Soviet concentration on propaganda stunts. He said:

"I DO NOT REGARD the first man in space as a sign of the weakening of the free world. But I do regard the total mobilization of man and things for the service of the communist bloc over the last years as a source of great danger to us. And I would say we're going to have to live with that danger and hazard through much of the rest of this century."

As the President of the United States really sees it, therefore, the sending of a man into space around the earth gets big headlines and is exploited by Nikita Khrushchev throughout the world as a vindication of Communism, but, after all, viewed in its true light, the episode only emphasizes what a dictatorship can do with the fruits of the labor of its enslaved citizens.

AMERICA INVENTED the first airphotograph today as well as did the U-2.

SO GOES THE RACE in inventions. In the not-far-distant future, the United States, too, will be sending a man around the world a couple hundred miles above ground. Some day also there'll be a flight to the moon and to other planets. But, as a practical matter, these stunts cost vast sums and the question is whether, humanity can afford them.

Research for stunts could be relatively inexpensive, of course; if money spent for all armament were materially diminished. Hence, the biggest achievement to look forward to is some way to talk to all the Russian people at one time and to persuade them to get rid of the dictatorship that terrifies the world and inflicts misery on human beings everywhere. As for "discoveries," the biggest of all times is still that of Christopher Columbus, who found the land where freedom and liberty can flourish as it does today. Some day the Russian people, too, can enjoy the benefits of that same discovery. (Copyright, 1861, New York Herald Tribune, Inc.)

A FEW MORE Gadgets And We Are Undone! For example, the critical function of an underwater boat is to fill its tanks with sea water so as to submerge. It used to be that a wrench and a wheel, both wielded by strong-backed sailors, opened the tanks to admit the sea water. But now there are polaroids and overlapping electronic impulses to do this work-plus the old-fashioned method as stand-by. If it isn't an unfair question, why burden the vessel with such complicated, can-go-wrong mechanisms when there are over 100 crew members who could do it with muscles?

THE BLINKING Light And The Wolf: More than once on this brief outing, on and under the surface, small bulbs lighted up on cluttered switchboards. These lights meant that one of the electronic brains was worried about something. It was needless worry, as it turned out, and the mechanized anxiety apparently didn't cause any human apprehension at all. But this, I think, is a dangerous situation, We have such a plethora of mechanisms, which give a whole lot of false

BUT WHERE to store Polaris missiles and their tubes on an atomic sub? The answer was to bisect one of the early models, the Skipjack, insert some 126 feet of additional hull for the 16 missiles and their equipment. But the Navy, or its contractor, Lockheed Aircraft Corp., then found that by substituting Fiberglas for steel on the first-stage section of the missile, a weight - saving could be accomplished and the bird would fly 1,500 miles.

Good-but the new Polaris, or A-3 missiles, were about 30 inches longer, Therefore, the Theodore Roosevelt, the Patrick Henry and the Robert E. Lee subs must all be modified to receive the A-2. and now a new class of sub, headed by the Ethan Allen, will be constructed.

ALREADY the A-3 Polaris, with additional power per pound because of more Fiberglas and miniaturization of telemetry, is under development to shoot 2,500 miles. The Ethan Allen will supposedly take the A-3, and that's fine. But who wants to bet that still another development will not push the now-newest sub and missile into the past-producing Itold-you-so critics and requiring unplanned, unforeseeable expenditures?
