Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Basenberg of Odessa on the birth Thursday of a daughter, not yet named, weighing eight pounds, eight ounces.

Social Situations

SITUATION: You have no telephone and a neighbor has graciously told you to use hers "any time."

WRONG WAY: Take her at her word and use it as frequently as you like.

RIGHT WAY: Use it only in emergencies, so as not to become a nuisance.

NO FROSTING To avoid frosting a butter cake, sprinkle the batter with finely chopped pecans before baking; do not use on sponge-type cakes since the batter is not heavy enough to hold the nuts and they will sink to the bottom.

WE the WOMEN

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

Her reputation as a cook is built on a few out-of-the-world dishes. Nobody in town can make those dishes so that they taste the way hers do—because she won't tell anyone how.

That causes some resentment, but why should it? Hasn't a woman a right to make her cooking an individual accomplishment?

Women today are so little reluctant to tell all about themselves they've almost given up all individuality.

They trade everything from recipes to beauty routines to methods for keeping a husband in line. And by their willingness to pass along everything they know, they let themselves be copied out of complete individuality.

Was There Fraud In The Stevenson-Johnson Campaign?

Here is what Judge Whitfield Davidson, U. S. District Court, Northern District, Fort Worth, found to be the facts:

FINDINGS OF FACT

- "1. The Court finds that the names and residences of all parties hereto, both plaintiff, defenders and interveners, are as alleged in the pleadings.
- "2. The Court finds that the evidence makes a prima facie showing of fraud in the election returns certified to the State Democratic Executive Committee from Precinct No. 13 in Jim Wells County, from Zapata County and from Duval County in the Democratic Primary Election held August 28, 1948, in the race for nominee for United States Senator from Texas.
- "3. THE COURT FINDS THAT THE EVIDENCE THAT SUCH FRAUD IN THE COUNTIES AND PRECINCTS NAMED IS PRIMA FACIE SUFFICIENT TO CHANGE THE RESULT OF SAID PRIMARY ELECTION IN THE RACE BETWEEN THE COMPLAINANT, COKE R. STEVENSON, AND THE RESPONDENT, LYNDON B. JOHNSON, FOR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM TEXAS. (Boldface capitals ours.)
- "4. The Court finds that the giving of effect to the fraudulent returns, heretofore mentioned, will result in depriving the complainant, Coke R. Stevenson, and interveners, H. L. Poole, A. G. Johnson and F. A. Harkrider, of their civil rights, in violation of the Constitution and laws of the United States.
- "5. The Court finds that each material allegation of the amended complaint and the trial amendment is sustained by the evidence.

Justice Hugo Black of the U. S. Supreme Court said Judge Davidson had no right to pass on this matter. NO COURT HAS EVER SAID THAT JUDGE DAVIDSON'S FINDINGS OF FACT WERE INCORRECT.

These findings are a matter of record and have never been set aside. You can find them in Civil Action No. 1640, filed Sept. 25, 1948, in the U. S. District Court at Fort Worth.

Mrs. M. S. Dickerson Winner Flower Show Sweepstakes.

Mrs. M. S. Dickerson was the sweepstakes winner in the annual Fall Flower Show sponsored by the garden clubs of Midland Thursday. Her entries received eight first, one second and two third places, with awards in both the horticultural and the artistic arrangement sections.

Judging was completed before the show opened at 1 p. m., and visitors who saw the exhibits in the American Legion Hall until 10:30 p. m. found the prize flowers marked. Judges were Mrs. A. J. Bergren and Mrs. Myers Hurt of Odessa, and Mrs. Hal Rochelle of Midland.

After they had judged the entries they were guests of Mrs. J. D. Dillard, chairman of hospitality, at a luncheon at the Midland Country Club with Mrs. C. P. Yaden, general show chairman, and Mrs. Winston Hull, chairman of judging and awards.

Western Staging Used
In addition to the scores of entries which filled shelves and tables in the hall, a setting in the theme of "Sunset on the Prairie" made the show attractive. Branches of mesquite and willow were used with yucca, tumbleweeds, salt cedar and other growth native to Midland County on and around the stage and at the entrance. A Western sunset scene was in the background on the stage, where a section of corral fence was arranged. Wagon wheels twined with honeysuckle were set below the stage, at the entrance and in the foyer, where punch was served.

Committee members who acted as hostesses wore Western costume. All show committees were made up of members from the Midland, Perennial, Texas and Yucca Garden Clubs, which cooperated to sponsor the annual event. As the show opened, Mrs. Vann Ligon at the piano played Western tunes.

In ranking the entries, the judges used a point system and scored each exhibit against perfection rather than against other entries. No awards were given in classes which they felt did not merit a prize, and other instances a second or third place was given when there was no first place.

Specimen Awards
The complete list of awards follows for the horticultural classes, or specimens:

Roses—pink, Mrs. Dickerson first, Mrs. Ira French third; red, Mrs. Ernest Neill second; yellow, Mrs. J. C. Watson first, Mrs. E. R. Pettis, Mrs. B. E. McDonald, Mrs. L. L. Presley, Mrs. W. R. Hamblett, Mrs. W. S. Johnston, Mrs. M. L. Patterson of Odessa and the honoree.

★ WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLET

woman reader of this column who lives in a small two-bedroom home with her husband and four children confesses: "It is only recently that I have outgrown bursting into tears when some super-duper housekeeper leaves, having discovered our house in a cluttered mess."

The reader's choice of the word "outgrown" is a good one. For a woman isn't fully mature until she realizes that her job in life is to do the best she can for her family, putting what seems most important to her family first, and then refusing to compare herself with other women and what they consider important.

Obviously, the mother of small children—especially if they are crowded together in a small house—can't be a perfect housekeeper. She shouldn't even try to be because that isn't what is most important to her family.

Knowing that, why should she care what another woman—who happens to be a perfect housekeeper—thinks of the way she runs her home?

It is always well for a woman to remember that she can't be everything.

Obviously, she has to let down somewhere. And since that is inevitable, she shouldn't allow the "letting down" to make her feel like a failure.

Miners Love Their Maharajah

John L. Lewis must have had a wonderful time at the United Mine Workers convention in Cincinnati. In fact, he must have felt like the maharajah of the princely state of Caidom.
His faithful miners didn't quite follow the custom of the Aga Khan's followers and match his considerable weight in gold. But they achieved substantially the same effect by doubling his salary to a princely $50,000 a year, plus expenses.
A few of the faithful were so bold as to complain about Lewis' new salary. They thought he should have $100,000 so as to top the pay of the President of the United States, who a couple of times committed the unforgivable offense of taking their leader down a peg or two. Lewis magnanimously declined the generous offer.

Other members wanted to make his presidency of the UMW a lifetime job—officially, as it now is in reality.
The convention concurred in "the spirit" of that resolution.
But since the job is Lewis' anyway, they decided to continue the "democratic" practice of reflecting him every four years. Let he be offended by this, apparently, they elevated him to the rank of national hero by deciding that henceforth they will celebrate February 12 not as Abraham Lincoln's, but as John L. Lewis' birthday!
The comparison between the United Mine Workers and a princely state is not entirely idle. Lewis is, economically, the absolute monarch of the coal miners. It is he alone who obtains their wages and benefits. All he asks in return for these blessings is absolute obedience.
The miners seem to pay the price gladly. It is not hard to understand their gratitude. They are neither a safe nor a pleasant calling. They have been severely exploited in the past. Lewis has done much to make their lives easier, even though his motives cannot have been entirely unselfish.

But Lewis overdoes the thing. To hear him talk, one would think that there isn't another tough and hazardous type of job in the world. One would think that in no other field of labor has the worker's lot been bettered in the last 40 or 50 years.

Moreover, Lewis has set up boundaries around his princely state. He has contrived to insulate the miners from their fellow countrymen by a barrier of class-consciousness and group self-pity. He plants in the miners' minds that they are surrounded by enemies, and that he alone can save them.

In the process, Lewis has made himself one of the most thoroughly unpopular men in the country. The miners may love him, but few others do. And in the field of labor his arrogance and lust for power have lost him not only friends but most of his lifetime influence. So perhaps no one should begrudge him the consolation prizes of a fat salary, a big house, a fine car and rich food. Certainly the miners don't—even though they now will have to dig a little bit harder to pay for it all.

What About Scientists

Selective Service is reported to have sent a draft plan to the President in which educational deferments are limited to medical, dental, osteopathic and veterinary students. We've no quarrel with that. But with modern life and world conditions what they are, wouldn't it be well for our national safety to provide for the training of a new generation of nuclear scientists?

It Won't Be Long Now

Waltz into Darkness BY WILLIAM IRISH

THE sun was bright, the sky was blue, the time was May; New Orleans was heaven, and heaven must have been only another New Orleans, it couldn't have been any better.
In his bachelor quarters on St. Charles Street, Louis Durand was getting dressed. Not for the first time that day, for the sun was already high and he'd been up and about for hours; but for the great event of that day. This wasn't just a day, this was the day of all days. A day that comes just once to a man, and now had come to him. It had come late, but it had come. It was now. It was today.

He look up the small stiff-backed daguerreotype and looked at it. The subject was not young. She was not beautiful. She could be called attractive. This then was the bargain he had made with love.

He wasn't young any more. Others didn't think this, he told himself. He wasn't old, as men go. But for such a thing as this, he wasn't too young any more. Thirty-seven.
On the wall there was a calendar, the first four leaves peeled back to bare the fifth. At top center, this was inscribed May. Then on each side of this, in slanted, shadow-casting, heavily curled numerals, the year-date was gratuitously given the beholder: 1880, 'Below, within their little boxed squares, the first 19 numerals had been stroked off with lead pencil. About the twentieth, this time in red crayon, a heavy circle, a bull's-eye, had been traced.
On the bureau, before which he stood using his hairbrush, lay a packet of letters and a daguerreotype.

He put down his brush, and, pausing for a moment in his preparations, took them up one by one and hurriedly glanced through each. The first bore the letter-head: "The Friendly Correspondence Society of St. Louis, Mo.—an Association for Ladies and Gentlemen of High Character," and began in a fine masculine hand:
Dear Sir:
In reply to your inquiry we are pleased to forward to you the name and address of one of our members, and if you will address yourself to her in person, we feel sure a mutually satisfactory correspondence may be engaged upon—

The next was in an even finer hand, this time feminine: "My dear Mr. Durand.—" And signed: "Yr's most sincerely, Miss J. Russell."
The next: "Dear Mr. Durand: Sincerely, Miss Julia Russell."
The next: "Dear Louis Durand: Your sincere friend, Julia Russell."
And then: "Dear Louis: ... Your sincere friend, Julia."
And then: "Louis, dear: ... Your Julia."
And finally: "Louis, my beloved: Your own impatient Julia."
There was a postscript to this one: "Will the eighteenth never come? I count the hours for the boat to sail!"

McKenney on Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

Everyone who plays cards has heard of the bridge clubs where the experts meet to ply their skill. Never before have I heard the aristocracy of the card room so well described as in the story of the six of spades in the new book, "Right Through the Pack."
To get into an English bridge club is quite an achievement in itself. When the lecturer in logic and statistics at the university presented himself and said he wanted to join on the recommendation of a member, he was reluctantly admitted.
"Have you played bridge much?" inquired the club secretary. "Never in my life," replied the lecturer in logic; "but I read a book on it, and it seems quite a simple game. May I play a rubber or two with three of your members?"

"Oh," said the club secretary. "Our members are all experts! But I will sit beside you, and if you will agree that I may stop the game at any moment, I will allow you to start a rubber." Today's hand is the first one that came up, with the lecturer in logic sitting South.
On the opening lead of the three of diamonds dummy played the king and the lecturer won the trick with the ace. Now he played the six of spades. "Stop the game," said the club secretary. "You cannot lead into a tenace position."
All I can tell you is that the lecturer in logic was right. He had to attack the spade suit immediately, before declarer could set up his two club tricks and discard the two losing spades. By leading the six of spades, North's jack would knock out the queen, and the next time the lecturer was the lead, he could knock out the other spade. Then nothing could stop him from getting two clubs, a diamond and a spade.

DREW PEARSON ON THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

LOS ANGELES — En route through the West all you have to do to get a picture of who's backing who in this campaign is to read the list of campaign contributors to the Republican and Democratic parties.
This is not quite as easy as it seems since you have to be careful to look up the contributors not only to the Republican National Committee, but to the G. O. P. Senate and congressional committees. These were organized to disperse campaign contributions and get around the Hatch Act.
On the Democratic side, the really big money is coming from labor. And it, in turn, to get around the Hatch Act, is spending the money through its own separately organized committees.

Also significant is the fact that the biggest G. O. P. contributors are the Du Ponts of Delaware, the Pews of Pennsylvania, and the New York financial set are pouring their money not into Dewey's campaign, but into the senatorial races. They regard Dewey as good as elected.
Careful scrutiny of the big money gifts is illuminating. Take one family alone—the Du Ponts. The Republican senatorial campaign committee is headed by a Du Pont henchman, Ex-Senator John Townsend of Delaware. His job is to win G. O. P. Senate elections in Tennessee, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Minnesota, Wyoming and Montana.

To help him, the Du Pont family poured in the following amounts of money during June, July and August: Lammont Du Pont $2,000; Irene Du Pont $2,000; Irene Du Pont Sr. $2,000; Sophie Du Pont May $2,000; Octavia M. Du Pont Bredin, $1,000; Mariana M. Du Pont, $2,000; Lucile Du Pont Flint, $2,000; R. R. Carpenter a Du Pont $2,000; Pierre S. Du Pont 3rd, $2,000.
Under the Hatch Act no one man can contribute more than $5,000. However, by splitting contributions between members of the family or between different committees of the same political party, the Hatch Act is held not to be violated.

For instance, a few days before Lammont Du Pont gave $2,000 to the G. O. P. Senatorial Committee June 18 he gave $2,000 to the G. O. P. National Committee. This was on June 9. Also, on June 11, he gave $1,000 to the Republican Congressional Committee.
Also, while Irene Du Pont Jr. and her father and I. Sophie Du Pont May were giving $2,000 each to the G. O. P. Senatorial Committee on July 30, they also gave $2,000 each to the Republican National Committee on July 9. Again, on July 14, the same three Du Ponts gave $1,000 to the G. O. P. Congressional Committee.
And on July 30, Octavia Du Pont Bredin, Mariana Du Pont Silliman and Lucile Du Pont Flint each gave $1,000 to the G. O. P. Congressional Committee, while on Aug. 2, Pierre S. Du Pont 3rd gave $1,000 to the same committee. Again, on Aug. 18, Pierre 3rd gave $2,000 to the G. O. P. National Committee.
It's these gifts to the "side" committees which really tell the story of where the campaign money comes from.

Note—Three significant contributions appearing on the G. O. P. National Committee list are for $1,000 each from Robert B. Wells, George B. Wells and Mrs. George Wells of Southbridge, Mass. The Wells family own the American Optical Company of Southbridge which was prosecuted under the anti-trust laws by the Justice Department under a Democratic administration. Under earlier Republican rule, the Justice Department didn't get too nasty with anti-trust suits.
Pat Hurley Campaigns
When Pat Hurley, ex-ambassador to China, travels through New Mexico, campaigning for the Senate, he really travels in style. The other day Pa Howell, owner of the Southern Pacific Hotel in Carrizozo, New Mexico, was a little surprised to receive a wire from Hurley reserving ten rooms for a three-day stay.
The telegram stated that he and Mrs. Hurley would need four rooms; their secretaries, chauffeurs and campaign manager six more. The telegram asked for telegraphic confirmation.
Pa Howell did not run a big hotel and he wondered why Pat Hurley would want to bring such a big retinue to a town of only 500 people.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Change Of Climate Aids Some Diseases; Is Not Certain Cure
By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service
Some diseases are more common in some climates than in others. For example, fewer people suffer from sinus infections and from rheumatic fever in tropical and subtropical parts of the world than in the stormier regions farther North.
Moving from one climate to another frequently results either in an improvement or worsening of the particular condition. This is perhaps particularly true for the diseases involving the nose, throat and lungs, that is, the breathing or respiratory system. The question often comes up whether a person with such diseases should move to a warmer climate. This is always difficult to answer.
Although fewer cases of some diseases start in warm climates, not all people get better when they move to such an area.
Try Area First
Some sinus sufferers improve in parts of the Southwest, like Phoenix and Tucson in Arizona, whereas others may actually become worse in those regions. Southern California and Florida are also popular areas. These places, too, do not offer a certain cure. About all that one can say in advance is that the person who contemplates a change of climate should pick one and then try it for several months to see whether the results will be good or bad.
Just why a change of climate should be helpful in some cases is not quite clear. Most warmer regions do not have the variation in temperature from season to season that is present in northern regions. Also there are likely to be fewer storms, and storms seem to be hard for some human bodies to take.
A few medical authorities are inclined to place great emphasis on climate and weather in relation to disease. Although there is no complete agreement on this matter, the future surely offers many opportunities for research on the relationship between climate, weather and various kinds of diseases.

Proposed Amendments—Texans Will Vote On Matters Concerning Welfare, Regulations Of Public Servants

By MAC ROY BASH (Second of a Series)

AUSTIN—(AP)—Texans will take an official stand November 2 on three questions relating to the welfare and regulation of certain of their public servants.

The questions—presented by amendments to be voted on in the general election—are these:

1. Should Texas provide retirement benefits for its judges?
2. Should all county and precinct law enforcement officers receive salaries instead of being compensated on the fee basis?
3. Should counties be allowed to provide workmen's compensation insurance for their employees?

The voters will decide only the principle of judicial retirement—whether or not the legislature should set up a plan. Left entirely to legislative decision would be such specific details as compensation, length of service, age or disability, and reassignment to active duty where and when needed. The amendment covers judges and commissioners of appeals courts and judges of the district and criminal courts.

Advocates of the plan argue that additional incentive must be provided for those who sacrifice financial attractions of private practice to serve on the bench at a fixed salary.

Opponents contend that the state provides no retirement for any of its other elected officials.

The amendment is eighth on the ballot, listed as H. J. R. No. 39.

The proposed amendment replacing fees with salaries for all county and precinct law enforcement officers is self-enacting, requiring nothing more than a favorable vote to put it into effect.

It applies to all sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, county law enforcement officers including sheriffs who also perform the duties of assessor and collector of taxes, and their deputies, constables, deputy constables and precinct law enforcement officers.

Salaries are now mandatory only for county officers in counties of 20,000 or more population, commissioners' courts being empowered to choose between salaries or fees, in other cases.

The amendment is sixth on the ballot, listed as H. J. R. No. 36.

The workmen's compensation insurance proposal would authorize the legislature to set up laws to enable all counties to provide the insurance for their employees. The

TOUGH! JOB

Making a calendar for our earth is no cinch, and many people still are dissatisfied with our present arrangement. The trouble all lies in the fact that the day is our natural measure of time, but 365 and 242/1000 days, the time it takes the earth to go around the sun, cannot be divided easily.

"Punkin' Time

It is often a disappointment to see the summer season end. Flowers and leaves will soon be gone. Warm, sunny days will soon be replaced by cold, dreary ones. Outdoor activities will be few.

And yet, there are compensations. Who does not delight in tasting the first pumpkin pie of the season? And who does not enjoy tramping through brightly-colored autumn leaves? And then follows sleigh-riding in the snow, cozy evenings before an open fire; and then Spring again. Each season of the year brings new pleasures to replace the old ones.

Just as God gives us many and enduring blessings in the changing seasons, so does he offer us rich spiritual rewards. Month after month, season after season, and year after year, the Church stands ready and willing to give us comfort, hope, and inspiration. Great success or utter failure may await us. Either may be disastrous. We can better face the many changes in our daily living by attending the services of the Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Milby Of Houston's Record Is Smirched By Tie With Reagan

By The Associated Press
The calm weekend forecast for Texas schoolboy football might turn into a minor storm.
Milby of Houston received a big shock Thursday night when it was tied 13-13 by John Reagan of Houston in a City Conference game.
The result left just seven undefeated, untied teams in City Conference and Class AA action. There now are four unbeaten but tied teams, also play.
Adamson (Dallas) defeated North Dallas 18-13 in a Dallas District game Thursday night. Amon Carter-Riverside (Fort Worth) downed North Side (Fort Worth) 18-13, and Yalata dumped Cathedral (El Paso) 27-7.

Saturday's Battles May Produce Undisputed King In Southwest Loop Race

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor
An undisputed leader may emerge from the Southwest Conference football fireworks Saturday. Southern Methodist and Texas clash at Austin in the feature game, but there's one at Fort Worth Saturday night that is just as important. At least it is as important, or more so, for the Baylor Bears.

SMU, Texas and Baylor are undefeated in conference play. If Baylor fell to Texas Christian, which quite a few think will be the outcome, the winner of the Southern Methodist-Texas game would take over first place.

Two other games are scheduled but neither means anything in the championship race. Arkansas clashes with Texas A&M at College Station in the battle of eliminated teams. Mustangs Heavy Favorites

Rice, another eliminated outfit, rests from conference warfare and journeys to Lubbock to take on the tough Texas Tech Red Raiders of the Border Conference. Southern Methodist is rated a seven to ten-point favorite over twice-beaten Texas but there are plenty of takers. The Longhorns will be making their last bid for glory this season—the last chance to salvage one of their most disappointing seasons. A crowd of 68,000 will be there to see them do it.

Baylor and Texas Christian are rated even although Baylor's season record would indicate the Bears should be the favorites. They are the only unbeaten team in the conference and hold a victory over Arkansas, which licked Texas Christian.

This Week's Predictions
We hit four out of our last week and are feeling our oats. Here's how they look Saturday.
Texas vs Southern Methodist at Austin—There is no process of reasoning, on the basis of the season records, whereby Texas can be rated as having a real chance to win. Southern Methodist by two touchdowns.

Rice vs Texas Tech at Lubbock—a tight fight but Rice ought to break its losing ways here.
Arkansas vs Texas A&M at College Station—A good chance for the Aggies to halt their losing streak if they can stop Clyde Scott. We don't think they will, however; Arkansas by a touchdown.

Prisoner Shoots Way Out Of Guardhouse
SAN ANTONIO—(AP)—A suspected deserter fled the Kelly Air Force Base Thursday night in a running gun battle.
The 23-year-old man overpowered a guard at the Kelly Guardhouse, forced him to open an escape exit gate and locked the man in a cell, the Provost Marshal's office said.

The prisoner took the guard's pistol and rushed out of the guardhouse. A sentry challenged him and started firing when he refused to stop. The prisoner turned and fired twice at the sentry.
The prisoner was reported to be awaiting trial on a desertion charge. His home was listed as Rachel, W. Va.

NEGROES SCHEDULED ON SPY PROBERS' LIST
NEW YORK—(AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee plans to hold hearings within the next two months on alleged Communist infiltration into "certain negro organizations."
Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-N.J.), head of the committee, said all witnesses to be summoned and all investigators will be negroes.

YOKOHOMA—(AP)—Seven former Japanese admirals, including a grandson of the late Emperor Meiji, pleaded innocent to charges of robbing, torturing and murdering 800 survivors of torpedoed Allied ships.

They are among 43 members of the onetime Imperial Japanese Navy on trial before an Eighth Army Commission.

DOWN SPORTS LANE

Here is the 3-AA slate for Friday night: San Angelo at Midland, Sweetwater at Abilene, and Austin (El Paso) at Big Spring.
Here is how we see them: Midland, inspired and because of dedicating its new stadium, over San Angelo in a stunning upset; Sweetwater over Abilene, all the way; Austin over Big Spring, in a walk. Odessa and Lamesa are idle.

Just to give you a picture of how the manpower situation can be so unequal in this 3-AA family: Last Friday night when Lamesa was playing Sweetwater, the Lamesa team at one time had a 130-pound guard in the lineup against a 275-pound guard of the Sweetwater team.

In fact, both of the Lamesa guards together weighed 250 pounds as compared with the single weight of 275 pounds carried by Peoples, one Sweetwater guard.
Or if you would like to chart weights in the Midland-Sweetwater battle, the Midland guards weighed 145 and 150 pounds respectively as compared with the Mustang giants. In this game, Sweetwater outweighed Midland 19 pounds to the man overall and 21 pounds to the man in the line.

And Big Spring has a 119-pound quarterback.
San Angelo could field a 200-pound average team but does not because some of the "smaller" 175-pound boys are better than the big boys. Midland's heaviest player weighs 185 and that includes his suit and padding.

Odessa goes in for skill and speed rather than weight and always has. Bigger Broncho is 190-pound tackle Don Thompson.
Abilene is bulky with two tackles tipping the beams at 190 and 200 pounds respectively.

Larry Bacon, Bucknell University tackle, is an inventor as well as a football player, but the two activities are related.
The 206-pound lineman, who lost his left hand while serving with the U. S. Marines in the Marshall Islands in 1944, has designed a leather protector for one-handed football players.

After drawing up plans for the protector last year, Bacon sent the pattern to a sporting goods company and then this fall—wearing his own invention—made his return to the gridiron.

The Finnish city of Lahti, known for its ski jumping competitions every winter, tried ski jumping without snow this autumn.
The slide of one of the smaller jumps was carefully greased with wax and the lower part of the slope was covered with straw. Some 1,500 skeptical spectators gathered to see the experiment.

Twenty five experienced ski jumpers volunteered and the public was allowed to see the first one. The 180 feet of the record of the day was 200 feet, only six feet short of the best winter record on that jump.

The jumpers got good speed on the greased slide but met with resistance from the straw which caused some spectacular falls till they learned to overcome this handicap.
Lahti's ski jumping enthusiasts prophesied that the "snowless" ski jump would become as important to ski jumpers in the Summers as the swimming-pool is to swimmers during the winter.

Mines-Cowboy Meles Season's Grid Dish
EL PASO—(AP)—The gridiron dish of the season awaits Texas College of Mines homecoming Saturday night when Flyn' Freddie Wendt leads the Miners against Wilton (Hook) Davis and his Hardin-Simmons Cowboys.

The duel between the nation's top grossing rates almost equal billing with the battle between their respective teams—the undefeated Orediggers and once-beaten Ranchers from Abilene—in a crucial Border Conference tilt.

Pressure Of Coaching Unbeaten Teams Is Giving Catfish Smith Ulcers, Gray Hairs

Catfish Smith is getting ulcers and gray hairs but he looks at the records his football and basketball teams have made and asks: "Who the heck minds getting old?"
It's enough to put a guy in the booby hatch, this business of coaching unbeaten teams.

Mount Vernon High School hasn't lost a football or basketball game since the winter of 1946 and the pressure, says the lanky Catfish, is something terrific.

And now, here it is the middle of another football season and Mount Vernon has won seven straight. That makes 21 consecutive triumphs and the pressure is like trying to hold up a stone wall.

Catfish (his first name is Millburn) has been in the hospital on several occasions because of his ulcerated stomach. But he always has managed to follow the games—either by direct telephone connection or under strict surveillance of the hospital staff.

He may have to rest out a game or two in the hospital this season if the boys keep on winning. So what?
"You can't live forever," says Catfish, taking another swig from his milk bottle.

Willie Pep Heavy Favorite To Maul Challenger Saddler

NEW YORK—(AP)—Sandy Saddler's two-year chase of Willie Pep ends Friday night when he meets the featherweight champ for the title at Madison Square Garden. The books will give you 3 to 1 Sandy will be sorry.

Willie, a strong favorite, has been chased by Masters down through the years. In 136 fights only one has caught up with him. That was the old expert of the hit and clutch—Sammy Angott—away back in 1942.

The years may have slowed down Willie, now 26, but there is no proof. So far this year he has 18 Saddler's record, although impressive, does not compare with Pep's. Sandy has knocked out 31 of 93 foes but he's lost six times.

Russian Audiences Appreciate Wrong Things In U. S. Movies

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON — Movie Czar Eric Johnston, just back from successful selling trip in which he got Hollywood films re-admitted to Russia and Yugoslavia, says it's impossible to tell what pictures will be selected for showing behind the iron curtain. Reason is that it's impossible to tell what will be considered propaganda. He cites two cases. Russians captured film on "Grapes of Wrath" from Germans during the war. It was shown to prove how bad off American Okies were during the capitalistic depression. But what impressed the Russian audience was that the American "peasants" all rode off in their own cars. A news reel showing an American negro striker being beaten up by the police drew "Ohs" and "Ahs" from Russian audiences. But not for what you'd think. It was admiration for the high quality of the shoes which the victim wore. They showed up plainly in shot of the man stretched out on the sidewalk.

The GOP grapevine reports that Indiana Congressman Charlie Halleck has "got religion" and will support the Dewey program fully, throughout the coming administration. Halleck has been submitting drafts of his campaign speeches to Dewey headquarters for clearance. Dewey's stop-over in Halleck's home town of Rensselaer, Ind., completely won over the Republican House floor leader. This Dewey strategy for winning friends and influencing the right people is expected to be given a hard work-out on others to help put Dewey's policies across.

Competition For Wallace

Henry Wallace's statement that he will keep the Progressive Party organization together after election is a new line. Heretofore, Wallace has been telling his advisers that "He didn't know what he was going to do after election any more than Harry Truman or Tom Dewey did." Biggest competition to Wallace's new plan may come from Walter Reuther of United Auto Workers, CIO, who has previously announced he will back a new Labor Party for 1950 and 1952.

President Truman's ordering Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal to step up training of the reserves is now believed to have been largely a political maneuver. Its appeal was aimed at catching support from the hundreds and thousands of reserve officers who would benefit from such activity. Also, Truman was getting ready for his "non-political" speech to the American Legion convention at Miami, and the Legion has been plugging for this program.

Big catch in Truman's proposed reserve training program is that there isn't any money available to carry it out. Secretary Forrestal has now clamped on a gag, preventing all officers from discussing this subject. It will be opened up again on November 2, however. When the "Gray Board" report will be released, making recommendations for putting the National Guard under full federal control. This may give reserve training program a set-back. The National Guard has always been able to get plenty of federal money through Congress. The bigger the Guard appropriation, the less will be for the reserves.

Koch Hearings Off

Senate investigating committee's probe into the Ise Koch, "belle" of Buchenwald Nazi concentration camp trial, has now been delayed till after election. The committee wants to find out just why Frau Koch's sentence was reduced from life to four years. Michigan Senator Homer Ferguson, chairman of the committee, was hospitalized by pneumonia for a few weeks. After recovery he had to concentrate on his campaign for reelection against ex-Congressman Frank Hook. That caused postponement of public hearings.

Don't overlook the name of the late Wendell Willkie in passing out honors for creation of "bi-partisan" or "non-partisan" foreign policy. Governor Dewey has claimed credit for inventing this, and ex-Secretary of State Cordell Hull has challenged the claim. In the 1940 campaign Willkie took much the same stand as Roosevelt on foreign policy. Even after his defeat, Willkie spoke against the "leaders who betrayed this nation into isolation." He urged 1942 congressional candidates to "put war aims above politics." Then after his trip to Europe and Asia, Willkie's "One World" provided the first forthright statement for non-partisan foreign policy.

Watch 'Kabibble, For Ol' Ish Now Will Deal Double Dish

By ERIKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—Kabibble, Kay Kyser's celebrated comic trumpet player, has combed his hair and is making his straight acting debut in "Flamingo Road." He plays Joan Crawford's "blind date." He wants to alternate between Merwyn Bogus (his real name), the actor, and Ish, the slap-stick musician.

The Metropolitan Opera Co. is in conference with Hollywood hoping to present grand opera on the screen. I can see it now: "Grand opera and hot buttered popcorn."

Frank Veloz is trying to talk Rita Hayworth into playing Yolanda in a screen version of "The Veloz and Yolanda Story." But what's wrong with Yolanda? ... Esther Williams stands to make $50,000 on her "Williams" bathing-suit deal. ... Talking about certain Hollywood doll, Ed Gardner cracked: "She's got something beauty can't buy—money."

Colossal note: The figure-eight swimming pool at Cliff Henderson's Shadow Mountain Club, a new desert resort near Palm Springs, holds a half million gallons of water.

Sign in the office of Hollywood plastic surgeon Dr. Robert Alan Franklyn: "Don't ask us about Healy Lamarr's nose. Who knows?" Melvyn Douglas plays a slick cafe-owner in "The Great Sinner." When he asked Director Robert Siodmak to define his character, Siodmak said: "Play him like an 1860-ish Sherman Billingsley."

Preview reaction cards always ask the question: "Who gave the most outstanding performance?" The question brought this reply at a recent preview: "The horse that pulled the milk wagon."

I guess Crosby isn't worried, but Errol Flynn turns crooner for "Montana." The song: "I Reckon I'm Falling in Love." Errol tells me he wants to go to Australia in the Spring to film a picture of his own about pearl-fishing.

Guess Lynn Bari's new son is the only month-old in the U. S. with a bachelor apartment. Lynn and hubby are living in a three-room apartment until their new home is completed. She rented the apartment next door to the baby and maid.

A technical adviser showed Frank Morgan the correct squatting stance for his role as Jimmy Stewart's catcher in "The Stratton Story." "Fine," said Frank, "but tell me—how do I get up?"

Promised and hoped for: Red-haired Danny Kaye wearing a nightgown of blue flowered silk, in a four-poster bed, in technical color, for "Happy Times." ... Fox will re-issue two wartime films, "The Purple Heart" and "Guadalcanal Diary." ... Margaret O'Brien's next role will be based on the Violet character which appears in a national magazine series. She'll don horn-rimmed spectacles (Violet's trademark) for the role. Arthur Treacher's role of "Jeffers, the Butler" is being developed for a series of television shows.

Anita Colby, "the face" is on her way to Italy to marry a very wealthy man whose name she will not reveal. The reason for Anita's secrecy, I'm told, is that she heard that Arthur Judge would be on the same boat.

Two New York sponsors are after Dick Haymes to come to New York to star in his own half-hour television show. Dick is getting ready for television by reducing. He's already shed 20 pounds. ... Johnny Weissmuller did a "Mr. Hitch" on the Tom Mix airshow recently. The populace set guessed him the fourth day.

Senate Candidates Set Spending Mark In Ballot Campaign

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The law lets Senate candidates spend five times as much as those running for the House.

And with control of the Senate hanging in the balance of next Tuesday's election, the nationwide ratio is running just about that.

Preliminary campaign reports filed with Congress show the Republican and Democratic senatorial candidates laid out a total of $215,419 through last week. That figures out roughly to just under $3,600 each for the 60 candidates for the 33 seats being filed this year.

For the House, where all 435 places become vacant every two years, the spending has totaled $62,193—or a little over $738 for each of the 870 major party entries.

But just as the ding-dong Senate fight actually revolves around only 11 crucial contests, the actual spending by the various candidates has varied widely. Some, without opposition, reported no campaign costs at all.

Forer in Top Seven

By parties, Republican House candidates reported spending $428,286 to $216,925 for the Democrats. In the Senate races, GOP spending topped Democratic outlays by $112,835 to $95,884.

Among the top seven individual spenders, the division was six Republicans to one Democrat in the House races and five to two for the Senate.

Jack Porter, Republican candidate for the Senate in Texas, reported expenditures of $14,288 to land in the top seven.
