Clubfoot Comet To Be Retired From Racing

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Assault, the Texas Thoroughbred that parlayed a club foot and a champion's heart into a $626,620 fortune, will be retired from racing effective immediately.

The great chestnut handicap speedster which was voted the "Horse of the Year" in 1946 after winning the "triple crown" will be sent to Robert J. Kieberg's King Ranch outside of Lexington, Ky.

Thus ends the racing career of a horse whose story-book rise to fame despite a crippled foot is already true legend.
It would have been a better ending if Assault had won his last race in a dramatic stretch drive. But he didn't. Sent from Columbia, S. C., to compete against his arch rival, Calumet Farm's Armed, Assault ran fifth in the Widener classic, four lengths behind the golden gelding. Armed ran fourth with El Mono, an outsider, first.

Right Forefoot Crippled
Kieberg said the decision to retire Assault was made after it was found he had burst an osselet in the race. An osselet is a growth on the ankle which racing Thoroughbreds sometimes get as a result of the hard pounding on the turf.
When still a "baby," the son of Bold Venture's racing career almost was put to an abrupt end when he stepped on a surveyor's stake on a Texas ranch in 1943. The injury permanently crippled his right fore foot, making it necessary to fashion a specially built-up shoe.

The peak of his career was in the Spring of 1946 when he won the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes—all $100,000 events—to capture what the turf world calls the "triple crown."
Assault's $626,620 ranks third among all time money winners. Stymlie leads with $816,000 and Armed is second with $776,700.
In 33 starts Assault has won 16 races, has 5 seconds and 5 thirds.

New Wire Designed As Power Of Tomorrow

NEW YORK—(AP)—New kinds of wire that change heat into electric current were proposed as possible power plants of tomorrow.
The report, written by B. D. Cullity of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was made to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.
In this futuristic scheme, wires hung out in sunshine would deliver electric current. Such wires hung in a furnace, or even in front of a hot stove, would deliver electric power equally well.
They might be one answer to changing atomic energy into electricity. Getting the heat of an atomic oven, or pile, to the place where it will make steam and electricity is handicapped by the fact that dangerous radioactive atoms also get out with the heat.
But these risky atoms do not travel through the wires that would carry electric current. If such wires inside a pile deliver power, it would come out safe for immediate use.

Baylor Bears Eye Chances For NCAA Bid

By WILBUR MARTIN
Associated Press Staff

Southwest Conference Champion Baylor has just two more obstacles to overcome for a perfect season, an undefeated conference record that would enhance its chance for a bid to the regional NCAA tournament without a playoff.

Unbeaten in ten games, the Bears face the University of Texas in Austin Wednesday and Texas Christian in Waco Saturday.

Baylor won the title last week when Arkansas and Texas divided their two-game series.
It was reported from Phoenix, Ariz., Sunday that Arizona has requested a playoff with Baylor to determine the Southwestern Representative in the NCAA tournament at Kansas City. Arizona defeated Baylor earlier in the season.

Chaltee Still In Doubt
Eugene Lambert, coach of Arkansas and head of the district NCAA selection committee, announced only that the team picked would come from Arkansas, New Mexico, Texas or Arizona. He did not mention a playoff, flip of a coin or any other means of deciding the entry.

Arkansas ruined defending champion Texas' hopes for a share in the crown by defeating the Longhorns 54-40. Texas turned around and blasted the Razorbacks' chances at a tie 54-43.

At other results last week, Texas Christian won its first conference game, over A&M, 46-61; Rice beat Texas Christian 55-52 and Texas 54-47; Southern Methodist defeated A&M 62-36 and Rice 54-52. Baylor edged Southern Methodist 51-49.

Continues Scoring Spree
Arkansas and Rice meet twice this week, at Houston Friday and Saturday. Texas plays Texas Christian in Austin Saturday. The season ends next week with a pair of games.

About the only thing of interest remaining in the conference race is the Texas-Texas Christian tie for second place and George Kok's individual scoring spree.
Kok, giant Arkansas center, boosted his total in conference play to 190 points last week and ran his season total to 426 points.
Slater Martin of Texas took over second place in both conference and season scoring with 128 and 268 points.

Fish Story

A too small mouth proved disastrous for this largemouth black bass at a Hernandez, Miss., lake. A half-pound crappie stuck in the large fish's gills when he tried to swallow the smaller one whole. Thrashing about to free itself, the bass flopped out of the water onto the ice. Then F. T. Friday, right, had a seven-and-one-half-pound bass for dinner, plus the smaller fish.

Schoolboy Cage Race Rolls Into Bi-District Play

By The Associated Press

Nine of last year's district champions are back in district play in the Class AA high school basketball race.

Here is the ANSWER to you who are suffering with EPILEPSY

Epilepsy, is a disease brought about by the pinching of nerve fibers within the spinal cord, preventing normal nerve expression. This interference brings about an accumulation of toxins poisonous to the body which upon being discharged from the brain and eliminated from the kidneys cause convulsions.
Many cases of epilepsy have been under Specific Chiropractic care and the facts prove positively that Specific Chiropractic removes the CAUSE by correcting the interference with nerve expression without the use of drugs or surgery. If you are affected with epilepsy, turn to Specific Chiropractic.

Proof that Specific Chiropractic does get results:
Johnny Whitlow — paralyzed since birth, cross-eyed, constipated, and couldn't sleep properly. Had been to several medical doctors with no satisfactory results. Consulted a specialist in Dallas who wanted to operate but was so evasive about the outcome of operation that it was decided against. Chiropractic was then suggested and Johnny is now sleeping and eating like any normal healthy person his age. Eyes are greatly improved and constipation is cleared up.

HEALTH is a blessing and is worth your effort to try the method by which it is BEST cultivated and preserved.

Curly Caps Make Headline News

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer
There's headline news in the curly cap.
The three styles in curly caps pictured above feature new abbreviated lengths—hair cut as short as one inch.

Mrs. Ernest Hemingway, center, famed novelist's wife, was photographed on Sun Valley's ski slopes wearing an inch-long curly cap. Because hair length is no longer than a duck's feathers, Mrs. Hemingway calls her head-piece of brushed up curls, a "duck down" coif.

The other two coiffures shown are worn by top-notch New York models. Both styles modelled are hairdresser John Hall's interpretation of the new close-cropped look. The style at left features a three-inch cut. Hair is dressed to hug the

The hair-do at right owes its curly-cap look to an all-over mass of ringlets. The uniform length of these is four inches.

The Efficacy Of AA

How not to approach the problem of alcoholism would make a portentous volume, and would denounce, perhaps, many methods popularly followed by temperance advocates. Certainly such a work would decry the lack of sympathy apparent in the attitude of the so-called temperance worker and the pitiable lack of knowledge on the part of many who can point with justifiable pride to their good fortune to be numbered among total abstainers. Many have failed to recognize alcoholism as a disease.

Many citizens of the Permian Basin have faith in Alcoholics Anonymous and have recognized the efficacy of its program. AA has assumed a big responsibility.

Respect for its activities, conducted without fanfare and in complete anonymity, has been shown in increasing measure in recent months. A recent appraisal of an AA group said "in the capitalism of our misery and misfortune we have regained our dignity and self-respect and have won the recognition and approval of the most skeptical."

Alcoholics Anonymous in its leadership perceives that alcoholism, "as a personal problem" has existed in all times and places; that medicine and society have, in the past, found alcoholism "an insoluble puzzle," yielding only in rare and individual cases to any method of treatment. Since 1935, however, a new and encouraging page has been unfolded, thanks to the adoption of an idea which culminated in the organization of Alcoholics Anonymous.

AA is able to point today to the recovery and the reinstatement in society of thousands of alcoholics, former "problem drinkers," men and women of talent whose excessive use of liquor had brought them to distaste and despair, with jobs gone, homes disrupted and dignity and self-respect destroyed.

Until they found a way of life for which they give credit solely to Alcoholics Anonymous, they were drunks who futilely had taken many "cures," no matter how expensive.

Alcoholics Anonymous is a fellowship of thousands of recovered alcoholics who have not only recovered because of its philosophy, but have brought recovery to one another. The philosophy is one that holds alcoholism is not a vice, but a disease, malignant and virulent in nature, an opinion now supported by many physicians and psychiatrists.

This philosophy is a contention that practically all confirmed alcoholics do not drink because they want to drink, but rather because they suffer from a compulsion which is beyond their control; that no sane man in control of his faculties would drink as does the alcoholic, knowing, as he does, the inevitable suffering and misery which drinking will bring; that the alcoholic drinks because of forces within himself that he neither understands nor is, by himself, able to change.

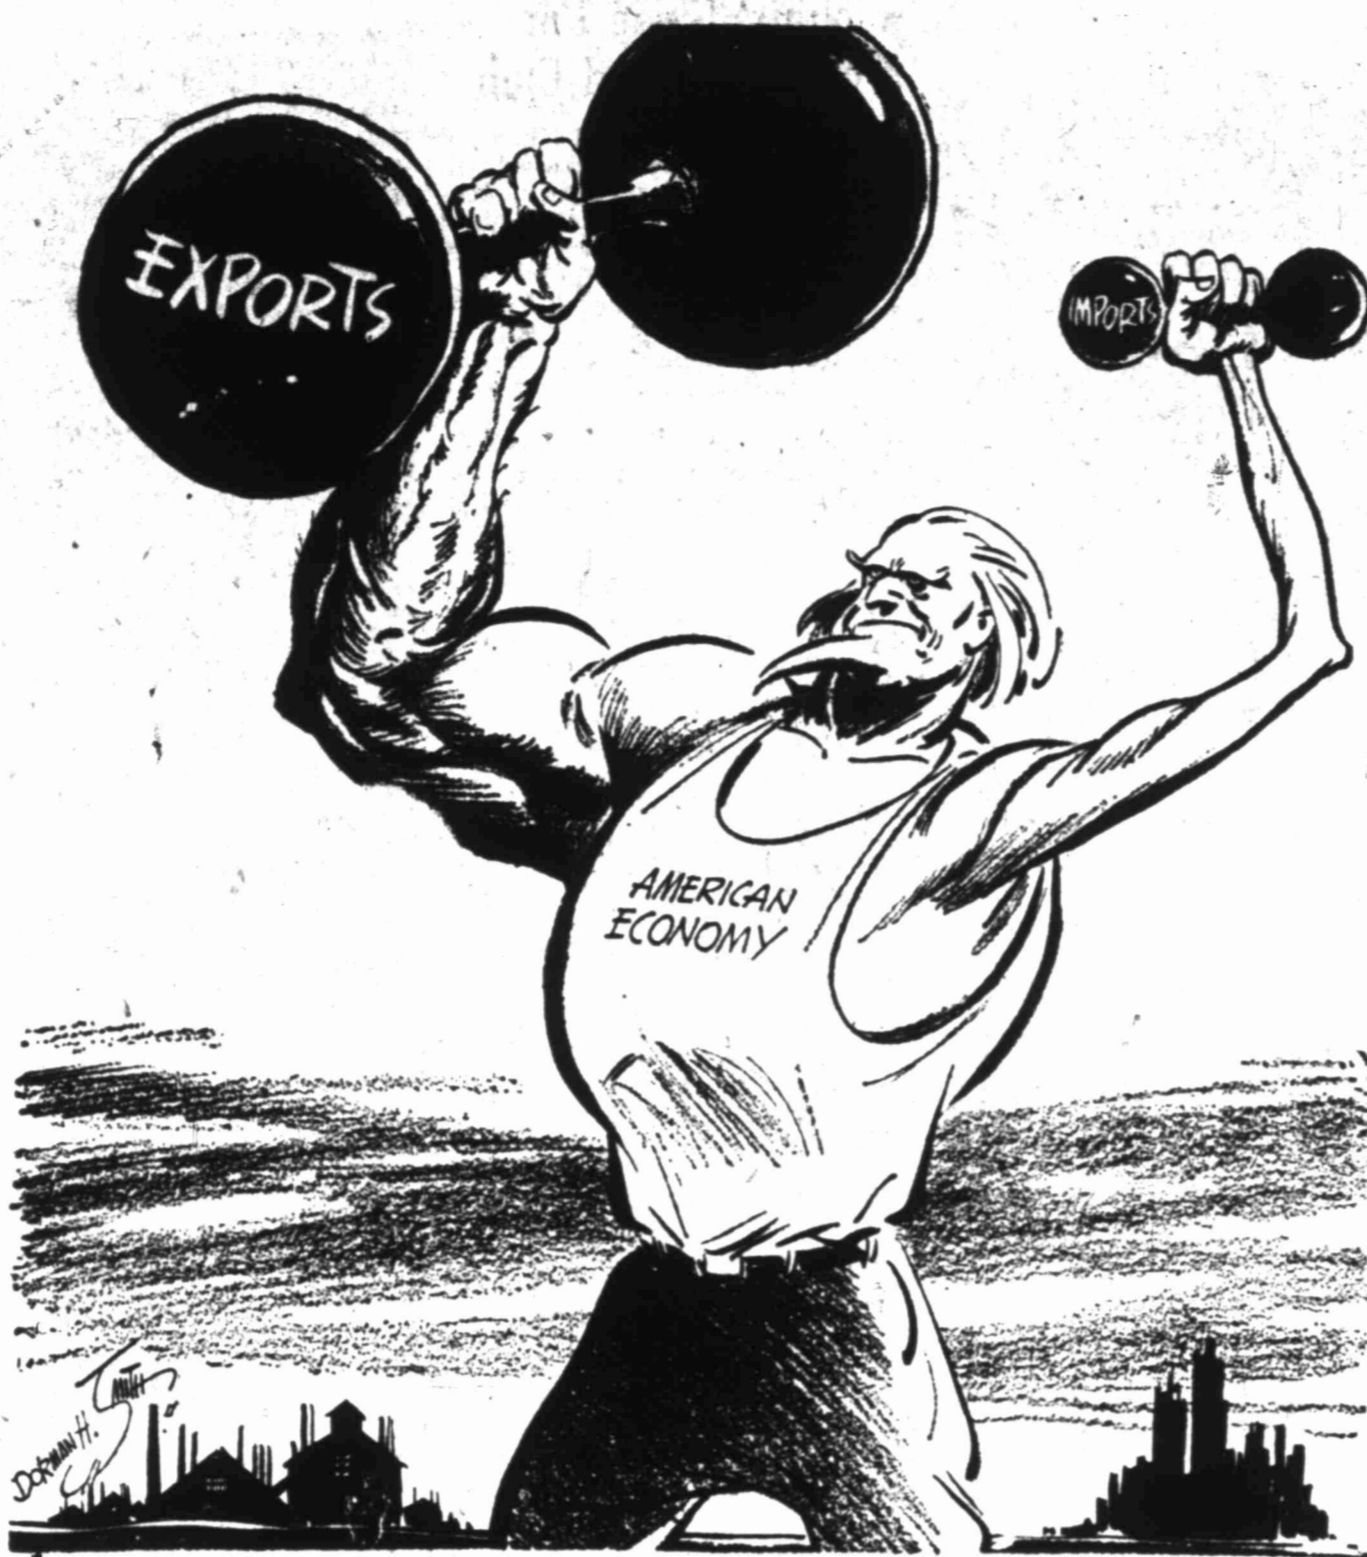

The AA explanation for alcoholism is that it is "an obsession of the mind, coupled to an allergy of the body." In other words, the alcoholic drinks because of a compulsion arising from an emotional state and because he is unable to control his drinking by reason of a strange physical allergy to alcohol—an allergy in which one drink sets up an intolerable craving for more.

The temperance worker does well to point out the dangers and the evils which grow out of a craving for liquor. Sufferers from the disease of alcoholism, the AA points out, need kindly and sympathetic consideration and Alcoholics Anonymous has made great strides in dealing with the problem.

People who break their word find out that it never again is as good as new.

Congress Wanted A Trainload Of figures, But Lost Interest

By PETER EDSON
 NEA Washington Correspondent
 WASHINGTON—(NEA)—This is the story of the world's largest order for congressional red tape, and what happened afterwards. It is intended for filing with Speaker Joe Martin's collection of pieces, belittling Congress for some of the dumb things they do and ribbing them for it in a nice way.

Last December, when aid to Europe was the big issue, the House of Representatives passed a resolution calling on the secretary of commerce to furnish certain data on U. S. exports. Originally, as dreamed up by Rep. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD), the resolution called for a list of all exports to Soviet Russia since January 1, 1947, with names of producers and exports and value of shipments.

This was a large order in itself. But when the Mundt resolution got before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, the members decided it wasn't broad enough. So they broadened it to cover U. S. trade with the whole world.

So it was rewritten to order Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman to furnish the committee with complete information on all shipments of heavy machinery, farm implements, railroad equipment, motor vehicles, coal, petroleum, building materials, metals, meats, grains, and other materials which might endanger the national defense. "That might be 1,000 or more critical items."

Complete details of names of firms and individuals in the U. S. making such sales were demanded. And, as if that wasn't enough, they asked for all information available on "unfilled orders." It was unquestionably the most staggering demand ever put on any government agency by Congress. But it was passed in about two minutes.

When it came to filling the order, the Department of Commerce boys were rocked on their heels. A check showed that, in the first 10 months of 1947, there had been some 3,000,000 shippers' export declarations filed on the materials for which Congress wanted its facts. The only trouble was that they were mixed in indiscriminately with 3,000,000 other export declarations on which Congress apparently didn't want any facts.

The first job would have been to sort out the 3,000,000 pieces of paper they wanted to tabulate from the 3,000,000 they want to tabulate. They estimated the cost at $200,000.

Of course, all the 6,000,000 export declarations might have been sent up to the committee to look over in its spare time. But that would have required a truck train reaching from the Commerce Building all the way up Constitution Avenue to Capitol Hill. The data on names of original producers or manufacturers was in most cases not available. Ordinarily, the shippers filing the export

U. S. foreign trade statistics are compiled by the Census Bureau. The figures are put on tabulation sheets about the size of a senior administrator's flat-top desk. Trade statistics for 1947 fill more than 1,700 of these sheets. To give Congress the data it wanted on these exports, it was necessary to go through such sheets and underline the figures in which Congress said it was interested.

As for appropriating $500,000 and the Peeping Tom survey originally called for, it has apparently been decided to let the matter drop and so save red faces.

Doctors Blamed For Acute MD Shortage

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A "closed union" operated by the medical profession is to blame for a serious shortage of doctors, says Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York.

The shortage, he declared, controls medical schools and, as a result, the number of physicians in the United States increased only from 120,000 in 1920 to 175,000 20 years later.

The shortage, he said, costs the nation 1,000,000,000 days of labor each year due to sickness and accidents. Bishop Oxnam spoke at a session of the annual convention of the National Association of Methodist Hospitals and Homes recently.

Dr. Karl P. Meister of Chicago, the board's executive secretary, said, "The government will take over health and welfare movements unless we stand our ground by doing a better job. 'If our church doesn't see here opportunity and obligation in these movements, others will. We must serve, not only because it is our Christian duty, but because society needs what the church in its program has to offer.'"

Doctor Meister criticized expenditures for hospitals used exclusively for veterans. "It would be far better," he said, "to follow the hospital construction program now in progress whereby hospitals for all will be available on the citizen level."

The Veterans Administration now has 180,000 beds and only 31,000 service-connected disability cases in them. It therefore seems unnecessary to proceed in this vast expansion and spend the taxpayers' money in this fashion."

Patterson Airs Ideas On Brotherhood

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
 Associated Press Staff

Robert P. Patterson, former secretary of war, says he took the job as national chairman of American Brotherhood Week because he visited the German concentration camps—Buchenwald and Dachau. "I saw what the unbridled rules of hate and prejudice will do," he commented at a news conference in Dallas Sunday. "I realize that it is of the utmost importance that not the least foothold for hate and prejudice be maintained."

American Brotherhood Week is sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, an organization founded in 1928 by three prominent Protestants on suggestion of a Catholic priest in Denver. Not even Patterson is sure of the name of the priest, but one of the Protestants was Charles Evans Hughes—former chief justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. North No Exception

"I am glad to take part in the movement," the 57-year-old Patterson said. "It is a moral force for justice among citizens. Discrimination embitters its victim and does no good to the ones who inflict discrimination. Discrimination also inflicts a division among citizens, destroying the unity needed for world peace."

The balding, long-faced former secretary, now a New York attorney, thinks the North harbors just as much racial and religious prejudice as the South. "I feel that prejudice and discrimination are just as prevalent in one section as in another. No one area needs a cure for intolerance more than any other."

"There is less discrimination now than before the war," he added. "The trend is steadily toward better understanding. The influence of soldiers who returned from the war was very beneficial. There were no distinctions made on the fighting fronts—a man asked only that the man fighting alongside him be American and dependable. Soldiers have carried this attitude back to civilian life."

Favors Truman Program
 Patterson is for President Truman's civil rights program, universal military training, a full-strength Marshall Plan. He feels that unless the countries of Western Europe act reconstructively by the aid plan, they will all under the sway of Soviet dictatorship.

He believes the U. S. should remain strong because "Russian policy is determined by respect for physical power."

Speaking of Brotherhood Week, Patterson said he was making an effort to keep up with all the various weeks. He took out a black notebook and read a few: "Baby Week, Health Week, Duke Ellington Week, Swim for Health Week, Split Fee Week—I really don't know what that means. Laugh Week and Pray for the Press Week."

Rome And West Texas
 "I'm especially in favor of the latter and I'd like to take part," Patterson added, smiling. "The press can use everybody's prayers."

Patterson told a story about an old friend, Amos G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher. "We were touring Europe right after the surrender of Germany. Mr. Carter wanted to go to Rome. I didn't particularly care to go to Rome, but went along. Mr. Carter made straight for the balcony from which Mussolini had harranged the mob. He ran out on the balcony, waved his hat, and shouted: 'Hurrah for West Texas.'"

"After that, we left Rome. The mission had been accomplished. The Maine coast is so notched with bays and inlets that a tidal line 2,400 miles long in a coast line of 250 miles.

AS LONG AS I LIVE

By Lone Sandberg Shriber. © BY LONE SANDBERG SHRIBER. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Terror-stricken Ann Bancroft has locked herself in her room. She is convinced that someone in her own household is trying to murder her. Someone has wanted the color of her new brown pumps, evidently hoping she would slip and fall down the steep staircase at Towhill. The man of wax was left in her closet. The swinging bridge over the ravine in the garden was in perfect condition on May 12, according to letters from a man Stark who had checked it, yet it collapsed on May 20, killing Luke the gardener. Ann is convinced the "accident" was meant to kill, not Luke, but Ann. . . . Then there was the trapeze that crashed from a closet shelf, narrowly missing her. The crash that was caused by two golf balls placed under the machine. . . . Ann had returned to go to the country club with the others, bleeding a headache. Now she remembers as she hears them returning: Rinda, her husband, a bacteriologist; Laurie, her 19-year-old sister; Tommy, Laurie's niece; Rinda, her houseguest; and Gay, Rinda's attractive young lab assistant. . . .

straightened up, looked around the room. "The heat in here is enough to give you another," he said. She had had chills and must have absently turned on the gas fire sometime during the long afternoon. Rush went to the fireplace, turned it off, went to the windows, threw them open wide. "If you're cold we'll get you undressed and under the covers," he said. "But that gas . . . ! It stinks." "I think I—had a chill," she said and her voice wavered a little. "And you didn't eat," he said, still watching her. "I'll fix you a tray." He left the room and her only feeling was one of overwhelming relief that she hadn't shown the fear.

LX
SHE had to move. She knew that it was imperative that she unlock the door before anyone should come upstairs and find it locked. They would think it suspicious and she didn't dare risk suspicion. She forced herself to her feet. Moving was painful. It hurt. But she made herself go to the door, put out her hand to the key. She could hear their voices in the downstairs hall. They were coming toward the stairs. She turned the key noiselessly in the lock, then turned, ran almost to the bed. That was where they would expect to find her, lying down, trying to cure her headache. She tugged the covers away, crumpled them slightly, jerked one pillow sideways. Then she lay down. She closed her eyes, tried to relax her tensed muscles. And then Rush was there, standing beside the bed, looking down at her. "Hello, darling," he said. "How's the headache? Any better?" "A little, I think," she said. He stooped to kiss her forehead,

RINDA came in but only for a minute. She seemed to understand that Ann wanted to be alone. Gay didn't come in, just stood there in the doorway. "They picked me up at the station," Gay said. "I'm so sorry about your head, Ann. Laurie's fixing supper, she said you weren't to worry about a thing. And I'll help her." She smiled at Ann, her slow smile, and, as quietly as she had come, Gay went away. Rush came back with a tray. A tureen of thick steaming vegetable soup, buttered toast, fragrant hot tea. He helped her undress, got out a nightgown and bed jacket, propped her on pillows, watched her sit. Amazingly, it tasted wonderful. She ate greedily. "Better now?" Rush asked, taking the tray. She sighed a little, stretched her toes down in the bed. She did feel better. Could she have been a little bit crazier this afternoon? It could all be so easily explained. One of the maids must have left the can of wax in her closest. Rush had probably carried the golf balls upstairs, unthinking. As for the bridge—well, regardless of what the man from Wyoming said, the ropes had frayed. They must have. That's all there was to any of it. She laughed softly. "Darling, you're a wonderful doctor," she said to Rush. "The soup was wonderful and your wonderful—everything's wonderful!" She felt lightheaded with relief. She told him she even thought she might be able to sleep now. "And leave the windows wide open," she said. "That fresh air even tastes good."

HE left her alone and she settled deeper into the pillows, pulled the covers up around her shoulders. It really was amazing the way her mind had worked this afternoon. Imagine sitting down in your bedroom, trying to figure out why one of five people would want you to die.

And since she could think of no conceivable reason why either Tommy or Gay would want to kill her, and because, subconsciously or otherwise, she wanted so much to absolve Laurie and Rush, she had taken the devious route to Rinda. How could she have thought Rinda capable of such a thing? How could her sense of fairness have been so distorted, her loyalties so completely blotted out? Even if she'd thought Rinda able to plot such a thing and carry it out, now had she been able to convince herself that that old college scandal was a strong enough motive for murder?

Poor Rinda. She'd suffered agonies over that old affair. She still did. The casual reference to it the other evening had made her turn white. Probably more than anything else in the world she wanted to forget it. And how idiotic of Ann to think that because nine years ago Rinda had seen someone die, had been perhaps the cause of his dying, she should now want to murder Ann simply because Ann shared that knowledge.

McKenney on Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority

Everyone likes to brag about his home town. I suppose it is that spirit of civic pride that convinces Joseph J. Stedem, president of the Chicago Contract Bridge Association, that the best bridge players in the United States are in Chicago. He is quite sure that before this week is out Chicago players will demonstrate how championship bridge should be played. Chicago is holding the Central States regional championships of the American Contract Bridge League starting February 26.

Stedem will admit they play pretty good bridge in other parts of the country too, and that is why he thought readers would enjoy today's hand, which came up in a recent duplicate game in Chicago.

Looking the cards over, it seems declarer must lose a spade, a heart, a diamond and a club. Stedem may have been bragging a little when he said that practically every pair in the Chicago duplicate made the contract in the following manner:

South let the queen of clubs hold the first trick, and won the second with the club ace. He cashed the ace of spades, and the drop of the ten by East warned him against leading any more trumps. At trick four he led the four of hearts, West played low and the trick was won in dummy by the queen. The deuce of hearts was returned, West won declarer's jack with the ace and exited from his hand with the eight of hearts. South won this with the king, then cashed the king of spades. A small spade was led, throwing West in the lead.

Now West did not have much choice. If he returned the club, declarer would trump in dummy and discard a diamond from his own hand. Most of the West players led the five of diamonds at this point, and of course declarer let this ride to the jack and then led the three of diamonds, finessing the queen. The diamond loser was eliminated and game made.

Milliner Says Ladies' Hats Affect Birth Rate

MEMPHIS, TENN. —(AP)—Women's hats influence the birth rate of America, a New York millinery stylist said here.

"Yes, sir," said Milliner G. Howard Hodge, "the birth rate falls when hats are crazy and unbecoming. I've got statistics to prove it. 'Take a young man about to be married,' said Hodge. 'He is in a solemn frame of mind. If his girl wears a cockeyed hat, he says to himself, 'Whew, she's to be the mother of my children. I'd better think this over.'"

What about today's hats? Hodge thinks they're fine.

"They give a woman a clinging vine air," he said. "Men love it. 'And the birth rate,' beamed Hodge, "is the highest it has ever been."

Irate Customer Is Still Short Five Cents

MARBLEHEAD, MASS. —(AP)—Police received a call early Sunday to break into the Marblehead Telephone Exchange Building.

The man explained that he tried found a man pounding on the door shouting "gimme my nickel back." They man explained that he tried to make a phone call at a diner and that he not only didn't get his party, but the coin was not returned.

After a brief lecture, police sent the man on his way—still without the nickel.

Rat-Eating Hermit Has 2,100 Wife Applicants

TOKYO —(AP)—The bald, 60-year-old hermit of Tokyo is trying to decide which of 2,100 anxious applicants to make his bride. Ichio Akimoto, the hermit, said he is wavering between an eager 55-year-old woman with half a million yen and a 18-year-old geisha.

Other Japanese men seemed puzzled over the hermit's appeal. But they appear to accept his boast that 2,100 women have answered his advertisement for a wife. Akimoto boasts also that he eats two dozen rats a month. "They taste just like chicken," he told interviewers. "I'm not crazy! Why should I pay big prices for food on the black market?"

Akimoto lives in a dingy little house, but makes a handsome profit from his modern, competitive postwar profession: rolling tobacco from cigars, butts into new cigars. He said he will settle 2,000 yen on his wife after the wedding, invest 3,000 yen in a business for her, and provide 2,000 yen a month for living expenses. (At official exchange, a yen is worth two cents, U. S.; in the black market, far less than that.)

He also said he'd throw in a sewing machine (so she can earn more money) and perhaps a bicycle. "But I don't know about that bicycle," he reconsidered. "There was a 28-year-old girl who almost drove her mother crazy to let her marry me. I bought her a bicycle. Then we quarreled. She kept the bicycle . . ."

Patrolman Wants Nag 'Innocent' Of Tobacco

NEW YORK —(AP)—Mounted Patrolman James Wipper doesn't mind strangers feeding his horse Apples, carrots, sugar? Okay! Tobacco? No! Wipper brought a man into Magistrate Abraham Bloch's Upper Manhattan Court and testified: "He was feeding chewing tobacco to 'Trader'."

The man pleaded guilty, but Bloch suspended sentence on the man's promise he would not offer a chew to any more horses.

Portuguese and French fishing fleets crossed the Atlantic and operated off the coasts of the United States as early as 1550.

Reuther Urges Fight Against Communists

NEW YORK —(AP)—Walter Reuther, president of the CIO U. S. Automobile Workers, says liberals and progressives should fight their "united-front psychology" against Communists. The liberal, says Reuther in his magazine, should ally not with reactionaries to fight Communism nor with Communists fight for progressive legislation. The first tactic, he says, is the danger of "assuming that the foe of Communism is a friend democracy. Hitler, Mussolini, Franco, Peron, Rankin, Bilbo and George L. Smith—all could pass test."

U. S. Benefits From Collection Of Famous German Zeiss Lenses

PORT MONMOUTH, N. J.—(AP)—A million-dollar collection of photographic lenses from Germany has put the United States years ahead in the field of optics, the army signal corps said. The lenses were requisitioned by the American First Army from the famous Carl Zeiss plant at Jena, Germany, after the war in Europe. They are under study at the signal corps center here. The Zeiss plant now is in the soviet occupation zone. Russian spokesmen protested some time ago against the removal by the U. S. of "a trainload" of lenses from the Zeiss museum. The U. S. explained that the requisitioned lenses will be paid for. The collection of 2,000 includes samples of all models ever produced at the Zeiss plant, once the world's leader in lens-making. "Study of the lenses and files from the Zeiss plant have put the United States years ahead in the development of lenses," said Edward K. Kappelan, chief of the signal corps engineering laboratories. Lenses are a vital part of such military equipment as cameras, bomb sights, range finders and signaling equipment. The collection includes a camera which will photograph a building 25 miles away. Cartoonist Urges U.N. 'With Teeth'

ANNAPOLIS, MD.—(AP)—Two thousand future naval officers cheered and applauded when cartoonist Bill Mauldin told them the "most important thing we can do today is to implement a world federalist movement." Officials of the U. S. Naval Academy said Mauldin attracted the largest crowd of midshipmen ever assembled "voluntarily." He was a guest speaker of the midshipmen wardrobe panel, an unofficial group that meets with the approval of academy officials. The midshipmen packed themselves into a room that normally holds 800, and crowded five deep in adjoining corridors. Mauldin, whose drawings of unshaven GIs became famous during the recent war, said federalism should be attained through a United Nations "with teeth in it." Although the talk was originally scheduled for 20 minutes, questions from the floor kept the cartoonist talking for more than an hour. When the pilgrims landed in New England, they did not know how to build log cabins. Instead they built bark huts.

Warren Pleads For Solidarity Of Nations

LAREDO—(AP)—The principles which have brought "unity and understanding" to the republics of America should be extended to all nations, Gov. Earl Warren of California urged here. Warren, Republican presidential candidate, stood on the United States-Mexico border Sunday and said these principles were: "First, the principle of non-interference by all countries with the freedom, the sovereignty and the internal affairs of others; and "Second, the principle of solidarity." Warren's speech climaxed the 61st celebration here of Washington's Birthday.

DEFENDS ON CONGRESS

DALLAS—(AP)—Gov. Earl Warren of California stopped here Sunday en route to Washington, D. C., from Laredo, Texas and said Republican presidential chances will depend on how the Republican Congress "behaves in the next few months." Warren declined to comment on his own chances at getting the GOP presidential nomination. For a quarter of a century, the Alaskan sea otter was thought extinct.

One Legged-

He could remember only that Stratton was a Texan. So he instructed the long-distance operator to try every Texas city and the ball club thereof for a listing or information of Stratton. After a few hours' search, Stratton was reached in Greenville.

"I'm pitching tomorrow night for the Sherman club," the Texan said. Morrow flew to Sherman and watched Stratton pitch a win for the East Texas League team. In 1946, he pitched nine games in a row without a base on balls. The writer found out that Stratton had kept in training on his Greenville cotton farm and had waited eight years before trying pro ball again. He tried to sell Monte on the idea of a picture.

"Now," drawled Monte, "I don't want other people lookin' in my mind."

Morrow pointed out that "The Story of Monte Stratton" would inspire new hope for men who suffered the pain of war. Only then did Monte give in. At first he wanted no pay for the story rights. But Morrow explained that he, as writer, the studio (MGM) and the star (Van Johnson) would not be doing the picture on a non-profit basis. "If you put it that way," smiled the Texan, "I'll take the money."

Andrews Voters Favor Two Road Bond Issues

ANDREWS—Two of four road bond issues were approved Saturday by Andrews County voters in a special election. The four proposals amounted to $950,000.

The favored issues include $285,000 for a highway from Andrews to the Dawson County line, and $265,000 for a road west from the Andrews-Kermit highway to the Dollard Hide oil field. The vote on the first was 174 to 47, and the other 177-43.

Defeated were issues calling for construction of a gap in the Pullerton road, 114 to 104, and a road from Mabee Camp to Highway 51. The count was 120 for to 90 against, but a two-thirds majority was necessary.

Truman-

Ration Power Needed
As a third financial aid, Truman renewed his plea that the government insure a return on investment for companies which launch big-scale rental projects. The long-pending Taft-Wagner-Elender Housing Bill would provide such "yield insurance."

Power to ration housing materials still is needed, Truman said. He expressed doubt of success of a voluntary anti-inflation law recently passed. Under this law, industries can work together to distribute scarce supplies to hold down prices.

To lower building costs, Truman sketches several lines of attack. They include:

(A) Standardizing materials, (B) speed-up in housing research, (C) changing out-of-date building codes; (D) federal insurance of loans to housing cooperatives, and (E) "vigorous enforcement" of antitrust laws.

Oil & Gas Log-

(Continued from page 1) not yet been officially reported. The project is 766 feet from north and 554 feet from east lines of section 28-23-37e.

It probably will plug back to the McKee zone of the Simpson, where it flowed 88 barrels of oil in two and one-half hours in a drillstem test at 9,433-9,507 feet. That zone will make an oil well and discovery for McKee production ten miles south of the nearest wells now producing from that formation.

TEXACO COMPLETES STEPOUT TO NEW NW CRANE FIELD

The pay at 4,948-75 feet had been treated with 1,500 gallons of acid.
