Police Dog Relaxes

Duke, a six-year-old Wilmington, Del., police dog, who has a record of rounding up seven men wanted for various crimes, is "one of the family" at the home of his police patrolman owner, Paul A. Muspratt. Duke relaxes with Muspratt's daughter, Donna, 2. Muspratt says the dog is real gentle at home but goes wild on duty. Duke is due to retire in a year and will go to live on a farm at Williamsport, Pa., owned by Muspratt's father.

Permian Corp. Planning 2-County Disposal System

The Permian Corporation of Midland announced plans Tuesday to construct a crude oil and salt water disposal system to serve the Sharon Ridge fields in Mitchell and Scurry counties.

W. R. Davis, president, said that Permian planned to begin acquiring right of way Dec. 1 and to lay the first section of 50 miles of pipe, varying from 2-inch to 8-inch, by March 1.

Kenney Tells Russ Editor Red Drive Root Of Tension

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kenney told the Soviet people through their own government newspaper today that the root of East-West troubles is the Russian effort to "communize" the entire world.

In an interview with Alexei Adzhubel, editor of Izvestia and son-in-law of Premier Khrushchev, the U.S. chief executive laid heavy stress on the aim of freedom of choice for peoples—and he said the peoples of Eastern Europe do not have it.

Action Taken On Pollution

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District Monday took formal action to go to the Texas Railroad Commission for relief from pollution of the Colorado River with oilfield brines.

The action came following a recommendation by E. V. Spence, general manager, that the district move ahead to obtain remedial action in the Sharon Ridge oilfield of Scurry and Mitchell counties.

Spence recalled that it had been a year since the district has invited oil operators to a meeting in Big Spring to hear reports from 18 months of detailed technical study as to the source of pollution of the Colorado River. At that meeting, he continued, operators assured the district of a desire to voluntarily comply with requirements necessary to remedy the pollution problem. To date only a few operators have requested permission of the Texas Railroad Commission to reinject salt water in zones which would not result in further pollution of the fresh ground water and surface supplies.

The CRMWD directors unanimously adopted his recommendation that the general manager and the attorney, James Rosser, Snyder, be authorized to take whatever legal action necessary before the Texas Railroad Commission so as to obtain relief from the pollution of the fresh surface and ground waters in the affected area by seepage of salt water in pits and from improperly plugged and abandoned oil wells. The board made provision for expenses necessary in pressing the application.

Final approval was given to the proposed 1962 budget which anticipates total revenues of $2,079,003 and the expenditure of $793,292 for operation of the system, $361,544 for interest on bonds, $430,000 for principal payments, and $494,167 for transfer to special funds in compliance with the trust indenture.

A contract in the amount of $19,378 was awarded to General Electric Company for purchase of carrier equipment in a new microwave control for the district's booster pump automatic control system. This was the lowest of three bids submitted. Big Spring board members will be present for opening of bids on the balance of equipment for the system and will be authorized to complete the contract.

Permian Corp. Planning 2-County Disposal System

The Permian Corporation of Midland announced plans Tuesday to construct a crude oil and salt water disposal system to serve the Sharon Ridge fields in Mitchell and Scurry counties.

W. R. Davis, president, said that Permian planned to begin acquiring right of way Dec. 1 and to lay the first section of 50 miles of pipe, varying from 2-inch to 8-inch, by March 1.

The Permian line is planned to gather both crude oil and salt water in a commingled state from individual tank batteries, according to Davis. It will be the first operation of its type to undertake to move both crude oil and salt water through the same lines, he added.

"This could provide an answer to the ever increasing salt water disposal problem in the West Texas and Southeast New Mexico region," he said.

Fluids will be transported to a central point where the oil and water will be separated. From that point the oil will move to the China Grove terminal in South Scurry County on a major trunk line, said Davis.

Charles Perry, Odessa, president of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, which Monday took action to seek compulsory pollution control, said that Permian representatives had approached him concerning the plan. He said that while the district was interested in and welcomed efforts to correct the pollution problem, it naturally could not tell operators what system or method to embrace.

The CRMWD Monday authorized the filing of an application with the Texas Railroad Commission to take whatever steps necessary to halt pollution of the watershed by oilfield brines. The district contends that salt water produced with oil has been allowed to seep through earthen pits into the river.

During September, the 1,621 wells in the field produced a total of 173,877 barrels of crude oil, according to reports of the railroad commission. The average production per well during the month was 107 barrels or slightly more than three barrels per day. Practically all the wells produce as much or more salt water than they do oil.

A year ago the CRMWD presented the problem to operators at a meeting of the West Central Texas Oil & Gas Association, which named a special salt water committee. On Sept. 14 this group met in Snyder and recommended a proposal by Mesa Pipeline Co. of Midland to build separate crude oil and salt water gathering and disposal systems in the field. Murphy Baxter, president, said Mesa had signed contracts with producers covering approximately 3,000 barrels. Informed sources said that Mesa was within about 500 barrels of its minimum daily take to make the project feasible.

At the Sept. 14 meeting, Permian made its initial proposal as did Southwestern Hydrocarbon Corporation of Corsicana, which presently takes most of the oil in the field. Since then Permian has been in the process of firming up its offer and has come up with the unique single pipeline proposal. Davis indicated that this would have a special advantage to the small operator who can ill afford to handle disposal of large amounts of brine.

Discusses Search

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, right, and Gov. P. J. Plafied of Dutch New Guinea, talk over the search for Rockefeller's missing son, Michael, during a press conference at Merakue, New Guinea. Rockefeller has participated in the search but decided to return to the United States. A new hope faded when smoke from the jungle proved to be burning brush.

'HOPE IS VERY SMALL' Rockefeller On Way Home

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea (AP)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller today abandoned his fruitless personal search for his youngest son Michael in the treacherous New Guinea jungle and began the long, sad journey home.

"The chances of finding Mike are greatly diminished," Rockefeller told newsmen as he left the search headquarters in Merakue, on the south coast of Dutch New Guinea.

"A miracle could happen and perhaps it will. But we must be realistic. The hope is very small," the governor said.

The governor's 23-year-old son has been missing since his native catamaran raft capsized off the swampy jungle south coast area and he tried to swim to the shore 3 1/2 miles away on Nov. 19. A Dutch companion stayed with the overturned raft and was rescued the next day.

TO CONTINUE Although Rockefeller left for the United States, the hunt for his son will continue. Australian helicopters planned another day of criss-crossing the 1,000-square-mile search area, and ground parties of Papuan natives and Dutch officials will comb the jungle for at least another month, checking isolated native villages in the chance that the youth lies hurt or ill in one of them.

The search for young Rockefeller was the biggest ever made in New Guinea, enlisting between 5,000 and 7,000 persons on the ground, ships of the Dutch navy at sea and Dutch, Australian and private planes.

NO PROOF Michael had used two such cans as an improvised life buoy when he started for the shore, and his Dutch companion, Dr. R. S. Wasling, said he was 90 per cent certain the recovered cans were Michael's. But Dutch officials said his finding was not proof that Michael had drowned, that he could have left it on the beach and the tide could have carried it back to sea.

The governor and Michael's twin sister, Mary Strawbridge, flew from Merakue to Hollandia on the first leg of their journey. KLM, the Dutch airline, diverted its Tokyo to Manila to Amsterdam flight to Biak Island, off the coast of New Guinea, to pick up the Rockefeller party.

The governor was expected to arrive in New York at 8:30 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Mary was to leave the plane at Manila to spend the rest of the week with her husband, Lt. William Strawbridge, who is with the U.S. Pacific Fleet aboard the troop carrier Noble.

Michael had come to New Guinea last spring with a Harvard University expedition and stayed on to collect relics for the Museum of Primitive Art in New York, which his father founded and of which he was a trustee.

Soviets Publish Interview By K's Son-In-Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told the Soviet people through their own government newspaper today that the root of East-West troubles is the Russian effort to "communize" the entire world.

In an interview with Alexei Adzhubel, editor of Izvestia and son-in-law of Premier Khrushchev, the U.S. chief executive laid heavy stress on the aim of freedom of choice for peoples—and he said the peoples of Eastern Europe do not have it.

Kennedy dealt with the Berlin conflict as the focus of East-West tensions, overshadowing issues such as trade and disarmament. An agreement on Berlin could lead to "peace in this century in Central Europe," Kennedy said.

But he firmly turned thumbs down again on a settlement that would give the East German puppet regime control over West Berlin or its access routes.

On another major point of East-West conflict, Kennedy told the Soviet editor:

"If we are able to achieve an agreement on cessation of nuclear tests, that would bring other agreements on disarmament."

Never Before Allowed In Russia

Kennedy granted the exclusive interview last Saturday in Hyannis Port, Mass., and it was published in Moscow today. The White House thereupon released a transcript.

The interview took up 10 solid columns in Izvestia, a fact the White House took as an indication it had been carried in full despite its presentation of a point of view never before given publicity in the Soviet Union.

The White House said it had received a preliminary report that the first 4 1/2 pages of the text as given out here were reproduced in the Moscow printing. It was continuing a check on the remainder.

The first section checked included the reference to an effort to communize the world.

Throughout the 8,000 words the exchanges read more like a debate than a question-and-answer discussion such as an American newsmen would have with Kennedy. At times Adzhubel sharply disagreed with Kennedy and told him so. Once he said the Soviets would be happy if Kennedy would admit that U.S. "interference" in Cuban affairs was a mistake.

Kennedy apparently attached great importance to his meeting with Adzhubel as a way of getting

'Export Of Revolution' Denied

To Kennedy's comment on the Soviet's attempt to spread its system around the world, Adzhubel replied, "I cannot agree with you in that part of your answer where you are saying that we are trying to 'communize' the world."

Adzhubel said the Communist party congress last month declared "that we are against any export of the revolution, but we are also against any export of counterrevolution."

He told Kennedy that from the Soviet viewpoint, the United States is interfering in the affairs of many other countries.

Policeman, Suspect Die In Gun Battle

MIDLAND (AP)—A city policeman and a Negro ex-convict accused of murder and rape killed each other in a brief gun battle shortly before dawn.

Johnny Douglas, 24, the fugitive, shot police Lt. Gordon Smith, 38, in the heart as the officer spotted him hiding beside a fence.

Firing a machine gun as he fell, Smith then cut down Douglas, who had been the object of a nightlong manhunt in this West Texas oil center.

Several hours earlier, Douglas took a gun from deputy sheriff Melvin Simmons, pistol-whipped the officer and fled. Simmons was attacked as he tried to arrest Douglas.

An anonymous telephone call led officers to the body of Gladys Marie Crockett, 34, Midland Negro, in her apartment about 10 p.m. They said the killer strangled and raped her.

Police chief Harold Wallace said he was standing only 15 feet distant as the gun battle erupted between Smith and Douglas, a former Oklahoma convict, who came here about two weeks ago.

Smith climbed atop a barrel to peer over a fence, spotted the fugitive and toppled backward with a bullet in the heart, firing as he fell.

A quick burst from the dying policeman's machine gun killed Douglas in the littered back yard of a Negro dwelling.

Chimp Is Readied For Orbital Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Sometime after dawn Wednesday a young chimpanzee, plucked from the forests of Africa, will enter a mighty rocket for a whirlwind ride through space—three times around the world.

If all goes well, a U.S. astronaut will ride another Atlas rocket into space for another 4½ hour ring around the globe—perhaps after Christmas, perhaps after New Year's.

Perhaps half an hour after the Atlas blazes into the sky, the chosen chimpanzee will pass over his native Africa for the first of three times.

The chimp will be performing his space tasks, tripping levers on signal from a control panel, despite the brutal press of acceleration and the confusing sense of weightlessness.

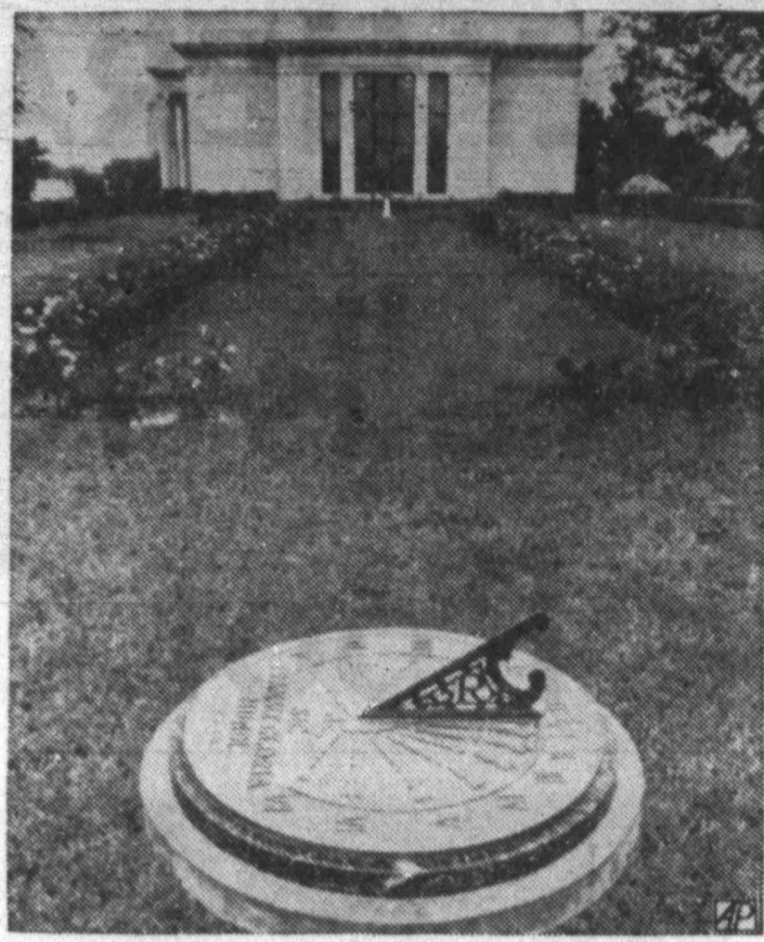

They will make a strange pair as they blast off from this spaceport—a 125-ton rocket and a 40-pound chimpanzee.

Then the Atlas will drop away and the chimp, locked inside a two-ton space capsule, will complete his three orbits, returning to earth by capsule parachute after rockets have slowed his 17,400 m.p.h. pace.

From five original chimps trained for the flight, three finalists were selected. One of these was Ham, the only one with flight experience. It was Ham, wearing a diaper, who rode a Redstone rocket 155 miles into space last January to pave the way for the first U.S. astronauts, Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom.

Results of the upcoming orbital flights by the chimp and an astronaut will determine the pace and direction of future U.S. space efforts.

Egypt Will Take A Hint From U.S. Disneyland

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The Egyptian government is planning a new tourist island near Cairo combining the sights of ancient Egypt with the conveniences demanded by the 20th century tourist.

A 250-acre island in the Nile will suddenly vault into international fame.

Chariots like those used in the days of the Pharaoh Rameses, will tour the island with excited guests. Whip-swinging chariot drivers with bare shoulders will wear the multicolored costumes ancient Egyptians sported 4,000 years ago.

Ancient Egyptian sun boats like those the pharaohs used, manned by muscular dark-skinned Egyptian boatmen in ceremonial gowns, will ferry tourists to the island.

Geziret el Dahab (Island of Gold) will be one of Egypt's great tourist attractions. Countries over the world are being invited to set up pavilions where national dishes will be served and attractions displayed.

A 200-room modern hotel will go up. A large swimming pool will be dug and filled with scalding warm Nile water. Water skiing will be started round the island. A race track is included in the plan.

A high glass tower, to be named the "Tower of the People" will rise in the center of the island. Bridges from the eastern and western banks of the Nile are to be constructed and cable cars from both banks also will be used to carry visitors to the island.

The project is estimated to cost about $12 million and is expected to be completed within four years.

Air Guardsmen Sent To Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Another 1,200 men in three Air National Guard fighter squadrons have been sent to Europe to bolster American tactical air power there in light of the Berlin situation.

The guardsmen who were called to active duty Nov. 1 are part of the 161st Fighter Group from Arizona, the 168th Fighter Group from South Carolina and the 134th Fighter Group from Tennessee. Sixty Starfighter jets were sent overseas with them.

Berry Urges Legal Racing

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—State Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry, invited to a conference on boosting Texas tourism, said Monday he has some recommendations.

Berry said legalized pari-mutuel betting, liquor by the drink and raising of the curfew on sales of beer and liquor would bring $1 billion per year into the state.

He said three or four race tracks in the state would more than double the $350 million which he said Gov. Price Daniel lists as the amount spent by tourists in Texas last year.

"The preachers had their chance to bring in the tourists and failed. Let them step aside and give someone else a chance," Berry said.

Where Did The Old Army Go?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army wants its mess hall to seem more like home. So it has decided to feed its soldiers from glass dinnerware instead of institution-type trays.

The idea is aimed in part at providing "a more homelike atmosphere in enlisted men's mess halls," an Army statement said.

Another objective: to increase "appetite appeal" and thus get soldiers to waste less food.

3 May Have Died In Blaze

ENCINAL (AP)—Three small children, aged 3 to 5 years, were feared burned to death late Monday night in the fire which destroyed their mother's small frame home.

The body of one child had been found in the ashes of the house. Two other children of Mrs. Genevieve Garza were missing, police said.

Mrs. Garza, 26, and an 11-year-old son were taken to a Laredo hospital suffering from severe burns. Police said their condition was not immediately known.

Foreign Trade Policy Debated

WASHINGTON (AP)—A lively dialogue over foreign trade policy—should trade barriers be lowered or not—is spreading into the far corners of Washington. It presages a bitter legislative fight next year when the present trade law expires.

Holding up the protectionist or high tariff end of the dialogue at the moment is Rep. John Dent, D-Pa. His House subcommittee is holding a week of hearings generally aimed at airing the views of segments of industry which want more protection against foreign competition as a matter of survival.

The administration is masterminding the other side, pushing for liberalization of trade as a means of increasing the economic strength of the West.

REASON

By T. H. Tarbet, preacher, Church of Christ, 2500 West Highway 30, P.O. Box 1383.

Some are saying, "Reason is our guide in religion." Some religions openly deny that the Bible is an infallible guide. Others deny it too; but not openly.

We ask, whose reason shall guide us? What is reasonable to one man is unreasonable to another. Would not one be bigoted to think he could get all to accept his reasoning? It would be like trying to agree on the length of something by reasoning and without using a standard of measurement.

Even if we agreed in our reasoning, this would not mean we had found truth.

"And again, the Lord knoweth the reasonings of the wise, that they are vain" (1 Cor. 3:20, R.V.)

On the other hand, the Bible is always right. Also it is possible for men to agree on the Bible. "For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace" (1 Cor. 14:33).

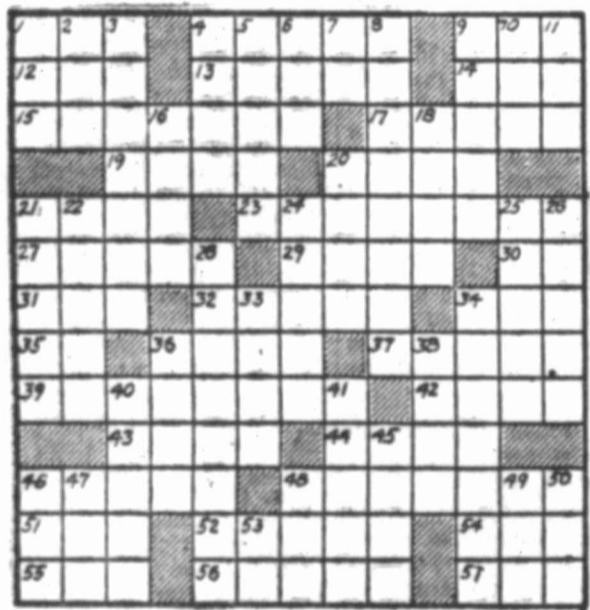

True, men do not all agree on the Bible; but this is not because God has authored confusion. It is man's fault; not God's. Some of us are either (1) not studying the Bible diligently, or (2) we are not really accepting it as final authority.

Belly Dance Permit Sought

LONDON (AP)—The London County Council is wrestling with an application to stage Oriental belly dances in the heart of the city's financial district.

Nicholas Tarayan, a sugar importer who is opening a restaurant fairly close to the Bank of England, said "If the application is granted we should have a belly dancer gyrating before customers fairly soon."

He said it will be "the only Persian restaurant with a belly dancer in Europe."

"I've got a dancer in mind," said Tarayan. "All I need is permission for a license."

Carlsbad Atom Test Is For Peaceful Use

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — A quarter-mile under the earth, American scientists are working to explode a new type of atomic device for peaceful work.
The blast is scheduled Dec. 10. It is the Atomic Energy Commission's first experiment to turn the fury of nuclear explosions to useful jobs.
Ultimate hopes include blasting out harbors or canals or using the fireball heat to produce electric power.

AEC officials said this blast will not throw radioactive fallout into the air.
Newsmen and other observers, including representatives of nine foreign countries, were given a preview Sunday of the arrangements.
They rode 1,200 feet down a mine shaft to inspect a 1,100-foot tunnel cut horizontally through salt rock at a site 25 miles southeast of Carlsbad.
The blast will equal 5,000 tons of TNT, one-fourth that of the Hiroshima bomb.
A 12-inch hole containing a vacuum pipe has been drilled to peer directly into the blast chamber and at the device. It's designed to capture and analyze a split-second pulse of radioactive gases and particles before the hole is smashed shut by the blast.
The ground above the blast chamber may rise two to eight feet. Scientists predicted no harm to the Carlsbad Caverns 34 miles to the west, or to potash mines in the area.

Accepting invitations to witness the preview and Dec. 10 shot were representatives from Canada, Japan, Australia, England, France, Spain, Switzerland, South Africa and Norway.

Atom Merchant Ship Gets Fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nuclear-powered merchant ship Savannah is getting its first load of fuel.
An Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said the loading of the $35.6 million ship's reactors with 17,000 pounds of uranium oxide fuel is expected to be completed this week at the Camden, N.J., shipyard. The fuel is enough to provide service for 3½ years without refueling.

Aboard Train Delayed By Reds

Sgt. Edwin C. Macrossin of San Antonio walks from a train with his children at Frankfurt, West Germany, after arrival from Berlin. The train was delayed some 15 hours at Marienborn, East Germany, by Soviet troops when they were denied permission to board the train to seek out an East German youth who stowed away on it. When the stowaway was ordered off the train, the Soviets allowed the train to continue its trip. The children are George, 11; Patricia, 8, and Janice, 5.

Oh, Well; It Was An Idea

MULESHOE, Tex. (AP)—You'd think a little matter like erecting a statue to the lowly mule would be simple enough.

Folk in Muleshoe are finding, however, that there are unexpected complications.

It started last August when they organized the Mule Memorial Association. The main goal was to put up a monument to the farm animal for whom this West Texas farm center is named.

As chairman of the Association's a life-sized bronze replica of a mule committee, manager Gil Lamb of Radio Station KMUL reported today a lease has been signed for a plot of ground in the business district.

Eventually, the plan is to order a life-sized bronze replica of a mule for the monument site. There's hope enough cash will be on hand to order the statue by July 4.

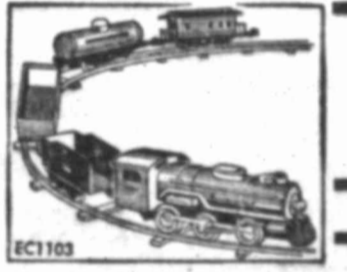

Volunteer donations to finance the project already have come from mule lovers in California, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico and Texas.

But there's one serious technical problem. Lamb's committee wanted a statue which — like a clock — would bray to signal the hour 24 times a day.

This part of the project probably will be abandoned, Lamb said sadly. Experts advised that, to be truly lifelike, the statue would have to raise its tail every time the bronze mule brayed.

DEAR ABBY

A Happy
New Year!

DEAR ABBY: I am the luckiest woman alive 364 nights out of the year, but on New Year's Eve I wish I were dead!
We always go to the New Year's party at our club, and this is the one night my husband really lets all the bars down. He gets himself loaded, and makes a fool of himself kissing all the women. He tells me he loves only me, that it doesn't mean anything, but I get so jealous and mad I could choke him. What should I do this year? Should I tell him I can't take it any more and send him alone? I can't go through another New Year's Eve like the last five.

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Level with your husband. Tell him you are going to invite a few couples in for a private New Year's Eve party. Then do it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem concerning my 15-year-old daughter. She is attractive, well-developed and popular. She does well in school, and we have never had any trouble disciplining her. My problem concerns her modesty. She runs around the house with next to nothing on. She has answered the door in her bra and slip, and says there is nothing wrong with it. The other night, while my husband, our son (17) and I were watching TV in the living room, our daughter came in, complained of the heat, and proceeded to take her skirt and blouse off. My husband and I are concerned, but she won't listen to us. Perhaps you can get through to her.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Since your daughter actually sees nothing wrong with running around with "next to nothing" on, you can keep her properly covered by demanding it. She may obey to please you but, unless she understands why it is important to have a sense of modesty about her body, you are fighting a losing battle. Mother. A frank mother and daughter talk is long overdue.

Everybody's got a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of the Big Spring Herald.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Liberal-Conservative Breach On Bridges Post Discounted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., discounted today reports that Republican liberals and conservatives may clash over filling party posts vacated by the death of Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H.

Aiken, who quarterbacked an unsuccessful 1958 effort of liberals to capture the GOP floor leadership which went to Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said in a telephone interview he has given no thought to organizing a similar drive next January.

"I hope the vacancies will be filled with men who will add to the progressive image of the party in the 1962 elections," he said. "But I doubt that we're going to have any fight about it."

Aiken said he assumes that if Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., wants it he can have the job of chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, which Bridges held. Saltonstall, who takes a middle road course, is regarded as far less conservative than Bridges.

If Saltonstall takes this job, his own chairmanship of the conference of all Republican senators would be open when GOP members meet in January to realign their forces.

Aiken, who has been mentioned as a possible choice for the conference chairmanship, said "some mighty unusual circumstances" would have to arise for him to take the job. He said he prefers to operate as an individual, without assuming responsibilities for party policies with which he might disagree.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., who made the unsuccessful race against Dirksen in 1958, has told friends he isn't particularly interested in trying again for a leadership spot.

The policy and conference chairmanships are less attractive than they were when a GOP president was in the White House but the leadership posts carry a measure of prestige and add to the audience of any senator who holds the title. For this reason several Republican veterans may be in the bidding for them.

Among these may be Sens. Homer E. Capehart, R-Ind., Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D. All are classed as conservatives.

There is likely to be spirited bidding for some of the standing committee assignments held by Bridges, who was top Republican on the Appropriations and Space committees and had served longer than any other GOP colleague on the Armed Services Committee.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., an Air Force reserve general, might seek a place on the Armed Services group. Goldwater, a spokesman for Republican conservatives, already heads the party's senatorial campaign committee which gives him a wider audience than most of his colleagues.

There seems little doubt that Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire will be a candidate in next year's election to succeed Bridges in the Senate. If the governor should resign to accept an interim appointment he would lose his chairmanship of the National Governors' Conference.

There have been some suggestions that Powell might appoint Mrs. Bridges with the understanding that he would run for the job in 1962.

KENNEDY

States hopes the Soviet Union also will accept and recognize the right of free choice by other peoples.

"If we could get that on both sides," Kennedy said, "I believe the Soviet Union and the United States, which have so much to gain from peace, could live in peace."

Kennedy told Adzhubei, for the Russian people to read, that if progress could be made on the problem of Germany and Berlin, "then in my opinion it would provide a most important step in improving our relations in other areas."

Kennedy said also that an agreement to ban nuclear tests would lead to other agreements on disarmament.

Kennedy said Berlin is a critical area of great concern to both East and West.

"If we can solve the problem of Germany and Berlin, I believe we can find our relations substantially improved," Kennedy said.

Declaring that both countries had suffered heavy losses in World War II, and that he personally had lost a brother and a brother-in-law in that war, Kennedy said: "We want to prevent another war arising out of Germany."

Throughout the interview—not one in the U.S. tradition—Adzhubei persistently made little speeches to lay the Soviet line against what Kennedy said.

He contended that "social changes" which have occurred in the world have been voluntary instead of the result of instigation from Moscow.

"What we object to," Kennedy said, "is the attempt to impose communism by force, or a situation where once a people may have fallen under the communism, the Communists do not give them a fair opportunity to make another choice."

Kennedy asserted that peoples of Eastern Europe—behind the Iron Curtain—lack the privilege of free choice.

OWN BACK YARD
Adzhubei countered by saying the Communists do not consider certain elections to be free in the Western world. He asserted that "for a long period of time you considered that Trujillo (the assassinated dictator of the Dominican Republic) was elected in a way. You have been saying the right of free choice by other peoples."

Then Adzhubei asked about the Soviet proposal for an agreement on what the Russians call general and complete disarmament. He asked what Kennedy's views are as to the prospects of such a pact.

Kennedy reminded him that the United States and the Soviet Union in their joint declaration last September agreed on the principle of general disarmament.

But, the President added, there is a "basic disagreement" in this area.

WHO WOULD KNOW?
The Soviet Union, Kennedy reminded, would permit only inspection of weapons which are destroyed and would not allow inspection of weapons which remain.

"One side could destroy 100 bombers but still have 1,000 or 2,000 bombers left," Kennedy said.

"If you are really going to provide orderly disarmament, it seems to me you have to inspect not only those weapons which have been destroyed, but also those weapons that remain."

The Soviet Union has repeatedly branded similar Western proposals as an attempt at spying.

Kennedy, continuing his reply, said the United States cannot now withdraw its forces from Europe when the Soviets would, as their part of the arrangement, withdraw their troops only a few hundred miles.

UNDERSTANDING
Therefore, he added, there must be an "understanding" on the Berlin and German questions.

Kennedy said he is "hopeful" that the Soviet Union in future negotiations "will permit us to continue to exercise the rights which we now have in West Berlin."

The United States, he said, wants to stay in West Berlin only as long as the people ask for this country to stay.

Then Kennedy repeated that if the two big powers can reach an agreement on West Berlin and on a peaceful settlement in the center of Europe "then relations between the two countries will greatly improve."

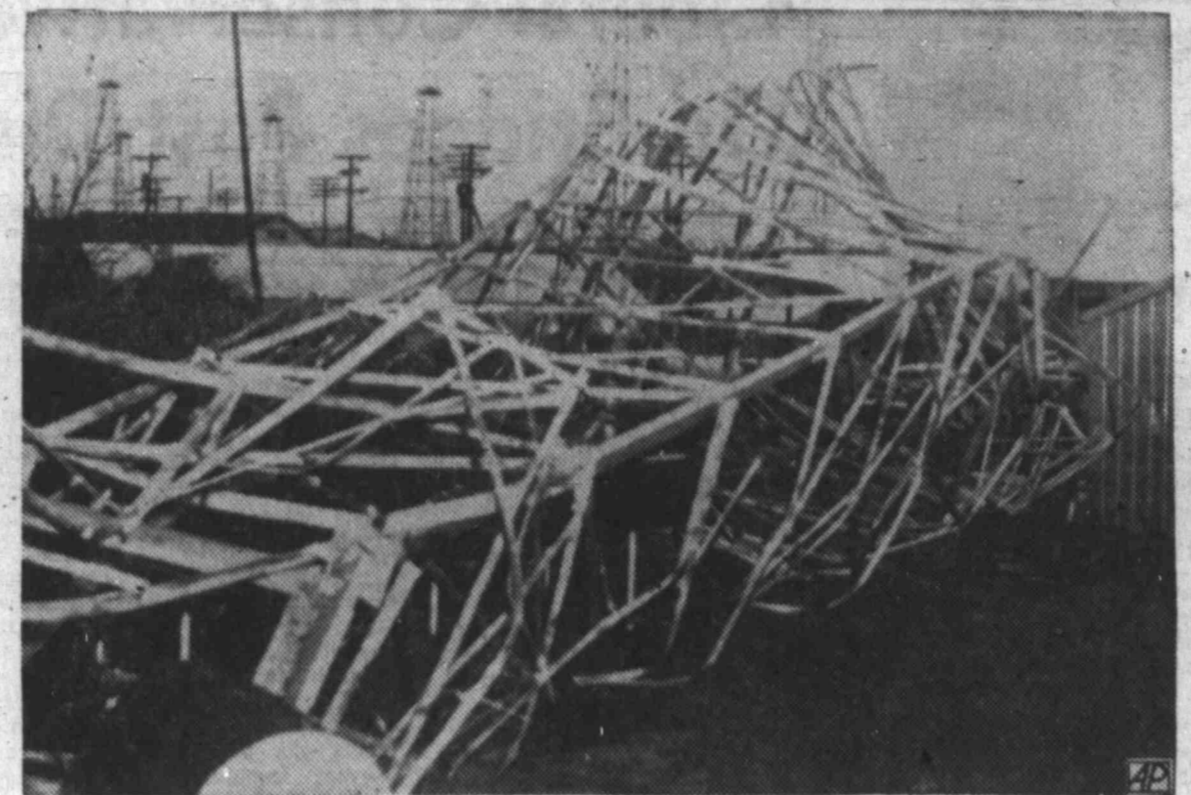

Adzhubei again spelled out the well-known Soviet position, saying his country does not intend to turn West Berlin over to East Germany and that the freedom of West Berlin could be guaranteed by adding Soviet troops to the forces of the three Western powers.

ELEMENTARY
But he said it would be elementary to ask permission of the East Germans to visit West Berlin, or to send goods into the city, whether he could make just "one brief response."

Then he said that according to the Potsdam agreement the entire city of Berlin was put under four-power authority and the Soviet Union violated this agreement by turning East Berlin over to East Germany.

Now the Soviet Union seeks to force Soviet troops in West Berlin, Kennedy said, but does not suggest that troops of the other three powers be placed in East Berlin.

As to access to West Berlin, Kennedy said the statements of East German Communist Chief Walter Ulbricht, "which vary from week to week" give no assurances whatsoever for freedom of access to West Berlin.

Steel Derricks Twisted

A tornado ripped down steel oil derricks in the East Texas oil field, destroyed several farm buildings, unroofed homes and downed huge trees. These derricks are built to withstand winds of over 150 m.p.h. Floods accompanied the tornado and sections of Longview were under water for a time.

C-City Council Discusses Drainage Problem Report

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Colorado City Council met Monday night to discuss Colorado City's drainage problems with engineer Clarence Cooper of Lubbock, who has just completed a study of streets and areas subject to flooding.

Cooper told the group that there is no cheap way to solve the problem, that inverting the crown on 15 blocks would cost $56,400 and that 3,810 feet of storm sewer running along 13th Street from Hickory Street to the Colorado River, would cost $97,925.

"And unless," Cooper said, "you can show $100,000 worth of damage over a 10-year period, I don't think it would be wise anyway."

Mayor Bob Robinson expressed regret that the engineering report did not point the way to a less expensive solution and the report was laid aside for study by some future council group.

The council passed an assessment type paving ordinance involving paving on 51 blocks, primarily along Seventeenth Street and in the Eastover Addition.

City Manager Earl Keaton and Mayor Bob Robinson re-expressed the city administration's views that the city would not coerce homeowners who refused to enter the paving program.

The council also heard a report from Keaton that ex-employee Jessie White had filed suit against the city for $46,767.10 alleging a back injury and tentatively set Wednesday night for a private meeting to discuss the suit.

Action was postponed on a question as to whether the city wished to publish an annual report similar to one published early this year at a cost of $400.

Square Dance Class To Begin
An adult class in beginning square dance begins Thursday at 8 p.m. at the YMCA. The class will meet every Thursday for 10 weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Graves will be instructors.

AF Evacuating Towers In Wind
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force has been evacuating its radar warning towers in the Atlantic Ocean whenever a forecast warns of winds of about 57 miles an hour or more.

The policy is believed to stem from the collapse of one of the towers last January, although Air Force sources did not say so.

Burglary, Two Wrecks Listed

Police investigated two automobile accidents and one house burglary, in addition to routine calls, in the past 24 hours.

An apartment at 815 1/2 W. 3rd, occupied by Theresa Rendon, Dora Freneda, and Marcos Lopez, was entered and four dresses, a jewelry box, an iron, and a cameo table radio, all valued at $150, were taken.

Lopez told police that they left the house at 3 p.m. Monday and when he returned at 8 p.m. he could not enter the front door because a living room couch was pushed against it. He went to the back door and found it open. He found nothing missing in his room, but when the women came in at 11 p.m. they missed the listed items and police were called in.

Locations of accidents, and drivers involved were: West 17th and Ayford, Marvin Britton, 407 W. 8th, and Melissa Smith, 109 E. 17th; Seventeenth and Main, Marian Alice Gilbert, 606 Holbert, and E. J. Posey, 109 E. 18th. There were no injuries.

Commission To Review Plans

The city commission will review preliminary plans submitted for installing the Beal's Creek trunk sewer line from the downtown area to the disposal plant during tonight's meeting. Members will also consider two ordinances on second and third readings, consider an amendment to the traffic code and other matters which may be presented.

Cook and Talbot will present an appraisal for purchase of easements for the Beal's Creek trunk sewer, which will be considered. The preliminary plans call for a depth of approximately 22 feet along the route it may follow paralleling the New College Parks Shopping Center. A. K. Steinheimer, city manager, said Tuesday morning.

The commission will consider bids for purchase of gasoline for city vehicles for the next six calendar months beginning Dec. 1.

Rites Held For W. R. Colwell

Mrs. Mable Howard and Don Freeman have returned from McAllen where they attended the last rites for their son and brother, William Roy Colwell, 38, former Big Spring resident.

Mr. Colwell, who was born at Stanton and reared here, died unexpectedly from a heart attack suffered while en route home from a football game. He had been in the valley for the past three years as a field produce buyer.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Virginia Colwell, McAllen; his mother, Mrs. Mable Howard, Big Spring; a sister, Mrs. Betty Weatherly, Vallejo, Calif.; two brothers, Don Freeman, Big Spring, and R. L. Colwell.

Cottrell Given Surprise Party

Harry Cottrell, who is retiring from the Ethyl Corporation after 32 years of service, was honored at a surprise dinner affair Monday at the Cosden Club.

R. L. Tollett, president of Cosden, which hosted the affair, presented Cottrell with a certificate of appreciation. Robert Douglass, Tulsa, Okla., presented Mr. Cottrell with a silver serving tray engraved by Ethyl in appreciation of his loyal service.

Bean Sentenced To Life Imprisonment

Frankie Lee Bean, convicted of being an habitual burglar, was formally sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Ralph Catton, 118th District Court, Monday afternoon.

A jury in the 118th District Court had found Bean guilty on Nov. 7 and the 10 days granted a defendant between conviction and sentence have expired.

Bean was one of a half dozen persons to hear sentences pronounced against them in the court on Monday.

The others were defendants who had elected to plead guilty to the charges against them rather than face trial before a jury.

Jim Buck Matthews, former pawn shop operator and employee of the T&P railroad, pleaded nolo contendere to a charge of murder with an automobile. He was sentenced to two years in prison and then, on recommendation of Gil Jones, district attorney, the sentence was probated.

Matthews was charged with being the driver of a pickup truck which collided with a sedan at the intersection of the Snyder and Gail roads last June 25. Three persons died in the accident.

By entering a plea of nolo contendere, Matthews admitted the offense and informed the court he would not contest the charge. On the witness stand, Matthews told Jones that he would live up to the provisions of his probation.

George W. Wright and Richard L. Knight, both under indictments as habitual burglars, pleaded guilty to burglary instead and were sentenced to serve 10 years in the state penitentiary.

Raymond Franklin Barron, indicted as a burglary repeater, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary. He was sentenced to serve five years in prison.

Wright, Knight and Barron could have been assessed life terms had they been tried and found guilty of the indictments against them.

Calvin Cody Tipton, charged with theft over $50, drew five years in prison. He was charged with having stolen a 1958 car from the parking lot of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association. This car was later recovered in Baird and Tipton was arrested at the time. The theft occurred on Oct. 27.

James Walters, indicted for forgery, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years imprisonment. The sentence was ordered suspended on his promise to make restitution of $291.95 for checks which he had written and passed. He must make restitution within one year.

Earlier in the day, Russell Howard Corwin, an airman at Webb, had pleaded guilty to a burglary court. He was given a three year probation sentence.

All of these cases, with the exception of that against Bean, are matters on the current jury docket in the court.

Six cases had been set down for trial this week but one of these was the habitual burglary charge against Wright. He elected to plead guilty.

There were 26 cases on the original docket. One was stricken Monday when the court sustained a motion by the defendant to quash the indictment. Another, in which Steven D. Ray was the defendant charged with burglary, was passed by agreement.

In addition to the pleas heard on Monday, there are a dozen other cases on the docket in which announcements were made at the docket sounding that they would be "before the court." This means they will be tried by the judge without jury and usually indicates intention of the defendant to plead guilty.

Casselman Is Back In School

John Casselman, Big Spring High School teacher who was injured in a one-car accident west of Big Spring Nov. 12 and who was hospitalized for several days, returned to his teaching duties Monday.

John Adams, also a teacher and a passenger in the car, died a few hours after the accident from his injuries.

Benjamin F. Vandell, a victim of injuries received in an accident Nov. 16 and who has been in the Cowper Clinic and Hospital since the accident, was reported by his physician to be improving. He will have to remain in the hospital for some time for further treatment, the doctor said. His condition, following the accident, was considered serious.

Ned Myers, who was injured in a fall from his horse on the Bill Currie ranch in Glasscock county last Friday, was taken to the Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. He suffered a severe neck injury and was in serious condition when transferred from Howard County Hospital Foundation to Lubbock Saturday.

Youth Groups Go To Midland

Boys and girls in the gymnastics, volleyball, wrestling and swimming program at the YMCA will journey to Midland today to participate in those activities with similar groups from the Midland Y, according to Joe Leach, physical director.

The groups will leave here shortly before 5 p.m. and return about 7:15 p.m.

"We have no formal gymnastics team here and the trip and workouts with the team in Midland may stimulate interest in forming a team here," Leach said.

The primary purpose of the visit is to exchange ideas and techniques in performing the various activities. At the same time, the players will be brushing up for competition later on.

A similar visit to Abilene is planned, but the date of the trip is not set. Return visits to Midland and Abilene will probably be made in January, Leach said.

To Longhorns To Host Lakeview Tonight

Delmor Poss' Big Spring Steers warm up for the Lake View Basketball tournament in an 8 o'clock game with that San Angelo team here tonight.

Teams of the two schools clash at 6:15 p.m.

Lake View will be making its first start here. Originally, the two clubs were to have played last Friday but Lake View was still involved in the football playoffs at the time and begged off.

Andrews agreed to substitute for the Chiefs and came here to lose to the locals in an overtime game, 56-50. In that one, the Longhorns trailed right up to the very last in the regulation game but two free shots by Jeff Brown sent the game into overtime.

Al Fierro will probably start for Big Spring tonight, along with Dick Ebling, Eddy Nelson, Michael Peters and DeeRoby Gartman. Brown is hurt.

The Steers will give away height to the Chiefs. The Big Springers' tallest boy is Ebling, who stands only 6-2.

Bill Richardson of the Chiefs is 6-4 and is considered to be a fine rebounder.

Don Abbott, head coach of Lake View, has seven lettermen back from last year. They include Bobby Meek, Charles Schkade, Don Tomlinson, Jim Havlik and Gilbert Duran, all seniors; and juniors Roy Probst and Perry Brasher. Other players seeking to break into the Lake View lineup include Richardson, Bill Sanner, Oddy enough, the two teams clash in the first round of the Lake View tournament on Friday.

Poss has a green team but one that has shown a lot of willingness in workouts.

Delmor is far from deciding upon a lineup and adds that all positions on the starting lineup are still open.

Two boys who can expect to play a lot but who got a late start are Albert Fierro and Walter Minter. Coy Mitchell is a scrappy senior who will see his share of action tonight.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With TOMMY HART

Sports Dialogue:
LESTER RICE, well known golf writer (retired), disputing the claim that Jack Nicklaus is the best amateur golfer since Bobby Jones.

"Such claims make me wonder what happened to Lawson Little that has made people erase him from their memories. In his day, 27 years ago, his fellow competitors didn't call him 'Cannonball' for nothing. With the ball, and the clubs then in vogue he was a bigger hitter than Nicklaus is today, comparatively speaking. Very often, three cheers are showered upon some new squirt when one or perhaps two are deserved."

JIMMY DYKES, veteran big league manager: "There are six guys in the lineup of the New York Yankees who can wreck you with the bat. Roger Maris is one of them, of course, but I'd rather pitch to him than to Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle, Johnny Blanchard or Bill Skowron. Maris has to hit a pitcher's mistake. It's got to be a fast ball or a slider on the inside. Curve him, change up on him and he's dead. Mantle and Berra, they'll hit home runs off a pitcher's best."

KENNY BOYER, St. Louis infielder, on a recent stop in Amarillo: "We'll be in the thick of the 1962 pennant fight for five good reasons—Larry Jackson, Ernie Broglio, Ray Sadeki, Bob Gibson and Curt Simmons, the Cards' five starting pitchers. We have the best pitching staff in the major leagues. All we need is one more fellow who can really crack the ball, then we'll be hard to handle."

JIM MURRAY, Los Angeles writer: "The University of Washington Huskies are football's version of the Purple Gang—Murder Incorporated. These guys strap on their helmets and even the Mafia runs for police protection. You picture them coming to town and saying, 'Okay, everybody. Over against the wall.' When they pick a guy to run a play against, they first hand him a bullet to bite on—away in his ear. They don't keep a training table. They just throw the meat on the floor and run for their lives while the guys scrimmage over it. The first team is the one that is able to ask for toothpicks. The scrubs get rickets. . . . When they run out on the field, the first thing they do is size up an opponents' muscles. You see, they don't want to throw away their vote. They retire to their dressing room and hold their all-opponents' elections BEFORE the game. The guy they pick gets elected young man most likely NOT to succeed. It's a plesbiscite called Best Player Pop. First prize is a liquid diet, and the straws to go with it."

GEORGE HALAS, Chicago Bear coach, discussing his fine defensive player, Bill George: "He's a rare specimen, both from the standpoint of power and agility. And he's absolutely fearless on the field. He has a brilliant mind. He would be an outstanding success in any business that requires mental effort. He is the essence of dependability. A lot of times you will find a person who is very bright but perhaps unreliable. Bill George will always come through for you. He's a star, but he's still the hardest working player on the field."

Steers Furnish 3 Leaders In 2-4A Grid Statistics

Big Spring furnished three individual champions in the District 2-AAAA football wars, which wound up recently.

Jerry Tucker of the Steers emerged as the passing king, having completed 85 of 173 for 1,173

Big Spring furnished the two top receivers in the league in James Gilbert and Willie Mendoza. Gilbert caught more passes than any one else in the conference—30. Mendoza accounted for more yards gained—463. Dennis Gray of San Angelo gathered in 21 passes good for 384 yards.

Jack Irons, Big Spring, led the punters with a 34.7 yard average. He beat out Abilene's Gary Williams by a mere half a yard.

HOUSTON (AP)—The University of Kansas will play in Houston Bluebonnet Bowl football game Dec. 16 and the opponent could well be Rice University.

Kansas, with a 6-3 record, accepted the bowl's bid in a secret vote Monday. Rice hasn't even been invited yet.

But Lou Hassell, chairman of the bowl's selection committee, said the Owls will get the bid if they beat Baylor Saturday.

And this, Hassell says, will put two of the nation's top teams in the Bluebonnet.

"Kansas is a fine team that lost three games by only five points," he said. "Rice showed what kind of team it is by beating Texas Christian the way it did."

HOUSTON (AP)—The owner of the Houston Oilers thinks he might not lose money on his American Football League team this season.

K. S. (Bud) Adams, youngish owner of the Oilers, joined other AFL owners in a deep financial loss last year—the AFL's first season.

Adams said Monday it is still too early to be sure but indications are that the Houston franchise may reach the break even point for 1961 business.

Denies Offer

Jim Owens, $20,000-a-year athletic director and head football coach at the University of Washington, shown above in a recent photo, has denied that he had been offered a similar job at Texas A&M. The Seattle Times said it had learned that an official representative of the Texas school was in Seattle to offer the job to Owens, a former assistant coach at Texas A&M. "It's news to me," Owens said. The Texas school this week fired Jim Myers, who had been coach for four years. (AP Wirephoto).

Bowl Picture Now In Focus

A once-blurred bowl picture was in sharp focus today following a rush of acceptances and the elimination of the fledgling National Trophy Bowl, in Washington, D.C.

Only two spots in nine other bowls remained to be filled. One of those, in New York's Gotham Bowl, is expected to be decided today when Auburn indicates whether it will play Utah State Dec. 9 at the Polo Grounds.

The other spot is in Houston's Bluebonnet Bowl, opposite Kansas, which along with Utah State, Miami (Fla) and Penn State accepted postseason bids Monday.

Goliad Teams Are Defeated

Basketball teams representing Big Spring Goliad Junior High lost both ends of a doubleheader to San Angelo Lee contingents here Monday evening.

The local ninth graders yielded, 43-33, after the eighth graders had lost, 29-26.

The ninth grade Mavericks led Lee at half time, 26-23, but hit only 10 per cent of their shots after the intermission.

Don Wyatt tossed in 10 points and Joe Rattie six for Big Spring in that game.

The Goliad eighth graders could count only one point in the second half of its game and trailed at half time, 11-4. The Mavs pulled to within two points of the visitors in the third period but Lee held on to win.

Harold Newton scored eight points for Goliad while Paul Soldan and Simon Terrazas each had seven.

Albany End Is Again Named To All-State

By The Associated Press

Rocky Hill, Albany's mighty weightman, leads the Class all-state schoolboy football team.

Hill made the team his third season in a row Tuesday when the Texas Sports Writers Association announced a selection that had three players from defending state champion Albany and two from Rio Hondo.

Hill and teammate Johnny Agan, the Albany quarterback, were the top point-getters. Each polled 83 of a possible 90. The third Albany player to make the team was Bill Stapp, a guard. He got 81 points.

Hill and Jimmy White of Mt. Vernon were selected at ends, Mikel Jurecek of Eldorado and Martin Popp of Fortney at tackles, Ronny Worrell of New London and Stapp the guards, Jimmy McMurry of Rio Hondo the center, and Agan, Gene Walker of Huddlestone, Jerry Kachtki of Rio Hondo and Dean Bates of Wink backs.

The second team has Arnold Holloway of Wink and Curtis Harris of Gruver at ends, Randy Carter of Brownboro and Glendean Horner of Woodboro at tackles, Bill Stavelay of Sanderson and Tommy Eustace of Archer City at guards, Ernesto Villareal of Wink at center and Guy Mendonhall of Abilene, Ken Caffey of Thorndale, Curtis Robinson and George Hamilton of New London in the backfield.

The third team has Melvin Burns of Overton and Bobby Stewart of Rio Hondo at ends, Dana Benson of Gaston and Jimmy Youngblood of New London at tackles, Willis Beene of Crosby and Dennis Wolf of Wink at guards, Marvin Franz of Waller at center and Jimmy Latham, Forney; Larry Harrell, Sanderson; Carl McAdams, White Deer, and Jackie Miller, Burleson, backs.

Hawks Resume Drills For Odessa Tourney

Howard County Junior College's Jayhawks resume practice today for the Odessa College Basketball tournament, which starts Thursday and continues through Saturday.

The meet opens 1961-62 play for the Hawks, who were hit hard by graduation but who appear to be coming back with a strong team.

Buddy Travis turned his team loose last Wednesday for the holidays.

San Angelo is the defending champion in the Odessa tournament and will be back to try and defend its laurels. The Rams will be tough again, observers around the area are insisting.

The Odessa tournament is sponsored jointly by Odessa College and the Odessa Chamber of Commerce.

The eight-team field takes in all but one member of the Western Junior College Conference. Amarillo College is the only conference member not entered.

The field includes Odessa College, San Angelo, New Mexico

Military Institute, South Plains of Levelland, Lubbock Christian College, Frank Phillips of Borger, Clarendon Junior College and Howard County.

Thursday's first-round pairings: 2:30 p. m. — South Plains vs. Lubbock.

4 p. m. — Clarendon vs. Howard County.

7:30 p. m. — Odessa vs. Frank Phillips.

9 p. m. — NMMI vs. San Angelo.

The Jayhawks are favored.

NMMI is the defending conference champion while San Angelo is the defending tournament king.

The Wranglers of Odessa still are hampered because of injuries to freshmen center candidates Bill Moore of Odessa and Vincent Panozzo of Gary, Ind. Moore is hobbled by a hurt back and Panozzo has hurt legs.

Odessa will probably start Nick Berzac at center, Bobby Green and L. H. Williams at the forwards and Ronnie White and Ed Gardner at the guards.

Berzac, 6-3 sophomore from East Chicago, Ind., is one of two lettermen on the OG squad. The other is quick-moving Richard Beavers, 5-9 sophomore from Odessa.

Moore, an OHS grad, is the squad's tallest player at 6-6. Panozzo and Cliff Harris of Odessa are next at 6-4.

The tournament will continue Friday and Saturday with two games each afternoon (at 2:30 and 4) and two each night (at 7:30 and 9).

Minoso Is Traded To St. Louis Club

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Minnie Minoso, one of baseball's top-flight performers for 12 years, joined super-star Stan Musial in the St. Louis Cardinal outfield today following his trade by the Chicago White Sox for outfielder-first baseman Joe Cunningham.

The even swap, consummated Monday night after hours of negotiations, was the second inter-league deal of the day at the annual baseball convention. Cleveland sent right-handed pitcher Bobby Locke (4-4) to the Chicago Cubs for infielder Jerry Kindall (2-2).

Johnny Keane, manager of the Cardinals, was almost as pleased by the acquisition of Minoso as he was when his daughter presented him with his second grandchild last week.

"Minnie will play left field and Musial will switch to right," he announced. "Stan is equally at home in right field as he is in left."

"The addition of Minoso not only gives us more experience in the outfield but it adds punch mixed in with Ken Boyer. It will enable us to bring along our two promising young outfielders, Charley James and Carl Warwick, the way we want to. They'll spell Musial and Minoso when they show signs of needing a rest."

Curt Flood, who finished strong last year, batting .322 in 132 games, will patrol center field. He is 23 to Musial's 41 and Minoso's listed 39, although some insist he is at least 42.

Al Lopez, manager of the White Sox, was just as pleased with Cunningham as Keane was with Minoso.

"Cunningham not only is a good hitter," said Al, "but he gives us maneuverability because he can play first base as well as the outfield."

The acquisition of Cunningham, who batted .286 with seven home runs and 40 RBIs in 113 games last year, paves the way for further trade possibilities. The White Sox reportedly are willing to swap Roy Sievers, their slugging first baseman, for either a starting pitcher or a third baseman. Sievers, 35, slammed 27 home runs and drove in 92 runs on a .295 batting average last season.

Minoso, despite his age, is still one of the fastest men in baseball

Times Square Fire

Smoke rises from top of Times Tower in New York's Times Square in this view looking east from corner of Seventh Ave. and 42nd St. A five-alarm fire in the underground levels of the building sent heat and smoke up through the 24-story triangular structure—a landmark known throughout the world. Crowds and traffic were kept back as firemen battled the blaze for almost five hours before getting it under control. Two firemen and a citizen were killed. Forty-second Street is at right.

Grounded Ship Threatens To Maroon 600 On Island

PORT ARANSAS (AP) — A grounded 745-foot tanker threatened early today to maroon some 600 persons on Mustang Island. The tanker, the Texas Sun, went aground Monday. It was hoped the ship would be refloated at high tide Monday night. But four tugs managed to move the craft only 50 feet. The Texas Sun is a new ship, less than a year old, owned by the Sun Oil Co. As the ship tried to pull clear Monday, her propellers began silting the channel, threatening to block it. She was about 400 yards from the Mustang Island ferry landing. The ferry Ruby was forced to detour from its regular course after about seven feet of mud was shoved into the 12-foot deep ferry channel. Once the Ruby, with eight autos aboard, went aground for about five minutes but was pulled free. County Engineer Jesse Laurence said there was a possibility the big tanker might cut water lines into the city of Port Aransas. The pipes were beneath the tanker and about eight feet below the main channel floor. Laurence said he was also afraid Port Aransas residents might not be able to get off the island rapidly enough in the event of emergency. The town was one of the first struck when Hurricane Carla raised havoc on the Texas Gulf Coast several weeks ago.

Formby Dinner Will Be Staged

PLAINVIEW (AP)—An appreciation barbecue honoring Marshall Formby, who is expected to be a candidate for governor, will be staged here tonight. The barbecue, originally set for the National Guard armory, was moved to the city auditorium after the state adjutant general's office ruled that the armory could not be used for the event. The ruling was scored by a group of Hale County citizens Monday which charged that Gov. Price Daniel addressed a political rally at the Plainview armory three years ago. Kermit Ashby, one of the barbecue sponsors, said that Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Bishop, assistant adjutant general, denied use of the armory for the Formby barbecue, saying that no political or religious meetings can be held in National Guard armories. "They tell us from Austin that a ruling has been in effect for five years prohibiting use of the armory for any meeting involving politics. It is strange to us that three years ago Gov. Price Daniel was the principal speaker at a huge senatorial district political rally in the same armory. Apparently the ruling was overlooked for the governor," Ashby said. Ashby said that the barbecue will not be a fund raising meeting, but a free barbecue appreciation affair. Austin officials were told that no political announcements were to be made at the barbecue and that no campaign funds are to be raised.

Food Packagers Face Dilemma Over Fallout

NEW YORK (AP)—Mounting public interest in fallout shelters and nuclear survival poses a delicate problem for the nation's food processors and packagers.

Should they take advantage of this interest by promotional campaigns—extolling the merits of their products as foods for survival in the event of a nuclear war?

Or would this do them more harm than good in an era of uncertainty over whether Americans ever will be forced to live—and eat—underground?

As businessmen, they are interested, of course, in selling more canned, bottled, frozen, packaged and other processed food. But, almost to a man, they say they do not want to be put in the position of being accused of frightening people into filling their cellars with canned goods.

TRENDS

A survey of industry leaders showed these trends:

1. No one has yet come up with a truly new food designed solely for the shelter age, except for a small handful of composition-type foods providing all the necessary vitamins, calories, minerals, proteins, etc., in one neat package. Several firms have their research ad lab people working on such products, but are reluctant to discuss them for competitive reasons.
2. They feel that the long shelf life and ease of preparation of existing canned meats, poultry, fish, vegetables, fruits, spaghetti, soups, juices and the like make them natural for shelter stocking.
3. Although the reasons why remain unclear, can production has risen this year. A Can Manufacturers Institute spokesman reported output through September was 5 per cent ahead of a year earlier, which compared with a normal increase in production, due to population growth, of 3 1/2 per cent. He also reported a big pickup in demand for canned water.

No Secret Deals, Kekkonen Says After Russ Talks

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—President Urho Kekkonen says he made no secret deals with Soviet Premier Khrushchev to secure suspension of his demand for Soviet-Finnish defense talks.

"There are no secret conditions of any kind and no secret agreements between Finland and the Soviet Union," Kekkonen assured the anxious Finnish people Sunday on his return from his week-end meeting with Khrushchev.

A cheering crowd of 15,000 welcomed the Finnish president back from his successful mission to get Khrushchev to put off demands for military talks that would bring Finland into the cold war.

Moscow had called for military consultations to combat what the Soviets described as a rising West German military threat in the Baltic area.

Kekkonen, in a broadcast to the nation, said he could appreciate the Soviet fears but that the communique issued after his talks with Khrushchev made plain that "the opening of possible military consultations in the future primarily is the duty of Finland."

STOWING AWAY

This trade spokesman and a representative of the National Canners Association reported what they called "an unverified feeling" in industry circles that many consumers are picking up a few more cans here and there and stowing them away for a day when fallout may rain down.

John A. McGinn, vice president-marketing of Campbell Soup Co., commented that many of "truly substantial increase" in inquiries come from people who want to fill their shelters with long-familiar foods.

"Our speculation is that in the environment of a fallout shelter, the individual apparently would prefer the security of foods which he knows and likes," he said.

Campbell, like other companies, could give no estimate of how much of its sales could be traced to anxiety over the possibility of a nuclear war. Swift & Co., for example, reported a pickup in canned goods sales recently, but added: "We do not know if it is related to fallout or if it is just the normal seasonal increase."

NO ADVERTISING

Again and again, survey replies stressed that the food firms do no advertising tying their products in with shelter life and plan no such campaigns.

A Hormel Co. spokesman noted, however, that some retailers have been plugging things like beef stew as a good shelter item.

An Armour & Co. spokesman gave this reason for not advertising its products for shelter use: "We have always tried to break down the idea that canned goods are an emergency product."

Prominent among the one-package composition foods is a General Mills Inc. product called Multi-Purpose Food, which has been sold to companies preparing shelter kits and is in the shelters of many large firms and all of the Federal Reserve banks in the country.

SOYBEAN

A bland compound with a slightly nutty flavor, MPF is 90 per cent toasted soybean and can be eaten straight or mixed with water, milk, fruit juices, apple sauce, soup, jams or what have you. Two ounces costing about three cents would be equal in nutritional value to 1/2 pound of beef, a dish of peas, a small potato and a glass of milk, the company says. A 4 1/2-pound tin will last one person for two weeks.

The product was the World War II brainchild of a Los Angeles restaurant operator, Clifford Clinton, who was trying to get ample food for his paying customers and those seeking handouts. Now General Mills is associated with Meals for Millions, a nonprofit organization in Los Angeles, in producing and retailing MPF.

A similar product is National Biscuit Co.'s survival ration crackers, which were developed at the request of the New York State Civil Defense Commission and offered to large firms, institutions and civil defense agencies with a minimum order of five tons. Recently, however, the firm said it would accept mail orders for a minimum of six 5 1/4-pound tins, enough to sustain two adults for two weeks if they have two quarts of water each day.

POTENTIAL

Alexander N. McFarlane, a senior vice president of sales for Corn Products Co., said his firm sees the market for "survival foods" as more potential than actual.

Wilson & Co. said that, in reply to numerous customer and dealer requests for a shelter package, it is putting one together from established company products and hopes to market it soon.

Also working on a survival kit is Stokely-Van Camp Inc., while a subsidiary, Kumer-Empson of Brighton, Colo., has been turning out canned water.

Hershey Chocolate Corp. is studying the possibility of packaging certain products such as powdered chocolate for mixing with water and chocolate bars in materials that would provide long life on shelter shelves.

Great Bear Spring Co., which has been selling five-gallon jars of water for industrial and office use in New York for 73 years, last July brought out a five-gallon portable steel container with a seamless plastic liner and a 15-year guarantee of purity.

U.S. Leaves Allies, Votes For End-Colonialism Move

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States split with its major Western allies Monday night and joined 96 other U.N. members in overwhelming endorsement of an Asian-African resolution creating a 17-member committee to make recommendations for speeding an end to colonialism.

There were no opposing votes. Britain, France, Spain and South Africa abstained. Honduras was absent and Portugal—a chief target of the resolution—was listed as not participating.

The General Assembly rejected a Soviet proposal to have the assembly declare 1962 "the year of the elimination of colonialism." The vote was 19 in favor, 46 opposed and 36 abstentions.

Thus for the second straight year the assembly refused to let the Soviet Union take the leadership away from the newly independent countries of Asia and Africa in their drive against colonialism.

Last year the United States abstained on an Asian-African resolution urging a speedy end to colonialism. Some members of the U.S. delegation made it plain they personally opposed the abstention—cast on orders of the Eisenhower administration then in office.

The new resolution, carrying last year's action a step forward, called on General Assembly President Mongi Slim to name the 17-nation committee. It will report back to the 1962 assembly with its suggestions and recommendations.

Rival Asian-African resolutions on another issue of colonialism—the Dutch-Indonesian dispute over control of Dutch-controlled West New Guinea—failed to get the two-thirds majorities necessary for assembly adoption.

A 13-nation resolution, sponsored chiefly by the former French colonies in Africa, received a 33-41 vote with nine abstentions. A six-nation resolution supported by India, Bolivia and the United Arab Republic among others received a 41-40 vote with 21 abstentions.

Both resolutions proposed the two countries negotiate their differences over the Pacific island territory that the Netherlands now holds and Indonesia claims. In the face of certain defeat, the Netherlands withdrew its proposal to put the territory under international trusteeship while the island's primitive Papuan population is readied for a self-determination plebiscite.

The Security Council was expected to put the lid today on its debate on Cuba's charge that the United States threatens to invade the Dominican Republic.

Cuba managed to get its charges aired in two council sessions, but they lost momentum when the Dominican Republic declared it welcomed the presence of U.S. warships as a bulwark against any attempt at invasion by Cuba "or other Communist countries."

State Deficit $75.9 Million

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas' general revenue fund deficit stood at $75.9 million on Friday, State Treasurer Jesse James reported.

The total represents a decrease of $3.2 million at the last previous call Nov. 9, James said.

The treasurer's office is paying general revenue warrants through Sept. 11, including all issued through Sept. 10 and part of those dated Sept. 19 and Sept. 28, he said.

PRAYER: O God, Thou who hast promised, and whom Thy people have ever found faithful, we give Thee humble and penitent thanks for all that we know Thee to be. Let's Coordinate Our Charities

We are fast approaching the Christmas season when individuals and organizations are implored to the high calling of doing something for the less fortunate.

Most church groups and clubs will want to single out a particular family or families as a project, and this is understandable in light of an innate desire for a personal touch in giving.

The vast task of seeing that the spirit of Christmas charity is spread to cover most families and individuals in need will fall to the established agencies such as the Salvation Army and the churches. Consequently, there is a need for generous response on the part of those who will give without a direct contact with the recipient—for those who will give out of a simple desire to be helpful.

At best, it will be difficult to make sure that no one is missed in the distribution of seasonal gifts of food and toys. So once again we appeal to individuals and organizations to get together in their charities to minimize overlapping and thus extend the potential coverage of giving.

We do not have a social service agency council. Thus, in the absence of such, we suggest that the Salvation Army, as the center of the heaviest load in Christmas charity, serve as a clearing house. If you want to help but don't have a family in mind, check the Salvation Army for a suggestion. If you do have a family you are helping, why not notify the Salvation Army to this effect so that others will not duplicate your aid.

If you do undertake to "adopt" a family, however, please count this as a solemn pledge to follow through. In past years several "adopted" families from the Salvation Army list and then, without saying a word to anyone, casually forget the whole thing. In this manner some deserving and really needy families have been overlooked.

only the despairing subject of sociological critiques, but also the butt of jokes by nightclub comics and the stuff of satire for movie-makers and Broadway playwrights. Perhaps we can even anticipate more skeptical questioning of much of the contemporary mythology about the "lonely crowds" in American suburbia where a thin veneer of social conformity veils an infinite variety of human values and qualities that upset poll-takers and political prophets.

The Journal reporter finds management specialists speculating that "the sweeping technological changes of recent years" account for "the decline of the organization man." One may suspect that the advent of the free-wheeling, improvising Kennedy administration has also had a major impact on conformist attitudes, some of which are dying hard in the current flush of standpat extremism. Whatever the basic causes, the pendulum of popular attitudes seems to be tremblingly poised for another of its periodic swings.

Disenchanted With Organization Man

That respected barometer of business trends, The Wall Street Journal, notes that "an increasing number of companies are becoming disenchanted with the conformity-minded organization man and instead are placing new stress on individuality and originality in executives."

Chance Vought Aircraft in Dallas, a field survey reports, has gone full cycle to burn its personality-test records. In this and other big firms, the brilliant innovators and tough-minded individuals are being sought for the top spots, while the bland, well-rounded get-along team-workers are left languishing on the middle rungs. Managements are finding that the better ideas and sounder decisions come from intelligent, if sometimes unorthodox, men, rather than from group-think committees of indoctrinated personnel selected for their emotional stability and psychological security.

This is a hopeful reversal of the anti-intellectual, anti-individualistic milieu of the 1950s that has finally become, not starting nuclear tests in the atmosphere, thereby breaking the moratorium and setting off a 50 megaton explosion, the agency was ready.

A powerful barrage on nuclear testing was laid down by the Voice of America. All the major senders were adjusted in such a way that for 12 hours on a dozen different wave lengths the record of the Soviet Union was beamed at the Communist bloc. Premier Khrushchev had not told his own people that he was breaking the moratorium by initiating a test series that included at least 31 shots.

The concentration was in the hope that by sheer volume it would be possible to break through the wall of jamming that the Soviets put up against USIA broadcasts.

IN ACCORD with Murrow's basic concept, it was carefully documented and based on the known facts. Many of the quotations on the hazards of fallout were from Soviet scientists, and one was from Khrushchev himself in which he said that any government beginning nuclear testing "would take upon itself a heavy responsibility before the people."

The focus has been put on Berlin in the same way through every media of communication—radio, television, newsreels, documentaries, press and magazines—in all corners of the globe. The objective has been to show that this was a manufactured crisis and that communism must wall off its own people in order to keep them from fleeing to the West.

MURROW BELIEVES it is essential to gain acceptance for the Voice of America by telling the truth even though that truth sometimes hurts. Thus blemishes on the American body politic, such as radical disturbances, are treated frankly while at the same time the world is told of the steps being taken to correct the weaknesses inevitable in a free society.

This last is one of the areas of concentration—the contrast between a society of free choice and one in which the individual is a creature of the state with no free will of his own.

In trying to bring a new and sharper focus to the world wide efforts of USIA—efforts which in volume and expenditure of money come third after the Soviet Union and Red China—Murrow has had the help of two young deputies. One is Donald Wilson, 26, formerly Washington editor of Life magazine. The other is Thomas C. Sorenson, 35, who was with USIA for 10 years before Murrow took over.

When the latter was jumped over the heads of many seniors in the agency there was much grumbling, since he is a brother of Theodore Sorenson, assistant to the President. But Murrow says that of all the plans and proposals he discovered when he took over the most far sighted was one by Sorenson calling for a concentration of effort.

WITCH DOCTOR'S VICTIM

James Marlow

A New Monroe Doctrine?

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration's use of naval units off the Dominican Republic's coast helped discourage the Trujillo family from re-establishing a dictatorship. But it raised some unanswered questions.

It was a form of intervention in the internal affairs of another country, even though the purpose could be interpreted as good. But was this an isolated case? Or is there a new policy to intervene in Latin America when this country chooses?

Those questions, of concern to Latin Americans, ride side by side with one of concern to this country: Will the United States sit idly by if communism attempts to take over anywhere in Latin America?

UNDER THE Monroe Doctrine of 123 years ago, the United States told Europe not to interfere in the Western Hemisphere. In time, this country did a lot of intervening and interfering in Latin America. The result: criticism and ill will.

President Franklin Roosevelt's administration sought to reverse this with its "Good Neighbor" policy. This country, with 20 other American republics, set up the Organization of American States which, in its 1948 charter, agreed: no state had the right to intervene in another's affairs.

Non-intervention, however, was a bit of a myth. When this country gave help, economic or military, to its Latin neighbors, it meant some interference, direct or indirect. For instance, when it helped a dictator to stay in power.

But the dictatorship of Fidel Castro in Cuba became a pain when he defied the United States and tried to encourage revolutions in Latin America. The OAS agreement went out the window. The United States intervened.

IT DID SO in a way that made this country look ludicrous. It helped a band of anti-Castro rebels invade Cuba but didn't back them up with American military force. Castro crushed them. This country got all the blame and no benefit.

Since American forces did not take part, this country could argue it was not a direct intervention. It certainly was an indirect one. That occurred in April.

On May 30 Gen. Rafael Trujillo Molina, whose family had kept the Dominican Republic under his dictatorship 30 years, was assassinated. Left in charge was his handpicked president, Joaquin Balaguer, who apparently is trying to set up a democratic society but who is regarded by some Dominicans as a Trujillo stooge.

The Soviets and Red Chinese have intervened where it suited them among their neighbors. The American action off the Dominican coast now gives them a new and handy excuse for doing more of the same.

different things so you never feel stale," he says.

"The warmest feeling I have gotten out of success is being able to sit down and write a check to do it—to give it away."

"Some people never get wise. It reminds me of once when I was in Texas. I was with a fellow who pointed at another man and said, 'There's a poor millionaire.'"

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"He doesn't know how to give away his money," my friend said.

No one says that about Bob Hope. He learned early how to avoid being "a poor millionaire." He is as quick with his checkbook as he is with a wisecrack.

At the peak of his career he is as well-loved for his sense of charity as for his sense of humor.

Hal Boyle

Charity And Humor

NEW YORK (AP) — What performer has entertained more people than any other man in history?

The nod might well go to Bob Hope, who didn't invent vaudeville, and stage, movies, radio or television—but became a top star in all those fields.

Versatile Robert this year is celebrating his 25th year in films. In the last quarter century Hope figures he made 53 movies and they brought in some $250 million.

"All but one or two got into the profit picture," he remarked.

That feat in itself is enough to win Bob a golden name forever in Hollywood annals—if not an Academy Award.

At 58, Hope's hair is thinning a bit, but he still has the fastest quip in show business. He said during a stopover here the other day that he's trying to slow down, as his doctors suggested some years ago.

The trouble is—he doesn't know how to.

"I keep a schedule on my washstand, a schedule on my desk, and a schedule in my car," he said.

"I have to lead a scheduled life. There isn't any other way."

In addition to his chores as an entertainer, Bob has multimillion-dollar business interests ranging from oil wells to dairy farms, packing plants and professional baseball and football clubs.

"But I try not to let it all get my stomach worked up," he said. His success formula is simple. "Keep moving. Never let yourself get trapped. Try doing different things so you never feel stale," he says.

But the dictatorship of Fidel Castro in Cuba became a pain when he defied the United States and tried to encourage revolutions in Latin America. The OAS agreement went out the window. The United States intervened.

IT DID SO in a way that made this country look ludicrous. It helped a band of anti-Castro rebels invade Cuba but didn't back them up with American military force. Castro crushed them. This country got all the blame and no benefit.

New Measles Vaccine Promising In Tests

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D. A new measles vaccine, not yet available for general use, shows signs in tests of being successful.

The problem is not in providing a vaccine which will protect children against measles, but in preventing its annoying consequences or side effects.

The fact is that some children have no trouble as a result of the vaccine. Others have a fever for a few days, a rash, etc.

Indeed, what some children have could be called an extremely mild case of measles as a result of the vaccine. This, to my way of thinking, is a small price to pay for the protection. For measles, while in most cases a mere "childhood disease" that does no lasting harm, can in some cases result in severe complications. The worst of them is measles encephalitis, which can be deadly. Pneumonia and ear infections are other dangerous possibilities.

The new vaccine averts these complications, and others. One method to make the measles vaccine easier to take is to give an injection of gamma globulin at the same time. This, however, is more costly than just giving a simple vaccination.

mid cases of measles" resulting therefrom.

They've reported encouraging although not complete success. In my opinion, the mild annoyances are something we can get along with. After all, the vaccination at worst may cause a child to have a few days of not feeling good.

The benefit, however, is prevention of full-blown measles, and prevention of all of the dangerous complications which can occur.

This is no small achievement since a certain number of measles cases, otherwise, cause "lasting damage or worse."

The whole picture is one that warrants our attention. The vaccine, to be sure, has not yet been approved for general use, but unless something unexpected occurs, I venture a guess that such approval is not too far off.

"Dear Dr. Molner, I am a woman 61 years of age and have had the menopause for 10 or 12 years."

"The past year I have had a showing two or three times that resembled menstruation. I do not have any pain or discomfort that would indicate anything else wrong."

"Could this be possible at my age or do you think something else could be wrong? I enjoy good health.—Mrs. M. V."

Menopause doesn't go on and over. That's a truth that I keep trying to emphasize.

Occasional bleeding, or "spotting" after the menopause is over is an indication that something is wrong. It may not be necessarily serious—but it's not automatically bound to be a minor trouble, either. It isn't "menstruation." It is a sign of something out of kilter. It deserves and should result in medical observation. That's a fancy way of saying, "Yes, you should tell your doctor, and get his advice." Play safe and have it checked now.

Note to MISS T. O.: When I say "medication," that's what I mean. I don't mean "surgery." When I say surgery, that's what I mean.

Of all the problems that pediatricians encounter in children, pinworm is the commonest. To learn the newest methods of treatment for this pest, write for my booklet, "The Commonest Pest, Pinworm," enclosing a long self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

They Never Miss The Calibre

I am always amazed at the ability of people to describe the calibre of the pistol used by the bandit in a holdup. I heard a police radio broadcast the other day about a bank robbery. An armed man had walked into the bank, displayed a gun and forced the bank employee to hand over a sack of money.

"THE BANDIT," droned the police radio, "is armed with a .32 calibre pistol."

How do they know it's a .32 calibre pistol? The bandit must have stalked up to the window and informed the teller: "Look, babe, this is a .32 calibre pistol. I'm pointing at you!"

I have not had too many occasions to look down the barrel pistols pointed in anger at me but on these few occasions, I had more on my mind than trying to decide if the gun was a .32 or some other calibre.

Frankly, the opening at the barrel's end appeared to me large enough to be the mouth of a tunnel. I remember dimly wondering how my opponent could manage to handle a cannon so easily. But I made no guess in my mind, then or later, as to what calibre it was.

I FIGURE if the gun had been fired, the size of the slug would have been a matter of little importance to me, since I would undoubtedly have been dead. And whether I was killed with a .45, a .32 or with a charge of buckshot does not seem a real issue. The chief aim, as I see it, is to keep from being killed at all.

That's why I am always interested when I hear a holdup victim or the person on the receiving end of some gun-play confidently announce the calibre of the weapon.

UNLESS I PICK up a weapon, squint my eyes and read the legend on the barrel, I will still not be informed as to what its official size may be. Hence I must assume that hijackers must go around blabbing to their victims the calibre of the weapon they are using. I'd be disappointed if such information was withheld from me in a holdup.

Otherwise; how could I know that the gun was such-and-such a size? If some fellow gets mad enough to point a pistol with the clear-cut intention to blow a hole through you, I can't imagine anyone calm enough to calculate the size of the projectile. What good would it do if he did?

The Status Symbol Of The Coiffeur

When I contemplate the true - life story I am about to set down on paper, I am thoroughly confused as to the slot into which it properly fits—hair, art with a capital "A", the affluent society in spades or just plain incredulity.

But, so help me: what I relate is true and came to pass in Baghdad-on-the-Hudson within the past three weeks.

First, let me say that last week when I wrote that today "woman's hair is not so much her crowning glory as her cross and most-demanding care" and "hair has become a way of life," I didn't suspect my own strength. I was understating the case, as you will see.

Second, an infant lying in his bassinet today knows that art is long and that its price outstrips the old boxer analogy.

Third, as for the affluent society, keep reading!

OUR HEROINE IS A LADY of impeccable reputation in every department, including financial no less than for an impulsive kindness to friends and acquaintances. She not only has a fortune of her own, but is married to a man whose clan (not Rockefeller) is classified in the same monetary category as Fort Knox.

Her hero is at the moment, first, let me say, among three or four equal New York hairdressers of such stunning virtuosity and talent that it is far more difficult to get an appointment with any of them than it is to arrange an intimate meeting with President Kennedy, the Dalai Lama or Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

These men are the pampered pets of society. In season they fly to Palm Beach or Newport, or Bar Harbor, often in their client's private planes, to "do" the hair of some customer who would "die" if anyone else touched her locks.

IT IS HARD to credit, but it is the truth—cross my heart and hope to wind up with a homemade permanent—that one of the most significant status symbols in New York among those in society or struggling to get here is WHO does one's hair.

To be a client of the hero of this tale is to have it made.

Now, having described the classy struggle, on with the tale. Our heroine, a woman born at the top of the heap socially and financially, went to our hero to have her weekly hairdo.

Our hero tried to keep the conversation going as he sculpted, waved and curled madame's hair. Knowing that his customer and her husband have a genuine interest in art and a large and valuable collection of paintings, chosen with knowledge and love, he mentioned, in passing, that as he had walked to work that morning he had passed such-and-such an art gallery.

IN THE WINDOW, he babbled on, was a perfectly charming canvas by Soutine, a gifted Lithuanian who painted in Paris during the first half of this century.

"Do you really like the painting?" asked the lady, as he escorted her to the dryer. (Come to think of it, the dryer is today's great leveler. Rich or poor, women suffer under it, cursing the time wasted and flipping the pages of old magazines.)

"Yes, it is beautiful," said the hero, still making conversation. And then going on to his next dripping suppliant.

WHEN OUR HEROINE left the hair-dressing establishment, she went to a phone, called the manager of the gallery, where she was well known, and ordered the Soutine gift-wrapped and sent to her coiffeur.

Only then did she ask the price. "Sixty thousand dollars, madame," came the respectful reply.

"Put it on my bill," our heroine said graciously.

So you're training your boy to be a doctor? Better he should learn to curl hair! (Copyright, 1961, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

More About The No-Win Policy

WASHINGTON—Negations seldom make news, but the postponement of yesterday's (Nov. 27) scheduled probe of the downgrading of the American military is exceptional.

As emphasized in this column last week, the year-end hearings could not be expected to produce much more than the beginning of a long, painful search to identify and isolate the No Win military policy of the Kennedy administration. But the reasons for the postponement of this modest beginning need to be noted, as follows:

1. ANYBODY SEEN ANY senators around lately? James Kendall, Preparedness Special Subcommittee counsel, told me that he couldn't scrape together enough senatorial manpower to hold a meeting which has been laid on since August. Only one senator, Strom Thurmond, was unqualifiedly ready and willing to drop everything to be in attendance. For good, bad and indifferent reasons, the other seven senators couldn't make it. The endemic of "other engagements" coincided in some instances with the President's attacks on Radical Rightists. It also reflected a standing unwillingness of several senators to get mixed up in an anti-administration investigation.

2. MAY I BORROW your secretary? With a mere pittance of $30,000, the subcommittee staff work has barely begun. Probably the first meeting would have been hardly more than an indoctrination ceremony, but it would have expressed a will to get on with the job.

3. General, are you ready? Administration senators on the subcommittee went to ask Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker why he spoke disrespectfully of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and other Democratic peers. But Sen. Thurmond has told Chairman Stennis that the questioning of Walker must not be hit-and-run. When the general does appear, he is going to be talking about his successful slander suit against the Overseas Weekly reporter who criminally maligned him: about his removal from his Army Command without a trial; about the censoring, educating and politicizing which goes on in the Armed Services. Chairman Stennis knows that he cannot call Walker and prevent Thurmond from raising unwelcome subjects. Should anybody attempt to throttle Thurmond, the fiery Carolinian will ask and answer his own questions in public speeches and on the Senate floor.

WITH WALKER'S downgrading and with the Fulbright Memo, the argument over suppressing anti-Communism became the most significant single event of the 87th Congress, first session. A four-star military man told me this last summer in Europe that the clamp-down on anti-Communism is interpreted by the American officer corps as meaning—"Don't blame the Russians for the state of the world. Somebody else is to blame!"

This is no way to win a war, or is it? Paradoxically, the Kennedy policy seems to say that it is the way to win this war. It is the policy called No Win. It means that by watchful waiting, by maintaining, in Arthur Schlesinger's phrase, a military "equilibrium", not a superiority, much less a supremacy) and by fearless negotiation, we can achieve a Russo-American coexistence.

WALT ROSTOW, a White House brain trustee, is only one of many Frontiersmen with long-standing No Win convictions. With a paper now before me, delivered in April, 1960, at the Asilomar (Calif.) Conference, he spoke his piece.

In an age when his Russian intellectual counterparts are boasting of Soviet achievements and predicting Soviet supremacy in years to come, Rostow assumes for the U.S.A. a humility that would do credit to a monastery of Trappist monks, but hardly to a major nation and the keystone of the Western World. Rostow says in part:

"THOSE OF US who live in the Northern half of the globe . . . know that in the century about to unfold, the technological monopoly which we now hold will slip away . . .

"Specifically, we must count on a redistribution of power and authority on the world scene . . .

"The vision I have . . . promises no automatic success . . . no American century . . . The role of the United States in determining the outcome of the world's history over coming decades will, of course, be marginal, and success cannot be assured."

WHAT, THEN, do we do about it all? Rostow says we must take advantage of Russia's "latent nightmare" (which is Red China) and hope for a situation in which Russia's "only logical course is to make common cause with the United States—we must steadily leave only one option open to them . . . and that is to move seriously toward peace."

IN BRIEF, "peace" lies in a fuzzy Russo-American accord to be achieved without winning, without belief in ourselves, without much hope—except the last-ditch hope that, somehow, our two major enemies will fall out while trying to divide the world between them.

This viewpoint is precisely what the Preparedness Subcommittee is supposed to discover and denounce. (Distributed by McFadden Syndicate, Inc.)

Eye Make-Up Important

Mikki Jamison feels that practice makes perfection in applying eye make-up. Mikki is under contract to Warner Bros. and is a featured player in "Maverick" and "77 Sunset Strip" TV series.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

How To Use Make-Up A Matter Of Practice

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Mikki Jamison came to Hollywood from Spokane, Wash., did a "77 Sunset Strip" for Warner Bros. and was rewarded with a term contract. When I took Mikki with me to visit a veterans' hospital she was still walking on air.

"What is the most glamorous thing that you have learned from Hollywood?" I asked.

"How to use make-up," Mikki quickly replied, "especially on my eyes. At home no one used any eye make-up at all, so I had to begin from scratch. It seemed very hard at first to brush on a line that was neat and not wavy, one that stayed close to the eyelashes. It's just a matter of practice until you have a steady hand. If you have a line that is too heavy, it looks obvious, and in the daytime black mascara makes a person look hard. I mix navy blue and brown for a more subtle tone.

"You have to powder if you want your line to last, and you have to experiment to see how far and at what angle you are going to extend the eyeliner and if you want it on both the top and bottom. One point that is flattering to most people is to extend the top line all the way to the bridge of the nose.

"Eyeshadow is another thing that I found out about. You can use it in powder form, liquid or a stick. I find the stick easiest and I like to change colors according to what I'm wearing.

"I like waterproof mascara because it gives me such a feeling of security when I'm wearing it. There is no danger of it chipping and falling on my cheeks. But it is drying to the lashes so I use oil to remove it and keep my lashes from breaking.

"I am fortunate that I don't have to pluck my eyebrows, but I brush them with oil to keep them soft. And one thing more, Mikki added, as we drove onto the hospital grounds, "people with straight lashes can make them look prettier and longer by curling them."

ROUND TOWN

With LUCILLE PICKLE

When the family of MRS. J. A. FORREST gets together that, friends, is a real family gathering. This past weekend the children and grandchildren were here for the Thanksgiving festivities, but the big day was Sunday. It was then the family had their big meal together and it took the Church of God dining room to accommodate them. All of the women prepared their best offerings of food and transported it to the church where the clan gathered.

Here from Lincoln, Neb., were AUBREY LESTER FORREST and his little two-year-old son, CHARLES, and MR. and MRS. JIM FORREST. MR. and MRS. ARLO FORREST came from Midland; MR. and MRS. LEO FORREST were here from Hereford; the CLING FORRESTS journeyed from Evant; and MRS. ERVIN COX came from Hope, N. M. Grandchildren from out of town were MR. and MRS. JEFF JENKINS of Midland and DR. and MRS. JOE HARRISON from Levelland.

By Monday all of the out-of-town members had returned to their homes after attending the festivities that attracted 50 relatives including those who make their homes here.

MRS. MALCOLM PATTERSON has returned to her home after making her yearly trip with MRS. REG JARVIS of Houston, her sister-in-law, and two friends who are sisters, MRS. W. C. YOUNG of Fort Worth, and MRS. DARRELL KELTNER of Crane. They were in New Orleans, Mobile, Fort Lauderdale and Miami this year.

The four have been making a yearly trip together for almost 25 years, since they were in Texas Tech together. The only time I have heard one of them express disappointment with the choice of a trip site was with Scottsdale, Ariz. They didn't think it was such a much.

MR. and MRS. A. E. TRUE are expected to return today from San Antonio where they have visited their grandson, ROBERT PIPER, 20, who is to leave Thursday for Bethesda, Md. Robert will undergo open heart surgery for the third time at Walter Reed Hospital.

MR. and MRS. BOB NEWTON and their children, Ricky, Randy and Rhonda, have returned from a long weekend in Snyder where they spent Thanksgiving with her parents, MR. and MRS. E. P. RAINWATER. Saturday they attended a homecoming for the class of '51 of Snyder High School which was held at the National Guard Armory. MAX COFFEE, who is employed by Cosden but now makes his home in Snyder, was also present as a member of the class.

MR. and MRS. DELNOR POSS and their sons, Nathan, Del and Mark, spent the holidays with her parents in San Angelo.

MR. and MRS. RONNIE McCANN, Valerie and Cathy, were in Andrews with her parents for Thanksgiving.

Already there has come a Christmas greeting. This one from MRS. HILA (STORMY) WEATHERS who sent her cards early from Van Nuys, Calif., because she is setting up housekeeping again in Big Spring where she lived many years. Stormy is to be the coordinator for Volunteer Services. And we're glad she's coming back home.

Mu Kappa Has Plans For Bazaar

Mu Kappa Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha met in regular session Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Bernice Cole. The opening ritual was followed by a discussion of business. Mrs. Ronnie McCann was elected as the chapter's beauty nominee and will be a contestant in the Midland competition, January 15.

Plans were made for a Christmas party, Dec. 11, in the home of Mrs. J. W. Dickens. Work on the Christmas bazaar was completed. It will take place in the old Elmo Wesson Store, Petroleum Building, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 1-2, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Food, doll clothes and various gift items will be on sale, as the chapter's first project.

Kentwood Circle Has Mission Study

Nine members of the Evening Circle, Kentwood Methodist Church, met Monday with Mrs. W. C. Parmenter in charge of the study on Latin-American countries. Also present for the session was a visitor, Donna Hale.

Painting, Sculpturing Topics In AAUW Series

The second in the AAUW Fine Arts Series was held Monday evening in the HJC Parlor. Mrs. Bill Unger discussed painting and Mrs. Ennis Cochran, a graduate of Oklahoma A&M, talked on sculpturing.

Mrs. Unger, an alumnae of San Angelo College, pointed out four ways of seeing a painting—practical, pure, reflective and specialized. More understanding of technique and composition results in better appreciation. The Lord's Supper was cited as an example of perfect composition.

There are various schools of painting, Mrs. Unger explained. She particularly named realism, impressionism and abstract, among the many schools. A painting gets its movement from color and diagonal relationship; its stability from horizontal and vertical lines.

Mrs. Unger illustrated her talk with prints of work by the old masters, as well as her own work. She also presented prints of work by Otis Dozier, Dallas artist.

Mrs. Cochran displayed books of instruction on sculpture and explained that sculpturing is a three dimensional work, while painting is only two dimensional. She said that one should have an open mind to all works of art and explored the art of sculpturing from the time of the Greek masters, B.C., to the present day, including the mobiles of Alexander Calder.

Conducted concurrently was the ceramics class, under the direction of Mrs. Douglas Orme.

The two groups met jointly for a business session, when year book supplements were distributed by Mrs. Glen Cootes and Mrs. Keith McMillin. Mrs. Bruce Dunn, chairman, reported on results of the rummage sale.

Two new members, Judy Boyd and Louise Doren, were introduced. Announcement was made of the Christmas party and salad supper, Dec. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas Co., with Mrs. McMillin, hostess.

Wilkerson Home Scene Of Wedding Ceremony

GARDEN CITY (SC)—In a mid-afternoon ceremony Friday, Mrs. Sandra Ann Cleveland became the bride of Louie Wayne Berryman; the Rev. Morris Clark, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, read the double ring vows in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joy Wilkerson.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Berryman of Ravenna, Ky. Margaret Jo Cook, pianist, presented nuptial music and played the traditional wedding marches. For her wedding, the bride chose an afternoon frock of blue silk with matching shoes and white satin hat; she carried a pink handkerchief, which had been carried by her mother for her wedding.

White carnations and bridal wreath, tied with love knots, made the bridal bouquet.

Attending her cousin as maid of honor was Juda Wilkerson, who wore an afternoon dress of beige brocade; her flowers were salmon carnations in corsage. Arlin Bryant of Big Spring was best man. A reception followed the ceremony, with guests registering in the bride's book presided over by Mrs. Larry Calverley; assisting with the serving were Mrs. Glenn Kingston and Mrs. Harry Calverley.

Coming from out of town for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sparkman of Roscoe, grandparents of the bride; other guests were from Big Spring and Garden City.

After a trip to an undisclosed point, the couple will live in Garden City; for traveling, the bride was attired in a suit of turquoise wool with white gloves and black hat; she wore lizard shoes and bag, and her corsage was taken from her bridal bouquet.

Police Hire New Officer

Robert Ray Armstrong, 26, assumed his duties as a patrolman in the Big Spring police department Monday. He has been animal warden for the city for three months, and before that was serviceman at the city garage. Armstrong took the examination given all applicants for a place on the police force in June and was on the eligible list. He will serve a six months probationary period, take training, and work under the supervision of an experienced patrolman.

The new patrolman is a native of Coffeyville, Kan., but has been a resident of Big Spring 11 years. He is married, and the Armstrongs have one son, Robert Jr. They live at 208 Lockhart.

He served in the armed forces from June, 1953 to May, 1956. He was formerly employed by Kim-bell Wholesale Grocery Co. in Big Spring and Midland, with a trucking firm in Colorado City, and for Safeway Stores.

The new patrolman attended Big Spring High School, but completed his high school work while in the army, graduating in 1954.

Christmas Savings Can Be Spared

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C. Around Christmas we are always pressed with financial problems. So many times the big decision is whether to drag along through the holidays half sick or go to the doctor, now and spend your savings needed for Christmas.

Many people buy Hospital Insurance which is limited to hospital expenses and never realize that for just a little added premium they could add a clause to their policy that pays for a doctor's calls at home or in his office which would solve the Christmas savings problem.

Over 500 of the largest insurance companies provide coverage for visits to your chiropractor. Insist upon this coverage or buy from a company that does provide for chiropractic care.

These alert companies are well aware of the savings to be had in so many cases when chiropractic care is used.

Here is a typical case taken from our files—that was sick, discouraged and confused. Too bad she didn't find chiropractic sooner. She has brought her husband many times for back conditions but for herself, she didn't think it would help; until now when she had no where else to look for help.

During that past six months, this young Big Spring wife and mother has spent over $400.00 in three stays in the hospital. Her nerves were tearing her apart, the aches and pains just got worse, the stomach tightened until it seemed that it would never turn loose and let go and the head pounded and ached and hurt until you could almost feel the pain she was in. She has only taken a few adjustments as yet and already the nerves are letting her sleep (in normal sound-restful sleep), the aches and pains are reducing and her headaches are so reduced that as far as she is concerned, they are gone in comparison to the headaches of just a few days ago. Now she can smile and the smile comes from within and we are as happy for her and her family as she is grateful for chiropractic results. Case No. 1434.

If other methods of the Healing Arts are helping you, you do not need us but if failure has been your lot, come to the Chiropractic Clinic across from Piggly Wiggly or call AM 3-3324 to discuss your case.—adv.

New Cars Now Rolling

Five new automobiles are now in use by the city of Big Spring. The five were authorized at the Sept. 13 meeting of the city commission and all were to have heavy duty equipment for the use of the police department. Four used cars were traded in on the new Dodges.

One late model, 1961 Ford, purchased at the end of the season to replace one wrecked police car, was put into service earlier. Five new Dodges, still wearing the cardboard license tags Monday, are now in service—four for the police department and one for the city manager.

Three new radios purchased for the police department, to get communications equipment up to standard, are also in use by the department.

Chief Jay Banks said Monday that his department now has four motorcycles and eight cars in excellent condition. They are distributed as follows: traffic division, four motorcycles and one 1961 Dodge; detectives, one 1961 Ford; patrol division, one each 1961 Ford and Dodge, and three 1962 Dodge; chief, one 1962 Dodge—to be used in whatever division needed.

18 Enrolled In Program

Fourteen adults and four children attended the first session of a clinic on physical fitness Monday at the YMCA, according to Joe Leach, physical director.

The session lasted 22 minutes. In that time, the group walked and ran about 1 1/4 miles.

"About two minutes will be added to each session," Leach said. The group meets three times a week. With each session the program becomes more strenuous as participants improve their physical condition.

"The exercise is strenuous, but not tiring," Leach said. "With a program adapted to the person's capabilities, no one has to be tired at the end of the session. Instead, the exercise is stimulating."

Running, walking, calisthenics and methods of relaxation are used to bring the individuals to their entire bodies. Interested persons are urged to contact the YMCA. Since this is an individual program, one need not work with a group to participate. The program will be adjusted to fit the needs of the individual, Leach said.

Motions For New Trial Are Denied

RUSSELL, Kan. (AP) — Judge Benedict Cruise denied motions for a new trial for two escapees from Ft. Hood, Tex., who were condemned to death for the slaying of a Kansas railroad man.

James Latham, 19, of Mauriceville, Tex., and George York, 18, of Jacksonville, Fla., were convicted Nov. 7 for the slaying of Otto Ziegler. Officers said he was victim No. 6 in a cross-country tour of murder and burglary that left seven persons dead in other states.

"PANDORA and the FLYING DUTCHMAN"

Catholic Clerics To Meet In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The Vatican secretary of state, Amleto Giovanni Cardinal Cicognani, was expected to lead high-ranking churchmen into Dallas today for the fourth Inter-American Congress of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

Cardinal Cicognani flew from Rome to New York Monday and was due here today along with Cardinals Francis Spellman of New York, James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles and Joseph Ritter of St. Louis.

The cardinal, who will represent Pope John XXIII at the sessions, said he was in this country to attend "a great congress, in which many persons, also from Latin America and Canada, will take part."

The 78-year-old churchman said the purpose of the confraternity "is to make a little book better known: A little book which is the least of books but which, we know with certainty, contains the solution for all the big questions that trouble man and the world; namely, the Catechism."

An East St. Louis, Ill., supermarket operator, W. B. Glauber, Monday was appointed national chairman of the confraternity's lay committee. He succeeds L. R. Viven of Jacksonville, Fla. His appointment was announced by Bishop C. P. Greco of Alexandria, La.

More than 10,000 lay leaders from all-Roman Catholic dioceses in the United States and church leaders from Rome, Africa and throughout the Western Hemisphere gathered for first sessions of the 401-year-old congress.

Cardinal Cicognani told newsmen in New York Monday:

"The subject of the conference is so important that his holiness has wished to be present in spirit, and so he decided to send a representative endowed with letters of credence like an ambassador."

"This is the motive that has brought me back again in your midst."

Cardinal Cicognani was apostolic delegate to the church in the United States for 25 years before assuming his present post in 1958. He will remain in the United States nine days and will visit Dec. 2-5 in Washington where he is expected to see President Kennedy.

CINEMA COMMENT

By Bob Smith

Take an old, worn-out ship headed for the scrap heap, add a talented couple of film makers, and what do we have? "The Last Voyage," the suspense-thriller of last year which caught the nation's critics by surprise. It was one of the best in its class in several years.

Now, let Andrew and Virginia Stone, with a bit of profit in their jeans from "The Last Voyage," start looking around again, and what do they see?

They find an ancient railroad trestle over a deep gorge, a wheezy old engine and two passenger cars, and a planing mill—all victims of progress and headed for oblivion. Add the mutual brainstorms of the Stone family, and we have another suspense thriller, titled "Ring of Fire."

For their latest effort, the Stones picked a cast of relatively unknown actors and did rather well with them. Despite a bit of overplaying at times, they succeeded in going a bit deeper into characterization than most suspense films.

David Janssen is starred as a deputy sheriff who, with his partner Joel Marston, captures a trio of teen-age thugs, only to find themselves prisoners in turn. Janssen's quick thinking saves Marston handcuffed to a tree instead of with a bullet in the head, and the young psychos steal the police car, taking Janssen along as a guide and hostage.

But Janssen knows his Oregon countryside, and he manages to convince his captors that the only way to safety lies in abandoning the roads and taking to the hills—to find another road beyond the roadblocks and there to steal another car. He is hoping that the city flabbiness of the bandits and their ignorance of forest lore will give him the opportunity to wrest the guns from the outlaws.

It is not so simple, however; one of the thugs is a girl, and her cat and mouse game with Janssen keeps things pretty well as mixed up as the poor kid is herself.

She's not really a bad girl—just got a wrong start in life. There is a streak of decency in her, but she manages to beat it back down with a stick every time it pops up. And she almost gets her deputy man in trouble, after the capture, by testifying about certain alleged intimacies during the quartet's stay in the woods—she being underage would make it statutory rape.

The capture? No, I haven't given away the climax. That's where the Stones made use of the mill, the train, a tract of burning forest, and the flaming trestle. Seems one of the thugs had tossed away a lighted cigarette during their woody adventure, and now there's a forest fire. A whole town is cut off, the only way out is by the wheezy, abandoned old engine with its two passenger cars, and the path lies over the burning trestle.

The Stones also are adept at their by-plays, all designed to give added depth to characterization—such as when the bad girl, just arrested in a cafe, bursts out of the patrol car and back into the cafe, Janssen right behind her. But all she wanted was the remainder of her unfinished hamburger and, with a swish of the hips in the deputy's direction, calmly re-enters the squad car.

The girl is portrayed by Joyce Taylor, the two psychos by Frank Gorshin and James Johnson.

"Ring of Fire" cannot compare with "The Last Voyage," but it does deserve three stars.

The Stones are adept at threading characterization, plot, circumstance, and their spectacularly real backgrounds into an integrated whole, leading the audience from one anti-climax to another into the final scene where at last they let everything go.

And those spectacular scenes, particularly the one showing the train following a buckling trestle into the gorge, sure do look realistic. Well, they were real.
