Our Asian Showplace Of Democracy

World War II, returned last week to the scene of his dramatic victory to help the island republic celebrate the 15th anniwersary of its independence.

Philippine independence was to have come a year earlier than July 4. 1346, but was delayed by World War II. Prior to achieving sovereignty, the islands underwent a transitional period as the "Philippine Commonwealth" under a 1934 act of the U; S. Congress.

The Philippines, an original member of the United Nations, has served on the Security Council, and its delegates have been strong though not uncritical supporters of the West in the General As-

The republic is the only truly democratic Asian member of the Southeast Treaty Organization. In the Laos crisis it not only has been firm; it has urged the United States and SEATO to take more direct action.

A 1947 agreement allows the United

General of the Army Douglas Mac-States to keep bases on the islands for Arthur, liberator of the Philippines in 99 years. In that same year the United States agreed to train and equip Philippine forces. A mutual defense treaty was signed in 1951. Philippine combat forces served valorously with the U.N. Command

> The Filipinos are proud both of their independence and of their ties to the West. The islands, geographically, are a part of Asia and the people are Oriental. But of all Asians they are the most West-ern in outlook, education, culture, mindset, political institutions and aspirations,

> Critics of the republic have described it as the product of "four centuries of Spanish feudalism and 50 years of Hollywood." Certainly, there is some justification for the charges that graft has deprived the government of full use of U.S. aid. But its severest critics recognize in the Republic of the Philippines a showplace of democracy in the Far East and America's firmest anti-Communist ally in

One Of The Larger Dangers

The crisis surrounding Berlin is more serious than the average person cares to admit. Its intractable elements make it fraught with possibilities of triggering something far greater than a struggle for the half-Communist, half-free city.

Premier Khrushschev seems bent on recognizing East Germany as a separate state, and the danger in this lies in turning over to East Germany the control of access into Beriin. It has been had enough to deal with Russia, but to look to an immature, perhaps irresponsible, puppet for direction is shaky if not intolerable. The Russian premier has been so adamant on this point that he had not left himself much room for diplomatic

We are in somewhat the same position, and we have reaffirmed our intention of honoring our commitments to Berlin, and that includes keeping the free half free. The underlying issue may be whether to recognize the fact of a divided Germany, but the big bone of contention now is over whether original agreements regarding Berlin will be honored.

One of the greatest dangers is that the Russian mind may not be able to see the logic of our position. Perhaps it isn't logic from the point of hard practicalities, but then we are not coldly logical; we are more apt to be fervently idealistic. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, in an address before the State Bar of Texas last week, sounded a warning that Khrushachev would do well to consider. It would be a tragic mistake for all the world if the Soviets underestimate our resoluteness over Berlin.

Fulbright On Foreign Policy

Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. tions. Throughout much of this century J. William Fulbright of Arkansas has as- many Americans assumed-wronglysumed a role of the first imp shaping American foreign policy. It is as a critic, detached but also thoroughly informed, that Fulbright is performing a service the significance of which is just beginning to be evident.

IN THE CONTEXT of an entirely different set of circumstances what Fulbright is undertaking has some resemblance to the great service of the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, At the end of World War II Vandenberg renounced his former isolationism and successfully brought the Republican party, and with it a large and stubborn segment of opinion, around to the need for America play an active and constructive role world leadership. He was one of the chief instruments in the success of the Marshall Plan which saved Western Europe from communism.

WITH, AS he believes, American commitments today extended far beyond any practical limits. Fulbright is arguing the need to scale down these commitments to reasonable proportions. What he is saying both in public and in private is that these commitments are in many instances self-defeating. Because they are impossible of fulfillment over the long pull they are contributing to a growing mood of frustration in the country, and that frustration threatens to lead either to war or to a new form of the isolationism which Vandenberg believed was ended.

THE MEMORANDUM dated March 29 on Cuba, which Senator Fulbright sent to President Kennedy two weeks before the tragic Cuban flasco was launched, is a model of reasoned statesmanship. It was a clear and unmistakable warning that any invasion attempt, whether failure or success, would shatter the treaty system on which the relationships of the hemisphere are based and thereby have disastrous political and economic consequences, Success of an invasion attempt, with the need for the United States to Bustain over a long period a military Actatorship in Cuba, might be worse than failure, the memorandum pointed out. In a Senate speech last week Fulbright related many of America's problems in distant parts of the earth to his approach to policy-making. He put it as follows:

"IT MAY BE that the time has come

WASHINGTON-As chairman of the to reappraise some of our basic assumpworld order committed by aggressive forces were none of our business. With the collapse of that assumption, a good many of us have swung in the other direction and to the opposite conclusion that we can-and should-impose our design for living upon the uncertain but aspirant societies of the world. This assumption is also illogical. However admirable our design may be, it cannot

> THIS IS WHAT Fulbright is saying in a challenging and forthright fashion as government witnesses present the case for foreign aid in closed committee sessions. Is this essential to the nation's security? Does it contribute to that security, or is it a delusion bound to end in bitterness and perhaps disaster?

These questions he applies particularly to South Korea, He pointed out the other day that after the expenditure of $4.5 billion in the past 10 years, since the end of the Korean War, the result is a sterile military dictatorship with great continuing unemployment and a swollen population sustained by American relief. The aid total does not include the cost of maintaining 65,000 American troops in

THERE ARE things that can be done with military force in being, Fulbright is saying. But it is important to understand the limits of that force. Where force cannot impose the American design or even compel any meaningful allegiance to a military alliance it is wiser to accept the neutral solution. He would apply this concept to much of Southeast Asia.

The other day Fulbright sent a memorandum to the President on Berlin. He will not dieguss its contents, since he believes the situation is so delicate and the President's decision so difficult.

BUT IT COULD be an important factor in whatever decision is taken. On one side is the Acheson plan providing for the callup of not less than two National Guard divisions to be sent to Europe to buttress American forces in Germany as part of "mobilization" to impress Moscow with America's determinaion to stand firm. On the other side are some in the executive branch convinced the United States must come up with constructive alternative plans for Berlin protecting the status of the city while possibly opening the way to negotiation.

FULBRIGHT'S friends sometimes urge him to take his case more dramatically and dynamically to the Senate floor. But that is not his style. He is trying through quiet persuasion, the voice of reason, to help bring about one of those profound changes such as in the time of Vandenberg are necessary to adjust the nation's power to the nation's capacity. ### That Pyrrhic Victory

People keep asking hope things came out between me and City stall. They are referring to the minor sortie I made against that mighty citadel last month. I brazenly crashed the barrier of that awesome pile, bearded the lion in his den and demanded:

"How come my water bill's as big as So folk are all the time coming up to me and asking:
"Well, what happened?"

I THINK I won a sort of moral vic-

The water bill which I protested was for the May period and was $20.50 in size-the whoppingest water bill to jolt me since I've resided hereabouts. I complained to the city officials and guess what?-my water bill for June, which has just reached me, is only $19.50. So you see, I won. Next month, if things go on, the bill will be $18.50. If I last long enough and can keep on paying off, ultimately I will reach a golden day when I will have no water bill. At a dollar a month decrease would make the charge reach the vanishing point sometime about the middle of 1963 I guess.

HOWEVER, come to think of it, if I did win any sort of decision, I'll have to cell it a pyrrhic victory. And the way it shapes up, the victory could bring about my complete destruction. You see, chopping a single buck off the bill may sound real good but it still leaves $19.50 to pay and that's the biggest chunk of a $20 bill. I ain't got too many $20 bills.

One of my colleagues here describes a pyrrhic victory as the sort of thing a husband is up against when his wife comes back from a trip to fown with a mountain of new clothes which she proudly reports she bought on sale and saved ever so much money. It sounds real convincing but somehow it just won't hold together.

I THOUGH that $20.50 for a month's watering on my tiny little homestead was outrageous. I said so to the high powers, and they nodded their heads sympathetically. I think that $19.50 is still pretty high.

I was promised that the city would check my water meter and determine if I had a secret leak which was stabbing me in the back (to mix a metaphor). If the check was made, it was by radar or with a dowsing stick. Nobody has been by when we were home.

Meanwhile, let us be thankful for the rain. It's cheaper to do business with the real powers that be.

Beware The Equivocal Man

WASHINGTON - In "Advise and Consent," the Great American novel of our half - century, the villain was what Allen Drury called "the equivocal man." The author, with chilling prophetic insight, goes on to characterize his villain who, in the book, was Bob Leffingwell, nominee for Secretary of State:

"HE SEEMED always to . . . find a glib, soft, woozy area of gummy compromise and rationale that effectively blurred everything, enervated all issues, weakened firmness, snapped resolve in a way that hamstrung his own country, and made it easier for her enemies tomove farther along the path they had set themselves."

Drury's book, although published two years ago this summer, was pitched into the post - Eisenhower era - that is, approximately, today. This central vil-lain, while not based on any living person, was a composite of the weaknesses of many men known to Drury and to others of us. Not all by any means are in Congress, Some formulate policy for major newspapers and magazines. Some write columns and books, Some have come to power in 1961 from the universities and from the semi - retirement of discredited politicians. They are identifiable by their ideas, which run like this:

ON BAN THE BOMB: Russia, as a "closed society," would be making far more of a concession than we would in agreeing to on - the - ground inspection of possible tes sites. It is unreasonable to expect Russia, always mindful of those invasions by the West and suspicious of all overtures to give more than she gets. The Soviet Union, now a coequal with the USA as a world power, need not concede anything at all, but may decide to surprise us with nutron bombs as it surrpised us with the A-bomb, the H-bomb, the sputnik and much else. All this argues that concessions are up to us. We must ban the bomb. Hence we must meet Russian terms.

ON BERLIN: It is unthinkable to fight a war with our former allies over this prize of war. We are in West Berlin by right of conquest, and the Russians are in East Berlin by the same right. Since war is unthinkable, we must make an "ac-commodation" with Khrushchev. This does not mean that we will renege on treaty obligations with the Allies, or will consign some two million Berliners to Communist slavery. Nevertheless, we must find an "accommodation" - and did you notice what Khrushchev let drop in a speech while touring Siberia? He said he would give the West "guarantees" about the freedom of the proposed Free City of Berlin. Well, then!

ON CUBA: There's no longer any doubt that Cuba is a Communist satellite in the Western Hemisphere, and that runways and launching pads are being constructed to make Cuba an overseas base of the Russian military power. This may be hard to live with, but we can do it if we try, A submarine base for the Sino - Soviet bloc in the Caribbean Sea does not substantially alter the balance of world power. After all, since the Russians have fired a rocket to the moon, why would they need a base in Cuba. Besides, there is nothing we can do about Cuba now. If we launched a preventive, non - atomic war, and enacted a "forward strategy" to counteract the Comwould think of us as "imperialists," We would lose more by doing something than by doing nothing. The only way to "contain Castroism" is to abolish poverty, ignorance, illness, laziness and bad luck in Latin America.

THERE IS, to repeat, no single personality in public life who perfectly fits the title of the Equivocal Man, But when you hear these arguments put forward, when you feel the edge of principle being dulled, and the enemy's position being improved at the expense of our positionsay to yourself, "The Equivocal Man has passed this way."

Confusion Over Polio Vaccines

Year after year. The American Medical Association, which has something of a "closed shop" of its own, seems to grow balmier and balmier, but the annual convention of 1961 certainly established some kind of all-time record by the awful mischief it created in the matter of polio vaccine. By endorsing a vaccine not yet on the market or available to the public, the association has managed to cast doubt on the efficacy of the only vaccine available against dread poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis.

Such irresponsible behavior, confusing to parents and young adults (who need vaccine as much as children), is inexcusable. If it foolishly prevents a single child or young person from taking advantage of the vaccine now available and successfully used since 1955, the A.M.A will be most grievously at fault.

IT SHOULD BE the ardent prayer of all that the Sabin oral vaccine, when available, will be as efficacious against polio. as the association now "thinks" it will be. But in the interim, before the Sabin live-virus vaccine is available to the public, it is nothing less than actionable to cast a shadow on the Salk killed-virus vaccine that has been used so widely and so successfully in the United States and elsewhere since '55.

ONE THING is certain: the Salk vaccine is still available and still being given by the most reputable physicians as the only hope to date against crippling

There are heavy hearts in my family and in thousands of other families throughout this country whose members include a young child struck by crippling polio only a year or so before the perfection of Salk vaccine seemed both a miracle and the answer to decades of anxious

THAT THE vaccine has indeed fulfilled its promise is inherent in the fact that The National Foundation has since channelled its time, energies and money in other avenues as well as care of former polio victims.

The action of the A.M.A. is hard to believe in view of the nationwide appeals, which stated in midwinter, on the part of local, state and national health autherities and agencies that children and young adults be given Salk vaccine against the 1961 polio season.

AS PART of my work I read a large number of newspapers from every section of the country. I was particularly impressed, from mid-January on, by the attempt of medical authorities through the papers to impress upon parents the urgency of Salk shots for both their children and themselves. There was even a nagging note in many medical warnings, which scolded parents for laxity in taking the threat of polio lightly, since the Salk vaccine had removed "the terror" from the warm weather epidemic. It seems odd, indeed, that medicine's labor union now has put the Salk vaccine in an anomalous position, despite the fact that most of its dues-paying members have been giving Salk shots since 1955 either in their offices or in clinics.

CERTAINLY, I have never read of any medical revolt, of any doctors' uprising, against the Salk vaccine in the years it has been in use. To plant the seed of doubt in the public mind now, before the Sabin vaccine is on the market, is to commit a major blunder, to perform a grave public disservice and to further undermine the A.M.A's usefulness. God grant that the Sabin vaccine will be everything the A.M.A. thinks it may be. But God grant people the good sense in the meantime to take advantage of the one polio weapon available, the Salk vac-(Copyright, 1961, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Associated Press Fashion Writer NEW YORK (AP) - Fall fashion will have its side effects this year.

Not content with what they have been doing backward and forward and up and down, the 31 designer members of the New York Couture Group showing their collections during Fashion Press Week here are now working sideways and diagonally.

A side kick is their chief ally to the hip flare silhouette of the past two seasons. Although fall suits and dresses still flounce and pleat all the way around, many more swing full from the sides. In some instances softly rolled or stitched-down pleats edge to the thighs and then fall loosely. Or inserted gores and box pleats start from side hip height Waistlines wander high and low, but very often both ways at the same time. On soft wool jersey and crepe daytime dresses tucks and pleats drop away from obliquely divided middles.

Formal wear, too, is designed with side glances in mind. Filmy fabrics cut on a bias are tucked and draped from one shoulder (the other probably bare), molded subtly over the figure, and topped by diaphanous stoles that tie at the neck and flutter cloudlike from

Even new capes which evolved out of last winter's tent-like coats hang slim without a single fold front or back, with all the fulness cut into the shoulders for

But do not let it be said that back and front styles have remained status quo, Some Couture members still cling to the simplicity of bare-armed, bare-necked

"nothing" dresses in their collections, despite potential wintry chills. But others go to extreme by slashing dress backs to a spine-chilling depth. While still others reverse the procedure by wrapping up necks in double ring collars or nose-tickling fur.

In the war between fit and ease, the most cautious coat and suit makers compromise by fitting in front,

In terms of color, fall collections are a shadowy, ecliptical contrast to the florid prints and violent hues of spring and summer.

Except for a few flashes of red, rust, moss green, and a rare bit of Kelly, fabrics are defiant of city soot in black, more black, and almost black browns, blues,

Even plaids and tweeds are in subdued hues, making up for lack of brightness with texture. Wool and test-tube versions of it are nubby or ribbed, never sleek, short-haired or strictly long hair.

And hair - fox, mink, chinchilla, even bunny become elegant linings in reversible coats. Furry pelts are also abundant on dresses and suits.

If the flare enthusiasts have made it easier for women to step high, stride wide handsomely and modestly during the day, the designers make up for it on a glamorous evening

Metallic or beaded and sequined gowns fall from throat to the floor in a column of unrelenting slimness. Some have less than a foot of moving room at the

But then women are not supposed to need to walk in these - just to stand there looking glamorous enough to attract the crowds to them.

He estimated that the total amount of special dividends to be paid in Texas would be about $11,902,100. Processing of the payments should be completed around Labor Day.

Veterans could help speed re-ceipt of their dividend checks by not making inquiries since payment is automatic.

About 13,520 Texas veterans holding United States Governmen Life Insurance (World War I) will receive $1,050,800 in dividends while 248,160 holders of National Service Life Insurance (World War II) will get $9,978,100. The dividend amounting to $230,000,000 is being paid to 5,000,000 GI insurance policyholders throughout

A regular annual dividend of $258,500,000 was paid to veterans earlier this year.

The refunds are made possible principally because the death rate among policyholders continues to be much lower than the rates upon which the premiums were es-tablished by law, he added.

Weary Track

MOSCOW (AP)-Weary from a rip that started Saturday in New York and did not end until the wee hours of the morning here, the U.S. track team went through a workout today for its meet against the Soviet Union Saturday and Sunday.

"It was a long trip," said Coach umbo Jim Elliott.

The 31 men and 17 women-10 men were sent ahead - boarded their chartered airliner in New York Saturday night. They had to stay in London Sunday night because an air show closed the Moscow Airport.

Then, when they piled back into the plane Monday, the Russian navigator and radio operator failed to show up until two hours after the scheduled takeoff time. U.S. planes are not permitted into Russia but an exception was made for the team's craft. However, it was required to carry a Soviet navigator and radio opera-

Why won't your wife let you buy this wagon?

"It looks like a bus."

"I wouldn't be caught dead in it." Do these sound familiar? Your wife is not alone. It is hard to convince some women what sense the VW Station Wagon makes.

Its chunky shape, for instance, allows it to hold more than the biggest conventional wagon. (Yet it is a good four feet shorter, and a lot less exasperating to park.) Your wife might like the easy way it loads. The wide side doors give her almost 16 sq. ft. for supermarket bags. Or an open baby carriage. Or an antique chest, standing up. Or delicate trees from the nursery. Or even an open playpen.

She can take eight or more Scouts, with cook-out gear.

She can give the family plenty of sun. (Why no other station wagon has a sunroof remains a mystery.)

She won't ever have to worry about the radiator boiling over. There's no radiator, no water. (The VW engine is air-cooled.)

And if she likes to see where she's going, the VW Station Wagon has incredible visibility. If these facts don't convince her, then you might as well give up gracefully.

But before you do, bring her in for a drive. (And don't be surprised if she does let you buy one.) WESTERN CAR COMPANY

"It looks like a bus." "I wouldn't be caught dead in it."

Do these sound familiar? Your wife is not alone. It is hard to convince some women what sense the VW Station Wagon makes. Its chunky shape, for instance, allows it to hold more than the biggest conventional wagon. IYet it is a good four feet shorter, and a lot less exasperating loads. The wide side doors give her almost 16 sq. ft. for supermarket bags.

Or an open baby carriage. Or an antique chest, standing up. Or delicate trees from the nursery. Or even an open playpen.

Your wife might like the easy way it

She can take eight or more Scouts, with cook-out gear. She can give the family plenty of sun. (Why no other station wagon has a sunroof remains a mystery.) She won't ever have to worry about the radiator boiling over. There's no radiator, no water. (The VW engine is And if she likes to see where she's going, the VW Station Wagon has incredible visibility. If these facts don't convince her, then you might as well give up gracefully. But before you do, bring her in for a drive. (And don't be surprised if she does let you buy one.)

♦ ♦ In Conjunction With Your ♦ ♦ Present Business or

OWN A NEW BUSINESS WITH AN EXCLUSIVE MARY CARTER PAINT FRANCHISE GRANT OF TEXAS

Be a part of one of the fastest growing paint firms throughout Texas and the Southwest. Only a few select areas still remain open for franchise. Already over 50 franchises have been granted in Texas, and these dealers are realizing huge profits through a continuous FREE paint offer. With every gallon or quart sold, a gallon or quart is given away absolutely FREE of extra cost.

THIS FREE OFFER FREE COSTS YOU NOTHING

These franchises can be granted in conjunction with your present business as a separate department, or as an entirely new retail paint store selling Mary Carter paint products exclusively. In either case you receive an exclusive franchise, therefore, you will be the sole distributor of Mary Carter products in your area. It is normal for our retail outlets to turn their inventory over eight to ten times yearly. Our products are manufactured in Conroe, Texas for Texas use and are formulated to resist the extreme climatic conditions of the great Southwest. The rapid acceptance of these Mary Carter franchises by Texas businessmen is due largely to the specific benefits that are granted to each franchisee. These benefits help the dealer to realize immediate profits. The following are only a few of the benefits granted: There are no franchise fees or royalty payments; your advertising is co-oped 50/50. A minimum skeleton stock is your only investment outside of your operating capital, Paint experience is not necessary since you will be thoroughly trained by our own personnel, at our expense. Our franchise grants are very flexible to your needs and your trade area. For instance, if you already have a business, add a paint department to capitalize on your customer traffic and make huge profits. Groceries, hardware, feed and seed and many other dry good line outlets have increased their profits by opening a Mary Carter paint department, You, too, can increase your income with a Mary Carter franchise for an inventory investment of $3000 or less depending upon your needs and the size of your trade area. If you are not in business now, you can open your own full line Mary Carter store with an inventory investment of $5000 or less in direct relationship to your needs and your trade area. This flexfible program enables more businessmen in Texas to qualify for our franchise grants, Mary Carter franchises have received wide acceptance by businessmen not only in the Southwest, but throughout the nation. This is best illustrated by the fact that we have over 600 retail branches in 36 states. Our paint franchises are unlike any others offered by competitive paint companies. You risk nothing except time and overhead since your inventory is refundable. We are able to offer this guarantee since our success story is unparalleled in the paint industry. We welcome a visit by you to any of our retail branches in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and neighboring states, so that you can see the success of our dealers and learn how you, too, can increase your income with a minimum amount of investment. Be a part of this fast growing Texas corporation. Our franchise grants are the envy of the paint world, consequently they are highly coveted. You may qualify for one of the areas stiff open for franchise in Texas. Upon request, literature will be forwarded to you free of any obligation.

Jury Reconvenes In Sheriff Case

tongview (AP)—A jury of six men and six women will reconvene today in the state's givil suit to oust Sheriff Noble Crawford on charges of misconduct and incompetence.

The complaint alleged that: Crawford knew dice games and gambling devices to operate in the county; prisoners escaped through his negligence; prisoners were permitted to leave jail without paying fines or serving their times; prison labor was used on Crawford's private property; blood donation credit was given to prisoners when they had not donated the blood.
