Thai Guests Taste Texas Hospitality

A top military official from Thailand, making a tour of the U.S., got a bit of West Texas atmosphere Tuesday night despite weather that wasn't typically West Texas.

He was Air Chief Marshal Boon Choo Chandrubeksa, commander in chief of the Royal Thai Air Force, who had spent most of Tuesday surveying the Air Force training mission at Webb Air Force Base.

In the evening, Marshal Boon Choo and members of his party were transported to the Horace Garrett ranch home near Forsan where a number of Big Springers joined Webb officers in hosting an informal get-together.

The evening was climaxed with a presentation of a 10-gallon Texas hat to Marshal Boon Choo, and hand-stamped, wide western belts to other members of the Thai party. Mayor Lee O. Rogers presented the gifts, expressing welcome to the Far Eastern visitors. In addition, Garrett presented a handsome pair of spurs to the marshal.

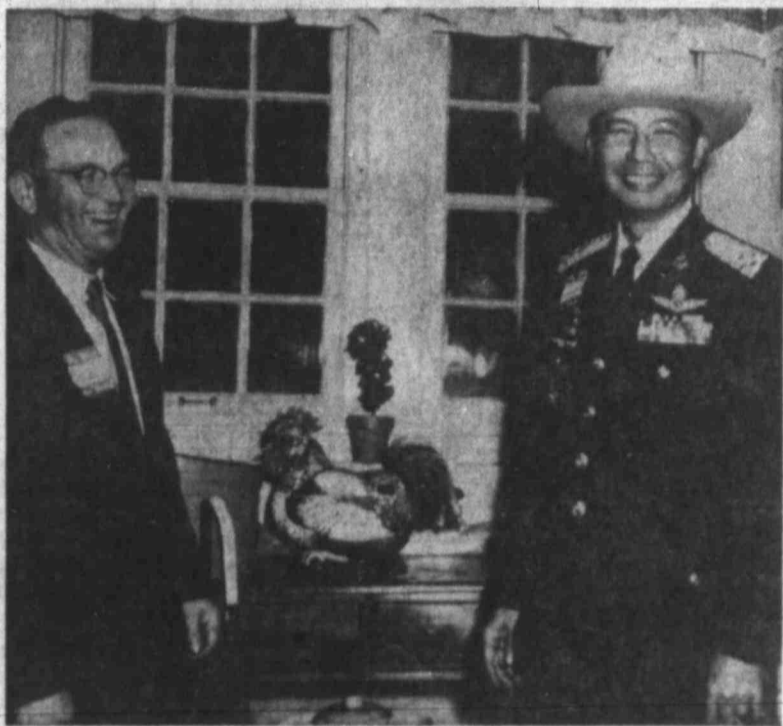

A typical barbecue meal, with meat, beans, potato salad, pickles, onions and coffee, was served. While the event had been planned as partially an outdoor affair—prevented because of the cold drizzle—the sumptuous Garrett ranch home, with its large rooms and fireplaces, made an ideal setting for the West Texas affair.

Marshal Boon Choo, in acknowledging the hospitality and the gifts, admitted that the occasion had him puzzled a bit at the start (most of the American affairs in his honor have been more formal) he was highly pleased with the party.

"I guess we are all right," he said smilingly. The marshal and his party had flown in Tuesday morning from Colorado Springs to get an indoctrination on the flying training program at Webb. They departed Wednesday morning for a California base.

Members of Marshal Boon Choo's party included Air Marshal Kamol Thejatunga, vice chief of staff, RTAF; Air Vice Marshal Traaool Thavaravel, Surgeon General, RTAF; Group Captain Chalerm Chittinanda, Chief, Foreign Division, Directorate of Intelligence; Pilot Officer Chanindr Chandrubeksa, Intelligence Officer, Tactical Air Command, RTAF, and a son of the marshal; Group Captain Bansha Mekvishai, Air Attache, Embassy of Thailand in Washington, D. C. They were escorted by Col. Paul A. Pettigrew, representing the Chief of Staff, USAF.

The occasion served to emphasize the fact of firm friendship between Thailand and the U.S. It is one of the countries in the Malay peninsula which remains a staunch ally of America, does most of its trading with this country, has received considerable military aid from us, and which makes the English language a required subject for children as early as the kindergarten years. English is the second official language of the country.

Finns To Vote To Head Off Red Demands

HELSINKI (AP)—Finland today headed into a period of feverish political activity with three elections scheduled within a month in an effort to ward off defense talks with the Soviet Union.

President Urho Kekkonen dissolved Parliament Tuesday and moved up the date for parliamentary elections from July 2 to Feb. 4-5 in answer to a demand by the Soviet Union for assurance that Finland would maintain friendly relations.

Three hundred electors for the presidential elections are to be chosen by voters Jan. 15-16. The electors will name a new president Feb. 15 and he will take office March 1.

Had Kekkonen not advanced the parliamentary election date, the new president would have been faced with a four-month period of political instability until a new government with parliamentary support could take office. The government submits its resignation when a new president starts his term.

A government communique said the Soviet Union had informed Finland that unless assurances of continued friendly relations were given, it would persist in its Oct. 30 demand for joint defense talks. The Russians had contended that West Germany posed a threat to the safety of both Finland and the Soviet Union.

The decision by the president, made in a meeting with the Agrarian party minority Cabinet of Premier Matti Miettinen, came after Foreign Minister Ahti Kajjalainen reported on his weekend mission to Moscow to discuss the Oct. 30 Soviet note.

A Foreign Ministry communique said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko told Kajjalainen the U.S.S.R. had "not the slightest intention of intervening in Finland's domestic position" but "the political situation in Finland had become uncertain."

The communique said Gromyko asked for assurances of the continuation of the present Finnish foreign policy—a delicately poised neutrality between the Soviet Union and the West—in order that "military consultations might be avoided."

Kekkonen responded with his announcement in which he said that the international situation demanded prompt arrival at decisions which could not await the summer elections.

Kekkonen seeks re-election as president and is considered the strongest candidate. His chief opponent is Olavi Honka, former chancellor of justice, who is sponsored by Social Democratic leader V. Tanner. Honka's election would be certain to arouse Soviet wrath, since Tanner was foreign minister during the 1939-40 Finnish-Russian war.

War Hysteria Grips Indonesia

JAKARTA (AP)—War hysteria is mounting in Indonesia as the United Nations approaches a vote on a Dutch proposal to give West New Guinea self-determination.

Led by President Sukarno, who declared that Indonesia would get West New Guinea with or without the approval of the United Nations, top government leaders have called on the people to prepare for war.

The Dutch, which retained the western half of the big island after Indonesia won independence, contend that its mostly primitive Papuan population is ethnically separate from the Indonesians and entitled to determine its own future. The Dutch want the United Nations to administer the territory until the people are ready for a plebiscite.

Clearing Skies Bring Hope To County Farmers

Clearing skies and return of sunshine was welcomed by cotton farmers Wednesday. It appeared to mark the end of a chilly, dampish interval which has brought the cotton harvest to a halt and gravely handicapped farm activities.

Heavy drizzle and occasional light rains piled up a total of .58 of an inch of rain during Monday night, Tuesday and Tuesday night. The temperature dropped to 30 degrees early Wednesday morning but did not hold that level for longer than half an hour, the U. S. Experiment Station reported. Thin ice coatings formed on cars left outside and light ice froze on grass and shrubs. The ice quickly disappeared as the sun warmed up.

At the same time a new Pacific cold front was bearing down from the northwest and due to enter the Texas Panhandle by late Wednesday. Unless the drizzling rain let up, it threatened added ice woes. Telephone lines failed for a time between Amarillo and Canyon.

Oil Flow Raised To 9-Day Pattern

FAMILY KEEPS VIGIL

Rayburn Has A Bad Night

BONHAM (AP)—House Speaker Sam Rayburn, critically ill with incurable cancer, today drew on what little strength he has left and came through another bad night.

Alarmed members of his family spent the night at Risser Hospital. Rayburn apparently has been growing steadily weaker. This has been reflected in medical bulletins and word from aides.

One of the aides, John Holton, said Rayburn is very weak. The speaker's doctor, Joe Risser, napped nearby and was in and out during the night.

One of the speaker's sisters left the hospital about 5 a.m., the other about 7:30 a.m. They, too, had stayed nearby, sleeping occasionally in a hospital room.

The hospital's 9:30 a.m. bulletin said:

"Mr. Sam slept unusually soundly last night. Alertness diminished. No change in pulse or blood pressure. Condition still critical."

Dr. Risser said Rayburn, 79, was severely weakened Tuesday morning and lost even more strength by late afternoon.

Rayburn's condition is critical. Dr. Risser said last Saturday night his patient had only "hours to days" to live.

The speaker's sisters and brother—Mrs. W. A. Thomas of Dallas and Mrs. S. E. Bartley and Richard Rayburn of Bonham—visited the hospital Tuesday. They returned hurriedly—about the time Risser issued his 4:30 p.m. bulletin.

"The speaker has grown somewhat weaker since the last bulletin. Condition critical," Dr. Risser said.

The three took time out for dinner, then the sisters came back to the hospital and stayed. Richard Rayburn returned for a brief period.

Word that Rayburn was worse swept swiftly through this little North Texas town. Cars parked near the hospital. People peered at the dim light glowing through the drawn curtains of Rayburn's first-floor room at the Risser Hospital.

The pastor of the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Jack Carson, spent nearly an hour in the hospital. He said he had not been summoned but had been told by a friend of Rayburn that the speaker was worse.

As he left, the minister told reporters there apparently had been some improvement. Rayburn's administrative assistant, John Holton, told newsmen: "This is the fourth of these I've been through and he's come back each time. But he is weaker."

This pretty well summarized the way Rayburn has been going. He has shown periods of improvement and then periods of relapse. With each cycle he apparently has failed a bit.

Leftist Sparks Mutiny In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Antoine Gizenga, the leftist heir of former Premier Patrice Lumumba, has emerged into open and forceful defiance of the United Nations and the central Congo government, diplomatic informants said today.

Gizenga, said the sources, is directing the mutiny of more than 2,000 Congolese troops against the central government authority in Kinshasa, the Kivu provincial town north of the secessionist province of Katanga.

Other mutineers were reported to have created serious disorders in the north Katanga city of Albertville.

A U.N. spokesman said it intends to put down lawlessness in the two towns by force if necessary.

Diplomatic sources said the left-wing politician set himself up in Kinshasa last Saturday, leaving his former stronghold at Stanleyville in Oriental Province to onetime allies who now adhere to the Leopoldville government.

Gizenga, who once accepted the post of vice premier in Premier Cyrille Adoula's central government here, made his defiance open and apparently final Tuesday when he forced two of his former allies, Gen. Victor Lundula and Christophe Gbenye, out of Kinshasa in fear of their lives.

Mutinous soldiers at Kinshasa refused to hand over 13 Italian air- men they had arrested and beaten Saturday.

Lundula and Gbenye had gone to Kinshasa to get the Italians freed. "The situation continues to cause grave concern," the U.N. spokesman said.

From the north Katanga town of Albertville, the United Nations reported about 100 Congolese troops entered the city and within seven hours Tuesday created an "impossible" situation.

Orders were sent to the Indian U.N. contingent at Albertville to intervene to halt "mutinous and lawless acts," by force if negotiation proved fruitless.

A U.N. spokesman said the troops in Albertville arrested Europeans and Africans, looted houses, erected a roadblock in the town and tried to extort money from passersby.

The Italian airmen were taken prisoner shortly after arriving at the Kinshasa Airport. The U.N. reported Congolese troops fired at them and that they were beaten. The U.N. spokesman said the men are believed to be alive but the headquarters here has no details.

Southwest Digging Out

Parts of the Southwest began digging out of its first big snowstorm of the season today. It was labeled as the worst in 30 years at El Paso, Tex.

Air and auto travel were disrupted, schools were closed, several small towns were isolated and deer hunters were stranded by the storm, which dumped as much as 30 inches of snow in some places.

Airports were closed at Santa Fe and Clovis, N.M., stranding a number of travelers. Eastern New Mexico and West Texas were the hardest hit areas. Thirty inches fell at Ruidoso in southeastern New Mexico. A drizzle at least eight New Mexico school systems—Corona, Carrizozo, Capitan, Hondo, Ruidoso, Elida, Casusey and Truth or Consequences—also closed.

New Mexico state police closed two roads Tuesday night, isolating Carrizozo. They reopened one which permitted travel into Truth or Consequences, isolated Tuesday.

At least 213 deer hunters were located in mountain hunting areas. Some 150 hunters gathered at the Dunken Community's general store, where they were reached by units from the state police and National Guard.

Life Test Rocket Fails

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP)—A 62-foot rocket carrying bits of living matter toward the earth's dangerous radiation belt came apart in the air today and the first stage fell on land near the coast.

Macapagal Leads Philippines Race

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Diosdado Macapagal piled up an apparently insurmountable lead today in the Philippine presidential election and exultantly proclaimed, "We made it."

Other TESCO reports included .56 of an inch at the Big Spring Switching Plant; .45 of an inch at Colorado City; .65 of an inch at Sweetwater; .76 of an inch at Eskota; .70 of an inch at Chalk; .55 of an inch at Snyder and .25 of an inch at Morgan Creek.

The promise of snow held out by the U. S. Weather Bureau Tuesday failed to materialize. No snow fell and what had been heralded as a major invasion by winter failed to be more than a skirmish.

Other than for the possible damage that the continued dampness may do to the cotton there were no unpleasant results chargeable to the weather.

The .58 of an inch rain which was gauged in the past two days brings the total for November to 2.30 inches.

Kidnaped Girl Returns Safely

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—A girl, kidnaped by a motorist late Tuesday afternoon, was returned to her home this morning, apparently unharmed.

Marjorie Schubert, 8, was let out of the car a few blocks from her home and started walking. Friends saw her and picked her up.

City Buys Water Storage Tank

The Big Spring City Commission bought a 1½ million gallon elevated water storage tank to serve the downtown area, during Tuesday night's meeting. The bid price was $159,475 erected.

The Chicago Bridge and Iron Co. was successful bidder on the tank. Work will begin immediately at the factory and assembly work at the site will begin after the parts are shipped in. No date for assembly was set, but completion will be by June.

This tank is a part of the Master Plan bond program to increase the water pressure and supply for the business area. It will increase fire protection for the business area more than double the present water supply for this purpose. Water pressure will be increased on the line paralleling US 87 north and will insure adequate water for future development of the area. The present tank on Northwest Twelfth Street will continue to supply the northside residential and business area until the proposed South Mountain system is built in the future.

A contract was awarded to Bettle & Womack Construction Co. for re-locating a water line along US 87 north at a cost of $20,064.75, and grazing rights on Section 17, east of the city, went to Simon Terrazas for 81 cents per acre per year.

Three bids were submitted for the water storage tank. R. D. Cola Manufacturing Co. of Newman, Ga., bid $169,600. Pittsburgh-Des Moines Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., bid $175,800. The tank is to be erected in 200 calendar days, and will be located north of the present half-million gallon tank on Northwest Twelfth Street.

Relocating the water line along US 87 north is to be completed in 30 days and involves 4,900 feet of pipe from 12-inch on the south end to four-inch on the extreme north.

Other bids submitted for the project were: Clyde Construction Co., Odessa, $20,671.94, and R. B. Hodgson Construction Co., Dallas, $22,571.75.

Approximately 1,200 feet of the 12-inch pipe will be furnished by the city.

Bids for the 640 acres of Sec. 17, beside that submitted by Terrazas, were: E. P. Driver, 71½ cents per acre per year, and Wooten Transfer and Storage, 50 cents per acre. The lease contract will be for three years.

December Up Despite Majors' Plea

AUSTIN (AP)—The Railroad Commission disregarded nominations of most major oil purchasers today and raised the December oil allowable to nine producing days.

Seven major producers at the proration hearing asked the commission to retain the record low eight-day pattern for the eighth straight month. Two independent producing groups also asked for the eight-day scale.

Five major producers, including Humble Oil Co., largest in the state, and one independent group, asked for the nine-day pattern.

The nine day scale allows a daily production of 2,872,535 barrels, an increase of 134,231 a day from November.

An eight day scale would have meant a 48,849 barrels daily decrease.

SPOT PURCHASES

Kenneth Minter of Humble said his company on the nine-day pattern would need to buy spot purchases of 32,000 more barrels daily, on top of current 30,000 daily purchases.

"Humble's nominations for the nine days in December reflect a significant increase in demand influenced largely by our own need and the need of our customers to have adequate stocks of crude in inventory at the start of the burning oil season," Minter said.

"In supplying the upswing in demand that has recently developed Humble will be able to improve its inventory position only slightly in November and will enter the month of December with crude stocks substantially below the level considered adequate for that time of year."

RETAIN PATTERN

E. L. Wilson, representing independent producers in the Dallas area, and George Anderson of the North Texas Oil and Gas Association, asked the commission to retain the eight day pattern.

John Crutchfield, representing Corpus Christi Area independents, asked for a nine day pattern "in order to get Texas its fair share of the market."

The nominations: eight days—Gulf, 205,500 barrels; Indiana Oil Purchasing, 236,000; Cities Service, 82,900; Texaco, 152,000; Shell, 161,800; Phillips, 121,687; Continental, 30,000.

Nine days—Sun Oil, 106,472; Mobil, 233,700; Humble, 403,530; Sinclair, 120,900; Standard, 36,300.

Crime Likened To 'Fun' Deaths

AUSTIN (AP)—A service station attendant was shot to death here early today. Police said the killing resembled two "fun slayings" in San Antonio.

Police reported the capture later of two teen-agers wanted in connection with the slaying of Walter Dabelgott, 58.

Storm Cripples W. Texas Areas

Cool It, Kid; Don't Let It Flatten You

Heavy new snowfalls ranging to a foot in depth swept into the upper Texas Panhandle Wednesday. El Paso, hundreds of miles away, still struggled with the heaviest snowstorm in three decades.

The weather contributed to the deaths of six persons in Texas and at least one death in New Mexico. Forecasters said Northwest Texas could expect a brief letup of the snow sometime in the afternoon.

But a new cold front is expected to bring more snow and bitter weather by Thursday morning.

The Highway Department reported between 4 and 12 inches of snow on the ground in Deaf Smith, Hartley and Dallam counties, all on the Panhandle-New Mexico line.

Romero, a village of 40 people near the New Mexico line, was enveloped in 10 inches of snow. Dalhart in the upper Panhandle had 8 inches.

Snow showered down heavily at Amarillo at midday, but forecasters stuck by their prediction that skies would clear during the afternoon and remain so until the new cold front strikes.

Most of Wednesday's snow, and some freezing drizzle, was in the western part of the Panhandle. Rains fell toward the east.

Muleshoe, 20 miles from the New Mexico border on the South Plains south of the Panhandle, lost its long distance telephone service Tuesday night.

Up to 6 inches of snow and ice covered the Muleshoe area. A power failure left about 150 families north and east of Muleshoe without electric service Tuesday night.

Snow fell again in the Muleshoe area during the morning. The sixth weather attributed death since the cold front pushed through the state Monday occurred at Childress.

Victim was Jessie Bennestee, 14, killed when the driver of the car in which he was a passenger lost control on a rain-slick highway and hit another car.

The Highway Department said roads in its Amarillo district continued hazardous. Some ice was on highways in the Lubbock district in the counties of Bailey, Castro, Parmer, Lamb, Cochran,

Snow Comes To Texas

Swisher, Terry and Gaines counties, where 5-foot drifts formed as a 7-inch fall the two preceding days draped the city of 277,000 in white.

But the worst of the storm appeared to be over. Weather Bureau observers reported the storm was veering toward the northeast by early Wednesday, instead of moving due east as expected. As a result, it appeared much of the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles would escape the 6 to 7 inches of additional snow predicted overnight.

At the same time a new Pacific cold front was bearing down from the northwest and due to enter the Texas Panhandle by late Wednesday. Unless the drizzling rain let up, it threatened added ice woes. Telephone lines failed for a time between Amarillo and Canyon.

Heaviest precipitation in Big Spring was .70 of an inch reported at the downtown plant of the Texas Electric Service Co. Other TESCO reports included .56 of an inch at the Big Spring Switching Plant; .45 of an inch at Colorado City; .65 of an inch at Sweetwater; .76 of an inch at Eskota; .70 of an inch at Chalk; .55 of an inch at Snyder and .25 of an inch at Morgan Creek.

Capt. Jerry McMichael won the 31st FIS pilot of the month award for October, it was announced this week. This is the second time that Capt. McMichael has claimed the award, given monthly to the pilot earning the highest score in the pilot incentive program. The areas covered are aircraft recognition, emergency procedures, aircraft and air defense tests and the scores on the monthly training flights.

Thurmond Cites Censor Tactics

DALLAS (AP)—The Defense Department has censored such phrases as "the aim of communism is to dominate the world" from government speeches and documents, Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., said Tuesday. "The Pentagon is being misled by certain civilians in Washington. This goes for the State Department too," he added. Thurmond said the Pentagon is the right place to censor governmental statements, if done properly. He is a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee which is investigating the Pentagon's censorship of military officers. The inquiry started after a recent speech Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker made to his troops in Germany on Communist tactics. Walker was relieved of his command for allegedly forcing his troops to read and listen to ultra-conservative material on communism. He later resigned from the Army. "Gen. Walker was a great patriot, soldier and leader. They shouldn't have relieved him," Thurmond said.

Kennedy Promises Korean Chief Continued U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—South Korea's Gen. Chung Hee Park has President Kennedy's promise of U.S. aid "including the use of armed forces if there is a renewal of armed attack."

Kennedy assured Park that the United States would continue to extend all possible economic aid and cooperation for the further development of the nation for which U.S. troops fought a decade ago.

The pledge was also official approval for Park's military regime, which overthrew the U.S.-supported government six months ago.

The approval came Tuesday in a joint communique after Kennedy and Park held two meetings lasting about three hours.

The 44-year-old Korean leader was to confer today with three of Kennedy's Cabinet members—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

The unsmiling Korean accomplished a double goal in his talks with Kennedy.

For the first time the President publicly declared "gratification at the many indications of progress" being made by Park's junta after it seized power last May 16 and ousted an elected government.

In addition, Kennedy pledged the U.S. government to "extend all possible economic aid and cooperation to the Republic of Korea in order to further long-range economic development."

Korean sources said that working groups of Korean and U.S. officials would consider detailed plans later.

Some Korean officials indicated they were disappointed that Kennedy had not committed the United States to a specific sum of money to back the new South Korean five-year economic development plan.

"During their conversation, the communique said, Kennedy expressed his satisfaction with Park's promise to restore the government to civilian control as soon as possible.

"We are not satisfied, however, to do nothing about this problem and we are working to develop a policy toward small producers that will protect the public interest while minimizing the burdens of regulation," he said.

In a speech at the concluding session of the 41st meeting of the American Petroleum Institute (API), Swidler said the answer may be found in the new area pricing formula now being developed by the commission.

President Kennedy last spring asked Congress to consider exemption from federal price controls all producers whose annual output is less than two billion cubic feet of gas. Some trade associations rejected the plan as an arbitrary division of the industry but other groups suggested the proposed cutoff be boosted to 10 billion cubic feet.

John M. Kelly, assistant secretary of Interior, who also addressed the meeting, said oil imports have drawn too much of the blame for current problems within the industry.

"In point of fact, crude oil imports have been relatively stable over the past few years, after a rapid rise in the early 1950s," said the former New Mexico independent oil operator.

Kelly made no reference to imports quotas for 1962. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall said two weeks ago he had recommended imports quotas be reduced next year. There had been speculation Kelly might reveal the details today.

The oil industry, Kelly said, has ignored a leveling off in the demand for petroleum products and has continued to operate on an assumption demand would increase at the traditional rate of three to five per cent annually.

"The result has been over-production, excessive refinery runs, and a build-up in stocks to the point where they depress the market," he said.

M. J. Rathbone, president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), submitted his final report as API board chairman and said the industry's expenditures for research have been too low.

He indicated greater emphasis should be placed on petrochemicals and plastics.

"Vast are the possibilities for the products of petroleum to displace the products of the forest, the cotton plant, the cement kiln, and the steel mill in the building materials field," he said.

L. F. McCollum, of Houston, Tex., president of Continental Oil Co., was elected to succeed Rathbone as board chairman of the 8,500-member trade group that represents all segments of the industry.

Union Factions Trade Words

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rival industrial and craft union camps in the AFL-CIO traded broadsides today in a fresh outburst of organized labor's civil war.

Walter Reuther, Auto Workers Union president and commander of the industrial union forces, charged that the six-year-old AFL-CIO has united nations in name only because, he said, the federation has failed to solve traditional union rivalries. He blamed the craft unions for the impasse.

C. J. (Neal) Haggerty, leader of the crafts as president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades, retorted that the industrial unions are ignoring agreed-upon disputes settlement machinery "making us wonder what an agreement with them is worth."

"Mr. Reuther," said Haggerty, "apparently thinks his best defense is an all-out offense."

The basis for the feuding is the same job rights controversy that split the old AFL into the rival AFL and CIO organizations in 1955. Since the AFL-CIO merger was agreed upon in 1955 there have been fruitless efforts to work out a binding arbitration arrangement for interunion disputes.

Deploring this, Reuther said in a report prepared for the annual convention of the Industrial Union Department he heads that there must be some type of non-aggression pact for the AFL-CIO to survive. The convention opens Thursday and runs through Friday.

Reuther said an agreement reached at the AFL-CIO convention at San Francisco two years ago to arbitrate internal disputes has never been implemented.

President Kennedy last spring asked Congress to consider exemption from federal price controls all producers whose annual output is less than two billion cubic feet of gas. Some trade associations rejected the plan as an arbitrary division of the industry but other groups suggested the proposed cut-

FPC Chairman Says Small Producers Can't Be Exempt

CHICAGO (AP)—Joseph C. Swidler, chairman of the Federal Power Commission (FPC), said today the exemption of small producers from natural gas price controls is impossible.

Swidler said the FPC considered the possibility of complete exemption but was compelled to reject the idea for reasons both practical and legal.

"We are not satisfied, however, to do nothing about this problem and we are working to develop a policy toward small producers that will protect the public interest while minimizing the burdens of regulation," he said.

In a speech at the concluding session of the 41st meeting of the American Petroleum Institute (API), Swidler said the answer may be found in the new area pricing formula now being developed by the commission.

DEAR ABBY

She Won The First Round

DEAR ABBY: I noticed a girl in study hall. I liked her looks so I asked her for a date. She accepted. As soon as she got into the car she let me know she was one of those "touch-me-nots." She sat so close to the car door on her side I was afraid she would fall out of the car. I was only checking to make sure her door was locked, but she thought I was trying to put my arm around her, so she hit me in the head with a French dictionary. I didn't tell anybody, but she must have confided in a few dozen girl friends because now the story is all over school. How can I get even with her?

FRENCH STUDENT DEAR STUDENT: Let her win this round. You were lucky she didn't have access to Who's Who or you never would have known WHAT WAS WHAT!

DEAR ABBY: How can I get my husband to quit drooling over every good-looking girl he sees? We can't go to a restaurant without his pointing out the waitresses' legs, wasp waist or radiant complexion. When I'm in the kitchen, he'll run and get me to show me some doll spraying her hair on television. I am no slouch myself but I can't compete with professional models and women who are 20 years younger. I need some advice. CAN'T COMPETE

DEAR CAN'T: Beat him to the draw by pointing out all the lovely ladies and their good qualities

DEAR AGAINST: Sorry, but I can't agree with you. It is important for parents to get out occasionally without their children and a good relationship can be a pleasant and educational experience for the child.

CONFIDENTIAL TO IRV: You are only young once—but you can remain immature forever. Everybody has a problem. What is yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian" (Acts 26:28). It is right to persuade a man to be a Christian. Paul thus persuaded King Agrippa. There is no favor we could do a man that would be greater.

It is not right to persuade a man to be anything else religiously. Paul, and the other apostles, only persuaded men to be Christians. We have authority for doing this; and only for doing this. If men would stay within their authority, we would soon have unity. We would see division vanish. Everything in religion but simple

Private Aid Plan Pushed

NEW YORK (AP)—Glenn Frank, 51, an importer, has spent $3,240 for an advertisement urging private citizens to set up a new foreign aid program.

Explaining that it was his first venture in a civic project, Frank said: "If I took the cost of the ad and bought a mink coat for my wife instead, it wouldn't surprise anybody. I find everybody amazed now."

"I couldn't put $3,240 of my own money to better use than by presenting a humanitarian idea," Frank said the public discussion about fallout shelters led him to make a proposal to help the prospects for peace.

Frank says in the ad that the U.S. government's budget for economic aid is $2.3 billion, or less than $3 for each person in the needy countries. He proposes that private citizens form their own Free Citizens Fund for help with one percent of their incomes, which he estimates at a current total of $420 billion a year. Frank's plan is to issue credit certificates—not cash—financed by collected funds. After investigation, the certificates would be turned over to applicants from the less-developed countries.

Texas First In Aged Care

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Public Welfare Department says Texas became Tuesday the first state in the nation to insure health care to old age assistance recipients through an independent insurance company.

The Public Welfare Board authorized the signing of an agreement between the department and Blue Cross of Texas. More than 220,000 persons on the old age assistance rolls will become eligible on Jan 1 for hospital, physicians and nursing home care.

"The assured co-operation of hospitals and doctors of Texas enables Blue Cross to guarantee that the maximum hospital and medical care benefits will be provided at the lowest possible cost," said Burton Hackney, board chairman.

Blue Cross usually makes no cash payments to patients, but pays directly to the hospital or doctor. Walter McBea, executive director of Blue Cross in Texas, said the company's experience of insuring 60 million members, including hundreds of thousands over 65, "made it possible for us to insure this risk upon a sound actuarial basis."

The program must be approved by the federal government, under the Kerr - Mills Act providing medical care for the aged on a federal - state matching funds basis.

The state legislation passed this year was sponsored by Sen. Crawford Martin of Hillsboro.

Wilson Predicts Low Gas Rate Would Destroy Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Will Wilson of Texas has told the Federal Power Commission that the state's unemployment will rise unless the FPC sets an adequate rate for natural gas production in the Permian Basin.

Wilson said the state had intervened in the rate hearings not as a representative of the oil or pipeline companies, but in behalf of all Texas citizens.

If the expansion and development of the gas industry is retarded, Wilson said, "it will result in a rise in unemployment in an area that contains 12 per cent of the entire population of Texas." Any setback in the industry would adversely affect more than a million Texans living in the area, he said.

He said the rates set for the basin also will affect state tax collections and revenue of school and university funds, since the state, the University of Texas and the public schools own 4,779,368 acres in the basin.

WILL SUFFER

"Without an adequate price for gas, these educational institutions will suffer a reduced income at a time when the demand for increased educational facilities is reaching record heights," Wilson said.

He said the gas industry lacks a price incentive to continue to expand and explore for new reserves.

"Gas production is lagging right now in Texas and creating unemployment throughout the state. The basic problem is simply an inadequate price for gas transmitted out of the state," Wilson said.

New Mexico also urged the commission to set Permian Basin natural gas prices high enough so producers may operate at a profit.

The hearing was on a proposal to fix rates on an area basis, rather than on a company-by-company procedure heretofore used.

MINERAL RIGHTS

Atty. Gen. Earl Hartley of New Mexico testified that New Mexico owns mineral rights on about 40 per cent of all the lands in the portion of the Permian Basin lying within that state. He noted the government also owns about 40 per cent, and that, since these lands are exempt from state ad valorem taxes, the federal government pays 37 1/2 per cent of its one-eighth royalty to New Mexico.

He declared that any price established by the commission should be "sufficiently high to provide the incentive necessary" for continued exploration and development.

"New Mexico has never felt," he added, "and still does not feel, that the Federal Power Commission should be forced to regulate the price of natural gas at the well-head. But the courts have decreed otherwise."

William Powell, lawyer for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, declared that any area prices established by the commission must be both fair and reasonable and, at the same time, high enough to spur the producer on to explorations which will guarantee necessary supplies.

JUST RATES

"It is our basic position," he said, "that currently executed contract prices, negotiated at arm's length, are just and reasonable, and are the minimum prices that will stimulate the necessary current exploratory and drilling effort essential to bring forth adequate reserves for current-consumer requirements."

He emphasized natural gas should be treated as a commodity and that producers should not be considered as operators of public utilities.

John Davenport, lawyer for the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said prices must be adequate to allow producers a margin of profit.

While none of those speaking at the hearing directly endorsed the area rate-fixing proposal, they indicated it would be satisfactory so long as the price on gas was set sufficiently high.

Davenport said he saw in the proposal some benefits for small producers.

The Permian Basin hearing, one of a series planned by the commission to determine rates in various gas-producing areas in the country, is being conducted by examiner Seymour Wenner.

Wenner said that, starting today, there would be cross-examination of witnesses whose testimony was received in earlier sessions. He said the cross-examination may continue for several weeks.

Tito Objects To Aid Fuss

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito has declared "certain circles of capitalists and other reactionary people in America" are urging U.S. military and other aid to Yugoslavia be cut off during hard times for the Communist nation.

"Economic pressure is exercised on us at the time when our country is so badly hit by drought and when we are in a pretty delicate situation," Tito asserted in a speech before a mass meeting at Skoplje.

The State Department confirmed last month that the United States has shelved at least temporarily a Yugoslav request to buy 500,000 tons of surplus American wheat.

Officials indicated the decision reflected President Kennedy's displeasure because of pro-Soviet positions taken by Yugoslavia at the Belgrade conference of non-aligned nations last September.

A request by Yugoslavia that the wheat decision be reconsidered coincided with the disclosure of the controversial sale of surplus U.S. Sabre jet planes to the Tito government.

Tito turned to the West after Stalin broke with him in 1948. He has received $2.2 billion in U.S. economic and military assistance since the end of World War II.

A good foot shorter than the cars from which it borrowed its name, it calls the snuggest parking places home. At the same time, on the inside the new Fairlane 500 is every inch as big as some of the biggest Fords ever built.

The new Fairlane 500 is priced way under previous Fairlanes, well under many compacts. But Fairlane economy doesn't stop with a pretty price tag. It runs to amazing gas savings—with the world's first economy V-8 or the nickel-nursing Fairlane Six. Routine service is reduced to a minimum—30,000 miles on many items, only twice a year or 6,000 miles on the rest. And it adjusts its own brakes.

A Big Issue Ahead

Congress is unlikely to give President Kennedy the greater authority he thinks he needs to negotiate reciprocal tariff reductions with other countries, Noah M. Mason predicts.
Mason is the ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee which handles reciprocal trade legislation. He went further to say that there would be a "devil of a fight" just to extend in its present form the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which expires next June 30.
Under present law the President has authority to make agreements on reciprocal tariff reductions with particular countries on specified items, whereas his advisers argue that he should have broader authority to deal with the tariff problems sure to arise from establishment of the European Common Market.
Mason appears to have made a correct assessment of the situation. Protectionist sentiment has increased greatly in recent years. The textile and pottery industries have been particularly insistent of late that they be given more protection for foreign goods competing in the domestic market.

Domestic manufacturers can hardly be blamed if they protest against competition from imports. Their livelihood and that of their employees is at stake.
This legitimate and understandable feeling, however, must in time be resolved with the larger questions of how the United States can lead the free world and not trade with her friends, or how can the United States maintain its European markets, which account for one third of our total exports, without some adjustment to deal with the European Common Market?
We all are agreed that trade is better than aid (provided it doesn't affect me), and we certainly don't want our friends, barricaded from trading with us, to do business with the Communist traders.
These are but a few of the reasons why the matter of world trade is apt to be one of the most vital and hotly contested issues in the year ahead.

How The Job Can Be Best Done

One of the fruits of space exploration is the probability of a satellite communications system. The potentialities of this were demonstrated dramatically over a year ago when Echo I was put into orbit. Crude by ultimate standards, this balloon affair proved that signals could be bounced from it to far-removed receiving stations which otherwise could not pick up the signals.
As scientists have moved ahead toward the time when a system of satellites can be put in orbit, a controversy has arisen over whom is to do the job. Private interests have offered to move into the field, but some contend that since the government developed the techniques of rocketry which propels the satellites into orbit, the field should be pre-empted to public operation.
A committee has been working on this matter, and in essence its findings is in favor of private development and operation. This, it seems to us, is a logical and proper conclusion. First of all, government should refrain from business or developments unless it is clearly a field where private enterprise is unwilling (and even here public enterprise should move with utmost caution and reluctance) or unable to function. Secondly, government is dependent upon the support of privately generated sources of wealth and production, not the other way around.

The problem then is not so much as to whom the job should fall, but how it may be done equitably without conferring economic favor on one group over the other. In suggesting the broad outlines of how government and industry can cooperate, how control can be kept out of the hands of one group to insure opportunity for all, how to operate the system, the committee has come up with what seems to be a sound solution.

David Lawrence Time Now For Tax Reform

WASHINGTON — "The time to begin is now," said President Kennedy the other day as he proposed that America revise her world trade policies. But he might also have made this comment about the necessity of doing something right away about the rise in unemployment due to the stagnation of the heavy-goods industries of the United States.
FOR THE WARNING signals are up. Steel men fear a strike next year and another increase in wage costs as they face a declining market due to competition from abroad, where wage costs are low. There is also a good deal of gloom in the whole manufacturing segment of the national economy, where the bulk of the unemployed are to be found.
Will the economic advisers of the "new frontier" repeat the mistakes made by their fellow "brain trusters" in the New Deal days of the 1930's when unemployment persisted, with 9,100,000 still unemployed when the United States entered World War II in December 1941?
TODAY UNEMPLOYMENT is running at an indicated figure of 4,900,000 for the year, which is larger than the average for any year in the last two decades. In the 1930's, as now, the heavy-goods industries were neglected. Yet they were then, as they are today, the key to national prosperity.
The administration is talking about tax reform for 1963, but if it refuses to deal with the tax-depreciation problem any sooner than 1963, then a chaotic condition may result. For the confusion over tax allowances is what is holding back the progress of the heavy-goods industries.
THERE ARE also international complications ahead. Already European countries which have benefited from the growth of American investments abroad in recent years are beginning to wonder why the Washington government is proposing that American-owned companies overseas pay taxes on their earnings which could prevent their reinvestment.
The political implications of the whole situation, moreover, are becoming more pointed. The President naturally wants a victory for the Democratic party in the 1962 congressional elections. But if unemployment rises, the Democrats will lose ground in Congress. Also, if the industries of the United States find tariffs and quotas reduced and more foreign goods flowing into this country in competition with American products, there will be an upsurge of protectionist sentiment in the ranks of labor in many urban centers where the Democrats have heretofore had big majorities. It could mean the loss of a substantial number of seats and possibly the loss of the House of Representatives itself by the Democrats.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that the Democratic party in 1962 will have been in control of both Houses of Congress for a period of eight consecutive years. Congress, and not the President, enacts the laws. It is beside the point for the Democrats to be blaming on the Eisenhower administration the present economic condition of the country. During those same eight years that the Democrats were in power in Congress, the tax laws on depreciation were not overhauled as they should have been. The latest figures show that in the last six years America has been standing still in the investment of funds for new plants and modernizing of equipment.
ESTIMATES just released by the McGraw-Hill Company's economists and statisticians indicate that in 1962 about $35.8 billion will be spent for new plant and equipment, which compares with $35 billion in 1956. Yet, during these same five years, the gross national product of America has gone from $419 billion to $526 billion in 1961.
Why, in a period of population growth and such an increase in gross national product, has there been a static condition in the heavy-goods industries? Everyone knows that the only chance for industry to absorb some of the higher labor costs is by labor-saving machinery. Yet the inability to put in new plant and modern equipment is costing America many billions of dollars in national growth and in corporate profits, from which the Treasury needs taxes to meet the higher defense budgets.
IT IS QUITE evident that the time to begin to tackle this problem is now. President Eisenhower's Commission on National Goals, in its report in November 1960, gave its prescription for economic growth. It called for "an overhaul of the tax system, including depreciation allowances."
President Kennedy has spoken of the same thing. But, for some unexplained reason, the problem has been sidetracked, and the next session of Congress is not expected now to tackle the whole subject of tax reform, leaving it instead to 1963. But maybe it will be a Republican House of Representatives in January 1963 which will respond to the demand of the country for action in the very field which today is producing the largest proportion of our unemployed.

JUST WHEN THINGS LOOKED GOOD

James Marlow Harry And Ike, They Look Alike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower, although they might not like to think so, have looked like look-alikes facing in opposite directions in the first year after each left office.
Each, as he walked out of the White House, got a hunting license to pot-shoot his successor.
They fired merrily, or indignantly, or disparagingly, as the mood seized them, which was pretty often.
But there were other parallels that may tend to get the public accustomed to what to expect from ex-presidents in the future.
Neither, when he gave up the presidency, was happy about the last election results. In 1952 Truman backed Adlai E. Stevenson who lost to Eisenhower. In 1960 Eisenhower backed Richard M. Nixon who lost to John F. Kennedy.
WHILE TRUMAN and Eisenhower were tied at having more unbalanced budgets while they were in office, they never could get together on the budget subject.
In 1953, after getting adjusted to civilian life again, Truman banged away at Eisenhower's administration for what Truman called its dangerous philosophy that balanced the budget is the most sacred objective of government.
In 1961 Eisenhower, although his $12-billion deficit in 1959 was the biggest in peacetime history, said the failure of President Kennedy's administration to balance the budget would affect the nation's future strength against communism.
TRUMAN in 1953 complained that the Republicans under Eisenhower were going down the middle of the road moving backwards. Eisenhower in 1961 said, "The confusion I sense" in the Kennedy administration "is like a tornado on a spring day."
Both men, in their first year out of office, couldn't stay out of active politics. Truman had better luck than Eisenhower.
In 1953 Truman, after first letting it be known he wouldn't jump into the New York mayoralty race to back Robert F. Wagner Jr., who won and thereafter kept on winning.
In 1961 Eisenhower went to New York to back Republican Louis J. Lefkowitz against Wagner, who was running again. Wagner won once more. Eisenhower also went into New Jersey's gubernatorial race to support Republican James P. Mitchell against Democrat Richard J. Hughes. Kennedy and Truman campaigned for Hughes, who won.

Miller, at 43 the owner of a flourishing mop of hair that makes him his own worst customer, is the dynamic head of one of the oldest and largest wig firms in the world.
The hairpiece business is now about a $50 million a year industry in this country, and getting bigger all the time.
The bald truth of the matter, according to Miller, is that some three million American women now wear fashion wigs and some 400,000 men protect their scalps from sunburn, rain, snow and ill-natured laughter with toupees, also known in the trade as "toppers."
Miller feels sure that in another 5 to 10 years these figures will be trebled or quadrupled.
It is his opinion—well, anyway, his hope—that the fashion wig again will become a status symbol among men, as it already is among many women.
"George Washington wore a fashion wig," he said. "So did Ben Franklin and Thomas Jefferson. Would you call them sissies?"
"Actually this is the second era of American history when the wig has been a status symbol."
"In Colonial America wigs were

Hal Boyle A Wig For The President

symbols of status—but as worn by husbands not wives. You could gauge a colonist's station in life by the repertoire of wigs he owned.
"The wealthy landowner might possess a dozen. The shopkeeper would have two—one for every day, one for Sundays. The blacksmith probably owned but one, while the indentured servants and field hands had nothing to hide their hair from the contemptuous regard of their bewigged betters."
According to Miller, people have been wearing wigs for 10,000 years or so. He says both Hammurabi and Nero wore them for purposes of disguise, and that the first Queen Elizabeth of England, whose hair was scant and thin, had 80 wigs in her wardrobe.
A modern women's wig today costs from $200 to $700, a man's topper from $165 to $250. They last from two to three years, and can be sent out to be cleaned and dressed for $4.50.
Feminine wigs contain from 250,000 to 300,000 hairs, male toupees about 140,000.
The world hair buying center is Palermo, Sicily, and the greatest source of supply is the Italian woman peasant. The price ranges all the way from $50 a pound for straight black hair to $400 a pound for pure white or red hair, the colors in scant supply.
So far, Miller's letters to the White House suggesting that President Kennedy launch a new fashion in male wigs have gone unanswered. He is considering whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev might be a more interested prospect, and would be glad to furnish the premier with a free hairpiece as a starter.
"A nice crewcut toupee might help him get rid of his inferiority complex and give him more self-confidence," said Miller. "Anyway, it's worth a try."

To Your Good Health Marrow Test Used For Some Blood Disorders

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had a fingertip blood test which shows he has a high count of red corpuscles. The doctor advised a bone marrow test to verify the blood test. What is the procedure? Does it require a stay in the hospital?"—N. H."
A high count of red cells is called polycythemia—but there are different varieties of it.
The marrow test is one of several used for polycythemia. (Others include certain X-ray procedures, and a thorough physical examination, which is of primary importance.) The marrow test is helpful in other blood disorders, too, for the marrow, you know, is one of the important producers of blood cells.
Performing a bone marrow test is quite brief—but that is, taking the sample is. It requires only half an hour of the patient's time and can be done in a doctor's office or clinic. A small amount of local anesthetic is used, after which a short, special needle is pressed into the sternum, or breast bone, and a few drops of the juices withdrawn.
For the patient, that's all there is to it. He gets up and goes home.
The rest of the test is in the laboratory. The fluid is spread on glass slides to be stained with various coloring materials to help the examination under a microscope.
In general, a high red corpuscle count can be due either to a loss or shift in the natural fluids of the body—that is, the same number of cells are present, but some of the liquid has been withdrawn from the blood, so it becomes thicker. In some cases it becomes thicker. In some cases it becomes thinner. In some cases it becomes thicker. In some cases it becomes thinner.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 5 feet, 6 inches tall and weigh 144 pounds. I have had five children. My varicose veins have gotten worse.
"We live in a house which has tile over a cement deck. And because of this type of floor my legs have gotten worse.
"If there some solution, such as losing weight, or do we have to sell our home for me to have some relief?"—Mrs. R. H."
Don't blame the floors. Losing weight will help. But you were doubtless born with veins that weren't as rugged as we might wish. Floors, hard, soft or otherwise, don't cause this.
How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a copy of my leaflet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.
Dr. Molner welcomes all mail from his readers, but because of the great volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Dr. Molner uses readers' letters in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim Odds And Ends From The Mailbag

Things we find in our mail:
A hopeful approach in the treatment of arthritis has been reported to the annual meeting of the General Practice section of the Southern Medical Conference. According to claims in a paper read at the annual meeting of the conference last week, a device emits pulsed ultra-high frequency energy which "relieves pain and restores normal function" in many cases. It is not extolled as a cure-all but is said to possess no harmful side effects as in some methods of treatment.
INDIVIDUAL BUZZER alarms in every one of the nation's more than 50 million homes is now a possibility, according to Electrical World. The Office of Civilian Defense has given clearance on the units which give off a sound "alarmably louder than an electric alarm clock—something like a Navy warning system." The alarm is to be tied in with the North American Defense Command to sound the alert for nuclear weapons attack. Transmitting equipment will be tied in with the electric utility systems to send out a frequency some four times higher than the 60-cycle current supplying ordinary home appliances. Cost of the unit which is connected to home wiring is pegged at about $10, not including installation.
IT'S NOT THAT people are ungrateful, but often good intentions are erased by the passing of time. But the people of Palacios set something of an example if not a record when they announced a giant Appreciation Day this Sunday. The event sponsored by all the citizens of the city is their way of saying thanks to all the agencies and the people everywhere who had any part in rushing in aid on the heels of Hurricane Carla. "The entire nation's heart was opened wide in sympathy, and they sent millions of dollars worth of clothing, food and materials to this area," said spokesmen. "We want to thank them."

MOST OF US regard banks as a place to save money or carry a checking account, but there are other kinds of banks. We've heard of blood banks, and bone banks, cornel banks, etc., but one of the most unusual is a human tumor bank. Such a one is being planned by the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N. Y. This bank would store malignant tissues and blood serum from a carefully-selected, wide variety of human cancers. These will be made available to qualified researchers in this country and abroad who are studying cancer. When malignant tissue, considered worthy of preservation for future study is surgically removed, a portion of it is sent to the tumor bank. There it will be processed in one of two ways to keep the cells "alive."
A POPULATION explosion timed to go off by 1970 is expected to almost double the present student populations of the nation's secondary (junior and senior high) schools. In the early 50's, communities worked like beavers to provide classrooms with heavy emphasis on elementary grades. Now this is leveling off, but the surge is making its way to high school. California expects a 85 per cent increase this decade, Arizona 70 per cent, Florida 80 per cent. I suspect we will have a hefty percentage ourselves. There is no rest for a second folk. —JOE PICKLE

Inez Robb Ideal Feminine Frock—The Sari

Oh, East is East and West is West, but—Kipling or no Kipling—the women of India and the women of the U.S.A. are met as victims of a nervous tic.
It is occasioned by an anxiety syndrome, just to toss in a phrase proving that a little learning is a dangerous thing. This shared tic or syndrome can be traced to our clothes although they are half a world and light years apart.
AT A SMALL, private luncheon in New York last week for Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, there were a half-dozen Indian women, slim, exquisite and dressed in a ravishing array of saris.
And there were a dozen of us American women, looking by any standard pretty mundane and—frankly—drab even in our best town suits or wool dresses. That is, by contrast with the exotic butterfly appearance of the guests from India.
NOW I HAVE long had a dreamy admiration for the sari, so feminine, so becoming and so STABLE. So unaffected—need one point out?—by the dictates of Dior or Givenchy. In the sari there is "clothes security, I thought wistfully, every time I paid another $50 (about three times annually) to have my hems lowered or hiked.
A sari is a sari is a sari is a sari. And they are handed, always in high style, from mother to daughter. They are good, so to speak, to the last fashion drop. And when one buys a sari, there are no measurements, no fittings, no migraine. And no zippers! Or hooks and eyes, either. A simple, for Indian belles, twist of the wrist and the sari is anchored for the day.
OR, SO, IT SEEMED, when Mrs. Gandhi and her five compatriots entered our hostess' drawing room and sank gracefully into chairs and sofas. They sat in complete repose, hands at ease, while their delicately manicured bare feet, in thonged sandals, beneath their saris "like lithe nudes, stols in and out, as if they feared the light."

And what were we American women doing in the meantime? You know darn well! We sat there, animatedly chatting and unconsciously every last one of us, trying to tug her skirt over her respective knees. At that moment, the sari never seemed more attractive or comforting.
THIS ILLUSION might still be with me if our hostess, at the conclusion of luncheon, had not asked Mrs. Gandhi to tell us something of her work as former head of India's Congress Party.
Mrs. Gandhi rose, a slim, petite woman in an especially beautiful sari of pale beige silk, embroidered in shades of brown and worn with the traditional short-sleeved blouse. Hers was of palest green silk.
But 90 seconds after Mrs. Gandhi began to speak, my disillusionment with the sari set in. For Mrs. Gandhi was tugging, too! Only she was tugging horizontally, whereas we Americans tug vertically.
THE DAUGHTER of Pandit Nehru kept tugging at her gorgeous sari, the better to tighten it around her slender waist. The end of the sari, worn over the left shoulder, appeared to have a will of its own.
With a small, firm hand, Mrs. Gandhi kept pulling it more taut at the shoulder and constantly tugging it more firmly at the waist. And, every time, she was doing it as unself-consciously as we Americans tug at our hem.
Nor did she seem to get any further with her horizontal pulling and hauling than we Americans get with our vertical yanking. Obviously, we are all frustrated daughters of Eve, longing for a better gift leaf.

Holmes Alexander Public Money For Political Promotion

ST. LOUIS—"It is equally important," said President Kennedy in announcing the 12-city road show called the White House Regional Conference, "that Federal officials seek the views of State and local officials, as well as those of interested individuals, in making plans for future development."
As a past master of politics, the President could hardly have expected tightly-scheduled emissaries, in compressed seminars where the platform speakers hardly paused for breath, to learn anything from the audience.
AT THE TWO-DAY St. Louis conference, for example, there were 53 panel participants, 53 topics listed for discussion, and two press conferences. There were a double header evening session, at which Secretaries Hodges and Ribicoff gave out the Democratic gospel, a couple of intimate dinner parties at which to reward the faithful and jolly up local dignitaries, and 33 hours of working session at which Federal do-gooders talked of their shop work under four general headings. These were Full Employment and Economic Growth, Opportunities for Cities, Opportunities for Senior Citizens, and Opportunities for Youth.
THIS IS NOT a curriculum conducive "to seek the views" of the auditors—at least not in the way that the President had in mind. The sessions which I sampled were roughly one-part Demo-Labor-Social Worker, one-part curiosity seekers and interested persons, and one-part Republican-Private Enterprisers.
That is, if the Democrats brought their brainwash material, the Republicans brought the towels and cleaning fluid to sop it up. On the first day HEW Secretary Ribicoff, who is showing a proximity fuse temper when put under pressure, was reciting the Democratic party line on medical care for the aged when he suddenly found his horns laced with those of a local celebrity of opposite political persuasion.
DR. R. O. MEUTHER, past President of both the St. Louis and Missouri Medical Associations and reigning President of the local Blue Shield Insurance Plan, told the Secretary he was all "wrong" and that the Administration legislation was "a direct affront to the dignity and independence" of old folks.

It's very unlikely that the New Frontiersmen intended to collect such opinions as these. It is also probable that the Democrats, whose party usually has soft pickings when catering to the underprivileged, never expected to find Republican guerrilla troops planted in this innocent-looking environment. But the St. Louis sessions soon proved to be no place for the dove - of - peace - and - plentitude role for which the Democrats had rehearsed.
THE REPUBLICANS, in truth, were there with primed weapons and they were loaded for bear, not for anything so frail as doves. At the Urban Renewal seminar, a heckler wanted to know why the President hadn't issued an executive order to ban discrimination down the line in Federal housing. I later interviewed a GOP Negro leader, Grant Reynolds, who once ran for Congress against Democratic Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Reynolds, a lawyer and Urban Renewal promoter in New York, complained that the speakers gave a false impression that Federal help is the whole answer to Urban Renewal.
THE REPUBLICAN big guns delivered even more damaging blasts. Reporters on the scene had many assertions and admissions from Democratic friends to the effect that these sessions were intended to get the American peoples' minds back on domestic affairs and off international calamities. But it was Congressman Tom Curtis (R., St. Louis) who made the direct accusation of something sinister. Curtis declared that a group of White House conspirators, including Ted Sorensen, Larry O'Brien and Ed Murrow (who supposedly advises on getting the American viewpoint over to foreigners), had planned the St. Louis sessions with nothing in mind except to beat the bushes for support of the Kennedy programs in Congress and to lull uneasy persons who were wondering if Mr. Kennedy will ever win an engagement on the foreign front.
It is a very serious charge of spending public money for political promotion and popular deception.

New Type Of Girl Has Talent, Modern Ideas

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A new type of girl is emerging these days. She combines old-fashioned talents with modern ideas without losing perspective. Two girl finalists in a recent sewing contest are good examples of that sort of individualism. The girls are just as proud of knowing the latest dance steps and preparing for careers as they are of homemaking.

Twelve-year-old Nancy Due of Escalon, Calif., is well on her way to a career. The little bundle of energy makes all sorts of salable articles for the home, and last year made and sold Christmas decorations. But her big project is with animals. She's health chairman of the local rabies clinic.

"People who love animals should vaccinate them. A dog can look pretty healthy as if he'd never do anything wrong. But you can't tell. There should be a rabies clinic in every town and city," she says.

A farm girl, Nancy has learned to love all animals, and has three cats besides her St. Bernard. "I hope to go to agricultural college and train for work as an advisor to 4-H clubs and other groups," she says. She's an active 4-H member and last year won a total of 10 blue ribbons at the county fair for her cooking entries and sewing projects.

Nancy loves to rock 'n' roll, and have parties in her home. Mary Ann Traylor, 16, of Emporia, Kan. is another modern girl who combines homemaking talents with a sophisticated hobby. She's involved in paleobotany, the study of fossilized plant life which she finds is coal.

"It's a real dirty hobby," Nancy confides, "but it's very absorbing. I became fascinated with the study when I attended a science fair, and I am probably science-minded because my father is a doctor."

She gets the coal right from a mine through a friend of her grandfather's, uses a diamond-edged saw, to cut it and etches the fossilized materials with hydrochloric acid, she says.

Nancy has great curiosity and takes a whirl at anything that looks good. "But if it doesn't seem too interesting after I get started, I just skip out of it," she says.

A music lover, Nancy plays the piano, flute, bassoon, French horn and E-flat alto horn.

The two girl finalists in a young stylemaker contest sew a wicked seam. Nancy's entry was a three-piece lined suit in a black and white novelty weave cotton.

Mary Ann's suit was in a basket-weave aqua wool with coordinated blouse.

Holiday Arrangements Shown Green Thumbers

Decorating for Thanksgiving and Flower and Fruit Arrangements were topics for the demonstrations and talks by three members of the Green Thumb Garden Club when the group met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Roy Reeder.

Mrs. Elmo Wasson displayed a fresh arrangement made of striped Jacob's Coat, foliage, cucumbers, avocado pears, peaches, pomegranates and grapes. The pyramid design was placed on an unpolished piece of marble to attain texture contrast. She suggested the piece would be best used on a hall table, buffet or large table on an enclosed porch.

A large round brass bowl was used by Mrs. Adolph Swartz for a dried arrangement that contained eucalyptus, holly leaves, colored wheat, artificial lemons, purple and green grapes, strawberries, red apples, oranges, tangerines, nectarines, acorns and pears. She suggested this symmetrical arrangement for the Thanksgiving season be used on the buffet.

Mrs. Reeder used the centerpiece fashioned by Mrs. V. J. Belda on the refreshment table. Mrs. Belda placed white pom-pom chrysanthemums, eucalyptus and curls caustiz (curly cooney) in the justice scales for the arrangement.

Mrs. R. H. Johnson was welcomed into the club membership during the business meeting at which Mrs. Arch Carson, president, presided.

The Christmas party will be held at 10 a.m. on Dec. 5 at the home of Mrs. Hayes Stripling Jr., and the members will exchange gifts. Afterwards the women will go to the Big Spring State Hospital where they will wrap gifts for the patients' Christmas party.

Thunderous Applause Is Dream Realized By Teen-Ager, Alicia

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Do you dream of pirouetting on a stage in a billowing ballet dress to the thunderous applause of an appreciative audience?

Most girls do have such dreams, says Alicia Juwikova, 13-year-old ballerina who has managed to make her own come true. She came here from France to make her American debut at the Junior League Mardi Gras Ball.

"Ballet is a life's work, dreams and reality, asleep and awake," explains the pretty baller star who was born Judy Alicia Wickes in New York. The stage name was selected "because Russian names are more identified with good ballet," she says.

She lives in Europe most of the year with her mother and father, Commander Robert B. Wickes, U.S.N.R., an international lawyer. She speaks fluent French.

SACRIFICES SPORTS
"If one is to be a successful ballerina, she must adore it, have a good teacher, practice four or five hours a day, and give up just about everything else she loves for her art. No matter how much she gives up, she will still have a lot to learn," she explains.

Alicia has given up much loved sports — skiing, skating, tennis, horseback riding, "because of the danger that they might overdevel-op my whole body," she says. She swims because the strokes tie in with her ballet movements.

"Style and interpretation are the top considerations, your signature when you dance ballet. You must learn to interpret the music you study in your own fashion. It is not enough to be taught to dance. What you become is your own hard work," she adds.

NO SCHOOL

Alicia is tutored three times a week, does a great deal of home-work and is in the 6th Form, equivalent to Junior High School. Much of her success is due to her mother's understanding of her problems, she admits.

"Many mothers do not recognize that a child can have her own serious purpose in life," explains her mother. "I would not regret her to school for the sake of formalities. Ballet is what she wants, and she is willing to make sacrifices for it. She should be given a chance to realize her dreams by conserving energy for that reality."

Alicia is happy because "it would be impossible to keep up with ballet and daily school attendance," she says.

Does she miss school friendships?

"No. It is different in Europe," she explains. "Young people do not gather in cliques. My girl friend and I take a walk sometimes, play with my dog, a Boston bull, or we go to a movie with a chaperone. At my age you do not miss anything in Europe."

Slate For Student Is Super Gift

For the mathematics student at any educational level, a slate for making calculations is a boon. Made the size of a lapboard, the slate gives the student an opportunity of working occasionally in an easy chair, and the reverse side may be used for typing writing letters or themes, and other tasks.

Such a slate-lapboard is easily made from a piece of hardboard, available at lumber yards. A convenient size is 16" x 20".

The only preparation is to round the corners with a file and lightly bevel the edges with the same tool or sandpaper. Then apply either green or black slating material, available at paint or lumber yards, according to directions on the can.

The reverse side may be left unfinished or primed, painted or enameled.

Grand Jury Returns 16 Indictments Tuesday

Howard County grand jury reported 16 indictments in its report to Judge Ralph Caton, Tuesday afternoon.

It voted a murder indictment against Lewis Davis, in the Oct. slaying of Roy V. Brown, itinerant painter, but it did not return a true bill against Mildred Ruff, who had been charged in the shooting on Sept. 11 of her husband, Vernon Lee Friar.

Two repeat indictments were returned. Defendants in these cases are George W. Wright and Richard L. Knight. They were specifically cited for the burglary on Oct. 6 of the Caldwell Electric Co. Both, the state showed, had been previously convicted of burglary and both are in jail. Judge Ralph Caton set their bonds at $1,000 each.

Calvin Cody Tipton, charged with car theft, was indicted and a bond set at $7,500. He is accused of stealing a car from its parking place near the First Federal Building and Loan Association building. This was on Oct. 6. Later, the defendant was arrested in possession of the car in said.

Other indictments include: James Walters, forgery and passing, who is accused of forging the name of Marvin Wade to a check which was passed at the Westward Ho Motel. Bond was set at $2,500.

Driving while intoxicated, second offense, indictments were returned against Tullis G. McElroy, the Sosa Loera, Forest Lee, B. T. Medale, Austin J. Bankston and Roy Russell.

Raymond Pineda was indicted for theft over $50 in connection with the stealing of a 1960 Chevrolet pickup on Oct. 6. He was arrested in Stanton.

Russell Howard Corwin, charged with burglary, was indicted for burglary in the Oct. 21 break-in at the Turner's Mobil Filling Station on West 3rd Street. Bond was set at $2,500 in his case.

Raymond Franklin Barron and Eustice Ruff charged with the theft of 12 Reeb bits on Oct. 17, were indicted but no indictment was returned against Winford W. Taylor, who was also named in the original complaint. Bond for Barron was set at $5,000 and $3,500 for Ruff. Barron is indicted as a "repeat."

Steven D. Ray, accused of breaking into Dub's Auction Place on Oct. 3 was indicted for burglary.

Thirteen defendants whose cases were taken before the grand jury were not indicted. These include Mrs. Friar and Taylor.

Others, whose cases were dropped by the grand jury, include Charlie Reico, DWI second offense; Jesus Hernandez, DWI second offense; Augustin Esparza, assault with intent to murder (he was accused of having shot and wounded Tony Lozano on Oct. 25 after having cut Cayetano Galvan with a knife on Oct. 18); Jessie Lee Banks, theft from the person; David Wayne Atkinson and Horace Lee Atkinson, burglary; Marie Young Koonce, car burglary; Wayne Claude Jackson, forgery and worthless check over $50; A. L. Lancaster, forgery and passing; Don Whitaker, worthless check over $50; Cesario Ontovero, DWI second offense.

Another defendant not indicted but whose case was on the docket was Frankie Lee Bean, Bean, who is in the county jail under confinement as an habitual burglar and facing life in prison, was slated for indictment for robbery by assault and jail break.

Gi Jones, district attorney, said he had planned to ask for an indictment on the defendant in this case but that he did not do so for the reason that Bean's attorney has not as yet decided if he intends to appeal the life sentence already meted against his client.

Optimists Call Off Card Sale

The Optimist sale of Christmas Tree cards scheduled Tuesday night was rained out, according to Jack Orr, chairman of the drive.

"The men were all ready to get started, but when the rain began to increase there was a change of plans," he said.

Instead of having one concerted effort, each Optimist will take about 20 cards and canvass his area between now and Wednesday. They will then report sales at the regular club meeting.

Optimists are trying to get a head start on their annual sale of Christmas trees by selling cards which can be redeemed for $1 each on the purchase of a tree. Trees will go on sale whenever they arrive, some time between Dec. 3-8.

The Christmas Tree lot will be at Tenth and Gregg, across the street from Nalley-Pickel Funeral Home.

Proceeds from the sales go to sponsoring such activities as a supervised playground on the North Side, a Pony League baseball team, Boy Oratorical Contest, Bike Safety Week and Youth Appreciation Week.

Club Pushes Member Roll Toward Record

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has moved within eight of its record membership peak, thanks largely to efforts of the Contact Club.

Reports at the meeting of the club, a group of chamber workers who specialize in welcoming visitors (as the Ambassadors) and in membership enrollment, showed 704 members. The all-time peak is 711. Since July 1, the Contact Club has secured more than 250 new memberships in the chamber (an achievement which has been recognized in the national newsletter of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce).

One contactor, Oscar Glickman, has secured 75 memberships.

At the meeting Tuesday in the Wagon Wheel, the club received the appreciation of Horace Garretts, chamber president, for work both in membership and as the red-coated Ambassadors. Club members were presented with T-38 tieclaps by the Northrop Corporation in appreciation for the welcome extended Northrop officials here recently when the first T-38 trainer was delivered to Webb AFB.

Mrs. Hyre Leaves Hospital Position

Mrs. Lou Hyre today leaves her post as volunteer coordinator at the Big Spring State Hospital, according to Dr. Preston E. Harrison, superintendent. She has held the position since March 7, when she replaced Mrs. Doris Thurman Lloyd, who had resigned.

Mrs. Hyre went into the job with no previous experience in the field, but under her guidance, the program started by Mrs. Lloyd has continued to grow.

When she stepped in, there were 115 regular and 168 occasional volunteers who had given an average of slightly more than 2,000 hours of service each month. In seven months, at the end of the fiscal year Aug. 31, there were 306 regular and 225 occasional volunteers and their time had risen to an average of 2,584 hours each month.

"Perhaps her greatest asset is an amazing ability to organize," Dr. Harrison said. "Mrs. Hyre took the work which volunteers did and channeled it into directions in which it would do the most good in the wards."

Under her guidance, volunteers took over a Ward Occupational Therapy on Ward 5, the intensive treatment ward, Dr. Harrison said. Volunteers now supervise, perform the work, provide supplies and completely administer the therapy.

Adolescents have received special attention from Mrs. Hyre. During her brief stay there three classes were instituted to stimulate interest of the younger patients. These are classes in personality improvement, care of clothing and personal relation class for boys and girls.

The closeness between Mrs. Hyre and the younger patients was confirmed by Dr. Frankie Williams, assistant superintendent.

"I feel that I can communicate with her," he told Dr. Williams. "I am going to miss the patients and the persons who worked with me," she said, "but most of all, I will miss people of Big Spring. Never have I seen such warmth and willingness to give of oneself for others. It is gratifying to see an entire community give unstintingly for the benefit of the patients."

"The list of those who made my work easy is a long one, but I would like to give special credit to D. M. McKinney, chairman of the Volunteer Council and Jack V. Smith. They did everything we asked if it were possible."

Mrs. Hyre leaves today for Elkins, W. Va. where she and her husband, T. Sgt. Allen Hyre, will visit with relatives before he embarks for Zwibrucken, Germany. She and the three children will remain at Charleston, W. Va., until they can join him.

Mrs. Hyre came here from Austin, but was no stranger to West Texas. She was born at Ballinger and the daughter of the late Oscar Hurley and Lulu Mangrum, whose families were among early residents of Mason County.

She was married July 15 to T. Sgt. Hyre, who has been stationed at Webb Air Force Base since June, 1959. He has three daughters, Theresa 14 years old; Roberta, 12, and Patricia, 10. Mrs. Hyre has one son, Michael Hinton, who lives in Dallas.

Treatment For Alcoholics Explained To Rotarians

Alcoholic treatment at the State Hospital was discussed by Shelby Parnell at Tuesday's Rotary meeting.

Parnell is counselor for patients of the alcoholic ward at the State Hospital and was introduced by Dr. Akin Simpson, program chairman for November.

"This talk could have been labeled 'Your Problem' because, as the nation's third major health problem, it involves spending the taxpayers' money, it is industry's biggest headache in accounting for time off, equipment damage, and physical injury," Parnell said. "It costs you, as taxpayers, $40 million a year for welfare work, and $39 million for hospitalization."

The American Medical Association has labeled alcoholism as a disease, the speaker said, because it is no respecter of persons, social standing, or economical status.

"I speak because I know from experience," Parnell continued. "I am an alcoholic, but have not taken a drink in over 11 years. I have dealt with men who have succumbed to the disease and who have come from every walk of life. A large percentage of those men and women have exceptional abilities which are hindered by the disease."

The State Hospital in Big Spring serves a 51-county area. We have admitted 391 alcoholics, 71 per cent of whom were first time victims. There were 456 dependent children included in these families and you, as taxpayers, have had to share in paying for their support. Ages of these people were from 19 to 91 years; five were ordained ministers, and five were doctors. Others were of every walk of life.

"This is a chronic, baffling disease; which cannot be cured by legislation or moralization. It must be handled so as to gain a reformed attitude in the patient, but as long as there is life there is hope in curing it," the speaker said.

Mapping Crews Working In Coke

Topographic mapping of a portion of Coke County has been started by USGS crews.

This work is represented in the five quadrants approved earlier this year by the USGS in connection with studies being made by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The district is checking sites for a dam on the upper Colorado River, either near the Mitchell-Coke border or perhaps further downstream, depending upon foundation conditions and other factors. The topographic mapping, however, is essential to final planning.

A four-man crew led by H. A. Riese, field engineer, has been in Robert Lee making the topographic checks on aerial maps of the area.

More Vandalism, Thefts Checked

More thefts and vandalism were investigated by police Tuesday and Wednesday morning. Cortese & Milch Construction Co., through sub-contractor, E. C. Miles, reported that about $100 worth of new wiring in a house was cut, and lumber valued at $138 taken from 2603 Merritt.

The Boy Scout Hut, 1008 S. Bell, headquarters for Troop No. 3, was entered and ransacked some time Monday night or Tuesday.

Mrs. Robert H. Hartzog, 76-A Ent. reported the theft of groceries from her car while it was parked downtown.

Westbrook Takes Part In State Testing Program

WESTBROOK (SC)—The Westbrook School participated in the state testing program which is held from Sept. 15 to Nov. 15. Students in the seventh, tenth and twelfth grades took the various tests.

Charts showing the student's strengths and weaknesses as a result of the tests will be prepared under the direction of Preston C. Lightfoot, supervisor-counselor. These are to be taken home by the students and the parents have an invitation to come to the school to discuss with the counselor and teachers the student's future career and educational plans.

The standardized tests are given nationwide by individual school systems. The results of the tests should be available sometime after the first of the year, according to Lightfoot.

New Development Given First Annexation Reading

An ordinance annexing the Highland South Addition No. 2 to the City of Big Spring was one of four ordinances approved by the City Commission Tuesday night. The addition is being developed by Ike Robb east of the No. 1 at the base of South Mountain and the ordinance was passed on first reading.

Two annexation ordinances were passed on fourth and final reading. These were for a 390-foot strip north of, and along, the new route of IS 20, between the Snyder Highway and the Lamesa Highway intersections, and the Mr. Heights Addition west of US 87 south and south of the Catholic Church.

An ordinance requiring taxicabs operating within the city limits to be equipped with taximeters, and setting the rates, was passed on second reading. It requires that rates be posted in plain sight of passengers at all times.

The standard fare rates set up were: 45 cents for the first mile and 10 cents for each additional one-third mile, and 10 cents for

News Executive Blasts Censorship

DALLAS (AP)—Frank J. Starzel of The Associated Press says trends toward greater governmental secrecy present the greatest roadblocks at home and abroad to free flow of information.

The general manager of the news organization told a Dallas group, "I must emphasize that totalitarian governments have no monopoly on efforts to control or manage the release of information. It is practiced in varying degrees in virtually all countries, including our own."

Starzel spoke recently before a combined dinner meeting of the Dallas Council on World Affairs, the Dallas Press Club and the Southern Methodist University journalism department.

CONFIDENCE

Despite handicaps, he said, "We proceed with confidence that the system of factual reporting is sound."

"We are quite content to leave to others the categorical conclusions, over-simplified appraisals and sweeping statements."

"We don't particularly value our own opinions about matters other than newsgathering itself, and our crystal ball is as cloudy as any in existence."

The news executive related international problems of government secrecy, pressure groups and censorship in gathering the news.

"We will not bow to pressure tactics or be deflected from our course by baseless criticism," he said.

"We are not interested in winning popularity contests, but neither shall we revel in any assumed omniscience."

HIGH CALLING

"We will continue to be reporters of the news, and we think there is no higher calling."

He told of physical dangers facing correspondents in such turbulent places as the Congo.

One reporter, he related, solved the problem of getting along with aroused, violent troops in the confused Congo situation by shaking every hand he could reach and passing out cigarettes liberally.

"On one occasion the same man was obliged to provide blood for a transfusion before he was permitted to continue with his work," Starzel said.

Censorship is one handicap in covering news events throughout the world, he said.

But Starzel pointed out that even in Russia "neither the government nor the censor can force a correspondent to write what he believes not to be true."

Reporters in Moscow are sending out solid news insofar as they can, he said.

PUBLIC CRY

When Russia shot Sputnik I into space, people cried, "Why wasn't the public informed about Russia's scientific and technological progress?" Starzel related.

"Well, the fact was that our Moscow correspondents for years had been reporting on events and developments which clearly foreshadowed what was ahead. Some of the copy was quite precise as to what the Russian scientists were doing."

Starzel added, "Too many people, in high places and low, simply had not wanted to believe what they read and heard about Russian advances in many fields. They wanted to believe that the communistic system just couldn't produce such marvels."

The Cubans have their own censorship peculiarities, the news executive said. The telegraph operators insert their own views in reporters' dispatches—without

The group plans to hold a social meeting and dinner, in which the wives are to be included, at their next regular session.

VA Expects GI Loan Loss As Result Of Hurricane

HOUSTON (AP) — Veterans in the Houston area will default on $3 million in loans on an estimated 382 homes bought under the "GI Bill" and damaged by Hurricane Carla, Veterans Administration officials have predicted.

Jack Powell, manager of the Houston Va. office, said the government will lose an estimated $1.2 million through having to pay off the loans.

The VA will acquire the properties, however, and resell the homes.

"We anticipate spending some $700,000 to put these properties back into saleable condition," said Powell.

"And we don't expect to get back more than $2.5 million on our $3.7 million in expenditures."

Powell said all the homes would be those damaged by rising waters during the storm, and not covered by insurance.

"The damage will be such that the veteran simply won't be able to put the house back in liveable condition and also keep up the payments on the loan," said Powell.

"So he'll just give up and walk off."

Powell estimates the 262 properties will be acquired over the "next 18 to 24 months."

The VA guarantees half of a loan on a home purchased by eligible veterans, up to $7,500 maximum.

When a veteran is unable to make payments on his home, the mortgage holder forecloses, said Powell.

"Then they come to us, and we pay off the loan and take the property," said Powell. He said the VA acquires "50 to 90" such properties each month.

"But these are homes in good condition, or requiring little to put them back in saleable shape," said Powell. "And they are usually properties abandoned because of marriage or financial difficulties. We lose very little on these properties."
